

JOSEPH H. SARGENT DIES AS AUTO SKIDS

Popular Young Man Killed
Early This Morning on East Center St.—Two Girl
Passengers Unhurt.

Joseph H. Sargent of 18¹/₂ Center street, shipping clerk at Watkins Brothers' furniture store and widely known and well liked, was almost instantly killed at 12:45 o'clock this morning when the automobile he was driving skidded and struck a tree midway between Pitkin and Parker streets on East Center street. Miss Rose Smith and Miss Carrie Novak, passengers in Sargent's Dodge coupe, escaped with trivial injuries. The accident was directly attributable to the heavy snowfall then in progress. A police investigation disclosed that Sargent was driving with his head out of the window in order to get a view of the road, it being impossible to see through the windshield despite the operation of the wiper.

Skids Against Tree
It appears that after attending a basketball at the School Street Rec last evening Mr. Sargent had dropped in for a short time at a house party in the eastern part of the town to which he had been invited. Miss Smith and Miss Novak were among the guests at the party and Mr. Sargent offered to drive them home. They had reached a point just west of Pitkin street when the car skidded, swept to the north side of the street and then, as the driver tried to straighten it out, shot diagonally across the street for a hundred feet, encountered the trolley rails, skidded again and crashed into the tree with violence enough

BIG RAIL MERGER UNDER ADVISEMENT

Pennsy, N. Y. Central, B. & O. and Van Sweringens
Contemplate Deal.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Negotiations between the Pennsylvanians, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and the Van Sweringens lines for the establishment of an eastern four-system plan, having proved inconclusive, the powerful Van Sweringens railroad interests today presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission the straight question of what railroads could be grouped with them, as a system, "in the public interest."

This move to take the whole subject of railroad consolidation out of the realm of executive conference and place it directly before the commission for action, was made by the Van Sweringens lines with the Chesapeake & Ohio as the applicant.

The Baltimore & Ohio made a somewhat similar move late yesterday.

The Van Sweringens petition asked the commission to do the following things:

To hold that the grouping or unification of the railroads named will be in the public interest.

To make necessary orders for acquisition of short lines which in the opinion of the commission should be included in the proposed Van Sweringens system.

To make necessary orders from time to time to enable the applicant to acquire such railroads as

EVOLUTION HAS THE FLOOR IN OUR ASSEMBLY

Representative from Durham, Born in Kentucky, Explains Why He is Against the Theory.

Hartford, Feb. 20.—Rev. Charles H. Reimers, native of Kentucky and now representative from Durham in the State Legislature, rose to defend Anti-Evolutionists on the floor of the House today. When he had permission to speak Reimers declared he, and, he believed, all other members of the House since they belonged either to church or synagogue, felt their ancestors were not monkeys. Reimers took occasion to say a word in behalf of the Anti-Evolutionists because "the Press" had announced that there were no Anti-Evolutionists in the Legislature to claim a letter addressed to one of that group. Reimers insisted that he had to announce his belief in anti-evolution, to quiet his conscience.

While the House moved through its business in peace the Senate was in session fairly late and at all times in a tangle. The Democratic forces were out to oppose bills and did so with a great thoroughness, being beaten down on strict party lines. When a roll call vote was demanded it went 20 to 11 in favor of the Republican members. After that the Democratic members confined their opposition to speeches against unfavorable reports on bills.

Senator Fox struggled for making the amount collectible after a death by accident, and the committee chairman was discussing it. Senator Conroy rose to suggest that value of the dollar had dropped since the old statute was enacted. Senator Fox struggled for the bill which provided that county auditors need not be members of the General Assembly, and lost.

Senator Bergin, active throughout, said nothing when his bill providing for a state automobile insurance fund was killed.

THE SENATE

Hartford, Feb. 20.—The Senate had its first roll call vote of the session today on an unfavorable report of the judiciary committee on a bill which provides for making monthly reports by the treasurers of state central committees through the secretary of state.

The Republican members went out, the vote being 20 to 11 in favor of rejecting the bill. Senators Conroy, of Hartford; Bergin, of New Haven; and Fox of New London, led the opposition to that report and to others but the other matters were decided by oral vote. The committees were upheld in every case.

Bills Rejected
Among bills rejected after unfavorable reports were:
Providing for licensing of architects and providing a board of examiners; raising the amount to be recovered as damages for death from $10,000 to $20,000; an act amending the act concerning election of school district officers, providing that names of candidates shall be filed at least three days before election; providing for filing of conditional bills of sale on autos; allowing officials in towns to permit billiard and pool rooms to open after two p. m., on Sundays; providing that the person doing the damage in an accident be obliged to give the proof of contributory negligence on the part of the injured person; providing for establishment of a state automobile insurance fund.

Bills Tabled
Two bills were tabled because of the absence of Senator Goldstein. Another providing that in case of an injury due to a structure erected on a public road a person or corporation erecting such structure shall be liable for damages, was

STATE SENATE GETS COURT APPOINTMENTS

Governor's Nominations Are Tabled for Calendar at Today's Session.

Hartford, Feb. 20.—Governor Trumbull today transmitted to the state Senate the following appointments:

Thomas J. Malloy, of Hartford, to be judge of the Common Pleas Court for Hartford County, and Arthur E. Howard, Jr., of East Hartford, to be associate judge of the same court, both for four years. Albert B. Hamilton, of Litchfield, to be Litchfield county Common Pleas Court judge for four years. The nominations were ordered tabled for calendar and printing.

The name of Sanford H. Wadhams, of Torrington, to be member of the state water commission was handed in also and referred to the committee on executive nominations.

Man About To Be Hanged Knocks Down Executioner

Vienna, Feb. 20.—While police armed with rifles and fixed bayonets battled with a crowd four robbers were hanged in the Zagreb, Croatia, prison today amid ghoulish disorders. The crowd fought with the police in an effort to free the condemned men.

The weather was bitter cold for the Arctic-like chill which has gripped this section of Central Europe for nearly a fortnight is unbroken in Croatia. The robbers were to have taken place several days ago but were postponed when the official executioner's train got stuck in a snowdrift.

CHICAGO MASSACRE BLAMED ON POLICE

Mysterious Note Explains Why Moran's Gangsters Were Shot Down.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—"Moran's gang hijacked $12,000 worth of liquor belonging to a Chicago policeman—and that's what all the shooting was about."

This message, supported by a mass of specific detail, was being pondered over by federal authorities today as the latest sensation in the investigation of the "Chicago Massacre."

The information was conveyed secretly to federal investigators by an unnamed informant. In support of his theory concerning the execution of seven Moran gangsters last Thursday morning, this informant says:

Rest of Message
"The policeman who owned the liquor has a partner and a sweetheart. His sweetheart runs a beauty shop. His partner runs a roadhouse in a northwest suburb. The officer has a half interest in the roadhouse. Find the policeman who fits that picture and you've got something to work on."

Supplementing this, information from the same mysterious source stated that a conversation between the officer and his sweetheart had been overheard through one of the thin board partitions of the beauty parlor and that it was the policeman, himself, who said a $12,000 load of his liquor had been stolen and that "Bugs Moran did it."

Gangster's Words
This startling new development, coupled with the dying words of Frank Guesenberg that "a couple of coppers did it" and with several other indications of police entanglement in the crime, caused a furor of excitement in official circles today.

Police Commissioner William Russell and Corner Herman N. Bunsden admitted today that solution of Chicago's "worst crime" was "near." Neither would discuss the case beyond that.

SLASHER IDENTIFIED

Boston, Feb. 20.—Declaring that a mistake had been made, Angelo Lattiano, 35, of East Boston, was held today as the "Subway Slasher" who was identified by Mrs. Marie Ficarra as the man who cut her dress. Ten other women victims viewed Lattiano before court arraignment.

CONGRESS VOTE SHOWS DRYS ARE IN SADDLE

Another Army Mutiny Breaks Out In Spain

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Feb. 20.—Mutiny, the second in less than a month, broke out in the artillery corps of the Spanish Army today following publication of a royal decree dissolving that branch of the military service.

A group of artillery officers took command of the Artillery School at Segovia. They seized the artillery barracks at Segovia, also. The revolting officers seized heavy guns and massed them for action. Troops, who joined the mutinous movement, swarmed through the streets of Segovia shouting: "Down with the government!" All members of the Segovia artillery school gathered at the Segovia barracks.

The government at Madrid dispatched infantry regiments from La Granja to put down the mutiny.

The outcome is doubtful. Advice received over the border emphasizes the seriousness of the situation. It is feared that heavy fighting may ensue owing to the tense feeling between the mutinous artillery officers and the commanders of the loyal government forces.

2 PRESIDENTS WORKING IN WASHINGTON TODAY

Coolidge is Rounding Out His Term While Hoover is Busy Arranging for His Appointments.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The nation had two presidents functioning in Washington today.

In the White House, of course, was President Coolidge, rounding out his term. Up at 2300 S street was President-Elect Hoover, just returned from a month at Miami Beach, and, from all appearances, prepared to function just as intensively for the twelve days intervening before his inauguration as he will after March 4.

Mr. Hoover was back in the capital to handle personally all of the remaining matters that can have any possible effect on his administration. His first engagement of the day showed that. At breakfast this morning, the president-elect conferred at length with Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, slated to be the Republican leader of the Upper House for the next four years.

Majority Leader.
Watson, as majority leader, must guide many things through the Senate for Mr. Hoover. Also Mr. Hoover wanted a report on the legislative situation existing at present. It would be possible for the dying Congress to enact several bills which might crop up later as embarrassments to the new administration, particularly those affecting the treasury balance.

Last night, a similar legislative report was obtained from Rep. John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican leader of the House, who spent nearly an hour at the 5 street home of James W. Good, politician extraordinaire, who managed the pre-convention campaign for Mr. Hoover.

Senator Gillett (R) of Mass. was the only other available caller of the morning. Some time during the day, the president-elect planned to drop in at the White House and pay respects to President Coolidge.

Mr. Hoover returned to Washington, it seemed, from all available indications, with somewhat of a tangle on his hands insofar as selection of an attorney general was concerned. The dopesters of the capital have eliminated Col. Wm. J. Donovan, of New York, as a probability for the justice portfolio and switched him to some other post, possibly the secretaryship of war. Reports were current the attorney generalship had been offered to Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, with doubts as to whether the latter would accept.

Commerce Secretary. Similarly, speculation continued rife today over the man who would fill the job as secretary of commerce.

Coolidge Gifts In Truck Are Broken In Accident

Northampton, Mass., Feb. 20.—An Army truck from Washington, carrying three tons of priceless gifts of President and Mrs. Coolidge, last in a line of a caravan of four, enroute from the White House to take Coolidge home here, was rammed by a sedan at Memorial bridge West Springfield, today. The driver of the sedan was hurt.

The four 5-ton army trucks were lined up while the drivers were eating in a diner at the roadside. The truck rammed by the sedan was the one in which the President had placed his most choice belongings. Three tons of gifts and other articles of the Coolidge administration

Washington, Feb. 20.—If there ever had been any doubt about the Drays being in the saddle in Congress—booted and spurred and riding hard—that doubt was dispelled today.

The dying 70th Congress, with only ten days of life left, is overwhelmingly dry.

The new 71st which comes into being with the advent of the Hoover administration, will be still dryer.

Patently, therefore, any legislative reform or moderation of prohibition is projected into those far-distant realms where the eye at present cannot reach.

Democratized by Senate.
The Senate demonstrated this in a most conclusive fashion by adopting the drastic Jones Bill, which more than doubles the present penalties for violation of the Volstead Act. Under its provisions it would be possible for a judge to send a hip-flask taker to prison for five years and impose a fine of $10,000.

The bill passed the Senate after the most dramatic wet-and-dry fight Congress has seen in years. The vote was 65 to 18. It now goes to the House.

Its fate in the lower chamber is uncertain—not because the House is any wetter than the Senate, but because the short time remaining of the present session and the parliamentary situation may prevent its getting to a vote.

The intention of the Drays is to rush it to victory in the House in the next ten days. The wets hope to stop it.

Hoover's Influence.
It is a situation in which the voice of Herbert Hoover, the incoming president, may conceivably play some part. Certainly, if Mr. Hoover indicates by so much as a lifted eye-brow that he wants it acted upon by the House it will pass in a hurry. The drays are in the saddle, they control the committees and the votes, and they can, if necessary, ride roughshod over all opposition. The House is a more disciplined body than the Senate.

The President-Elect's position with regard to the bill is not known. He has not expressed himself, at least publicly. He said during the campaign that prohibition was "a noble experiment that must be worked out constructively," but he did not then, nor has he since, so far as is known, commit himself direct upon the Volstead Act.

Senate's Action.
The Senate's action in adopting the Jones Bill now doubles the drastic features of the Volstead Act.

Dry's Opinion.
Dry republicans, however, assume that Mr. Hoover is in favor of putting more teeth in prohibition enforcement, and they assume also that the Jones Bill meets his approval. Right or wrong, that is their assumption, and it is upon that assumption that out of a few of his dry supporters in the Senate voted down all moderating amendments to the Jones' Bill.

Senator Bingham (R) of Conn. proposed one softening amendment which would specifically exempt first offenders from the maximum penalty of five years in prison and $10,000 fine. The Senate voted that down 51 to 31.

Senator Blaine (R) of Wisconsin, proposed another amendment which would have restricted application of the maximum penalties to cases wherein liquor was plainly manufactured for sale and commercial disposal. The Senate voted that down, 61 to 21.

In the end, the Drays accepted a compromise amendment which "invited" the courts to "discriminate between casual or slight violations and so-called regular bootlegging or attempts to commercialize violations of the law." This was the only softening feature the Drays would accept.

The maximum Wet Strength displayed at any time during the voting was revealed to be slightly in excess of 20.

The Final Showdown.
On the final showdown, there were 18 votes against the bill, five Republicans and thirteen Democrats, as follows:

Republicans: Bingham of Conn., Blaine of Wis., Gleason of Ill., Gould of Me., and Phelps of Colo.
Democrats: Bayard of Del., Broussard of La., Erbe of Md., Copeland of N. Y., Edwards of N. J., Gerry of R. I., Hawes of Mo., Ransdell of La., Reed of Mo., Tamm of Md., Wagner of N. Y., Walsh of Mass., Wheeler of Mont., La Follette of Wisconsin, and

Hale Self-Serve Stores Observe Ninth Birthday

When Manchester joins the J. W. Hale Company this week in celebrating the ninth birthday of the Self-Serve grocery it must go to two different parties. Since last year's fete in honor of the establishment here of the unique type of grocery store another such shopping place has sprung up.

New Member of Family Two Self-Serve stores, the one on Oak street and the newer one at Main and Park streets, will join in celebrating the Ninth anniversary of the Self-Serve stores here this week.

The newer Self-Serve and Health Markets were created because of the impossibility of enlarging the quarters on Oak street. Repeatedly the J. W. Hale Company tried to purchase additional space on Oak street, and a short time ago Dame Rumor carried the story that Hale's had purchased the Circle theater for store expansion.

When the Park Street Self-Serve and Health Market were opened it was a matter of speculation whether demands in Manchester justified such a move. But 14,000 customers were served in the new stores in January, an indication that General Manager Frank H. Anderson was correct in his assumption that the store of the Self-Serve and Health Market type would be patronized at Main and Park street.

Thornton First Manager It was nine years ago this week that "Smiling Sam" Thornton opened the first Self-Serve grocery here for the J. W. Hale Company. It was the first venture in that sort of retailing attempted in Connecticut.

Old Situations When the new market was opened many of the same interesting situations arose as did when the original Self-Serve opened nine years ago. Women came in without taking a basket and found themselves soon loaded down with goods.

Boosts The Herald Mr. Anderson is a booster of Herald advertising. He is convinced that it pays and bears that out by ordering the largest amount of Self-Serve advertising in one week that The Herald has ever carried.

Hoover Not to "Swear" to Uphold Constitution Washington, Feb. 20.—Although he has taken no one into his confidence, the understanding prevails in the capital that when Herbert Hoover takes the oath of office as President he will "affirm" rather than "swear" his intention of supporting the Constitution.

Food demonstration will be held in connection with the Self-Serve anniversary Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. The following are the demonstrations, they will be held at the Oak street Self-Serve only.

- 1.—Sunbeam canned goods manufactured by Austin and Nichols company.
2.—Silver Lane pickles.
3.—Hale's famous Morning Luxury coffee.
4.—Oriental "Show You" products.
5.—Armour's Star Ham and Bacon.
6.—Krumm's Macaroni and Spaghetti.
7.—Good Luck pie filling and pie crust.
8.—Camuffe Marshmallows.
9.—National Biscuit company.
10.—Royal Gelatine dessert.
11.—Battle Creek Health foods.

The Self-Serve personnel under General Manager Frank H. Anderson is: Tom McCann, manager of the grocery departments at Oak and Park streets; Camillo Andisio, manager of meat departments at Oak and Park streets; Louis Andisio, assistant to Camillo Andisio in management of meat department; John Andisio, assistant to Tom McCann in buying fruits and vegetables; Mike Haberen, assistant to Tom McCann and directly in charge of groceries at Park street store.

to crush in the left side of the car. Mr. Sargent was thrown back into the car by the impact.

Following the Sargent coupe was a car driven by Ferdinand Lewis of Mt. Nebo Place, who stopped and helped carry the injured and unconscious motorist to the home of Robert E. Hatheway, in front of which the accident occurred.

Police Sergeant Crockett arrived at the scene of the accident within a few minutes after the crash and supervised the removal of the dying victim to the hospital.

The popular young victim of the tragic accident lived with his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Sargent, his sister, Minnie, who is a buyer for the J. W. Hale Co., and a brother, Harold, who has been ill for months, at the home at 186 Center street.

Most Popular Here Joseph H. Sargent was born in Manchester in 1901 and had lived here all his life. He was very highly regarded by his employers and by all his associates in the Watkins Bros. store, where the position he held was one of large responsibility.

He had been in the employ of Watkins Brothers since his school days. He started in at the bottom of the ladder and had worked his way through successive positions to that which he held at the time of his death.

Under the proposed plan the mileage of the Van Sweringen group would be 12,265 miles under ownership or lease, together with trackage rights over 883 miles, totaling in all a system of 13,148 miles.

The petition said that the Van Sweringens were not proposing, at this time, the terms and condition on which these railroads would be acquired, but propose to have the two questions considered one at a time.

LINDY TO INSPECT NEW AIRWAY ROUTE

Meets Mother on Return from Turkey—Will Not Talk on Engagement.

New York, Feb. 20.—With a battery of mechanics working over his plane at Curtiss Field, there were indications today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was planning an early hop-off, possibly today or tomorrow, on his Trans-Continental Airways trip.

The colonel remained in seclusion with his mother today following her return aboard the President Wilson from abroad where she had spent almost a year teaching in a school in Turkey.

Mrs. Lindbergh appeared distraught upon her arrival over the erroneous and unfounded reports that preceded her stating she was engaged to Captain A. Anderson of the Park street store.

Ever-present newspaper people surrounded Lindy in the little cabin. "Are you going to visit your fiancée at Mexico City?" asked a reporter.

"But the South Americans are very enthusiastic about air mail," said the colonel. "Transportation is so slow down there."

"Had your mother been informed of your engagement before she received the radio news?" "I like the new barometers—I think they're going to prove a great thing."

The quiet young man in the neat gray suit had gone back into his shell.

Carmel-by-the-Sea, Calif.—About three miles from this slumbering hamlet is a French-Arcadian village that takes one back to the sixteenth century.
The village is but a few weeks old, having been built by Hollywood carpenters. And the peasants who saunter slowly along the streets are either Hollywood folk or artists, poets and writers of Carmel.
The town was built at a cost of about $50,000 for the exterior scenes of "Evangeline," Dolores Del Rio's new production which Edwin Carewe is directing. Located on a cliff overlooking the Pacific, this cluster of buildings, though only a few miles from a railroad, gives one the feeling of being entirely away from onrushing civilization.
There is bound to be beautiful photography in the picture in such surroundings. But there will be more—from present indications, the film will excel "Ramona," Miss Del Rio's biggest success to date.
Your first criticism of Dolores as Evangeline probably will be that she is not the type. That's what all Hollywood exclaimed. The writer asked Carewe how he dared cast Dolores in such a role. But Longfellow describes Evangeline as:
"Fair was she to behold, that maiden of seventeen summers. Black were her eyes as the berry that grows on the thorn by the wayside. Black, yet how softly they gleamed beneath the brown shade of her tresses."
Now, then, is the Mexican actress the right type or not? Dolores would like to know what you think.
Roland Drew, whom Carewe discovered as Walter Goss and signed as Dolores' leading man in "Ramona," is again playing opposite her. Alec Francis, Paul McAllister and Donald Reed also have leading roles. The cast includes artists and writers of Carmel who are quite well known. All are working as extras for $5 a day.

Hollywood film executives are watching the progress of "Evangeline" with more than usual interest. It may have quite a bearing on the talking picture situation. "Evangeline" will be one of the good old silent epics.

Rogers Hornsby, Big League Slugger, Out to Smash Record Standing for Eighteen Years.

BY LES CONKLIN
New York, Feb. 19.—When Rogers Hornsby lines out his first base hit in the uniform of the Chicago Cubs this Spring he will be shooting at a National League batting record that has stood for eighteen years.
When Hans Wagner captured the league batting championship in 1911 he won the crown for the eighth year. Hornsby has carried off the title seven times, six with the Cardinals and last season with the Braves.
Hornsby, in his effort to tie the great Dutchman's record, will have every incentive, for the Cubs are sure to be in the thick of the dog race all the way. Every base hit by the Rajah will help nail the pennant to the Cubs' masthead as well as swell his batting mark.
The calibre of his team has had little effect on the Texan's slugging, however. Curiously enough, he did not win the title in 1926, when his Cardinals captured the pennant, nor in 1927, when he was with the Giants, another strong contender. And he rapped out his usual quota of hits last season for the lowly Braves.
Rajah's feat in winning the crown last season was all the more remarkable in view of his slump in the two preceding years. In 1926 he had dropped all the way down to .317, and in the next year Paul Wagner finished twenty-nine points ahead of him. But last season Hornsby turned, the tables on the Pirate star with a mark of .337 to Wagner's .370.
Wagner's first title-winning mark of .339 was his best while Hornsby's first championship average of .370 in 1920 was the lowest he ever has compiled in winning the crown.
A comparison of their marks is hardly fair to the Dutchman, however. Honus might have bettered Hornsby's figures if the rabbit ball had been in vogue when he was in his heyday.
The championship marks of the two batting kings stack up as follows:

| Wagner | Hornsby |
|--------|---------|
| .339 | .370 |
| .355 | .397 |
| .349 | .401 |
| .339 | .354 |
| .350 | .324 |
| .354 | .403 |
| .339 | .387 |
| .334 | |

While Hornsby may equal or even surpass Wagner's record of eight championships, Ty Cobb's feat in winning the American League crown twelve times probably will stand for all time.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 20.—Ever since the venerable comedy dramas related the hectic adventures of "Uncle Ash in the big city," the card sharp and the "oom" man have been indelibly associated with the sinister-sidelights of this metropolis.

And to this day, the card sharp remains the most successful of all the shady figures. In spite of all warnings that have been issued, he goes on playing his trade among the gullible. Seldom is he arrested. The worst he gets out of it is an outing from a steamer or a train, or a beating from victims.

The international card sharp is never idle. When not working the liners he is looking over prospects in Paris, London, Monte Carlo, New York or way points. Being thus widely traveled, and quite at home with three or four languages he generally has little trouble selling himself as an amiable, debonair man-of-the-world. His method of operations vary with his crowd.

Thus, at the present moment, he can operate somewhat recklessly on the winter-trip liners to Havana. He well knows that his prospects will soon be merrily imbibing; that he is cast among a group of easy spenders on holiday bent; that a percentage of his shipmates will be careless with their money and can be easily handled once the cocktails begin to flow.

To be sure, the ship people make every effort to warn against him, putting placards in staterooms and notices on boards. But the company is helpless. Generally one or two stewards are "planted." They arrange special quarters for the sharpers and attend to tables, cards and the like. For which they are presumed to get a share in the profits and keep their lips sealed.

If the sharper fails to cut appropriately they give the "tip off" and the cheaters are barred from the boat. This year, I am told, they are using pretty young companions as lures for the victims. These girls are smartly clad with the latest sport clothes of the season. They belong to the flashy Broadway gallery of cheap beauties who turn adventuress for such rewards as a pleasant winter, sailing back and forth to Cuba, drinking cocktails under the moon and wheedling old daddies out of bracelets, either a time, when the sheep is ready for shearing, the daddies are casually brought in touch with the sharpers and the rest is easy.

With free spenders going back and forth, a trip at this time of year to any of the winter resorts should be good for $5,000, or better. For the stakes grow stiff after a time, and the money often grows to huge proportions. Yet the sharper never seems to keep his money. While he may have a $20,000 winter, he is very likely to be broke by summer. Returning to Broadway, he often becomes as big a sucker as the next fellow. He spends lavishly and bets on the horses; he gets into one of the floating dice games and buys flashy new clothes for his fair deys. Soon he has to be back at his trade.

Nicker Arnstein, for instance, was, in his day, the apostle of the polished and debonair racketeer. He could discuss art, music, philosophy or literature—and really enjoyed doing this, knowing his subjects quite well. But in the end there was generally a card game or a dice contest.

OLD STUFF IS GOOD

Many of the world's inventions have to be made a second or third time before they take a place in the economic and social fabric. The bicycle, which was the real forerunner of the automobile, is claimed by Koreans to have been in use in that country more than five hundred years ago. And the same people had an ironclad warship centuries before the Merrimack and the Monitor were evolved.

Within a comparatively few days the whole of America received with delight the news that for the first time men had escaped alive from a sunken submarine. The escape was made possible by a pair of new devices, an escape hatch and a "mechanical lung." It was all very wonderful as well as gratifying to know that inventiveness had solved the most ghastly problem of submarine service—the terror of imprisonment at the bottom of the sea.

Yet in this connection there is a very interesting fact indeed. Among the earliest of inventors and builders of submarine vessels propelled by mechanical power was Simon Lake, still living at Bridgeport. A great many years ago, when the submarine idea was in its infancy, Lake built a boat named the Argonaut. It was not intended for use in warfare, but was a commercial proposition. At that time many hundreds of cargoes of coal were transported through Long Island Sound in canal boats and barges in tow—and of these a very great many were lost in storms, so that it became notorious that the bottom of the Sound was fairly paved with coal-burdened wrecks. It was Lake's idea to construct a boat which could descend to the floor of the Sound, travel along it on wheels and, when a coal wreck was discovered, make it possible to attach a buoy to it. Afterward, the idea was to visit the scene of the wreck with a barge and a huge pumping apparatus and pump the sunken cargo into the carrier, at a handsome profit. It was to be coal mining de luxe.

For one or another reason the coal salvaging scheme was never put into effect. But the point is that part of the equipment of the Argonaut was a high pressure air chamber out of which a diver could walk and into which he could return after completing his buoying of the wreck. It was entirely practicable and was employed many times experimentally. Not only that, but after Lake became diverted to the building of naval submarines the feature was still retained, certainly in the earlier of the ships he built.

And there is no essential difference whatever between the air chamber of the Argonaut and the air chamber escape hatch now hailed as a new invention, save in point of location. Nor is the "mechanical lung" anything vastly different in principle from the oxygen masks and tanks long used by mine rescue squads and by firemen.

Why, then, have we gone all these many years without the employment of these perfectly obvious devices on our naval submarines? Certainly not because the underlying principles were unknown, because they were. Perhaps some day the Navy Department will explain.

QUITE UNTRUE

Representative Matthews of Seymour, sponsor for the nonsensical bill providing for a minimum speed of 35 miles an hour on the highways of Connecticut, told the Motor Vehicle Committee yesterday, at a hearing on the bill, that the same provision was law in the state of Rhode Island. He probably was sincere in that statement but it was,

Consolidation Playlet

There are nine persons (districts) in the cast of a playlet. They are Mr. One, Mr. Two, Mr. Three, and so on, up to and including Mr. Nine but there is no Mr. Six, and there is a Mr. Manchester.

They meet, say, in a room in the Municipal building, to transact the business of School Consolidation.

Says Mr. Manchester: "I am buying you all out. Mr. One, how much are you worth, net? In other words, what is your equity in property, above debts?"

Mr. One: I have $3,025 worth of property. I owe $2,638.52. My equity is $384.46.

Mr. Manchester: All right, here is my check for $384.46. Hand me a deed to your property. I assume the indebtedness, of course.

Mr. One: Here is the deed.

Mr. Manchester: Mr. Two, how much is your equity?

Mr. Two: I have $78,050 in school property and I owe $68,850. My equity is $9,200.

Mr. Manchester: O. K., hand me over your deed and take this check for $9,200.

And so Mr. Manchester proceeds, with all the other Messrs. Numbers, taking their deeds and handing them checks as follows: Mr. Three, $8,250; Mr. Four, $7,775; Mr. Five, $2,508.18; Mr. Seven $16,550; Mr. Eight $66,385; Mr. Nine $164,725.

Mr. Manchester: I see, Mr. Nine, you have given me the deeds of what are known as the Cheney school properties. How did you come to be in possession of them?

Mr. Nine: Oh, I just took them in exchange for my promise to pay $956,237.30. They do not affect my equity one way or the other. I promise to pay just the amount you are paying me by taking over the debt.

Mr. Manchester: Oh, very well, it makes no difference, because I would have had to buy them from the Cheney Brothers, if I didn't buy them from you. Just a matter of form. For of course you will all observe by looking at your checks that they are not actually checks but memoranda that will need a little adjusting.

All together: How come?

Mr. Manchester: I am buying your properties, but of course we are all, after all, partners in town government, and before checks can be cashed there must be money in the bank to meet them. We will now proceed with some other arrangements. I have given you, altogether, $275,774.64 in these checks or memoranda. Now how are they going to be met? Mr. One, your grand list is just 5 per cent of the grand list of the whole town. Naturally your share of any general town expenditure should be five per cent. Five per cent of all these checks is $1,378.87. Just give me your check for that amount—or, better still give me back my check for $386.46 and your own check for $932.41.

Mr. One scratches his head and says: I don't like that. What do I get out of it?

Mr. Manchester: You get exactly a $1,378.87 share—a 5 per cent share—in all the school property in Manchester and I take your personal debt. Isn't that fair?

Mr. One: Why, yes; yes; I guess that's all right. I couldn't expect to get credit for more than my equity, of course. (Makes out check.)

Mr. Manchester: Exactly. And now you, Mr. Two. Your share of the grand list, I see, is 4.6 per cent. Let me have a check for $3,485.63 and my check back and we'll be square. Mr. Three, from you I only want $23.24 plus my check back. Thank you gentlemen. Mr. Four, your case is different. Your share of the grand list is only 1.8 per cent or $4,963.94. Just hand me back my check for $7,775 and I will subtract your share of the entire purchase fund from it and give you a new one for $2,811.06. There, does that make us square? You can tuck that in your jeans.

Mr. Four: Right-oh. All o. k.

And so on. Mr. Manchester takes back his check from Mr. Five and Mr. Five hands him one for $1,357.66 completing the discharge of Mr. Five's obligation in the purchase of all the schools, which was $3,860.84. Mr. Seven returns his original check and gets one for $6,897.89, his real estate being that much greater than his share of the total purchase price.

Mr. Eight swaps Mr. Manchester's original check for a new one for $29,106.93, having that much coming to him from the sale of his buildings after chipping in his part of the general pool, that part being $36,678.07 according to grand list percentage.

Mr. Nine, who hadn't been building schools of his own to any great extent and so has a smaller proportionate equity than the others, finds himself obligated to give back his check to Mr. Manchester and follow it up with another of his own for $33,556.94, since his grand list share proves to be $198,281.94 and his school property equity only $164,725.

Mr. Manchester: Now gentlemen, that would conclude your business except for one thing. You folks have handed me checks for various amounts, in payment for property which we now mutually own, but I don't think any of you can really afford to put out so much money at one time. Now what I propose is this: Just you take back these checks and pay off the respective debts on the installment plan, bit by bit, over a term of years. Then none of you will feel the burden. How does that strike you?

All together: That's the candy stuff! We did have a sort of notion there was a con in the woodpile somewhere, in this thing. But it's fair enough and easy enough and it lets us out of a lot of worry.

Mr. Manchester: Very well, gentlemen; that's all there is to this supposedly bewildering job. Good day.

Note—The figures in the above synopsis of the financing operations of school consolidation are taken from those available last year. The sums indicated are slightly different from those which would be determined at this time, but the difference is not great and the illustration is just as good.

nevertheless, entirely false; and a legislator no better equipped with the facts than this is due for a course of home training before he is qualified to properly represent any constituency in this state.

Rhode Island hasn't and never did have a law compelling a motorist to maintain a 35 mile speed. Two or three years ago some joke-smith set that canard afloat and it traveled fast. The Rhode Island authorities have explained over and over again that there was no minimum speed law in that state, but the denials, as usual, have never caught up with the lie. Still, it is amazing to have a member of the General Assembly repeat the foolish rumor as a fact in a public hearing, without eliciting contradiction on the spot.

The Rhode Island report started from the announcement of a police official that the police would thereafter accept 35 miles an hour as a reasonable and safe speed under normal conditions. The bill hasn't the slightest

HEALTH & DIET ADVICE

THE EMOTIONS AND DIGESTION

Dr. Andrew Malcolm Morrison, who lived to the ripe age of one hundred and five, after studying the reasons for the longevity of many people, said he could find only one rule of health common to all centenarians and that was to avoid worry.

It is difficult to realize how seriously the health may be affected by a chronic state of the mind dwelling on depressing and unlovely thoughts. There is no denying that even the best food may cause digestive disturbances by an unconscious expectancy of trouble deeply impressed upon the memory mind.

Some people have established a habit of looking for distressing symptoms, and this prevents the enjoyment of the normal digestion. Until this habit has been overcome, no amount of digestive improvement will be of much value. The tendency to worry over every problem or to be in a chronic state of suppressed anger is probably of more importance than the effects of acute emotions, important as the latter are.

Psychologists agree that about ninety per cent of our thinking is done by the subconscious mind. These unconscious thought processes have a most powerful effect upon our internal organs.

In observing the peristaltic movements of the stomachs of cats under the x-ray, it has been found that when the cat lies quietly purring while being stroked, the muscular digestive contraction of the stomach continues regularly, but the moment the cat struggles to arise or becomes angry, the muscular waves stop. The effect of anger upon the intestines is first to stimulate the peristaltic movement and then cause a dormant stasis which may last for several hours even after the good nature of the cat has been restored. These facts have been proven in many experiments. Since a similar or even more pronounced effect occurs in the highly organized human being, one can readily see how the emotions will interfere with digestion, and how an attack of anger may actually produce constipation.

While you are following the dietetic and health instruction contained in these articles it is a good plan to look for the good results which will follow, and you cannot expect the best results until you have built this habit into your subconscious mind. Once you have done this, you will have built up the habit of expecting perfect digestion and vigorous health will follow as a matter of course.

When you have selected your food according to the best judgment that you have available, then proceed to enjoy it to the utmost

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Feb. 20—Senator J. Boomboom McWhorter has been named his own press agent of late. Formerly he used his secretary for that job, but the girl was guilty of such gross errors in her home states that the senator decided to do it himself.

You must know, if you don't, that many members of Congress are accustomed to mail out weekly Washington news letters to the newspapers in their home states. These news letters are confined to the various activities of the member with especial emphasis on the herculean labors he has been performing for his constituents.

A few of the congressmen even write regular columns under their own signatures for their home town newspapers and it is to be noted that these journalists are almost invariably returned to office, so the effort must be worth while.

Senator McWhorter, of course, does not write under a signature. He was not born to blush unseen, but he is altogether too modest for that. One will observe as much if we reproduce Senator McWhorter's latest weekly news letter herewith:

Washington — The secretary of the treasury has been reported ill at his home for the past few days. That is the official version. But "those in the know" are well aware that he isn't very sick.

The truth of the matter is that Senator J. Boomboom McWhorter has been waging his annual campaign for the proposed new federal building in Goozleton, the state capital, and that the secretary has only fed him the devastating verbiage of the senator's arguments.

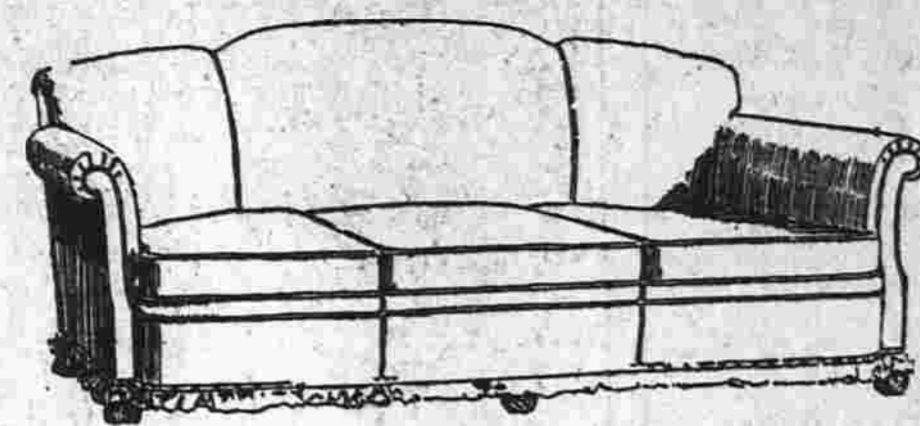

It is commonly understood on Capitol Hill that Senator McWhorter is prepared to engage in a one-man filibuster which would block all other legislation during this session of Congress if his demands are not met. The result is that powerful forces, realizing the danger in the senator's threat, are now working for Goozleton's new federal building.

Washington — President-elect Herbert Hoover is expected soon to return to Washington to confer with Senator J. Boomboom McWhorter concerning the makeup of the Hoover cabinet.

It is common knowledge in the senator's capital that Mr. Hoover has kept the wires hot from Miami, urgently requesting Senator McWhor-

Go Back With Us Nine Years

REMEMBER the excitement when we offered sugar at 18c a pound (all you wanted); when even the chain grocers were doling it out in pounds to customers and to be a customer you had to buy something else.
REMEMBER when we broke the price of bread and offered bread lower than anyone else in town—its been going down ever since.
REMEMBER "Smiling Sam" Thornton, our first manager, who came to work for us as soon as he was discharged from service. It was Sam who found this baker in Hartford for us after the big bakers refused to sell us bread. This same baker still makes our famous Milk Bread at 8c a loaf.

Looking at Today

OUR grocery history of the past nine years has been one of continuous leadership. If every man, woman and child in Manchester had visited only our Oak Street Store every month of the year, you would get a fair picture of the number of customers who traded here last year.

Our new Park Street Health Market and Self-Serve which was opened less than three months ago was in answer to a need for more room in our fruit, meat and fish departments. And, best of all, over fourteen thousand customers traded at the new store last month. Thank you. Come again.

Now the chain stores are filling a certain need in every community, but in Manchester no chain store will ever replace Manchester's Famous Self-Serve. True, we need the help of every family in town. We frankly want your trade. No retail organization has ever done more for a town than Hale's Self-Serve. If a Manchester corporation with Manchester men and women back of it can offer you the very best in food products at prices second to none then, by all that's fair, trade with them, not out of sentiment but out of justice to yourself. "It pays to wait on yourself." Thousands know it. Why shouldn't you?

Take A Flight In The Future

We expect to serve over one half a million customers in our food departments this coming year. We honestly believe that we fill a real economic need. We have had requests from Rockville, Hartford, East Hartford, West Hartford, Bristol and even Middletown, New York to go and open "Self-Serve Groceries." We may some day, but in the meantime Manchester's Public Pantry is yours to use. By the way, the Oak Street Grocery is shining with a new coat of paint.

MAY CONDUCT HOME MODERNIZING HERE

Times and Herald Plan to Work With Contractors On Big Campaign.

At the invitation of William Knoffa, president of the Manchester Construction Company and a member of the Associated General Contractors of America, a representative number of Manchester's contractors and material supply men met at the Chamber of Commerce rooms yesterday afternoon to hear about the Home Modernizing and New Home Development movement as instituted by the Hartford Times several months ago and to plan a co-operative campaign with the Manchester Herald.

Mr. Knoffa acted as chairman of the meeting. He told of his experiences at a recent meeting of the Associated General Contractors in Hartford in connection with the plan and said that this modernizing work has the approval and support of the association throughout the country.

D. R. Dunham, who has charge of the modernizing bureau at the Hartford Times was then introduced to those present and asked by Mr. Knoffa to explain the Times Modernizing plan.

Mr. Dunham said that the Hartford Times had the modernizing movement well under way in Hartford in conjunction with the members of the A. G. Contractors of Hartford. In brief the plan is to this effect that if you send in a request for modernizing ideas for your house a man is sent to look over and make suggestions and sketches in co-operation with the owner's plans and then these are turned over to any architect or contractor whom the owner may desire. He in turn completes the plans and carries out the work.

He went on to state that they were making a study of the suburban communities adjacent to Hartford in connection with this movement and of the various towns and cities he was of the opinion that Manchester offered a wonderful opportunity to sell itself to Hartford people as an ideal residential section.

"Manchester is well located and an ideal place for Hartford people to live in. It has a fine array of modern business houses, schools and public improvements. It presents a fine opportunity to bring Hartford people here to live, to build new homes for themselves. There are many fine developments available. There is good trolley and bus service and excellent roads."

He said that there were nearly 26,000 houses in Hartford in need of modernizing. They have received over 300 requests for plans for modernizing since the Times inaugurated the movement.

William Knoffa was appointed chairman of a committee consisting of Hartwell Willis, president of the Chamber of Commerce; John Hyde, chairman of the board of selectmen; and Leon A. Thorp of The Herald to issue invitations and make plans for a meeting and dinner to be held at the Manchester Country Club Wednesday evening, Feb. 27, to hear further discussion of the Modernizing and New Home Plan. It is hoped to have a large representation of contractors, building material supply men, home furnishers and home appliance men present at this meeting. John F. Rolfe, general manager of the Times and D. R. Dunham of the same organization will speak. Everyone interested in home building is cordially invited to attend this meeting and should leave their name with the committee at once. Chef Osano has been secured to put on the dinner and John Barstow will provide a radio for entertainment. Being the night of the Stribling-Sharkey fight the radio will come in very handy.

Experts will gather in Paris soon to discuss the war debts. Probably some embarrassing questions will be asked about how Germany can build two huge liners to break Atlantic speed records, construct a super-dirigible to shatter flying marks, start a tremendous extension of Berlin's subway and a hydraulic project in the Rhine and still be in the throes of poverty.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Croup and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. Jar & Tubes

"One Of Us May Become Famous"

Four young men were walking across the campus of Stanford University in 1893, when one of them said: "Boys, let's have our pictures taken. Who knows, some day one of us may become famous." So the four boys did, and here is the result. President-elect Herbert Hoover is shown seated, to the left, next to James White, now a successful engineer in the Hawaiian Islands. Standing, with the derby, is Arthur Diggle, who distinguished himself as a mining engineer in Australia, where he later died. The boy with the straw hat is R. E. McDonnell,

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

The following schedule will be observed at the South Manchester post office Friday, February 22, (Washington's Birthday) according to Postmaster Oliver F. Toop: City Carrier Delivery—None. Rural Carrier Delivery—None. Parcel Post Delivery—Until 10:30 a. m. Money Order Window—Closed all day. Stamp Window—Open from 7:30 to 10:30 a. m. Mails will arrive as follows: 6:45, 7:30, 10:00 a. m. Mails will be dispatched as follows: 8:50, 11:00 a. m. All departments of the office will be closed at 11:00 a. m. for the day.

The tennis association has restored Bill Tilden to amateur standing. The association must have been watching his performance on the stage.

LUTHER LEAGUE

The New Britain Luther League will be guests of the Manchester Luther League at the monthly meeting Friday night, coming on Washington's birthday. The meeting has been designated as Patriotic Night and a surprise program will be presented by the visitors. Anna D. Johnson, leader for the evening, is also chairman of the committee which includes Ellen Johnson, Hazel B. Johnson, Hildred Bohlin, Fred Soderberg and Albert Pearson. The business meeting will begin promptly at 7:45, Sherwood Anderson, newly elected president, taking the chair.

Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, left nearly $3,000,000 and Senator Underwood's estate amounted to about $50,000. It seems to pay better to break the laws than make them.

FIRST OF ALABAMA CONTINGENT

Derrill Pratt, now manager of a Texas League club, was the first of a long list of stars to enter the big leagues from the University of Alabama.

LONG SLEEP MAKES BABY HAPPY AGAIN

"Our baby kept waking us several times a night, until we started giving him a little Castoria after his last nursing," says an Iowa mother. "He slept soundly from the first night and it made him look and feel worlds better." Baby specialists endorse Fletcher's Castoria; and millions of mothers know how this purely-vegetable, harmless preparation helps babies and children, with colic, constipation, colds, diarrhea, etc. The Fletcher signature is always on the wrapper of genuine Castoria. Avoid imitations.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

"HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, promoter of dubious stock companies, is murdered sometime between one and four o'clock on Saturday afternoon. His body is found sprawled beneath the air-shaft window of his private office Monday morning by his secretary, RUTH LESTER. Ruth is engaged to JACK HAYWARD, whose office is just across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

Ruth knows Jack hates Borden for his attempted familiarity with her on Saturday morning. Petrified with fear, she recalls Jack's strange behavior of Saturday afternoon.

Fearing Jack shot Borden across the airshaft, Ruth goes to close the window above the body. It is already closed!

McMANN, police detective, learns from the elevator boys that early Saturday afternoon passengers to the seventh floor were BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; MRS. BORDEN, his wife and mother of his two children; called for her in a taxi; alimony check; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, and Jack Hayward.

McMann first accuses Mrs. Borden. When he finds footprints of a pigeon in dried blood he says the "job" was done from the inside and turns suspiciously to Ruth.

Jack admits the office across the airshaft is his and explains his return Saturday afternoon by saying he left theater tickets on his desk.

BILL COWAN, real estate man and friend of Jack's, under questioning tells of hearing Jack mutter threats against Borden Saturday morning when he saw the promoter in the opposite office attempt familiarity with Ruth. He also tells of telephoning Jack Saturday afternoon and being plugged in on a busy line and of hearing Borden quarrel violently. Jack denies the conversation with Borden but McMann points out that Borden's murder. They are interrupted by the entrance of PHILIPS, the waiter, who served Ruth and Jack at luncheon Saturday.

"I'm afraid, Miss Lester, that like most people, you're inclined to forget that waiters have eyes and ears, as well as hands."

"That's right, sir! I remember now!" the waiter corroborated eagerly. "I brought the orders right out, but first, before the young lady came back, I brought the rolls and butter and gave the young gentleman the key."

"The key? What key?" McMann demanded, his eyes taking quick note of Ruth's startled surprise.

"Why, sir, the key that had fell out of the young lady's handbag. I kicked against it when I was putting the rolls and butter on the table, or I would never have noticed it. I handed it to the young gentleman, sir."

"And what did he do with it?"

"I didn't notice, sir."

"Did you see him reach for Miss Lester's handbag to put it there?"

"No, sir. I'm quite sure he didn't, sir, at the time, at least. Probably he handed it to her when she returned to the table, sir."

"Do you think so?" McMann grinned. "Just what kind of key was this, Phillips?"

"An ordinary modern lock key, sir."

"Miss Lester, show Phillips your key to this suite, please!" McMann rapped out.

Ruth obeyed, going to the outer office to get her handbag out of the top drawer. When she returned she silently handed a key to the waiter, who fingered it briefly then laid it upon the extended palm of the detective.

"It looks like the key, Phillips?"

"It looks like it, sir, but of course I couldn't say—"

"Or is this the key you found on the floor?" Ruth asked, with quick triumph, offering a second key, differing only slightly in size and shape from the first, which she took from a small coin purse.

The waiter shook his head helplessly. "It looks like it, miss, but since most of these keys look alike—"

"Exactly!" Ruth cried. "Mr. McMann, this—this is the key to the office. You can try it and see yourself. These keys are so much alike that I was always mistaking my apartment key for my office key, and the other way round. So I solved the difficulty by keeping my office key in my coin purse, and the apartment key loose in my handbag. And the coin purse, which has a firm fastening, and its string is in its pocket in my handbag, did not fall out when I dropped the coin open, for there was only the lips?"

"Yes, miss. I didn't pick up a coin purse," the waiter agreed eagerly. "And it must not have come open, for there was only the one key, and no small change on the floor."

"All right, Phillips. Anything else to impress this couple on your memory?"

"Well, sir, the gentleman excused himself to the young lady pretty soon after I'd served the entree and left the dining room," the waiter resumed his story.

"How soon after? And how long had they been there when the entree was served?" McMann prodded.

"As I said, sir, the entree were ready in the kitchen and I brought them right out. I judge they hadn't been in the dining room more than five or six minutes when I served the food, since the gentleman ordered immediately, without waiting for the young lady. I couldn't say exactly how long it was before the gentleman left, but the food was scarcely touched, sir."

"Not hungry, eh?" McMann commented, sweeping Ruth and Jack with his narrowed eyes. "Well, Phillips, how long was the young man gone?"

"I couldn't say that, sir, to the minute, but it was quite a while—15 to 25 minutes, I should think, for the young lady was becoming very restless!" McMann repeated slowly, as he wrote the words down. "Then when the young man returned, how did he behave, Phillips? How did he look?"

"Flustered, sir, and worried, sort of. Wouldn't have any dessert, sir, and seemed to be in a hurry to get away," the waiter answered.

"Remember what they talked about when you came for the dessert order?" McMann demanded sharply.

Printed dimity, dotted swiss, printed lawn and tub silks also appropriate. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

Modern? Very! Quite Contrary!

The WOMAN'S DAY

The pros and cons of a woman well-known airplane manufacturer, dressed herself in a golden gown and slipped the other evening, and hurled herself to her death from her fifteenth floor apartment in New York. Her husband, prostrated with grief and almost following her in a suicide attempt, remarked among other things that when, drowsy from a flight, he had fallen asleep that afternoon, she had complained that he "never had time to pay attention to her."

Dismissing Mrs. Fokker's act, as that of a nervously diseased and irresponsible woman is not enough. There are hundreds and thousands of cases of domestic discord because the husband with a career has no time or energy left to amuse the wife at home. Read Sinclair Lewis' "Arrowsmith" for a vivid picture of this problem.

It rather looks as if "the modern woman" with her own interests "outside the home" might be a God-send to husbands doing such big work that they must necessarily be more than a wife amuser when at home.

SOCIETY WOMEN.

Rather tying up with the above paragraph is a suggestion by Dr. Joseph Collins, famous neurologist, that every large city have a social service center for the express purpose of "rescuing" the smart social set from a life of boredom and rapidity. . . . He speaks of the society woman as "a groping, pathetic figure living in a whirlpool of pleasure and a vacuum of sense."

This is in startling contrast to the rather prevalent idea that the butterfly society woman has become pretty well extinct, and that most of them are living as busy and useful lives as the $15-a-week shop girl.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

"Marriage in the Modern Manner" by Dr. Ira S. Wile and Mary Day Wain, is in the same vein, of many a modern practical book on how to cook in a kitchen or how to drive a car or how to play bridge or raise guinea pigs and canaries, and proceeds to put marriage pretty much in the same class of just little odd jobs which must be managed.

Perhaps the authors have the right idea. Perhaps marriage has been taken too seriously. But the new viewpoint must be acquired like a taste for olives.

CHAPTER XIX

"Just a minute, Birdwell," McMann answered, then turned to the real estate man, Bill Cowan, who was obviously eager to escape. "Cowan, I'm inclined to let you go on about your business and not hold you as a material witness, if you give me your promise not to talk with anyone—reporters, your wife, anyone else—about this case, and will promise further not to leave town, but hold yourself available for further questioning."

Cowan gave both promises with almost ludicrous alacrity and bolted, after another apologetic grip of Jack Hayward's hand. The waiter, Phillips, was ushered in a small, neat, middle-aged man in a well-brushed black overcoat, snugly buttoned over his waiter's uniform.

After preliminary questions as to his name, place of residence and occupation, McMann asked: "Ever see this couple before, Phillips?"

Meek brown eyes studied Ruth Lester and Jack Hayward conscientiously. "Yes, sir. They lunched at one of my tables in the Chester dining room Saturday."

"At what time?"

The waiter shrugged slightly and smiled apologetically. "That I could not say, sir. After the 12-30 to 1:30 rush, sir, I should say."

"Did you notice them particularly, Phillips? Anything at all to fix this couple in your mind?" McMann pursued.

"Well, sir, there were several things," the waiter began deprecatingly. "I thought it odd that the young lady wouldn't take her fur coat off, sir, as the dining room is quite warm."

"I didn't take my coat off because I was chilled—felt as if I were taking cold," Ruth explained, taking care to keep dejected out of her voice.

"You seem to have recovered from the cold," McMann reminded her. "Perhaps there was something heavy in the lining pocket which you didn't want the waiter to feel or see?"

Ruth knew that he was referring to her missing automatic. "There was nothing in the pocket, Mr. McMann!"

McMann smiled, shrugged, then turned to the waiter again. "You said there were several things that impressed this couple on your memory. What else, Phillips?"

"Well, sir, the young lady dropped her pocketbook, and while I was stooping to pick up the scattered contents of the bag, the little lady excused herself, saying she had to telephone."

"To warn Borden not to let Jack Hayward into his office?" McMann pounced, his glinting, narrowed gray eyes fixed upon Ruth.

The girl's face flamed. "No! I simply made the conventional excuse and went to the ladies' rest room to powder my face. I telephoned no one."

"Humm!" McMann obviously did not believe her. "What else, Phillips?"

"While I was picking up the scattered contents of the bag, the young gentleman was studying the menu card," the waiter went on, in his deprecating, hesitant manner. "He put the things back in the young lady's bag and gave me the order, without waiting for the young lady."

"What was the order?" McMann demanded.

"I wouldn't like to swear to that, sir—"

"I ordered broiled mushrooms on toast for Miss Lester, and sweetbread patties for myself," Jack interrupted. "They were on the ready-to-serve list, and both of us are in the habit of eating light lunches."

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

What are we doing? Training every other one of our girls for jobs in the business world, nothing less.

It is difficult to predict what will happen in ten or fifteen years. "It was a large bag and quite heavy, but I didn't remember whether it was coupling or not," the waiter answered conscientiously.

"Did the gentleman leave you a big tip, Phillips?" McMann asked, grinning.

The waiter shrugged and spread his hands. "He left the change from two one dollar bills and a half dollar. The bill came to two forty-five, sir."

McMann roared with sudden laughter. "A nickel tip! No wonder you've got such a good memory where this gentleman is concerned, Phillips!"

Jack Hayward's face flamed with humiliation. With furious hate he thrust his hand into his pocket and drew out a dollar bill. "Here, waiter! I apologize. I don't think I've looked at the amount of the bill. God knows no one has ever before been able to accuse me of being a niggardly tipper, here!"

But McMann halted the advance of the waiter's eager hand. "Put up your money, Hayward! What would have been a big tip on Saturday night look to the jury like a small bribe to make this man forget some of the things he has unfortunately for you—so well remembered!"

Birdwell opened the communicating door. "A report on Benny Smith, the office boy, sir."

(To be Continued)

Did Jack Hayward kill Harry Borden? If not, who did? Don't miss the next chapter of this thrilling mystery.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL

MEDICAL MARTYRS LIKE NOGUCHI AID OUR LIVES.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Just a few months have passed since the world was startled by the sudden death of an intrepid investigator of tropical disease, Hideo Noguchi. He was but one of many scientists who have gone to study at first hand the causes of infection, so that man might be freed from the peril of disease.

In the jungle, sleeping sickness, yellow fever, malaria, and a dozen other tropical diseases are far more dangerous than lions, tigers, elephants or serpents. In the control of these enemies scientists do not use rifles but pills of quinine and syringes loaded with salvarsan.

The savages who have seen whole tribes wiped out by tropical diseases have learned to trust the science of the white man rather than the alchemy, the magic, the dances and prayers of magicians and priests and atavistic medicine men.

Insect Carriers.

One of the extremely interesting observations of investigators of tropical disease is the fact that these complaints are transferred from man or from animals to man by means of insect carriers. Thus malaria is carried by the anopheles mosquito, filariasis by several species of mosquito, schistosomiasis through larvae found in freshwater streams, relapsing fever by lice and bedbugs, dengue by the mosquito, typhus by lice, and typhoid fever by the house fly, rat-bite fever and Weil's disease or infectious jaundice by the rat, plague by the flea and the rat.

In Dr. Arthur Torrance's interesting account "Tracking Down the Enemies of Man," he gives a realistic account of the way in which the tsetse fly brings to man the dangerous and indeed almost invariably fatal trypanosomiasis or African sleeping sickness.

"The bite of an infected tsetse fly is usually announced by a sharp needle-like prick of pain," he writes, "and is invariably immediately followed by a sense of torpor in the vicinity of the bite. In the course of several days the pain subsides, but a few days later the bitten person becomes ill with fever, which may last several days before completely subsiding, but which will recur at regular periods of days or weeks with an ever increasing severity."

Victim Enticed.

"In course of time, the infected person becomes slightly anaemic, much debilitated and acutely feeble in mind and body. He suffers terribly from headache. The glands become tender and enlarged."

"After a few weeks, or even much earlier, there will appear at the back of the throat a peculiar rash on the middle of the chest, right between the nipples. This rash is a definite sign of infection by the parasite of the trypanosome disease."

Through the martyr-like deaths of many medical investigators,

At Least A Quart of Milk per Day per Child

That is the correct amount, recommended by leading doctors and child specialists, for proper growth and health of every boy or girl. Every mother wants her children to lead in play, to be smart in school, and "bubbling over" with health and happiness. Give them milk and cream at every meal, to drink, in cooking, with vegetables and fruits, on their cereals, or after school.

Milk is the most economical food you can buy. It contains proteins, carbohydrates and fats, in the right proportions, minerals for building bones and teeth, vitamins for growth and to build disease resistance. Not only is it wholesome and good for them, but they like it!

"Every household should have milk in abundance," says the U. S. Government. At least a pint every day for father and mother is required for proper health, vigor and vitality. Milk is easily digested. Nature made it good for you. Let us serve you.

Physicians say Cascarets give your bowels as much real exercise as you get from an hour of hard play! They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things only produce mechanical or chemical action, which really weakens the bowels.

Every time you take Cascarets your bowels become stronger. That's the reason they give lasting relief from constipation, biliousness, headaches, indigestion, bloating, etc. That's why 20 million boxes are used a year!

New York Turns Thumbs Down On Ace Hudkins

Not the Fans But a Commissioner Who Does Not Like His Style—In Line for Championship.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Feb. 20.—Not because the fighter is a bad influence. He isn't. Not because he can find anything objectionable in his record. They can't. Not because of anything, in fact, except one official's personal prejudice, New York has taken in the doormat marked "Welcome" and substituted the old yellow fever notice for the man who rightfully won the middleweight championship and wrongfully lost the decision, namely Ace Hudkins.

Hudkins may yet win either the welterweight or the middleweight titles, for he probably is the best man available in both classes. If so, he will do his winning outside of New York, this being pre-determined by the fact that henceforth he is likely to do his fighting outside of New York. The word has gone forth here, surreptitiously but all the more officially because of that fact, that Hudkins is not wanted. It seems that the fellow fights too enthusiastically to be anything else but downright vulgar and this is a community which is all for uplift. It simply can't afford to have its fighters fighting around here.

Public Satisfaction. Strangely, there has been no evidence of discontent on the part of the populace. Boxing is supposed to be run for the special benefit of the populace, which can disapprove of anything, a man, a fight, a referee, by staying away from it in droves. It didn't stay away even in duets the night he licked Rene De Vos and there was only one man in the house who didn't like the way he did it. That man was a boxing commissioner.

He, therapeutically arrogated unto himself the "hush" concession in this vicinity and, with star chamber secrecy, eased the word along to matchmakers that Hudkins was an undesirable. He didn't trouble to discover whether Hudkins was able to anybody else, just as the commission never bothered to ascertain whether people, other than the commissioners, themselves, might care for smoking in especially ventilated public places. It apparently was enough that Hudkins wasn't acceptable to him, America's overpopulated with geniuses who know what is best for somebody else.

The man may fight along unorthodox lines. There may be people who don't care for his style. These people undoubtedly to him, America's overpopulated with geniuses who know what is best for somebody else. He, therapeutically arrogated unto himself the "hush" concession in this vicinity and, with star chamber secrecy, eased the word along to matchmakers that Hudkins was an undesirable. He didn't trouble to discover whether Hudkins was able to anybody else, just as the commission never bothered to ascertain whether people, other than the commissioners, themselves, might care for smoking in especially ventilated public places. Over-work was largely responsible for both of these defeats, although there were other factors that contributed their part to the failure. Pa thinks now that he has solved the training problem. He prescribes but very little work in the gymnasium, a mile or two jaunt in the open air and plenty of fights with second-raters to keep Young Stribling in practice and the Stribling coffers well supplied with currency. Stribling's name was a household word spreading beyond the confines of his own state. After he had grown into the middleweight class, Pa believed his son was ready to tackle the big one, and through promoters at Columbus, Ga., a deal was hurried at Johnny Wilson, who then occupied the middleweight throne. Wilson, always a cautious individual, had heard rumors concerning this southern novice and decided that caution was the better part of valor.

The "Macon schoolboy boxer" fought many times during his brief stay in the middleweight division. Sport writers all over the south continue to cry that Pa was ruining the boy's chances by allowing him to fight so often, but on round ex-vaudeville actor turned deaf ears to the criticism. The money was pouring in and bigger purses were promised in the future. It took experience to make a fighter, he said, and he was going to see that Billy had lots of it.

Young Stribling's stay in the middleweight class was a brief one. He was growing steadily, his arms were becoming larger, his shoulders were getting broader and his muscles were becoming tough and wiry sinews that rippled over his body. There had been some doubt in the senior Stribling's mind whether or not Billy would ever grow into a full-fledged heavyweight, but with this almost phenomenal development in the course of five brief years, Pa's hopes grew stronger.

TOMORROW — The McFigue-Stribling fight at Columbus, Ga.

STRIBLING LOST 7 OF 240 FIGHTS

Won 114 by Knockouts; Overtrained for Berlenbach and Loughran.

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third chapter of the story of Young Stribling's life written for The Herald and NEA Service, by Milton K. Wallace of Macon, Ga., a life-long friend of the Striblings.

By MILTON K. WALLACE
Young Stribling, who at the age of 24, has held the southern championship of every division from the bantamweight class upward, has 240 battles since beginning his career in 1921, winning 114 of them by knockouts. In this number he has been defeated by only seven opponents.

The year 1923 found Stribling engaging in one of the most active periods of his ring career. He met and defeated such men as George Shade, Young Marullo, Harry Krohn, Johnny Kisch, Jimmy Darcy, Vic McLaughlin and Happy Howard, besides a score of lesser known fighters.

One of the hardest bouts of his career came at this time when he lost a close decision to Frankie Carbone, veteran middleweight. Carbone, a tough battler of the old school, had many years of experience behind him, while Stribling had been in the fight game for a little more than two years.

The newspapers of the south were alarmed and said Pa was fighting W. L. too much. The eastern and northern fight fans had not yet heard of the Bacon flash. "You are burning him out," the scribes said, but Pa's reply was that he knew his son's condition better than anyone else and that although he appreciated their advice, he would continue to allow him to fight just as often as he saw fit.

The senior Stribling has often been criticized for "picking set-ups" for his son. "Boxing is a business. Just like the legal profession," he said in reply to this charge. "We are not in for glory alone. Everybody wants to make money and we are not exceptions to the rule. You never hear a lawyer criticized because he takes an easy case once in a while, nor a doctor criticized because he will take cases other than those of disease. Look back through the records of all the world champions of the past, and you'll find a lot of unfamiliar names."

Public opinion has never bothered Pa to any great extent. He has become callous to the squawks of the press, and particularly the criticism heaped on him by eastern sport writers. He has his own ideas about how a fighter should train, and consequently has carried his boy to the top of his profession.

There was possibly one mistake that Pa made in training Young Stribling — a mistake that was never mentioned by the press. In two of the most important battles Stribling ever had, the fight with Paul Berlenbach and Tommy Loughran, which he lost, Stribling was over-trained. Pa was really "burning out" his son by training him too severely, but not by permitting him to fight too often, as it had been charged.

Over-work was largely responsible for both of these defeats, although there were other factors that contributed their part to the failure. Pa thinks now that he has solved the training problem. He prescribes but very little work in the gymnasium, a mile or two jaunt in the open air and plenty of fights with second-raters to keep Young Stribling in practice and the Stribling coffers well supplied with currency. Stribling's name was a household word spreading beyond the confines of his own state. After he had grown into the middleweight class, Pa believed his son was ready to tackle the big one, and through promoters at Columbus, Ga., a deal was hurried at Johnny Wilson, who then occupied the middleweight throne. Wilson, always a cautious individual, had heard rumors concerning this southern novice and decided that caution was the better part of valor.

Long skirts were not in style when Johny Kilbane took his wife and infant daughter to Atlantic City to spend some of the money he was just beginning to earn as the world's featherweight champion. Mrs. Kilbane was outfitted by Cleveland's finest modiste, but Johny's tailor didn't do so well by him.

"That fellow sold me a sucker suit," Kilbane said recently when he was shown the above picture. "He must have held about five yards of the coat in the back while I was looking at the front. It felt like a bath robe when I put it on, but the sports were dressing in loose clothes then."

Kilbane, who has retired, still lives in Cleveland.

Rec Girls Nose Out Conn. Mutual 24-22

Peggy McLaughlin's Basket Wins Nip and Tuck Battle; Miriam Welles and Anne Scranton Also Feature.

The Rec Girls won an important game last night at the Rec from the Connecticut Mutual lassies of Hartford. The final score was 24 to 22. Hartford led most of the way until the final quarter when the locals rallied and overcame the gap. A long shot by Peggy McLaughlin furnished Manchester with what proved to be the winning points. Miriam Welles, the ever reliable, had scored two baskets in quick succession just before that to tie the score.

Ann Scranton played an unusually good game last night while the Taylor sisters, "Tommy" and Katherine, starred for the visitors. Hartford appeared to have the game on ice with only a comparatively few minutes to play when the visiting coach took out his center. Before he put her back into the game, the gap was closed. It was a costly move on his part.

There will be no session of the Herald Bowling League tomorrow night and not again until next week Thursday.

This actign has been taken by the league officials as a fitting tribute to the memory of Joe Sargent, member of the Manchester Construction team, who was killed early today in an automobile accident on East Center street.

Sargent was one of the best bowlers in Manchester and was very popular among the younger element of the town being very well known and liked.

FARRELL PREDICTS MIAMI BOUT WILL GO OVER THE TOP

Says Rickard's Policy Followed by Carey Assures Financial Success of Fight

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

Miami Beach, Feb. 20.—This is another spot off the beaten path of the battle-scarred prize fight reporters. But it is not either Shelby, Mont. Nor is it the Miami of a number of years ago that tried to get two high-priced young men into the ring with moneyless promises.

There was a fight in Shelby between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons but it was the financial bust of history. Three banks blew up under the strain of paying Dempsey $100,000 less than he had been guaranteed to do. Tom Gibbons had demanded a single copper he would have been forced to accept an I. O. U. signed with a borrowed pencil.

Miami's venture, attempted later, was not quite such a crash. It may be ages before Shelby's record ever will be tied. Miami tried to stage a fight between Willie Stribling and Gene Tunney without money and without an experienced promoter in the ring as there was at Shelby.

Tunney may not have been in fear of the same young man who is a principal in the coming contest, but he certainly was looking for an "out" and did take quick advantage of the chance offered.

Arriving here from the north with the predictions of northerners that "there won't be a fight down there," it is easy to have any misgivings dispelled. The men in charge tell you that Jack Sharkey and Willie Stribling will be in there to do something on the night of next Wednesday. And they are the big money men—men of Tex Rickard's group of 600 millionaires.

Some Wall street vaults will have to take the rap. It is not the purpose of this piece to say how many thousands of dollars are to be made or lost on Rickard's last venture or how many vacant seats there will be when time comes for the fight that has been advertised to produce the next heavyweight champion of the world.

It is our guess that there will be many persons present and the guess is based upon the experience gained in covering the Shelby tragedy and the Miami comedy Rickard.

The men who buy tickets for this fight know that there is going to be a fight. Prospective purchasers had their doubts from the first about the Shelby fight and they would take advantage of any excuse to duck his Miami engagement, and the magic of the Rickard name was not applied to either.

The memory of Rickard hangs around this Miami Beach venture. The men who tried to put over what they thought to be a hopeless task as a memorial to him that might cost them two hundred thousand dollars. They followed the Rickard policy of being square and telling the world what was going on.

There will be no session of the Herald Bowling League tomorrow night and not again until next week Thursday.

This actign has been taken by the league officials as a fitting tribute to the memory of Joe Sargent, member of the Manchester Construction team, who was killed early today in an automobile accident on East Center street.

BRISTOL EASILY OUTCLASSES LOCALS IN ROUGH GAME 44-28

Large Crowd Sees Rough and Tumble Battle in Which Four Players Get Early Ticket to Showers; Holland Outstanding for Rec Despite His Faux Pas; Winters Gets in "Dutch" With Crowd But Handles Game Well; Picken, Richtmyer and Marchinek Star for Winners.

BY TOM STOWE

"The better team won and, what's more, by the proverbial mile. Manchester was outclassed by a much superior team. That, ladies and gentlemen, briefly sums up the 44 to 28 victory which the Bristol Endees scored over the Rec Five last night on the Rec court. The defeat totally eliminates Manchester from any state championship aspirations it may have had. The Rec has a mighty good team in its class but they overstepped their limits in competing against New Britain and Bristol.

If anything, Bristol won more convincingly here last night than it did in Bristol a couple of weeks ago when the score was 40 to 28. Coming to town without their sensational center, Sid Richman of Newark, N. J., Bristol used Ray Marchinek to good advantage at the jump position. Incidentally, Substitute Marchinek was high scorer for Bristol with 13 points and also held Roy Norris, local center, without a single point.

The game was featured by the rough playing of both teams. Referee Gus Winter of Springfield had a tough time keeping the players within bounds. Many in the crowd were of the opinion that he was favoring the much taller, larger and more experienced Bristol players and at times his decisions were loudly booed. Bristol, however, was much the smarter team and made most of its fouls on the sly, many, in fact, when the referee's back was turned watching the man with the ball, Manchester.

On the other hand used about as much discretion as Chicago gangsters. They committed their crimes in broad day light, so to speak. Winters called fifteen fouls on each team, but it did look at times as if he overlooked Bristol persons.

Ty Holland was the only real shining light on the Manchester team. This spunky little chap who was a high school sensation a few years back, was the only man on the Rec team to hold his opponent scoreless. The man in question is "Wardy" Waterman. In addition Holland broke up many shots which other players were about to take and his floor-work was excellent.

All this besides the fact that the three baskets he sunk were all of the spectacular variety. His first two were from past the mid-court of the floor and drew rounds of applause from the crowded house. To a great extent, it was Holland's plucky work against such overwhelming odds, that made the crowd so biased. Down in Bristol, Holland's lack of height served him to a disadvantage and he was bonched. Last night it was to be Wrong Attitude. The Rec Five fought hard but had the wrong attitude. They let personal feelings get the better of them while Bristol was too foxy and experienced to be caught in such a trap. Manager Ben Clune found occasion to use all of his eight players. Mantelli split up at forward and at guard. Nichols took Norris' place when he was elected on personals and Gustafson did the same favor for Holland. The latter promptly sunk a field goal and foul upon entrance to the battle. The lightning cutting of Picken, eagle eye of Richtmyer and clever work of Marchinek was an attack which Manchester couldn't solve consistently.

MAX SCHMELLING, WHO LOOKS TO BE A POSSIBLE HEAVYWEIGHT CONTENDER SINCE SMACKING TOWN, RISKY. IS A METHICAL FIGHTER AND STUDIOUS. TOO BAD HE DIDN'T GET A CRACK AT TUNNEY BEFORE HE RETIRED. THE TWO COULD HAVE WATCHED METHODS ALL OVER THE PLACE AND NO ONE WOULD HAVE BEEN HURT AT ALL.

Of course, Max couldn't be expected to step right in and battle Sharkey or Stribling right now. He doesn't know nearly enough about wrestling.

TELLS REC'S FAULT

Sports Editor,
The Herald,
Dear Sir:

A word or two for the good of the Rec team. Your playing is very good. Your team work is strong. Your subs are weak and I think you're wrong when you bar a fellow that will help you along.

This, my friends, answers the question of the whole fan. They are the ones you must please. Your manager is manager, do as he says. Let's drop this personal grievance and put in your men. Play for the Rec and the support of basketball.

Having followed the game closely I write you this appeal for close teamwork and your own future. Do this. Get out and play hard. Beat Bristol, Meriden, New Britain which I think you can. Bring a state championship to Manchester, and you, your friends, fans, town, with everybody pulling for you will make a name for yourselves.

I think that is better for you than the present attitude you boys are taking. It will get you nothing. Good luck to you.

For the good of the sport.
A STEADY FAN.

W. B. A. MEMBERS HAVE WASHINGTON PARTY

Surprise Program Follows Last Evening's Business Session; Mrs. Best Honored.

Members of Mystic Review, Woman's Benefit association, held a jolly party last evening in Odd Fellows' hall, following a brief business session. The committee in charge was Mrs. C. G. Tyler and Mrs. P. McLagan. The "surprise" program turned out to be a district school entertainment in observance of Washington's birthday. The married women were addressed by their maiden names by the teacher, Mrs. Tyler, and called upon to answer a number of questions in relation to the Father of his Country, or to read appropriate poems. Patriotic songs were sung and allegiances pledged to the American flag. Everybody entered into the fun and thoroughly enjoyed the session of school.

A hatchet hunt followed and Mrs. Richard Gutmer succeeded in finding the greatest number of red, white and blue hatchets hidden about the room. Her reward was a box of cherries and other candies, which she promptly shared with the others present. Coffee and sandwiches in variety and cherry candies were served from a tastefully decorated table presided over by Mrs. W. J. Taylor dressed to represent Martha Washington.

During the evening Mrs. Grace Best of Hartford, president for several years, was presented with a gold piece. A gold piece was also given to Mrs. Ethel Cowles who has been the efficient captain of the guards. Mrs. Grace Lathrop received a handsome silk scarf in appreciation of her work as installing officer.

A drawing was held on the crystal tree made by Mrs. Ruth Waddell, and Doris, small daughter of Mrs. Best, was the winner. Mrs. Emma Franz, the new president, announced a box social to follow the next regular business session. The proceeds will be used for the flower fund.

Police Court

Harold Bansen came here from New York City yesterday to dispose of some of his wares and neglected to attend to the duty of securing a license for that purpose. He was arrested by Patrolman R. W. Wirtalla and ordered to appear in court this morning. He posted a bond of $25 cash for that purpose and when the court session opened this morning Bansen failed to appear. The result was that his bond was called and the $25 forfeited.

GAS BUGGIES—Alibi Number One

MISS AVALON... THAT'S STRANGE, CLISBY, DID SHE GIVE YOU ANY INKING OF WHAT IT WAS ALL ABOUT? NEVER MIND, GET ME HER NUMBER...

OH, MR. DRESSER, I'VE TRIED ALL DAY TO GET YOU, BUT ABOUT OUR ENGAGEMENT SATURDAY NIGHT, I'M AFRAID I MUST BE EXCUSED. I'VE HAD ANOTHER ATTACK OF MY OLD HEADACHES AND THEY ALWAYS LAST FOR SEVERAL DAYS...

I HOPE SHE IS BETTER BY SATURDAY. SHE'S QUITE ILL BECAUSE IT ONLY SEEMED TO UPSET HER MORE WHEN I INSISTED UPON KEEPING THE DATE OPEN AND STAYING IN IF SHE COULDN'T GO OUT. OH WELL...LOTS CAN HAPPEN IN THREE DAYS.

AH, HOPES DE BOSS DON'T BACK OUT ON MR. HEM'S DINNER. AHD SURE LIKE TO SEE DAT GAL, CORNELIA, AGAIN.

In the hole they placed a big box with bedding, and Sir Patrick hid himself in the new sanctuary. Then water drained into the hole and it was impossible to stay there. Sir Patrick determined to flee the country, and Grizel helped to alter his clothes that he might look like a peasant and get safely away.

 Sketches by Ilessey; Synopsis by Braucher

Every night at 12 Grizel used to set out on the lonely mile and a half to the church where her father hid in the family burying vault. She faced the hazard of discovery by the soldiers and the danger of being accosted by poachers or country people in the dark. There were neighbors with prying eyes, and dogs that chased her, but she remained loyal.

At last Grizel thought it would be safe for her father to return to a hiding place in the castle. She and a trusted servant helped him to return.

They dug a great hole in the basement of the castle, using their hands, as they feared a spade would make too much noise.

It isn't a bit hard to get a SHARE of any kind of STOCK you want—it you are satisfied with letter golf par four. One solution is on another page.

Letter Golf grid with letters S, H, A, R, E and S, T, O, C, K.

1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You change only one letter at a time. 3—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4—The order of letters cannot be changed. One solution is printed on the comic page.

PICK TENTATIVE CAST FOR THE PLAYERS' NEXT

Tryouts held last night for the Town Players next production, "A Bill of Divorcement," to be given about the second week in April, yielded the following cast: "Margaret, the wife," Madeline Woodhouse or Alice Marshall; "Hilary, her divorced husband," Franklin Richmond or Louis Smith; "Kit, the daughter's lover," Ray Warren; "Sydney, the daughter," Betty Crooks; "English rector," Benjamin Radding; "Dr. Elliott," William Gahrman; "Old Maid Aunt," Beatrice Armstrong; "Gray, engaged to marry the divorced wife," Terry Shannon; "Basset, the maid," Florence Wilson.
 The first four named characters are the first and second leads in the play. Four persons were picked to try out for the first two parts, as no decision could be reached on the player best adapted for the role.

LOCAL MEN ATTEND FRIGIDAIRE CONVENTION

New application of refrigeration, perfected by Frigidaire engineers, make cold more comfortable than before to human comfort and, happiness, according to Mr. Bayer and Mr. Hillery of The Home Electric Appliance Corp., local Frigidaire dealers for Manchester and vicinity, who have returned from a three day convention at Boston, Mass., where they saw an electric room cooler and a device for the regulation of freezing temperatures exhibited and explained. The entire selling force of the Home Electric Appliance Corp., attended this convention which included Harry Alburgh, Lee Hutchinson and William Brown, service man on Frigidaire.
 "The room cooler, designed to banish summertime discomforts is something which scientists and engineers have sought for years," said Mr. Bayer local Frigidaire engineer. "In tests it has been found to lower temperature of an average room ten degrees in thirty minutes and to bring about a ten per cent decrease in humidity."
 Just as important is the new convention which included Harry Alburgh, equipped with this device, a housewife with no more trouble than turning a radio dial, may select any one of six different freezing speeds for the preparation of elaborate frozen desserts and other dainties in the freezing trays. In perfecting this device, engineers have kept in mind the hundreds of thousands of housewives who already own Frigidaires and have made the control so that it can be attached to previous models.
 "Another development introduced at the meeting was a household model selling at the lowest price in the history of the company. This model, the result of long production study and analysis, is equipped with the new cold control and embodies all the advantages of manufacture and efficiency which have contributed to Frigidaire's leadership.
 "The convention attended by the local dealers and salesmen was a series of ten which Frigidaire Corporation is holding to reach 11,000 members of its field organization in the United States and Canada.

ELLINGTON FIREMEN USE NEW APPARATUS
 Barrels of Water on Truck Provide Ammunition for Successful Fight.
 (Special to The Herald.)
 Ellington, Feb. 20.—A fire that started shortly after 6 o'clock last night destroyed a barn 40x50 feet, containing farming implements valued at $4,500 by the owner, John T. McKnight, one of Ellington's leading citizens and most skillful farmers.
 The barn was directly across Maple street from Mr. McKnight's attractive home and, was on property leased to A. L. Young, school supervisor. The blaze was less than twenty feet from the house and but for the valiant work of the newly organized and newly equipped fire department of Ellington it might have become much more serious.
 The fire was discovered by Mr. Young's son while his mother was calling on her neighbor, Mrs. Coolidge. The flames were eating their way from the back part of the barn and making rapid headway. It was not possible to get into the barn, so the barn was away from home with the machine.
 It was the first real test given to the Ellington fire fighting apparatus and both apparatus and men performed their work well.
 The McKnight place is not far from the business part of Ellington village, where is located the post-office, the school and the hall, where there is a storage reservoir of 1,000 gallons of water. But the firemen got water on the fire just the same. They came to the scene in a small automobile truck which carries four barrels, a total capacity of 200 gallons. There is also a chemical attachment to the pump. The chemical was used in holding back the flames while buckets carried on the truck dipped water from the barrels. Water was also pumped from the well and thrown up against the house to keep it wet and prevent it from catching fire.
 While this was being done the hose of which there is 1,000 feet, was connected up with the booster, operated by gasoline engine and connected with the suction into the barrels. When this booster is started it throws a stream with about forty to fifty pounds pressure, but the nozzle, it was the opinion expressed last night, might be made smaller and a better pressure secured.
 It takes but little time to change the suction pipe from one barrel to the other. With the four barrels emptied the entire length of 1,000 feet of hose was run out across Maple street and while fire police guarded the hose from being run over the suction was dropped into a cistern of rain water and for about ten minutes there was another good supply, which was sufficient to keep away the flames from the home of Mr. Young.
 Mr. McKnight estimated that the loss on the machinery in storage and on the hay would probably reach about $4,500. On the barn, which was an exceptionally good one, he estimated that the cost of replacement would be considerable more than it cost to build and that the total loss would be about $7,000.
 Investigator on Hand.
 While the fire was in progress Sergeant Hulbert of Somers, of the Stafford Springs barracks, of the state police, learned that there had been nobody in the barn.
 The state police of the Stafford barracks have been busy of late investigating fires of unknown and unexplained origin.
 A comparison of the percentage of foreign born and native born prisoners at Sing Sing shows that foreigners are not, on the whole, more criminal than natives.
