

VOEGLER QUILTS; PARIS PARLEY MAY BREAK UP

One of Principal Members of German Delegation to Debt Conference Resigns; Crisis Imminent.

Berlin, May 23.—Dr. Albert Voegler, secretary of the German Federation of Industries, today officially announced his resignation from the German committee of the conference of reparations experts in Paris.

Paris, May 23.—With official announcement from Berlin of the resignation of Dr. Albert Voegler, one of the principal members of the German delegation, the conference of reparations experts today faced a crisis which may result in a complete breakdown.

Optimistic spirits around the council table are hopeful that a breakdown may be avoided by judicious handling of the situation, but it now appears certain that the best which can be hoped for is a prolonged negotiation, instead of the speedy settlement of the vexing problem which was hoped for.

His Successor

Dr. Voegler's position, on the German delegation is expected to be taken by Dr. Ludwig Kaas, secretary of the German Federation of Industries. Dr. Voegler left Paris a few days ago, after expressing himself thoroughly dissatisfied with the progress of the conference.

The burden of the whole problem, it appears, will fall upon the United States, as Germany considers the reservations made by the creditor nations to their conditions on acceptance of the American compromise plan almost totally inacceptable on at least four points.

No Compromise

They indicate they will make no compromise to save the situation, and it is expected they will ask the American delegates, Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan, to induce the Allies to accept the conditions under which the conference is to be deemed to have failed.

However, the allied memorandum

MACHINES TO TAKE WORKERS' PLACES

Son of Famous Inventor Pre- dicts What Will Happen in Near Future.

West Orange, N. J., May 23.—"I think automatic machines will replace more and more unskilled workers in the factories of America as time goes on."

"The machine age in industry has hardly started. In my opinion the time is coming when one highly-skilled, highly paid man will do the work that is now being performed by half a dozen 'human robots.' This will bring about increased production at a lower cost, help business and raise the standards and provide better opportunities for the American workingman."

Charles Edison, 33-year-old president of the Thomas A. Edison Industries, and son of the world-famed inventor, made these assertions in an exclusive interview with International News Service in his private office in the Edison plant here today.

Not Perfect Yet

"We are now seeing the day of the semi-automatic labor-saving machine," Mr. Edison explained. "These machines are all right as far as they go but they do not go far enough. They were designed to increase production and bring the cost of labor down. What they have done is to provide a vast army of men with jobs that require absolutely no thinking on their part. They are Robots. They simply go through the motions of feeding the machine that they man."

"This development of the non-thinking employes has brought about a distinctly bad social problem. We have too many non-thinkers making motions with their hands before machines."

Need Brains Men

"We should not stop with the semi-automatic machines in our factories. We should design a machine that will do the whole business, or nearly all of it. That is, a machine that would result in one highly-skilled and highly-paid man doing the work of a half dozen of the present-day Robots. This man would use his brains and would not be tied to the machine. He would be sort of a supervisor. He would be putting his brains into the business."

Edison pointed out that before the present industrial age, or machine age, this country had many artisans. They did not produce rapidly but they were intelligent

SITS FOUR DAYS ATOP POST HOLE

Boston, May 23.—Mrs. Mary Freeman Fitzpatrick, Dorchester's "Joan of Arc," today continued to sit atop a post hole dug in front of her home by the telephone company, stating she would carry her fight to prevent the erection of the pole to the Superior Court.

She was not fatigued by her all-night vigil, the fourth in as many nights. Like on the other three nights, Mrs. Fitzpatrick was given relief by her mother and others and took her meals while standing guard.

RESERVE BANK RATE INCREASE NEARLY CERTAIN

Financial Experts Predict It Will Go to Six Per Cent Late Today—Stock Mar- ket Overweighted.

Washington, May 23.—With a billion dollars coming out of the Stock Market in the next thirty days to finance new stock issues and with the market characterized by government authorities here as "overweighted" through the necessity of absorbing these securities, an increase of rediscount rates of Reserve banks seemed inevitable today.

Experts closely in touch with the situation said they would be greatly surprised if the New York bank did not come forward with an application for an increase of six per cent after its meeting this afternoon.

What the Federal Reserve Board will do was not disclosed but the consensus is that it will approve the application and put the rediscount rates more in harmony with the commercial and speculative costs of money, either immediately or within a few days.

Supply Short

Officials frankly admitted that if the rediscount rates are increased, commerce and industry will have to stand stiffer prices for money, because the supply is not great enough to meet current requirements at low rates. It was further declared that the board may logically increase the rediscount rates to put them in harmony with the commercial figures.

Discussing the break in the market yesterday, an eminent authority said:

"The market break was the result of a number of factors. While uncertainty as to the rate situation and other future developments has much to do with the release, I should say that the main factor is that the Stock Market is overweighted and has too much to absorb. In the last month or so there have been many stock dividends declared. The Steel Corporation

BROKERS FEARFUL OF RATE RAISE

Expect New York Reserve Bank Will Apply Today for an Increase.

Washington, May 23.—Attention of financiers, investors and speculators was centered on the Federal Reserve Board today in view of the probability that the powerful New York Reserve Bank would make application for an increase in its rediscount rate to six per cent shortly after the market closed.

The board already is believed to have before it an application for an increase from five to six per cent in the Boston rate, while it is regarded as a foregone conclusion that the Chicago institution will make a similar application following the meeting of its directorate tomorrow.

This is the procession which usually leads the move to higher rates—New York, Chicago and Boston.

Governor Roy A. Young will call the reserve board into session sometime today. It is understood that Governor George L. Harrison of the New York bank, informed Young yesterday as to the probable action of the New York bank and that a policy as to the future already has been worked out.

With the sharp break in the Stock Market yesterday as a result of the recommendation of the Federal Advisory Council that rates be increased to the highest level in years, it appeared certain that brokers loans to be announced at three o'clock this afternoon, would decline.

ENGLISH HAVE "IT", SAYS ELINOR GLYN

Found More Frequently in Englishmen Than in Any Other Race in World.

London, May 23.—English women have "it"—but Englishmen possess "it" even more strongly than the womenfolk, according to the highest authority and originator of the term "it" to describe personal magnetism—Elinor Glyn, who has returned to London after two years in the United States.

"It" is that mysterious quality of personal magnetism for which every woman sighs, is found more frequently in Englishmen than in any other race in the world," declared Mrs. Glyn in an interview with International News Service.

"Englishmen are not self-conscious. Self-consciousness and 'it' cannot exist together. As soon as you think you have 'it' you have not got it."

Superior to Women.

"Englishmen, as a nation, really and solemnly believe in their heart of hearts that they are superior to women and to all other living creatures; and women, in their heart of hearts, believe it, too."

Comparing the possession of "it" between American and English women, Mrs. Glyn said:

"English women? Well, four girls in every thousand may have 'it.'"

"REAL" DAUGHTERS TABLETS UNVEILED

Orford Parish Chapter, D. A. R., Recognizes Graves of Three Actual Daughters.

Yesterday afternoon a large number of members of Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution gathered in East cemetery for the dedicatory services connected with the unveiling of bronze tablets affixed to the monuments of Miss Harriet Hollister and her sister Mrs. Mary H. Pitkin. Many relatives of these Real Daughters and interested friends were also present.

The following program was rendered at each monument: Introductory remarks, Mrs. Lucius M. Foster, regent; biographical sketch, Mrs. J. M. Williams, historian; dedicatory address, Mrs. J. P. Cheney, chairman of Tablet committee; unveiling of tablet, by Ruth McManamy, a descendant of the Hollister family, assisted by Mrs. Angelina Loring Avery, nearly 90 years old, of Willimantic. Mrs. Avery is the only Connecticut "Real Daughter" living; singing of America by High school quartet, Faith Carter, Theims Carr, Julia May Shaw and Olive Smith. Taps were sounded by Lillian Schiebel, Girl Scout bugler. Flag bearers were Mrs. H. A. Cook, flag committee and Mrs. Thomas Lewis, vice-regent.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock at the monument of Miss Harriet Hollister and was repeated at Mrs. Pitkin's grave. The bronze tablet was 8 by 12 inches and read as follows:

Real Daughter
HARRIET HOLLISTER
This tablet placed by Orford Parish Chapter
D. A. R. 1929.

The insignia of the organization, a wheel and distaff, was stamped on the top left corner of the tablet. The Address

The dedicatory address followed: "We unveil this marker for the grave of Miss Harriet Hollister, a Real Daughter of the American Revolution. We so mark this grave to express our loving memory of her, to honor her patriot father, who fought for American freedom and the establishment of our great Republic, and to honor through her and through him, all those heroic men and women whose courage and

AVIATORS DEMAND "A LITTLE SERVICE."

Found More Frequently in Englishmen Than in Any Other Race in World.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., May 23.—Viola Gentry, Long Island aviatrix, appeared at the flying field here today in a new role—that of cook for the three flyers who are attempting to set a new endurance record in their plane, "The Three Musketeers."

The birdmen, looking through the windows of their ship, watched Miss Gentry as she made coffee, boiled eggs and toasted bread.

The preparation of Miss Gentry's first meal was interrupted by a note dropped from the plane in which the flyers demanded "a little service."

BARRYMORE'S EX-WIFE WEDS N. Y. LAWYER

London, May 23.—Mrs. John Barrymore, divorced wife of the noted American stage and film star, who is better known under her name of "Michael Strange," was married here this afternoon to Harrison Tweed, a New York lawyer.

The ceremony, which was very quiet, took place at the Kensington register's office.

Mrs. Barrymore gave her name as Mrs. Blanche Blythe.

Only a few persons witnessed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Tweed did not divulge their honeymoon plans.

The bride was divorced from Barrymore in New York almost a year ago. It is understood that she and Tweed were friends of old standing.

Barrymore, after the divorce, married Dolores Costello, Hollywood star.

Clergyman Halts Play Because "Hell" Is Used

Danbury, Conn., May 23.—Rev. Charles S. Gray, a local Methodist minister, furnished an unexpected interlude to a play being given here by the Norwalk Y. M. C. A. under direction of Rev. Carl Legge, of Wilton, last evening, when Gray jumped to his feet in the middle of the play and shouted:

"Out those dams and 'hells.' This is no place for a Christian minister."

The audience of more than a thousand people went into an uproar. J. B. Lambertson, secretary of the county Y. M. C. A., took charge of the situation. He called in Rev. Legge to explain. The Wilton minister announced that the com-

ORDER REPORTERS OFF SENATE FLOOR

News Leaked Out of Secret Session and Senators Are Angry Over Fact.

Washington, May 23.—An amendment to Senate rules, allowing representatives of International News Service, the Associated Press, the United Press and Universal Service privileges of the Senate floor, was introduced this afternoon by Senator La Follette (R) of Wisconsin.

The proposed rule was referred to the Senate rules committee, which yesterday ordered representatives of the United Press barred from the floor. All other news service representatives were barred subsequently when La Follette raised a point of order that the rules did not permit their presence.

Washington, May 23.—Abolition of the ancient custom of holding secret sessions of the Senate to consider presidential nominations seemed probable today as the warfare between Senatorial groups boiled merrily on.

A poll by International News Service disclosed that a majority of Senators favor throwing all sessions of the Senate open to the public, except in comparatively rare instances where the foreign relations of the United States might be embarrassed by public disclosure.

Meanwhile, as the controversy raged, all newspaper correspondents were barred from the Senate floor today as a direct outgrowth of the publication of the Senate's roll call on the nomination of Irvine L. Lenroot. The Senate found itself in the somewhat ridiculous position of disciplining newspaper reporters for printing what members of the Senate told them about the Lenroot vote.

The Senate will go through the motions of endeavoring to learn the identity of the Senators who violated their oaths of office by revealing what went on behind the closed doors of the Senate Chamber, but everyone on Capitol Hill today predicted it would come to nothing.

The rules provide that a Senator may be expelled for revealing the secrets of an executive session. Yet from time immemorial the happenings behind closed doors have been duly chronicled in the newspapers. Nothing has ever been done about it, and in all probability nothing would have been done about it at this time had not one of its transgressors sought to capitalize its transgression of the Senate rules for promotional purposes.

Very few Senators have ever objected to the publication of the events of an executive session. The rules committee, however, felt compelled to take cognizance of one news service seeking to "make a virtue" of its violation of the rules.

Most newspapers published last Saturday the salient features of the Lenroot vote—the fact that nine Democrats took their Brookhart (R) of Iowa, was one of the few Republican insurgents who voted for confirmation.

Senatorial ire was not aroused until a Washington tabloid disclosed in screaming headlines that by the death-defying enterprise of its correspondent it was able to publish the roll call. That irked Senatorial sensibilities, and forced the rules committee to take cognizance of the fact that, despite the rules, newspapers were and had been since Lincoln's time published the salient features of the supposedly secret sessions of the Senate.

The offending correspondent was barred from the floor of the Senate, a privilege accorded only to press association correspondents anyway. Subsequently, Senators who are fighting to amend the rules raised a point of order against other press association correspondents being permitted on the floor, with the result that as matters stood today all were barred.

NEW TARIFF BILL AS PARTY MEASURE

Republicans to Disregard Democrats—Plan to Pass It Before June 1.

Washington, May 23.—House Republican leaders today formally proposed that the new Hawley tariff bill be adopted as a party measure and passed in the disregard of the Democratic membership.

The proposal was made at a secret conference of Republicans called to draft a program which will insure passage of the bill in the House before June 1.

The program called for adoption of a special rule which would limit amendments on the floor of the House to the ways and means committee, thereby cutting off a threatened row over the sugar tariff, building material schedules and many others.

Long Conference.

This course was adopted after long negotiations with the "Farm Bloc," the "Sugar Bloc," and other House groups which have banded together to write new increases in tariffs into the bill.

The negotiations with the "Farm Bloc" continued up to the last minute, with prospects that they would result in welding the Republican membership of over 300 into a firmly solid fighting force.

Efforts to settle the sugar tariff fight outside of the conference—or caucus—failed, however, when the "Sugar Bloc" decided to stand pat on the ways and means committee's recommendation for a boost in the world sugar tariff from 2.40 to 3 cents a pound.

Tariff on Hides.

The chief fight of the "Farm Bloc" centered in the closing stages for tariff boosts on live cattle and hides. While members being willing to allow a duty on boots, shoes and leather in order to get the hide tariff.

Rep. Simmons (R) of Nebraska headed these groups. They demanded a rewriting of the live cattle schedule to prevent importation of Canadian "baby beaves." They asked that the tariff on cattle weighing 700 pounds or less be increased from 1 1/2 to 2 cents a pound and over 700 pounds from 2 to 3 cents.

They proposed a 10 per cent duty on hides, and announced they would accept a 15 per cent duty on leather and 20 per cent on boots and shoes.

The ways and means committee, which has been revising the Hawley bill, had made several changes designed to meet other demands of the "Farm Bloc" for increases on butter, casing, aprons, black strap molasses and similar articles.

French Flyers Poised for Flight to Old Orchard, Me., While Americans Await More Favorable Weather Reports—Two Other Aviation Projects Hold the Spotlight Today.

America's thoughts were literally "up in the air" today as four aviation projects held the spotlight of public attention.

At Roosevelt Field, N. Y., the French Canary, huge Benard monoplane in which Jean Assolant, Armeno Loti and Rene Lefevre, hope to fly to their native Paris, was being primed for a hop some time this afternoon. Old Orchard, Me., where better take-off facilities are provided.

Roger Q. Williams and Lewis Yancey are already at Old Orchard with their plane, the "Green flash," which they expect to pilot to Rome in a possible "International air race," with the Frenchmen. Williams and Yancey will start their flight as soon as weather conditions are propitious.

At Fort Worth, Texas, a dispatch today revealed, Pilots Jim Kelley and Reg Robbins were rapidly approaching their 100th hour in the air in their attempt to set a new endurance record. The fliers dropped notes reporting that everything was fine aboard the plane.

After nearly twelve hours of night flying over Long Island, Pilots Lieut. Buddy Clarke, Martin Jensen and William Ullbrecht, who are also trying to set a new endurance record, completed their first pickup of gasoline from a catapult device shortly after dawn today. A note dropped on Roosevelt Field by Jensen informed the ground crew the carburetor leak had been successfully repaired during the night.

CHINA PROSPEROUS TRAVELER ASSERTS

Editor Says Economic Sun is About to Rise—Using American Methods.

New York, May 23.—The economic sun is about to rise for the new China and the strength of its rays will set the Pacific coast on fire with prosperity.

A new-born spirit of democracy blended with American business methods and a diversity of Chinese trade to Pacific coast ports instead of through Europe, was outlined today by R. Cromie, publisher of the Vancouver Sun, who returned with his wife from a trip around the world.

"China is on the verge of a tremendous economic renaissance," said Cromie. "It has become a real democracy and the youth of the land is back of the movement. American business men are aiding the new government in every way and American industry has supplied the power of England and Japan under the old regime."

Unlimited Resources

Cromie pictured China as having unlimited natural resources, pointing out the wide variety of climates it included for varied productivity.

"All China needs is a picture of America to guide it along a similar course," the publisher continued.

"And the new radio service between Shanghai and San Francisco which is scheduled to open within a short time will do this and avert the economic domination of China into the hands of Canada and the United States."

Cromie said that cheap communication was the greatest commercial, spiritual and cultural missionary for a nation, permitting news to flow in quantity.

The publisher also cited the moving picture as a civilization in itself. He said that wherever there was an electric plant in China an American moving picture would be found.

"What China needs is the day-by-day business attitude of America and the day-by-day spiritual progress of America," said Cromie. "And when they get it—they will go like fire."

Baggage-master Finds He Has Chambermaid's Duties Last Few Nights.

During the past two days he has come to the conclusion that certain sections of the waiting stations have been turned into dressing rooms. The night before last he found that some young woman decided to make a change of undergarments, including stockings, in the toilet of the station.

Last night an addition to the clothing line was made by a full set of men's under-clothing, which must be washed and well treated before he will guarantee that they are ready for wear.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Thursday, May 23.

A mystery thriller entitled "Secret Love Letters," will provide suspense in the second of our series of broadcasts of true detective stories that are to be regular Thursday night features of the WABC chain. "Secret Love Letters," which will be on the air at 9 is repeated with all the thrills of a sensational murder case. A musical background will denote change of scene and will give listeners an opportunity to catch their breath between acts. The twenty-third play, opening with the phrase, "The Lord Is My Shepherd, I Shall Not Want," has been interpreted musically by many composers. Some of the best known of these compositions will make up the Mid-week Federation program which will be broadcast by WABC and associated stations at 7. A mixed quartet and vocal soloists will present the numbers. Ballet music from the Kermesse scene in Act II of the opera, "Faust," will be presented. The introduction of the hour of summer music through the WJZ chain at 11. Lucie's Laundries will conduct the string ensemble as it plays the selections.

Wave lengths in meters on left of station, frequency on right. The Times are Eastern Daylight Saving and Eastern Standard. Black-face type indicates best features.

Waits 3 Years to Die, and Is Freed

After being sentenced to hang for murder and waiting three years to die, Mrs. Catherine Cassler, a widow of Chicago, was freed when her case came up for a new trial. One state witness, also accused of a part in the murder, died and Loren Patrick, who is serving a life term for the slaying of William Lindstrom, cabinet-maker, refused to testify against Mrs. Cassler.

AT THE STATE

"No Defense"—"Baby Cyclone"

Tonight only, the State theater is presenting a double feature program of unusual merit. It is indeed, a program that every ardent film enthusiast in Manchester will appreciate.

The first feature will be "No Defense," a Warner Brothers' Vitaphone talking picture co-starring Monte Blue and May McAvoy.

"No Defense" is a thrilling and red-blooded melodrama of the building of a huge railroad project through the heart of the great northwest. The film is made more vivid with the use of Vitaphone, which records all sound and music effects, to say nothing of the parts where the members of the cast are heard speaking their lines.

The companion feature presents Allen Pringle and Lew Cody, the popular comedy team, in their current Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle, "Baby Cyclone."

Tomorrow and Saturday the State will present "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City," one of the greatest comic films of the season. This is the first time that these two famous families will be heard speaking their various parts.

Ties the Score

Because her husband insisted on the extent of locking all the doors and trying to tie her in bed when she wanted to attend her sister's birthday party, Mrs. Eva L. Gwin, above, of San Francisco, was granted a divorce. Score: one tie, one victory.

SURVEY SHOWS NEED OF UNIFORM LAWS

New York—The American Engineering Council is urging the introduction of uniform traffic regulations in every municipality of the United States.

During the past year the council has conducted an extensive survey embracing 35 states. One hundred cities having an aggregate population of more than $3,000,000 were studied. The survey had to do with the practicability of present street traffic signs, signals and markings.

The recommendations to be made as a result by state committees. They already have been formed in 19 states and work is rapidly being completed on the selection of committees in other states.

Speaking of present traffic conditions, President of the Council Arthur W. Berneford says: "In most cities the responsibility is placed upon some branch of the police department. No standard official organization handles questions relating to traffic signs, signals and markings, and this defect is perhaps one of the most serious features of the present condition."

"The density of traffic in many cities emphasizes the need of standardizing traffic signs, signals and markings. In these

YALE SCHOLARSHIP

New Haven, May 22—Captain Harold L. Hemingway, member of a family well known in eastern banking circles, gave his life in France in 1918 to save two wounded members of his infantry company. In his memory today Yale University announced the receipt of a gift of $10,000 to be used for a scholarship in Yale college to be awarded at the discretion of the dean to either a junior or a senior.

Miss M. Louise Hemingway and James S. Hemingway, sister and brother of the soldier, have given the money. The Hemingways have been life-long residents of New Haven. Harold L. Hemingway graduated from Yale in 1914 and entered the banking business here. He went to Plattsburgh, N. Y., where he was given command of K. Company, 14th Infantry, Yankee Division while in France, and participated in many battles from February to October, 1918, when he died. He received the Distinguished Service Medal after death. Captain Hemingway is buried in historic Grove street cemetery here.

Girl Scout News

The members of the executive committee of the Manchester Girl Scout Council are asked to meet at the home of the commissioner, Mrs. Wm. M. Brownell, Friday, May 24, at 2 o'clock.

Memorial Day.

It is hoped that all Manchester Girl Scouts will be prepared to march in the Memorial Day parade on May 30. Have uniforms in good condition and proper shoes and stockings to wear with uniform. This is a patriotic service and Girl Scouts should feel honored to be asked to take part in it.

The Manchester Girl Scouts will hold their annual Review at High School Hall Friday evening, June 7, from 7:30 to 9 o'clock. The program will be:

1. Entrance of Girl Scouts and opening ceremony.
2. Bugle and Drum Corps.
3. "The American Girl," in which each troop will present a department of the national Girl Scout magazine.
4. Songs by all Girl Scouts and by troops.
5. Closing ceremony.

Tickets for the Review will be for sale by all Girl Scouts.

Every Girl Scout is especially asked to be present at the dress rehearsal for the Review. The rehearsal will be held at High School Hall, Saturday afternoon, June 1, beginning promptly at 2 o'clock. Come prepared to spend the afternoon as this will be the only general rehearsal for the Review. Uniforms should be worn and all flags and other equipment should be brought. All Girl Scouts are to go directly to the hall, and not loiter in other parts of the building. The seven American Flag color bearers are asked to meet at the south door of High School hall at 1:50 p. m.

Troop 1.

If pleasant Friday the members of Troop 1 are requested to meet at 3:30 and like to strolling on the parade grounds. They will be met at the school at 4:30. They will be met at the school at 4:30. They will be met at the school at 4:30.

Troop 2.

The girls drilled on songs to be sung at the June Review. Their plays were also rehearsed. Last week Mary E. Holt, Viola Phillips and Ella Peckham passed first class swimming at the Rec. Marie Noonan has passed the tenderfoot test. The girls have been working hard on the plays which will be given Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Manchester Green school. Between the plays there will be dancing.

CAPTAIN KIDD'S DEATH

On May 23, 1701, Captain Kidd, history's most notorious outlaw was executed in London.

Tradition has woven so many fanciful stories about the activities of Captain Kidd that he has become almost a mythical figure. Enough of his life is known, however, to prove false most of the stories told about him. In fact, there is some doubt that he was a pirate at all. He insisted to the end that his activities on the high seas were in the name of the English crown and that he was over valuable treasures to the government, and claimed that they constituted all the profits he had taken, but the rumor began that he had buried vast stores on the southern coast of the United States. His trial was marked by grave injustices.

At one time early in his career the Council of New York awarded him 150 pounds sterling for services rendered to the crown. In 1698 he was appointed by the governor of New York province to assist in suppressing piracy off the coast.

ALL-STEEL BUILT like a SAFE

But two months ago General Electric announced the first ALL-STEEL refrigerator ever built.

The all-steel refrigerator cannot warp. It is strong—built to last. The doors, fitted by hand at the factory, retain their close fit.

The General Electric mechanism is permanently self-oiling, hermetically sealed in a steel casing and mounted up on top, safe from dust and difficulties. Quietly, economically, it constantly maintains the temperature in the refrigerator at several safe degrees below the danger line of 50. It freezes ice cubes rapidly. These six new models are offered at very low prices on conveniently spaced payments. The small family model, at the factory, is priced at $215. Listen in on the General Electric Hour every Saturday, 8 to 9 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, over the N. B. C. network of 43 stations.

SHE ELOPED TO STARDOM!

Running Away With Sister's Sweetheart, at 15, Started Kathryn Crawford Toward Films.

By DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—Because she didn't get along with her step-mother, Kathryn Crawford eloped with her sister's sweetheart when she was only 15. And because she didn't get along with her husband, she left him and went into the show business when she was 17.

Now, four years later, she is a potential screen celebrity if there ever was one. The pretty, brown-eyed Kathryn has been in pictures about nine months and officials at the Universal studio, where she is under contract, already are predicting the sky as her limit.

For a girl of her age, Miss Crawford has about as interesting a story to tell as anyone I have ever had the pleasure of meeting. "My mother and father separated when I was only four years old," is the way she commences her life story. "My mother kept my sister Margaret, who was then six, and myself for three years. Then she became sick and had to be taken to a hospital. We were living in Chicago then. That was the last time I saw my mother and I have not even heard of her since."

"Father took Margaret and me to live with him and his second wife and a short time later we moved to Los Angeles. I didn't get along very well with my step-mother, so when I was 15 I eloped with my sister's sweetheart one night. That ended my career at home—I never have lived there since. I only stayed with my husband about a week and a half. Of course, we never should have been married in the first place, but I didn't love him. He merely was my means of getting away from home."

"One might think that Kathryn's act of running off with her sister's sweetheart would be enough to make them enemies for life. But Margaret didn't seem to mind a bit. In fact, she is the only girl friend Kathryn has today. They live together and are inseparable. The young actress makes no bones about the fact that she doesn't like girls."

"After I left my husband I played small bits in various stock companies on the Pacific coast," she continued. "Then I got a real break and was given the ingenue lead in 'Hit the Deck,' which had a long run in Los Angeles. It was while I was playing that show that I took a screen test and was given a contract at Universal."

ENGLAND ALTERS NAVAL RULES TO PERMIT APPEALS

London.—Determined to avoid a repetition of the Royal Oak incident of April last, when two high officers of the British Navy were court-martialed for criticizing their superior officer, the Admiralty has drawn up new rules giving every officer and man in the Navy, irrespective of rank, the right of appeal to the Admiralty as a final resort in cases of alleged grievance. The affair aboard the Royal Oak created world-wide interest, and ended in Rear-Admiral Collard, the superior officer concerned, being retired, and the captain and commander accused of criticizing him being dismissed their ship and reprimanded.

The new rules contain an echo of the affair in the shape of an ordinance which forbids any officer or other person to make remarks or criticisms of his superiors "which may tend to bring him into contempt."

Put In Writing

The preamble of the Order in which the new rules are embodied says: "Any officer, petty officer, non-commissioned officer or man who thinks he is suffering any personal oppression, injustice or other ill-treatment, or that he is being treated unjustly in any way, may, after due consideration, make complaints in accordance with the following rules, and any other method of seeking redress from superior authority is forbidden."

"If the captain should refuse or be unable to remedy a complaint, the person making it may ask to be allowed to put his complaint in writing. Then the captain is to give the complainant 24 hours to reconsider the matter. The complainant may next address the complaint to the captain in writing. The captain is then to forward it to his superior officer, with his remarks upon."

"If a complainant is not satisfied with the decision given, he may request that his complaint be forwarded to the next superior authority, and finally to the Admiralty."

No Penalty. "No officer, petty officer or man is to be penalized for making a complaint in accordance with these rules."

In the case of a complaint being made by a captain or officer of flag rank, it must be made to his superior officer.

OPERA STAR'S ROMANCE HAS BEEN SHATTERED

Ross, May 23 — Her "love dream" completely shattered, Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, world famous opera singer who at one time was declared the finest coloratura soprano living, barricaded herself in her apartment here today, and came herself to the police, who found her in a state of hysterics. Her romance with a young man, who was one and all even talked about a date yet. We're both too busy with our careers right now."

Kathryn Crawford

Kathryn's chief aim at the present is to find her mother. She believes she is still alive, but she has failed on every attempt to locate her.

Miss Crawford is forging ahead with considerable rapidity since the advent of talking films. Her screen personality and acting ability plus her excellent voice and dancing talent make her a perfect subject for both the camera and microphone. Having just finished playing the leading feminine role in "The Climax," she is now slated to appear as Paul Whiteman's leading lady in his first "squawkie."

kept from her presence, as she made it known that she wished to have nothing to say about the court decree which granted her a legal separation from her husband, Pietro Vernati, who is almost forty years her junior.

And Vernati, who for two years and a half knew the thrill of world fame as the youthful half of this May-December marriage, went back to work in his father's modest shirt-making shop in the Via Nazionale.

He too was reticent to speak of the breakdown of the marriage, and declined to give the reasons for the separation.

"Luisa and myself," he told International News Service, agreed to say nothing of our private affairs."

The separation was granted for incompatibility of temperament and interests.

News of the separation caused a great sensation throughout Italy as did the marriage between the couple. Their wedding, which took place in Florence, was an elaborate and triumphal affair, and almost the entire city went on holiday to witness the marriage of the famous singer, who is now reputed to be over 60, to a comparatively unknown lad of 22.

The boss never asks you to worry and fret. That's your own idea.

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

Stopped One Wheel Noise

When a rear wheel makes a peculiar noise and it is certain that the rim is not to blame it is a good plan to consider the possibility that the brake drum may be scraping along its edge.

This will be indicated by evidence of wear along the edge and will be proof that the wheel sinks too far in on the axle.

A very annoying noise was done away with in one case by a very simple and effective remedy. The repairer cut a piece of brass sheeting and wrapped it around the axle end. When the wheel was put back it could not sink in as far.

This kept the drum from scraping and stopped the noise.

Many Foiled By It

When the radiator heat indicator registers up near the danger point and then suddenly drops it is time to stop and investigate. Most owners think this lowering of the indicator means that the trouble has cleared up and assume it is safe to keep moving. The fact of the matter is the trouble has just begun.

Often when the water gets too hot and boils over enough will syphon out by this process to cause temporary cooling around the neck of the radiator where the indicator takes its reading. For a short while after this process the indications may be to the effect that the engine is running cooler when, in all probability, it is getting ready to overheat in earnest.

Improves Valve Action

If you believe in keeping your old car, but are dissatisfied because you cannot get as much power from it as you think you are entitled to, why not consider the possibility of installing new valve springs?

The old springs are bound to weaken and thus become sluggish in their action. This offsets any advantage which might be gained by keeping the engine in good condition.

For instance, if the valves are sprung the weak springs will keep them from seating tightly. There will be loss of compression even if new piston-rings are used and every attention has been given to the tappet adjustment.

One of the large manufacturers recently succeeded in making his engine turn over an additional 300 revolutions per minute with a wide open throttle, and all he did was use stronger valve springs.

Keep Tire Steps Up

Having the car fall off the jack when changing a rear tire is nothing to be desired in motoring—especially if the upset occurs while the tire and rim are off the wheel.

It happens largely because owners pull on the emergency brake and then find they must release it in order to turn the wheel to a position convenient for removing the tire. Many motorists do not use the emergency brake at all, fearing that in releasing it they may encourage the car to fall off the jack.

It may surprise such motorists to know that the experienced driver keeps the car in gear and the brake set while changing his rear tires. However, he remembers to stop the car in such a way that the tire valve of the flat tire is up top.

Just remembering this simple point saves him a lot of trouble.

Danger From Gas Pipes

Many serious things happen to cars and their owners while the latter are in process of making tests or are applying remedies to lesser troubles.

One such serious trouble can be avoided by remembering never to run the engine while any of the fuel pipes are disconnected.

In cleaning out the gas line between vacuum tank and rear tank, for instance, the owner may decide to run the engine for a few minutes in order to make some change in the carburetor adjustment. So far so good, but suppose the engine should happen to starting?

The disconnected gas line is emitting gas vapor. Nothing may happen, but if something does happen it will be serious.

Worse At Front Wheels

Since four-wheel brakes have come into widespread use motorists have had some new noises to consider. Often these are caused by a little bit of gravel, or a small stone, catching between the brake band and the drum.

Ringed noises, or an alarming scraping sound, may follow. There have been many instances where drivers drove home in fear and trepidation, or went out of their way to find a repair shop.

"Why didn't I have such troubles with the rear brakes before four-wheel brakes came into vogue?" one owner asked.

"That was because the front wheels tip up most of the stones and make a clearer path for the rear ones," he was told.

Also any noises that are in the rear of the car are not so apt to be heard by the driver, just as back seat passengers seldom hear loose tappets or other engine noises.

WOMEN TO ATTEND TEXTILE CONFERENCE

Hartford, May 23 — An invitation has been received by the Connecticut League of Women Voters to attend a Conference on New England Textile Industry Problems at the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration on Tuesday, May 29. The Conference, which has been arranged by the Cambridge League, of Women Voters, will consist of an afternoon session on Restrictive Legislation and an evening session on Progressive Steps in Management.

Robert Amory, vice-president of the Cotton Textile Institute, James M. Landis, Research Professor at Harvard Law School, Nathan Isaacs, Professor of Business Law, Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, Thomas F. McMahon, President, United Textile Workers of America and Frederick S. Blanchard, Merchandise Manager of the Pacific Mills will be the speakers. There will be opportunity for discussion by members of the Conference on such questions as restrictive legislation as an industrial handicap and as a social benefit, where the law restricts co-operation between producers and possibilities for union relations in New England Mills. The public is welcome. Information regarding the registration may be obtained through the Connecticut League of Women Voters, 721 Main street, Hartford.

THURSDAY, MAY 23, 1929 BURSTING BOMBS Physically, though not intellectually, we suspect we are more or less in sympathy with Rev. George Hilton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Huntington, this state, who shudders at the thought of having a Memorial day gathering that part of the Star Spangled Banner which refers to high explosives. The reverend gentleman would like to have eliminated from the anthem, as such, the words "bombs bursting in air."

It would be trite to say that he needn't worry especially about that because almost everybody, by the time he gets to that point in the impossible tune, has either cracked his voice and quit or is singing "tum-tum-tum" for lack of vocabulary. What we are interested in, besides the domineer's failure to offer any substitute words, is his reaction to the thought of the bursting bombs.

Rev. Mr. Hilton evidently experiences, when the dread bombs follow on the heels of the red-garling rockets, the same sort of awful sensation that comes to us when, at the movies, a horrid comedian pretends to be about to fall off a girder or about the forty-ninth story of a skeleton skyscraper.

It makes our tummy flop and cold perspiration seep out of the palms of our hands. It makes our several hairs stand out sideways. It makes us wretchedly uncomfortable and panicky. And yet there is no sense to it, because we should perfectly be willing to buy double price to see that torturosome calf fall off and become a greasespit; nothing imaginable could possibly be too bad to happen to him. The whole reaction is utterly animal—a matter of nerves, tissues, circulation. Intellectually we don't give a hoot about such idiots, whether they fall off or stick on. And we suspect that people who, like Mr. Hilton, are shocked into remembrance by the words of a single measure of the Star Spangled Banner must be suffering from some nervous lesion corresponding to the one that makes us have a cat-stare over the sky-scraper lunatic.

Meantime it strikes us as a bit odd that nobody has yet come to Mr. Hilton's rescue with some words to be substituted by the Huntington assembly for the exploding of bombs. How would it do if we sang: "And the rockets' red glare (sixty-nine cents a pair)" or "And the rockets' red glare showed that I was not there?" Really, we would very much like to help out the Huntington parson, but we realize our inadequacy with regret. Perhaps he had better take a pill.

GAMBLER UNWISELY Rev. Charles S. Gray, a Danbury pastor, would be shocked if someone were to call him a gambler; yet he appears to have played a long shot and lost. He was in the audience when a party of Norwich High School students produced the farce "Seven Chances" in the Danbury High School hall. There is an occasional "Hell" and "Damn!" in the book of the play and the characters used them. Mr. Gray interrupted the play to voice his protest and when answered by the coach with the assurance that the play would be given as written the minister arose, announced that that hall was no place for a Christian and a gentleman, called on all such to leave the place with him and stalked out—alone and amidst the laughter of the audience.

Very unwisely Mr. Gray staked his reputation as a leader and his prestige as a minister, and the wrong number came up. There is not the slightest doubt that had the players substituted "Sheel" for "hell" and "condem" for "damn" the minister would have uttered no remonstrance. Also if he can find any biblical authority for denouncing the terms in question, save by some especially strained construction, he will have to be a busy little finder. The expletives are no worse than a thousand others to which no exception would be taken by the fustiest of purists. If the players had flouted one of the Ten Commandments a sincere religionist might have had reason for such a public outbreak, though the efficacy thereof would have been doubtful, but they did no such thing. As it is, Rev. Mr. Gray has courted and taken an unnecessary licking.

And besides he might have been arrested.

RAILROAD RATES It isn't so difficult to see why the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the railroad valuation case is not likely to be followed by important increases in rates. There seems to be an inclination to make something of a mystery of the reasons underlying President Hoover's expression of opinion that rates are not apt to be affected, and to shake heads in dubious doubt as to the correctness of his belief.

As a matter of fact railroad rates are just about as high as the traffic will bear, right now, and no matter what sort of theoretical basis for the establishment of values may go into effect, the condition will abide that if the roads could be permitted or required to charge more for their services than they are now obtaining the volume of their business will be curtailed and the volume of their income lowered.

A dozen years ago the Supreme Court decision might have shaken the very foundations of business, for it might have resulted in a terrific expansion of transportation costs and had a very serious effect on general prices. But a dozen years ago the automobile truck had not proven its capacity, the passenger bus was in the infant stages of development and water borne interstate transportation had no such intelligent leadership as that of Mr. Hoover. In other words the railroads used to constitute a monopoly; they no longer do so.

Technically, the Supreme Court's decision makes a lot of trouble for the Interstate Commerce Commission. Actually both freight passenger rates will have to be very largely controlled by the extent of the demand for railroad transportation and that is no longer a fixed quantity; it will depend very largely on the attractiveness of the rates.

BELT LINE OPPORTUNITY It is to be hoped that the Connecticut Company, while arranging for the substitution of bus for trolley service on the Croston and Manchester Green lines, will give serious study to the subject of operating the Manchester Green route as a belt line.

There is a large area in the north-east part of the thickly settled area of the town which has never had any sort of public transportation and which could be well served by a belt line arrangement. Providing that the Manchester Green buses, outgoing from Depot Square, follow the same route as the present trolley cars—which seems to be the only likely plan—there would appear to be considerable argument in favor of their continuing on through Woodbridge street and back to the Square that way, instead of back-tracking over the present route. The section that would be served by such a schedule, and which now has no service at all, is a rapidly growing one and already populous. With a regular system of transportation it would soon be more populous.

As a matter of fact it would seem that a glance into the future might result in the Connecticut Company adopting the belt line system for two sections not at present served by the trolleys, the one just mentioned and the other tapping the well-populated area between East Center and Charter Oak streets and east of Main street, utilizing perhaps School, Autumn and Porter streets, returning to the Center through Center street in the direction opposite to that taken by the North End belt line buses.

These services are at least worthy of the close attention of the Connecticut Company's management. GWAY! As was to have been expected, Bishop Cannon has lost no time in starting in to instruct the new Hoover Law Commission as to what it should do and how. The commission must study, not whether the Eighteenth amendment is or is not a course of demoralization and crime, but only how to more strictly enforce its conditions. Bishop Cannon is accustomed to dealing with a lot of small-fry congressmen who are afraid that he can take their jobs away from them. In this present instance he is up against a wholly different proposition, though it is a cut above his intelligence to realize that fact. Mr. Wickersham, Mr. Baker and their associates on the Commission are not small-fry and they are not Congressmen and they are not on this Commission for the sake of the pay because there isn't any pay. The arid bishop cannot boss that crowd around. He can't even make a noise loud enough for them to hear.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOE

After reading yesterday's article you may have come to the conclusion that hysterical patients, seeking sympathy, really try to fool their friends and the doctor, but this is not strictly true. The patient is usually honest. It is true that an hysterical attack often brought on by a morbid craving for sympathy, but the fact of the matter is that the patients usually fool themselves even more than they do others.

That a pelvic congestion is responsible for these cases has been recognized from the earliest times. Even the word "hysteria" comes from the Greek root meaning womb. It is apparent that some congestion always exists in the organ or in the ovaries before the symptoms of hysteria present themselves in men, the congestion may be in the prostate.

This disorder is found most frequently in young women, but may also occur in older women who are either unmarried or unhappily married. The congestion of these organs may be caused by the pressure of prolapsus upon the uterus or by a faulty position of the womb, itself. Constipation may assist, with a constant pressure of packed feces against these delicate organs.

The one fact that stands out above all others is that women who are affected by hysteria are those who have not developed normal functioning of the reproductive organs. This may be due to either physiological or, more often, psychological inhibitions and repressions.

The cure of hysteria with its attendant symptoms depends upon creating a normal circulation of blood and nervous impulses throughout the entire pelvis. Such organs must function properly in the manner intended by nature. Any interference with the natural functioning of the intestines, rectum, bladder, ovaries or womb may lay the foundation of hysteria.

The principal physiotherapy treatments that are serviceable in overcoming this disorder are: Hot sitz baths for fifteen to twenty minutes, rectal dilatation, large enemias to remove colonic pressure, the correction of prolapsus and positive suggestions or instructions to the patient which will result in a more normal emotional viewpoint.

Sometimes a short fruit fast followed by a well balanced diet in which sufficient proteins and the alkaline-forming vegetables are used, is helpful. This should be followed by a general health regime. The patient must be taught to live correctly, to use sufficient daily exercise, breathing, sleep, and correct bathing. The patient should also endeavor to cultivate a better state of mind—calmness, plus self-reliance. If this plan is followed, I feel sure that every case of hysteria can be cured.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Ringworm.) Question: A. V. asm. "Will you kindly tell me through your column

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, May 23.—The organized wet and the organized dry, in their ceaseless battle of propaganda, have got down to the question of the costs and profits of prohibition.

Two demon research directors, Mr. Deets Pickett of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals and Mr. John C. Gebhart of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, have presented their claims. Mr. Pickett's claim is in answer to Mr. Gebhart's figures. Mr. Pickett's estimate of the net profits of prohibition is much larger than Mr. Gebhart's statement of the losses.

Mr. Gebhart has found, by tabulating available figures, that the taxpayers lost last year through prohibition $336,000,000, or something short of a billion.

Mr. Pickett replies that prohibition has saved the American people $8,000,000,000 a year since 1920.

Mr. Gebhart arrives at his figure through adding $36,000,000 as the cost of last year's federal enforcement, $850,000,000 as the loss in federal revenue because of prohibition and $50,000,000 as the loss of state, city and county revenue. He is concerned assumption that 33 states would have been bone dry last year and that there would have been no consumption of liquor in the 19 states which permitted importation of liquor for home use. He has also failed to count in the cost of state and local enforcement. He has furthermore assumed that the 1918 federal liquor taxes would have been maintained.

He mentions the likelihood, however, that the liquor tax rate would have increased considerably and shows that if the excise rates prevailing in England were now in effect in America the estimated American consumption last year would have produced revenue of more than $1,715,000,000.

Mr. Gebhart's figures in some instances depend upon the probabilities, but they are not based on fact. A scrupulous investigator might have undertaken to show that the 1928 loss to the taxpayer was much nearer $2,000,000,000.

the cause for and the cure of ringworm? Will an ointment of ammoniated mercury applied twice daily be effective?"

Answer: The remedy you ask about will be effective in stopping a case of ringworm, but to prevent further trouble it is well to remember that those who are the most subject to such infections as ringworm usually have a systemic acidosis which makes them unusually susceptible. Such acidosis can be cured through using well balanced meals.

(Baby's Diet.) Question: Mrs. R. J. W. writes: "My 6-month-old baby objects to taking orange juice unless it is sweetened. Is this all right? Also, is cod liver oil absolutely necessary for a baby?"

Answer: You should never sweeten the orange juice you give to your baby as it is unnecessary if you use ripe oranges. The cod liver oil is never necessary for a baby if you give him pure Heintz milk with orange juice and, when he begins eating, use plenty of the leafy green vegetables which contain all of the organic salts and vitamins necessary.

(Trembling in Leg.) Question: Mrs. Mary P. writes: "I wish you would tell me what causes my left leg to shake and tremble so— from my ankle up through the leg, into my spine. When I walk around just to do a little housework, it makes me tremble all over?"

Answer: Have an examination made of your lower spine to see whether or not you have a faulty position of the vertebrae. Any osteopath or chiropractor would be qualified, by his training, to make such an examination and give you his opinion.

And in any event, this little skirmish between the rival research directors over dollars and cents does not end conclusively. Arguments between wets and dries never do.

A TASTE OF SOVEREIGNTY

Prince of Wales to Anticipate Future Duties by Receiving "Presentations" This Summer.

By MILTON BRONNER

London.—The Prince of Wales, whose entire life has been a training for the business of being sovereign of the British empire, will get a taste soon of his future duties as king.

This summer, when some scores of American women make their way to Buckingham palace to be presented to royalty, they will be presented to the prince instead.

The illness, which kept King George in the shadow of death for long months last winter has left him weak and in need of an extended rest. As a result, the Prince of Wales will be the one to whom those who are "summoned to their majesties' court," as the expression is, will make their obsequies.

A Complicated Ceremony

Naturally enough, there is a vast amount of ceremony connected with the business of being presented at court.

Perhaps a couple of hundred American women have had this privilege in the last ten years. Nearly all of them have gone through the same experience. Clad in their very best, and seated in their automobiles, those summoned to court have always had a long, dreary wait outside the palace gates. A feature of this wait is the fact that there is always an irreverent crowd of wisecracking Londoners on the sidewalks, making audible comments in such individuals in the party as happen to catch their fancy.

There is, however, another way of being presented to royalty—one accorded only to highly favored persons. It is the privilege of the "Entree"—always spelled with a capital E—and it takes all the long wait and the boredom away from the process.

Some have the privilege of the Entree by reason of their office. It is personally conferred on others by the king himself. All the higher officers of the army, navy and air force have it; so do the higher dignitaries of the Church of England, the cabinet ministers and the prime ministers of the self-governing dominions. A very few women have it; chiefly the widows of such important personages as general, or fortunate ones to whom the favor is extended by the ambassadors, who can confer it on a limited number.

One who has the Entree does not go into the palace with the common throng. He drives up to a great gilded gate, through which only those like himself can pass. Without any waiting, he is ushered into the palace, where he passes up a private staircase and gets a place in the front row in the throne room.

There, promptly at the hour set, enter the king and queen. This summer it will be the Prince of Wales, of course. The master of ceremonies then marshals his corps of 20 assistants, and those with the Entree are promptly presented to royalty.

All of this time, the lesser mortals outside are sitting in their automobiles, enduring the best they can of the witticisms and hoots of the street crowds. Finally, when those with the Entree have left, the others are admitted.

HEBRON

A warning has been posted calling for a town meeting to be held at the town hall, Saturday, May 25, at 2 p. m., standard time. Matters which concern the town to be voted on are the same as it had been planned to consider at the adjourned meeting of last Thursday.

First, to vote on the refunding of the town bonds issued for the construction of the New Haven, Middletown, and Willimantic Railroad Company, becoming due in 1929, and on the question of biennial elections for the town in place of the time honored annual elections.

Mrs. Florence Williams of Vernon Center, her sister, Miss Catherine Smith of Stafford Springs, and Miss Mabel Myers and others also of Stafford Springs, were callers at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. T. D. Martin this week.

Albert Rathbone, Mrs. Etta Rathbone, her daughter, Miss Mildred, and her son Robert, motored to Stafford Springs one day this week where they visited Mrs. Rathbone's niece, Mrs. Raymond Park and family.

Several from this vicinity recently visited the Morgan Memorial in Hartford. Among exhibits of special interest was a collection of old tavern signs, one of these being from the Willard place in Colchester, formerly known as the Deming place. This for a time was used as a tavern. This sign is one of the largest of the exhibit and has a large figure of a galloping horse and chariot and the word "Temperance." A collection of old fashioned women's costumes was also of interest.

Mr. Carr, of Berkeley Divinity School, New Haven, officiated at the morning service at St. Peter's Episcopal Church on Sunday.

Miss Marjory Martin of Dalton, Mass., spent the week-end as the guest of her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. T. D. Martin.

Mrs. Daisy Humphreys and her mother, Mrs. Clara Brown of Hartford are spending the week-ends this spring at their summer home here. Mrs. Brown will occupy the place for the summer a little later in the season.

Mrs. T. D. Martin reports seeing a flock of cedar waxwings in the woods about her place recently. Mrs. Martin has been a close student of bird life for years and says that she has never seen waxwings in a flock before. "They are rather a rare bird place formerly known as the David Strong farm.

A threatening thunder storm occurred here Sunday in mid-afternoon. The heavy clouds produced a darkness almost like that of evening, but the actual electrical disturbance following was not so violent as indicated. A good deal of rain fell.

Charles M. Ams and his brother, Emil Ams, of Felham, N. Y., also Mr. Ams' brother-in-law, John Nonnenbacher, of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent a day or two at the Ams place in Amston recently.

Mr. Ams plans to begin building a residence in the Amston within the next two weeks.

The Rev. T. D. Martin was present on Tuesday at the diocesan convention of the Protestant Episcopal church, held in Bridgeport at St. John's church. Mr. Martin will also be present at the diocesan dinner given Tuesday evening at Hotel Stratfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson Bajley and son, Clarkson, Jr., were guests during the week-end of Mr. Bajley's brother, B. E. Bajley, in South Norwalk.

Fitch N. Jones and Elmer Lord are on a cattle buying expedition in Maine and New Hampshire. They expect to ship back two carloads of cows.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. White of New Haven spent the week-end with their aunts, Mrs. Amanda Potter and Miss Adelle White at their home on Burroughs Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis White of Whitinsville, Mass., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hawley White for one week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Allyn of Hartford were at their cottage on Burroughs Hill Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Ellen M. Jones who teaches in Middletown spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones.

Miss Charlotte S. Hall, and Miss Jessie L. Kennicott of Hartford were dinner guests on Sunday of Mrs. Helen White and Miss Daisy White. Miss Kennicott is a teacher in the West Middle District in Hartford.

Mrs. F. Hilton Post has returned to her home after spending several weeks at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Mitchell, while recovering from an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Mitchell accompanied her niece to her home and spent two days with her this week.

Members of the Girls' 4-H sewing club enjoyed a picnic at the camp ground cottage summer home of their leader, Mrs. Allen W. H. Sterry, in Willimantic, recently. The Misses Marion and Barbara Tennant, who are members of the club, remained over the week-end as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sterry.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tennant, and Mr. and Mrs. Randall Tennant were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Kelsey in Montville.

Members of the boys' and girls' 4-H Club to the number of twelve hung a Maybasket to one of the members, Miss Marion Tennant, a few nights ago. They were invited in and enjoyed a social hour.

GEAR SHIFTED BY ELECTRICITY

Paris.—Electricity is doing the gear shifting in some cars manufactured here. The Gotal gear box, recently developed and proved practical, is the little machine that's doing the shifting.

It is operated by a lever attached just below the steering wheel. At different positions the lever, by means of electro magnets in the gear box, shifts from first to second to high. The only use of the clutch is made on starting the car in first gear. Thereafter the gears can be shifted without disengaging the clutch.

PIT HAND

When Louis Chiron, premier French race driver, speeds around the race track at the Indianapolis Speedway, May 30, his official timer will be the first woman ever to enter the racing pits. She is Mrs. Alice Hoffman-Trobeck, wife of a French spark plug manufacturer and herself an American by birth. She is shown here timing Chiron during a test run.

How She Hides Her Lubrication

Many a car that is found hard to drive and ride may still have a perfectly operating engine. The trouble in such event may be found in the tires, the wheels, the springs and the frame itself.

The entire difficulty may be attributed to one fault—lack of attention on the part of the driver to features of the automobile that require regular care and consideration. They are small matters in themselves, but accumulating, as they will, they wind up in making riding and driving quite uncomfortable and even dangerous.

Let us take the matter of tires first. For these a tire gauge is an indispensable part of the motorist's equipment. With it he should check the pressure of each tire once a week, in conformity with that set by the manufacturer.

Tire pressure maintained weekly as advised by the car builder will insure longer life for the tires and constant ease in riding. Punctures will be less possible when the tires run under their stipulated pressures.

If a tire is inflated by guess-work, most likely than not they will be filled with more air than is needed. These balloon tires are deceiving and a kick of the foot cannot tell whether they are properly inflated. If they have too much pressure in them their thin walls are quite liable to puncture and blow out when they happen to strike a sharp stone or curb.

If the tires are underinflated they will make steering difficult, result in shimmy at high speeds and thus endanger the occupants of the car, especially if the road is wet.

The wheels should be checked regularly for alignment, not only for the safety of the occupants but for the economy gained from properly aligned wheels. Misaligned wheels cause undue wear on the tires and are especially hard on the bearings. They result from loosening at the hub and that means loosening of the wheel bearings.

The wheels, therefore, should be tightened up and aligned regularly to prevent wobbling and perhaps eventually a crack or break in the axle.

It is important that the various joints about the chassis be lubricated regularly. Greasing the chassis and springs results not only in easier riding but helps lengthen the life of the car. A rusty, unattended chassis is dangerous. An important part may break while the car is going at a fast speed and cause the car to swerve to destruction.

The spring shackles especially should be kept well lubricated, for if these "freeze" for lack of lubrication they are more liable to break. Let the car take a severe bump at a considerable speed, and the shackles may break and endanger the lives of the occupants.

HINTS ON DRIVING OVER MOUNTAINS.

Los Angeles.—In the interest of safety, the Automobile Club of California has issued the following advice to motorists traveling in hilly country: "Shift gears at bottom of hill before starting up; use second or first going down a hill and let compression hold you back; in parking the car upgrade engage low gear and on downgrade reverse gear; don't coast down hill in neutral; never pass cars on turns and when rounding turns sound your horn."

TEN YEARS BEHIND

Motor vehicle registration outside of the United States now is 7,388,000 units, compared with 7,588,000 units registered in this country in 1919, according to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Lots of people have been waiting eagerly for the first article by Al Smith, to see whether or not he puts that extra "d" in radio.

MOTORISTS' PARADISE

Arabia, largest peninsula in the world, has less than 2000 automobiles, according to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The tree-frog has the power of changing color to resemble more closely the surface upon which it desires to be inconspicuous. It can change from a dark hue to a light one in about 20 minutes.

SHOULD WORK WELL

German motorists are using gasoline mixed with alcohol to good advantage, it is reported. The mixture consists of adding 25 to 35 per cent absolute alcohol to the gasoline.

"He's as much of a snob as Irish," Nan told herself contemptuously.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
NAN CARROLL, for three years secretary to ATTORNEY JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, is happy in her work and in her prospects for soon passing the bar examinations. The only discordant note in her days is the insolence of IRIS MORGAN, beautiful and selfish wife of Morgan, who treats Nan as if she were a mental and a servant.

Because of her brilliant mind, Nan is able to help Morgan with his cases and he depends on her. When WILLIS TODD, an ardent suitor of Nan's, proposes marriage to her for the fifth time, she refuses, saying she cannot give up her position. Willis, jealous, accuses her of being in love with Morgan and Nan, stung by his words, is at last forced to admit to herself that she is in love with Morgan.

Being honorable and "square as a man," she despises herself for being in love with another woman's husband and determines to turn in her resignation the next morning. At the office she finds a blackmail note warning Morgan to stop his enemies of Grace Cox, former telephone operator of a fashionable country club, and whom Morgan is now defending. A postscript to the note contains a nasty insinuation about Iris Morgan.

There is no opportunity in the busy morning for her to turn in her resignation. When the transcript of the case arrives, Nan scans it studiously for some clue that might lead to the real truth in the Cox case. She finds it—in a few words which send her flying to locate ANNIE CRAYFISH, former maid in the country club. Annie admits to Nan that a MRS. FLEMING sent her (Annie) west because Annie had seen her writing a suspicious note with her left hand. Nan believes she has run down the truth at last and pleads with Annie to rush with her to the courthouse to tell what she knows about Mrs. Fleming, thus saving Grace Cox and winning another victory for John Curtis Morgan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY. CHAPTER VI

In less than two hours it was all over; the sensational Grace Cox blackmailing case had come to a sudden and dramatic end, with John Curtis Morgan the undisputed hero of the superb last act of the drama, and humble Annie Crayfish its heroine. For Annie had testified simply, convincingly and unshakably to the facts which she had previously told Nan Carroll, and Martha Fleming, pseudo-society woman and adventuress, had collapsed into a snivelling confession almost as soon as Morgan had put her upon the stand which Annie Crayfish has just vacated. Grace Cox was free, or would be as soon as red tape had been cut, for District Attorney Brainerd, confronted with Annie Crayfish's testimony and Mrs. Fleming's own confession, had been forced to ask the court to dismiss the indictment against the hysterically happy telephone operator.

Nan Carroll received and desired none of the congratulations which were being showered upon John Curtis Morgan. No one but Morgan himself knew that it was his private secretary who had discovered and brought Annie Crayfish into court, and it was Nan herself who had insisted that her part in the drama be kept a secret.

"Don't dare tell the press how we got hold of Annie Crayfish," she had whispered urgently to Morgan when she had turned her witness over to him. "Remember the papers are going to call you the greatest criminal lawyer and they mustn't get an inkling that accident and luck had anything to do with it. And I was working under your orders, wasn't I? Hadn't you told me to go over the transcript of the case? You had a hunch, and you let me play it—that's all!"

But Nan would not have been human if she had not remained in the background, drinking in every detail of the dramatic triumph which she had helped Morgan achieve.

ing with his mail, would in all probability never know that his peace of mind and the "sanctity" of his home had been threatened.

"Let's get out of this, Nan," Morgan called to her still clustered reporters who were still clustered about him. "I've got a lot of work piled up at the office, boys. Excuse me, won't you?"

Blake, the young lawyer who assisted him with routine work, had already been tapping red tape business connected with obtaining Grace Cox's immediate release from jail, and Nan was helping Morgan pack his brief case when a blithe voice interrupted:

"Hello, Morgan! Been trying to get a word with you, but the newspaper boys had me crowded out. Congratulations, old man! I'd just dropped in to see you strut your stuff, and was lucky enough to be here when you touched off the fireworks. Some show! I'm proud to know you, boy!"

"Thanks, Bert!" Morgan grinned at the amazingly good-looking young man who was slapping his back with jovial good-fellowship. "You're coming out to dinner tonight, Iris tells me. Sort of a celebration for some high-falootin' party you've put over, isn't it? Congratulations right back at you!"

"I'll take a back seat tonight," Bert Crawford laughed, his blue eyes beaming fondly upon his friend. "It's going to be your celebration! By jove, Iris is going to be proud of you—already is, of course!" He turned to Nan, giving her the full benefit of his extraordinary magnetism and vitality.

"Hello, Nan—oi do I have to be formal around the boss and call you Miss Carroll? Well, carrying on of course you and your back, old man. You'd better look out or you'll find yourself minus a secretary."

attended college together. But there was no question now as to the firm place which Bert Crawford had made for himself in the affections of Iris and John Curtis Morgan. The three of them went about together constantly.

Crawford tactfully remained in the outer office with Nan while Morgan talked on the telephone with his wife. The conversation lasted so long that Nan became hoarse with embarrassment, sure that Morgan would emerge finally with the humiliating report that Iris could not after all arrange to have four at a table instead of three.

But Morgan, in his jubilation over his dramatic triumph at the courthouse, must have exercised some of the masterfulness which marked him in the courtroom and in his own office, but to which Iris Morgan was almost a stranger, for when Morgan did rejoin them, his face flushed with the battle he had fought, his words were not a shameful confession of failure:

"My wife is delighted to have you, Nan. Dinner will be at half past seven. You'll bring her, won't you, Bert?"

For a second Bert Crawford hesitated, and Nan saw the color deepen slightly in his pink-and-white cheeks. "Delighted, old man. About seven-fifteen, Nan."

"Please, I'd rather join you both at Mr. Morgan's," Nan answered. "I'm sure you three have a lot to talk over before dinner, and I'll want to arrive at the very last possible minute, if I may. Things to do to my dress," she explained obediently.

"I'd like to see you a minute, Nan," Morgan stopped at her desk after bidding Bert Crawford good-by.

"Now's my time to tell him I'm going to resign," Nan realized, with a dreadful sinking of her heart.

"He's so elated over his victory that my news can't make him terribly unhappy, and since he hasn't any very big case on right now, he can do without me better than at almost any other time. I've got to do it! I can't stay on, knowing that I love him—"

She followed him into his private office, stood trembling before him, trying to make her lips form the words. But he forestalled her:

"I can't begin to thank you, Nan, for what you did today. I might have forced a confession out of Martha Fleming, with what guilt I already had, but your bringing Annie Crayfish into court today was a stroke of genius."

He had already been mentioned in this series that some people believe that a person will lose his strength when his hair is cut; that legend goes back to Samson and Delilah. The vestal virgins of ancient Greece had all of the hair cut from their heads and wore a special veil thereafter, and ailments which are followed in some modern churches.

The hair is also associated with some of the constrictions cures in which a hair taken from the body is tied around a pimple, wart, mole or sty, that if it is desired to have disappear from the body. Actually, there is not the slightest scientific evidence to support any of these notions. They represent the simplest form of symbolic magic, the attempt to conjure on the basis of intimate control of portions of a person's body. The hair cannot influence either health or disease. It is merely an appendage to the human body.

At first it had been enough for her to know that he was an old friend of John Curtis Morgan; she had accepted him simply on that basis. Then it had happened through a chance remark of Morgan's that Morgan had only known Crawford slightly when the two had attended college together. But there was no question now as to the firm place which Bert Crawford had made for himself in the affections of Iris and John Curtis Morgan. The three of them went about together constantly.

YOUR CHILDREN

I suppose you have received the same circular that I have, about President Garfield's story of margins.

It won't hurt to repeat it anyway. As a student he was puzzled because his rival beat him regularly on recitations. "He's no smarter than I am," figured young Garfield, "but he's actually getting better marks."

Then one night he saw his rival's light burning for fifteen minutes after he Garfield had been in bed. "That's his margin!" declared the president-to-be. "Now I see how he does it." And he proceeded to do likewise—and beat him.

"Life," the circular goes on to tell us, "is won by 15-minute margins."

The Old Viewpoint
Twenty, fifteen—ten years ago, I'd have said, "Bravo! Here's another noble example of competition to hold before the young. We certainly must instill this idea of getting ahead into young America. There's nothing like good, healthy competition in sports, studies and business to develop brain and muscle power, character and all other good things in us."

But now, living in the good year 1926, and seeing what present-day competition has done to health and nerves, I have come to believe that this unending struggle that we have instilled into the young, is not such a wonderful thing after all.

The Modern Version
The story about young Garfield up-to-date would probably read this way:

The rival would see that Garfield had caught up. Then he would turn wily and set his alarm clock for 15 minutes earlier in the morning. That handicaps discovered and matched by his opponent, he would start doing without lunches, then dinner, then breakfast, and as his competitor discovered each new "margin" of nervous breakdown, because they are not class leaders, for instance.

Crawford tactfully remained in the outer office with Nan while Morgan talked on the telephone with his wife. The conversation lasted so long that Nan became hoarse with embarrassment, sure that Morgan would emerge finally with the humiliating report that Iris could not after all arrange to have four at a table instead of three.

But Morgan, in his jubilation over his dramatic triumph at the courthouse, must have exercised some of the masterfulness which marked him in the courtroom and in his own office, but to which Iris Morgan was almost a stranger, for when Morgan did rejoin them, his face flushed with the battle he had fought, his words were not a shameful confession of failure:

"My wife is delighted to have you, Nan. Dinner will be at half past seven. You'll bring her, won't you, Bert?"

For a second Bert Crawford hesitated, and Nan saw the color deepen slightly in his pink-and-white cheeks. "Delighted, old man. About seven-fifteen, Nan."

"Please, I'd rather join you both at Mr. Morgan's," Nan answered. "I'm sure you three have a lot to talk over before dinner, and I'll want to arrive at the very last possible minute, if I may. Things to do to my dress," she explained obediently.

Stylish Dainty Paris—New York

WOMAN'S DAY

A tiny one-floor white and green-shuttered Colonial bungalow is being built for the "honeymoon cottage" of Anne Morrow and Charles Lindbergh, who remain, as workmen admit that they have been working for months upon such a cottage on the Maine summer home grounds of Dwight Morrow.

The little cottage is complete in itself with its own boat dock and bathing beach, but is only a few hundred feet from the Morrow home.

Any number of wisecracks will be made, of course, at Lindy's tameness in daring to reside so near his in-laws.

But perhaps Lindy is a bright enough young man to realize, as he has so many fresh husbands, that in-laws are apt to be much more of an asset than a liability.

Dannie learned that Dannie is hero of one of the short stories in Vina Delmar's new collection of shorts called "Loose Ladies." Every Monday Dannie's mother-in-law gave him a $20 bill and a good talking-to because she had to do it. A good front porch or hammock, book, proving again that black is never black and white is never white, and that all the people sufficiently spotted with black to be labeled "loose ladies" are capable of infinite self-sacrifice and other virtues.

Mrs. Betty Ann Wagoner of New Orleans can see for the first time in 48 years. She was born blind and given sight by a miracle of modern science just a few days ago. Now she wants to learn to read. Here is a pretty commentary to the effect that the world is improving. For Mrs. Betty Ann Wagoner was given her sight in a hospital charity ward. If she had been born blind in this age she would know how to read, too. No blind child born today would be permitted to live 48 years without being taught to read.

Here's another woman, Mrs. Rosalind McGinness of Brooklyn, arrested on a charge of speeding and reckless conduct, stopping to call the cop who did the deed "a dirty Irishman" and other choice epithets while she hurried telephone books and everything else within reach at him.

None of "us girls" can deny that we don't take kindly to criticism, from thousands criticizing the set of the hat to policemen daring to accuse us of reckless driving.

On the other hand, none of us can deny that policemen have a little habit of "getting away with murder" and need an occasional rebuke from one or both sexes.

And again they're saying that predetermination of sex before birth is a sure thing in the future, if not now. This time it's Dr. Osborn Riddle of the Carnegie Institute Station for Experimental Evolution who says so.

Here's a warning that not so many mortals will jump out of their skins with glee at the possibility of ordering a boy and being sure they'll get it, or vice versa. It will be just one more complexity in a world already too decision-ridden.

Still, a chapter in Hackett's fascinating "Henry the VIII," a pitiful chapter in which Anne Boleyn presents Henry with a daughter and not a son, rather makes us believe that some people might find the scientific possibility of real value.

In a list of suggestions I found the following: a fire set if she is to have a fireplace in the new home, a leather floor cushion, an iron magazine stand, modernistic pottery, occasional tables or chairs. When money is unlimited imported or handsome American scatter rugs are always a welcome gift and really good pictures.

Honor at last has come to the first militant suffragette, Emmeline Pankhurst, once England's most hated woman, who was driven to America to get money for her battles. The British government is now officially recognizing her greatness in winning the "Votes for Women" crusade begun just 25 years ago. The vote was given to women over 30 in 1918. In May 1928 the franchise was granted to all English women over 21. Mrs. Pankhurst died soon after, June 14, 1928. A memorial fund committee was at once organized and a famous British sculptor given the commission to design a heroic monument, a bronze statue of Mrs. Pankhurst, to be erected on a site chosen by the sovereign. The prime minister himself will unveil it.

Smart new luggage for the bride who is going to Europe or to please nearer home this summer, will "grip" milady's interest. Individual pieces are featherweight practically and are made with round corners for the most part, and introduce many fittings. All of the best leather as well as reptilian skins now go into the best makes of luggage and light colors predominate.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famous Authority

YOUR HAIR MAY FALL OUT, BUT IT CAN'T AFFECT YOUR HEALTH.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

In order to work magic upon another human being, the witch doctor has to have something intimately connected with the person concerned. Therefore, his clothing, his finger nails, his teeth and his hair, which are intimately connected with him, but which may be removed, are most frequently involved in magical procedures.

The negroes of South Africa think that it is possible to produce a fever in a comrade by burning some of the cut off hair. In other portions of Africa it is thought that you can make an enemy suffer a severe headache by burning some of his hair along with his food. On the island of Luang, burning of the hair or of the finger nails with the proper charms may cause the hands to swell.

In other islands of the South Seas some of the man's saliva, along with his hair is wrapped up in a red cloth and sunk in a certain grotto while charms are recited. This causes the evil spirit to come out of the grotto and attack the person from whom the saliva and the hair were taken.

It has already been mentioned in this series that some people believe that a person will lose his strength when his hair is cut; that legend goes back to Samson and Delilah. The vestal virgins of ancient Greece had all of the hair cut from their heads and wore a special veil thereafter, and ailments which are followed in some modern churches.

The hair is also associated with some of the constrictions cures in which a hair taken from the body is tied around a pimple, wart, mole or sty, that if it is desired to have disappear from the body. Actually, there is not the slightest scientific evidence to support any of these notions. They represent the simplest form of symbolic magic, the attempt to conjure on the basis of intimate control of portions of a person's body. The hair cannot influence either health or disease. It is merely an appendage to the human body.

U. S. Coast Guard Team Plays At Mt. Nebo Tonight

Jimmy O'Leary Is Hero As H. S. Beats Meriden

Socks Home Run and Triple In Addition to Playing Great Game Afield; Score 7 to 5.

Manchester High school won its first Central Connecticut Inter-school League baseball game of the season when it turned back Meriden High 7 to 5 at the West Side field yesterday afternoon in a return game, Meriden having won on its own field earlier in the season.

Again yesterday, it looked as though Manchester were going to be defeated but a five-run batfist in the seventh inning staved off impending defeat. Hugh Moriarty was on the mound for Manchester and allowed an even dozen hits. Manchester got the same number.

O'Leary's outstanding performance of the day, however, was contributed by Jimmy O'Leary who is only a Freshman. This slim but peppy young man swatted a home run in the second inning and a triple in the seventh which brought in the tying run, scoring the winning run himself a moment later and also played a bang-up game at third base where he accepted nine out of eleven. He figured in the only double play and also speared two line drives.

Here is what happened in that eventful seventh. Dowd flew out to left. Marcus Moriarty singled and Squatrito was set on a fielder's choice. Lupien and Bycholski singled and Magnuson grounded out. O'Leary hit first. Then came O'Leary's triple, a long fly to center that should have been caught. Tierney hit another to left which was dropped and in came the winning run. Hugh Moriarty singled but Dowd grounded out Petroske to Kearns.

AMERICAN

Local Sport Chatter

Harry E bets was pretty much peeved at the decision against him in the fight with Frankie O'Brien last night. Passing him in the show night afterward, Ebbets said, "Santa Claus was pretty good to you tonight, wasn't he?" As he was leaving, Ebbets remarked, "Don't forget to bring your roll when you come to New York."

Sam Prentice and his Manchester Green contingent also thought Ebbets had won, but it must be borne in mind that they were prejudiced before the start having picked Ebbets to win.

Jimmy O'Leary's home run smash to deep left yesterday in the high school game here entitled him to the fielder's glove offered by Montgomery Ward & Company to the player who hit for the circuit.

In boxing they talk about boxers being glutted for punishment, but consider the case of Cheney Girls baseball team. Beaten something like six or seven times by Manchester Green last year, they are back again with even more pep and confidence than before. They are determined to square accounts with the Green this season. A practice will be held at the West Side tomorrow afternoon.

Joe McCluskey, star miler at the High school here, is planning to enter Fordham after he completes his education at the local school next month.

Mickey Flahive, now of Hartford but originally from Atlanta, Ga., who fought Tony Lucchi last night in Hartford, played football on a school team coached by "Pa" Stripling. He once met "Baby" Stripling in the squared arena and won the decision. Mickey recently had an offer to box Sunny Suggs in New London but refused claiming that he would never be able to return to his home in the south if he fought a colored man.

The High school has a tennis match scheduled for tomorrow afternoon with Bulkeley High and it will be played in Hartford.

Crowd Boos Verdict At Chocolate Bout

Colored Boxer Gets Decision Over La Barba But Walsh Thinks Other Boy Won—White Boy Far Ahead in First Five Rounds and Then Slows Up; Comes Back Strong in Final Stanza.

New York, May 23.—Kid Chocolate either is or is not the best man fighting three pounds over the bantam weight limit, depending on whether you were one of the three officials who voted him into a decision over Fidel La Barba at the end of the tenth round last night or were among the 15,000 spectators who howled the verdict down—but not out.

This was about all the famous case on the bantamweight championship managed to develop. Neither man deigned to make the bantamweight limit for the occasion, La Barba doing 120 1/2 pounds and Chocolate 121, so as a possible title fight it was strictly imposition, I wouldn't go so far as to say it was impossible, too. But, at least, it was what might be called highly improbable.

La Barba, according to the writer's scoring which was more conservative than that of others who decried the decision, won five rounds, blew four and the odd round was even. But there wasn't a single vote out of a possible three cast for him, which undoubtedly proves worse decisions have been rendered, only some of the crowd didn't seem to remember when and where. One Judge, George Kelly, voted for a draw; the other, Charles F. Mathison, lined up with Chocolate. So did the referee, Lou Magolia.

A draw would have done La Barba no favors but at least it might have saved the crowd a headache. They seemed to feel that it was a terrible thing to behold, whereas only the New York system of boxing, by-round scoring was La Barba's advantage palpable. He won more rounds! Chocolate scored with the better punches. They usually call that kind a stand-off outside the state limits. They, therefore, must have been using Siberian rules last night.

Big Lead 1st 3 Rounds Saves Day For O'Brien

Ebbets' Strong Finish Makes Many Believe He Deserved Decision and It Really Was Close.

Three one-sided rounds and a count-of-eight knockdown at the outset of the battle, proved a lifesaver for Frankie O'Brien, rugged Hartford middleweight, last night. He bitterly fought struggle with Harry Ebbets, the blonde thunder-bolt from Freeport, L. I. It served to give him the count of eight in the second round. Harry wasn't hurt very badly by the blow but had sense enough to take the advantage of a substantial count, something which altogether too many boxers don't do nowadays.

Apparently O'Brien shot his bolt in the first three rounds for, although he scored often, his left was not nearly as effective again during the fight. It lost both power and effectiveness but to a great extent this was due to the defensive work of Ebbets who blocked off his left. The third and fourth rounds were even with both battlers slowing up from the whirlwind pace they took at the start.

Historic Old Battlefield Scene Of Twilight Battle

Every man has his price but a lot of guys give themselves away.

Whaling City Combine Confident of Giving Manchester Sluggers Plenty of Opposition; Gillis and Boyce Rival Pitchers.

Manchester, U. S. C. G. Stratton, 3b Massey, 2b Sipples, ss Alexander, rf Kotsch, rf St. John, cf O'MLaughlin, 1b Olson, c Boyce, p

The first twilight baseball game of the season will be waged on Mt. Nebo this evening when the United States Coast Guard Destroyer Force team from New London appears here to compete against the Manchester Club.

With such hitting strength as carried in the bats of Tommy Sipples, Jimmy Alexander, Sammy Massey and Sam Kotsch, not to mention other good sluggers on the club, Manchester should prove a hard team to beat. True, Arnold Crawford did the trick in one inning after being apparently hopelessly outclassed, but things like that don't happen very often.

Manchester has strong hopes of getting off with a victory tonight although the local players realize they will have their hands full disposing of the powerful whaling city aggregation. The Coast Guard has long held a good reputation in sports and has always given the fans their money's worth in appearances here. So, tonight should be no exception.

There may not be as large a crowd at the game tonight as there would be if it were being played at the West Side Field but even so, Coach Samuel J. Massey will not be discouraged. He is basing his hopes on the attendance which the Sunday afternoon games will draw once the sport gets going full swing and star attraction coming to Manchester such as the House of David, Colored Giants and other organizations of similar caliber.

Tonight's game will get going promptly at 6 o'clock and an effort will be made to complete nine innings. This may not be possible because of the fact that even such high land as Mt. Nebo, the sun drops out of sight much earlier than it does over at the Four Acres. However, there's nothing like trying. There are several ways of reaching the field by foot, paths breaking a way from the Hartford and South Main streets. Those who travel by automobile will find Sorin street in much better condition than it was in the days when the Athletics used to occupy the limelight.

LETTER GOLF

A NEW GOLF CUP! We have a new kind of golf cup today—a SOUP BOWL. Par is only four and one solution is on another page.

Letter Golf grid with words SOUP and BOWL.

THE RULES

1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, Cow, HOW, HEW HEN.

House-owner (looking over fence): "Is this your bill?" Anxious Gopher: "Er—any windows broken?"

Ruth: "I noticed your husband was frothing at the mouth this morning. He must have a terrible temper."

After an offensive and defensive campaign of considerable duration, a Manchester man finally succumbed and bought his wife an expensive fur coat.

He: Let me kiss you under the mistletoe.

When you say Bill can't stand prosperity, you mean he is spending money the way you would if you had it.

Rock-a-bye baby, on the tree top When you grow up, we'll make you a cop.

Some of our modern wives are more skillful in spending rolls than in baking them.

ABOUT TOWN

The Cosmopolitan club will hold its regular meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. W. F. Gates, 125 Hollister street. The subject of the meeting is "Woman." There will be two papers, one on "Women of the Old Testament," by Mrs. W. B. Lull, and the other, "Women in Modern Life" by Mrs. L. L. Grant.

Miss Rose O'Neill of Ridge street will sail Saturday from New York on the S. S. Leviathan for an extended visit with her mother in Portland, Ore. Tuesday evening a number of Miss O'Neill's associates at Cheney Brothers gathered in her honor at the school street Recreation Center and enjoyed an evening of games and dancing, and a light luncheon. As a farewell gift they presented to Miss O'Neill a purse of $25 in gold.

Lady Roberts Lodge members received an invitation to attend the service Sunday evening at 7:30 at the South Methodist church, when Rev. R. A. Colpitts will give an address on Memorial as well as Empire day. The members will assemble at the church five minutes before the above hour and occupy seats reserved for them.

Miss Lillian G. Grant, reader, and Miss Aline Van Haverbeke mandolinist will be the assisting artists at the concert which the pupils of Mrs. A. N. Merrill will give in William this evening at the assembly hall of the Model school.

All men and women of the South Methodist church parish are invited to a social to be given tomorrow evening at 7:45 at the church. A 20-minute sketch entitled "The Anybody Family on Sunday Morning" will be given by Clarence Taylor, Mrs. Thomas Smith, Evelyn Beer, Ellena Burr, Frank Peterson, Dorothy Lewis and Carl Ackerman. There will be singing of favorite, well known songs and games in which all can join. Refreshments will be served by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert Richmond. The social is given in honor of new members who have recently joined the missionary societies of the church.

Scandia Lodge, No. 23, Order of Vasa, will celebrate its 23th anniversary Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in Orange hall. An entertainment will be presented and whist and setback played. Refreshments will be served.

Dr. Julius Quist of Worcester will speak in the vestry of the Swedish Lutheran church at 8 o'clock tonight. The congregation is invited to attend.

The hole which was cut in the road at the Center when a water main broke some time ago caused motorists quite a bit of trouble last night. The work of filling it in permanently had begun and a danger light placed there. At nightfall a Ford turning about the Gummy cop struck the hole smashing the lantern and knocking down the danger sign. Automobiles speeding by the Center received bad jolts by striking the hole with the rear wheels. A policeman replaced the light and sign.

All members of the British-American club are asked to meet at the club rooms at 7 o'clock Sunday evening. The club will attend the special divine service to be held in the South Methodist church.

The patriotic organizations which are to participate in the service at the St. Mary's Episcopal church on Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock are requested to assemble on Church street before the service. Marshal Loveland, Chief of Staff Tedford and E. L. G. Hohenthal will be there to assign each one to their positions.

All Manchester is buzzing about the Pre-Inventory Hat Sale and wonderful Memorial Day Specials at Nelligs this week. All Headquarters, State Theater Bldg.—Adv.

Benevolent Society Segar meets in Orange hall at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening instead of 8 o'clock because of the anniversary celebration of Scandia Lodge at the latter hour.

Children of the Eighth school district attending the schools on North School street are spending their recess periods on the playground rather than around the school. It has resulted in a better record on the tardy list as at the noon hour the children are on the playgrounds earlier than they would be in the school yard and get into school on time. Miss Talcott's class in setting up exercises has been discontinued in all of the grades and this time is now added to the recess time, to be spent on the playgrounds.

Manchester people are buying new automobiles in large numbers this year, even though a large percentage are by the conditional sale method. One dealer alone this week filed thirteen notices of sales with the town clerk.

"The Eighth District Student," the paper published for and by the pupils of the Eighth district school goes to press tomorrow and will be distributed among the school children of the district during the day. It is being printed by the Community Press.

PUBLIC RECORDS

The following documents were filed for record with Town Clerk Samuel Turkington today:

Warrantee Deeds.
Dorino Dehanni to Canillo Andriolo a one-half interest in lots No. 43 and 44 on Congress street.
E. J. Holl to Samuel J. Haugh, Esther J. Haugh and Robert J. Haugh house and land on Proctor road.
Edward J. Holl to Nils E. Bjorkman, land and building on Benton street.
Edward J. Holl, to A. Leroy Slocomb, land and building on the north side of Wellington road.
Eileen Murphy to Mary A. Toohy, land and buildings on the south side of Strickland street.
Robert J. Campbell to Caroline M. Campbell, house and land located on the south side of Pearl street.

Notice of Foreclosure.
Ethel M. Fish through her attorney Frederick R. Manning has filed notice of intention to bring foreclosure proceedings against Mary Anderson, Charles A. Shelton and Johanna K. Nilsson.
Quit Claim.
Ernest J. Silcox to E. J. Holl, land and building on Wadsworth street.

HOSPITAL NOTES

The Memorial hospital today reported the admission of Mrs. Martha Basset of 4 Chestnut street, Betty Grimason of 54 Cooper street, Edward Senkell of 33 Norman street and Marjorie Hilderbrand of 84 Spruce street.
A son was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. John Klein of 164 Cooper Hill street. Those discharged were Mrs. Harold Turkington and infant daughter of 26 Winter street, Mrs. Richard Langer and baby daughter of 387 Center street and James Taylor of 14 Cross street.
The condition of Mrs. S. Emil Peterson of 25 Alton street, accident victim, was reported unchanged.

BEETHOVENS WILL GET EARLY START
Plan Morning Arrival and Final Rehearsal in N. Y. for Big National Contest.

Forty-three voices strong, all conditioned after months of intensive rehearsals under the tireless direction of Helge Pearson, and highly enthusiastic and hopeful of capturing the prize in the Associated Glee Clubs Class B contest being held in Mecca Temple, on Saturday, the Beethoven Glee Club will leave for New York on the 7:41 a. m. (D. S. T.) train from Depot Square tomorrow.

They will arrive in New York at 10:40 o'clock, in plenty of time for sight-seeing and a final rehearsal for the gigantic concert that evening in Madison Square Garden, featuring a chorus of 4000 voices and Cyrena Van Gordon, contralto of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and Reinald "Weary" Werrenraath, world famed baritone as soloist.

Helge E. Pearson
Making the trip with the club on its quest for national honors is Miss Eva M. Johnson, who has accompanied the club in all of its concerts both in Manchester and elsewhere. Miss Johnson will act in that capacity when the club appears before the judges of the contest. The rules of the competition call for the furnishing of the club's own accompanist.
A special coach for the glee club will be attached to the train on the journey to the "Big City". On the return trip, however, everyone will go as he pleases, some returning Saturday evening and others coming back Sunday. Reservations at special rates, have been made at the Hotel Manger at Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth and Fifty-first streets, where the club will stay.

Points in Contest
The local singers are scheduled to appear at 8:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon for the judging of their contest number "The Lullaby of Love." The comparative merit of the competing clubs is determined on the basis of the following points and valuations: Accuracy—Correctness of pitch and rhythm, unanimity in attack and release, absence of actual mistakes; in notes and words and the consistency of the general ensemble in following the leader's direction; value 25 per cent. Quality—Beauty of tone with the vocal resources necessary for special dynamic effects, timbre, etc., together with clearness and beauty of enunciation; value 25 per cent. Interpretation and general effect—Fidelity to the clear intention of the composer as to tempo, expression and phrasing, but with regard also to freedom of imagination and legitimate individuality; general impression of spontaneity, enthusiasm and vitality, with the resulting appeal to the listener; value 50 per cent.

Every club, 87 in number, from Maine on the East, Toronto on the North, Fresno on the Pacific Coast and Birmingham, Ala., on the South, is going to New York at a cost to themselves of $71,502.

CHENEY GIRLS OPEN THE HIKING SEASON
Members of Athletic Association to Walk to Minnechaug Mountain Sunday.

A group of girls from Cheney Brothers' Girls' A. A. will go on a hike through the country Sunday morning. They will meet at the trolley terminus at the south end promptly at 6 o'clock and will walk to Col. Clifford D. Cheney's cabin on Minnechaug Mountain in Glastonbury where they will prepare their own breakfast of fruit, bacon and eggs, doughnuts and coffee. This is the first hike of the summer season and more are planned to be held later. The hike has been so arranged that the girls will be back in plenty of time to attend morning church services.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"
AGAIN THE FISH!
Now, then, the weekly Fish Festival! It's just that, when the fish comes to you as it does from Pinehurst—savoring of the salty sea, firm, sweet and infinitely wholesome. You follow no balanced diet if you don't eat some fish—and you do worse if you eat fish that was caught any old time and has been kept any old way. Pinehurst's fish supply comes straight from the fish wharves by the fastest expressage. It pops directly into the finest possible refrigeration system. It goes to you in absolutely PERFECT CONDITION. The why Pinehurst has made regular and delighted fish eaters out of many families who used almost never to touch fish of any sort.

This week's supply includes:
FRESH MACKEREL (more of those big, splendid fellows of the 1923 brood.)
SALT MACKEREL (dne, fat, newly brined and packed.)
FRESH BUTTERFISH (for sheer sweetness there's nothing in the sea to surpass this fellow.)
FRESH EASTERN HALIBUT
FRESH COD, steaked or to boil or bake.
FILET OF HADDOCK
DRESSED HADDOCK
FILET OF SOLE (clear slabs of meat, no bones.)
Pinehurst advises its customers to place their fish orders early, for delivery at their convenience. We always run a bit short, because we are careful not to carry over a pound of fish.
