CENTURY OLD HADDAM HALL BURNED DOWN

Was Once Court House of Middlesex County—Later Owned by Masonic Bodies—Records Lost.

Haddam, Conn., Feb. 12.—The historic Town Hall here was completely destroyed by fire today. Granite Lodge, A. F. & A. M. and Puritan Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, owners of the structure, lost all record and equipment. The town tax records were consumed but it is believed the vital statistics, land records, and probate records are safe though the vaults cannot be opened because of heat, until today or tomorrow. No estimate of the loss has been made though the Masonic bodies believe their loss of equipment will be above $5,000.

No Protection.

The fire was discovered by the family of James R. Williams, living near by. The town is without fire protection. Pumping apparatus from Deep River volunteered assistance. No aid came from Middlesex County. By the time the fire had burned out only the four walls of the building remained.

The Town Hall was built more than one hundred years ago of stone quarried near by. Until 1893 Haddam was county seat of Middlesex County and the building was the Court House. The county sold the structure to the Masonic bodies here two years ago and they sublet the ground floor to the town.

Last Occupants.

The last occupants of the building were Philip Dickinson, town clerk, and Mrs. James R. Williams, his assistant. They left the building just after five o'clock yesterday afternoon. Wood-burning stoves were used to heat the building. The only theory for the origin of the fire is that soot in the chimney caught fire.

Barking dogs roused the Williams family just before daybreak today and investigation disclosed the burning building.

NUMEROUS DEATHS FROM COLD SPELL

Central Europe Suffers Coldest Weather in Over 200 Years.

Berlin, Feb. 12.—With at least twelve persons dead in Germany, the cold wave through Central Europe which has broken all records for centuries, continued unbroken today.

Numerous deaths were indirectly due to the inclement weather.

The government is rushing planes with food for 130 ice-bound ships in the Baltic.

Planes are being used to furnish food to isolated residents of ice-bound islands.

Four railroaders were killed near Breslau when they failed to hear an approaching train due to the fact they were wearing heavy earflaps to protect themselves from the intense cold.

Three children, sleeping in an unheated room at Lublitz, Silesia, were found frozen to death.

Family Asphyxiated.

A family of four was killed by escaping gas at Isenburg, Hessen, when the gas pipe broke.

In Berlin 350 persons were treated for frostbite at first aid stations in three days.

In some parts of Germany the weather is the coldest in more than 200 years.

The cold wave extends through Germany, Austria, Hungary and Jugoslavia.

London, Feb. 12.—Sixteen hundred passengers are aboard the ferry boats that are ice bound on the Great Belt, off the Danish coast. They have been marooned 24 hours. An ice breaker that was sent to liberate the two ferries became ice-bound.

GALE DISTURBS KING

Aldwick, Eng., Feb. 12.—A roaring English channel gale with a 60-mile wind disturbed King George's rest somewhat throughout the night, it was learned at Craigwell House today.

At 9 a. m., the King was reported sleeping comfortably, as the wind had died down and the sun was shining.

OUR TOWN AS A MODEL FOR LEGISLATORS

House Chaplain Prays That Law Makers Be as "Fer- tile as Manchester"—To- day's Legislative Business

Hartford, Feb. 12.—Members of the Lower House of the State Legislature listened intently today while Rev. William S. Hudson, of North Canaan, House chaplain, prayed that the legislators be: "Steadfast as the Litchfield hills, serene as the Connecticut river and fertile as Manchester."

Immediately after the prayer the House passed the first bill which has gone through all the regular preliminary steps of legislative formality. The bill would restrict the height of buildings in the Capitol zone here to ninety feet. All previously passed bills have sustained action under suspended rules.

Both the House and the Senate passed the deficiency appropriation bill to enable the state to pay its way until June 30, next, when the new funds will be available. The Senate concurred with the House in passing the building height bill also.

Many executive nominations went to the Senate today and were referred to committees, and a few favorable reports were received in both branches of the Assembly which finally adjourned about noon.

THE SENATE.

Hartford, Feb. 12.—The Senate today received the following nominations from Governor Trumbull, referring them to the committee on executive nominations:

Directors of state prison—Edwin P. Root, of New Haven; Morgan B. Brainard, of Hartford; and Isadore Wise, of Hartford, each for a four-year term.

TO SPEND $366,000 ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

This in Addition to $80,000 Already Spent on New Telephone Building.

Exchange Manager W. B. Halsted today made public the construction plans of the Southern New England Telephone Company for the local exchange area during 1929 and his statement shows that the company will spend about $366,000 in the enlargement and improvement of its plant here during the year. This figure is in addition to about $80,000 that has been spent on the new telephone building at 55 East Center street which contract was started in May, last year and other smaller expenditures expended in the past year. Summing up the figures Mr. Halsted points out that the outlay here for all work connected with the conversion to the dial system of operation, the extension of outside plant and increase of telephone facilities generally, will run close to the $500,000 mark.

"During 1929 this company," said Mr. Halsted, "will undertake new construction work in the Manchester Exchange involving a total expenditure of about $366,000. About $4,000 of this amount will be needed to complete our new building in East Center street, which was started in May of last year and the cost of which when completed will approximate $30,000.

Largest Expense.

"The largest item of the many in our construction program for Manchester is that of $250,000 for

It was the next commander-in-chief of the United States Army himself who reviewed this delegation of Boy Scouts at Belle Isle, Miami Beach, Fla. President-elect Herbert Hoover stole a bit of time from the busy round of political conferences that have been engaging his attention and received the youngsters who had called to present him with credentials that made him a Florida Scout in good standing. Mrs. Hoover is shown at the extreme left.

FAMOUS LILY LANGTRY DIES IN MONTE CARLO

"Jersey Lily" Passes Away Suddenly—Was Once the Craze of Society in Europe and United States.

Nice, Feb. 12.—Lily Langtry, the Countess of Bath, died at Monte Carlo today.

Lily Langtry, whose maiden name was Emily Charlotte Le Breton, was born upon the island of Jersey in 1858, the daughter of a poor clergyman.

In her early girlhood she gave promise of the beauty which was to make her a stage favorite in later years and captivate high society circles in London, Paris and New York.

She was married to Edward Langtry, an Englishman with a modest fortune. The Langtry's went to London. Her beauty and grace won her a place in society, despite the obscurity of her family and the lack of a great fortune.

Called Jersey Lily.

Sir John Mills presented Mrs. Langtry to the Prince of Wales (later King Edward VII), who was charmed by her vivacity and wit. Almost overnight she became famous as the "Jersey Lily." Society women sought to imitate the "Langtry modes" and her fashion of dressing.

Edward Langtry's fortune could not stand the pace so his wife turned to the stage.

England paid millions to see her for the "Jersey Lily" fame was empire-wide. She visited the United States and was received with enthusiasm, not only by theatergoers but by members of the "400."

Langtry was completely overshadowed. He found he had married a wife but obtained a "social lioness." He sued for a separation and obtained it. Mrs. Langtry failed twice to get a divorce, but finally obtained it in the California courts in 1897.

Langtry later died in an insane asylum.

Famous Incident.

One of the most talked of incidents in the life of the actress-beauty concerned the late King Edward VII. Mrs. Langtry, in the course of a gay dinner party, was

DRY LEADERS TRY FOR COMPROMISE

Hold Conference Over 24 Million Dollar Fund Of- fered by Congress.

Washington, Feb. 12.—A compromise will be reached in the controversy over the proposal to appropriate an additional $24,000,000 to enforce prohibition, it was indicated today.

With the Senate and House at loggerheads over the measure, the prohibition "general staff" went into a huddle at the Treasury Department today, and at the conclusion it was announced that Congress will be informed with the next few days how much additional money can be used to advantage. The amount will hardly be $24,000,000 or anywhere near it.

Congressional backers of the $24,000,000 prohibition appropriation proposed by Senator Harris (D) of Georgia, have asked Secretary Mellon how much money can be employed immediately for strengthening dry enforcement.

In order to comply with the request Under Secretary Ogden J. Mills, Treasury budget officer, summoned Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran, Customs Commissioner E. W. Camp and Admiral F. C. Billard, Commandant of the Coast Guard, for a complete discussion of the question.

A number of suggestions were submitted as to immediate use of additional funds.

To Submit Report.

Information also will be submitted to Congress from the civil service commission and Justice Department as to what can be accomplished by an additional appropriation.

Congress is seeking data from the Justice Department as to the possibility of prompt expansion of the court facilities that could be

PRESIDENT OF MEXICO ANSWERS HIS ENEMIES

Senator Pays Tribute To Memory Of Lincoln

(Editor's Note:—Abraham Lincoln is held aloft as a beacon to the youth of America by Senator Warren (R) of Wyo., only Union veteran remaining in Congress. Senator Warren was wounded twice and won the Congressional Medal of Honor in the Civil War. Now, at 85, silver-haired but still vigorous, he is the Nestor of the Senate.)

BY SEN. FRANCIS E. WARREN

Washington, Feb. 12.—The whole nation worships at the shrine of Lincoln today. He was the greatest of all our presidents. Though in his lifetime, he felt the lash of censure and criticism, time has elevated him to his true stature. Kindly, human, far-seeing, tolerant, just, Lincoln has won immortality.

The wound that divided our nation in his day has been healed. If any further proof were necessary, the Great War—in which boys of the North fought side and side with boys of the South, dying in the same righteous cause—forever destroyed sectional lines. The sacrifices of these boys consecrated Lincoln's idea—a nation, one and inseparable.

Our people, especially the youth of America, would do well on this anniversary to reread their lives to the teachings of Abraham Lincoln.

CHICAGO MAN DESCRIBES NOTED LINCOLN DEBATE

Once Played Marbles With Great Emancipator; Tells of His Impressions When Honest Abe Spoke.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—How he played in a game of marbles with Abe Lincoln and four years later heard him in the great debate with Douglas, who opposed the rail-splitter for the United States Senate candidacy in Illinois, was related today by William Slemmons, a Chicago resident.

"I was still no more than a boy," Slemmons said, "but I knew that the short, stockily built man sitting on the platform was Judge Douglas. Presently another man came in and took his place on the platform—a tall man in a black frock coat—and I recognized my partner if that game of marbles four years before. A whisper went

JAP PRINCE SPEAKS AT LINCOLN DINNER

Heir Apparent to Throne Ad- dresses Members of American Club at Tokyo.

Tokyo, Feb. 12.—Several hundred persons tonight heard Prince Chichibu, heir apparent to the Japanese throne, address the members and associates of the American Association of Tokyo at the Imperial hotel. Prince Chichibu was attended by Princess Chichibu, formerly Miss Setsu Matsudaira.

Before presenting the youthful prince to the dinner guests, Col. Charles C. Burnett, military attaché to the American embassy, Tokyo, and president of the association, made a few introductory remarks, touching on the high regard with which Lincoln is held by the Japanese.

In replying to Col. Burnett's remarks, Prince Chichibu said that the commemoration of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln was for him an event of more than ordinary significance.

Prince's Address.

"Your American association," stated Prince Chichibu, "is an embodiment of an ideal, the result of which is the success for the present peaceful condition on the Pacific must be attributed. The unstable conditions in the east today appeals to you for still greater efforts in bringing closer and whole-hearted co-operation, and I trust that your traditional interest for peace and good understanding will always occupy the center of your hearts."

"Our people owe to the Americans a great debt of gratitude for these and other services to humanity and we must be prepared wisely to develop the fruit anticipated by your philanthropists. These deeds of kindness are stronger links in the chain that binds together all peoples of the earth."

New York, Feb. 12.—A heavy police guard patrolled the sidewalk outside the main office of the City Trust Company today following the receipt of bomb threats believed to be from depositors who were unable to withdraw their savings yesterday before the bank was ordered closed by the State Department of Banking.

No statement has been made regarding the bank's affairs, but depositors said today that losses to the depositors, mostly Italians, would amount between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

Dr. A. H. Giannini, president of the Italian Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the board of the Bank of America, a brother of A. T. Giannini, California banker and head of the Bank of Italy, is president of the City Trust Company.

Ford Gift Of $5,000,000 For Edison On Birthday

The Edisonian collection of the society will be moved to Dearborn to be placed with Ford's collection in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary next October of the lighting of the first electric bulb at Menlo Park, N. J. Edison's original workshops are being reassembled at Dearborn where 8,000 students are engaged in electrical research in the Edison Institute.

The $5,000,000 gift, Ford said, is his tribute to Edison's "unparalleled life of achievement" and his contribution to the celebration of the birthday of the incandescent light.

RADICALS RESPONSIBLE FOR MEXICAN BOMBINGS

President Gil Says He Has Received Many Threats from Catholic Defense League.

Mexico City, Feb. 12.—The radical element among Mexican Catholics was responsible for the dynamiting of the train which he was riding in Guanaajuato on Sunday, President Emilio Portes Gil charged today.

The president said that propaganda left at the scene by the bombers fixed blame for the outrage on the Catholic League of Defense, of Mexico City.

President Portes Gil revealed that he had lately received many menacing communications from this element. The president added that he was grateful for messages of felicitation from President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg and for a visit from Ambassador Dwight Morrow made at the palace last night.

CHICAGO VETERAN TELLS OF LINCOLN DEBATE

round the room that it was Lincoln.

"Lincoln! Already the state and even the nation had begun to thrill to that name. Even to me, boy that I was, it was full of portent, I could not take my eyes away from the face of the tall and slightly awkward man on the platform. I remember still every intonation of his voice—grave, but pleasant, slightly drawing, weighted with kindness and humor.

Douglas Speaks First

"Judge Douglas spoke first. He was a brilliant orator, and the audience hung upon his words, following him breathlessly along his fluent periods, rising with him to his impassioned climaxes. Finished at last he sat down amid tremendous applause.

"Then Lincoln rose. It would be impossible to imagine a more striking contrast. Tall, bony, delicate, he rose out over the heads of the waiting crowd as if contending for the first time whatever it was he might be about to say.

Tremendous Personality

"No brilliancy, no fluent periods, no scintillating climaxes, but slowly surely the audience began to yield itself to the impact of a vast gravity, to fall beneath the spell of a tremendous personality.

"This country cannot endure half slave, half free!" That was his text that the burden of his discourse. Later in the campaign, I understood, Lincoln's advisers admonished him that his utterances on the question of slavery would cost him his election to the Senate.

"I am convinced that you are right," was his answer, "but they will cost Douglas his election to the presidency two years from now."

"That Lincoln was a sagacious politician, even a very canny one, I believe, true. His entire career points to that fact. Certainly the remark I have just quoted supports the contention.

"Probably it was then no easier to succeed in politics without knowing the game and how to play it than it is now. It was an era of brilliant politicians. I believe that as a politician Lincoln could hold his own with the best of them, but nothing could convince me that he was ever a crooked one.

"The impression made on me under the trees on there in the old courthouse yard that afternoon and later during the memorable debate was one of complete nobility. Lincoln had been in New Orleans. He had seen negroes on the auction block. The memory of that tragic sight was in his heart, his voice, his eyes."

Stimmons is 85 years old, erect and soldierly of bearing, weathering like some old sturdy oak tree the white winter of his years.

central office dial equipment for 1000 lines from manual operation which is scheduled for service during the coming summer. Installation of the dial equipment is now in progress and there is every reason to believe that this important detail of the work here will be completed on schedule.

"Our other expenditures in this Exchange area during the year are divided among various classes of plant. It is estimated that subscribers station equipment, telephones will cost about $55,000 and Private Branch Exchange equipment for larger offices and factories will mean an outlay of about $25,000.

"The program for additions to our Exchange aerial and underground cable here is an extensive one and will cost about $20,000. It may be interesting to know that we plan the installation of 42,500 feet of cable, containing no less than 6,998,000 feet, or 1,322 miles of copper 'phone wire. For the underground cable we will place conduit at a cost of about $400,000. Another part of our cable program includes the work to be done on toll lines within this Exchange. Our toll cable program calls for an expenditure of about $8,000 and for poles, wire and miscellaneous work to be spent about $20,000 bringing the total to the amount I have stated.

"The figures I have given represent only the cost of material and labor for constructing the plant, but do not include any amount to be spent on maintaining or operating this new plant or that already in existence.

4,686 Telephones.

"At the close of 1928 there were 4,686 telephones in service in this Exchange and it is estimated by our engineers that during the current year there will be a net increase of 177 telephones bringing the total in service at the end of the year to 4,863, which is a substantial gain for an Exchange of this size and reflects the business and social demands upon our service. Our forecasts indicate a healthy growth in the commercial life of this Exchange and confidence of our management in Manchester's future is strongly evidenced by the company's plans for enlargements and betterments here.

"It may interest Manchester people to note that during an average business day the Manchester operating force handles no less than 18,500 originating calls, a figure determined by accurate check of calls. Of this total 17,750 are local calls and 750 are so-called A-B toll calls that toll calls handled by the local operators to points nearby Manchester and reached by direct wire without calling the toll operator."

LINCOLN'S ROMANCE ALMOST FORGOTTEN

Grave of Ann Rutledge's Mother is Neglected—No Stone Marks Spot.

Birmingham, Iowa, Feb. 12.—In a grave in a little cemetery three miles northwest of this little town Mary Ann Rutledge, mother of Ann Rutledge whose unhappy romance with Abraham Lincoln is one of the most touching and pathetic stories in American history, slept almost forgotten today.

No dignified memorial marks the resting place of this woman, who, when Lincoln came was on the lips of the world, cherished the bitter-sweet thought that her daughter might have shared his success.

Mary Ann Rutledge was remembered today by a very few of the old residents of Van Buren county where she lived for 39 years. With her family, she moved to Birmingham from Fulton county, Ill., where they had lived for a time after leaving New Salem, burdened with the grief of a double bereavement.

For it was at New Salem that Ann, beloved of the gaunt, unknown Illinois country lawyer, died, to be followed in death by her father, James Rutledge, a few months later.

But the memory of Mary Ann Rutledge had faded. Even the date of her removal to Iowa is not definitely known. Little is remembered except that she died in Birmingham, Dec. 26, 1878, at the home of a daughter.

Ann Mary Ann Rutledge sleeps in a lonely grave, touched with the sombre majesty of Masters' music.

"Bloom forever, O Republic From the dust of my bosom."

500 DANCE AT THE COLORFUL MASONIC BALL

the other men dancers wore the conventional dinner jacket. The ladies of course, were attired in most formal evening gowns.

The entire hall was the most formal that has been held here in many years, this being in line with the wishes of the committee in charge. Not a single person was noticed on the floor who was not in formal attire. There was an unusually large number of young people in attendance.

Jack Morey's singing orchestra from Springfield which has been heard over the radio many times, made more than a favorable impression. Their program included the most up-to-date fox trot and waltz numbers in addition to specialties and medleys of old time favorites. Preceding the grand march was a half hour's concert. Dancing lasted until one o'clock.

The crowd was so large that it was necessary to serve refreshments in the dining hall three different times. Strawberry shortcake, coffee and ice cream were served under the direction of Walter Wadell. Peter Wind was in charge of the corps of waiters who prevented any unnecessary delay in the dance program by its speedy and efficient efforts. The windows about the hall, the stage and the dining hall were all appropriately decorated with palms and potted plants. This work was capably taken care of by Lewis N. Hooper, Hooper Beach had charge of the cloak room and Albert T. Dewey was chairman of the floor committee.

COOLIDGES TO LEAVE CAPITAL ON MARCH 4

Washington, Feb. 12.—President Coolidge will leave Washington on the afternoon of March 4, soon after the inauguration of his successor, Herbert Hoover, it was announced at the White House today.

The President smilingly told callers that he would "head for Northampton" where he still has a home and a law office with his name on the door.

He did not indicate what his future activity would be, but for the immediate present it is understood the plans to devote some time to the furtherance of the Clark School for the Deaf, which he and Mrs. Coolidge have sponsored for Northampton. Approximately $1,500,000 of the $2,000,000 required for the school project has already been raised. The condition of Mrs. Coolidge's mother, Mrs. Goodhue, also will restrict him to Northampton for the time being, it was thought.

Mr. Coolidge observed to visitors today that he is finding it more difficult to get out of the White House than he did to get in—referring to the large amount of belongings a President acquires after entering the executive mansion. More than 150 boxes of belongings have already been packed up and shipped, with many more to follow.

One-third of the accidents in building construction are due to falling objects, says a statistician. The rule applies 100 per cent, however, in the Stock Exchange.

COTTON WAR ON IN THE SENATE

Anti-Cotton and Anti-Grain Gambling Bill Finds Members Widely Split.

Washington, Feb. 12.—A cotton war flourished in the Senate today over the anti-cotton and grain gambling bill, with the grain-growing west and the cotton-growing south widely split over the measure, and the industrial east opposed to it.

The bill, which would prohibit speculative trading in cotton and grain futures, faced almost certain defeat, due chiefly to the division of opinion among Senators from the cotton-growing states. There was a possibility that a substitute bill might be adopted, prohibiting future trading in cotton only, except by persons actually owning cotton and then through formal contracts. The proposed substitute would not affect the grain markets. The legislative situation reflected a condition long prevalent in cotton-growing circles. A score of efforts to provide Congressional relief for cotton-growers and federal control of their speculative markets have met defeat, because of this split among the cotton Senators.

The Caraway bill—sponsored by Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas, "would make it unlawful to 'make or enter a contract for the purchase or sale of future delivery of cotton or grain without intending that such cotton or grain be actually delivered or received.' It would prohibit the sending of all messages or telegrams relating to speculative cotton deals.

The substitute, known as the Vincent Bill, was sponsored by Senator George (D) of Georgia. It would prohibit cotton deals, except "where the seller is at the time of the making of such contract the owner of the actual physical property." It would create a number of "cotton contract markets" for handling these future deliveries.

The bill probably will be debated several days before a vote is reached.

NEEDLE STRIKE OVER

New York, Feb. 12.—Victory was claimed today by striking members of the needle trade workers industrial union, with the announcement that settlements will have been reached with 150 employers by midnight.

Already, ninety-five shops have resumed work on the strikers' terms, according to union officials. A tentative settlement with the dress protective manufacturers association, affecting another 100 shops, was to be presented tonight for ratification by the general strike committee.

A 15-year-old schoolgirl and her mother were deposited in jail by police who had been summoned to disperse garment strike pickets.

The girl and her mother, Mrs. Silvia Griener, will be arraigned on disorderly conduct charges. They are dressed in men and women have been jailed since the strike was called several days ago but nearly all have been released.

HEADS STEAMSHIP CO.

New York, Feb. 12.—J. Howland Gardner, vice-president of the New England Steamship Co., was today elected president of that corporation by directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, owners of the steamship company. Heretofore the president of the New Haven had been president of the New England Steamship company also.

Directors of the New Haven today voted the regular 1 1/2 per cent dividend on preferred stock and a dividend of 1 per cent on the common.

HOLDS THREE RECORDS

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 12.—With three new aviation records in her possession, Miss Bobbie Trout, 23-year-old flyer, was taking a well-earned rest today.

She now holds the women's endurance record, remaining aloft 17 hours, 5 minutes and 37 seconds; the night solo flying record for women and the American distance record for women. Perhaps the most remarkable type of plane she flew 100 miles during her record-breaking air journey.

A Nebraska Senator introduced a bill to put barber colleges on a plane with institutions of higher learning. Perhaps this because barbers have so many heavy questions to settle.

STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSED

New York, Feb. 12.—The New York Stock Exchange, the New York Curb Market, the New York Cotton Market and other security, commodity and textile exchanges are closed today in observance of Lincoln's Birthday. The banks, clearing houses and foreign exchange markets likewise remained closed.

A miniature automobile made of diamonds and other jewels in the amount of $150,000 was exhibited at some of the recent automobile shows. Almost good enough for a gangster's funeral.

HARD TO JUDGE ATHLETES FROM EARLY TRAINING

Managers Often Go Wrong In Trying to Pick Stars In Various Sports.

By BOB MATHERNE

Football coaches tell you that a few weeks of spring practice give them ample information about the newcomers to the squad and enable them to start practice in September with an accurate index of the strength the team will show in the fall games.

They look at a lot of duds in these few weeks and often overlook some fellow who comes through unexpectedly in September, but they don't miss after a few weeks' workout in the spring, the men they will start in the season's opener.

The baseball managers also have a way of learning the capabilities of their rookies, other than what the record books and the scouts tell, before they assemble at spring training camps. That is by clustering their home ground late each season with newcomers for a few weeks of observation and trial.

Like the football coach, a major league baseball manager often calls the turn wrong on the youngsters. He may see flashes of greatness on the part of some that arouse high hopes for next season only to have these same rookies fizzle out on greater trial.

Five Rookies to Watch

The books are filled with instances of fellows who played seasonally for a few weeks and then faded, but they also include many cases of fellows who broke in with a bang, and then continued in capable fashion for many years.

Five youngsters about to start south for training camp were late arrivals in the majors in 1928, but showed their bosses enough ability to warrant the belief that they were up in the majors for many years to come.

They may not last the season, but each one is considered a potential regular now. They are Outlanders Stone with Detroit, Dorman with Cleveland, Klein with the Phillies, Pitcher Hubbell with the Giants and First Baseman Shires with the White Sox.

Of all the rookies who were given a glance late last summer, they seem the best.

Because of the fact that Cleveland has two costly outlanders in Averill and Porter, Dorman will have a tough time getting in regularly, but his .364 batting average in 25 games last year assures him every possible chance to make the grade. He came up from a small league in Texas, setting his bosses back only $4,000. Neither Porter nor Averill, who each cost around ten times as much, will get him out of the way easily.

Bucky Harris expects Jack Stone to continue at the same gait he showed in 26 games for the Tigers last summer. Stone batted .364 in 26 games and drove in 21 runs. If he continues that record for a season, he will be right up among the leaders. Stone looks every inch a future star.

Shires Started Nicely

Art Shires, also came up from Texas and played in 33 games for the White Sox last summer. He displayed enough ability to give the Sox owners reason to believe he will take care of first base satisfactorily this season. He batted .341 in those four weeks of play.

Chuck Klein had more of a test than the others and never flinched a bit. He arrived from an infant and very low minor league and was responsible for 32 runs. He is with the Phillies and is considered one of their best youngsters.

Carl Hubbell, the big southpaw McGraw acquired from Texas and also showed plenty of stuff. He won 16 games and lost 10, and never yelped at the opposition. He had had previous trials with Detroit, but escaped, somehow. McGraw looks for him to be a regular this season, and a consistent winner.

If these five youngsters prove flashes of only a few weeks, there will be five very disappointed managers.

IT'S A MEAN OLD TOWN—AND HE WON'T LIVE HERE

Tony Prichodka, Says He Isn't Going to Work for Nothing to Pay His Liquor Fine.

He figures that an injustice was done him and that he has been mistreated that he is going away from here. Yes, never to come back. The only reason that he is staying here now is to await the term of the Superior Court of this county which opens in March, to which he has taken an appeal.

Before his arrest he worked as a trackman on the local division of the Connecticut company. He was paid 40 cents an hour for his labor, which was hard labor, too. To think, he goes on to say in a language that is hard to understand, that a charge of selling liquor was brought against him. Why he never sold liquor at all—only once! That was when he got caught!

The money that he now makes is at the rate of 40 cents an hour. A fine of $200 and the costs of about $20 more on top of that means, he rambled on, that he would have to work for 550 hours, and that 550 hours he goes on to say in a language of time to be working for somebody and getting nothing so he has not returned to his work as a trackman, deciding that he might just as well not work at all and not get paid for it, as to work for two and a half months without pay. Of course, his audience of one had to agree with him.

ROME CELEBRATES BIG ANNIVERSARY

Crowd of 50,000 Await Papal Blessing in Rain; Elaborate Ceremonies.

Rome, Feb. 12.—There was double jubilation and significance today in the impressive Vatican observance of the seventh anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius XI.

Not only has the Pontiff rounded out seven years of fruitful service to the church, but the celebration fell just after the signing of the treaty of conciliation between the Vatican and the Italian State, settling a conflict that had existed for approximately 50 years.

The Pope attended in full state a mass celebrated in St. Peter's by Cardinal Locatelli. Cardinal Locatelli was the first prelate elevated to the cardinalate by the Pontiff after he was elected to the papal throne in 1922.

After the service 50,000 people stood in a driving rain storm outside St. Peter's, awaiting the papal blessing.

Crowd Waits This vast throng had gathered in the expectation that the Pope would appear upon the loggia of St. Peter's to bless the populace.

Just before noon it was announced that the Pontiff would not appear, but the crowd lingered, growing larger. Rain fell in torrents from leaden clouds, but a mass of humanity in the great plaza refused to leave.

Men, women and children stood for an hour in the downpour, their eyes fixed intently upon the lofty balcony. Finally their patience was rewarded. The pope appeared behind his balcony and blessed the people and the crowd slowly dispersed.

The scene within St. Peter's was at one of the utmost solemnity. At 10:30 o'clock a fanfare blown upon silver trumpets heralded the approach of the brilliant papal procession.

The Pope, robed in white and wearing a gold tiara, was seated within the gestatorial chair, borne by eight bearers. The cathedral was packed with thousands, including many foreign representatives.

This anniversary day of the Pope's coronation found the Pontiff again an independent sovereign just as were the Popes in the middle ages. Although the new papal state, or the City of Vatican, is the smallest "power" in the world, the Pontiff was more anxious to obtain "visible sovereignty" than an extension of Vatican territory.

Italian and Papal flags were flying from hundreds of buildings in celebration of the settlement of the long standing Roman question.

duce the prohibition-created congestion. Motion indicated to Congress that the Harris $24,000,000 appropriation would do little to meet the prohibition situation, but since that time there has arisen a disposition both on the part of Congress and the treasury to reach a compromise.

Mills talked the situation over with Mellon after conferring with the bureau chiefs, and indicated that a preliminary program for strengthening enforcement might be worked out within a few days.

Under Secretary of the Treasury Mills announced that the five year coast guard program would not be sent to Congress until next December. He explained that at least a month's study of the plan recommended by Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant, would be required.

When the 1925 budget was under preparation the treasury, along with other departments, had strict instructions to cut the estimates to the limit because of the danger of a deficit June 30. As a result the customs appropriation was cut $500,000 and a heavy reduction made in the prohibition appropriation.

"It is not indicated that the bars are to be let down somewhat and that we can have additional money," Mills said. "The customs Bureau can be given the increases sought by the commission. The W. Camp and additional funds will be available for prohibition."

Officials expressed the opinion that this compromise of the verbal battle between the treasury and Congress over the $24,000,000 dry fund will be satisfactory to both.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Oliver Bingham of North street was honored Saturday evening by a large party of her friends. They took her completely by surprise and gave her a very pleasant evening. Dancing, singing and games occupied the time and a buffet lunch was served.

Both of the small stores in the old Rialto theater building are again to be occupied. The Music Box, which was formerly located in the Farr building at the Center has occupied the north store and today a women's gown establishment is moving into the south store.

John Conlon of 24 Trotter street, well known Manchester milk dealer, who left for a business trip Sunday below the knee February 11, in an effort to check the spread of gangrene, is reported as improving satisfactorily. It was expected that he would be allowed to sit up in a wheel chair at Memorial hospital today.

James Duffy this morning was notified that he had been named trustee of the bankrupt estate of Henry Starkweather. Starkweather has been in the ice business.

There will be a cottage prayer meeting this evening at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Rudin of 20 Charter Oak street.

Joseph Dean, field executive of the Boy Scouts of Manchester, gave an interesting account of his experiences with a troop of Scouts while on a hike, at the special assembly of the Manchester Green School, held in observance of the nineteenth anniversary of the scout movement in this country Mr. Dean also showed slides of various activities at Camp Pioneer.

NAME MOORE STATE CHAMBER DIRECTOR

Local M. D. Appointed Yesterday—Hear New Legislation Discussed.

At a meeting of the directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce held yesterday afternoon, Dr. D. C. Y. Moore was appointed a director of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce to represent the local organization. The directors took action on Referendum No. 53 from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States with reference to the report of the special committee on highways and motor transport, after Secretary George E. Rix explained the ballot.

The directors favored the section recommending that state legislation should give the highway department or commission wide authority, within financial limitations properly fixed in relation to the whole financial program of the state, to develop highway programs on sound, social and economic grounds and maintain adequate organizations with the needed continuity. They opposed, however, the section proposing supervision over communities highway developments by the highway department. They also opposed the joining together of smaller communities in joint road building program.

The directors favored the naming of responsible authorities to establish definite plans for local road work and favored co-ordinating plans of highway systems for metropolitan areas. The meeting also favored the proposition that highway maintenance and development should be financed as far as possible by highway users.

The meeting also favored the proposition that highway maintenance and development should be financed as far as possible by highway users.

Eight bills which are now before the Connecticut Legislature and in which Manchester takes a special interest were discussed. These legislative bills were discussed at a meeting of the Connecticut secretaries of chambers of commerce yesterday noon and are as follows:

House Bill 616: Introduced by Judge Raymond A. Johnson. An act concerning the duties of the Bank Commissioner regarding Connecticut Security Fraud laws. It gives Bank Commissioner Shippee jurisdiction with broad powers to examine books, demand accounts, or issue injunctions against anyone operating what he considers to be fraudulent stock or security promotion, or to forbid the operation where he believes there is intent to defraud. The bill carries a penalty of not more than $10,000, or not to exceed ten years in prison, or both.

House Bill 618: Introduced by Judge Raymond A. Johnson in regard to establishing of small claims courts, without the necessity as at present, of securing an act of the Legislature amending the Town or City Charter. It is in effect, a division of the City Court, designed to expedite the settlement of small claims, there being no lawyers, no costs except a nominal fee of $1.00 for registration, no pleadings, written complaints or other formalities. These are already in operation in Hartford and Stamford, Connecticut, and in twenty-three other states in the Union.

House Bill 594: Introduced by Judge Raymond A. Johnson relative to charitable, religious, or philanthropic solicitations. This provides that such solicitations must secure the approval of the State Department of Public Welfare before they can be made.

House Bill 804: Relative to the licensing of collection agencies, providing the posting of $5,000 bond by all agencies organized for the exclusive right of engaging in the collection of accounts.

House Bill 289: Relative to the taxation of forest land. Designed to encourage reforestation by providing that land set aside for the purpose of reforestation shall be subject to tax on the land only, so that the crop shall be exempt until it is cut and marketed.

opportunity to check up on the effect of the reserve board's statement relative to the speculative borrowing situation. If brokers' loans show a further increase, look out for squalls, the first of which may appear in the form of an increase in the discount rate of the New York Reserve Bank.

Monday's sharp rally, in the course of which the speculative favorites won back 3 to 10 points of last week's losses, makes it appear doubtful if the squeezing out of speculative loans by last week's collapse will show up as expected. How much squeezing could be effected in loans on U. S. Steel, for example, when that stock was able to rally from 171 to 177 3/4, after having dropped from 182 last week. The bulls in the Stock Market, of course, may have been able to receive a good supply of money from other sources than the banking houses, and if so they may defy the reserve bank heads.

BISHOP HENDERSON WAS KNOWN LOCALLY

Bishop Theodore S. Henderson, who died in Cincinnati yesterday, after a short illness with bronchial pneumonia, was well known to a number of Manchester people, prominent in the Methodist denomination. He was to have presided at the Southern New England conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Brockton, April 6. He was born in Mentor, N. J., May 24, 1863, and his first pastorate was in Rockville Center, L. I. He was a graduate of Wesleyan University and practically all his pastorate were in the New York East Conference.

Mexico City, Feb. 12.—Harsh measures, including the confiscation of property, will be taken against all subversive religious movements, President Emilio Portes Gil declared today in a formal statement made public over his signature. He also ordered that all Roman Catholic priests in Mexico must register their residence with the authorities within fifteen days.

GARDEN CLUB MEETS AT CHAPMAN HOME

Spring Plant Sale to Be Conducted—To Conduct Best Garden Contest.

Thirty-five members of the Manchester Garden club gathered at the home of Miss Mary and Miss Helen Chapman of Forest street last evening for the regular monthly business meeting. Reports of the officers and routine business was attended to. It was voted to hold another spring plant sale, the committee to have charge and the date of the sale was left to the executive board.

The C. E. Wilson Nursery company has volunteered to co-operate with the Garden club in offering prizes for the best garden, and most neatly kept grounds, in line with a movement of garden clubs and societies throughout the country. The meeting left this matter for the officers of the Garden club to take up with Mr. Wilson and report back at a future meeting.

The Senate passed resolutions upon report of the Judiciary committee as follows: George E. Hammond, judge of Torrington City Court, and Frederick Miles, deputy judge of the same court, and Milton C. Isbell, judge of Ansonia City Court. The Senate then concurred with the House in passing the deficiency appropriation bill, and the bill limiting heights of buildings at the state committee.

The Judiciary committee turned in a favorable report on a bill which would permit suits to be brought in behalf of children injured while being transported to and from school. Formerly such a step was, under the state law, impossible because of the appearance of the words "governmental function" in the act making transportation of school children legal. The new bill eliminates those words.

The incorporations committee returned a favorable report on a bill which would allow the Ballou and Nagle Express Inc. of Meriden, to extend the time for filing its certificate of incorporation.

HOOVER LEAVES BOAT TO MOTOR TO MIAMI

Puntarassa, Fla., Feb. 12.—In rather mysterious fashion, President-Elect Hoover left this little west coast cable station town this morning and headed back for Miami Beach by motor.

He landed from the houseboat Saunterer, which had been anchored off here overnight, at 8:30 this morning, and got immediately into a waiting automobile.

Adding to the oddness and mystery of the departure, Mrs. Hoover and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Riard, of New York, remained behind on the boat.

At midnight last night it was announced the President-Elect had decided to abandon his projected fishing trip in the Gulf of Florida and would return to Miami Beach today. It was then said no decision had been made where along the coast he would disembark from the boat, but assurances were given that word would be passed to the rest of the party, which had been waiting at Fort Myers. The information that Mr. Hoover was putting in here at Puntarassa was received through outside sources, however, early this morning.

Cruellers and coffee were served, and dancing rounded out the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. Louis Grant announces a "poverty social" for Tuesday evening, March 5, changed from Monday evening on account of the town meeting. It is planned also to have a special speaker, and other numbers on the program. People in the community are urged to receive the date.

LINCOLN

One hundred and twenty years ago today there came into the world one destined to become, in the course of historic years, as "the greatest American." Abraham Lincoln's commanding position in the minds and hearts of the people of this country was attained, not through any giant superiority of intellect, certainly not through endowment of physical graces, not through any rare gift of oratorical talent, but from sheer idealism, tenaciously adhered to through thick and thin. Very early in his activities he gave utterances to these words: "I go for all sharing the privileges of the government who assist in bearing its burdens." He lived his whole life and governed his entire political career by that simple creed. Unforgetting adherence to it made him an outstanding figure in the history of his nation.

U. A. C. GRADUATES

Most unusual in the way of social events was the reunion of the "alumni" of the New Jersey State Reformatory at Rahway, on Sunday. They referred to themselves whimsically as graduates of "The University of Another Chance." About two hundred former prisoners at the institution attended, most of them coming in their own cars, some attended by wives and children. One of them is head of a trust company and president of the Board of Education in a large New Jersey city. Another is installing burglar alarms in banks. All of the two hundred had made good, of course. And of course there are a great many hundreds who never did make good, as well as plenty who did but for one reason or another did not attend the reunion.

THE STEWART CASE

The struggle of J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., and others to get Col. R. W. Stewart out of the presidency of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana is attracting the attention of a great many people who cannot, at the same time, remember just what the row is all about.

Briefly, Rockefeller accuses Stewart, by inference, with having swindled the stockholders of his own company by grabbing off a lump of profit out of the company's business for himself and two or three other persons by the intrusion of a phantom trading company between the Standard and a couple of producing companies.

WASTED MILLIONS

It is to be hoped that the fifteen cruisers to be built under the bill just passed by Congress will turn out to be better value for the money than the two great airplane carriers only a little while ago put into service. These great ships cost an unbelievable amount of money—some forty million dollars—and now it is announced that the Navy Department is going to withdraw them from service. One story is that they are to be relieved of much of their armor because at the speed at which they are capable of traveling they are inclined to "dig under." Another is that they have proven so expensive to operate that they bid fair to use up the whole navy appropriation. We shall un-

York bank—it was sold to the Standard and Sinclair Companies at $1.75, the Continental taking down a profit of 25 cents a barrel without having put up a cent or rendered any but a perfectly unnecessary brokerage service. This went on till more than three million dollars of profit had been taken by the Continental. Then, under direction of Stewart and Sinclair the Standard and Sinclair companies purchased the Continental's contracts with Humphrey for four million dollars, wound up its affairs and went out of business. All it had ever done was to take between seven and eight million dollars out of the regular businesses of the bona fide oil trading concerns and turn it over to its organizers, principally Stewart and Sinclair. Its method of distributing its profits was to have the New York bank, its fiscal agent, buy government bonds and distribute them as per directions.

All this, as will be seen, was a far less involved process than it seemed to be at the time of the Senate inquiries and the perjury trial of Stewart. Of course there are numerous side issues, but those who read about the case between now and the time of the annual meeting of Indiana Standard next month will be able to understand the situation better if they will keep these salient elements of the case in mind.

Most of the accusations made by Mr. Rockefeller have been established as facts of record. Stewart has made some efforts to establish purity of motives, misunderstanding, etc., but the salient fact is beyond dispute that the stockholders of the Standard of Indiana and the Sinclair companies involved took a gyping. It is on the basis of this gyping, and not on moral grounds having to do with either defiance of the United States government or perjury, that Rockefeller seeks to put Stewart out of his job.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

NO STARCH IN TURNIPS.

The turnip, a vegetable of the mustard family, originating in southern Asia, was carried to Greece and cultivated since the earliest days of history. It is now grown in practically every temperate climate throughout the world. The carbohydrates of turnips are made up of glucose, saccharin, pectose, pentosans and cellulose. Since the turnip contains no starch, it may be combined with any other food. Some people, however, find that turnips produce flatulence. This is probably from the irritation of a sulphur compound similar to that found in cabbage, mustard and onion. If cooked in the vessel without a lid, some of this sulphur compound escapes and the turnip becomes mild in flavor.

During the middle ages in Europe, the turnip was the poor man's vegetable, since it was readily grown and easily stored. Unknown to the peasants who partook of the turnip it balanced their diets by providing the anti-scorbutic and alkaline forming elements. In this way counteracting, to some extent, a diet which would otherwise have been too rich in meats and cereals.

The mineral matter consists principally of potassium and magnesium. The turnip tops, too, may be used, and provide a good green that is purifying to the blood and helpful to the complexion.

There are two principal varieties, both wholesome; the white tender turnip and the hard, yellow rutabaga strain. The weight may range from that of an orange to over forty pounds, the larger varieties, in fact, at one time being used to fashion Jack O'Lanterns just as the pumpkin is at present. Here are a few recipes for preparing turnips, which you will find interesting:

Mashed Turnips.
 Clean a bunch of moderately sized turnips. It is not necessary to peel them, although the root tips and stalk should be removed. Cover with boiling water and cook for about three-quarters of an hour. If cooked this length of time, the flavor will be milder than otherwise. Drain them and use the juice for a soup. Mash the turnips well and press through a colander. Stir in two tablespoonful of butter and enough salt to season. This wholesale expenditure of the nation's money on warships would be bad enough if there were any reasonable expectation that the ships would prove to be some good. At this stage of the game we are throwing millions into sheer experimentation or else into proven relics of a departed day.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

NO STARCH IN TURNIPS.

The turnip, a vegetable of the mustard family, originating in southern Asia, was carried to Greece and cultivated since the earliest days of history. It is now grown in practically every temperate climate throughout the world. The carbohydrates of turnips are made up of glucose, saccharin, pectose, pentosans and cellulose. Since the turnip contains no starch, it may be combined with any other food. Some people, however, find that turnips produce flatulence. This is probably from the irritation of a sulphur compound similar to that found in cabbage, mustard and onion. If cooked in the vessel without a lid, some of this sulphur compound escapes and the turnip becomes mild in flavor.

During the middle ages in Europe, the turnip was the poor man's vegetable, since it was readily grown and easily stored. Unknown to the peasants who partook of the turnip it balanced their diets by providing the anti-scorbutic and alkaline forming elements. In this way counteracting, to some extent, a diet which would otherwise have been too rich in meats and cereals.

The mineral matter consists principally of potassium and magnesium. The turnip tops, too, may be used, and provide a good green that is purifying to the blood and helpful to the complexion.

There are two principal varieties, both wholesome; the white tender turnip and the hard, yellow rutabaga strain. The weight may range from that of an orange to over forty pounds, the larger varieties, in fact, at one time being used to fashion Jack O'Lanterns just as the pumpkin is at present. Here are a few recipes for preparing turnips, which you will find interesting:

Mashed Turnips.
 Clean a bunch of moderately sized turnips. It is not necessary to peel them, although the root tips and stalk should be removed. Cover with boiling water and cook for about three-quarters of an hour. If cooked this length of time, the flavor will be milder than otherwise. Drain them and use the juice for a soup. Mash the turnips well and press through a colander. Stir in two tablespoonful of butter and enough salt to season. If desired, the turnips may be mixed with an equal quantity of mashed potatoes, placed in a baking pan baked until golden brown on top.

Stewed Turnips.
 Wash a medium sized bunch of turnips and cut them into small pieces. Cook in milk until tender, then pour off the liquid and mix with it the yolk of one egg, one tablespoonful of butter and a little salt. Stir this mixture constantly while boiling down one minute and pour it over the turnips before serving.

Turnip and Split Pea Soup.
 Soak split peas over night and in the morning boil over a slow fire until tender. Add the finely chopped tops and roots of several turnips. Boil until the latter are tender, season with salt and serve with a lump of butter in each bowl, with Melba toast croutons.

WASHINGTON LETTER
 BY RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Congress again is investigating the Federal government's treatment of the Indians.

F preliminary evidence indicates the probability that a major scandal may be uncovered.

It has not attracted much public attention, partly because the business of robbing and mistreating the Indians is an old story and repeatedly because there are few palaces who care. But from time to time indisputable evidence has been produced that many Indians were being subjected to what, in view of the treatment they were theoretically supposed to receive, might fairly be described as atrocities.

John Collier, executive secretary of the American Indian Defense Association, has recently called the story an "agonizing tragedy," asserting that with some exceptions general conditions among the Indians were "marked by colossal loot and incidental race massacres induced by a homicidal indifference and ineffectualness from those charged with their care."

It developed at the Senate committee's current Indian investigation that only the interposition of Secretary of the Interior Work and Attorney General Sargent kept Department of Justice prosecutors from seeking an indictment against Burke, commissioner of Indian Affairs, for his part in the famous Jackson Barnett case. Proposed action against Burke was called off in July and nothing was done about it until the first of this year. Following public testimony as to what happened, the case has been placed in other hands within the Justice Department and whether any more will be heard of it remains to be seen.

Burke has always received complete support from Secretary Work.

It's just possible Mars may have been trying to get in touch with the earth and tuned in on one of those tenors who wants to show everybody he can hold a high falsetto note for ten minutes.

from a host of individual horrible examples the general phases of the story include an almost systematic looting of Indian property, physical barbarities and mantrition inflicted upon Indian children and encouragement of conditions under which 70,000 of the nation's 350,000 Indian wards are said to suffer from trachoma and more than 50,000 from tuberculosis.

Senator Pine of Oklahoma has been especially active on behalf of the Indians since the first phase of the committee's investigation.

Pine points to Burke's recent annual report, in which one reads that "it is felt progress is being made" in fighting trachoma, tuberculosis and children diseases.

"Either they don't know anything about the health of the Indians or they haven't wanted to show the figures," Pine says. "They say from data thus far received indications point to a decrease in the number of cases of trachoma and that the factors having to do with tuberculosis are so many and complicated that nothing can be determined regarding the facts of increase or decrease of the disease."

What kind of a report is that? Pine thinks the present investigation will result in a clean-up by Congress. It will be up to Congress to continue the investigation, by further appropriation before March 4.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 12.—Manhattan snapshots: Subway strap-hanger absorbed in book on bee farming. . . . And a checker game under way in a barber shop, even as in Sorghum flats. . . . A last-year baseball scoreboard seems to me the height of something or other. . . . Perhaps futility.

The sandwich man who wheels about a baby. . . . And thus attracts plenty of attention. . . . They tell me he rents a different baby every day. . . . But you know how "they" talk. . . . Raymond Hitchcock, the comic, exchanging eyes with the hat check boy in the Algonquin. . . . The hat boy, by the way, is a future artist, holding his job to make a living while. . . . Many of the hotel paintings were done by this lad. . . . The pretty girl at the same club stand writes quite well and is always engaged in the classics.

What a world!

Wonder what happened to the sandwich man who used to roam Broadway on stilts and sit down atop a lunchbox for rest. . . . For years I waited to see a taxi start off with him, in the film comedies. . . . But it never did. . . . Somehow, I always wanted him to wind up in a romance with a stenographer and carry on his courtship through a second-story window. . . . But he never did. . . . He probably went back to Bridgeport, Conn., from whence, I was told, he came. . . . They say Peaches Browning made more than a quarter of a million out of her stage exhibits.

The editor of one of those "art" magazine groups which prints pictures of naked young women, is an attractive young wife who told me she took the job to get money "for a vine-covered cottage in the country, where I can have lots of babies." . . . Which should provide sufficient irony for one day.

Along Fourteenth street, which is one of the most conglomerate thoroughfares linking the East Side with the West, have grown a healthy and expanding group of department stores.

They are quite unlike any other stores in town, in many respects and their trade is drawn from the peoples of every land, thousands of whom have never learned to speak English. Employees belong to a dozen nationalities and are called in as interpreters upon occasions.

There is a certain store in this district where no salesgirls are retained. A customer picks an article from a rack which carries the price. The store stands ready to take back the garment if the sale tag and price are intact. Furthermore, if two shoppers get together over the back fence and find that one purchased a garment for less money than the other, a refund will be given. One store advertised a sale and the police and fire departments had to be called. The street was roped off for hours.

EXPEDITION STARTS FOR "DREAM ISLAND"

Boston, Mass., Feb. 12.—Headed for a "dream island" somewhere off in the Pacific, the famous Arctic exploration ship Peary, slipped gently out of the harbor today on first leg of the journey which will take the vessel to Mexico. It was the second expedition in search of the imagined island.

The journey was the realization of a "dream" of M. F. Bramley, wealthy paving block contractor of Cleveland, who has spent thousands of dollars in outfitting the craft for the fulfillment of the story told him in a dream.

As Bramley explained his vision, it came in the form of a sunken reef in the Pacific off the coast of Mexico. Much time was spent in cruising about in search for the island without success. Finally an airplane was brought into use, and a sunken reef was found.

The first stop of the Peary, which is commanded by Captain Charles V. Griffin, will be made at New York where Mrs. Bramley will disembark.

Aboard the refitted vessel were a corps of engineers who will conduct experiments into the feasibility of filling in the island for in that instance, it was explained, the island would not belong to any country, but to the discoverer.

It's the anilines in Diamond Dyes that do the work; that give the colors such brilliance; such depth and permanence. It's real aniline that keeps them from giving things that dyed look; from spotting or streaking.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. Then compare results. See how soft, bright, new-looking the colors are. Observe how they keep their brilliance. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

"When friends ask me what I do to make my hair so soft and gleamy," says Miss Hargrave, "I have to think twice to tell them, because I give so little time to it. The method I use is very popular among New York girls. I just put a little Danderine on my brush each time I use it. I am letting my hair grow; but you'd never know it. Danderine keeps it so soft and easy to arrange and holds it in place so wonderfully. It gives my hair such a silky, soft and lustrous appearance, friends are always commenting on it. There isn't a trace of dandruff left now that I'm using Danderine regularly. And it keeps my hair and scalp so clean and comfortable that I don't shampoo half as often as I used to."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair, brings out its natural color, gives it more lustre than brillianine. It makes the hair easy to dress; keeps it in place. It usually checks dandruff. It isn't oily; doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles. A delicately fragrances necessity for the well-groomed girl!

THIS HAS HAPPENED

When RUTH LESTER, secretary, goes to the office on a Monday morning in January, she finds the dead body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, sprawled on the floor beneath the window of his private office. Ruth is engaged to JACK HAYWARD, whose office is just across the narrow shaft from Borden's.

Ruth recalls that Jack had threatened Borden. She also recalls that when she met Jack at noon Saturday with a bruised lip he believed Borden had hurt her though she insisted he was wrong.

Ruth runs to Jack's private office and, finding him out, searches for his pistol which he had purchased at the same time he bought an identical weapon for her to keep in her desk. His gun is gone!

McMANN, a detective, questions Ruth. She confesses her engagement to Jack and tells him of Borden's two Saturday morning visitors: RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was planning a week-end trip; and MRS. BORDEN, his wife and mother of his two children, who called for her monthly alimony.

Mrs. Borden came into the office during the questioning and McMANN mercilessly accuses her of the murder. "He insists she left Borden alive and that the only person she saw near his office was MINNIE CASSIDY, scrub woman."

McMANN, medical examiner, arrives. When search is started for the weapon that might have been used, Ruth tells of the pistol in her desk. McMANN goes to get it. It is gone, too!

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Detective McMANN's eyes were like glinting bits of steel as he turned on Ruth. They did not miss the fact that her little hands were locked tightly together, her eyes fixed in a wide, unwinking stare of horror—upon Elizabeth Borden.

"When did you last see your automatic, Miss Lester? Come now—the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth! Colby Lester's daughter should be familiar with that phrase, and know that the truth is always the best policy."

Ruth nodded weakly, and moistened her lips. "I—saw it Saturday morning, when I opened the bottom drawer to get a new carton of paper cups. It was there then, lying on top of those clean towels. I—never saw it again, Mr. McMANN. I never touched it. It frightened me even to look at it."

"Who else knew you kept a gun in that drawer?"

Ruth silently prayed that Mrs. Borden would forgive her. "A number of people. I can't remember all of them at the moment, but Benny, the office boy, of course, and Mr. Borden, and—Mrs. Borden—"

"Ah! So Mrs. Borden knew!" McMANN interrupted triumphantly. "And how did Mrs. Borden know you kept a gun there? Did she ask you?"

"She—saw it there," Ruth said faintly, reaching out dizzily for the desk. A low exclamation, that might have been either from fear or startled realization, had broken from Mrs. Borden's ashen lips.

"When?" McMANN barked.

"Saturday morning," Ruth admitted in a low, trembling voice. "I pulled out the drawer to get the paper cups and Mrs. Borden, who was sitting at my desk, helped me with the drawer because it stuck—and—I explained how I happened to have a gun—about the hold-ups in the building, you know."

"And why was Mrs. Borden sitting at your desk?" McMANN caught her up relentlessly. "You'd made her sit down because she was feeling faint, hadn't you? And you were after a cup to give her a drink, weren't you?"

Ruth stared her amazement at his accurate deduction. "Mrs. Borden did not look—well, so I thought—"

"Look here, Miss Lester," McMANN interrupted her stumbling speech. "This is murder, you know, and someone committed the murder, and I'm here to find out who did it. If you're trying to shield Mrs. Borden—"

"I'm grateful," Mrs. Borden, who had risen and was holding to her chair, finished his sentence for him. "And I don't want you to buy this child. It is true: I did see the weapon. I was feeling sick and faint because I heard a woman and my husband laughing loudly together."

"You admit that?" McMANN demanded. "I guess we're about through here, doctor," he called to the medical examiner, who was still in the private office with the corpse.

"Wait, Mr. McMANN!" Mrs. Borden commanded, and Ruth admired the calm courage which had come to Harry Borden's widow. "I have made no confession, and will make none, for I did not kill my husband. I have merely relieved Miss Lester of a painful duty—that of telling what happened between her and myself Saturday morning."

"I admit that I was hurt—jealous, if you will—because my husband was so evidently finding happiness with another woman. But for many years he has given me cause to be jealous, and I have borne it uncomplainingly for the sake of my children."

McMANN nodded, his lips twisting in a brief, cruel smile. "But on Saturday you reached the end of your rope, didn't you, Mrs. Borden? You quarreled with him about this other woman, after he had given you your check—"

"I did not," Mrs. Borden interrupted firmly. "We parted amicably as usual, and my husband was alive. I did not even remember that Miss Lester had a pistol in her desk. My husband gave me no cause to remember, and I was thinking only of getting back to the Chester Hotel, where I had left my children."

Again McMANN grinned, but he suddenly switched his glinting, hard eyes upon Ruth again. "Did Borden buy the automatic and instruct you to use it on bandits, Miss Lester?"

"No," Ruth breathed the word, rather than spoke it.

"I bought the gun for Miss Lester, Mr. McMANN," Jack Hayward spoke up. "As I told you we were engaged to be married. I bought the automatic several weeks ago, after there had been two hold-ups in the building, but she was afraid to learn to shoot it."

McMANN scowled at the young man, thought deeply for a moment, then pounced upon Ruth again. "If you were so afraid of the gun, Miss Lester, how did it happen that so many people knew you had it?"

"This memory of past humiliations painted Ruth's cheeks scarlet. "Mr. Borden made me get it out sometimes and show people that we were armed," she faltered.

"It amused him to see how frightened of the gun I was. Several of the stock salesmen were in his office one afternoon, and he made me bring it in—and—pretend I was a bandit."

"Swell sense of humor!" McMANN commented. "You weren't so crazy about your boss, were you, Miss Lester?"

Ruth stared at the detective with frightened blue eyes. "I—he was nearly always a considerate employer. I had no cause at all for complaint, until the day of his death." She could have bitten her tongue after she had again uttered that phrase of double meanings, but apparently it had made no impression upon McMANN, or he had accepted it at its face value.

"You seem pretty sure that Borden died on Saturday, Miss Lester," the detective commented.

"Let me see what the medical examiner has to say. He must be able to give some sort of report by now—"

"Oh, doctor!"

Dr. Nielson appeared in the doorway between the two offices, his pale eyes blinking mildly behind his thick-lensed spectacles.

"When was Borden killed, doctor?" Of course I know you can't say to the minute or even the hour, before you perform the autopsy, but it would help me in my work if you could tell me approximately when death took place."

The doctor cocked his thin-haired head and smiled quizzically. "You have so little regard for the niceties of science, McMANN. It is truly deplorable. But, oh, and on condition that you shall not hold me to this opinion or make a hasty arrest based upon it, I shall say to you now that the deceased has been dead between 41 and 45 hours. I draw my conclusions from—"

McMANN waved away the medical explanation. "So he was killed after one o'clock Saturday, eh? Let me know later, doc, if you can fix the time more accurately. Of course we may have a dozen witnesses among the employes and tenants of the building as to when the shot was fired. And say, doc, phone me as soon as you extract the bullet, won't you? I'll bet you a hundred it's a .38 caliber, if you're in a betting frame of mind."

"Not this morning," the doctor repudiated the offer dryly. "Now, if I may, I'll phone the morgue to send for the body."

"Where the devil is Covey?" McMANN began to fume, but before he knew later, doc, if you can fix the time more accurately. Rather vivid tones on a dark background in silk crepe is the most practical daytime frock, as sketched in Style No. 459, with unusually graceful and dignified lines. The new neckline adds interest, collarless of course, with decorative tucks across shoulders and inset vestee of plain silk crepe. The plain silk crepe appears again in fine pleating of dart-fitted sleeve, and edge rever of bodice, cleverly designed falling in jabot effect, and to trim wrap-around front flare of skirt. Its slenderizing lines make it so suitable for the larger woman. It is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Lustrous black silk crepe satin, navy blue crepe, plain dull silk crepe in almond green, cocoa shade in canton flannel crepe de chine and bright orange-red crepe de chine smart for its development. Pattern price 15 cents in straps or coin (coin is preferred.) Wrap coin carefully.

"All right, boys. Come on in," McMANN invited. "I'm not going to arrest you—et. He added with gim humo, as the boys continued to hug the wall. "Guess this room's getting a little crowded. I'll take you boys into the private office and treat you to a sight you'll never forget."

Micky Moran and Otto Pfleger, whom Ruth recognized as the silent, tow-headed boy who ran the car nearest Jack Hayward's office, stumbled nervously across the outer office in the wake of the detective. Covey, chuckling, indicated by pantomime that the boys had no idea what had happened.

Micky did not close the communicating door behind him, and the young lovers dared take their places within it. McMANN, seated at Borden's desk, glanced up, but did not object. Possibly, Ruth thought, he wanted to observe their faces as the elevator operators told their stories.

"Which of you runs the elevator just across the hall?" McMANN demanded. "You? All right," said Micky Moran stepped toward the desk. "My eyes turned backward to that awful, huddled thing on the floor. "Henry P. Borden was murdered Saturday afternoon, and undoubtedly, or rather, in all probability, his murderer—or murderers—rode up and down your elevator, my lad. What's your name?"

"Michael Dennis Moran," Micky answered automatically. "Geese! Murdered! Do I have to stay in here, boss? Honest—ow!"

"What the devil—!" McMANN sprang to his feet, as the boy's howl of fear followed upon the eerie scound.

Ruth enlightened him, her eyes upon the black pigeon which was flying about the air shaft window, as if seeking admission. "It's just a pigeon, Mr. McMANN. Sometimes they fly into the glass, thinking the window is open."

As she spoke, McMANN strode to the window and peered out interestedly, just as the black pigeon settled upon the white stone ledge and began to strut up and down, pecking at something.

"Lord! And I nearly missed it!" McMANN shouted. "Here, Ferber! Look! Have you photographed this? Can you open it then—Has Nielson gone? Hey, doctor!"

A minute later Ruth, in a jittery lurch flash through the darkness of horror and fear, rechristened the black pigeon. She would never again call him "Satan." His true name was Noctuid.

Can Mrs. Brown ever forget the look her daughter gave her the day the shoe bill came without her silver slippers, charged on it, and she had cried happily, "That's rich! It will buy us a couple of theater tickets, Ed."

And there is Mrs. Smith who fairly chuckles at the cream at the table every day, which she marks about people who were supposed to be her friends. Suddenly, out of a clear sky one day, or rather out of Junior's mouth, came these words: "Don't you like anybody, Mother?"

A certain man and his wife had a habit of discussing the night before party at the dinner table. Mrs. Adams would tease Mr. Adams out a beautiful blonde and Mr. Adams would come back with the number of dances Mrs. Adams had had with one Tom, or Dick, or Harry. Then she would refer to her husband's memory as blotto and therefore not dependable on the night preceding, as he had had so many cocktails and so many highballs to her certain knowledge.

The Lesson They Learned

They stopped this form of warmed-over discussion for good one day when ten-year-old Betty burst into tears and ran upstairs, sobbing her heart out.

Another dinner-table derby takes place at the Joneses nightly when Mr. Jones accuses his wife of extravagance and she jumps all over him for being too lazy and too dumb to make a decent living for her and the children. It usually winds up with talk about divorce.

The children sit there big-eyed and silent. There are meals when they scarcely touch a bite. The family doctor is getting ready to speak a little piece to these parents, for their quarreling obviously is making the children unhappy and ill.

And so it goes on—there are a thousand things that parents do that distress their children very much.

HOW TO HOLD HIM

A 35-year-old school teacher of some little town in Georgia disappeared a few days ago with a 17-year-old boy pupil. They say that she drew all her back salary, borrowed some more money, giving the farm on which she lived with her husband and small son as security, and disappeared with the boy pupil in the family auto. Parents of the boy have sworn out a warrant, charging kidnaping.

Dismissing the story as the outbreak of a neurotic, as it probably is, is not enough. There are too many similar tales of emotionally starved women running off with a school boy or the village parson. What is the world of mental science doing for them?

THE KITCHEN

With more work done in the American kitchen each day than in offices, factories, stores, or any other place of business, this same American kitchen has benefited by none of the industrial progress which has simplified man's labor.

This charge is made by one Hildegard Kneland of the Department of Agriculture who has just completed a survey of the nation's kitchens. She puts the blame squarely on the house builder who, she says, is quite content if the kitchen has a nice white sink and a modern color scheme of apple green and cream.

MAN FROM FEAR OF DISEASE

This is the first of a series of seven articles on "The Human Body and Its Care." The series, in pamphlet form, can be obtained from the American Library Association, 68 East Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

One of the most striking phenomena of the twentieth century has been the rise of interest in health. The philosophers of mankind have for 20 centuries written epigrams, aphorisms and proverbs indicating with absolute unanimity their well settled conclusion that health is the most important factor for happiness in human existence.

Only recently has man begun to take the necessary steps to secure that highly desirable attribute for all mankind. Indeed, in his survey Our Times, Mark Sullivan considers the work of preventive medicine the greatest of all the accomplishments of man, since it has freed human beings from the fear of disease.

The Example of Panama

The pest hole that was Panama has today a death rate lower than that of most of the states in our own country.

Hundreds of years ago the person without the scars of smallpox on his face was the exceptional person in the community. Today the one who carries such scars is a monument to the stupidity of his parents, because vaccination against smallpox prevents this disease.

If Chicago had a death rate for typhoid fever today similar to the one it had in 1895, there would have been 60,000 cases of typhoid fever in Chicago instead of less than 200, which was the record for the city during 1928. Such diseases have been controlled through the application of community hygiene on a large scale, through the control of sewage disposal, water supply, milk supply, and the sanitation of food. Such community sanitation problems differ, however, from those that concern the individual himself.

Know Thy Body

Obviously it is impossible for anyone to take proper care of his body without some knowledge of the manner of its construction and the nature of its function.

The human body is a combination of cells bound together in vast systems, including the muscles, the bones, the circulation of the blood, the nervous system and the digestive tract. These interlocking cogs of the human machine are controlled by the mind or brain to a considerable extent, but many of the functions are automatic.

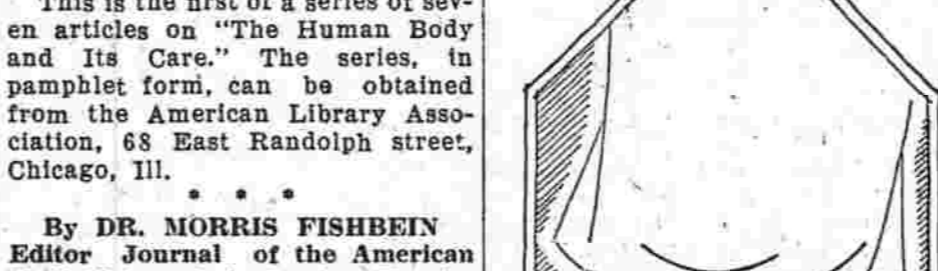

New Scientific Evidence

Within quite recent years scientific evidence has been developed which indicates that an interlocking chain of glands which pour their secretions directly into the blood—the glands of internal secretion—act also as regulators of what might be called the automatic system, including the blood pressure, the heart beat, breathing, and the dilating and contracting of the blood vessels.

Careful consideration reveals moreover that the entire works will get along satisfactorily if left largely alone, particularly since there is within the cells the power of repair—an ability that does not

Out of sight, out of mind," is a true saying. The fact that we can't see what's happening inside our children's bodies is the reason so many of us allow them to go on suffering from constipation until they are full of the poisons from decaying waste and they're bilious, headachy, sallow and weak, with no appetite or energy. Watch your baby or child, Mother, and at the first sign of coated tongue, bad breath or feverishness, give him a little California Fig Syrup. This rich, fruity product gently expels all the souring waste, gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels, so they continue to act normally; stimulates the circulation; tones and nourishes the entire system.

Its sales record of over four million bottles a year and the enthusiastic praise of women everywhere, prove mothers depend on it today as they have for more than fifty years. A Hartford mother, Mrs. Clayton Field, 69 Rowe Ave., Hartford, says: "I used to take California Fig Syrup, so when my little girl began to suffer with constipation I started her on it. It stopped her trouble quickly and made her look ever so much better. I kept using it with her for a few weeks and it made a different girl out of her. She has grown so well and strong and is never sick any more."

See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California," so you won't be imposed on by imitations.

YOUTH LIES IN LOOSE BODIES

Limber Joints Spell Energy. Relaxed Nerves Bring Grace

By LOUISE GIFFORD

Limber up, if you would stay young.

There is youth in loose joints. She who would preserve that fluid quality of grace that defies the years must limber up and stay that way.

If your joints are loose, your back and shoulders will find it hard to stiffen up. Loose joints make for poise and grace. They from any out-of-tune muscle. Every woman can know the joy of perfect body co-ordination, if she will only learn how to limber up.

Exercise

The aim of these exercises is to get the body as relaxed as a scare-crow flopping in the wind.

First, take hold of your left wrist with your right hand and shake the left hand energetically. It will flop around like a garment on a clothesline blown in the breeze. Next, noting how loosely the hand can be shaken, try shaking the elbow, then the shoulder on the same side. Then begin on the right wrist, holding it with the left hand, and shake it until it tingles. Shake elbow and whole arms from the shoulders until they both feel loose.

Then, standing on one foot, shake the other foot, then the knee, and then the whole leg from the hip. Repeat on the other side. As you practice shaking, the natural looseness of the joints will come back.

When all your joints are loosened, try shaking yourself all over, as a chicken does after it has taken a sun bath, or animals do after a nap. Let your head drop forward, your arms hang lax, your knees sag and just throw your relaxed arms this way and that until your whole body is shaken up.

These exercises should be practiced without strain or hurry and never to the point of fatigue.

MOTHERS ARE LEARNING USES OF MAGNESIA

From the beginning of expectancy until baby is weaned, that's the time Phillips Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many women.

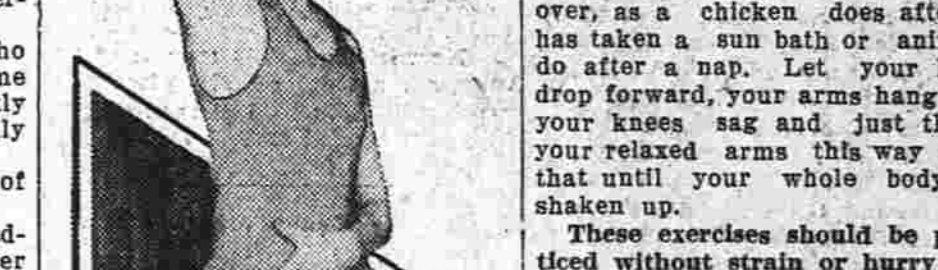

It relieves the expectant mother's nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness," inclination to vomit, helps her digestion, its mild but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding. A teaspoonful of it does the work of a half pint of lime water. It is a mild laxative; harmless, almost tasteless.

All drug stores have Phillips Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

FREE: to young mothers and prospective mothers; "Useful Information," an invaluable little book on the health of mother and child. Write the Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent absolutely free of charge.

The average figure slouches, leaving "room" between ribs and hips. The exercise: Raise one arm upward, measuring with a hand the distance between ribs and hips, and holding that distance as the arm is lowered.

mean that there is room between the spaces in your joints for relaxation of nerves. There is no resistance from knotted nerves and, hence, every spot in your body is alive. With no nerve tension, circulation is more nearly perfect and the whole body tingles with life and energy.

Old bodies are brittle. Their stiffened joints are awkward. There is no co-ordination in the body.

Perfect co-ordination that makes for fine grace comes only when joints are utterly limbered, when every nerve is perfectly relaxed and when there is no resistance

Murphy Wins First Leg Of Kebart Match By 12

Howard Murphy won the first leg of his twenty game home and home bowling match with Charlie Kebart last night at Conran's alleys by the narrow margin of twelve pins. The final ten games will be rolled tomorrow night at Murphy's alleys.

Last night's match was one of the closest and best bowled ever seen in Manchester. Both men averaged over 120, in fact, Murphy came within two pins of a 124 average. Recently, it will be remembered that Murphy averaged 123.8 against Curtis to overcome a great lead. Last night he was only one pin under that average.

In Kebart's match he won but three games. Kebart kept close on the heels of the town champ and averaged 122.6. In addition he made the high single of the evening, a score of 151 in the eighth game. Kebart started auspiciously, to say the least, making a double strike with the first two balls he threw down the alley.

A large crowd watched the match, most of whom were north end supporters. They went wild with delight when Kebart took a lead of 30 pins in the first game. Although Murphy sliced an even twenty off this lead in the second game, he did not overtake Kebart until the fourth game.

In this frame, Murphy hit 115 compared to a measly 90 for Kebart. The latter was the lowest score of the match. In the seventh game, Kebart missed a grand opportunity to go into the lead. Murphy rolled 99 in this game but Kebart also fell below the century mark, hitting only 96. His 151 followed and placed him but five pins behind his opponent. The south ender took the next two games by two and seven pin margins and this gave him his 12-pin lead.

In the following standing the first column tells the strikes and the second and third which are joined by hyphens indicates the number of spares made out of the number of spare breaks in each game.

The Nut Cracker

Gus Sonnenberg, the new grasping champion, says the wrestling racket needs new faces. New faces, and a few new ears, too.

THE OLD EARS, WHERE WRESTLERS HAVE THEM, DON'T LOOK SO GOOD DURING A MATCH THE PACHIDERMIS HAVE BEEN KNOWN TO HEAR ONE ANOTHER PERFECTLY. THUS:

- "I'll toss you tonight."
- "Frothingham, and next week in Omaha you toss me."
- "Then we'll go to Chicago."

Gus says there's a great chance for college men in the sport. With all their necking experience there should be.

Speaking about the need for new faces, Strangler Lewis thought he was going to need a new stomach after Gus had butted him out of the arena in their Boston match.

JUMBLED ADVICE IN ENGLISH FOR HERR SCHMELING

German Heavy Can't Afford to Imitate Dempsey Too Closely.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, Feb. 12.—By way of proving his progressive spirit, it is said that the Herr Schmeling is learning to speak English and I'm sure that will be all right, just as sure as he doesn't go too far and learn to read it. That, under the current circumstances, would be almost fatal.

In addition to the slathers of high pressure publicity the newspapers have been giving him—a pressionalist of heads—they apparently have decided to be really big hearted about their philanthropy. They are now giving him advice.

If Herr Schmeling accepts more than six and seven-eighths of this, he will go into his next fight slugging like Dempsey, boxing like Corbett and smothering leads, a la Stribling.

The boys have decided that there must be something the matter with Herr Schmeling and, each according to his lights, has attempted to furnish the answer.

In consequence, no fighter in the history of mankind has called forth such an array of conflicting diagnoses. It doesn't seem possible that the doctors could have been looking at the same patient—the night he prostrated Risko.

One of them wants him to go in there swinging and never stop. He wants The Max to forget those pictures he saw of Dempsey in the second Tunney fight, he calls these a "crude joke on Schmeling," he claims, rightfully enough, they do not represent Dempsey at his best. Obviously, what this man wants The Max to do is get his brains knocked out, although of course he doesn't realize this.

Dempsey was one of the few fighters in history who could afford to go in there slugging all the way. He could afford to do this because he could slug as no other fighter could. He could "take it." Most fighters have to protect themselves at all times and The Max is one of these. If he didn't land the first punch, there might be no other.

A second examination prescribes a cessation of the Max's weaving tactics, claiming that these do him no good with marked effect. I should say that this critic has missed an important point, to wit, that the admission being general that the young man is none too fast upon his pedics, he needs this weaving as a synthetic form of defense.

Tom Gibbons wasn't a "leg man," either, but Thomas overcame this liability with his head slipping and grabbing. The Max tries something of the same thing and, while he equals Gibbons neither in this respect nor in the latter's facility for being in a punching position at all times, he at least has something that Thomas never really had: The punch.

In any case, it would seem that if the German discards his weave, he will not be asking for a clip on the chin. He will be demanding it.

Other complaints concentrate mostly upon The Max's ineptitude at "inside fighting," and these arguments, of course, are well taken. He could learn something of this game without hurting his act in the slightest. The lad, who claim he is not any tougher than a female impersonator, or something, are being a bit extravagant, of course. But they have mustered a fair argument for themselves, too. This is not a fool-proof fighter. But who is?

OUT OF THE PAST

One of the last important fights signed to the accompaniment of popping champagne corks was the Jess Willard-Frank Moran match in 1915 which brought Tex Rickard back in the fight promotion game and gave him his dream of New York. The articles were signed in Considine's famous cafe at 42nd street and Broadway, New York.

On the extreme right of the picture is Tex Rickard, who wasn't flush in those days and who got his backing for the fight from Sam Marburger, general manager of Barnum and Bailey's circus. Next to Rickard is Bob Vernon, the big wine man, and on his right is Ike Dorgan, Moran's manager. On Dorgan's right is McCracken, the "angel" of the fight, and next in line is Tom Jones, Willard's manager.

On the extreme left is Sam Marburger, manager of Jack Dillon,

It's A Great Idea In Baseball But It Won't Work, Says Walsh

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Feb. 12.—In all due gravity, a New York critic of some national reputation has sponsored an idea whereby interest in baseball is to be inspired by having the champions of the International League and the American Association change places with two tallenders in the majors at the start of each season. The proposed change would effect "places" and not "identities." In other words, if this scheme was in operation to-day, Boston and Philadelphia automatically would become minor league clubs for the 1929 season, while Indianapolis and Rochester would move up to the big time.

The sponsor admits that the scheme sounds radical and visionary. He is wrong. It sounds insane. I do not make this statement because of any false allusions about Class AA cities. Quite a few of them have major league populations and major league tendencies in Philadelphia permanently. But the American Association couldn't extend its limits all the way to Philadelphia and, as for reaching up into New England to Boston, that would be preposterous, no less.

Even the International League wouldn't care to go that far with one of its franchises. So, geographically, the plan is impractical on the face of it.

I am not a fraction of a mathematician and statistical possibilities usually have me absolutely nonplussed. But, offhand, I would say that, in a comparative few years, it might be possible to have half of the Class AA franchises in the majors.

Work This Out.

Suppose, the Phillies go down to the International to make room for Rochester. Suppose Rochester doesn't finish last in the National and the Phillies don't finish first in the International. In that case, we would have two Class AA cities in the National league the following season. Then, if the Phils again fall in the International—and remember that their Class AA receipts in Philadelphia wouldn't give them much chance to buy anew—and if Rochester and the other AA club kept out of last place in the big league, that league would find itself with three Class AA clubs, the following season. Even if it didn't, the interchanging of relationship each year would bring virtual chaos.

Finally, what of the young stars who would find themselves pushed back to the minors through no fault of their own? Good first year men on bad last place teams this year include Hurst, Klein, Whitney and Bid Ed Morris. Do they belong in the minors? No. Would they go? Yes. Would this be fair to them? No.

Obviously, the man who thought this up must have had his mind on badminton, the good old army game.

Might Be Diverting.

I do not make any statement, either, because of some notion the fans wouldn't be highly diverted by the arrangement or that the pennant races, both at the top and bottom, wouldn't benefit. They, meaning both fans and races, obviously would be. Nor do I make it because I think these Class AA clubs wouldn't draw in New York or Chicago. I make it in view of the fact that the plan won't be tried because it can't.

The foregoing observations, of course, constitute the build up of the idea. Now for the knockout. It's simple. I ask, have we that both New York clubs and both Chicago clubs, the money makers of baseball, will be in the major leagues every year under such an arrangement? Suppose the Yankees finished last this year. This, it would be more absurd for the Yankees, with their 80,000 plant, to be playing minor league ball in New York in attempted competi-

SAYS STRIBLING WILL WIN OVER SHARKEY

New Orleans, La.—W. L. (Young) Stribling is picked to beat Jack Sharkey, the Boston goat, in their forthcoming grapple of the palms at Miami Beach by Martin Burke, ex-fighter and promoter.

Burke has been knocked out twice by Stribling, has fought Tunney twice, and served as Jack Dempsey's training partner. He probably will spar some with Stribling at Miami Beach.

"Stribling will stop Sharkey," said Burke. "In fact, he can stop any of them—even the retired champion. I have improved wonderfully in recent months. I know because I have had him to give me a heavy punch in the first round in recent months."

WRONG DIRECTION RUN IN FOOTBALL TO BE OUTLAWED

Coaches to Make Rule That Recovered Fumbles Are to Be Declared Dead.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Feb. 12.—The 70-yard run in the wrong direction with a fumble, ball probably is to die with Roy Rogers; the old cry of the Gay Nineties, "fall on that ball," probably will resound through the land again; Sam White may well flatter himself that he wasn't born twenty years too late.

It is my information today that the football rules committee, scheduled to hold the annual autopsy over the coming week end, is likely to declare all fumbles, recovered by the defending team, "dead" at the point of recovery.

This, in any case, is said to be about the only step contemplated by the rule surgeons at this immature moment, three days before the family is ready to call in the specialists to survey the patient on his bed of agony. It is declared that major operations and amputations will be strictly taboo in all probability.

The "dead fumble" by the way, is not regarded as a radical gesture, since it already is in the code, as affecting fumbled punts and lateral passes. That being the case it is felt, particularly by the coaches, that a fumble is only a fumble no matter how you arrange to make it and that one should have uniformly, even in error. It is the insistence of the coaches on this point, as a matter of fact, that seems making this particular item of business look the part of a probability.

The coaches committee, which has gone on record in favor of this change, again will be sitting in on the meeting in an advisory capacity when the rules committee goes into session at the Sea View Country Club, Absecon, N. J., on Friday night. The meeting will carry through Saturday and Sunday, using the hush system throughout. Details of the committee's findings in other words, will not be available until Monday.

COCHRAN DEFEATS JAPANESE CUEIST

Are Now Tied for First Place—Schaefer May Make It a Triple.

New York, Feb. 12.—America's chances of regaining the 18.2 balkline billiard championship were brighter today as a result of the defeat of Kinrey Matsuyama, diminutive Japanese, by Welker Cochran last night in the six-man title tussle here. They are tied for first place with three victories and one defeat apiece.

Jake Schaefer, Jr. of Chicago, in third place with two wins and one loss, can create a triple tie in Philadelphia by beating both Matsuyama and Cochran in the two final and crucial matches of the tournament. He plays the Japanese star this afternoon.

The mighty mite from the Orient suffered his first setback in his quest for the $2,000 prize last night when he was nose out by Cochran, 400 to 373.

PREDICT KNOCKOUT IN HARTFORD BOUT

Zalinsky-Konchina Bout May Not Go the Limit; Others Look Good.

The predictor is that a knockout will come in the star bout at the Foot Guard armory in Hartford Thursday night when Frankie Konchina of New York meets Joe Zalinsky of Syracuse.

Both of these boys are hard hitters with many knockouts in their records and neither is a particularly good defensive fighter, a combination that makes this prophesy of a keyo seem to ring true.

Zalinsky and Konchina are ranked in the middleweight division just below Harry Ebbets, Frankie O'Brien and boys of that class. Zalinsky holds knockout victories over such fighters as "Cave Man" Fisher, who knocked out Jack DeLaney several years ago, and Bobby Brown who gave Ebbets a sensational battle at the Hartford Velodrome two years ago.

This ten-rounder is supported by a card of unusually attractiveness. "Kawpie" Ledoux of Holyoke, who fought Eddie Reed in a stirring encounter here two weeks ago, will meet Eddie once more in a four-round special. Reed was the winner before, but Ledoux has him firing badly in the fourth round and, the indication was, would have been his decisively in another round. "Kawpie" is out to even things.

Then Nick Christy of Bristol, who has yet to lose a fight since turning pro, will engage Jimmy Garcia of Worcester. Christy has won all of his professional battles but one and Battalino K. Lockett, who recently hit then Christy is hardy of Bal's callus yet, though he promises to be a great battler after further seasoning.

DAY IS OUTPOINTED BY JACK PILKINGTON

At Boston: Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, outpointed Al Friedman, also of Boston, 10; Big Boy Lawson, Boston, knocked out Ed Callahan, of Arlington, 5.

At Baltimore: Kid Williams, former Bantamweight champion, won from Sid Lampe on foul, 7.

At New Haven: Jackie Pilkington, New York, defeated George Day, 10; Eddie Ebbets, New York, knocked out Willie Husey, Bridgeport, 10.

At Chicago: Benny Bass, Philadelphia featherweight, was awarded the decision over Harry Forbes of Columbus, Ohio, 10.

King Tufts, Minneapolis lightweight, stopped Al Winkler of Philadelphia, 8.

Victory for Manchester Would Tie Locals With West Hartford for Second Place; Clyde Waters to Referee; Big Game at 8:45.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—The Brooklyns want Dave Bancroft to take seven grand less than he got last year. . . . And that would cut him down to a measly $12,000 a year. . . . And he's going to be a substitute. . . . Jimmy Dykes' father was born in Scotland. . . . Pete Latzo, former welterweight prize fight champion, is going south with the Newark Bears. . . . He wants to play the infield. . . . Mark Koenig, got married on the world series dough. . . . On the Braves' club roster Judge Fuchs is not mentioned as manager. . . . And there ain't no manager mentioned. . . . Jack Statory, who caused a stir among the Irish customers when he was canned for Hornsby is listed as assistant business manager. . . . Bob Jones is going to be president of the golf association. . . . In about four years. . . . When he has to shave every day. . . . Sharkey likes to be called "Squire." . . . And he refers to his new $100,000 home as "my joint."

CANNOT LOSE NOW ON FLORIDA FIGHT

Receipts Already Have Passed Expenses for Sharkey-Stribling Match.

By SID MERCER
Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 12.—Bill Carey, vice-president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, declared today that the Garden's gamble had ended in putting over Tex Rickard's last big boxing enterprise the Sharkey-Stribling fight here on the 27th. Carey estimated the gate would exceed $350,000. He thinks it may go as high as $450,000. Yesterday's receipts were more than $14,000.

Neither of the noble gladiators made a public appearance yesterday. Sharkey was to have done some stunts at the greynouth track but a shower came up and soaked the canvas floor of his outdoor ring and spoiled the show. A canopy is being built over Sharkey's ring to keep the rain and broilings sun from depending on him during his labors.

Stribling will not appear at the old swimming hole, at "Hardies" casino until tomorrow or Thursday. Today the king of the canebreaks is off on a fishing trip in the Everglades.

Jack Dempsey is busy denying a report that he was almost killed in an automobile accident near Tampa last Friday night. He had left the city to drive back here over the Tamiami trail but a few miles out his driver went into the ditch and Jack received a severe bump on his right shoulder. He went back to Tampa and returned to Miami by train.

KAPLAN VS. MCGRAW ON-THURSDAY NIGHT

Bout in Waterbury Attracting Considerable Attention; May End in Knockout.

Possibility of a knockout looms up in the Kid Kaplan-Phil McGraw ten-round battle programmed for the Waterbury State armory on Thursday night of this week. Both boys are essentially fighters and either one may drop when the heavy artillery is loosed. Kaplan has been slugging hard in batting practice at the Charter Oak gym, Hartford, where he has been training, and the feeling is that he will bring down the Detroit foal. At least, Trainer Denny McMahon figures McGraw is in for a man's sized drubbing. Inasmuch as Kap and McGraw have been on the floor for the full count, it shows that it can be done. Kap was stopped by Billy Wallace and Jimmy McLarnin and the latter also put over the lethal larrup on McGraw.

McGraw will celebrate his twenty-fifth birthday on Feb. 15, the day following the fight and it will be a real present to himself on the occasion if he can pick up the papers on that date and read that he beat Kaplan. He started boxing in 1922 and has fought such boys as Dave Vicentini, Bobby Garcia, Eddie Kid Wagner, Red Chapman, Tod Morgan, Sid Terris, four times Stanley Lozaya, twice Ace Haddkins, twice. He also met Sammy Mandell for the lightweight championship in Detroit on July 15, 1927, losing the decision. Inasmuch as Mandell later proved his worth as a title holder by decisively beating Jimmy McLarnin, McGraw's defeat was no real blot on his record. The Detroit Greek is regarded as one of the best club fighters in the game today and the match with Kaplan, a masterpiece of matchmaking on the part of Tony Paolillo. As a matter of fact the contest has been in the works over a period of months and Paolillo reports that New York clubs tried to get them together for years.

Based on the preliminary card will be Eddie Lord and Tony DiPalma of New Haven in the eight round semi-final; Al Beauregard of Taftville and Irish Hughie Devlin of New London, eight rounds; Marvin Scheeter of New York and Rocky Knight of Detroit, six rounds and Frankie Marino of New Haven and Johnny Murray of Waterbury, four rounds.

Lord and DiPalma are junior lightweight and among the best in Connecticut. Beauregard and Devlin are bantams. Scheeter and Knight heavyweights and Murray and Marino, featherweights.

SUNDAY BASEBALL

Boston, Feb. 12.—While Boston fans were assured of Sunday baseball, the report of Attorney General Joseph E. Warner of the probe into the affairs of the Outdoor Recreation League was expected to be made today.

Sunday baseball became a fact when the Boston City Council unanimously accepted the recommendation of its executive committee which favorably reported the petition of the Braves for a permit. The vote was 19 to 2.

Only a formality yet existed, the signing of the license by Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, which was expected today.

SURE FOR BOSTON

A shield presented to Prince Charles Edward, the young pretender, by his admirers in 1745, was recently sold in London for $30,000. The pretender's snuff box brought $650 and his pistols $1000.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

SENSE and NONSENSE

LINCOLN. An humble child, of manner mild. And born in lowly station; He rose, in might, to godlike height, And saved a war-torn nation!

Talk isn't "cheep" with a parrot.

Nobody knows more about YOUR SELF than you do, hence you should have no trouble in disposing of today's puzzle in par, six. One solution is on another page.

WORD GOLF puzzle grid with the words 'YOUR' and 'SELF' filled in.

THE RULES. 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

When it comes to wearing apparel, the flapper isn't in it. There may be many sure cures for love but matrimony is the sur-est.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

WHY LINCOLN FAILED. Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday the nation is observing today, didn't make out much as a storekeeper. He tried it once, when he was about 24 years old, in partnership with another young man named Barry, at New Salem, Ill. But Barry was a hooch hound and Abe loved to read and tell stories to the customers who came in to buy sugar or calico, and the sheriff pretty soon took the stock and Abe was fifteen years paying up the balance of the store's debts. So you see, successful store keeping isn't so much a matter of brilliance as it is of attending to the job in hand. That's the Pinehurst idea of doing business—attending to the job. If the job is taking a patron's order over the phone Pinehurst's attention goes to that task, absolutely. It gets the order right, the way the customer intended it to be taken. Then it fills it right, closely checking every item, seeing to it that nothing whatever gets into that order that is not precisely what the customer wants in quality, brand, price. Then it sees to it that that order is delivered exactly on time. And if, by any chance and in spite of all these pains, a little error now and then does creep in, Pinehurst is anxious, eager to rectify it instantly; only asking that the customer tell us about it and give us the chance to square things. Just the same close attention is given to the buying, to the receiving of goods—nothing is permitted to stay here that isn't up to the top standard of "Good Things to Eat." And to keeping abreast of the times—providing the new excellencies, the latest improvements in foods. We're no Lincolns at Pinehurst. But we try to be the best kind of storekeepers. Phone 2000.
