NAVAL PARLEY WITH BRITAIN FAR OFF YET

Government Will Not Set a Date Until After General Elections Are Held on May 30.

London, April 12.—Inquiry in official circles by International News Service today revealed that it is most unlikely that Great Britain will attempt to initiate a new naval limitation conference before the general election on May 30.

It was declared that nothing definite could come from President Hoover's "naval armament trial balloon" for at least three months because of the possibility of a change of government after the election.

Government circles refuse to express open opinion on the prospects of the three power naval parley being resumed. Furthermore, it is certain that Lord Cushead, Britain's representative on the Geneva disarmament commission, is not authorized to negotiate with Hugh Gibson, the American observer, for a resumption of the conference. Lord Cushead's only function will be to report America's attitude to the British government.

Cabinet's Position

The British Cabinet, it was pointed out, "would not be so unwise as to commit the future government, which might be Socialist-Labor, to anything definite."

Government officials, speaking privately, said they regarded the atmosphere conveyed by Washington reports as distinctly hopeful. They expressed belief that if something definite should be evolved from the forthcoming meeting of the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva, "Great Britain would receive it in the most hopeful spirit."

The chief difficulty here is to take the question of naval limitation out of the hands of professional naval men.

One Cabinet minister told International News Service: "Fancy expecting a politician to know the correct position for a six-inch gun."

From lengthy cable reports published in the London newspapers, giving America's attitude, it appears that the Anglo-American difference over the size of cruisers, which caused the collapse of the 1927 Geneva parley, still exists.

The United States wanted the limitation extended to 10,000-ton cruiser bearing eight inch guns while Great Britain contended for 6,000-ton cruisers with six inch guns.

The British believe that the smaller type cruiser is better fitted for the needs of the Royal Navy in policing the world-wide reaches of the British Empire and the vast trade routes.

This stumbling block remains. Britain insisting upon a parity of 10,000-ton cruisers and a preponderance of smaller cruisers in order to make up the difference in the strength between the two.

WEEK END FISHING ON HOOVER'S CARD

President to Go to Maryland Tomorrow in Quest of the Elusive Trout.

Washington, April 12.—Weather permitting, the coming Saturday will find President Hoover embarked on another exploratory motor trip out of Washington designed to locate favorable fishing grounds for the summer.

Maryland will get the call this week, as against Virginia which was invited last Saturday. Mr. Hoover is anxious to look over the 1,500-acre preserve recently purchased by Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, embracing historic old Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, embracing historic old Catoctin Manor on Hunting creek some miles out of Frederick.

The president may try his hand at casting for trout Saturday. Last week, despite the fact fishing tackle was taken along, Mr. Hoover contented himself with exploring the headwaters of Ripidan river which empties into the Shenandoah National Park of Virginia.

In quest of a good location for a future week-end camp site, the trip from the capital will be made by motor, with the Hoover party probably starting about 7:30 a. m. The distance is about 63 miles, which will give the President ample time for a basket lunch and the 1929 initiation of his rod and reel.

Meanwhile, today, the President got an empty engagement list for the afternoon so he might give his undivided attention to putting the finishing touches on his first message to Congress, to be delivered next Tuesday.

TORCH KILLER CAUGHT AFTER A LONG CHASE

New Jersey Engineer Says He Burned Up Woman Because He Had Another Wife Living.

Elizabeth, N. J., April 12.—Women and greed for gold proved to be the downfall of Henry Colin Campbell, sixty, a white-haired civil engineer and advertising man, who is in jail here today as the confessed slayer of Mrs. Mildred Mowry of Greensville, Pa., his bigamous wife whose charred body was found blazing by the roadside near Cranford, N. J., on Feb. 23, last.

Posed as a Doctor
Campbell, who has posed as a doctor, was to be questioned further concerning the victim of aged gossamer whose gasoline soaked body was found in the ruins of a burning automobile near Greensville, N. J., a year ago. Miss Mowry had been keeping company with a man who said he was a doctor.

Many women figured in Campbell's life. He met middle-aged women with money through a matrimonial agency in Detroit. He had his first meeting with Mrs. Mowry that way in Washington. When he was arrested last night he was living with his real wife and three children in an apartment not far from where had lain unidentified for seven weeks the body of the woman he confessed killing because, he said, after marrying her bigamously he decided it "was the only way to get rid of her."

Has Three Children
His real wife is an attractive woman of 35. He said he married her in Chicago 18 years ago. They have three daughters, aged 16, 14 and 8.

"I love my wife, and I'm sorry for my family's sake that a hell has come out of it," said Campbell today. He said he nervously smoked one cigarette after another.

The police, investigating the strange, Jekyll-Hyde career of Campbell, learned that when he was working for a cement company in

REBELS LOST 5,000 IN THREE BATTLES

High Rejoicing in Mexican Capital Over Government Victories.

Mexico City, April 12.—General Jose Gonzalez Escobar's rebel army that has just been driven out of Chihuahua into Sonora lost 5,000 men in killed, wounded, prisoners and desertions during the campaigns around Cuernavaca, Torreon and Jimenez, according to estimates here today based upon dispatches from the front.

Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles is believed to be dividing his operations in the northwest. While the main body of his troops is engaged against the secular rebels in Sonora, plans are under way for a combined land and air attack upon the religious rebels in the State of Jalisco.

Capitol Rejoices
There is high rejoicing in Mexico City over the government victories and especially the occupation of Ciudad Juarez by the Federals.

Communications with the United States were the railway artery northward through Chihuahua was handicapped so long as this important border gateway was in rebel hands.

When all the rebels are concentrated in Sonora, it is believed that they will not number much more than 6,000 men. The Federal Columns converging upon that state total about 15,000 men.

As there are no rebel forces of consequence in Chihuahua to menace the cities occupied by the Federals it will be necessary to leave only small federal garrisons in them.

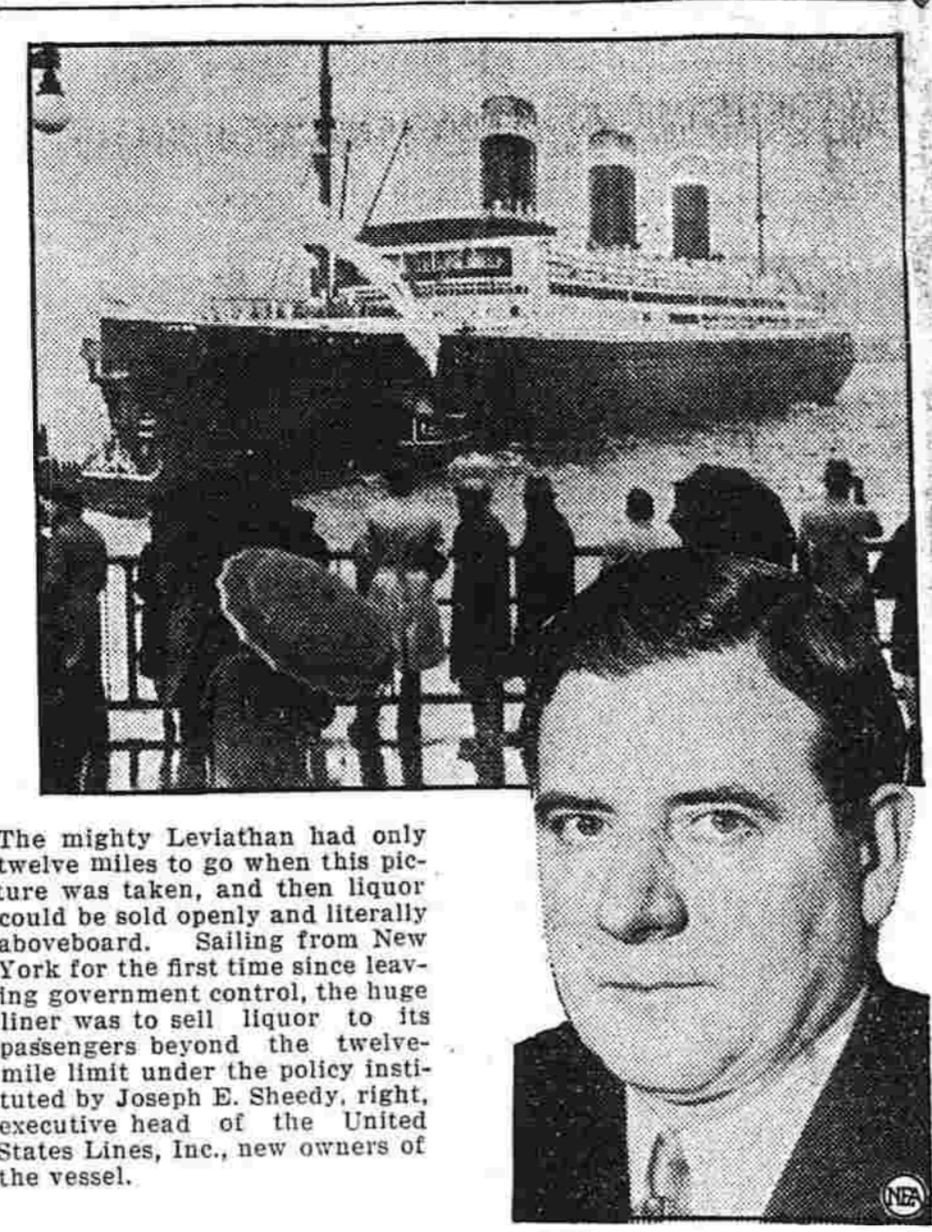

Investigation is still under way into the alleged plot to dynamite the city of Mexico, to assassinate and assassinate the war minister. At least two arrests have been made, one of them a woman, but it is believed that other arrests will follow. The man and woman were said to have given away the conspiracy while trying to obtain explosives.

SOUTHERN CROSS CREW FOUND AFTER 13 DAYS

Trans-Pacific Flyers Located in Wilds of Australia; One of Searching Party is Now Missing.

Sydney, N. S. W., April 12.—With the missing four occupants of the plane Southern Cross located and alive, today search was concentrated for Lieut. Keith Anderson, who disappeared while aiding the hunt for the Southern Cross aviators.

The search plane Canberra located the Southern Cross on a mud flat 30 miles from Port George. Captain Holden, pilot of the Canberra, sent word that the men looked famished and that he had dropped food for them.

Holden circled the Southern Cross for an hour and 15 minutes seeking a landing place, but was unable to do so owing to the rough and swampy condition of the country. He then returned to Wyndham, flying by way of Port George where he gave word of his discovery.

Missing 13 Days
The Southern Cross had been missing 13 days, having been forced down on the night of March 30.

According to word from Port George, arrangements had been made to send supplies to the missing aviators, including gasoline, to enable them to continue their journey. The Southern Cross was seen in the vicinity of Port George, and the search party is now searching for Lieut. Anderson, who is now missing.

Holden Open House
"They said I was a nuisance and I showed 'em a lady," shouted Texas. "I'm everybody's sucker tonight and I want the waiters to sit down with the guests and if they don't eat happy I'll give 'em a bill."

Texas was in a glowing mood. Although the ten other defendants in the alleged nuisance charge pleaded guilty, she chose to battle for freedom—and she won, even against the stiff charge to the jury by Federal Judge Edmon Connecticut.

All Made Speeches
Texas' liberty party sounded like Congress. Everybody made speeches and joined in the cheers for their own oratory. And everybody was there—even Harry Thaw, the Pittsburgh millionaire, who used to have some publicity value himself.

"Thank God Texas is saved to us poor unfortunate nightbirds," said Harry, leading the dancing girls in a rousing cheer for Texas. All the Gullah alumni were gathered in the two-by-four velveted canopy tent which one pays for by the yard. The doors were thrown apart and preceded by a gay-tunited band playing "The Prisoner's Song." Texas appeared in a triumphal procession of one.

How She Was Dressed
This living link between the moon and the sun was dressed in a tomato colored evening dress, and a gold sequin skull-cap. A poppy as red as her mischievous lips perked on her shoulder strap.

Everybody cheered—but most of all the waiters, checkers, bouncers, and uninitiated retinue.

"Hello gang," greeted Texas, home once again and looking tenderly homesick. "Your little angel flew over the prison walls."

Texas kissed everybody within the flash of her diamonds. Texas mounted her crimson-covered preaching stool.

"I think the verdict of those 12 men was live and let live," shouted Texas. "The day is coming and we are close to it when we will not be any longer. We are close to it when we will not be any longer. We are close to it when we will not be any longer. We are close to it when we will not be any longer.

OPERA STAR FORCED INTO RETIREMENT

Marion Talley Politely Told She Is No Longer Needed; Other Singers Say She Was Overrated.

New York, April 12.—Marion Talley, Metropolitan opera singer, was forced into the retirement which she has so gracefully made.

International News Service learned on unimpeachable authority today that the Kansas City songbird had incurred "the disfavor of the powers-that-be in the Metropolitan Opera company and was politely told that she was "no longer needed," after being subjected to the usual "sliding process" that always precedes the discharge of the Metropolitan's golden-throated warblers.

The informant of International News Service declared that Miss Talley was first subjected to the "sliding process" last season when she was called upon to appear in only three subscription performances of the opera company, an unprecedented misfortune for a star. She sang yesterday at the Metropolitan (her last appearance on any stage she announced) but it was a subscription performance not attended by any of the opera company's subscribers.

The young singer was made a Metropolitan star in 1926 with a maximum of ballyhoo and theatrical fanfare. Great things were predicted for her by every person of note connected with the famous New York musical institution. Before her first season was over, however, according to International News Service's informant, Miss Talley had lost much of her favor.

Was Overrated.
It was said, other singers began to complain that she was "overrated." Eventually, Gatti-Casazza, director of the company and other over-ords began to concur in this opinion, International News Service was told.

After this her eventual "retirement" was a foregone conclusion despite the fact that opera critics generally sang her praises unreservedly.

In announcing her retirement yesterday, Miss Talley declared that she was motivated by a desire to "settle down" on a farm.

When asked whether there was a possibility that Miss Talley would take the ten other defendants in the Warner Brothers Motion Picture Co. Albert W. Warner, one of the concern's officials, declared that he "could neither confirm nor deny the report."

U. S. NOT TO SEND ENVOY TO VATICAN

Interests in Papal State Too Few to Need a Diplomat There.

Washington, April 12.—Diplomatic recognition of the Vatican State will not be extended by the United States government, it was disclosed today.

The State Department has committed itself in replies being sent to the writers of hundreds of letters received both at the White House and the department since the creation of the new Papal State. The letters were all protests against the sending of an American minister to the new state.

No one letter has been received favoring recognition, officials said. Need No Envoy
The department's reply declared that the question of recognition "has not arisen." Officials pointed out that the interests of America in the Vatican City are so few that it would not be necessary for this government to have a diplomatic or consular representative there.

About eighty years ago, before the interruption of relations between the Vatican and the Italian government, the United States was represented by a minister resident at what was then known as the Vatican State.

It is understood the Vatican will be informally apprised of this government's position in the matter, thus avoiding the embarrassment of a formal refusal.

HINDENBURG BETTER.
Berlin, April 12.—The rugged constitution of President von Hindenburg was waging a winning fight against illness.

"President von Hindenburg is said to be completely recovered," said an official statement today. "He is showing constant improvement. There is no reason for concern."

The president made definite recovery overnight, from exhaustion from which he has been suffering. This state of exhaustion followed an attack of grippe and stomach disorders.

HOUSE KILLS BILLS TO RAISE GAS TAX

Miss Cheney Objects to Barbers' Apprentice Bill But She is Voted Down.

Hartford, April 12.—The House today killed two bills which would increase the tax on gasoline. Each bill proposed to make the tax two cents higher than at present. Other bills killed by the House follow: Providing for marking or designating truck, line roads through towns; providing an appropriation of $30,000 to a community water supply survey by the State Board of Health; amending Stamford's charter to change the name "Strawberry Hill" to "Strawberry Ave.," including various types of hares in the statute concerning rabbits; placing a tax on amusement places on the basis of seating capacity; providing for rebate of five per cent on gasoline tax to distributors to meet the cost of reporting sales; amending the Pine Orchard Association charter to permit zoning and other rights now exercised by the Town of Brantford.

Favorable reports received in the House follow: Providing that a bank or trust company shall be named to certify the bond issues of municipalities; providing state permits for operation of private schools; regulating shad fishing in the Scantic and Salmon rivers and Hamburg coves; providing for printing the revision of the general statutes; permitting the reduction of capital stock and par value of banks; providing for forfeiture of deposit rights by specially chartered corporations not exercised before January 31, 1929.

Bills Passed.
The House passed bills from its calendar as follows: Giving Sheffield jurisdiction over veranda lines; providing for registration of boats used in commercial fisheries; putting a five-mile an hour speed limit on motorboats and requiring mufflers, on Bantam river near the state hatchery; increasing registration fee for barbers from $5 to $10 and requiring registration of apprentices with a fee of 50 cents; also requiring an apprenticeship of three years.

Miss Marjory Cheney of Manchester objected to the proposition to require barbers' apprentices to serve three years. She declared the bill was "writing trade legislation into the statutes." Although Miss Cheney made a vigorous protest the bill was passed with ease.

So Broker Told Lawyer Egan Who Testified Today—Said He Got $80,000 for Handling Watkins' Affairs—Has Frequent Clashes With State's Attorney Alcorn During Cross-Examination—Says He Kept Few Books and Admits He is "Very Poor Business Man"—"That Little Black Bag" Is Brought Into Limelight.

Hartford, April 12.—"Watkins told me his money was out of proceeds of a diamond robbery in Pennsylvania growing out of which a man was hanged," declared William E. Egan, lawyer being tried by Judge Isaac Wolfe in Superior Court here on a charge of conspiracy because of Egan's connections with Roger W. Watkins, broker.

Egan related the story of Judge William S. Hyde, one of his own counsel, during direct examination today. Egan declared that at one time during his relations with Watkins, the broker had told him he had a safe deposit box with plenty of money. Egan said Watkins gave him a key which he purported would open the box. Later, said Egan, "I gave the key back to Watkins in the presence of Mrs. Watkins and she said it was not a safe deposit box key but only a rusty old key that didn't fit anything."

It was then, according to Egan, Watkins said he was "willing to take the shot if Mrs. Watkins were kept out of it."

In the conversation Watkins told of the box containing the proceeds of a "diamond robbery in Pennsylvania growing out of which a man was hanged."

Egan Got $80,000
At this point Judge Wolfe, by asking questions, learned that Egan had received the sum of $80,000 from Watkins for handling his affairs.

At the start of the day's questioning Egan denied previous testimony that Watkins had presented a letter written by Watkins to back up the assertion. The letter began:

"I am not a philosopher, and 'America Comes of Age,' Watkins also asked for a subscription to the New York Times. The letter ended:

"I sincerely hope you and Mrs. Egan and children are well. This also applies to Mr. Healy. I shall hope to prove to you yet I am not the rascal I am painted."

Mrs. Watkins' Auto.
Egan then turned to the matter of Mrs. Watkins' automobile being registered in his name. He said this was done at the request of Mrs. Watkins who was in jail and who wanted to use the car when she was freed. Egan declared she might have difficulty in getting the car registered when she was in jail.

The defense brought up the question of funds received from Watkins. Egan declared "I never received the $20,000 from the $70,000 draft." He declared that various times the sum of $61,149. He read a long list containing about 100 items, which he said he had paid out, chiefly as expenses for Mrs. Tresslar, the mother of Mrs. Watkins who died since the Watkins case was put on trial. The list included old bills of the Watkins company, its pay roll, rent, telephone and lighting bills.

Start Cross-Examination.
Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, took over the cross-examination of the lawyer late in the morning. The two had clashes frequently. At one time Egan exclaimed: "I know you and I look out for you when I can." At another time Egan said: "It is impossible to know what the state's attorney's case is going to be until you hear it."

In the midst of the cross-examination Mr. Alcorn put a long and involved question. Mr. Egan heard and then asked: "Is that a state-approved question?" Mr. Alcorn had the question read. The answer was finally lost.

At another time Mr. Egan declared "very infrequently do I keep a charge account against a client." Later he said: "I admit I am a very poor business man."

Approved the Plea.
Mr. Alcorn asked: "Did the Watkins plead guilty" with your approval?"

The answer was "not without our disapproval." Then he said: "I was not entirely satisfied they were guilty of conspiracy."

Mr. Alcorn asked: "What crime did you know Mrs. Watkins was guilty of when you approved her plea of guilty?"

The defense objected, and Judge Wolfe ordered the question stricken out.

Egan, in reply to another question, said his firm had received a $20,000 fee for the conduct of the Watkins case. He couldn't say whether the money was put into the firm account or into a safe deposit box. Then the check book that was used by the firm, and which either member might handle without the approval of the other, was produced. Egan said he did not always make payments by check. He used cash or check—"I did as I wanted to. I admit I am a very poor business man."

AFTERNOON SESSION.
Hartford, April 12.—William E. Egan, Hartford lawyer on trial here for conspiracy in connection with the Roger W. Watkins brokerage business, told Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, this afternoon that "I told trustees for the National Associated Investors nothing but they were able to discover."

"They were in luck," added Mr. Alcorn. "They were in luck," replied Mr. Egan.

Egan, being cross-examined, was hard-pressed to answer some of the state's attorney's questions. Mr. Alcorn brought up the matter of Mrs. Watkins' jewelry. Egan declared he could not recall where he had received it. He admitted having it. He declared he had received varying sums of money from Mrs. Watkins when he met her in Santa Fe, N. M. He also told of being given $700 in Chicago by one of her brothers at another time.

The Black Bag.
Suddenly Mr. Alcorn brought up the subject of a "black bag." The bag was produced. Egan admitted receiving it in Santa Fe. The state's attorney asked: "Why didn't you turn the bag over to Mr. Hickey?" Egan replied: "I saw no reason for giving Hickey damaging evidence against my client."

The subject of a $50,000 draft came up, as having been given to Egan by someone. Asked where it came from Egan replied "Why, it might have belonged to a poor widow." Judge Wolfe interposed the remark: "she had $50,000 she wouldn't be a poor widow."

Asked about a large safe deposit box which stood in Egan's name the defendant explained by saying that the large number of wills being held for clients by the law firm of Egan & Healy had made it necessary to exchange a small box for a large one. Then Egan declared that Mr. Healy, his partner, did not have access to the box.

The state's attorney asked why Egan pursued the methods he used in handling drafts and papers. Egan replied:

"I am not in the banking business. There was no more reason than there is in my using the bank door instead of the right hand when I go to church."

Horseshoe in Envelope.
The state's attorney called attention to testimony given previously by Watkins concerning a large envelope which Watkins gave Mrs. Watkins to carry to Mr. Watkins. Egan replied:

"Maybe there was a horseshoe in it."

The state's attorney came back with:

"Horseshoes indicate good luck. Did you see any good luck in this?"

"No," replied Egan.

At another point the question of a statement by Watkins came up again and Egan said: "I know that most anything he says is a lie generally."

Egan was asked why, on the day of Watkins' flight from Hartford, Egan, rather than Watkins, went to the bank to get money for Watkins. Egan replied that Watkins "wanted to avoid newspapermen."

Egan told of Mrs. Watkins' asking for money at various times, and of his refusal. Finally, he said, he increased her allowance from $10 a week to $15 a week.

That $50,000 Draft
Then the $50,000 draft came up again as it has at intervals through the trial. Egan declared under cross-examination that the draft was Mrs. Watkins' property but was drawn by Watkins. Egan gave Mrs. Watkins half of the amount of $25,000. He read four items as having been paid against the rest of the money.

The state's attorney brought up the suit of Callahan & Co. against Watkins company for $50,000. The suit was settled for $10,000 Egan said, and Callahan received $3,000. The state had contended that Egan received the balance of $5,000. Previously Watkins had testified that $8,000 went to Egan and the rest "went to a lawyer in Broder's office."

Under cross-examination Egan declared the settlement was for

MRS. GANN PLEASSED WITH FIRST DINNER

Ranked All Other Ladies Present at Banquet Given by Ambassador.

Washington, April 12.—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann's social luncheon brightly in Washington today.

She went to a dinner given by the Chilean ambassador, Senor L. Carlos Davila, at the Pan-American Union last night and ranked all the other ladies present, thus establishing one of those precedents that are so dear to capital society and officialdom.

It was a dry dinner, too, although the cellar of the Chilean embassy, like other diplomatic cellars in Washington, contains some very rare stuff. Nothing but water was served.

No Liquor Served. The aridity of the dinner was not explained. However, it was said to be due to a number of causes. For one thing it was given in the Pan-American Union building, which is not hallowed ground so far as liquor is concerned. For another, there were a great many Dry Legislators present, in addition to Cabinet members and the vice president. Senor Davila is said to have considered it would be "more appropriate" to refrain from serving intoxicants. Also, the guests numbered several hundred.

Vice President Curtis was the ranking guest. Others included Senator Jones (R) of Washington, Secretary of the "Five-and-Ten" laws, Attorney General Mitchell; Secretary of the Interior, Wilbur, and many members of the diplomatic corps.

The dinner was given in honor of Senor Pablo Ramirez, Chilean minister of finance, who is visiting in this country.

MURDER SUSPECT WAS ONCE RESIDENT HERE

Battista, Known Here as "Cowboy," Said to Have Lived on Birch Street.

Frank A. Battista, bound over to the next term of the Superior Court of Hartford county on the charge of murder, to which it is claimed that he confessed, was at one time a resident of Manchester. This was in the fall of 1925 or 1926 and his home at that time was in the Princess theater building on Birch street.

He did not remain in Manchester long. He wore a large hat and generally had a bandanna handkerchief around his neck. He was known by the name of "Cowboy," which name he was known as when arrested in Hartford a week ago today. He was in Manchester a few weeks when he suddenly left town, was gone for a period of about four weeks and then returned, remaining a few days and suddenly left. It was suspected at that time that he was mixed in some matters that might interest the police and that he left to evade arrest.

The crime for which he is being held was committed two weeks ago tomorrow evening when, it is alleged, that he walked into a market on Jefferson street, Hartford, and demanded that the proprietor, Samuel Kamaroff, hold up his hands. This Kamaroff refused to do and rushed at the intruder and was shot. Battista was arrested in Hartford on Saturday of last week and he claimed to have confessed to the shooting, resulting in his being held for murder in the first degree.

LOCAL GIRL IN DEBUT AS SOLOIST SUNDAY

Miss Frances Conrow, Called a Find by Director Pearson to Sing at Luther League Concert.

A musical program of unusual merit, in charge of the Luther League, will be presented at the Sunday evening service of the Swedish Lutheran Church. Miss Frances Conrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Conrow of 332 Main street, and a member of the G. C. Glee Club, will make her first appearance as a soloist. Miss Conrow, according to Helge Pearson, director of the club, is gifted with a charming soprano voice and needs only experience to make her one of the outstanding "singers" of the year.

Her number will be "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains" by Mendelssohn. Miss Berggren's solo will be "O Love, That Will Not Let Me Go," by Harker. The choir, assisted by Albert Pearson, bass soloist, will give two numbers, "As Discords" and "Neath Master's Hand," by Mark Andrews and "Even Me" by Warren. Rev. A. Helland, Hartford Theological Seminary student will preach.

TO FORM ASSOCIATION OF LOCAL BARBERS

Master Barbers Believe Many Benefits Would Be Derived From Organization.

An association of Manchester barbers seems about to become a reality when 18 local barbers voiced their support of the movement to form a Master Barbers' organization. The local association, if formed, would work in conjunction with the state organization in voting for the necessary legislation that would be of benefit to the barbers and through its combined numbers would be able to vote against all harmful legislation.

Many attempts have been made in Manchester in the past to organize such a union with no success but the outlook for the formation of this association appear very bright. C. J. Castellano of the Allyn House Barber shop, Hartford, head of the Hartford Master Barbers' association and member of the State Master Barbers addressed a recent meeting on the benefit derived from consolidation.

Robert Curran, Earl Stairs, and Plato Paganì compose the committee which is going forward with the plans to combine the Manchester barbers.

PANIC IN BRIDGEPORT WHEN WHISTLES BLOW

Was Signal for Opening of Exposition But Public Did Not Know It.

Bridgeport, April 12.—Conditions approaching a panic prevailed here today when practically all the factory whistles in town broke into a roar at 10 a. m. When the din subsided, police and fire department officials investigated and learned that the noise was to observe the opening of a "Made-in-Bridgeport" Exposition but that due public notice had not been given. The mayor issued a proclamation and distributed it to the newspapers after the uproar subsided.

Meanwhile the telephone exchange was swamped with calls, and for a long period connections with either fire or police headquarters were impossible. Firemen and policemen, off duty, believed the noise was an emergency call and, failing to get telephone connections, rushed to quarters. Captain John H. Regan, of the police department, was acting as a pall bearer at a funeral. He dropped his duties and took the quickest possible means of getting to headquarters for action.

High police officials issued statements later severely condemning the affair.

compelled to do things against our own better judgment."

MABEL SILENT Washington, April 12.—"I have nothing to say," Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt said today. This was the only comment forthcoming today from Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, agent the acquittal of Texas Guinan, night club hostess in New York.

Mrs. Willebrandt is generally credited with inspiring the night club raids that resulted in the arrest of Texas, Helen Morgan and others on charges of maintaining "public nuisances," and with direction of the prosecution.

Neither would Mrs. Willebrandt say today whether charges against Helen Morgan and the others would be dropped as a result of the Guinan acquittal. She indicated, in fact, that all discussion of the matter was distasteful to her.

DICTIONARY TO VISIT U. S.

Madrid, April 12.—Gen. Primo de Rivera, president of the Council of Ministers, who came into power with the military coup d'etat of 1923, hopes to visit the United States when he is released from the cares of government in America. But Spain's benevolent dictator gave this information to International News Service today in an exclusive interview at the presidential palace.

Gen. Primo de Rivera is tremendously interested in America. But his contemplated visit is not only for study and sightseeing. He believes that many of the difficulties now hampering trade relations between the two countries can be removed if he could meet American leaders and officials and explain personally the conditions in Spain.

Greenwich, April 12.—George G. McNall, past grand master of the Connecticut Masonic Grand Lodge, left an estate of upward of $300,000 according to his will filed for probate here today. The will provides a trust fund to be paid to Miss Minnie McNall and Mrs. Frederick C. Leo, during their lives; gives both the Connecticut Masonic Charity Foundation and Christ Episcopal church $5,000; and $25,000 to Miss Alice J. O'Neill, his secretary. On the death of the sisters the trust fund is to be turned over to the Masonic Temple Corporation of Greenwich.

Probate Judge Stephen L. Radford will hold a hearing on the will on April 19.

VAIL IS SENTENCED.

Hartford, April 12.—Albert J. Vail, who was arrested on April 11 charged with trying to blackmail Gerald Hanfield, an interior decorator, was convicted of the charge in Police Court here today and given a suspended jail sentence of thirty days and fined $100 and costs.

SALESROOMS ROBBED

Bridgeport, April 12.—Two automobile salesrooms near police headquarters were invaded by burglars during the night and $600 in cash taken. One place was entered via the cellar, the safe combination knocked off, and $330 taken. Entrance to the adjoining place was forced through a connecting window, and a steel cabinet was broken open by means of a hammer wrapped in a towel to yield $70.

Egan declared that E. J. Mayer received $6,000 and he took only $4,000.

PROBE WHISKEY REVOLT

Richmond, Va., April 12.—Attorney General John R. Saunders, state director of prohibition, today dispatched E. H. Gibson, one of his assistants, to Charlottesville to investigate reports of fraternity house drinking at the University of Virginia. Col. Saunders cited newspaper stories quoting C. E. Cuddy, president of the Delta Tau Delta Chapter, as admitting that liquor was openly drunk in the Delta house and said this would constitute grounds for criminal action unless it could be shown that the liquor was brought before the state went dry.

"It is hardly conceivable," said the attorney general, "that liquor could be kept that long in a college fraternity house."

1924 he was arrested for bigamy. He married Rosalie Campbell, presumably the Rosalie McHenry whom he was living with in Elizabeth, in 1913, and it was found in Chicago that he previously married Emma Campbell in Omaha, in 1910.

So many women are attracted to Campbell's life that the authorities have begun a systematic search to determine what has happened to them.

Shoes Only Clue
His arrest came after detectives, after weeks of effort, had traced a pair of patent leather shoes that led to the identification of Mrs. Mowry as she lay, unidentified for weeks, in a morgue in Elizabeth. From the maker in St. Louis they traced the shoes to Greenville, Pa., then to the purchaser—Mrs. Mowry—last year.

Her body was positively identified by a crooked finger.

"I met Mrs. Mowry in Baltimore last year and married her bigamously on the spur of the moment," the suave, rather refined-looking Campbell confessed. "Immediately afterwards I knew I was in a wrong position. I decided the only way was to get rid of her for good and all."

"I met her in Philadelphia the day before Washington's birthday of this year. That night I got her in my car and we drove to Dover, Del. We drove back to Philadelphia the next day, had supper, and then drove into New Jersey. Early in the morning we were near Cranford."

Shot Her First
"I shot her once, in the top of the head, when we were right by Willie's half-acre. There was nobody around at the time. Then I poured gas on her clothing, pulled it up over her head and set a match to it. Then I drove home."

Mrs. Mowry was apparently fairly well-to-do when she married Campbell. She had been a widow for ten years after the death of her husband in Greenville, Pa., and had saved some money. Last August she unexpectedly went to Elkton, Md., and was married to "Dr. Richard M. Campbell," as she told friends upon her return to Greenville. Her husband did not join her, and finally—somewhat chagrined—she left for New York City.

The manner in which Mrs. Mowry was done away with has aroused the suspicions of the police, and now they are seeking to link the so-called "doctor" with the torch murder of Miss Margaret Brown, a middle-aged governess of New York City. They recalled that Miss Brown, who had also been employed as a nurse, withdrew her life savings of nearly $7,000 when she eloped with a "doctor." Subsequently, she was found dying in kerosene flames behind a hot dog stand in Woodland, near Bernardsville, N. J.

For four hours after he had confessed to the killing of Mrs. Mowry, Campbell was grilled concerning the slaying of Miss Brown.

The prisoner, however, insisted he did not know Miss Brown. His story regarding her did not check up in some respects and the authorities planned to quiz him further.

In admitting the Mowry murder, Campbell denied he took the $1,000 Pennsylvania and Ohio gas and electric bond which the victim had in her possession. Yet it was learned that $1,000 check cashed in New Brunswick was posted as collateral on notes he had tendered in purchasing last year a $25,000 home in Westfield, N. J., where he and his family lived until a few weeks ago. It was also reported that he owned five lots in Baltimore, and that the address which he put down for "R. M. Campbell" on the marriage license when he married Mrs. Mowry last August fitted one of these lots.

Campbell apparently is a well educated man. He is a rather prepossessing type. He was at one time a civil engineer in Mexico and of late has been in the advertising business. A civil engineer named H. Colin Campbell is listed as the author of a technical textbook on cement construction.

Mrs. Campbell, his young wife, was broken-hearted. Again and again she cried: "I don't believe it—oh, I know he did not kill anybody. He simply could not do anything like that."

of the twisters were likewise demolished.

One house in Jackson county, sheltering a family of five, was lifted high in the air, carried a considerable distance and dropped in a creek bed. Two children were killed and the three others in the family seriously injured.

Followed a Train
In the main, the storm followed the course of a state highway, leveling farm houses and villages on either side of the road.

Through one section, one of the funnel-shaped twisters followed a train, an engineer said. It approached from the rear of his train on the St. Louis & Iron Mountain railroad. It followed his train for several miles, the engineer said, but by attaining a speed of 70 miles an hour he was able to keep out of the monster's way. The twister finally gave up the race and changed its course.

The explanation for the tornado following the highway and the railroad is probably to be found in the fact that the air was superheated on the roadbeds, according to meteorologists. For tornadoes are formed by light, heated air shooting upwards while cold, heavy air sweeps downward to the earth.

Injured were brought to hospitals here at Batesville and Newport. Some of the injured are not flight of the Southern Cross is not damaged.

The Southern Cross was engaged on the first leg of a flight to England when it was forced down. Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, Captain Charles Ulm, famous trans-Pacific airmen, and two others were in the plane. Additional details from Port George said that Holden flew low enough to recognize the men, but could not shout to them because of the noise of his motors. He said they looked thin and their faces, as they gazed upward, were drawn. When food was dropped from the Canberra the four attacked it and ate it ravenously. There was a nearby stream of fresh water which gave them plenty to drink.

In Rough Country
The spot where the plane was found is the roughest country on the Glenelg River.

News of the safety of the airman caused great enthusiasm in this city. Sirens booted in the harbor and flags were hastily run up over buildings. Crowds gathered in front of newspaper bulletin boards cheering.

There is a melodramatic quality in the situation as it now stands with Kingsford-Smith and his companions safe and Anderson still missing. The men were at odds for Anderson had recently sued Kingsford-Smith in the courts as the result of a disagreement over the trans-Pacific flight of the Southern Cross. It is believed that Anderson was forced down some place in Central Australia.

The possibility exists that Kingsford-Smith himself may join the search for his "enemy" when he is returned to civilization.

RAINS IN LITHUANIA HALT BUILDING HERE

Local Citizens of That Race, Aiding European Kin, Defer Stock Payments.

The weather conditions along the Baltic coastal region in Europe last year should have a delaying effect on the building of a recreation hall in Manchester in 1929 might seem unlikely enough, but such is said to be the case by members of the Lithuanian corporation, which has deferred the beginning of building operations on its civic center at the north end until June 1.

Many of the local subscribers to the bonds of the corporation, who had expected to pay cash for their shares, have recently arranged, it appears, to discharge their obligation or the installment plan, for the reason that crop failures in Lithuania last fall, the result of devastating rains have reduced many of the people to extremities and not a few of the sufferers are relatives of Manchester Lithuanians. The American Lithuanians are sending much money to the old country in relief of the distressed relatives and so find it inconvenient to take up their stock through cash payments.

The building committee says it has money enough to start the building immediately but prefers to wait until it is in a perfectly safe financial position, which it expects to be by June 1.

The Manchester civic center enterprise was the subject of a column article in the Boston Kellogg's, one of the leading Lithuanian language newspapers in the east.

Bergin, of New Haven, over a bill that would raise a commission to investigate the cattle raising and agricultural industries in the state. A roll call vote was taken and Senator Peasley emerged the victor by a vote of 21 in favor of the committee report that rejected the bill, to 9 against the report.

From its calendar the Senate passed bills as follows: Authorizing Meriden to issue $250,000 street improvement bonds; providing for review of assessment of benefits resulting from the improvement known as "The Plaza" in Bridgeport.

Unfavorable Reports
Unfavorable Senate reports follow: Authorizing investments by savings banks in certain bank stocks; appropriating $30,000 for a survey of potable water supplies for communities.

Favorable reports in the Senate follow: Prohibiting setting traps on land of another without the owner's permission; providing that all traps shall be visited each 24 hours; prohibiting use of steel traps with teeth; providing any street railway changing to bus operations may petition the Superior Court for sale of undeeded mortgaged railway property; authorizing the southwest school district of Hartford to issue bonds to $200,000; authorizing Bridgeport bond issues as follows: $400,000 for Yellow Mill bridge; $150,000 for street extensions and widening; $100,000 park bonds; and $100,000 for pavements; authorizing savings banks to lend on deposit accounts in New York, Massachusetts or Rhode Island, to an amount not to exceed balance due on such deposits.

Other favorable reports in the Senate follow: Creating a commission of five to be named by the governor to survey the need for a new bridge across the Connecticut river between Middletown and Portland; appropriating $25,000 for a committee to investigate and act on freight rates for fuel and other commodities; authorizing Cromwell Water Works to increase its capital to $25,000; authorizing the Orange Water Company to increase its capital to $100,000; authorizing Security Insurance Company, New Haven, to increase its capital from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 and to change its par value; authorizing the East & West Insurance Company, New Haven, to increase capital from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 and change its par value; authorizing Waterbury to lay out water courses; authorizing Bristol to issue school bonds.

SHE THOUGHT HER CASE HOPELESS

Yet ALL-BRAN Brought Relief Almost Immediately—No Trouble Since

When constipation once gets a grip on a person, it is almost impossible to relieve it, let alone prevent it with drugs and treatments. But here's a lady who was freed from her suffering—read her letter.

"Mine was an extreme case of constipation and although I had tried about everything that was recommended to me, I had almost given up hope of ever being relieved. One day I came across your advertisement, so I thought I would try ALL-BRAN. It relieved me almost immediately and I have had no trouble since, which was almost three months ago."—Mrs. E. E. Leslie, 2104 Lyman St., Flint, Michigan.

Your system must have roughage or bulk daily, otherwise constipation is almost inevitable. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply this bulk. It is a healthful cereal to eat every day. To use in cooked dishes or serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation and to prevent it. Far better than pills and laxatives whose doses often have to be increased to be effective. Two tablespoons daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran and is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SLOT MACHINES BACK; BUT THESE GIVE GAS

Should Manchester gasoline station owners take kindly to the new form of gasoline pump now being marketed the chances of running out of gas in the wee hours of the morning, walking five miles to a station and then finding it closed and no way to get the necessary fuel, will be reduced to a minimum. The new pump is called "Coin-Mat" and works on the slot machine principle. Fifty cents is put in the slot, the handle is turned out come the fifty cents worth of gas. The more fifty-cent pieces put in the more gas comes out. The pump was invented by a German who is producing it on a royalty basis. When the price of gas goes up or down it can be adjusted so that the user gets his money's worth at all times. An agent has been canvassing Manchester for the past few days and a number of the filling stations will probably put in a pump.

MENUS For Good Health

A Week's Supply Recommended By Dr. Frank B. McCoy

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, April 14th:

Sunday.
Breakfast—Cottage cheese, melba toast, baked apple.
Lunch—Mushrooms en casserole, string beans, salad of sliced tomatoes.
Dinner—Roast chicken with shredded wheat dressing, asparagus, steamed carrots with chopped parsley, salad of head lettuce, chilled avocado cream.

Monday.
Breakfast—Coddled eggs, re-steamed cereal biscuits, pear sauce.
Lunch—Glass of grapefruit juice.
Dinner—Tomato and celery vegetable broth, broiled steak, green peas, cooked celery, salad of raw spinach, cup custard.

Tuesday.
Breakfast—Wholewheat mush with milk, no sugar, stewed raisins.
Lunch—Baked squash, string bean salad.
Dinner—Clear tomato soup, broiled fillet of sole, cooked cauliflower, sliced tomatoes on lettuce Jello or Jell-well, no cream.

Wednesday.
Breakfast—French omelet, melba toast, stewed prunes.
Lunch—Glass of buttermilk, 10 or 12 dates.
Dinner—Roast mutton, cooked lettuce, baked parsnips, salad of chopped raw cabbage, pineapple snow.

Thursday.
Breakfast—Grapefruit as desired.
Lunch—Spinach and cheese en casserole, raw celery, ripe olives.
Dinner—Vegetable soup, boiled lean beef, cooked carrots and peas, shredded lettuce with peanut butter dressing, prunes in gelatine.

Friday.
Breakfast—Poached eggs on melba toast, stewed apricots.
Lunch—Celery soup, string beans, salad of minced tomatoes and parsley.
Dinner—Baked halibut, cooked lettuce, mashed turnips, salad of sliced cucumbers on lettuce, dish of berries (canned).

Saturday.
Breakfast—Waffle, with butter and a little maple syrup, crisp bacon.
Lunch—Glass of orange-milk.
Dinner—Broiled lamb chops, baked egg plant, beets, molded vegetable salad of celery, raw cabbage and minced olives, apple whip.
Chilled avocado cream: Select a medium sized avocado (alligator pear)—one that feels soft when pressed with fingertips, but does not feel mushy. Peel it by stripping the skin off in small pieces which leaves more of the green part. Mince the avocado fine and put on ice until you have whipped (not to stiff) a half pint of cream which may be sweetened slightly with two tablespoonfuls of maple syrup. Fold in the minced avocado and about one third of a cupful of chopped, toasted almonds. Pack the bowl in ice and salt for about an hour before serving in sherbert cups. Sufficient for six or eight persons, according to size of avocado.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Rupture in Children.)
Question: Mrs. C. F. writes: "My little girl will be four years old in June. Five months ago I discovered a lump on her right groin. I had a surgeon examine her last week and he said it was a definite rupture. Will you please advise me what to do, as I do not want her to have an operation if it can be avoided. She feels no pain whatever and it seems to cause her no trouble at all."
Answer: It would be unwise for me to attempt to advise you without having examined your child. Get the opinion of one or more physicians where you live and rely upon their judgment. I have known many cases to be cured by putting on a proper support and reducing the gas pressure inside the abdomen by using a suitable diet. Ruptures sometimes heal up perfectly, but in case this method will not work, surgery is the only other step, and it is not such a dangerous one if performed by an experienced surgeon, and if the case is properly treated afterwards.

(Uric Acid.)
Question: Mrs. P. B. writes: "I am not supposed to eat beef because of the uric acid. Could I eat the soup made from the beef?"

Answer: Almost any protein food forms uric acid, and you would probably get more of it from the soup made of the beef than from the beef, itself. The trouble is not because the uric acid is formed by the food, but from the inability to eliminate it from the body because of a general condition of acidosis, or some organic disease. This can sometimes be cured by the correct fasting and dieting regime. If you will send me more information about your trouble, with a large self addressed stamped envelope, I will be glad to give you more detailed advice.

THE ANSWER

Here is the answer to the Letter Golf puzzle on the comic page: DAWN, DARN, BARN, BURN, TURN, TURK, TUSK, DUSK.

A gasoline station attendant in a western city was arrested as a bootlegger. How did they ever happen to detect him?

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

FT. SUMTER BOMBARDED

Fort Sumter, situated in Charleston Harbor and therefore in Confederate territory, was bombarded 68 years ago today, after the federal government had refused to abandon it.

The fort was held precariously by Major Robert Anderson and about 75 men. The attack was conceived by leaders of the Confederacy to prove to the world that the southern government was ready to enforce its rights as an independent nation. So far, the Confederacy had no intention of invading northern territory and it did not believe that the north would invade it.

Charleston shook with the rumble of the guns that hurled a colorful shell attack on the fort and its tiny garrison. A wave of excitement spread through the city. War had come at last—a colorful, picturesque kind of war, with shells that opened like fireworks as they arched over the placid waters of the harbor.

There were no casualties, but the fort caught fire and there was some fear that the magazine would explode. The fire was extinguished, however, the fort surrendered and Major Anderson was rowed over to Confederate headquarters to dine with General Beauregard.

WAPPING

Miss Kathryn Dow of West Hartford, Miss Raymah Wright of Newtonville, Mass., and John Andrews of Rocky Hill, were week-end guests of Mrs. Inez C. Files. Mrs. Emma Wood of Washington is the guest of Miss Etta I. Stoughton for a couple of weeks. She came last Monday. Harry P. Files, Jr., and John Andrews of Rocky Hill, motored to Boston, Mass., last Monday and back in the afternoon. The funeral of John Barry, of Station 55, East Windsor Hill, was held last Saturday morning at his home with a solemn requiem mass at St. Mary's church, East Hartford. Rev. John F. Casey was celebrant of the mass. Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Drennan, the pastor, deacon, and Rev. Walter D. Casey of St. Thomas Seminary, Hartford, sub-deacon. There was a floral offering from East Hartford Camp, Modern

Woodmen of America. The bearers were Albert Barry, Harris Barry, Thomas Lawton, Edward Lawton, Timothy Monahan and Charles Whelan. Rev. Dr. J. Drennan conducted the burial service in St. Mary's cemetery, Burnside. Charles E. Geer, of this village, went to the Hartford hospital last Sunday where he had a minor operation on Tuesday. Miss Margaret Boardman, a student at the Wheelock school in Boston, Mass., returned to her home at East Windsor Hill for the holidays. Miss Louise Ludlam has returned to her home for the summer. All the schools of South Windsor opened last Monday morning for the spring term, the teachers all returning from their respective homes. A family by the name of "Moran" moved into the Hackett tenement house on the Buckland road last Tuesday. The Federated Workers held a food sale at the Sage and Allen

Platt and Alfred Stone. It was also observed as the 44th anniversary night and the Past Masters provided the program, which was as follows: Opening song, "Anniversary Song," by the Grange; reading of the charter members names, by Lillian E. Grant; a monologue, by Eugene W. Platt, who responded to an encore; a talk by each Past Master entitled, "The most interesting experience while I was Master"; a reading by Alfred Stone, a reading by Mrs. Mary Hills, roll call by all; reading by Miss Margaret Welles. The state deputy, Myron Case, from Portland, was present, and inspected the Grange and also gave a speech. He pronounced the Grange as in a flourishing condition. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. There was also a report of the Grange Dramatic club which was that they have presented the play "The Poor Married Man" six times and have put in the Grange treasury therefrom $96.53. The next regular meeting of the Grange will be held on April 23 and will be the first and second degrees. Initiation by the regular officers.

STORM WARNINGS.

Washington, April 12—Northeast storm warnings today were ordered displayed by the U. S. Weather Bureau from New London, Conn., to Portland, Me., because of a disturbance off the New Jersey coast that will cause strong winds and gales with rain this afternoon and tonight.

SLOW SPEED PREVENTS

CRASH INJURY, DAMAGE

A trolley car and an automobile bumped at Maple and Main streets last night, but nobody was injured. Otis Simons of New Bedford, Mass., was driving west on Maple street and about to enter Main street when another automobile approached going north on Main. Simons stopped to let that car go and started his turn into Main street, when a trolley car going north, came along. Neither motorist nor driver saw the other vehicle till they collided, but both were running slowly so that little damage was done.

QUOTATIONS

"There are more Christians who believe in the cruiser bill than there are who believe in the anti-war pact."

"In New York City more women come out for Sunday baseball games than for all the week-day contests combined."

"If we may judge the future by the past the next five years will see the gas tax mount until the average will be 5 cents or more per gallon for the entire country."

"I regard it as unfortunate that there is a group of people in this country ready, when any problem is presented, to call for government aid to solve that problem. It is raised periodically with regard to the providing and financing of homes for our people."

"Idle youth is the cause of most of our crime."

"It seems to me that we ought to set before the world an example of our desire for world peace. Somebody ought to do it and stop this interminable race for naval supremacy. We are better equipped than any other nation of the world to do it."

MORE MONEY FIGURES

The State Board of Education has just issued one of its regular items of publicity showing the expenditure per pupil in average daily attendance in such towns and cities of the state as it seems worth while for the Board to pay attention to.

Nor, for that matter, will anybody in Manchester be particularly annoyed at being left out of this pecuniary demonstration. What we should miss, and what most Manchester folks would miss, would be the Manchester status in a comparison of results of the towns' educational efforts expressed in something besides dollars and cents.

There is a growing impression in this state that this system of measuring education by the yardstick of expenditures, which seems to have taken complete possession of the State Board, is not wholly satisfactory.

Not many persons will subscribe to the theory that it is possible for a Connecticut town to buy a definite amount of education for a dollar in the same manner as it is possible to buy so many miles of railroad transportation or so many pounds of coal for another dollar.

Perhaps the State Board can imagine no other way of setting up an exposition of the status of Connecticut's educational effort. Well, in that event, it might be suggested that it is up to the Board to think up a way. It is a fair postulate to assume that, as much as anything else, is what the State Board is for—and not, exclusively, for the stimulation of rivalry between towns, or between this state and other states, in the spending of money, like drunken sailors, merely for the sake of bragging about it.

Any good stenographer with a business office training and a supply of postage stamps and stationery could make these everlasting comparative "surveys" of expenditure—especially when they need not be complete; but it is another thing to show the people of the towns and the state, in some clear and convincing way, just what they are getting for their money. And it is that latter thing in which they are all becoming intensely interested.

LEVIATHAN DISPUTE

There appears to be a conflict of opinion between the Supreme Court of the United States and conspicuous ultra-dry as to the legal right of an American passenger ship on the high seas to sell liquor. The new owners of the Leviathan having declared their intention of dispensing liquor on all future trips of that ship, Senator Jones, whose name attaches to the famous Five-and-Ten law, and Senator Fletcher, ranking Democrat on the Commerce Committee announce that any such sale would be illegal—that so long as the Leviathan remains under American registry the Volstead act applies to her just the same as to American territory ashore, and that she can't be transferred to foreign registry because the Shipping Board wouldn't stand for it. So there!

In 1923 the United States Supreme court rendered a decision construing the prohibition amendment as precluding the bringing of liquor into the territorial waters of the United States, but the same decision held that American ships outside the waters of the United States were not covered by the amendment. To say that a ship is part of the territory of the country whose flag she flies is, the court declared, "a figure of speech, a metaphor."

In spite of the ultra-dry, and in view of the fact that the Supreme Court and not the Anti-Saloon League is still recognized as the final authority, it would therefore seem to be entirely possible for the Leviathan to legally sell liquor, as many other American ships are now selling it, on the high seas—provided she can legally get it.

On the latter point some of the drys admit that there is nothing to prevent the sale of liquor on the big ship, westbound, so long as none is brought into territorial waters, but insist that the Leviathan will not be able to legally supply her "cellars" for east-bound voyages. Which is nonsense. It may impose a trifling inconvenience for the "Levi" to stock up for an easterly voyage, but she can and probably will do it without breaking any law. All she has to do is to lose half an hour or so of time, fifteen or twenty miles outside Sandy Hook and take aboard her stock from a waiting foreign tender—the same tender which, in all probability, will have relieved her of her surplus stock before passing inside the territorial limits.

It may be annoying to the ultra-dry, but it is still a fact, that there are limits to the legal operation of the Eighteenth amendment. Seagoing people and the Supreme Court realize this, even if the Anti-Saloon League doesn't like to believe it.

TENNESSEE AGAIN

East Tennessee—scene of the famous Scopes trial in which a schoolmaster was convicted of sinfully teaching the theory of evolution against the peace and the statutes in such case made and provided—may be a bit old-fogy in its science but it is so up-to-date in its sociology that it is far, far ahead of all the rest of the world. There are plenty of regions where the holding of teachers' positions by married women is frowned upon. But Monroe County leads creation in banning married men from holding down such jobs. By edict of its board of education that country has ordained that none but maids and bachelors may teach the young idea how to shoot (no squirrel rifle implication involved) in its elementary schools. Five married men and nineteen married women lose their jobs in consequence.

Of course the theory under which school authorities elsewhere have ruled against married women teachers is that they should receive their support from their husbands and not fill jobs needed by women who, lacking husbands, must support themselves. But almost anywhere outside of Tennessee it would be substantially impossible to imagine any such reason applying to the displacement of married men—the universally accepted idea being that the father of a family needs a job worse even than a single girl.

It should be remembered, however, that Tennessee is Tennessee. Down there, in such rural communities as Monroe County, a man's troubles, instead of beginning with marriage, as Northern soreheads are prone to assert, usually come to an end at that point for all time. "Maw" can plant the co'n and harvest it, Maw can cut up the haw and cure the bacon, Maw can dig the wood and split it—so what is there for Paw to do but mind the still and spit tobacco juice at a mark all day?

Monroe County knows perfectly well what it is doing when it rules that no man, with a wife to support him, shall fill a school job wanted by some bachelor who hasn't as yet found his meal ticket. Any Tennesseean will rave if you tell him he is descended from a monkey. What we are waiting for is to see a monkey explode into little pieces when somebody tells him he is descended from a Tennessean.

ODDITY

A brief press cablegram printed yesterday announces that Mrs. Allene Burchard, a New York widow, has been married to Prince Henry XXXIII of Reuss. The importance of the marriage is to the contracting party and their friends. The major part of the interest to the public arises from the extraordinary numerical label attaching to the prince's name. It naturally suggests a Reuss dynasty at least a thousand years old, and European dynasties have no such habit of survival. Consulting the books we find that, in the family which rules over the tiny German principality of Reuss-Greiz and its population of 700,000 souls, every male child is named Henry (Heinrich) and numbered in the order of his birth. They are, of course, all Princes, but only a few of them, naturally, ever become rulers. Prince No. 23, the one in question, is not one of the ruling kind, by the way. For some reason as obscure as the reason for this system of nomenclature, the Henrys are never permitted to number beyond a hundred. When the hundred and first male child is born he starts the game all over again, being No. 1 of a new series. We have no comment to make on this idea except that it's probably all right if they like it.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER. Washington, April 12.—The Hon. James W. Good, who has sometimes been called "Sunny Jim" and is now secretary of war, has made a good enough impression during his first few weeks as a cabinet member to gag those of his critics who insisted he was only a mere politician.

There were some in the War Department who thought it would be fine for the army to have a secretary who knew Congress so well and Hoover so well. There were others who thought it was too bad that the job should be given as a political reward and that politicians should be cared for elsewhere. At this writing, however, both groups seem to agree that Mr. Good is a nice fellow, intelligent, and anxious to work, and quite able.

They say Good has put more personally into the job, that he is more given to making his own decisions, that he answers more letters himself, that he has given a more personal touch to routine letters and that before long he is going to know his whole department inside out.

Progressives Worried. Good has acted as counsel for one or two electric power companies and as secretary of war is a member of the Federal Power Commission, a combination which worries the progressives. But unless he gives someone an opportunity to charge him with favoritism to the power interests the growing suspicion is that he will be "a good secretary of war."

Incidentally, there was some question in Good's own family as to his ability to swing the job. When his 11-year-old son Robert heard about it he came running in with a pair of boxing gloves and demanded: "Well, if you're going to be secretary of war, let's see if you can fight!"

Army officers are impressed with his promptness in making decisions. One such decision concerned the policy of shifting heads of branches in the department. Good decided it was best for efficiency if these heads were changed every four years. General Amos Fries, the red-hunting chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, had had that job nearly 10 years and would have been glad to have stayed on. Chemical interests over the country brought pressure on Good, seeking his retention. But Good ignored them and turned the job over to Colonel Harry L. Gilchrist.

That critic ought to admit that Good is at least an extraordinarily effective politician. He had charge of the Republican congressional campaign of 1920, worked for Coolidge officially in 1924 and was western manager for Hoover in 1928. He always did a workman-like job.

And he was far from unprepared for his cabinet post. Originally he was "just a farm boy" in Iowa, where he owns four farms to day. When he entered Coe College he enrolled in Company C of the Iowa National Guard—"just to get the benefit of the discipline," he says.

In Congress he was for 10 years a member of the appropriations committee and for more than two years chairman of it. He was chairman when the committee had the tremendous post-war job of slashing war-time appropriations and he had always studied the War Department's needs and problems along with others.

Lump Over Navel. Question: D. M. G. asks: "What would cause a growth or lump just above my navel? It has been there for about three years, but hasn't bothered me until the last two or three months. Seems to pull or draw, and I can't bear for anything to touch it. Will you kindly tell me something about it? I am worried for fear it is cancer." Answer: It would be difficult for me to advise you about the lump without having the opportunity of making a personal examination. Get your doctor's opinion as to whether it is a hernia or tumor, and if you will send me a copy of his report I will be glad to give you my advice.

Health and Diet Advice

CHILDREN'S DISEASES ARE UNNECESSARY.

Several hundred thousand children die every year in the United States from diseases which are absolutely unnecessary. Many people believe that such diseases as measles, chickenpox, scarlet fever and whooping cough are unavoidable, but this opinion is far from being true. We know that these illnesses are usually contracted because the child is exposed to these diseases, and the Boards of Health are undoubtedly doing much good by compelling known cases of contagious disease to be isolated to prevent epidemics as much as possible. However, I want to impress upon the mind of every one of my readers that it is impossible for a child to contract these diseases unless it first has become weakened by enervation or toxemia. This condition is only possible when the child has been subjected to errors in diet, excessive mental strain, late hours, and lack of bathing or fresh air, or other unhygienic habits. The fault must usually be laid to a lack of knowledge on the part of the parents, as the child is almost completely under their control.

Nature should not be unjustly blamed for these diseases of childhood. The parents are frequently careless and permit their youngsters to do things which are known to be injurious, and one parent tries to outdo the other in bribing the child with sweets in order to gain the child's affection. Mother buys her loved one a lollipop, and father tries to go one better with an ice cream cone, then grandma comes along with a bag of popcorn, while auntie feels that she is negligent unless she buys a sack of jellybeans. And so the game of bribing goes on at the expense of the health of the youngster whom they all love so dearly. When the child becomes sick, the parents are willing to spend any amount of money and many weary hours at the bedside in an effort to beat off the "demon" disease while nature is really trying to adjust the metabolism and bring the child through a difficult crisis.

Much the same causes are responsible for all the chronic diseases of childhood, such as the emphysemas of the tonsils and adenoids, bronchitis, catarrh and undernourishment. If children are properly treated, they recover from these diseases with remarkable rapidity because their vitality is much greater than the vitality of adults. There is no doubt in my mind that most of the deaths occurring to children from the acute diseases are absolutely unnecessary and could be avoided if the parents had sufficient knowledge of the important subject of raising children.

Nature wants children to live and survive and they often do so even under tremendous handicaps. Even a child born in the worst surroundings from unhealthy parents can generally be made into a strong and beautiful specimen of health if the correct training is instituted at an early age. Food must be carefully selected and proportioned and combined with chemical exactness if the ultimate perfection in physical growth is to be hoped for.

There is no sound as sweet as the happy laughter of a healthy child. The responsibility lies entirely with the parents or guardians to make a serious and sincere study of the principles of diet and child-raising. The results are so great and the efforts so small that no one should hesitate in taking up these studies.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

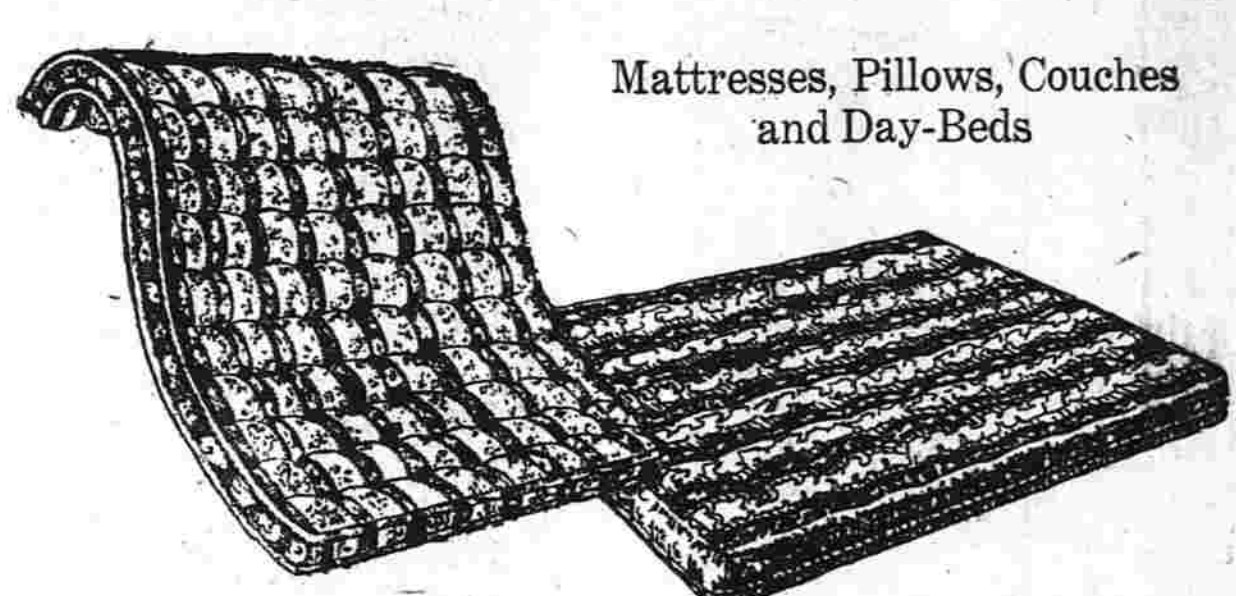

(Ductless Glands.) Question: W. E. asks: "Will you please give me the name, location and function of that particular organ in the human structure which scientists of today are finding out is held responsible for most all the diseases we seem to be heir to and, at the same time, have learned that we individually, are able to control to the extent that we keep from having all these troubles that the human family is complaining of today?" Answer: There is no one particular gland which is responsible for the diseases of the human body. Perhaps you are referring to the ductless glands of which there are quite a number in the body, each having special functions—some of which are unknown.

Olive Oil. Question: A. S. E. asks: "Is olive oil too much fat for the body if a scant two ounces stirred in the juice of an orange is used every night to prevent constipation?" Answer: I see no harm in your using two ounces of olive oil a day, but this should not be necessary if you keep your diet well balanced and develop a good tone of your abdominal muscles.

Lump Over Navel. Question: D. M. G. asks: "What would cause a growth or lump just above my navel? It has been there for about three years, but hasn't bothered me until the last two or three months. Seems to pull or draw, and I can't bear for anything to touch it. Will you kindly tell me something about it? I am worried for fear it is cancer." Answer: It would be difficult for me to advise you about the lump without having the opportunity of making a personal examination. Get your doctor's opinion as to whether it is a hernia or tumor, and if you will send me a copy of his report I will be glad to give you my advice.

Just to keep you informed, Secretary Kellogg, author of the international pact outlawing war, also gave the ruling that Charley Curtis' sister must sit below the wives of ambassadors and ministers at official dinners.

AIR MAIL BUSINESS

AIDS SOUTH END P. O.

Gain of Over $1,000 in First Quarter of Year Reported by Postmaster Toop.

Increased use of airplane mail service was attributed by Postmaster Oliver F. Toop today as being partly responsible for the increase in postal receipts at the South Manchester Post Office for the first quarter of the present year. Compared with the figures for 1928, the 1929 report made public today reveals an increase in business to the extent of more than a thousand dollars in the first three months of the year. This is more than the usual increase. Postmaster Toop said but the amount of business has apparently been almost normal. Considerable Manchester mail is sent by air mail service every night. Pouches have come out containing as high as $35 worth of postage, but the average daily amount is much lower, Mr. Toop stated. The figures for each month both last year and this year follow:

Year of 1928
January	$3,952.42
February	4,093.87
March	5,041.70
First quarter	$13,088.99
Year of 1929
January	$3,783.27
February	5,724.49

BATTALINO RESCUES BOY FROM DROWNING

"Bat" Battalino of Hartford well known featherweight boxer who has made himself more of a hero with fandom yesterday afternoon when he rescued a small boy from drowning in Park River. The child, three-years-old Louis Casconi of 212 Sheldon street, was sinking for the third time when Battalino, passing by, noticed the boy. He wasted no time donning his heavy lumberjacket and diving into the water. The boy was given first aid treatment by Battalino and then taken to the Hartford hospital.

RICH GIRL POOR GIRL

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES

"Don't you know your insinuations are too cheap to get over?" he asked witheringly.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE, stenographer at the Judson Hotel, has her fox fur stolen from her in a crowd but STEPHEN ARMITAGE catches the thief and returns the scarf. He asks to take her home. Not wishing to seem ungrateful, she invites him to dinner.

The evening is spoiled when PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of her employer, phones Mildred to return to duty. Stephen escorts her to the hotel where Pamela recognizes him as the salesman who had sold her a car. She snubs Mildred and tries to lure Stephen away by pretending she wants to buy another car. Then she meets HUCK CONNOR, who becomes infatuated with her, and she amuses herself by playing with both men.

When Stephen favors Mildred the manager warns her to be careful or Pamela will have her discharged. But this may not be so easy as HAROLD JUDSON is in love with Mildred. He is a weakling and Mildred permits his attentions to save him from Huck's gambling crowd. However, he suspects that she cares more for Stephen than for him and refuses to stay one evening when Stephen calls.

As the weeks pass Mildred realizes that Pamela is winning Stephen and that Harold is hopeless. She tangles with Huck's gamblers. When she asks him to confide in her he refuses but persuades her to dine with him. They drive by her home so she can change her dress and they learn that her mother has had a serious accident. Harold gets a doctor and assists in every way until she is out of danger. After he leaves Mildred remembers that she has not found out why he fears Huck.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVI

When she went to open the door Mildred tried to tell herself that it couldn't be Stephen who had rung the bell. He hadn't been to her house for ages. But it was Stephen and Mildred had difficulty in hiding her pleasure at seeing him.

"I heard about your mother's accident," he said. "Harold told me." Then he paused and looked at Mildred as though he, too, were thinking what a long time it had been since he had called on her.

"Had a demonstration up in Yonkers this morning," he went on, attempting to lend an air of casualness to the occasion. As a matter of fact he was keenly conscious of having felt impelled to rush to Mildred as soon as he heard "Mother had trouble at her home. He didn't bother to analyze the feeling, taking it for granted that it was merely a friendly interest in people who had welcomed him into their hospitality.

"But he did realize that his interest was belated—that he shouldn't have waited for a special effort to bring him back if he really liked the family, and the realization created an awkwardness in his manner that was misleading to Mildred. She assumed that he was acting under politeness only.

"Oh," she said flatly, "it was nice of you to drop in. I'm sorry mother can't see you; she's asleep."

She motioned him to put his hat on a table in the hall, but Stephen carried it into the living room and dropped it on the floor beside the chair he took. "Can't stay," he remarked lightly. "I have to do a relief shift downtown as soon as I can get back. Just wanted to inquire about your mother and ask if I can do anything."

"Thank you," Mildred said stiffly. "There isn't anything; Mother will be pleased to know you came in."

Stephen suddenly looked at her with a worried expression. "Look here," he said; "this must be pretty hard on you, Mildred; you... I suppose I look a wreck." Mildred interrupted. "Mother had a restless night and it's a job getting Connie off to school. But I'll be organized tonight and then staying home will be a vacation."

"Going to be away from the hotel long?"

"I don't know."

"Well, when you can leave your mother let's have a picnic up in the country somewhere. It's great to be out these days." Stephen spoke enthusiastically. The idea of suggesting something pleasant eased the slight sense of guilt he felt in regard to Mildred.

She was a great girl. He had rushed her a bit and then, darned if he knew how, something always happened to keep him from seeing her.

Mildred smiled. "If I can get away," she said vaguely, but to herself she was saying fiercely that Stephen didn't mean a word of it. It was just another "like fate, you soon," or "how about letting me come up some night?"

But whatever it was it made Stephen feel better, and he left in gayer spirits than when he had arrived. After all, it was not a day of gloom. Pamela surely was going to buy a car if he knew anything about salesmanship. But the little devil demanded concentrated selling effort. Had to be shown.

"I'll show her," he said to himself that afternoon when he stopped the new demonstration car in front of the Judson and went in to pick up Pamela.

He found her as cross as she alone knew how to be. Even when he helped her into the gleaming new chariot at the curb she disdained to notice it.

"What's the matter?" he said, thinking he might as well loose the storm and have it over with. He might be involved or he might not, but he knew he couldn't talk cars to her while she had a tempest brewing.

"Some people have no sense of responsibility whatsoever," Pamela began indefinitely. "Miss Lawrence knows perfectly well that I'm depending upon her to handle the debutante and bachelor lists for Mrs. Sperry-Whyte's Easter fete. I wouldn't have taken it on at all if I hadn't expected her help..."

"Why can't Mrs. Sperry-Whyte put out her own invitations?"

"Don't be absurd. Everyone needs help for really big affairs. We promised to assist the right people in the younger set."

"You mean you promised to have someone else do it?"

"So you're defending her too, are you?"

"Well, but who's the other..."

"Harold. I think it's perfectly disgusting in a girl of Miss Lawrence's position to play up to a boy like Harold..."

"Nonsense!" Stephen spoke more sharply than he realized. "It may be only nonsense to you, but it's rotten to me. Harold was there until all hours last night and..."

"You're wrong, Pam. Mildred wasn't pining up to Harold last night, if ever. She was nursing her mother. You wouldn't be so severe on her if you had the faintest idea what she's up against..."

"So she's playing up to you, too? Working the sympathy racket?"

"Well, did you see her? Let me see, it was three o'clock when you brought me home last night. After that?"

Stephen turned and glared at her. "Don't you know your insinuations are too cheap to get over?" he asked witheringly.

Suddenly Pamela slid over closer to him and cuddled up to his side. "Is my boy mad?" she lisped mockingly.

Stephen shook her away from him. "I don't care what you think of me," he said angrily; "but you oughtn't to insult Miss Lawrence. If anyone would receive a caller after three o'clock it would be you."

"It would be if I wanted to do it," Pamela replied unhesitatingly. "Who ever started the idea anyway that our morals change with the hours? For me, I could slap a fresh guy just as hard at three a. m. as I could at three p. m."

"Well, you know Miss Lawrence isn't like you and your red-hot friends that talk like Bowery belles," Stephen told her. "Anyway, if you think it all right to be unconventional what's wrong with Harold staying up there as late as he pleases?"

"One up for you," Pamela admitted, "but it does make a difference, don't you think, that Mildred Lawrence knows Harold is in love with her and that he's just a kid whose father is safely in Europe?"

"Again the dirt," Stephen snorted. "Can't you believe that Mildred is no cradle-snatching adventuress? If Harold is so crazy about her and she wanted him you think she'd be working now?"

"I think she wants to marry him," Pamela retorted. "Even with a stupe like Harold that may take time."

"Oh, for land's sake, shut up," Stephen growled and stopped the car. "Here, take the wheel. I'm dizzy."

And whether or not it was dizzy she remained in the same mental state throughout the rest of the afternoon. For Pamela would not take an interest in the car. She was consumed with a desire to paint Mildred Lawrence as a heartless fox hunter, and the more she tried the more Stephen found himself defending the absent girl.

When he drove Pamela back to the hotel she barely said goodbye to him. She flew in the entrance without so much as a backward glance at Stephen.

That evening Stephen called again on Mildred, and without the formality of telephoning for permission to do so. He took up flowers and some magazines for Mrs. Lawrence. Her gratitude was touching, but Stephen had no idea that much of the warmth of her welcome came from a mother's heart on behalf of a daughter whose secret she had penetrated.

Connie went to bed early and Mrs. Lawrence fell into a sound sleep before 10 o'clock.

Stephen and Mildred had an hour together without interruptions. Stephen decided, on the way home, that he'd been making a big mistake in seeing so little of Mildred. For his returning so soon had convinced Mildred that he was not merely paying a duty call that afternoon. She became her natural self... only a slightly subdued trace of the bitterness she had felt remained.

Stephen came often during the week that she remained at home. They planned a picnic for Saturday when Connie could stay with her mother.

Mildred made sandwiches of crisp bacon and chopped egg, cup cakes with chocolate icing and coffee. And she'd taken a loose old sports coat and made it into an ensemble to be worn with a sweater. All in all, with the sun shining determinedly, it looked like a day of days.

She rushed about, putting the flat in order, making her mother's room neat and comfortable, fixing a lunch for Connie; and then at last she was ready to put on the suit that was almost new, pull a bright red beret over her brown curls and sit down to wait for Stephen who was already past due.

Fifteen minutes later he telephoned. He was like a small boy who couldn't go to the circus only it happened that on this occasion it was to be a picnic.

CROSBY WRITES BOOK ABOUT 'SKIPPY'S' LIFE

When Pery Crosby was the leader of the "Liberty Boys" out on Long Island, some twenty-seven years ago, when he and his spies planned deep, dark plots for grasping messages in school, he was unconsciously storing up the material which has made Skippy a household word. For Pery Crosby, for all his London clothes, and man-of-the-world air is the toy-headed, serious, wistfully sardonic Skippy—with an artist's soul.

Crosby was born in Brooklyn thirty-seven years ago. He began his art career at the age of seven by selling a humorous drawing to "Life." By the time he was twenty he had worked on almost every newspaper in New York, including two weeks on the old Globe—doing cartoons and courtroom sketches. He studied for five years at what he thinks is one of the best art schools in the world, the Art Students League of New York.

The war interrupted his, by then, flourishing career as a cartoonist, only in that he found himself doing his daily comic strips for the American newspapers at the front. Later, a book of them, The Rookie of the 13th Squad, was published, a copy of which was requested for the French War Library. It was in camp that Mr. Crosby learned jujutsu from an imported Japanese expert. He then became instructor and taught officers and non-coms.

In 1923, Mr. Crosby first presented Skippy in "Life," where it was an immediate sensation. Today, the comic strip of the funny little fellow is read daily by millions of readers from coast to coast. Last year, Mr. Crosby exhibited his drawings and water colors at the Anderson Galleries, the fruit of ten years' work.

Pery Crosby's pet aversion is cities, although he is city-bred. He has a 53-acre farm in Langley, Virginia, to which he retires at the slightest pretext to ride horseback, and to write, preferably the latter. Some days he hopes to spend all his time in Virginia, and write and write and write.

Skippy, his first book, of which Corey Ford and Robert Sherwood sing paeans of praise, is published by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SCOVER

Just a few weeks ago the Marine Band struck up "Hall to the Chief" and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, First Lady of the Land, walked in state down the marble staircase of the First House of the Land, preceded by aides in distinguished dress, with the greatest in the land waiting to be received by her.

Yesterday Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, or Grace Coolidge, as most of the town calls her, was going to market in Northampton, Mass., pricing pot roast and rib, ending up the shopping trip with a little treat in the way of a chocolate soda at the corner drugstore, and going home to help her housekeeper in household duties.

This sort of thing could happen in no other country in the world. A queen or empress or princess can never, no matter how much she fears to do so, ever become a commoner. A queen, no matter if her kingdom is razed by the commoners crying for her blood, can never don her ermine and purple and pearls.

Affairs of state may drive her into a quiet little hidden retreat, but so long as she lives the tall tapering candles will be lit at dinner time and a liveried servant will pull out her chair and she will sit herself down in a court gown which, though frayed and fragile, could never be worn by a commoner.

An Individual Trait

This ability to adapt self to life in any form, no matter how varied and contrasting it becomes, is more than a mere American quality. It is a matter of human individuality.

Few indeed have been our own First Ladies who, after turning over the keys to the first home of the land to another mistress, have been able to change in a day from presiding as hostess to Queen Marie and her pearls to selecting a pot roast with their own hands and

FLUTTERING PLAITS

The smart woman appreciates the charm of the fluttering plaited skirt, stitched to fitted hip yoke, to attain greater length to silhouette. The jabot frill at centre-front bodice, that shows plain contrasting lining, cuts all in one with the right front section. A new idea also appears in box-plait at centre-back of skirt. It's so attractive, and so wearable in navy blue silk crepe printed in novelty dot motifs in grasshopper green, with plain green silk crepe contrast. The pattern for Style No. 486 can be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 26, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. You'll enjoy making it, because of its simplicity. Plain silk crepe in garden green, printed in rajah silk, printed pique in red and white tones, a checked silk gingham in red and white, lipstick red georgette crepe, and black silk crepe with jabot frill lined with eggshell shade are fashionable combinations. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

We suggest that when you send for this pattern, you enclose 10 cents additional for a copy of our Spring Fashion Magazine. It's just filled with delightful styles, including smart ensembles, and cute designs for the kiddies.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Is it old-fashioned for children to be polite?

That is what a certain mother asked me recently, in all seriousness. "I've always been so particular with Mary," she went on to explain. "I have tried to teach her manners just as my mother taught them to me, but she says the other children laugh at her. Am I an old fogey, or what is the matter? Because most of her friends come from really good families who should know."

I certainly feel sorry for the woman who is fighting a lone battle for the good of her children, whether it be manners or morals, and I told her so. It is one of the most uphill jobs I know of—trying to bring up a child in the way it should go, and having at the same time to combat the ever present influence of children with mothers who won't co-operate.

Must Have Courage.

The woman who has the courage of her convictions and who goes straight ahead when she knows she is right, is the bravest person in the world to me.

No wonder this mother is all at sea about teaching her child to be polite.

It isn't always the case that children from "good" families are rude, as she says, and are brought up with no regard for the amenities, but it is, in some cases, deplorably true. What is still more to be deplored, however, is the passing of "old-fashioned manners" among children of all classes.

This is a natural sequel to the thing that has happened to manners all along the line, I suppose. Perhaps a certain grace is taking the place of the more stilted children-should-be-heard-and-not-seen standing up, less primness and less superficiality all around—I don't know. All life is more natural and less hide-bound, I suppose.

But this I do know, that all of the people whose opinions I value, and who are undisputed in their tenets of behavior, for both themselves and their children, teach their children from babyhood to be very, very polite—to them, to each other, to their friends and to strangers.

Mantonomah Tribe, No. 58, Improved Order of Redmen, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Tinker Hall.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Miss Helen Gilson of Windsorville was the only patient reported admitted to the Memorial Hospital today. A daughter, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clarke of 21 Lancaster Road, Mrs. Margaret Platt of Griswold street was discharged.

Love is only a disease like whooping cough or measles, says Professor Pierre Vachet of Paris. The professor might have gone further and told us alimony was the doctor bill.

HEALTH

SOME PEOPLE THINK THE DOCTORS JUST "INVENTED" APPENDICITIS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

A surprisingly large number of people believe that appendicitis did not exist until about 10 years ago. They believe that the disease was invented by the doctors for the sole purpose of making money.

As far back as the history of medicine extends human beings have had symptoms like those of modern appendicitis. They were called inflammation of the bowels, peritonitis, perityphilitis and similar names.

An American physician named Reginald Heber Fitz, who was born in Chelsea, Mass., May 5, 1843, was the first to describe appendicitis as a definite disease, which had existed for many centuries. He had made postmortem examinations of bodies of persons who had died with these symptoms of inflammation of the bowels and infection in the abdomen, and he came to the conclusion that the appendix, which is a little tube closed at one end, and coming off the large intestine, was likely to become infected and to set up these symptoms quite frequently.

Just as soon as he and others definitely described the condition and made clear the nature of the most important symptoms; namely, fever, vomiting, pain on pressure over the appendix, rigidity of the abdomen, and an increase in the number of white cells in the blood, the condition began to be diagnosed more frequently. Operations were performed promptly and lives were saved that might otherwise have been lost. Moreover, many people were saved months and months of pain and disturbance diagnosed as indigestion or by some other vague term.

Gradually other superstitions began to be associated with this condition. It became noised about that appendicitis was due to eating grape seeds which would lodge in the appendix and block its opening, that it might be due to worms which crawled into the opening and blocked it.

Actually these things are very rarely the cause of appendicitis. Cases occasionally do occur, but so infrequently that they are now the basis of special mention among physicians.

In most instances the appendix has become infected with ordinary pus forming bacteria. Its walls break down, matter forms, the person develops fever and all of the other symptoms that have been mentioned, and some physician who knows how, diagnoses the disease and saves the person's life.

In the vast majority of cases it is not the doctor who diagnoses the disease who does the operation—that is usually a surgeon who is called in by the man who has made the diagnosis.

Unquestionably a great good would be accomplished if more cases were diagnosed earlier and if operations were done before the appendix filled with matter had a chance to burst and spread the infection throughout the abdomen.

STATE C. OF C. OFFICES WILL BE MOVED SOON

To Go from Lewis Street Building to Third Floor of Capitol Building.

Hartford, April 12.—It was announced today that on May 1 the executive offices of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce will be moved from 3 Lewis street, where they have been located for the last five years, to a suite of offices in the third floor of the Capitol building overlooking Bushnell Park.

Since the reorganization of the Connecticut Business Men's association as the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce in 1914 there has been a steady growth in the program of work of the State Chamber, in the number of its members and in its position among the organizations of Connecticut. Today the State Chamber has over 1,100 members, 66 organization members and a board of directors of 99 business men representing all branches of business and all sections of Connecticut.

It is planned to hold a special reception to the members of the State Chamber in the new executive offices during the 30th annual meeting, which will be held at the Hotel Bond on May 22 and 23.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The first of the Interclass Debates will be held on May 14 at a meeting of the debating club. The Senior class team, consisting of Esther Barabee, Mary Walker, Ruth McHenry and David Samuelson will uphold the affirmative of the proposition, "Resolved, that the great health heroes have contributed more to the advancement of civilization than statesmen and artists." The negative team, representing the Junior class, will consist of Lovina Foote, Muriel Tomlinson, Beatrice Laufer, and Doris Muldoon. On May 20 a Sophomore class team consisting of Austin

Johnson, Ermanno Garaventa, Marjorie Waddell, and Francis McVeigh will debate on the affirmative side of the question at a Freshman assembly against a Freshman team that has not yet been chosen. The winners of these debates will debate at a school assembly on May 23 for the trophy donated by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Typewriting awards this week included sterling silver pins to Gertrude Fallon, for 42 net words; Vera Hotchkiss, 41 net words, and John Johnston, 40 net words. Solid gold pins were awarded to Muriel Tomlinson for 53 net words, and Francis Lewis, for 52 net words. Miss Tomlinson is the first member of the Junior class to receive a gold award this year.

Material for the next issue of "Somanhis Events" was sent to the printer today and copies will probably be distributed on May 19. Plans are rapidly going forward for the commencement issue and only a few group pictures remain to be taken. Those who have seen the preliminary layouts declare that it will be one of the finest year-books ever published by a high school of the same size as the local high school.

The program at the assembly yesterday was furnished by the glee clubs and a special quartet consisting of William Johnson, first tenor, Kenneth Graham, second tenor, John Johnston, first bass, and Warren Case, second bass. The quartet opened the program with three numbers, "In an Old Fashioned Town," "Home in the West," and "The Woodchuck." The Girls' Glee club then sang the song they have chosen to sing at the Central Connecticut Glee club contest, being held in Meriden this afternoon. The quartet then rendered three especially fine numbers, "A Little Closer Harmony," "A Musical Twist," and "Gypsy Love Song." The Boys' Glee club then sang the numbers they will sing at the contest this afternoon, "The Autumn Sea," and "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride." The final number was a selection by the combined glee clubs "Carol of the Russian Children." Both clubs have done fine work this year and the outlook is very promising for a double victory at the contest this afternoon.

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 12.—The vogue for the sophisticated and ironic in poetry and verse has bred a new group of poets who have substituted pleasant Connecticut country homes for candle-lit garrets. I know one or two who actually own town cars. Nor are they given to poetic affectations. You will not find them eating their hearts out in darkened corners, but will discover them engaged in quips about the Algonquin round table. Among the males there are several who could pose for ads showing what "the well-dressed man should wear."

And just a few weeks ago Dorothy Parker had most of Hollywood bidding for her services. Miss Parker, by the way, is quite representative of what this new group is aiming toward. Not only is she a poet of merit, but Manhattan's outstanding wisecracker as well. She is, perhaps, one of the city's most quoted gazsters.

Sam Hoffenstein is another. He is a tall, slender, well-groomed young man who may be found in his ample apartment reclining on a chaise longue. He wears spats, trick ties and is somewhat of a beau brummel. His verse is biting and trenchant—and he is among the best sellers.

TIRED OFFICE WORKER

"When my oldest boy was just a few weeks old he was badly constipated from my milk," says a Nebraska mother. "He kept us awake so much, my husband almost slept over his desk at the office. Then my doctor got us to give Baby some Castoria and the next day he was much better. His stomach and bowels began acting perfectly and we gave us no more trouble." Avoid imitations of Castoria. The Fletcher signature marks the genuine, purely-vegetable, harmless Castoria, doctors everywhere advise for those ill of babies and children, such as colic, constipation, colds, biliousness, etc.

Edna St. Vincent Millay, who pioneered, now lives in an elaborate Connecticut country estate. Her first editions bring fat prices and her collections of poems continue year in and year out to have a great demand.

Even among the more "serious" poets, a change can be found. James Roary, for instance, is a successful advertising man on the side and lives upon a rolling Connecticut farm. Genevieve Taggart, who is a model craftsman, finds it possible to spend a year abroad gathering material for a biography. Helene Mullins can afford very cunning bouffant dresses and trips gaily at literary fetes. Norma Millay, who happens to be Edna's sister, is far too smartly dressed to suggest the garret variety of poet.

Jumping the continent to the Pacific coast, one could find Robinson Jeffers living what might be considered the "poetic life." In Carmel, overlooking the Pacific, he lives in a little stone house which he built himself. Jeffers, by the way, is a poet to be reckoned with. And is just beginning to get the attention he well deserves.

And there's Edwin Arlington Robinson, who is looked upon by many as our "poet laureate." His "Tristram" was a book of the month when it appeared and sold by the tens of thousands.

And so it goes.

Meanwhile, however, the last of the Greenwich Village poets gather of Monday nights at the Grub Street club and sport their verses at each other. Spring being the poet's season, it's possible to forgive some of them for their literary sins. It's even possible to be kind. For, after all, they do try. And some of them mean it.

But the new generation of poets are quite content to live comfortably and even well—even if they have to go to work to afford poet-

try. Matthew Josephson, who wrote the Zola biography, is a typical case. When first I encountered him he was a "customer's man" in a Wall street broker's firm while contributing lyrical prose to the poetry magazines.

SOME DOCTORS DELAY PUBLIC HEALTH WORK

So Bay State Commissioner Tells Physicians Convention in Boston—Local Doctors in Attendance.

Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, chairman of the Board of Health, this morning returned from the convention of the American College of Physicians held in the Hotel Statler, Boston. Dr. Howard Boyd, who also attended returned last night and Dr. N. A. Burr will remain in Boston until tomorrow.

Dr. Moore said today that without a doubt the highlight of the convention was the address of Dr. George H. Bigelow, commissioner of health for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Dr. Bigelow is a recognized authority on public health methods and his address contained a lot of food for thought especially with the regard to the attitude of the public towards public health officials.

Commissioner Bigelow indicated in his address that many practicing physicians fail to co-operate with the public health officers, to welcome health examinations, judging by the resentment when the bill comes for examinations which disclose no new ailments.

"Let me illustrate," he said, "the divergence in point of view of the practitioner and the health officer from our recent experience. We are profoundly interested in identifying and controlling the typhoid carrier. A member of a family in which there is a case gives a history suggesting typhoid fever twenty years ago. Yet the doctor is unwilling that we should examine specimens because he has known her for five years. Physicians advise against typhoid prophylaxis of other members of the family, although half our typhoid is secondary. Dr. X agrees to report his communicable disease provided Dr. Y will do the same. Each waits for the other to start. Toxin-antitoxin is ridiculously little used in private practice though diphtheria still kills more children than automobiles. An occasional doctor talks of 'State medicine' when the health officer strives for adequate examination of the children in the family of tuberculous. Yet only 20 per cent of the tuberculosis in Massachusetts is reported in a favorable stage of the disease! In venereal disease control the conflict in point of view is often the most readily apparent. One of the principal causes of white hair among health officers is the practitioner who varies his advice as to length of quarantine as he goes along. 'There is the law,' you say. But how futile is the law in the presence of so-called misunderstandings.

"Then there is the whole brawl of divergent opinion in regard to tonsillectomy, the individualism of care of the deciduous teeth, and a hundred and one other matters. There are even physicians who advise against pasteurized milk. I sometimes think that certain members of the medical profession have delayed increasing the safety of our milk supply more than any other group.

"I have, of course, selected instances ruthlessly to over-emphasize my point. On the other hand, I could give examples of practitioners with a profound sense of community responsibility, who have made their peace with Hygieia and his oath, and who deserve to be known as a health officer in their community far more than the individual who may strut fatuously under the title, devoting his life to fumigation, tin cans and ashes. But that is the other side of the shield. ('We must get to the question of: Can or will the internist practice preventative medicine?') To answer this we must have definitions. (What is an internist? I have nothing profound to contribute here. But it would seem to me that the internist, while making use of all the advances and complexities of medical knowledge, is the direct descendant of what suffering mankind so cherished and has now largely lost, the family physician at his best. He individualizes his advice not to the organ involved but to the whole patient, mental and physical, and to his family and his whole environment. To do that wisely in all instances would make Solomon hang his head!

"What, on the other hand, is the practice of preventative medicine? Some lay people confuse it with birth control. We know the diseases against which we have effective prophylaxes, and others will be added unto them. We know how some diseases are spread and should not keep it as the secret of the Sphinx. We know something of the conditions that menace the pregnant woman, the infant child, youth and adult, such as foci of infection; extreme deviation in weight, preposterous hygienic habits, and improper bodily mechanics. There is, of course, much more that we do not know. What are the extremes of blood pressure, temperature, albuminuria, serology, diet, and the like? How far from normal must the person be in order to warrant his visiting a doctor without a suspicion of hysteria? The dentists say he should come regularly irrespective of pathology. The enthusiasts for health examinations say the same. "But for the effective health examination we must have a public which knows how to use such an examination. A despairing physician told me of an enraged woman whom he had examined healthily.

of the supposedly well has been so little realized? In large part. But if ignorance forbade medical practice, how many physicians would handle pneumonia, arthritis, undulant fever, the common cold, in fact, any condition to which flesh is heir. Such a philosophy would prohibit efforts to save 30 per cent of the cancerous, to still further reduce tuberculosis from its place as the most killing disease in the ages fifteen to thirty-nine, to save mothers and babies throughout the country. Ignorance is no valid excuse for not using what we know. The temper of the public and the dignity and responsibility of the profession demand that the internist practise preventive medicine as we know it. He can, but in how many instances will he?"

TO BUY MOTION PICTURE EQUIPMENT FOR CHURCH

Second Congregational Church to Get Two Machines for Education and Entertainment.

The committee appointed to arrange for motion picture equipment for the Second Congregational church, held a meeting at the Manchester Community clubhouse Wednesday evening.

Rev. H. M. Peterson of the Film company will come here and give a brief address at the meeting in the auditorium Sunday evening.

The committee is made up of the following: Ralph C. Brown, chairman; Meredith Stevenson, Albert Tuttle, John Wolcott, Edward Clark, Mrs. George F. Dorst, Ralph Rockwell and E. P. Walton.

NOON STOCKS

New York, April 12.—Most of the active industrial stocks sold at higher price levels at the beginning of trading today but the upward movement lost its momentum when the professionals and big traders poured in a heavy load of stocks for strictly profit-saving purposes.

The $135,000,000 shrinkage in brokers' loans for third consecutive weekly decrease, looked good to the bulls in Wall street, but the 9 per cent rate on both demand and time loans told a better story.

United States Steel sold above 190, the high price on the move, on reports that the new shares, to be offered next Tuesday, would be distributed at $150 a share, making the "rights" worth $7 a share.

Short covering of some of the stocks that have been under fire for the last few days, accounted for the sharp recoveries in some sections of the list.

Business and industrial reports reaching the financial district today were in line with the favorable statements that have been coming to the front since the turn of the month.

GERMANY'S WAR DEBT

Paris, April 12.—A tentative agreement among the allied reparations experts as to the size of the annuities Germany must pay is expected late today or tomorrow.

While the experts have worked together secretly without giving any information to the press, it is understood that the tentative amount will be between $400,000,000 and $410,000,000 annually.

When the agreement is in final form it will be presented to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, banker and head of the German delegation, who will transmit the information to Berlin.

RUTHENES REGULATED.

Vatican City, April 12.—The official Vatican gazette, Acta Apostolicae Sedis today published a decree regulating the discipline imposed upon Greek Ruthenes in the United States, especially at Philadelphia and Homestead, Pa.

Troops 1 and 2 slipped up on their write-ups again this week. Troop 2 reports that they did not hold their meeting until Thursday evening last week.

Harvey Gould and Arthur L'Heureux of Troop 3 and 2 respectively will receive the Eagle Scout award at the next Court of Honor.

We expect to see a large number of Scouts at the Court of Honor for their music merit badge now a Harmonica Band and a Scout orchestra have been organized.

Nothing has been heard of the swimming meet that was to have taken place between Troop 2 and 6. Or didn't it.

Now is the season of the year to begin studying on Bird Study and Botany. And then there's Entomology for the Scout that's insect inclined.

SCOUT HEROISM

A new record of Scout heroism and the story of a Scoutmaster, James Tarwater Wright, of Rockwood, Tennessee, who gave his own life in an effort to save the lives of the boys in his Troop.

Scoutmaster Wright was drowned in trying to save one young Scout from drowning when White's Creek, outside of Rockwood, overflowed and catapulted a Boy Scout Cabin into a forty foot flood of water.

Scoutmaster Wright worked for hours in the water bringing Scouts to safety, and then, when his strength was gone, lost his own life in trying to save one young Scout who fell into the swift flood.

Another hero of the catastrophe was former Scoutmaster Charles Acuff, a member of one of the rescue parties who spent more than five hours in the flood waters to rescue one Scout from drowning.

SECRETARY OF NAVY A SEA SCOUTER

Charles Francis Adams, who has been appointed Secretary of the Navy in the cabinet of President Hoover, is a member of the Regional Sea Scout Committee of Region One which includes the New England states.

Troop 3 opened its meetings on Wednesday evening with the Scout Oath. 36 Scouts and recruits were present. Scoutmaster McComb made a few reports. The troop started a new system by putting Rub-a-Dub-Dub! Three Men in a Tub!

Roger Cheney in charge of the Bob White Patrol. "Red" Irwin in charge of the Lions. Harvey Gould the Silver Fox and Scoutmaster McComb of the Pine Tree Patrol.

Troop 3 is starting an orchestra. All scouts in it met at Roger Cheney's home at 7 o'clock on Thursday evening.

The Bob White Patrol is giving a surprise at the next meeting. Let's have a full troop to see it.

Troop 4 opened its meeting at 7:30 o'clock in the basement of St. Mary's Church with 25 Scouts present. The Scout Oath was repeated and the dues collected.

Troop 5 held its meeting at 7:15 o'clock in the Swedish Lutheran Church. The meeting opened with the salute to the flag and inspection.

Troop 6 opened its meeting Tuesday with the usual flag ceremony and the Scout Oath.

Troop 7 held its meeting at 7:15 o'clock in the Swedish Lutheran Church. The meeting opened with the salute to the flag and inspection.

THREE BIG BUILDINGS DEMOLISHED BY BLAST

One Dead and One Missing; Fire Follows Explosion in Detroit.

Detroit, April 12.—Three four-story buildings completely demolished by a mysterious explosion were still burning today while 16 units of fire fighters worked in the ruins seeking bodies of victims believed to have been caught in the blazing cave-in.

One man is known dead and one missing. Police and fire officials were certain today that at least four more persons lost their lives.

The explosion which was followed by fire was one of the worst in Detroit in years. Plate glass windows for blocks around were shattered by the blast. The damage was estimated at more than $500,000.

MAY DROP THE CHARGE AGAINST MISS MORGAN

New York, April 12.—Now that Texas Guinan has been freed by a jury of 12 good men and true on charges of maintaining a nuisance, what will be the fate of the government's case against Helen Morgan and the other Broadwayfarers who were arrested at the same time last summer?

Broadway and the women's legal lights were asking this question today and the whispered answer sounded suspiciously like:

"They may be dropped." It is hard for "those in the know" to figure how the government can hope for convictions in the cases of the other defendants held on identical charges, with the precedent of Miss Guinan's acquittal staring them in the face.

Last Tuesday evening Troop 9 held its weekly meeting with the very low attendance of twenty, the lowest to date. It was too bad, for Chief Coleman of the Manchester Fire Department, gave a very interesting talk on fire prevention and how to sound in an alarm.

Troop 9 is very proud of the fact that they have a Second Class Scout. Patrol Leader Richard LaChapelle of the Beaver Patrol has successfully completed his Second Class tests and is the first Second Class Scout.

Troop 9 is very proud of the fact that they have a Second Class Scout. Patrol Leader Richard LaChapelle of the Beaver Patrol has successfully completed his Second Class tests and is the first Second Class Scout.

A talking moving picture of 300 animals was filmed at the Bronx Zoo the other day. Now the movies can add to their classic advertising line, a "100 per cent all-talkie all-dumb" picture.

MEXICAN REBELS SAY THEY WILL USE GAS

So American Troops Across the Border Are Equipped With Gas Masks.

El Paso, Texas, April 12.—American military observers today watched with interest the developments in important theaters of war in Mexico.

The American border was closely patrolled by American troops from El Paso westward to Nogales today. The sensitive point is Naco, where the Federals are entrenched.

The rebels claim to have three-inch siege guns and to have gas warfare equipment. The latter claim is not taken seriously. However, the American troops are to be equipped with gas masks. It was reported today that the Mexican rebels can have only a very limited amount of gas and little equipment for its use, according to Americans familiar with the rebel organization.

SIX MEN KILLED

Lansing, Mich., April 12.—Six men were reported killed today in the collapse of a coffer dam in the middle of Grand river here. Two other men were rescued and taken to a hospital in serious condition.

The eight men were working inside the coffer dam of the foundations for a viaduct over the river.

High waters of the river and a heavy rain last night are believed to have weakened the dam causing it to collapse.

It is estimated by a philologist that radio has added 5,000 words to the language, exclusive of explosives.

"My Customers don't pinch Bond Bread"

Mozzer's Market, of which B. MOZZIER is the owner and proprietor, is located at 241 Spruce St., South Manchester. Mr. Mozzier keeps a busy store and offers a full line of fresh meats and groceries.

Some women think they have to pinch a loaf of bread to see if it is fresh. I mentioned this fact once to the Bond Bread salesman. He took me up right away.

"Watch your Bond Bread customers," he said. "I'll bet you few, if any, pinch Bond Bread, unless they happen to be new buyers."

He was right. Almost every housewife who wanted Bond picked up the loaf without any business of pinching or feeling it. When I told the Bond salesman, he said:—

"Women who buy Bond Bread every day will tell you that this loaf holds its freshness longer than the ordinary loaf, because it is firm-baked in the old-fashioned, home-like way. And because it is firm and close-knit in texture, pinching it doesn't tell them whether it is fresh. They tell freshness by tasting it. They're never disappointed, because I bring Bond fresh from the oven to your store twice every day, and I won't serve you more Bond than you can sell between my trips."

I have seen every statement of that Bond salesman come true. That's why Bond Bread holds the place of honor on my counter.

B. MOZZIER (Signed)

After all—there is no bread like

SENSE and NONSENSE

VILANELLE OF THE BITTER BELLE

My lips are blue, my purple fingers shake...

Ah, me! I think my trembling heart will break...

Such havoc in my life this thing can make...

Believe me, dears, this anguish is no fake...

But yesterday I first began to quake...

Let's have the quinine quickly, now a pill...

"Confound that landlord! He plans putting up the rent on me...

A German scientist has discovered radio waves that will kill germs...

Here she comes—the walking drug store, painted but not guaranteed...

He lives in one of those towns where they paint the town red—but it only takes one can to do it.

There are probably as many folks who love a fat man as love a rich one.

If some children are perfect photographs of their fathers, we wonder if Edsel Ford is an autograph of his dad?

Most of the whistling over the radio isn't on the program.

Persistent cheerfulness is a sign of wisdom.

ABOUT TOWN
The Ladies Aid society of the North Methodist church have set the date of Friday, April 26, for its annual spring rummage sale, which will be held in the afternoon and evening.

The eighth annual closing reception of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Wirtalla's school of dancing will take place at High school hall this evening at 8 o'clock. This is always one of the pleasant social events of the spring season. The children can always be counted upon to give an entertaining program. General dancing will follow.

A rehearsal will be held at Center church this evening at 7 o'clock for the three-act play, "Norah Mixes In." This will be the feature number of the entertainment. Sunset Rebekah lodge will give Monday evening in Odell Fellows hall for the benefit of the infirmary fund. Mrs. Emma Nettleton is coaching the cast on account of the illness of Miss Emily Kissman.

The Junior choir of the North Methodist church will meet for rehearsal this evening at 7 o'clock with the leader, Miss Beatrice Lydall, 22 Hudson street.

The Manchester Green Community club will sponsor the usual Saturday evening dance tomorrow night at the school assembly hall, with the same committee of young men and women who have been in charge of the dances all winter. Wehr's orchestra will play and Dan Miller will call off the old-time dances, which by request make up only one-third of the program.

The spring rummage sale of the Memorial hospital Linen auxiliary will be held Wednesday and Thursday of next week in the vacant store of 1005 Main street, next door to the Ford Agency. Articles will be called for Tuesday afternoon if donors will telephone Mrs. J. M. Shearer or Miss Mary Hutchison.

The Benevolent Society Seger will hold its meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock instead of 8 o'clock because of the entertainment being given in Orange Hall by the Svea Hall Association at the latter hour.

The Men's Society of the Swedish Lutheran church will hold its monthly meeting tonight at 8 o'clock. George Waddell, town treasurer, will speak on "Municipal Government". Musical numbers will comprise the rest of the program. Refreshments will be served.

HOLDING FRIGIDAIRE
DEMONSTRATION HERE

Interest created by the new Frigidaire cold control, an invention that opens a new realm for the housewife in menu planning, is evidenced by the large crowds that have visited the local Frigidaire dealer's display room at 749 Main street since the national cold control demonstration of the General Motors subsidiary opened Tuesday. The demonstration, which is being held in all large cities throughout the country to acquaint the public with this outstanding refrigeration perfection, will close at 10 o'clock tomorrow night, it was announced. Many tempting frozen desserts made possible by the cold regulator are being prepared and served by domestic science experts at the demonstrations. Souvenirs, and literature of value to the hostess and housewife will be distributed to visitors during the remaining two days and nights of the demonstration the dealer said.

STORE BREAK FAILS AS HANNON FAMILY WAKES

Member of Household Sees Noisy Intruder, Who Is Gone When Cop Comes.

An attempt to enter the store of Patrick Hannon of 145 Main street is believed to have been made at 4:15 this morning. Noises attracted the attention of the members of the Hannon family who live at 137 Main street, the next house north from the store. Mr. Hannon at once telephoned to police headquarters and Officer Arthur Seymour left and within ten minutes arrived at the house. But, on arriving there he found no one. Charles Dowd, who is a member of the Hannon household, told the officer that the noise had awakened him and looking out he had seen a man standing near the corner of the store, holding an instrument, which in the dim light looked like a file. The man disappeared around the corner. An inspection showed that the store had not been entered and no clue to the intruder was found.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SOCIAL

Mrs. F. C. Allen's church school class of ten young girls of High school age, held a social at her home on North Main street last evening. Different classes are taking charge of the worship service at Sunday school and next Sunday has been assigned to Mrs. Allen's class. As it is springtime the class will have a nature service. Ruth McMenemy will preside, Susan Allen will tell the stories and Bertha Lapp will play the piano. The girls together will sing "Welcome, Sweet Springtime," adapted from Rubenstein's Melody in F. They decided to have a class attendance contest to continue until the first Sunday in June. There will be five girls on each side, a red and a blue team. At the end of the time specified the defeated team will entertain the victors. The girls played games, sang popular songs and Mrs. Allen served ice cream and cake.

A daughter, Nancy Cameron, was born this morning at the Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Clarke of Lancaster road.

PHONES Pinehurst
"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

OVER THE WEEK-END

Since we're not likely to be fainting with the heat right away, in spite of that two-day summer that strayed along just before this latest winter, most folks will probably want something besides fruit salads and iced tea for dinner, over the week-end. In fact the pot roast-roast pork-sausage season is in for a revival for a few days. So at least it seems to Pinehurst—and we're all set.

Some of the nicest Pot Roasts you ever did see are here—Chuck (most flavorful of beef cuts), Sirloin Tips and Rump Cuts. All of them prime fresh stock—priced at the minimum for this grade of meat.

Many folks don't eat Roast Pork in the summer. These will be likely to take advantage of the present winter aftermath as a last chance to enjoy a roasting cut of the famous Sinclair Iowa Corn Fed Pork, best on earth.

Lacking desire for a big cut, the Meat Department suggests Pinehurst Round Ground at the special price of 40 cents or Pinehurst Hamburg at 30 cents. Meadowbrook Sausage Meat, delicately seasoned, sweet and fresh, is 30 cents. Friday Night Phone service is becoming a habit with many a Pinehurst customer. The practice of many patrons is to make out a complete week-end marketing list, sit down cozily at the phone during the evening and pass all the responsibility over to Pinehurst. Several phones are in operation up to 9 o'clock, just taking orders for Saturday delivery—and the delivery is made any time the customer specifies. Every order is carefully checked and filled with meticulous care. If anything should be wrong we'll send a special messenger and correct the error. Until 9 tonight. Phone number is Two Thousand.
