

ALOFT IN PLANE FOR SEVEN DAYS

In Second Hand Machine, Fort Worth Flyers Beat Record by More Than 21 Hours.

Fort Worth, Texas, May 27.—Interest in aviation, the peacetime maker of heroes, today focused on Fort Worth where two plucky Americans were sleeping the sleep of triumphant exhaustion after one of the most astounding feats yet recorded in the fast developing giant industry.

Reginald L. Robbins and James Kelly, two "barnstorming" fliers, landed their single-motored Ryan monoplane "Fort Worth" here at 4:05 yesterday afternoon after a continuous flight of 172 hours and 32 minutes, establishing a new endurance record for all types of aircraft.

Beaten by 21 Hours

The previous record, established by the "Question Mark," was beaten by Robbins and Kelly by more than 21 hours. The "Question Mark," a well-equipped tri-motored Fokker, with a crew of five men, had remained aloft 150 hours and 40 minutes.

The achievement of Robbins and Kelly is more remarkable in view of the fact that their craft was a two-year-old reconditioned plane powered with a single, second-hand Wright whirlwind motor. Robbins is a former Texas cowboy. Like the famous Col. Lindbergh, neither was taken very seriously when preparations for the record flight began.

Preparations for the flight of the "Question Mark" are reported to have cost $100,000. Robbins and Kelly spent very little and had difficulty at first in raising that.

Old Rebuilt Plane

Robbins, known as one of the southwest's most popular barnstorming fliers, had the old Ryan monoplane rebuilt for the assault on the "Question Mark" record. He estimated that upwards of 20,000 passengers had taken commercial rides in it before it acquired it.

The motor was second-hand when Robbins took over the plane less than two years ago. He had flown it more than 50,000 miles without a forced landing.

Still Working

The motor was still functioning late yesterday when the weary fliers, after more than a week in constant flight, decided they must descend. Storm and winds encountered in the last 24 hours of the monotonous grind damaged the

CARDINAL SCORES MODERN FASHIONS

Catholic Prelate Blames Par- ents for What He Calls Immoral Dressing.

Boston, May 27.—Fashions of today are worse than the costumes of pagan days in the opinion of Cardinal O'Connell.

Denouncing the habits of dressing and painting by women after the confirmation of 1,100 women converts to Catholicism at Holy Cross Cathedral yesterday, the Cardinal declared that he could not see why women hide their beauty under paint and powder.

Cardinal O'Connell expressed the belief that parents were largely to blame, and warned them to set an example for their children.

"I want you to bear well in mind," added the Cardinal, "that it is the duty of a Christian woman to comport herself in dress and in conduct in a way fitting the virtue of a Christian woman. Now, 'od-od,' we see everywhere violations of this law, the law of decency and of Christian womanhood—and indeed, it has grown to be so common, that now people don't notice it any more.

Painted Faces.

"With their faces painted like a hideous mask, and with their clothes absolutely immodest, they go through life as if there were no law of Christian womanhood left," said the Cardinal with feeling.

"Now it has become so common, that even the little children are started out in life without any sense of their moral duty.

"A Christian woman ought to be modest and virtuous. This scandalous—and I might say—this nasty habit of immoral dress and painting, so that there is no longer any natural appearance of womanhood, makes them appear artificial and

HOSPITAL RETURNS

Fund Bought	$36,000.00
Today's Total	2,423.50

A contribution of $1,000 received today at Memorial Hospital campaign headquarters from Frank Cheney, Jr., aided greatly in spurring the twelve team captains on to greater efforts. The total sum reported collected towards the $36,000 fund by W. W. Harris, treasurer, is $2,423.50. This is an unusually good start according to M. L. U. Houenthal, Jr., chairman, and he believes that the campaign will go over if everyone gives proportionately as he has the first groups canvassed.

Four Minute Speakers

A group of speakers has been secured to place the needs of the hospital before the theater audiences here during the week. Last night Mr. Edward G. Dolan spoke the case for the hospital in the state theater. Tonight C. Elmore Watkins will speak for the hospital in the same theater, Tuesday night Rev. E. A. Colpitts, Wednesday night Rev. W. P. Reidy and Thursday night Dr. D. C. Y. Moore.

PASSENGERS RESCUED.

Seattle, Wash., May 27.—The United States government survey vessel Surveyor was proceeding to port today with 150 persons taken off the ill-fated Seattle liner Aleutian just before it sank in Larsen Bay, off Kodiak island, yesterday morning.

The Aleutian, property of the Alaskan Steamship Company, is reported to have struck a submerged rock. Financial loss in the wreck was estimated at $1,000,000.

Expect 100,000 Shriners At California Convention

Los Angeles, Cal., May 27.—This city of the angels and movie stars today became the Mecca of shrines.

Its portals were flung open to receive an illustrious host as nobles of the Mystic Shrine, 100,000 strong, traveling in long caravans, trekked across hot sands to enjoy for one week the hospitality of the far west.

The Shriners are returning to Los Angeles for the 55th annual session of the Imperial Council of their ancient Arabic order after having met in convention here in 1925.

MAY EXCLUDE ALIENS IN NEXT CENSUS

This Plan Protested by Big Cities Which Would Lose Representation in Our Congress.

Washington, May 27.—The Senate's battle over reappportioning the House of Representatives revolved today around a proposal to exclude all aliens from the next census.

The proposal would slash the Congressional representation of all large cities and many of the great lakes and north Atlantic states. It would increase the number of Congressional seats apportioned to rural communities and to the southern and farm belt states.

Administration forces were divided upon the proposition, as were the Democrats. Senator Sackett (R) of Kentucky, a strong Hoover follower, sponsored the amendment and it had a warm supporter in Senator Black (D) of Alabama. The Hoover Senators from "Down East" meanwhile joined with Senator Walsh (D) of Montana, in denouncing the amendment.

The Next Skirmish

With the aliens question settled, the next skirmish will come over the award of extraordinary powers to President Hoover. A new plan, already approved by the Senate on a test vote, will give the President power to automatically reappoint the House of Representatives after each census if Congress fails to act.

SIX YEAR OLD SLAYER

A sentence of 15 years in the reformatory was imposed on Carl Newton Mahan, six-year-old boy, of Plantville, Ky., after a jury found him guilty of manslaughter. In a quarrel over some scrap iron, the boy killed Cecil Van Hoose, his eight-year-old playmate, by firing a shot gun at him. The picture shows him with his attorney, who is planning to appeal the case. Should the sentence be upheld by higher courts, he would have to stay in the reformatory until he becomes of age.

Six Year Old Slayer Plays With His Toys

Plantville, Ky., May 27.—The boy's youngest convicted murderer, Carl Newton Mahan, 6 years old, today played with a "choo choo train," happily unconcerned over the 15-year sentence that hangs over him for the shotgun slaying of his little playmate, 8-year-old Cecil Van Hoose, following a childish quarrel.

A writ of prohibition restraining the imposition of the long term in a state reformatory school was issued on behalf of the young slayer Saturday. Meanwhile the boy has romped about the home of his parents in happy ignorance of the severity of the penalty.

Look Now as If Special Session Will Continue Until Fall.

Washington, May 27.—Plans of administration leaders to write President Hoover's special session program into law in record time were shattered today as the session entered its sixth week with both farm relief and tariff legislation still far from enactment.

Confronted with the possibility of deadlocks between Senate and House on both measures the special session may continue far into the fall.

While the House ways and means committee was driving the Hawley bill steadily toward a final vote and passage tomorrow, strong opposition has already risen in the Senate to the House bill, revising the Fordney-McCumber tariff schedules to the highest rates in history.

RADIO PHONE INVENTED BY FRISCO YOUTH

You Can Dial and Get Your Number Just the Same Without Wires, Inventor Explains.

New York, May 27.—Herbert S. Pollin, 24-year-old newspaper and advertising man of San Francisco, who claims to have devised a system of radio telephony suitable for general use, declared today that he is engaged at present in obtaining financial backing for the marketing of his apparatus.

Asked how he happened to devise his system of radio telephony, Pollin, heretofore unheard of in the scientific world, said that for the last four or five years, while employed in theaters in Los Angeles and San Francisco, he had been utilizing his spare time to perfect his ideas. He asserted he had been much interested in the various new sound elements in theaters.

U.S. A Dial

Pollin said his invention centers about a dial instrument resembling the automatic telephone. This dial operates a series of interlocked tubes linked to form a transmitter. Electric current is supplied through an ordinary light socket and wire.

"My invention is still crude in its present form," Pollin told International News Service. "Many refinements will be necessary. That is why I am seeking financial backing."

Young Backing Dr. Schacht in Rejecting Allies Secret Demands.

Berlin, May 27.—The biggest danger to the Paris reparations conference is not the remaining differences in the rival sets of figures, but the frayed nerves of the delegates, according to well informed German circles today.

Several delegates were reported near nervous exhaustion as a result of steady grind of deliberation over the same points for nearly four months.

Some of the delegates, especially M. Francaul, of Belgium, are said to be "unable even to look at Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German group, and their other negotiation partners without a fit of nervous trembling."

FULLER DEFAMER IS FOUND GUILTY

Carried Placard Accusing Governor of Murdering Sacco and Vanzetti.

Boston, May 27.—A verdict of "guilty" was returned today by a Suffolk County Superior Court jury in the case of Harry J. Canter, charged with criminally defaming former Governor Alvan T. Fuller by carrying a placard in a Nicola Sacco and Bartholomew Vanzetti demonstration in front of the State House last November.

The verdict was reached late Friday but by order of Judge Robert F. Raymond had been announced and opened when court convened today.

At the request of the defendant, who was not represented in court today by counsel, sentence was withheld until Wednesday.

Defense legal forces indicated that an appeal would be taken on exceptions. The exceptions revolved around the failure of Judge Raymond to allow testimony regarding the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, who were executed for the slaying of a South Braintree paymaster and guard.

Penalty in the Canter case ranged from 1 day to two years in the House of Correction and a fine of $50 to $1,000.

Members of French Crew Go to New York to Get Weather Reports at First Hand—Fog and Rain Pre- vent Hop-off—Aviation Figures Largely in To- day's News.

Old Orchard Beach, Me., May 27.—Following a denial of reports of friction between the crews of America-to-France airplane "Yellow Bird" and the America-to-Rome plane "Green Flash," Armeno Lotti and Rene Lefevre of the French monoplane and a group of their friends were in New York today to get ocean weather reports at first hand.

With both trans-Atlantic planes stranded here by fog and rain over the Atlantic, it appeared that whether the flights were to be postponed for two weeks—in order to allow a take off at low tide during the day time—would be decided in New York.

Boat owned by a corporation of which Roger G. Williams, pilot of the Green Flash is president. This, observers said, further disposed of published reports of friction.

PLANES IN THE 'EWS

With all motors functioning beautifully, aviation, the infant industry, roared into the new week today far in advance of all competitors in the matter of public interest.

Virtually every news story of importance throughout the nation is either intimately or remotely connected with the flying art.

Outstanding is the feat of R. L. Robbins and James Kelly in breaking the endurance record for all types of aircraft at Fort Worth, Texas. The historic mile-and-a-half flight which kept their single motored rebuilt monoplane, the Fort Worth, aloft for 172 hours, 33 minutes and 32 seconds, were sleeping the sleep of victory today while flying enthusiasts everywhere marvelled at their accomplishment.

When they awake from their slumbers some time today, the fliers will be dined and feted by their native city and otherwise will reap the rewards of their work. Twenty-two hundred dollars will be presented to them by the Aviation Corporation as a bonus for bettering the endurance record of the "Question Mark," the amount of the award being determined on the basis of $100 for every hour which they remained in the air beyond the record of the "Question Mark."

In addition to this, the pilots, together with the members of the crew of their refueling "nurse ship" will be given a substantial cash reward by the citizens and business men of Fort Worth.

Another attempt at breaking the endurance record of the "Question Mark" is being made by the crew of the trans-Atlantic fliers—American and French—were waiting impatiently to take off on non-stop hops to Rome and Paris in their new 400 mile course to win the tenth Curtiss marine trophy race at an average speed of 175-200 miles an hour.

It is significant to note that only serious accident was reported of the almost innumerable flying activities of the week-end.

BEETHOVENS 11TH IN GLEE CONTEST

Draw Judges' Praise for Shading—Youngest Club In Sing.

Scoring 63 points out of a possible 100, the Beethoven Glee Club, of 40 voices, competing in the class B contest of the Associated Glee Clubs of America at Mecca Temple, New York Saturday afternoon with 20 other organizations, placed eleventh in the opinion of the judges.

First prize went to the B. & O. Glee Club of Baltimore, a chorus of 60 voices organized nearly 40 years. It rated 83.4 per cent. First in the class A competition went to the Concordia Society of Wilkes Barre, a chorus of 120 voices organized fifty years. This club won the same contest in 1928.

Comments by the judges in the Beethoven Glee Club in its contest number "The Lullaby of Love," were as follows: The second bass section was inadequate, having the tendency to draw the other voices down. This was the outstanding fault of the Beethoven Glee Club. Singing was especially light and beautiful. Attack and release was graded very highly. Enunciation was perfect. Individuality of club also very high.

Incidentally, the local organization was the youngest club in the competition, both as to the age of its members and experience of the club.

Helge Pearson, director of the Beethoven Club said today that he was well satisfied with the effort of his singers and that it had proved a new and fine experience to them.

In speaking of the concert held in Madison Square Garden Friday evening, Mr. Pearson said that it was the finest thing he had ever heard and that the impression gained was a lasting one.

He had nothing but the highest praise for Ralph Baldwin, director of the Hartford Choral Club and the Mendelssohn Club of New York, and who also conducted the first half of the gigantic concert of 4000 voices in the Garden. "His work was magnificent," said the local director.

The concert was featured by the solo work of Reinold Werrenath, America's premier baritone, and Nancette Guilford soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

This was the last public appearance of the Beethoven Glee Club this season which will wind up with a rehearsal a week from tonight.

TRUST CO. TO FLOOD BUILDING IN LIGHT

Imposing Structure Here Will Stand Out Brilliantly During the Night.

A pair of flood lights to "play" on the front of the Manchester Trust company bank building on Main street are being installed today. The work is being done by the Manchester Electric company and it is expected will be completed by the end of the week ready for use by Saturday.

The purpose of the lights is to make the bank building conspicuous at night as well as day—a sort of an advertising idea which has grown into popular use in many cities lately. The two lights will be located at a point midway on each side of the building near the curb. They will be situated in colonial lanterns on the top of fluted columns.

The bulb in each lantern will have 1,000 watt power and a prism-light, throwing it all over the front of the building. A small street light will show from the rear of the lanterns. The lights will be operated automatically by a time switch and will be burning from dusk until 10 o'clock every night in the week.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE OF MEMORIAL HERE

Church Ceremonies at St. Mary's Attract Many Veterans—Rev. Neill the Speaker.

The Memorial service held in St. Mary's Episcopal church was, in the opinion of the G. A. R. veterans of which there were seven present, the best of its kind both in matter of attendance and the sermon delivered by Rev. J. Stuart Neill.

Every patriotic organization was finely represented, filling the church to overflowing so that the chairs had to be placed in the aisles. Many people were unable to enter the church.

The organizations formed at Locust and Church streets. Passing up the sidewalk leading to the church, they passed in review before the remaining members of the G. A. R. In the doorway of the church an arch was made of the colors. Hands snapped to salute as with solemn tread the members of Drake Post, No. 4, passed beneath the arch to take their place inside the church. The national colors were set in grand array on the left side with the standards of the various societies on the right.

Rev. J. Stuart Neill spoke of the spiritual side of warfare, saying that war was an economical necessity and a spur to keep patriotism alive in the hearts of mankind. Since the beginning of time war has made achievement possible. He ended his inspiring sermon with the quotation, "If war is finally abolished, a moral substitute will have to be devised to keep mankind's sense of duty alive."

Members of the Grand Army of the Republic present at the service were Jared Pearl, Lucius Pinney, commander; George Barber, adjutant; Albert Pierce, Charles Baker, chaplain. Two other veterans present, not members of the Post, were Elmer Hotchkiss and Stephen Beebe.

This service was conducted at the instance of E. L. G. Hohenthal, Jr., who is chairman of Manchester's Permanent Memorial Day committee.

Adjutant Heard and the Salvation Army corps marched from the city to the East cemetery yesterday afternoon and held a Memorial service. A circle was formed in an open portion of the cemetery and a short service held there consisting of a short talk by Adjutant Heard in which he eulogized the lives of the deceased members in whose memory they were gathered. Other members of the corps spoke, making more intimate references to the persons passed on. A duet was given by Bandmaster Addy and his sister, Mrs. Richardson. Songs were sung by the Soldiers of the army. During the service the Girl Guards under the leadership of Miss Rachel Lyon, proceeded to decorate 60 graves of departed members of the corps, with the national emblem and the Salvation Army flag.

Sues Famous Playwright For Plagiarising Novel

New York, May 27.—Some time ago, according to Daniel F. Cohan, a former judge, a suit will be filed in the United States District Court here charging Eugene O'Neill, America's foremost playwright, with plagiarizing in the writing and production of the enormously successful play "Strange Interlude."

Judge Cohan told International News Service he would demand damages of $1,750,000 from O'Neill, the playwright's publisher, Horace Liveright, Inc., and his producer, the Theater Guild, Inc., in behalf of his client, Miss Georges Lewys, a writer of classical poetry and dramatic fiction.

The suit threatens to become one of the most sensational in the annals of American literature. Miss Lewys, Cohan asserts, alleged that "Strange Interlude" is in reality her story, "The Temple of Blue-Athensae," which she published May 10, 1924 and copyrighted July 12, 1924. The book which was written when she was only 19 was limited to only 995 copies and was purchased chiefly by authors and professional readers at a price of $20 a copy.

In addition to seeking damages, Miss Lewys, Cohan said, will ask for an injunction restraining from continuing to capitalize "Strange Interlude."

The novel feature of the O'Neill play in which the actors speak aloud their thoughts is the distinctive feature of her own book, which she alleges. Moreover, the play contains many of the lines of the book and identical characters, she alleges.

ALOFT IN PLANE FOR SEVEN DAYS REJOICE IN WEATHER

propeller and made further flight impossible. When the plane settled to the landing field the great crowd, estimated at between 25,000 and 30,000, surged forward, breaking police lines and shouting their acclaim.

Deep lines were etched by wind and rain in the faces of Robbins and Kelly and they wore a seven-day growth of beard. But they were smiling. Their wives were first to greet them. Kelly, who successfully withstood the grueling test of greasing rocker arms on the engine from the precarious perch of an 8-inch cat walk surrounding the Wright whirlwind motor, folded his bride of six weeks in his arms and there were tears in his eyes.

Little Jackie Robbins, five, was lifted in his father's arms and snuggled against the famous flier, apparently realizing the great adventure his father had just passed through.

The "Fort Worth" stayed in the air 172 hours, 32 minutes and one second, according to official computation.

The storm through which the plane passed Saturday night and Sunday morning damaged the propeller after a blade had been slightly cracked a few hours before. The first flaw in the propeller was believed to have been caused by a blade striking Kelly's safety belt while he was on the cat-walk oiling the rocker arms.

With the exception of the damaged propeller, the plane was pronounced in excellent condition by experts.

Aviation experts today were studying the refueling record of the "Fort Worth." The plane was refueled 17 times during the long flight. The refueling hose was only 37 feet long. There were contacts when only ten feet of hose was required. The "Question Mark" never used less than 65 feet of hose in making contact, according to aviation men here. The piloting skill displayed by the crew of the "Fort Worth" and the refueling plane is considered remarkable.

Partially Deaf. Robbins and Kelly retired early last night. They appeared to be in good physical condition, except that they were partially deaf. The continuous roar of the motor had deafened their sense of hearing and they were unable to carry on prolonged conversation.

"We started out to make a record and I guess we made it," Robbins said.

K. Hoffman and H. S. Jones, pilots of the refueling ship, were delighted at the accomplishment of their charge. They expressed greater gratification than did either Robbins or Kelly.

Neither of the flyers has accepted any of the numerous offers made them by vaudeville circuits and aviation concerns.

The men said they had no plans for the next few weeks except to rest.

Despite their fatigue both men were in excellent spirits.

It was estimated that a total of 11,213 miles was covered during the flight of the two aviators, who received their transport licenses just recently. The average speed of the plane during the long grind was estimated at 65 miles per hour.

BRITISH-U. S. A. UNITY THEME OF SERVICE

Rev. R. A. Colpitts, in Unique Church Gathering, Pleads for Good Understanding.

Rev. Robert A. Colpitts chose for his text at the British-American good will service last evening at the South Methodist church, "And the lion shall lie down with the lamb."

More than 200 representatives of the various British lodges in Manchester occupied seats reserved for them in the center of the church. In addition there were between 500 and 600 of the congregation and general public present.

Rev. Colpitts believed that the misunderstanding between the two countries was exaggerated largely by documents issued mainly by different organizations for their own selfish purposes, misconstruing the actual feeling of the people. He pointed out that the nations of the world are now so dependent upon one another that it is impossible to live in an atmosphere of scintillating and suspicion. As an illustration of his point he called attention to the automobile and the many countries from which its component parts are drawn, as for instance, rubber for the tires comes from the Dutch East Indies and Brazil, silk used in the upholstery material from China and Japan, and so on. Mr. Colpitts drew other parallel pictures illustrating the interdependence of one nation upon another.

Although the service was in commemoration of both Memorial day and the British Empire day, May 24, and the birthday of Queen Victoria, the speaker dealt with nations rather than personalities. He touched on the significance of Memorial day and the sacrifices made during the Civil war by the North and the South, believing it was for the best interests of their cause. He referred to the recent Great War and the circumstances that led to that world conflict and pleaded for a more tolerant and sympathetic understanding between the two great nations, the United States and Great Britain.

The full vested choir of the church sang "The Radiant Morn" by Woodruff, and the hymn written for the Diamond Jubilee of Victoria, "Land of Hope and Glory," by Elgar.

At the close of the service the audience in the sides of the church remained seated while the British organizations marched out.

CHARM HAS NO PRICE TAG

HERE and there throughout the display at Keith's one is impressed with the quaint charm and livableness of early American furniture. Here are chests and spinet desks—fireside chairs and four-poster beds—furniture that needs but the gleam of old pewter and plate to complete a loveliness that is irresistible.

If you have the prevalent feeling for more livable homes—come and see our collection. Browse about the groups we have laid out in the manner of the times. You're welcome—exceedingly.

Few of our things are expensive! In fact there is a hint of the past in our prices as well as in our furniture... a feeling almost of the old Puritan economy. A glance at our price tickets will prove this assertion. And even a visit that is timed in minutes will show you ever so many moderately priced lovely pieces.

A NEW SIX AT A PRICE WITHIN THE REACH OF MILLIONS

On Saturday, Buick will present the new Marquette—designed by Buick engineers and built in Buick factories. Marketed as an additional member of the Buick family, it will in no way affect Buick itself. Buick will continue to express the policies that made it the leader of the fine car field for the past quarter-century. In the smart, comfortable bodies of the Marquette you will recognize the fine hand of Fisher design. In its balance and poise you will see experienced engineering. And in performance—that final standard by which all cars are judged—you will find the Marquette leading its price class by an impressive margin. Be on hand when this eventful new car is shown Saturday. See what a remarkable new automobile Buick has produced at a price within the reach of millions.

BAD MANNERS

A citizen writing to a New York newspaper complains that, whatever else the pupils in the public schools may be learning, they evidently acquire nothing whatever of proper behavior in public. "The writer," he says, "has seen instances of misbehavior by pupils in public conveyances that would put young savages of both sexes to shame. Shouting, improper and coarse language, jumping over seats, running about, taking and destroying car signs, interfering with train operation by pushing buttons, throwing papers about, jostling passengers getting on and off cars, seem to be the youthful idea of behavior in public. Where is the training in manners that these pupils are expected to learn and practice?"

The problem presented to the schools of a great city like New York, in sowing the seeds of civilized behavior among a swarm of children whose parents, in many cases, are scarcely more than barbarians, is far from being paralleled in a community like Manchester where the population is almost entirely made up of people who know how to behave. Just the same, one wonders whether anything like enough instruction in the ordinary decencies of life is included in the school curricula of Connecticut.

A great deal of money and a great deal of the pupils' time is spent on instruction in a considerable variety of decorative branches often described as "frills." Sometimes the query suggests itself whether the time devoted to teaching some earless child to read music would not be better employed in pointing out to him the unfairness of raiding a citizen's fruit trees or throwing the wrappers of lollypops onto lawns.

Good manners and an understanding of their basic—ordinary respect for the rights and comfort of one's fellows—are perhaps as important to be taught to a girl as free hand drawing and to a boy as how to dissect an angelform. High schools give credits for achievements in physical training but if they pay any attention to the amenities, or rate of courteous and well-mannered pupil higher than an out or a loud-mouthed girl, it does not appear in school reports.

It is a sad begging of the question when educators assert, as they sometimes do, that the conduct of their pupils outside the schools is not their affair but the affair of the parents—because in nine cases out of ten ill-mannered boys and girls are that way for the very reason that their parents are unfitted to teach them better; and if the schools do not educate them in conduct, who is going to?

SPED

Arrest, prosecution and conviction of motorists of simple speeding, without their having participated in an accident, is an activity for which the police and Town Court of Manchester should be applauded. It is actually more important that the person who imperils human life, while yet lucky enough to escape taking it, should be arrested than that the driver whose speed has had fatal results should be. If the latter is a human being at all he has learned his lesson; he almost automatically ceases to be a menace to other lives. It is the speeder who has never happened to kill anyone who most needs restraint, and the policeman who apprehends him and the court which punishes him are performing a service for the still living. The punishment of a killer motorist is largely a service to the dead, and of small effect save through example.

It might be suggested, however, not by way of criticism but as constructive comment, that there is no reason for discriminating in favor of local residents in this business of controlling speed on the streets of Manchester. The list of prosecutions for reckless speeding in this town would seem to indicate either that out-of-town drivers are more liable to drive without regard to conditions than are our own motorists, or else they are held to a somewhat more strict accountability.

There are a number of local automobilists who habitually drive at a reckless rate of speed through that part of Main street from the Center to Charter Oak street. This is particularly noticeable at noon and just after 5 o'clock. Great good luck has attended them. Sooner or later a dreadful fatality is sure to occur. To this particular stretch of street the attention of the police is respectfully called. It is a tempting thoroughfare, but somebody is going to be killed there—unless preventive measures are taken.

OVER ZEALOUS

The Food, Drug and Insecticide Administration of the Department of Agriculture has done too much good work to be lightly criticized and it is far from certain that its latest bulletin is not well in line with many other useful documents issued by the Administration. Nevertheless it will strike a good many persons that the service is taking too seriously the matter of the over-free use of the word "health" in advertising various foods when it intimates that the persons employing that term may be guilty of misbranding under the Pure Food and Drug act and, inferentially, liable to prosecution.

"The use of this word implies," says W. G. Campbell, chief of the Administration, "that these products have health-giving or curative properties, when, in general, they merely possess some of the nutritive qualities to be expected in any wholesome food product. The label claims on these products are such that the consumer is led to believe that our ordinary diet is sorely deficient in such vital substances as vitamins and minerals and that these so-called 'health foods' are absolutely necessary to conserve life and health."

It seems to us that the Food, Drug and Insecticide Administration, in opening a campaign against this sort of misrepresentation is cutting out a bit of a job for itself and one a trifle outside its real province. As we understand it, the Food Administration's rightful function is to prevent the sale of injurious, adulterated or improper foods. The bulletin in question does not deal with such foods at all but with foods which, admittedly all right in themselves, are merely touted as being of a super-excellence which they do not possess. This seems to us to be a question of morals, not of health conservation; a matter of unfair business tactics, not of pure and wholesome foods.

In other words it would seem as if the admirable Food, Drug and Insecticide Administration was meddling, with the best intention in the world, in something that is none of its business.

SECRET GOVERNMENT

While newspapers everywhere, as might be expected, are ridiculing the Senate for trying to discipline a news service because it printed the result of the Lenox confirmation vote taken in secret session, which nobody but one of its own members could possibly have disclosed, there is a surprising lack of criticism of the institution of secret legislation itself.

It seems to be taken for granted that the Senate of the United States, in the special political interest of its individual members, has the right to conduct proceedings in the dark so that the votes of those individuals may not be known to the people who send them to the Senate. In our humble opinion no such right is inherent. And no right would be claimed or allowed if the people were as vigilant in defense of their own rights as they should be.

The Star Chamber system of government is absolutely wrong, whether it be applied to Congress, a state legislature or the common council of a city or the board of selectmen of a Connecticut town. Government is the affair of the public, in any real democracy. And the vote of the Senate on the confirmation of a federal judge is just as much a part of the processes of government as the passage of a tariff act or the vote on an appropriation bill.

As for the attempt of the Senate to crack a whip over the press associations by bulldozing a correspondent who printed news that leaked out of one of these hole-and-corner sessions, it is merely silly.

THE KENTUCKY CHILD

The majority opinion on the case of the Kentucky child solemnly sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment in companionship with the worst boys in the state because he knew no better than to fire a gun at a playmate, killing him, seems to be that that little boy will never be called on to serve the sentence. Somebody, somehow or other, it is taken for granted, will see to it that the sentence is nullified.

We are not so sure of that. The judge in the case, whose name curiously happens to be Butcher, has already denied a motion for a new trial and it would be far from surprising if the six-year-old were indeed permitted to meet the fate prescribed for him by a prosecutor, a grand jury, a petit jury and a trial judge.

The trouble in this case is that the little fellow is neither a feudist nor a voter. If he were either, in Kentucky, he might possibly be treated with a more distinguished consideration. Whiskers, and a record of eight killings of some enemy clan, earn Kentuckians special newspaper stories and sheriff's jobs. But what price a baby!

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McLOU

WHAT CAUSES CONSTIPATION?

A railroad train is supposed to be run on schedule. The same is true of the intestinal contents. Normal evacuation of the remainder should occur in from fourteen to twenty hours. However, with many people, evacuation does not occur until twenty-four to thirty-six hours after a meal has been digested, and, in some cases, several days may intervene. And delay in the passage of the intestinal contents is termed constipation, whether occurring in the duodenum, ileum, colon or in the rectum.

Many people appear to have a good daily evacuation, and does not consider themselves troubled with constipation, but the trouble is that the passage may be two or three days later than it should be and during this time toxins or putrefaction may be absorbed. Some of the principal causes of constipation are:

- 1.—Weakness of the contractile muscles around the intestines which serve the purpose of pushing the contents forward.
- 2.—An insufficient amount of roughage or cellulose in the diet.
- 3.—Disregarding the impulse to defecate.
- 4.—The habitual use of cathartics.
- 5.—Irritating substances in the diet causing a spasm of the intestinal muscular fibres.
- 6.—Diseases, adhesions, or malpositions of the stomach, or intestines.
- 7.—Anemia, neuristhenia, hysteria, acute fevers and diseases of the liver.

The way is of inestimable value in diagnosing the exact cause of constipation and in determining which portion of the intestine is affected. A meal may be watched from the time it enters the mouth until the residue is excreted. If the delay should be caused by a kink, as in the ileum, this can be readily ascertained. The normal points of weakness at which kinks may occur are in the latter third of the duodenum, the ileum, and the splenic flexure of the colon. The usual parts where dilation or muscular weakness may occur are about the iliocecal valve and the

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, May 27.—Some of the slight congressmen appear to be skittish about telling their ages and some do not. Five of them have included the dates of their births in the new Congressional Directory and the other three omitted this vital statistic. The three are Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California, Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield of Arkansas and Mrs. Ruth Pratt of New York.

A number of congressmen have also failed to include any clue to their ages, however, in submitting biographical material for the Directory. Your correspondent has no special business revealing any lady's age beyond suggesting consultation of the Directory, but taken from the five figures given, is about 48. The oldest of the five is 64 and the youngest 44. The average might be located by inclusion of the ages of the other ladies—and it might not.

Congresswomen's Children.
 Three congresswomen mention their children. Mrs. Pratt mentions six, of whom five are living, three daughters and two sons. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida has two girls and two boys, and Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky two girls and a boy. Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois leaves her children unmentioned.

The two youngest of the congresswomen giving their ages are Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Langley. Before getting into deep water by some such suggestion as who looks the youngest of the lot, your correspondent will pass on to tell something of some of the congresswomen. Frequent inquiries among visitors are enough to convince any Washingtonians that a majority of Americans don't know who represents their district in Congress.

One correspondent in the House press gallery boasted the other day that he knew a third of the members by sight, but he probably would have a hard time proving it. Nevertheless, since Speaker Nicholas Longworth is determined to make the House more important than the Senate, it may in time be necessary to get better acquainted with the congressmen.

The local pressure of accumulated feces may also produce piles, ulceration of the colon, fistulas, enteritis, or even a complete stoppage. The pressure may also interfere with the function of the other organs of the pelvis, and undoubtedly causes many of the heavy, drowsy feelings ordinarily accompanying constipation, which are relieved within a few minutes after a thorough cleansing with the enema. Relief within such a short time proves that some of the symptoms are caused by pressure because this would hardly give time for general toxemia to disappear. In addition to the local pressure, there is the absorption of uneliminated toxins, which is perhaps, the greatest single cause of disease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Migraine.)
 Questions: Mrs. F. S. asks: "What is the cause of migraine and what can one do to prevent it?"
 Answer: Migraine is the name for a severe form of neuralgia, which is characterized by periodic headaches which occur only on one side of the head at a time. It is due to various disturbances of the nervous system and from the common cause of toxemia which is usually present with all headaches except those resulting from an accident. Colitis, constipation, and extreme prolapus of the abdominal organs are also contributing causes.

(Thick Ankles.)
 Question: Dot asks: "Will you please advise me of something to do for ankles which are slowly but surely getting thick? Not swollen, but just plain stiff. Surely there must be some proper exercises or treatments which would remedy this."
 Answer: If the thickening of your ankles is caused by fleshy deposits you could reduce them somewhat by following a correct diet and taking exercises by raising and lowering your weight alternately on the heels and toes. Massage would also be beneficial. However, if the enlargement is of the bone you are probably suffering from some constitutional disease which would require a careful diagnosis.

There are 508 hospitals in the United States for the treatment of tuberculosis.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc. 54 YEARS AT SOUTH MANCHESTER

IN NEW YORK

New York, May 27.—New York's most recent play place for its swankier sons and daughters has been located—all at places—in the very heart of its most popular public park.

While all about upon the lawns and benches of Central Park mere picnicers nibble at their homemade sandwiches; mere lovers spoon; mere sailors go roving when on shore leave and mere average citizens seek a breath of more-or-less fresh air—the gilt-palmed, people of the Social Register can sip tea at $1 per cup in the new

The idea of luxury jumps out from almost every shop window. It is indeed a splendidly paradise, urging each citizen to spend beyond his means; singing an eternal song of six-pence and baiting along its people with a promise that if they put up a "big front" they'll get there by and by.

One of the lesser features of the new Central Park Casino, for instance, is a special breakfast room for the swanky horse fanciers who gallop about the equestrian paths in the early morning.

Watching for some time the figure of the fellow perched safely on the tip of the flag pole, the customer sighed.

Under a plan approved by the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters will again award this year 100 medals for meritorious service to Boy Scouts who render conspicuous service in forest protection. In announcing the award, Secretary Charles E. Borah stated that Scoutmasters of the state that in making out the applications for medals for the Scouts of their Troops the following types of service should be shown:

Of course, this is all very typical of New York. I doubt if there is another city in the world which, in its most central public park, would thus flaunt such lavish luxury in the faces of its masses. But Manhattan, being what it is, is hardly likely to strut and strut its multifarious panache. Feathered

With The Local Poets

MEMORY OF LOVED ONES.

We decorate the grave of those Whose memory to us is very dear.
How much we miss them no one knows
Like Him who wipes away our tears.

We stand and weep beside the grave
And wish we could them see,
Or hear the voice that to us gave
In life the sweetest melody.

Our mother dear, we don't forget
Her love, her toll and sacrifice;
Sweet memories linger with us yet
How she made joyous our life.

We honor those who were so brave
All through the battles of life,
And place a flower upon the grave
Of a husband, father or wife.

And children too have passed away,
Some have a son or daughter gone;
They could not wish us longer stay
For infinite wisdom called them home.

We place a flower also for them
Upon a little mound of earth
Remembering the time when
They brought to us much mirth.

It is not all of life for us to live
Nor all of death for us to die;
Our blessed Lord to us doth give
The promise of a home on high.

Therefore, in sorrow, we find joy
A silver lining to the dark cloud;
Jesus will come for us by and bye,
Death no longer will wear a shroud.

God's ways are not like our ways;
We cannot understand the mystery
Of how the dead will be raised
The Lord hath the keys of victory.

Therefore, in believing, we do rejoice
At the thought of His coming again;
All in the grave will hear his voice
And the mystery no longer remain.

What a blessed reunion, oh, how grand,
When earthly shadows flee away
And we shall meet in the heavenly
land,
With Jesus and loved ones ever stay.

Meanwhile we place a little flower
Upon the grave of our friends,
Trusting in God till that glad hour
When faith in sight shall end.

AT THE STATE

Maurice Chevalier
When Maurice Chevalier, soldier of France, and lion of the continental stage, came marching into the silver-sheet at the State theater last night he gave his audience a great big thrill, and kept them enthralled every moment that his spirited voice—and body were before them. For with Chevalier it is not alone the animation of vocal tones which "gets" people, young and old—but it is also that temperamental language of the hands,
the face and the feet.
In his current and first singing and talking picture for Paramount, entitled "Innocents of Paris," now playing at the State, Chevalier plays the part of a happy-go-lucky push-cart singer of the Paris streets. He gets a chance to go on the stage with his songs and clever pantomime, and the plot affords him every opportunity to present the gorgeous values of his full repertoire of melodious songs—lyrics and ballads which have established him in actual life as the reigning king of jazz entertainment in Europe.
In "Innocents of Paris" Chevalier is supported by a splendid cast including Sylvia Boucher, George Fawcett, John Miljan, Margaret Livingston and Russell Simpson.
Richard Wallace directed.
A Hal Roach comedy and the latest issue of State News Events will complete the program.
Wednesday and Thursday brings the adorable Alice White in her new First National Vitaphone talking picture, "Hot Stuff."
On Friday and Saturday the State will present Dolores Costello in "The Glad Rag Doll," a 100 percent all-talking film.

"STEEPLE TOM" SAYS HE HAS "LONELIEST JOB"

Is Back in Town to Work on Town's Tallest Chimneys;
Says Wind Biggest Danger.

"Steeple Tom" Fitzpatrick is back. For twenty years he has come to Manchester working on chimneys, high and low, about town. He is known as having "The loneliest job in the world."

"A steeple jack usually works alone," he says. "He's so high up in the air that he doesn't look human. In fact there are people who think a "jack" isn't human.
Aid me tell you, that with nothing but the sky overhead and little spots below which probably are people, a man sitting on a flag pole or on a high steeple can feel as lonely as a man in the desert."

"Steeple Tom" should know. He has climbed a point as high as 550 feet when working on the William Penn statue. And is his work thrilling? It seems so, to some people but it's all in a day's work to Tom. Steeplejacking, he will tell you, is no business for a man interested in living to a ripe old age, and it's no work for a nervous man. Next to a broken rope, the wind is the greatest source of danger to the steeple jack," says Tom.
"The person below can hardly realize the force of the wind above.
It is extremely difficult to keep your balance and a lost balance may mean a fatal crash. Even the most experienced steeplejack finds it difficult to swing and sway about in the wind hundreds of feet above ground with only a rope for support.

Two men will assist Tom Fitzpatrick in his work in Manchester.
His largest work will be on two of Cheney Brother's chimneys, 100 feet and 125 feet high respectively.
The work will take two or three days.

TALK OVER RADIO

Manchester people who took sufficient interest to stay up late, had the opportunity at midnight
last night to listen in on a nationwide broadcast from Fort Worth, Texas, of the two men who had a few hours earlier set a new record for staying aloft in an airplane.
Both Reginald L. Robbins and James Kelly, who stayed in the air for more than a week in their single-engine Ryan monoplane "Fort Worth," spoke over the radio as did their wives, operators of the refueling plane and others. It was quite evident from their voices that the record breaking fliers were very tired.

MOTOR VEHICLE DEPT.

ON NEW SCHEDULE

Offices of the State Motor Vehicle Department will operate on the following summer schedule beginning Monday, May 27th, according to an announcement from the Department today, while maintaining the same number of working hours as at present. The opening and closing times will be advanced one half hour.
All business will be operated at 7:30 a. m. instead of 8 a. m. and closed at 3:30 p. m. instead of 4
p. m. except Saturdays when the offices will be open from 8 to 11
a. m. eastern standard time.

THE TELEGRAPH

Eighty-five years ago today America thrilled to the announcement that Samuel F. B. Morse's invention, the telegraph, had proved itself a success. A message had been sent over the experimental wires between Washington and Baltimore. The text of that brief message, "What hath God wrought?"
has since been taught to every schoolboy.

The experiment was made possible by the fact that Congress appropriated $20,000 in the closing moments of the 1843 session to pay its cost. Morse's instrument was set up in the chambers of the supreme court in the capitol and from there the first message was sent.

The Telegraph that Morse invented weighed approximately 300 pounds. Today's instrument weighs less than three. Despite this, however, there have been few essential changes made in the principle.

A little known fact about Morse is that he received, as the result of his revolutionary invention, more medals and honorary degrees than perhaps any other man who ever lived. He experimented with photography in its early days and took the first daguerreotypes in the United States.

YOUR HOSPITAL

A Message To You!

SOME will say: "What, another Hospital Drive this year?"—and our answer must be of a certainty "Yes." Our hospital is called upon to use all its facilities, at uncounted expense at times, in order to administer to the sick and injured, for life is more precious than money. Equipment and personnel are as fine as can be had—but by comparison with many of our old established and well endowed institutions, our hospital is still in the infant class as far as source of income is concerned. The work must go on—its doors can never be closed to any case, expense cannot be counted in saving life. Therefore, we ask you to help with your contributions to meet this deficit, knowing full well that you will be asked again next year, and year after—but who is so calloused that they would say STOP because of this annual need of extra money to carry on this humanitarian work.

Nan dropped the receiver of the listening-in device in the drawer as Morgan's body was outlined on the frosted glass of the outer door.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NAN CARROLL does not suspect that the cause of her happiness during the past three years as secretary to ATTORNEY JOHN CURTIS MORGAN is her love for MORGAN until WILLIS TODD, an ardent suitor, falls her with the accusation. Then, though she despises herself for it, she is forced to admit to herself the truth of his accusation.

Because of Nan's brilliant mind, Morgan depends on her to assist him with his cases, and she entirely justifies his confidence by bringing an important witness into his latest case, the defense of GRACE COX, indicted for blackmail, thus helping him to win a spectacular victory. She does not tell him, however, of a blackmail note addressed to him and containing a nasty insinuation about his beautiful and haughty wife, IRIS.

To celebrate his court victory, Morgan invites Nan and BERT CRAWFORD, a handsome, snobbish friend of Iris and Morgan, to dinner at his home. During the evening and dinner, Nan has to endure the indifference of Crawford and of Iris who are suspiciously interested in each other. While they are dining, a terror-stricken maid interrupts them and behind her stand a millionaire and a dwarf.

Because of her own vanity, they have come with a warrant for a dwarf's arrest.

GLADYS PAYNE, secretary and alleged fiancee of Bland, insists Bland is innocent. Morgan goes on Crawford's bond and plans to defend him. Morgan, who has never defended a person he believed guilty, thus stakes his professional integrity on Crawford's innocence. Nan, who has written out a note of resignation because she cannot work for the man who loves, tears the note into bits. "With a faithless wife and a faithless friend you are going to need a faithful secretary," she whispers to herself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

Within 10 days the grand jury had met and returned indictments against Herbert S. Crawford and Roy Bland, charging them with the embezzlement of nearly a quarter of a million dollars of the funds of the Mid-West Packing Company, of which the two had been a president and treasurer respectively.

Roy Bland was still a fugitive from justice. A check-up at the union railroad station revealed that a man answering his description had bought a one-way ticket to New York on the night that Bland was supposed to have left for Chicago, on business for his firm.

But since he had had 10 days before the audit of the books had revealed the shortage, it was generally conceded that Bland had immediately left New York by steamer for parts unknown. Police radios to all ships at sea had resulted in exactly nothing, but in the interim Bland had had time to land and disappear.

Crawford's trial was set for December 19, a date which suited John Curtis Morgan well enough, since there was amazingly little he could do by way of preparation.

"They can't have anything on me, Jack, because I haven't done anything wrong. I never drew a penny of that money out of the bank; I never touched a penny of it after Bland drew it. I never authorized his drawing it, and did not know that he had done so. I haven't a dollar in the bank that I can't account for legitimately."

The first time he made this sweeping statement Morgan interrupted: "How did it happen that Bland, as treasurer, could sign and cash checks for such huge amounts? It's usual, I believe, for two signatures to be required on all corporation checks."

"When we first organized, that was the case," Crawford acknowledged readily. "My signature and his were required by the by-laws. But I had to be out of town so much that I asked the board of directors to amend the by-laws so that Bland's signature alone was enough. He was bonded, you know. The company won't lose the whole quarter of a million."

It was newspaper story that revealed the fact that the cashier of the bank, upon Bland's presentation of the last check for $100,000, had hesitated to cash it and had taken it upon himself to telephone Crawford for additional authority.

"Wolfe, the cashier, says that he spoke to you personally on the phone and that you O. K.'d the check," Morgan told Crawford. "That is one of the prosecution's trump cards, of course. What about it, Bert?"

The blue eyes looked blank with surprise, but utterly unafraid. "That's simply not true, Jack. I've never spoken with Wolfe over the telephone in my life. I've talked with him at the bank, of course, but he never got me when he called if he did call."

"I'm afraid we can't convince a jury that the cashier of the First National Bank is a liar. The bank's records show that all of the money was drawn after the first of November. Bland gave himself plenty of time before the next monthly statement was due. According to Wolfe, the check about which he phoned you was presented by Bland in person on Wednesday, November 9. A pretty convenient customer, that Bland. The check was presented at five minutes of three, Wolfe says. Get your business engagement book or your desk calendar, Bert, and see if you have an alibi for that time, if you were not in your office between two and three o'clock, or if someone was with you who can testify in your behalf, we'll spike their biggest gun."

So far as newspaper accounts were concerned, however, there was one big disappointment. Gladys Payne, Bland's erstwhile secretary and fiancee, chattered not at all for publication, and it was largely on Miss Payne's testimony that the indictment had been secured, if rumor was to be trusted.

The day after the bank cashier's story appeared in the paper Crawford admitted to Morgan that, so far as his desk calendar showed, he had had no engagement between half-past two and three o'clock on Wednesday, November 9.

"But of course that doesn't mean I was necessarily in my office," Crawford pointed out. "Good Lord! How can I remember what I was doing that particular half-hour? There was nothing to fix it in my mind, as there would have been if Wolfe had actually talked to me on the phone."

Nan was present at the conference. "Your switchboard operator always asks who's calling doesn't she? Perhaps she will remember whether you were in or not. She would call your private office before putting the call through, of course."

Morgan shook his head gloomily. "Branerly will already have got hold of her. But we may as well ask her to come over. Were you and she good friends, Bert?"

Bert Crawford flushed, then laughed. "A dirty crack, Jack. Always suspecting me of sneaking! 'Good girl!' Branerly? Branerly is a friend of mine, I believe. Let's have her over."

Alice Belton, a pert little flapper, with a boyish black bob, arrived at the lawyer's office at a quarter past five.

"Oh, I'm scared to death!" she told Nan delightedly. "I've got to go to the district attorney's office tonight, too! Isn't it dreadful?"

"Tonight?" Nan echoed. "Haven't you already seen Mr. Branerly?"

"Good girl!" Bert Crawford had opened the door of Morgan's private office and stood beaming at the little switchboard operator. "Come on in, Alice. My attorney isn't here, but we'll have a nice visit while we wait for him."

"If I won't let them be nasty to me if I have to go on the witness stand will you, Mr. Crawford?"

"You just bet I won't, Alice. Jill—the door closed on them, and Nan, without a moment's hesitation, reached into the deep lower drawer of her typewriter desk, pushed a button on a black metal box which was fastened to the drawer, and lifted a queer sort of receiving instrument to her ear. Morgan had had the listening-in device installed more than two years before. It had been invaluable as a means of obtaining verbatim reports from the lips of skittish witnesses, who had no idea that their words were being heard by anyone except Morgan himself. Drawing her notebook forward hastily, Nan began to jot down in short-hand the conversation that was taking place in the private office:

Alice Belton: "Quit, Bert! I'm mad at you — Oh-h! You're so strong! But honestly, I am mad at you."

Crawford: "What about, Peter Pan? Lord, you're cuter than ever!"

Alice: "Aw, you can't kid me."

Quit, Bert!

Crawford: "Listen, Alice. You and I've had some pretty good times, haven't we? Well, honey, you can do a whole lot for me, a mighty big favor, if you will—"

Alice: "It's about this awful trial, isn't it? Honestly, Bert, you could knock me over with it—"

Crawford: "I know, honey! Listen and listen hard! Wolfe, the cashier of the First National, says he called me and talked to me on the phone on Wednesday afternoon, November 9. I never received any such call—get me?"

Alice: "But, Bert, I remember putting the call through—honest, I do! I asked you if you wanted to speak to Mr. Wolfe, and you said—"

Crawford: "Listen, Alice, darling, your memory's all wet. A girl as pretty as you can't be expected to have her mind on business every blessed minute. This is what you remember: Mr. Wolfe called up, you asked him his name, you thought my secretary was in my office and you put the call through without listening to see who answered it. Two other lines were buzzing and you had to hurry to answer them. Don't you remember? Wait, baby! Then just as you pulled out the plug on Wolfe's call—you'd got the signal that the call was finished—you saw me coming in from the elevator. I hadn't been in my office after all. And you were so busy with your head that you didn't tell me Mr. Wolfe had called and you thought my secretary would tell me anyway. Isn't that exactly what you remember, sweetheart?"

Alice: "Well, if you say so, but I don't know the district attorney, Bert—Ooh, isn't it cold here? It's going to be a hard winter, isn't it?"

Crawford (laughing exultingly): "What do little girls with fur coats care for hard winters?"

Alice: "But I haven't any fur coat, Bert—"

Crawford: "You will have when this trial's over, darling. Just as a proof I'm crazy about you—"

Alice: "Yeah? Me and who else? You've got such a good memory for what I remember, Bert, maybe you can remember what you promised me about that red-headed dame you had up at your apartment that night when I dropped in to get my vanity I'd left the night before. Remember?"

Crawford: "Jealous baby! I told you—"

Alice: "You told me you'd not two-time me any more, and you have! My girl friend saw you and that red-headed dame with the blue-green eyes—ooh, cut, Bert! Honest, I can't think when you're kissing me like that! . . . You're not kidding me about the fur coat, Bert? And you do love me a whole lot?"

Nan dropped the receiver of the listening-in device into the drawer as Morgan's tall, thin shadow was outlined on the frosted glass of the outer door.

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

SOME PEOPLE BELIEVE SALIVA IS VALUABLE IN CURING DISEASE

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the last of a series of articles on common health superstitions written especially for this paper and NEA Service by Dr. Morris Fishbein, noted health authority.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Ancient man was firmly convinced that the saliva was a magical fluid. His conviction was based on the fact that he had not the slightest conception of the origin of the saliva, its chemical composition or its purpose.

Many of these ancient beliefs have persisted to modern times, so that the Senegalese witch doctors cure neuralgia and headache by chanting certain formulas and expectorating on the forehead of the person concerned.

In some parts of Great Britain warts and ringworms are cured by rubbing on saliva and in Cornwall, according to a similar character, the finger of the right hand is wetted with saliva, the front of the left shoe crossed with it three times and the Lord's prayer repeated backward to cure sciatitis. It would be possible to find innumerable instances of a similar character related to cures of diseases by the salivary method.

The truth is, of course, that the saliva consists merely of water, sodium chloride, other salts and a ferment that digests starch. The saliva comes from a number of glands which are known as the salivary glands, two of them in front of the ear and two under each of the jaw bones. It is in no way related to disease.

In certain diseases unusual substances are found in the saliva and thus it may be used as a material for aid in diagnosis.

Its chief value is obviously to keep the mouth moist and help in the digestion of starch.

When these simple facts are known, it is unnecessary to imagine any magical reasons for this simple substance. Probably an important factor in the belief that saliva has special virtue is the fact that animals lick or suck inflammations, mosquito bites, wasp stings, and similar injuries and that they seem to be benefited by the process.

The benefited is, of course, due to the fact that the bacteria are washed away from the wound and the alkaline reaction of the saliva may have some effect in killing the bacteria.

Will the teacher of the future have to be a specialist in child psychology?

There are many who believe that she will.

It sounds rather terrifying, no doubt, to girls who are planning to make teaching their profession, but they need not cross too many bridges just yet. All such changes come gradually, when the time is ripe, and they invariably bring their own compensations.

To begin with, child psychology, or its twin "behaviorism," is one of the most interesting studies in the world. Anyone who has gone into it, even superficially, cannot fail to revamp his attitude toward children considerably, for they pass out of the category of mere people, into the class of intensely interesting, individual personalities, each different, and yet like plants with the same general characteristics that develop according to an amazingly accurate program.

Other changes too are bound to come. How will the school of the future tally with the school of today in regard to discipline? Will the teacher be expected to teach and play policeman at the same time? I think not. The present custom of combining the legislative, executive and judicial branches of pedagogy in the person of one woman, or man, is hardly fair. We don't expect Congress to do the soldiering, and we don't expect Councils to play policemen.

Saving Teacher's Strength.

The discipline of the school of the future will likely be separated altogether from the actual fact of teaching. A teacher could then teach and not have to use up her strength and resourcefulness, and other children's time and attention on the mechanics of order and obedience.

Probably, being an expert on behavior, she would have less trouble with discipline, but if she did, very likely the unruly or disturbing child would be referred to a special tribunal—just what this might be time would have to determine—and she would be able to concentrate on the work in hand.

Does it sound optimistic? If it does think of the schools a hundred, even fifty years ago. And, what would they think of our schools of today? But educators now predict the big renaissance to be functional rather than materialistic. We have gone far in the latter direction, we must admit. That systems must change to conform to times, we must also admit.

THE WOMAN'S DAY

Miss Ellen Wilkinson, red-headed Socialist member of Parliament, has just published a novel. Under thin disguises it discusses her fellow M. P.'s. They are rather giggly about the novel, and look forward to a sequel rather apprehensively. They are saying a few things, too, about "these two-faced women," and remembering that Margot Asquith "betrayed" all her friends merely to write a smart and lucrative book.

HOW ABOUT MEN?

The tempest all reminds me of certain other books about the great which were published in anonymity and traced back to male authors. Women, when they take their pen in hand, just seem to dare to be a little more frank. Women, too, intelligent ones, at least have the faculty of acquiescing every situation dry. They are not only content to be M. P.'s. They want to write about it, too.

There are infinitely more women successful in their business and professions who take their pens in hand and interpret that profession than there are men who do the same thing. Men seem content with one Job—not two or more.

WHEN IT'S FASHION

Suppose that the dressmakers put out a new dress in a certain shade of blue. They don't consider that dress really a success, "a fashion" till 85 per cent of all women are wearing that blue dress. In other words, about 80 out of 250 women must sponsor a fashion before its launchers draw a relieved breath.

SHE TOOK IT

Constance Bennett, young pretty, talented, accepted one million dollars in alimony from her ex-husband. Phillip Plant, thus shattering a prevalent idea that the modern woman capable of self-support spurns alimony.

Perhaps she does when it's to the tune of $20 a week, but a cool million is a different thing to be spurned.

BULLY FOR GRANDMA!

A grandmother of 81 recently made her debut as premiere danseuse of a certain dancing class in Cleveland, O. This is truly remarkable, as the woman had never danced a step in her life till she entered the class at the age of 80. It is remarkable not so much as a tale of physical achievement, but of mental and emotional. When a woman raised in one era suddenly assumes the customs of a new era, she has performed as gallant a feat as any human being ever does—this transferring

New Haven Profits On Local Misplays, Wins 11-9

HIGH SCHOOL WINS 3rd GAME IN WEEK

Conquer Windham 6-3; McConkey, Lupien Star; Play Away Twice This Week.

Manchester High won its third straight game Saturday afternoon when it journeyed to Willimantic and took its ancient rival, Windham High, into camp in the first of the annual two-game series between the two schools. The score was 6 to 3.

All of the three victories were chalked up last week which is complete reversal of form. Manchester having lost five successive games beforehand. The season's record to date for Manchester now is four victories and five defeats. The locals have two games this week, both out of town. Tomorrow they go to Middletown and Friday to West Hartford. Both of these schools hold wins over Manchester and Coach Tom Kelley is hopeful of squaring accounts.

The Kelleymen scored all of their six runs against Willimantic in two innings, getting three in both the first and third. In the opening stanza, Dowd flied out to short, but Marcus Moriarty was safe on an error. Squatrito walked and Lupien singled to bring in Marcus. Squatrito came in on an overthrow by the catcher at third and Magnuson's sacrifice fly to center brought in Lupien with the other run.

Dave McConkey was the mound for Manchester and he pitched good ball, allowing only six hits. He was very effective with men on bases, Windham having 13 men left stranded. Lamson also went well on the hill for Willimantic, allowing only five hits, all singles. In the eighth, he struck out Varrab and Finch-Litter Saba to retire the side with the bases full. Ted Lupien's hitting stood out for Manchester.

BOO HOO! Here lies a pedestrian Solder than led; He jumped once When he should have jumped twice.

And here is one under This marker of wood; He only jumped half The distance he should.

There goes a pedestrian Knocked higher'n a kite; He jaywalked across Without watching the light.

Here lies a pedestrian, Isn't it nice! My aim was so sure That he breathed only twice.

No Fractures. "Do you know any way to avoid fire trouble?" "You might buy a motorboat."

An "Eplough." He raced the train! He got across And lest you think I rave When I assert "He got a cross" - It's right there on his grave.

A Ford had stalled and the usual crowd had collected around it, all offering expert advice. But to no avail, the Ford would not go. At last in despair the owner cried: "Doesn't anybody know anything about this car?" "Only a lot of bum jokes," a mournful individual said.

"Do you mean to tell me you couldn't see me coming on a straight piece of road like this?" said the owner of a very small car after the collision. "Sorry, guv-nor," said the jolly driver; "I thought it were a fly on me windshield."

A friend of mine, a proud father, told me yesterday that it would be a kindness to men if babies' clothes were labeled like auto curtains. "Rear." "Front." "Hook Here," etc., etc., etc.

The Gootygo held on real tight and saved the flying fish a fright. He'd picked it right out of the air, much to the crowd's surprise. "Oh, my," said Gootygo, "that was fine, to catch a fish without a line. It seems the Gootygo can do most anything he tries."

"And, if you Tynymites all wish, I'll do a clever thing for you. Now kindly set me free. And then, as soon as this was done, the fish said, "Now we'll have some fun. I'll call some other flying fish. I think I'll need 'bout three."

ABOUT TOWN

The Junior choir of the North Methodist church will give their patriotic entertainment "For Freedom's Sake," in the church vestry at 8 o'clock this evening.

Mrs. Elizabeth Palfier and daughters Rosemary and Louise of West Middle Turnpike spent the week-end with friends in New York and New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Goslee of Westminster road had as their guests over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Boucher of Sherbrooke, Quebec.

Loyal and Ever Ready circles of King's Daughters have been invited to attend the meeting of the Manchester League of Women Voters at the South Methodist church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Miss Caroline deF. Pennington of Long Lane Farm, Middletown, will be the speaker of the afternoon. She will have an interesting message to bring to the meeting in regard to the work the state is doing for girls at the Middletown institution. Tea and a social period will follow the address.

Women of Mooseheart Legion will hold their regular meeting at the Home club on Brainerd place tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock sharp.

J. Fradin of Fradin's apparel shop is in New York on a buying trip.

Tonight at the Buckland school assembly hall Boy Scouts of Troop 8, which was organized this winter, will give their first public whist and dance for the purpose of raising funds for summer equipment. Through the kindness of the troop committee and ladies in the Buckland section they will be able to offer $2.50 gold pieces as first prizes, and hold a food sale and dance in addition to the whist.

Miss Mary F. Ferguson of 3 South Main street will leave tomorrow for a visit with friends in Burlington, and also to dedicate the grave there of her brother, William Ferguson, long the chaplain of Drake Post, G. A. R.

Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus, will hold a meeting at 8:30 tonight. The first degree will be conferred on a number of candidates. There will be refreshments and entertainment.

On tomorrow afternoon and evening at the Racebrook Country Club, between Derby and New Haven, the Purchasing Agents' Association of Connecticut will hold its annual "Ladies Day." It is expected that this "Ladies Day" will be the most largely attended, and in all respects the most successful in the history of the Association. The dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. The remainder of the evening will be devoted to dancing.

The regular meeting of Shepherd Encampment, No. 37, I. O. O. F., will be held in Odd Fellows Hall at 7:30 tonight. The Royal Purple degree will be conferred on one candidate. The evening's work will be followed by light refreshments. The Royal Purple degree team is requested to meet for a rehearsal at seven o'clock.

The Board of Selectmen will hold their regular monthly meeting in the Municipal building at eight o'clock tonight.

Contractors are busy repairing the road surface and trolley tracks over the Buckley bridge in Hartford. One way trolley traffic is being maintained, but automobilists are not affected. A conduit will be placed in under the new surface to carry the Connecticut Company's new telephone wires into the city. This will allow for the dispatching of cars from Hartford instead of Manchester as at present.

Although the State Highway Department claims to have sent a reply to the letter of the Permanent Memorial Day committee asking permission to parade on East Center street, no such letter has been received by Chairman E. L. G. Hohenthal, Jr.

At a meeting of Campbell Council, K. of C., to be held tonight in their clubrooms, Rev. Eugene A. Moriarty, the first member of the council to be ordained to the priesthood, will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Taylor have returned from a visit with relatives in Norwich. Yesterday they attended the services at Trinity Methodist church, where Rev. Joseph Cooper, formerly of the South Methodist church here is pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Whitney and daughter Shirley of Winsted, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sedrick Straughan of East Center street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walllett and children of Cambridge street have been visiting friends in Pittsfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Montie of Hartford road were pleasantly surprised at their home Saturday evening by a party of their friends, mostly from the Women of Mooseheart Legion. The occasion was Mr. Montie's birthday and as a reminder of the visit, his friends presented him with a smoking set. A luncheon and other social pastimes rounded out the evening.

Mrs. Carrie Taylor's piano pupils gave their closing recital at her home on Woodbridge street, Friday evening. Despite the inclement weather every pupil was present and a number of friends, George Wilson, Harold Dumas and Raymond Street added much to the program with violin selections. Pupils with the highest standing for the past six months were Walter Wright, Alice Dumas, Albina Kasik and Eleanor Vincek. The recital was followed by a general good time during which ice cream and cake was served.

Mrs. William C. Cheney and Miss Mary Chapman have consented to take charge of the Manchester garden club's exhibit at the spring flower show of the Hartford Garden club which will be held at the Morgan Memorial, June 6 and 7. The committee will choose additional helpers from the club members.

Memorial Temple Pythian Sisters will hold their regular meeting in Odd Fellows hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

All members of the Howitzer company are ordered to assemble at the State Armory here in uniform at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon to take part in the Memorial Day parade. The building will be open at 1 o'clock. A fine of $5 will be laid against any member not reporting. This was voted at a company meeting, May 21.

Twelve prizes will be given at the bridge and whist party given by the Holy Name Society at St. Bridget's church at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

David White, eight years old, of 48 Spruce street, is recovering from injuries suffered when struck by an automobile near his home a few days ago.

There will be no regular drill of Company G tonight but all members are requested to report at the Armory to get their equipment in readiness for Memorial Day.

Troop 1, Boy Scouts, will meet in the Hollister Street School at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Rodney Wilcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Wilcox of Green Hill street, and a student at East Greenwich Academy, spent the week-end at home.

FEW CHANGES HERE

90 Less Men on Spare List; Gives Present Employees More Hours of Work.

Few changes were made in the runs of Manchester men employed on the electric lines of the Connecticut Company which went into effect yesterday. The runs are supposed to be for the summer schedule, but with the possibilities of the removal of the trolley tracks and the discontinuation of the Cross town and Manchester Green lines some of the men have made their bids with the understanding that there may be another change on or about July 15.

There are no changes in the men who will run these cars. The day men will be Slayden, Nichols and Waitz and Tomlinson and Cleveland will be the night men on the Cross town and Manchester Green lines. On the South Manchester lines there will be but two Manchester men operating cars, Leeberg and Wilson will be the night men on the regular cars.

On the Rockville lines Tedford, Howard, Robinson, Phillips, McGuire, Allison, Sweeney and Gilman will have runs, all being Manchester men formerly operating from the Manchester barns.

In bidding this time it was found that there were ninety less men now to go on the spare list than was the case at the last bid as many of the men on the spare list have left and gone to work in some other place. This will assure more work for the present spare list men, but has little effect on the spare men from Manchester, as they are well down on the list.

It's plane to me
—and it ought to be plain to everybody that now is the time to build. Plenty of material on hand; plenty of men to do the work; plenty of demand for houses; banks will listen to reason; prices down where a dollar can whisper in their ear—and the welcome sign on our front door. Come in or call up.
