

U. S. TO JOIN WORLD COURT, BELIEF NOW

Elihu Root in Europe Wants Court to Modify Its Statute to Allow the United States In.

Washington, March 11.—Hopes of World Court adherents in the United States appeared today to be nearer to realization than at any time since President Harding made the initial move for entry of this country into the tribunal.

Advices from abroad concerning the proposals made by Elihu Root, American unofficial representative at the meeting in Geneva, for modifications to the court's statute which would permit of acceptance by the powers of the Senate's reservation, were received with interest.

Root is endeavoring to get court members to so modify their attitude toward the Senate's fifth reservation which concerns questions in which the United States claims or has an interest, that the Senate could accept the powers' formula.

Depend on Hoover.

Court supporters look to President Hoover to enter the United States. They are hoping and expecting the President will deal with the problem in his message to the new Congress when it meets in extra session April 15.

Secretary Kellogg in long delayed note to the membership of the World Court, paved the way for Root's efforts, by pointing out that the difference between the members and the United States on the subject matter of the Senate's fifth reservation, was not great. He called their attention to a court decision refusing to consider a case affecting Russia on the latter's refusal to recognize court jurisdiction because the Soviet was not a member of the League of Nations.

Root's suggestion is that the court agree that if the President of the United States notifies it that the United States claims or has an interest in any question coming before the court, it shall have the same weight as an objection by a member of the league.

If the court then decided to proceed regardless of an objection, then the United States would be at liberty to withdraw from membership and the decision would not be binding as affecting this country.

It is considered significant that before Root sailed for Europe to attend the present meeting of the court, President Hoover, then president-elect, President Coolidge, Secretary Kellogg, Senator Borah, and other Senate leaders who had heretofore opposed American entry, Kellogg's delayed note—it took three years to get it—was sent soon after Root's departure, and was believed to represent the Hoover view as well as that of the Coolidge administration.

SICKNESS AFFECTED KING GEORGE'S MIND

News Just Leaks Out; Prince Not Satisfied With Council of State.

London, March 11.—While the question of creating a regency for Great Britain is being considered there is no intention of doing anything immediately, International News Service learned from an authoritative source this afternoon.

Doctors attending King George have informed the government that it is probable he will have sufficiently recovered within the next two months to undertake important executive and state duties.

The government is opposed to the Council of State which the Prince of Wales believes is functioning in an unsatisfactory manner. However, the government is not disposed to yield to the Prince's strong wish that a regency be instituted at once.

Affected His Mind

It is stated that King George is now able to concentrate for periods of 30 to 60 minutes. It was not known until recently that his long illness had left any mental effect. A medical bulletin, issued with the sanction of the government, gave the first news that the king's illness had left him in such condition that he could not concentrate his mind for long periods of time.

Regency Now Planned

For the purpose of guarding against emergencies, coupled with the fear that advanced senility may suddenly appear, a bill setting up a regency is now in preparation. If necessary it could be passed by the

SEGRAVE SET FOR TRY AT SPEED MARK

"Golden Arrow" Ready for Attempt to Go Faster Than 207.55 Miles an Hour.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 11.—Major H. O. D. Segrave, England's champion automobile racing driver, today broke all world records for speed by driving his Golden Arrow motor 231 miles per hour on the beach here.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 11.—This flag-bedecked town was on the tip-toe of expectancy today for apparently the "zero hour" is at hand when Major H. O. D. Segrave, of England will drive his long, torpedo-shaped automobile, "The Golden Arrow," over the beach speedway in an attempt to better the world record of 207.55 miles an hour made last year by Ray Keech, of Philadelphia in "The Triplex."

Major Segrave said this morning that the beach and weather conditions have so improved that there was every likelihood that he would run down the ocean speedway about 2 o'clock this afternoon. The long awaited northeaster that has the effect of smoothing out the sands of the beach blew all night. This morning the wind had abated and as low tide set in the sands were revealed to be smooth over the nine mile course.

An hour after Segrave shoots down the course in his "projectile," J. M. White of Philadelphia, owner of the "Triplex," will make an attempt to establish a new world record. If Segrave fails to break the present record White will try to do it. If Segrave sets a new record White will go after that.

Whether White will drive the car himself was a matter of some concern.

THREATENS TO SUE ON GAS STATION BAN

Earl Campbell Says Blocking of Station Causes Him Heavy Loss.

A suit for damages is being considered today by Earl W. Campbell, local gasoline station proprietor, as the result of obstacles which have been placed in the path of a gasoline station at East Center and Foster streets that he has been planning for over two years. Mr. Campbell claims that he is damaged well over $25,000 through the refusal of local and state authorities to allow him to build a gasoline station.

Mr. Campbell purchased the property at East Center street and Foster street two years ago from Elman and Rolston. He claims he made the purchase with the understanding the site would be used for business purposes. He asked for a gasoline station permit, and it was granted. Two weeks ago, however, State Troop Warden Luther M. Keith notified Mr. Campbell that he would not allow two trees to be cut down on the property. These two trees interfere with the plans for the proposed Campbell filling station in that they do not allow an entrance to the property from East Center street.

Foundation Built.

Already a foundation on the rear of the lot has been built for the Ruddell home, which has occupied the lot, and the contract has been let for moving the house back to the new foundation. Equipment has been purchased for the proposed station costing $5,500 and the station itself would cost $5,000, according to Mr. Campbell. The cost of moving the house will reach $4,000, including the expense of digging a cellar and building a foundation. The original purchase price for the property was $18,500, all of which constitutes a big loss to Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell has planned a

FEDERALS AWAITING FOE

Mexican federal soldiers are shown here atop Juarez buildings, ready for their unsuccessful attempt to repel the invading revolutionists, who advanced on the city from the south at daybreak and finally captured it after a bloody battle in the streets. Machine guns spat streams of leaden death, rifles cracked and artillery boomed as the fighting raged, first on the outskirts of the town and later in the city itself as the advancing rebels finally forced the surrender of the defeated federals. This picture was taken by a cameraman for The Evening Herald and NEA Service, flown from El Paso to Los Angeles by airplane and speeded thence by telephoto.

Police Official's Son Is Stabbed In Fight

Hollywood, Cal., March 11.—William Mahoney, 37, said to be a son of Police Inspector Patrick Mahoney of New York, was mysteriously stabbed early today in the apartment of Leonora Cosnova, former Ziegfeld Follies beauty, culminating an all-night drinking party, according to a police report.

While Mahoney was seriously injured, he is not expected to die. No arrests have been made.

The stabbing was said to have climaxed a fist-fight between Mahoney and Mitchell Harris, stage actor.

"We had an argument," Harris told police. "I don't remember what it was about. I hit Mahoney. He hit me and I faded out of the picture."

"When I woke up," the actor related, "they told me an ambulance had been there and had taken Mahoney to a hospital. They told me he had been stabbed."

NEW YORK BOOTLEGGERS HIKING IT FOR COUNTRY

Five Years Sentence Under Jones Law Has Already Forced 500 Speakeasies to Close Up.

New York, March 11.—The bootleggers in this Man's town are going back to the farm.

The night clubs are drying up like a 19th century prune. Pretty soon, a fellow is liable to get something to eat there.

The speakeasies are in panic—the bartenders are so excited they are drinking their own liquor.

Five years imprisonment in a joint where the bars aren't mahogany—the penalty under the new Jones enforcement law—today hung over the Broadway wet belt like a tramp over the free lunch.

And by the way, if the bartender asks you your name don't say Jones, say Smith.

500 Clubs Quit

Since the Jones law went into effect a week ago more than 500 speakeasies have voluntarily padlocked themselves.

They are frankly waving the white apron in token of surrender.

Five years in prison is too long between drinks, the owners declare.

And there are other things to make the business go blotto.

President Hoover's plans for a law enforcement fact finding commission will do the liquor trade no good.

And then the sudden visit here of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement, made every bootlegger's heart shimmy in fear.

Mabel's Plans

Although Mrs. Willebrandt insisted she was here only to attend the opera, the night club proprietors were dubious.

"She wants to see us dance on a brass drum—that's the show she wants to see," said one.

The first of the big night clubs to fold up is the Jungle. This was an expensive pleasure zoo with a tumbler attached to each table and a covert charge of $5 to start with. Others are planning to follow suit, a survey revealed.

Liquor prices already have been jacked up. It is expected that within six months, the price of every brand of alleged alcoholic beverage will be doubled.

With the new elements affecting the rum-running business, a bloody

DOG CALLS UP "HELLO GIRL"

Locked in Deserted Office, Canine Knocks Over Telephone and Is Rescued.

Marlboro, Mass., March 11.—Here is a "doggy story" for the "children's hour" tonight.

A local telephone operator while on duty today heard what she thought was a crying baby. Checking the number found it was from a hating plant which had not been in operation for the past two weeks.

Richard Eldridge, former plant manager, was called and upon investigation found a mongrel dog in the office of the company. The dog had knocked over the telephone. It was his howling into the transmitter that the telephone operator heard.

Eldridge explained he had been to the plant on Saturday, and thought it likely that the canine followed him and was locked in the office.

PRIEST IS KILLED BY A PARISHIONER

Pulls Revolver in Church and Fires Five Shots at Her Pastor.

Canton, Ohio, March 11.—Mrs. Mamie Guerrieri, 27, who shot a Catholic priest in his church here yesterday, was to be formally charged with first degree murder today.

The priest, Rev. Joseph A. Riccardi, 32, was shot twice and died late yesterday from loss of blood. Mrs. Guerrieri, a parishioner of the church, had waited in the vestibule until most of the other members had departed.

She spoke in a low tone to Rev. Riccardi. He answered her, and she suddenly drew a pistol from beneath her loose fitting cape and fired five shots. Three of the bullets went wild, one struck the priest in the abdomen and another grazed his neck.

Threatened Others.

Rev. Riccardi was near the baptismal font, where he was to baptize a child, when the shooting began and he fell to the floor. Mrs. Guerrieri made no attempt to leave the vestibule. She brandished the pistol, which contained one bullet, and threatened church people when they approached her, declaring "I'll kill you too."

In a death bed statement, Rev. Riccardi said the woman approached him and said "I want to speak to you about my daughter, Galena." The priest said he replied, "I'm glad you've decided to send her back to our school." A moment later the woman began shooting.

NATION NEEDS CARGO VESSELS, SAYS SENATOR

Otherwise Business In U. S. Will Suffer—Wants Parley of the Various Industries.

Washington, March 11.—A conference of representatives of American industry and labor to decide upon a policy for the building of a great cargo merchant marine was proposed today by Senator Wesley L. Jones, (R) of Washington, co-author of the Jones-White Shipping Act.

Congress having determined upon a policy to build up the passenger-merchant marine, there is now a crying need that the country turn its attentions to vessels which will carry American commerce overseas, he said.

The Jones-White Act, he pointed out, provided mail subventions to aid passenger ships and this indirect subsidy can also be given to some combination passenger-cargo ships. The bulk of the cargo ships, however, do not benefit by the Act.

As to cargo ships.

"I feel that we need to determine as quickly as possible what the country will do with reference to cargo ships," said Sen. Jones. "We must determine whether we will provide ample encouragement for private operators to maintain routes or whether the government will have to do it."

"I hope that the shipping interests of the nation will get together during the summer and fall, determine upon a policy and be ready to lay their plans before Congress for consideration at the next regular session."

Asks Conference.

"I would like to see representatives of industry, of agriculture and of labor be brought together in such a conference and talk over frankly and fully what should be done for this branch of the merchant marine."

There now are 20 freight carrying ships owned by the government and operated privately for the Shipping Board under contract, he said. Most of the ships were acquired for war-time use, and are fast deteriorating.

Unless the government replaces many of these ships and in addition

POCKET VETO UP FOR TEST CASE

Many Important Bills Were Killed by President's Action.

Washington, March 11.—The legality of the presidential "pocket veto," by which President Coolidge killed the Norris-Morin bill for government operation of Muscle Shoals, was to be argued in the Supreme Court today.

Attorney-General Mitchell, who prepared the government's case as solicitor-general, prepared to personally assist the right of the President to "pocket" bills passed in the last ten days of long sessions of Congress.

There have been 129 bills, some of them highly important, killed by presidential "pocket vetoes" since Congress was created, he said in a brief filed with the court.

The test case arose in the appeal of the Okanogan and other northwestern Indian tribes. President Coolidge having "pocketed" a bill to permit them to maintain suit against the government over land claims.

Bone of Contention

The question arises from the constitutional provision that if the president does not sign or return it with a veto in ten days after Congress has passed the measure, it shall be law, unless adjournment of Congress prevents its return.

Those assailing the legality of the "pocket veto" hold that a Congress continues for two years, and after if a bill is passed in the last ten days of a "long session" and the President does not approve it, he must veto it and return it to the "short session" next December.

The attorney-general maintains that Congress adjourns its long sessions. The question does not arise in "short sessions," which must end by March 4.

Two Powerful Armies Under Generals Calles and Almazan Approaching City Which is Gateway to the Northwest—Rebels Still in Control of Juarez; Federals Predict End of Revolution Within Another Week.

Mexico City, March 11.—The rebel army under General Escobar that occupied Torreón, on the Coahuila-Durango frontier, where a major battle had been expected, was reported today to have evacuated the city.

Alarmed by the steady advance of two powerful Federal armies under Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles and Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, the rebels were said to have retired into the State of Chihuahua.

Gen. Calles, commanding the Federal expeditionary force in the north-central states, reported to Chapultepec castle during the morning that he was approaching Torreón. He said he expected to occupy this strategic center before noon. Torreón is known as the "gateway" to the northwest.

At Torreón Gen. Calles' force will effect a junction with a column of 6,000 Federals advancing from Saltillo, in the west. This column is under command of Gen. Almazan, the dashing young Federal officer whose name is the distinction of being the youngest general commanding a division in the army.

General Calles, after this junction, will proceed to Chihuahua and Sonora.

An offensive drive will get under way towards the state of Sinaloa where there is a rebel force under General Roberto Cruz. This is believed to be the biggest of the insurgent armies. According to reports received at Chapultepec castle it consists of about 5,000 men.

The prediction was made at the president's office today that, within another week, the revolution will have been completely suppressed.

VARIOUS REPORTS

With Mexican government officials claiming that the revolution has collapsed, a decisive battle was believed impending at Torreón, today, between the main Federal and rebel forces in northwestern Mexico.

Two armies under General Plutarco Elias Calles and Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan were closing in upon the rebel army under Gen. Escobar which has been holding Torreón for the past six days. The Federal commanders were confident that they would occupy the city with 15,000 men within the next 36 hours.

Gen. Calles' advance guard captured Canitas with 1,200 prisoners opening the way for a direct drive upon Torreón.

Military units out in the rebel army in Zacatecas. Many of the rebels deserted, going over to the Federals when they learned that they were in revolt.

Join Rebels

The federal garrisons in the southern part of Lower California joined the revolt and left to aid the rebels holding Mazatlan.

Part of the rebel garrison of Juarez has been sent to Torreón to reinforce the troops holding that city. The rebels at Torreón have erected defensive works and thrown up entrenchments.

Gen. Roberto Cruz, rebel leader on the west coast, moving upon Manzanillo with the evident intention of trying to take Guadaluajara and get in the rear of Gen. Calles' Federal army of the center.

Fear Double Drive

The rebel army in Chihuahua is being strengthened fearing a double drive northward by the two main Federal armies should Torreón be taken and the insurgents under Gen. Escobar take to flight.

The government has adopted a stern policy of repression towards the rebel chiefs. Gen. Vidal Lagunas, who threw his lot in with Gen. Aguirre, was captured, court-martialed and shot at Alvarado, Vera Cruz.

Gen. Aguirre, who is in flight through the jungle of Tehuantepec, tried to bargain for his life. He was informed that he would have to stand trial before a court martial which is tantamount to a death sentence.

President Emilio Portes Gil is growing more and more confident that the Federals will be in complete control of the republic shortly. His spokesman said he felt positively the revolt "is virtually over."

appears to be more than the ordinary amount of liquor drinking by these people, but they are endeavoring to put on a casual front to reassure the throngs of American tourists upon whose patronage their living depends.

Mayor Cabillos and Chief of Police Montana tell the questioner that there is absolutely no chance of the Rebels getting past the guardian line which Gov. Abelardo Rodriguez is throwing up along the boundary of the State of Sonora. "You Never Can Tell!"

The barkeepers, musicians and the girl entertainers will tell you a similar story in less polite but far more forcible American language. However, they are likely to admit privately to one who is in their confidence:

"You never can tell about these Mexican revolutions."

Their condition is similar to that of an audience witnessing a thrilling ghost play—any little thing will make them jump even though they know it will come out all right.

The authorities are doing their best to allay this jumpyness, going about their business calmly, even jauntily. This may or may not be analogous to the small boy who whistles while passing a graveyard at night.

No unusual precautions have been taken in passing visitors across the line except that a little more scrutiny is exercised in inspecting members of the Mexican race who come from the American side.

The authorities admit frankly what they have to be careful about members of the "revolutionary colony" in Los Angeles getting across the border, but scout the idea of arms and ammunition being smuggled across in quantities sufficient to be effective.

REBELS MOBILIZING.

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, March 11.—Rebel troops under General Francisco Manzo, today began moving eastward from here to combine with a force under General Marcelo Caraveo, governor of Chihuahua.

Manzo's troops came here late last night from Ortiz, Sonora, the military capital in the north, aboard a troop train. They left in motor trucks traveling toward Chihuahua City, capital of the State of Chihuahua where Caraveo's headquarters are located.

Rebel headquarters in Nogales today modified the claim that the entire southern section of Lower California had joined the revolutionary banner. Gen. Manzo in an interview declared he had ascertained that General Amado Aguirre, governor of southern Lower California, had not joined the revolution, but that 150 soldiers of Aguirre's army had mutinied and had crossed the Gulf of California to Guaymas, Sonora, to join the rebel forces.

These rebel forces under command of Gen. Ranfon Iturbe are now declared to be in a drive on the Federal Army of Gen. Jaime Carrillo on the west coast of Sinaloa.

Official Bulletin.

The report of the revolt in Lower California was continued in an official communique issued by rebel headquarters, and claimed that several Lower California cities were in the hands of rebels and that Gen. Aguirre himself was crossing the Gulf.

Gen. Manzo said that Adolfo De La Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico and ex-revolutionary leader, was nearly ready to join the revolution. Gen. Enrique Estrada, former De La Huerta leader, who came to Nogales from Los Angeles, is now definitely allied with the revolution and will soon be given a specific command, according to Manzo.

Gen. Manzo further said, "The rebels will not compromise, but will fight to the bitter end."

No armed clash of Mazatlan, important Sinaloa port, is expected for five days, Manzo believes. Gen. Roman Iturbe has now advanced to Quilla, Sinaloa, in pursuit of the Carrillo force. Gilberto Valenzuela, revolutionary candidate for the presidency, is now at Hermosillo watching developments, according to Manzo.

Religious issues are not implicated in the revolution, Gen. Manzo explained.

STIFF OPPOSITION

Mexico, March 11.—Stiff opposition will be encountered by the Federal forces now making their campaign in the northwest of Mexico, rebel leaders here stated today.

The rebel force defending Torreón under the command of General Jose Gonzalo Escobar is estimated here as far in excess of 5,000 men.

In addition, the rebel board of strategy has organized a second line of defense consisting of a force of about the same size concentrated at Chihuahua.

U. S. OPERATES HALF OF RADIOS Ten Million Sets Here—Britain and Germany Next in Line.

Washington, March 11.—Half of the world's 20,000,000 radio sets are in United States, the Commerce Department announced today following an international survey.

Great Britain and Germany have 2,500,000 sets. France 1,200,000, Japan 550,000 and Argentina 550,000. Broadcasting stations are operated near the Arctic circle, on the equator and far down in the southern hemisphere, the most powerful being in Russia and Finland.

"Practically every foreign country has regulations governing broadcasting, the report said. In the large European countries the broadcasting stations are generally owned and operated by the government.

"Outside of United States it is the general rule for owners of radio sets to pay a license fee to their respective governments, the tax ranging from five cents in France to $18 in Salvador. The British tax is $2.45, Germany $5.70, Australian $5.85 and Japanese $9."

Stations of 40,000 watts are maintained in Russia and Finland. The largest British station is rated at 15,000 watts. There are 200 broadcasting stations, South America 62, Australia 23 and Japan 7.

NOT TO FURNISH BOMBS TO MEXICANS

Washington, March 11.—Secretary of State Kellogg had before him today the report from Secretary of War Good concerning the three Mexican generals and approximately 300 Federal soldiers who crossed into American territory after the battle of Juarez and were disarmed and detained by the American military authorities at El Paso.

Kellogg declined to clarify their status, but officials explained that under the Havana conference of a year ago, which the Senate has not yet ratified, provision was made for "interling" troops entering neutral territory under conditions such as surrounded the entry of the Mexican Federals.

Secretary Good declared today that no bombs or airplane parts will be included in the surplus list of munitions to be sold to the Mexican government. He said he could not give any information concerning the number of Enfield rifles and cartridges to be shipped because it is military information which could not be given out any more than we would, "under similar conditions."

It is believed that the stocks sold will be on their way within the next 24-hours and two freight cars will be sufficient to carry them. They will go, it was indicated, either through Eagle Pass or Laredo, Texas, these two railroad lines being safely under control of Mexican Federals.

ROBBER ON CRUTCHES

Cambridge, Mass., March 11.—Coming to court on crutches, George E. Hill, 29, of Wilkes Barre, Pa., today pleaded guilty to six indictments of robbery, and was sentenced to 3 1/2 years in state prison by Judge F. W. Fosdick in Superior Court.

Hill, whose legs were shattered by bullets fired when he was alleged to have attempted to escape from a bag snatching expedition, will be a cripple for life, it was said.

Following pronouncement of sentence Hill was taken to state prison in an ambulance.

BANDITS SENTENCED

Trenton, N. J., March 11.—Benjamin Haas and Frank "Ghost" Kiekart today were sentenced to serve 10 years each in the Atlanta penitentiary when they pleaded guilty to participation in the $150,000 Elizabeth mail robbery of October 14, 1926. John P. Euz a mail truck driver was killed and $151,700 in cash and securities were stolen in the robbery, which occurred in the midst of a crowded street.

HOWE SUCCESSFUL AS GIBSON DEFENDANT Wins Suit Brought Against Him by William Gibson; Defended by Attorney Shea.

G. H. Howe, who as trustee of the estate of Mrs. Hanna Gibson, was sued by William Gibson and his sister for an uncompleted accounting of the property, which he did not complete and also for the rent of the basement of the house on Main street from April 1926 to November 1928.

The decision rendered allowed the plaintiff the rent of the basement for seven months at $10 a month or a total of $70. This is to be so divided that the share of each of the heirs will amount to $23.

THREATENS TO SUE ON GAS STATION BAN

pezoza style filling station built of brick with two pumps. He desires to put only an artistic station on the site, not one that will be a detriment in any way. Mr. Campbell believes that local influence has been brought to bear, and feels that a local business man is desirous of putting only a good looking station on the site should be encouraged.

According to his figures, Mr. Campbell is now paying $12,000 in salaries to local men. With the new station he believes he would be paying between $15,000 and $18,000 in salaries. He feels that if an out of town concern came to Manchester it would be granted a license without much trouble and the salaries paid would largely be to out of town persons.

Already Damaged Mr. Campbell said today that he cannot possibly hold the property longer because of the overhead expense it means to him. The investment is so great that he is already damaged to a considerable extent through the holding up of the license, he says. Having planned a fine station, and having found his permit useless because of the inability to cut down trees that will prevent the carrying out of those plans, Mr. Campbell says that the only course left for him is to sue the property as a storage place. He says that would not be nearly as nice a prospect for the state highway as the proposed filling station.

Stated these words Mr. Campbell said he has stated that when he first saw the plans for the Campbell station no trees were shown on the drawings. Learning that trees were on the property he decided not to issue the permit.

HOLD MASSACRE SUSPECT

Windsor, Ont., March 11.—Barry Grandfield, 29, was held by Windsor police today for Chicago authorities as a suspect in Chicago's "Valentine Day Massacre."

Grandfield, who was at first described as "the man with the missing finger," was arrested at the quest of U. S. Treasury agents. They claimed they overheard Grandfield and a companion talking about "taking someone for a ride." Grandfield was quoted as saying the man "would be bumped off if we had him in Chicago."

Questioned at police headquarters, Grandfield denied participation in the "firing squad slaying" of the secret members of the George "Bugs" Moran gang. He admitted, however, Windsor police said, to having been in Chicago at the time of the massacre.

lecture but there was every indication that he would. The American Automobile Association, under whose auspices the race will be run, has sanctioned no other driver as yet to handle the throttle of "the Triplex."

"Racing is my hobby," said White today. "I built the Triplex and I never have had the opportunity of driving it in the speed trials. I did not get a kick out of watching the Triplex set the record so this year I plan to drive it myself. If my best is not good enough I will step aside and let some other American driver try it."

Fully 5,000 visitors have flocked into Daytona Beach to see the third annual international speed classic. Every hotel is packed to capacity and hundreds of people are rolling into town by automobile as news spread that the long-delayed start is imminent.

Segrave said he is determined to bring the world speed record back to Great Britain. Two years ago he drove an English-made automobile, "the Sunbeam" over the Daytona Beach ocean speedway at the terrific pace of 203.79 miles to a world's record and now he is convinced that he can exceed that. His "Golden Arrow" has a theoretical speed of 235 miles an hour.

Miss Mary Touhey of Union street is confined at St. Francis hospital with a fracture of the hip bone, sustained in an accident in Hartford Saturday. Miss Touhey preceded her sister, Mrs. Julia Touhey, in lighting from a trolley car. When approaching the curbing she slipped on oil on the highway and fell heavily to the road. Those who ran to her assistance saw that she was unable to stand and an ambulance was sent for. She was removed to the hospital and is resting as comfortably as can be expected.

NIGHT CLUB HOSTESS SAW WALSH MURDERED

Says She Knows Who Killed Rothstein's Partner But Will Not Tell.

New York, March 11.—Police today were to question Doris Dore, blond night club hostess and dancer, who declared she was in the 14th floor tower suite of the Miami Biltmore hotel in Coral Gables when "Fatty" Walsh, former Arnold Rothstein's partner, was shot to death and another gambler was wounded.

The girl was found in an apartment just off Broadway's bright light district. She said she fled from the room as the shooting began. Fearful of her fate she at once refused to say more than that she was present at the killing and knows the man who did the shooting. She hysterically declared she would never name him.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Doris Anderson of Norman street was tendered a surprise birthday party on the occasion of her tenth birthday yesterday. The dining room was decorated with streamers of yellow and green crepe paper suspended from the chandelier. These colors were repeated in the decorations of the birthday cake and candy basket favors, and also on the table. TAD JONES SPEAKS TO KIWANIS CLUB

Famous Yale Football Coach Addresses Local Men and Their Guests Today.

Forty members of the Manchester Kiwanis club, each having a boy as his guest, and the full football squad of the Manchester High school heard "Tad" Jones, famous Yale football coach talk on football this noon. Mr. Jones was introduced by F. A. Verplanck, superintendent of schools in the ninth district, as an outstanding football player and coach.

The meeting was held at the headquarters of the Manchester fire department, Main at Hilliard streets. The ladies of the Memorial Hospital Linen auxiliary served an excellent dinner of roast beef, mashed potatoes, green peas, rolls, coffee, cake and ice cream. The floral decorations were forsythia and pussy willows.

Previous to launching into his subject Mr. Jones told several good stories, illustrating the difficulties he found himself in when called upon to speak before such an audience. He reviewed briefly the new rules of football with special stress on the rule that now makes the fumble a dead play if recovered by defensive. He said his sympathy went out to the boy who made the fumble. He thought the players as well as the entire team was punished enough for the mistake.

The football players on any team always do their best. He urged the boys to be loyal and to stick to the Yale team of 1926 with Captain Bunnell. To be sure it was a losing team but he said in all his experience as Yale coach he had never known a team that exhibited such qualities as Captain Bunnell's team. It had two outstanding players, loyalty and moral courage. He said strength, speed, and toughness were desirable qualities on football, but if the players were lacking in loyalty and moral courage they could never succeed. This was true in any line of endeavor, business, said Mr. Jones. He urged the boys to be loyal to the team to which they belonged, to the captain, to the coach and especially to the institution they represented.

The "Coral Barons" headed by Harlowe Willis are ahead in the attendance contest so far, but the tide they have is very slight. Today the attendance prize was won by Clarence Wilson, the nurseryman. It was donated by Elmer Thienes. Three prizes were provided for the boys and the winners were Bill George, Herb Crockett and George Potterton. They were Cheney silk cravats and the boys were well pleased with them.

Hedge Pearson was admitted into full membership today.

DIES IN SPEAKEASY THROWN INTO RIVER

Boston Police Believe Other Men Have Met Like Fate in Past.

Boston, March 11.—Have other men met the same fate as Michael Conley? That was a question police were trying to answer today.

Police of the Charlestown district admitted they were working on the theory that Conley's body was thrown into the river following his death in the speakeasy.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, March 11.—With the exception of a few of the speculative favorites behind which powerful support was concentrated, prices in the Stock Market moved irregularly downward today, the bulls rallied behind the Radio stocks in the early afternoon, forcing the old stock up from 448 to 473; and the new stock from 89 to 94 1/2; but the bears again raised the cry of a new advance in the redoubtable rate of the Reserve Bank here and of selling which blocked its further advance.

Though the call loan rate fell to 8 per cent, against last week's 12 per cent, charge for speculative money, the bulls were none too confident of their supplies of the supplies of the "sneaks of war."

Between now and Friday, the first federal "tax day," the banks and corporations must turn over a good many millions of dollars to Uncle Sam as their contribution toward running the government for another year. And this is likely to tighten up money conditions for a few days.

The mid-day rally in the copper and specialties quickly reversed the early trend of prices, but the upward move continued only so long as the bulls on the floor of the exchange were willing to "support" their favorite stocks. When professional "stood from under" and attempted to reap profits, the market again slipped downward.

Anaconda Copper, U. S. Steel, General Electric and other leaders in last week's brilliant movement sold off from 1 to 4 points in a dull market. At 2:29 1/2 General Electric showed a loss of 7 3/4 points; U. S. Steel was down 2 1/2; Anaconda Copper down 2 and Montgomery Ward down 2 1/2.

Heavy selling of Johns-Manville forced that stock down 9 points to 182, and which price a decline of 60 points from the high of the year was recorded. Kennecott Copper was unable to reach 100 in this period, though the stock sold at 99 1/2 at the opening and plenty of buying demand was reported before the Market opened.

The best business reports of the day flowed in from the Steel and Automobile trades. The Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage increased 24,000 tons in February, which does not take into consideration the heavy increase in quick-delivery orders. As high as 60 per cent gains in February and first-quarter production in automobiles will be reported by some of the well-known manufacturers.

Though Wall street was in the dark as to the reason for the latest flare-up in Radio (if any) that stock held the market spotlight both in the heavy volume of trading and in the wide movements of prices. The old stock opened at 458, down 3; dropped to 452, climbed 27 points to 473 and dropped 13 to 460 within a space of an hour, the new stock gyrating in the same ratio. The small outstanding supply of the stock makes it one of the easiest in the whole list to manipulate.

There is a heavy short interest in the market, built up over the period of 10 and 12 per cent call money, and the bulls are planning for a "demonstration" or two before relinquishing their hold on some of the star performers. The bears have been in a tight corner more than once this year, but have generally been helped by sudden and unexpected developments in the money market. How much longer they can look for help to that quarter is problematical.

TWO HOTELS BURN

Reading, Pa., March 11.—Ten persons were injured when fire raged through the Qal hotels here shortly after midnight today. More than a score of guests leaped from the upper stories into life nets or clambered down fire extension ladders.

The buildings, located in the heart of the city's business district, threatened to result in a blaze that would have swept the entire section. The damage will amount to $725,000. Severe cold hampered firemen and caused much suffering among the inmates of the two hotels as they fled in their night clothing.

SOVIETS GRANT RELIGIOUS FREEDOM THOUGH ATHEISTS

Dr. L. O. Hartman Tells Union Protestant Gathering Here Russian Leaders Are Brilliant Men.

Rev. L. O. Hartman

A speaker of great power and magnetic personality, Rev. L. O. Hartman, editor of Zion's Herald of Boston, held the attention of the large congregation at the Center Congregational Church throughout his account of "Religious Conditions in Russia," last evening. It was a Union Protestant meeting.

Rev. Hartman said that he was standing in front of the Moscow Theological Seminary in 1923, the year of a great conference. An old bent man, with a long beard, carrying a grip came walking up to the building. The interpreter explained that he was a bishop and if it had been during the czar's reign this man would have arrived in a magnificent coach with a retinue of servants instead of the way he did. "This," said Rev. Hartman, "symbolizes the whole change in religious conditions in Russia."

Divisions The Greek Orthodox Church has stood for ten centuries and during that time very little change has been brought about. The speaker then went on to give a history of the church from the time of the branching out and splitting of the church which brought the Protestant church into being. In 1770 the patriarch died and as a rule of the church was during the reign of Peter the Great he was deposed because Peter saw the great power he had. From then until 1917 the church was ruled by a Holy Synod. Religion in Russia took on a mystical and dramatic aspect. The people were always communing with God through symbols and ceremonies. This state of affairs gave rise to superstition of all kinds, with no changes until 1917.

The church, during the reign of the czar, was subjected to the people. It was a part of the government with the czar as head over everything. It meant death to go against his wishes. When a person came to the confessional saying that he had spoken of freedom and had been to a meeting where freedom was discussed the priest immediately reported to the government. Many were those who went to Siberia that were betrayed by the church. Czarism the worst autocracy the world has ever known was what the church stood for.

Rasputin The arse Rasputin, a dirty, ignorant monk, who poisoned the czar's son and then prayed for him to get well. His word became stronger than even the czar himself and during the World War brought a measure of relief to the czar which effected every aspect of Russian life in 1917. At this time the church began to see the light of freedom.

The Soviets held a council which reinstated the patriarch. Under this government trouble was bound to come and it did. Famous strikes and fighting counter revolutions on all sides the new government had this new foe to contend with. The church was asked to give up the non-essential jewels, of which there were many. The church refused. The government ordered the riches seized. A conflict was begun between the patriarch and the government. The patriarch was arrested. In 1923 the most historic meeting for centuries was held in Moscow. About 1,000 persons were present, all standing, as is the custom. "There was singing," said Rev. Hartman, "such as I have never heard before and believe I will never hear again. Although, personally, I believe the meeting was legitimate, it must have been controlled by the Red government." Many radical acts were passed. First, that the church and government should be separate; that bishops could be elected from the common people, and elected and paid to worship the saints and in most cases these were false. And so the resolution read, "Have everything brought out into the light." The patriarch was also de-throned at this meeting. The Soviet government, despite its many radical movements, was indorsed by the gathering. On his deathbed the patriarch signed a confession that he was linked up in a counter revolution to upset the Soviet government. This statement was punched by far, in a completely true "Get it out of your head," said Rev. Hartman, "that the Russian leaders are illiterate. I have talked with Krassin and have heard Trotsky and never have I listened to more brilliant and more wonderful men."

Patriarch Dethroned Another resolution was that all saints must be brought out into the light so that worshippers could see their faces. Heretofore a fee had been paid to worship the saints and in most cases these were false. And so the resolution read, "Have everything brought out into the light." The patriarch was also de-throned at this meeting. The Soviet government, despite its many radical movements, was indorsed by the gathering. On his deathbed the patriarch signed a confession that he was linked up in a counter revolution to upset the Soviet government. This statement was punched by far, in a completely true "Get it out of your head," said Rev. Hartman, "that the Russian leaders are illiterate. I have talked with Krassin and have heard Trotsky and never have I listened to more brilliant and more wonderful men."

Now, as to the attitude of the Soviet government towards religion. They are out and out atheists, but freedom of religion is provided. A law was passed that children under 18 years could not be taught religion in public but could be taught in the privacy of the home. When I was in Russia," said the speaker, "there were over 200 children attending a Sunday School there. When I asked about it, the bishop said that government officials had been so impressed that they never bothered them at all. Every church in Russia is packed to the doors. But, the government is tightening up on religion. They are fearful of another upset and religious conditions are not as good now as before the revolution. We must pray that this will be remedied. The outlook in Russia is hard to tell much about. But, I believe there is a great chance for reformation in the years to come."

POPULAR IMPERSONATOR AT NORTH END CHURCH

The young people of the Epworth League are sponsoring this entertainment and they feel confident it will interest young and old. It should have a strong attraction for Boy Scouts as Mr. Douglass tells with dramatic power, humor and pathos, "Adirondack" Murray's narrative from the beginning of the tale at the pond of the beavers, where the old trapper John Norton met the "Lad," along their trail through the mountains, until they reached its dramatic end on the burning steamer.

Mr. Douglass has an extensive repertoire of programs but none have been received with greater acclaim than the one he plans to give here at the North Methodist church tomorrow evening, in six scenes as follows:

Scene I The excursion to the Pond of the Beavers. Sudden discovery of "The Man Who Didn't Know Much" concealed in the long grass.

NATION NEEDS CARGO VESSELS, SAYS SENATOR

provides for necessary expansion, the freight-carrying division of the marine will be fast outdistanced by foreign shipping lines, he explained. The government, he said, must be prepared to meet big losses in the marine enterprise, unless it decides to enter the cargo-carrying marine in a business-like fashion. Aid probably is necessary as private operators are to establish lines, he said.

Senator Jones also indicated that efforts may be made to force larger appropriations by Congress for mail subventions of passenger ships. Both he and Rep. White (R) of Maine, chairman of the House merchant marine committee, declare that Congress has been niggardly in providing funds.

The Council of State, which was made necessary by the long illness of the king, was created on December 4. It consists of Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Hailsham and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.

It is not known who would hold the post of regent if a regency is appointed. Nor is it known yet whether there would be one regent or more.

CITIZEN COOLIDGE BEST SELLER HERE

His Story in the Cosmopolitan Magazine Clears Newsstands in One Day.

Calvin Coolidge, the citizen, is a best seller, judging from the way in which the current issue of the Cosmopolitan magazine sold out. In anticipation that there was going to be a demand for the magazine this issue the publisher sent out notices in advance and advised the dealers to be sure and stock up. Most of them increased their orders and when the magazines went on sale on Friday the large piles started to shrink rapidly. By Saturday noon there were none to be had in most of the places and then started a search for copies among the smaller dealers. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon not a copy of the issue was left in Manchester and the story by Calvin Coolidge, citizen, had done the trick. What was true in Manchester seems to be true in other places as efforts to get additional copies has been without result.

NOON STOCKS

New York, March 11.—Industrial stocks moved down the hill at the beginning of the new week, opening up gaps of 1 to 10 points in prices of the speculative leaders in the first half-hour. While business reports over the week-end were excellent, the pinch in the money market in the first "tax day" week of the year was a handicap to the bulls, who were unable to continue their furious upward move.

The Radio stocks started the week at about the same range of prices as at Saturday's close, but heavy selling of the old stock forced a 15-point decline to 446, the new stock dropping 2 points to 90. This was a small reaction from the peak of last week's spectacular advance, which was forced by the buying demand of a powerful speculative group.

While prices in all sections of the market moved downward in the first hour, there was no great rush to sell stocks, and trading was in small volume, reaching a total of only 436,600 shares in the first half-hour. This is about one-third as large a turnover as in some of the recent billing sessions in which more than a million shares changed hands in the first 30 minutes.

Selling of stocks which led in last week's brilliant advance forced prices down about 2 points on the average. Packard sold down 2 1-2 at 136 1-2; Western Union was down 5 at 210; Davison Chemical down 3 at 64; Kennecott down 2; Bethlehem Steel down 2 1-4; Chrysler down 2; Goodrich down 2 1-2; Montgomery Ward down 3; U. S. Steel down 1 1-2; New York Central down 2.

The bears raised the question of an advance in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve banks this week, supported by the fact that severe criticism is being showered upon the heads of the reserve bank boards by prominent bankers. This did not scare the bulls to any great extent, who rallied strongly behind their favorite stocks in the second hour.

Radio, new stock, snapped back to above 92 in a heavy turnover in this period, the old stock also recovering all of its lost ground. Atlantic Refining led a rally in the oil and pushed upward to 58 1-2. The railroad stocks and the coppers were inactive and unsettled with narrow price changes in most of the well known shares.

AVIS, BIRD IMITATOR HERE AFTER 12 YEARS

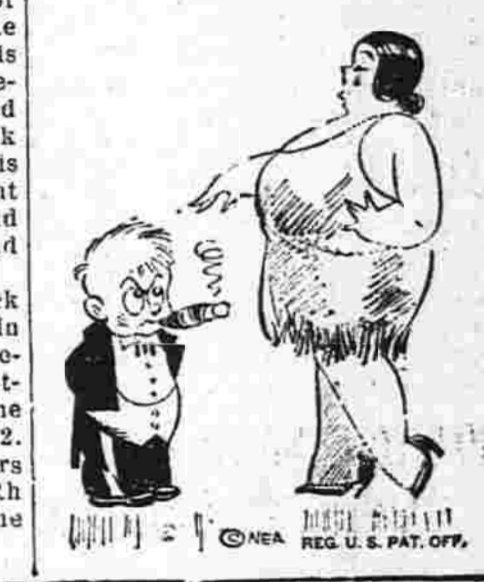

Noted Lecturer and Entertainer to Appear Three Times on March 21.

Edward Avis of Springfield, Mass., considered to be one of the foremost bird imitators in the United States, will appear in Manchester three times on Thursday, March 21. It was announced today by Superintendent A. F. Howe of the Eighth and Outlying Districts. Supt. Howe said that Mr. Avis appeared in Manchester about 12 years ago and that his audience was carried away with him. Efforts to re-book him since that time proved unsuccessful until this year because of the many demands for his appearance. Not only is Mr. Avis a most entertaining speaker but he also possesses remarkable talent as an imitator of birds both by voice and whistle. His lectures are illustrated with stereopticon views.

At 10:30 in the morning, Mr. Avis will talk to the lower grade children at Robertson school. At 2:30 in the afternoon, he will speak to the advanced grades at the Hollister street school auditorium. In the evening, at 8 o'clock, he will give a public address at the Hollister street school.

BE YOUR AGE!

Whether tonight's mass meeting or public conference or all-Manchester discussion, or whatever it may be called, on the proposed charter revision turns out to be of advantage to the people of this community, depends almost entirely on the mood of those who attend and on whether those who have decided views on consolidation and the kindred subjects attend at all or not.

There is a considerable feeling, we are aware, that this whole question of charter revision has been conducted without sufficient opportunity being provided for public discussion and consultation; that during many months when the various aspects of revision should have been under general consideration the revision committee worked, if at all, in seclusion not to say secrecy, and that now the people of the town are being "rushed" into acceptance of a charter revision which they do not fully understand and, in many cases, suspect.

The Herald is not prepared to dispute that there is considerable merit to this contention. There certainly was an inexcusable amount of delay in presenting the committee's proposals to the people. The time allowed for general consideration of the changes has been, in view of all the circumstances, short. To that extent, it is only fair to admit that criticism is fair.

On the other hand, there are urgent reasons why the charter proposals should not be deferred for two years. Some of these reasons may seriously affect the pockets of the taxpayers—such, for instance, as the very considerable difference in the price that the town would have to pay for the Cheney school properties now and the price it would have to pay if consolidation were deferred and the schools sold first to the Ninth district and afterward taken over by the town. This in itself is a serious matter.

Again on the other hand, no mill will grind with the water that is past, and the best way of all to make up for the lack of past discussion of the charter changes is to get busy with such discussion now and utilize to the full such time as remains—which, fortunately, is considerable. The Legislature will be in session for a number of weeks yet and there is, after all, ample opportunity for doing what has been done—if the people of the town will put their combined minds to the business in hand.

The worst disservice that to any interested citizen can do is to remain away from tonight's conference and then grouch about it afterward; the next worst disservice he can do is to attend that conference in a hide-bound determination to buck every proposal made. And this applies alike to advocates of pet methods and ways and means who refuse to admit that the opposition may possibly have merit and to those chronic ants who copy the hedgehog in rolling their minds up into a ball, bristles out, and refuse to admit thereby any argument, however obviously sound.

For heaven's sake, let us have a meeting tonight that will be worthy of grown men and women interested in the progress and well-being of the community, and not a conflict of groups of squabbling children yelping at each other, "Tis!" and "Tain't!"

NEW RULES FOR BRITAIN
 While it is understood that any direct statement or even any plain implication to that effect has been withheld from the British public, it is now made known in ways that admit of little doubt, in this country, that King George is suffering from serious mental trouble and that there is no real ground upon which to base hope for an immediate recovery. If for recovery at all, so serious is the King's affliction, according to all reports, that there is little expectation that he will be able to perform even the technical duty of dissolving parliament, a function that rests with the crown and cannot be performed by the Council of State which has been administering other royal prerogatives and duties since King George became incapacitated. And conceivably, if the King were in any way himself mentally, some way could easily be found for him to fulfill the requirements of the occasion, even though he were bedridden and unable to do more than sign the decree of dissolution.

It is this unhappy outcome of the King's long battle over physical illness which underlies the now publicly made suggestions—probably more advanced notice of fixed intention—to have Parliament declare a regency with the Prince of Wales taking over the functions of the crown.

While they are talking, over there, about the unwisdom of requiring official action from King George that would "retard his recovery" it is almost unquestionably true that there is now no expectation of any such recovery, and that the accession of the Prince to the regency would be, in effect, the beginning of the reign of a new king.

If, so, beneath the somberness of the tragedy there will be a lively consciousness that Great Britain is about to enter upon an extremely interesting period. For no such interesting personality as that of Edward, Prince of Wales, has ascended the British throne in centuries; nor a more problematical one.

FIRING SQUADS
 This Mexican revolution seems to be accompanied by the usual summary execution of captured leaders—an unpleasant feature of Latin-American revolts which leaves a bad taste in the mouth of Americans. We are given to permitting ourselves to believe that we have a rather higher and more civilized code than the one which sanctions such a bloody disregard for human life.

Yet there is some question, after all, as to the special merit of our way over the way of the Latin-American in this particular connection. It is quite possible to look at this question from an angle that may not have occurred to most of the people of the United States.

Persons who plot revolution by violence and who induce others to join them in such revolt, inevitably must assume the responsibility for the killing of many people. The leaders of the present Mexican revolt could not possibly have expected to carry it out without shedding a great deal of blood—the blood of their own followers as well as that of the forces to whom they were opposed. Is it, then, wholly unreasonable for the Mexican government, which of course cannot and will not admit any righteousness in the revolution, to regard these leaders as murderers, chargeable with all the killings that ensue from their acts?

Perhaps this is not exactly the theory back of the execution of Latin-American revolutionaries when they are sufficiently out-of-luck to fall into the hands of assaulted governments, but again perhaps it is. Even in America we have been known to execute leaders of fatal riots, and those people probably regarded themselves revolutionists just as much as any insurgent Mexican general.

The Mexican way is very grim indeed. But it is not wholly without argument on its side.

LAWYERS OF EVIDENCE
 Not having seen the bill in question this newspaper is without opinion as to the merits of the measure which counsel for Treasurer A. Rice, accused of the murder of Windham County Detective Jackson, are trying to get through the Legislature in the interest of their client. The measure is planned to insure the admissibility in court of such documents as the two notes left by Mrs. Jackson when she took her own life, and which have been kept secret by the state. Rice's counsel fear that under the existing laws they might be ruled out on the ground of being "hearsay" evidence.

However, whether the proposed measure is meritorious in itself, or not, its adoption would, at best, only reform one minute fault in the maze of needless complexities into which the rules of evidence have become major court trials. On the face of it, it would seem as though the letters left by Mrs. Jackson, in this particular case, might be of immense importance in arriving at the truth—that of course they ought to be admitted, as neither judge nor jury could get a full view of the case without having opportunity to see them. It is also just as obvious, to the lay mind, that the defendants' lawyers should be permitted to know what is in the notes. But to exclude them, and to deny the right of the defense to inspect them, would be no more than is done in a hundred ways to befuddle the trial of law cases.

If the Judiciary Committee of the Connecticut General Assembly ever draws a statute governing the rules of evidence which will have for its basic principle the idea that any information whatever, throwing light on the commission of a crime, is good evidence and must be admitted in court it will have covered itself with glory. The present rules of evidence, upbuilt through centuries, are very largely calculated to keep out of court the very things that juries ought to know about.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, March 11—A letter generally appears a hair - hour or so before midnight, when all the ash pails and garbage cans have been distributed in unsightly rows along the curbstone.

And, somehow, I always seem to encounter one or more of them on a rainy night—the sort of night when a dipping half-golf clings close to the earth, and seems to hold a goodly portion of the noxious smells and particles of dirt blown up from the streets.

They are the real specters of the city—the incredible ghosts that walk by night, mumbling to themselves as they scan the gutters and finger through the city's refuse. They are men and women, with flesh on their bones and clothes over their flesh. One holds them with a sense of fear, with a shiver of dread.

Only last night, returning from the theater, I passed the slumping figure of a man; a man with the lumbering walk and bent back of an Emil Jennings character. He was making his way along the sidewalk, barbed stick in his hand, and as he walked he talked to something in the street that was not there. Perhaps he thought it was a dog, or a cat. And as he ambled on, he kept up this mad, undertone conversation. It was interrupted only when he came to refuse cans, when like some many cat he would paw it in with his stick, rescuing scraps of this and that and putting them in a sack hung over his left arm.

Almost daily, there appears in the neighborhood of the Jefferson Market prison, a frownsied haired woman of uncertain years. Her dresses are of the vintage of 1913 and rummage sale hat perches on hair that has seldom known a comb. She babbles to herself as she walks, intermittently breaking into a shrill cry. Usually she is met by another woman, who might be either a double or a sister, and they disappear around the corner, each mumbling to herself. These moon-touched crones and men invariably arouse the sympathy of newcomers to Manhattan—a sympathy touched with horror and unbelief. Yet there seems little that can be done for them. Were you to approach them, they probably would snarl you away. The passing policeman shrugs his shoulder and smiles. He passes a whole army of them in his night's round.

Yet now and then the maddest breaks its innocent bonds and becomes a menace to life and limb. Just the other day, one of the mumbling army ran amuck in a Times Square subway station, slinging wildly about with a butcher knife and wounding seven commuters.

Since announcement went across the land that the Waldorf-Astoria would be razed this spring, pilgrims of another day have come from a wide variety of states on sentimental journeys. They come to recapture fading memories of years ago. They are, for the most part, elderly men and women, whose youth and old, hoistely played a romantic part.

Thus, just the other day a guest wrote for a room he had occupied when on his honeymoon in 1890.

Chatting with the clerk about the old images, I was told that at the moment Seymour van Santvoord of Troy, N. Y., had returned to the hotel where his silver wedding was celebrated. For 35 years he has been a transient guest—perhaps the oldest patron of the Waldorf.

The vogue in advertising circles to secure the signatures of well known or celebrated personages for testimonials of various products, from cigars to motors, grows daily. They tell me that Manhattan is over-run with high-pressure young men with new schemes for obtaining difficult signatures.

One of the most amusing of recent tales in this connection, concerns a solicitor who approached William Howard Taft, asking for the recommendation of a certain auto.

"My young friend," gently began Taft, "don't you think it would be just a bit absurd for the chief justice of the United States, whose opinions are presumed to be respected in weighty matters, to hand down a verdict on an automobile?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Colitis.
 Question: E. E. asks: "What is the cause and what are the symptoms of colitis? I think I am in the first stages of colitis and am entirely ignorant of what I should do. Also, am very light-headed and weak."
 Answer: The symptoms you write of are often found with colitis, but there are so many other symptoms which may exist that if I were to write them all it would fill a book. An x-ray examination of your intestines would be the most accurate method for determining the degree of colitis which exists. Most every one who is not perfectly well has some degree of colitis which simply means inflammation of the colon.

Cream for Weight.
 Question: J. B. asks: "Is a half pint of cream too much for a woman underweight to eat for breakfast with a dish of cracked wheat mush and seven dates?"
 Answer: Such a large amount of cream is too much for anyone to use in one day along with other foods. If you do succeed in gaining weight with this stuffing method it will only injure your health and doubtless bring on liver derangements. Have a diagnosis made and find out what is causing your underweight. When you remove the cause you will find that you do not have to stuff yourself in order to bring your weight to the normal.

Impediment in Speech.
 Question: J. L. writes: "I have an impediment in my speech. When alone I can talk without trouble. It is evident my trouble is nervousness, lack of courage and mental weakness. What would you advise?"
 Answer: You need a course of training under a psychologist or, perhaps, from some teacher who is an expert in correcting such defects.

Health and Diet Advice
 By DR. FRANK MCCOY

FOOD FOR TWENTY CENTS A DAY.
 I recently read a newspaper article about a man who stated that he was able to support himself and his two sons, spending only $18.00 a month for food. He claimed that his wife had too expensive tastes, spending from $45.00 to $60.00 a month for food, so he fired her and now claims to be practicing better business methods in his household, so that now, without the wife, he and his two sons are actually living on food which costs about one-third of that used formerly. He brought out the fact that the foods they are now using are just as wholesome but less expensive. One of the principal points in his saving system is that he buys everything in large quantities. The menus he uses were published, and, studying them, I am sure this man who has revolted from the cost of high living has stretched his imagination a little too when he says a person only needs to spend $6.00 a month for food.

Only the morning I received a letter from a woman who complains that because of the high cost of groceries, it is hardly possible for a family to be supported on the average working man's salary.

With these two apparently contradictory reports before me, my curiosity was naturally aroused as to the actual cost of the foods used in preparing the menus which are published in my newspaper articles. By calculating the cost of foods at prices slightly higher than those of Los Angeles, I have made the cost of a meal come close to 2 1/2 cents per person as an average throughout the week. However, these menus include some rather expensive foods, such as baked chicken, roast mutton, and mushroom soup.

If one desires to make a real economy, one can substitute the less expensive meats, such as hamburger, pork or fish, to greatly reduce the average cost. Oleomargarine may be substituted for butter and whole grain cereals for the prepared breakfast foods. For example, wholewheat may be purchased for about 6 cents a pound. Approximately only two ounces are required for a meal. Therefore, a pound of wheat furnishes the cereal part of eight meals at the average cost of three-fourths of one cent per person. The wholewheat may be prepared by soaking it over-night in water and boiling it in the morning until the grain bursts open.

One can also make a great saving by purchasing foods which will keep in large quantities. For example, potatoes can be purchased by the sack for 2 cents a pound, and canned goods should be purchased by the case. Wholewheat grain by the sack is as low as 4 cents a pound, and can be bought in large quantity as a saving of almost fifty per cent. Apples should be purchased by the box. A similar saving can be had with various other items such as gelatin, condensed milk and prepared breakfast foods.

A few months ago, as an experiment to discover the minimum of cost of the food necessary to supply all of the requirements for health, some of my assistants lived for a period of three weeks on a series of menus prepared according to my suggestions. The average cost of the food required for each person per day came to 27 cents each, making each meal cost exactly 9 cents. This may seem incredible, but beginning with tomorrow article I will outline some of these menus, together with the cost of the foods.

WASHINGTON LETTER
 By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, March 11—The story of Nicaraguan politics is not exactly like a fairy tale, perhaps, but it does go to show that sometimes everything comes out all right for some people and that even in real life the ogres and the big bad giants occasionally get it in the neck.

Dr. Juan B. Sacasa is now on the high seas, bound for Washington. He is the new Nicaraguan minister to the United States. In Nicaragua that post is second only to the presidency, and many Nicaraguan liberal leaders would as soon have one job as the other.

A year or two ago Dr. Sacasa was being more or less kicked out of his country and was forced to flee to the United States and Navy Department had dismissed his liberal army. Dr. Sacasa four years ago was Nicaragua's vice president. The president abdicated under pressure and fled.

Dr. Sacasa fled, too, preferring life to death, but he set up shop on the Atlantic coast as constitutional president and organized an army. The army was successful until President Coolidge sent Henry M. Stimson down to tell it to quit, whereupon Dr. Sacasa left the country again.

Dr. Sacasa will step right into one of the nicest little buildings in Washington, a handsome new building at the top of Fifteenth Street, opposite Meridian Hill Park, just vacated by the Egyptian minister. It is one of a string of embassies and legations in the immediate vicinity, including the French, Dutch, Italian and Mexican.

That's one success story. Another is that of General Jose Moncada, who gave Dr. Sacasa his fine new job. General Moncada, of course, is the new Nicaraguan president. He was the chief of Sacasa's army and so distinguished himself in the face of the conservative troops and the "neutral" zones and other setbacks set up by American marines that he became the national hero.

Moncada licked the conservatives at the Atlantic coast and made a terrific march through jungles and swamps into the interior toward Managua, the capital. It was a great military feat and success appeared in his grasp when Stimson appeared on the scene and told him he must disarm or be disarmed by the marines.

At the time this seemed very few hopes of regaining power.

The new Congress has just approved the bill which will make the national guard, with about 2000 men, the only armed force in the republic. The guard will be trained and supervised by American officers until further notice.

Moncada is arranging for public works commissions in each of the departments, or provinces, especially for schools and highways. He plans to develop the Atlantic coast of his country, and believes it may prove economical to run a railroad from coast to coast.

As it turned out, dear old Uncle Sam himself put things right by insisting upon "free and fair elections." Nicaraguan voters kicked out the old conservative crowd and elected Moncada, who certainly did the graceful thing by appointing his former boss to Washington.

The pleasant things that have happened to Moncada and Sacasa have happened to lesser Nicaraguan liberals who last year were either in exile or in a state of complete quiescence.

During the days the revolution was active, for instance, the very young Senor Evarista Carazo Morales was up here, parked in a star hotel room, pushing out pro-liberal propaganda on his typewriter, short of funds and altogether short of sympathy from our government. He appeared to be fighting a losing fight also; it seemed as if he might become an old man before he could dare return to his own country.

But now he is secretary of the legation and pending Sacasa's arrival has been charged with affairs and ministerial duties, dealing with the same State Department at which he was hurling publicity broadcasts so recently.

Meanwhile everything seems to be going with reasonable serenity in Nicaragua. The Quindia factor of the conservative party is working with the liberals and General Emiliano Chamorro, the big coup d'etat man, has retired to his estate with apparently few hopes of regaining power.

The new Congress has just approved the bill which will make the national guard, with about 2000 men, the only armed force in the republic. The guard will be trained and supervised by American officers until further notice.

Moncada is arranging for public works commissions in each of the departments, or provinces, especially for schools and highways. He plans to develop the Atlantic coast of his country, and believes it may prove economical to run a railroad from coast to coast.

Daily Lenten Thought

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
 Editor of The Congregationalist.

If man finds God in his own heart why need he look beyond himself?

Because what man finds in himself inevitably leads him toward something larger and better. Man as a spiritual being is an incurable idealist. All that is good within him reaches out toward something good in the whole universe and in the completeness of life of which he himself is but a part.

For this reason, in spite of what often seems the vagueness of man's faith in God, and of man's conceptions of God, atheism and infidelity can never hold sway for long, or give to man any gospel of hope and help to uplift. The seeming egotism of movements of unbelief is almost always associated with the attack upon false ideas of God, and wrong notions of religion. Errors are destroyed, but real faith only reasserts itself with new power despite all the attacks upon it.

For this reason, also, God will still be man's ideal. The standard of perfection is inseparable from human thought and aspiration. So, in all that is best in man Jesus was the reflection of the divine, and if he taught men to find God in their own souls he brought them also to the supreme source of love and righteousness. "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

Reporter Eyewitness At Battle In Juarez

The state of Guanajuato, shown near Mexico City on the map above, has become the center of federal operations in an attempt to crush the revolution in Mexico. At Irapuato, Guanajuato, according to press dispatches, the largest army in the history of the republic was being organized, with former President Calles in command, for a crushing offensive against rebels in six states. The map shows the course of fighting.

Editor's Note: Francis Elroy Barden, a special correspondent for The Herald and NEA Service, was an eye-witness to the battle of Juarez and was present in the thick of the fighting. In the following exclusive story, Barden gives a graphic account of the first major engagement between Mexican rebels and federal forces for possession of the important frontier city, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Texas.

By FRANCIS ELROY BARDEN. Juarez, Mex., March 11.—All the horrors of warfare, but on a miniature scale, were present in the taking of Juarez, largest of border cities and seat of many a revolutionary conflict, by the rebel forces of Gen. Marcelino Caraveo, governor of Chihuahua.

The scream and whine of bullets and their thud as they ricocheted against adobe buildings blended with the battle cry of the attacking troops, who shouted "Viva Caraveo" and "Viva Mexico."

Shouts rang through this historic border city, and the nerves of the opposing battlers and the non-combatants who looked on from whatever shelter afforded were strained almost to the breaking point.

All night preceding the engagement, excitement ran high. Federal cavalrymen from the rural sections, many of them garbed in working clothes and crudely armed, began arriving early in the evening.

Other mounted soldiers presented a colorful picture armed with pearl-handled forty-fives, gauntlet gloves and seated in silver-studded saddles. Laborers became soldiers.

Infantry volunteers were issued arms. Many were day laborers. They were issued rifles and ammunition, 70 rounds to the man. Some wore overalls. Some had worked all day in the brewery or distilleries.

The famous Tivoli gambling hall, packed to the utmost just the day before with hundreds of tourists, was closed. The roulette wheels were silent. The faro table was shut. The dice didn't rattle. But the gamblers were not present in the ranks of the volunteers. They had business elsewhere.

As the recruits left military headquarters, hastily established in the five-story Hotel El Comercio, the streets were hooted, if their sympathies were with the rebels.

The Rio Bravo rapidly took on the appearance of a fort as machine guns were placed in the roof and federal officers thronged the lobby and bar. Breastworks were thrown up almost on the front steps.

An attack was expected momentarily during the night. Soldiers bolstered their courage with an occasional drink of tequila.

Daylight came and no rebels had appeared. A few bars opened. Citizens appeared on the streets. Suddenly the attack came. It was a cavalry charge and it was made down the picturesque main street, Sixteenth of September.

Rebel soldiers were gathered up wounded comrades. The Mexican Blue Cross was giving first aid to wounded. Patrol wagons were used for ambulances.

The city quickly adjusted itself to the change in ownership. People flocked out in the streets. Many of them seemed pleased at the result. I crossed to the American side and the first person I met asked me: "Have you got a match?"

Filipino Quartet Here

Union church was well filled last evening at the People's Popular Service when the Edralin's Filipino Quartet, under the direction of Pedro R. Edralin, entertained with a program of their own rendition of plantation melodies, popular songs and composition. For two years these boys have been singing and playing together with the same personnel: Pedro R. Edralin, steel guitar and banjo; Basilio Nuesca, uke and guitar; M. Flores, "Bauduria" and "Land"; and L. Amagan, bass guitar. These natives of the Philippines are above the average of the many, who have come to this country, having had long tutelage in the foremost academies of music in their native land which has made them the finished performers and skilled musicians.

At the completion of last evening's entertainment it was too great a temptation for the congregation not to give these exceptional artists a hearty applause.

CONFEDERATE UNION

When Abraham Lincoln was being sworn into office, the Confederate flag was waving for the first time above the Confederate capitol at Montgomery, Ala. Foreign observers were holding different views as to which government was most likely to endure. Each had points of great strength over the other, and each had great weaknesses.

The Confederacy assumed a definitely solid front 67 years ago today when it adopted the permanent constitution of the "Confederate States of America." With few exceptions, provisions of the week-end was identical with those of the federal constitution.

It is interesting to note, however, that the founders of the Confederacy attached so much importance to the contested principle of states rights that they incorporated it in their preamble.

Clauses which differed from the federal constitution were, for the most part, wise, provisions. No appropriations, except those asked for by department heads, could be made without a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress. A like vote was required to admit new states to the Confederacy.

More than five million British women will be entitled to vote for the first time next spring.

FIRST PICTURES FROM BATTLE ZONE

ARMORED CAR READY

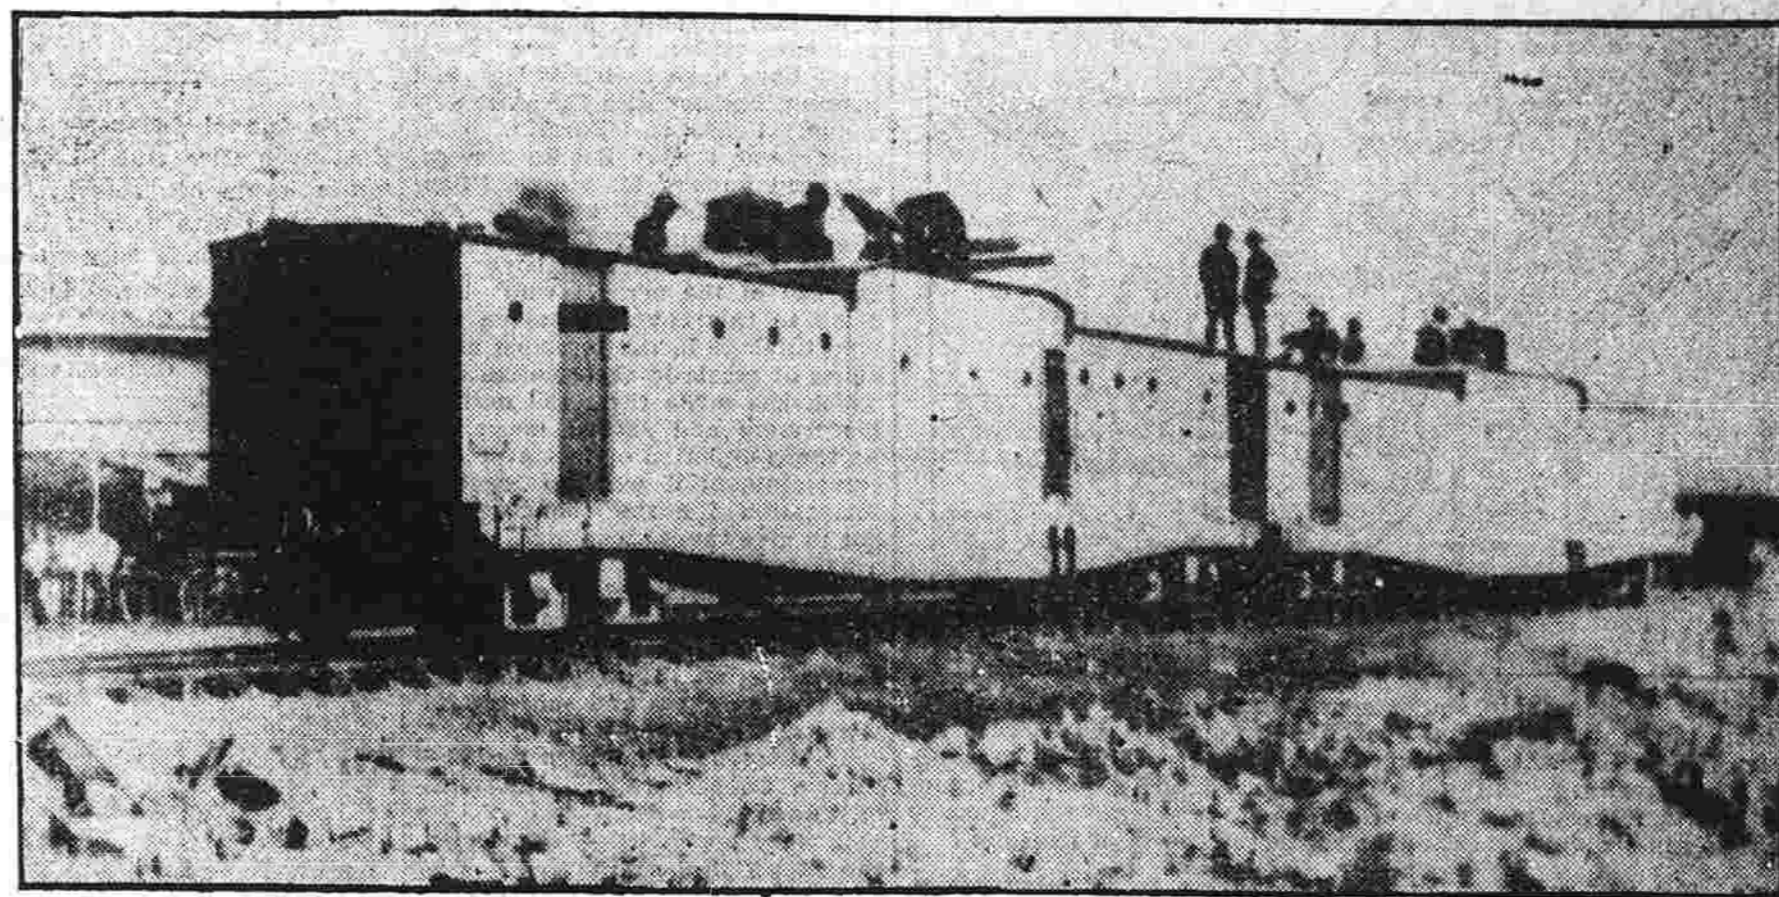

Masked behind a camouflage of brush, this U. S. Army armored car from Fort Bliss, New Mexico, stood at the American end of the international bridge between Juarez and El Paso throughout the bloody fighting in the Mexican city, ready to protect American lives and property. By order of Brig. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, commanding officer at Fort Bliss, its masked machine guns were kept trained on the Mexican city, ready for instant action in case the fighters should attempt to cross the border to United States soil. This picture was taken by a cameraman for The Herald and NEA Service, flown from El Paso to Los Angeles by airplane and rushed thence by telephoto.

U. S. GUNS GUARD EL PASO

While machine guns snarled and rifles cracked as Mexican revolutionists and federals fought a bloody battle in the streets of Juarez, U. S. artillery from Fort Bliss, N. Mex., was brought to El Paso, Tex., to protect American life and property. This picture shows Uncle Sam's big guns mounted on two armored railroad cars at the American end of the international bridge, trained on Juarez and ready to repel any crossing of the boundary by fighters on either side. This picture was taken by a cameraman for The Herald and NEA Service, flown from El Paso to Los Angeles by airplane and speeded thence by telephoto wires.

REBELS MOVE ON CITY

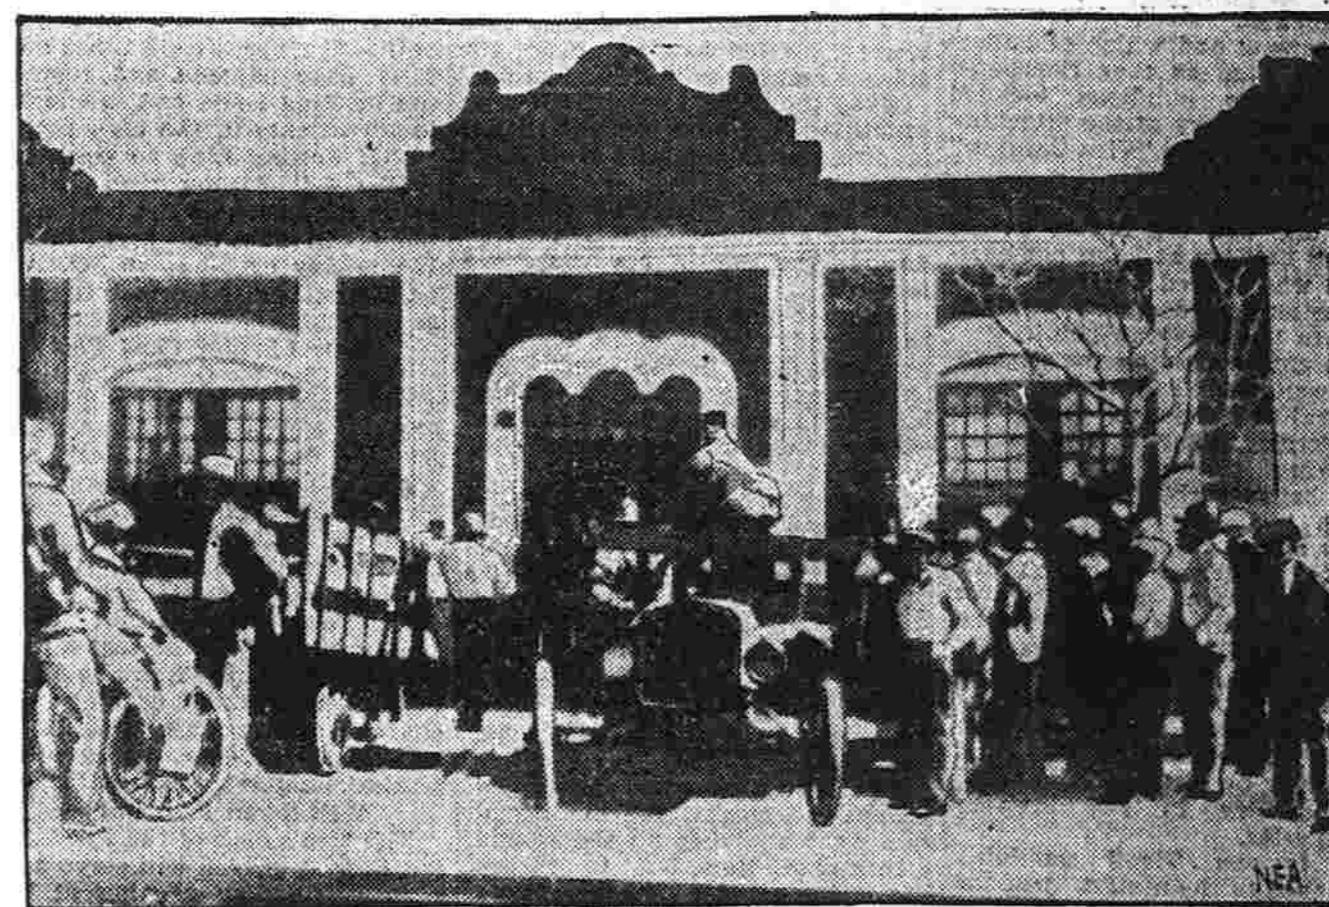

Mexican revolutionists from the interior are shown here arriving on a troop train for their successful attack on Juarez, Mexico, just across the border from El Paso, Tex., which was surrendered by the federals after a bloody battle. Defenders of the city raised the white flag after heavy losses. This picture was taken by a cameraman for The Herald and NEA Service, flown from El Paso to Los Angeles by airplane and speeded thence by telephoto.

AMERICAN BOY VICTIM

Two American children were victims of random shots fired during the revolutionary army's victorious march upon Juarez, Mexico, on the United States border. Six-year-old Louis Chevez of El Paso, Texas, severely wounded by a stray bullet, is shown in this NEA telephoto upon his cot in an El Paso hospital. The other child, Lydia Rodart, was killed instantly.

AT THE MEXICAN FRONT

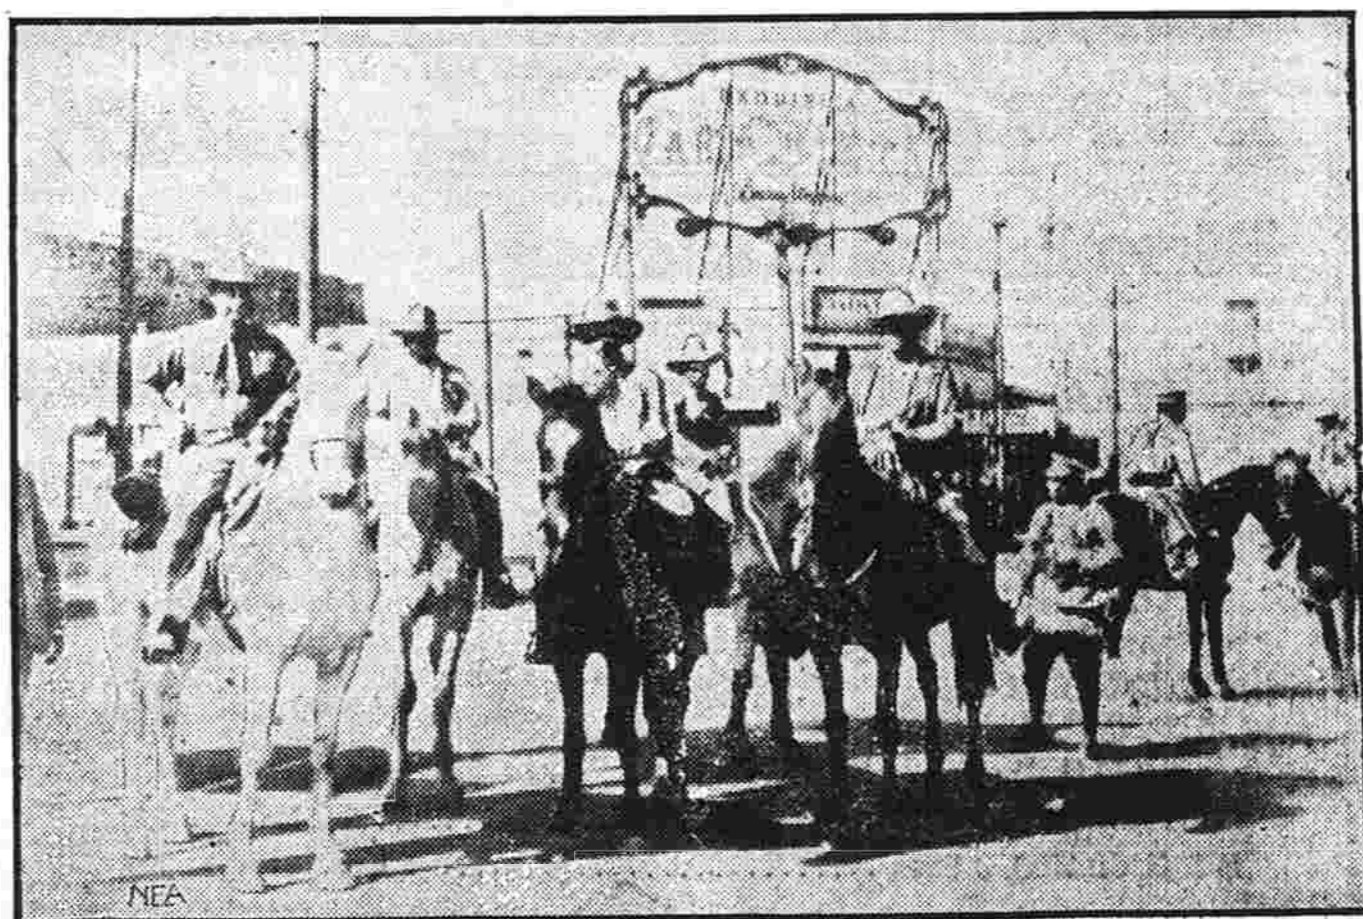

Fallen before the onslaught of the rebel army, Juarez, Mexico, tourist town on the United States border, recovered quickly from the effects of revolution, buried its war dead, cared for its wounded and resumed "business as usual." This NEA Service photo shows the wounded being carried into the American consulate at Juarez after the fierce skirmish which resulted in the capture of the town. The picture was flown from El Paso, Texas, to Los Angeles, telephoned to New York and rushed to The Herald.

PLAY BIG PART IN MEXICAN REVOLT

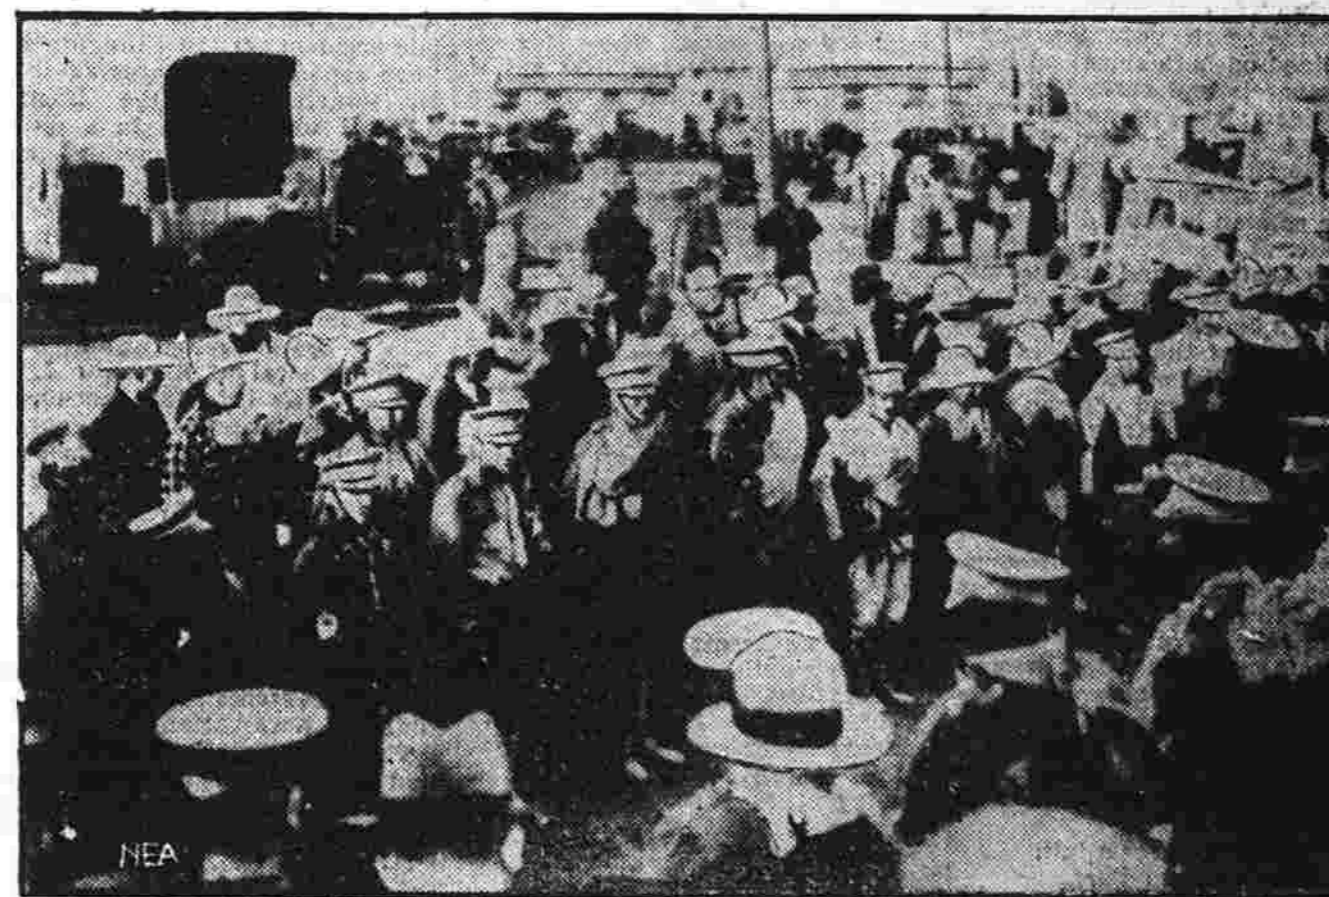

General Gilberto Valenzuela, key man of the Mexican revolution, is pictured above with his wife, regarded as one of the most beautiful women in Mexico. Upper left is Governor Fausto Topete, of the state of Sonora, one of the first to join the revolutionists. Below is Rogelio Topete, president of the city of Agua Prieta, on his favorite mount—the horse that he rode to the customs house when he formally took over the city for the revolutionists.

THE VICTORIOUS GENERALS

Hardly had the rattle of machine guns ceased and the shouts of battle quieted than these rebel generals who led their troops in a successful attack on Juarez, Mexico, posed for this picture for The Herald and NEA Service cameraman on one of the main streets of Juarez. From left to right are Generals Albino Frias (former chief of police at Juarez), Augustin de La Vega, Merceino Murrrieta, Miguel Valle and Gonzales. This picture was flown by airplane from El Paso, Texas, to Los Angeles and transmitted thence by telephoto.

LOSERS INTERNED BY U. S.

Following the capture of Juarez by Mexican revolutionists, the federal soldiers, routed, fled across the border into the United States where they were interned at Fort Bliss. The soldiers are shown here surrendering to United States authorities at El Paso. This picture was flown by airplane from El Paso to Los Angeles, from where it was flashed across the United States by telephoto.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Monday, March 11.

Poe's famous poem "The Raven," will be broadcast as a feature of the hour by WJZ at 8:30 Monday night. As usual G. Underhill Macy will give a dramatic reading of the poem, after which Henry Burleigh will give one of the comic interpretations which he writes himself and for which he is famous. A large orchestra, male quartet, tenor and baritone will contribute a program of musical entertainment. Thompson's Corners boasts little real wealth—except for Mrs. Tompkins Jones, who has a means—but its thrifty, hard-working citizens are busy these days making out their Federal income tax blanks. Matt Tompkins, mayor of the community, has set aside Monday evening, at 8:30, for this task and the details will be broadcast over WJZ and associated stations. The shining light of the night's radio program is the presentation of "Tommy Steps Out" by the University of Pennsylvania Dramatic Club through WJZ at 8:30. One hour later the WEAF chain will present the family party in which will be featured adaptations of old masters and popular tunes by Hugo Mariani, an orchestral director. Mariani, master of modern orchestration, has become popular with radio listeners because of his striking arrangements of 19th century music and tone poems in modern rhythm and of popular melodies in symphonic and tone poem form.

THE BLACK PIGEON

© 1929 By NEA Service, Inc. by ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED
"HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN is shot between one and four Saturday afternoon. RUTH LESTER, secretary, finds his body Monday morning, sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office.

McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: Ruth, Mrs. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was infatuated, and JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiancé, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

McMann's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by the testimony of elevator boys MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFLUGER, and of BILL COWAN, Jack's friend who says he heard Jack threaten Borden's life Saturday morning when he saw Borden struggling with Ruth in the opposite office. McMann sends detectives to bring in CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress, and JAKE BAILEY, his bodyguard.

Meanwhile he questions BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHE, his manservant; MINNIE CASSIDY and LETTY MILLER, seventh floor scrubwoman. McMann shows Ruth a fresh scar in the wall outside Jack's window; also a flattened bullet found in the cement seven flights below. He says Borden fired this bullet too late at his murderer who stood in Jack's window.

That evening at Ruth's apartment, she and Jack try to fit into the sordid puzzle Ashe's and Minnie's testimony about some mysterious woman with a contralto voice whom Borden feared. Jack recalls a MARIHA MANNING with such a voice who called on him about insurance and who was strangely interested in Borden's office across the airshaft. Ruth wonders if this is the mother of Borden's illegitimate son, and makes a joking promise to Jack to take charge of the investigation herself on Tuesday.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV
Perhaps it was because she was so tired and suddenly so sleepy that the prayer for help which Ruth Lester addressed, with child-like faith, to her Heavenly Father, ended in an extremely unorthodox manner, designed to confound a less understanding God than the One in which she believed.

For her last words, before sleep settled upon her, like a smothering eiderdown comfort, were: "Please come back to me, daddy. I'm not clever enough to save Jack without your help. It's just the kind of case you always loved. You could make all the pieces of the puzzle fit. Come back and laugh at me for being so stupid—so stupid."

And with miraculous suddenness, part of that drowsy, naive prayer was answered. Subconsciously, Ruth Lester knew that she was dreaming, that her actual body—aching with fatigue—was lying on her couch bed in her tiny bachelor girl apartment, that her adored father, Colby Lester, always referred to as "the famous criminal lawyer," was dead. But her prayer was being answered, and what did it matter that it was only a dream? But she mustn't wake up too soon.

The dream was a kindly one, not fantastic or absurd. She was back again in her father's library, curled kittenwise in his arms, watching with fascinated blue eyes as his long, slim fingers arranged and rearranged bits of a jig-saw puzzle spread out on the desk before him.

"What is this big, square-shaped piece, daddy?" she heard her own voice inquiring, as those expert fingers made a quick rearrangement of the pieces of the jig-saw puzzle.

"That, infant?" She distinctly heard his beloved, familiar chuckle. "Why, that's the orchid-tinted letter, of course."

Perhaps, Ruth mourned later, if she had not cried out so sharply at that she would not have awakened, would have seen the complete solving of that jig-saw puzzle under the expert manipulation of Colby Lester's fingers. But she did wake up, with her own exclamation of self-disgust and her father's last words ringing in her ears.

With the sharp clarity of mind and memory which comes in the small hours of the night, Ruth recalled every detail of a scene which she had forgotten throughout the dreadful first day of the police investigation into the murder of Henry P. Borden.

She saw again the large, square, orchid-tinted envelope, with its distinctive, angular handwriting in violet ink, saw herself seated at her desk in the outer office of Borden's suite, sorting Saturday morning's mail, laying aside unopened the exotic missive marked "Personal"; saw, later, the gesture of repulsion and anger with which Henry Borden flicked the unwelcome letter across his desk, then heard again the muttered oath with which he picked it up and thrust it, unopened, into the breast pocket of his vest.

In her excitement, Ruth sat straight up in bed, her hands clasped to her wildly beating heart. Where was that letter now? She had been Detective Sergeant McMann go through the murdered man's pockets, could clearly recall now every item he had taken from them. And no orchid-tinted letter had been among them!

other promoters on stock as dubious as his own. She had tossed the worthless papers into the empty wastebasket which stood beside his desk.

Perhaps he had read the letter and thrown it away after she had left, but if so, it was the first of the orchid-tinted letters, of which he had received several during the four months she had worked for him, to find his way into his office wastebasket and thence, possibly, into the possession of a curious reader. But if it had not gone into the basket and been taken out, with the rest of the papers, by Minnie Cassidy, where was it now?

"If, as McMann seemed to believe, Rita Dubois had robbed his desk body, why should she also steal a letter written to Borden by another woman? There was no possibility that Rita herself was the writer. The orchid-tinted envelope marked "Personal" had been coming to his office long before he had ever met and fallen in love with the dancer.

If Mrs. Borden had killed her husband before Rita's arrival and robbing of the body, she could not have known of the existence of the letter, could have had no motive for taking it if she had known, for the letter had not been written by Elizabeth Borden. Ruth knew the discarded wife's hand-writing very well, had seen her small, delicate, precise signature each month as an endorsement of Borden's check for separation allowance.

Suddenly the obvious course of action occurred to the excited girl. There was no use in puzzling and worrying over the letter now, but tomorrow morning. . . . She lay back on her pillows, welcomed the waves of sleep which immediately began to dull her brain, for maybe Colby Lester, her father, would come to her again. . . .

Colby Lester did not come again that night, but the next morning his daughter woke, feeling strangely happy and comforted, quite equal to performing the two errands she had set herself—without benefit of police sanction—and then, as she had impulsively expressed it to Jack McMann the night before, to taking charge of the investigation into the murder of Henry P. Borden!

While she was dressing, a sudden thought occurred to Ruth, and she ran to the front window of her tiny apartment. As she had expected, she saw a man strolling leisurely up and down the sidewalk across the street from her apartment house, his head turning now and then to glance casually toward the cheaply pretentious entrance.

Ruth blew a finger-tip kiss to the unconscious watcher, laughed exultingly, then whirled back to her dressing-table. "I'm going to lead you an awful chase, dear, obvious old 'shadow'!" she promised him.

And she kept her promise. Twice, as the detective's taxi drew almost abreast of hers, the girl thought she was going to be stopped and questioned, but undoubtedly the man had his orders not to jerk on the leash.

The first was not a long trip. Ruth's taxi drew up before an old but dignified apartment house in one of those side streets which offer their residents an impeccable address—the kind of address which makes department store saleswomen look at the owner with interest and respect.

"Please wait, I shan't be long," Ruth directed her driver.

"Mrs. Borden is not seeing anyone, miss," the uniformed doorman told her, when she asked to be announced over the house telephone.

"Please get Mrs. Borden on the phone, and tell her that Miss Ruth Lester wants to see her on a matter of vital importance," Ruth directed crisply.

It was a saddened, subdued girl who gave the next address to the taxi driver.

"That typ cab's following us, with a dick inside," the driver told her, out of the corner of his mouth, as she climbed into her taxi.

"I know," Ruth smiled at him reassuringly. "The 'dick' is only doing his duty. There won't be any trouble."

The driver shook his head, hesitated about starting his motor. "I don't want to get mixed up in nothing, miss."

"Very well," Ruth agreed cheerfully, preparing to disembark. "If you don't want to drive me, I'll get another taxi to take me in his cab. I'll save taxi fare."

"Guess it's all right," her driver concluded, grinning at her impudence.

This time the trip was a long one, so long that Ruth cast more than one anxious glance at the meter, but at last she reached her destination—the suburban grocery store over which Minnie Cassidy lived in two cheerless rooms. Ruth had made the trip once before—on Christmas Day—to visit the old scrubwoman, temporarily bedridden with rheumatism.

Entrance was through the mean, dirty little store, inefficiently run by Minnie's son-in-law, with the help of the girl, Rose.

"Hello, Rose!" Ruth greeted the pretty, untidy girl behind the counter. "I want to see your mother."

"She's upstairs, Miss Lester. Bud isn't here, and I'm alone in the store. Would you mind going up alone?"

Ruth found Minnie Cassidy puttering about a disordered kitchen. "Good land, child! What brings you here?" Minnie greeted the girl. "Here take the weight off your pretty feet! . . . Phut! Don't bother! That's only the cat's saucer and it was cracked anyway. . . . Now, what's Tommy McMann here up to? Has he arrested your young man, and do ye think old Minnie can help ye out?"

"I do think you can help me out, Minnie," Ruth smiled, "but Mr. McMann has not arrested Mr. Hayward—yet. . . . Listen, Minnie, and I try hard to remember: when you were emptying Mr. Borden's wastebasket Saturday, did you notice an orchid or lavender-colored letter? It may have been torn up, of course, but I thought you might have noticed the unusual color."

"There! I knowed I'd forget something—what with Tommy McMann pestering the life out of me with his fool questions!" Minnie Cassidy interrupted, slapping her fat old thigh with a triumphant hand. "I saw the very letter ye mean, child, but not in the wastebasket. . . . A reading of it the poor man was his face as black as a thundercloud, and his fist pounding up and down on the drawer, as if he wished it was the poor lady's face he was poundin', not a drawer without feelin'."

"Drawer?" Ruth repeated blankly. McMann had gone through every drawer in Borden's desk. . . .

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
© 1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

My, oh my, but this is a conventional world!

How many of us can remember things we were crazy to do as children and would have done, too—possessing all the originality and none of the inhibitions of childhood—had not our parents done the inhibiting for us?

Think back, parents, of the pet disappointments you have carried through the years to maturity, and then look at your own boy or girl and try to recall the thing he or she has been coaxing to do these many months. Are you holding back because of some silly convention? Are you afraid of what people might think?

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

A Boston husband complained that his wife was losing most of her week's earnings in Saturday night poker parties with her married women friends. The poker-playing wife was dragged into court on a gambling charge, and she and her six girl friends fined $5 each.

Now if the husband was earning that poker money by the sweat of his brow, if he himself had no money for poker or anything else, his complaint might be justified. But note that he says "her earnings." Things have certainly come to a pretty pass when a husband can complain of what his wife does with "her earnings." Still, many a wife would and does complain about what a husband does with "his earnings." Goose and gander, I guess.

"MARRIAGE MARKET TOWNS"

There are 57 "marriage market towns" in 29 states, according to a Russell Sage Foundation report. A "marriage market town" is described as one which draws more than half its total marriages from outside its own license district. Most of such marriages were performed by J. P.'s who would do the plain job for $3 with an extra $3 thrown in if the license were "kept out of the paper." Ministers and J. P.'s were found splitting money with taxi drivers for bringing the couples to them.

Well, what about it? The foundation neglects to cite the evils of this fact. It probably enables kids below age to be married without paternal consent. It probably makes the remarriage of divorced couples easy. But still, marriage is marriage, and about the same when done in one way and place as another!

TAKE PROFILE'S ADVICE!

If, when you view your profile in your mirror you detect the least suggestion of harshness in your make-up, or if you appear older and too sophisticated, then your make-up requires toning down. As a general rule, it is safer to underdo, rather than overdo one's facial decoration.

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

FIND NO RELATIONSHIP OF DIET TO CANCER

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Man does not live by any single article of diet alone. If he is wise, he eats a variety of substances. He knows that the fundamentals of a wholesome diet include fresh fruits and vegetables and that a well balanced diet contains proteins, carbohydrates and mineral salts. Such things can be had in meats, eggs, milk, cereals, sugars, butter, and many other food substances. One of the ideas most promoted by food faddists of one type or another is the notion that the eating of any special food substances may be the cause of cancer and that abstention from some single article of diet will prevent cancer.

Cancer Research
In Great Britain research has been undertaken during the past year to find out whether there was any connection between cancer and the absence or presence of certain vitamins in the diet.

Dr. J. A. Murray, director of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, concludes that there exists no trustworthy evidence, experimental, clinical or statistical, of a causal relationship between cancer and the absence or presence of excess of any particular constituent of the human diet.

It has been shown that the absence of certain vitamins from the diet will result in the appearance of various alarming symptoms and

Q.—Does excess fat tend to make a person less efficient?
A.—Yes. Excess fat represents just so much extra burden to be carried about and so much extra tissue involved in the human metabolism.

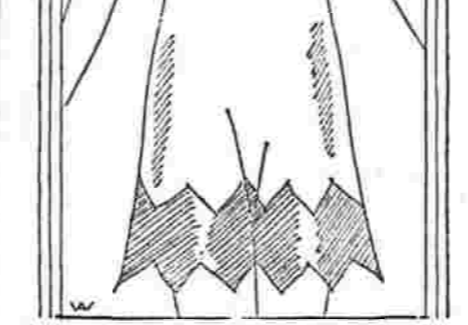

that vast overdose of some vitamins may have toxic or poisoning effects.

However, the poisonous doses are apparently beyond any quantity that one might get in an ordinary diet.

Hardly enough has yet been learned to make positive statements or to give definite advice as to the quantities of vitamins to be taken by different persons under different circumstances. Enough is known to say that no definite relationship has been established between vitamin intake and cancer.

This announcement will not, however, affect in any way the claims of the food fanatics or food outlaws. They are not interested in facts; they are salesmen of propaganda.

Comfort, Simple Beauty Mark This English House

By CORA W. WILSON
Beautiful in its very simplicity is this small, comfortable English house made of white stucco, half timber, clapboards and shingle roof.

The exterior of this house is simple and the unusual roof line is one of its main points of interest.

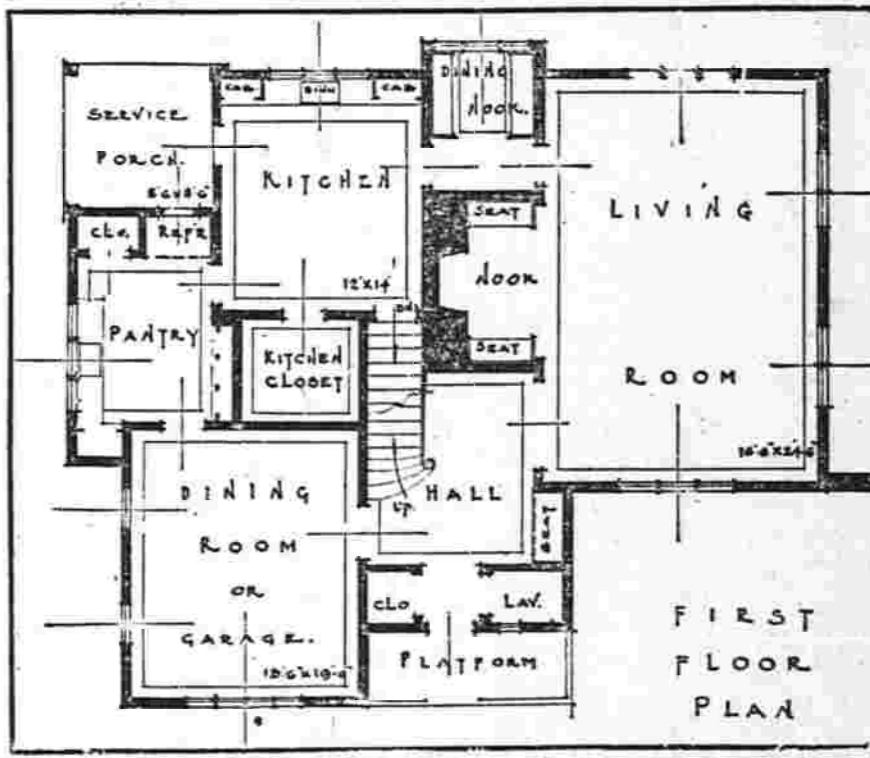

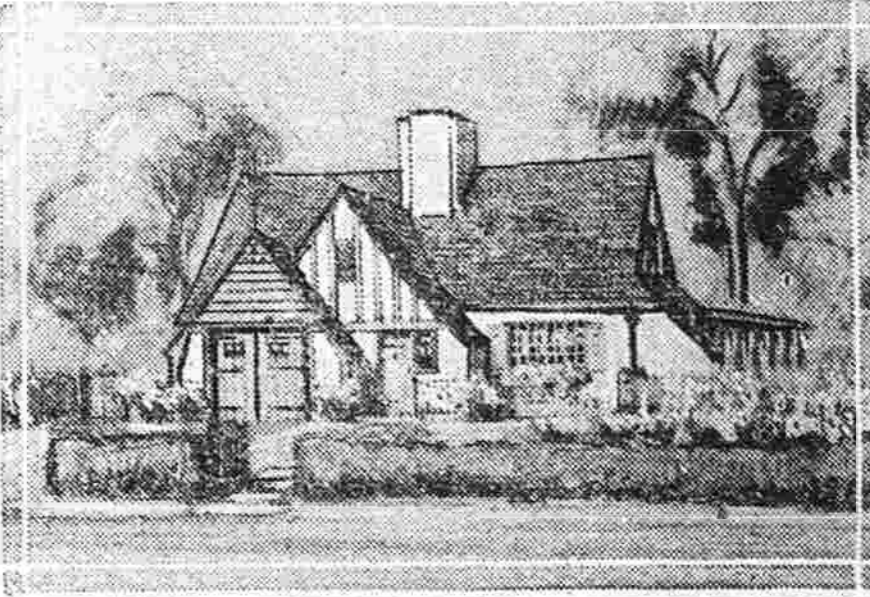

The visitor enters a small hall with a coat closet and lavatory and passes on into a large, well-shaped living room which has windows on three sides, making this a light, cheerful room with three vistas of the garden. The room is entirely separated from the rest of the house.

Kitchen Has Large Pantry
From this room one enters a modern, well-equipped kitchen with a large pantry and an extra closet of very good size.

In the "front" of the house, on the left, is a large, square room that may well be used as a garage. It is accessible from the kitchen or the hall. This room also can be finished as a dining room and may have an entrance from the outside, or this space may be used for windows.

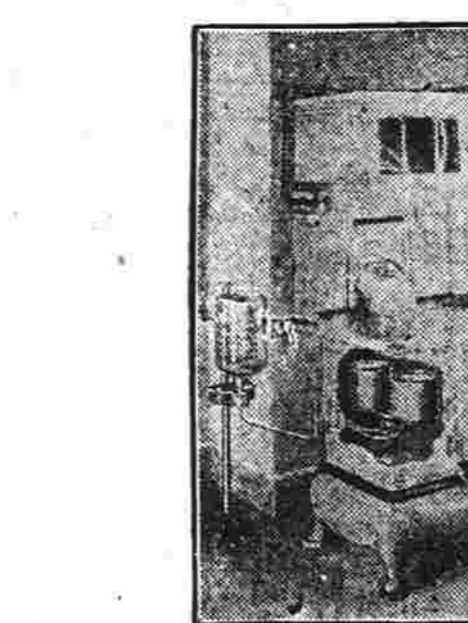

The second floor has two large, light bedrooms both equipped with cedar closets, accessible to the bath, modern in every way and with ample storage space.

For additional information and cost estimate, write Mrs. Cora W. Wilson, 420 Madison Ave., New York City. Inquiries should be accompanied by the clipping from this paper and please mention Plan No. 85.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: Antigone

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Draucher

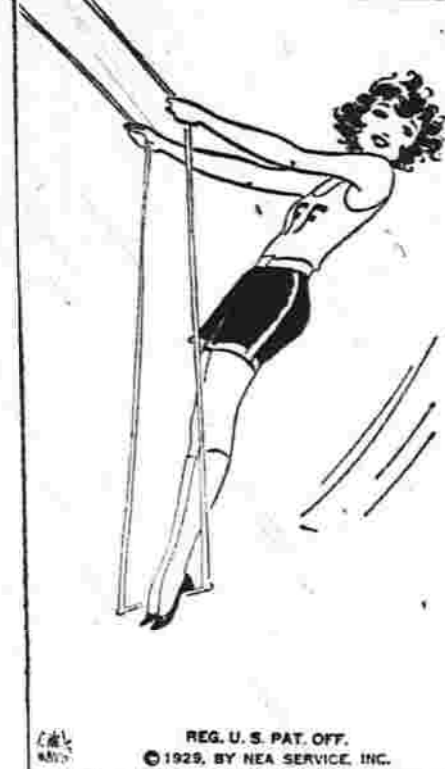

After Antigone had scattered dust over the body of her brother Polyneices to honor it, she knew that terrible death by torture would be her lot upon returning to Thebes. But the brave girl went back to the city unafraid.

King Creon heard of her deed and ordered her to be buried alive in the rock tomb as he had previously decreed.

As the soldiers led Antigone away to her dreadful imprisonment all who saw her were moved to tears.

Meantime a terrific struggle between love and pride raged in the breast of King Creon. Finally he relented and sent soldiers to bring Antigone from her imprisonment. The messengers were too late. Antigone had given up her own life as a sacrifice to honor her brother. (Next: A Brave Doctor)

NO GUN, NO PRIVATE ARMY; NOR ANY CAR

Constable Finds Vacuum at The Pines Instead of Barage or Assets.

Not only has Mrs. Elizabeth Rasch left Manchester, as related on Saturday after she had settled her police court fine for keeping liquor with intent to sell and had vacated her appeal to the superior court, but so have all her possessions that could be levied on by a creditor, though up to a couple of days ago there had been quite a lot of tangible assets at the old mansion on Tolland turnpike which she operated as a roadhouse under the name of "The Pines."

When it became known, on Saturday, that Mrs. Rasch had returned to town, after having been missing for some time, a lawyer hastened to get out attachment papers against her automobile and such other property as might be available, in the interest of James Poide, contracting painter, who had helped to make "The Pines" beautiful but who hadn't ever been paid.

Man With a Gun. The lawyer gave the writ to Constable James Duffy, to whom came the cheering news that Mrs. Rasch had left in charge of affairs at "The Pines" a man with a gun, under instructions to discharge said lethal weapon in the direction of any intrusive officer of the law who should come around with a paper and try to swap if for an automobile or anything like that.

Constable Duffy has already been victor in various arguments more or less of this kind and is not easily impressed by threats. Nevertheless he couldn't very well go alone to seize an automobile, because he can only drive one at a time and needed somebody to bring back the attached car. So he took along a citizen who has never yet seen a hired man shoot a constable and wanted to be around if such a thing should unfortunately happen.

As they approached "The Pines" the place wore an air of mysterious silence—just such as it might if a hired man with a gun back of the building. Nor, when the garage door was opened, did there come a blast of gunpowder. Nor was there any hired man, gunned or gunless, in the garage. Nor was there any car. Nothing whatever but one sparrow, which flew out.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT" EGGS AND EGGS. There are eggs and eggs. There are fresh eggs and there are fresh eggs. There are even strictly fresh eggs and strictly fresh eggs. Feed the hens merely for productivity—and feed them for delicacy and quality of the product; and see the difference. Pinehurst's strictly fresh eggs are eggs in perfection.
