MORROW AND HOOVER HOLD A CONFERENCE

Not Likely That Ambassador Will Be Offered Cabinet Post; President-Elect Goes Fishing.

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 24.—Dwight W. Morrow's future status in public service, if any, probably will be determined within the next week. The banker diplomat who left his position as a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan to take over the ambassadorship to Mexico at a time when Washington had almost despaired of ever reestablishing cordial relations with Mexico City, was a breakfast guest this morning of President-Elect Hoover at his Belle Isle retreat. He came from Nassau for today's conference at Mr. Hoover's invitation, to discuss a number of matters, among them his own status after March 4.

Some Name Mentioned
Morrow's name has been mentioned with frequency and prominence in connection with the secretaryship of state, yet not even to his intimates has the banker ever indicated that he wanted the position or that he would accept it if it were offered to him.

Those in a position to know say that, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Mr. Hoover will not offer the post to Morrow and that this is entirely satisfactory to Morrow. They also say that Mr. Hoover is very anxious to retain the ambassador's services in his administration, preferably in his present post. It is believed that Morrow will acquiesce in this program.

A Shrewd Diplomat
Morrow has been ambassador to Mexico for more than two years. When he went to Mexico City the relations between the two countries probably were as bad as it was possible for them to be, short of actual intervention. By dint of hard work and some extraordinary shrewd diplomacy, things are on the mend in Mexico-American relations.

But the job is only half completed. The obnoxious land and petroleum laws, which brought the two countries almost to an open breach, are still on the statute books in Mexico, although most of the irritation over their application has been removed. There is reason to hope that they will be modified or ameliorated under the new régime.

Wants Work Continued
Mr. Hoover wants this work continued, for more reasons than one. He wants Mexican-American relations to continue on the present progressively peaceful plane and

STOECKEL PLANS TOURIST MARKER

Good In All New England States—Fees to Be Equally Divided.

A New England tourist motor vehicle marker issued for the convenience of visiting motorists, which would be effective in all of the six states, will be one of the suggestions offered by representatives of this state at a conference on traffic uniformity at the Statler building, Boston, on Friday. The marker, under the proposed plan, would be uniform in all states and some means to simplify recognition by enforcement officials in connection therewith might be adopted. While it might be issued by any of the states, the fees collected if any would be divided among all of the New England states.

This suggestion comes from Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel and Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald, who will officially represent this state. The meeting, called under the auspices of the New England Council, will include representatives of motor vehicle and highway departments of the New England states and various automobile clubs in the section.

Traffic Problems.
The subject outlined for discussion concern motor vehicle traffic problems. Both Connecticut commissioners, after a discussion of the questions, are of the opinion that, insofar as the problems affect state control, the Council meeting can advantageously follow uniformity proposals adopted, or under consideration, by the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Commissioners and the Association of Highway Officials of the North Atlantic states. These groups, progressively, have given attention to every practical

MAN HAS BRAINS OF "AUTOMATON"

Death Reveals the Secret of Famous Chess Player of the Old Eden Musee.

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 24.—Remember the "gay 90's"; the old Eden musee in New York; the awesome figure known as the "Automaton Chess Player."

Sitting immobile and as if purely mechanical, the "automaton" moved the chess men about the board, never winking an eyelash, never saying a word.

But the great secret that none shared in life, death finally revealed today. With the burial here of Peter J. Hill, who lived as mysteriously as the "automaton," it became known that Hill had been the "brains" of the "automaton."

The identity was revealed by Dr. William A. Bryan, superintendent of the Worcester State hospital, for whom Hill once worked.

Hill was about 60 years old and nothing was known of his early life.

WILL MOVE INTO NEW TELEPHONE HOME SATURDAY

Business Office to Be Ready in New Location Monday; Work on Dial System Progressing.

The business office of the Southern New England Telephone Company will be moved Saturday from its present location in rented quarters in the Odd Fellows building at the Center to the new telephone building at 52 East Center street and will open for business at the new location on Monday morning.

For some months work on the new building has progressed according to schedule and the commodious, well-equipped business office on the first floor of the building is now ready for occupancy. Here ample space is provided for Manager W. H. Halsted and his staff of clerks and there also is a large space for the convenience of the public who have business with the clerical force or manager.

At the present time employees of the Western Electric Company are installing the new dial system equipment in the rear of the first floor and will also place in the building the other central office apparatus which is part of the new dial system to be used here. This work will be completed and the new system placed in operation during the summer.

TROTZKY'S FRIENDS SUSPECTED IN PLOT

One Hundred and Fifty of Them Arrested by Reds' Secret Police.

Moscow, Jan. 24.—The official newspaper Pravda today demanded punishment by "the most severe isolation" for the 150 members of Leon Trotsky's secret political organization arrested by the G. P. U., secret police.

Pravda claimed that the Trotsky organization would have "rolled Soviet Russia to the very brink of civil war."

The prisoners are members of the "opposition party" formed by former War Commissar Trotsky to oppose the Communists now in control of the Central government.

Called Plotters.
Eight of the prisoners, who were former members of the Communist party, are charged with counter revolutionary plotting.

Arrests were made here and elsewhere throughout the republic. They followed a long investigation into the underground activities of the "opposition leaders."

Trotsky and hundreds of others of the faction hostile to the present Moscow regime were exiled a year ago. At that time it was believed that the opposition movement was virtually crushed.

PROFESSOR FORGETFUL

Westfield, Mass., Jan. 24.—The old "yarn" about the absent-minded college professor saw a counterpart in Albert Lumley, instructor at Amherst college, who declared in District Court here today that he had forgotten to procure registration plates for his automobile.

A state trooper stopped the car bore no plates, and arrested Prof. Lumley on charges of operating an automobile without registration license or insurance.

The professor was fined $135 on the charges.

Congress Aims Bill At Alien Racketeers

Washington, Jan. 24.—A compromise movement was under way today which may result in Congressional enactment of a drastic deportation bill aimed primarily at alien gunmen, racketeers and big bootleggers operating in some of the country's largest cities.

The Johnson deportation bill, which has been on the House calendar for a year but not acted on, will be withdrawn to the immigration committee for the purpose of working out the compromise.

Rep. Snell (R) of New York, chairman of the rules committee, announced that if the compromise is effected the way will be cleared for early action on the measure.

Both Rep. Johnson (R) of Washington, chairman of the House immigration committee, and Rep. Dickstein (D) of New York, leader of the minority opposing the present bill, agree that legislation is necessary to remedy the defects in the deportation laws.

The minority, however, has stubbornly opposed the present bill, chiefly on the ground that it would open the way for the deportation of aliens convicted of minor prohibitive offenses, would put unjust hardship upon aliens who are committed to insane asylums and in some instances permit deportation after an immigrant has raised a family in this country.

ONCE FAMOUS FILM STAR IS BECOMING DANGEROUS

Kept Behind Wire Netting for Fear of Him Attacking the Members of His Own Household.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 24.—A one-time foremost film star now spends his declining years very often behind the wire netting of an enclosure back of a home in the hills of Hollywood.

His changing moods have made this necessary.

Occasionally he starts to attack persons of his own household. Again he stares wistfully down the hills toward the studio where he trod the boards to fame and fortune.

Famous Dog.
The erstwhile star is Strongheart, the world renowned shepherd dog. He is ten years old now and ten years is about the span of activity of any dog's existence. But if a "dog's life" is supposed to imply bad treatment then the phrase is a misnomer in the case of Strongheart. His owner, Jane Murfin, provides Strongheart with every comfort and he has even a dietitian to look after his food.

Strongheart's motion picture grosses up into millions of dollars. All of this was not profit of course, but Strongheart, in the vernacular of filmland is "well heeled." In short, Strongheart is very well-to-do.

Owner a Playwright.
Strongheart's owner is a playwright, but that does not interfere with her responsibility to the dog. For Strongheart has a daily automobile ride and a careful program of exercises carried out.

Strongheart's principal interest these days is in his four year old sons—it to romp around the yard and strike up acquaintanceship with strange sons and daughters of other canine families.

There isn't anything Strongheart can do about it but he growls and barks his disapproval in no unobtrusive tones occasionally.

Leads Simple Life.
Strongheart Sr., rigidly adheres to his diet. He leads a simple life. Once in a great while he has a well broiled lamb chop or small piece of steak.

He becomes temperamental at times. If the food is too hot, he

LINDBERGH TO TOUR SOUTH AMERICA SOON

Capt. Rickenbacker Makes the Announcement to Detroit Auto Dealers.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 24.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will soar away on a good will tour of South America within the next thirty days, according to Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, American ace of aces in the World War, who made the announcement of the flying colonel's new tour to members of the Michigan Automotive Trades Association at their annual meeting here today.

Details of the forthcoming flight are now being ironed out. Rickenbacker said. Rickenbacker pointed out that President-Elect Hoover has set an example in his recent South American good-will tour which would be followed by the government with its air messenger, Lindbergh.

Within the next year an air line with regular service will be started along the route that Lindbergh will fly, Rickenbacker said. This route would be down the west coast of South America to the cape and up the east coast, through Argentina and Brazil.

TOWN PETITION FOR REVISION IN THE SENATE

Bill Providing Changes in Manchester's Charter to Be Filed—Both Houses Hold Short Sessions.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 24.—Briefness and despatch marked the doings of the State Legislature today, and before noon adjournment was had until next Tuesday morning. The appearance of the bill asking the right to construct an express highway across the state was noted with interest. A group of Hartford lawyers presented the bill, which asks the right of eminent domain to take needed property, but the incorporators are not named.

A petition reached the Senate asking the right to build a gas pipe line from Bridgeport to Winsted. To the Senate went a bill that provides a fine of $500 for any person who wilfully represents funds as kosher which are not kosher. Senator Dennis, of Hartford, presented the bill on request.

THE SENATE
Hartford, Conn., Jan. 24.—The Senate today confirmed the governor's appointment of Milton C. Mapes to be a member of the New Harbor Commission; the nomination of Norman C. Stevens, of Hartford, to be a member of the State Board of Finance and Control; the appointment of Clarence

R. J. SMITH SEEKS COUNTY BOARD JOB

Candidate for Hartford County Commission to Succeed New Britain Man

Senator Robert J. Smith, the Fourth district's representative in the upper house of the General Assembly, is a candidate for Hartford County commissioner, it was learned this afternoon. Senator Smith, who is president of the Hartford County delegation in the General Assembly, seeks to succeed Edwin W. Schulz, of New Britain, whose term expires October 1, 1929. The term is for four years.

Named in Caucus
County commissioners are nominated by party caucuses. The election is effected by approval of the Legislature. The Republican party legislative caucus will be held within the next two weeks and the nominations for County commissioners will be made at that time. It is understood that Mr. Schulz, of New Britain, will be a candidate to succeed himself.

Senator Robert J. Smith

The duties of County commissioners include general supervision over all county institutions, such as children's homes, jails, and other buildings owned by the county in which they are located. The new Hartford County building in Hartford which is to be formally opened next Tuesday will come under the supervision of the Hartford County commissioners.

Others Who Served
Three other Manchester men have served as County commissioners. They are Col. William C. Cheney, Charles R. Hathaway and F. Ernest Watkins. The Hartford County commissioners whose terms expire in 1931 are Samuel H. Graham, of Sufield, and Charles E. Goodrich, of Glastonbury.

ONLY BRIEF MESSAGE TELLS OF SEA RESCUE

The liner President Harrison, shown above, was itself in dire peril as it battled through mountainous seas in answer to an SOS from the British freighter Teesbridge off Cape Race, Newfoundland. Captain J. V. Guthrie is master of the President Harrison.

Crew of 32 Saved from Sinking Italian Freighter by Captain George Fried of the U. S. Liner America; Will Not Arrive in New York Until Saturday.

New York, Jan. 24.—"Thank God you arrived on time." This message was sent by wireless today by Mrs. George Fried to her gallant husband, commander of the United States liner America which rescued every one of the 32 members of the helpless Italian freighter Florida in a full gate at sea.

Her eyes shone with pride over her husband's latest achievement. Gone were the hours of anxious waiting on her part since she learned

HER LOVE FOR THE SEA BREAKS PHOTO ROMANCE

London Typist Who Swam Channel Gives Her Sweetheart the "Cold Shoulder" in Farewell Letter.

London, Jan. 24.—Declaring that her "passionate love of the sea" is so great she could never endanger her career by marriage, Miss Mercedes Gleitze, young London typist, who gained international fame by swimming the English Channel and the Straits of Gibraltar, has given her "mail-order fiance" the air, it was learned today.

In a letter to Private William Farrance, of the East Lancashire regiment, who wooed and won her by mail while he was stationed in Quetta, India, Miss Gleitze has definitely broken the engagement.

Saw Him Twice
The epistle reveals that she permitted her swain to see her only twice, although he came all the way from India on leave to clinch their remarkable romance by marching to the altar.

Miss Gleitze, who is at present working in a Manchester cotton mill "to study living conditions among the poor," while awaiting an opportunity to establish new long distance swimming records, framed her refusal to marriage in gentle but firm phrases.

Her Letter
Her letter reads as follows: "Please accept my apology for not having communicated with you ere this. I regret having to inform you today that I shall be unable to marry you. I am afraid marriage would interfere with my swimming career. I have thought the matter over, and feel convinced that I shall never be able to settle down in a home as a wife until I have successfully swum the Irish channel, the Wash and the Hellespont; so, what is the use of letting a man make a home for me when, in my thoughts, the sea spells 'home sweet home' to me?"

"Although I have only seen you twice, I am sure you would make an ideal husband for the right kind of girl. All my best wishes for a happy future are with you. Please rest assured that your social and financial position has nothing to do with my decision—I am a working girl, and poor myself."

The letter was signed "Yours Sincerely, Mercedes."

Private Farrance is going back to India. His friends declared he "will never again fall in love with a photograph."

DRY FUND FIGHT

Washington, Jan. 24.—The fight over the $24,000,000 prohibition fund added by the Senate to the deficiency bill is to be settled on the floor of the House.

When the usual motion to send the bill to conference was not made today, Rep. Garner of Texas served notice the Democrats would fight to retain both the dry appropriation and the McKellar amendment restricting treasury tax refunds.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican leader, assured Garner a day's notice would be given the House before the bill was called up. Ample time will be allowed for debate, he said.

13 ARE KILLED BY ARMY BOMB

Fliers Thought White Helmets Were Targets—Ten Seriously Injured.

London, Jan. 24.—A combined Royal Air Force and Army inquiry will be made into the accidental bombing of a group of British troops by air-men near Jamrud, India, when 13 cavalrymen were killed and 10 others wounded, said a Central News dispatch from Bombay today.

Three of the dead are officers. All of the wounded are in serious condition.

The tragedy occurred on the parade ground at Jamrud fort, near the Khyber Pass.

Visibility was low at the time. The plane from which the bombs were dropped was flying at an altitude of 4,000 feet.

It was reported that the bombers mistook the white helmets of the soldiers for a target.

MYSTERY WEDDING STIRS PORT CHESTER

College Student and Beautiful Woman Ask Justice for Quick Ceremony.

Portchester, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Portchester awoke today to find that it had been the scene of a romantic marriage embodying many features of mystery and color.

The principals were William Wells Brock, 25 a senior at Columbia University, living at a New York fraternal house, and Mrs. Dorris Vandusen Woodhouse, 35, who may or may not be from Stamford, Conn.

Late yesterday afternoon, a high-powered motor car, respondent in baronial accoutrements and sporting a liveried chauffeur, pulled up to a halt in front of the home of

PRETTY GIRL MURDERED IN CHICAGO SUBURB

Her Skull Crushed by Wooden Club—Dies Without Giving Any Information.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—City and county authorities today joined in a determined manhunt for the slayer of pretty Miss Laura Buchholz, 22, found dying on a sidewalk in Blue Island, a suburb, late last night.

The girls skull had been crushed in by two blows of a wooden club, found near the scene. She was rushed to a hospital where she died 20 minutes later without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Grace Hanley, who reported the tragedy to police, said she heard a scream and looking from her window saw a man in a long black overcoat drag the girl from the center of the street to the sidewalk. He dropped the body at the curb and ran, Mrs. Hanley said.

Capt. George Fried

ed that her husband's ship had started on its extremely dangerous mission.

"God has been very good," she commented. "But my husband did only what he is supposed to do. Nevertheless I think it was just too wonderful!"

Only Brief Message
No further word had come up to shortly before noon today from Captain Fried, amplifying his brief report of the rescue:

"Rescued full crew Florida. Total 32. Chief Officer Harry Manning in charge. Whole westerly gale. Life-boats lost. Details later." Officials of the United States Line explained that Captain Fried, who had been on duty on the bridge of his ship for three days, had probably gone to sleep. The liner America will not arrive here before Saturday and if bad weather continues perhaps not until Monday.

Against a Reception
Whether there will be a reception in New York in honor of Captain Fried and his men on their arrival has not been determined. Mrs. Fried was not in sympathy with the suggestion.

"My husband is not much for parades and fanfare," she remarked.

Captain Fried, however, may have to swallow his shyness and once more receive the tribute of a nation. Fried, it was who three years ago, almost to the day, brought glory of the highest sort to America's merchant marine by his magnificent rescue of the ill-starred Antine. His name for years has been a symbol of the finest traditions of the sea.

Mrs. Fried is not the only woman in New York who is proud of the achievement of the liner America. Mrs. Ann Manning, mother of Harry Manning, who commanded the lifeboat that went to the rescue of the stricken freighter, was as proud of her son as Mrs. Fried was of her husband.

Mrs. Manning sent the following message to her son:

"Harry, dear, I am just so proud of you."

At the United States Lines officials were loud in their expressions of praise for the brave deeds of Captain Fried and his men. David A. Burke, general manager of the United States Lines, sent this message to Captain Fried:

"In expressing my own admiration for your skill, daring and courage, I compliment you, Captain Manning and members of your command upon the success in rescuing the crew of the Florida. I am voicing the sentiments of the entire United States Lines organization as well as the American people who have reason once again to be proud of you and the American Merchant Marine."

Captain Fried is the sort of a man who will be somewhat embarrassed at again being acclaimed as a hero, his friends say. He is a rather slender man, medium in height. His brow is high and receding, and his hair is becoming sparse. His features clearly reveal his Scandinavian ancestry.

favorable to a compulsory insurance law.
 On the other hand there is a perfectly natural reluctance on the part of many excellent citizens to favor a law which would compel the individual to pay profit to an insurance company. It is probably true enough that the insurance companies are not altogether crazy about having such a law passed and that there is far less profit in such insurance, when hedged about with restrictions as in Massachusetts, than is generally believed. Still, the fact remains that insurance companies are in business to make money and a great many people cannot get away from the idea that to compel a person by law to buy the wares of a private corporation is to exceed the rightful powers of the state.
 There is probably only one right solution of this problem, and it is an extremely difficult one to put over. That is, the assumption by the state itself of all liability for damages done by a car registered in the state of Connecticut, the registration fee of the car being fixed at a sum sufficient to meet, in the aggregate, all liability for damages within the year. The fixing of that additional fee would be a simple actuary's job. It certainly would not be greater than the fees now paid by individuals to insurance companies, and it ought, for obvious reasons, to be lower.
 If the state were to embark in this business of insuring its people against automobile damages inflicted by others, a complete change of attitude on the part of the state government toward automobile hazards would be automatically brought about. It would become, then, a very vital concern of the state itself, that automobiles should be carefully driven. If every car smashed by a road hog had to be paid for by the state, even out of insurance funds, if every life taken by speed maniacs and wild drivers meant the mulcting of the treasury to the extent of ten thousand dollars, we should very soon see whether or not the control of the roads in the interest of safety was an impossibility or not—and we would find that it was not. Here the incidental reform would become more important than the primary one.
 Loud screams of anguish would meet any such proposition and we haven't the remotest idea that such a bill could be passed at this time against the outraged indignation which would be voiced by the insurance companies and by the jerry autist who really believes that he has an inalienable right to drive any old car in any old kind of a way on any old road of the state at any old time, regardless of the peril that he imposes on other people and his entire inability to pay for what damage he does, what deaths he occasions or what injuries he inflicts.
 Just the same direct state insurance covered by the registration fee is the only answer—and some day the states will begin to make it.
 Collision, theft and fire insurance would of course continue to be the affair of the insurance companies and the car owners. They constitute distinctly private business. But the citizen's right to protection in his proper use of the roads is inherently a state function.

LIBRARY
 The highly sporting offer of Cheney Brothers to give $50,000 for a public library for the use of the whole town, in case of consolidation of the various districts under the new charter, brings two separate thoughts.
 One is that the action of Cheney Brothers is one more of perhaps unnecessary proof of the peculiarly delicate sense of honor which has distinguished so many of the big silk concerns dealings with the municipality. There wasn't scrap of paper or stroke of pen to bind Cheney Brothers to any obligation to provide the Ninth district with a library building and no compensating advantage was obtained by the firm from its declaration of intention to make such provision. It was an entirely voluntary obligation and there are really very few people who consider a one-sided and voluntary obligation to be an obligation at all.
 If Cheney Brothers had merely chosen to change their minds about giving the district a library building the most that there could have been in the way of criticism would have been a shrug of the shoulders—and even that wouldn't have been at all justified in view of the changes in conditions after the promise was made.
 For the Cheneys to formally transfer this voluntary commitment to the town of Manchester is an act of graciousnessavoring almost of galantry.
 The other thought is that now is the time of all times for the formation of that chartered body which has been advocated heretofore in these columns, whose purpose would be to take over, at any time in the future, such properties or funds as from any and all sources might come for the building, equipping or endowment of a major public library in Manchester.
 The necessity of such an association is almost too obvious to call for argument. There is no corresponding machinery anywhere in the town. The town itself cannot at present, under the law, administer such property or funds; it should never be called on to do so in the future.
 The attention of those persons especially interested in Manchester's future culture is directed to this idea. The Legislature is in session. The time to act is exactly now.

LIABILITY INSURANCE
 A bill providing for compulsory liability insurance or other proof of financial responsibility for every registered automobile is before the Legislature and the never ending argument over the merits and demerits of such laws is sure to be resumed.
 At present Connecticut has a futile sort of a compromise with the principle of universal liability insurance, whereby nobody is required to show financial responsibility for the damage his car may do until the damage has already been done. It merely provides that persons who have been held blame-worthy in an accident must take out insurance or otherwise show responsibility before his car can again be operated. This law goes but a very short way in protecting the public against the ravages of reckless and irresponsible automobile owners. If it is better than nothing the difference is not great.
 There is a very general feeling that there should be opportunity for recovery of damages by the injured and innocent party in an automobile accident, no matter how impetuous the owner of the offending car may be. It is this feeling that creates so strong a party

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Jan. 24.—A little item in the papers the other day told of the return of Randolph Lewis from Hollywood for a short visit. Many a sobersides and man of heavy thought has been the victim of Lewis' little jokes of creation.
 Lewis, who now writes thrillers for the screen, has a wonderful imagination. He makes up his own authorities for statements and does it so well that you'd almost believe the persons whose authority he cites really existed.
 He found it easier to think up a nice name and ascribe to it a statement than to look up a real character. Besides, according to Lewis, it all amounts to the same thing. "If somebody didn't say it, somebody should have or would have."
 Once at a dinner of scientific men a statement of Lewis' was questioned, and he immediately cited some fictitious German professor, a name he thought up on the spur of the moment.
 Then turning to the others about him, he said, "And you all know Professor ———."
 It seems they did, for all nodded soberly in approval.
 There are thousands of emporiums in New York which cater to young men and old who want to rent evening clothes in a hurry. These places flourish chiefly in the mid-hour of the evening, and many do not open their stores until dusk falls. On the East Side there are several per block, where last minute guests rush in.
 Because dress suit renters are frequently financially embarrassed, many of the places demand that they leave their street clothes on the premises as security, in the event that they can't pay a proper deposit. The cast-off apparel is often pressed and cleaned for the patron so that he will be ready for his daily tasks when he shows up in the wee hours of the morning.

 I knew of one firm that demands a guarantee that no hip flasks shall be carried in their rented suitings. They stretch the pockets and often overflow and cause damage, I am told.
 Which reminds me of the gag about the Scotchman who wanted his money back from the dress suit rental firm because, he said, the party had been given by an organization for the blind, and no one had seen him in it.
 In Tin Pan Alley, the name of Dottie Morse suggests a story. Ever heard of Theodore Morse, the music publisher of yesteryear? He's been dead these last four years or so.
 "So when I finished grammar school, I decided I would write songs," relates Mrs. Morse. "That was 21 years ago. So I wrote a little verse and, chucking it in my hand, I walked across Brooklyn Bridge and kept walking until I got to Broadway. I got into Mr. Morse's office somehow or other and said I wanted to write songs. He said, 'So do 10,000 other people.' Anyway he looked at it and was kind, and soon I wrote him one that he took. Well, eventually I married Mr. Morse . . . and he published many songs that I wrote."
 Remember "Three o'Clock in the Morning"? . . . Well, that was her song. So was "Hall, Hall, the Gang's All Here." . . . Which is mighty close to an Amer classic. The idea came from "Mirrors of Pensance."

AS THE TWIG IS BENT.
 While there is unquestionably a great deal to be said on the subject of hereditary influences affecting the young child, I am sure that environment and training are most to be considered in shaping both the child's mind and his body to the normal. The child's body can be grown to perfect proportions through scientific feeding, combined with efficient corrective exercise to shape the muscles. The mental forces can likewise be developed.
 Although some children seem naturally to have more sensitive nervous systems than others, it seems to me that the irritable and highly nervous child is made so through very apparent false training by the parents. Children must be taught regular habits for health. This applies not only to eating and exercising habits but to what may be termed mental habits.
 Parents who do not practice good habits themselves, can hardly be considered fit teachers for their children. There is more need for model parents than for critical ones. Parents must first have constructive ideas to teach the child and then understand how to train him so as to reduce those ideas to good practice. Parents who are discourteous to each other will of course be the same way to their children and at least set them a very bad example. If the husband and wife were as discourteous to their personal friends as they are to each other and to their children, they would soon find no friends left.
 Children as well as adults will respond more willingly to requests than to demands. The request should always be a reasonable one if the child is to gain confidence in his opinion of his parent's judgment. If children are kindly directed just what to do, they will have very little time or opportunity for making mistakes. One "do" is always worth a hundred "don'ts."

 Children do not like to be idle, and would just as soon play at beautiful games and eat the right kind of foods as they would get in to mischief. Parents soon lose control over their children when they show a lack of control of their own actions and emotions.
 The child is in the very primary grade in the school of life and is really trying hard to learn how to live. There is no excuse for becoming angry with him because he makes mistakes.
 Do you ever see an irritable mother? She may make excuses for angry outbursts, but the harm is done and hard to correct when one of these emotional explosions occurs before the child. Mothers who complain of their children being cross and cranky are only exposing the fact to their friends that their own emotional conducts has been none too good.
 It is true that children are often more cranky before company but the cranky tricks were learned from within the family circle from the nagging mother or discourteous father.
 There is nothing inherently vicious in the young child. Its habits are all acquired. The child without nervousness must live in a family where there is no discord, and where all are kind and courteous to each other.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
 Cramp in Fingers.
 Question: E. E. writes: "Will you please explain the cause and cure of cramp in fingers in my left hand which frequently troubles me? This condition started after a severe attack of rheumatism in the left arm two years ago, which left a numbness from left elbow down. I am a middle-aged man."
 Answer: Consult some physician who uses manipulative therapeutics. Your trouble is likely due to some pressure on the spinal nerves which go to your left arm.
 Eating Whole Oranges.
 Question: Subscriber writes: "I have two boys, eight and eleven. When I give them oranges they eat them through just like apples, peeling and all. We have tried to keep them from doing it, but they will sneak off by themselves and do it. They are both in the best of health and it doesn't seem to cause them any trouble. They have been doing this for a year. They eat one or two oranges every day."
 Answer: There is no harm in your boys using the entire orange if they use only one or two a day, but the oil in the peel is slightly irritating and might cause trouble if they used too many each day.
 Dizzy from Breathing.
 Question: H. L. D. writes: "When I take a deep breath and hold it for a few moments in the diaphragm region I become groggy and a daze. I feel as if I am about to fall and must grasp something whenever this happens."
 Answer: You can overcome your trouble if you will take systematic breathing exercises and keep at it with regularity. Your trouble is a common one and due to your not being used to such a rapid intake of helpful oxygen and the exhaust of so much poisonous dioxide gas.

ARGENTINES GOING WILD OVER SOCCER

Get All Het Up Over Games With Uruguay—A Sporting Nation.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Argentina might almost be called sport crazy. Once the Argentinians just laughed at foreign sports. Now the whole country boasts of the improved health with which they are enjoying the younger generation. The British introduced cricket and soccer here at a time when the only Argentine recreation was sitting on coattails and drinking. The country never has picked up cricket but it has gone mad-over soccer.

There's a terrific soccer rivalry between the Argentinians and Uruguay; the two nations get almost unbelievably het up over the outcome, and meanwhile this imported national game is played the length and breadth of the land. Every factory has a team and every hamlet. Every three or four tiny communities have a league. Each province has its own team.

The players, who have something of a camera complex, pay meticulous attention to their uniforms. Sometimes 35,000 spectators see a game in the River Plate stadium and the kids all talk about soccer even more than our kids talk about big league baseball at home.

Alvarez, the last president, is said often to have kicked out the ball at important games, though President Irigoyen has not yet condescended to do so. Umpires are mobbed on occasion and pop bottles—or beer bottles—hurled. Dirty playing is not unknown for the losing side frequently becomes so excited as to kick, scrawl and bite in order to win. At least, so one is told.

Tennis is the next most popular game. Buenos Aires is covered with courts. Palota, a form of squash tennis, is widely played. That's a Basque game and there are many palota leagues. Swimming is popular, so is fencing with the upper classes, and basketball has lately been gaining favor.

The rise of Senor Luis Angel Firpo, the wild bull of the pampas, encouraged amateur boxing, especially in Buenos Aires. Firpo by the way, is highly successful as an automobile salesman. He had a contract providing that he sell 65 Stutz cars last year, and he is said to have doubled the figure. He may be no great salesman, but the car and the market are good.

Competitors claim unfair competition from Firpo in that he makes extravagant allowances on the purchaser's old car when turned in, but one hears that Luis Angel cleans up about 2500 pesos on every sale.

Luis Angel often smiles now, dresses quite decently, and shaves his face and washes his neck. Lately he has claimed to be training for another crack at the heavy-weight championship in the United States, but the cynics suggest that he has more in mind the gate receipts during his training appearances.

The English colony, a very large one, see crickets regularly.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

Americans tennis and golf. Being comparatively few in number they don't go in much for group games, and the only championship your correspondent heard claimed for the American colony here was the whiskey-drinking championship, which may or may not have been mere bragging.

Naturally, sporting goods stores here have been getting rich with the ever increasing demand for implements and equipment for play.

Buenos Aires also boasts one of the world's best race courses and some of the best available horse flesh, though racing is confined to Sunday afternoons and holidays. Sixty thousand persons show up for a good race, including half as many peons in pajama coats. More than 500,000 pesos have been bet, parimutuel, on a big race. One hears that many of the races are "fixed," but your correspondent has had no experience with them.

President Irigoyen is against horse race betting. Once Buenos Aires had regular Thursday afternoon races, too, but Irigoyen stopped those.

SLEUTH SUSPECTED IN OFFICER'S DEATH

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 24.—Walter Angers, 28, a Grand Trunk railroad private detective, was arrested and charged with murder today in connection with the slaying of his superior officer, Sergeant Walter Awe, in the company's yards last Sunday.

Awe's death was at first ascribed to a jealous husband who had mistaken Awe for a lover who had broken up the husband's home. A note found near Awe's bullet-riddled body and penned with a trembling scrawl in the detective's handwriting said: "I was shot by —." The husband, Armand Morin, and two railroad employees are being held as police witnesses. Authorities are withholding the name of a witness who, they say, has shattered Angers' alibi that he was sleeping at the time of the shooting.

An elephant works from the age of 12 to the age of 80.

Stops That Tough Hang-On Cough That Racks Your Whole Body

For simple coughs any simple sweet sugary cough syrup will probably do. But when you want to throw out of your system one of those old timers, that simply won't be conquered, but lingers on and on causing sleepless nights and days of torment then you're just got to have a real cough medicine.

Then you must ask your druggist for a bottle of Bronchiline Emulsion for the harder and tougher and tighter they come the more joy Bronchiline gets in knocking them out.

Bronchiline isn't a cheap cough conqueror, mind you; for first raters are never cheap. But if you are one of the unlucky ones that a persistent, health destroying cough is pushing towards the grave, get a bottle today and notice how the first dose takes right hold and soothes the terrible soreness.

Don't let a cough hang on—it's dangerous company—Get rid of it quick, especially since influenza is so alarmingly epidemic.

Ask Magnell Drug Co., South Manchester, or any up to the times druggist for a bottle of Bronchiline Emulsion.

"Folks, how can I make Whoopee up here . . . when down in front the 'coughers' are whooping?"

"Maybe the audience would be grateful if I stepped to the footlights some night and voiced the above protest about the 'coughing chorus' down in front.

"But that wouldn't be kind and it wouldn't be just. The cougher doesn't cough in public on purpose. He can't help it. It embarrasses him as much as it annoys his neighbors.

"What he needs, to avoid that throat tickle, is an introduction to OLD GOLDS."

Very Handsome Dollar Bills

were $275 each

Now Only

$150 each

..... Worth remembering when buying furniture!

If money were sold in stores, would you buy a dollar bill for $1.50 simply because the storekeeper used to have it priced $2.75! Of course you wouldn't. Because you know that a dollar bill is worth no more than $1.

A suite of furniture may be greatly overpriced at $150, even though it was reduced from $275. It is difficult to judge the value of a suite of furniture by the size of the reduction.

But at Garber Brothers', you need not hesitate as to the value of the furniture, because . . . WE NEVER HAVE "SALES". We mark our furniture at the lowest possible prices, based on the economies under which we operate this business, such as low rental overhead, low operating costs, manufacturing facilities and other economies. Our prices do not fluctuate like stock market prices. Our prices are at a minimum every day of the year.

And it has been emphatically proven that Garber Brother prices are as low and lower in most instances than the prices charged for furniture at even the most alluring "sales."

Compare "sale" prices with Garber Brothers' everyday prices . . . and you will be amazingly surprised to find that not only are Garber Brothers' prices lower . . . but the furniture represents a standard of quality that is unquestionable. We do not carry passe furniture or furniture bought specially for "sales" purposes.

A visit to our beautiful showrooms in our plain Colonial building entails no obligation . . . and it will prove interesting and educational.

A medley of folk songs will open the program which includes "Annie Laurie" for the piano duo, and "Mary of Argyle" as a tenor solo. Classical features of the same period include a request number of Handel's "Benedictus." A garden party in 18th century Germany with flowing steins, twilight and music will be described by Mildred MacCallum for listeners of the WJZ chain at 9. The harpichord will interpret "Courante" and "Minuet in E" and Bach's "2d Dir. Jehovah" and a folk song, "Die Lore," will be offered by Eva Giles, soprano. "Lucresia Borgia" will be the next opera to be presented through the Columbia system at 8. THREE MEN TO DIE IN CHAIR TONIGHT

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Three men are to make the journey through the "little green door" at Sing Sing tonight, and when they do the state prison's death house will be without occupants for the first time in 14 years. The three condemned men, who will leave no others behind them, once they pass their cell doors, are Harry Dretzer, Israel Fischer and Isidore Helfant. The trio, all members of the notorious Brooklyn "pants gang," were convicted of slaying Patrolman William E. Kelly during a holdup of a drug store at Nostrand avenue and Crown street, Brooklyn, on the night of January 31, 1928. All efforts of their attorneys to obtain commutation of sentence for them have been in vain. The electrocutions will take place shortly, after midnight.

WHY HE WAS ALL-AMERICA

Jock Sutherland, Pittsburgh coach, says the reason why Getto, a substitute tackle in 1927 and a regular in 1928, made the All-America team this year is because Getto "had a burning desire to play football, to make the team more than anything else in the world, and a desire to play the best he possibly could."

GALLSTONES KILL MILLIONS ANNUALLY

According to eminent medical authorities, Gallstones exact even a greater toll of lives than modern warfare. It is estimated that every year millions of people die directly or indirectly from Gallstones or kindred ailments. An old German doctor, Dr. Hildebrand, devoted years in an effort to find a Gallstone cure. His efforts were spurred on by the fact that he was a sufferer himself. After numerous experiments he at last found a treatment that cured him of his Gallstones. The old doctor then prescribed this treatment to other sufferers. The amazing results they report is convincing evidence of the merit of his treatment.

NEW CRUISER BILL AGAIN IN SENATE

Leaders Say Measure Will Be Passed Before the Week Ends.

Washington, Jan. 24.—With leaders predicting its enactment by the week-end, the Senate today resumed consideration of the administration's new cruiser bill, which proposes to eliminate some of the naval inequality between the United States and Great Britain.

The path for action on the naval bill was cleared by enactment of the first deficiency appropriation bill, with a compromise agreement concerning the $75,000,000 item for payment of federal tax refunds. An amendment was added to the bill, under which the money can be paid only on refunds ordered after a public hearing and the decision on which has been made public. This satisfied the Democratic-in-surgent coalition which originally sought to strip Secretary of the Treasury Mellon of all authority over tax refunds in excess of $10,000.

Returned to House.
The first deficiency bill meanwhile was returned to the House, which must approve not only the tax refund item but the $24,250,000 appropriated for better enforcement of prohibition. Should the House reject either item, a fresh battle probably will be staged in the Senate.

The cruiser bill however, had the right of way in the Senate. Administration leaders reported they had secured a gentleman's agreement from the opposition not to filibuster against the bill. If such an agreement was actually made, the naval bill probably will become a law by Saturday. If the opposition does filibuster, its fate will remain in doubt as two important appropriation bills—the agricultural and the independent offices supply bills—are pending in the Senate and must be enacted promptly. Four others are pending in the House or in committee, all of which must be enacted before March 4 to carry on government functions during the first year of Hoover's administration.

A New Move.
A movement has been launched in the House through to provide for the building of five cruisers and an aircraft carrier, even if the construction bill should be held up in the Senate. Rep. Britten (R) of Illinois, sponsored the plan, which called for adding a $12,500,000 item to the regular naval appropriation bill to be used in launching work on the new cruiser program. The weakness of the plan was that it too would require Senate approval and a filibuster against the construction bill could be transferred easily enough to block action even on an appropriation bill. The administration's bill calls for the construction of fifteen new fast cruisers and one high aircraft carrier. It carries authorization for the expenditure of $274,000,000 but gives the president authority to halt the building program at any time, if a new world disarmament conference is held and reduces the armaments of the leading powers.

"FOUR SONS" STATE FEATURE TOMORROW

Fox-Movietone Film Here With Two Acts of Vitaphone Vaudeville.

What is believed to be the finest dramatic photoplay of the year, is scheduled for showing at the State theater tomorrow and Saturday, when "Four Sons," Fox Films' picturization of I. A. R. Wylie's famous novel, will have its local premier.

"Four Sons" is a beautiful, emotional drama of loves and sacrifices made by a gold star mother during the great World War conflict. It is filled to overflowing with quaint humor, irresistible charm and tender romance.

The story opens in a village in the Bavarian Tyrol, where Mrs. Bernie and her four sons are living happily together in their old home. The war comes. Three of the sons answer the call to arms, while the fourth, who had previously sailed for New York, marries a beautiful American girl and prospers. When the war breaks out he is torn between love for his fatherland and love for the country of his adoption. At last he joins the American forces and sails to fight against his brothers. On the battlefield, he encounters Andre, the youngest and only surviving brother.

With the war ended, Joseph returns to his little family in New York. His mother is alone in the old home. She sails for America to join him, but difficulties develop at Ellis Island. How she finally gains entrance to America and finds happiness at last is graphically told, with never a moment that doesn't pull at the heartstrings.

In the colorful role of Mother Bernie, Margaret Mann, who has never before appeared in a stellar part, gives a splendid characterization. The four sons of the story are ably played by James Hall, George Meeker, Charles Norton and Francis X. Bushman, Jr. Beautiful June Collier is seen as the wife of the American son.

Two selected acts of Vitaphone Vaudeville will also share an important position on tomorrow's bill at the State.

They are Larry Cabellos Undersea Revue, a spectacular and brilliant dance interpretation, and Newholt and Phelps, who specialize in mirth and melody.

We were just wondering whether or not the Kellogg multilateral treaty said anything about Lottie Pickford's parties.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
ASHTORETH ASHE, engaged to HOLLIS HART, her millionaire employer, finds herself, unexpectedly, in a wretched situation. An unpleasant story concerning their romance has reached the papers.

On top of that, Hollis figures in an airplane accident with MONTY ENGLISH, her ex-sweetheart. And meantime, SADIE MORTON (a friend of Ashtoresh's) is threatening to sue Hollis. Sadie's game is blackmail. Ashtoresh, mortified and frightened, determines to thwart Sadie's schemes, and marry Hollis immediately.

He telephones her from Connecticut, where the plane crashed. She is on his way to Boston. And he tells her that he can have the five-day marriage law waived, and marry her in the morning.

She is excited and happy, but a bit dismayed because of the disclosure of Monty English's engagement to Ashtoresh. Monty was flying to Ashtoresh, Monty was with him. He asked to speak to Mrs. Ashe, but the connection was abruptly severed.

Now, Ashtoresh, with her head in a mad whirl, is planning for her marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXIX.

Getting married to a famous man isn't half as nice as it sounds. That is, it's a dreadful strain.

A regular nightmare, Ashtoresh said. Only worse. Oh much, much worse. . . . With reporters asking a girl how many nightgowns she had, and if it was a love match. And would she please tell them the story of her romance, and how Mr. Hart proposed? And where they were going to live? And did she mean to have a family?

"I wonder, my dear Miss Ashe," purred Miss Fannie Drown, sob sister of the Trumpet, "if you will tell all the little stenographers in the city how to win a husband. Through the pages of the Trumpet, you know. On the Woman's Page. A nice, dignified little interview."

There were a number of others, with big black cameras, on the steps. And movie men, who set up tripods on the sidewalk. There were reporters from every paper in town. And several from New York besides.

The telephone rang incessantly. Messengers arrived in droves. Sadie had disappeared. And Maizie wrung her plump hands, and called on heaven to witness a mother's grief.

Ashtoresh wanted to be married in ivory satin, with a wimple-like a nun's to swathe her throat and face. She wanted to carry a pure white Easter lily, with a long stem.

All her life she had dreamed of close her eyes, and hear the organ music. She could see herself, a vision in flay white, standing on a red carpet, before a great white altar, with candles so lofty they seemed half lost in the darkness. Standing before a man of God, important in ecclesiastical robes and the trappings of churchly office. While a golden tenor, trembling passionately should sing O Promise Me.

Probably every girl dreams of such a wedding. And some see their dreams come true.

Anybody would think that Ashtoresh, engaged to one of the richest men in the country, could have been married in any fashion she chose. As a matter of fact, she joined hands with Hollis in the office of Mr. Harvey Higginbottom, who was his attorney. And happened, also, to be a justice of the peace.

She wore a black crepe satin, six months old. A small velvet hat, and a pointed fox scarf.

In her ears were large single pearls, and about her neck a graduated string. On the third finger of her left hand she wore another monstrous pear, gleaming from a gorgeous setting of diamonds. Hollis had bought them in New York, after she had taken the train for Boston.

The scarf he had also bought. It was in the window of a nearby shop, and impressed itself upon him as being soft and beautiful enough to warm the pale, slim throat of his lovely Orchid. The pearls he had carried in his pocket.

She scarf arrived, by messenger from New York, few moments before the ceremony.

Ashtoresh carried an armful of orchids. Hollis, she decided, must have ordered them by the gross. They were in bowls of silver vases. Suddenly the motor died, and the plane went into a spin.

As she crashed through the trees, the wings were torn from the fuselage. And the body, when they struck the ground, was twisted and battered into a shapeless mass.

The pilot, Hollis said, was badly shaken up. The shock alone had almost killed him. He and Monty had clambered from the forward cockpit, and lifted the poor chap out. He was bleeding from the head, mouth, and crying like a woman.

Hollis stayed with him, while Monty sought the open road, and help. There was a newspaper in the plane, that Monty had carried. Hollis was tearing it apart, and using it to staunch the flow of blood from the pilot's nose, when his own name, on the front page, caught his eye.

"Hollis Hart, prominent Bostonian," it said, "is today on the S. S. Juanita from a cruise to the West Indies. With Mr. Hart was a young lady of unusual beauty, said to have been a stenographer in his employ. Her name on the passenger list was given as Ash-toresh Ashe, and her address Boston, Trinidad."

"Upon the return voyage of the S. S. Juanita, Miss Ashe reappeared with Mr. Hart.

"Passengers, who viewed the romance with considerable interest, declare that the devotion of the millionaire to the beautiful stenographer was the talk of the boat.

"Mr. Hart, well known man about town, has already figured in many affairs of the heart. His engagement has been frequently rumored, and as many times denied.

"The Hart fortune is estimated as exceeding $200,000,000. The family has been foremost in Boston society for many generations, and dates its American ancestry to the early Huguenot settlers. Mr. Hart is a sportsman of note. He is well known for his philanthropies, and has often been called the most eligible bachelor in America.

"Efforts to reach the Ashe family in Boston had failed at a late hour this afternoon. Following their departure from the boat, Mr. Hart registered at the Ritz, but checked out shortly. He and his fair companion are believed to be en route to Boston."

Hollis had torn the story from the paper, and stuffed it in his pocket. Shortly Monty returned with help, and the injured pilot was conveyed to a hospital. By that time, wires across the nation were humming with news of the accident, and the remarkable escape of the two passengers. Names were ascertained, and the story of Hollis' return from the Caribbean linked with the news of the crash.

The Ashe—mother and daughter—checked the door of their apartment. And silenced the electric buzzer, and stuffed the telephone bell, to hear from Hollis' lips the story of his adventure with Monty English, former sweetheart of the girl he loved.

Maizie met her future son-in-law stiffly. He was, she reflected sourly, old enough to be her elder brother. He had, moreover, involved Ashtoresh in an unpleasant scandal. She looked on him with distrust, and shook his hand coldly, coloring with displeasure.

His ease and assurance put her at a disadvantage, so that she was awkward, and more ungracious perhaps than she meant to be.

She was jealous when he had kissed Ashtoresh, and angry. She could have cried, when he took her child in his arms, and kissed her. Her mother's instincts were untamed as a tiger's, and she wanted to strike his arms away, and tear his hands from Ashtoresh's shoulders.

She thought of Monty, and could not dismiss him from her mind.

"If it was Monty," she thought, "I should not mind losing Ashtoresh to him. It wouldn't be like losing her then."

"That he thought he'd be getting back," "Yes," Maizie answered sadly. "We shook hands, and said goodbye. And he congratulated me, like a prince."

Ashtoresh swallowed a lump in her throat.

"Let's not talk about Monty," she said, "I mean to go to bed, to spoil my happiness this night."

"Nothing will ever spoil your happiness, my darling," Hollis told her gravely. "I've telephoned my lawyer, dearest, and he will make arrangements to have the law changed, so we may be married in the morning. We'll have 100 intentions of course, and outwit the reporters as best we can."

"You'll never outwit them," warned Maizie ominously. "Don't I know? My husband was the newspaper man for 15 years. Mr. Hart, and there's no fooling the pack."

the rest of the paper, do you see, and this was sticking out of my pocket. He reached, and pulled it out.

"Were you saving this?" he asked. "It happens to be something I wanted myself."

"Well, naturally, I was surprised. Is that so?" I said. Then I told him that I was Hollis Hart, and that the young lady was my fiancée.

"Do you happen to know her?" I asked. "Is that why you were interested?"

"For a moment, the boy looked as though I had struck him in the face. He staggered a bit, and I thought he was going to fall. The crash had unnerved him a bit.

"Do I know her?" he gasped. "My God, man, I love her!" Hollis looked directly at Ashtoresh.

"And then," he told her, "I know it must be Monty English—the boy who wanted to meet you at the plane. That's why he was coming. I think I called him by name, I believe it's all a little hazy."

Maizie was wiping her eyes. "It's a shame!" she moaned. "My heart goes out to Monty."

That's why he was coming to me, Ashtoresh—he'd read that story in the paper."

"Yes, he told me so," continued Hollis. "You see, Orchid, he couldn't know, my darling, how much I loved you. You see, he shot me something of the sort. He thought

"Poor dear, Monty!" murmured Ashtoresh.

Maizie sat up straight, and looked suspicious.

"He was with you when you phoned," she said. "But he'd gone by the time I got to the telephone." Hollis nodded. "Yes, Mrs. Ashe. He told me, that he had decided he would rather not talk. He was pretty much broken up, poor chap."

"But you told him, Holly, that everything was all right? And that we were going to be married?" He smiled at her eagerness.

"I assured him, my dear, that I worshipped you beyond life and death, and that I mean to make you the happiest girl in the world. I told him we were going to be married in the morning."

"And then what did he say?" he interrupted Maizie.

"That he thought he'd be getting back," "Yes," Maizie answered sadly. "We shook hands, and said goodbye. And he congratulated me, like a prince."

Ashtoresh swallowed a lump in her throat.

"Let's not talk about Monty," she said, "I mean to go to bed, to spoil my happiness this night."

"Nothing will ever spoil your happiness, my darling," Hollis told her gravely. "I've telephoned my lawyer, dearest, and he will make arrangements to have the law changed, so we may be married in the morning. We'll have 100 intentions of course, and outwit the reporters as best we can."

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
Copyright by NEA Service, Inc.

The best way to teach a young child generosity—and it must be taught young—is to have him give something to somebody he likes. Usually tiny children are selfish. Do they want to give up a toy, part of a cake, a ride on their kiddy car? They do not.

A certain mother decided to use this plan in teaching her little girl to be generous.

She started on a cookie. "Give Mother half!" she begged.

Two-year-old Rosie considered. No? Yes. She made a sudden decision. She held it up and mother took a large bite.

"Now give Snappy a bit."

Snappy Quite Approves
Snappy wagged his wet nose and looked hungry but his small mistress stuck the cake into her own mouth. It looked as though for that time, at least, Snappy would do without his daily sweet.

Her mother, being a tactician, did not command. The impulse to give must come from the baby. Suddenly the child held out the cake. Snappy snapped it up greedily. Rosie giggled delightedly. Snappy licked his lips.

But after all Rosie liked Mother and she liked Snappy. Would she be so generous with Bobby, the stormy petrel next door, whom she didn't care for so much? More-over cookies were only cookies. Rosie knew there were several dog-gone things in the cake-box.

There were two psychological points still to be gained. One to give to people she didn't particularly like; the other, to give away things she wanted very much for herself.

A Display of Wisdom
Her wise mother worked out one thing at a time, however. Rosie was induced to give Bobby half of her cookie one day. Her mother had Bobby in to play every day after that and every day she contrived to make Rosie's offering to him of more value.

Then she began to invite other children in, always seeing to it that there was something to be divided or given away. And she and Rosie make the offering with her own hands. Another excellent point, by the way Rosie did learn to be really generous.

But remember: generosity should be taught young.

Cabinet Fudding.
Stale sponge cake, 1/2 cup seedless raisins, 3 eggs, 2 cups milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Butter a quart pudding mold and sprinkle with raisins. Add slices of sponge cake sprinkling raisins between each layer. Fill mold about 3/4 full of cake and raisins. Beat eggs slightly with sugar, salt and nutmeg. Gradually beat in melted butter and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. When thoroughly mixed, pour over sponge cake mixture and let stand until cake absorbs liquid. Place in a pan of hot water, cover with buttered paper and bake one hour in a moderate oven. Turn out and serve warm with hard sauce or fruit liquid sauce.

Shredded citron and candied fruit can be used in place of raisins if a more elaborate pudding is wanted.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Women's Handbags.
Women and their handbags are accused of blocking the wheels of progress, and with some truth. Many a man and woman hurrying to catch a train or buying seats at the theatre has been held up at the ticket window by some woman prowling around in her handbag, with its amazing collection of vanity cases, handkerchiefs, memorandum books, keys and other things she deems essential until she finds the loose bills or change wanted. Women have resented the wisecracks about holding up the parade when being waited on at post-offices, banks and all such places. Men with their 57 varieties of varying sized stripes and dots or checks. Many times the over-burdened or sweater is the colorful part of a costume. Gathers which have been out for several years are in again, especially to introduce skirt fullness.

Cacti for Window Culture.
One of the advantages of growing cactus as window plants is that none of them need water more than once a week. If left for a month without water they would probably not die as they have so much moisture in their systems. If given too much water the roots will rot. There are endless varieties of cactus seemingly, the most common hereabouts for window culture is the so-called Christmas cactus with its glossy green branches and delicate pinkish red flowers. Another early grown variety with pretty flowers is the Nipple cactus. The button cactus is another variety. It grows about two inches in diameter and is covered with a closely woven network of fine white spines making it look like a soft down ball. There are many, many cactus listed in the catalogues, or the dealers can pick you out the right ones to plant in your window garden. Sedums can be bought of almost any seedsmen, and when you order ask for miniature cactus. Many of the collectors in New Mexico and Arizona sell these most reasonably.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL
by World Famed Authority

CHOOSING YOUR DOCTOR
By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

In the United States there are 48 states with 48 different laws regulating medicine.

At one time there were more medical colleges in our country than in all of the other countries combined.

Conditions have improved, so that today some of our states have laws which would be a protection to the public against incompetent and irresponsible doctors, if the laws were properly enforced.

Moreover, practically all of the low grade quack medical colleges have been abolished, and the vast majority of those turning out doctors of medicine today graduate a high-class product. The period has been one of evolution dreamed of by doctors who are likely to be quacks. These are:

1.—The doctor who advertises his methods of "cures" in newspapers or gives out handbills.

2.—The doctor who posts big advertising signboards outside his office.

3.—The doctor who claims he can cure serious disease quickly and easily.

4.—The traveling doctor who moves from town to town.

The doctor or group of doctors who have discovered some new "cure" that other physicians do not know about. No great discovery of science is kept secret.

A small worm related to the vinegar eel and parasite on the pig, has been found by scientists to live for weeks in either formalin or bichloride of mercury.

Police of New York city invited suspects in the Arnold Rothstein murder to visit headquarters. Perhaps the reason the party wasn't successful was because the invitation wasn't sent on scented note paper.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUNNER

Mrs. May Davis of Washington, D. C., tired of this struggle to make a living for herself and small children, offers herself to any medical or scientific society interested in inoculating her with any disease germs, except cancer, for the furtherance of medical knowledge. She wants $30,000 for her full and complete permission.

UNFAIR BUT!
Something it may be unfair to question the sincerity of the motives of these various ladies who are always offering their future corpses to medical schools, or begging that their bodies be shot full of leprosy germs, or mounting an auction block to desparingly chant that they will sell themselves even into the unpalatable state of matrimony for no less than $5,000.

COMPETITION KEEN.
But somehow I eternally wonder why they don't use as much energy in swinging some job within the range of human possibility. To be sure, the emolument of clerking in a store doesn't equal that of surrendering one's anatomy to science. And they're out for the big sweepstakes. It must be borne in mind, however, that competition prevails here as elsewhere, and that just because the stakes are high and competition is keen, risk or no risk.

Medical schools insist that they have many more bodies than they know what to do with—so many that the price is getting lower and lower. One phase of the unemployment problem.

DRUNKEN HUSBANDS.
Drunken husbands no longer wreck the home, according to the theory of some of the most hectic prohibitionists. They may—or may not—be interested in some figures recently released from the domestic relations court of one of our largest cities, proving that divorce cases in which drunkenness is given as cause on one side or the other have not decreased but increased since prohibition.

Kaufman Is Favored To Defeat Portelle

Biggest Crowd of Season Expected at Hartford Fight Tonight; Real Rivalry Between Star Bout Participants.

HARTFORD CARD TONIGHT

Star bout: Frankie Portelle vs. Pinky Kaufman, 10 rounds.

Other bouts: Eddie Reed, Hartford vs. Kewpie Ledoux, Holyoke, 4 rounds; Ethlie Cavanaugh, New York, vs. Joe Russo, Westerly, 6 rounds; Nick Christy, Bristol, vs. Rene Lubeur, New Haven; Marino Pagnoni, Springfield, vs. Billy Fitz, Waterbury, 6 rounds; Ray Samnor, Hartford, vs. Bill Reynolds, 4 rounds.

Pinky Kaufman, Hartford boy but now in Eddie Walker's stable in New York, is picked to defeat Frankie Portelle, Hartford welterweight, in the star bout of the show at Foot Guard Hall in Hartford tonight. This bout will attract many Manchester fans.

The rivalry between these boys is intense and both Hartford and local fans are more keenly interested in the bout than any staged in many months.

Kaufman is favored to win because of the distance, as being stronger and a stiffer puncher. He will also probably have a substantial weight advantage.

Portelle and Kaufman were slated to meet at the Velodrome last summer, but rain three times postponed the show and finally called it off altogether. They used to train at the same gym and have boxed there, but never have met in the ring. Out of their little sparring matches in the gym, has come a rivalry that is real enmity and each welcomes this chance to settle the argument.

The star bout is down for ten rounds and there are three six-round bouts and two of four rounds on the undercard.

Eddie Reed of Hartford faces the hardest test of his career in meeting Kewpie Ledoux of Holyoke while Nick Christy, Bristol sensation, nets a stiff test against Rene Lubeur of New Haven.

Eddie Cavanaugh of New York meets Joe Russo of Westerly in the semi-final of six rounds.

SEAGRAVE TO LEAVE SOON FOR FLORIDA

London, Jan. 24.—Hoping for a minimum average speed of 240 miles an hour, and with the avowed intention of reaching at least 260, Major H. O. D. Seagrave, the famous English racing motorist, is leaving for the United States on Jan. 30 or 31 to attempt to wrest the automobile record from America.

It has taken more than a year to complete Major Seagrave's new car—"The Golden Arrow"—which is described as a marvel of automotive engineering. Driven by a 1,000 horse power engine, the car is expected to attain speeds never equaled on earth before.

HERE'S A LONG SAD STORY

Clifford Thorne, of Detroit, is a former wrestling coach at the University of Michigan. Who, in his younger days, engaged in three handicap matches against Frank Gotch. Recently he was chief life guard at the Belle Isle bathing beach and one of the men in his squad was Gus Sonnenberg, the new heavyweight wrestling champion.

When Sonnenberg butted Strangler Lewis out of the ring in Boston and won the championship, Thorne had some comment to make about it to Detroit newspapers. Here is what he was quoted as saying:

"If Sonnenberg is a wrestler then I don't know anything about wrestling. I will guarantee you that I can produce a dozen welter and middleweight wrestlers in Detroit who can throw Sonnenberg. Why, two years ago, a Belle Isle bathing beach guard, who weighed only 160 pounds, threw Sonnenberg twice in 10 minutes on the beach in the presence of 50 witnesses.

"I am 43 years old and have not engaged in a wrestling match for several years, but I am still good enough to beat Sonnenberg. He isn't fast enough on his feet. In fact, his feet are often in the way and it would be an easy matter for even a fair wrestler to throw him.

"I have often pulled and tugged with Sonnenberg. He would 'pull necks' with me any time, but he always warned me against the application of holds, and if I tried to get one on him, he would pull back and refuse to continue.

"Several members of the Providence football team on which Sonnenberg played in the line last season, returned to Detroit last month and described some of the matches in which Sonnenberg engaged and which seemed to have amused them highly, even though they were not conversant with the technique of wrestling.

"They told me of one match in which a powerful opponent got Sonnenberg in a half-nelson. That is a hold where the arm of the victim is twisted up his back behind the shoulder blades. Sonnenberg clung to this hold by slowly and impressively forcing his arm down until he finally brought it out in front of him. A half-nelson can't be broken that way; even a boy can keep a man from doing it in that manner.

"These things made me particularly fun of the dying tackle, with which Sonnenberg had never been able to hurt anybody in football, although he has tackled men who weigh 100 pounds less than some of his opponents on the mat whom he drives to apparent agony. Now, in football the ball carrier is going at high speed. It is difficult for him to shift because of his momentum. He is often hit from behind or from the side by a flying tackle. He frequently is hit without seeing the tackler and with no knowledge of being in danger of being tackled. And still I have heard of no man being knocked out by the impact of the 'tackle.'

"In view of this it seems ridiculous to believe that a man can be hurt by a flying tackle on the mat. He is stationary and the tackler is coming directly at him from a distance of 15 or 20 feet. Being set for the tackle and seeing the approaching tackler it is the simplest matter in the world for him to sidestep the tackle or, if he doesn't want to sidestep the tackle, he has the tackler at his mercy. If he wants to be dirty about it he can easily crack the tackler's forehead by a slight shift of either knee.

"All in all I think you can put down the Sonnenberg dying tackle as the strangest success ever scored in a sport that is packed with strange and even queer phenomena."

STRIBLING ORDERED TO KEEP ON GROUND

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 24.—Jack Dempsey was peeved today. A newspaper story saying that Young Stribling had taken another airplane flight was the reason. "Fighters that are on my card have got to stay on the ground and ride on trains," said Dempsey, the promoter. His recent order to Stribling that the flying was off until the fight with Jack Sharkey here February 27 was repeated in a sharp telegram to the Georgian. Stribling was told, furthermore, that his last ring appearance before the Sharkey fight would be against Jack Smith in New Orleans tomorrow night. Sharkey has no dates scheduled after his clash with K. O. Christner in Madison Square Garden.

Both fighters will report here immediately after those bouts.

DID JOHNSON TAKE A DIVE? PICTURE SEEMS TO SAY SO

The whispers about the reasons that might have been behind an intentional long count in Chicago were not the first insinuations of scandal that followed a world's heavyweight championship fight.

There were more open charges made about the Johnson-Willard championship fight 14 years ago than there were about the count of 14 that was given to Tunney when Dempsey had him on the floor.

It was openly charged, without much of a comeback, that Johnson had taken what the boys call a "dive" and Johnson in later years admitted it. But his admission did not cause a sensation. The event had taken place too many years before and it sounded like an alibi.

Shading Eyes from the Sun: Regardless of what actually happened, the above picture was a storm center at the time. It shows Johnson being counted out in the twenty-sixth round with his arm upraised to shield his eyes from the sun. Boxing men, at that time, said that Johnson's position could be explained in three ways—that he was faking the finish, that he was listening to the count with the intention of getting up before 10, or that he was exhausted and that the arm just fell into that position by the force of natural gravity.

Some of the best writers of the day expressed the opinion that Johnson, obviously fat and out of condition as the picture shows, was battered into a state of exhaustion by the superbly trained Willard and that he was physically unable to get up and took an overlong count.

They recalled that in the rest between previous rounds Johnson had nodded to his white wife, who was seated in one of the ring-side chairs and that upon receiving the signal she had arisen hastily and had led that Johnson knew he was licked and that he didn't want his wife to see him get the knockout punch.

Johnson gave another reason for the exchange of signals in his story told years later. He said it had been arranged that, for a certain sum of money, he was to take the dive, but that he wouldn't fill his part of the arrangement until the money had been paid to his wife. She was to signal him from the ring-side when the money was paid and leave the arena. He was then to continue long enough to allow her to get away.

Opinions, of course, varied. It seemed agreed among the experts, however, that Johnson was thoroughly beaten and that he would not have been able to get up had he not taken the count when he did. Admitting that point, however, there were doubts expressed that Johnson would not have had to take the beating if he didn't want to and that he could have won in half the distance if he so wished.

The picture, however, shows the difference in the condition of the two men. Willard never was trained as well as he was that day and Johnson obviously was in very poor condition.

British Boxers Can "Resign": If Johnson had not "confessed" in later years his act might have been passed down with only technical censure. There is a difference between "quitting" and "diving." A British boxer, who sees that he is hopelessly beaten, can quit in perfectly good grace to save himself from unnecessary punishment. The British call it the act of "resigning," or "retiring," and they do not think it reflects upon the courage or sportsmanship of the man quitting.

Willard quit in his fight with Jack Dempsey. He was so badly beaten he couldn't continue and there was no scandal about it. Several years later, in his fight with Firpo, Willard also quit. He took the count on one knee and walked right over to his corner when the count had been delivered. He said he knew he was through, that he was losing control of his legs and feared actually for the safety of his life if he continued.

TRADE IS WINNER OVER WILLIMANTIC

Manchester Trade experienced no difficulty in trouncing Willimantic Trade on the latter's court yesterday afternoon. The final score was 40 to 18. This was the second time that the locals have beaten Willimantic this season. Last time, it was 40 to 16. Tomorrow afternoon, Meriden Trade, one of the teams to defeat Manchester, comes here for a return game which will be played at the School street Rec gym starting at 3:30.

Coach Howard Fiedler started his second team against Willimantic yesterday with the result that the Thread City combine led 9 to 5 at the end of the first period. The regulars went in at the start of the second quarter and played the rest of the game. From that time on, there was no doubt as to the outcome of the contest. The scoring was pretty well divided between Viot, Beer, Fraser and Luhrsens.

The latter three hooped four from scrimmage and Viot got five. Beer made three fouls to tie Viot for the most points.

BASKETBALL STARS IN CHICAGO TOURNEY

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Basketball stars of the Catholic high schools throughout the nation will compete here March 20-24 in the sixth annual interscholastic hoop tourney conducted here under the auspices of Loyola University.

The tournament is invitational and the champions of sectional and state leagues will be asked to compete. The present champion, De La Salle high of Joliet, Illinois, automatically becomes an entry to defend its title.

Auxiliary organizations of the Loyola tournament will conduct state and sectional tourneys in many parts of the country in February and March.

Three schools have shared in championship honors since the Loyola tournament was inaugurated by the Rev. Father Thorning of Chicago. De La Salle has won the event twice. Other winners were St. Mel's of Chicago and St. Xavier's high of Louisville, Ky.

Complete plans for the tourney as well as for the entertainment of visiting students and players are being made by committees at Loyola.

BUCKLAND'S DUCKS SPLASH HOLYOKE OUT OF THE POOL

Local Schoolboys Score 27 to 25 Victory In Initial Meet of Season.

Manchester's swimming team got away on the proper fin yesterday afternoon when it administered a 37 to 25 defeat to Holyoke High in the latter's pool. Saturday afternoon at 2:30, Manchester High will entertain Central High of Bridgeport in the Rec pool in its second dual meet of the season.

Manchester boasts a real strong team this season, led by its veteran and capable pilot, Captain Leslie Buckland, and including such well known performers as Bob Treat, Wes Warnock, Eddie Markley, Elliot Knight, Lou Cheney, Douglas Robertson, Joe Taylor and others.

Captain Buckland and Warnock each won two firsts in yesterday's meet while Treat took another. Taylor, star 100-yard man, was unable to compete yesterday but will be ready for Friday's meet. Dick Joslin and Art Davis, sophomores serving their first year on the team, made an excellent showing in their first test "under fire." They were beaten by very small margins. Manchester also missed the services of Taylor in the long distance swims.

"Eva" Knight showed splendid form in the breast-stroke dash but due to insufficient conditioning was unable to keep the pace he set at the start. In the results of the events given below, fourth place is given but this did not gain points:

150 yard relay (four men): Manchester, first; Holyoke, second. Time, 1:32. Manchester's team—Warnock, Markley, Treat and Buckland. Holyoke used Leszet, Zwirko, Smith and Crain.

Diving: Welch, Holyoke, first; Warnock, Manchester, second; Mayer, Holyoke, third; Markley, Manchester, fourth.

Forty yard free style: Treat, Manchester, first; Zwirko, Holyoke, second; Crain, Holyoke, third; Davis, Manchester, fourth. Time, 23.4 seconds.

One hundred yard backstroke: Warnock, Manchester, first; Robertson, Manchester, second; Garland, Holyoke, third; Miner, Holyoke, fourth. Time, 29.3.

One hundred yards breast-stroke: Gally, Holyoke, captain, first; Cheney, Manchester, second; Smith, Holyoke, third; Knight, Manchester, fourth. Time, one minute, 25 seconds.

Two hundred yard free style: Buckland, Manchester, captain, first; Crain, Holyoke, second; Welch, Holyoke, third. Time, three minutes, 12 seconds. Buckland was only entry for Manchester.

One hundred yard free style: Buckland, Manchester, first; Gunderson, Holyoke, second; Zwirko, Holyoke, third; Joslin, Manchester, fourth.

SHARKEY TO QUIT GAME THIS YEAR

That Is If He Is Beaten; Will Stick If He Wins the Title.

New York, Jan. 24.—Jack Dempsey retired in 1927. Gene Tunney in 1928, and Jack Sharkey says he will follow them this year unless five decrees that he is to win the title.

In that event Sharkey will feel it incumbent on him to stick round until a better man dethrones him. But if he can take on one more profitable engagement after the Stribling fight—with Dempsey preferably—and the title still eludes him, he is willing to call it a finished career and retire on a comfortable income.

Nate to Dempsey, the former tar has taken more money out of the Madison Square Garden Corporation coffers than any other one fighter. In his fights for Tex Rickard he figured in "gates" totalling close to $2,000,000.

Sharkey is worth about $300,000 today. Of this he has nearly $100,000 invested in his home property in Boston. He says he wants just one more big shot after Stribling and he will then be willing to nail his gloves to the wall.

800 GAMES OF GOLF END IN EVEN SCORE

Liverpool, Jan. 24.—To have played 800 games of golf together and ended all-square at the 800th is the achievement of Alderman H. H. Miller, Lord Mayor of Liverpool, and Thomas M. Morke, a fellow member of his golf club.

Since that encounter Morke has gone ahead a stroke or two, and the Lord Mayor is awaiting a lull in his civic engagements to give him an opportunity of getting even.

Chances of Licking Big Personal Pronoun Man from Boston In Miami Bout More Than Good.

BUCKLAND'S DUCKS SPLASH HOLYOKE OUT OF THE POOL

When Willie Stribling goes into the ring against Jack Sharkey he may be a favorite in the betting. It appears quite certain now that he will be a popular favorite among those who don't bet and for reasons other than that Sharkey never has had the boys getting down for three long cuts and jugs rays for him.

It may be taking a lot for granted to anticipate Stribling and Sharkey in the ring because that gu. Christner may take his disciples windup and Henry L. Farrell look for a loop.

Disregarding their mechanical equipment for a moment, it can be said that Stribling is the best known fighter in the country. He has wandered all over the country for three or four years fighting everywhere. Sharkey has confined his work almost exclusively to Boston and New York.

Stribling got plenty publicity before he was in print more than any other fighter. He attracted a lot of publicity by making a tour of the country with an automobile caravan and later he bought a big plane and piloted it from spot to spot where he was fighting. And two or three times a week he was legitimately in the news with an item that he had knocked out some bum some place.

It is possible that Stribling has shown himself to more people in more cities and hamlets than any other fighter since the day that John L. Jack McAuliffe and the original Dempsey traveled the country taking all comers.

It is true that Stribling did not show himself to be a great fighter before all those people. He was fighting sixth and seventh raters all the time and he could call it a close. Even simple country folk did not fall for the idea that he was in a fight, but they did gather the impression that he would have been powerful good against a top notch fighter.

Nice Clean Boy, Too: Even if he did not convince the customers that he was a ripe prospect for the vacated heavyweight championship title, he did make an impression upon them as a nice, fine-looking, clean-cut young athlete who upon those fans of the bush leagues when they asked his father why the boy did not fight in New York and the father replied—"My boy will not do business."

All of this contact with the public made Stribling well known and well liked. He is not popular in New York but is popular in every other section of the country and when you travel around a little bit you become convinced of it.

The fact of Pa Stribling put his boy in a nice spot recently. The directors of the Garden couldn't find the contracts that Rickard had signed with Sharkey and Stribling for the fight. Sharkey said his was for $100,000 plus posted in advance. Pa Stribling said—"We'll go for anything you think fair." They got what Rickard had agreed to pay them. Sharkey didn't and Stribling got the popular decision by a shutout.

Sharkey Rapped Two Idols: Sharkey never has been popular through the country. The people out there never have seen him and they don't know him. They think he is a blow-blow and a cry baby. The Dempsey fans hate him because of the things he said about their hero and the Tunny fans who may constitute the other half of the house, despise him because of the cracks he took at their patron saint.

As far as their mechanical equipment is concerned, Stribling might be rated as an even money choice. It is true that he has been fighting bums and that some guy or other had him on the floor the other night. But he's fighting all the time and when he lets go he oughtn't miss. Sharkey is a terrible in and out and he is disturbed by moods. He rebelled from the first about the Miami spot. He's looking for excuses already.

Some of the fighters think Stribling is a cinch to win. Dempsey, as the "front" promoter of the fight, naturally cannot express an opinion, but down in his heart, we know he thinks that Stribling will lick his ears off.

Mike McTigue picks Stribling and Paulino and Johnny Risko pick Stribling. But Paulino and Risko may be trying to disparage Sharkey as a fighter.

Shackleton had overstrained his heart and he died at sea trying to undertake the labors of men he thought more fatigued than himself.

One day a very pretty young lady who had a poodle dog in her lap chanced to be riding on a street car. A bluenosed lady sitting next to the girl addressed her thusly: "My, what a nasty little dog. Don't you think, my young lady, it would look much nicer if you had a little baby in your lap?"

"No," the pretty one replied in calm, even tones. "It wouldn't. You see, I'm not married."

The applicant for the place of cook was rather untidy in appearance and moreover insolent in manner. "Don't engage her," whispered Smith to his wife, "I don't like her looks."

THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The giant's table looked real fine. The dishes all were spread in line and all sat down to eat. I'm very hungry. Clowny cried, "I'm glad that there is plenty here because there is no cause for fear that I will not be satisfied when my share is inside." The giant laughed, and loudly said, "Will someone kindly pass the bread. I, too, am very hungry. Also pass the jelly, please. Be careful as you're eating now. Wee too spill things around somehow. It won't be very nice if you should spill things on your knees." The Tinies watched the giant eat. The way he gobbled was a treat. He took a great big loaf of bread and spread it end to end. One bite took nearly half of it. Said he, "I'll soon be feeling it. I mustn't eat too much though. It will make it hard to bend." Then Scouty wailed, "Oh, my, oh my, I'm sure I'd hate to have to try to take the big bites you do. I am sure they'd never digest. We Tinymites must nibble slow, 'cause big bites always choke us so. However, we'll keep up with you. At least we'll do our best." "The all ate for a long, long while, and then the giant, with a smile, said, "Now let's take a little nap. I'll flop upon the floor. You Tinymites can hop in bed, and each one rest his weary head. I give the bed to visitors, 'cause that is what it's for." Then, just imagine, if you please what happened when the giant's knees were raised beneath the table as he started to get out. His knees did something very rash. They hit the table with a crash. The table toppled over and the dishes flew about. (The Tinies get a good sleep in the next story.)

It is expected that the National Commander Paul McNutt will be in Connecticut on February 2 and 3 and a banquet will be held in his honor at Foot Guard hall, Saturday evening, February 2, at 7 o'clock. Tickets are $2.50. This will be an unusually brilliant affair and a large attendance is expected. Commander McNutt is a fine speaker. The Eddy Glover band will provide the music and entertainment. Reservations for the banquet must be in before January 29 and local members who wish to attend are urged to get in touch with the post commander, Fred C. Lorch, at once.

On Monday evening the auxiliary and post will hold a joint meeting in the State Armory.

ANTON'S ESTATE SUES

ADAMS, MINICUCCI
 Administrator Seeks $10,000 as Outcome of Rockville Auto Fatality.

Suit for $10,000 has been brought by Joseph H. Anton of Rockville, administrator of the estate of the late Frank Anton of that city, against Anthony Adams and Fred Minicucci, both of this town, jointly. The case is expected to be heard in the Superior Court in Hartford within the next few weeks.

The suit is the outcome of a fatal automobile accident in Rockville on the night of October 1, last. Minicucci was the driver of an automobile which struck and fatally injured Frank Anton as he was crossing the street. The car is owned by Adams, who loaned it to Minicucci and John Connelly, another local youth, to keep a date with two Rockville girls.

It was said at the time of the accident that Anton stepped directly in front of the car from behind another passing in the opposite direction; also that he had been drinking. Rockville police temporarily detained Minicucci but he was later exonerated by the coroner's decision.

Attorney William J. Shea represents Adams and Attorney William

S. Hyde is counsel for Minicucci. Attorneys Broder and Shew of Hartford represent the Anton estate.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon of the creditors of the bankrupt estate of Edward Raymond, who failed while conducting a meat and grocery business on the lower end of Main street the final report of Attorney William Shea, of Manchester, the trustee of the business, was accepted.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

POSSIBILITIES AND "IM'S"

Pinehurst has spent years developing a delivery service on the principal that such a service is useless unless it gets your order to you ON TIME. We've spent huge effort and considerable money to perfect our system.

And yet we fall down—and probably we'll always fall down—on such propositions as this: When a customer phones at 8:15 a. m. asking us to be sure and send a stew meat or corned beef order on the 8 o'clock delivery for noon dinner; or calls up at 10:30 and wants a steak or chops delivered, sure, in time for service on the table at 12 o'clock.

Our 8 o'clock delivery LEAVES 8—it doesn't just begin to think then about leaving by and by.

So you see there ARE things we can't do in the way of delivery. And other things we can't guarantee to do. But we can and will do anything within reason. In times of emergency, such as sickness or the sudden and unexpected arrival of a household of guests, Pinehurst will STAND BY TO THE LIMIT. Phone us and we'll be "right over." We've made deliveries in such circumstances, many a time, as early as seven o'clock in the morning. But we couldn't possibly do it as a regular thing. No store anywhere could.

So please, please, give us a living chance—phone early enough to make it a reasonable proposition. If your order is in by 9:15 we will guarantee to have your order in your kitchen in plenty of time for noon dinners. The possible we will gladly do. Sometimes—not often but sometimes—we are asked to do the impossible.
