

BRITAIN AGOG AS ELECTION DRAWS NEAR

Leaders Expect That 22 Mil- lions Will Go to the Poles on May 30—Women in Majority in All Districts.

London, May 14.—At least eight per cent of the eligible voters are expected to cast their ballots in the general election on May 30 throughout England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, when 615 members of the House of Commons will be elected.

As more than 27,000,000 men and women will be eligible to ballot, it is estimated that the votes cast will total about 22,000,000. This is the second largest electorate in history, surpassed only by that of the United States at last November's presidential election.

At the last British general election in 1924, there were less than 22,000,000 eligible voters. But the Universal Suffrage Act, passed by parliament last year, came into effect this month, adding 5,000,000 women the ages of 21 and 30 to the registers.

Women in Majority

In this gigantic electorate the women outnumbered the men more than 2,000,000. They hold the whip in almost every one of the 615 constituencies.

The cost of the election is expected to total $10,000,000.

All three parties, Conservatives, Laborites and Liberals, are flooding the country with posters and pamphlets. Four million square feet of billboards have been rented for poster purposes.

Many Circulars

Conservatives already have dispatched more than 10,000,000 leaflets and small posters to the constituencies while the Liberals, who have been issuing pamphlets, leaflets and posters at the rate of 500,000 daily, have increased their output to a million a day.

The Laborites, though somewhat behind the other parties in their "paper campaign" are expected to issue 18,000,000 posters and leaflets.

SCHACHT FINISHES HIS MEMORANDUM

Germany's Delegate to Lay His Side of Debt Question Before Allies Tomorrow.

Paris, May 14.—After weeks of delay, the German memorandum of conditions for acceptance of the Young plan as the basis of a reparations settlement, will be laid before the experts committee tomorrow, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

This document has been prepared by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German delegation, and Dr. Josiah Stamp, head of the English delegation. The work was interrupted by Dr. Schacht's visit to Essen on Sunday. Otherwise it might have been ready for presentation to a plenary session of the experts' committee this afternoon.

Dr. Schacht and his German colleagues believe that the German conditions will present no serious difficulty to a general agreement so far as payments are concerned. However, the rearmament issue is still open and threatened, and cause some serious discussion before it is settled.

Up To Allies

The Germans have nothing to do with this question and it will not be treated in the German memorandum.

It is possible that the next plenary session of the committee will be the last. With this end in view the chiefs of the various delegations were active in private conference today to set the loose ends of the parity gathered together before the last public meeting of the committee.

Jugoslavia has not come to the support of the Franco-Belgian contention against reduction of reparations below the Spa schedules.

FOREST FIRES DESTROY 3,000 ACRES OF WOODS

Score of Cottages, Farm House Barns and Livestock Burned in State of Maine.

Portland, Me., May 14.—Nearly 3,000 acres of wooded land burned over, a score of summer cottages, farm houses and barns leveled to the ground, much livestock burned, and several families homeless, was the toll today of a series of half a dozen forest and brush fires throughout southern and central Maine. It required the concerted efforts of Bowdoin college students, Maine National Guardsmen, and fire departments of nearby towns to extinguish some of the blazes.

NEW ATTACKS ON FARM BILL ARE PREPARED

Backed by Democratic-In- surgent Group—If Bills Are Passed It Will Wreck President's Program.

Washington, May 14.—Two fresh assaults on the president's farm relief program perplexed administration leaders in the Senate today as a final vote neared on the new farm bill, with its Hoover-opposed export debenture plan.

The same Democratic-In insurgent coalition, which forced adoption of the debenture over Mr. Hoover's opposition, sponsored two amendments, calculated to disrupt the administration's financial program and upset Hoover policies. One by Senator Heavin (D) of Alabama, would increase the farm relief revolving fund, authorized by the bill, from $200,000,000 to $1,000,000,000. The other, by Senator Nye (R) of North Dakota, would authorize the President to purchase $20,000,000 of wheat and wheat products for free distribution to the "starving peoples of China."

Would Wreck Program

If adopted—though the chances appeared slight—these proposals would wreck the administration's financial program. In opposing the debenture, one of the President's chief objections was that it would take $200,000,000 out of the Federal treasury. Nye's proposal alone would do that.

The Heavin amendment meanwhile would double the liability of the government in financing farm relief and double its possible losses. With the President contending that the government should not pay agriculture's losses, he could scarcely approve a proposition to increase its liability.

Neither Will Pass

There appeared small likelihood of either amendment being adopted, although the Democratic-In insurgent coalition could write both into the bill by maintaining the same ranks shown in the debenture fight. The belief prevailed that a number of Democrats would break away from the coalition and join administration forces in defeating both amendments, thus giving the President a chance of political diet.

The Senate meanwhile continued to "perfect" the administration bill. A number of minor amendments have been adopted, all tending to improve the administrative features of the proposed new farm board's control of marketing crops. An amendment by Senator Copeland (D) of New York, proposing to prohibit loans for the creation of new marketing facilities unless it were demonstrated that existing facilities were inadequate, was defeated without a record roll-call. This provision was written into the bill by the House with the President's approval, but insurgent leaders condemned it as a "joker" and the Senate rejected it.

NO MORE DRUNKS DR. WILSON SAYS

Derisive Laughter Greeted This During His Debate With Clarence Darrow.

Baltimore, Md., May 14.—A spectacular prohibition debate in which very few holds—or words—were barred, was staged here last night between Clarence Darrow, the noted liberal, and Dr. Clarence True Wilson, head of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

Taking the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, that prohibition is right in principle and a success in practice," Dr. Wilson asserted that present day prosperity is due to prohibition, that "legalized temptation has been taken away from men," that "the saloon has been annihilated," and that the "old soaks are gone."

Darrow's Answer

Darrow characterized Dr. Wilson's headquarters at Washington, across from the Capitol, as "the Methodist Vatican, where weak-kneed Congressmen can be bullied and awed."

"I'd rather see a man go to hell free than go to heaven bound," he said. "When men talk of exchange of liberty for dollars they are either bigoted or crazy."

Prosperity, Darrow said, was not due to prohibition, but to the war. Members of Dr. Wilson's organization, Darrow said, are "plain dishonest hypocrites."

In rebuttal, Dr. Wilson said that no attempt was made to enforce prohibition under Harding. "Coolidge was non-committal and non-acting," but now, he concluded, under Hoover, "enforcement is at hand."

Marathon Dancers at It Again; Flag Pole Perchers, Too.

Well, it'll be long now. It's another dance marathon—but a "safe and sane" one, according to Milton D. Crandall, who staged a similar marathon in New York last year to the tune of $120,000 box office receipts before the Health Department stepped in and stopped the show. Terpsichorean champions of last year's event were back—above, left to right: Tommy Nolan and Anna King and Olga Christensen and Jimmy Scott. Lower left you see other contestants dining afoot. And it wasn't alone a dance marathon, "Shipwreck" Kelly, right, shinned up to the top of a 50-foot pole, promising he "wouldn't come down until the last dancer was carried off the floor on a stretcher."

JUSTING OF FEMALE HELP SHOCKS CAPITAL'S WOMEN

Washington Says Girls Are Just as Efficient as Boys Even If They Stop to Pow- der Their Noses at Work.

Washington, May 14.—The action of two great British shipping firms, the White Star line and the Royal Mail line, in replacing all their women employees with men because of "fapper inefficiency" shocked and astonished some of the nation's most prominent women today.

In Washington there are women in Congress, women in business, women predominating in the government departments—its a petticoat government to some extent—and they "just can't understand" the British decision to employ only male help in the future.

"There must be some reason other than the one given, that British girls are inefficient because they stop work to powder their noses, discuss screen stars and the latest styles," said Miss Mary Anderson, director of the Woman's Bureau of the Department of Labor.

In this country these feminine foibles of powdering noses, gossiping and other things dear to the feminine heart apparently have not affected their efficiency.

8,500,000 Employed

Miss Anderson pointed out that the census figures placed the number of women gainfully employed in this country at 8,500,000.

"The 130 census figures probably will show that even more. The figures are expected to be significant because they will show the continuing upward trend in the caliber of women's employment," she said.

The United States government, she said, is the largest single employer of women, 33,000 of the 60,000 civil service employees being women and girls.

Open to Women

"Whether in the administrative, scientific, professional, social service, artistic, clerical, manufacturing, mechanical or cleaning service, all positions are open, potentially if not actually to women," she added.

"Because girls may pause to powder their noses while engaged in their duties does not mean that they are inefficient."

Members of the Congressional "Feminine Bloc" also sprang to the defense of the working flapper.

"Whoever said that young girls working in offices are only interested in powdering their noses and discussing screen stars is mistaken," said Mrs. Florence Kahn, Republican Congresswoman from California.

"My observation around the government is that girls are efficient and interested in their jobs, too. Another thing, the English concern may find that the labor turnover of boys between 18 and 25 is much greater than among girls, and the decision may prove expensive."

"Efficiency is not the exclusive property of either sex," said Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican Congresswoman from Massachusetts.

"The girls of today generally are interested in their work, as well as their looks."

"LAY CARDS ON TABLE IN HUNTINGTON CASE"

TWO FLYERS KILLED WHEN MOTOR FAILS

Rhode Island Airmen Die After Machine Fails to Come Out of Loop; Small Boys Are Almost Killed.

Providence, R. I., May 14.—Two Rhode Island airmen were dead today as the result of a plant crash near the Washington Park Yacht Club at Edgewood Beach when the motor failed during a "stunt loop."

The dead: Major O. Caylor, member of an air party that flew from Rhode Island to Duncan, Oklahoma, last February; and Ralph Kirke, of Auburn, Pilot Caylor's mechanic. Major Caylor was almost instantly killed and Kirke died early this morning, nearly eight hours after the accident, at Rhode Island hospital.

Saved Boys Lives.

A group of boys standing directly in the path of the falling plane were saved from death by the heroism of Major Caylor who, leaning out of his seat on the crippled plane in its fatal dive, wrenched a warning.

The airplane was in a series of loops 500 feet up when those on the ground heard the motor stop and then start with a skip as the plane shot earthward.

Providence police and a committee of the Chamber of Commerce began an investigation of the fatal crash this forenoon.

Kirke, who was 21 years old, had trained at Chicago and Mitchell Field, N. Y., for his mechanic's license and was trying for a federal transport pilot's license.

ZEP IS READY FOR HOP OVER THE ATLANTIC

No Women and No Stow- aways This Trip—59 Pas- sengers Including a Fe- male Gorilla on Board.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, May 14.—Scenes of great activity were enacted at the Zeppelin airport here today as final arrangements were made for the scheduled start tomorrow of the giant German dirigible "Graf Zeppelin" on her third trip across the Atlantic.

With the exception of loading on the fuel and putting the finishing touches to the great airship's luxurious larder, everything is now ready for the start, which is to take place at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Early Start

This early start has been selected in order to give the Zeppelin the greatest possible advantage the daylight hours, is the only factor which will make the ship's departure different from the present sailing of any trans-Atlantic passenger liner. Everything has been done to take this trip out of the category of "adventures," and to make it merely the latest phase of the most modern and speediest method of passenger and freight transportation.

Carries Heavy Load

The "Graf Zeppelin" will be heavily loaded when she takes off tomorrow under the command of Dr. Hugo Eckener, the famous dirigible pilot and designer. There will be a total complement of 29 passengers, and a crew of 39. In addition, on board will be a female gorilla, known as "Miss", which is destined for the Chicago Zoo.

Efforts were made to have "Miss" listed as a passenger at half the ordinary rate of charge, on the grounds that she is halfway between animal and human being. The dirigible company, however, decided that "Miss" might prove entirely too much of a burden in the passenger's quarters, and she has been consigned to the baggage room.

To Make Fast Time

Conceived by yesterday's trial flight of two hours over Lake Constance that the great dirigible is in splendid condition, Dr. Eckener is certain that he will top considerable time off his two previous crossings in the "Graf Zeppelin," especially as weather reports indicate a calm crossing.

On this trip there will be neither women nor stowaways as in the past. A German youth with a last name of Eckener was found hiding among the crates and boxes destined for the voyage just before the trial flight yesterday, and Dr. Eckener hurriedly sent him on his way, resolving that he would have no excess baggage in the form of a stowaway this trip.

A "MASKED MARVEL"

New York, May 14.—Enter the feminine "masked marvel" of the world aviation.

As the Graf Zeppelin pushes its nose through the fog over the North Atlantic on Thursday it will be met 1,000 miles from the North American shore line by a masked and unknown woman, looting a sea slide of the old NC type, in which

That is Suggestion Made by Police Captain Brennan, of Cambridge, Mass., Who Says Connecticut Authorities Are Stalling—Asks Why "Two Flappers" Should Not Be Arrested in Connection With Windsor Murder; An- other Police Captain Admits That a Springfield Wom- an is in the Case—Says All Evidence Has Been Turn- ed Over to Detective Hickey—State's Attorney Alcorn Has Nothing to Say About the Investigation.

Cambridge, Mass., May 14.—That Connecticut authorities should "quit stalling" and that "two flappers" should be taken into custody was the opinion of Police Captain John J. Brennan of the Brattle Square division as recorded today while the investigation of the death of Walter Treadway Huntington, Harvard junior, continued in his home town, Windsor, Connecticut.

The public is entitled to know the developments and Connecticut authorities should "lay their cards on the table" in the opinion of the Cambridge police captain. Captain Brennan admitted that information from letters from Windsor, Connecticut, room had been turned over to Connecticut authorities.

Reports that there was a "Springfield woman in the case," was admitted by Captain Patrick J. Hurley, chief police inspector, but he declined to go further, calling the reports "rumor." He might interfere with the Connecticut investigation. Captain Hurley, however, has been quoted as stating his belief that no person from Greater Boston was involved.

SEARCH FOR PULLET

Windsor, Conn., May 14.—Half a dozen detectives headed by Edward J. Hickey, Gerald Chapman's nemesis, began a search today for the bullet which killed Walter Treadway Huntington, Harvard student. The detectives, who proceeded to the lane where Huntington's body was found a week ago and started digging up the earth near the spot.

The earth was placed on a canvas and raked over by detectives who hope to find the fatal bullet. The bullet, which caused young Huntington's death.

This is the first time that authorities have admitted openly that they had not located the fatal bullet. It has been admitted that the gun with which Huntington was killed is missing.

Use Magnets

Two powerful electric magnets also were brought into play by the detectives. These were connected to an electric light wire nearby and then the magnets were drawn with ten foot lines from where the body was found.

Officers hoped that the magnets would attract the revolver with which Huntington was murdered, or a fragment of the bullet.

Hartford county, maintains Huntington committed suicide but the activity today indicated that Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, is not satisfied with Hickey's theory and had ordered the further search for the bullet. Alcorn was extremely short with newsmen but said he would probably visit the scene of the crime this afternoon.

STILL A MYSTERY

Windsor, Conn., May 14.—After six days of strange, unprovoked investigation, the mysterious death of Walter Treadway Huntington, handsome Harvard junior, today developed into a battle of opinion as to whether it is a case of suicide or murder.

Huntington, a youth of twenty, was found shot to death near a roadway about three miles from his palatial home in Windsor. A bullet was fired into the left side of his head from a .32 calibre automatic pistol.

Here is a significant fact: The gun was not found. Hickey, Huntington's chief investigator, has two facts which have convinced some of the authorities that it is a case of murder, the principal reason being that the gun has not been found.

Hickey's Theory

Yet the chief investigator, County Detective Edward J. Hickey, insisted today that the young man committed suicide.

"I cannot find a single thing to indicate murder," he declared this morning.

As to the baffling death of the college boy now seems likely to be recorded in police annals alongside of other famous unsolved crimes such as the Hall-Mills case, the death of Swope, the Missouri millionaire, the Dot King mystery and the Elwell murder.

Here in Windsor, where the Huntington family is well known, the populace is seething with excitement and the general belief among the natives is that it is a clear case of murder.

That Missing Gun

How could the youth shoot himself and then get rid of the gun.

The Other Side

Hickey had no answer to make, however, to the suggestion that practically everybody in Windsor knew him and almost any person who found him could have identified him.

The detective chief made it plain that, although he thinks it is a case of suicide, his investigation is not closed. He said he would continue to search for the missing gun.

While the murder investigation continued, with nearly forty reporters doing their best to solve the case, the name of Clara Kennedy cropped up continually. She was a former chauffeur of Mrs. Huntington, the slain boy's mother, and is said to have incurred the enmity of young Huntington.

Kennedy was questioned for twelve hours in the state's attorney's office but he was not held.

C. W. HOLMAN AGAIN COUNTY "Y" HEAD Local Man Elected President for Eighth Time at Plainville Session.

For the eighth time, Charles W. Holman, of 31 Summit street, was re-elected president of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. at the eleventh annual convention of the organization held Monday afternoon in Plainville Congregational church.

Charles W. Holman

Other officers elected were: R. O. Clark, vice president; Calvin C. Bolles, secretary; R. M. Grant, clerk. Directors were elected as follows: W. C. Bidwell, Calvin C. Bolles, Henry R. Lawrence, W. Case, Manchester; R. O. Clark, Sherman W. Eddy, Charles W. Holman, Manchester; George R. Marsh, Earl P. Parmalee, John H. Thompson, Harold A. G. Magill, and Paul Learned.

President Holman presented his annual report at the business session which opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The report was a review of the work of the county organization during the past year showing that the work had been extended along wide lines and that the organization had also worked comprehensively. The "Y" worked for five principal objects: to increase the usefulness of group work; to develop three features of the group; increase in the volume of cooperative service and the development of the athletic program.

Two notable pieces of development work were shown in the report, principally in the organizing of the Southington branch and the cooperative work among negro students from the South employed on tobacco plantations during the summer months. President Holman in his report outlined the improvements made in the business program of the organization and also spoke of the valued assistance rendered by the Y. M. C. A. through newspaper advice and publicity.

The athletic committee of the association presented its annual report, showing that 600 boys and young men engaged in athletic competition during the year. The following championships were awarded: Swimming, Manchester Hi-Y; tennis, singles, Kensington Boys' Club; doubles, East Berlin; baseball, Kensington; indoor track, Southington; Y. M. C. A. outdoor track, junior class, New Britain High school; intermediate class, Suffield school; Senior Class, Suffield school; junior basketball, Manchester High school freshmen; intermediate basketball, Kensington Boys' Club; senior basketball, county championship, South Church, New Britain; southern league, South Church, New Britain; northern league, Broad Brook. The Hartford County Y. M. C. A. teams were entered in five state inter-county Y. championship games and were victors in three.

Following the business session the banquet was held in the parish house of the Congregational church. Among the guests were Governor John H. Trumbull, Miss Florence Trumbull, Stanley S. Gwilliam, President and Mrs. C. W. Holman, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Case, Rev. A. A. Ball, pastor of Plainville Methodist church, Rev. Lincoln E. Frye, pastor of the Church of Our Saviour, Mr. and Mrs. George Hubert of Hartford; Louis Clark of Southington; Miss Hazel Whippert of Hartford, business secretary of the association, Rev. and Mrs. E. T. Thienes of Hartford and E. T. Colton of New York. Before the banquet, prayer was offered by Rev. A. A. Ball.

Stanley S. Gwilliam presided as toastmaster. Brief remarks were made by President Holman and greetings were extended by Governor Trumbull. The principal address was delivered by E. T. Colton of New York, executive secretary of the foreign committee of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A. in the United States and Canada. Mr. Colton spoke on "Civilization's Stake in Russia."

Elmer T. Thienes who was again elected general secretary has been the executive secretary of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. during the 11 years of its existence. In addition to his local responsibilities, Mr. Thienes has been active in the state and national work of the Y. M. C. A., being a member of the state program committee, the committee on the occupation of the town and country field in the eastern region, the committee of the national council of the Y. M. C. A. on town and country work, the national program committee. He is also chairman of the town and country committee of Springfield college, and president of the National Town and Country Secretaries' association.

and at Camp Woodstock, where he had been an annual guest for some years, and that he considered it a constructive work that had his highest endorsement. Mr. Colton had charge of developing Y. M. C. A. work among the Russian army during the World War, and served under Mr. Hoover's Russian Relief Administration, helping the suffering educational leaders. He described out of his experience the ruthless plan being pursued by the Communist leaders in routing out all the traces of their past economic, social, educational and religious system. He quoted from instructions given the Communist youth organization, advising them even to disregard parental loyalty unless the parents were active Communists. In the course of performing its simple duty of service it has fallen to the lot of the Y. M. C. A., said Mr. Colton, "to become one of the strong forces all around the world in stopping the progress of Communism."

The girls prepared the sandwiches and other items just previous to the hour of serving. Margaret Fairweather was hostess, assisted by Olga Hubbard and Alice Neal. At noon yesterday 7th grade girls gave a luncheon. Each table was prettily decorated with flowers, and the tables were set with Pearl Dreger, Eleanor Wallace, Helen Senkbell, Barbara Stotenfelt, Violet Phillips, Ethel Mohr, Evelyn Peckham and Selma Jewell.

The following boys from the Green school have entered model airplanes in the Connecticut Junior Achievement contest at Middletown, May 25: Gilbert Park, Russell McVeigh, George Thorpe and Kingsley French with models of "Spirit of St. Louis," Arthur Shortis, a Ford Curtis Army Hawk. The boys are showing a great deal of interest in these models and the work of painting is progressing well. Many extra hours are being put in on the models. Some of the boys hope to win. The first prize is a trip to Detroit with an airplane ride over Hartford.

Boys in the 8th grade are making and made models of various things constructed by Truman Cowles, Kingsley French, Frederick Hoher; model speed boats by Albert Borrello, Howard Hastings, Frank Pinyney. Fourteen boys of the 8th grade went with Principal Miss Mabel Leaphar to Hartford Saturday and made sight-seeing trips to the county court house, state library, Capitol, Travelers tower, site of the historic Charter Oak, Morgan Memorial and Wadsworth Athenaeum.

Children of the upper grades recently enjoyed a showing of lantern slides on Egypt as part of their geography work. This type of lecture is to be given once a week for the rest of the year, with slides on different subjects obtained from the state department.

Morrow was regarded by natives as clinching assurance that the bride and groom, Mrs. H. F. Huse, is island pastor were being cleared and new trees planted. Other homes were being "groomed." The island golf course was being "polished."

CLEAN STREAMS

Somewhat belated but nevertheless of very great value, comes the report of the State Water Commission, submitted to the governor last January but just now reaching the newspapers. After a perusal of it the reader not only arrives at the conclusion that the commission, headed by Senator Frederic C. Wallcut, undertook a tremendous task when it assayed to educate the communities and the people of this state as to the economic necessity of adopting decent and scientific methods of sewage disposal but he becomes convinced that a surprising amount of work has been done by this little heard-of commission and a still more astonishing volume of results obtained.

While the commission was clothed with a good deal of mandatory power by the law which created it less than four years ago, it has not exercised that power to the full in any instance, having adopted the policy that better results could be obtained by demonstrating the higher economic impossibility of continuing to pollute the streams of Connecticut than by employing force and courtship opposition and resistance.

The report shows that many Connecticut communities and many Connecticut industrial concerns have been made to see that, for their own welfare and the continued prosperity of the section and the value of their properties, water pollution must stop.

Perhaps the greatest point of strength of the commission has lain in its expressed appreciation of the fact that the business of rehabilitating the state's water courses must necessarily be a slow one and that great patience must be exercised. Certainly this commission has obtained very real and very important results in creating a sentiment, steadily growing, in condemnation of stream pollution. Another commission, expecting to have the ripe fruit of its efforts in hand in a few brief years, might well have spoiled the whole campaign at the beginning. As it is, there is hardly a community in the state and hardly an industrial concern which has taken a defiant or indifferent attitude toward the idea of remedying water course pollution. To be sure, neither municipalities or corporations are falling over themselves in their haste to clean up the rivers and streams, but where nothing is done they at least have the grace of knowledge that it ought to be done and the only plea in justification of continued pollution now is the plea of cost and poverty.

As first one community and then another establishes its adequate disposal plants, and as first one factory and then another adopts systems of recovery of wastes, as some are already doing, their example will surely be followed by more and more communities and industries, until presently we shall have a situation in Connecticut where pollution of the streams will be about the most unpopular activity that a person could engage in.

There is much in this force of example. Take the case of Hartford, for instance. For years the Capitol City has been dumping its sewage in a raw state into the Connecticut—and every smaller community on the river has said, "That's the good of our doing anything so long as Hartford alone could contaminate the entire stream?" Hartford has as yet done nothing. But away down on the Sound, where the question of sewage disposal, while serious, is less so than on the Connecticut river, the city of Bridgeport is more than two-thirds of the way through a great sewage disposal program which, in another three years, will be complete and no more contamination from that community will enter the Sound. Hartford is not likely to long continue poisoning the Connecticut when her sister city has a perfectly cleaned house in sewage disposal matters. Altogether Connecticut has been extremely fortunate in the quality of its Water Commission. Its efforts are worthy of all praise.

THE 5-DAY LOCKOUT

We are totally unable to see the five-day-week with six days' pay as anything but an economic error and a measure making for expansion of costs. It would be fine if it were otherwise. If nobody in this world had to work more than forty hours a week it would be, theoretically, a grand and glorious thing. But when and if such an arrangement becomes possible it must be, within reasonable limits, applicable to all classes of workers alike, else those who get the five-day-week with the six days' pay are merely obtaining it at the cost of their fellow workers.

With the hourly rate of pay in the building trades in New York—which to some extent sets the pace for the country in matters of wages—far in excess of the hourly wage rate in the vast majority of occupations, the cost of housing in the metropolitan area has become so great that its reflection in rental charges is staggering. The shop worker, the office employe, the vast multitude of bread winners not protected by the strength of the building trades organizations are the persons who must pay the fat wages and for the leisure of the construction operators. Nobody else. In one way or another, in the last analysis, the burden of excessive building costs falls upon the toilers.

There is no obvious reason why the people engaged in the building trades deserve so much more of a fat life than those other workers who, in vastly greater numbers, work harder and longer hours for much smaller wages. Yet in total disregard for the well-being of any but their own particular group of wage earners, these highly organized trades have set the sky as the limit of their aspirations.

That a showdown has now been called in the New York situation will seem good to many fair-minded persons. A lockout of 75,000 workers is a serious business. But the issue was bound to be precipitated sooner or later. It is to be determined now, apparently, whether building trades labor is to continue to labor somewhat or merely tax its fellow laborers to death and live on unearned increment.

EXPERTS IN PERIL

Charles E. Snyder, famous snake expert and former head-keeper of reptiles and mammals at the Bronx Zoo in New York, lived to be fifty-seven years old despite his intimate contact with thousands of poisonous snakes and man killing beasts. Then he forgot something. Hunting rattlesnakes in the Ramapo hills, he forgot that at this season of the year those glittering and deadly creatures travel in pairs. There was nothing the matter with his technique as he attempted to pull a rattler out of a crevice in a ledge, grabbing it by the tail and flinging it away so that, before it could coil and strike, he could pin its neck under his forked stick. But the probably present mate clean slipped away from his consciousness. And as he seized the one snake the other struck him. He was a long way out in the wilds. By the time he reached civilization the poison had done its work. A mild serum he had with him was of no avail. Before better could come he was dead.

It is the expert who gets it, in the long run. In almost any vocation, avocation or pursuit of especial danger, the peril of the beginner is balanced by extreme caution. But familiarity with great hazard breeds, if not contempt, a certain degree of inattention. When this exists, and conditions arrange themselves in some form of special risk, the nerveless, unafraid, completely confident master suddenly becomes victim of his own skill.

Whether it be hunting snakes in the Ramapos or driving a car at high speed, eternal vigilance is the price of continued life. It is very, very hard for the completely familiarized veteran in any perilous pursuit to be always vigilant—infinitely harder than for the beginner, whose fears are his safeguard.

waters section of the War Department has for many years been prone to cotton to the biggest interest in sight, usually some great corporation, and has been much freer with edicts than with explanations; its tone in the present instance is almost startlingly timid and self-effacing.

The reason for this, is, of course, to be found in the fact that the United States Supreme court is liable, at any time, to come across with an opinion in the matter of Connecticut watershed diversions that will knock the aspirations of the Boston water grabbers higher than Gilroy's kite.

Here is one case where the War Department, for a change, cannot labor under the impression that its ukase is final. Hence it is circumspect, far beyond its habit, in its delivery on this occasion.

ZEP PUBLICITY

One is intrigued by the presence in the Graf Zeppelin, about to sail again through the air for America, of a gorilla. It is announced that the gorilla is destined for a Chicago zoo. Our guess is that she is actually destined to become an advertising feature. Who will bet us a Tommy Marshall cigar that during that trip the gorilla doesn't frame loose and leap from frame to frame of the Zep's envelope, the while some heroic junior officer of the airship, at fearful hazard of his life, chases her—and finally saves her and the entire expedition at the same time?

The stowaway has already been discovered—he was an old gag anywhere. It was impossible to have Mrs. Gann and Alice Roosevelt Longworth as the only two women passengers—which wouldn't have been so bad. And in default of being able to induce the Man of Doorn to come over the gorilla isn't such a wretched bet. Watch the monk.

IN NEW YORK

New York, May 14.—Our most widely known Manhattanites have certain characteristics of dress, manner or behavior which have become indelibly associated with them.

Thus there is David Belasco's clergymanish collar. There is Morris Gest's inevitable slouch hat, which looks as though it had been sat upon by a circus fat lady. Also his perpetual pose of melancholy. There is Frisco's inimitable stutter. . . . Texas Guinan's armload of jewelry and her "hello sucker" greeting. Paul Whiteman's tiny mustache. Jimmy Walker's trick clothes. Grover Whalen's hand-shake and bow. John D. Rockefeller's dimes and his son's derby hats. Al Smith's "brown derby." Helen Kane's baby-talk voice. Walter Catlett's agile legs. Eddie Cantor's mobile eyes. Irene Bordone's accent and smile. Ethel Barrymore's voice. Mrs. Flak's bird-like mannerisms. Ring Lardner's walk. There's Isabel Patterson's jargonette. . . . Heywood Brown's bulk. . . . Percy Hammond's golf pants and Dorothy Parker's wise cracks. . . . Harold Ross' halfcuts, and the same for the Van Doren brothers—Carl is particular. . . . Carl Van Vechten's albino hair and his walking sticks and spats. . . . Kelsey Allen's inevitable opening line, "Say, I heard a new one coming up street. . . ."

Alexander Woolcott's silk ribboned plax nez. . . . Eugene O'Neill's scowl. . . . Thyra Winslow's toy dogs. . . . And a lot more of them some other time.

Literary Note—I notice that some of my kind and well-intentioned friends have credited me with being the "ghost" of Dr. Richard Horace Hoffmann's interesting tome, "The Struggle for Health." Just to keep the records straight, such credit for collaboration as I deserve has been given me in the front of the book.

The passing of Greenwich Village becomes more marked each week. Not that the Village isn't where it always was, but the "atmosphere" so long associated with it has all but gone.

Over the few remaining landmarks of a bygone Bohemia now comes the markets of skyscrapers and apartments and the skyscrapers of new ones.

NOISE NERVOUSNESS.

One can waste an amazing amount of nervous energy by listening either consciously or unconsciously to distracting or inharmonious sounds. This becomes very apparent in a nervous individual where the least grating or irritating sound will almost drive him to distraction, and a cure often depends upon the silence of almost complete solitude.

Sound exerts a most profound effect upon the emotions. Anyone can detect a vast difference between a mother's crooning lullaby and the stimulating effect of war-time music. A whole musical pharmacopoeia could probably be constructed just from the effect of music upon emotions.

It has been determined by scientific experiment that loud sounds are one of the few things which will arouse fear in a newborn babe, and even though we are grown up, it is quite possible that unexpected sounds arouse fear toxins within the body, even though we are not conscious of the fear reaction.

It has also been determined by experiment that continuous noises create fatigue and reduce efficiency. In the larger cities, noise is a distinct problem because of the concentration of industry and commerce. Many office buildings are being constructed with sound-proof walls and ceilings, especially in the offices of business executives or creative thinkers where it is important that the mental operation be unhampered.

The after effects of a violent sound may remain for a long time, even after the attention has returned to normal. When the fear reaction has once been aroused, even for an instant, the digestive process may be slowed up for hours.

Much unnecessary noise can be avoided by the use of thick rugs, felt pads, and draperies. You have undoubtedly noticed how sounds are magnified in an empty house. This is probably the reason that deserted houses often acquire the reputation of being haunted. The least sound is carried down the corridors and reflected from the walls instead of being absorbed by furniture or draperies.

We know how readily fatigue will weaken the body's resistance, making it susceptible to any disease epidemic which comes along.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER
 By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, May 14.—Uncle Andy Mellon probably will be allowed to resign as secretary of the treasury in his own good time, without being pushed out as some impetuous senators would have him.

Nevertheless, there is good reason to fear that Uncle Andy's happy days are over. Two reasons, in fact and as follows: First, and probably worst from the viewpoint of the so-called greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton, being Mr. Mellon isn't by any means what it used to be. Being Mr. Mellon used to be being almost the most powerful man in the United States. Being Mr. Mellon today merely means being a very rich man who takes his orders from Mr. Hoover.

Second, although his enemies probably will not find out enough about Uncle Andy to force a majority of senators to vote that he hasn't any business holding his position any longer, they have nevertheless found out enough to make a distinguished gentleman of Uncle Andy's sensitive temperament feel somewhat embarrassed.

One notes all this with a slight pang of sorrow for Uncle Andy's personality is in many ways so appealing and gives off such an atmosphere of ethereality that some of those who admire neither his abilities nor his policies are often inclined to regard him unconsciously as a kind and adored uncle in lieu of a foe.

In all of Washington there is no one who, under fire, can carry such a perfect air of injured innocence as this mild and aged man. And the thing about the thing about that air of injured innocence is that it is almost certainly quite sincere. One calls him aged, of course, because he is well over 70. But no one knows just how old he really is because the authorities differ. In any event, the distinguished appearance and perfect poise of Uncle Andy, whatever his age may be, is worth going many miles to see.

All of which is somewhat aside from the fact that Uncle Andy probably would be happier if he had gone out of office on March 4, although he would not have been especially happy if he did. It would merely have saved him certain painful experiences which he hates to see inflicted upon him.

BRIDGEPORT IS TAKING RANK AS FLYING CENTER

Bridgeport, Conn.—Bridgeport is fast assuming a leading position as an aviation center. The Bridgeport Airport, opened for flying on November 11, 1928, has proved a tremendous asset in attracting airplane manufacturers and manufacturers of allied lines to Bridgeport.

Story of Airport. A committee appointed by the President of the Chamber of Commerce in 1927 investigated the desirability of an airport for Bridgeport its most appropriate location, and the approximate cost, and after an extensive survey on September first submitted a report favoring the establishment of an airport in Bridgeport and recommending the Lordship Meadows as a site.

Shortly afterwards, members of this committee were the leaders who formed a private corporation, Bridgeport Airport, Inc., and announced the acquisition of 250 acres on the Lordship Meadows, with right of way to the Housatonic river mouth, thus making available a site for both sea and land planes.

A seaplane canal, 2,000 feet x 250 feet has been dug from the Housatonic river, the fill from the canal being used for constructing the runways on the main flying field. The Airport is situated between two improved roads and the mouth of the Housatonic river, within three and one-half miles from the Bridgeport railroad station.

The Curtiss Flying Service is managing the field, which was opened for flying operations on November 11, 1928. One hangar, accommodating eight planes, is completed, and another to accommodate fifteen planes is in process of construction.

Sikorsky Aircraft Corporation. Shortly after the flying field was made available for flying, one of the largest manufacturers of aircraft in the country, the Sikorsky Aircraft Corporation of College Point, L. I., builders of amphibian aeroplanes, announced the purchase of thirty acres of land adjacent to the airport for the erection of a new plant, and construction is going forward rapidly.

In August, 1928, the Chamber of Commerce through its Industrial Bureau assisted the Whitlesey Body company in finding a suitable space for the location of their automobile body business, and space was secured on Howard Avenue. At of commercial craft. The Bridgeport Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in locating the Huntington Aircraft company here. The Cosmic Aircraft Corporation, a local concern, has recently been organized but is not yet under production.

The above companies are actually engaged in the production of airplanes, or organized to start production in the immediate future.

BEARDED BEAUTIES. Provo, Utah.—A group of young men at Brigham Young University recently swore off razors and shaving soap long enough to conduct a beard contest. Transformed faces were judged by a co-ed and two fellow students. Prizes were awarded for the heaviest beard, the longest, and the most beautiful. Prizes consisted of razors, strops and face lotion contributed by city barbers.

The increased number of amicable divorces in Hollywood lately seems to suggest that separation is a good way to pick up a few good friends.

Rockville

Benefit Minstrel Thursday.

There promises to be a record-breaking crowd at the Palace theater next Thursday evening, when a minstrel show will be given by local talent for the benefit of a Rockville widow and family.

Max Smith, an old timer, who is directing the show, will be one of the soloists and will sing, "Love Me and the World is Mine."

James Breen of Manchester, a former Rockville resident who is always a favorite in his old home town, will render "The Desert Song."

Harry Shabaneau, manager of the Enfield Furniture company, a professional singer, will appear on the program in songs. He has appeared on many New Britain programs and Rockville people have heard him over the radio, from station WTIC. Mr. Shabaneau's leading number will be "Maushie."

Herbert Hunniford and Edward Smith, well known soloists, whose voices harmonize exceptionally well, will sing "Those Wedding Bells are Breaking Up That Old Gang of Mine."

The end men, who are some of Rockville's leading entertainers are Alec Brown, George Gaekler, "Doc" Sweet and John Burke. They are sure to please and must be heard to be appreciated. Mrs. Brown will render "Carolina Moon" as it was never sung before and "Doc" will make a big hit with his number "Making Whoopee."

George Gaekler will sing "Blue Ridge Mountains" as only George can sing it, while John Burke will weep as he sings "Somebody Stole My Gal." Mrs. Raymond Hunt will preside at the piano, assisted by Stein's orchestra.

The interlocutor, "Doc" Byrnes, an old time minstrel man will have something new and snappy in the way of introducing the program and should prove a real favorite as in days of yore.

Several members of the Wheel club will present a short sketch "Doing the Raceoon," which will include Ralph Neff, Harold Melvin, Harold Monahan, George Bartlett and Elmer Hartenstein. These boys are real entertainers and no doubt will receive the hearty support of their host of friends.

The feature picture will be "All at Sea," featuring Karl Dane and George K. Arthur.

Tickets for the benefit are being sold and reserve seats will go on sale at the Palace Theater Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, without extra charge. Upstairs will be all rush seats, while down stairs will be reserved. Tickets can be purchased at any of the barber shops, Palace Theater, Vincent's drug store or Girard Rock. The committee consists of Max Smith, Girard Rock, Thomas Regan, Herbert Hunniford and Alec Brown. The proceeds of the show will go to a local family.

Luther League Play a Success
"The Arrival of Kilty" a three-act comedy presented at the Sykes auditorium on Friday evening by members of the Luther League of the First Evangelical church was largely attended, there being very few seats available for the late comers. The league has presented some excellent plays in the past, and on Friday night lived up to its reputation.

The cast:

The end men were, Mrs. Esther Weber, Mrs. Ella Lehmitt, Mrs. Carrie Kane and Mrs. Martha Thuesler. Each one took her part in a most creditable manner and received the hearty applause of everyone present. The jokes were right up to the minute and with Harold Lehmitt as interlocutor there was plenty of fun.

Miss Betty McCannan and Mrs. Harriet Nutland were the soloists of the evening and their songs were "Little Mother" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." They kindly responded to the hearty burst of applause with encores.

POLICE COURT

John Howard, employed at the Burr Nursery since 1-st February was in Hartford yesterday and arrived at the Manchester Center on the car reaching here at 2:37. His actions on the car were not to the liking of the motorman-conductor in charge, who lost little time in snapping him off the car and walking him into the police station.

John was much put out at the charge made against him and assured the conductor and through him the Connecticut Company and all others that should there be a verdict brought in against him that the matter was going to the Supreme Court of these United States.

This morning he was in a different mood. He was charged with intoxication and found guilty. A fine of $10 was imposed. He was not able to pay so went to jail.

John Hohl of Hilliard street, who was arrested because of an automobile accident on Hilliard street north of South street, was charged Monday at the bedside of Mrs. Sikes Bamforth who underwent an operation last week for goitre.

Mrs. Frank Warren of Lakewood, R. I. was the guest of Mrs. Christian Newmarker of Grand street on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Bailey of Durham were Rockville visitors on Saturday.

RICH GIRL & POOR GIRL

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE, who is lured away by PAMELA JUDSON when she tells him Mildred is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for money. Harold fears HUCK CONNOR, who is blackmailing him over a forged check. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, and when she announces her engagement to Stephen frames him for the theft of an auto and causes his arrest. Pamela drops Stephen, but Mildred tries to get him out of jail.

Harold had once told her he feared Huck, who had threatened to get rid of Stephen to keep him from marrying Pamela. Mildred determines to force Harold to help her, and is shocked to hear of his death—apparently accidental. She tells Stephen her suspicions but they have no proof and it seems hopeless.

Finally she goes to MR. JUDSON, who takes her to headquarters to tell her story. Judson balls Stephen out and Pamela begs forgiveness. On the way from the jail to the hotel, Stephen narrowly escapes a shot from a thug in a passing taxi. He reports to Mr. Judson and learns that Mildred was also wounded slightly by a gangster shot.

His concern over her leads the elder man to doubt Stephen's love for Pam, and he tells her the man is trying to marry her for money, not love. She taunts him by saying that his money had bought two stepmothers for her and dispersed the first and that he has no right to keep her from buying her man. Believing she really loves Stephen, the father gives in to her pleading.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIII
Stephen was not in his room. Mr. Judson immediately called the office and asked to have one of Markson's men sent up.

Together they went to Stephen's door. Pamela was forbidden to follow but she disobeyed instructions a few minutes later and proceeded toward the room.

A pass key admitted Mr. Judson and the detective and they saw that Stephen had stopped in the midst of unpacking his belongings when he left the room.

Although search of the hotel was instigated but Stephen was not located.

The inquiry at the switchboard revealed that he had made one outside call on the telephone.

Mr. Judson's face grew thunderous when the operator told him the number Stephen called was Mildred's. Had she listened to the conversation? Certainly not.

Mr. Judson was unconvinced. The operator and Mildred probably were friends, he reasoned.

"Call the number," he directed, "and say Mr. Judson wishes to speak to Mrs. Lawrence."

It was Connie who answered the call. "Can't I talk to Mr. Judson?" she asked. "Mother is with Mildred. I don't like to disturb her."

The operator repeated her words to Mr. Judson.

"Very well," he said impatiently and stepped into a booth. Connie thought him unnecessarily sharp when he asked if Stephen Armitage was there.

"No, he isn't," she said, and was perverse enough to withhold the information that he had been there. She thought Mr. Judson would ask, but he said, "Thank you," quickly and hung up.

"Well, if you hadn't been so short I'd have told you," Connie said to herself, trying to placate a troubled conscience. She was remembering the things Mildred had said about Mr. Judson's kindness to her after her "accident" in the subway.

Mildred hadn't explained just how he came to be so interested in her and Connie was eaten up with curiosity. But Mildred told them Stephen was out on bail so they weren't surprised when he telephoned. He was told Mildred was sleeping but he went up anyway, thinking she might awaken before he got there.

Connie had greeted him coldly but her heart softened when she saw how much he was disappointed because he couldn't see Mildred, who was still sleeping.

"I'll drop in tomorrow," he said when Connie was speeding him at the door.

"Do," she drawled, "but don't happen along when Mildred's regular is here. He's frightfully jealous."

Little loyal trouble maker. She just wanted to give Stephen something to think about. She did.

"I don't suppose she wants me hanging around," he concluded with a "lost" feeling that he did not understand, and but for Pamela he might not have gone back, thinking Mr. Judson met him in the lobby of the hotel when he returned and took him to task at once for his recklessness.

"Connor isn't a master mind," Stephen returned unemotionally. "But I went out a back door."

"I suppose you mean he couldn't guess that you would leave Pamela this evening?" Mr. Judson remarked. "After all, Armitage, you're engaged to her."

"I didn't consider what Connor would think," Stephen declared; "but now that you speak of it I guess that's how it worked."

"You weren't considering the fact that he knows my daughter isn't going out socially?"

Stephen looked straight at him. "I'm not scared to death of Connor," he said. "And I wanted to see for myself that the man you've hired to guard Miss Lawrence is on the job."

"Oh, so you went to see Miss Lawrence was my man there?"

"Right outside in the hall. I've an idea Miss Lawrence hasn't told her mother and sister what happened. The girl spoke of it as an accident."

"Yes, Miss Lawrence wanted to keep it from them," Mr. Judson said. "I instructed my driver and the plainclothes man not to reveal anything to the family. How is Miss Lawrence?"

Later she telephoned his room and he told her he was unpacking. "Bother," she exclaimed. "I'll send up a valet. Have you had breakfast?"

Stephen said yes.

"Then get ready and come down to the mezzanine in 15 minutes. We're going for a drive."

Stephen assented and Pamela rushed upstairs to get her hat and a light wrap.

"Tell the operator to have my car sent around right away," she ordered the maid.

When she met Stephen on the mezzanine he was of a different mind about going out with her.

"I don't think your father would like it," he said.

Pamela argued.

Stephen didn't want to tell her that he thought it was unsafe for her to leave the hotel in his company, so he simply refused to go.

"If you hadn't gone out last night I might think you were afraid," she said crossly.

"Perhaps I am," Stephen replied. "You're afraid, you're just stubborn."

"Well, I'll ask you, if he doesn't object you'll go, won't you?"

Stephen did not expect her father to consent when he said yes. But Pamela returned after leaving him for a few minutes and told him her father said it was all right if they would be careful.

Stephen had no idea that she lied. There was a plan in her head and she did not mean to let parental dictates stand in the way of carrying it out.

Stephen saw no glory in the beautiful day. He ought to have been feeling exuberantly happy, tingling with the joy of his freedom; instead he was conscious of a dull depression lying heavily upon him.

Pamela's radiant spirits did not endure in his blue company. She fell into a gloomy silence before they had gone ten blocks.

Time and again she started to say something and checked herself before the first word was out. Stephen was pleased not to talk. That meant it easier for Pamela to hold her silence.

Inwardly she was fuming, but she didn't want to spoil what she was going to do by prematurely quarreling with Stephen over his visit to Mildred.

Stephen wondered, as they drove along, if her father had told her about Huck's attempt to have him shot. If so she was either very brave or very reckless, he thought.

"You're not going to the club, are you?" he asked with a touch of misgiving as Pamela took the route they had followed so many times up to Westchester.

"Oh, no," she said. "I'm going to pay a call."

The idea did not appeal to Stephen. He saw himself being set on by Pamela's friends to tell them what it was like in jail. Even Pamela's recent betrothal would not deter them from being fresh, Stephen knew.

He dared a suggestion that they go on and enjoy a drive in the country.

"We won't be long," Pamela replied.

A few minutes later she turned off in the direction of Mildred's home.

"Where are you going?" Stephen inquired, vaguely distrustful.

"To see Mildred Lawrence," Pamela told him.

Stephen said nothing more until they came to a stop before the shabby building, faced with clinging fire escapes, where the Lawrences lived.

"I'll wait here if you don't mind," he said then.

"Of course I mind. I've only been here once before, but you know the apartment. Come along," Pamela snapped.

Stephen reluctantly escorted her to Mildred's door. Connie answered their ring and regarded them in undisguised surprise. Pamela stepped through the door she held open without waiting to be asked in.

Stephen hesitated. "Come in," Connie said to him most unconvincingly. She was boiling, as she told Mildred later.

"We've come up to see Mildred," Pamela said brightly. "Please tell her."

HEALTH

RED FLANNEL ONCE USED AS AID IN CERTAIN KINDS OF ILLNESS

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Some people believe that white clothes are cooler than black ones, and the red clothes are warmer than any other color.

The symbolism associated with colors is one of the most fascinating aspects of the whole problem of magic and superstition. Almost everyone knows that among most peoples white is associated with joy and black with sorrow. Among certain peoples of tropical races, the reverse is true. Red in this country means danger, but it is also associated to a considerable extent with pleasure.

The exact facts regarding the relative coolness of clothing of various colors have not been absolutely established.

To prevent overexposure from sunlight, persons living in tropical countries or places where there is much sunlight wear garments

DOTTED CHIC

Styles dot their way to chic this season, in varied manner. A charming red mousseline party frock from Blanche Lehouvier has a novelty dot in the shape of a tiny white leaf. Red velvet pastilles are placed irregularly over it for richness. White mousseline edges the full, irregular overskirt, outlines the rousing neckline and swings into a bow tie which hangs down the back.

French Knots

A CONVENTIONALIZED floral pattern in pastel shades is embroidered in French knots on the crown of an eggshell hat, giving the new feminine note.

The WOMAN'S DAY

"Susie Van Orman won't win the mayoralty. She says that if she had $50 in Evanville only because she was unlucky enough to be among those present at a quiet little party at which two of her lady friends were shot. Mrs. Van Orman was campaigning on a platform of law enforcement with special volleys fired at those who went to wild parties and drank. She has closed her campaign.

SAUCE FOR BOTH.
Once upon a time the comment could have been aptly and truly made that no male politician was ever forced to stoop to a shot because of any incidents in his private life. But that has not been true for a long time. Many a male campaigner has learned the power of public opinion about private and personal pastimes just as "Susie" Van Orman learned it.

WHAT SHE WANTS.
This unique "personal" has been running in a certain magazine for several weeks—

"A woman, 39 years old, M. A. finds herself cut off from stimulating contact with a man who would exchange reading experiences with some congenial minded person through correspondence."

One wonders about a set of experiences which would make a person "find herself cut off from stimulating contact with a man" and yet there are any number of such possibilities. The ad is unique only inasmuch as she publicly admits her mental need as great as if starving for physical food. Many of us know it, but would never think of publicly admitting the need and trying to fight to obtain it.

UNREASONABLE MOTHERS.
Here's Mrs. Laura Mintzer, 52, the mother of five grown children, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, offering her body to an interested medical school, so that she can pay her rent. She explains that her children can just manage to buy her food, but that sickness forced her to give up her job, and they can't

HOOVER PICNICS.
When the Hoovers go on a picnic, they do not pack baskets with minced chicken and ham sandwiches nicely wrapped in oiled paper, olives and frosted cake, according to someone in the know. No, siree, they take their gridiron, a rusty coffee pot, some raw steaks and bacon or hamburger, corn and potatoes to roast, and get a regular outdoor hot meal.

This is a national precedent which we have long needed. We need an example set as to the north of any kind of a picnic, but it's especially good when the example eschews picnics with cold potato salad and insists on the only right kind.

Try it!

STUB-ARMED FLYER.
Miss Josephine Callaghan of Los Angeles who has only six-inch stubs for arms recently graduated from a flying school with honors. She has a specially built plane and is said to take loops with a finesse rarely known.

Physical handicaps often force people into achievement greater than that of normal people. They have to prove to their own satisfaction that they can do things. Normal people take it for granted and don't worry about the proof. Some of the happiest people are those with the equivalents of stubs for arms.

YOUR CHILDREN
by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

The longer I live the less reason I see for making the genius man a one-handed creature. Why in the world we take lead pencils and forks and needles from children's left hands and transfer them to the right, I don't know.

I've seen children many times enter school with the genius man's facility. Then what happened? Invariably those children lost their skill with the left hand in a few short months. What a pity! To be born ambidextrous I consider to be one of the greatest pieces of luck a person can have.

Result of Brain Structure.

There are so many reasons for having two skilled hands, aside from the obvious one of convenience, efficiency, and insurance against accident.

The speech area or the part of the brain that we talk with is on the left side of the head. Right spang up against it is the area that controls the motor nerves of the right hand arm and hand, and the right leg and foot. Undoubtedly speech and the right hand are so related as to be almost inseparable. This is still more accentuated by the fact that the mental processes we use in writing are almost the same as those we use in talking. Each impulse is the expression of thought.

Hands Work With Mind.
Doctors tell us that adults who have had this brain area destroyed often lose the power of speech simultaneously with the paralysis of the right hand; such people do not often regain the power of speech. But this is a good argument for the child who must not be contented with paralytic stroke, which is different.

On the other hand we are told that where such accidents have happened to children and they were compelled to use the left hand, Nature has taken advantage of youth as usual, and built up a new speech area on the right side. The child often learns to talk as well as ever. It does seem therefore that the exercise of the hands mentally affects the power of speech. Nature has good argument for the promise that if human beings were trained to be double-handed or ambidextrous that in time—It might be centuries, of course—men would have two perfectly developed speech areas instead of one!

2 OUTSTANDING ADVANTAGES

THE CABINET IS ALL-STEEL

A MECHANISM IS ON TOP

Of the many advantages of General Electric Refrigerators, two are especially vital—the hermetically sealed, on-top mechanism and the all-steel warp-proof cabinet. The mechanism in any electric refrigerator has but one purpose—to absorb heat from the food. It must be permitted to radiate that heat rapidly. As heat naturally rises, it can be radiated from the top of the refrigerator. To place the radiating coils any other place where else cuts down their efficiency.

The new all-steel cabinets are now available in six sizes. The smallest family size is but $215, at the factory. Sold on convenient time payments.

Opening Game Is Set For Thursday Evening

Manchester Club to Engage Arnold College; Eddie Boyce to Pitch; Honorary Battery.

Thursday night has been definitely selected as the date for the opening game to be played by the newly organized Manchester Baseball Club.

The contest will be played at the West Side Playgrounds and will start promptly at 6 o'clock. Efforts will be made to complete nine innings by starting on time and showing a bit of pep between teams.

Efforts are underway to make the baseball opening a most auspicious one. It is possible that the Manchester High school band will turn out for the occasion marching to the field. The services of John H. Hyde, chairman of the Board of Selection, and George H. Waddell, town treasurer, have been obtained to act in the capacity of an honorary battery.

The visiting team, as stated yesterday will be Arnold College of New Haven. This outfit meets some of the best secondary colleges in this section of the country. The team is captained by Herbert "Pat" Carlson of town. Carlson, a former star at Manchester High, catches for Arnold College and is also a dependable pitcher. The pitcher will be Eddie Boyce who will start on the mound for Manchester. It was announced late yesterday by Coach Sammy Massey. The rest of the lineup is more or less uncertain as yet. However, fans may rest assured there will be a strong competition on the field for Manchester.

AMERICANS SHOULD WIN FROM CANADA

No Women or Stowaways This Time; 59 Men and a Gorilla on Board; To Start at Early Hour.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 14.—For the first time since 1914 and Johnston were more than just a couple of names in the city directory, Americans are making their bid for the Davis Cup with a bevy of juveniles, beginning on Thursday at Montreal, and somehow an air of vague disquiet has become associated with the venture. Frankly, a lot of people are imbued with the notion that America, almost perennial custodian of the trophy until two years ago, is due to be given the bum's billiard, so to speak, by Canada in first round this week.

In awed whispers, they are speculating, not about youth being served, but as to how well youth will do the serving when Henessey, Van Ryn and Allison have, at the Canadians; it being the common impression that the international series without the steady influence of Papa Tilden, have over-matched themselves. It even seems to be considered a possibility that George M. Lott, Jr., who is attempting to sustain a lot of education in the mid-west, may find it necessary at the last minute to come galloping up with a reprieve. This is largely a lot of banana dumping.

If form is served in this meeting, America will advance to the second round of the international series without untoward incident and Mr. Lott will do all of his riding this week on a street car. He may be needed this week in Montreal but past performances say that he shouldn't be.

We have had these Canadians down here before in our national championship and they never got by the early rounds. Indeed Dr. Jack Wright and Willard Crocker, their best, have been playing international tennis for years and, as it comes to memory, neither of them ever has beaten a top ranking player.

Would I say that Johnny Henessey qualified in that class? I would and do. His Davis Cup record last year, in which he was undefeated in the singles up to the moment he met Cochet and La Coste in the challenge round, clearly establishes his status in this respect. He lost to the two Frenchmen. But who doesn't? Besides, it takes a man to beat Cochet and DeMourpurg, the Italian, and Henessey did that.

Why, therefore, worry about his chances with Crocker, Wright and Jack Rainville, the Canadians? He might lose to them but he shouldn't and a guess like this is all you can ask of any competition. It was only a few months ago, in fact, that Henessey and Van Ryn defeated Crocker and Wright in the doubles final at Pinehurst and it is a matter of record that none of them can be expected to win a title at the Carolina resort or at the tournament at White Sulphur Springs. As a matter of fact, the Canadians would be flattered to learn that we think so well of them. I suspect they don't think so highly of themselves.

AFTER RASSLING TITLE AGAIN!

Joe Stecher, three times the world's heavyweight wrestling champion, has his farm near Dodge, Neb. He thinks that he can win the title again from Gus Sonnenberg, who beat Stranger Lewis with a flying football tackle. Above, left, Stecher is shown in one of his training stunts. He is breaking a sack of grain with the body scissors hold, he made famous. Below he is shown using the same hold on a large hog. In the upper right he is shown practicing a defense against the flying tackle of the former Dartmouth football star, Tony Stecher's brother and trainer, in doing the tackling.

Sonnenberg Called Easy For Experienced Wrestler

By HENRY L. FARRELL

When Der Gus Sonnenberg made a flying football tackle and dropped Stranger Lewis for the loss of his heavyweight wrestling championship, few of the rasslers did not ridicule his pretensions to be classed as a real rassler.

It was said that he was a clown wrestler and that he didn't know any "holds." It was also said in whispers that Lewis had held the title as long as the union rules would permit.

The veteran coach of wrestling at a middle-western college said that even with the load of all his years as a handicap he could throw Sonnenberg and that he knew two or three novices who had thrown the new champion all over the beach when he was serving one summer as a life guard at a bathing beach.

The lack of regard in which Sonnenberg was held in the profession inspired all the old-timers to come out of retirement or out of the woods and go after the new champion.

The old-timers weren't so keen about the headlock of Lewis but they looked at Sonnenberg with the thought—"Here is the guy that can be taken by a smart rassler."

One of the veterans who had that thought was Joe Stecher, three times the heavyweight champion and the man who made famous the body scissors hold.

Stecher, who retired from the business with about a half million dollars, read the papers on his 230-acre farm near Dodge, Nebraska. He also saw the pictures showing Sonnenberg making the flying tackle which tossed Lewis for ten yards and he called his brother, Tony.

Tony was his manager and trainer during the period when Joe was really the greatest wrestler in the world and in recent years he has been working a farm adjoining that of his brother.

"We're going back to work," Joe said. "This Sonnenberg is a cinch." And the brothers went back into training.

Tony had to learn how to make the flying football tackle which Sonnenberg has used in all his successful matches and they worked on it for hours.

Stecher lost two falls to Stranger Lewis in his first comeback match, but he may have expected to. Lewis isn't being thrown every night and a man who had been hardly could expect to beat a man of Lewis' ability.

The point is that few of the veteran rasslers had any idea of beating the Stranger when he was holding the title but they all think they can beat the former Dartmouth football player, now holds the title.

Even Jack Dempsey thinks he could beat Sonnenberg. Dempsey always did think that he could have become the wrestling champion if he had been given the chance.

"I think I could beat that Sonnenberg," Dempsey said down in Miami Beach during the winter. "I'd hook him when he came flying in like that or I'd sidestep him. Anything goes in that racket, I guess."

GLENNA COLLETT AGAIN IS VICTOR

Trims M. Bryant 3 and 2 in Second Round Although Playing Poorly in High Wind.

By F. A. WRAY

St. Andrew's, Fifo, Scotland, May 14.—Miss Glenna Collett, American National title holder, has won the United States invasion in the British Ladies Open Golf Championship, scored her second victory of the tournament here today by defeating Miss M. Bryant of Ashford, three up and two to play.

Although only one up at the end of the first nine, Miss Collett forged far ahead of her opponent after the turn and won the match easily. The game was played against a high wind which bothered the American player considerably, and her golf was not as brilliant as that she showed yesterday when she defeated Miss Marjorie White five up and three to play.

Glenna's greatest trouble today was on the greens. Her putting was erratic, and she missed a number of four and five foot putts that should have been easy for the American champion.

The full cards follow:
Miss Collett: 48-49-50-51-52-53-54-55-56-57-58-59-60-61-62-63-64-65-66-67-68-69-70-71-72-73-74-75-76-77-78-79-80-81-82-83-84-85-86-87-88-89-90-91-92-93-94-95-96-97-98-99-100-101-102-103-104-105-106-107-108-109-110-111-112-113-114-115-116-117-118-119-120-121-122-123-124-125-126-127-128-129-130-131-132-133-134-135-136-137-138-139-140-141-142-143-144-145-146-147-148-149-150-151-152-153-154-155-156-157-158-159-160-161-162-163-164-165-166-167-168-169-170-171-172-173-174-175-176-177-178-179-180-181-182-183-184-185-186-187-188-189-190-191-192-193-194-195-196-197-198-199-200-201-202-203-204-205-206-207-208-209-210-211-212-213-214-215-216-217-218-219-220-221-222-223-224-225-226-227-228-229-230-231-232-233-234-235-236-237-238-239-240-241-242-243-244-245-246-247-248-249-250-251-252-253-254-255-256-257-258-259-260-261-262-263-264-265-266-267-268-269-270-271-272-273-274-275-276-277-278-279-280-281-282-283-284-285-286-287-288-289-290-291-292-293-294-295-296-297-298-299-300-301-302-303-304-305-306-307-308-309-310-311-312-313-314-315-316-317-318-319-320-321-322-323-324-325-326-327-328-329-330-331-332-333-334-335-336-337-338-339-340-341-342-343-344-345-346-347-348-349-350-351-352-353-354-355-356-357-358-359-360-361-362-363-364-365-366-367-368-369-370-371-372-373-374-375-376-377-378-379-380-381-382-383-384-385-386-387-388-389-390-391-392-393-394-395-396-397-398-399-400-401-402-403-404-405-406-407-408-409-410-411-412-413-414-415-416-417-418-419-420-421-422-423-424-425-426-427-428-429-430-431-432-433-434-435-436-437-438-439-440

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

Most girls like fancy work, if it's the weaving of romances.

SENSE and NONSENSE

"I bet her she would marry me," confessed Ray, "and she called my bet and raised me five."

His Present. It was a slovenly but kind-hearted home, and the family were gathered about the supper table.

"It says here in the paper that Dr. Brown is a pathologist. What's that mean, pa?"

"My girl," said the Manchester clerk, "is a decided blonde."

Harold: Ouch! I bumped my crazy bone!

Greene: So you're paying all-mony now?

City life has its advantages says Billy, in a hick town, somebody you owe always passes by while you're having the tank filled.

Present day people prefer Henry Ford's gospel of spending and using to Benjamin Franklin's of saving and having.

"After the five day week, what?" asks an exchange. Why, the two day loaf of course.

LETTER GOLF

GOLF ON HORSEBACK. All you need in letter golf to form a real wild west POSSE is one HORSE. It's a tricky par four and one solution is on another page.

Letter grid for 'HORSE' and 'POSSE'.

THE RULES. 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

Some observe that few women can stand to let the rest of the world go by without doing a little buying themselves.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

A QUESTION OF TIME.

Cooking meat in boiling water is one of the oldest of all devices in the preparation of foods. There is a tradition that the first of all cooking was accidental, when a primitive man's shack burned down and a pig that lived under it was roasted. The man was removing the carcass, afterward, and got some of the grease on his hands. He licked it off to clean it, like a cat—and got the savor of roast pork. But anyhow boiling came next, that's a sure thing. And a wonderful good kind of cooking it is. But nobody has ever yet discovered a way of hurrying it. You can't get boiling water above a certain temperature to save you, no matter how hot the flame under it. Time is essential for proper boiling results.

Today Pinehurst is recommending some beautiful cuts of Pinehurst quality Corned Beef. That means PERFECT Corned Beef—lean as lean can be if you want it that way; nicely mixed fat and lean if you want that. Also a lot of most excellent Soup Bones with plenty of meat on them; and Duro Bones for Soup Stock at 3 cents a pound.

All these are Boiling propositions. You want them EARLY IN THE MORNING in order to allow plenty of that essential TIME. You can have them ever so early. If you'll only ORDER them early.

Give us a call on the phone—the number is 2000—and you can have them just as early tomorrow morning as you can receive them. How's that? That's Pinehurst's service.
