

HEARING ON DIRT ROADS NEXT WEEK

State Legislators Expect Stubborn Battle When Subject is Brought Before the Committee.

By CLARENCE G. WILLARD

That the most stubbornly fought battle of the present General Assembly will probably center about the so-called dirt roads bill became obvious this week when that measure came before the Committee on Roads, Bridges and Rivers for a hearing on Tuesday afternoon.

There were many bills for the improvement of country dirt roads submitted to the Assembly, but the proponents of these bills in order to concentrate their attack withdrew their support from all except one measure. This bill would provide for the appropriation of $500,000 a year from Motor Vehicle Department receipts to be proportioned among the towns of the state for the improvement of town gravel roads. Each town's portion of the appropriation would be applied to such roads as the individual town might direct, but the work would be done by the highway department. The towns would pay 25 per cent of the cost and the state would pay the balance.

Attendance at the hearing alone was sufficient to demonstrate the fact that interest in the bill exceeds that in any other measure before the 1929 Assembly. The hall of the House was literally jammed. It was practically impossible to force one's way into the hearing after it had started. The crowd was unquestionably the largest that has attended a legislative hearing in the last decade.

The hearing was at first held from the time the crowd began to gather shortly after the close of the regular session of the House until the hearing was adjourned. Although the hearing was scheduled for 2:30 o'clock, the vanguard of the huge assembly was seated in the hall an hour earlier and had the opportunity of witnessing the opening of highway department bids on contracts advertised early in the month. It is the practice of the highway department to open the sealed bids upon all contracts in public and this work is usually done in the hall of the House. Opening of the envelopes and the reading of the bids, in addition to being an education in highway department matters for the visitors, served to heighten the interest in the gravel road proposition even further.

Sentiment at the huge hearings was almost entirely one sided; in favor of the passage of the bill. The fight in behalf of the measure was led by Dr. William L. Higgins, secretary of state, who for many years past when he was a member of the House has been the generalissimo in such matters. Many of the legislators who are interested in the bill appear before the committee to register their approval, and a petition advocating favorable action and containing the names of 178 members of the House was submitted to the committee.

The only opposition voiced to the passage of the bill was registered by some of the leaders of the House. Although this opposition was dimmed by the overwhelming sentiment in favor of the bill, it nevertheless made it apparent that defensive bulwarks were being erected to resist the assault upon state funds for this purpose.

The committee listened most carefully to the numerous speakers who favored the measure, but it seems to be understood about the capitol despite the deluge of enthusiastic support that the bill will receive an unfavorable report. Normally an unfavorable report upon a bill is a very good indication that the bill will be rejected without any great amount of opposition. In this case, however, the wave of favorable sentiment is so strong that a verbal contest will doubtlessly be necessary before the matter is finally disposed of.

It is understood that in the Senate, some of the Republican members who are seeking the passage of the dirt roads measure have sought and have received promise of the Democratic support. Since the minority controls 13 of the 35 votes in the upper House, there is little doubt but that the sentiment will be well split and that a solidification of the balance of the Republican votes will be necessary to prevent passage.

In the House, 178 members have already signed their names to the aforementioned petition favoring the measure. Should these representatives continue to lend their support to the bill, it would naturally pass even over an unfavorable report. Most of the House leaders, however, are against the bill and this will undoubtedly serve to sway many of the petition signers.

Reluctantly, Mr. Hoover acceded to the opinion of his attorney general that the law was mandatory upon him and issued a proclamation declaring the national origins clause, which changes the whole basis of determining quotas, in effect as of July 1, 1928.

ANNE'S PICTURE ADDED TO LINDBERGH EXHIBIT.

St. Louis, March 23.—A picture of Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, niece of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, will be added to the large and varied Lindbergh collection at the Jefferson Memorial here.

Miss Morrow who recently viewed the many Lindbergh trophies, readily agreed to add her favorite photograph to the collection.

Trophies for the Flying Colonel continue to come in from all parts of the world. The exhibit now fills the entire west wing of the Jefferson Memorial.

DRY CUTTER SINKS BRITISH SCHOONER One Seaman Killed or Drowned in Battle Off Louisiana Coast.

New Orleans, March 23.—The British auxiliary schooner Imalome, plying out of Belize and described by Coast Guardsmen as a notorious liquor smuggling craft, lay on the bottom of the sea off the Louisiana coast today, sunk by the guns of the crack Coast Guard cutter Dexter.

A member of the Imalome's crew, a negro, was either killed or drowned in the battle. His body was recovered. All other members of the schooner crew were taken aboard the Dexter and reported the sinking of the craft in the Gulf of Mexico. The Dexter then reported the sinking of the schooner to the United States.

The Dexter, it was said, had been acting under orders to capture the alleged contraband ship, which was said to have long evaded the dry craft in plying illicit cargoes from Belize, Honduras to the United States.

First Sighted

The cutter Walcot, under the command of Warrant Officer Frank Paul, encountered the schooner first in this section Thursday 200 miles southwest of Marsh Island.

The master of the schooner, according to reports relayed here from the Coast Guard stations at Pascagoula and Biloxi, Miss., failed to heed an order to prepare for boarding and fled.

The Walcot planted one big shell into the Imalome's rigging but could not overtake the craft immediately because of intervening shoals. The chase, however, continued in the direction of Pearto, Mexico, and other Coast Guard craft joined the pursuit, the reports said.

Cutter Opens Fire

The Imalome was sighted again by the Coast Guard yesterday. This time by the cutter Dexter, near "Six and Seven." The cutter opened fire and the schooner responded persistently until she heaved over and sank without ever offering to surrender.

The Dexter, after reporting the incident, was ordered to proceed to New Orleans by Lieut. Bixby, squadron commander at the Pascagoula, Miss., Coast Guard station.

The captain of the Dexter, according to reports received here over radio from Coast Guard stations, ordered the Imalome master to heave to and submit to search, but the fleeing craft refused.

"Then I'll have to sink you," the Dexter commander warned, according to the reports. "Get your men into your boats. We are going to fire."

This ultimatum, according to reports here, was totally ignored. The guns of the Coast Guard craft boomed, and the scurrying crew of the rum ship hurried into life boats.

PROBATIONS TOLL

New York, March 23.—The death of a British seaman during the battle between the auxiliary schooner Imalome and the United States Coast Guard cutter Dexter brings the total number of persons slain in connection with prohibition to an unofficial figure of 229, an average of more than 22 a year, over the year period since the Volstead Act went into effect.

NATIONAL ORIGINS ACT WORRIES CONGRESS NOW

New Immigration Law Will Bring Out First Test Vote.

Washington, March 23.—The groundwork was laid today for what may prove to be the first test vote of confidence in the Hoover administration will demand.

"National origins"—That new method of determining future immigration quotas—is the subject in question.

The problem confronting Congress is just how far the executive will go in seeking to have the special session, which meets April 15, repeal this clause of the immigration law.

Reluctantly, Mr. Hoover acceded to the opinion of his attorney general that the law was mandatory upon him and issued a proclamation declaring the national origins clause, which changes the whole basis of determining quotas, in effect as of July 1, 1928.

LAY PLANS FOR THE DEFEAT OF CONSOLIDATION

Eighth District Meeting Lines Up Its Arguments Against All New Charter Proposals.

Upwards of 100 men and women residents of the Eighth School district together with representatives of several of the other districts gathered in the Assembly hall of the Robertson school on North School street last night for the purpose of forming an organization to defeat district consolidation here.

Two attorneys, Storrs Campbell, of Hartford, and Dr. F. A. Sweet, of this town and Raymond Carmody, who was introduced as representing the taxpayers of the Seventh district, spoke. Among the other speakers were Dr. E. G. Dolan, Irving Campbell, Attorney Fred Manning and Dr. F. A. Sweet. Every one of the speakers urged the voters to oppose the amendments to the charter as proposed by the revision committee. While there was no vote taken on the matter it was very apparent that the large majority of those present were opposed to any change at this time.

Carmody Speaks

The meeting was called to order by Tax Collector Joseph Charter. L. Brown was chosen as moderator and Dr. Perry Lichtenstein, Carmody said that he had been brought into the contest by representatives of the Seventh district and that he had not had as much time to study the amendments as he would like. However, he had given some thought to the matter and he thought that they were put together hastily and that they were unwise and unsafe. He thought the committee on revision was treading on unsafe ground when that committee failed to follow the general statutes which specifically provide the means for bringing about consolidation. He thought that the committee was giving the board of selectmen far too much power when it provided that the board of finance be appointed by the selectmen rather than being elected by the people as provided in the general statutes. He said it was an absolute absurdity. The proposed changes would bring about too much centralization of government, Mr. Carmody claimed. He urged the vote on amendments should be an annual town meeting and not a special meeting. He believed that the town would get into difficulties because of this.

Attorney Fred Manning was called upon to speak by Charles A. Sweet. Among other things Mr. Manning told the gathering that he was against consolidation. He was satisfied with the present form of government under which the town was prospering. He claimed that consolidation would not save any money for the people and will not help the school children. Hartford Lawyer The next speaker was Attorney Storrs Campbell. He assured the gathering that he would be brief. He had not the opportunity to examine the amendments as he should if he was going to talk any length on them. He admitted that he did not know who had compiled the amendments but said that they were very crude to say the least and that they were apparently gotten up by a layman. He preferred a more representative government than the charter provided and claimed that the amendments if adopted would create no end of difficulties. He had nothing to say against consolidation of school districts. However, the amendments appeared to be hastily put together. As an attorney he would advise the meeting to go carefully and not

TOLL OF MINE BLAST WILL EXCEED FIFTY

Forty-five Dead Have Already Been Accounted—All But One Died in Mine.

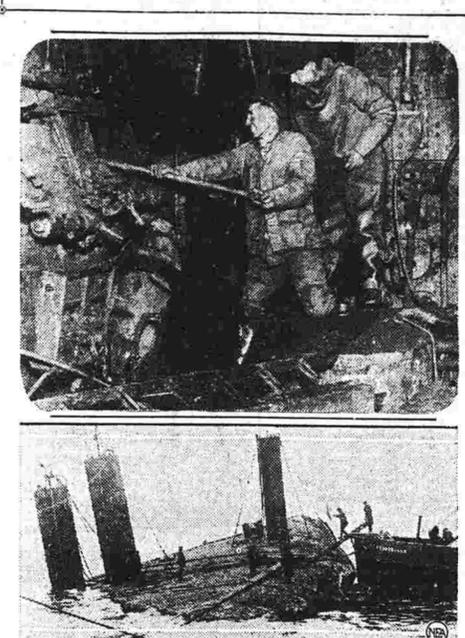

Parnassus, Pa., March 23.—Mine rescue crews expected to bring to the surface today all remaining victims of the gas explosion in the Valley Camp Coal Company's Kinloch mine near here.

Many rescue men insisted that the death toll will exceed fifty. Forty-five dead have been accounted for, all but one of whom were killed below the surface. The other was working on the tippie and was burned to death.

Four separate investigations are under way, but they will have to be satisfied with gathering information from families of the victims and from reports that all sections of the mine have been penetrated.

Lawrence Allhouse, rescued alive after 26 hours entombment, was recovering rapidly in his home near the mine. His three children, all under four years old, played about the house as usual, unmindful of what had happened.

Working Upside Down Undersea

HOWELL SLASHES WRISTS IN JAIL

Second Suicide Attempt Made by Manchester Man Held in New York.

Earl William Howell, 36 years old Manchester man, wanted for a Vermont Center robbery and arrested in New York City Thursday, is in Bellevue Hospital today reported in a serious condition as the result of attempting to commit suicide last night in the Tombs. It was only a few months ago that Howell tried a similar stunt in the cell at Manchester, police headquarters. In both instances he slashed his wrists.

Attempts Get-Away

Howell apparently is determined not to be returned here for trial. When he was arrested by New York City police upon information supplied by Connecticut authorities, Howell waived extradition before Magistrate Renaud in the Criminal Courts Building and was remanded to the Tombs. It was while on the way to the Tombs under the escort of Detective Jeremiah Murphy of the Beach Street Station, that Howell suddenly thrust out his right foot and tripped Murphy. The fact that he was not handcuffed, enabled him to be fifty yards away before Murphy arose and fired three shots at him.

Traffic Patrolman William Locke half a block away, gave pursuit. Howell ducked behind a truck and when Locke closed in on him, shouted: "Get out of the way or I'll kill you," motioning to his right hand which was in his coat pocket. He had scarcely finished his sentence when he was flushed for a right upper-cut punch on the nose.

"His Nose 'Takes It'"

Locke turned Howell over to Murphy who then handcuffed him and marched to the Tombs. Howell's nose was said to have swollen thrice its original size and he was treated by Dr. Perry Lichtenstein, Tombs' physician. District Attorney Banton said afterward that he would seek an indictment against Howell charging him with attempted escape.

The attempt at suicide was made in his cell last night and he was rushed to Bellevue. The extent of his injury is not fully known. It is understood that he lost considerable blood before his attempt was discovered. This will probably delay the return of Howell to Connecticut. When Howell is returned here, he will be charged with theft in the Rockville police court. He is wanted for stealing $300 worth

Mother And Infant Son Believed In Fire Ruins

Lewiston, Me., March 23.—Firemen, police and city workers today were digging in the ruins of seven fire-wrecked buildings for a mother and infant son, missing after fifty men, women and children had fled to the street from the path of the flames early this morning.

Twenty-five persons, who lived in apartments above the various stores, sought refuge on the police station. One of them, Mrs. John Huges said that her tenant, Mrs. George Heikkinen and her son, had not been seen and a police search of the city at first failed to reveal their whereabouts.

The fire, which, police said, started from an explosion of undetermined origin in the Leblanc dye house, burned the business district from the dye house to the Canal on that side of Main street. The loss was estimated at $125,000.

GANG'S GUNS AGAIN ROAR IN CHICAGO

One Dead, One Fatally Wounded as Machine Gun Sprays Street—Battle of Beer Runners.

Chicago, March 23.—One man dead and another perhaps fatally wounded was the toll today of Chicago's latest gang outbreak.

Raymond Cassidy, gambler and beer runner, was the man killed. He was riddled by machine gun bullets last night as he stood talking with friends in front of Danny Stanton's saloon on South Halsted street.

The job was bungled, however, and an innocent man may die as the result. He is James Hawkins, 22, who was passing the scene on a crowded street car when the shooting began.

Gun Sprays Street

The deadly volley from the machine gun, or sawed off shotgun—witnesses are not sure which—sprayed the packed street car as it rumbled by. Half a dozen bullets pierced the front of the car.

Young Hawkins, who was enroute to visit his sweetheart, was shot through the left eye by one of the wild bullets. His collapse in the crowded street car, together with the confusion on the street outside, sent the passengers in a panic.

Cassidy was surrounded by five men who leaped from an automobile. All were armed with revolvers save one. After clubbing the victim over the head with his revolver, the leader of the gang said: "Let him have it."

Drives Machine Gun

The apparently unarmed member of the assassin squad then produced a hand machine gun or sawed off shotgun from underneath his overcoat and trained it on Cassidy. The building was between Cassidy and the street car came within the range of fire.

Their crude task done, with Cassidy prostrate on the pavement, the killers leaped into their car and sped away.

Cassidy died instantly. His brother, Arthur, with whom he was talking when the murder car drove up, escaped the hail of bullets. It is believed Arthur, too, had been slated for slaughter. He was later arrested at his home for questioning.

When police reached the murder scene they found a young woman collapsed over Cassidy's body. She proved to be Miss Julia Webb, Cassidy's 20-year old sweetheart, who lived across the street and heard the fatal shots.

Police are looking for Danny Stanton, owner of the saloon in front of which the shooting occurred. They want to question him. Cassidy, a former sanitary district policeman, was said to have been a member of the Stanton-Stubby McGovern beer gang.

THOUSANDS VIEW BODY OF MARSHAL

Tomorrow Remains Will Be Removed to the Famous Arch of Triumph.

Paris, March 23.—Solemn thousands again lined the length of the Rue De Grenelle in silence today for their departed idol, Marshal Ferdinand Foch, whose body lies in state in his home in that street.

Long before the doors of the home of the late marshal were opened at 10 o'clock this morning to permit the first in line to enter, the street was filled with a sombre throng.

Those in the highest stations of life mingled with poorly garbed clerks and stenographers. Here and there in the crowd was a younger standing patiently and waiting to be allowed to pay his last respects. Not all in the waiting line were French. People of many nationalities, among them many Americans, were noted.

The public was to be allowed to view the late marshal's bier today from ten until noon and then again from two in the afternoon until seven in the evening.

Who Bears Up Bravely

Madame Foch is bearing up bravely under her loss. Despite her deep sorrow she personally received many of the more distinguished visitors who came to express their sympathy.

Although the French government wishes to accord the late marshal the supreme honor of burial under the Arch of Triumph, where lies the Unknown Hero, his family stated that as a devout Catholic he could not be buried there as the ground is not consecrated.

The marshal's body, therefore, will be interred under the dome of Les Invalides on Tuesday near the remains of his famed predecessor in military glory, Napoleon Bonaparte.

FEDERALS MAKING BRAVE STAND IN MAZATLAN CITY

NOTE FROM MEXICO DESCRIBES REVOLT

Hebron Woman Now in Ma- zatlán Tells Inside Story of Revolution.

(Special to The Herald)

Hebron, March 23.—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lord of this place have just received a letter from their daughter, Mrs. Howard C. Champ under date of March 8, from Mazatlan, Mexico, in which she describes the upheavals in that disturbed city. Mazatlan has been cut off from communication with the north on account of the bridges being burned by the federal troops to prevent the rebels from attacking. Mrs. Champe says, in part:

"Monday (March 4) we heard that the long rumored war was really on. The General Manzo of Sonora had refused to send his troops south when ordered to do so, and that when the government refused to pay his men, he attacked the custom house in Nogales, and the Post Office, to get money. Then, our troops went north to destroy bridges and they returned here. Monday night the rest of our troops went south, leaving the city practically alone, but they returned. It was rumored that they are going to open the city to the oncoming rebels from the north. Tuesday the Post Office and telegraph offices were closed. The banks have been closed at times and the prices of food goes up. I am our neighbor. The Germans the city got out a notice that the stores must not raise the prices of anything without a city ordinance. All grocery stores were ordered to close at 5 o'clock. We have been warned all along to get plenty of water on hand as it is feared the rebels came they might cut the water pipes as they did in a previous revolution. Result, everyone seems to be using the water faucet more than usual and we are unable to get water here on the hill. There have been a few times that the pump could draw a little for a few minutes and then it stops, so we tonight we are nearly out, and so our neighbors, the Germans, told us last night they would turn on their big pump and fill our tanks today, but when the superintendent of work there went to turn on the pump, the truck was there loading on the pump and they took it away, so that is that. Well, there's always a tomorrow coming in Mexico."

"Yesterday the consul said that they do not know where the Mexican states boat Bolivar is. It is said that the boat will come in here in which case, if it should open fire in our direction we ought to be away from home. We talked to the Baragans about it, and he took it as a joke. Having seen the whole thing, he thinks they have nothing that could do much damage. Today, about 10 a. m., we saw a big boat come in and behold it stopped midway between here and the big rock islands. It had us on our toes a few minutes until it went on again, and later we learned that it was a new boat bringing railroad ties and did not know how to enter the harbor. There is no harbor, and they have to stop on the other side of the lighthouse and bring cargo in by launches. Mr. Baragan says it is to be just about the same as that boat did. I hope it will continue so. Anyway, I have a suitcase packed for all the family in case we have to leave on short notice. But unless a boat comes in and starts something from the wrong side of the harbor we are in the safest place in town. The other night after the soldiers had all left and we knew that the rebels might enter any time, about 9:30 p. m. there was a great stir, martial music, drums, etc., and you could hear the soldiers marching and it sounded as though they were crossing the city in our direction, but it was all over in half an hour and the next morning we had come in from surrounding towns. Today we heard that in other parts of the country the federal troops are practically winning, and if that is true it may be nearly over. We are hoping mails will get through north again soon, but you see we are all well and there is no danger yet. P. O. and telegraph offices opened again today and the Pacific Mail Steamship line has raised its fare 50 per cent which makes all the Americans mad. It is an American owned line.

"The latest rumor is that it will be two or three months before we get train service north. Also we hear that ex-President Calles has been arrested as a prisoner, and that Adolfo de Huerta (the same one that started the revolution three or four years ago) is provisional president, and that Calles is in front of 10,000 men going out from Mexico City to meet the rebels. But who knows anything of real fact?"

BATTLE STILL RAGING

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, March 23.—At 5:30 this morning rebel cavalry and infantry began charging the Mazatlan hill, fortress where the Federal forces under General Jaime Carrillo were making their last stand in defense of the Sinaloa seaport, according to telegraphic advices to insurgent headquarters at Venadillo, Mazatlan. The attack was ushered in with constant machine gun and rifle fire from both sides.

A strong garrison will be left at Torreon.

Damage to railroads by rebels around Torreon will run into millions of dollars.

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, March 23.—At 5:30 this morning rebel cavalry and infantry began charging the Mazatlan hill, fortress where the Federal forces under General Jaime Carrillo were making their last stand in defense of the Sinaloa seaport, according to telegraphic advices to insurgent headquarters at Venadillo, Mazatlan. The attack was ushered in with constant machine gun and rifle fire from both sides.

Rebel Prediction

In a telegraphic communication to General Francisco Borquez from field headquarters shortly after midnight the prediction was made that "Mazatlan will fall into our hands before sunrise. Our troops are already in control of the greater part of the city."

The rebel cavalry advance over a single narrow sand entrance to the city was harassed by a severe bombardment from the Mexican Federal gunboat progress lying in the harbor.

Gunboat Shells City

The Progresso shelled the path of the cavalry advance to the Cadalaris district as well as field headquarters at Venadillo. Rebel artillery stationed 300 metres from Palos Prietos rancho on the outskirts of the city, returned the fire in an attempt to destroy the gunboat.

The Progresso's bombardment caused little damage, according to telegraphic advices from Venadillo headquarters, while rebel cavalry under General Roberto Cruz, advancing in capturing the Cadalaris district and Loma Atravesada Hill, both points of vantage, according to insurgent advices. Cruz set up telegraphic connection between Loma Atravesada and Venadillo soon after capturing the hill.

Shortly before midnight the rebel infantry succeeded in capturing Masafuera cemetery in the heart of the city where breakwaters immediately were thrown up.

Mrs. Fred Wilson of 91 St. John street has returned home after caring for her father who has been sick, Geo. W. Greene of Volantown.

DRIVER OF ACCIDENT BUS EXONERATED

Ledoux Case Is Nulled by Prosecutor; Brown Guilty of Drunk Driving.

Euclid F. Ledoux, Willimantic bus driver for the New England Transportation company, was today exonerated of all blame for responsibility of the death of Frank Merkel, 37, of 577 Center street, who was killed almost in front of his home when he was struck by a bus operated by Ledoux a week ago Thursday evening. His case was nulled by Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Hathaway in police court this morning. A coroner's finding said that there was no evidence of criminal negligence on the part of Ledoux. It was raining on the night in question and the bus was traveling at a normal rate of speed. Merkel was struck crossing the road.

Ralph A. Brown of 64 Garden street, Hartford, was fined $100 and costs by Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson when found guilty of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor March 15. He was arrested by Patrolman Albert Roberts. Roberts, Captain Herman Schendel and Dr. Le Verne Holmes, all testified that Brown was drunk and in no fit condition to run a car. In his own behalf, Brown denied he was drunk but admitted he had taken three drinks. He said he was driving for another fellow who was too drunk to drive him from being arrested. Probation Officer Edward C. Elliott and Jack Sanson testified in behalf of Brown's character and reputation. Brown gave notice of appeal.

CAMP STEW HIGH SPOT IN FATHER-SON SUPPER

A corking good camp stew that kept the waiters on their toes, dishing out second and third helpings, was served to the 75 fathers and their sons, members of Troop 1, Boy Scouts, at the Second Congregational Church, last night. Coffee, cocoa, rolls, candy and pie acted as fillers and were dispatched with the same quickness and satisfaction as the main course.

Thomas Maxwell's Mandolin Club provided music during the meal and also led the singing of popular songs. The chairman of each number spoke for the quality of the music. The singing of the gathering was hearty, though it would cause no uneasiness among the Choral Club or Beethoven Glee Club. Their laurels are safe.

Frederick H. Wisk, Jr., superintendent of the Hartford public schools, spoke to the fathers and sons on "Boys." Chief Executive Frederick C. Hill of Hartford also said a few words and told of the "The Woman's Home Review." He assured the boys that they would receive a cordial welcome to Camp Pioneer. John Rehertz, electrical expert and inventor, gave a demonstration of electricity.

John Tenschler, chairman of the committee in charge, was the chief. Everyone remarked that he was a "wow." The rest of the committee, who served as waiters, were George Borst, Irving Campbell, Calvin Davidson and Fred C. Allen, Clarence Sadronzinski.

of automobile accessories from automobiles parked outside a hall in which the Grange was holding a meeting at Vernon Center recently.

Not only did Howell attempt to kill himself in the local police station a short time ago, but he also had the tips of his fingers cut off while serving a term in Seays street jail. Whether or not the injury was accidental was never fully known. However, Howell is said to have received $500 in compensation.

Center church chapel was filled to overflowing last night for the Women's Federation entertainment featuring an animated magazine, "The Woman's Home Review." The program filled fully two and a half hours and delighted the audience with every one of its cleverly represented departments, from the cover design to the back page advertisements. Much credit for the production is due Mrs. Stephen Hale, the chairman, the teachers from the High school and all who co-operated to make the affair the success it proved to be.

will benefit the opponents of the bill rather than the proponents. There are two reasons why it is believed that the proposal will be doomed to defeat despite the present sentiment in its favor. The first reason is that the same committee has before it numerous bills for the inclusion in the state's trunkline system of highways of various town roads. It means little or nothing to place these roads in the trunkline system unless funds are available for paying them. If $1,000,000 is to be appropriated biennially to the gravel roads, it stands to reason that the trunkline system, consisting of the chief arteries of travel in the state, must suffer. Many of the legislators are seeking the inclusion of new roads in the system and they will naturally oppose the dirt road proposition when this fact becomes fully realized.

The songster brigade sang a couple of numbers very effectively under the leadership of Fred Clough. Rev. Laite spoke on "When He is come, He shall reprove the world of sin of righteousness and of judgment to come." (John 16-8) and gave a clear forceful presentation of the office and function of the Holy Spirit that was convincing.

Manchester hasn't hit the stride of last year, so far in 1929. In the matter of building permits. Last year 136 permits were issued, the greater part of them for single houses. Since the new year began there has been a marked falling off in the number of applications. During February not one dwelling house permit was taken out and with March drawing to a close this month only discloses one dwelling permit.

MANY HERE SEE FIRST ALL STEEL REFRIGERATOR

Favorable Comments Mark Presentation of New Type of Cabinet.

As announced in a series of advertisements running in this paper, the Treasure Chest in the window of M. H. Strickland was opened at 11 a. m. today.

The opening of this chest revealed a sparkling white General Electric Refrigerator, the first all-steel refrigerator that has been offered to the public. Many favorable comments were made by those present and Mr. Strickland predicts a great demand for these refrigerators.

"The all-steel cabinet will give a lifetime of service," he said. "There is no wood to warp, swell or retain food odors. The joints are electrically welded and cannot open. The hardware is bolted firmly to the steel body and in tests, the self-closing latch stood up perfectly after having been slammed shut 300,000 times by a machine.

"It is the last word in sanitary cabinet construction and with the quiet, efficient General Electric icing unit, should give years of satisfactory service. Interesting statistics published by Electrical Merchandising show that there are over 19 million wired homes now in the United States, of which only 6.4 per cent have electric refrigerators. 458,000 were sold in 1928 and it is quite possible that the sales of domestic machines in 1929 will run between six and seven hundred thousand machines. People are realizing more and more the importance and economy of perfect refrigeration both winter and summer."

Changes His Mind Dr. Dolan told the meeting that some years ago he stood on the same platform and advocated consolidation of fire districts. But today he said that he was very much opposed to consolidation and urged the voters to go to the polls next Saturday and vote against the proposed charter amendments. He stated several reasons why he had taken this stand. The committee, he said had taken two years to compile the amendments and now want the people of the town to pass on them with about 30 days for study. He wanted to know if the men who are back of consolidation are on the level. He looked Howell Cheney to task for changing his figures in regard to the district assessment. In conclusion he urged the voters not to sell their vote for a piece of land or the promise of a library. "Don't be coerced or bribed," he said. "We have a good government at the present time. Why give it up?" concluded Dr. Dolan.

Dr. F. A. Sweet in his talk stressed the increased cost under consolidation. He believed that each district in the town should be given the opportunity to say whether or not it wanted consolidation. He believed that if consolidation were brought about the voter would have little to say in the town management. He urged the voters to go to the polls and vote against the amendments.

Irving Campbell wanted the meeting to express its sentiment on consolidation by a rising vote and made a motion to that effect but Attorney Carmody thought such a move would be unwise and Mr. Campbell immediately withdrew his motion. The meeting then adjourned.

plunge into the matter without more serious consideration. Irving P. Campbell reiterated his statement made at a previous meeting that if we are to have consolidation every section in the town should be represented on the board of selectmen. He claimed that we do not have representative government at the present time and that consolidation would make it more centralized.

violinists. Selections to be rendered are, "Whispering Hope"—Hawthorne; "The Palms", sung by Miss Irene Lydall with violin obligato; anthem, "On the Wings of Morning Borne"; an anthem by the Junior choir and Mendelssohn's "A March from Athalia". The congregation will join the choir singing the hymns beginning, "Ride on, ride on in majesty!" "Spirit of God! descend upon my heart!" and "Rejoice, ye pure in heart!"

The sermon topic will be, "Opportunity" and the topic for the talk to the boys and girls is "The Man in The Tree."

The beauty of this program together with the splendid attendance of recent Sundays give promise of a full church tomorrow.

The happy rivalry between companies is close; last Sunday "A" recovered its leadership of two weeks ago, by the narrow margin of 7.

The Worship Service at 10:45 follows closely the adjournment of the Church School which meets at 9:30.

At 2:30 Sunday afternoon there will be a full rehearsal for the Easter morning service. All having part in it are asked to be sure to attend promptly at 2:30.

The hour of the Epworth League service will be 5:30 instead of 6:00.

Prof. Willard Uphaus, who the last two Sunday evenings has so greatly interested the young people at the South church, comes again to be our leader at this service. His topic will be, "Constructive Paths to Peace". The South League and friends will be our guests. All interested are invited. It is too good a chance to miss.

The Official Board is asked to meet in the Vestry Sunday evening at 7:00 for important business.

Tuesday evening at 7:30 there will be a meeting of the Finance Committee at the Lydall and Foulds office.

Wednesday at 7:30 in the vestry of the church the last of the series of union meetings led by Mrs. Burgess will be held. The topics are "Religion in The Development of Youth" and "Home, Church, School and Community Relationships."

The anniversary of the institution of The Lord's Supper will be observed by a union service at the Congregational church Thursday evening at 7:45. This is one of the most significant and sacred dates in the church calendar; and it is hoped that our people in large numbers will attend this service.

The annual union Good Friday service will be held at St. Mary's church from 12 to 3 o'clock. All are invited.

The Junior choir, meets for rehearsal Friday evening at 7, with the Misses Lydall, 22 Hudson street.

OKLAHOMA
 Oklahoma's second removal of a governor by impeachment has brought out many exclamations of surprise and question marks. Newspapers all over the country are inquiring, "What's the matter with Oklahoma?" The fact that, of the seven administrations which have figured in the history of the young state, only two have escaped the impeachment of some member is recalled with bewilderment. The New York World's comment is typical. It inquires:
 "What ails Oklahoma? With its swift and splendid growth, its inflow of vigorous and intelligent settlers, its schools and its press, it should be a well governed state. Why does it fall down so often? Is it bad management? Is it bad luck? Is it a disease of infancy to be outgrown?"

Perhaps the thing that is the matter with Oklahoma is that there is less the matter with it than with those other states which never resort to impeachment of incompetent or dishonest officials. Perhaps it is the very superiority of its vigor and its intellect that makes it take action against abuses which, in older states, would either create little interest or at best arouse only grumbling protest. Perhaps it is because Oklahoma insists on a far higher standard of official rectitude and responsibility than her older sisters that she has developed this habit of kicking out bad public servants.

There are very few states in the American union which haven't had good reason to impeach public officers who never were impeached. Oklahoma may prefer to have her ills diagnosed and treated by surgery instead of hiding the disease centers from the knowledge of the world.
 Indiana's is a case in point. There has probably been a hundred times as much nefarious business associated with the government of that state in the years since Oklahoma was admitted than there has been in the junior state. But so far as we can recall nobody has been impeached, though some of its officials have gone to prison for crimes.

It is just possible that the question, instead of being "What's the matter with Oklahoma," should be, "What's the matter with the states which stand for evils that Oklahoma refuses to stand for?"

WHAT A CHANCE!
 The involvements and convulsions of Tammany politics are too many and too entangled to be understood or worth understanding by anyone not a resident of New York city, or at least of New York state. But one thing is sufficiently obvious in the present conflict over the leadership of "The Hall"—which is that opportunity is going to be afforded, to a very considerable number of newspapers and individuals jockeyed by the Smith Presidential candidacy into a sort of championship of Tammany, to get out of that uncomfortable position.

Until recent years it had always been the unchallenged prerogative of any good Democrat, outside of Manhattan and the Bronx, to describe Tammany in the same terms as Republicans employ. When the Democrats of the nation accepted Alfred E. Smith as their leader, however, it became quite impossible for them to maintain their frowning attitude toward the Tammany idea, inasmuch as their candidate was a loyal Tammany man and always had been. Democratic critics of all manner of virulence suddenly found themselves in the position of enforced apologists. They were in the same boat with the man who had the fat dog for sale. "Say," exclaimed that individual, "you just ought to see that dog. Why, he's the gol-darnedest, dol-darnedest, ding-dummedest fattest dog you ever did see in all your life!"

"But I don't want a dog as fat as that," commented the prospective customer.
 "Oh, well," suddenly qualified the vendor, "He's nice and fat, all right, but he ain't what you'd call so gol-darned fat!"
 The Tammany that had been so terrible just had to become not so terrible when it popped in to the picture as the political nurseery of the Democratic Presidential candidate.

 And since the election it had been impossible for the apologists to return to their old position of critics because it had not happened to give them a sign of an excuse. Now, however, the change of leadership gives these folks and these newspapers a beautiful chance to get out from under their Tammany sponsorship. It makes no difference what leader is named, they can now say "This new Tammany is terrible! It isn't the Tammany of Olney at all. We wash our hands of it."
 And the next time they will be very, very careful about being maneuvered into any pro-Tammany commitment.

Health and Diet Advice
 By DR. FRANK MCCOY
 THE MOST FOR YOUR MONEY.
 It does not matter how much money you are to spend for your food, you cannot get more nourishing or palatable meat than the cheaper cuts of beef. Many have the mistaken idea that expensive meats are the best, and do not realize that some meats are more expensive only because there is a limited amount of that particular portion of the animal. A sirloin, tenderloin or porterhouse steak does not contain as much nourishment as a cut of round steak, and there is a great deal more waste in bone. By actual test it has been found that a round steak is more digestible than the other I have mentioned.
 Sociologists tell me that it is appalling to find so much ignorance in the matter of selecting cheap but nutritious foods. Poor families sometimes spend their last dollar or two to buy some expensive article of food which is not as nourishing or wholesome as cheaper foods which are also often more palatable.
 Families living entirely on charity have been known to spend all of their money for a chicken or pork roast when they could buy round steak or chuck beef at about one-third of the cost. Many of my patients who can well afford to pay for the most expensive cuts of meat have now learned to use round steak purely because they enjoy its flavor.
 If your budget must be kept down, buy vegetables in the season when they are most plentiful and if canned vegetables are used, it will usually be found that the cheaper grades are just as good as the more expensive—the difference in price being because they are selected from a coarser stock and more carelessly packed. Most vegetables are now cooked in the cans, and in cheaper grades are just as good from a hygienic standpoint as the more expensive ones.
 Very few people of North America are really starving for food. Most of them have too much but it is improperly balanced and may be too rich in starch, protein, fat or sugar and woefully lacking in the mineral elements or vitamins.
 Over-eating is one of the most frequent underlying causes of disease. Gorging with rich food often occurs even in poor families. The best plan is to follow a health menu, for it costs no more than the conventional diet mixture, and one has the added attraction of good health and a pleasant disposition.
 I do not believe people have as much trouble with the high cost of living as with the cost of high living. No matter how well off one is financially it is a good plan to be careful of the spending of one's money. By a little careful observation and care one can learn how to cut the cost of food to one-half by the selection of cheaper but just as wholesome foods.

ver to announce a strong federal policy of conservation.
 Administration of Indian affairs was a scandal all through the Coolidge administration, as it had been many years previously. The Coolidge policy was to let it ride. But already it has been intimated that Hoover will have a new administration personnel for the Indian bureau, and the bureau itself seems to be making frantic efforts to improve appearances.
 Even the pet Coolidge policy of "economy" no longer remains. Hoover must go slow because government finances seem in a delicate condition, but he has let it be understood that he is no cheese-paring president and that his policy will be one of intelligent expenditure without waste. His unofficial press agents have explained that the Coolidge period demanded one kind of policy and that the Hoover period calls for another.
 The Hoover policy toward federal patronage is not yet well defined, but there have been numerous threats of a change.
 Right off the bat Hoover killed the "White House spokesman"—or, at least, dreadfully maimed him. And at press conferences now has something to say which correspondents can put in quotation marks.
 The difference between the first diplomatic "at home" under the Hoovers and the Coolidge parties was sufficient to inspire large news stories. There was more food and less dignity.
 Coolidge shook hands each day with whatever bothered to get a note from his congressman conferring the privilege. Hoover now shakes hands twice a week and has let it be known that he hopes congressmen will be more discriminatory, though they probably won't.
 One could continue to cite examples. But enough is enough and it may be pointed out that all these obliterations of "Coolidge policies" had been made within a week after Hoover's inauguration. Perhaps in 1931 Hoover will be listening to some new republican candidate solemnly assuring the world with tongue in cheek, that he will, if elected, "follow the Hoover policies."

A THOUGHT
 Was to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, whose glorious beauty is a fading flower, which are on the head of the fat valleys of them that are overcome with wine!—Isaiah 28:1.
 A vine bears three grapes—the first of pleasure, the second of drunkenness, and the third of repentance.—Anarchists.
 George Bernard Shaw says that 99 per cent. of him is just like everybody else. He must have shaved.

Mr. Hoover kept in his cabinet two Harding appointees, but the several Coolidge appointees went out with a rush. One does not recall that there was ever the barest rumor that he would retain Kellogg or Sargent or Wilbur or Dwight Davis or West or Whiting. He kept two of the three original Harding members and made a clean sweep of the Coolidge members!
 Oil was a word utterly foreign to Calvin's lips. His oil conservation board long ago recommended "the more intelligent handling of government-controlled oil sources on public and Indian lands." But it remained for Hoover

CHARTER REVISION
Fire District Consolidation

What is the town going to gain by consolidating its fire districts? The properties are already paid for, so that is not involved. The maintenance expenses are paid out of district taxes, so that consolidation may unify the methods and costs of collection, but not reduce the amounts.
 We will gain because as the town grows the same expenditure of capital and maintenance expenses will go farther if district boundaries are wiped out. It is an obvious illustration of the old principle of decreasing the unit of cost and overhead by increasing the spread. Two or three separate small enterprises are never as effective as one strong one. Why? Because their duplicate supervision increases the amount of idle capital and materially reduces the protection of all against fires.
 If Manchester is interested in a lower relative cost of fire insurance, let us consolidate our capital and efforts employed in fire protection and organize them as effectively as possible. A better fire system covering the whole town can pay for itself in reduced costs of fire insurance.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 Washington, March 23 — Major H. O. D. Seagrave's new speed record on the Florida sands has only been surpassed by the record set by the hearse bearing the "Coolidge policies" as it headed for the graveyard.
 If a Republican campaign speaker had suggested last fall that any of those precious policies would be discarded by Herbert Hoover he would have been promptly gagged, repudiated and kicked in the pants. Mr. Hoover himself referred to them as something really holy and sacred, as a sort of brilliant constellation which would guide his faltering footsteps for four years.
 But it was apparent enough to anyone that the "Coolidge policies" were as dead as a dipodocus as soon as Hoover was nominated and whoever was goose enough to suppose that they would be preserved anywhere except in a backstairs closet must lately have been painfully awakened by the alacrity with which the new president has dumped them into the furnace.
 The plain fact is that not one single Coolidge policy is apparent today in the vicinity of the White House. On matters large and small, from prohibition farm relief, oil and international relations down to handshaking, diplomatic addresses and mode of procedure at press conferences, there is a new "Hoover policy."

The general, pervading Coolidge policy was one of inertia. When he acted at all, Coolidge generally acted negatively, vetoing a bill or refusing to permit new expense. Whether for better or for worse, Hoover has demonstrated most convincingly that he is now going to be like that.
 Prohibition is the issue today which interests the most people. Conditions were pretty awful under Coolidge and he let it ride. Conditions may not improve immensely under Hoover, but he is going to do something about them. First he will appoint a commission and, in the meantime it is said, will try to make Washington a dry town.
 Whatever farm relief legislation is passed by Congress will undoubtedly prove to be something that Coolidge would have been willing to sign. But it's Hoover who has called the special session for it and Hoover who has insisted, if only because of campaign promises, that something must be done.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, March 23.—See-sawing up and down Broadway, I dropped up to see Roxey, the "Bar-num of the film show business," who was celebrating the second birthday of his "cathedral of the cinema." . . . And though he seemed to the very tired and worn from his many labors, he was as boyishly enthusiastic as ever over the huge plaything which has drawn thirteen million people to its doors. . . . And it struck me as amusing that a man who had given so much effort to amusing so many millions should be called upon to find his chief amusement in that labor. . . . And when I asked him if there was anything else left that would give him a real thrill he said: "Sure—making a golf course in less than 80."
 And amused by this commentary on the human equation, I stopped at a luncheon for Lupe Velez, the little Mexican girl who was discovered by Douglas Fairbanks and had come to town as a $3000-a-week star. . . . She was being put on display before a hundred critical young men and women of the Broadway cinema world. . . . And her intention seemed to be cute if it killed her. . . . To say nothing of her guests. . . . So all and sundry were treated to such Katzenjammer as putting salt and pepper on the critic's Coronet, on which may be great fun upon the screen. . . . but didn't click so well in life.
 Thence to dinner in Yorkville and was saddened by the change that has come upon the German eating places since last summer. . . . In Yorkville there is a row of cafes, decorated to resemble Tyrolean resorts. . . . And here the waiters yodel and clink their steins, sing lusty songs and dance to "The Blue Danube." . . . Like so many places that started in colorful simplicity, they have gone a bid Broadway way and seemed to me quite too self-conscious. . . . That strained effort to please and sense of working too hard had come upon them.
 So, yearning for gypsy music, wandered into the Gypsy Camp, where there was a woman singing songs, who reminded me of Chevalier and Signorita Meller and many other fine artists. . . . So I fell to wondering what she was doing way up in 92d street when there was none so good in all Broadway at singing such songs. . . . So falling to talking, learned that she had been the original Merry Widow in the Budapest production many years ago and that she liked to sing among her own people. . . . Also, she admitted—which is rare for a woman—that she was no longer young. But young or old, an artist seems to be an artist.
 The new dance from Harlem is called "the freezing milk," whatever that is. . . . And night club choruses have gone in for girls of varied nationalities. . . . One has a Japanese, a Syrian, a Russian and a South American. . . . The young lady who danced with a python at Texas Gulman's night resort last season has changed it to a boa constrictor. . . . But then there's no accounting for tastes. . . . At any rate, after the change she got a vaudeville contract and will go forth to sober up the boys in other parts of the realm. . . .
 One of the latest jests making the rounds of the "Cloak and suit belt" concerns an argument over people with stubborn natures. Finally, after hearing a number of tales, Izzy waved them all down impatiently.
 "You should talk. . . . I know id a feller who went to de dentist's with a aching toot. And when de dentist asked heem which toot id was, he wouldn't tell heem. So de dentist beegen to pool oud all his teed but one. And den de feller tol' heem he should quit. Wal, de toot what wasn't pulled was the one what was aching. . . . and id hurts heem yet! . . . And dat was five years ago!"

INTERESTING INTERVIEWS WITH LOCAL FOLKS

Intimate Word Pictures of Manchester Business and Professional Men and Women You See Daily. A Sort of Miniature Good Will Trip That Forms a Contact With Their Public.

Here, girls, is what you have long been waiting for. Allow MRS. LYLAN E. GELLEN to tell you all about the latest Easter hats. They're stunning.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the thirty-first of a series of local Saturday features. This week's article should be doubly interesting because of the timeliness of its theme.

EASTER always brings to mind—what? Now girls, don't all answer at once. Is this right—Easter bonnets? Certainly. And that's the theme of this little sketch, so let's hear what an expert on the matter has to say.

"The colors this year" says Mrs. Lylan E. Gellen, of Nelligs Millinery Shop, "will be chartreuse, the new yellow green, tan, black and navy. Black and white creations are the rage in New York's fashion centers but one cannot stress the colors too much as neutral shades match best with your costume and that is the principal thing. The eye must not be attracted to any one detail of a woman's dress. What we aim for is the ensemble."

Mrs. Gellen was found in her cozy little shop in the State theater building this week. She is of medium height. Wears black low shoes and grey stockings. Coal black hair. Brown eyes. Wears white gold rimmed spectacles. Flowered dress. Pendant gold pencil on broad black ribbon. Talks rapidly and without gestures. Well modulated voice.

"Now that you have described some of the fashionable colors, what are the materials?"

"One of the materials is called ballbunt, a closely woven straw. Then there are, of course, the felt hats and the crocheted and novelty straws."

Over One Eye

"How are they worn?"

"Aye, there's the rub" was the answer. "The eye line must always be considered. It is fashionable to wear the bonnet over the eye but many faces do not call for this in some cases if the hat is pushed back as far as possible to expose the whole forehead it will look beautiful on certain types of faces. It is all a matter of taste. In my shop here I have trained the girls to make suggestions as to the type of hat to be worn and I find that these suggestions are well received. They should, too, because I have devoted my life to hats and naturally have learned something about the type of hat to fit the face types. I take great pride in using my best judgment to have the woman dressed prettily as far as her bonnet is concerned."

"Are women hard to please?"

"Well, as in all business one must be patient. Now I have often envied salespeople who wait on men. The man is shown an article and says immediately, 'O. K.' The article is wrapped up and the sale completed in a few minutes. That is not woman's way."

THERE ARE NO MORE MIDDLE AGED WOMEN

"HOW are the matrons dressing in the matter of hats? Are they more conservative than the younger women in their taste?"

"There are no more old or middle aged women. Every woman seeks to look youthful. It has reached such a stage that manufacturers are making real youthful hats in larger sizes for the middle aged woman because of the great demand. I personally believe this is caused by the daughters who want their mothers to appear youthful."

"Years ago there used to be milliners. Are there any nowadays?"

"There are very few. You see a woman would have to pay a big price for a hat and for that reason would wear it for a long time. Now she can buy many hats for the same price and always look different. That was what spelled the doom of the milliner except for the very rich."

"Individuality is what the rich desire and in this I specialize. That is why I do not buy from jobbers but go direct to the manufacturer where I can pick out what I prefer. It makes a great difference if you have to buy a lot from a jobber or pick out each hat as one does at the manufacturer's. It means individuality in bonnets when you have your choice."

Born in New York

Mrs. Gellen was induced to tell a little about herself. She was born in New York City but at an early age moved to Northampton, Mass., so President Coolidge to her was a familiar figure. She was graduated from the grammar and high schools of that city. In school she was fond of drawing and her parents encouraged her in this as it developed her sense of things beautiful. She turned this knowledge to good use for after her school days she went into the millinery business and has been at it since. For the past two years she has been in business in Manchester.

TRADE SCHOOL FACULTY BIDS ADIEU TO TWO

Miss Seelert, Director of Secretary, and Instructor Stenger to Leave Institution.

Miss Florence M. Seelert, has resigned her position as secretary to Director Alexander A. Warren at the Manchester State Trade school and has been engaged as historian at the Hartford hospital. It was learned today, Miss Seelert will assume her new duties next Monday morning. She has been Director Warren's secretary for more than six years.

The resignation of William H. Stenger, mathematics instructor, was also announced today. Mr. Stenger has been a member of the Trade school faculty for five years. He is planning to leave at the end of the month for New York City where he will become a small-tool salesman for the Bigelow Company.

The 14 other members of the faculty got together Thursday and staged a farewell celebration for Miss Seelert and Mr. Stenger. Chiefs Stanley Rice and Harry Kitching served a fine roast beef dinner. The faculty's well wishes were extended to Miss Seelert and Mr. Stenger by Mr. Warren. He also presented to them a silk umbrella and a leather brief case respectively on behalf of the faculty.

RHEUMATISM OVERCOME BY WALKING

It has been found that an especially constructed and treated pair of heel plates (one zinc and one copper) placed in the shoes of a sufferer, quickly rids the sufferer of rheumatic pains, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tones up the system in general. Thus the sufferer literally "walks" his way to health. Experiments in hundreds of cases prove these heel plates to be a boon to the sufferer in most severe cases of rheumatism. Smith's Eureka Co., 230 Lee St., McKenzie, Tenn., is so anxious to prove their statement that they are willing to send any sufferer their liberal offer. Write them today.—Adv.

LOCAL WOMAN AWARDED HIGH FRATERNAL HONOR

Mrs. Rachel Munsie Elected State Oracle at Royal Neighbors Convention.

Mrs. Rachael Munsie of Center street was signally honored by the state organization of Royal Neighbors, which convened this week in New London, by election to the office of State Oracle, a position which she will be privileged to hold for the next four years. The convention was attended by between 300 and 400 delegates from the 31 branches of the order in Connecticut, which is considered one of the largest fraternal and insurance organizations for women and by women in the world. In the west the Royal Neighbors are stronger if anything than in the eastern states.

Mrs. Rachel Munsie.

Mrs. Munsie while not a charter member of the camp, joined within the first year of its existence, nearly 25 years ago. She has at all times taken an active interest in the work and has occupied every chair in the gift of the local and state camps, and as state vice oracle has visited officially most of the Royal Neighbor branches. In recognition of her efficient work throughout the state, and the honor she has brought to her home camp, she was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses at the closing ceremonies and banquet at the Hotel Mohican tendered by Carrie B. Woods Camp of New London. Her qualifications for the position were set forth by Mrs. Winifred Furniss, oracle of Capitol City camp of Hartford, in a short and pithy speech during the proceedings of the convention, also by Mrs. Margaret Griffin who was a delegate from Manchester Camp No. 2640. Mrs. Margaret Shea, another delegate from the local camp was unable to attend and Mrs. Agnes Messier, her alternate, represented her.

Mrs. Nora Doyle of Waterbury, Conn., was chosen state vice oracle and Mrs. C. Davenport of New London was elected state recorder. Mrs. Ellen Reynolds of Stamford, state oracle for the last four years and presiding officer at the convention was elected first supreme delegate to the national convention which will take place in Chicago, May 4. Her alternate is Mrs. Mary Cushing of New Haven.

DAILY LENTEN THOUGHT

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist.

If it is important to hold fast to everything that is good in life, there are other things in life that it is equally important to let go. Nor are these things all outwardly material and sinful.

There are attitudes of life and heart to which we ought to give no place in thought or will. The art of letting go is as great as the art of holding on, and it requires just as much strength to do the one as to do the other.

In my own life I have found great help through a very effective illustration used by Annie Payson Call in her book, "The Freedom of Life," which I came across years ago. Miss Call reminds us that nobody would hang on to a hot poker. If we happen by any chance to take hold of it, we should let go at once.

Yet there are things in life—sins, anxieties, worries—that sear our souls as readily and effectually as a hot poker would sear the body. It is a great thing when our spiritual wisdom and intuition are so strong that almost instinctively we can let go of things that have no power to help us and that have power only to injure.

Don't forget the hot poker. Cultivate the habit of letting go and thinking of a hot poker will help, I know, for I have tried it.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

"GIVE ME LIBERTY OR—"

On March 23, 1776, Patrick Henry roused the Virginia delegates to the Provincial Convention with one of the most stirring speeches in the world's history. The speech has come down to us as the greatest piece of oratory of the colonial era. It was delivered in defense of resolutions which Henry himself introduced, to organize a militia and to put the colony in an attitude of defense. Its most stirring passage was:

"There is no retreat but in submission and slavery. Our chains are already forged. Their clanking may be heard on the plains of Boston. The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms. Our brethren are already in the field. Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

The resolutions were passed unanimously.

The Christmas tree was known, perhaps common and popular, in Strasbourg, Alsace, as early as 1064.

Writes Poem In Ireland About A Local Tragedy

It took a letter from the Emerald Isle to fully console Sam Ford on the loss of his dog, Rover, the faithful pet that someone shot on Autumn street some weeks ago. The letter came to Sam Ford today from Billy Drysdale, who is vacationing in Ireland, somewhere around Portadown. With it came a sprig of real Shamrock to be placed upon the dog Rover's grave. Billy Drysdale knew Sam Ford's love for his little pet, and when the former Manchester man picked up his favorite newspaper, The Manchester Herald, and read about the tragedy that had befallen the dog, he was moved to tears and poetry. And so it is a strange cycle of events that brings this masterpiece from the pen of Bill Drysdale, formerly of Cottage street. From Manchester to Portadown via The Herald and back to Sam Ford by letter.

Here's the Drysdale "Lamentations Upon the Loss of a Dog":

LAMENTATIONS OF SAMMY ON THE DEATH OF HIS DOG

Place, Army and Navy Club
Time, 9:15 p. m.

(1)
Oh Boys, just listen to my tale
And I will tell to you
Of a dear old friend that I have lost
And bade a long adieu
He was a dog called Rover boy
And known all round the town
He was no lollypop or toy
And weighed just 80 lbs.

I was on a Saturday afternoon
I was sharpening up my skates
And whistling a merry tune
As in stepped my old mates
And one with tearful eye did say
"Pray, Sammy, where's your dog?"
"Some where round the house,"
"says I
Said he, "He's not by God."

(3)
"Right back on Autumn street he lies
Full colder than the clay
A bullet hole between his eyes
His spirit has passed away."
So I jumped up and ran like H—
To find my dear old dog
And sure enough it's sad to tell
He was dead as my log.

(4)
I've seen the horrors of the war
I've seen men killed in France
But the sight of Rover, was by far
The worst that I have chanced
For there he lay, serene and calm
A smile was on his face
As quiet as a little lamb
It was an awful case.

(5)
Ah, boys he was a faithful friend
As ever lived round here
My sole companion to the end
And never knew a single fear
And sure when coming home at night
Just full as any tank
Then he would meet me down the street
To push me up the bank.

No boys, I cannot take a drink
I don't care for any grog
I want to know the son of gun
Who killed my faithful dog
I'll riddle him with bullets
I'll pierce him through and through
I'll string him by the gullet
Until his face is blue.

(7)
Now boys, this little flower I've got
I'm taking to his grave
And leave it on that lonely spot
Where the silent grasses wave
But all the same I'll take a glass
My old spirits to revive
But I'll never forget my Rover Boy
As long as I'm alive.

At the State

Whether to lie like a gentleman and endure the sneers of his fiancée's family or tell the truth and expose her disagreeable sister to public scorn, is a dilemma facing George Jessel in "Lucky Boy," Tiffany-Stahl's talking-singing romance, which opens at the State theater tomorrow for a run of three days.

Jessel plays the role of himself in "Lucky Boy," which, in many respects, parallels his own career. His courtship of Eleanor is frowned upon by her socially select family, who do all they can to show up the Jewish night club singer as someone far beneath her. But when Eleanor's sister would have been discovered in an indiscretion but for Jessel's lie on her behalf—well, the story runs an interesting course before arriving at a happy ending.

"Lucky Boy" is one of the big film hits of the current season. Throughout the production, you hear and see George Jessel as he talks, sings and jokes his way into the hearts of the audience.

Beautiful Margaret Quimby plays the heroine of "Lucky Boy." Rosa Rosanova, William K. Strauss, Gayne Whitman, Richard Tucker and Mary Doran are also seen in the supporting cast.

A pleasing variety of snappy short subjects also hold an important position on tomorrow's bill at the State. The short subjects will include a comedy and the current issue of State News Events.

There will be two complete shows on Sunday evening, at 6:45 and 8:45.

At the Circle

"Beware of Bachelors," the Warner Brothers' picture now showing at the Circle theater, is one of the sprightliest laugh hits of the year.

Audrey Ferris and William Collier, Jr., have the leading romantic roles in this travesty of newly life, which is Robert Lord's adaption of a Mark Canfield story.

Andre Beranger scores one of the biggest hits of his career as the lovelorn perfume maker, his rare comedy characterization winning merry laughter at every turn. Margaret Livingston and Clyde Cook also appear to advantage.

"Beware of Bachelors" was directed for Warner Brothers by Roy Del Ruth, one of the screen's foremost supervisors.

The associate film feature is "A Son of the Golden West," a hair-raising hard-riding drama of the great outdoors featuring the one and only Tom Mix, king of all cowboy stars.

The current chapter of "Tarzan the Mighty," co-starring Natalie Kingston and Frank Merrill, and a Krazy Kat cartoon will complete the bill.

Today's performance at the Circle is continuous from 2:15 until 10:30. The usual two shows will prevail on Sunday evening at 7:00 and 9:00. Come early for best seats.

OLD GENERAL STORE YIELDS TO MODERNITY

Phillip Lewis and Peter Bonino, both with places of business on Charter Oak street, are to combine their interests and engage in the automobile business. This combination leaves in Manchester only one of the old type of general store, common in Manchester forty and more year ago.

The store that Mr. Lewis is now converting into an automobile accessory place was for many years known as Hale & Day's. The partner's being Justus W. Hale, who founded later what is now Manchester's largest department store, and George A. Day. They sold every conceivable variety of household merchandise and also ran a livery stable. They sold wood and wagons and, incidentally the first horse drawn carts ever used in the South Manchester fire department. Mr. Hale sold his interests to Mr. Day and later entered the dry goods business. The store on Charter Oak street was later sold by Mr. Day and there have been many changes. The wagon sheds and stables now house small businesses. Some of the buildings have been converted into dwellings. The wood yard on Wells street has been converted into lawns and back yards. One of the buildings is now a garage.

Why Give Up A Government Which We Know Is GOOD and PRACTICAL, For One Which We Know Nothing About?

Men and Women of Manchester! We Must Retain The Right To Govern Ourselves!

Our present form of government is good government—it has proved itself through the years

In the very words of our great Lincoln, the present form of government of Manchester is a "Government of the people, by the people, and for the people." We are a fortunate people, indeed, to have it so. We are the envy of the plain, solid citizenry of cities and towns throughout the country.

And yet, it has been proposed that we change. On Saturday, March 30, you will record your votes on the proposed amendments to our town charter. These amendments propose that we consolidate all districts—that we abandon our present district system of government—that we give up our rights as individuals to elect our town officers—that we give up our individual rights of town meeting control for the spending of our money, in our own behalf—that we give up other rights.

As plain citizens, we see danger for our town and nothing else, in these proposed amendments for consolidation. It goes far beyond the differences in political opinions. No matter what our party beliefs be, it hits all of us in our most deep-rooted rights—in the very traditions upon which the ideals of our country's constitution is based. It strikes squarely at our rights as citizens free born and equal.

The Charter Revision Committee, authorized in October, 1927, made its first definite public statement late last month. OVER A YEAR! OF DELIBERATION FOR THEM—LESS THAN FIVE WEEKS FOR US. We will not be stampeded into an action we will regret ever after. All of us citizens; the plain, humble folk of Manchester will vote NO next Saturday.

The Committee for Good Government

Every thinking man and woman of Manchester, who wants to pay only his or her own fair share of taxes; and who does not want to pay any part or portion of other people's taxes, will visit the polls next Saturday and vote NO!

THIS HAS HAPPENED

RUTH LESTER, secretary, finds the body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, Monday morning, sprawled beneath the air-shaft window of his private office.

McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was infatuated; and JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiancé, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

McMann's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by Jack's admission that he came back to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon, and by the testimony of elevator boys MICKY MORAN and OTTO PLUMMER, BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, unwillingly admitting that Jack threatened Borden's life Saturday morning.

The detective sergeant questions BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHE; his manservant; MINNIE CASSIDY and LEFTY MILLER, scrubwomen; and scrubwomen: CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress, and JAKE BAILEY, his bodyguard.

MARTHA MANNING is brought into the case by Ruth's clever detective work. She was seen by Borden on Friday night and challenges McMann to bring forward anyone who saw her in the building Saturday. Ruth knows that headquarters is pushing McMann for an arrest and she believes Jack is soon to be thrown into jail. McMann gives her his permission to leave the office for an hour and she returns strangely jubilant from this mysterious journey. In the lobby of the building she finds a commotion. RAMON ROMERO, Rita's husband, is struggling with two detectives who have disarmed him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVI

When the elevator doors opened at the seventh floor, Ruth Lester ran ahead to open the door to Borden's suite, for Ramon Romero's frantic efforts to escape were occupying the entire attention of both the policeman and the detective.

Another of those shameful tableaux that follow in the wake of murder and of which Ruth had seen enough in the last 30 hours to last her a lifetime. If she had never craved morbid excitement, met her eyes.

In a chair drawn up to the large "library" table in the center of Borden's reception room, the exhausted body of a woman half sat, half lay, her head resting on the table, her arms outflung in a gesture of infinite weariness. And around her, so close that the breath of his menacing words stirred the dark, disheveled hair, was Detective Sergeant McMann.

"Sure I'll let you rest, and I'll let you eat and I'll let you have a drink when you come clean, Rita. You robbed your own body! That's all I'm accusing you of! That's all! Come on now, Rita—get it over with!"

Neither Rita Dubois nor the detective had heard Ruth's almost noiseless opening of the door, which had been run by Ramon Romero, dragged to the door by his captors, snat out a foreign coat, the girl's body became electrified, was out of the chair too quickly for human eyes to take in each of her catlike movements.

"Ramon? Oh, my God; Now they've got you!"

The too-handsome, swarthy face of the prisoner came convulsed with hatred as his eyes took in the horror-stricken face of his wife, but McMann roughly turned Rita's averted face from the man's face to the detective to bring in his quarry.

"Where did you find him, Casey?" the detective sergeant asked his subordinate, when the male dancer had been roughly turned to face a chair at the table across from his wife.

"In the lobby downstairs," Casey admitted. "Found a gun on him. Here it is. . . . And he made no bones of what he'd come for—was layin' for his wife to kill her for two-timin' him with Borden."

Ruth gratefully but silently slipped into a chair which the uniformed policeman had drawn to the table for her, and raised compassionate blue eyes to Rita's devastated face. For a moment she thought the dancer was going to faint, but slowly a quivering hand found its customary place on a slim hip, and the supple body regained a pathetic patience of its old nonchalant insolence.

"Well"—Rita shrugged, and her voice was hard, bitter, weary, with a terrible undercurrent of amusement—"the joke's on little Rita, all right! Laying for me to kill me, were you?—like you killed—" But she bit back the name that had almost slipped out. "You pretty dancing fool, you! Didn't you know I did it—for you!—because you had me so ga-ga about you?"

"Just a minute, Rita," McMann clamped a hard hand on the girl's shoulder. "If you're ready to make a confession, it is my duty to place you under arrest, and to warn you that anything you say may be used against you."

"Oh, dry up!" the dancer retorted wearily. "This is just a little quarrel between husband and wife. Yeah! that pretty boy is my husband all right! Now laugh that off!"

McMann did not obey. "So your husband killed Borden because you were going away with him, and now he wants to finish his job by killing you. That right?"

"Killed Borden?" Rita repeated scornfully, then broke into laughter which seemed to be born of genuine amusement. "Do you want to know where this dancing sheik of mine was on Saturday afternoon, from one o'clock till four, when Willette Wilbur and I picked him up? . . . Well—and if you don't laugh now it's because your face got soze into that scowl the last hard freeze we had—Ramon was in Madame Rosenstien's beauty parlor—" Temple of Esthetic Beauty, she calls it—shooting the family bankroll—"For three hours?" McMann was heavily sarcastic.

"Sure!" Rita retorted scornfully. "How long do you think it takes to get a haircut, a shampoo with hot oil treatment, a facial, a manicure, a pedicure, and an eyebrow plucking? Did you think God made him look like that?" and she pointed a mocking finger at her husband.

"Check this right now, Birdwell!" I called from the lobby of this McMann hung the order to the still broad and apparently somnolent detective seated at Benny Smith's desk.

"Telephone number's Circle 0430," Rita volunteered. "A little blonde screwdriver named Nemetie, took care of him. She always does," she added viciously. "Oh, you'll find he was there all right, Big Boy," she turned insolently to McMann again. "And that I telephoned him a little after half-past two, and he will be in accord, and that he was alive when I left him!"

McMann shrugged, and abandoned that line for a new one, of more immediate interest. "So the money was for Romero, was it? What did he need $500 for? To pay his beauty parlor bills?"

Before Rita could reply, Birdwell interrupted to say he had Madame Rosenstien on the wire. The detective sergeant after identifying himself, put his questions with a brutal conciseness and rapidity that must have been a severe shock to the high priestess of "The Temple of Esthetic Beauty," but when he hung up there was no need for him to admit to the room at large that Romero's alibi had been corroborated.

"Now, Rita—no use for me to try to talk to that Spanish-pabbering husband of yours—Romero may not have killed Borden, but he'd killed someone and needed money for a getaway! Out with it, and save time. You know damned well I'll get the goods on him anyway!"

"Then why should I do your work for you?" Rita retorted insolently.

"I think I can help you, chief," Detective Casey volunteered. "This is a bird of the same foreign countries—in South America somewhere, the Argentine, I guess it was—told us to keep an eye peeled for. Killed his sweetie down there, for making eyes at another Hot Tamale, got his picture on file at the headquarters. Guess one of the boys from his old home town blew in and piped him at the Golden Slipper and shook him down for blackmail to the tune of half a grand."

As if each of Casey's hard-boiled words were a bullet, the next moment her own found its mark in her exhausted body, Rita sagged lower and lower, until she was again in the position in which Ruth, opening the door, had found her—half sitting, half lying in her chair, her head on the table, her arms outflung in utter defeat.

And across the table, slowly, uncertain of its welcome came Ramon Romero's beautifully manicured hand. At that familiar touch, Rita raised her head and gazed at her husband with incredulous awe.

"You're not mad at me any more, Ramon?" she asked, in a wistful voice. "You wouldn't really have killed Rita, would you, Baby? Honest—there wasn't any other way to get the money to string Borden along, I didn't ever mean to come across with him—I was going to give him the slip as soon as I got my hands on the cash. Honest to God I was, honest—"

Across the table Ramon Romero leaned as far as his manacles would permit, and lifted his wife's hands to his lips.

"I go with you now!" he said arrogantly to Detective Casey.

"You're mighty right you will!" McMann agreed grimly. "Take this dancing sheik down to headquarters and book him on a charge of carrying firearms till we know more about his comic opera past," he added to the detective and the patrolman.

"May I go with him?" Rita begged, springing to her feet as her husband was being led to the door.

"Sure! . . . If you'll come across with a confession that you robbed Borden's dead body!" McMann retorted, grinning cruelly. "Maybe they'll give you a cell right next to Baby's—"

"Oh, my Gawd, can't you lay off that?" Rita cried with weary scorn, as she willed into her chair again.

"Please, Mr. McMann," Ruth dared suggest, the painful silence that fell upon the group remaining after Ramon Romero had been taken away, "it's way after four, and the cleaning women are on duty by now. You're going to have Letty Miller in for further questioning."

"Letty Miller?" McMann gave her a harassed, puzzled look.

"Don't you remember?—she's the woman who cleans Jack's offices, and the one who admitted Mr. Borden Friday night with her passkey," Rita explained meekly.

"Oh, yes!" the detective agreed wearily. "You had some fantastic theory about the scrubwoman's having left Hayward's door unlocked Saturday afternoon, so that anyone might have walked in and used his phone and his gun. Won't do any harm to ask her, I suppose. And I might as well check Martha Manning's story about having been here Friday night. If the scrubwoman says she was still working in this corridor and didn't see or hear anything of the Manning woman

ALPACA SUIT.

Navy blue silk alpaca fashions a Gerlaur suit that is stunning. The skirt seems straight line but really has five gorges hanging, as loose panels over a tight drop skirt with kick pleats in each side. The coat slopes from hipline in the back to a short Eton in front. All edges are bound in matching satin showing the season's tendency to high-light style.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SCAMNER

Lupe Velez, known as satan-mountain lady of the screen, gets away with her money by a ruse of ingenuity to movie star Gary Cooper. "What?" she screamed at a reporter who called her long distance to confirm the report. "me marry Gary? Why, he is only my sweetheart! We are only in love!"

Thus does the Latin lady remind us Americans again that we are, after all, just about the only country which automatically assumes that love affairs mean marriage, or that marriage can be based on only love affairs.

LUPE'S IDEA

When Lupe marries, as she frankly indicates, it will be "the right marriage," quite aside from indications of the heart. We Americans assume that the only "right marriage" is one prompted by the heart. In the face of evidence pro and con, both types of marriage, it is hard to say which is right, and which works best for individual human happiness.

POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL

Miss Hazel Cooke, described as a San Francisco society girl, and daughter of a wealthy banker, stowed herself away on a ship bound for Tahiti. The other passengers had crossed the Pacific a dozen times in her 18 years, so it was no case of a poor girl bound to see the world in the only way possible for her.

When the captain radioed her parents for instructions, they radioed right back, "put her to work," which was done, though the captain said the bed: were very poorly made.

THE WIFE'S MONEY

In these modern days is a wife's money no part of the family finances? This question is asked in a New York editorial commenting on the Mrs. Marial Vanderbilt Church divorce. Mrs. Church's complaint was that she was obliged to support herself from her own pocket. Her divorce was granted on non-support grounds.

HEALTH

Q—Will cold air cause a cold?

A—Most colds are not due to cold air but to infectious germs which are more likely to be found in foul, stuffy air.

Important Problem

The problem of providing exercise, outdoor air, suitable diet and the other hygienic fundamentals to the working girl is becoming increasingly important because of the number of women engaged in office and factory work is increasing many times.

THREE BELTS.

A girde made of three separate belts of grosgrain ribbon matching a flat crepe frock is very effective. The belts have identical buckles and are joined only at the sides where narrow bits of hand-work form the union.

SHOULD POOL

"Yet this hardly appears just. If marriage is a partnership, then the combined assets or income should be taken into consideration in matters of support. A very rich woman presumably knows in advance that a husband with a small income can hardly supply her needs. But is he compelled to divide what he has with her while getting none of the benefits of her fortune?"

HIS ONLY JOB?

"In law a wife is entitled to full support from her husband who is in moderate circumstances," asks the editorial. "Can she, with a full purse at her command, refuse to spend her own money for rent, food, clothes and service, and have her husband ordered by the court to provide them for her?"

THIS IS EXTENDING 'WOMEN'S RIGHTS' TO THE LIMIT.

To all of which, I put ditto marks. A pretty pass for husbands, indeed!

This And That In Feminine Lore

The wise hostess of today plans her menus with her reducing friends in mind. The rich or sweet afternoon lunch spoils the appetite at dinner time. It is the fats, starches and sugar that increase the calory count, such and bread and hot rolls, cream sauces, whipped cream mayonnaises, desserts made with yolks of eggs and so on. Angel food cake made with the whites of eggs is low in fat and toasted crackers can take the place of bread. Fruit cocktails unsweetened instead of the richer fruit salad with dressing, fruit ices, bouillon or consommé in lieu of cream are other suggestions for your reducing guests.

The great number of repeat orders we receive for Herald patterns are proof that they are liked by those using them. They are inexpensive and stylish, and except in the case of an apron or a house dress one seldom uses a pattern twice, so why pay more? There have been several complaints about delays, and in reply to my letter reporting this fact, the manufacturers say that orders are very heavy just now and they are working on a 48-hour schedule; that is, all orders are being filled within that time, unless they are temporarily out of some of the most popular patterns and must wait until more are prepared. Some patterns are bound to go astray and when customers will report this to us after they have waited a reasonable time, we will inform the manufacturers who will duplicate the order.

It is interesting to know that even an iron tonic, which many people used to take at this time of the year, cannot do the good work that the foods rich in iron can do, and to refresh your memory perhaps a list of these foods will be in order: spinach, cabbage, lettuce, asparagus, string-beans, celery, radishes, raisins, prunes, dates, olives, lean beef, oatmeal, eggs and whole wheat. Always Explain

A wise mother will say, "Look here, Billy. Tomorrow is Jerry's birthday and Daddy and I are going to give him that little wagon you wanted. You see he likes it too, dear, and as his birthday comes first we're sure you wouldn't mind if he got it this time. It won't be long until your birthday, and then, my! What a lovely surprise there will be for you, too. Another little wagon just like this one, perhaps, or something else you want very much."

Correct It Early

It is one of the first things I should try to root out of a child's make-up. And I should begin early.

We shall say that Billy is 5 years old. His brother Jerry is 7. Billy has been wanting a certain wagon like the one his friend Lawrence has. There is one in the window at Lowe's toy-store all painted a bright blue with red wheels. Billy wants that wagon more than anything he ever has wanted in his life.

But along comes Jerry's birthday and Jerry is given the wagon. Jerry, of course, has been wanting it too.

Suddenly there is born in Billy's heart such a feeling of jealousy and hatred of Jerry that he must go out, throw himself on the grass and bite the ground. He has a

Cambridge Beats Oxford By Seven Boat Lengths

Takes Early Lead and Increases it Steadily; Time Is 19:25 for 4 1-2 Mile Course.

Putney, England, March 23.—Cambridge University celebrated the centenary of the famous Oxford-Cambridge boat race today by decisively beating Oxford in this historic rowing contest on the river Thames. Cambridge won by seven boat lengths.

A crowd of nearly 500,000 people that lined both sides of the river sent up a thunderous cheer that rolled up and down the length of the 4 1-2 mile course between Putney and Mortlake when Cambridge, after getting away behind its opponent, began to forge ahead.

At the end of the first mile the light blue oarsmen (Cambridge) were leading by a quarter of a boat length. At the end of the second mile the Cambridge crew were one and one-half boat lengths ahead of their dark blue (Oxford) opponents.

At the end of the third mile Cambridge was three boat lengths in the lead. This lead was gradually extended to nine boat lengths at the end of the fourth mile.

The dark blue oarsmen could not stand the terrific pace. Their stroke weakened and at the finish they were 7 boat lengths behind the powerful Cambridge crew.

Cambridge's victory evened up the score with Oxford. In the past 100 years the race has been rowed 81 times. Cambridge and Oxford has each won 40 times. The contest in 1877 was a dead heat.

The time of the Cambridge crew was 19 minutes 25 seconds.

British Ryder Cup Golfers In New Play Plan

London, March 19.—Startling innovations regarding training and order of play will be initiated by the British Ryder Cup team this year. For these, George Duncan, the captain, is mainly responsible.

Systematic preparation for the first time, will be undergone by the British professionals. They will play together for nearly a month before the match on April 26 and 27, and by studying one another's methods, and the way that couples into each other's peculiarities.

Systematic preparation for the first time, will be undergone by the British professionals. They will play together for nearly a month before the match on April 26 and 27, and by studying one another's methods, and the way that couples into each other's peculiarities.

Three years ago, when the Walker Cup contest last took place in Britain, a wealthy enthusiast was ready to entertain the nominated British team at his home near a famous course so that they might cultivate the team spirit, form their foursome sides, and practice as such, and help one another with advice.

Bad For Amateurs. He was dissuaded from pursuing the project because his friends told him that it savored too much of the gladiatorial spirit and was not at all the correct way for amateurs to approach even an international contest.

This was doubtless a very noble sentiment, but when the actual fight took place the British players struggled as best they could instead of as an organized force.

I recollect that it was only during the afternoon before the event that the foursome pairings were arranged, so that the couples had no opportunity of developing co-operation.

In the end there was some downright bad foursome play on the part of the British side and it lost the match. For the first time in history Britons won the singles, but they were beaten in the aggregate because they had suffered too heavily on the first day.

The British professionals will not suffer by a like error on this occasion. Several couples present themselves to the mind immediately as pairs who could work in perfect partnership—Duncan and Mitchell, Compton and Henry Cotton, and the brothers Charles and Ernest Whitcombe, but every combination will be tried out in the endeavor to produce the very best results.

Order of Play. The order of play constitutes the second innovation. In this Duncan will have two members of his side as advisers, Fred Robson and Archie Compton. Duncan says that he will avoid the mistakes of last year's match in America when the British order of play was published beforehand, thus enabling Hagen to place his men to the best advantage.

Duncan's idea is to have the order of play announced for both sides simultaneously. He thinks this is a fair arrangement to which America will agree.

The British professions realize that they are up against a tough proposition in view of the present form of the American team, even though Britain has the advantage of playing at home.

Norman Curtis, local bowler, rolled a high single of 181 at Farr's Charter Oak alleys last night. A double strike and seven spares did the trick.

The local DeMolay basketball team plays the New Britain chapter in that city this afternoon.

SCHEENETADY IN TRIALS. Glens Falls, N. Y., March 23.—The Scheenietady High school basketball team clashes tonight with the St. Mary's high quintet of Westfield, Mass., in the final round of the eastern states basketball tournament. Scheenietady defeated Emerson Institute of Washington, D. C., in one semi-final last night by a score of 24 to 18, and St. Mary's eliminated Hun Prep School of Princeton, N. J., by a 17 to 16 score in the other. Wilby of Waterbury was beaten in the first round.

OUT OF THE PAST

Few fight pictures which contained so many celebrities as the above have ever been taken. These 12 men faced the camera just before Jack Johnson fought Jim Jeffries at Reno, Nevada, on July 4, 1910. Some of them are gone now, counted out for all time by the Great Referee, but all of them will be remembered.

On the extreme left is Hugh McIntosh, famous Australian promoter. Next to him is Tommy Burns, who two years before had been relieved of the heavyweight championship by Johnson. Burns is still with us, and at present is guiding the destinies of Jack Humbeck, Belgian heavy.

Then comes the famous John L. Sullivan, mighty Boston slugger. Sullivan, who wore the heavyweight crown from 1882 to 1892, had put his hand upraised, was recognized as one of the greatest boxing announcers to ever step into a ring.

The third man to the right of Jordan is Bob Fitzsimmons, heavyweight champion after Jim Corbett. Holder of three championships in his day—middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight—Fitzsimmons is thought by many to have been the hardest puncher who ever lived.

Beside Fitz is Tom Sharkey, rugged sailor-fighter who turned in many great performances before he hung up his gloves. Richard Harding, first sports editor of the New York Herald, stands next to Sharkey, while the last man on the right is Stanley Ketchel, then the middleweight champion.

EVERYBODY SAYS THIS. Rabbit Maravalle, the veteran shortstop of the Braves, thinks the coming pennant race will be between the Cubs, Pirates and Giants. Each of these clubs, in his opinion, are much stronger than they were last season.

"Either the Cubs, Giants or Pirates should win this summer," he says. "Hornsbly will be a great help to the Cubs and will give the club more of punch than they get most seasons. They look weak at third, but if Johnny Garity solves that problem they will be in the race.

"The Cards are going to do well. I wish Billy Southworth all the luck in the world, but they had a tough time winning last season and it will be tougher this year.

"As for the Braves, we're liable to cause a lot of trouble to some of those better clubs if we get some good pitching. We're really not so bad as everybody thinks we are."

ONCE FAMOUS HARTFORD TEAM NO MATCH FOR LOCAL COMBINE

HOKS AND SLIDES

ALTOGETHER NOW. Approximately every other player encountered in the training camp of the Boston Braves at St. Petersburg, Fla., happens to have had experience with at least one other major league club.

The Braves' roster lists about 40 players and it is easy to check off half of them as cast-offs, so to speak, from some other team in the majors. And some of the Braves have been with two or three clubs.

There are seven catchers in camp and four of them have drawn their pay at some other major league office in times past. Collins was with the Yankees for years, Spohrer and Taylor worked for years ago, and Leggett, a rookie, came to Boston in the Hornsbly deal with the Cubs.

Of the nine infielders, six can tag themselves ex-something. Siler, the former Brown and Senator, is expected to play first. McGuire, the former Giant and Cub, has the lead at second, and Maranville, the ex-Card, is at shortstop. Joe Dugan, the ex-Yankee and ex-Athletic, is at third. Doc Farrell and Lester Bell also belong in this class. Little Gaudreau is one player liable to play regularly who hasn't served with any other club.

There are six pitchers who have worked for other clubs, and two of the outfielders, Harper and Mueller, have been with more than one major league team other than the Braves.

WHO WANTS A FULLBACK? In one day of practice with the Giants this spring Freddy Lindstrom played a part in crippling four players.

Lindstrom, in his first time at bat in an exhibition game, nicked the ball and the foul tip broke Catcher Cummings' thumb.

On one throw to first, Lindstrom threw wildly and the batter, a rookie named Marshall, ran into the first baseman and was badly shaken up.

His second trip to the bat resulted in a line-drive to Genewick, who, trying to catch the ball, ran into big Fred Fitzsimmons and was knocked cold.

All of Dixies Make Four or More Personals But They Are Waived; McCann, Madden and Stavnitsky Lead Scoring; Rec Girls Win 22-20.

The Rec Five closed its 1928-29 basketball season in a blaze of glory (if you can rightfully call it that) last night when it swamped the once-famous Dixies of Hartford by a score of 53 to 18. In the preliminary encounter, the Rec Girls eked out a 22-20 victory over the Connecticut General team of Hartford.

Thus has come to an end a season which has included good, bad and indifferent basketball. The Rec reached its pinnacle prior to its bid for state championship laurels. Fred played some mighty classy basketball during that stretch until they stepped out of their class. Last night, the Rec again flashed that old time form and, after a very slow get-away, soundly trounced the Capitol City combine.

The game, however, did not develop into a runaway affair until five minutes had been played in the second half. Manchester led 20 to 8 at halftime and the Dixies cut this to 20 to 12 before the Rec got underway in the second half. From then on, it was simply a question of how big the score would be. All of the Rec players took part in the scoring. "Hank" McCann got the most tallies. His lightning-like work was one which prevented the uninteresting struggle.

The Dixies, but a skeleton of their former selves, offered the Rec but feeble resistance once the local team hit its stride. And yet, only a few years back, the Dixies were then best team in the state and even went west to fight for the National A. A. T. championship. At that time, the Rec would not have been in its class, but today, it is a different story—just the opposite, in fact. All of the Dixies are out of condition physically and are, to be perfectly frank, about the least simply living on past reputation for the financial benefits to be derived.

The Dixies brought only six players here. One of them was next to useless, Tommy Murphy having a very bad knee which prevented him from walking without limping. Consequently Manager Ben Clune agreed with Manager Frank Treddo to waive the personal fouls. The result was that every single one of the Dixies made four or more fouls while three was the highest any Rec man committed. Manchester's foul shooting was very poor, so the fouls counted for little. The Rec caught three field goals to one for the Dixies.

Harold Madden and George Stavnitsky ranked next to McCann as high scorers for the evening. Roy Norris was unusually active in following up shots under the basket, often getting the ball a few inches below the rim as it dropped off or through. "Gyp" Gustafson played a fast floor game and gave further evidence that he is a real comer in the indoor sport. Holland and Quish also did their bit. Ted Torrant, Dixie forward, took something like 50 shots from the floor but failed to make a single hoop.

It was Etta Cluio's basket heaved from outside the foul line that gave the Rec Girls their win. The score was deadlocked at 20 all at the time. Anne Seranton also was in the limelight. The summary:

Rec Five (53) P. B. F. T. 0 Holland, rf 2 2-4 6 2 McCann, lf 6 1-3 13 3 Norris, c 3 2-5 8 0 Quish, c 1 1-6 3 2 Stavnitsky, lg 4 1-7 9 1 Gustafson, rg, rf 2 2-4 6 2 Madden, rg 4 0-1 8

It is possible, of course, that Jimmy Maloney may carry his return all the way back to where he was in early 1927 and that the Walker-Loughran winner may yet get up there.

These are mere possibilities. The others are definitely accepted as surviving candidates and, as such, are likely to decide the championship without looking elsewhere. Three foreigners and one American! No great noumenon in that ratio.

McLarnin Gets Decision But Bout Is A Failure

Walsh Says More Than $111,000 Paid for $11 Fight; Miller Far from Impressive.

By DAVID J. WALSH

New York, March 23.—Those disparate one-shot men, Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller, were killed by cold blood on former occasions, but last night they were just a couple of small bore air guns that shot off ten rounds of blanks before a crowd whose distinction only was exceeded by its profound apathy.

Yes, just a couple of small bore air guns that shot off ten rounds of blanks before a crowd whose distinction only was exceeded by its profound apathy.

Miller donated more weight than the official figures showed and his evident reaction was to take no chances. He succeeded, in fact, in taking less than that. He never came out of his capsule, except on rare and very temporary occasions.

At the time clock in the last minute of play and then opened up a bit. That was about all the mugs got for their evening away from home and mother and, if it was $111,000 worth, then John L. Sullivan was a window dresser.

The verdict completely reversed the order of the finish at Detroit the first time this pair was out. The fight last night was too dispiriting, to mean anything except pain to the beholder. This fellow Miller evidently isn't a successful repeater.

Ernie Schaff, Boston heavyweight, won decision over Al Friedman, Boston, 10.

At New London—Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, outpointed Farmer Joe Cooper of Terre Haute, Ind., 10.

smart men in this world, but none of them yet has discovered a way to win a fight without fighting.

For a time, neither of them fought. In fact, they spent more than the first two minutes doing nothing. A fact which would have obtained all of the available air for a couple of preliminary boys. The rest of the affair wasn't that bad, but it wasn't enough better to figure in the grand total. No blood was spilled, nobody had even his feelings hurt. Miller was cautioned five times for hitting low and repeated the punch possibly five times more. But McLarnin never complained, he seemed to sense the fact that he was due to win this one off by himself and, besides, a better sportsman doesn't live.

Training Camp F-l-a-s-h-e-s

San Antonio, Tex., March 23.—The New York Giants play their first game of the season against a major league team when they meet the Chicago White Sox here this afternoon in the first of two week-end contests.

Ed Rousch, the highest paid member of the Giants, is barnstorming through Texas with the second team at his own request. He told Manager McGraw he wanted to round into condition quickly and would prefer to play with the scrubs regularly rather than break into the line-up of the first team only at intervals.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23.—Manager Miller Huggins says that Hoyt, Pipgras and Johnson will have to carry the pitching burden for the New York Yankees during the early part of the season. He said that Boy Sherrid, the rookie who performed brilliantly against the Boston Braves on Thursday, would be the chief relief pitcher if Wiley Moore fails to recover his form.

The Yanks wind up their series with the Braves today.

Clearwater, Fla., March 23.—The Brooklyn Robins, who have yet to win a ball game this season, may break into the victory column today when they play the Columbus club. Europe to Dominate in Sports; U. S. to Lose Heavyweight Title

But in tennis, there is nothing for it but to put in a new needle, turn the record right over and play sport domination in the Gulf Stream and flowing due East—to Europe. It seems to be only a question of time before the world's heavyweight championship, traditionally an American possession, must be taken over by a European.

This, it seems to me, presents the most fitting commentary of which the situation is capable. Ten years ago, foreign heavyweights were a ribald jest. They came over here and went out in a punch. Only a few years ago, Paul Sampson, a mixed ale fighter, went abroad in a stoke hole and, just to keep himself in funds, began fighting around Germany. He was heavyweight champion of the country in a few weeks. Today, the heavyweight champion of Germany, the Herr Schmelling, is so good that they are talking him up as the next champion of the world. What is true of Germany holds good for foreign heavyweight fighting in general.

Boxing, track and field, tennis and gold are perhaps the four major contacts of international sport. Of these, only golf now remains strictly an American prerogative. We win our own championships; we beat the British in theirs. Between the two, there isn't much in the

DICK FERRELL

It is said by smart baseball men that Dick Ferrell, young catcher with the St. Louis Browns, is one of the best young catchers to hit the major leagues in years. Ferrell was with Columbus in the American Association last season and sold himself to the Browns after he was made a free agent by Judge Landis when the Giants and Tigers got into a fuss about their rights to him. The Browns gave him $25,000 to sign and they say he is worth every penny of it.

The two organizations are going to make this one of the best times they have given.

The committee in charge includes James McCaw, chairman, Peter Wind, Robert J. McKimney, Harry Trotter, Frank Schiebel, Samuel Houston, Frank Schiebel, Fred Tilden, George Strant, Harold Preston, John W. McLoughlin and William Sperber.

ABOUT TOWN

Rev. W. D. Woodward, of Hollister Street, goes this afternoon to Moodus, where he was pastor from 1905 to 1919, to occupy tomorrow the pulpit of Rev. J. M. Von Deck, who is recovering from a recent operation in Manchester Memorial hospital.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the North M. E. Church met yesterday at the home of Mrs. E. P. Pfreaner on Woodbridge Street, the president, Mrs. Ida G. Woodward, occupied the chair. A report of the recent play, "A Dutch Detective," showed a net profit of $32.

TOWN DOING ITS PART

IN PLUGGING MUDHOLES

Trap Rock Patching Fills Up Low Spots on Camp Meeting Road.

Manchester is doing its part in the cause of better roads leading into Manchester. Town employees are at work spreading trap rock on the low, muddy parts, of the Camp Meeting road, starting at the intersection of Oak Grove Street, Camp Meeting road and Bush Mountain road, and working east on the Camp Meeting road.

Heavy trap rock is being dumped at the rate of five truck loads each day. Just at present the lowest spots are being treated, so the work is not confined to any one section of the road.

This work will be continued to the town line, a distance of about a quarter of a mile.

The heavy trap rock is taking care of the mud holes. Later the road is to be worked to a level and given a coating of gravel or fine screenings and then rolled.

This will make a good connecting link either through Highland Street to Charter Oak Street or down the hill to the new bridge on Porter Street. This bridge was built in 1928 and is sufficient in width for heavy travel and strong enough to carry heavy tonnage.

While the mud spots are pretty well worked out at the time as far as the Manchester-Bolton town line on the Camp Meeting road, it will be several weeks before all the work is completed.

MAUNDERS' CANTATA

GOOD FRIDAY NIGHT

Postponed Because of Inability to Get Soloist--Thirty-five to Sixty.

Maunders "Olivet to Calvary" which was to have been sung tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock by the choir of the Swedish Lutheran church has been postponed until Good Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The difficulty of obtaining a tenor, familiar with the solo parts, is the reason for postponement. However, the choir will sing a short program of sacred numbers at the service instead.

Thirty-five voices will take part in giving the cantata and Maurice Wallen, tenor of Hartford, has been obtained as soloist. Miss E. Marion Dorward will play the organ and Miss Eva M. Johnson, the piano. This cantata is sung annually and is looked forward to by music lovers in Manchester and vicinity.

This work will be continued to the town line, a distance of about a quarter of a mile.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

There's trouble brewing when the cat's milk has gone to the dogs.

SENSE and NONSENSE

And furthermore half the world doesn't care a dang how the other half lives.

Clerk—What is your pleasure, Mr. George Heron—necking and drinking, sir. But right now I want a pair of socks.

She: "Sam, if you don't stop I'm going to call papa. Stop, stop now, I tell you. Take your arm down, Papa! Papa!"

Mr. Webster in his famous book says that a dumb waiter is an elevator for carrying dishes. He is wrong. A dumb waiter is a guy that asks a girl for a kiss and then waits for it.

"Did you hear about the raid at Smith's house party last night?" "No. Was any whiskey found?" "Not a drop—the officers forgot to bring a stomach pump."

Golden promises of increased patronage, publicity and prosperity battered down the feeble arguments of the proprietor against the salesman's ware. It seems that the old fellow was a bootblack and the man of the silver tongue was doing his best to unload a case of shoe polish on the other. Finally the bartering was at an end, and the slick seller departed minus his case of samples, but enriched by an equivalent quality of well-thumbed dollars. When the dapper one had closed the door behind him and waved a final theatrical farewell, the old man looked down at his new purchase, sad; shook his head and muttered, "Mah goodness, but dat man sho' had polish."

"Do you keep animal crackers for all kinds of animals? I want some for our new monkey."

LETTER GOLF

GOLF UP A TREE. There's a PALM TREE on today's letter golf course and it makes the par eight. Perhaps you can beat the solution on another page:

Grid for Letter Golf with letters P, A, L, M and T, R, E, E.

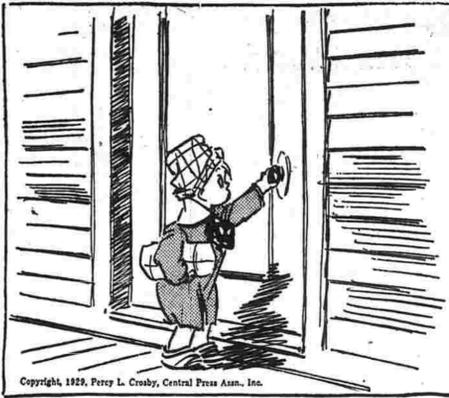

THE RULES 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

The politest man I know never speaks his mind, never asserts a belief or stands for a principle. He is just the politest man I know. Some women are so giddy it is not even safe to trust them with their own husbands. Some time ago I saw a woman I always believed to be entirely nice, lose her temper and fly into a stormy passion. The way she talked and acted showed me she never was very nice. Too many people say nice things just to be nice. As a rule the better you behave the better you get along.

Porter: "Where's your trunks, sir?" Salesman: "I use no trunks." Porter: "But Ah tho't you was one o' those travellin' salesmen." Salesman: "I am, but I sell brains, understand? I sell brains." Porter: "Excuse me, boss, but youse the fust travellin' fella that's been here who ain't carryin' no samples."

A small town is one where the civic leaders haven't started a campaign for an airport.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The bunch were filled with keen delight. "Twas great to see the broad daylight, when they had been lost in a cave for days, and days, and days. "Oh, look, cried Clowny, "down below is where I'd really like to go. I see some lovely fields of green where cattle likely graze. "Just think! If we can find a cow, we'll get a pair of milk some how, and then we'll hunt for berries. They will make a dandy meal. We haven't had a bite I guess, for many days. I'm in distress. I never realized before how hungry one can feel. "Sometimes," snapped Scouty, "you are rude. You ne'er think of a thing but food. I'd like to see that valley too, but not to merely eat. The grass looks tempting. I'll admit, and that's just were I'd like to sit. To loaf around for 'bout an hour would be a wondrous treat. A coal man then spoke up and said, "Well, come on, lads, let's go ahead. There is no sense in staying here. Who's game to follow me?" "I am," yelled Coppy, "right away." And then he stopped and shouted, "Say! How we are going to get down there is what I cannot see. The little coal man loudly roared, "Leave that to me, boys! Hop aboard our funny little cave car and we'll have a speedy trip. If you will all hang on real tight, I know that all will be all right. Don't try to climb up on the edge or you will likely slip. So, when they all were sitting tight, the coal man pushed with all his might, and down the hill the coal car went. It almost brought a scare. But, Mister Coal Man had the knack of keeping it upon the track, and not a thing went wrong as they went sailing through the air. (The Tinymites have an accident in the next story.)

the country over

And what an increase!
For every one Life Insurance Trust in 1925 — ten in 1927.

Here is one of the most important developments in practical family finance in recent years.

The men of this country are finding out that the purpose of their life insurance policies is usually best carried out when the principal is left in trust, to be properly invested, and to insure their families beyond any question the all-important blessing of a regular income.

This is the purpose and the achievement of the Life Insurance Trust.

Let us tell you how you and we, together, can plan a Life Insurance Trust to fit in with your plans for your wife and children.
