

HOOVER FACES ANOTHER TEST ON FARM BILL

Wins Victory Yesterday When House Passes Measure Without Deben- ture Plan by 367-34.

Washington, April 26.—Another test of President Hoover's influence with the new Congress drew nearer today as the House sent the Haugen $500,000,000 co-operative marketing bill, said to have the President's approval, to the Senate for action.

The critical stage of the farm relief fight into which the President has been drawn is scheduled to be reached next week. Senator McNary (R) of Oregon, chairman of the agriculture committee, announced that he would drive his own farm bill toward a final vote next Thursday.

Mr. Hoover's prestige was at high tide today, as a result of the action of the House in passing the Haugen bill by a vote of 367 to 34 late yesterday. Administration leaders in Congress proclaimed the vote a tremendous personal victory for Mr. Hoover.

Cheering News
While stiffer opposition awaited the so-called "Hoover Farm Program" in the Senate, the decisive manner in which the old equalization fee plan and the export debenture proposal were blocked in the House was cheering news to administration leaders.

Having already disclosed a Rooseveltian strain by openly denouncing the export debenture plan around which opposition is centering in the Senate, Mr. Hoover is expected to exert new pressure in the impending Senate fight. The open defection of Senators Brookhart (R) of Iowa and Frazier (R) of North Dakota was somewhat offset by the refusal of Senator Couzens (R) of Michigan to join these members of the "Insurgent Bloc." Senators Borah (R) of Idaho, New (R) of North Dakota and Johnson (R) of Calif., also of the insurgent group, were classed as doubtful.

CONNECTICUT GETS 37 NEW FACTORIES

State Gains 1,187 Employ- ees During Year—Dou- bles Year Before.

Hartford, April 26.—According to a survey of 62 leading communities dealing with the movement of factories during 1928, which has just been completed by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with local chambers of commerce, Connecticut gained 37 new factories, or 1,187 employees. This is more than double the gain in factories made by Connecticut during 1927 as indicated by last year's survey, which was the first of its kind to be made. The gain in employees during 1928 was 365 more than in 1927.

The survey indicates that, during 1928, 29 factories—six more than during 1927—moved into Connecticut from without the state, while only six factories moved out of Connecticut to other states; that 40 factories—19 more than during 1927—started business within the state, while 26 went out of business within the state; and that 8 factories—two less than during 1927—moved from one part of Connecticut to another. The 6 factories leaving Connecticut was five less than during 1927 and the 26 going out of business was nine more than during 1927.

Local Reports.
The reports of the local chambers to the State Chamber indicate that the 29 factories entering Connecticut had 856 employees, or 842 less than the 23 factories entering Connecticut during 1927, while the 6 factories that left Connecticut had 114 employees, or 653 less than had the 11 factories which left during 1927. The net gain in employees during 1928 of 1,187 factories entering Connecticut as contrasted to those leaving the state was 742. This was 289 less than the net gain during 1927.

The survey also indicates that the 26 factories which went out of business during 1928 had 936 employees, while the 49 factories that were started in Connecticut had 1,381 employees—a net gain of 445 workers. This compares with a net loss of 209 workers during 1927 from the factories going out of business in Connecticut, as contrasted

Hold Mrs. Beardslee For Husband's Death

Bridgeport, April 26.—Mrs. Oliver Beardslee will be given a hearing in Stratford Town Court next Monday morning on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting of her husband in their home in Stratford yesterday. Coroner John J. Phelan is to hold his inquest into Beardslee's death this afternoon and will have Mrs. Beardslee as a witness. It is her strength is sufficient. Counsel for Mrs. Beardslee today announced his willingness to permit her to be examined by the coroner. Mrs. Beardslee furnished the state authorities with a 42 page statement concerning her life with Beardslee which culminated yesterday with his death from a revolver bullet. Among other things she declared that twice he had "faked" suicide, using the revolver that yesterday caused his death. Once, she said, he fired the revolver out the window, and another time fired in the bath room, pretending he was killing himself.

'I'M ALONE' MIXUP FAR FROM SETTLED

Canadian Minister Says Rum Boat Was Beyond 12-Mile Limit.

Washington, April 26.—The Canadian schooner "I'm Alone" left more than momentary bubbles when it sank in the Gulf of Mexico with one crew member on March 22, Coast Guard gunfire March 22.

Correspondence between the American and Ottawa governments has failed to clear this country's justification of sending the runner to the bottom. The two governments have agreed to have the British-American pecuniary claims commission arbitrate the controversy and impose damages.

Massey's Letter.
Canadian Minister Vincent Massey notified Secretary of State Stimson his government has information that the cutter Walcott first sighted the "I'm Alone" March 20, 14.5 to 15 miles from shore; beyond the 12-mile or one-hour's steaming distance limit of novel character which the United States placed on the cutter Dexter joined the chase on the second day with the "deliberate intention" of sinking the ship, Massey said.

On Coast Guard data placed the schooner 18.8 miles off shore and within territorial waters. Stimson explained in his correspondence that the ship-liquor treaty with Great Britain "is of novel character and has extended the right of arrest to a greater distance than has hitherto been acknowledged under international law."

He declared should the right of the United States to continue pursuit of smuggled vessels on the high seas be denied, advantages purported by the two-government treaty are "illusory" as it would always be open to offending ships to refuse to stop when signalled and flee to open waters.

Mr. Massey's last note to Stimson stressed the illegality of the sinking and its ruthlessness. The Canadian government found none of the Stimson arguments convincing against data its consul at New Orleans received.

Mr. Massey's suggestion that it be diplomatically arbitrated.

In 1914 the claims of the commission arbitrated a controversy arising from the sinking of the Canadian ship Comquat, seized for violating a United States law. The commission, with a French jurist serving at the neutral member, levied high damages against the United States and assessed the United States a 5 per cent. interest from 1912, time the seizure occurred, to 1914 when the decision was given.

HOOVER MAY APPOINT STONE ON DRY BOARD

Favors Supreme Court Justice to Preside Over Law En- forcement Commission.

Washington, April 26.—President Hoover is seriously considering the appointment of Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the United States Supreme Court, to the chairmanship of his law enforcement commission. It was learned authoritatively today. The appointment, however, has not yet been made, according to one of the President's closest advisers.

The appointment will depend upon reports to the President on the question of the propriety of a Supreme Court Justice serving the government in any other capacity. Under the law no government official can accept two federal positions with pay and some of the President's advisers have felt that Stone's appointment would be a violation of the spirit of this Act.

WHITE HOUSE DOG DIES OF DISTEMPER

Washington, April 26.—Gloom was cast over the White House this morning when "Pat," an Irish wolfhound, died from distemper after the Army's foremost surgeons at Walter Reed hospital tried to save him.

The four other dogs in the White House kennel bark and run about apparently without what's become of "Pat." He was presented to President Hoover by a "Miss Smith of Virginia."

TWO H. S. STUDENTS TIED FOR HONORS

Exactly Even Status of Girls Backs Usual Distribution of Graduation Parts.

Announcement was made by Principal Clarence P. Quimby at Manchester High school assembly late this afternoon that Miss Gladys Ruth Harrison and Miss Alice Lilian Modin have been selected by the faculty as having the highest marks in their four years of study at the local school. They will be the two graduation speakers in June.

Principal Quimby stated that the faculty found it impossible to make any differentiation between the work of the two students. Consequently, the practice of honoring one speaker as the valedictorian and the other as the salutatorian, which has been in vogue since the 1923 graduation.

Miss Harrison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Harrison of 600 Center street while Miss Modin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto P. Modin.

No Shade of Advantage.
The work of the two students was so nearly identical, Principal Quimby said, that the faculty was unable to give an edge to either for their four years of study under the present marking system. Both were able to show 80 marks of grade A during the four years. This is considered a perfect record under the system in vogue here. Every mark they received in their regular school work was a grade A.

Honor Pupils.
Twenty other students in the senior class will have "honor pupil" written on their diplomas. They constitute the first fifteen per cent. of the Senior class from a standpoint of high marks in studies taken over a period of four years. Their names were read off at assembly this afternoon. They follow: Esther Barrabee, Venancio Bongal, Hazel Devlin, Elizabeth Dora, Ruth Helwig, Myrtle Johnson, John Johnston, Martha Klismann, Eva Koehler, Ruth McMenemy, Mildred Noren, Marjorie Pitken, Jacob Rubinov, David Samuelson, Florence Schledge, Julia Selwitz, Robert S. Mary Walker, Carroll Wilson and Herman Yules.

POLL OF SENATORS FAVORS PRESIDENT

Will Have Margin of Nine Votes Against Debenture Plan.

Washington, April 26.—President Hoover's rejection of the export debenture plan of farm relief will be endorsed by the Senate by at least a nine vote margin, it was revealed today by an International News Service poll.

The poll showed 48 Senators—43 Republicans and 5 Democrats—pledged against the debenture form of relief. This "last ditch" strength assured victory to the president, since it is an exact majority of the Senate, where by 55 Senators are now serving.

The poll actually revealed but 37 Senators—8 Republicans, 1 Farmer-Laborite and 28 Democrats—pledged in favor of the debenture, compared to the 48 opposed. The remaining ten Senators announced they had not yet decided how they would vote. Of these ten, however, there were indications four would support the president, giving him a nine-vote margin of victory—52 to 43—even if the other six vote for the debenture plan. If all ten support Mr. Hoover, he would win by a 21 vote margin—58 to 37.

STOCK MARKET LOANS AGAIN ON INCREASE

Reserve Banks' Efforts to Control Credits Fail; More Drastic Measures Must Be Taken, Experts Say.

Washington, April 26.—The sudden reversal of the trend of brokers loans, which have started upward once more after a month's reduction of $68,000,000, today had placed the speculative credit situation back in the spotlight trained on the Stock Market by the Federal Reserve Board.

No real estimate of the effect of the increase in loans by $67,000,000 the week ending April 24 can be made until the board gets figures on the current week. Another heavy increase might indicate that the effort to control bank credit through the cooperation of the reserve and member banks must be supplemented by more drastic weapons.

One expert declared that before the "market gets back to normal," brokers loans will go through a number of cycles of ups and downs. This official predicted that there would be no sudden break in the market, but that it would gradually ease off until it reaches what the government believes is a normal plane. The gradual decline, according to this view, would not be productive of serious losses to the traders.

Other officials, however, saw in the jump in speculative loans a strong argument to support the position taken by the Federal advisory council that rediscunt rates should be increased at the reserve banks. Meeting last week the council failed to convince the board of the advisability of rate increases, although one member of the board expressed the belief that advances form the most effective means of curbing speculative use of bank credit.

Banks Cooperating
The board still felt that it was getting cooperation from the member banks, despite the $47,000,000 increase in brokers loans from the New York institutions. Out-of-town bank loans to brokers were $10,000,000 down.

An international reaction to high money rates in the United States, resulting from large absorption of credit by the market, was seen in the advance in rediscunt rates in Germany and Austria. The tendency has been to substitute foreign lending, rather than borrowing, in the American market.

Some officials feared that foreign countries might suffer from capital scarcity as high interest rates close the American market to them. This, in turn, would have an adverse effect on American foreign trade, it was feared in some quarters.

There seemed to be no prospects of a change in the board's rediscunt rate policy in the immediate future.

RECLUSE DIES

Stamford, April 26.—Nathan Weed, a Darien recluse, died at Stamford hospital during the night, shortly after he had been taken there at the request of Dr. W. H. Slaughter, medical examiner, in that town.

Weed, who was a fur trapper, had locked himself into his home when seized with an illness some time ago, and his condition was discovered only yesterday afternoon when his friend, missing him, broke into the house and then summoned the doctor.

Weed, who was about sixty, had no relatives.

DEBATING AWARDS.

Four solid gold medals, the gifts of William Kanehl, local building contractor, who takes a wide interest in debating, were presented to the members of the local High school debating team at assembly this afternoon. The awards went to Eva Koehler, '29, Charles Rubinov, '31, Carl Cuddeby, '30 and Eleanor Dwyer, '29.

Reveal Disappearance of Doctor.

The mysterious disappearance of Dr. Charles Brancati, upper right, wealthy New York physician, five months ago, was followed by the disappearance of more than $200,000, today had placed the speculative credit situation back in the spotlight trained on the Stock Market by the Federal Reserve Board.

STATE DROPS ITS CASE AGAINST TRENOR A. RICE

Steps Taken to Free Deputy Sheriff Indicted for Death of County Detective Wil- liam Jackson.

Willimantic, April 26.—The state today dropped its charge of first degree murder against Trenor A. Rice, deputy sheriff indicted two months ago for the death of William E. Jackson, county detective, and steps were taken immediately to release Rice from the county jail at Brookline where he has been held without bail since shortly after Jackson was shot to death in his home here.

Howard C. Bradford, state's attorney for Windham county, told Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin in Superior Court today that he was not satisfied the merger had been effected in the death of Jackson but that he was certain Rice could not be convicted of the crime.

Case Breaks Down.
Bradford told Judge Marvin that the deaths of the state's two chief witnesses had broken down the case of the prosecution. They were Mrs. Merton Andrews, business partner of Jackson's daughter, and the first person to enter the Jackson home after the killing; and Mrs. Jackson, the slain man's widow.

Do Not Believe Notes.
Of two notes left by Mrs. Jackson, declaring Rice innocent of the murder and taking the blame on herself, Bradford declared that state "never placed any credence in these," and that every one who knew the circumstances in the case knew they were "untruthful."

The state's attorney told the judge that "sometimes it is the duty of a state's attorney to make such a motion, knowing that the accused is innocent." In this case,

MORE THAN 80 DEAD, HUNDREDS INJURED, IN GEORGIA STORMS

RYDER CUP FIRST LEG GOES TO U. S.

Americans Win Two of Four Foursomes, Lose One and Halve the Other.

Moortown, England, April 26.—The American team today won the first leg on the 1929 Ryder Cup by winning the foursome matches 2-1-2 points to 1-2 for the British.

The Americans won two of the four matches, lost one match, and halved one match with the British. Johnny Farrell and Joe Turnesa halved their match with Archie Compston and Charles Whitcombe.

This gave both the Britons and the Americans a total of two points each. The result of the foursome play hung on the match between Walter Hagen and Johnny Golden, of Paterson, Americans, and Henry Cotton and E. R. Whitcombe, Britons, the last quartette to finish.

Result in Doubt
The result was in doubt almost until the finish of the final foursome match, that of Walter Hagen and Johnny Golden against Henry Cotton and E. R. Whitcombe.

The matches, played in the very worst sort of weather, were witnessed by an estimated crowd of 1,000 persons, who had gathered on the links in anticipation of seeing some premier golf.

They were not disappointed, as in the opening rounds the Americans, particularly Diegel and Espinosa, flashed a brand of golf seldom seen in this, or any other country.

Diegel and Espinosa won the first point by taking their match against Boomer and Duncan, 7 up and 5 to play.

British Even Score
The Britons evened the score when the second foursome completed their round of 36 holes, Robson and Mitchell winning from Sarazen and Dudley, 2 up and 1 to play.

The Americans, Farrell and Turnesa, halved their match with Compston and C. Whitcombe, leaving the score tied at 1-1-2 points each.

Walter Hagen and Johnny Golden flashed through to win the day's matches for the Americans by taking the final match two up and one to play, from Henry Cotton and E. R. Whitcombe.

Moortown, England, April 26.—Leo Diegel, of New Mexico, and Al Espinosa, of Chicago, the "flash" of the American Ryder Cup team, today easily defeated their opponents, George Duncan and Audrey Boomer, in 36 holes of match play.

The American pair won seven up and five to play.

The cards, coming in, were: Diegel and Espinosa: 5-5-3-5. Duncan and Boomer: 5-5-3-4. The Britons won the second foursome when Abe Mitchell and Fred Robson took the match from Gene Sarazen and Ed Dudley of Los Angeles, 2 up and 1 to play.

The Britons, however, picked up as the play progressed. The worse the weather, the better the Britons played. By the time the leading foursome reached the sixth hole the rain had turned to sleet, which was being driven across the course by a boisterous gale.

Diegel and Espinosa, who had finished the first round, 7 up on their opponents, dropped one hole on the way out, on the second round. They made the turn at the 27th hole six up on Boomer and Duncan.

Here Are Scores
The cards, going out, on the second round, were: Diegel and Espinosa: 544 443 636-37. Boomer and Duncan: 554 442 644-38. Farrell and Turnesa, on the other hand, had picked up another hole on the sixth, giving them two up, when Compston hit his opponent's ball and went into a bunker.

Farrell and Turnesa made the turn at the 27th hole all square. The cards, going out on the second round, were: Farrell and Turnesa: 544 250 444. Compston and C. Whitcombe: 454 349 433. The Americans took the sixth hole by reason of Compston's hitting his opponent's ball. Sarazen and Dudley were one down to Robson and Mitchell on the 27th hole. Their cards, out on the second round, were: Sarazen and Dudley: 555 344 534-38. Robson and Mitchell: 545 253 535-37.

Millions in Damages—Doz- en Towns and Villages Hard Hit by Series of Freak Tornadoes—Medi- cal Aid Being Rushed to Stricken Area—30 Killed In Statesboro.

Atlanta, Ga., April 26.—The death in the Georgia-South Carolina tornado, as compiled by International News Service here, is as follows:

State	Dead	Injured
Statesboro, Ga.	34	70
Cochran, Ga.	17	150
Metter, Ga.	10	20
Dexter, Ga.	3	30
Rentz, Ga.	2	17

Spartanburg, S. C.	2	10
Total	81	307

Atlanta, Ga., April 26.—Partial restoration of communication systems through storm-torn Georgia today disclosed reports of more than 80 persons dead, several hundred injured and millions of dollars property damage.

Dipping into south and middle Georgia early last night, a series of freakish tornadoes whipped swaths of devastation through a dozen towns and villages, and then spent themselves over the Carolinas, striking a last blow around Pelzer and Spartanburg, S. C.

The most appalling toll in human life appeared to have been exacted in the vicinity of Statesboro, Ga., where thirty persons were reported killed. Medical aid was being rushed to the town from all sides to care for the several score of injured, and the State Board of Health dispatched supplies of serums to combat a threatened outbreak of pestilence.

Other Reports.
Another stricken town was Cochran, Ga., which reported 17 dead and around 150 injured. Reports of

SENATE TO REJECT HEFLIN RESOLUTION

Tired of Alabaman's Long Speeches, Colleagues Plan to Defeat His Measure.

Washington, April 26.—In the face of his threats to campaign against them on the Romanist issue, a majority of the Senate today was prepared to reject a resolution of Senator J. Thomas Hefflin (D) of Alabama, condemning the recent attack on him at Brockton, Mass.

When Hefflin sponsored the resolution earlier in the week, indignantly and publicly ready to accept it and condemn the attack on him as he left a Brockton hall, following an anti-Catholic speech on last St. Patrick's Day. The Alabaman, however, grew impatient when the vote was delayed and promptly declared the real issue behind his resolution was a contest between "Catholicism and Americanism." This statement drew an attack on the resolution by Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, and provoked Republican leaders into deciding to defeat it.

Senate Embarrassed.
The Hefflin affair has caused the Senate much embarrassment. Both Republicans and Democrats privately and publicly have deplored the attack on Hefflin but they would prefer to avoid the issue because they feel a vote on any subject raised by Hefflin in connection with his anti-Catholic crusade, will be misinterpreted. To support a resolution, similar to Hefflin's after his speeches of this week, they believe, will be interpreted as an endorsement of his anti-Catholic crusade.

On the other hand, the Senate, always jealous of its dignity, would prefer to rebuke any gathering that assailed this Senatorial dignity.

Hefflin has been defeated several times when he raised his anti-Catholic issue in the Senate. The last occasion came when he sponsored an amendment to a naval bill in forbidding the flying of any flag above the American flag on warships during Divine services. Although an ample majority of the Senate opposed this flag practice Hefflin's proposal was defeated, when he called for a vote after a speech attacking what he termed the Catholic influence in politics.

this coming event is something that will interest every one of you.
It's going to be a big

MRS BURR TELLS OF BEAUTIES OF NORWAY

Gives Interesting Talk, Shows Pictures of the Land of the Midnight Sun.

Norway, in some respects one of the most wonderful countries of the globe, was the subject of a delightful travel talk given yesterday afternoon at Watkins Brothers music room by Mrs. C. R. Burr for the benefit of the Open Air school at the north end. Ever Ready Circle of Kings Daughters, of which Mrs. Burr is an active member, sponsored the affair, and at the close of the lecture served tea and wafers. Members of Sunnyside Junior circle of Kings Daughters assisted in serving.

Mrs. Burr gave her description of the Norwegian trip before showing the motion pictures taken personally during its progress, from the time the party comprising 12 different nationalities, boarded the yacht Jupiter at Newcastle-on-Tyne and crossed the North sea to Bergen. This is one of the most important seaport towns on the coast of Norway and a great fish distribution center. The steamer only had a tonnage of 32 and Mrs. Burr said

It was remarkable, the skill with which the seamen were able to navigate the yacht through the fjords with which the coastline is indented. No other country in the world is like it. Some of these fjords extend back into the mainland a distance of 100 miles and the rocks sometimes tower above the water to a sheer height of 2000 feet. During the summer the mountains are snow-capped. In Bergen it rains practically every day, not like the rains we have been having here lately but more like the California variety, with perhaps a little sunshine thrown in. It is said to be the rainiest city in the world, and Mrs. Burr told the story of a sea captain who was born in Bergen and all his life had sailed between that port and the outer world. He came into harbor one day when the sun was shining and immediately put out to sea again believing he had made a mistake in his port.

Seven hills or mountains surround Bergen and the scenery is most picturesque, as it is all along the Norwegian coast. Many of these fjords are frozen over six and sometimes nine months of the year. The Norwegian summer is very short, but the fertility of the soil and the perpetual sunshine of the summer months, results in a rapid growth of vegetables and grains so that sometimes two or more crops are harvested. Norway is the home of the spruces which are so popular in this country and they add to the beauty of the panorama. Fish is the principal industry. Mrs. Burr said they bale it as we would hay, and on inquiring where so much fish was shipped was informed that the great bulk of this baled fish, was exported to Latin countries. Leprosy was formerly prevalent in Norway because of the almost exclusive consumption of fish by the natives; now they have learned to use quantities of vegetables and fruits and to can them for the winter season and the health of the people has greatly improved. Dairy-farming is an important industry, as is cheese making. Timber cutting is extensively carried on. The flowers are many of them, the same as we have here. The children sell them to the tourists and they shake hands and courtesy to their patrons in a most impressive way. The religion of the natives is for the most part German Lutheran, although they refer to many of their churches as cathedrals, and the priests wear the most gorgeous robes of gold cloth and embroideries with huge neck ruffs.

Mrs. Burr gave a very complete description of some of these beautiful cathedrals, all of them very old. In some, work laid out in the original plan, centuries ago, is not yet finished. The stone-carving of baptismal fonts, pillars and other architectural features is marvelous. These ancient churches with their intricate workmanship performed centuries ago, make ours by comparison seem very new.

Mrs. Burr said the Scotch have nothing on the Norwegians for being canny and close, and told of one instance where instead of docking their yacht the tourists were taken from it in boats and conveyed to the landing. On inquiring the reason they were informed that while it was possible to dock, if they did so they would be liable to dockage charges which could be avoided by taking the passengers off in the small boats.

The party visited a number of the principal ports and stopped long enough to tour the arsenals, museums and other places of interest, such as Trondhjem, where lived the old Norwegian Kings. At Tromsø they visited a museum and Mrs. Burr and one of the other tourists had the novel experience of sitting in the jaws of the skeleton of a whale 80 feet long. They also stopped at Hammerfest the most northern city in the world although it has only 2000 of a settled population.

The steamer sailed up to North Cape, and the Manchesterites with most of the party negotiated the 1200 feet climb up the cliff. It was a strenuous climb, with a magnificent view from the top, where there was a shelter or hut and it was possible to have a stimulating cup of tea, two women being in attendance. She told of a glacier 10 miles wide, extending back a distance of 25 miles in the mountains. The party entered one of the caves at the side of this glacier, a picture of which was shown, and shortly afterward there was an avalanche of the snow above. They also saw what looked like wonders, the midnight sun.

One thing that impresses the traveler in Norway is the fact that it is against the principles of the natives, the older ones particularly, to accept tips. They are very generous, however, in supplying the guests at inns and hotels with food and the service at the Britannia hotel compared favorably with our better hotels here.

After leaving the cape the party sailed to King's Bay from which point the Nobil and Amundsen expeditions took off on their flight to the North Pole. When Mr. and Mrs. Burr were at the bay they were searching for the explorers and a number of aviators from different countries and hydroplanes were stationed at the hangar there. It was bitterly cold at the time although it was summer. There was no visible sign of vegetation. However, the captain of the yacht assured the tourists that willows did grow to the height of 2 inches at that northern point. Mrs. Burr searched for one of these tiny trees which she felt she could easily add to her luggage but was unable to find any. Their little steamer went as far as allowable into the Arctic circle, possibly 600 miles from the polar edge of the pack ice there was discernible. When any vessel crosses the Arctic circle the captain gives a dinner, just as when ships cross the equator Father Neptune is supposed to stop on board. Mrs. Burr showed several reels of motion pictures, beginning with that of Montreal, where they took the Cunard line steamer Ansonia and sailed through the St. Lawrence river and Atlantic to Cherbourg, France. Views of Paris and of the American cemeteries where the little wooden crosses have been supported by cement ones, giving a record of the boys who made the supreme sacrifice were shown also but in the main the views were of the Scandinavian peninsula where most of the touring was done. At the close of her fine lecture Mrs. Burr was accorded a hearty round of applause.

WAPPING SEEKING NEW POSTMASTER AND OFFICE

P. O. Department Discontinues Station There and Then Rescinds the Order.

The Post Office Department has rescinded its order to discontinue the office at Wapping, according to a notice received by Walter S. Billings, postmaster there. The department ordered the office discontinued on April 10 and immediately Wapping residents circulated a petition which Congressman E. Hart Fern presented to the department in Washington. The department evidently was impressed with the appeal of the Wapping residents for the decision to rescind the original order to discontinue the office was quickly made.

The post office situation in Wapping was brought about by the resignation last November of Walter S. Billings as postmaster. Mr. Billings found that he could not carry on his work as storekeeper and also continue as postmaster. However, no successor was named and finally when Mr. Billings insisted that he was going to give up his office the government decided to discontinue the Wapping station. It ordered the Wapping mail to be delivered from Broad Brook. When the Wapping people learned they were to lose their post office they immediately got busy and petitioned the government to remain as postmaster until such time as other arrangements could be made. Now all that Wapping needs is a postmaster and a place to put its office.

MORE THAN 80 DEAD IN GEORGIA STORMS

death from Metter, Rentz and other small towns in south and central Georgia swelled the total to around the four score mark. Six lives were lost around Spartanburg and Pelzer, across the Georgia line in South Carolina.

Large portions of Statesboro and Cochran were reported wiped away. Trees and houses were swept away and carried long distances by the destructive fury of the wind. Buildings crumbled like eggshells burying the occupants in the debris.

EARLY BULLETINS.

Atlanta, Ga., April 26.—Sweeping with destructive fury through South Carolina and Georgia, a double tornado today had claimed forty lives and injured 250 persons, laid waste a wide area of rich farm and fruit country, and caused property damage estimated to exceed $1,000,000, according to meagre telegraphic dispatches reaching here.

Unhindered, except by darkening clouds, the tornado first struck Cochran, Ga., near Macon. Seventeen persons, fleeing to safety, were swept into the maw of the raging winds and killed at Cochran, reports said.

Six lives were claimed by the tornado at Spartanburg and Pelzer, S. C., and others were reported dead at Metter, Vester, and Rentz, Ga.

Roads impassable. Highways in both states were rendered impassable by the tornado; telephone and telegraph lines severed; trees uprooted and carried considerable distances and farm buildings and crops severely damaged.

A child was killed and several persons injured at Rentz, where a group of farm buildings were demolished by the wind.

The storm struck with appalling suddenness in both states simultaneously at 6 p. m., last night. It was in the nature of a "freak" storm, wrecking its fury in a few moments and disappearing, leaving death and devastation in its wake.

Many homeless. Storm victims, some bereft of families and others with their farm goods and means of subsistence swept away, straggled from cyclone collars and other shelters to search for the dead and injured after the storm passed.

Again they were driven to shelter when at 10 o'clock the storm suddenly reappeared, its intensity unabated, and swept over its former course.

A score of buildings were demolished at Cochran where the greatest number met death. Roads leading into Cochran were strewn with wreckage, and telephone and telegraph wires were down, rendering communication with the stricken town almost impossible.

Many homeless. Storm victims, some bereft of families and others with their farm goods and means of subsistence swept away, straggled from cyclone collars and other shelters to search for the dead and injured after the storm passed.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, April 26.—The road to higher prices for industrial stocks was blocked today by the scarcity of money, profit-making by the big bulls being shown by the fact that no evidence could be had been given of the complete control of the market by the professionals than was furnished today in the restless shifting about of industrial stocks back and forth in the narrow range of price ranges. A "hard market" is the most familiar Wall Street designation of the April period.

Shortly after the noon period the money supplies began to evaporate and with a 10 per cent call loan rate in effect, it was predicted that money would be loaning at 5 per cent before the end of the day. The Reserve Board was said to be "displeased" over the $67,000,000 increase in brokers' loans, but the financial district attached some of the blame to the new financing of stocks and bonds.

FEELS NO NEED OF BUYING THE REC

Dr. Sweet Would Have Town Make Other Provision for High School Gym Work.

Editor, The Herald:—The article in your issue of the 25th in regard to purchasing the major part of the Cheney owned buildings now used for educational and recreational purposes, as the Town of Hartford purposes, looks like another game of unloading that which the Cheneys used to think was a good proposition but now want the money badly.

The price asked and expenses incurred to maintain and run the three buildings named, Franklin school, Recreation building together with the heating plant, is far in excess of what the town could get, for school purposes, in some other way, and to far better advantage.

Would like to suggest what in my mind would be the better scheme for the town to pursue, if we need this extra room for high school purposes, why not remodel the present high school hall into school rooms, build for ourselves on land now owned by the town, to the north of the present high school building, a new auditorium on the ground floor and such gymnasium or physical culture rooms as needed for school purposes. Also a heating plant to take care of this group of buildings. This can be done for one-half what it would cost to buy the buildings as suggested and would be united on town owned property.

Why be in such a hurry to buy land and buildings which are not needed and would be a white elephant to the taxpayer when secured? To buy the Recreation building and maintain as new used would cost the taxpayer far in excess of what we need for school purposes, and the town cannot run a Recreation Center out of public moneys. Have been told by some of our leading south end men that the expense of this luxury is a burden on the south end taxpayer and need not have been discontinued some time ago.

Why not hire the Franklin school building and so much of the Recreation facilities as are needed for school purposes and heat for one year? Elect a committee of nine, one from each school district, to view our necessities and report their findings and recommendations within a month or two, and then build on our own property what is needed. A committee of nine, one from each school district, would give each section of the town representation. They are the ones who will have to pay the bills and should be represented. As we now have only eight districts we could give the old sixth a representative or two from the Ninth.

The whole school expense problem in the Town of Manchester needs to be investigated. The cost per pupil is too large and there must be somewhere in our present system that which is unneeded or else we do not get 100 per cent of our money. At the present time the tax paid on a single tenement house which is taxed for less than ten thousand dollars, and has two children to school, does not pay for the expense of such schooling. And there is all the other utilities to be paid for out of the same tax. I am not advocating poorer schools or poorer education but let us get what we need at the right price. "Constructive economy" was the method used by our government at Washington during President Coolidge's reign. Let's try it in our school and town affairs.

ACCUSE DELIVERY MAN OF TRYING BURGLARY

A delivery man for a Hartford store was taken into custody yesterday afternoon by local police when it was reported he had rifled a north end residence. The story told the police was that the young man went to the doorway to leave a package, found the door open and walked in. Then it was charged he had searched the house for valuables. When questioned by police he denied having gone through the house and since nothing was missed from the residence and no valuables were found on the accused the local police let him go.

WEST HAVEN NOW IN THE LIMELIGHT

To Get $150,000 Army and Wants to Become City—Other Legislation.

Hartford, April 26.—West Haven stepped into the limelight in the State Legislature today. A favorable report was received on a bill to create a commission to erect an armory at that town, and appropriations of $150,000 therefore, the commission to be appointed by the governor within a year after the town has purchased a site for the building. Then there was a bill which would permit West Haven to become a city after a favorable referendum in the town.

The Waterbury bill, which provided a plan of liquidating the city's floating debt by five annual payments of $800,000, and which had been reported favorably and placed on the calendar, was referred back to the finance committee today. Chairman Mitchell, of that committee, declared the bill should have been reported unfavorably instead.

Favorable Report.
Favorable reports were received in the House on bills appropriating money to purchase land in Groton for a state airport, an appropriation for the town of Mansfield to erect a school on the original Storrs site, a bill providing revision of the General Statutes, a bill providing license for corporation exercising fiduciary powers, providing for regulation of the use of trade names, increasing the percentage of loans on real estate which may be made by banks, to 75 per cent. of the value of the property.

The House received an unfavorable report on a bill providing state transportation of crippled children to and from school.
Unfavorable reports were received on bills providing high school tuition and high school transportation grants to towns but both were tabled in the House.

The Senate approved the appointment of Senator Elbert O. Hull, of Bridgeport, as judge of the newly created Bridgeport Juvenile Court.

The Senate received an unfavorable report on a bill which provides that the director of the state experiment station shall analyze and report on the quality of the soil in each town in the state.

A favorable report was received on a bill authorizing the board of finance and control to make payments to officers and men of the National Guard who may be injured while on duty.

Bills passed from the Senate calendar today follow:

Authorizing Hartford's Water Board to condemn land about its water sheds to protect the city water supply; abating taxes due the Town of Greenwich from the Boys' Club Association; amending the Waterbury charter to provide a city plan board; providing that the Waterbury Commission of Public Works may construct sewers in the First District, the expense to be carried to that district; requiring the Waterbury tax collector to institute proceedings against persons who have failed to pay taxes, within ninety days after the taxes are due; authorizing the savings banks to invest in New York, Boston and Philadelphia banks; providing no subdivision of a municipality may issue bonds in excess of five per cent. of its grand list; authorizing Waterbury's Aldermen to require the controller to transfer any appropriation granted to one department from one item to another within the same rates of interest when advertising; abating taxes due Greenwich from the Y. W. C. A.; changing the term of appointed commissioners in Hartford.

Bills passed from the House calendar today follow:

Providing appointment by West Haven Selectmen of a clerk for that board and the board of finance; authorizing Warren to borrow $90,000 to pay construction costs of state aid highways; authorizing the tax collector of West Haven to collect for the West Haven school district also; authorizing Clinton to issue $175,000 school bonds; exempting property of G. A. R. posts from taxes; providing a board of seven selectmen in West Haven, if the city charter is not accepted by voters there; authorizing Orange selectmen to establish building lines; authorizing East Hartford to issue school bonds in the amount of $400,000, authorizing a $200,000 permanent improvement bond issue in Danbury; establishing a board of fire commissioners in Orange; amending the Middletown city school district charter exempting the district from provisions of a bill passed recently at the request of the educational committee, which provided supervision of the school system.

The House also received, late in the session, favorable reports on three bills: Authorizing the adjutant-general to order on firing squads to attend the burial of National Guardsmen; annexing a small part of Ledyard to the Town of Preston; and establishing harbor and bulkhead lines in New Haven harbor.

The Legislature recognized the coming of daylight saving by voting to open its session at 10:15 a. m., Standard Time for the rest of the session.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY
Jersey City, N. J., April 25.—The nude torso of a woman about 25, with head, both arms, and the right leg missing, was found floating in the gap, an inlet to the Hudson river, Jersey City, today. It was badly decomposed. The finder was Adam Gipsinski, a steamship pier watchman.
Officials said the arms, head and right leg might have been cut from the body by the propeller of a ship.

SCHOOL PAYS TRIBUTE TO THEODORA GLENNEY

Testifies in Memorial to Beauty and Character of Dead Mate and Pupil.

The unexpected and tragic death of Theodora Glenney, 13 years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Glenney of Brookfield street, caused deep grief at the Barnard school where she was a pupil. Following is a statement forwarded to The Herald from the school setting forth the feeling of pupils and teachers:

In Memoriam.
The news of the passing of Theodora Glenney has cast a gloom and darkness over the pupils and teachers of Barnard school. Wednesday at noon the sad announcement came. Girls, ordinarily lighthearted and gay straggled into classes swollen-eyed and down-cast. Theodora is not to be mourned. She was the most inspiring of girls, her influence cannot perish; and sad smiles unlock themselves as we think of her willingness to do the most humble tasks. Her cheery "Anything I can do" will never be forgotten. "Tootsey" lived among us as an ideal; a goal to which we should strive. She was alert of mind, piercing in thought, quick to see, yet never a bit sophisticated or unnatural. All girls were her friends; she required no show of noble blood or special talent of her pals. Her pure influence on her chums is but part of her immortality.

Then, too, she was an indefatigable worker; and never too busy to help others. She even anticipated the wants of others. Can one ever forget such a child? And to hear her laugh! The merry, joyous chuckle, genuine and hearty, that issued from her lips can never cease re-echoing through our lonely halls.

What a rich, full life she has had; how perfect and how complete, how magnanimous and serviceful, like the breath of a fragrant flower. In her short allotted span she has left a deep, abiding influence. She was perfect. We are happy to have had her for a little while that we might catch a glimpse of Paradise. (Signed)

AUTO WRECK PROBLEM.

Your editorial regarding the promiscuous dumping of old or worn out autos is timely and deserving of consideration by everybody. It would seem that the Chamber of Commerce of any town or city should make it its business to keep our highways looking respectable, and with the aid of auto dealers "who really benefit by every car which can no longer be run," devise some means of doing away with these old wrecks.

Perhaps there is a deep hole somewhere which can be used to dump these wrecks into or they can be stored in an out of the way place and be burned when the pile is large enough. Possibly some chemist will come along and tell us that a proper mixture of acids, when sprinkled over them, will destroy them as does rust, only much faster.

The problem is largely one for the Chamber of Commerce, however, since the beautifying of our highways brings returns in the form of visitors from afar and their opinion of us is to be respected.

NOON STOCKS

New York, April 26.—Most of the favorite stocks started the day at higher price levels and a few of the hand-picked utility and specialty stocks continued their move to higher levels.

THE POOLS RESUMED THEIR WORK IN COLUMBIA GRAPHOPHONE, INTERNATIONAL TEL. & TEL., CURTIS AERO, AND INVESTMENT BUYING OF THE RAILROAD STOCKS WAS AGAIN IN EVIDENCE AS NEW HAVEN, PENNSYLVANIA AND OTHER RAILS MOVED UPWARD A POINT OR SO IN ACTIVE TRADING.

The $67,000,000 increase in brokers' loans was in line with expectations in Wall street, the bulls looked on the bright side and attributed higher borrowings as a proof of growing confidence in stocks and the stock market in general.

The German Mark broke to a new low at 23.58 1/2 about the time that the complete success of an offering of $30,000,000 5 1/2 per cent. convertible debentures of the I. G. Chemical Corporation was announced.

Columbia Graphophone occupied most of the attention of the professionals as the stock continued to spar to new high price levels reached 83 1/2 on the move, for a gain of 3 points. International Tel. & Tel. jumped 8 points to 252 1/2 and Briggs Manufacturing sold up about 2 points at 45 1/2. Bethlehem Steel weakened a point or two on announcement of the new stock offering at $85 a share, but the $4.05 a share earnings in the first quarter of 1929 was a strong recommendation for the common stock from the investor's standpoint.

"HOW I FOUND MY PAL"

By Kathleen Thompson
It all happened on my first camping trip. I was strolling along the water's edge, waiting for my girl friends to finish preparing dinner. All of a sudden I heard a rustling in the underbrush. I was so frightened that I nearly fell in the water. Then to my surprise there came from the bushes, a small dog dragging himself as if half dead. I examined him to find that his hind leg was injured. Carrying him to my tent, I bathed him, and then fixed his leg to the best of my knowledge. After giving him a little supper, I wrapped him in one of my waists. Then I covered him at the foot of my bed.

As he was sleeping, I went out in the woods to gather some wood to build a fire. I was wondering whose dog it was. After I had gathered enough wood, I went back to my tent. I noticed that the dog didn't have any collar on. I sat down by the dog's side and watched him as he slept comfortably. I noticed that he was a very beautiful dog.

The next day he seemed to be picking up. He got plenty of attention from my girl friends. We gave him the best of care and within a week's time we nursed his leg back to normal. We took him every place we went. At night when we sat around the fire, he would jump upon my lap and wag his tail as if to thank me for my kindness.

He was very playful and we taught him many tricks. One day I went out in the canoe but the dog didn't want to get in. He thought it was more fun to swim along side of the canoe. All of a sudden when the dog went to jump in the canoe, he lost his grip, and the canoe turned over. I couldn't swim very good. The dog noticed my helpless condition, and gripped hold of my shoulder and helped me to shore. I went to my tent and dried my clothes.

The next morning when I got up, I found the dog missing. After I got dressed I went out to build my fire. I saw the dog coming toward the tent with a piece of wood in his mouth, as much as to say, he was trying to help me build my fire. After the fire was kindling brightly, we made breakfast. The dog as usual had his meal on my lap.

After enjoying a most adventurous summer, we started for home. I with my pal. When I reached my dog, and named him "Spotsy" on account of the two brown spots on his ear. After "Spotsy" became acquainted with his new home, I brought a pillow from the house and made a bed in his little house and then lined the sides with straw to make it warm.

I am sure that my camping trip was to some good.

"KINDNESS TO ANIMALS"

By Donald Harrington
The sixth Boy Scout law is kindness. He is a friend to animals and will not kill or hurt any living creature needlessly, but will strive to have and protect all harmless life.

Not only is this kindness to be manifested by a scout but by every person young and old. Animals are the same as human beings only they cannot talk and sometimes are unable to defend themselves. I think, judged by human standards, the dog is the most intelligent of animals. It would seem sometimes they display human intelligence. I remember when we had a dog some years ago how it would watch for a certain member of our family who reached home at a certain hour in his mouth. How is it the dog showed so much more affection for this member of the family than all the others? Simply because this man was always with him when possible, taking him on hikes, caring especially for him when wounded and very painstaking in preparing his food, so that in return for kindness shown him, the dog would try to show his appreciation also. I have noticed how the dog would bark and fight if he thought his friend in danger.

Cats also are very intelligent and show the same traits to one who has been kind to them. Also a cat generally finds the most comfortable place in the house to rest his body and loves to eat especially the kind of food he likes. So he is a real house pet.

The goat is a calm courageous animal. It has been said that in a particular fire seventy-five horses were saved by one goat. Bunnies, canary birds and all the smaller animals should be treated kindly as people who show consideration to helpless animals, nursing them through sickness of any kind, generally manifest this same humane kindness to their fellowmen. So if when young we practice kindness and gentleness to the smallest and weakest of these animals, we will be building our own character, and try to attain a higher manhood and womanhood. I think the subject is well expressed in this poem:

Sometimes I wonder how people can live Without the glad friendship that animals give. Some little thing, no matter how small, To love you is better than nothing at all.

Some little kitten, a stray humble thing, Or some little bird with a droop to its wing; Isn't it better than nothing at all?

Feed the lame bird then bind up its wing— Soon it will perch on your finger and sing! Tuck the starved kitten up under your chin— Hear it purr "Thank you" for letting it in!

So many tables and so many scraps; So many timid paws begging for laps! Some little something, no matter how small— Isn't it better than nothing at all?

REFUGEES RESCUED
London, April 26.—A number of American, British and German refugees have been rescued from Changsha, near the Yangtze river by the British consul at Shanghai, according to official dispatches received here this afternoon. The consul went to the Changsha area in an armed tug in which the refugees were carried to safety.

London, April 26.—Grand Duke Michael, one of the few remaining royal Russian exiles, died at 5:30 a. m. today, after a siege of influenza.

Grand Duke Michael, who was 67 years of age, was a first cousin of the former Russian Czar. He had maintained a home in London for some years. His brother, Grand Duke Alexander, visited the United States on a lecture tour last winter.

To Identify Genuine Aspirin

THE increasing use of Bayer Aspirin every year is proof that it has no ill effects. It is the accepted antidote for pain. It always helps; it never harms. Quick relief when you've a headache, or cold; or are suffering from neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatic pains yield, too, if you'll only give these tablets a chance. But you want genuine Aspirin, so look for the Bayer Cross on every tablet. The box always bears the name Bayer and the word genuine printed in red.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monroeville, Pa., U.S.A.

Health and Diet

Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

MORE FOOD AND MORE EXERCISE

Tomorrow's diet will be changed so as to include more protein food in addition to the eggs and non-starchy vegetables which you have been using. This protein is to be added to the evening meal and may be selected from any one protein in the following list: beef, mutton, chicken, turkey, rabbit, fish, nuts or cheese.

You will notice that I say only one of these proteins should be used at a time. If the flesh foods are used, not over one-fourth of a pound should be taken at a meal. These foods may be prepared in practically any manner except by frying. If for any reason nuts are preferred over the animal proteins, it is best to use either pecan or almond nuts, as these nuts contain the least amount of carbohydrates and the largest amount of protein. Two ounces are always enough to use of the nut protein, as they are not as easily digested and really contain a larger amount of nourishing elements than any of the flesh foods, which contain more water. If cheese is preferred, it is best not to use over three or four ounces. I would suggest using either cottage cheese or the yellow full cream cheese.

Take More Exercise

With this addition of protein to your diet, it is advisable for you to begin taking some kind of vigorous physical culture exercise. I suggest that you use calisthenic exercises, both morning and evening, and start to take long walks at some time during the day, probably late in the afternoon. These walks should be for only a mile or so at first and gradually increased until you are able to walk four or five miles daily without fatigue. This walking is necessary for the best health unless you are actually doing such work as carrying mail, where you walk great distances at your work.

Regime For Tomorrow

Upon arising brush your teeth vigorously for five minutes with a stiff toothbrush, take breathing exercises before an open window, and supplement these exercises with five or ten minutes of vigorous calisthenics, using mostly the setting up exercises. One enema should be continued each day for a week or two longer. This may be taken either in the morning or evening. After your morning exercise take a cold shower or sponge bath.

Breakfast: Choice of one or two eggs prepared as described in former article, three or four pieces of malta toast or re-toasted Triscuit or Shredded Wheat Biscuit. A small dish of one of the following stewed fruits: prunes, figs, pears, raisins, apples, apricots or berries.

Lunch: Choice of the non-starchy vegetables both cooked and raw which you have been using the last few days.

During the afternoon take a long walk. This may be taken late in the afternoon. Upon returning from the walk take some more of the calisthenic and deep-breathing exercises, then a shower bath and lie down to rest for a few minutes before dinner.

The dinner tomorrow should consist of a choice of the non-starchy vegetables as at noon, with the addition of one of the protein foods which I recommend in my last instructions. It is now all right to add a simple dessert, such as Jello or some of the dried or stewed fruits.

Before retiring, do not fail to clean your teeth and take an enema if you have not already done so in the morning.

Watch tomorrow's paper for further instructions.

(Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet addressed to him in care of The Herald. Enclose large self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.)

Questions and Answers

Yellow Eyes

Question: J. C. writes: "Would like to know what causes a 'yellowish film' to be in the white of the eye, on each side of the ball. How can it be removed? Some old people say it is caused from not taking enough medicine. It has been in my eyes for several years, and the Lord knows I have taken all kinds of medicine."

Answer: The common cause of yellow showing in the white of the eye is from a retention of bile in the blood. Bile should only be in the liver, gall bladder and intestines. It is a poison to the body when in the blood and often makes the skin and white of the eye look yellow. An extreme condition from this cause is jaundice, but many people suffer from a chronic poisoning from bile which could well be called chronic jaundice.

Diet and College

Question: Two Pals write: "We are two girls going to college and as it is impossible for us to diet, we wish you would give us some advice as to how we might reduce. Would you advise us to stop eating bread? We want to reduce some before summer and any help you give will be appreciated."

Answer: I presume you are living in a dormitory where you all eat at the same table and you are forced to eat whatever they give you. If that is so it would be better for you to change your college and attend one where you can buy your own meals wherever you wish, or prepare them yourselves. I recently wrote to several hundred colleges, asking them to send me a sample of the menus they use. The replies were very disappointing and showed that the superintendents of our modern educational institutions know little about food chemistry and seem to care less if I am to judge from the sample menus which they sent me.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Friday, April 26. Lisa Lehmann's famous song cycle "In a Persian Garden," will be sung in its entirety by the United Choral Singers, directed by F. Channon Collins, on Friday night at 8 o'clock over stations of the Columbia system. This popular work is based on the verses of Omar Khayyam, Persian great poet of the twelfth century. Lannie Ross, tenor, will be the featured artist in a program gaily interspersed with vocal and instrumental novelties, when the regular weekly musical review is broadcast by WJZ and associated stations at 9 o'clock. The Dahlhart trio will proceed with two railroad songs, and more vocal harmony is furnished by the Wanderers male quartet. The instrumental soloists include Andy Sannelle, saxophonist and guitarist, and Dave Grupp, xylophonist. The orchestra will be under the direction of Harold Sanford. Singing German folk songs, the famous Richard Wagner Masterpiece, one of Chicago's most prominent singing groups of 40 men, will present a half-hour concert over WLS at 10:30. Among the numbers included in this recital will be "The Rhinegold," "Haldens," "When I Walk in the Woods at Evening," and Austrian folk songs. Goethe's, and two American compositions "A Little Closer Harmony" and "Until the Dawn."

AMERICA TO ACCEPT FRANCE'S ARMY PLAN

Geneva, April 26.—With the possible idea of gaining French support for America's proposals for naval reduction, the United States will make concessions to France's contention that trained army reserves shall not be considered a part of the standing army, it was revealed here today. There are indications that, if a conference is summoned to consider the disarmament suggestions put forward by Hugh Gibson, of the United States, the agent, will include limitation of military establishments as well as reduction of navies. France favors next year as the date of the proposed international parity. Hugh Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, who outlined America's desire for speedy and effective naval disarmament, told the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission today. "The United States will inform the commission she is prepared to withdraw the objections to the French thesis which disregards trained reserves in reducing land effectives (regular Army troops)."

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 26—If youth just has more darn fun watching folks!
The most active hotel beats to hit Manhattan for many a year turned out to be two sisters who, if appearances could be credited, were nice middle-aged ladies of the sort that used to drop in for Sunday dinner. Because of this appearance the Osborn sisters were able to hop from hotel to hotel and get credit which would be denied many a well-groomed transient. They seemed so old-fashioned, and all that. And wherever they went they took a cat and a bird cage. This was enough to disarm the hardest-boiled of hotel keepers. All in all, the Osborns had "worked" 14 New York hotels before they were arrested—and these included such tony places as the Ambassador.

It was this family cat, which they just couldn't leave behind, which finally proved their undoing, for when the police finally got on the trail they gave notice to look out for two prim ladies with a black cat as part of their retinue.
Then, just the other day, the will of a very rich society dowager—who had died at the age of 85—revealed that she had left $25,000 to the 30-year-old sigolo who accompanied her about. The youthful escort was blond and "pretty," with wavy hair. He had been the aged woman's escort for a couple of years and was well paid for his services. Grown children of the rich woman had been worried for some time that the youth—who was younger than several of the children, by the way—would marry their mother, and perhaps come into all of her money. They sighed with relief when the will ended all arguments.

First nighters at the Broadway theaters have regretted the death, during the winter, of one of the most persistent of the front seat holders at opening night performances. She was a woman, well known in her seventies, who always accompanied her son—a veteran first night attender. They always occupied seats A 1 and 2 and had been accepted as established figures, along with the critics and managerial personalities.

It's a 75-year-old musical enthusiast, if you please, who backs Earl Carroll's newest musical venture. She is said to have put $300,000 into the production of "Fiorella," largely because of interest in two young composers in whose careers she has taken a personal interest. She is said to spend $1000 a week getting some of their work broadcast over a radio circuit.

TUNIC STYLE

A crepe Elizabeth frock in aquamarine blue has a long tunic, ending in a pleated ruffle. The tunic is tucked vertically at the waistline to give it a somewhat form-fitting effect.

STRIPES MOVE

The smart new sports outfits move their decorative stripes from the sweater to the skirt. A plain yellow jumper and cardigan top, a yellow skirt with deep border of yellow, orange and dark brown stripes.

IMPORTANT SLEEVES
Negligees make a fetish of unusual sleeves. A Vionnet pink crepe satin one has wide flaring sleeves that dip in points like the skirt.

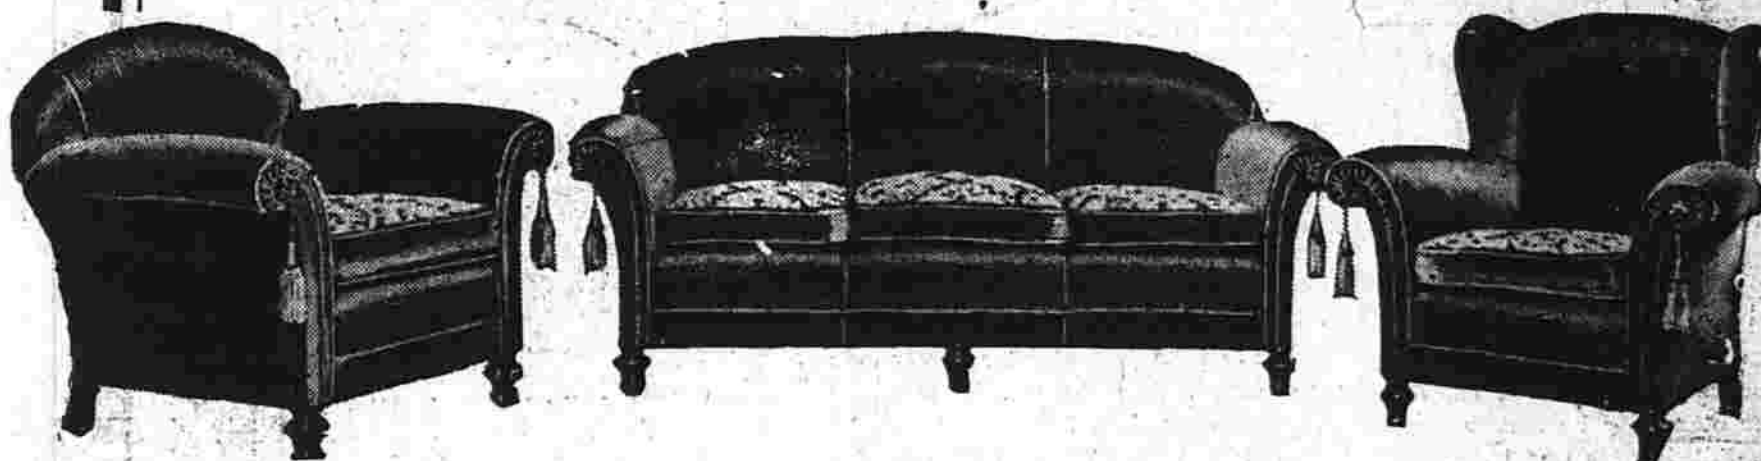

Marion Talley is quitting grand opera for the farm. Probably satisfying the ancient feminine desire for bargain-hunting.

HOW BABY SPECIALISTS TREAT CONSTIPATION

Constipation in babies and children is the cause of colic, bloating, skin disorders, etc. It weakens them, just as it does grown folks; makes them cross, feverish and fretful. But don't use grown folks' medicine with them, baby specialists advise. Ninety per cent of them recommend just one preparation for constipation, colds and other ills of babies and children. They say Fletcher's Castoria. Millions of mothers have proved its merit during thirty years of use. Castoria is purely-vegetable, harmless and pleasant-tasting. Genuine Castoria always bears the Fletcher signature. Avoid imitations.

MORE THOMAS

If Senator Heflin were not making a good living as a statesman and a lecturer he would have no trouble in maintaining himself as a writer of fiction of a certain type. He is gifted with an imagination as lively as it is novel, and in the course of a speech in the Senate the other day he demonstrated its possibilities. He had just finished roasting Senator Hiram Bingham, of this state, saying: "He is already in bad with the patriotic citizens of his own state. I have received hundreds of letters from his state criticizing the stand he took here once before when Roman activities were being discussed here by me—and then he undertook to suppress free speech in this body. His stand then may have had something to do with inspiring the attack on me at Brockton; I do not know." And then the Alabama senator proceeded to another flight of imagination much more picturesque than the one concerning the hundreds of letters.

"I believe, and others believe," he declared, "that the same group murdered Carranza, the Mexican aviator, who started to fly back from New York and they did not give him an escort. He went out by himself on Sunday night right after his meal, and up there in the air somewhere he became befuddled and incapacitated under the influence of whatever they gave him, and he fell down and was killed. He was killed on the 12th of July and Oregon was murdered on the 17th, part of the same Roman program for the war now raging in Mexico. There you are! Carranza was going back to organize a great aviation corps to help Oregon and Calles to maintain constitutional government. They said, 'If you kill this fellow Carranza, and do it cleverly, people will say he was killed in a storm.'" Etc.

We submit that this is good stuff for the newspaper thriller. In order to make it more binding Heflin might have put the Weather Bureau into the conspiracy and had it provide the storm just to thicken the plot.

If the Senate didn't have something else to do with its time Heflin would be worthy his salary. He is good fun.

DISARMAMENT

The rather sensational proposal made by Hugh Gibson at Geneva for a bona fide naval disarmament agreement has received its round of applause and already the echoes have died out. It hasn't even been necessary for the D. A. R. to attack the proposal as treasonable. The clangor of the riveters resounds through our shipyards as the building of our fleet of cruisers begins, and France and Italy are already disputing as to whether the latter is entitled to naval parity with the former.

There is not much honesty in the world when it comes to professions of anxiety to reduce navies. Such professions are useful to the various maritime nations, including our own, in order to keep the people content to carry the tax burden that navies represent. Each admiralty can always blame the other fellow for the necessity of squandering the people's wealth on warships and warship personnel. Ours does. So do all the rest. Otherwise the proposals are just words.

If some day one great naval power takes its courage in its hands and scraps its fleets, and for a period of years gets along without disaster resulting from its lack of fighting strength at sea, then the rest of the nations may be compelled by their own people to likewise scrap their navies. Possibly America, in her inherent strength and because of her specially favored position, may some day decide to take that chance. But it will not be for a long time. There are too many navy jingoes, too few people who have any real faith in their nation's invincibility and too little awareness that warships are useless junk for purposes of war.

The United States, no more than any other nation, is willing to ignore the imaginary danger of letting the other fellow have the edge in sea power. And so long as she hasn't the courage to go unarmed herself, her proposals of disarmament will be met, like those of any other gun toter, with polite smiles and nods of heads, but no action.

TOO BIG, ANYHOW

It seems to be taken for granted by practically all the political sharps in New York City that the elevation of John F. Curry to the headship of Tammany Hall insures Jimmy Walker another term as mayor.

Well, New York is too big, anyhow. It has too many people and too much money is centered there. Too much of the country's business is done in one spot. The town drinks more than a due share of the nation's liquor. It was high time that something happened to put a crimp in the seemingly never-ending growth of the big city. Another term of Jimmy Walker as mayor ought to do it, especially with a Walker-made boss sitting in Tammany Hall as its leader.

What Jimmy's administration has done to the taxpayers has been no more than they could stand—but it has been just about all they could stand. And Jimmy, in this first administration, has been only feeling his way. With a former "right-hand man" of the late Boss Charley Murphy at the head of "the hall" and with the jocund Jimmy amusing the cash customers while the boys relieve them of their change, taxes ought to reach a point during the four years following next New Year's day, where industries, businesses and private citizens will begin a stampede out of the metropolis in order to save themselves from bankruptcy.

About the only business that it will be profitable to carry on in New York presently, if public expenditures continue to mount as they have during the Walker regime, will be the retail automobile business—for those agencies, at least, whose product tickles the fancy of Mayor Jimmy. Selling the city automobiles for the mayor to ride in has become one of the foremost activities of the metropolis.

"NEW ENGLAND"

It would be ungracious to speak in anything but the highest terms of the enterprise of the Boston Chamber of Commerce in sending a trainload of its brightest and best on a month's land cruise of the United States with a view to "selling" New England (they are still using that abominable term in Boston) to the West, the South and the Midlands. They are in for a tough time, those voyagers, with their thousands and thousands of miles of railroad travel and dining car meals and formal banquets and handshaking and speechmaking and palavering and soft-soaping, and they will come back all tired out. And we honor them for their courage. But we can't help wishing that before they started, this noble trainload, some of them had taken the trouble to drive their automobiles over the line into Connecticut and Rhode Island just a few times—enough to get acquainted with the general geography and possibly with the names of a few towns in these sister states. Because if, in "selling" New England to the West, the South and the Midlands, they convey the slightest idea that there are such states as Connecticut and Rhode Island, we shall be very much surprised. The Boston idea of New England is that it contains four states, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts—there-she-stands. It has been that way for two hundred years. Sadly we expect it will be that way for two hundred years more.

WATCH AND WARD

A novel written by a Hartford woman, since dead, has been ordered off the book stands in Boston by, it would appear, the Watch and Ward Society, pestiferous self-appointed regulator of the morals of that city. While more or less familiar, like pretty much everybody else, with the activities of this nuisance organization, we did not know that matters had arrived at a point where the simple mandate of the agent of the society was sufficient to put any book, of which he or his group disapproved, under ban. The Watch and Ward Society used at least to go through the formality of complaining to the police or the district attorney. Now, apparently, it is giving its orders direct.

It would be interesting to follow the course of events should some publisher or combination of publishers proceed in the federal courts against the Watch and Ward Society for conspiracy in constraint of trade, obstruction of interstate

CALF PASTURE BEACH
South Norwalk has a municipal bathing resort that rejoices in the name of Calf Pasture Beach. They are proposing to change it. Why bother? Time was, say along about the tottering years of the Victorian era, when the word "calf" in the name of a bathing beach would have given the more daring of the newspaper funny men opportunity for lots of desperately daring jokes, embarrassing to the perfect ladies of the period. But that sort of wise cracks would be a total loss to the present generation. Besides, what's the matter with Calf Pasture? Except that perhaps it might give rise to a vague notion that that's where the pasteurized milk comes from?

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington, April 26.—Many leaders of American business will gather here at the end of this month to discuss a wide range of problems. These men concede an existing national prosperity, but so numerous and perplexing are the questions which they will undertake to thresh out that the program reveals deep interest, and in some cases anxiety, about the future of the nation's economic structure. The annual meeting of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce begins April 29. It will devote special sections of discussion to the marketing of agricultural products, trade practices, manufacturing problems, transportation, water power, conservation of natural resource raw materials, modern city planning and financing, future of mass merchandising, principles of tariff legislation, business finance and the credit system, safety of life and property, city traffic and trade areas and employer-employee relations. Will Reveal Business View. The chamber will pass resolutions on most of these subjects which may or may not have some important effect on the future, but which may be taken as expressing the preponderant sentiment of American business men and will be handed on as such to the innumerable local chambers of commerce over the country. The two main matters scheduled for action by the present special session of Congress are on the chamber's agenda, the tariff and co-operative marketing such as is expected to be the principal factor in the farm relief act. The chamber will consider the question of federal and state aid for development of co-operative marketing along with other phases of the co-operative system. It will consider the tariff as regards its effect on agricultural prices, the extent to which it has succeeded or failed in maintaining industrial stability, limitations of its present readjustment. Likely effects of its increase on American export trade, its flexible provisions and a dozen other related questions. Great emphasis will be placed on consideration of mass production and the problems which it has created, especially in respect to mass merchandising and employment. Selling Costs Go Up. Mass production goes right on putting men out of productive industry and forcing them into the distribution system. The theory is that new occupations in the distribution system have been sufficient to absorb the surplus labor from the factories. At the same time distribution costs have increased. Mass distribution hasn't kept up with mass production. It costs about as much to sell a pair of shoes or a suit of clothes as it does to make them.

Some business men look forward to the day when nearly everything will be bought through vending machines. They think that, in a small way, a definite trend in that direction has already begun. In its round table on employer-employee relations will take up such questions as: What are sound policies with regard to maximum age limits for initial employment? What about employment of married women? How can physically handicapped workers be given a satisfactory employment? Is the extent of displacement sufficient at present to cause a difficult employment problem? What are special problems created by displacement of highly skilled and specialized workers? Will a reduction of daily or weekly hours of labor in place of lay-off ameliorate the effects of displacement? Plenty of attention will be accorded that last question. Many economists believe, for instance, that the five-day week will become almost universal; that with increased machine efficiency there isn't enough necessary work to go around on the six-day basis. Henry Ford long ago instituted the five-day week. Others have followed him and it is understood that the big General Electric Co. is contemplating it.

AT THE CIRCLE
"Fancy Baggage"—"Sunset Pass" Prior to closing down for the summer season, the Circle theater, Manchester's cozy playhouse, offers a most attractive double feature program for this Saturday and Sunday. The first feature will be "Fancy Baggage," a Warner Brothers' special production starring Audrey Ferris, Wallace MacDonald and Myrna Loy. "Fancy Baggage" is a sparkling story of rum-runners, love thefts, beautiful girls and a million dollar robbery. Most of the action takes place on a pleasure yacht and furnishes the story a splendid locale for the laughter and thrills that are prominent throughout. Besides the three leading players, the cast also includes such well-known favorites as Barr Melatosh, Eddie Gribbon, Hallam Cooley, George Fawcett and Edmund Brees. John Adolf directed. The companion-feature is "Sunset Pass," Paramount's vivid picture of the western life of Zane Grey's western story which ran serially in the American Magazine. Jack Holt, popular western actor, has the stellar role. The usual choice selection of snappy short subjects will round out the program.

"Kid Gloves", now playing at the State theater, is Warner Brothers' latest Vitaphone talking picture to feature that sterling actor, Conrad Nagel, who plays opposite, Conrad Edick.

The story is from the fertile pen of Fred Myton. Robert Lord did the scenario and the direction is by Ray Taylor. "Kid Gloves" is a rattling underworld drama showing Nagel as "Kid Gloves" Smith, hijacker and gunman. He is in the hottest of a gun battle with members of a rival gang, when a taxi stops in the midst of the fracas.

In addition to this feature, two acts of Vitaphone vaudeville have also been placed on an important part of the bill. The first presentation features Green's Flapperettes, while the second stars Frank Orth, popular stage comedian.

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

MILDRED LAWRENCE meets STEPHEN ARMITAGE when he rescues her fox fur from a thief. Their friendship grows until PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of Mildred's employer, tries to lure him away from her. HUCK CONNOR becomes infatuated with Pamela and she plays both men. Her brother, HAROLD, is in love with Mildred, who tries to keep him from gambling with Huck's crowd.

When Stephen continues seeing Mildred, Pamela cables her father to discharge her. Harold tries to prevent this but fails. Pamela succeeds in turning Stephen against Mildred and the latter faces dreary days in search of work. Then Pamela tries to break with Huck and when he objects tells him she and Stephen are engaged. She begs Stephen to confirm the engagement.

Huck commands Harold to prevent Pamela's marriage under fear of exposure concerning a forged check. Harold says he can't force Pamela so Huck plans to dispose of Stephen. He has one of his gang frame Stephen for stealing one of his firm's diamonds. The police, and the detective thinks the evidence against him sufficient when he finds Stephen apparently giving a big party that night to announce his engagement to Pamela.

Harold confesses enough to Mildred to reveal to her that Stephen is in danger of Huck's scheming. In desperation she decides to make an effort to save him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Mildred was still without a position. She was free to seek work at any time, but household checks kept her at home throughout the morning. And by afternoon, when she went to the Judson and asked for him, it was too late. He was out of town, she was told. No, he had not said when he would return.

Huck had gone to a town a few miles up the Hudson river where a retired gangster kept a convenient hideaway camouflaged as a chicken farm. He had business with the proprietor, one Ras Poberlin.

On her way from the hotel Mildred passed the Mettle Agency, and though she would not allow her steps to slow she could not keep from glancing through the plate-glass window, hoping for a glimpse of Stephen.

Naturally she did not see him as he was even then headed for J. B.'s place under Lefty Flint's main direction.

Mildred told herself it was better not to see him, but as she hurried on she was conscious of a keen disappointment. Her heart ached at the sight of Stephen and even her pride, great as it was, could not moderate the desire.

There were other things besides thoughts of Stephen to occupy her mind, however, and Mildred was too conscientious to neglect them. She must make a few calls where it was possible she might obtain a position?

The outlook at home was becoming gloomy. The small income derived from a cautious investment of the insurance money her father had left was insufficient to meet the bills.

"I must have a job," Mildred told herself worriedly. "If we fall behind with the rent and get into debt there won't be even so much as a trip to Coney Island on Sundays for our vacation this summer."

She could not help feeling bitter toward Pamela at that moment. Once on a hot, humid day, she had been sent to the Judson boat where it was anchored in the breeze-swept Sound to do some work for the owner. It had been Paradise to her luxury-starved senses.

The unexpected warmth of the present day brought it back to her mind. Well, Stephen had tasted of that luxury. She didn't blame him so much . . . but, of course, he was in love with Pamela, in spite of her brutal selfishness.

Mildred could picture her curled up on her lacy pillows, commanding that even her slightest whim be satisfied. "While I walk the streets looking for work," was Mildred's bitter reflection. The injustice of it all smarted. She was efficient, capable, but on a parasitic creature's wish she had been treated as though her worth in the world were of no more account than the value of a reflection on a mirror.

Her resentment clung as the day wore away and she was still numbered among the unemployed. She knew that it might be weeks yet before she found a position. Chance was such a large element in this matter in New York. People missed big opportunities by a hat's breadth, others stumbled upon them when they were not wanted.

Mildred was genuinely worried. Her mother noted her downcast expression when she returned home and made her lie down a few minutes before dinner.

Mildred had had to tell her mother that she'd lost her position at the Judson Hotel but she did not reveal her concern for the immediate future.

It was not just this alone that troubled her, her mother knew, for Connie had told her of Stephen's engagement to Pamela.

Mildred came out to the kitchen in time to broil the hamburger cakes and fix the salad. Connie was cutting up some cold boiled potatoes. "How much butter?" she asked, when she went to the cupboard for a frying pan.

"Butter!" her mother exclaimed. "Use the fat drippings. And you needn't have peeled the potatoes. The skin is healthful when its nice and clean."

Connie groaned. "You can bet I'm going to marry a big butter-and-egg man," she said determinedly. "I hate fat drippings."

He got up, pressed his face to the bars and called out loudly for the turnkey.

Ordinarily Mildred would have given her a little sisterly advice after such a remark, but tonight the older girl was preoccupied and silent.

Connie decided not to pester her, but before she fell asleep that night she was aware that Mildred was crying soundlessly, and it was all she could do to keep from blurring out her contempt for Stephen.

For Stephen it was a night of pleasure unshadowed by any omen of what awaited him on the morrow.

It was daybreak when he unlocked his door and let himself into his room.

He hurried to undress and get some sleep before going to the office, but sleep would not come to him. Now that he was alone his troubles hurried like a flock of vultures to pick at his peace.

Pam in a flat! Pam in a kitchen apron! Pam in the balcony at the theater! Pam in the subway! He couldn't see it. But hang it all, she knew he'd have to. He couldn't expect her to go on living in what would, to her, be abject poverty.

What a girl she was! She certainly could put life into a party. Not that her friends were dull, but Pam led them all. She'd been as sparkling and as gay, when he took her home as when they first reached Margola's party.

He dozed off finally, and with the thought in his mind that he was a lucky devil to be loved by a girl like Pam.

It seemed only a moment before his alarm clock woke him with its inconsiderate summons.

He could get off some letters to certain of his prospects who needed a reminder of their promise to come in and inspect the new models.

Mr. Mettle came in late. He greeted Stephen with a sour face and a skimp nod.

Stephen worked like a Trojan that morning, using his utmost selling powers on all his potential buyers who came within sound of his voice.

He saw Carl Short come in some time after 11 and go directly to Mr. Mettle's private office. The investigator was closed there with the manager for about 15 minutes before Stephen was sent for.

Fresh trouble was in the air. Stephen knew as soon as he opened the door and faced the desk that on the desk between them lay a .32 caliber revolver, a large roll of bills and a bunch of keys in a leather key holder.

Stephen did not at first see the keys. His eyes were fastened upon the gun.

"Ever see it before?" Short asked dryly. Mr. Mettle said nothing. His mouth was like a crack of ice, drawn sharply across his face as it was.

Stephen shook his head. "No," he said.

"Or this?" Short picked up the roll of bills.

Stephen looked puzzled. Again he shook his head.

"And I suppose you never set your eyes on these before either?" Short rasped, taking the keys from the table and holding them out on the palm of his hand under Stephen's astonished gaze.

"H'm," Mr. Mettle muttered: "guess you couldn't deny it, because I saw when you snapped on the keys to the car you stole."

Stephen whirled on him. "Stole?" he repeated blankly.

"That's right, Armitage," Short interjected crisply; "we've got the goods on you."

"Like hell you have," Stephen retorted, losing control of his temper. "What kind of a setup is this? I never saw that gun or that roll before in my life. I don't know where you got the keys, unless you've caught the guy who stole . . ."

Short assured him. "The keys were found in your room this morning. The gun and the money, too. That's enough to hold you."

Stephen stared at him, pop-eyed. "Not in my room," he began but Short cut him off again.

"There's no argument," he said curtly; "the hotel manager made the search with us. I guess you're through helping crooks to rob your friends. Better come along quietly before the men outside get wise."

A shiver ran over Stephen's body as it was borne in upon him that he was under arrest. Under arrest! He thought Stephen Armitage. He couldn't get it.

Turning for aid to Mr. Mettle, he saw his employer wave his hand with an outward, finishing gesture that did not need words to convey its meaning. Nevertheless Mr. Mettle barked out an order to Short to "take him away. Get him out of here."

And Stephen was "taken away." Later he found himself booked at the nearest police station on a double charge of possessing a firearm without a license and grand larceny.

"Being unable to provide bail, he was booked up. The help of professional bondsmen was not available; neither would he wire to his family in Indiana for aid.

But a lawyer; he'd have to have a lawyer. Someone had to get him out of there. He paced up and down his cell, vainly figuring how and where he could raise the money for a lawyer's fee.

And Pamela! God, how was he going to let her know about this! That was Stephen's darkest moment. The disgrace of his position swept over him like a crushing weight. He dropped to the cot and buried his face in his hands.

It was some time before he was able to think rationally. Then it came to him that he could communicate with Harold, ask her brother to send Pamela to him. He'd have to see her, have to know that she'd believe in his innocence.

He got up, pressed his face to the bars and called out loudly for the turnkey.

Lounging in the Mode

A PARISIAN pajama lounging suit dots its way to chic this spring, sader popu- lar is the polka dot theme. An original suit from Decollet-Bear subtly intro- duces the motif in a styling manner. Two shades of pink, the most feminine color in the world after all, contrast with black satin in this lounging suit. The tapering black trousers are devoid of any trim. They are lightened considerably by the pink slippers worn with them. The coat of the paler shade of pink satin carries the trimming for the whole suit. A deeper pink joins both gold and silver dots to richly en- broider the border to the coat and cuffs that extend almost to the elbow. Stripes of gold and silver, on black, edge it. The gleaming coat is tailored very smartly, with a simple shawl collar.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER GIVEN MISS SPERBER

A miscellaneous shower, in honor of Miss Gertrude Sperber of Pearl street, was held at the home of Miss Madeline Osella, last night, by a party of Miss Sperber's fellow workers of the winding and spooling department in the Old Mill. The bride-elect received many gifts from those present. Refreshments were served and an enjoyable evening was spent in playing games and dancing. Miss Sperber will be married soon to Eric L. Anderson of Darling street, East Hartford.

YOUR CHILDREN by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

The smallest girl was "way be- inferiority. But worst of all is her assurance that everyone is going to wait for her.

"Goodness alive!" said her older sister impatiently. "I'll have to wait for Clara May again. Wait for me, girls."

"Oh, come on, she's a nuisance," spoke up a little freckle-faced red-head, who looked as strong as a young pony, and said that she was a second sister to tell that she was the leader of this young mob of future co-eds.

"I know she is," and the older sister stamped with outraged impatience. "Aw, come on, slow-poke! Run, can't you! I'll bet we've missed half the funny now. It's after two."

An Unkind Welcome. They barely waited for Clara May to catch up, when they tore off again. The little girl, out of breath, had to stop a minute. Then she walked the rest of the way alone, only to be greeted again by the indignant crowd in the lobby of the movie theater.

"Say, I'm going to tell Mother I'm sick and tired of you tagging me everywhere I go."

"I should say so. I don't have to drag my kid brother around," was the warning support of a sympathetic friend.

The movie was crowded. There were no five seats together. The girls had to sit two and two and one. Clara May was the one.

It was always thus. For instance, Clara May was "it" half the time because she couldn't find hiding holes when they played I-spy. When she did, she couldn't reach base first if she was spotted, because she couldn't run fast enough.

When they took walks, Clara May could neither crawl under nor climb fences. The rescue league had to perform its usual rites.

She wouldn't belong. In other words, the poor little soul just rated about 25 per cent with her sister's older crowd because her mother insisted that she tag along.

She is decidedly getting to be an also-ran. And she is fast absorbing the fact that not only is she not quite as important as other people, but she needn't even try to make the grade because she can't. She's branded as a no-account, but she doesn't mind being thus marked. She is very—complacent about her

Hints on How to Keep Well by World-Famous Authority

CUTTING THE HAIR WON'T IMPAIR ONE'S STRENGTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

It is remarkable that the superstition that cutting the hair will diminish the strength and the growth of a child has persisted among mankind from the earliest times.

Everyone knows the legend of Samson and Delilah and how the giant Hebrew warrior was finally overcome by the Philistines after the young woman to whose blandishments he had succumbed arranged to cut away his curly locks.

That story in one form or another is to be found among the fables of many aboriginal tribes today. The truth of the matter is that such a conception arises only in ignorance.

The hair is merely a hornified growth of tissue, the same as the skin. Hair calls for within the skin and projects this growth to the exterior. Obviously, removal of the hair can have little, if anything, to do with the general strength of the body.

The most simple and direct evidence of this is the fact that pugilists usually have their hair cut before engaging in a major contest and that convicts have their hair cut regularly before beginning their stone. The hair is cut, however, in the latter case to prevent the development of insects and vermin not infrequently associated with the criminal class.

Other curious old superstitions also dating back to the infancy of the race, have to do with children wetting the bed. They are, in almost every instance, symbolical magic. Thus they have to do with dreams of running water, of Niagara Falls, of flowing streams and similar conceptions.

The notion that playing with matches or fire will lead inevitably to an involuntary action of the child's bladder during sleep is, no doubt, related to the waking dreams of bygone days. This idea is not entirely without scientific foundation, since the Freudian interpretation of dreams provides that one obtains in dreams the things that he wishes for in the waking state and that for this reason the inhibition of these wishes or their suppression, since they are frequently opposed to normal standards of conduct, cause the dream to be the opposite of the thing actually desired.

Anyone with a logical mind should therefore be able to see the relationship between playing with fire and the condition of failure of bladder control that physicians call enuresis nocturna.

SOLO HONEYMOON

New York, April 26.—Natalie Price Guggenheim Gorman, 18-year-old heiress to millions who was recently wed to Thomas M. Gorman, young New York realtor, sailed on a belated honeymoon to Europe early today—minus her husband.

The bride two weeks was alone, romantically speaking, when she boarded the Berengaria for a six months visit to England and the Continent, although her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond A. Guggenheim, prominent in social circles, accompanied her.

Her handsome bridegroom, son of a railroad station master, did not board the Berengaria for a wife which will be ready when the Guggenheims return.

Gorman, explained he did not board the Berengaria to bid his wife au revoir because he didn't want Natalie to be embarrassed by newspaper reporters.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLEN SUNNER

The only funny thing about it is that somebody didn't think of it before. But now there's a book-of-the-month club for children. A on-little-Willie's baptism saying all the words with just letters of the alphabet.

Full-page ads inform all the parents of the world something to the effect that they have not done their duty to the child merely by feeding it spinach, keeping its nose wiped and seeing that its stockings are darned. They are warned that the child's spiritual life, its whole future, dependent upon the right start it gets in childhood, is at stake.

Boy Scout Court of Honor will be held tonight at the School Street Rec. at 7:30 o'clock with two boys coming up for Eagle. Every Scout should be on hand to congratulate them.

Troop 9 is challenging other troops to a baseball series. What say?

We notice that Troop 2, 3 and 6 have no Scout News this week.

Continuation of this column depends on whether or not scribes will get their write-ups into the office by Thursday noon. This does not mean Thursday night as most scribes seem to think, but Thursday noon.

Only one more Court of Honor remains until the summer months when it is suspended until September.

Plans are being made for an outdoor field meet in June.

The Scoutmaster's Association will meet next week Thursday at the School Street Rec.

Troop 1

The meeting was opened Monday with the Scout sign and Oath. For a half hour games were played. After that for the next three quarters of an hour test passing and work was done by the scouts under the direction of the patrol leader of each patrol. During this time Scoutmaster Dean, Mr. Allan, Cal Davidson and members of the Troop committee held a meeting. The troop meeting was closed early on account of this, with the Scout sign and Oath.

The Eagle patrol did not put on their stunt because of bad weather but will put it on next Monday.

Six boys will get merit badges next Friday at the Court of Honor.

Troop 4

Troop 4 opened its meeting at 7:30 o'clock with 21 Scouts and recruits present. Dues were collected and the roll called. The Scout oath and Laws were repeated with one Scout acting as leader.

A circle was formed and Mr. Clarke spoke on the last three Scout Laws with a general review following.

Bugler Weir was given a Rexcraft bugle to practice on. A line was then formed and we hiked to Mount Nebo for the sole purpose of having some fun. The Morse code was sent to a few Scouts by use of a flashlight. "Double thirty" was played with Scoutmaster Crawshaw being "it." One band of Scouts managed to keep away for a considerable length of time. A line was then formed and the new bugle was tried out.

When the last Scout was caught Bugler Weir played Taps while the Scouts bowed their heads, after which the troop was dismissed.

Troop 4 will hold a hike to an unknown destination starting at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Bring grub and also second and first-class cooking articles if you have not already passed these particular tests.

Troop 5

Troop 5 held its regular meeting Wednesday evening opening promptly at 7 o'clock, with Herman Johnson in charge. After the usual ceremony and inspection a marching drill was held. A new game called "The Tractor" was played which was very interesting to the younger boys.

Gunnar Johnson and "Casey" Magnuson were the winners in this game.

Our instruction period was very active the older boys proving a great help in this capacity. Mr. Dean field executive, was a visitor and talked to the boys, presenting such pins and data as was necessary.

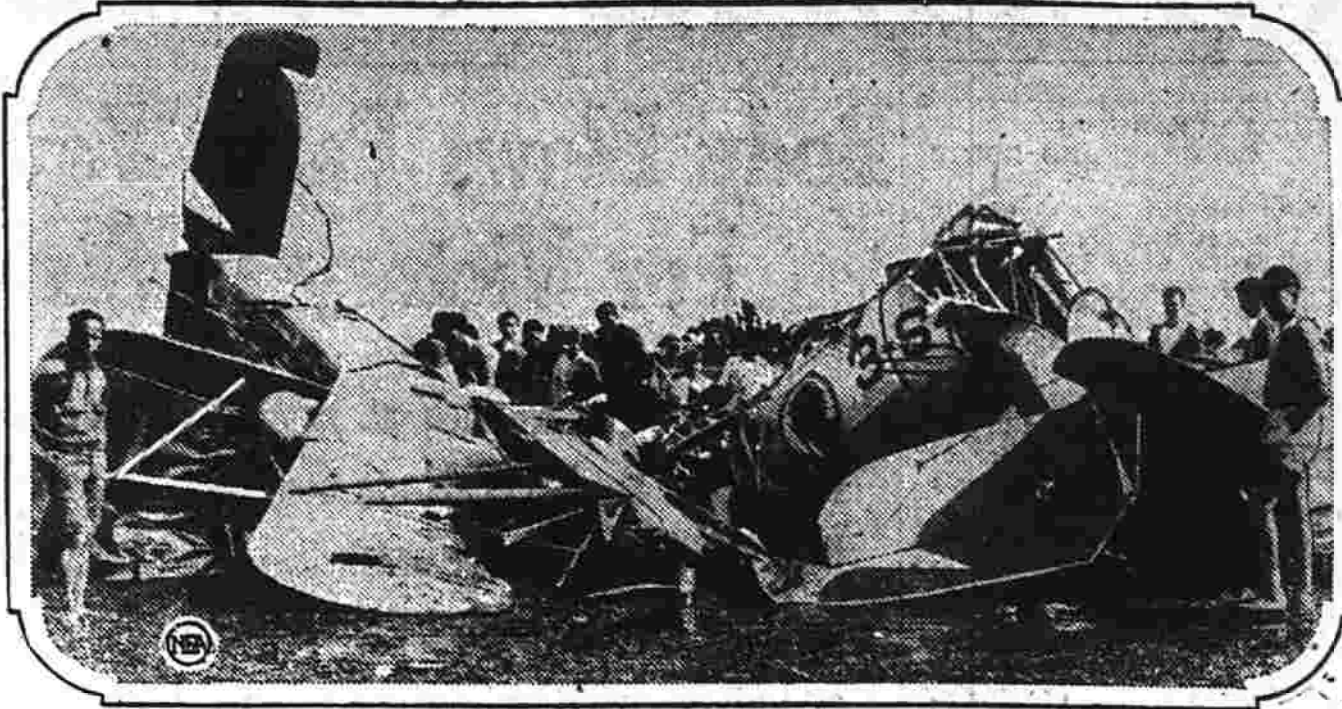

This period was followed by a potato race which caused a great deal of excitement on both sides. The winner will be determined next week. Come early and avoid the rush. The meeting next week will be held at the cabin. All Scouts are to be present at the church at 7:15 o'clock and transportation will be provided. There will be no hike on Saturday as the troop committee and another committee will meet at the cabin for discussion. The meeting closed by repeating the Scout Oath and Laws. A few more recruits are needed in the troop. Come on boys, let's go get some.

Troop 9

Troop 9 held a meeting Tuesday evening at the Community Club with an attendance of 24. After the formal opening, the patrols were sent to their corners to make their choice for a baseball captain and manager, and also for a Quartermaster, whose duties will be to keep a careful check on troop supplies. When the troop re-assembled, votes on the nominations were made.

John Brannick was elected Quartermaster, Fred Lauritzen, captain and Richard Tunsky, manager of baseball. It was decided to form a team and to challenge every troop in town. Let's hear an answer from some others in Manchester! Especially Troop 1. An instruction and test passing period was next held under the direction of Assistant-Scoutmaster Aborn and the Patrol Leaders.

Scoutmaster Smith and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster George Stiles, of Troop 1, took five boys who passed their second class tests and gave them a thorough examination in all their tests passed to date. In this examination, Scout Tunsky of the Eagles, passed signalling, thus completing his second class tests, as did Scout Don Harrington, who passed First Aid. This makes them the third and fourth Scouts to become second class scouts. Many of the boys practiced signalling.

Next, the boys pulled their chairs in a circle and the accounts of Charles Noveck and John Brannick on their 14 mile hike were read. The Scouts got a big kick out of some of the adventures while looking for the mysterious "Indian Landmark." Incidentally, the landmark was not found.

As a game period, an elimination contest to determine the champion Indian wrestler of the Troop was held. Fred Lauritzen won the heavyweight championship and Charles Noveck the lightweight. Troop was then dismissed with repeating of the Scout Oath. A patrol leaders meeting was held directly afterwards.

Come on, you other troops, let's hear an answer to our challenge for a baseball series. Address your letters to Richard Tunsky, of Buckland.

BOOTH'S CAPTURE

Sixty-four years ago today John Wilkins Booth, assassin of President Lincoln, was trapped by soldiers in a burning barn near Bowling Green, Va., and shot and killed when he attempted to leap from the hayloft and escape. With Booth was the youthful Herold, who was captured and later executed for his part in the conspiracy.

The capture and fatal shooting brought to an end a frenzied nation-wide search for the assassin, which began 11 days before, when Booth shot Lincoln in Ford's Theater, Washington.

Many fanciful rumors have been spread to the effect that the man shot was not Booth, and that the latter made good his escape and lived to a ripe old age. These have been practically disregarded by historians, however, as pure fiction. Herold, a weak character, would not have gone to his death on the gallows without having disclosed the fact that the man responsible for his downfall was free.

According to official records, Booth's body was buried under one of the ground floor cells of the old penitentiary at Washington.

An organization of sixty years' experience gives you its word that there is no finer oil made than ATLANTIC

THE very first oil specially made for automobile engines was made by the Atlantic refineries. And these same refineries have given the world a constant succession of motor oil improvements ever since.

No organization in the land has devoted more study to this very important factor in the operation and up-keep of automobiles. None has behind it such a vast store of knowledge, research and experimentation.

You are most careful to buy a car of proved merit and experienced manufacture. Why not apply the same caution when buying the thing upon which its very life depends? . . . MOTOR OIL.

ATLANTIC possesses qualities for heat and evaporation resistance unsurpassed in any other paraffine base, or any other type, motor oil.

It consumes so slowly that oil-level worries between crankcase draining periods are reduced to a minimum.

New London Athletes no Match for Wigrenites; Locals Win All Ten Events With 10 Firsts, Six Seconds and Nine Thirds; Dowd, Johnson, Spencer and Five Freshmen in Limelight.

April's persistent rainy weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of Coach "Pete" Wigren and his Manchester High school track team which got off to a flying start in its opening meet of the season with Chapman Tech High of New London here yesterday. Manchester won by the overwhelming margin of 77 to 13, one of the largest scores compiled in the track history of the local school. The next meet on the schedule is set for a week from next Monday with West Hartford on the latter's field.

Rain fell off and on during the whole meet with the Whaling City school at the West Side playgrounds yesterday but, nevertheless, a fairly large crowd witnessed the events. Ten events were run off and Manchester won every one! The Wigrenites took ten firsts, six seconds and nine thirds compared to no firsts, four seconds and one third for New London. An idea of how one sided the competition was may be gleaned from the fact that no finals were held in any of the field events. Manchester placed all four men in the finals of the dashes. AMERICANS WIN OPENING RYDER CUP SKIRMISHES

Lead in Three of Four Foursomes at 18th Hole; Tie in Other.

By F. A. WRAY

Moortown, England, April 26.—Getting off to a flying start, two of the combinations of the American Ryder Cup team showed their heels to their British opponents at the end of their eighteen holes today. Showing perfect form and splendid versatility Leo Diegel of New Mexico, and Al Espinosa, of Chicago, were seven up on Audrey Boomer and George Duncan, captain of the British team, when the first half of their match was completed.

Johnny Farrell and Joe Turnesa, the first American combination to complete the first 18 had a much harder time with Archie Compton, and George Dunlop, Britishers, and Charles Whitcombe, but they nevertheless managed to turn the 18th hole, one up on their strong British opponents.

Gene Sarazen and Ed Dudley, of Los Angeles were all square with Abe Mitchell and Fred Robson when the foursome completed the 18th hole.

With the American team already leading in two of the first three foursomes to complete the first 18, Walter Hagen, captain of the team, and Johnny Golden, of Paterson, made it three out of four by leading Henry Cotton and E. R. Whitcombe, the elder of the two brothers by that name on the British team, two up at that point.

Paterson's better appeared to be the rule of the day. Compton and Charles Whitcombe negotiated the first nine holes in one under par, turning in a 35 while Farrell and Turnesa were taking 36.

The Americans squared the match on the tenth hole, however, when Whitcombe missed an easy putt, and then proceeded to dazzle the spectators by coming in on the second nine in 34, one under par, while the Britishers were taking 36. Their cards follow:

Body Blows Pave Way For Victory In Sixth

Hard Right to Pit of Stomach at End of Round Makes Providence Battler Unable to Continue; Was Close Bout Until Then; Boxing Instructing Makes Manchester Man Unconsciously "Pull" Punches; Shows General All-Around Ring Smartness But Needs More Fights Before Meeting Topnotchers.

BY TOM STOWE

A smashing right hand drive to the pit of the stomach which followed a series of stiff body punches, enabled Frankie Curcio to score a technical knockout victory over Johnny Busch of Providence at the end of the sixth round of their semi-final bout at Foot Guard Hall in Hartford last evening. Curcio dropped to the canvas just as the bell rang and after his seconds had worked over him for half a minute, Referee Frank Portelle was notified that the body pummeling which Curcio received had brought about severe internal pains making it impossible for Curcio to continue.

Busch showed himself a real smart fighter, especially defensively. He also packs a punch with plenty of sting in it but seemed to be "pulling" his punches up until the last two rounds. This probably was because he has gotten into the habit during his work as boxing instructor here. Physically Busch appears to be in splendid condition, though a bit drawn. The effects of his long layoff for active ring combat were evident and with a few more bouts under his belt, the Manchester man should make a more impressive showing.

Very Close Affair Up until the time of the telling blow to the stomach, the fight was a very even affair with neither man having any noticeable advantage. It gave Busch four rounds and Curcio two, but was perhaps a bit prejudiced. Referee Portelle gave three to each man and his scoring card gave the Manchester fighter the slim margin of one point. It totaled 27 to 26. Apparently, he was of the opinion that Busch was trailing on points when he launched his determined body attack that carried him over the barrier to victory in his first fight in this vicinity.

Curcio was guilty of hitting on the break several times and there were also a few low blows struck but they did no damage. An old but not a bad habit was opened and blood trickled down Frank's face quite freely. There appeared some danger that Curcio might open the cut sufficiently to warrant stopping the fight and apparently Busch realized this.

Changes His Tactics At any rate, the Manchester battler changed his tactics completely at the outset of the next round by launching a determined offense that slowly but surely weakened Curcio's defenses. Until this round, the fight had been a pretty tame affair from a standpoint of action. However, the last two rounds more than made up for the slow start.

Busch opened the fifth with a series of hard body punches and kept flaying his side with stiff punches during the infighting. Curcio was game as Busch so far as mixing-it-up was concerned and scored several times himself during the round. Before the bell, Busch caught Curcio with a hard right to the jaw and knocked his back against the ropes. It was Busch's round and the crowd began to take more interest. They sensed a possible curtailment of the fight which was scheduled to go eight rounds.

Body Blows Tell Frank opened the sixth with two hard lefts to the stomach which did the rougher work of the round. They however, served to spur the Providence fighter into a strong comeback. He caught Busch with a series of rights and lefts to the face that re-opened the cut over his eye again. He backed the Silk City boxer with the ropes with two body punches to the jaw and Busch appeared a bit weary. He came back strong, however, and launched a series of smashing body punches which culminated in a right drive to the pit of the stomach that dropped Curcio at the bell. Few expected he would not be able to come out at the start of the seventh.

The bout opened slowly with both men "feeling" each other out. Busch there was a fine defense and moved around quite sprightly for a man of his size. Aided by his long reach, he landed a neat left which he followed not often enough. He was although not often enough. He was open up a bit in the third round and for a while had the Providence boy back-peddling. Frank got over a hard right across that made Curcio flinch noticeably. The ensuing rounds which paved the way for the climax of the contest have already been explained.

Promoter Ed Hurley told the writer before the fight that Busch would get every co-operation possible in case he made a satisfactory showing. He said that in event of

MAY MATCH VILLA WITH BATTALINO

Herald Sports Writer Says He Would Give Bat More Trouble Than Many He Has Fought.

BY TOM STOWE

Pancho Villa of New Bedford, conqueror of the veteran "Chicks" Suggs of the same city, had no difficulty in decisively outpointing Nick Christy of Bristol in the star bout at Foot Guard Hall in Hartford last night. He won at least seven of the ten rounds.

Villa not only had the advantage in weight, height and reach, but in experience as well. And it was the latter, more than the other three combined, which proved too much for him to overcome. Christy plainly showed that he is not ready for a man of Villa's caliber. He was game to the final bell and finished with a flurry of rights in Villa's face but was hopelessly outclassed.

Christy deserves a lot of credit for having the nerve to face Villa at this stage in his professional career which only started a few months ago. His manager should have been more of the Hy Malley type; he should have brought Christy along by degrees the same as Malley is nursing Battalino. And, by the way, Battalino has faced lots of boxers who were no where near the equal of Villa. The New Bedford battler surely couldn't be regarded as a setup, were he matched with Battalino but the latter probably would win.

Mickey Flahive gave Joe Zotter a neat lesson in the art of boxing, winning their six round bout without much exertion. Flahive, however, showed considerable respect for Zotter's famous right, keeping out of its way throughout the encounter. When he left the ring, the smiling Flahive exclaimed, "Whew! He surely can sock!"

a victory for Busch he might seek to match him with Jack Kelley of Waterbury. However, Busch doesn't appear to be ready for a man of Kelley's caliber as yet. He said himself after the fight that he would engage in a couple of other bouts before agreeing to meet the Brass City slugger.

Pennock May Pitch Today For Yankees

By LES CONKLIN

New York, April 26.—The pennant stock of the world's champion New York Yankees may rise or fall sharply as the result of the outcome of their game with the Athletics in Philadelphia today. Manager Huggins promised Herb Pennock that if the weather is not too cold, he would be allowed to pitch his first game today since neuritis crippled his pitching arm last August.

If the star southpaw proves he has cured the ailment by beating the Mackmen, the Yankees probably will be installed strong favorites to win the flag again. He will have no easy task, for Lefty Grove is slated to oppose him.

Rain washed out all but two games yesterday. Detroit blanked Cleveland 5 to 0, and the St. Louis Browns tied the Athletics for first place by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 3 to 2.

The prospects of the Tigers were boosted considerably by the comeback of Emil Yde, the deceptive Dane, who toyed with the Cleveland batters. The toll southpaw enjoyed a phenomenal year but lost his stuff and wound up in the minors again. The Pirates, who need pitchers like nuts need salt, certainly could use him right now.

The veteran Sam Gray, again carrying the brunt of the pitching burden for the St. Louis Browns, chalked up his third straight victory of the season in beating Chicago.

TONY FAVORED

New York, April 26.—Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion, is an 8 to 5 favorite to defeat Sammy Dorfman, of New York, at Madison Square Garden tonight. Dorfman was substituted for Bud Taylor, Canzoneri's original opponent, when the Terre Haute veteran broke a thumb.

If Canzoneri is defeated, his bout with Andre Routsis, featherweight champion, in Chicago on March 7 may be called off as well as his meeting with Tod Morgan, Junior lightweight champion, in Chicago on June 7.

GOOD SINGER MUST KNOW PIANO, SAYS MISS GILES

Soloist on Beethoven Program Tuesday Night Says Complete Knowledge of Music Is Necessary.

Many singers are not musicians, according to Erva Giles, popular soprano of the National Broadcasting Company, who will appear as one of the assisting artists with the Beethoven Glee Club in its fourth annual concert in the High School Auditorium, at 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening. "Too many vocalists know nothing of the fundamentals of music," says Miss Giles, who is herself noted for her musicianship. It seems to me that every ambitious singer should study piano as well as voice, so that he can know the groundwork of his profession. For one thing, too many singers do not understand the difficulties of accompaniment." Miss Giles received her training in piano in Boston, and studied voices in New York City, both with noted teachers. She is the wife of Edward Morris, well-known New York publisher. Among the songs which she has introduced over the air prior to publication by her husband is "Little Yaller Dog," which has since become popular both as an encore on the concert stage and on the entertainment stage.

AND MILLER HUGGINS KNOWS.

Miller Huggins says the toughest problem facing a manager of a ball club in his pitching staff and the toughest detail is deciding when to change and when not to change pitchers in a game.

There Are Four Ways of Storing Furs

Which One Will You Choose?

(1) Your furrier may store your furs in his own refrigerated vaults on his premises. (2) He may send them to rented space in refrigerated vaults in another city. (3) He may store them in un-refrigerated rooms in his warehouse or store. (4) You may pack them away in moth balls in your own cedar chest or closet.

Furs Delivered in Manchester Same Day We Receive Order.

When you want your furs, you can get them in five minutes if you care to call at the Steiger Fur Vaults, 99 Pratt St. Or we will deliver them in Manchester the same day, we receive your written order and storage receipt. To store them you can bring them to the vaults, or to the store. We will call for them without extra charge if you will write or phone Hartford 2-4206.

Only the First Method Gives Complete Protection

Unless your furs are stored in your furrier's own refrigerated vaults, they may be attacked by moths and damaged by heat. And you will be delayed in getting them in the fall, because usually four or five days are necessary to get them if they are stored out of town. If you store them at Steiger's, they will be hung in our own vaults, where the temperature never rises above 28° F.

Steiger Vaults Open For Inspection 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Daily

Wherever you decide to store furs, ask your furrier to see the vaults. We will gladly show you our system—you can see how the coats are cleaned, then hung separately in our spotless frigid vaults. Call at the fourth floor, New Steiger Bldg., any business day between nine and six.

COMMITTEE APPROVES BROADCAST PAGEANT

The general committee in charge of advertising the Merchants' Week, May 4-11, held a meeting this morning at which Miss Lella Church submitted for approval a draft of the sketch which the committee commissioned her to write to be used for broadcast purposes over WTIC. After hearing an outline of the sketch which is in the form of a pageant, the committee was unanimous in its praise of the work.

The feature of the pageant is a May day in Manchester, England. The children are dancing around when an old sailor appears and offers to tell fortunes. He begins to describe a future Manchester in the land across the sea (America), telling of its many attractions and zoning on to tell of the meaning of the ship signs which decorate the boundaries of Manchester at various points. The pageant contains much music along with the talking scenes.

It will be submitted to WTIC this afternoon as the radio station is to supply the actors and other details. The date on which it will be presented will be announced shortly.

Reports have reached here from Germany that Schmeling will not box until his contract with his manager, Arthur Bulow, becomes void.

Hudkins won a close decision over De Vos here some time ago. AVERAGES .347 IN 15 YEARS. Babe Ruth has been a big league player for 15 seasons and has an average batting mark of .347 for this period.

HARTFORD POWER PLANT TO BE STATE'S BIGGEST

New Unit Will Make South Meadows Plant Twice Its Present Capacity.

The steam generating capacity in regular operation by the Hartford Electric Light Company-Connecticut Power company system will be doubled by the installation of new equipment at the Hartford company's South Meadows station this year according to a history of the Hartford Electric Light Company and Connecticut Power company by Payson Jones, editor of The Financial Survey, in the April number of that magazine published today.

The State's Great Power, writes Mr. Jones, "when a new 40,000-kilowatt turbogenerator unit will be installed, exactly doubling the station's non-mercury turbine capacity and increasing its total generating capacity from 50,000-kw. to 90,000-kw., or 120,000 horsepower. Present equipment consists of two 20,000-kw. units and one 10,000-kw. mercury unit. "The new machine, by far the largest yet installed anywhere in Connecticut, is being manufactured at the Schenectady Works of the General Electric company, where the world's first mercury turbine unit, now installed at South Meadows, was turned out. The additional capacity will rate the Hartford Station as the major source of the steam energy between Providence and New York, a position it held until the building of Devon on the lower Housatonic in 1924.

"Twenty-six times as large in capacity as Hartford's first steam turbine unit—which was also the first installed in the United States—the new 40,000-kw. unit almost doubles the working steam capacity of the entire Hartford Electric Light-Connecticut Power system. Dutch Point may proudly list a capacity of 36,000-kw. but its position is actually the humble one of a reserve maintained for emergency use when steam is required. South Meadows carries the load. All other system generating facilities are fuelled by water, the old steam stations having been dismantled in favor of superpower supply generators at tide-water. With its new equipment South Meadows will rank as the leading steam producer in the Connecticut Valley Power Exchange.

"Installation of this new capacity indicates above all else that the engineers of the Hartford Electric Light Company, and they include several of the ablest in their profession, foresee a considerably broadened market for power in the next few years, and that the company's executive management is determined to handle that situation in thoroughgoing fashion."

The Financial Survey history is illustrated by Walter Edward Blythe, portraits of Samuel Ferguson, president of the Electric Light and Connecticut Power companies and Austin C. Dunham, founder and for thirty years president of the company. Edward P. Lawton, Jr., the magazine's contributing engineer, provided new maps of the dual system and of the Connecticut Valley Power Exchange, a history of which is included in the general survey.

Complete satisfaction with Pal Page's work as a football coach is had by Indians. They signed him to a three-year contract recently.

GAS BUGGIES—Alec's Penalty

Dear Mr. Smart:
I'm glad I found out about you before it was too late. How could you be so deceitful? In one breath you tell me how much you care for me and in the next you say you can't come to my party because you are too busy.

HARTFORD POWER PLANT TO BE STATE'S BIGGEST

New Unit Will Make South Meadows Plant Twice Its Present Capacity.

The steam generating capacity in regular operation by the Hartford Electric Light Company-Connecticut Power company system will be doubled by the installation of new equipment at the Hartford company's South Meadows station this year according to a history of the Hartford Electric Light company and Connecticut Power company by Payson Jones, editor of The Financial Survey, in the April number of that magazine published today.

"South Meadows will become Connecticut's premier steam-electric generating station in August," writes Mr. Jones, "when a new 40,000-kilowatt turbo-generator unit will be installed, exactly doubling the station's non-mercury turbine capacity and increasing its total generating capacity from 50,000 kw. to 90,000 kw., or 120,000 horsepower. Present equipment consists of two 20,000-kw. units and one 10,000-kw. mercury unit. The new machine, by far the largest yet installed anywhere in Connecticut, is being manufactured at the Schenectady Works of the General Electric company where the world's first mercury turbine unit, now installed at South Meadows, was turned out. The additional capacity will rate the Hartford Station as the major source of steam energy between Providence and New York, a position it held from its initial operation in 1921 until the building of Devon on the lower Housatonic in 1924.

"Twenty-six times as large in capacity as Hartford's first steam turbine unit—which was also the first installed in the United States—the new 40,000-kw. unit almost doubles the working steam capacity of the entire Hartford Electric Light-Connecticut Power System. The Financial Survey history is illustrated by Walter Edward Blythe, portraits of Samuel Ferguson, president of the Electric Light and Connecticut Power companies and Austin C. Dunham, founder and for thirty years president of the company. Edward P. Lawton, Jr., the magazine's contributing engineer, provided new maps of the dual system and of the Connecticut Valley Power Exchange, a history of which is included in the general survey.

Dear Mr. Smart:
I'm glad I found out about you before it was too late. How could you be so deceitful? In one breath you tell me how much you care for me and in the next you say you can't come to my party because you are too busy.

Alec was so excited over OLIVER'S LETTER THAT HE COULDN'T WAIT TO OPEN IT.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The doctor's little daughter had strayed into his surgery, and was watching, wide-eyed, as he tested the heart and lungs of a patient. Suddenly she spoke: "Getting new stations, daddy?"

When six or more broadcasters are trying to use the same wavelength at the same time, there is only about one control that will work on your receiving set—an axe.

Broadcasting didn't remain in its infant stage half as long as infants remain in their broadcasting stage.

The Radio Board has been asked to put a ban on cold waves and if they succeed at that they might try to do something about those unsatisfactory permanent waves.

You've got to be a straight shooter if you expect to hit the mark.

A grass widow is a woman who hopes to do better next time.

It was a slovenly but kind-hearted home, and the family was gathered about the supper table.

"What shall we give the baby for his birthday presents?" asked Ma. "Well," said Pa, as he balanced some fried potatoes on his knife, "we might wash the window and let him see the street cars go by."

Most wives hope their daughters will marry more wisely than their mothers.

"The poor are in closer touch with Nature." Of course. How else could they always pick a rainy day to move?

The moon was great, and they were all alone underneath it. They were quiet—and then something slipped. It was his arm around her waist. He had a brain-storm. "Lib," he breathed, "you say you won't let me kiss you. I'll bet a dollar I can without touching you."

"I'll bet." He kissed her right on the cheek—or somewhere. "But you touched me," she yelled, not disappointedly.

"I know it, here's your dollar."

"What other games do you play?" she gulped.

Constable—"Here, you've been walking around this square for an hour and its three in the morning."

Jones—"I've got insomnia, officer."

Constable—"Well, you can't walk about here—you'd better go to bed and sleep it off!"

Style is something that makes a woman suffer the consequences of wearing a gallon foot in a pint of shoe.

The modern girl smiles knowingly when she hears some one say, "Man proposes."

A man who is clever enough to be boss at home is also wise enough not to brag about it.

"A Hollywood wedding" seems a contradiction in terms. Holly is a perennial, not an annual.

LETTER GOLF

CASH ONLY is acceptable in today's puzzle. Par is seven and one solution is on another page.

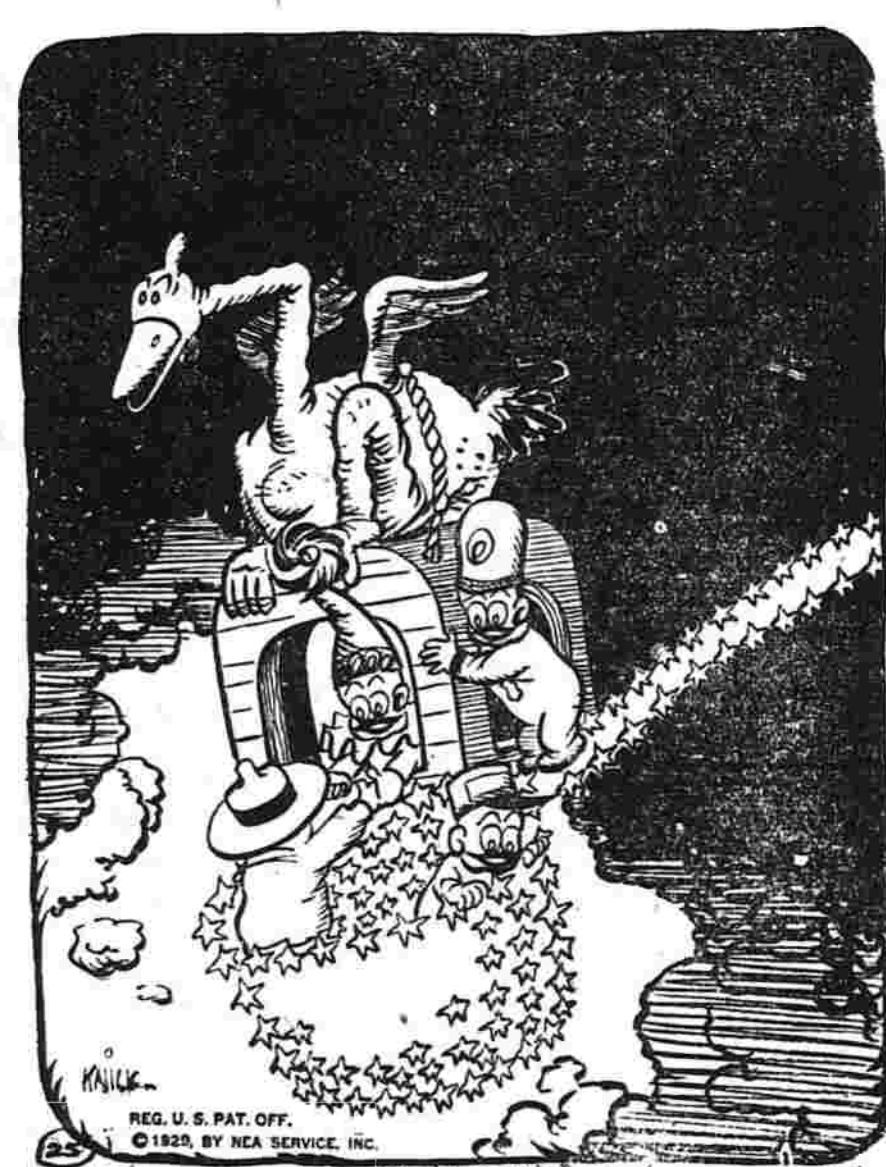

Letter Golf grid with letters C, A, S, H, O, N, L, Y.

THE RULES.

- 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed. One solution is printed on another page.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinies thanked the Thunder Man, and Scouty said, "Well, if we can, we'll leave right quick. I guess that is the safest thing to do. The clouds are black and look real bad. If we get caught it will be sad. You've surely been real kind to us. We offer thanks to you." "Oh, that's all right, 'cause I'm your friend," the man replied. "You can depend on me to always help you. Anyway, I'll gladly try. I knew a storm was drawing near and for you tots began to fear. There's heaps of rain about to fall and flood this spacious sky." Just then some lightning flashed in air and gave the Tinymites a scare. Wes Glowzy jumped and shouted, "We must find our long-lost bird." And then he cried: "Here, Goofygo! We Tinymites are seeking you." They listened and not far away a funny noise was heard. The Thunder Man then said, "Well, I must bid you happy lads

PLAN A MONUMENT AT FIRST OF SCHOOLS

Movement for Marker for Old Hop River Site Under Way; School Built in 1751.

A movement is underway to erect a stone monument and tablet to commemorate the building of the first public schoolhouse in Manchester, it was learned today.

While particulars have not been fully completed, it was announced that the dedication ceremonies would take place some Saturday afternoon in June. It will be located on the grounds of the present Bunce school.

Those in charge of the movement are Clarence Taylor, Gustave Schrieber and Miss Ethel Harrison. Two meetings have already been held but the inscription for the tablet has not yet been decided on.

The first public school in Manchester was erected on the ground directly across from the Bunce school on Olcott street in 1751. For six years previous, school sessions had been held in a private home in what was then known as the Hop Brook district.

Originally, Manchester, like East Hartford, was united with Hartford. First East Hartford was set apart and next Manchester. The old Hop Brook District school was built before Manchester was chartered as a town.
