

HOOVER SAYS HE'D BE GLAD TO MEET "AL"

Miami Beach All Excited Over Meeting of Political Rivals of Last Campaign; It's Up to Ex-Governor.

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 28.—The question that has been agitating all Miami for 24 hours—whether Al Smith is going to call on Herbert Hoover—was partially answered today by the President-Elect himself.

"By all means, I shall be glad if Gov. Smith has the time to call," said Mr. Hoover in response to a question. "I should be most happy to see him."

While this statement was made to newspaper correspondents, it was not followed up, so far as is known, by any direct or personal invitation to the Democratic presidential candidate.

The statement, however, rather leaves it up to Ex-Governor Smith. He is in Miami on a vacation, staying some miles away from Mr. Hoover's retreat on Belle Isle, off the beach.

News of the President-Elect's statement was communicated to ex-governor Smith by newspapermen, but he did not commit himself.

No Statement
"Look here," he said somewhat brusquely, "I'm down here on a vacation and you fellows ought to give me a chance. Of course, I'm interested in the statement, but I have none to make."

In light of the developments, however, it was thought very likely that the former governor will say his respects to the man who defeated him, perhaps late today or tomorrow. Ex-Governor Smith has always been somewhat of a stickler for the amenities, and his long years in politics have made him a happy warrior, in defeat as well as in victory.

Press Agent Busy
If there is no meeting between the pair, it probably will be because of embarrassing activities of the press agents for the governor's hotel. One of them was at the Hoover headquarters early this morning. He told Lawrence Richey, Mr. Hoover's assistant, that he had come to "arrange a meeting."

He was curtly informed that the President-Elect does not make engagements through medium of hotel publicity agents.

Soon after the departure of the publicity agent, Mr. Hoover told correspondents who accompanied him that he would be very glad to call.

Mr. Hoover's first visitor today was Col. Horace A. Mann, the so-

ANOTHER SHIP HELPLESS IN MID-ATLANTIC

British Liner Silver Maple and Crew of 35 Sends Out SOS—Cutters on Way to Rescue.

Boston, Jan. 28.—Dashing across 780 miles of storm-tossed sea, the coastguard cutters Mojave and Tampa today were speeding to the rescue of the British steamship Silver Maple and her crew of 35 men.

The Mojave reported that she expected to reach the position given by the Silver Maple at 1 a. m., tomorrow. The Tampa was sixty miles behind the Mojave.

The lone message from the Silver Maple—the message that sent the coastguard cutters racing to the rescue—was to the effect that her steering gear was disabled. This message, which was intercepted by the Mojave, reported fresh north-west gales.

Use Radio Compass
The coastguard cutters during their dash to the side of the helpless steamer had been using a radio compass. They have sent frequent messages to the Silver Maple's but the range of the Silver Maple's radio is only 150 miles.

The Silver Maple is laden with East Indian goods. She left Boston Dec. 14, Port Swettenham, 22, Penang, Dec. 25, Suez, Dec. 29, Port Said, Jan. 10 and Oran, Jan. 15. She was bound for New York. The vessel is owned by the Kerr line, British, of which Rogers & Webb are local agents.

Arthur E. Pillard of 71 Lyness street, a Manchester young man, is aboard the "Mojave." He is serving as a coxswain. Maurice Jobert of Maple street was recently transferred to another ship.

Harry White, a representative of the Edison Lamp works of the General Electric company at Harrison, N. J., who addressed the Kiwanis club this noon at the Hotel Sheridan, was without doubt one of the most forceful and interesting speakers that it has been the privilege of the members to hear at these weekly get-togethers.

There was a good attendance but it was regrettable his talk could not have been heard by thousands of Manchester people. He was brought here through the influence of L. N. Heebner of the Manchester Electric company, and an effort is to be made to induce him to return here and give a talk at some public meeting of the Kiwanians.

Mr. White took for his subject "A Voice From the Dead" and illustrated his talk by demonstrations showing the advancement of electricity, particularly for illuminating purposes. He has worked with Edison and is well acquainted with Charles P. Steinmetz, famous electrician and inventor. He reminded his hearers that an address by Steinmetz was to be put on the air on Wednesday evening, and advised everybody to tune in and hear it. He reviewed the accomplishments of the inventor and related the story of his coming to this country from Germany, a poor boy, and became one of the greatest inventors of our time.

Mr. White exhibited several interesting lamps, from the tiny incandescent bulb no bigger than a lightning bug, to the latest invention, that used in television. He touched on what had been effected along medical lines with the use of electricity, such as violet rays in the cure of cancer and wound up his remarks by the statement that as the years go by the wonders of science prove beyond a doubt that there is a God.

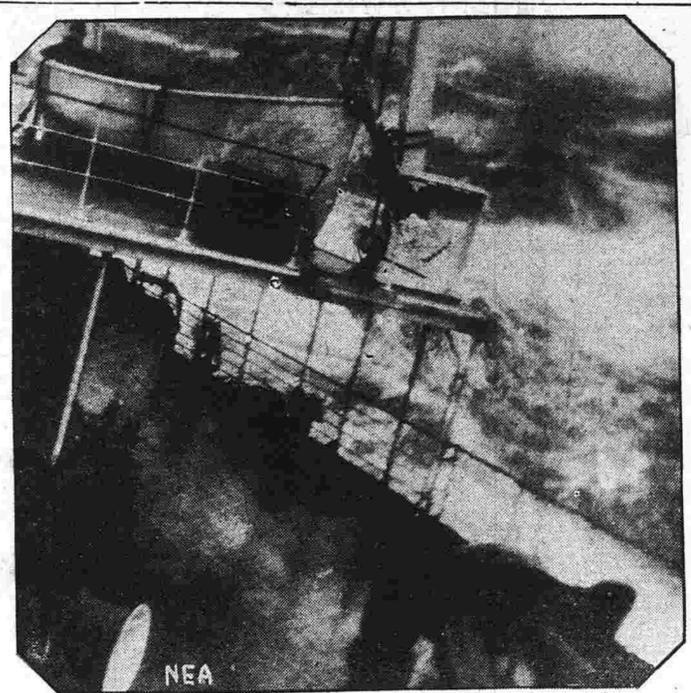

Dr. C. Y. Moore won the attendance prize today, a box of candy donated by Harold Turkington. He promptly passed it around.

BANDIT SHOT
Paterson, N. J., Jan. 28.—Two men were arrested and one shot through the lung and so badly wounded that he is expected to die in a gun fight between state troopers, Paterson police and three suspects at the Riverside bridge, Hawthorne, today.

The three were chased by police men in automobiles, the chase ending at the Riverside bridge. The wounded man is in Paterson general hospital. The three were wanted for questioning in connection with a number of recent hold-ups in the neighborhood.

How America Raced Through Heavy Seas

"VIOLENT SNOW AND HAIL SQUALS with heavy gales" lashed the liner America as it battled its way through raging seas to the side of the foundering freighter Florida. So Captain George Fried described his ship's epic voyage of rescue. This striking picture, taken from the deck of the America, gives a vivid impression of the mountainous waves that rolled in the liner's path.

Teacher, 35, and Pupil, 15 Disappear At Same Time

Ellaville, Ga., Jan. 28.—Search for Mrs. M. M. Wellens, 35 year old mother and school teacher, and Edward Chapman, 15, one of her pupils, who have been missing for a week, was redoubled today after a warrant was issued against the woman charging her with kidnaping the boy.

The warrant was sworn out by the woman's husband, and the boy's father, W. C. Chapman, who declared they believed the pair to be either in Akron, Ohio, or Detroit. The teacher and the pupil were last seen a week ago driving toward Atlanta in the former's automobile.

Chapman's fellow students, police declared, said he had often talked of going to Akron to obtain employment.

Sought Position.
Authorities stated they had learned that Mrs. Wellens had made a number of inquiries concerning the chances of obtaining work in or near Detroit as a school teacher.

Although the boy was penniless, Mrs. Wellens was said to have had $500 when she and Chapman vanished. She had drawn her salary of $200 as principal of the school, and had obtained a loan of $300 on the farm where she and her husband lived. It was said.

Chapman's fellow students, authorities said, declared that the youth and the teacher had been on very friendly terms and had spent a great deal of time together.

FAMILY UNABLE TO BUY COFFIN FOR THEIR CHILD

Body Lies on Top of Kitchen Tub Where He Slept During Life—Five Chil- dren Dead.

New York, Jan. 28.—Once there were sixteen McCanns but today there are only ten left—this starts like a sob story and it is.

Another McCann is dead today, two-year-old Gregory, and his body lies on the top of the kitchen tubs for want of money to buy a casket. Gregory slept on the tubs in life. There were only three rooms and many McCanns—Vincent, 18, Joseph, 17, James, 14, Helen, 12, Thomas, 4, Theresa, 3, and 6-month-old Alfred. Bernard, the eldest, is married and helps a little but only makes a little. The older boys work when they can but sickness seems to run in the family.

Much Misfortune.
Joseph McCann, the father, earns $24 a week as a watenman. Mrs. Annie McCann, his wife, has borne fourteen children. Ill health has loomed over the entire brood. And just as they got finished paying for the funeral expenses of their last stricken child, another one succumbed.

BIGGER NAVY BILL HOLDING UP CONGRESS

With That Out of the Way the Senate Could Easily Dispose of the Routine Business.

Washington, Jan. 28.—With five weeks of life remaining, the Seventieth Congress today appeared to have completed its legislative program except for the administration's "Big Navy" bill, the usual appropriation bills and a handful of minor legislation.

The Senate was occupied with the new cruiser bill, with administration leaders predicting its enactment during the week. The House faced a week of action on calendar legislation, most of it regional or personal, and a decision on the first deficiency appropriation bill, with its $24,000,000 increase in dry enforcement funds and its au-

WOMAN SUSPECTED OF KILLING THREE

Philadelphia Police Find Vic- tim in House Described by the Husband.

Philadelphia, Jan. 28.—Aided by U. S. Army officers, officials of three states today set about determining a motive for the murder of Mrs. Ethel Krouss Eddy by her husband, Leonard Eddy, in their home in North Philadelphia.

The body of Mrs. Eddy with the skull crushed, was found in bed in their apartment after Eddy confessed to recruiting officers at Fort Slocum, N. Y., that the reason he wanted to join the Army was because he had killed his wife. He gave the address of his Philadelphia home and an investigation by police led to discovery of the victim.

Rolling Pin the Weapon
A wooden rolling pin was the murder weapon, police said. Occupants of the other flats in the apartment were unaware of the murder. Letters found in the room indicated the woman was the daughter of Clarence Krouss, of Rivington St., Pa.

The tather and a brother of Oxford, Pa., Chester county, will arrive here today to identify the victim. Eddy was employed in a Camden, N. J., canning factory and New Jersey police have been asked to aid in finding the motive for the murder. Meanwhile, Eddy is being held by police of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Mrs. Eddy had been employed as a school teacher here. The couple were married four months ago.

NEW PLANE RECORD.
Lowell, Mass., Jan. 28.—Four hours and a half from Detroit to this city was a plane flight record. Lieut. George C. Price pointed to today. He left Detroit at 3:30 a. m., Sunday, stopped at Buffalo, N. Y., and landed his army plane here at 2 p. m.

THRONGS CHEER FRIED AND HIS HEROIC CREW

Snow Isolates Town; Residents Starving

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Jan. 28.—Virtually cut off from the outside world and with food and fuel supplies exhausted, the little town of Colesburg, in Delaware county, today faced a serious crisis. Snow filled highways and a raging blizzard had isolated the town since Thursday.

After fighting snowdrifts for many hours, a bobbed carrying a few sacks of coal and some provisions managed to get through to the stricken village late yesterday from Petersburg, a railroad point eight miles away.

Two cars of coal and foodstuffs are at Chicago & Great Western siding at Petersburg, but because of the huge drifts covering the highways the supplies could not be moved to Colesburg, which is not on a railroad.

W. E. Hoot, mayor of the little town of 331 inhabitants, appealed for help over the telephone. He said the fuel shortage was so serious that families were confining themselves to one room, the kitchen, trying to keep warm. All stores were closed and business was at a standstill, he said.

Mayor Hoot said the town had been out of bread for two days and that there was little flour in the stores. He placed the blame on the county board of supervisors for failure to provide snow plows.

Relief parties are being organized today at Petersburg.

EX-KAISER'S BIRTHDAY PARTY STARTS RUMORS

One Says Wilhelm and His Wife Quarreled Over Her Rank; Celebration to End Tomorrow.

Doorn, Holland, Jan. 28.—A spokesman for Doorn castle—the home of the exiled former German Kaiser—today characterized as "nonsense" the reports that differences had arisen between Princess Hermine, wife of Wilhelm, and members of the Hohenzollern family over her rank.

Princess Hermine, who took sick on Saturday, on the eve of the ex-Kaiser's 70th birthday, was reported better today. It was explained that she had a slight attack of grip, but that the fever had disappeared today. The other patients who caught cold on the trip to Doorn were improving, also.

To End Tomorrow.
The birthday celebration, which evoked much enthusiasm from monarchist-militarist circles in Germany, will come to an end tomorrow, although many of the guests have left Doorn.

Count Bentinck, friend of Wilhelm, will entertain the ex-kaiser and thirty other guests at a dinner at his Amoregenen castle tomorrow.

MAY CHANGE RULES TO BEAT DRY BILL

Group of Wets and Drys Force This Unusual Ac- tion in House.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Administration leaders of the House have decided upon the extraordinary procedure of proposing a temporary change in the rules of that body in order to defeat the Senate's $24,000,000 dry fund appropriation and the curb put upon the tax refund powers of Secretary of Treasury Mellon, it was learned today.

The plan was outlined at conferences between Speaker Longworth, Rep. Tilson (R) of Connecticut, majority floor leader, and Rep. Snell (R) of New York, chairman of the rules committee.

Unusual Action
The unusual action, it appeared, will be forced by a combination of southern Drys and a small group of Wets who are determined to force an unwanted $24,000,000 on the Dry regime and the fight made by Rep. Garner (D) of Texas against the tax refund policies of the treasury.

Although the Senate returned the first deficiency bill to the House last week, containing the two "riders," the measure has remained

BOXER DRESSES AS A FLAPPER

Knocks Down a Woman and Tries to Kidnap Girl—Mob Beats Him Up.

New York, Jan. 28.—A former pugilist in female attire who felled one woman in the women's washroom of an elevated railway station last night and then attempted to kidnap a 15-year-old girl on the east side, according to police, today faced a charge of felonious assault.

Police are endeavoring to link the prisoner, Stephen Wiszuk, 24, with attacks made under similar circumstances upon other women, one of whom died.

Wiszuk, a handsome, powerfully built man, was captured by a mob which heard the screams of Anna Timoshuk in a hallway. She told police he attempted to kidnap her. The man's wig and flapper dress were torn from him by the mob.

The other woman identified Wiszuk as the man who dressed in smart feminine garb, had struck her with a revolver and choked her with a sash, earlier in the evening in the women's washroom of the Second avenue "L" at Rivington street. Police said he confessed.

CALMLY CONFESSES SLAYING HIS WIFE

Sailors Formally Welcomed by Mayor Walker and Awarded Gold Medals at End of Big Parade from New York's Battery to the City Hall—Men Act Bash- ful During Ceremonies.

New York, Jan. 28.—Amid the blare of bands, the cheers of thousands lining the sidewalks and a blizzard of confetti spiraling down from the windows of skyscrapers, Captain George Fried and the heroes of the Florida rescue paraded up Broadway today to City Hall where they were formally welcomed by Mayor James J. Walker and awarded gold medals of valor.

The heroes of the hour, hardy, weatherbeaten men of the liner America who brought safely to port the 32 exhausted, half-frozen men they had saved from the floundering Italian freighter Florida, accepted the acclaim of the populace modestly—almost bashfully.

Crew is Modest.
"We're not used to this hero stuff," remarked Chief Officer Harry Manning, who commanded the men who swung the cars in the lifeboat that set forth from the America on the storm-lashed waters.

But it was no new experience for Captain Fried—this business of being acclaimed. Just three years ago he won similar recognition for his rescue of 25 seamen from the British steamship Antiope.

Shortly before noon, the municipal welcome boat, Macom, gayly bedecked with flags, left pier A., the Battery for Hoboken where the Americas was docked and where Captain Fried and his men were waiting. On board the Macom were Police Commissioner Grover Whalen, the city's "official greeter," and other officials.

Salute Given.
The police band struck up stirring airs as the Macom nosed alongside the America. Several thousand persons assembled on and near the docks at Hoboken cheered as Fried, Manning and the others stepped from their ship to the Macom. Fried and Manning repeatedly saluted to the crowd in response to the ovation.

Thousands of people were massed in Battery park and along continuous thoroughfares. When the Macom returned, at 12:40 p. m., to the Battery, a roar of applause burst forth as Captain Fried and his men disembarked.

Mounted police rode among the spectators and prevented the more enthusiastic from breaking through the "dead line."

Then the parade up Broadway from the Battery to City Hall, a distance of about a mile, was begun. Broadway was packed with people. The parade had been timed for the lunch hour. From out of the canyons of the Wall street financial district and the buildings of lower Manhattan poured droves of stenographers, clerks and business and professional men and women. They scurried for vantage places along the line of March.

Many plate glass windows were imperiled. But the 3,000 policemen, afoot and on horse, prevented the crowd from getting out of bounds, although it required no little exertion.

As Captain Fried and his men came up Broadway in open automobiles, deafening cheers were unloosed. The crowd, and the still hoarse there were shouts of "Good Boy, Captain!" and "Fine Work, Manning!" The captain, his first officer and the other rescuers bowed and saluted and smiled—repeating this over and over, block after block.

Heads were poked out of the windows of tall buildings. Ticker tape and bits of paper from torn telephone books came weaving through the air and showered down upon the motor procession.

At 1:15 p. m., the heroes reached City Hall. Fully 3,000 persons, massed about that ancient structure, cheered them to the echo as they left the cars and stood for a few moments on City Hall steps to be photographed. Then they entered the building and were escorted to the aldermanic chamber where the official ceremonies were held.

While the little group of heroes stood about nervously, the scrolls of welcome were read to Captain Fried, Chief Officer Manning, Radio Operator Nelson Smith and the lifeboat crew.

Welcome Scrolls.
All of the scrolls bore the signature of Mayor Walker. The Scroll inscribed to Captain Fried said in part:
"Once more out of the raging gale and above the roar of tempestuous seas you heard the SOS of a helpless vessel crying for aid. Across 350 miles of sea, following your brave precedent, you sped to the rescue."
"This time you saved the cap-

BIGGER NAVY BILL HOLDING UP CONGRESS

Authorization of publicly on all federal income tax returns. Once the administration cruiser bill is enacted by the Senate, only routine matters appeared ahead of Congress. In the Senate, two other important measures have been pending for months—the Congressional reapportionment bill and the Edge resolution, providing a survey for the proposed new Nicaragua canal—and both probably will be enacted before adjournment.

Two Major Subjects. Two really major subjects—farm relief and tariff reform—will not be considered by the dying Congress. Both measures will be handled by the next Congress at a special session, to be called sometime between March 15 and April 15, under an agreement reached by House and Senate leaders.

A long program of neglected bills undoubtedly will die with the adjournment of the old Congress March 4. In the Senate, the Caraway anti-gambling bill topped the list while in the House, the important rivers and harbors development bill apparently will lead the death list. Both bills probably could be enacted except that House and Senate prefer talk to action in the closing days and filibusters usually develop to halt the legislative wheels.

The Bone of Contention. The Senate's battle over the new cruiser bill meanwhile attracted wide attention. One bone of contention has been eliminated by the Senate endorsing a House provision, dividing the construction of the sixteen new warships between government and private shipyards. The remaining major argument will revolve around the so-called "time clause," which provides that five of the new cruisers be started this year, five more next year and five more in 1931.

President Coolidge and Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, have declared against the time clause. The President opposed it on economical grounds while Borah said its elimination might pave the way to greater armament reduction by giving the United States a trading point. The administration leaders in the Senate endorsed the time clause as have various soldier and patriotic organizations. It probably will be retained. Administration leaders meanwhile hoped to secure a final vote on the bill this week.

YOUTHFUL SWINDLER

Danbury, Conn., Jan. 28.—A twelve-year-old boy received a suspended reform school sentence in juvenile court today for passing two fraudulent checks on local merchants and obtaining nearly fifty dollars. The child told the judge he was being taught banking in his grammar school and so learned how to make out and cash checks.

FIRST CUT OF STORAGE ICE STARTED TODAY

L. T. Wood Begins Cropping at the Case Pond on Bidwell Street.

The first real harvesting of ice for storage was started today at the Polly Brook pond on Bidwell street by L. T. Wood. A crew of men were at work Saturday and Sunday clearing the snow and this morning a power marker was put to work and a gasoline driven cutter and plow followed. The chute was set up on the west side of the ice house. The ice is over eight inches thick. It takes about two cuttings from this pond to fill the house.

Cutting is to begin at Salter's pond in Lyallville on Wednesday. Mr. Wood has about a dozen extra men employed.

SHOW HOSPITAL WORK IN LANTERN PICTURES

Special stereopticon service in conclusion of the annual White Cross appeal at the South Methodist church last evening, attracted a gathering that filled the chapel. The lantern was operated by Thomas Maxwell, who had to make a number of changes to enable the showing of the pictures, of which there were 75, in the chapel. That services of this type are popular is attested to by the large number who attend them.

The appeal was for funds for the support of hospitals conducted by deaconesses of the Methodist denomination and the views were for the most part of the Palmer Memorial hospital for incurables and other institutions in and near Boston.

HILL ELECTIVE HEAD OF ST. MARY'S Y. M. C.

Herman Hill was elected vice-president of the St. Mary's Young Men's Club at the annual meeting Saturday night. Fred Rogers was elected secretary; John Fox, assistant secretary; Robert W. Wilson, treasurer; William Mercer, librarian. Rev. J. Stuart Neill, rector, is ex-officio president of the organization.

Ernie Waddell of East Hartford was the feature entertainer of the evening, playing popular numbers on both the banjo and mandolin, besides doing some first-class "comedy stuff." Initiation of new members was postponed until the next annual meeting because of the small number of candidates. All who joined during the past year and those joining during the coming year will be initiated at the same time.

LOCAL MAN DEFENDANT IN AUTOMOBILE SUIT

A suit in which Miles Grant, of 36 Chestnut street is the defendant in the amount of $10,000 is assigned for trial in the Hartford superior court tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

He is charged in a complaint drawn over a year ago with striking and knocking down Mrs. Mary Belachack of East Hartford while, the complaint continues, she was waiting in the town of East Hartford for a trolley car. She maintains that she was the mother of children and that her weekly pay was $25, but—being struck by the automobile which it is claimed that Grant was driving, or owned, she was unable to continue her work, that the family lost the income that she was getting and as a result she was badly injured and was unable to follow her regular occupation.

MAY CHANGE RULES TO BEAT DRY BILL

The alternative has thus been placed before the House leaders of either moving to suspend the rules and send the bill to conference, which would require a two-thirds vote, or to ask a special rule making it in order for the bill to be sent to conference, which requires only a majority vote.

While the exact course of procedure was not revealed by Majority Leader Tilson, it was understood that the latter course would be adopted. Against Amendment. All of the House Republican leaders, a canvass showed, are standing together against both of the Senate amendments.

"I am opposed to them and all of the leaders of the House believe that they should be stricken from the deficiency bill," said Speaker Longworth. "I am confident that the House will reject the Senate's proposals," Majority Leader Tilson said. Reps. Bryns (D) of Tennessee and Edwards (D) of Georgia were slated to lead the battle for the Senate provision on the dry fund while Rep. Garner will support the McKellar amendment requiring the Treasury to hold open hearings and render open decision upon tax refunds of more than $10,000.

The clash on the House floor was tentatively set for Thursday.

BEST AUTO SHOW OPEN WEDNESDAY

Previous Attempts Here Will Be Far Exceeded by This Year's Exhibit.

The 1929 automobile show which is to be held at the State Armory, January 30, 31 and February 1 and 2, promises to be the best auto show ever held here. The committee of the Manchester auto dealers consisting of James Shearer, Joseph Madden and George Brown are co-operating with James Stevenson, general manager of the show and instructed him to spare no expense to make this the best show ever put on at the armory.

The Manchester Auto Dealers association was formed a short time before last year's show. It was not formally made a permanent organization until last May at which time officers as follows were elected: George L. Betts, president; James Stevenson, secretary; W. R. Tinker, treasurer. Since that time it has done one good piece of work in getting an inspector for operators to come here one day each week. This saves the working man much time and money as he does not have to go to Hartford and lose a great deal more time in getting a driver's license. Every automobile dealer today in Manchester belongs to the association.

Each automobile dealer will exhibit from four to eight cars, in all there will be 62 cars shown. The cars will be arranged in rows and the show will be held, will be decorated early this week. The ceiling will be completely covered. The side walls and ends will also be covered. There will be many floral decorations and overhead lights to add to the attraction of the show. At the main entrance will be a very spacious opening branching right and left. There will be two wide aisles allowing each person coming in to move around the Armory in one continuous line and see each exhibit with plenty of space. The space for exhibit will be around all four walls with three spaces directly in the center of the Armory. The dealers who will exhibit are:

George L. Betts, Hudson, Essex; Manchester Motor Sales, Ford; Schaller Motor Sales, Dodge; J. M. Shearer, Buick; George Smith, Chrysler; Kemp Brothers, Oakland; Pontiac; Madden Brothers, Nash; Conkey Auto Co., Studebaker and Erskine; Crawford Auto Supply Co., Oldsmobile, Marmon, Graham-Paige; H. A. Stephens, De Soto, Hupmobile; Machell Motor Sales, Whippet, Wylye-Knight, George Brown, Geo and Chandler.

The honorary committees this year are: Town: John H. Hyde, Robert J. Smith, Thomas J. Rogers, Wells A. Strickland, George E. Keith, W. S. Robertson, A. T. Jackson, George H. Waddell, Samuel J. Furkington, William E. Hyde and Raymond A. Johnson; clergy: Rev. C. T. McCann, Rev. William P. Reidy, Rev. P. J. O. Cornell, Rev. Marvin S. Stocking, Rev. J. Stuart Neill and Rev. Watson Woodruff; police: Commissioners Willard B. Rogers, Edward J. Murphy and Robert V. Treat, Chief of Police; Gordon, Captain Thomas J. Quish, Lieutenant Edgar Thompson and Lieutenant Helmar Anderson.

The show will be officially opened at 8 p. m. Wednesday by Mayor John H. Hyde. Mr. Stevenson has arranged through the operation of three local business houses to give the dealer having first best display a brand new hat, the second best a pair of new shoes and the third best a box of cigars.

The donors of these presents will be announced in a special advertisement January 29. The space used in this advertisement was donated by the Manchester Evening Herald.

and laid over heavy lining, making a most luxurious floor for the court rooms. In the office, a superior grade of broadloom carpet was used. Besides, there are a great number of special size large rugs, all of the heaviest quality, made for various rooms.

All the carpets and rugs were of special design, made to order, to harmonize with the Period style and color scheme of each room. To complete the draperies on time required a large force of women working overtime for several days. Some of the curtains are twenty feet long. All are hung on traverse rods so that they can be easily drawn together from the floor. To attach the fixtures for the rods, it was necessary to drill through steel or marble in almost every instance, and the men had to work on ladders fifteen to twenty feet in the air. The equipment for the judges' and commissioners' desks is the finest obtainable.

The lamps are of solid bronze, especially designed; the inlaid stands of beautifully figured marble and the desk pads of top grain leather. Waste baskets, desk trays, vacuum bottles, etc. are all of the same quality and made to harmonize. Besides the decorative accessories, Watkins Brothers supplied the Venetian blinds, the screens, window ventilators, gas range, electric refrigerator, door mats and all the equipment for the lavatories, engineers' and janitor's rooms in the building.

tain, officers and crew—32 in all—of the Italian steamer Florida. Thus you have added to the laurels so worthily won and added glory to the American flag.

"Never was duty more nobly performed. Briefly and inadequately we record this heroic deed which adds luster to the glory of our city, which is your home port."

Manning's Reward. Chief Officer Manning blushed as the scroll in his honor was read. It said in part: "It is with a peculiar pride that we hail, as a native son of our great metropolis, you, Chief Officer Manning for your brave leadership in command of the lifeboat of the S. S. America, and your skill, fine seamanship and sturdy courage displayed in the rescue at sea of the officers and crew of the ill-fated Florida."

The Scroll of honor extended and read to Radio Operator Smith said: "In presenting to you, on the behalf of the City of New York and the millions of its citizens who applaud the pluck and skill with which you played your part in the rescue, we regard you—the radio operator, Nelson Smith—as a sturdy exemplification of the truth 'youth will be served.' You carried on with the same courage and fidelity that characterized your actions three years ago when, under the same commander, you helped to find the sinking steamer Antiope."

ADDISON

A Buckingham resident started beating his wife one day last week. A neighbor went to the rescue and knocked the wifebeater down. Did the wife thank the neighbor? She did not. She sailed into him, hammer and tongs. The neighbor says the husband can have a free hand next time for all of him.

MEET NEW LIEUTENANT AT HOWITZER'S DINNER

The members of the Howitzer company met their new second lieutenant, Horace F. Murphy, Saturday night for the first time. Lieutenant Murphy was introduced to the men by Lieutenant Thomas J. Quish of Company G, who acted as toastmaster at the annual banquet of the company held in the State Armory.

The soldiers sat down to a chicken and spaghetti supper served by Chef Urbano J. Osano following which there was an entertainment program. The Marjorie Kay Bureau of Hartford had charge of the entertainment and put on several songs and comedy sketch numbers. Captain Russell B. Hathaway was called upon for a few remarks as was Lieutenant Murphy.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Clarence L. Taylor of St. John street, who has been confined to her home the greater part of the time since Christmas, was the guest of honor at a merry party given Saturday evening by her daughter, Mrs. Gustave Anderson of Anderson street. The guests included relatives and friends and a few of Mrs. Taylor's associate workers at the South Methodist church. The party was given to celebrate Mrs. Taylor's birthday which occurred yesterday.

This little hamlet which has for ten years furnished hospitality to the former Kaiser today was still bustling over with activity and gossip following the taste of royal splendor furnished by the former monarch's seventieth birthday celebration.

Had 70 Guests. Most of the seventy honored guests who partook of luncheon and dinner with their former ruler had departed. But Wilhelm's Dutch castle was still decorated with garlands of flowers, and many Dutch flags hoisted yesterday in honor of the gala event still floated throughout the day.

The King of Saxony acted as toastmaster at the celebration. The former Crown Princess Cecilie was hostess in place of Princess Hermine, Wilhelm's second wife. Numerous gifts and messages of congratulations poured in from all parts of the world. It was reported that among them was a message from King George of England.

Newspaper reporters, photographers and townsmen were excluded from the grounds but congratulatory lists posted in various parts of this community were signed by 11,000 people.

RAPS EX-KAISER

Berlin, Jan. 28. Reich Minister of Interior Sevinger, a Socialist, in a speech at Hamburg, opposed efforts to glorify former Kaiser Wilhelm. As he spoke the minister stood before a Republican banner of bright red and gold.

"Wilhelm certainly tried to localize the threatened conflagration in 1914, but is it the same 'Peace Kaiser' who for years roused the spirit of discord?" said Herr Sevinger. "We do not want to kick the fallen, but we must defend ourselves against every attempt to falsify history."

The former Kaiser was remembered with "gratitude" in sermons and prayers in numerous churches. There is considerable press discussion over the indisposition of Princess Hermine, the former emperor's wife. Montagsorgen insists that Hermine's illness was "diplomatic" because she wanted to avoid meeting several members of the Hohenzollern family who opposed her marriage to Wilhelm. However, this report is discredited in many circles.

X-TOWN BUSES SURE, SAYS SCOTT

Connecticut Co. Official Tells Men's League of Transportation Problems.

Nathaniel J. Scott, superintendent of the Hartford division of the Connecticut company, assured Manchester people in a talk before the Men's League at Center church yesterday morning that bus transportation would positively be substituted for trolleys on the Cross town and Green lines here as soon as the State highway department proceeds with its plan to repave main street between the Center and Depot Square.

The automobile has stolen the fruits of the profits from the transportation business, Mr. Scott said, not so much through the purchase and operation of automobiles by individuals, but largely because the commuting automobilist carries too many of his neighbors and friends along with him.

The country areas are deserting the trolley lines in part, Mr. Scott said, and he could find no reason for unless the automobile again was filling the place of the trolley. He said that the city business for all trolley companies was holding up well, but here again the management met another problem in the traffic congestion which all cities now must contend with.

80 P. C. One-Man. The transition to one-man operated trolley cars has helped cut down the company's expenses considerably, it was stated. The Hartford division is now operated 80 per cent plus by the one-man system.

Asks to Hear Complaints. In closing his talk Mr. Scott urged his listeners to let headquarters know of any complaints they found with the Connecticut company's service. He said that there was no way that the officials could deal with problems unless the patrons let them know just where the trouble exists.

Clarence P. Quimby presided over the meeting in the absence of Dr. Elbert Shelton, the president, who is ill.

Rev. W. W. Woodward of Hollister street preached at the Methodist church in Forestville yesterday, supplying for Rev. W. F. Davis, Jr., who was ill. Mr. Davis is a son of the late W. P. Davis of this town.

MCKINLEY ASS'N DINNER TO HAVE 1896 SETTING

Annual Republican Gathering At Hartford on February 7 Will Revert to Memories of Martyr's Election.

Hartford, January 28.—Gold bugs, free silver and the full dinner pail and other immortal shades of the presidential campaign of 1896, when William C. McKinley defeated William J. Bryan for the Nation's highest honor, will be revived in the setting of the twenty-fifth annual McKinley association dinner for which Republican leaders from every part of Connecticut will gather at the Hartford club on Thursday evening, February 7, at 7 o'clock.

The officers of the association this year have planned a real revival of the customs of 1896 both in the setting and in the method of procedure at the dinner, and will attempt to carry those who attend the dinner back over a period of 33 years to the days when red fire parades and brass bands were the prime essentials of any political campaign.

Congressman James T. Begg of Ohio and Governor John H. Trumbull will be the speakers at the dinner, and Mayor Walter E. Batterson of Hartford will act as toastmaster. Congressman Begg has a long congressional record, having represented the 13th Ohio District since 1919. He is recognized as one of the best orators in the House of Representatives and a speaker of remarkable wit and eloquence.

Those in charge of the McKinley association dinner this year are Mayor Walter E. Batterson, Hartford, president; Edward N. Allen, Hartford, treasurer; Clarence G. Willard, New Haven, secretary; and the executive committee consisting of the following representatives of each of the eight counties: Hartford county, Raymond A. Johnson, Mrs. Alice P. Merritt; New Haven county, Edward W. Goss, Mrs. Ernest E. Averill; Fairfield county, Daniel F. B. Hickey, Mrs. Helen E. Lewis; Litchfield county, George R. Sturges, Miss Mary B. Weaver; Windham county, Raymond F. Gates, Miss Katherine Byrne; Middlesex county, John Peterson, Mrs. Ernest A. Jennings; New London county, W. Ellery Allyn, Mrs. Ernest E. Rogers; Tolland county, Charles H. Allen, Mrs. F. O. Vinton.

DON'T SCRUB—SOAK CLOTHES WHITER, SAFELY

"Saves Time," Says Mrs. E. J. Donaldson, 64 Fairfield St. "Rinso has a great many boosters in Manchester. I surely can give you a boost because aside from washing clothes cleaner than they ever were before—it's also a labor-saver. Rinso eliminates such old-fashioned methods as boiling and scrubbing the clothes. With Rinso all that's necessary is soaking and rinsing. This new and better method saves time. Rinso is equally good for dishwashing and scrubbing floors. I gladly endorse this product—knowing from experience that Rinso is deserving of all the praise it receives." (Signed) Mrs. E. J. Donaldson, 64 Fairfield Street, Manchester, Connecticut.

HUGE CROWD SEES THE ICE CARNIVAL

Weather Ideal for Second Annual Fete at Center Springs Pond.

Favored by comparatively warm weather, Manchester's second annual ice carnival attracted between three and five thousand persons to Center Springs Pond yesterday afternoon. The large crowd lined the sloping banks about the pond, the dam, adjacent roadways and the steep railroad bank.

So large was the throng which attended that the street leading east to the pond to Hemlock street was badly congested and it was quite a time after the conclusion of the program before conditions were back to normal. Automobiles which were not equipped with chains added to the congestion and delay as they slipped and skidded about the slippery, hilly roadway.

Judging from the remarks heard at the pond yesterday and elsewhere last night and today, the program was by far the best ever witnessed in Manchester. Nothing but high praise was heard for the Manchester Skating Club and its hardworking president, Frank Walleit, through whose effort the success was possible.

The vast audience was greatly pleased with the exhibition staged by Norval Bappte and Miss Gladys Lamb from New York City, skaters with an international reputation. However, they were also impressed with the grace and skill of other performers, especially Miss Miriam Davenport of Springfield and Frank Walleit himself. Others who did well were Miss Dorothy Brown of Manchester, Leo LeBel of Hartford, Melvin and Leo Degon of Springfield.

Clarence La Francis won the senior town speed skating championship while the junior honors went to Sanford North. Public skating followed the program proper. Complete accounts of all events will be found on the sports page today.

EVELYN NESBIT ARRESTED.

New York, Jan. 28.—Evelyn Nesbit, arrested early yesterday in a raid by Federal prohibition agents on a night club here, was to be arraigned today before a United States commissioner. The former wife of Harry K. Thaw, now an entertainer at the night club, protested indignantly when forced to spend an hour in a cell. She and three others were charged with "acting in concert" with a waiter who is charged with selling liquor.

called "mystery man" of the campaign, who organized and directed the anti-Smith campaign in the south. Mann has been mentioned the possible "patronage boss" of the south under the Hoover administration.

The colonel himself, however, denied the soft impeachment today when he left Mr. Hoover's office after half an hour's chat. "Mr. Hoover has no job that I want," said the colonel. "We did not talk patronage. I merely called to pay my respects. I haven't seen Mr. Hoover since November."

As to his own political activities, Mann said he expected to continue his work "to up-build and strengthen the organization in the south." Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States Supreme Court arrived today to go fishing with the president-elect. Justice Stone is an old and ardent fisherman and has thrown hooks with Mr. Hoover before. They probably will go to the Keys again tomorrow night or early Wednesday morning for a couple of days, consequently, Mr. Hoover is to satisfy the curiosity of Miami about calling on Mr. Hoover it will have to be before that. Gov. Smith is no fisherman himself.

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 28.—Herbert Hoover resumed the job of being President-elect today. Back at his Belle Isle retreat, bronzed and burned from two days fishing beneath a tropical sun, Mr. Hoover waded into a mass of work which entailed everything from political conferences to getting a start on the inaugural address which he will make on the fourth of March.

Miami's chief interest, however, lay not in the direction of the President-elect's Republican callers, nor what he will say on March 4, but whether he is to receive Al Smith, the man whom he defeated for the presidency. Former Gov. Smith arrived in Miami yesterday, and the whole winter colony is speculating upon the prospects of a meeting between the two. Just how they have met only once before, and that, perfunctorily, and long before either thought of being rival candidates for the presidency.

Not on the List. Smith was not on Mr. Hoover's engagement list today, but it isn't considered likely that he will leave Miami without having his respects paid to the victor in the November battle. Smith is here on a vacation and to use his own expression "politics is adjourned."

The former governor spent most of yesterday dipping into the ocean accompanied by William F. Kenny and John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Smith's arrival in Miami with Chairman Raskob marked probably the first time in history that rival candidates for the presidency and their respective campaign managers have been domiciled in the same town and the same time. Dr. Herbert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee, is also a Miami visitor at this time, having accompanied Mr. Hoover south.

Southern Patronage

The controversial question of southern patronage occupied a good part of Mr. Hoover's time today. While he pursued the saltfish and the swordfish among the Florida Keys, Miami Beach became cluttered up with captains and lieutenants of the "new south," all willing and eager to point out to the President-elect how to consolidate the gains scored up in the November election.

Col. Horace A. Mann was on the engagement list today. He is the so-called "mystery man" of the Republican campaign. Ostensibly working independently of the Republican national committee, Col. Mann organized and directed the campaign against Al Smith below the Potomac, and the results of his work astonished even the Republicans themselves.

BLIND MAN'S BUFF

This newspaper is one of very few which have all along taken the position that practically all the discussion over the building of warships ignores the vital point—the probability that surface sailing ships will be entirely useless in the next war—if a next war should come. This is an aspect of the problem which escapes the notice of both big-navy and small-navy crowds, but there is every reason to assume that it is so far from escaping the attention of the higher officers of the navy themselves that they are quite diligent in suppressing all real information as to the effectiveness of aircraft as opposed to surface ships.

An article in the current Liberty magazine, written by Richard Carroll, "who fought in the last war and may fight in the next" makes a statement in this relation which can hardly be ignored. Referring to the bombing of the obsolete battleship Alabama a couple of years ago, the results of which Billy Mitchell accused the Navy of misrepresenting at the time, Carroll asks why the Navy Department did not, at that time, raise the Alabama and prove its contention that the ship was sunk by a lucky shot from the air when a bomb went down a smokestack. Then he makes the altogether surprising statement that, without any publicity whatever, the wreck of the Alabama was raised quite recently, towed to a navy yard, and the discovery made that a hole fifty by seventy feet had been blown in the side of the ship by a demolition charge dropped from the air and which had never hit the vessel at all, but landed, as claimed all along by the air advocates, a good many yards away.

Carroll says that when a battleship is sunk under an admiral the admiral not only loses a $25,000,000 principal, where he is supreme ruler, but "one swell job goes with it." He does not expect that the higher naval officers, whose importance and dignity and fame depend on the continuation of great fleets of enormous surface ships, are going to recognize the fact that a few thousand dollars worth of aircraft can destroy many million dollars worth of obsolete battleships and great cruisers. And neither do we. But the people who have to pay the bills might be expected to.

BOLIVARS

The frequency of reports of vessels in distress on the Atlantic within the last week or so, while it is a way to be regarded as an inevitable seasonal occurrence, suggests thoughts which did not come, in association with these tragedies and near tragedies, prior to the catastrophe of the Vestris.

That unhappy disaster brought considerable illumination concerning the ways and methods and "economies" of ship owners. Formerly, when some cargo ship was reported as wallowing helplessly in mid-ocean, her crew in deadly peril and rescue ships hastening toward her, folks ashore were much given to thinking of the hardihood of sailors, the anger of the sea, and the essential perils of navigation, but very little to guessing whether anybody was responsible for the plight of the vessel and its company.

Since the affair of the Vestris, however, it has come to be realized that many of the dangers of ocean travel are the result of willful neglect of the most ordinary precautions, and Kipling's "Bulwark," sent to sea in owners' secret hope that her voyage would end in an insurance office, has become something besides a fragment of a poet's imagination.

How many of these vessels, foundering in gales which rescue ships survive, put forth from port on a short gambling chance of reaching anywhere but the bottom, probably nobody knows. But for indications it would appear as if a greater and ever greater number of patched-up, unseaworthy old hookers were being permitted to sail the seven seas.

When one tramp ship rattles to pieces in the same storm that is safely encountered by another tramp ship of similar size, then it would seem as though there must be some thing to account for the difference in their fates aside from difference in their luck.

GUEST CONTROL

There is something delightfully naive about the Hartford situation where it is proposed to cut out a lot of the usual speechmaking at the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner and substitute an hour or so of dancing. The proposal originates with the "wife of one of the members" and has advanced to the point where it gets first page notice in a Hartford newspaper.

Now if Chambers of Commerce exist for anything in the world they exist for the serious interchange of ideas having to do with business; and the annual dinner is the one time of the year, in the cases of most such institutions, when really large gatherings of the members take place. If the members then do not get something in the way of improving conversation for their money many of them are bound to figure that they get nothing at all. In other words, if there is any function anywhere whose essential backbone is talk, it is a Chamber banquet.

Many an old timer can recall the rows that took place among the earlier Chambers of Commerce over the very first proposals to admit the wives and daughters of members as gallery spectators—how ancient cynics declared: "Give 'em a toe hold in the galleries and pretty soon they'll make us cut out the smokes and sing hymns." Well, those ancient cynics were wrong in detail—the women don't object, to the smoke any more and they wouldn't think of suggesting hymns at a banquet. But the fears were, apparently, not so mistaken in principle. Whether you turn a Chamber banquet into a prayer meeting or into a dinner dance, you knock it for a goal as a Chamber banquet.

PICKING ON CHICAGO

If Police Commissioner Russell of Chicago had read the recent editorial in this newspaper criticizing his proposal to "drive out" the crooks from the Windy City—which we haven't the faintest idea that he did—he could not have made a more direct reply than he did when he said, in effect, "you did it first."

"If the rest of the country would keep the crooks in jail at home," exclaims the commissioner, "Chicago would not need to worry. Instead they turn them loose and order them to leave town. Chicago is the dumping ground for all the loose hoodlums in the United States. They gravitate here by rail, water and highway."

So Commissioner Russell feels that the right thing to do to the rest of the country is what the rest of the country is doing to Chicago—give the crooks the run and let 'em land where they may. Somehow this alibi isn't so terribly convincing. We have our serious doubts about Chicago's sufferings being caused by any influx of evilly disposed persons from Cedar Rapids, Ypsilanti, LaCrosse, Kokomo and Zanesville. Chicago, from the days of the Big Fire, has been somewhat like his Satanic majesty the Devil in that it had needed no one to "put it up" to being bad. It was a rowdy town fifty years ago and it went from bad to worse quite on its own. It has probably produced more bad eggs three times over than New York ever did, and bad eggs seem to have been its principal crop in the last ten years.

Commissioner Russell isn't kidding anybody very much—unless, it may be, himself.

STATE GAS INTERESTS

More than a little interest is bound to be taken in the effort of Bridgeport interests, headed by Walter B. Lashar of that city, a native of Connecticut, to obtain from the Connecticut Legislature authority to manufacture and distribute gas to the whole Naugatuck Valley, from Bridgeport to Winsted.

The interest arises from the fact that the efforts of the Park City group to get into the new and unquestionably economical movement of widespread distribution of gas is

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT
Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(226) The General Assembly.

The General Assembly of Connecticut has 297 members—35 are in the Senate and 262 in the House of Representatives. The state is divided into 35 senatorial districts, a senator for each district being chosen by the electors thereof to serve for two years. The Senate has the sole power to try impeachments and to confirm certain of the appointments made by the Senator. The Lieutenant-governor presides over the Senate.

The towns choose the members of the House of Representatives. Each town that in 1874 sent two of its electors as representatives still sends two members; each town that has a population of 5,000, according to the Federal census, sends two members; towns of less than 5,000 population, unless they had two representatives in 1874, are allowed to send but one member. The House elects one of its members as presiding officer or speaker. The House has the sole right to institute impeachments and to propose amendments to the Constitution.

A large part of the legislative work of the General Assembly is done by committees. The usual important subjects of state legislation fall into some 40 classes or groups. For each of these groups a joint standing committee is appointed early in the session. Proposed laws are usually referred to the proper committee for consideration before they are taken up in the Assembly. The committee examines the proposed measure, holds public hearings on it and if it meets their approval, reports it back either in the original or in a modified form and recommends its adoption; if they disapprove it, they either make no report or an adverse one. The committees exercise a guiding power in legislation by deciding to a great extent what measures shall be considered by the General Assembly.

by way of being a challenge to complete domination of the Connecticut field by the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia which, through its subsidiary, the Connecticut Light and Power Company, now owns many gas and electric lighting and power companies in this state.

Whether there is any intention on the part of the Connecticut Light and Power Company to fight the legislative bills favoring the aspirations of the Lashar interests is not known. But the fact that the Bridgeport interests involved are understood to be a genuine Connecticut group, whereas the Connecticut Light and Power Company is a subsidiary of a great outside concern without especial interest in Connecticut save as a source of dividends, is sure to have more or less weight in the Legislature in case of a contest.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 28.—Grasping, greedy, inhuman New York? Yes, in spots. And then, again—

The other day two Manhattan newspaper reporters fared forth with a $100 bill. First they went to a subway station. The cashier couldn't change the bill, so he advanced them the car fare with a remark—"Pay me back the next time you come by."

Then they went to a cafe. The proprietor couldn't change the bill, and although he could have gone to a bank a few doors away, he said—"That's all right. I'll trust you. Pay me when you get it changed."

The two reporters traveled the length and breadth of Manhattan Isle and found that there were innumerable places where the proprietors were willing to let them "pay when they passed by." This, in the biggest, hardest boiled town upon the American map.

After all, it's the incongruities you come to like about New York.

sought to attract as little attention as possible.

While the successful Mr. Hoover has been taking on a nice tan under South American suns, it seems that Al Smith has been dodging the millions of offers that swamp men who hope so nobly into the limelight. His mail is choked with invitations to take a bank presidency, or something of that sort. Promoters seek his O. K. to their schemes.

One of his closest New York cronies, I am told, is none other than Charles Dana Gibson, the artist, though Al can also be found of afternoons swapping conversation or reading in the "tiger room" of James Flordan, which became more or less famous during the date campaign.

He keeps a New York apartment at the Biltmore hotel, and his office is on Madison Avenue.

While seen off and on at the theaters, I am told that Al Smith is of the few officials who refuse to be a guest of the management. If he is seen in a theater, he pays for his tickets and because he pays for them he chooses discriminately. Al, as yet another producer in New York would accept the publicity incident to his presence at a first night. He generally selects "bunch shows" of the musical comedy variety, after the fashion of the tired business man.

I am told by those "in the know" that he makes many wise cracks about the calamitous campaign—but these are all very private and confidential.

Although the New Yorker is selected, for some reason, as the national "fashion plate," most of the styles of the "well dressed man" originate in Chicago and not in Gotham. The type of "New Yorkish" raiment worn by Jimmy Walker is highly individual and needs a Walkerish personality to get away with it.

Chicago, I am told, now designs more suits for American wear than London, which once received most of the fashion saloons.

STUDENTS WILL TRY TO REVIVE INDIAN TONGUE

Chicago.—Rescue for linguistic science of a disappearing Indian language is the mission of Harry Hojler, 24-year-old graduate student in anthropology at the University of Chicago, who has just left for Tonkawa, Oklahoma.

In Oklahoma the young Chicagoan will record the word meanings and grammar of the Tonkawa language, an obscure speech which scientists have been unable to classify and it is said that only nine old Indians, members of the tribe which flourished in southeast Texas in the retreating days of the Spanish conquest. The entire tribe today numbers only 40.

Few Remain

In a preliminary study a Tonkawa last year, Hojler, who will submit his work for a doctor of philosophy degree, said that although 600 Tonkawans survived at the time of the Civil War, only sixteen full-blooded members now remain and the group will soon disappear entirely through intermarriage with other tribes.

The origin of the Tonkawa Indians is obscure and somewhat hidden in mystery, Hojler said but they are believed to be related to the Siouan and Hokan tribes. They are now farmers, he said, but originally devoted all their time to hunting buffaloes. Their Indian neighbors report that they were once cannibals but the Tonkawans deny that, according to Hojler.

Financed by Society

Hojler's project, which is financed by the committee on linguistic research of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is the third project for recording Indian languages undertaken by anthropology students at the University of Chicago recently.

H. K. Li, Chinese student, worked last year on the Chippewyan languages in the Mackenzie river valley and Cornelius Osgood, a now living with Hareskin Indians near Great Bear Lake north of the Arctic Circle, attempting to record a fast-disappearing language of Indians of the far north.

LARA BOW ON THE STATE SCREEN

is Starred in "Three Week Ends"—Special Vitaphone Vaudeville.

She's done it again! Clara Bow, the "madcap of the screen" has everybody gasping with her latest screen sensation, "Three Week Ends." It's from the pen of Ellnor Glyn and, to judge by the audience which witnessed its opening performance here last night at the State theater, it is another amazing Bow triumph.

"Three Week Ends" will continue its engagement in Manchester for two more days.

Clarence Badger, the "miracle man" of "It" and the second Bow-Glyn picture, "Red Hair," directed this one too. It's another medal for Paramount's greatest year. Paired with the Clara Bow feature are three acts of superlative Vitaphone vaudeville. Heading these presentations are the three Record Boys, famous stars of the radio, who offer a rapid-fire routine of snappy and melodious songs.

MOTHERS! AVOID TOO MUCH DOSING FOR INFLUENZA

It May Upset Digestion and Thus Still Further Lower the Body-Resistance.

According to health authorities, a peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system, especially in the case of children. Too much "dosing" still further disturbs the digestion, and should be avoided except on advice of a physician.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting the digestion, nor can it interfere with any other treatment your doctor may prescribe.

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, colds attacking the weakened system, may lead to bronchitis, sinus trouble, or pneumonia. Head even the slightest cold as a danger-signal and treat it promptly—without "dosing." Just rub Vicks on throat and chest at bedtime.

BY ELEANOR FARLEY

THIS HAS HAPPENED.
ASHTORETH ASHE, sailing on the Isle de France for a honeymoon in Paris, has rather an odd experience. A little tired of her husband's loving, and bored with his compliments, she slipped out on deck one night. Standing alone under the stars, she was conscious of the presence of a man, lurking in the shadows.

She recited a bit of verse for his benefit, and turned her perfect profile toward the shadows. HOLLIS HART, her husband, was dancing with Lady Mary Somebody other, and Ashtoreth would rather have enjoyed meeting a strange man. But, just as she stepped forward, presumably to speak to her, Hollis opened the door, and stepped over the high brass rail onto the deck. The stranger promptly retreated.

Later, Ashtoreth dreams of an old sweetheart, MONTY ENGLISH, and imagines that he is in Paris. In Paris they register at the Ritz, and Hollis (who is a millionaire) begins to shower his little bride with expensive and gorgeous gifts.

Marriage is not quite the joy she had imagined it would be. Possibly that is because Ashtoreth is 23, and her husband so much older—old enough, in fact, to be her father. But is wonderfully good to her, and as generous as any man on earth. He calls her ORCHID, because she reminds him of the orchid, and because he believes she is the loveliest thing in the world.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLII
 Hollis was always bringing back surprises. The amethyst ear drops, for example, that hung like clusters of little translucent grapes, were down to Ashtoreth's shoulders. A choker of black pearls, with a ring for her first finger, to match. And a negligee that was multi-colored, and shimmering as clouds at sunset. With mules, besides, that were made from the breasts of humming birds.

He took her to Patou's, and Agnes, and Lucien le Long. To say nothing of Jenny, and Henriette—and any number of other places, too. And she bought sport clothes and afternoon frocks and dinner gowns. With hats and scarves, and lingerie to match. It was tremendously exciting, and lots of fun. But Ashtoreth was growing restless. And, sometimes, she was homesick.

Maizie had written by every boat. Sade, she said, went to see Dan Corum the day Ashtoreth was married. She felt just awful about the things she said, and hoped Ashtoreth would forgive her. She was back at the flat, and lots of company. The bank deposit Hollis had made to Maizie's account, was still untouched, and please God, she'd never go near it. For she might be poor, but she still had her pride.

When she read her mother's letters, Ashtoreth was always filled with a tremendous urge to go out and buy things. Silk dresses and bottles of perfume and scented face cream. Gloves and a silk umbrella with a jade duck for a handle. An antelope handbag and material for an evening gown—poppies and morning glories in a sea of quivering silver tissue. She sent them all to Maizie, and a silk umbrella with a jade duck for a handle. Maizie never said anything about it. But Ashtoreth always looked for him, as she walked along the avenues, or stopped at the sidewalk cafes for cafe au lait, and crisp, sweet croissants. Sometimes—somewhere—she was going to bump into him. She had felt it, in her bones, ever since that night when she dreamed he was in a dark corner, and someone was dropping anchors on him.

From Paris they went to Venice. Gondoliers with sashes, and ribbons fluttering from sailor hats such as little girls used to wear, poled them up and down the Grand Canal. But it was cold on the water. And even the pigeons, pecking apathetically in St. Mary's Square, were shivering.

Venice had been Ashtoreth's idea. But now that she was there, it was cruelly disappointing.

"I told you," reminded Hollis, "that it wasn't the season."

"But you didn't want to go to London either," she argued.

"I don't care now. Egypt is the only place in mid-winter."

"But I don't want to go to Egypt," she protested unreasonably. "Nothing but a lot of old mummies, and the desert. Let's go to Paris."

She had no more to say. The Riviera, through Nice and de Grasse, where permies are made from real flowers. And Ashtoreth bought quarts of distilled fragrance for Maizie, and sent them on the Leviathan, in a special mail sack, so they wouldn't be spilled.

Back in Paris, she decided to take French lessons. And cooking lessons at the Cordon Bleu. And riding lessons in the Bois. She felt quite important, hurrying from one appointment to another. But when she had nothing more to do, she used to envy the shop girls, and the models, whose lives were full and busy, as hers was once.

Hollis had insisted that she engage a maid. An English woman, to draw her bath, and pick her clothes up off the floor. To comb her hair and slip her feet in the little humming bird mules. And bring her chocolates and croissants in bed. As a matter of fact, it was Hollis who engaged the woman. Ashtoreth herself would never have dared talk to a lady's maid. The woman's name was Mabel Moggs, and she rather overawed her mistress.

Hollis was somewhere playing tennis. Ashtoreth didn't play, and she didn't like to watch. He had driven out in the Hispano-Suiza, and she had planned to poke around a little by herself. Hollis had never taken her to Saint Chas, or to see his "favorite girl in all the world"—the Madonna of Notre Dame.

Ashtoreth wondered if it was because he was disappointed in her. If Paris had ceased to be the lovely adventure for him it used to be. And if that was because she was not to him all the things he had dreamed.

Well, she'd go to those places herself, and tell him afterward, that she had been. She would show him that she was appreciative of art and beauty and history. She bought a guide book, and she out determinedly.

The day was warm, like Spring in Boston. And there were lovely things blossoming in the flower market. Hyacinths, that made her think of Maizie and mauve tulips, and daffodils. She bought a bunch of violets for four francs.

"Sixteen cents!" she thought. "Why, they'd be three dollars at home!" And she gave the old flower woman the change from a ten-franc note. It was pleasant to enjoy an overwhelming amount of gratitude and appreciation for 24 cents.

She planned the violets to the collar of her squirrel coat, and remembered that her little felt hat was the same shade. She knew she looked very beautiful, because people stared at her admiringly, and made comments on her clothes, and her appearance. They knew that she was a rich American, and tried to sell her more flowers, and love birds in wooden cages.

She shook her head, and said, "Non, non, Madam." "Monsieur, non." And smiled at everyone, and banded francs to their children. And felt like a Stylish Saint, with a great deal of chic, and a warm, tender heart.

There was a man following her. An American, she thought. But she did not like to turn around. It might be of course be a Frenchman. Frenchmen were always following women about. She rather hoped, though, that it was an American, and that he would find some good reason for speaking to her. She considered dropping her handkerchief, but decided it would be too obvious. She hoped he noticed the way everyone was treating her, as if she was a very great lady.

She crossed the street, to the cafe on the corner. One nice thing about cafes, they were simply everywhere. She seated herself, and began assiduously to study a menu. The man, who might be an American, was at her elbow. She drew her brows together, a little imperiously, and glanced up.

"Monty!" she cried. "Monty English!"

He remained standing, smiling down at her.

"Monty, darling!" she exclaimed. "Monty, am I dreaming!"

She jumped to her feet. "Oh! Oh! I never was so surprised in all my life. Where did you come from, Monty?"

"Well," he barked, "if it isn't Missus Millions here! And glad to see the boy-friend, as I live."

"Glad! I'm simply over-joyed. Monty, I never was so glad to see anybody before. Sit down, Monty. Give me your hands. See, I'm trembling. Oh, it's good to see you!"

"You didn't know who was following you?" he laughed. "But you thought you'd find out. Ash, you're a hypocrite, and I love you. Strolling through the Place there, like a plaster saint, handing out francs and smiles to warm a poor frog's heart. All dolled up like the Queen of Sheba, and playing Lady Bountiful like a dairy maid."

"But where did you come from?" she demanded. "And how long have you been following me?"

Monty lit a cigarette.

"It's a long story," he said. "What do you want to eat, Ash?"

"Eat! I only want to listen." "Patisseries," he told the waiter. "Let me have a little of this. Et cognac pour moi, s'il vous plait."

"Just showing off," he admitted. "But I'm taking lessons."

"What are you doing here?" he laughed mockingly. "You didn't know. Missus, that you passed up a globe trotter, did you?"

"But tell me, Monty! Please. When did you come to Paris?"

"On the Isle de France, the same time you did."

Ashtoreth grew deathly white.

"I knew it," she told him. "Monty, felt you one night on shipboard. On the promenade deck one night."

"That's right," he agreed. "I was there. You were all done up in black, with a sparkling sort of a shawl around you. Leaning over the rail, wishing on the first star."

"But I don't understand!" she cried. "Why didn't I see you again? Why didn't you speak to me? Where did you keep yourself? And why were you on the Isle de France, Monty?"

"I was going to speak to you," he interrupted, "when your husband came out. He put his arms around you, Ash, and kissed you. It was his right, of course. You were his wife. But I never wanted to see you again after that."

She touched his hand across the table.

"I'm not much on poetry, Ash. I'm not much on speeches either. . . . Only—in school it was—read Othello. I was only a kid then, but it made a big hit with me. It's a peach of a love story, you know. Hot stuff, too. But, what I started to say—there's some lines in it that have stuck in my memory all these years. They came back to me that night, when I saw you in another man's arms. Shall I tell you what they are, Ash?"

She inclined her head. And he leaned toward her, speaking softly.

"I had rather be a toad, and live upon the backs of a dozen men, than keep a corner in the thing I love for others' uses."

Ashtoreth shivered.

"I know," he said. "Cuckoo, and all that. Mrs. Hollis Hart, getting kissed by her husband. And a poor old man like me getting all worked up. No sense to it. Plain dem' foolishness, me having the nerve to get jealous. But I'm one of those unreasonable cusses, and I can't seem to get over it, Ash. Not if you were married to all the men and millions from here to Hongkong."

"But, Monty—you darling silly!"

"I know," he agreed. "That's why I went down to the second class."

"You didn't."

"Sure I did. Why not? Couldn't see you getting kissed down there."

"Oh, my dear!" . . . She patted his hand understandingly. "You haven't told me yet, Monty, what you're doing over here."

"Me? What do you suppose? I'm selling radios. Great business, too, Ash. Remember, when I wanted to meet you at the pier? Well, that was the news I had for you. And when you let me down, I sent your mother a wire, saying I had to see you on important business. I was sailing in three days, Ash. . . . And I was going to ask you to come over with me. It couldn't have been the bridal suite you had with him. . . . But . . . oh, hell!"

Monty tossed his hat across the table, and buried his face in his hands.

"Tell me, Ash, are you happy, dear?"

(To Be Continued.)

Now, if you were Ashtoreth, what do you suppose you'd do? Would you be a hypocrite, and I love you. "Why—" read the next chapter.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

When does a child feel justified in disobeying? Here are some of the reasons:

If he thinks you are indifferent and don't really care whether he obeys or not.

If he thinks the law he oversteps is of no importance.

If it is impossible for him to obey on account of some unusual circumstance.

If he sees his parents breaking the same law.

If he possesses more knowledge about a certain subject, than his parents, and knows he possesses it.

But more than for any other reason a child will disobey, and feel justified in doing so, if he gets the idea that certain rules made for him are unjust.

I know that many parents believe in unquestioning obedience. And that is as it should be. Obedience should be unquestioning. But if obedience is questioned, then the chances are that there is a good reason for questioning it and for disobedience, particularly if the offense is often repeated.

Disobedient—But Why?

So if you have a boy or a girl who persists in overstepping the bounds of authority in any particular thing, I should begin to think it over. Is he wrong, or is the trouble with you and the law you have made?

Is the law reasonable? Are you sure the thing you are asking him to do is right, just, and fair?

If you are convinced that you are not playing tyrant and not demanding something out of all bounds, then consider the other things.

Is it a foolish thing you demand? Does your child think it a law worth obeying. Does he respect it? Maybe it is something you know absolutely nothing about, while he is well informed. You may say, "Don't go skating, Joan, while he himself saw two men making tests and a policeman setting up a sign that read: "Safe! Ice-skating Today."

Again, you may be doing the very thing you won't allow him to do. That is your right, of course, but it is food for thought. It may be the very cause of his feeling privileged to do it too.

Few children deliberately disobey the same law repeatedly unless they feel justified. And you cannot do much about it until you find out the reason for this feeling.

HOW FOOD SUBSTANCES REACT UPON THE TEETH.
 By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN.
 Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Most health educators now are convinced that the condition of the teeth is largely dependent on good nutrition and the nature of the food that is taken into the body.

Cleanliness is of importance; the Q.—How should warts be treated?
 A.—Warts may be removed in a variety of ways, including the use of the electric current, freezing with carbonic acid snow, by the use of the X-ray, and sometimes by use of acids. The remedy to be used in any case depends on the conditions present in that case.

elimination of bacteria is desirable. But these things seem to be secondary in importance to the food brought to the teeth by the circulating blood.

Many investigators have been carrying on experiments to find out in just what way the food substances act. It has been shown by one investigator that the diet must contain a considerable amount of vitamin D if the teeth are to be healthful.

Bone Formation.
 Vitamin D is related to the use of calcium in the body, and calcium is the basis of bone formation. Animals kept on diets deficient in vitamin D developed very soft teeth, while those which had cod liver oil in the diet showed practically perfect dentition. Cod liver oil is the richest in vitamin D of any natural food substances.

Vitamin C is the vitamin most concerned with the prevention of the development of scurvy. Numerous experiments have been done

The WOMAN'S DAY

BY ALLENE SCAWNER

Strong men of the University of Oklahoma have risen up to give coats a little light on that old question of whether a man loses respect for a girl who permits him to kiss her. The answer seems to boil down to whether the calculation is high-light of the first time they have dated together, or a bit later, at least the second or third. The undergrads don't seem to recognize any argument at all as to whether she should or should not be kissed eventually.

Who Wants It?
 The lads seem agreed, in general, that if the gent had respect for the lady to start with, the kiss made no difference, but that if he hadn't, he'd never have any after that. Most of them seemed to wonder, too, just what "respect" was, and why any girl particularly wanted it.

That seems the real answer. Yesterday's girl was brought up on the theory that she couldn't live without this male "respect". Today's girl doesn't stop to wonder whether she has it or hasn't.

Cashing In
 Lita Grey Chaplin is traveling around on a vaudeville circuit all because the Chaplin part of her name is printed in twice as big type as the first. And here's Marie Rasputin, daughter of the famous Monk, acting in a play based on her father's life. It's more usual to hear of a wife cashing in on her father's fame in this manner than to hear of a daughter doing it. But why blame either? Husbands and sons have been known to do the same. Count Salm, by the way, husband of Millicent Rogers, announces that he is to write a new story of his marriage to the heiress.

College Girl Waitresses

Manchester's great basketball team, the Rec Five, swept safely past the turning point of its 1928-29 season Saturday night when it rode roughshod over the Original Dixies on the State Armory surface in Hartford to the tune of 44 to 23. This victory brought the Rec Five considerable prestige from a state viewpoint.

The victory over the Dixies was the second in two successive nights and brought the Rec Five's record to 13 victories out of 14 games played. Having beaten the Falcons in Holyoke Friday night 51 to 36, the Manchester combine totalled 95 points for the two games against 59 for its opponents, which isn't so bad for two out of town games.

Dixies May Disband. It would not be at all surprising if the victory resulted in the disbanding of the Dixies. The Hartford team drew a small crowd to its first game with the Middletown Red Wings and Saturday night there were not many more than 200 present. What's more, about 150 of these were from Manchester. The town is evidently beginning to awaken to the fact that it boasts a mighty good basketball outfit. The next game will be tomorrow night when the fast St. Michael's of New Haven come here intent on avenging the 37 to 32 defeat they suffered in the Elm City a couple of weeks ago.

Ty Holland and George Stavitsky led the Rec players in scoring against the Dixies. The former sunk six field goals and four from the free throw line for a total of 16 points while Stavitsky got five and two respectively for a total of an even dozen. However, the team as a whole deserves plenty of credit. The boys showed great teamwork, passing well and shooting better. Their defense was well high perfect.

'Twas "Good News." The game happened to be the first that the writer has missed this season. He had a couple of tickets for "Good News," the musical comedy at Parsons, but thinks that the title would better fit the result of the basketball game. Bill Lee, Hartford Courant sports writer, who witnessed the game, wrote, in part: "Never for a minute were the Dixies in the running. Manchester started to run up points very early and they never stopped. The Dixies seldom had a fair chance to score. The Manchester team is a good one, no mistake about it. They outplayed the Dixies in every phase of basketball, looked ever so much faster and were better conditioned."

Thoroughly Outclassed. That's a good enough boost for any team. Judging from Mr. Lee's writeup, he was quite enthusiastic about the ability of the Manchester team. It was the first time he had seen them play this season.

During the first half, the Dixies were completely outclassed. Half time score was 20 to 5. The Dixies got but two field goals this period. In the final half, the Rec took things a bit easier and still managed to outscore the Hartford outfit 24 to 18.

SHARKEY-DEMPESEY BOUT TO BE NEXT

That Is If the Gob Whips Stribling and the Ex-Champ Keeps His Word.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Jan. 28.—Jack Sharkey has a "lip promise" from the boy friend, Jack Dempsey to meet him for the heavyweight championship this year, provided Sharkey doesn't blow the Stribling fight at Miami Beach next month, it was learned today. A lip promise is something that usually is given with great freedom; you give it, in fact, very readily because of one outstanding fact. You don't have to keep it. In a court of law, a lip promise is liable to run rapidly for ignominy to the loeman.

However, the Sharkey crowd has accepted the situation in perfect faith and is going ahead on these lines if it takes all summer, which undoubtedly it will. They have signed what they understand to be a contract for the Dempsey fight and did so only after they had refused to be a party to the document until Dempsey had promised that he, himself, John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey, would be in the other corner.

Dempsey Didn't Sign. The signing took place jointly with the closing of the Sharkey-Stribling deal in Boston recently by Dempsey and William F. Carey, of the Garden Corporation. It is understood that Dempsey's name doesn't appear in the document, which, in ordinary phraseology, tells Sharkey that, first, he must beat Stribling; second, that he is to have a guarantee of $100,000; third, that he may have a 25 per cent privilege. The word, "privilege" does not do justice to the situation. It will be a downright boom, if John Dempsey is in there. The Sharkey people thus explain why the guarantees are the same for their Stribling and Dempsey fights. In the first instance, a guarantee means everything; in the second, nothing.

After Money. The signing of the second contract in Boston may mean everything or nothing, too, Dempsey, it is understood, learned to care for Sharkey almost not at all during that conference. A hard man to deal with himself, he was patting to cover that Sharkey was nothing but a vulgar seeker after money. This naturally irked him very much. So, undoubtedly, did the fact that some of Dempsey's personal money became involved in the deal.

Absorb the it may be that he decided, then and there, that this man was getting everything except the ring, which in Dempsey's opinion, he needed most: a punch on the nose.

On the other hand, Dempsey may have decided to be cute. His head might have nodded "yes," while his tongue was whispering "no." Dempsey is a remarkable man but he has his limitations. He can't nod his tongue.

The Striblings, of course, may be decided if they think that all of this business is a bit premature. They might be mightily astonished, too, to learn that New York seems to have accepted a Sharkey victory at Miami Beach as a matter of course. The general idea here seems to be that Stribling can't hope to beat Sharkey smote K. O. Christner so many times and off.

I think I can go further than that and say that Stribling doesn't hope to do this or even expect to do it. The resident observers, I would say, are overlooking several essential considerations, namely: Christner is wide open like a huckster's mouth; Stribling is wide open like a case of lockjaw.

Manchester High lost a heart-breaking basketball game to Windham High in Willimantic Saturday night by a score of 38 to 37. The Thread City outfit enjoyed an 11 point lead at halftime but Coach Clarke's boys whittled this away steadily and almost forged ahead just as the final whistle found Windham groggy and holding on for dear life.

Manchester plays two games this week. East Hartford comes here Friday night and on Saturday the locals travel to Waterbury to meet Crook High. East Hartford was beaten 43 to 19 in the first game of the series which indicates that the red and white should chalk up another C. I. L. triumph at this meeting. Bristol is the only league team that has beaten Manchester and the local outfit is anxiously awaiting the following Friday, February 8, when the Bell City booster: come here for a return encounter. Manchester is far from out of the running for the championship and may even tie Bristol for the pennant before the season winds up.

Windham High outscored Manchester in three of the four quarters Saturday night, doing most of its damage when it outpointed the Six Towners 12 to 6 in the second year. At halftime, Coach Tommy Callahan's tribe was leading 22 to 19 and at the end of the third quarter were ahead eleven points, 39 to 19. It was then that Manchester staged its great rally that all but took victory from Willimantic's grasp.

Renn Shoots Well. Manchester scored 18 points against eight in the fourth quarter. The eagle-eyed Danny Renn and Howard Turkington led the attack for the red and white. Renn was dropping 'em through the net from the middle of the floor while Turkington was proving a constant menace to Willimantic under the basket. His long arms and advantage in height were almost more than Callahan's tribe could cope with. His foul shooting was also commensurate. On the whole, however, both shot poorly from the free throw line.

Miekle and Lamson were the shining lights for Willimantic, while Monast also shared the spotlight. Opizel, Manchester forward, went out of the game on personal fouls in the third quarter. The battle grew quite rough in the closing minutes of play. Referee Dick Dillon had to call many fouls to keep the boys in harness.

PURELY HOME-TOWN TALENT.

Have you ever stopped to realize that the Rec Five is the only major basketball team in Connecticut composed entirely of home-town talent? If, perchance, you haven't, then now is the time to do so.

Just think over the lineup used by the other principal teams in the state and you will no doubt be amazed at the over-abundance of out-of-town players.

The Meriden Endees, New Britain Pros, Bristol Endees, Plainfield Pros and Middletown Red Wings constitute about the best basketball clubs in at least this part of the state, outside of the Rec team.

Now, let's look over the personnel of these outfits. Meriden uses Cohen, Gordon, Rosenthal and Conway from out of town in addition to Cook, Linger and McCarthy of the Silver City. So, at least three of the regular members of this team do not vote in Meriden.

Then there is New Britain. Manager Clarence Lanphear has only one player from his own town. He is the veteran, Sheehan. Leary, Zakzewski, Sloman and Rubinstein all hail from elsewhere.

Bristol, like New Britain, use a lineup that reveals a solitary player from the Bell City, Richtmeyer. Waterman lives in Hartford and surely Marchinek, Pickets, Manning and Richmond are not Bristol products. Now let's give Plainfield the once-over. Roy Dessinger is the only Plainfield man on the team. He is the director of the club there. Tisdale, Bernot, Kasper, Bruno and Williams are all imported material.

And, in conclusion, there isn't a single member of the Middletown team who actually lives in that city. Jack Carlson comes the closest, and I am informed that he eats and sleeps across the river in Portland. Reynolds, Taylor, Luke, Jasper and Arburr are from New Britain and Sturm lives in Hartford.

Now that you have come to a realization of these somewhat startling facts, don't you think that the Rec Five with a personnel that includes Manchester boys in its entirety, deserves considerable credit and support? Manchester should be proud of McCann, Holland, Strange, Norris, Gustafson, Madden, Stavitsky and Dowd.

Although I am not absolutely positive, I would not be a bit surprised if inquiry would show that every one of these eight players was born in Manchester and has lived here all of his life. Certainly, most of them have.

Under the capable management of Ben Clune, the Rec Five has won 13 out of 14 games this season. Their one-sided and impressive victory over the Dixies in Hartford Saturday night showed their true worth, as did their triumph over the Philadelphia Colored Giants, Olsons' Terrible Swedes and a host of other good teams.

The announcement that games have been booked with Bristol and New Britain and that a Meriden series is in the offing, should further increase local basketball interest. If the Rec Five can successfully pass these three obstacles, it will undoubtedly be recognized as the best in the state.

Norval Baptie And Gladys Lamb Hold Vast Audience Spellbound

GRACEFUL EXHIBITION IS MARVELOUS TO SEE

Skating Club Achieves Huge Success in Presenting Greatest Show Ever Seen on Local Ice; Miss Davenport Scores Big Hit; Major Portion of Credit for Outcome of Carnival Due "Woody" Walleit.

BY TOM STOWE

The Manchester Skating club deserves a world of credit for the highly satisfactory and entertaining ice carnival which it presented at Center Springs Pond yesterday afternoon before a mammoth audience variously estimated between three and five thousand persons. It was easily the best ice carnival Manchester has ever been privileged to view and the spectacle will long remain in the minds of the fortunate ones present.

Favored for the occasion by the appearance of Norval Baptie and his partner, Miss Gladys Lamb of New York City, world-famous fancy skaters, in addition to Miss Miriam Davenport, Springfield's little queen of the ice, Leo Le Bell, Hartford's famous barrel-jumper, Leo and Melvin Degon, youthful Springfield speed skaters, Frank Walleit, Manchester's proud contribution to the fancy skating world and his eleven-year-old niece, Miss Dorothy Brown, the vast throng present was treated to a truly wonderful program.

The outstanding event on the program, of course, was the graceful and clever exhibition which Baptie and his partner offered. Their efforts thrilled the crowd beyond power of description. Never before has Manchester witnessed such skill. Vigorous applause followed the conclusion of each number. The skaters were handicapped by a rather stiff breeze. The weather, however, was ideal.

Although within a few weeks of reaching his fiftieth birthday, Baptie proved conclusively that he is in a class by himself when it comes to fancy skating. Those who saw him perform yesterday, could not help but marvel at his agility and cleverness. Included in his repertoire were also a number of novel stunts which amused the audience greatly. One was when ten local youngsters tried to catch him.

Game of Tag.

Instead of keeping well away from the boys, Baptie was content to slide and twist his way in and among them coming within inches of the outstretched hands of his eager pursuers. Several of the boys took tumbles in their determined effort to lay a hand on him and it was several minutes before Jack Bellamy succeeded.

Those who were in the posse with Bellamy were Dave Muldoon, Raymond Dunahue, Norman Taylor, Harold Lindsay, Tom Freney, Sanford North and Harry Buckmishier. At the conclusion of the chase, Baptie had the eight boys kneel down on the ice side by side and then leaped over them.

At first, the youngsters were a bit doubtful that Baptie would be able to clear them and the boy on the far end of the row kept running to the opposite end. This amused the crowd considerably. Finally the boys obeyed instruction. However, they kept their eyes closed, evidently figuring that if death lurked near them, they at least did not want to see it approach.

Both Baptie and Miss Lamb appeared in solo numbers that included strictly fancy skating and gave Manchester onlookers a taste of what real skating is like. Both were costumed. Their marvelous skill and grace alone showed the long experience which they have had in this art. They brought the program to a close with a number of stunts skating together.

The crowd enjoyed most however, the airplane spin which concluded the program. This is a general other spinning act. This is one of the most dangerous acts attempted by skaters and is also about the prettiest. In this number Baptie lifts his partner off the ice while spinning her by one hand and foot and lifting and lowering her at the same time causing her face to often come less than an inch from hitting the ice.

Miss Davenport Thrills. But while the large audience stood spellbound with amazement during the performance of Baptie and Miss Lamb, they also followed joyously the efforts of stars of lesser note on the program. They were particularly impressed with Miss Miriam Davenport who is probably the greatest amateur skater in New England for her age. Miss Davenport was dressed in a neat black costume which made a striking appearance on the white surface. Her long black curls and the fact that she is very attractive, added to her impressiveness.

Because she has had much less experience and is a good deal younger, many persons enjoyed her efforts equally well with those of the veteran Miss Lamb. Miriam took part in the program here last winter, but her performance yesterday was far superior. The grace and ease with which she glided about the ice scored a tremendous hit.

Walleit Deserves Credit. Walleit worked practically all night helping get the pond in the best possible condition for the carnival. He had his whole heart and soul in the affair and today can be back constantly and get a bit of well-earned rest. The entire program was carried on without any unnecessary delays and was exceptionally well arranged. George Rowseil was chairman of the general committee and sort of supervised the entire affair. John Walleit attended to the public and whatever secretarial work necessary. The program itself was taken care of by "Mac" Macdonald who spent much time and thought in its perfection. He kept the program moving along steadily and had it properly balanced. Miss Helen Bodreau was in charge of the finance. Assisted by a corps of members of the club, she sold tags and a sum of $234.30 was realized. This enabled the club to go over the top by the narrow margin of about thirty dollars.

Practically all of the program accepted Baptie and Miss Lamb and the Rockville Boys' Band, which furnished music for the occasion, donated. Those who assisted Miss Bodreau in her work were Anna Scranton, Viola Shearer, Mae Palmer, Elsie Lennon, Irene Jolly, Alice Paradis, Doris Miller, Grace Giglio, Margaret McKeever, Madeline Gilroy, Amanda Jarvis and Emma MacEntee.

Others who helped Another who assisted in carrying out the program was George Olds, Manchester Joe Humphries, who did the announcing to a degree of satisfaction. Bill McKee, one of the most enthusiastic members of the Skating Club, also comes in for his share of the credit. He was one of the last to leave the pond in the wee hours of the morning yesterday after the surface, cleared by Park Superintendent Horace F. Murphey's men from the park department, had been swept by broom and sprayed with water from a barrel pump. Leslie Cheney, another Manchester skating enthusiast, presented the out of town skaters with silk American flags made at Cheney Brothers as a token of further appreciation for their services.

An hour of public skating with the band music followed the conclusion of the exhibition program and the most successful ice carnival Manchester has ever seen was at an end.

LA FRANCIS; NORTH ICE SPEED CHAMPS

Win Honors at Carnival Yesterday; Sheridan "Falls" Way Out of Title Twice.

Clarence La Francis of the north end and Sanford North of 27 Lilly street won the respective senior and junior town championship speed skating championships yesterday afternoon at the ice carnival at Center Springs pond.

La Francis won when Bernard "Red" Sheridan fell his way out of the title. After winning the 220 yard dash, Sheridan had what appeared to be a safe lead in both of the other events, the 440 and the 880, but on each occasion either fell from stumbling or because his legs gave out.

The championship was decided on a point basis, 15 being given for first, ten for second and five for third. Senior ratings were as follows: La Francis 30, Sheridan 25, Eddie Powers 17 1/2, Bill Andriol 7 1/2. In the junior class, North had 30 points, Bill Mack 20, Jack Ballamy and Norman Rowseil, each 5.

Emil Piltz acted as starter. Leonard Best was the timer with Walter Dunn and George Hunt as judges. The results were as follows:

Junior Events.
220: North, first; Mack, second; Bellamy, third; time, 24 seconds.
440: La Francis, first; Mack, second; Rowseil, third; time, 56 seconds.

Senior Events.
220: Sheridan, first; La Francis, second; Powers and Andriol tied for third; time, 24 seconds.
440: La Francis, first; Sheridan, second; Powers, third; time, 52 seconds.
880: La Francis, first; Powers, second; Andriol, third; time, one minute, 44 seconds.

COLLECTING AGAIN

VICTOR ON ALLEYS

Collecting Company, No. 152, of the 118th Medical Regiment, defeated the Military Police in an important bowling match Friday night at the State Armory in Hartford. Both teams were tied for first place in the league. The Collecting Company team is composed entirely of Manchester men.

According to reports drifting into this office, there was quite a bit of argument about the match. Apparently, the Military Police became quite incensed over the defeat. At any rate they objected to Collecting Company supporters giving them the merry razz from the sidelines and the match was stopped several times.

The Collecting Company won all three games and in doing so set three new records, 514 team single, 1,519 team three string and Schlebenpflug's 344 high individual three string. The latter also bowled 126. He got four on a spare when six would have broken the record held by Provost at 127.

Here are the scores:

COLLECTING COMPANY
Vendrillo	98 104 90 292
Russell	111 102 93 306

POLICE COURT

Stanley J. Burk, 19 years old, truck driver in the employ of Merton Strickland, was in the Manchester police court this morning, charged with passing a trolley car stopped to discharge passengers.

Mr. Strickland appeared for him in court. The young man was driving north on Main street Saturday and passed the trolley car at Woodland street. His employer gave him a good recommendation and Judge Johnson suspended judgment on payment of costs.

Bruno Johnson was before the court for intoxication and breach of the peace. He was found at the Johnson block on Main street last night by the patrol, very drunk and making a disturbance. The janitor tried to reason with him but without success. Johnson who has a court record was found guilty on both charges and fined $10 and costs on each count.

The case of William Gedrats of Homestead street who was before the court two weeks ago, was disposed of when Judge Johnson suspended judgment. The case was continued until this morning. The charge was intoxication and breach of the peace but the trouble was brought on because of conditions in the home.

SENSE and NONSENSE

REPAIRS WANTED
A negro woman of large proportions was in a motor car accident. She was transported to a hospital where she soon regained consciousness.

THE UP AND DOWN OF IT
He was a good cook, and the explorers were trying to persuade him to make the long flight into the wilds with them.

CHANGED HIS DESTINATION
First Colored Lady - "Yo' husband's in de hospital? Ah thought he was jus' off on a jag."

Judge: "So you weren't doing anything when arrested?"
Rastus: "No sah. Ah was jest walking along down de street and sipping a little souse when de big Irish policeman come along and started to beat me up."

Telegram from negro to his friend: "Sam, I hear yo' is dead; if you is, telegraph me, if you ain't, send me $10.00."

"Are you the defendant?" asked the judge.
"No, Boss," replied Mose. "I ain't done nothin' to be called names like dat. I see gotta lawyer here."

Eph - How'd you git along ridin' in them thar sleepin' cars when you took your trip?
Slim - got along all right but I caught a colored feller tryin' to sneak away with my boots, an' made 'im bring 'em right back.

LETTER GOLF

THIS IS GOOD ADVICE!

Here's an easy way to SAVE COIN - just take five steps in the proper direction. At least, that's the par and one solution is on another page:

Letter Golf grid with letters S, A, V, E and C, O, I, N.

THE RULES

- 1 - The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

The late Booker T. Washington used to tell a story of his meeting a colored woman and asking: "Well, Miranda, where are you going?" "It's goin' nowhere, Mr. Washington," was the reply, "It's been where I's goin'."

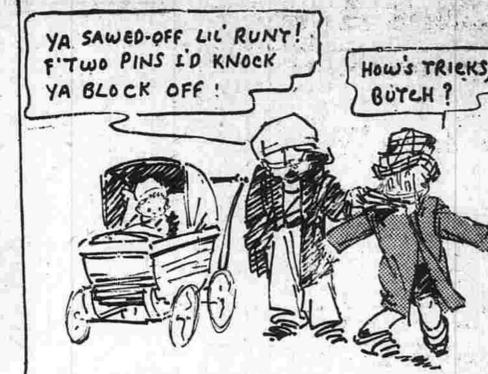

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Said Cloway, "Look what you have done. You've made those Trouble Tots all run. I really think it's rather mean to scare them all away. They're small and couldn't hurt a thing. What sort of trouble could they bring? I'll bet they called to see us, and would gladly join in play."

CHORAL CLUB BACKING EQUAL TO LAST YEAR'S

Final Rehearsals Indicate One of Club's Best Concerts This Evening.

Final rehearsals of the Choral Club of Manchester in preparation for tonight's concert, held yesterday, developed a degree of smoothness which guarantees a musical evening of the highest excellence tonight. Though the club did not get into action as early this year as heretofore, owing to the long absence from the city of the director, Archibald Sessions, and though there have been a few changes in the personnel of the chorus, the club has just about the same number of active members as in past seasons and the singers are particularly enthusiastic over this concert, realizing that their choral work will be the center of interest in the absence of any outside vocal star.

The program is a varied one, well calculated to bring out the real strength of this extremely well trained and capable organization.

Within the last two or three days so many of the associate members of past seasons have renewed their memberships and so many new ones have been obtained that the total of subscriptions is at least equal to if not a little larger than last year.

There appears to be every reason to anticipate one of the most successful concerts the club has given.

Miss Ethel V. Woodward who is employed in the Extension department at Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs, spent the week-end with her parents on Hollister street.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"
 SAVORS ON THE AIR

The "chicken in every pot" slogan is all right for politicians and professional optimists but a chicken in every pot every day would be pretty near to diastolic disaster. Quail is a dainty and luxurious tidbit—but "a quail a day for forty days" has long been a phrase for the expression of gastronomic horror.

The family pot that doesn't produce sturdy meat stews and thick soups now and then isn't doing its honest duty—not in this climate and at this time of the year. We need these things in our business of living and digesting and nourishing. And, luckily for our physical well being, most of our palates co-operate joyously with our brains in this matter.

The savor and goodness of a well cooked, well seasoned, stew or soup makes most American mouths water. Which is as it should be.

Pinehurst has a splendid lot of Stew and Soup Cuts right now. Veal, Lamb and Beef pieces for the Stews—meaty, juicy cuts with more nutriment to the dime's worth than most folks realize is possible.

Veal Shanks, Beef Shanks and Beef Ribs, for the Soups.

Nice, fresh, delicate Soup Bunches to go with them.

And early delivery so as to give the Stew or the Soup plenty long on the fire. You can't hurry either and get results, as every good cook knows.

Call Pinehurst, phone number two thousand. Delivery at your own time any time after 8 in the morning.
