

"FLU" HAMPERS SELECTMEN IN THEIR BUSINESS

Chairman Hyde and Town
Treasurer Waddell III,
Only Routine Affairs Can Be Transacted.

The epidemic of grip colds, which is having an effect in nearly every business and industry in Manchester, seriously hampered the transaction of the town's business last night when Chairman John H. Hyde, of the Board of Selectmen, and Town Treasurer George H. Waddell, clerk of the board, were forced to be absent from the Selectmen's meeting. Chairman Hyde and Clerk Waddell are important cogs in the town's governmental machinery and their absence from a board meeting rendered it almost impossible to conduct other than routine affairs.

Hearings
Selectman Robert J. Smith acted as chairman last night and the other board members present were Thomas J. Rogers, W. W. Robertson, Wells A. Strickland, George E. Keith and Albert T. Jackson. Two hearings were scheduled for last night. The first was for the adoption of building and veranda lines on Williams street in the north end. The north side of Williams street is in reality the rear of the lots on Hudson street. Several barns are built along the street line. A 25 foot building and 15 feet veranda line was proposed, but Alexander Massey objected saying that such a line would bring any proposed houses too close together. The Selectmen voted a 15 feet building and veranda line on the north side and a 25 feet building 15 feet veranda line on the south side. They also laid curbing and sidewalk assessments against Cambridge street property owners.

Property owners on Windemere street in the Homestead Park section complained about the condition of the roads there and asked that the town accept some of the highways. The highway committee will investigate. Arthur A. Knofel's layout of the new Clearview tract between Middle Turnpike and Elizabeth Park was accepted.

Agreement
Town Counsel William S. Hyde furnished the Selectmen with a proposed agreement to be presented to property owners on Birch, Keeney streets and road and accepted by the property owners, will eliminate the probability of a lawsuit over the re-establishment of street lines in those two thoroughfares. The report of the Child Welfare committee was also accepted. The Selectmen voted to ignore the claim of Mrs. Everett

BIG WAVE STRIKES STEAMER MAJESTIC

One Dead, Several Hurt and Liner Badly Damaged
While in Mid Ocean.

New York, Jan. 16.—With one dead and several others injured, the White Star liner Majestic, the largest British steamship, limped into port today badly damaged by a mountainous wave that fairly engulfed her in mid-Atlantic Monday. So huge was the wave that it literally dropped on the ship, sending thousands of tons of water over it. The whole forward deck was smashed, plate glass windows were broken, steel cargo hoods were twisted as though they were matches.

Passengers Panicky.
Panic-stricken passengers rushed on deck, fearing the Majestic had struck an iceberg. Leonard Fiorini, third class cook, was tossed against a door and his neck broken. Other members of the crew and several passengers were injured. The Majestic was 12 hours late. She carried 1,171 passengers and a crew of 1,200. Her skipper is Captain W. Marshall. She left Southampton January 9.

Wave Stops Ship.
The big wave dropped on the ship Monday afternoon, the captain said. The ship was making good time, but as the wave hit her she came to a standstill. All the port lights were knocked out and the cargo machinery forward was wrecked.

The windows on the promenade deck were smashed. As this deck is the highest on the ship the size of the wave can be seen. The ship's bell which weighs over a ton was tossed 100 feet over a cook's galley and a steel cover on Hatch No. 1 was bent like the top of a sardine can.

Washington, Jan. 16.—With the United States pledged to renounce war and settle all future disputes peacefully, the Senate today turned to the administration's plan for increasing the strength of the American Navy.

"Treaty or no treaty, America's Navy must be prepared for war," was in effect the slogan adopted by the administration leaders who just finished securing ratification of the Kellogg-Briand multi-lateral anti-war compact. The naval bill would authorize the construction of fifteen new fast cruisers and a gigantic aircraft carrier, the largest increase of the naval establishment proposed since the Harding disarmament conference.

Proponents of the bill declared the new warships would not place America on the 5-5-3 naval ratio with Great Britain, but would merely enable the Navy to replace some worn-out obsolete cruisers, which would be of little use in event of war. The opposition, however, will fight the proposed increase on the ground that it means launching the United States on a Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 16.—A purported plot to sink the privately owned submarine Defender by cutting a hawser attaching the submarine to the naval rescue ship Mallard was exploded early today when Lieutenant-Commander Paul H. Dunbar, skipper of the Mallard, announced that several strands of the hawser had been cut accidentally by a snow shovel and that no sabotage had been committed.

At the conclusion of an inquiry held late last night to determine whether United States sailors on board the Mallard had deliberately cut the strands, Lieut.-Commander Dunbar cleared all members of the crew of responsibility. He caught the 12:21 a. m. train for Washington to make his report to the Navy Department.

Writes Verse On Walks Trying To Make Living

London, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Mercy Lahane-Willis, a 30-year-old English woman, who, under various pen names, has written more than 20 novels, has joined the ranks of London's "pavement artists." She has adopted her new calling not because she expects it to pay better than literature, but because of adverse financial circumstances. Near the church of Saint Martin-in-the-Fields, amid the bustle of West end London, she daily takes up her position on the sidewalk to draw and inscribe verses in an attempt to woo coppers from charitably inclined passers-by.

IS IT GOOD OR BAD? DRY LAW'S BIRTHDAY HERE ARE TWO ANSWERS.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Today is the ninth anniversary of Constitutional Prohibition. The International News Service asked Senator William Cabell Bruce (D) Maryland, one of the outstanding foes of prohibition, and Senator Morris Sheppard (D) of Texas, one of the authors of the 18th Amendment, to express their views on this great question nine years "after."

BY WILLIAM CABELL BRUCE.
Washington, Jan. 16.—Prohibition experimentation has been prolonged enough to warrant the conclusion that, if prohibition is ever enforced, it can only be by the adoption of a much more elaborate and highly organized system of repression than the present one.

To establish this fact, it is not necessary to cite police statistics showing that arrests for drunkenness in the principal cities and towns of the United States, have steadily mounted up since 1920. These statistics have for some time been assembled and brought to the attention of the public in the annual reports of the Moderation League. Nor is it necessary for us to bring forward anew the statistical evidence proving that deaths from alcoholic insanity, and prosecutions for violations of the Volstead Act, have also appallingly increased since 1920.

Lawlessness Rampant.
Nor need we mention the ever-recurring illustration of the lawlessness, social demoralization and official corruption bred by prohibition which the press teems from day to day.

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt has just told us that the amount of liquor smuggled from Canada into this country increased 75 per cent; and that a day ago Mr. Whalen, the new police commissioner of New York City has reported as having the number of speakeasies in the five boroughs of that city at 20,000.

Proof of Failure.
To demonstrate what a failure prohibition enforcement has been we need only point to the recent feversh activities, nine years after the enactment of the Volstead act, of the Anti-Saloon league and all its allied associations, and the fanatical enforcement measures which they are promoting or defending, such as the classification of infractions of the Volstead act, including purchases of liquor, at

FOCH WEAKER; HEART ACTION IS IRREGULAR

Doctors Administer Injections of Camphorated Oil;
Early Bulletin Says His
Condition is Stationary.

Paris, Jan. 16.—The heart action of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, France's famous stricken soldier, became so irregular this afternoon that the attending doctors administered injections of camphorated oil.

"This treatment must continue indefinitely," said Dr. Daveniere. "Only little by little can the marshal regain his strength."

Prof. Andre, medical adviser to Marshal Foch during the war, arrived at the Foch home today in an advisory capacity. He accompanied Marshal Foch on his American tour about seven years ago.

EARLY BULLETIN

Paris, Jan. 16.—The condition of Marshal Foch, now suffering from heart trouble aggravated by kidney disorders, was practically unchanged today.

The physicians attending him, Drs. Daveniere and Heitz-Boyer, issued the following bulletin this morning: "There has been no decline. The patient's condition is stationary."

The predicaments of the famous French soldier and King George, of England, are somewhat similar, although they are suffering from different types of illness. Both are weakened and the doctors are battling against exhaustion.

Doctor's Statement

Dr. Daveniere told International News Service: "The marshal has won one day, but let us not be too optimistic. We have no right to be. His robust constitution has withstood many shocks, but his present illness is serious and demands constant attention."

It is understood that Georges Clemenceau, wartime premier of France, who is suffering from the grip, is more than halting his own, although his advanced age is a discouraging factor to be considered.

WESTERN ENGINEER SEC. OF INTERIOR

Hoover to Appoint Louis S.
Cates—Is Endorsed by Senator Smoot.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The next Secretary of the Interior quite probably will be Louis S. Cates, Utah mining engineer.

The post is going to a westerner. That much already has been determined. President-Elect Hoover has informed callers that he plans to appoint to this office a man who is familiar with the problems of the far west, and who has had actual experience in working them out.

Backed by Westerners.
Cates, general manager of the Utah Copper Co., has the backing of most of the far western Republicans in Washington. His appointment has been advocated by Senator Smoot of Utah, a powerful figure in the Senate; by Senator Odell of Nevada, and by other outstanding Republicans of the Rocky Mountain region, in whose judgment the president-elect has considerable confidence.

The appointment of an engineer to the secretaryship of interior is peculiarly appropriate in the new administration if for no other reason than that one of the greatest engineering projects of all times—Boulder Dam—is to be undertaken and completed during the next administration. Mr. Hoover wants the responsible Cabinet officer to be a man familiar and sympathetic with the engineering problems of this vast enterprise.

Big Parade Keeps Up.
The big parade of visitors to Hoover headquarters showed no signs of slackening today. A score of callers had engagements. Most of them were from Congress, and among them were Senators Jones of Wash., Edge of New Jersey, Robinson of Indiana, Brookhart of Iowa, Representatives Welch of Calif., Kahn of Calif., Hadley of Wash., Bowman of W. V., Lintchman of Maryland, Leavitt of Montana, Hall of Illinois, Leitch of New Jersey, Britton of Illinois, Johnson of Wash., Cooper of Ohio, Hoch of Kansas, Johnson of South Dakota, and Mapes of Michigan.

DRY PROBE NECESSARY SAYS PRESIDENT ELECT

Report 400 Are Lost
As Big Liner Sinks

London, Jan. 16.—The Chinese steamer Hsin Wah, with 400 passengers and crew aboard, foundered in heavy seas off Hong Kong, according to a Central News dispatch from that port today.

It is feared that only twenty of those aboard were saved. Tugs are now scouring the scene of the disaster for survivors.

STATE RESTS CASE AT MARSH'S TRIAL

Defense of Thrill Killer is
That He Was Insane at the
Time of Murder.

Courtroom, Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16.—The state rested at noon today in the life trial of George R. Harsh, confessed "thrill" slayer.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16.—Fate of George Harsh, confessed "thrill" murderer, may be in the hands of a jury tonight.

This possibility was seen today at the opening of the second day's session of the wealthy youth's trial for the slaying of Willard Smith here in October.

It was learned from prosecution counsel that the state probably will end its testimony today, and then the defense will have its turn.

Insanity Plea.
Every indication pointed to the defense offering an insanity plea, as they had a battery of alienist hands to testify who have made exhaustive tests of the erstwhile Oglethorpe University sophomore.

Harsh is yet to face trial on another indictment—the "thrill" murder of S. H. Meeks, a grocery clerk. It was not known when his trial on this count will be called.

The youth's alleged accomplice, Richard Gallogly, scion of a southern family, will be tried for the Smith and Meeks murders beginning January 29.

The state's theory of robbery and murder in the Willard slaying, inspired by a pressing need of money, was built today. The prosecution tried to show that this scion of a millionaire family was often short of funds.

With the state's case certain to close before noon, the defense, it was indicated, will attack this structure of theory and fact with the theory of its own.

That Harsh is mentally irresponsible and that when he went abroad with his Army Colt's automatic, adventuring, robbing and slaying, he was driven by the demon of a dual personality, the creature of a brain unbalanced by the infection of disease.

Solemn and composed Harsh entered the courtroom this morning, ten minutes before the start of the day's session. From the shadows under his eyes, it appeared that last night had been one of poor sleeping for him.

Writes Verse On Walks Trying To Make Living

London, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Mercy Lahane-Willis, a 30-year-old English woman, who, under various pen names, has written more than 30 novels, has joined the ranks of London's "pavement artists." She has adopted her new calling not because she expects it to pay better than literature, but because of adverse financial circumstances. Near the church of Saint Martin-in-the-Fields, amid the bustle of West end London, she daily takes up her position on the sidewalk to draw and inscribe verses in an attempt to woo coppers from charitably inclined passers-by.

IS IT GOOD OR BAD?
DRY LAW'S BIRTHDAY
HERE ARE TWO ANSWERS.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Today is the ninth anniversary of Constitutional Prohibition. The International News Service asked Senator William Cabel Bruce (D) Maryland, one of the outstanding foes of prohibition, and Senator Morris Sheppard (D) of Texas, one of the authors of the 18th Amendment, to express their views on this great question nine years "after."

BY WILLIAM CABEL BRUCE.
Washington, Jan. 16.—Prohibition experimentation has been prolonged enough to warrant the conclusion that, if prohibition is ever enforced, it can only be by the adoption of a much more elaborate and highly organized system of repression than the present one.

To establish this fact, it is not necessary to cite police statistics showing that arrests for drunkenness in the principal cities and towns of the United States, have steadily mounted up since 1920, the first full year of prohibition. These statistics have for some time been assembled and brought to the attention of the public in the annual reports of the Moderation League. Nor is it necessary for us to bring forward anew the statistical evidence proving that deaths from alcoholic insanity, and prosecutions for violations of the Volstead Act, have also appallingly increased since 1920.

Lawlessness Rampant.
Nor need we mention the ever-recurring illustration of the lawlessness, social demoralization and official corruption bred by prohibition with which the press teems from day to day.

14 KILLED IN CRASH

Bucharest, Jan. 16.—Fourteen persons were killed and forty others were severely injured in a collision between two crack trains at Prusnita, near Turnu Severin.

The Temesvar (Rumania)-Paris Express was derailed near the Prusnita station. A few minutes later, the Temesvar-Bucharest Express came thundering down the tracks past danger signals and crashed into the derailed train. Fire added to the horror of the tragedy.

FOCH WEAKER; HEART ACTION IS IRREGULAR

Doctors Administer Injections of Camphorated Oil;
Early Bulletin Says His
Condition is Stationary.

Paris, Jan. 16.—The heart action of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, France's famous stricken soldier, became so irregular this afternoon that the attending doctors administered injections of camphorated oil.

"This treatment must continue indefinitely," said Dr. Daveniere. "Only little by little can the marshal regain his strength."

Prof. Andre, medical adviser to Marshal Foch during the war, arrived at the Foch home to act in an advisory capacity. He accompanied Marshal Foch on his American tour about seven years ago.

EARLY BULLETIN
Paris, Jan. 16.—The condition of Marshal Foch, now suffering from heart trouble aggravated by kidney disorders, was practically unchanged today.

The physicians attending him, Drs. Daveniere and Heitz-Boyer, issued the following bulletin this morning: "There has been no decline. The patient's condition is stationary."

The predicaments of the famous French soldier and King George, of England, are somewhat similar, although they are suffering from different types of illness. Both are weakened and the doctors are battling against exhaustion.

WESTERN ENGINEER SEC. OF INTERIOR

Hoover to Appoint Louis S.
Cates—Is Endorsed by Senator Smoot.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The next Secretary of the Interior quite probably will be Louis S. Cates, Utah mining engineer.

The post is going to a westerner. That much already has been determined. President-Elect Hoover has informed callers that he plans to appoint to this office a man who is familiar with the problems of the far west, and who has had actual experience in working them out.

Backed by Westgrazers.
Cates, general manager of the Utah Copper Co., has the backing of most of the far western Republicans in Washington. His appointment has been advocated by Senator Smoot of Utah, a powerful figure in the Senate; by Senator Odie of Nevada, and by other outstanding Republicans of the Rocky Mountain region, in whose judgment the president-elect has considerable confidence.

The appointment of an engineer to the secretaryship of interior is peculiarly appropriate in the new administration if for no other reason than that one of the greatest engineering projects of all time—Boulder Dam—is to be undertaken and completed during the next administration. Mr. Hoover wants the responsible Cabinet officer to be a man familiar and sympathetic with the engineering problems of this vast enterprise.

Big Parade Keeps Up.
The big parade of visitors to Hoover headquarters showed no signs of slackening today. A score of callers had engagements. Most of them were from Congress, and among them were Senators Jones of Wash., Edge of New Jersey, Robinson of Indiana, Brookhart of Iowa, Representatives Welch of Calif., Kahn of Calif., Hadley of Wash., Bowman of W. Va., Lathrop of Maryland, Leavitt of Montana, Hall of Illinois, Lehibach of New Jersey, Britton of Illinois, Johnson of Wash., Cooper of Ohio, the Hon. Charles Johnson of South Dakota, and Mages of Michigan.

DRY PROBE NECESSARY SAYS PRESIDENT ELECT

Report 400 Are Lost
As Big Liner Sinks

London, Jan. 16.—The Chinese steamer Hsin Wah, with 400 passengers and crew aboard, foundered in heavy seas off Hong Kong, according to a Central News dispatch from that port today.

It is feared that only twenty of those aboard were saved. Tugs are now scouring the scene of the disaster for survivors.

The Hsin Wah was a steamer of 1,940 tons. The steamer was bound from Shanghai to Hong Kong. Twenty passengers in a life-boat were rescued by a Chinese junk. The ship sank only a few minutes after the mountainous seas began pouring into its hold, the dispatcher for survivors.

STATE RESTS CASE AT MARSH'S TRIAL

Defense of Thrill Killer is
That He Was Insane at the
Time of Murder.

Courtroom, Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16.—The state rested at noon today in the trial of George R. Harsh, confessed "thrill" slayer.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16.—Fate of George Harsh, confessed "thrill" murderer, may be in the hands of a jury tonight.

This possibility was seen today at the opening of the second day's session of the wealthy youth's trial for the slaying of Willard Smith here in October.

It was learned from prosecution counsel that the state probably will end its testimony today, and then the defense will have its turn.

Insanity Plea.
Every indication pointed to the defense offering an insanity plea, but let us not be too optimistic. We have no right to be. His robust constitution has withstood many shocks, but his present illness is serious and demands constant attention.

It is understood that Georges Giomocaru, wartime premier of France, who is suffering from the grip, is more than halting his own, although his advanced age is a discouraging factor to be considered.

STATE'S EMPLOYMENT

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 16.—The monthly report of his six free employment bureaus was issued here today by Harry E. Mackenzie, state labor commissioner, showing that in December jobs had been furnished to 2,855 out of 4,253 persons applying for work, or 67.1 per cent, as compared with 69 per cent in November. Women fared better than men, 1,485 getting jobs out of 1,850 applying. Out of 2,403 men, 1,370 found work.

Stanford took care of 231 men and 193 women, a total of 424, by giving jobs to 138 men and 134 women, a total of 272.

Mr. Hoover So Convinced That Investigation is Needed That One of His First Acts After He Takes Office Will Be to Appoint a Commission to Conduct the Inquiry.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Herbert Hoover is so convinced of the necessity of a sweeping, impartial investigation of prohibition that one of his first acts after entering the White House will be to appoint the citizens commission of nine to conduct the inquiry.

Already the President-Elect is giving much thought to the personnel of the commission.

The investigation was discussed by Mr. Hoover today with Senators Jones (R) of Washington, a dry, and Edge (R) of New Jersey, a wet. They have sponsored a resolution authorizing the President-Elect to appoint the commission.

Has Authority
After the conference, Jones and Edge announced they would not press the adoption of the resolution because Mr. Hoover feels that as president he will have sufficient authority to name the investigational body without previous Congressional action. In this respect, Mr. Hoover pointed to appointment by President Coolidge of the Morrow board to investigate aviation.

Jones explained that after the commission is appointed the special session of Congress in mid-April can appropriate the money for it to function.

To Cover Everything
Mr. Hoover is anxious to have the inquiry cover all phases of prohibition even to the question of general violations, to determine whether abuses under the law are inherent in the Volstead Act itself, Jones declared.

Members of the commission will set to snopose in most porous a country in order to give an impartial cross-section of national opinion and views.

Jones and Edge expressed themselves entirely satisfied with the purposes of the President-Elect has in mind.

Farm Relief Again
The farm relief question came up for consideration again when Mr. Hoover discussed the subject with Senator Brookhart (R) of Iowa.

Brookhart said the House agriculture committee could meet early and have a farm bill prepared for the special session.

"I look for farm legislation stronger than proposed in the modified McNary-Hansen bill," Brookhart asserted. "An equalization fee isn't necessary as there will be an export corollary to handle the surpluses. I also look for a strengthening of the cooperative marketing system."

Charles D. Hillies, Republican national committee man from New York, was a breakfast guest at Mr. Hoover's home. Ogden Mills, under-secretary of treasury, had dinner last night with the President-elect. It was understood Mr. Hoover discussed with them the New York situation, particularly with reference to patronage. There have been sharp differences among the New York factions because, prior to the convention, Hillies held out against Mr. Hoover's nomination.

FAMILY IS WIPED OUT IN N. Y. TENEMENT FIRE

Six Persons Dead, Three Injured and 100 Families Are Made Homeless.

New York, Jan. 16.—Six persons, five of them believed to be members of the same family, were burned to death early today in a "spectacular fire which gutted a five-story tenement house on East 112th street and ravaged two adjoining tenements. Several other residents and one fireman were injured, but will recover. One hundred families were made homeless.

THIS TURTLE LIVED YEARS AGO.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—A fossil of a hitherto unknown species that lived and died 19,000,000 years ago and was decorated with a mystic carving on its shell when it was dug up in China 4,000 years ago, aroused the interest of distinguished scientists in three departments of the Field Museum of Natural History here today.

The fossil was found in Shen-Su Province, China, where turtles are regarded as sacred.

FAMILY TO BATTLE FOR DOROTHY RUTH

But "Babe" Says They Will Never Get Her; Foul Play
Theory Fades.

Boston, Jan. 16.—Promising a "red hot exposure" of George Herman "Babe" Ruth after the funeral of his wife, members of Mrs. Ruth's family today prepared to battle in the courts with the "Home Run King" for the possession of sweet, little Dorothy Ruth.

"Never. I'll stand for almost anything but that. You can never have Dorothy—that much I'll tell you right now. This was what the aristocratic baseball player was quoted as telling his sister-in-law, Mrs. Joanna McCarthy.

Petitions to the courts were prepared, asking for the custody of the eight-year-old girl that Ruth has claimed was his own child but whom others claim was adopted in Brooklyn, N. Y. Ruth's friends predicted that he would reach an amicable understanding regarding the future of Dorothy.

No Foul Play.
Suggestions that Mrs. Ruth met death as the result of foul play faded today. Reports of a wound on the front of her scalp were denied by physicians who examined the body. Medical Examiner George B. McGrath had completed his second autopsy and was understood to have found no trace of violence, poison or drugs. This was the same finding of Medical Examiner George L. West, of Middlesex county, who stated after the first autopsy that Mrs. Ruth died from accidental suffocation and incineration. The McGrath report was for District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex county.

BANK INCORPORATORS IN ANNUAL MEETING

Officers and Directors of Savings Bank of Manchester Are Re-Elected.

Twelve of the incorporators of the Savings Bank of Manchester attended the annual meeting yesterday afternoon at 3:30 at the bank's office. Frank Cheney, Jr., the president, presided.

The report of the treasurer showed that the bank was in an exceptionally prosperous condition and that the last year was one of the best it had ever enjoyed.

The following officers were elected: President, Frank Cheney, Jr.; treasurer, R. La Motte Russell; secretary, Thomas C. Clarke.

The old board of directors was re-elected, as follows: H. C. Alford, J. M. Burke, George W. Ferris, William Foulds, Jr., Charles W. Holman, W. S. Hyde, Aaron Johnson, E. G. Seaman, F. A. Verplanck, C. Elmore Watkins.

PLAYS JUDAS PART ALL OVER NATION

Miss Helen J. Sloane Has Given Characterization in Many Cities.

The interpretation of Judas Iscariot from the time he becomes a disciple of the Master until the time he betrays Him and then repenting, hangs himself, given in 11 scenes by Miss Helene Johnstone Sloane at the High school assembly hall, should prove very interesting to anyone interested in Biblical characterizations. Miss Sloane has presented this impersonation throughout the country as far south as Florida and Texas and as far north as Fairbanks, Alaska, and also over radio stations in Chicago, Ill.; Dallas, Texas, and Kansas City, Mo. In the season of 1927-28 Miss Sloane filled 81 engagements playing in some cities as many as nine times.

Miss Helene Johnstone Sloane

The impersonation is from the text of the famous Oberammergau Passion Play, Miss Sloane having actual knowledge of the play and players through her association with them when she lived in the Bavarian village for the purpose of study and observation. The entertainment, sponsored by the Men's Friendship club of the South Methodist church, will begin promptly at 8:15.

REDUCE TEACHERS COURSES TO ONE

Sickness Widespread and Interest Seems to Center on One Bible Study.

Professor Karl R. Stolz of the Hartford School of Religious Education, will be the sole teacher of this year's teacher training institute which opened at Center church last evening. Owing to illness which is so widespread, only about 30 attended the first session and as the majority expressed a preference to study the life of Christ, it was decided this season to eliminate the usual courses and have one large class. The other teachers engaged consented to withdraw from previous arrangements.

MYSTIC REVIEW SEATS ITS OFFICERS FOR 1929

Mystic Review, Woman's Benefit association seated its officers for 1929 at a regular meeting held last night in Odd Fellows hall. A delicious supper was served in the banquet hall at 6:30 by Mrs. Ida Gilman and her associates on the committee. Mrs. Annie McKeegan, Margaret Kellner, and Mrs. Richard Gutzmer. The decorations were red carnations which were used afterwards as each officer was given her charge. The meal consisted of hot dishes of spaghetti, meat and tomato, scalloped potatoes, cold ham, relishes, rolls, coffee, ginger bread and whipped cream.

The guest of honor was Miss Rose Miller of Pawtucket, R. I., deputy supreme commander, who spoke during the evening on the work of the association and invited the members to attend the district session with Loyal Review at East Hartford, Thursday evening.

Two candidates were initiated and the officers were installed by Past President Mrs. Grace Lathrop assisted by Mrs. Carrie Samlow of Hartford and Mrs. Margaret Griffin as ladies of ceremony. The new officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Emma Franz; vice president, Mrs. Pauline Berrett; past president, Mrs. Grace Best; secretary, Mrs. Alice Hunter; treasurer, Mrs. Emma Hussey; collector, Mrs. Julia Rawson; chaplain, Mrs. Ida Gilman; lady of ceremonies, Mrs. Richard Gutzmer; press correspondent, Mrs. Cyrus Tyler; musician, Mrs. Ada Peckham; officer of the day, Mrs. Margaret McCourt; sergeant, Mrs. Margaret Kellner; inside sentinel, Mrs. Quinn; outside sentinel, Mrs. Cora Wheaton; captain of guards, Mrs. Ruth Waddell; color bearers, Miss Irene and Miss Helen Griffin.

The regular children's clinic, which is held at the Manchester Memorial hospital each Thursday, will be omitted tomorrow.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Mrs. Laura M. Avery
Mrs. Laura M. Avery, widow of the late Frank Avery, died last evening at the home of her son, Ralph B. Avery, 123 Euclid street, Hartford. Mr. Avery was for many years president of the Wapping Creamery association and the family lived for years in the east wing of the White property, now the Manchester Community clubhouse.

Mrs. Avery was born in Wapping 31 years ago. She was a charter member of Wapping Grange. For many years she had been a member of the First Congregational church, East Hartford, where with her younger children she lived after Mr. Avery's death. She leaves four daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Foster of Henry street this town; Mrs. George I. Watson of Wetfield, Mrs. Wilson A. Fenn of West Hartford, Mrs. J. T. Jones of Chicago, Ill., two sons, Fred H. Avery and Ralph B. Avery, both of Hartford, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the funeral home of Morrison W. Hanson, 749 Albany avenue, Hartford. Burial will be in the family plot in the Wapping cemetery.

Augustus C. Carney
Augustus C. Carney, 67, one of the oldest tobacco growers in point of service in East Hartford, died at his home on Main street, near the road to South Windsor, yesterday afternoon. His father, the late Lawrence Carney, went to East Hartford from South Windsor when "Gus" was a boy and started raising tobacco. The family was prominent in East Hartford until death removed its various members.

Mr. Carney was one of the organizers of the East Hartford fire department and was a trustee of No. 2 company at the time of his death.

He is survived by his wife and two nieces, one being Mrs. William Mulchaey of Hilltown. The funeral will be held at St. Mary's church, East Hartford Friday morning.

Mr. Carney, although having no relatives of that name in Manchester, was well known here and was active in the Modern Woodman and also the A. O. H.

FUNERALS

Joseph Zaccaro
The funeral of Joseph Zaccaro was held at his late home on Charter Oak street at 8:30 this morning and at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. P. Killen was the celebrant. Rev. J. Timmins, the deacon and Rev. E. Moriarty, sub-deacon. As the body was brought into the church the choir sang "Thy Will Be Done." At the offertory Mrs. Margaret Sullivan sang "O Salutaris." At the end of the mass, Mrs. Sullivan sang "Face to Face."

The bearers were Robert Moilan, John Zaccaro, Charles Crockett, George Duplaise, Nicholas Marcantonio, Albert Chagnot. The last four of the bearers represented the local court of Foresters. There was a large attendance at the service in the church and the flowers were numerous. The body was placed in the vault in St. James' cemetery.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Elizabeth Golway of Golway street, left today for St. Cloud, Florida, where she will spend the winter.

Simon Hildebrand of 94 Spruce street is seriously ill with the grip.

The Town Players will hold a rehearsal of "The Poor Nut" at the Circle theater tonight at 7:00. Tickets for the play may be purchased from the cast or from members of Group 2, High school seniors or at the School street Rec.

Arthur E. St. John of East Center street, general manager of the Oakland Nurseries, which are affiliated with the Burr Nursery Company, was today re-elected secretary and treasurer of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association which is holding its annual meeting in Hartford. Alexander Cummings of Bristol was re-elected president and Neil Millane of Middletown, vice-president.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Lapp of 348 North Main street are confined to their home recovering from influenza. Their daughter, Bertha, who has been suffering from a severe cold, was able to resume her duties at the High school today.

Employees of the Park Board this afternoon started clearing off the pond at the Center Springs Park and the rink will be opened for skating tonight as usual. Frank Walleit expects to have Earl Levell of Hartford at the rink tonight. He will give exhibitions of fancy skating and barrel jumping. The preliminary races in the elimination of local skaters preparatory to the carnival on January 27 will be held this evening.

John Zaldera of the Eagle Tailor Shop is confined to his bed with grip.

The final rehearsal of the Hartford professionals who are to give a concert at the Hollister street school for the benefit of the Manchester section of the National Council of J-wish Women will be held at the home of Mrs. S. H. Gellen tonight at 8:00. Miss Esther Barabarae of Manchester will act as accompanist at the concert.

CENTER CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING TOMORROW

Supper at 6 p. m., to Precede Annual Business Session; The Program.

The annual meeting and supper of the Center Congregational church will be held tomorrow evening. The supper will be served at six o'clock. It will be in charge of Miss Mary Hutchinson, Mrs. Edna Case Parker, Mrs. Gertrude Purcell and Miss Bertha Mohr. The tickets are being distributed by a committee headed by Mrs. George Smith.

Following the supper the annual reports of the church will be read and there will be two addresses. Clarence P. Quimby representing the men and Mrs. James Irvine representing the women. R. LaMotte Russell will describe the building committee's plans for a church annex. The minister's annual report will conclude the program.

CHANGES IN SCHEDULE AT RECREATION CENTER

Several changes in the schedule of women's activities go into effect with the opening of the new term tonight. It was announced today by Miss Viola Lalonde, associate director of the Recreation Centers.

Miss Lalonde hopes that all persons whose memberships have expired will rejoin and that even more interest will be taken in the activities during the closing months of the winter season. Twelve more lessons are to be given those desiring instruction in swimming, to be counted from the time of enrollment. The classification chart system which proved so popular will be continued.

Miss Lalonde says that the Recreation Center provides more facilities than can be found in many of the larger towns and cities throughout the country and added that she hopes more will take advantage of the facilities afforded here. At present there are 349 women members of the Rec.

One of the important changes in the women's and boys' schedule is the addition of a boys' clog dancing class which will start at 8:45 tomorrow afternoon, at the West Side Rec and continue until 4:30. Miss Lalonde gave out the following schedule today for publication showing the new changes which have been made. It follows:

WOMEN'S LEAGUE HEARS MRS. HERBERT K. SMITH

Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith of Farmington, regional director of the National League of Women Voters was the principal speaker at the January meeting of the Manchester League, held yesterday at Center Congregational church. Guests were present from Hebron and Bolton leagues.

Mrs. Smith discussed the different problems the league members have taken upon themselves for study and discussion the present year, which include backward children, jury duty for women, women in industry, women in legislation, world peace pact and other subjects. She is an unusually able speaker and her views on these important and timely matters were illuminating and her every word received the closest attention. The officers entertained the members. Mrs. Richard G. Rich poured the tea and sandwiches, waters and candies were served.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL BURNS

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Damage estimated at $200,000 was caused here today when fire destroyed the St. Matthew's parochial school. The fire, which was of undetermined origin, started before classes opened and no one was injured.

L. C. B. A. INSTALLATION HELD LAST EVENING

The Ladies Catholic Benevolent association met last evening at the Hotel Sheridan and installed its officers for 1929. Mrs. Eleanor McCann, past president, was the installing officer, and the women who will serve in the different chairs are: President, Mrs. Jennie Sheridan; First Vice President, Miss Clara Gallagher; Second Vice President, Miss Mary Gorman; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Catherine Gorman; Financial Secretary, Mrs. Mary Peckham; Treasurer, Mrs. Julia Sheridan; Guide, Mrs. Catherine McCann; Marshal, Mrs. Catherine McCann.

Following the ceremony the members played whist. Mrs. Julia Sheridan won first prize and Mrs. Peckham the consolation. Another amusing feature of the program was the telling of embarrassing experiences, actual happenings of the days of the hoop skirts, the bustle and the hobble skirt. The best story was adjudged to be that told by one of the young women, who while crossing the street and wearing a hobble skirt, misjudged the distance between the highway and the curb as she stepped toward the sidewalk and fell in the gutter unable to arise until two men came to her assistance. She told of their efforts to conceal their amusement, and the picture she drew of the episode was so realistic it brought forth peals of laughter from the other women. The program closed with the Highland fling dance by Miss Julia Gallagher. Mrs. Mary Peckham headed the committee of ladies in charge and they served salads, sandwiches, cake, coffee and ice cream.

The association has decided to run a series of card parties, details of which will be given out later.

EXCHANGE CUTS RATE ON FIRE INSURANCE

Reductions of 10 Per Cent and 5 Per Cent for This Vicinity Announced.

In a correction sheet of the Hartford County East of the New England Insurance Exchange with headquarters in Boston, the announcement is made under date of January 14, effective as of that date, that in all the section lying east of the Connecticut River in Hartford county rates are subject to a 10 per cent discount on buildings and a 5 per cent discount on contents, with a few specific exceptions. The reduction applies to dwellings and nearly all special risks in Manchester and vicinity.

Policies written and effective previous to January 14, will not be subject to the reduction, but should an agent have mailed a policy to one of his policy holders before that date, to become effective after upon January 14, that policy is subject to the reduction as announced, but policies in force and cancelled must be cancelled on the rate on which they were written previous to January 14, 1929.

The exceptions relate to those cases cared for by the improved risk department, risks rated by the summer hotel committee, ice houses, sheds and barns of ice houses. Risks listed as fire proof construction or with fire proof shingles, which have already been favored, farms of minimum rates, dwelling apartments and garages in congested sections, which have already been rated, and the minimum for special locations.

These changes apply to all insurance companies represented in Manchester.

PROSPECTS OF POLISH CHURCH SEEM REMOTE

Number of Interested Persons Has Decreased—Difficult to Raise Money for Proposition.

No progress has been made towards the incorporation of the independent Polish Catholic church here, it has been learned. The original number of 150 families which the promoters first enlisted has decreased and the number is now around forty.

An effort to raise money has not met with much success. With 150 families each donating or subscribing to stock in the new church they would have been able to start with a $15,000 capital paid in, less the expenses of the incorporation which would cost them in the vicinity of $100 more. The plan at first was to buy the North Methodist church, but there seems no real reason to believe that there is likely to be a federation between the Second Congregational and the North Methodist church, which might leave the latter church on the market.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM AT LUTHERAN CHURCH

A very attractive program has been arranged for the supper and entertainment given by the combined Men's and Ladies' society of the Swedish Lutheran church on Saturday night. Speakers will be Rev. Julius Hulteen, pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church of Hartford and Dr. Abel Ahlquist, pastor of the New Britain Lutheran church. The G. G. Gies club under the direction of Helge Pearson will give a short concert followed by a comedy sketch, featuring Fred Soderberg and Clarence "Whitney" Anderson. Miss Helen Berggren, contralto soloist, will sing a variety of numbers.

The program will begin at 8:00 after which supper is to be served. The congregation is cordially invited to be present.

WOMAN'S POEM TELLS POCOTOPAUG LEGEND

Mrs. Olive Clark of Hebron Author of Brochure of Keel Locality Interest.

(Special to The Manchester Herald)

Hebron, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Olive Adella Clark of this town is the author of a booklet entitled, "Lak Pocotopaug, Moods, History, and Legend." The booklet is written in the style of Longfellow's "Hawa-ia," and gives in a manner combining fancy, history and legend much of the local lore which clings about East Hampton's beautiful lake.

The Indian meaning of the word Pocotopaug is "Clear Water," as the poem states. An interesting account of Indian ownership is given from records of the Mattabetsit of Middletown Indians, showing that the lake was left by Sowheg (on Hardstone, King-of-the-south-country) to his son, Terramogus, who died to white men, and in East Hampton, Marlborough and Glastonbury. The poem relates that in later years, as an old man, Terramogus made yearly visits in autumn to the old Indian burying ground, caring for the graves of his hundred, seeking shelter at night in a hollow sycamore tree, and begging the owner of the land or which the graves were located that he would not work the ground before autumn.

A note states that many of these old Indian stones, rudely carved with emblems, were in a well surrounding the old field of burial in the latter part of the 19th century. The poem recounts a legend of the lake to the effect that a yearly tribute of the life of a brave was demanded by the spirit of the water, and that, to save the life of her lover, the Indian maiden Ne-mo-nee offered herself as a sacrifice to appease the spirit. The maiden was assured that should she drown herself her lover's life would be spared and also that the curse should forever be removed from the lake and that no one should ever again be drowned in its waters. The story that she obeyed the command has been handed down from old legends and is repeated to the present day. Whether true or false is the story of the maiden's sacrifice, it is stated that it was not until the year 1885 that any known drowning occurred in Lake Pocotopaug, when a young lad was drowned in its waters. Other drownings have occurred since that time, and it must be admitted that the charm, if any there was, has not been broken.

It is said that in 1905 a young girl and a boy waded across from the beach in front of the Watrous cottage to the East Island, with the water about to their arm pits, the lake being then seven or eight feet below high water mark, a condition that occurs only once or twice in a lifetime.

The author, Mrs. Clark, is a descendant of an East Hampton family whose ownership of land adjoining the lake dates back to the times of Indian occupancy. Her father was Claudius L. Hills, a descendant of William Hills, one of the first settlers of Hartford.

AL TALKS TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 16.—Former Governor Al Smith's second address to the American people since the recent presidential election will go over the air in a 30 station hookup of the National Broadcasting Company tonight at 8:30. The nature of Smith's talk has not been divulged, but it is believed it will concern his leadership of the Democratic Party. Smith will speak from the local NBC studios and his voice will be relayed all the way to the Pacific coast.

Inventories in Labor Market at That Figure, Rogers Tells Aetna Life Club.

Willard B. Rogers, of this town, promotional director of the Hotel Bond, Hartford, addressed the Aetna Life Club gathering in Hartford last night on "Personal Inventory". Mr. Rogers, an entertaining, forceful and inspirational speaker, is occupied a great many evenings during the winter months as an after dinner speaker. He is now connected with several speakers' bureaus and his engagements carry him all over New England and New York State.

His address before the Aetna Life Club last night follows, in part:

"Toward the end of each year, in the Aetna Life, as in all other insurance companies, a staff of actuaries, statisticians and such start in the preparation of a financial statement which is but the insurance companies' methods of taking inventory.

"Factories, stores and merchandisers of the service take not only a physical inventory but also check up on accounts receivable and accounts payable. These, as in the insurance company, are supposed to show a correct valuation of the worth of a company and the progress it has made in the past year.

"But, how many companies, yours or any other, stop to figure that each employee represents a cost to the state and parents of $15,000 and that here is a factor which must be reckoned with. For example, if there are 500 employees of the Aetna Life in this hall this human machinery represents an investment by someone and upon which dividends will or will not be paid of $7,500,000. I use the individual investment figure of $15,000 because it has been shown that it costs parents and the state this amount to bring a boy or girl to the age of say, eighteen years.

"And, at this point, I say without fear of successful contradiction that most companies fail to take into consideration in the preparation of their annual statements the worth of the knowledge and loyalty of its employees. This is not a criticism of any particular company. It is simply a fact with which I shall attempt to deal.

"To deal with this fact, we obviously must take into consideration the degree to which this great human force is applying itself and the conditions this force must cope with in this and the coming age.

"First, where are we and where are we going. We are living in the greatest age in the history of man. We have come to look upon such scientific developments as the telephone, the telegraph, the automobile, aviation, the radio and countless other inventions and scientific perfections in such a matter-of-fact way that we rarely, if ever, stop to think of how that formerly got along without them or of the important part they play in our human development.

"And strange as it may sound, I predict that our scientific developments of the next few years will eclipse those of the past decade, great as they have been.

"I look for the development of the automobile into such a means of transportation that with super-highways to be built we will safely travel by highway at a speed of eighty miles an hour.

"I expect such developments in aviation that instead of requiring vast areas as landing fields, machines will land and take off in a verticle position and when that arrives most of us will start and alight from the roofs of our hotels.

"Even now, the mere discussion of the formation of a space corporation which will underwrite the cost of a chain of hotels, at distances of 500 miles across the Atlantic and Pacific and by means of which we will travel abroad in short air flights and stop off a day or two at the oceanic hotels where surely we will be certain of ocean breezes and a change of climate.

"Television will be so far developed shortly that big business will not require the presence in either Wall street or foreign financial centers of the men involved. Rather, by radio and television working simultaneously groups of financiers will hold meetings with the participants thousands of miles apart and yet each transaction consummated at this radio-television conference and with what result? With the result that great sums of money upon which the interest losses, due to transportation have been enormous, will be exchanged without these losses or abnormal carriage charges. "Again, this development of radio-television will completely change the present commercial status of the country. For example, buyers for the fashion houses of New York or Los Angeles will no longer travel to Paris or vice versa. Rather, they, with their customers will languidly recline in their own shops and will see and hear all about the newest style creations with the result that a gown brought out for example in Paris today will be ready for display for a social function in San Francisco tomorrow evening. Think of the great savings in these businesses alone.

"Then, too, in conquering the air, we now have the Orinthonico with which men will be able to fly in the air as birds do today, thereby adding greatly to the safety of aviation for when folks hereafter travel in conveyances by air they will not be dependent upon parachutes which in the guidance of most people have been far from satisfactory for they are apt to land one in the ocean or a tree.

"Turning from science for the moment and as a further indication of the peculiarities of the age, we find that women are today spending more than $1,800,000,000 a year in cosmetics, something that their grandmothers had never heard of. I mention this only to show the vast change that has come about in our social setup and with which we wage-earners must be prepared to cope.

"And now I come to the part you and I must play in this picture if we are to progress for surely the few statements I have made tend to prove to you that this is an age of the survival of the fittest, an age in which each of us must put our best foot forward, an age in which our very right to exist and exist upon the new plane of living is challenged.

"Disregarding, for the moment, the fact that most corporations have failed to take proper cognizance of the value to them of the human equation, I want to ask you men, regardless of the position you may hold with your company, whether you have developed yourselves in keeping with the scientific development I have outlined.

"I am wondering how many of you have checked up at the end of each year to see—not whether you are receiving a greater salary than you received a year ago, but whether you have attempted to develop yourself so that you know you are worth more in your particular line of endeavor. Time was when folks sort of felt that with the end of their grammar, high school or college days, their period of learning had ceased and they were ready to generalize their knowledge.

"Today, the world travels in high gear. The man who fails to develop himself a bit each day is soon finding the grade to steep and he shifts, first into second gear and then into low. Yes, some of them even find themselves in reverse at the early age of forty. And if they don't know what I mean by reverse I might explain that I mean they are either standing still or going backward while some young chap forges ahead of them and soon is giving them orders.

"And then, what happens. The fellow who is dragging anchor gradually becomes a dynamo and feels that the world is against him. He just knows that he is the very backbone of his company and that without him the company would go broke. But, he simply cannot understand why the heads of this or that corporation see real merit, real initiative, real value in some young "whipper-snapper" who has forged ahead until he is one of the executives.

"And the deplorable part of all of that is that the individual who is outclassed never stops to ask himself, "What is wrong with me?" "That brings me to the real meat of this message. When you see the other fellow forging ahead why not follow the example of all successful companies? Why not take inventory? Not inventory of your home, or your home furnishings, or of your stock, but inventory of yourself.

"That men, takes guts. It isn't an easy matter to honestly inventory yourself. It takes a big man to jot down his own shortcomings and face them squarely. I know of a man who did that a while ago and recommended to his boss that he should be cut ten cents an hour but that he would like to start working not only for that ten cents an hour but for more advances. He made good. Sit down when you go home tonight and figure out—not what is wrong with the world but what is wrong with you. And if you aren't getting ahead, I'm here to tell you that the trouble is with you for the world is crying out tonight more than ever in its history for leaders, for pioneers, for men with new ideas, for men with initiative, for men willing to accept responsibility. And the world pays well for those men but it has no use for the third gear or reverse men for in this age they are but a milestone around the neck of progress.

ABOUT TOWN

Manchester Camp No. 2640 Royal Neighbors will meet this evening at the Moose Home Club on Brainerd place. The new officers will be installed and it is proposed to begin the business at 7 o'clock as a chicken supper will follow. The state supervisor, Mrs. Rubina Koenig, and guests from Capitol City camp of Hartford are expected.

Mrs. Andrew Healey gave a bridge and whist at her home in Buckland last evening for the benefit of St. Margaret's Circle, Daughters of Israel of which she is regent. Mrs. James H. McVeigh won first honors in bridge, and Mrs. Ormond, consolation. Miss Nellie Smith won first prize in whist and Mrs. Jeremiah Healey consolation. The business served fruit salad, home made cake and coffee.

Lathrop for damages following a fall a year ago.

The clerk will be asked to write letters to property owners on Cambridge street informing them that the highway cannot be improved until seven properties there are connected with the sewer system. Frank Edmonds, constable, furnished his bond for the year. Lights in the Strickland and Oxford street section were requested by residents in that section. A petition for the re-establishment of streets lines on Hartford Road was received and a hearing to discuss the proposition informally will be called within two weeks.

Accept Appointments The acceptance of Edward D. Lynch as a member of the Board of Relief was received. The acceptance, also, of Charles B. Loomis as a library director was received. The South Manchester Salary Sewer district requested the Selectmen to furnish layouts of streets in the Marvin Green section so that a new sewer system can be constructed there. It will be necessary to raise the current in one of the highways.

The town's bills and the Building Inspector's report were before the board. They appear in another column of today's Herald. Deeds from the Center Church for property involved in the church and town transfer were received and were referred to the Town Counsel for checking.

The lighting committee recommended the installation of more lights in the vicinity of the Center, an additional light at Main and Park streets and more powerful lights on Center street in front of the Police headquarters. The parking committee recommended more restrictions at the corner of Main and Park streets. These recommendations were voted.

TALE OF MAD PLOT IS FOUND UNTRUE

a wrecked submarine. Now the tests have been postponed indefinitely.

A few strands of the hawser had been severed when a sailor who was shoveling snow off the Mallard's stern accidentally hit the hawser with his shovel. Lieut.-Commander Dunbar revealed.

When it was discovered that the hawser had been partially cut, all kinds of wild rumors were circulated by civilians on shore. Some alarmists voiced the belief that a feud existed between the members of the Mallard's crew and the men on the Defender.

Hawser Cut The submarine was to have been towed to Block Island in Long Island Sound yesterday for several submergence tests. Just before the start it was discovered that the combination hawser and communication cable running from the Defender to the mother ship had been partially severed, apparently by a sharp instrument. Naval officers admitted that had the submarine sunk without warning as a result of the snapping of the cable, serious consequences might have resulted.

The men in the Defender would have been trapped until divers could rescue them, it was pointed out.

At the conclusion of the inquiry the crew of the Mallard were allowed a beated shore leave. The Mallard was to go to New London, today preparatory to sailing for Key West, Fla., on Monday. The Defender remained in Bridgeport today but Captain Danmower, her commander, went to Washington with Lieut.-Commander Dunbar.

BIGGER NAVY BILL IS NOW IN LIMELIGHT

naval race with Great Britain and Japan.

The naval bill will face a much more difficult path to enactment than that traveled by the peace treaty. Whereas the treaty had seventy advocates at all time, the largest administration poll showed but 59 Senators favoring the naval bill. It undoubtedly will be enacted if it can be brought to a final vote but the opposition may diluster it to death.

Vote 85 to 1 The anti-war treaty meanwhile was being sent back to the State Department with a formal notice of its ratification by the Senate. The vote was 85 to 1, with only Senator Blaine (R) of Wis., opposing it. Blaine did so as a protest against what he termed the treaty's endorsement of the British policy of imperialism. He first sought to add a reservation, exempting the United States from any approval of British imperialism, and when the Senate rejected it, he voted against the treaty.

Reed-Moses Victory The Irreconcilables, led by Senator Reed (D) of Missouri, and Moses (R) of New Hampshire, voted for ratification after they won a clear-cut victory for an American interpretation of the treaty. The interpretation was expressed in a report from the Senate foreign relations committee, which Senator

By this tremendous moral experiment. As for enforcement, the government has on the whole won an ever-growing success. The flood of whiskey released from government warehouses by thefts, forgeries and frauds has been stopped. Rum Row has been driven from the seas. Smuggling has been reduced to a mere trickle, where once it flowed like a river. The illegal diversion of industrial alcohol has been reduced to a minimum. All these activities of the law violators have been hamstringed and the supply of real liquor has largely been shut off from the bootleggers.

The intoxicants sold today are almost entirely synthetic or moonshine. The government is slowly strangling this illicit business. These are the accomplishments of prohibition.

But greater than all is the trend of public opinion toward temperance. The American people are being educated up to this great moral cause—temperance is winning with the citizens of our republic.

Don't Neglect a Cold Now, is Doctor's Advice

Don't neglect any cold nowadays. Colds are so weakening, and in a weakened condition, you are so susceptible to more serious troubles. When you find you are catching cold, take care to keep the bowels open. That's the first precaution every doctor advises. That's the way to avoid the congestion which makes you feverish, achy, half-sick, miserable.

Millions know the quick way to open the bowels, keep them active, is with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin. Every second of the day someone, somewhere is going into a drugstore to get a bottle of this splendid medicine, made from simple laxative herbs and pepsin by the formula Doctor Caldwell found so effective during his 47 years' medical practice.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin is mild and gentle in its action but it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution. Containing neither narcotics or opiates, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it gladly. For colds, fevers, biliousness, indigestion, headaches, heartburn, nausea, bad breath, loss of sleep—any troubles caused by poor digestion or faulty evacuation, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin will prove a blessing. Its overwhelming success and popularity is based on real merit—on one satisfied user telling another. Your drug store sells the generous bottles on a positive money-back guarantee to give satisfaction.—Adv.

AMERICA LEADS MODERN WORLD IN ARCHITECTURE

Paris.—America is leading the world in modern architecture, although France and Italy are probably making greater strides in furnishings, according to the Thaddeus Joy, architect in the well-known firm of Julia Morgan of San Francisco, who has spent the summer in Europe.

"In my travels over several European countries during the past few months," says Mr. Joy, "I have never found an modern structure to compare with the Telephone Building of my old home town, San Francisco. The dome is certainly one of the finest pieces of work in the world."

"It only proves what we Americans could do if we would go on creating things new and vital. We have had no modern style of art because we have become mere copyists enslaved to tradition. We build and we paint and we carve in the schools of the past that have done this work and had their heyday. We copy and recreate in styles that are dead."

"One must fair to what is termed 'modernism,' or breaking away from all tradition, which no greater art has ever done before, and its devotees often seem to be content, if they ever are content, only when they have done something in a way entirely different from anything that has gone before. If chairs have always had legs on the bottom, they say, 'let us put them on top. If arches have always sprung from the tops of joints, let us invert them and have them at the bottom.'"

"This, of course, is not the manner in which any great thing has ever come into being. Great art is always built upon the best work that has preceded it. But France does not seem to realize this when building her modern structures these days. Three half-way finished buildings have recently collapsed in Paris. Spain's new buildings are garish and overdecorative or else exceedingly plain and boxlike, such as the new Fine Arts Building, in Madrid, a far cry from the fine Moorish architecture one still finds in the old corners of the city."

Despite the craze for going about bare-headed Cecile Sorel, famous beauty of the Comedie Francaise, has continued to crown her golden locks with the latest styles and a modiste has sued her for $3,694 in alleged unpaid tail bills.

Suit was brought just before Mlle. Sorel put her collection of furniture, including Mme. Du Barry's bed on the auction block, intending to buy modern furnishings with the proceeds.

"How about all my hats you have been wearing for the last ten years?" demanded the modiste.

"I never bought your hats," replied Mlle. Sorel. "You merely entered them to me. I wore them in the theater and around town, adding by grace to their style and my reputation for elegance to your artistry."

The modiste says this is quite incorrect and is persisting in his suit.

THREE PINEHURST BOYS ADVANCED STUDENTS

Ephraim Cole, son of James H. Cole of 8 Middle Turnpike West, and formerly employed at the Pinehurst Grocery, was at his parents' home for the last week-end. He is a graduate of Manchester High school and is now studying accounting at the Bentley School in Boston.

Mr. Cole is the third Manchester boy to take a "postgraduate" course at the Pinehurst store and then go to Boston in pursuit of higher education. William Stevenson of Oak street was the first. He joined the force there as a part-time worker while still a high school freshman and shortly after Pinehurst started in business. He continued his employment there until the year after graduation from the high school. He is now taking his third year at Tufts Medical school.

Edwin Laking, who was a Pinehurst during his high school course and for a year subsequently, expects to complete his studies at Boston University next spring. Pinehurst seems to be an incubator of aspirations.

LICENSES SUSPENDED

A list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor was given out today at the State Motor Vehicle Department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of these drivers operating motor vehicles.

FAMOUS RACING DRAMA AT STATE

"The Whip" Here Today and Tomorrow; "Red Wine" Is Associate Feature.

A neatly-wrought melodramatic plot, an exceptionally capable and well-chosen cast, and all the thrills which made the old-time play famous combine to make "The Whip," First National's current production one of the most entertaining of the season.

"The Whip," opens its local engagement at the State Theatre today, and for those who like their screen entertainment exciting and their plots melodramatic, this picture will prove a distinct treat. Treated with a splendid Vitaphone music score and sound accompaniment, this picture is brought up to date in settings and dress, and its multitudinous thrills are magnified by modern technical skill and photographic ingenuity.

The story revolves around a horse race, of course, as the title indicates, with a great deal resting on the proper horse's winning the big derby and a great many people interested in one way or another in having it either win or lose. There are plots and counterplots, bits of conniving and last-minute suspenses, perfectly handled through the direction of Charles Brabin.

Dorothy Mackall brings her beauty and charm to the leading feminine role and Ralph Forbes proves an excellent foil in the masculine lead. Anna Q. Nilson is particularly striking as the beautiful and scheming "vamp" and Lowell Sherman contributes another of his delightfully villainous "heavy" characterizations.

Outstanding in the cast are Marc McDermott, Albert Gran, Arthur Clayton and many others.

The companion feature at the State today and tomorrow presents Conrad Nagel, one of the most popular film stars in America, who has the stellar role in the William Fox production, "Red Wine."

"Red Wine" is a sparkling comedy-drama with plenty of kick. It's an original story of modern life showing the fast country-club set with both their indoor and outdoor sports. Nagel is seen in the role of a settled husband who suddenly declines to be real naughty—and doesn't know how! Pretty June Collyer plays opposite the star as his faithful young wife. Others in the cast are Sharon Lynn, Arthur Stone and Ernest Hilliard.

Fur Coats 1-4 to 1-3 Off

Up To Now The Warmest Winter In Years
Makes These Prices Possible

THIS IS HOW IT HAPPENED

A representative from our New York office called at the store last Saturday and explained to us the tragic situation in the fur coat industry. For two years in succession the fur coat manufacturers have suffered from the penalty of style and weather, but particularly from the weather. This past winter has been most unusual. Thousands of fur coats have piled up in New York. They must be disposed of or, at least, the greater part of them.

Our New York representative made arrangements with Miss Sargent, our garment buyer, to meet him in New York last Monday... She did. The result is that we are going to have a group of coats in the store for three days only—Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Of course, we have had to reduce our own stock to meet their low prices.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Wednesday, January 16. Band music at the twelfth annual New York Firemen's Ball will be broadcast Wednesday night at 8:30 through WOR and the Columbia network. The ball will take place at Madison Square Garden, where 20,000 people are expected to attend. At 10 o'clock, the Buffalo Symphony orchestra will present a concert through station WGR. At 8 o'clock through WOR and the Columbia Broadcasting system, festivities in honor of Charles Francis Gounod on the occasion of conferring on him the Cross of the Legion of Honor will be broadcast. Selections from Gounod's compositions will be given. Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York state will give the principal address at the banquet of the New York State Agricultural Society to be broadcast from WGY at 10:30. It is expected that the new chief executive of New York will outline some of his agricultural plans. A portion of Massenet's opera, "Thais" will be heard through WJZ and N. B. C. stations at 10. The opera, based on the novel by Anatole France, with the libretto by Michel, is given by the Chicago City Opera Company. The light opera "The Geisha" will be heard from WABC at 9 o'clock. One hour earlier, Delphine March, young concert contralto, will be featured in a concert on WGY. She will be assisted by Walter Rengler, tenor, noted ballad singer, and the studio orchestra.

KEEP STOMACH YOUNG! Eat What You Want When the food you eat goes into your acid-soaked stomach, it sours and can't digest, makes foul gas and sour bile. The blood takes these poisonous acids and carries them through the body. Naturally it makes you miserable and despondent, because your system is not nourished—you lose weight. Pape's Diapepsin dissolves the acids and sweetens the stomach. It digests the food; no more sour bile is taken up by the blood. Your appetite is like a youngster's again, and gradually you get back your health, flesh and energy. Chew a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin after meals. It tastes good, and relieves the misery of indigestion in five minutes. It will keep your stomach young and vigorous so you can eat anything you want without being afraid of the consequences.—Adv.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place. I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overweightness, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc. Not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat. My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat. If you are overweight do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire. DR. R. MISS CHENEY HAS SPEEDING-UP PLAN

Introduces Two Bills to Save Time Waste and Prevent Pocket Vetoes.

Two bills designed to speed up the disposition of business by the Connecticut Legislature have been introduced into the general assembly by Representative Miss Marjory Cheney of Manchester. One proposes a recess to be taken three weeks before the date of final adjournment, with a conclusive period of at least three days for the disposition of measures returned by the governor without his approval. The purpose of this is to eliminate the possibility of pocket vetoes.

The other bill would displace the period of several weeks now devoted to the introduction of bills not originating in committees and provides for the preparation and introduction of these measures before the Legislature convenes.

The text of the bills follows:

Recess Bill
An Act enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly convened:

Section 1. Three weeks before the date fixed by the general assembly or by constitutional provision for final adjournment of any regular session a recess shall be taken for two weeks. The engrossing clerk shall thereupon present to the governor in final form as passed by the general assembly but not engrossed in print all bills and resolutions requiring his approval.

Sec. 2. The general assembly shall reconvene upon the expiration of such recess and shall thereafter remain in session for not less than three legislative days prior to the date fixed for final adjournment, during which time it shall consider and act upon all matters returned to by the governor without the approval. No new legislation requiring the approval of the governor shall be acted upon during such period.

Sec. 3. Those portions of sections 37 and 42 of the general statutes inconsistent herewith shall be inapplicable to the legislation covered by the provisions hereof.

Introduction Measure
An Act providing for the filing of all legislative bills with the attorney general or permanent clerk of bills if that office is created.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly convened:

Section 1. All bills except those originated by a committee of the general assembly or by recommendation of the governor and all petitions except those of an adversary nature or such as have been previously advertised as provided by law shall be filed at the office of the attorney general by a member of the general assembly, whose name shall be endorsed thereon, at least four weeks before the date of the convening of the general assembly. The attorney general shall cause such petitions and bills to be numbered consecutively in series as Senate petitions or bills or House petitions or bills in the order of their filing, shall endorse on each petition or bill the title thereof, the date of its filing and the name of the appropriate committee to which it shall be referred by him and shall have prepared six hundred fifty printed lists thereof, classified according to committee references. No petition or bill shall be received by him for filing unless it is substantially complete form for the general assembly to act upon. He shall deliver each petition or bill as soon as possible after its filing but not later than two weeks before the date of the convening of the general assembly to the state librarian, who shall cause photographic copies of the same to be made and shall transmit the originals to the Senate and House, according to the series numbers endorsed thereon, on the opening day of the session.

Sec. 2. The attorney general shall deliver to the state librarian two hundred fifty copies of said printed lists not later than one week before the date of the convening of the general assembly and four hundred copies to the general assembly on the opening day of the session. The state librarian shall furnish a reasonable number of copies of such lists or petitions or bills to any person at a price to be fixed by the attorney general, which shall not be in excess of the cost to the state. He shall transmit to the general assembly on the opening day of the session fifteen copies of each petition and bill for use by the several committees to which they shall have been referred and shall furnish not more than three copies of any petition or bill to any member of the general assembly free upon request. A file of copies of all petitions and bills, properly indexed, shall be kept in the state library for public reference.

Sec. 3. The acceptance of said original petitions and bills by the Senate and House shall constitute the first reading thereof and they shall have been referred by the clerks of each House to the several committees, according to the endorsements thereon. Within one calendar week after the general assembly shall have received said petitions and bills, any member thereof may move that any petition or bill be referred to a different committee from that to which it shall have been referred by the attorney general, and upon the concurrence of both houses such reference shall be made. Any bill reported by a committee of the general assembly as a substitute for another bill shall be endorsed by the clerk of the Senate or House with the number of the original bill.

Sec. 4. The foregoing provisions of this act shall not apply to petitions or bills introduced at any special session of the general assembly. At such session petitions and bills shall be introduced personally by the members during the session and shall be referred to appropriate committees by the presiding officer of each House and transmitted to such committees by the clerks of each House. Each bill introduced at any such session shall within one session day of the general assembly after concurrent action referring the same to a committee, be delivered to the state librarian by the clerk of the branch of the general assembly into whose possession said bill last came. Said librarian shall cause photographic copies of the same to be made and shall, within one such session day after receipt of such bill, deliver the same to the committee to which referred. Said librarian shall furnish photographic copies of any such bill to the public and to any member of the general assembly as provided in Section 2 hereof.

Sec. 5. Sections 8 and 16 of the general statutes and so much of section 17 thereof as is inconsistent herewith are repealed.

NEW MUSICAL WORKS IN SPECIAL SERVICE

New Choral Numbers to be Presented in South Methodist Church Sunday.

The January musical service at the South Methodist Episcopal church will be presented next Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock, when the choir, under the directorship of Archibald Sessions will sing some very beautiful new choral numbers as well as some of the old favorites. Mrs. Laura Wheeler Ross, violinist, and Mrs. Katherine Howard, cellist, will assist both with solo offerings and obligatos. The vocal solos and incidental leads will be sung by Miss Eleanor Willard, soprano, Mrs. Berialine Lashinske, contralto, and Robert Gordon, baritone. The motet, "Greater Love Hath No Man" by John Ireland, one of the eminent present-day writers, and dedicated to the choristers of St. Paul's Cathedral will be a feature of the program. Mrs. Lashinske will sing the "cello obligato, "Salutation of the Dawn" (words from the Sanskrit) by Frederick Stevenson. Accompanied by violin and organ, Miss Willard will sing Gounod's "Ave Maria." Mr. Gordon will sing with the choir, "Go Forth Upon Thy Journey" from Elgar's "Dream of Gerontious."

The full program will appear in Saturday's Herald.

Some of our former government officials aren't taking any interest in politics this year. They took the cash and are letting the interest go.

PURIST CENSORSHIP.
 "The Sex Side of Life" is a pamphlet which has never come to this desk and we know nothing about it from any reading of our own. But in view of the fact that for ten years it has been approved by the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A., and not only approved but distributed by them, and has received the endorsement of any number of sincere and honorable welfare workers and ministers of the gospel, there seems to be little real doubt that it is a properly conceived and valuable addition to the educational literature of the country.

Yet the author of this pamphlet, Mrs. Mary Ware Dent, has just been indicted by a federal grand jury in Brooklyn and in the indictment the jury declares that "The Sex Side of Life" is "obscene, lewd, lascivious and filthy, vile and indecent and unfit to be set forth in this instrument and to be spread upon the records of this honorable court." Mrs. Dent is therefore under indictment for sending non-mailable matter through the United States mails.

While the action of the Brooklyn federal grand jury is bound to bring to Mrs. Dent no little mortification—and perhaps some very slight risk of undesired punishment (for it is just possible that there might be a trial jury made up of the same sort of purists as this grand jury)—it may be just as well that this thing has happened.

Because it demonstrates, as hardly any other case could demonstrate, the lengths to which ignorance can go, with support of law, in interfering with the operation of enlightened intelligence. The kind of mind that would send Mrs. Dent to prison for throwing a sane and reasonable light on the subject of sex, for the benefit of children in their teens, is the same kind of a mind that would send a physician to prison for prescribing a dose of whiskey to a sick person—and there are plenty such.

There has been altogether too much regulation and suppression of the printed word in this country—some of it, we shrewdly suspect, with the approval of some of the very persons who have given Mrs. Dent's work their endorsement. Perhaps this present manifestation of the propensity to regulate will bring realization, in some quarters where it is needed, of what it seems likely to be law-bullied through the interference of ignoramus.

Mrs. Dent is not the first sincere and intellectual writer to feel the hand of the law. But unfortunately for some of the others, they have in certain instances lacked the support that will be hers, though not less deserving of it.

If the effect of this indictment shall be to make censorship, ignorant, intolerance and purist quackery as loathsome to the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the theological schools and the ministry as they long have been to a great many other people, this author can at least feel that she has not suffered in vain.

he returned to his native country and fought brilliantly, emerging as a captain. He came back to New York shattered in health, was reconstructed by an operation there, resumed his calling. He inherited half a million dollars from his mother, quit his profession and went back to England to live.

He had been married but was separated from his family, of whom friends here knew nothing. He was not known to enjoy the company of women. In England he dropped out of sight.

There has not been a major crime in a long time with so romantic a dressing as this one. It sounds as though the victim, the circumstances of his life and the elements of mystery surrounding the man himself and his killing, were all the work of a fictionist. If all the circumstances of the case do not appear in that form, half a dozen times within the next year, it will be remarkable.

AFGHANISTAN.
 That very unpleasant person Amanullah, King of Afghanistan, has lost his job. From all accounts he is lucky not to have lost his life at the same time, since he beat it out of his capital, via airplane, just about one jump ahead of the rebels who, if they lived at all up to Afghan tradition, were extremely likely to have picked him to pieces if they had got hold of him.

Amanullah is given a vague sort of credit for attempting to introduce "western culture" into Afghanistan. There is considerable doubt whether he had any idea of the meaning of that term beyond clothes and automobiles.

He has been perhaps the most magnificent dead beat of modern times, entitled by his complete freedom from scruple to the headship of a very peculiar nation which probably contains more ground and lofty tricksters and more people whose word isn't worth a broken straw than are to be found in any other country in the world—and who, at the same time, are as vain as peacocks and as blood-thirsty as wolves.

What happens in Afghanistan, in the way of revolutions, change of government or the success or failure of attempts of Amanullah to escape the fate of Kipling's "Young British Soldier," would be of about as much interest to the world at large as the political changes among the tribes of the Congo jungle were it not for the fact that Afghanistan is a buffer state lying between Soviet Russian territory and India, and neither Britain nor anybody else would care to see Russian influence extended closer to the north-India border.

It is that eternal menace of the Soviets—however real or however imaginary—which brings Afghanistan constantly into the notice of the world.

MISS CHENEY'S BILLS.
 Of the two bills calculated to speed up the processes of legislation, introduced into the Legislature by Representative Marjory Cheney of Manchester, an off-hand opinion would be that the one providing for a recess of about two and a half weeks just before final adjournment of the Assembly presents definite and positive advantages free from possible complications which may or may not attach to the other bill, which has to do with advancing by many weeks the time limit for introduction of new business.

The first of the bills would apparently make impossible the "pocket veto," an institution with which a great many thinking citizens are altogether out of sympathy. There was never any good reason why a legislature or a congress should not have the same right to override a veto, either expressed or implicit, coming at the end of the legislative term, as one sent in by the chief executive during the session.

can be expressed concerning it. On the face of it, it looks rather revolutionary, with the disadvantage of requiring newly chosen members of the Legislature to step into the harness immediately upon getting notice of election and before becoming, actually, members of the Legislature at all. It would seem to involve an undue amount of "home work" in other words. However, this objection may be more apparent than real.

SUCH A PLACE!
 Frank Sullivan, famous idiom-comedian of the New York World, is paralleling the endurance flight of the airplane Question Mark by recounting from day to day in his column the adventures of the Esclamation Point, which is trying to establish a long-time record in getting from a given point to a New York theatre. The particular mark it is shooting at is that of the sea-going taxicab named the Efreem Zimbalist, which took from Saturday to Tuesday to get to a performance of the Ladder.

Every columnist and funny man in New York is razzing the taxis nowadays, apparently for no better reason than that they can't pass over or through or under the traffic but have to go along with it. We know the cure for New York sufferers from taxi-drag. Let them come to Manchester to live. Here they won't ride in taxis—not very often, because there are only two taxis to ride in, anyhow. And the reason there are no more taxis is because everybody who has the price of a taxi ride buys an automobile and uses the taxi money for a down payment.

Out upon this big-town stuff, with a taximeter clicking up thirty cents before the cab can get started. Give us a place like Manchester to live in, where you can get somewhere faster, even if you walk, than you can in Manhattan in a Rolls-Royce with a police escort.

PERFECTLY SATISFIED WITH PROHIBITION LAW
 General Secretary of World League Against Alcoholism Issues Anniversary Statement.

Waterville, January 16.—On the eve of the ninth anniversary of the eighteenth amendment, Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, today declared the temperance forces of the United States to be highly gratified with results. His anniversary statement also pointed out progress in the effort toward world prohibition.

Nevertheless, the statement says, there is not only room for improvement during 1929, but also, there is every reason to expect that such improvement will come about. The statement declares: "Much of the success of the temperance movement depends on education. There should be an organized and systematized program of education in the schools, Sunday schools and elsewhere concerning the truth about the principle involved in the eighteenth amendment and as to its enforcement and observance. The people themselves must understand not only the truth about the nature and effect of beverage alcohol, but they must come to know their own vital part in the operation of the temperance forces of government and their own obligation to obey the laws they themselves have made."

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT
 Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
 (214) Some Connecticut Educational Writers
 Until the Revolution about the only books used by pupils and schools in the colony were the Bible, the New England Primer and a spelling book. Contributions of school textbooks by Connecticut men and women did much to give the country a uniform language. Foremost among Connecticut authors of school textbooks was Noah Webster. In 1783 the first of a series of three books by this noted lexicographer appeared. It was a spelling of which 24,000,000 copies had been disposed by 1847. In 1785, Webster issued a grammar and in 1787 a reader.
 A geography was published by Jedediah Morse of Woodstock in 1784, the first of its kind in America. In 1827, Jesse Olney of Union published his "Atlas-Geography" which was popular throughout the country and had a publication of 30,000 copies. The most widely used arithmetic of this period was by Nathan Daboll, who was born in Groton in 1750. Thomas Hubbard was also well known for his works in arithmetic. In 1827, Frederick Butler of Wethersfield issued a compendium of general history, the first work of its kind in America. A new era in the study of Latin was created by John A. Andrews, a native of New Britain, by his Latin-English lexicon and his textbooks.
 Foremost among women educators was Mrs. Emma Hart Willard, born in Berlin in 1787, who published in 1818 a "Plan for Improving Female Education," a work which in 1819 led the New York Legislature to adopt the first provision for the higher education of women ever passed by any legislature. In another department of education, Mrs. Willard and her sister, Mrs. Almira Phelps, published school books in geography, history and science.

IN NEW YORK

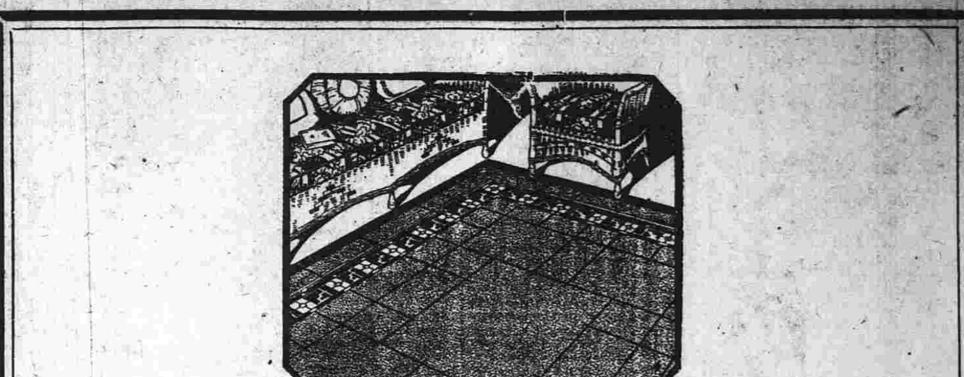

New York, Jan. 16.—Community ovens are maintained in scores of bakeries on the East Side for the convenience of tenement dwellers with limited kitchen accommodations.
 At certain hours of the day and night oven space is rented out to the housewives for a few cents. They arrive in droves, carrying their tins of bread and buns. While waiting for their loaves, the women folk engage in friendly chatter, as small town neighbors stand over the back fence and gossip while hanging out the laundry. In some districts, particularly on cold, blizzard days, the bakery kitchen becomes sort of a neighborhood club.
 Late Friday afternoon, a parade typical of the East Side may be seen. Preparing for the Jewish observance of the Sabbath, on Saturday, they arrive with tins filled with "kuchen." Generally these cakes have been made at home, but there is no way of keeping them warm. So they are taken to the bakeries and placed in the oven, to be called for later.

In the kitchen belts of New York, where young housewives are called upon to cook in tiny holes in the wall or in six-by-eight closets, the neighborhood delicatessen stores come to the rescue.
 A Christmas turkey was cooked by a motherly German woman, whose order spindle was jammed with other orders. The customer is presumed to furnish his own meat and "trimmings." At a certain prescribed hour the food is delivered at your door, steaming hot, and ready for the table. The charge for this service is but $1.50—a sum which most housewives will tell you is quite well worth spending to avoid the work of turning out a turkey or duck.

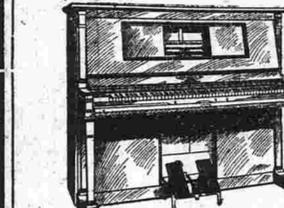

There are any number of things which are typically of "New York." I know of no other place where one will encounter in the streets the parades of little four-wheeled vehicles, filled with dresses for the suit and cloak belt. They are trundled about by office boys, who seem to have no fear of traffic, and go where even jay-walkers fear to tread. The carts are equipped with hangers and rollers for coats, and roll about on wheels that seem to have been taken from roller skates. They are used in taking dress models to the huge cloak-and-suit belt which has sprung up in mid-town.

Not have I elsewhere come upon barber shops which engage in the primitive medical art of "cupping." The ancient "cups," used in the days when the barber surgeons roamed the European highways, can still be seen in the windows of many barber shops of the lower downtown section.
 Centuries before the medical profession had achieved any degree of standing, barbers were the most active of practitioners. "Bleeding" or "cupping" a patient was as familiar to them as shaving. When the British Royal Medical Society was first formed, the barber pole was conceived as a means of distinguishing between the charlatans and the newer, more scientific profession. A skull was perched upon a red and white striped pole—and the pole has lived to this day as an insignia of the barber trade.
 At any rate, cupping does not seem to have gone out of vogue in this city, for advertisements are many hundreds of bewhiskered old men from European lands who demand this old vacuum treatment as a means of increasing blood circulation in various sections of the body.

FROM POLE TO POLE.
 Telephone engineers meeting in Chicago, suggest color schemes such as mauve, cerise and orchid for telephone poles, to harmonize with the surroundings. In cities where the Volstead law is not so strong, it should be suggested that hooks be placed on them on which a gentleman can hang his clothes.

BRITAIN FACES ISSUE OF PROTECTIVE TARIFF

London, Jan. 16.—Great Britain is gradually being pushed up to an election in 1929 in which the adoption of a protective tariff may be the main plank in the platform of the Tory party.
 It may split the Tory party wide open. It may bring Lloyd George and his Liberals back into the place where they will dominate the Parliamentary situation and decide who shall form the government. Nothing like it has been known in British politics for a long time.
 For decades Great Britain has prospered as a free trade country. In 1923 Premier Baldwin, persuaded that Britain's ills could be healed by a dose of protective tariff, introduced a bill to the effect that on that policy, which was deemed nothing less than revolutionary. He got a resounding licking.
 Labor Into Power.
 Overnight his big Tory majority in the House of Commons melted away. He found a Parliament in which Labor and Liberals had a majority. Liberals put Labor into power and gave England its first Socialist government, which lasted for some months. Then the Liberals combined with Tories to oust the Labor government.
 Another Parliamentary election was held. The Tories, through Leader Baldwin, promised if restored to power that they would undo the lifetimes of the newly-elected House of Commons, attempt any protective tariff legislation. On this they rode back into power.
 But the Tories had another way of winning the devil around the stump. There is a law called the safeguarding of industries act. Under this, the government has given what amounts to protective tariff to "safeguard" industries. Among other beneficiaries there was the big artificial silk business.
 Several months ago, Colonel Amery, secretary for the colonies, and about 200 Tory members of the House of Commons, asked Baldwin to safeguard steel and iron. He turned them down. Then Sir William Joynson Hicks, the home secretary, calmly said: "If the Conservative party wants a policy which will do something more than we have been able to do, I say that better now and next election we shall have to consider very seriously an extension of the policy of safeguarding the industries of our country."
 He added it was the only cure for unemployment. A great shipping owner had told him that if the steel and iron business were protected 100,000 more men would be employed within a year.
 Reveals Split.
 On the very same day that "Jix" made this speech, Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, made a speech extolling free trade. It was a startling revelation of a serious split in the Tory cabinet and the Tory party on the subject. Amery, "Jix," Sir A. Steel Maitland and Sir P. Curhse-Lister are the cabinet men who are in favor of an out-and-out protective tariff plank. Baldwin, at the present time, is against it. But there is no question but that a majority of the Tory members of the House of Commons and many of the rank and file are

Legion Auxiliary Drive
The American Legion Auxiliary of Stanley Dobosz Post No. 14 of Rockville has started out on a well-planned membership drive to reach their quota of 175 as set by the Department Chairman, Mrs. Anna Mae Pfunder. This drive is to run from January 1st to February 15th and Mrs. Inez Schook, Membership Chairman, and the nine team captains are confident of reaching the goal. An incentive is offered in the form of a $2.50 gold piece to be given the member bringing in the most new members. There is a District prize of $5.00 offered to the unit making the greatest percentage gain in membership, and there are several department prizes.

This campaign is being conducted not only statewide but nationally until May 15, 1929 and is to be known as the "First Kentucky Derby." This is the first time the Legion and Auxiliary have jointly planned a co-operative membership drive and they have arrived at this plan of staging a Kentucky Derby. It is felt that the idea is fitting since it suggests speed, efficiency, high rating, careful preparation and clean sportsmanship. It is also appropriate that the plan be considered because it is a national Kentucky Derby already have been staged in Louisville, the meeting place of the next annual convention, and it so happens that the number of years approximately represents the number of Legion Departments organized and co-operating with the American Legion Auxiliary.

Each department in its alphabetical order is assigned one of the fifty-four winners of the historical Kentucky Derby and Connecticut, the seventh department on the list, has the 1922 winner of the Derby—"Morrish." Each Legion member is considered a groom in the Derby and each Auxiliary member a trainer, and all the members all over the country are working hard to groom and train their horses to win the big race. So far, Connecticut is eighth place in the race with Minnesota leading the field.

All those women locally who are eligible for membership in the American Legion Auxiliary will be approached within the next few weeks by members of Stanley Dobosz Unit who will give a history of the organization, tell of what has been accomplished, and what can be accomplished in the future with a strong membership. The Legion and Auxiliary are going after new "grooms" and "trainers" so that "Morrish" will be in perfect condition to win the big stake.

The team captains for the drive locally are Mrs. Inez Schook, Mrs. Adelapheno Brikham, Mrs. Dorothy Webster, Miss Anna Martley, Mrs. Rose McKenna, Mrs. Lena Hewitt, Mrs. Lottie Blonstein, Mrs. Martha Dietzel, Miss Emma Batz and Miss Helen Dobosz.

In conformity with the Rockville City Charter, there was a special meeting of the Common Council on Monday evening. Engagement Announced
Mrs. Elsie Hoffman of Orchard street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Lena Hoffman to Albert Ludwig, son of Frank Ludwig of Ellington avenue.

Notes
Carl Doss has returned to his duties in Brooklyn, N. Y., after several days visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Doss of Woodland street.

Eugene Edwards has returned to his duties at Colts Mfg. Co. in Hartford, after being confined to his home with a severe attack of influenza.

Mrs. Eugene Edwards and children have been ill with the grip the past week.

LOTS OF INTEREST IN MAIN ENCOUNTER
A clever boxer and a slashing, hard-hitting fighter will come together as Johnny Drew of Worcester and Steve Smith of Bridgeport meet in the star bout at Food Guard hall, Thursday night of this week.

This meeting between the Jewish State and the "Hungarian Bear Cat" from Bridgeport is attracting more attention than any feature event scheduled for the historic Food Guard armory this season and it is expected that a capacity house will see the battle.

The star bout has been set down for ten rounds. In the semi-final, "Irish Joe" Dwyer of Boston will fight Benny Martin of New York. Both these boys went to meet Bat Battalino, Hartford's pride, and this bout may produce one of Battalino's opponents for the near future, this depending on the showing these boys make. This is on the books for eight rounds. Several other bouts will make up the under half of the card.

DEMPSEY WILL START LIGHT TRAINING SOON
Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 16.—The ballyhoo for the Stribling-Sharkey fight here on Feb. 27 was in full swing today as the result of Jack Dempsey's statement that he will begin light training here within two weeks.

While he would neither affirm nor deny that he would return to the ring as intimated yesterday by Wm. F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, the former heavyweight champion said enough to convince many fans that he really intends to attempt a comeback. Jack declared that within two months he would know how his body is responding to daily conditioning and then would be able to state definitely whether he would return to the ring.

Funeral of John Rickes
The funeral of John Rickes was largely attended from St. Bernard's Catholic church on Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock. At the offertory Mrs. William Pfunder sang "Ave Maria" and as the body was being borne from the church she again rendered "Take Me to thy Sacred Heart." The floral pieces were numerous and beautiful. Rev. Geo. T. Sinnott, pastor of the church officiated. The bearers were members of the Rockville Fire Department, Edward Pinney, Charles Feistel, Frank Mohr, Thomas Hewitt, William Pfunder and Martin Alger.

Funeral of Adolph Gunderman
The funeral of Adolph Gunderman, a long time Rockville resident was held from the undertaking parlors of the E. H. Preston company this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. A. H. Gates, pastor of the Vernon Center Congregational church officiated. There were many floral tributes and delegations of the organizations also acted as bearers. Burial was in Grove Hill cemetery.

Death of Mrs. Lena Shea
Mrs. Lena Shea, widow of Michael Shea died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Schulte of 1454 Broad street, Hartford on Monday evening, following an illness of several months. Mrs. Shea resided at 4 Becker Place this city and had resided here for the past forty-five years. She was a practical nurse and had been in Hartford previously to her illness nursing in that vicinity. She had a wide circle of friends who will be sorry to hear of her death. The funeral will be held from the home of her daughter in Hartford on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Bernard's church this city at 10 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Bernard's cemetery.

Orchid

THIS HAS HAPPENED ASHORETH ASHE, adventuring far from home, has a thrilling adventure in the West Indies. There she meets by accident her employer, the rich and famous HOLLIS HART. She misses the boat on which she is traveling, and goes with him to his house in the mountains. Her clothes have gone ahead on the cruise ship, but Hollis fits her out as best he can. And they spend a dangerously glamorous week together.

Six wonderful days have passed. And the ship is due back again. Ashoreth and Hollis prepare for their last day together. Suddenly, almost without warning, a horrible hurricane rushes in from the sea.

The servants seek refuge in the hurricane shelter, a great chamber in the mountain side. Hollis takes Ashoreth to the house, where they spend the day, and most of the following night, quite alone.

Ashoreth does her best to vamp her host. She even dons pajamas, and wanders with him through the garden, and lets him hold and kiss her. He calls her Orchid, as his own secret, tender name—because she reminds him, he says, of the flower.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII

The storm had raged all day, and now it was night. Midnight . . . and the wind, worn out with its fury, skulked like a fitful wraith, lifting the poor, dead things it had killed, and tossing them about like chaff.

The butterfly bushes lay on their purple heads. And the petals of the red hibiscus spilled like blood on the grassy slopes. Great boughs stretched across the lawn. And, beneath the wreckage, the whole gay garden was crushed and broken.

Lime trees had been uprooted and thrown aside; and the vanilla and coconuts, and a giant palm, spilling coconuts from its broken crown, lay across the garden wall.

A few pale stars came out and peered sadly down. Hollis and Ashoreth looked upon the horror that had visited their small paradise.

Servants, with flaming torches, wandered here and there. A child, in the hut where the women lived, cried and sobbed. And an old man moaned.

Down in the gully, dogs bayed fearfully. And the servants scuffed their torches out and ran as though the devil chased them. For they knew that dogs never howled like that, except when the Suck E Yan rode on the wings of the night . . . and the wind sighed gustily. . . . Everything seemed hurt and sad.

And only Ashoreth was happy. For Hollis had told her that he loved her. He had, moreover, asked her to marry him. . . . And that of the two, was the more important declaration.

It had been wonderful, in the cozy fastness of the little house. Hollis had found a pair of black pajamas, with gold frogs, and a Chinese dragon writhing up the back. How they happened in his bags he could not imagine. For they had been bought in Pekin, for the wife of an old friend. It was months since he had seen them. Perhaps something more utilitarian (Parkins, Ashoreth gathered, was Hollis' valet).

Hollis begged Ashoreth to accept them. "Mrs. Lee would look like a meal bag in them," he declared. "Please, Orchid—they're lounging things, really. Not to sleep in at all." So she had put them on. And took a candle from her bedroom to light the way to the drawing room, to show him how beautiful they were on a girl who did not at all resemble a meal bag.

He had blown out the lamps when he saw her coming with the darkness all around her, and her face lighted, like a holy statue's, in the flickering light of the candle. And then, somehow, her candle had been also extinguished. And he was waiting for her, with his arms open. . . . And the great, soft darkness had enticed them both.

And, as he held her, his desire was singing through her. He lifted her forehead to his lips, and the wild wine of his love flowed like a torrent from her swimming head. He hushed her protestations with his mouth. And, lifting her, cradled her in his arms. And talked of love, when he talked at all, which was not at first, nor until he was weary with kissing.

"You'll marry me, Orchid?" he had begged. And he called her beautiful things. "A high white altar." And a "pale-white robe." And a "flame-white secret forever." Lovely, mystical names, like a poet making love.

It rather embarrassed her. As it had when he talked about her "darling untouchedness." She wondered if he had known about the way Jack Smythe had kissed her only a week before, he would still call her by white and precious names. And, of course, there wasn't just Jack Smythe either. There was Monty. And one or two others, besides.

By and by he lighted the lamps again. And, when the storm had abated, he opened a shutter and they stood at the window together, with his arm about her shoulders. He sent her, then, to dress, and said they would go out for a little. And that Lisa would come to prepare a hot meal, for they had eaten very little that day.

They decided that the boat, which they had expected in the morning, would be surely delayed. But when it came Hollis was to sail for home with her. And they would be married in Boston.

"Will you cable your mother?" he had asked. "Oh, I'd rather tell her myself!" she said. . . . She had her own personal reasons for that. It might be a little difficult, handling Monty. She would want to be sure, too, that it was all quite proper and respectable. Malzie had such a plebeian suspicion of millionaires.

Ashoreth thought she was too excited that night to sleep. Hollis sent her to bed very shortly after they had eaten. Later she had smelled cigars and knew he was smoking in the garden, beneath her window. She considered stealing softly down, to surprise him again, in the Chinese pajamas. She took her hair down, to brush and plait it, and thought of slipping a big braid over each shoulder, and going to him that way. Ashoreth's hair reached far below her waist, and was, without doubt, her crowning glory. Hollis, she knew, would love it. She sat on the side of the bed to comb it, and to think upon her great good fortune. And, as she combed, her arm grew tired and heavy, so that she rested her head against the pillow. In a moment she was sound asleep.

While she slept, Hollis smoked innumerable cigars, and wondered if it was decent for a man of his age to marry a young girl. And it such marriages were ever happy. And if Ashoreth might not be better off with a younger man. Wretchedly he pondered. And, when he closed his eyes, he could imagine the feel of her in his arms, with her body throbbing, and her dark hair like a soft cloud across his face, and in his eyes.

He looked up to the room that held her, sleeping there. Pale and slim, with her black hair, and her long, black lashes that swept her white cheeks. He thought of her in the big bed, with the wooden angels to guard her slumber. . . . and he lit another cigarette. . . . and another. . . . and another. . . . until it was morning. And with the dawn, he knew that, right or wrong, he would abide by Ashoreth's desire. For the big bed, with the pale, slim girl sleeping in it, held heaven for him, and all but God.

The sun had risen, and he saw a boat riding the waves. The cruise ship, back again. The servants were up with the sun, and they helped him prepare to leave, packing his bags, and bearing messages to the town. The magnificent sum of 50 cents a week. And Lisa, my dear, who is rated the best cook on the island, gets a dollar! We could staff the whole place with them, if you'd like. Of course there might be some trouble, but I guess that could be arranged, if you'd like the notion."

Ashoreth was dumbfounded. "But it's probably not practical," he added. "The details of passage, and all. It would be quite a nuisance. And then, of course, they are not used to our ways. There would be all sorts of trouble getting them adjusted."

Ashoreth was rather overawed. The servant problem was far removed from the domestic life to which she was accustomed. She remembered the days when Malzie had gone out "accommodating," blacking stoves and scrubbing floors! Ashoreth wanted to cry whenever she thought of it. . . . And now she was to have servants of her own! The very notion frightened and thrilled her.

"How many servants have you, Holly?" she asked. "Me? No body but Parkins," he told her. "I live at the club, mostly. We'll open the town house after we are married, if you'd like. It's on Beacon street, on the river side. I suppose it's a bit dingy now. We might as well decorate, now. I'll ask Aunt Meg to get hold of a housekeeper. And then you needn't be annoyed with hiring servants. Aunt Meg will see that the place is running smoothly before we get back."

"Oh, Holly! Holly! It's like a story!" Ashoreth threw her arms about his neck. "I feel like a princess in a fairy tale. Don't—don't—let me wake up, dearest, so closely. Life is going to be a lovely dream," he promised. "I know it is," she cried. "But, oh Holly, I've the dreadfulness feeling that something is going to happen!" (To Be Continued.)

"Odette and Adele are picking orchids for you now," he told her, "and scotch lilies, to fill your state-ron. Hortense is begging that you will take her home for your maid. And Lisa and the twins want to go, also."

Ashoreth laughed. "Poor Hortense," she said, "she'd hold her breath in the bathtub if I could get a maid for absolutely nothing, we haven't even a corner in that flat to squeeze her in."

"But I meant for your own personal maid," he explained. "After we are married. She is so devoted to you, I wondered if perhaps you'd like to take her along."

"My own personal maid!" Ashoreth stared at her lover. "To dress you, my dear? And comb my hair, and give me baths?"

In the next installment Ashoreth and Holly go home. And on the boat they plan their honeymoon.

GIVE LIQUID FOOD TO FLU PATIENT

Soups Can Be Made Basis for Meals for Family During Sickness.

The burden of the housewife who must prepare food for the influenza patient and cook for the rest of the family at the same time, is lightened by the series of articles which Sister Mary, NEA Service food authority, co-operating with an expert dietitian, has written for The Herald.

Today's article—the second of this timely series—gives a dinner menu for the influenza victim and shows how it may be made the basis of a meal for the "well" persons in the house:

- FOR DINNER.
- Split pea soup
 - Hot malted milk
 - Grape juice
 - Vanilla ice cream
 - Coffee or substitute with cream and sugar.
- For the Rest of Us.
- Split pea soup
 - Lamb chops
 - Baked potatoes
 - Buttered carrots
 - Evaded salad
 - Grape juice for children
 - Vanilla ice cream
 - Coffee or substitute

- Split Pea Soup (4 servings).
- 1 cup dried peas
 - 3 cups cold water
 - 2 one-half cubes of salt pork
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 2 cups milk
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper.
- Soak peas several hours in cold water and drain. Add three quarts water, pork and onion. Cook slowly for three or four hours. Rub through a strainer. Make white sauce of butter, flour and milk. Combine with peas. Season with salt and pepper.
- The entire recipe gives 70.2 grams protein; 52 grams fat; 168 grams carbohydrate; 1494 calories.
- One serving gives 17.7 grams protein; 13 grams fat; 42 grams carbohydrate; 376 calories.
- Egg Nog.
- (For Patient Between Meals)
- 1 egg yolk
 - 1 teaspoon sugar
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
 - 1/2 cup cold milk
 - 1 egg white
- Beat yolk of egg slightly; add sugar, salt and flavoring. Add milk and mix well. Beat egg white until stiff and fold into other mixture. Serve in a tall glass.
- This one serving gives 10 grams protein; 11 grams fat; 10 grams carbohydrate; 179 calories.

"Come here, Mary." "Just a minute, Mother." "Mary, when I say come, come. Don't put me off that way." "All right, I'm coming." Mary came into the living room dropping crumbs from her piece of bread and butter and jelly.

"Don't bring that in here. You'll ruin the rug. Those greasy crumbs make spots." "Mayn't I finish my bread? I'm awfully hungry."

"Yes—go back to the kitchen and finish it, but hurry. I want you to do an errand."

"Come here, Mary!" "Yes, Mother—just a minute." "Mary! Come here. I won't wait another instant. I'm getting tired of your just-a-minute-ing me."

"I just had two more words in spelling to finish." "I don't care. You must learn to come the minute I call you."

Mary handed in her paper next day with the two missing words. She had forgotten all about them. She had to stay in and write each word 25 times after school.

"Mary." "Yes, Mother!" "Come here!" "No, Mary, however, was immediately forthcoming."

"Mary, what on earth are you doing? Come here this instant." Buddy had smeared great streaks of red, blue, and yellow water-color all over the wall-paper until it looked like a July sunset.

"Mary! Mary! Come here! See what you've done, you careless girl! You left your paints out and Buddy has ruined everything in your room."

"I was putting them away when you called me," said poor Mary, not "waiting a minute" but bursting frantically into the room. "I just knew he'd get into my things! I was coloring my map. I tried to shut the paint box and put it up where he couldn't reach it."

Her mother didn't answer. It was beginning to dawn upon her that she was a bit unreasonable about this instantaneous business. Children should be taught—how often, if you were called, could you drop what you are doing without delay? Not often.

It does not do to be too arbitrary.

Furniture Of Phyfe Is Distinctively American

BY WILLIAM H. WILSON.
Written for NEA Service.

Although born in Scotland, Duncan Phyfe, who spent 52 years creating furniture designs in this country, has become the outstanding figure in the history of American furniture. His best work was done between the years of 1795 and 1818, after which, he ceased to cater to the popular taste and became a "furniture butcher."

Working at the time when the Georgian designers of England and the Directoire creators in France were bringing their periods to a close, he adapted many of their fine points, adding his own, which have become distinctively American.

Duncan Phyfe furniture, mostly mahogany, is characterized by its slender lines and the concave curve of the legs of tables and sofas. Phyfe furniture is the acme of grace. The favorite motif was the lyre, which may be found in chairbacks, table supports. Feet of Phyfe furniture frequently end in claws or paws; and were often constructed of brass. Straight chairs, however, invariably ended in simple turned feet.

Duncan Phyfe furniture experienced a revival recently, and it is coming into its own. It is eminently suited to homes of quiet yet elegant simplicity, and reproductions of these graceful pieces are shown now in all furniture stores.

DOG DISTEMPER BEATEN BY 5-YEAR EXPERIMENTS.
By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Under the auspices of the Medical Research Council of Great Britain, two investigators, Dr. P. P. Laidlow and Mr. G. W. Dunkin, have completed a period of five years of experimentation with the indication that it is now going to be possible to conquer the disease, distemper in dogs.

They were not able to isolate a causative organism but they were able to get infectious material with which to develop distemper in animals.

The experiment showed that the disease is infective in its first phase of fever, even before the general symptoms appear; that the nasal discharges are uniformly infective at first, and that it is possible for the disease to be transferred from one animal to another through the air over very short distances.

Isolation of infected animals at the earliest possible stage would probably do much to stop the spread of the disease, whereas the crowding together of animals is responsible for its spread.

Agent Is Tiny Organism.
The infective agent is one of those tiny organisms too small to be seen with the microscope, filtrable through filters which will hold back visible bacteria.

The disease can be transferred from one animal to another by injecting the healthy animal with very minute amounts of blood or tissue taken from a diseased animal. It was found that at the time of

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUI NER

A recent picture of the once famous Jackie Coogan with his small brother who is amazingly like the Jackie of a few years ago gives a little crumb for thought. The small brother is a cute kid, of course. But there are hundreds and thousands of these cute kids whose parents would just dote on having them break in the movies and bring much kale home to mamma and poppa. But they won't, and the Coogan kid will, because his brother blazed the trail, made the name, and the rest is easy. Getting the techoid in some way other than mere ability is the thing that counts for both juveniles and adults in this day of over-supply of ability for the few jobs which can utilize it.

He'll Learn
A Paris taxicab driver chalked a sign on his cab to the effect that he owned his cab and wanted a wife; that only rich girls need apply. At latest report he was still single. The cab driver is probably surprised, having observed that most girls of this post-war, economically-hard era are rather anxious to marry. The rub is that he insists on a rich girl. Even today the rich girls may be a bit choosier than to be content with just a taxi driver who owns his cab.

Mary's Bob
One may be as famous as Mary Pickford and yet demonstrate her kinship with all sisters under the skin, as Mary and her bob Mary started out cautiously, as do all women, having her long curls bobbed neck length; with each trip to the barber shop they got shorter and shorter, till today her ears show and her neck nape is very visible. She's probably saying, as do lesser women, "It's only had it done ten years ago!" No, she's probably not, for she hadn't given up her kid roles ten years ago.

"Understanding India"
"Understanding India" is an interesting contrast to the much-discussed "Mother India." Gertrude Marvia Williams, the author, points out that only 30 per cent of the population of India practices child marriage.

More interesting than her statistics, however, are the experience of the author herself, who traveled more than 600 miles in India alone, ignoring the British convention which forbids a white woman, unaccompanied by a white man, to enter the lower quarters of Indian cities, even in the daytime. She slept in mud huts and was entertained by ruling Hindu princes. Women are like that today. Defying rules and getting what they want. They are not to be drunk and they generally come off victor with a book or anything else they go after.

Fashion Plaque
A large diamond brooch to hold the hair in place at the side was seen recently on a smart bobbed hair head at the opera.

Decorative Hand
DECORATION used with discretion makes these heavy gray suede sports gloves distinctive. They are hand stitched and an inserted piece with cutout circles is set over a lighter gray.

MILK

The Between-Meals Meal
GROWING children are naturally hungry. Between meals they require something to tide over that empty feeling.

Milk is the ideal between-meals meal—bread well spread with butter and plenty of milk to drink. Easily served and easily digested, Milk is the wholesome, strengthening food for children.

The Milk Way Is the Health Way
Milk helps your children build up resistance to the ailments and dangers of school days. Milk protects them by making good the deficiencies of all other foods they eat.

Prepare your children now, ensure their health today. The health way is the milk way. The economy of milk as the foundation food—the first food in household importance—should be considered by every housewife.

Chicago Cubs And Giants Best Teams In National

Pirates Crowd Close and Next Come Cardinals; Walsh Gives the Teams the Once Over.

Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of two articles by Davis J. Walsh, dealing with the professional baseball clubs of each Major League, either by trades or natural depreciation, since the close of the 1928 season. The second and last article will follow immediately.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Jan. 16.—Granting the possibility that the boys may yet contrive to some purpose over a trade or two, it can be conceded more or less today that the National League clubs are set, or in some cases "considerably upset, for the 1929 season and that what they happen to muster now is approximately what they will have to show when the gun pops. It, therefore, may be estimated, without anything more to fear than violent contradiction, that the two most improved ball clubs in the National League today are the Chicago Cubs and the New York Giants and that, of this pair, the Cubs figure to show the greater improvement.

Pirates Close By
Everything else being equal, which seldom is the case, they should make the ultimate fight for the pennant, with the Pittsburgh Pirates showing plenty of authority but not too much and the St. Louis Cardinals fading like the old daguerreotype of Aunt Bertha. The Pirates may be figured to summon some slight improvement, the Cardinals none at all. In fact, I would venture to say that the champions may be off as far as twenty per cent from their present level.

Two Other Entries
There are, as a matter of fact, only two other entries in the league which might be entitled to look forward to having better ball clubs and, unfortunately, a thousand times nothing is still nothing. I am referring to the Dodgers and Phillies. One can't go back any further than the end of the ultimate limit, so we will assume that this pair has come forward a bit. That the Boston Braves have done likewise is not an unlikely supposition; it is an absurd supposition that the Cardinals will win the pennant, is to commit a bromide. However, they still aren't any stronger than a New Year's resolution at third base.

Giants' Improvement
The Giants' improvement hasn't been more than ten per cent and I wouldn't stake them to that if it wasn't for the fact that certain men who were available only for parts of last season will be ready from the outset. Reese is a better second baseman than Cobb and he has proceeded to prove it at the earliest possible moment. The Giants were a chump ball club against left handed last year because of the shift they had to use for the occasion. That's out now like a man and it still will mean a whole lot in games won and lost but, on the other and remaining hand, the infield no longer is fool proof. The Pirates may not have gone back but certainly they haven't come forward very far, either. The club, however, probably got very smart when it attached itself to Earl Sheely as its first baseman.

The Cardinals
As for the Cardinals, they have torn up half their infield and grown it away. This doesn't mean all they say is but, the chances are he isn't quite that good and, anyhow, at least one infield position must suffer no matter how you figure it. The pitching has helped considerably carrying this outfit along way and it is about due to call he way a career. Psychologically, their showing in the World Series will encourage the Cards almost not at all. I think they are shot.

So are the Reds, due to natural depreciation. The club has been allowed to die on the trellis, particularly the pitchers who once kept the outfit moving somewhere. The Dodgers lost Petty but he never won too many games for them, anyhow, because they persisted in giving him a no-run advantage as a margin on which to work. Wright is ENGAGED!

HELEN WILLIS.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 16.—Helen Willis, America's tennis queen, and Frederik Shander Moody, Jr., son of a San Francisco capitalist today were receiving congratulations following the announcement of their engagement to wed.

LEAGUE LEAD IS AT STAKE

Bon Ami, Green and Sons Risk Their Standing as Second Round Starts.

The Herald bowling league will resume its schedule tomorrow night. Three teams are tied for first place now with another only a point behind.

Interest tomorrow night centers in the match between the Bon Ami and Manchester Green, both of whom are tied with the Sons of Italy for the lead. The Construction also stands a good chance of bumping off the Sons.

The West Sides and Charter Oaks are located at about the same point in the league standing, are expected to stage close match. The Center Church and Independents also are evenly matched. The Night Hawks may get a surprise from the Beethovens.

With the start of the second round, no bowlers who did not roll with any team the first round or who neglected to sign up with one team, can take part in the closing round's matches. Owing to the illness of Secretary Frank Cervini, the bowling averages will not be announced for a few days.

Here are the pairings for tomorrow night:

At Farr's: Beethoven vs. Night Hawks, West Sides vs. Charter Oaks. At Murphy's: Center Church vs. Independents, Construction vs. Sons of Italy, Bon Ami vs. Green.

TROOP TWO WINS FROM TROOP FOUR

Troop Two of St. James's church defeated Troop Four of St. Mary's church last night in one of the most exciting inter-troop contests this season. Both teams were evenly matched but Troop Two gradually pulled ahead to win 15-9.

Art Anderson, scoutmaster of Troop Five, acted as judge. The score by events follows:

HERE'S THE DOPE by Tom Stowe

GIVE THEM CREDIT.

Someone is always trying to take the joy out of life. Last night there were certain basketball fans at the Rec who had the audacity to declare that Olson's Swedes could defeat the Rec any time they felt disposed. These persons had the same viewpoint of the recent game between the Philadelphia Colored Giants and the Rec. Yet, the Rec won both games by the respective scores of 44 to 41 and 46 to 44.

Granting that a traveling team which is playing every night in the week cannot be at its best form any one game, nevertheless it is the writer's opinion that very few of these clubs are throwing away basketball games in effort to insure return games. As a matter of fact, they cannot afford to mar their record with such performances.

Both the Colored Giants and Olson's Terrible Swedes tried their level best to beat the Rec but the local sharpshooters were just a bit too strong for them. Some say that the Rec was playing over its head last night, but it didn't strike me that way. True, the Rec players had a better average in their goals from scrimmage, but it must be remembered that no team has been able to beat the Rec this season on its home floor. The Rec, for some reason or other, doesn't seem to show its true strength until pressed hard.

The Rec has played 11 games this season and won 10 of them. In only one game, has the margin of victory exceeded ten points. And anytime that the score is that close, the fans are sort of bound to see plenty of action and excitement. The attendance at the game last night was over 700 and that is the largest of the season. Manchester, apparently, is awakening to the fact that it has a first class basketball team here. With interest running high, Manager Clune would do well to waste no time booking such strong clubs as the Bristol New Departures, New Britain Pros and Meriden Endees. The Middletown Red Wings play here next Tuesday.

Five of the players who make up the present edition of Olson's Terrible Swedes hail from Oklahoma. They are Rae, Perfect, Campbell, Dickerson and Stewart. Manager Olson and Gullie are from Missouri. Incidentally, Olson is the only Swede on the team. Campbell and Rae, both of whom look more Swedish than anyone else, are Scotch. The team has been playing since November 14 and has won something like 50 out of 58 games instead of 48 straight as Paddy Moruke, their booking agent, stated. Last night was the first time the Swedes have been defeated under amateur rules this season. They greatly prefer the amateur game and highly praised the local team and officials after the game.

Only about one out of every ten places they run across compares favorable with Manchester the players said. Up in Lowell where they played the night before the game here, there weren't even facilities for a shower bath let alone a plunge in a pool. Tonight the Swedes play in Plainfield.

REC GIRLS ALLOW ONE FIELD GOAL

Trounce New Britain Team In Second Half When Miss Welles Gets Loose.

The Rec Girls had no trouble in defeating the Landers-Frary & Clark Company team of New Britain here last night in the preliminary game to the Rec-Swedes. The score was 18 to 2.

The Rec Girls' defense was so stubborn that, as they would, the visitors were unable to score only one basket, that coming in the first half. However, half-time score was only 5 to 2.

In the second half, Miriam Welles broke away for all of her 13 points and that was every point the Rec made the second half. Here is the summary:

YOU and BASKETBALL

The team that scores the most points wins the game and points are made only by shooting baskets. One can go into the details as to various shots, but the most common and sensible shots are the two-handed push from the level of the chest in shooting from a distance, and the shot with one hand under the basket. Further, it is an established fact that to shoot on the longer shots and to bank from beneath the basket on the shorter shots gives the greater accuracy.

Shoot with care and confidence, and practice with the idea of making every shot good. Shoot and feel that the goal is as big as a tub. Learn the short shots first. Later move back and regard the ones that you have already made as a matter of course.

In shooting foul shots, our formula is to have all muscles relaxed, so that they are receptive to the message, "This is one more point." We like the lift shot because it is natural.

In practicing shooting, report early and practice the shots which you get most frequently. Shoot close ones first; then get back a little distance and shoot clear, trying to make every shot. And in solitaire practice, include dribbling in and shooting as you would in a quick opening. Also take shots and passes.

MOST DANGEROUS SPORT.
Joe Stubbs, Harvard hockey coach, says hockey, as played by collegians, is more dangerous than football or any other sport.

SWEDISH POISON

WALTER "TY" HOLLAND

Ty Holland played his first full game of the season with the Rec last night and showed his worth by taking the leading role in bringing about the downfall of the Olson's Terrible Swedes. Ty caged seven field goals and a foul besides playing a fine floor game. The photograph above was taken when Holland won the two tennis singles championship last fall.

STILL DOUGH THERE.

Strangler Lewis got $50,000 the other night for defending his heavyweight wrestling title against Gus Sonnenberg in Boston. It may have been his only passing notice to record that Lewis was beaten and that his belt was awarded to the former Dartmouth football star.

It is of more interest, though, to see the evidence that there is still important money in an old racket that had gradually declined in the recent years when all other classes of sport were in the real big money.

The Strangler's purse was a lot of money for Boston where the customers are more exacting than they are in New York and Chicago. In addition to the Strangler's end the promoters paid Sonnenberg $8,000 and cleared about $20,000 for themselves.

Big Fellows Made It.
Even in the days of its greatest popularity—and it once was a popular sport—wrestling is now a sport—the money that second-class boxing did and, of course, it could pay the wrestlers the kind of purses that boxers got.

But wrestling has been a very profitable trade to a number of Oleksiefski.

Joe Stecher made about three-quarters of a million dollars when he was the champion and he estimated the title to be worth $200,000 a year. Lewis must be worth at least a half-million dollars, or as he has been in and out of the title for more than ten years. The loss of his title will affect his income, of course, but he will still be a card.

Gus Should Do Well.
Sonnenberg ought to make plenty. He apparently has made wrestling a major sport around Boston and has attracted a lot of college men to the game.

He has a lot of color and his tactics have introduced something new into the business.

The body squandered made a drawing card out of Stecher and Lewis' headlock got him plenty of publicity. The new hitting attack of Sonnenberg's ought to be a panic with the customers.

Throwing himself across the ring, as the football boys do when they are making a flying tackle, Sonnenberg rams his head into his opponent's stomach and something has to give. Usually it is the stomach.

Wayne Munn started a fad on Lewis several years ago when he picked him up and threw him bodily into the fourth row of the ringside seats. He slammed him on the floor a couple of times and Lewis had enough.

The butting attack of Sonnenberg caught Lewis without a defense and all he could do was to get out of the ring when Sonnenberg charged at him and he was out of the ring so much that the referee disqualified him.

Lewis protested, of course, but he had made a mistake of putting up his belt before the contest and Sonnenberg had it before he could get back into the ring.

All of which will not hurt the chances of a return match.

Ladies' Night will be observed at the Charter Oak bowling alleys Friday night of this week. It is announced today by Manager Joseph Farr.

Holland's Spectacular Shooting Proves Fatal To Olson's Outfit

REC FIVE FLASHES BEST FORM SHOWN ALL SEASON IN BEATING TEAM OF OKLAHOMA PLAYERS

Roy Norris Plays Prominent Part in Victory by Great Foul Shooting; Stavitsky Outplays Olson Who Amuses 700 Fans With Comedian Capers; Visitors' Center Remembers Woolworth Building, But Norris Checks Him.

By TOM STOWE

Playing by far its best game of the season, the crack Rec Five basketball outfit succeeded in defeating Olson's Terrible Swedes of Joplin, Missouri, last night before the largest crowd of the season at the School street Recreation Center. The score was 44 to 41 and more than 700 persons saw the highly interesting free-scoring contest.

Roy Norris and Ty Holland, the Mutt and Jeff combination of the Manchester team, were the outstanding performers in the coveted victory. However, the other three men, "Hank" McCann, "Hap" Madden and George Stavitsky, were more than instrumental in the triumph. In fact, it was McCann and Stavitsky who, together with Holland, enabled the Rec to get away to a commanding lead midway in the first half. Spectacular shooting by the Rec players both from scrimmage and from the foul line, were the turning points of the hard-fought struggle.

For the first time this season, Manager Ben Clune used the same five men who started all through the game without making a single substitution. This was the first time that this has occurred this season and it seemed to work out advantageously. For instance, Holland, although getting away to a somewhat slow start, proved the outstanding player on the team. His seven field goals do not begin to tell the splendid floorwork he did. Many of his passes paved the way for mates to tally and in addition he held his opponent, Elden Perfect, to one field goal.

The Swedes gave the Rec stiff opposition all the way except the middle of the first half when the Rec forced ahead through spectacular long range shooting to take an 18 to 9 lead at one point. This, however, was quickly reduced when Chester Olson, the only Swedish player on the visiting aggregation, was replaced by Bonnie Stewart. Olson, who is manager and organizer of the team, furnished many thrills for the fans during the eight minutes he played.

Olson Clever; Handicap.
Olson's clever backhand passes, deceptive and tricky floorwork gave the fans many a laugh. However, with all due credit to Olson for his tactical tactics it was quite evident that his team was stronger with him on the bench. Stavitsky caged three of his four hoops off Olson before he left the game. Stewart fared much better, getting two against one for a cleaner local bucket star. Ray Dickerson was the big gun for the Swedes the first half scoring four baskets and exhibiting some classy floorwork. Madden held him scoreless the second half.

Asper Gullie, center on Olson's Original Nordles last season, started at center for the Swedes and played the first half. He is the lad who scored the points which defeated New Britain in an overtime game the other night. Gullie and he didn't use a pair of stilts either. Facts are, both he and Campbell scored three and each got a foul goal.

Although the Rec had a decided advantage in the first half, the second was a question whether or not the Silk City combine would be victorious. The Swedes kept between three and six points behind the Rec until with less than five minutes to play, they knotted the score on field goals by Joe Rae and Merle Campbell and a couple of foul goals by the former. This deadlocked the score at 29 points apiece and it was anybody's game.

By Scores Again.
Play had scarcely started, however, when Holland broke away from Perfect and got loose under the Swedes' basket. Stavitsky, who was fooling around with the ball over under the balcony, saw Holland and shot him a beautiful pass that the former high school flash converted into two points via the "sucker" route. A moment later, the hard-working Norris slipped away from Campbell and dribbled half the length of the floor to score another basket from under the hoop. Rae flipped in a one-hand shot but time was rapidly passing and the Campbell mistook Holland for the ball; the latter made good his free try and the game was over with the Rec's home slate still immaculate.

JOTTED BETWEEN BASKETS
George Stavitsky didn't get any free tries so his record of twelve straight fouls is still intact.

Nobody went out on personals but Madden and Dickerson each managed to stop with three as the limit.

The Swedes say that a good share of their victories are recorded in the South where the opposition doesn't begin to compare with that in the north. In fact, most of their eight or nine defeats were suffered since they struck the north.

Manager Ben Clune was hurt in a fall down the stairs when he was hurrying to answer a telephone call. At first, it was believed that he was not hurt, but later it was necessary to summon a doctor. He evidently struck his throat in the fall for he was gasping for breath when the doctor arrived and very pale. Reports that his condition was serious proved exaggerated.

The Swedes play in Plainfield tonight which will afford another chance to compare the ability of the Rec and Plainfield quintets.

The Rec plays the St. Michaels at New Haven Friday night. Next Thursday evening the Middletown Red Wings come here. Next week Friday, the Rec plays the Falcons at Holyoke and the following night the Dixies in Hartford.

Anyone could have told what part of the country the Swedes came from without being told. Their southern accent in speech was very conspicuous.

game for the Rec last night and dropped in three pretty baskets. Norris, Stavitsky and Madden also did well, but it was Holland whose playing stood out like a sore thumb.

Apparently, Manager Clune can get the best results from his team by not changing the lineup too much. Last night's splendid showing sort of supports this statement.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: "Men of the South Pole" Sketches by Halsey; Synopsis by Draucher. Captain Scott tested the position as given by Amundsen and found it accurate—Amundsen had reached the South Pole a month ahead of him. Taking a letter Amundsen had left attached to the flag, which was addressed to the King of Norway, Scott and his party started home, sadly.

GAS BUGGIES—What Were You Saying, Alec?

Comic strip featuring Alec and a woman discussing a business deal. Alec: "LISTEN, ALEC, THERE'S NO USE BEATING AROUND THE BUSH ANY LONGER. I NEED MONEY, AND I NEED IT BADLY. MY CAR IS TIED UP AT THE GARAGE, AND THE HOTEL HAS SHUT DOWN ON MY CREDIT. YOU SURELY AREN'T TURNING DOWN YOUR OLD PAL!" Woman: "I'M MIGHTY SORRY, DRESSER, BUT AS I SAID BEFORE, I'M NOT MUCH BETTER OFF MYSELF!" Alec: "YOU'VE GOT A WONDERFUL LAYOUT HERE, ALEC, YOU'VE BEEN BOASTING ABOUT HOW BIG IT'S GOING OVER, SO WHY THE HELL—LUCK STROKE TO ME?" Woman: "WHAT I SAID ABOUT REFORMING, AND THIS POLISH BUSINESS BELONGS ON THE SQUARE, IS THE TRUTH. I'VE TURNED OVER A NEW LEAF. EVERY CENT WE TAKE IN GOES RIGHT BACK INTO THE BUSINESS!" Alec: "ALL I'M GETTING OUT OF IT IS A BUNCH OF GLASS. HELP YOU OUT IF I HAD ANY CASH, BUT..." Woman: "EXCUSE ME, MR. SMART, BUT THAT BIG JOBBER, WHOSE ACCOUNT YOU FIGURED WAS A LOSS, JUST PAID UP HERE'S THE MONEY."

Robert J. Smith

Real Estate, Insurance, Steamship Tickets. 14 Years at 1000 Main St. By FRANK BECK. Then Captain Oates became terribly frost-bitten about the feet and could not help to pull the sled. Indeed he could hardly walk. Poor Oates was retarding the others and he knew it. One morning when the blizzard was raging mercilessly, he walked away from the party, never to be seen again. He died that his friends might have a chance to live.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

A full moon has little influence on the tied.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Just "Do Your Stuff"—don't run a blud, Or let ol' hardship "stall" you, Or play your hand with too much "sand".

A "blind" beggar sat at the entrance of a subway with a tin cup in his hand. A passerby, slightly under the influence of alcohol, took out his pocketflask and started to pour a drink into the man's cup.

Mabel—"How do you like my new lipstick?" Jack—"It's all taa; it's smacked up to be."

Two men went hunting for the first time and borrowed a few dogs from a farmer. After they had been out for a while they returned.

Husband and wife were talking about the various cemeteries and churchyards within a certain radius of where they lived, and after a time, the husband asked: "And where would you like to be buried when the time comes?"

Whenever we read now of "lips glued together" we consider it reasonably safe to attribute it to the lip-stick.

"Give me a sentence using the words, defeat, deduct, and defense." "Defeat of deduct went over defense ahead of detail."

A hardware store clerk reports he waited on a lady customer the other day who wanted three pounds of nails.

"What kind," asked the clerk. "15-penny, 10-penny, 12-penny or what?" "My husband didn't say," replied the fair customer, "but he always gets the best so you'd better give me the 12-penny kind."

Two gentlemen riding on a train were both very much intoxicated. First Gent: What time is it? Second Gent (After extracting a match box from his pocket with much exertion and gazing at it intently): "Thursday."

First Gent: "My heavens, I've got to get off here."

"Are you going to take your maid with you to the beach this summer?"

"No, indeed. Last year the one I took became engaged to the only desirable man in the place before my day" ter and even discovered that he was there."

LETTER GOLF

IT GETS BETTER

Today's puzzle starts out POOR but it gets better as it goes along and ends up the BEST. Par is five and one solution is on another page.

Letter Golf grid with words POOR and BEST.

THE RULES.

1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change the word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change "POOR" to "HEN", in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

Married men do not lie from choice, but that their wives persist in asking such fool questions.

Even a pair of patched trousers is better than none at all.

Bluff rushes in where brains fear to tread.

THE TINYMITES

"Oh my," said Carry, "this is the luck. What fun it is to watch the duck. The lady sits upon its back and steers it here and there. Just see how they swing 'round and 'round and dive creakily toward the ground. The lady hasn't seen us yet. We may give her a scare."

The Men's club of Second Congregational church will enjoy one of their monthly suppers and get-togethers at the church Friday evening. Herbert L. Tenney is chairman of the committee in charge of the supper and program. All men of the church and community, whether members of the club or not will be welcome. Tickets for the supper may be secured from the members. John McMenemy, the president is looking for a big turnout of the men for this first meeting of the new year.

The Army and Navy Club team defeated the Rockville Athletic association's players again at last night's sitting in the pinocle tournament, by 630 points. The total scores were: Army and Navy club, 3324; Rockville, 5844. Last week the club here won over the visitors by 163, making them now in the lead 843 points. There will be one more sitting next Tuesday evening at the local clubhouse.

Mrs. Otto Hills of Center street entertained a party of ten little girls and boys at her home last evening from 7 to 9 o'clock in honor of the tenth birthday of her small daughter Harriet. The children played a number of games and had a peanut hunt. Louis Barber found the greatest number of peanuts and received as a prize a Lady Washington crepe paper doll. When the time came for the luncheon they found Mrs. Hills had decorated the table beautifully in pink and white with favors and candles in the same colors. She had made a birthday cake for Harriet and another was sent her by a friend, both trimmed in pink and white. Harriet also received a number of pretty gifts.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Church of the Nazarene will meet this evening at 7:30. Mrs. Edith Whiteside will give the address.

There will be a chicken pie supper at the Community club from 5:30 until 7:30 tonight. The fowl is being supplied by the Manchester Poultry club.

The Ladies' Missionary society of the Swedish Lutheran church will hold its annual meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. John Leander, 98 Ridge street.

ABOUT TOWN

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Odd Fellows' Building association will be held at Odd Fellows' building, Thursday evening, January 17 at 8 o'clock. At this time reports of officers will be submitted, three directors chosen to serve for a term of three years, and any other business proper to come before said meeting transacted.

Mrs. Arra Sutton Mixer of the Home Service Department of the Hartford Gas company will be at the Community club at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon to give the second of her series of five food demonstrations. Her topic tomorrow will be "Hearty Supper Dishes."

The drum and bugle corps of the local Girl Scouts will meet at the State Armory tomorrow night at 8:30. The council is planning a food sale for Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the F. T. Blish Hardware Co.'s store.

Harold Nelson of Cooper street has returned to his work at the Pinehurst grocery after several days' illness.

The Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the South Methodist church will hold a joint meeting tomorrow evening at 7:30 with Mrs. Robert A. Colpitts at the parsonage, No. 316 Spruce street.

Miss Margaret Howe of 51 Hamlin street, has left for Boston where she will train to be a nurse at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital.

The scheduled dance at the Wapping School hall last night which was to have been given by the Blue Triangle Girls was postponed because of illness in the Fanny Springs orchestra of Otis, Mass., which was to have furnished the music.

PHONES Pinehurst
"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"
SHIFT-ABOUTS

Diet, diet, diet; the doctors keep talking diet as an anti-flu measure. Don't pack your system too full of starches, or any other one class of nutriment—so they tell us; though there can never be too much of the citrus fruit juices in the dietary. Which means keep on eating oranges and grape fruit, tangerines, etc. Eat plenty of them.

And the complete change provided by a fish dinner or two during the week is equally advantageous. This week we have doubled our order on Smelts and Opened Clams; didn't have enough either last week or the week before. The little smelt—that small like cucumbers rather than like other fish—are making a tremendous hit. Rowe's deep water oysters, the finest in the world—solid packed without a drop of water—are also gaining steady customers for Pinehurst.

Still and all there will be hundreds of families, this keen, zippy weather, who will want more and more stews and soups. Pinehurst will take the best of care of its customers who want beef for these purposes. Call 's up and we'll tell you exactly what is best at the moment.

There's another thing we've been wanting to talk about—the new kind of CANNED SPINACH. The canners used to cook spinach into a mush. It was wholesome enough, but it wasn't—spinach; not what we all want in spinach. Now, however, they are using an entirely new process, and today Canned Spinach, the Pinehurst kind, is delicious. Of course everybody knows that spinach is the "broom of the stomach" as the French call it.

A request: If your dinner is at night, and if you'd just as soon receive your order early in the afternoon as in the morning, will you favor us by letting us know when you phone in your order?
