ONE WALKS IN SHADOWS AS 7 RIDE IN PARADE

Eighth of Remaining G. A. R. Squad Here Near Death as Comrades Take Part in Memorial Day Services.

Observed of all observers, seven old men of Manchester rode in two automobiles yesterday. There would have been eight, for of the living members of Drake Post No. 4, there were just enough to make up a squad, but Oscar Prentiss, who for many and many a year—half a century, it is said—had never failed to turn out with his comrades on Memorial day, had been stricken so sorely within the week that he was at home, very ill, battling for life through what his kin fear will be his last of all Memorial days. Undaunted by the fall of one more of their sadly diminished number, the seven rode bravely erect as the cars rolled over the line of march, following an escort that year by year seems to grow in size as the size of the escorted group becomes less. "Too bad Oscar couldn't have held up just a few days more," was their only comment.

It was a fine parade, notable particularly for the smashing appearance of the American Legion's drum and bugle corps, much larger and better practiced than in its only previous appearance last Armistice day and unformed effectively in faced blue.

Seven in Parade
Despite the terrific heat five of the eight members of Drake Post No. 4, G. A. R. and two veterans, not members of the Post, took part in the exercises at both Cheney Hall and the monument. They were Commander Lucius Pinney, adjutant George M. Barber, chaplain Rev. Charles E. Baker, comrades Jared Pearl and A. B. Pierce, non-members, Elmer I. Hotchkiss and Corodan Beebe.

Services at Cheney Hall and at the monument were carried through with clocklike precision, though at the latter a few of the crowd sent a large portion of the crowd scurrying for cover before the completion of the ceremony.

Cheney Hall Service
Following a dinner served to the G. A. R. veterans an members of the decorating committee, services at Cheney Hall began shortly after 2 o'clock with the Manchester High School Band playing "Officer of the Day" march.

On the program were the M. H. S. Senior Class Glee Club and the

CHECKS FLOOD STORES; DRAIN TILLS OF CASH

Cheney Employees, Paid on Wednesday, Cash Their Checks in Stores as Banks Are Closed—Near Panic.

A money panic threatened Manchester Wednesday night to such an extent that many a pocketbook was without necessary stipend to fully enjoy the holiday yesterday. A flood of Cheney Brothers employee checks took nearly every store could possibly spare and in many instances crippled their change making facilities. Even the smaller stores and gasoline filling stations were stripped of actual cash through the great number of pay checks presented for redemption.

Banks Closed
The situation was due to the fact that neither of Manchester's two banking institutions were open for business Wednesday night. Practically all departments in the Cheney plant were paid off during Wednesday. This was unusual since the pay days in the silk mills are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Payment was made to accommodate those desiring money before the holiday and also to give funds to those who were taking advantage of a three-day lay-off to go to a resort for a short vacation.

Stores Hard Hit
Since the banks were not open the Cheney employees naturally turned to the merchants for cash. The J. W. Hale Company store was particularly hard hit, about $4,000 in cash being exchanged for Cheney checks. This store was unable to cash checks for about 30 customers later in the evening, so great was the shortage in bills of small denominations. Watkins Brothers' cash till was nearly emptied, only enough change being kept in the store to enable the firm to carry on its usual run of business. The C. E. House and Son store was likewise hard hit.

Visit Smaller Places
Finding larger stores without enough currency to cash checks the silk mill employees went to the smaller stores and to the various business places in the outlying sections. It was not long until these places were without much cash and many a worker spent the holiday with a perfectly good check in his pocket. Little of the hard coin and not a place with funds enough to cash it.

LABOR PARTY VICTORIOUS IN BRITAIN

Conservatives Suffer Crushing Defeat—Labor Gains More Than Fifty Seats in House of Commons.

BULLETIN!
London, May 31.—The possibility that Premier Stanley Baldwin may resign immediately as a result of the landslide to the Labor Party in the British general election was admitted in headquarters of the Conservative party today.

The present ill-health of King George may be a determining influence in the premier's decision.

London, May 31.—The victorious sweep of the Labor Party in the British general election grew in proportions this afternoon as returns poured in from all parts of the country. For the first time in history the Labor Party returned more than 200 members to the House of Commons.

Tabulation of the returns up to 3:30 o'clock this afternoon gave the Laborites 222 seats in the new Parliament. The Conservatives had 198, Liberals, 31, and others, 5. Premier Stanley Baldwin, Conservative; former Liberal premier David Lloyd George, and former Laborite Premier Ramsay Mac Donal were all re-elected to the House of Commons.

As there are 615 seats to be filled, 388 seats were necessary for an absolute majority.

A Landslide
Headquarters of the Conservative Party practically conceded defeat early in the afternoon. It was a virtual landslide. Conservative evening newspapers characterized the election trend as "sensational."

There will be a large number of women in the new House of Commons. Returns to mid-afternoon showed seven women elected or re-elected, including Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of the former premier, and Lady Astor.

Malcolm Mac Donald, son of former Premier Ramsay Mac Donald, was elected in the Bassingwold division of Nottingham by a majority of 8,011.

Record Vote.
Ramsay Mac Donald, who was elected in the Seaham division of Durham, had a record majority over W. A. Fearnley-Whittinghall, Conservative. The former premier polled 35,615 votes against his opponent's 8,221.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill, Conservative, was re-elected in the Epping division of Essex by a majority of 4,987, over G. G. Sharp, Liberal.

The aggregate vote tabulated at 3:30 was:
Labor, 5,676,390.
Conservatives, 5,586,636.
Liberals, 3,283,832.
Others, 142,681.

London, May 31.—A crushing defeat for the Conservative Party with a brilliant victory for Labor was

John D.'s Granddaughter Returns

Their romantic marriage was a national sensation several years ago. Pictured above upon arriving in New York from Europe are Mr. and Mrs. Max Oser of Zurich, Switzerland, and their children Anita and Peter. At the age of 17, Mrs. Oser, the former Mathilde McCormick, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, married the Swiss riding master over the objections of her father, Harold McCormick, millionaire manufacturer. Because of the illness of Mr. McCormick, they have returned to this country for the first time since their marriage.

24 Dead, Scores Hurt In Argentina 'Quake'

Buenos Aires, May 31.—Twenty-four persons are known to be dead and scores injured as the result of an earthquake which partially destroyed several towns and villages in the Province of Mendoza.

An official check-up of the dead gives the figures 24, but reports differing in from the stricken regions indicate the death toll may amount to 50.

The quake, which came in a series of tremors, the longest of which lasted four minutes, was felt all over the country. Telegraph and railway connections were destroyed, and relief trains immediately dispatched to the stricken area have been held up by twisted tracks.

Slow Traveling
Doctors, nurses and troops are hastening into Mendoza by automobiles, but even this progress is slow, owing to debris and felled trees blocking the roads.

Damage is estimated at many millions of pesos. Yesterday's quakes followed on the heels of tremors earlier in the week which did little damage but threw the populace into a panic.

Latest reports indicate that the towns of Villalata and Monte Coman have been virtually wiped out, while Villa Alvear has also suffered heavy damage.

French and American Ships, Now Repaired, Plan to Hop Off Before Noon Tomorrow.

Old Orchard, Me., May 31.—High winds, almost of gale force, sweeping a broad stretch of the Atlantic from the Grand Banks to the Azores, across the transatlantic track chartered by the airplanes Yellow Bird and Green Flash, today caused a postponement until probably tomorrow of the start by the American and French birdmen.

Armeno Lotti, Jr., sponsor of the America-to-Paris flight, of the Yellow Bird, was in New York consulting Dr. James H. Kimball, weather expert. His companions, Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, stayed by the plane.

The American flyers, Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Vancey, also eager to get away, waited by their America-to-Rome plane Green Flash. Lotti will fly back here the moment favorable ocean weather report appears on Dr. Kimball's chart.

Ships Repaired.
Undaunted by the mishaps of Wednesday that prevented getaways—sand-jammed wheels and a few broken spokes of one wheel when the Green Flash stuck in the sand during the takeoff, and a leak in the gasoline tank caused by a tremendous vibration of the 800 horsepower motor of the Yellow Bird that caused her to put back ten miles off shore—the airman of France and America today had

Second Largest Plant in New England Destroyed With a Loss of $200,000.

Brookfield, Mass., May 31.—The mercury was above the 90 mark today and it was mighty hard to see forty tons of ice melt as a $200,000 fire destroyed the big plant of the Brookfield Ice Company, the second largest ice plant in New England.

Firemen of Brookfield and West Brookfield, unable to get within 500 feet of the blazing ice plant, farmhouse and dwelling, turned their effort to saving a large dancing pavilion and a row of cottages on the shore of Lake Quabog. The pavilion and cottages were saved.

The bulletin was signed by H. L. Martyn, surgeon apothecary to the King's household at Windsor; Sir Stanley Hewitt and Lord Dawson of Penn.

LA FOLLETTE IN FAVOR OF OPEN SESSION

G. O. P. Leaders Opposed to Move to Hold Public Hearings on the New Tariff Bill.

Washington, May 31.—An effort to force public hearings on the new tariff bill for the first time in history today threatened to project a lively battle in the Senate even before the measure is formally considered.

Senator La Follette, (R) Wisconsin, sponsored the resolution directing the Senate finance committee to hold public hearings on the tariff measure, which the House enacted last week. His proposal met with prompt opposition from administration leaders, but La Follette predicted it would be approved by a combination of Democrats and Insurgents.

La Follette's Motion.
Administration leaders, worried about their program for recessing Congress from early June until September, looked upon La Follette's move as another attempt to embarrass them. They asserted the tariff hearings, always had been conducted behind locked doors, although the testimony of witnesses always had been made public afterward.

"Of course we will oppose La Follette's resolution," announced Senator Smoot (R) of Utah, chairman. "Never in the history of tariff legislation have the hearings been public. The testimony always has been printed later but the discussion by Senators always has been confidential. I see no need to abandon the practice that has ruled the drafting of a tariff bill since the early days of the Republic."

Favors Publicly.
Senator Simmons (D) of N. C., the minority's finance leader, declared he favored publicity. Simmons said the minority had been fighting for years for "open hearings" but always lost to the Republican majority on the committee.

The Insurgents will support La Follette. Senator Coughen (R) of Mich., one of their spokesmen, said he would favor the publicity move "because I believe all public business should be considered publicly."

Wide Open Hearings.
If La Follette's resolution is approved, it will be carrying Senate publicity further than any of those now under consideration when they were launched their campaign three years ago. An overwhelming majority of the Senate already has expressed ap-

INSURED BOARDERS; FIGHT OVER FOOD THEN KILLED THEM

71-Year-Old Landlady Is Charged by Police With Running Murder Farm.

Macon, Ga., May 31.—The authorities moved swiftly today in an effort to amass an impregnable pile of evidence against Mrs. J. C. Powers, 71-year-old landlady, charged with operating a "murder farm," and Earl Manchester, 21, an alleged hired assassin.

Within a few days the charges will be turned over to the Bibb County Grand Jury. Solicitor General Charles Garrett has summoned a special Grand Jury for Tuesday to arraign the pair, specifically charged with the murder of James W. Parks, an orphan printer.

Meanwhile police were gathering up the loose ends to an amazing chain of revelations in an attempt to support their theory that the landlady, luring young men to her home by a kindly smile, and the promise of motherly care, planned a "murder farm," with doom inevitable for her boarders.

Had Man Insured
Following closely her confession and consequent repudiation that she hired Manchester to slay Parks, on whose life she had a $7,000 double indemnity policy, and whose body was found early in the week in the Ocmulgee river here, the police declared their investigation showed other youths barely missed similar traps.

Answered an Adv.
T. S. Martin told investigators he answered an advertisement for a chauffeur identical with that which young Parks answered a month before. While talking with Mrs. Powers, Martin said, she mentioned life insurance, and told him

As Result Col. Enochs is Arrested and Must Face a Court Martial.

Washington, May 31.—The latest Army controversy, which has resulted in a court-martial being ordered for Col. Berkeley E. Enochs, Chief of staff of the Second Corps (New York) area, by his commanding officer, Major General Hanson Ely is the result of a mess room row—a row over food—it was learned here today from authoritative sources.

Col. Enochs will stand trial at Governor's Island next week on charges of insubordination preferred by Gen. Ely. He is now under arrest in quarters there.

His latest controversy was an outgrowth of the recent Army furor over the elevation of Col. Stephen O. Fuqua to the chief of infantry, which carries with it the grade of major general, were disappointed by War Department officials who have been acquainted with the facts. Fuqua's appointment, over the heads of hundreds of his senior colonels caused a terrific uproar in Army circles, but it died down with his confirmation by the Senate.

The Real Story
As the story reached official sources in Washington, the Ely-Enochs row had its inception in the officers' mess at the island. For some time there has been criticism of the mess and the way it was run, and recently it has reached a point where little else was talked about at the mess.

Some bitter feelings were engendered among the officers.

Gen. Ely for some time has been endeavoring to improve the quality of food and service. It has been a difficult task because of the transient nature of the clientele, with officers arriving and departing on

LESSEE MUST PAY U. S. INCOME TAX

Court Decides Thus in Suit Brought by the Vermont Central Railroad.

New Haven, May 31.—Judge Warren B. Burrows, of United States District Court, today decided that the lessee of a piece of property must pay the income tax imposed by the government upon the money the lessor receives for use of the property. The decision was filed in the suit of George A. Gaston and John W. Redmond, receivers for the Central Vermont Railroad Company, against the New London Northern Railroad in 1924, and that in 1929 the New London Northern lease was sold to two individuals who in turn assigned it back to the Central Vermont; and that the present plaintiffs were made receivers for the Central Vermont in 1927. The Central Vermont is paying $210,000 a year, in monthly payments of $17,500 for the use of the New London Northern.

MRS. HOOVER ON VISIT TO RADCLIFFE COLLEGE

Boston, May 31.—Foregoing the luxury of a private car or a special train, although the mercury was hovering over the 90 mark, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, the First Lady of the Land, came to Boston from Washington today in an ordinary Pullman of the Federal Express. She came here, guarded by a single Secret Service agent, in the interest of higher education for women and to help Radcliffe college, in Cambridge, celebrate its 50th anniversary.

At her special request her visit was as informal as possible. The express rolled into South station at 3:47 a. m. after an informal greeting and she stepped from her drawing room and down the steps of the Pullman by Mrs. George P. Baker, trustee of Radcliffe, and ex-President Miss Bernice Brown, dean of Radcliffe, and former Prof. Henry W. Dana, grandson of the famous post-Longfellow Mrs. Hoover was escorted outside the terminal to a waiting automobile.

Forty Deaths In The Wake Of Yesterday's Heat Wave

With the eastern seaboard continuing to welter under temperatures ranging from 90 to 100 degrees, an International News Service check revealed that at least forty deaths over the hottest Memorial Day in years were attributed directly to the heat.

In greater New York City four were prostrated, eight were killed in auto accidents and eleven met death by drowning.

About 7,000,000 persons sought the beaches in an attempt to escape the heat, at least 800,000 of them going to Long Beach.

The Washington Post promised relief from the heat by Saturday. In Boston, the record of 89 of yesterday was topped today but relief was promised by nightfall with a strong wind.

Five heat deaths and eight drownings in the Boston district have been reported during the past 24 hours.

In Brookfield, Mass., 40 tons of ice were melted as the destroyed Brookfield Ice Co., one of the largest in New England.

Other deaths were reported from Rochester, N. Y., Medford, Mass., and other towns.

Two holiday pleasure seekers were killed when a racing boat capsized during a race at a Long Island race track. Billy Spang, driver, was killed in the Indianaapolis race.

HOLIDAY'S HEAT BREAKS RECORD

Town Sizzles on Memorial Day as Mercury Touches Century Mark.

Manchester continued today in the grip of a heat wave. No serious results were reported here. The mercury went above 100 on the sun yesterday afternoon and hovered near 95 in the shade. It was the hottest Memorial Day on record in Manchester.

Five heat deaths and eight from drowning were reported about New England. Thirty prostrations were reported in Greater Boston. No one was taken to the Memorial hospital here for such treatments. Starting early in the morning there was a general exodus from Manchester for lakes and shore resorts.

Bank To Re-open
Several hundred Manchester persons went out of town yesterday to escape the effects of the torrid heat. Shore and lake resorts which had their grand opening yesterday did a great business. Places were so congested that many persons were unable to find accommodations for swimming, boating and in some instances, eating.

Manchester lived up to its past reputation of dodging thunder storms. After the stinging heat Wednesday afternoon there was hope of relief when jet black clouds accompanied by peals of thunder and flashes of lightning came out of the west but it was in vain. The bulk of the storm passed around to the north of the town only a comparatively light rain falling here and not lasting long. Last year this happened many times.

Globe Hollow Popular
Although the season has not been officially opened at Globe Hollow scores of youngsters, also plenty of adults, went to Globe Hollow yesterday for relief from the scorching heat. An unusually large crowd led the elements to watch the Memorial Day parade here. The intensity of the heat did not die out until late in the evening and a vast many persons sacrificed two or three hours of sleep to get the benefit of the cool, refreshing air.

indicated today in returns trickling in from all over the country in the general election held throughout Great Britain yesterday.

At 7 o'clock this morning (2 a. m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time), the Labor forces, under the leadership of J. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister in the labor government of 1924, had ripped through the Conservative ranks to elect 121 members to the House of Commons, a gain of more than 50 seats.

tives had elected only 78, this figure representing a loss just about equivalent to the Labor gain. Liberals Get 18 Seats. The Liberal party, headed by David Lloyd George, war-time premier of Great Britain, had captured only 13 seats, while Nationalists and Independents elected but four.

At ten o'clock this morning, returns showed that a total of 5,510,358 votes had been cast for Labor candidates, 2,920,318 for Conservatives, 1,836,429 for Liberals and 50,078 for Nationalists. Independents and others.

If its present rate of progress is maintained, labor will not only have scored a steam-roller victory over the incumbent party, but will also have a clear working majority in the new Parliament.

Baldwin Defeated. Even with two-thirds of the new Parliament still to be elected, it appears certain that the Conservative forces and the government of Premier Stanley Baldwin, will go down to a crushing defeat. The Conservative headquarters still returned to be downhearted, maintaining that the principal Tory constituencies are still to be heard from, but it is obvious that even if the Conservatives should be able to offset the gains of the party, there will be nothing approaching a working majority in the new house.

Liberals Disappointed. The Liberal Party, revived by Lloyd George in his brilliant election campaign, has profited a surprising disappointment in the returns available thus far. Even the most astute political observers before elections deemed it highly probable that the fiery war-time premier would lead his forces in a violent assault both on Conservative and Labor strongholds.

But Liberal gains have been negligible, and Liberal candidates returned to office have won only by small majorities.

In view of the heavy Tory losses, there were unconfirmed rumors that party leaders were considering a Conservative-Liberal coalition to keep the Labor Party from gaining power in the House.

ONE WALKS IN SHADOWS AS 7 RIDE IN PARADE

Senior Mrs. Quartet, with Miss E. Marion Doward at the organ and piano. General orders for Memorial Day, 1898 and 1929 were read by Commander Fred C. Lorch. Charles Baranoff delivered Lincoln's memorable Gettysburg Address. Prayers and benediction were led by Rev. J. Stuart Nellis.

The Address. Rev. E. A. Colpitts, pastor of the South Methodist church, and the principal speaker, delivered an address which brought the Civil War veterans to their feet in acclaim. It follows:

"Just as the coming of a storm tends to obscure the most familiar landmarks, so did the world storm that broke in 1914 tend to obscure the landmarks of our national landmarks, and in a measure during this crisis even the institution of Memorial Day passed to partial eclipse. For it is one of the strange obliquities of the human mind that we are prone to forget the things that belong to us, that in our country. We repeat the celebration as Kepling repeats the haunting refrain of his 'Recession'—'Lest We Forget.' It brings us face to face with three things. First, that we have as our legacy a great, strong, united country. Second, that our country was once threatened with division and disaster. Third, that it was rescued from division and disaster by the sacrifice of treasure and men of Civil War Days. The fact that America is interested in the new spirit of nationalism which is wholly praiseworthy in no sense absolves her from allegiance to her own heroes and to her own history. 'How shall an adequate appreciation of the men and their deeds be shown? Partly by the building of material monuments. Always has been in the hearts of humanity to so honor their heroes. Not to do this is ignoble. This is of course an honor that is not to be inquired again we can honor them by words of eulogy, but those who best know these men know best that they are not thrillingly interested in mere lip honor. These men made their sacrifices not for personal aggrandizement. They were given to us for the perpetuity of American ideals. Therefore, the only honor acceptable to them is that which manifests itself in a devotion to those ideals.

End of War Not All. "Democracy is our ideal, but every thoughtful man knows that it is not yet a long time before it is completely worked out and related to all the areas of our national life. It is our duty to think that when a war is over all is done. As a matter of fact, the constructive processes must come after the necessary tearing down has been accomplished by the days of battle. The wish of every Grand Army man is that we of today should take up the torch which they throw to us from falling hand and that we hold it as high in our day as they did in theirs. Lincoln's exhortation at Gettysburg is still needed. 'It is for us the living to finish the great work which they who fought here have so nobly begun.'

There are those who ask us to prove the validity of our American ideals. What answer shall be made? We do not hesitate to submit them to the test of their originality. They were not ideals promulgated by conquerors; rather they were given to us by martyrs. They were not set forth by men who were seeking personal power and aggrandizement. They were given to us by men who were given to us by the great spiritual forces of life. Every one of the original colonists had his birth not in a material but in a spiritual adventure. And second we welcome the test of results. It was W. L. George, an Englishman, who said: 'It had to be born again as I was born—a family that had no influence worth anything, no money, and no lineage, if I had to make my way again as I had to do, I should feel that there was only one place for a young man who wanted to tear from life full value for his efforts; in spite of all temptations I should have been born in America.' As Mary Antin speaks of her American life, which is the product of these ideals, she does so almost with frenzy. 'The Americanization of Edward Bok' is simply a manual of tests of our American ideals in not one of which did he fail.

Right of Defense. "One hears an occasional criticism these days that American liberty and freedom are passing. It is said that the open door asylum of other days is being supplanted by a policy of discrimination. To any persons under the American flag who can complain of any discrimination whatsoever are those who directly or indirectly are attacking these ideals which the years have proved to be valid. They did not carry on the fight for her 'principles' no matter what ups and downs she suffered.

In a total poll of $3,500 in the Sutton district of Plymouth, Viscountess Astor pulled through against William Westwood, her Labor opponent, by the narrowest margin of her long and colorful political career. Westwood polled 16,414 votes and her 16,825, after one of the most bitterly fought campaigns in any district of the country.

Lady Astor ran on a platform divided between staunch support of conservative policies and a "non-partisan" issue all her own.

Her near defeat this year was caused by the intervention of the Liberals, whose insertion of a candidate in the Plymouth race also resulted in Lady Astor's seat going to Labour.

The total in the Memorial hospital campaign for $38,000 fund reached $16,177.85 today after all contributions had been totaled by Treasurer W. W. Harris. As the last note died away the echo sounded softly over the crest of the nearby hill, becoming fainter and fainter then dying away completely in the distance.

DEATHS

Miss Katherine H. Warner. Miss Katherine Hutchinson Warner, aged 80, died yesterday afternoon at St. Francis hospital in Hartford. She had been in feeble health for some time but her condition became critical only a week ago. Miss Warner was born in Bolton, January 20, 1849, daughter of Albert F. and Eunice (Gager) Warner. She was reared in the Warner homestead which has been in the family for four generations. There are no near survivors although cousins live in Bolton, Gilead and Manchester.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Bolton Congregational church. Rev. Frederick C. Taylor, pastor of that church will officiate and burial will be in the Bolton Center cemetery. The bearers will be: Cousins, Robert and Charles Warner of Bolton, Samuel M. Alvord of Bolton, William J. Warner of Gilead, Wallace Hutchinson of Manchester and Arthur Loomis of Manchester.

Miss Ione E. Burdick. Miss Ione E. Burdick, a resident in the House and Hale block, and formerly a well known dressmaker here, died early this morning at Mrs. White's Sanitarium in West Hartford. Miss Burdick was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elisha M. Burdick. She had been a resident of Manchester about 50 years coming here from Talcottville when but seven years of age.

Miss W. B. Lull, of 32 Huntington street, this town; She was a member of the Center Congregational church and Sunset Rebekah lodge. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 p. m., daylight saving time. The burial will be in the East cemetery. In the absence from town of Rev. Watson Woodruff, Rev. Robert A. Colpitts, of the South Methodist church, will officiate.

their way to other posts, and it has not been easy to satisfy all tastes. Would God GoSSIP. Dissention grew to such proportions that recently at a staff meeting, General Ely, square-jawed and tensuous, declared a kindly commander, declared gossip and expressions of discontent must be stopped.

Col. Enochs, with a reputation of being quick tempered, fry but sensible, took exception to his junior officer's remark and asked if they were directed to him.

Across the staff table talk grew heated, and when the meeting broke up, Enochs and one or two other officers remained behind with the corps area commander. Reprimandations are said to have started all over again, finally ending in an open break between Ely and his chief of staff.

Just what happened at the finish is not included in the information disclosed by the War Department. It was said that the specific charges will come out at the trial—that is unless it is held in secret. This point will be decided by the court officials.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Bridgeport, May 31.—Mrs. E. J. King met death accidentally according to a finding issued here today by Coroner John P. Phelan, when her car was hit by a truck on May 30rd, causing injuries that led to her death four days later. Mrs. King was the widow of John T. King, once Republican national both "ships" repaired and were ready to make another attempt to span the Atlantic. Before Noon Tomorrow. Indications today were that both planes would attempt to get away before noon tomorrow.

Morning weather advised against a start before midnight tonight, but an added statement indicated that the ideal conditions "would exist clear across the ocean by Saturday.

Both Ben Zabori Boedecker, mechanics of the monoplane, Fred P. Plested, pilot of the biplane, and the wheel of the landing gear have announced that the plane can once more be refueled and prepared for another take-off.

To prevent recurrence of Wednesday's misfortune, Williams and Lewis agreed that it would be better to run the Green Flash 5 mile further down the beach when the next attempt at a take-off is made. If this plan is carried out it will be almost impossible to run into the soft sand.

Porches and verandas of houses were occupied until close to midnight.

New Haven, May 31.—The hottest series of May days on record have developed as the result of the heat wave that the Weather Bureau office expected to reach a climax today. While the temperature maximum of 90 reached yesterday has been equaled and even exceeded in other May days, the run of four days with a mercury high in the eighties has not been recorded before.

New Haven's record high temperature for May was set in 1898 when on the tenth of May the mercury stood at 93 degrees. Just ten years ago, on May 29, the local official thermometer touched 92 degrees. In both 1913 and 1914 the mercury stood at 90 degrees, the first time early in May and the second late in May.

84 This Morning. Where the official thermometer stood at 79 degrees at nine yesterday morning, it read 84 degrees this morning. In five hours yesterday the same mercury bulb showed a rise of twenty degrees, but no such rise was expected today. A maximum of about 90 degrees seemed in prospect, with a similar high temperature tomorrow.

N. E. DEATH TOLL

Boston, May 31.—New England continued in the grip of the hot wave today, with five heat deaths and eight drowned during the past 24 hours added to the toll. Thirty prostrations in Greater Boston were recorded by hospitals in the 24 hour period.

In addition, several persons were injured and heavy property damage was caused at Norridgewock, Maine, by a wind of almost cyclonic proportions. Trees were uprooted, telephone and telegraph poles knocked down and houses damaged. The storm also did some damage in Waterville, Me., and Augusta, and vicinity.

The record heat of 98 yesterday was being equaled if not topped today although local thunder showers were promised. From Boston and vicinity there was a general exodus to the beaches and lakes.

18 DEAD IN N. Y.

New York, May 31.—New York still sweaters today in the heat wave which took a toll of 18 deaths in greater area yesterday. Showers were predicted for this afternoon. The heat killed four persons, 11 were drowned. It was one of the hottest Memorial Days in the city's history. The temperature was at 83 and the humidity climbing to 92.

TILDEN IS FORCED 5 SETS BY ITALIAN

Roland Garbos Stadium, Paris. May 31.—Bill Tilden won his way to the semi-finals of the men's singles of the French hard courts championship today by defeating Baron H. L. De Morpurgo, of Italy, in a furiously contested five set match. The score was 9-11, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 8-6.

The Italian provided the most formidable opposition Tilden has encountered in many a day. In a highly spectacular fashion, he won the first two sets from the veteran American.

Then "Big Bill" staged one of the come-backs for which he is famous. In a brilliant rally, he swept through the next two sets to bring the score in sets to two all. The final set was a grim battle in which both players fought furiously to-forever point.

approval of the senate rules committee's recommendation for publication of all Senate roll-calls and for public consideration of presidential nominations, when a majority so desires. There is a bare possibility that these two changes in Senate rules will be adopted this week.

Administration leaders meanwhile were concerned with their plans for an all-summer recess in order to give Congress a vacation during the hot summer months, they must secure final enactment of both the farm relief and the re-appointment bills, and secure an agreement in the Senate for a vote on the tariff bill early next fall.

is especially unfortunate at the present moment, since the country is without a parliament, whose approval would be necessary in the event a regent had to be appointed to administer the affairs of state.

If the Conservatives are defeated in the election, which now appears almost a certainty, the situation will be exceedingly involved even in its present circumstances. It is not known officially whether the present Council of State is empowered to receive the resignation of the incumbent Cabinet and appoint a new prime minister, a function invariably undertaken by the monarch whenever a new election takes place.

It was learned this morning that the King had passed a fairly comfortable night, obtaining some sleep, and that his general condition was unchanged.

ABOUT TOWN

Doctor and Mrs. Charles W. Straut of Henry street who have been making a short stay in New York City, are expected home this evening.

Miss Helen Feely of 28 Griswold street, who came here from her home in Sligo, Ireland, was the guest of honor at a welcoming party given Wednesday evening by about 50 friends from Boston, New York, Springfield, Hartford and this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gottfried Johnson of West Center street celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage Wednesday evening. They invited upwards of 50 of their relatives from this town, Boston, Hartford and New Britain.

Because of the excessive heat this morning all but two of the departments of the Orford Soap company closed soon after the employees reported to work.

Mr. Charles Kellner of Union street is in New York during the week-end visiting with her son.

The Amaranth Bridge club held its last meet of the season and outing at the Blue Plate Tea Room, Farmington avenue, West Hartford this afternoon.

"Nothing But the Truth," the three-act comedy by a cast of young people from the Epworth League of the South Methodist church and town Players, will be repeated this evening at Cheney hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brollin of Eldridge street were surprised Wednesday evening by about 40 of their relatives and friends from this town and elsewhere.

KILLED BY AUTO.

Stamford, May 21. — Winston Fawcett, colored, was killed by a car placed under ball of $2,500 pending the outcome of an inquest into the death of James Forman, 66, also colored, crushed to death by Fawcett's machine.

BOYS WRECK TRAIN.

Danbury, May 21. — A. B. See, a railroad police sergeant, today sought youngsters who derailed a milk train near here yesterday by putting a spike on the rails.

Officials at first suspected an attempt to wreck a Pittsfield express and then decided boys at play were responsible for the mischief.

Another Murder Although they were occupied in delving deeper into the Parks murder, the authorities were also looking into the circumstances of the disappearance a few years ago of Claude P. Burham on whose life Mrs. Powers was said to have obtained a $5,000 insurance policy.

According to police, two dwellings here insured in favor of Mrs. Powers, were burned four years ago, and their origin never was satisfactorily explained.

That Mrs. Powers usually sent her roomers to take out insurance policies and name her as beneficiary was disclosed also by the statement of Hollis L. Mullis.

MISS RUTH M. HYNES TO MARRY DENTIST

Local Nurse to Wed Instructor in Harvard Dental School; Ceremony in September.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Ruth M. Hynes, daughter of James P. Hynes, of Eldridge street, and the late Lillian Finn Hynes, to Dr. William McLellan, Ross of Cohasset, Mass.

Miss Hynes is a graduate of St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing, in Hartford, for two years following her graduation she did both private duty nursing and general hospital work, being employed for some time at the Memorial hospital.

During the summer of last year she received an appointment to the Boston Health Dept., and later was sent by the Mass. Dept. of Public Health, to Cohasset, to establish a constructive public health program.

Dr. Ross was graduated in 1923 from Acadia College in Canada, and from the Harvard Dental School in 1927. At the present time he is an instructor at Harvard Dental School, and also maintains a private practice in Cohasset.

than that. But those persons whose business requires that they take note of the conditional bills of sale recorded at the town clerk's office have learned from experience that for a number of years automobiles have constituted more than half of the items sold on such terms and the number of these bills of sale offered for record now exceed 500 annually.

The sheer labor of recording these papers would have become oppressive to town clerks long ago if the law had remained as it was previous to 1921, as these officials or their assistants then had to copy each entire document into the record books.

SWEDISH MEMORIAL SERVICES SUNDAY

In honor of deceased members of the Swedish societies in Manchester will hold a memorial service in the Swedish Lutheran church Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock with Rev. P. J. O. Cornell delivering the sermon.

The organizations taking part are Vasa, Scandia Lodge No. 23, O. S. V., Knights of Pythias, Benevolent Society, Segar and Enight Lodge, I. O. G. T. Yesterday afternoon the societies decorated the graves of members with flowers.

HEBRON

At the annual town meeting the matter of the refunding of the town bonds issued for the construction of the New Haven, Middletown and Williamantic Railroad Company, which became due this year, was acted favorably. The question of biennial elections for the town called up heated debate. The measure was finally lost, in a ballot vote of 29 to 75. Representative Robert Foote spoke for the measure as being a practical means of saving expense. The question of three year bids for high school transportation was discussed but not acted upon. Markson Bailey acted as moderator and John N. Hewitt as clerk.

The death of Mrs. Henriett (Brown) Gott, aged 88, and on months, occurred on Monday following a lingering illness of years. She was a daughter of William Brown and Mariett (Phelps) Brown, of Marlborough and was the widow of the late Daniel Gott of Hebron, to whom she was married in 1859. Her married life was spent in this town. After the death of her husband she removed to Hartford where she lived for more than thirty years. She has lived in Hebron for the past nine years. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Marietta G. Gott, and Mrs. Marion Gott, with whom she has lived. Funeral services were held at the residence yesterday afternoon. Rev. T. D. Martin, rector emeritus of St. Peter's church, officiated. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery.

Concetta Tiers won first place in the speaking contest at the Jones street school of which Miss Elizabeth Bertch is teacher. Mary Turkel stood first in the spelling try-out. Florence Burgess and Edward Staba were second in standing respectively. They will represent the school in the annual contest to be held at the town hall Tuesday evening. Judges were C. Earle Park, Mrs. Annie Wright, and Miss Daisy White.

Mrs. Giles Taylor of Middletown was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Emma Park of Jones street, for a few days recently.

A subscription paper has been circulated among the Episcopal residents and others interested to collect funds for the materials for the painting of the old Methodist church there. This old church is a landmark. It is used by the Seventh Day Adventists for their services, which are held on Saturdays, and the members of that faith offered to do the work of painting on Memorial Day free of charge.

Dr. William Ticknor, a retired veterinary surgeon, and a former resident of this town, visited his boyhood home last Sunday calling on some of his old friends. He is 89 years of age. He is the son of David Ticknor who died many years ago, and who operated the blacksmith shop on the site where Clifford Perry's shop now stands. The Ticknor home was on the site of the new house built by the Perry family. Mr. Ticknor is a veteran of the Civil War and is now living in New London. He is in good health. He was easily recalled by many of the older people of the people of the town. He visited the graves of his parents in Gilead cemetery. He said the only house looking the same as when he left was the place owned by the Misses Edna and Jessie Post, on Gilead corner.

Mrs. Inez Crane and daughter, of Kensington, were callers on friends in Jones street recently. Mrs. Crane is daughter of the late Rowell K. Jones, formerly lived in Hebron.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brewer of Hockanum, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Keefe and their daughter, Miss Marion, were dinner guests on Sunday at the home of Mrs. Helen Hill White. On the way Mr. Brewer's car was held up by a young woodchuck which stood in its right to travel in the highway. The controversy was finally ended by Mr. Brewer's picking up the young woodchuck, and taking it along as a passenger.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank White of New Haven are regular week-end visitors at the home of Mr. White's aunt, Miss Adelle White on Burroughs Hill.

Donald Campbell, a member of the senior class of Berkeley Divinity School, New Haven, officiated at the morning service at St. Peter's Episcopal church last Sunday. He was assisted by a classmate, Mr. Carr, the two motoring from New Haven Sunday morning.

Elder Saunders of South Lancaster, Mass., was present at the Sabbath services of the Seventh Day Adventists in Hopedale and made an address. Mrs. Saunders accompanied him.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bentinger and children motored to South Lancaster, Mass., on Saturday for that part of the commencement of Atlantic Union College which took place on that day.

Edward Flint of New Haven and Miss Catherine Woolley of New York City were the guests of friends here for the day on Sunday.

Miss Doris Moore was the guest of Miss Clarissa Lord at the latter's Hebron home on Sunday.

Kneeland Jones and family of Bolton visited relatives here on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Allen of Hartford are spending the weekends at their cabin on Burroughs Hill, weekly.

SWIMS OVER RIVER TO EVADE POLICE

New Haven, May 31.—Charles Duffield, of Chloopee, Mass., rested in police headquarters here today pending the arrival of officers from home. Duffield dove off a freight car in the Cedar Hill yards late yesterday and swam across the wide pool of the Quinnipiac river while railroad police paddled across in a canoe and arrested him.

The police supposed Duffield must have committed a serious offense, so many chances did he take, but when he was being booked the most serious thing they could find was that he was wanted for theft of an automobile. Duffield's ability at diving and swimming while fully clothed is still the marvel of the police officers who pursued him.

BILLY WALLACE WEDS
New York, May 31.—William W. Merrill of Cleveland, better known as Billy Wallace, pugilist, is honeymooning in New York today with his bride, the former Katherine Fisher, a stenographer and switchboard operator of Cleveland. They were married at the Hotel Roosevelt yesterday by the Rev. Father Francis Norman of St. Peter's Mission.

A NEW SIX AT A PRICE WITHIN THE REACH OF MILLIONS

Be among the first to see what distinctive appearance and what remarkable performance Buick can build into a six at a price within the reach of millions. The Marquette will stand at the head of its price class as naturally as Buick leads its field. Fitted with the latest design in closed bodies by Fisher, every line of this attractive new car spells style—but to appreciate the outstanding difference between the Marquette and cars of comparable price, you must judge it by performance. In this new six are the sparkle and snap, the responsiveness, balance, and ease of control of a truly fine car—with the added advantage of Buick-built sturdiness and stamina that mean uninterrupted service.

Two years ago this month the General Electric Refrigerator was publicly announced for the first time. Fifteen years of research and development had produced a refrigerator with an hermetically sealed, dust-proof mechanism, mounted on top... a refrigerator with an improved type of cabinet, mounted on legs... one with an accessible temperature control... that established a new standard of quiet operation... that required no oiling... that dispensed with all troublesome machinery...

that lowered operating costs... that carried an unqualified two-year service guarantee. A radical improvement has been made in the cabinet! It is now all-steel! It cannot warp. It is as strong as a safe. You can purchase the new models shown at our display rooms on conveniently spaced payments. Lunch—Pint of buttermilk, 10 or 12 dates.
Dinner—Roast pork, French artichokes, baked ground beets molded vegetable salad of green peas, celery, baked apple, no cream.

*Baked stuffed tomatoes: Remove the interior from the desired number of firm tomatoes, but do not peel. Mix this scooped out portion with the same amount of chopped mushrooms and a smaller amount of finely ground celery. Fill tomatoes to overflowing and around sides with this mixture, and sprinkle melba toast crumbs over all. Bake in earthenware or cooking glass, in moderate oven for about twenty minutes. (Longer cooking renders the tomatoes too mushy). Add a generous lump of butter to each tomato with a sprinkling of chopped parsley when ready to serve.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Swollen Nose.)
Question: Mrs. A. D. writes: "My nose is swollen all the time. Is there any relief in a correct diet?"
Answer: You do not say whether or not the swelling is caused by pimples or boils in your nose. If this is the cause, of course it can be entirely eliminated through a correct diet. A red nose usually comes from some irritation of the alimentary canal and is also curable through dieting and promoting intestinal cleanliness.

(Arterial Tension.)
Question: E. I. H. asks: "What is arterial tension? How do we know when we have it?"
Answer: The amount of arterial tension which you have is determined by an examination with a blood pressure meter which every doctor uses in his office. Such arterial tension may come from hardening of the arteries or from nervousness which causes the arteries to become contracted most of the time.

CAMBRIDGE EXCITED OVER TWO MURDERS

Cambridge, Mass., May 31.—Marie Gallo, 17, was being held today as a material witness and her brother, Anthony, 19, was being held charged with the slaying of Dominick Siminette, 48. The mother and father of Paul and Marie were also held as material witnesses.

The body of Siminette was found in the street with two bullet wounds in the head. Three shots had been fired, according to those living near the scene.

This was the second killing in this city in 24 hours. Walter Coploecki, 40, father of two children, was found in the vestibule of a Warren street house, slain by a blunt instrument. Police discovered that Coploecki had been in a battle with John Oasnooch, who was arrested charged with slaying Coploecki.

AGAINST WAR SONGS

Swampscott, Mass., May 31.—With a militaristic or sentimental tag placed on old-time favorite songs of America, the Musical Council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs today was in a quandry over their musical program.

Dr. H. A. Smith, musical director of Boston University School of Religion Education, urged that the best-loved tunes as taught in the schools be abandoned, including war songs and hymns of the north and south.

He added it was no use for women to talk about international peace so long as they sing in church "The Son of God Goes Forth to War."

When a man's religion makes him want to argue and quarrel with somebody a lot of the time, he's got the wrong kind of religion.

He had a band under his father's name in St. Joseph, Mo., when he was only 16 years old. When he was 20, he was conductor of an opera company. Later he joined John Philip Sousa's band, in which he was premier trombonist. With Sousa he toured Europe in 1902. The band gave 385 concerts during the trip. Fryor played 344 solos. CIVIL WAR RELICS ON DISPLAY HERE

Appropriate Memorial Day Exhibit in Windows of Manchester Electric Co.

No window display has aroused more interest and attention in Manchester in a long time than the one so appropriate to Memorial Day at the Manchester Electric Company on Main street where Civil War relics were on exhibition. In the center of the display three muskets with bayonets fixed are stacked while immediately below them rests a picture of the Great Emancipator, Abraham Lincoln. In the background stands a tripod holding a kettle over a bed of coals.

Included in the exhibits are cutlasses from both the Union and Confederate armies, the latter taken during the capture of a blockade runner.

A pair of shoes worn by Lucius Pinney still bearing what is said to be Louisiana mud are included as is a horse pistol used by R. M. Thompson. Swords, powder flasks, cartridge boxes and a tiny bible are also shown. Practically all of the articles on exhibition are the property of Albert W. Keeney of the Tenth Regiment Infantry.

One of the most interesting articles of all is the roster of the Tenth Regiment Infantry compiled by Brevet Brigadier General John L. Otis of Manchester. It is the property of Mrs. John Hampton of Summer street. Included in its contents are the following Manchester men:

Field and Staff: Colonel John L. Otis.

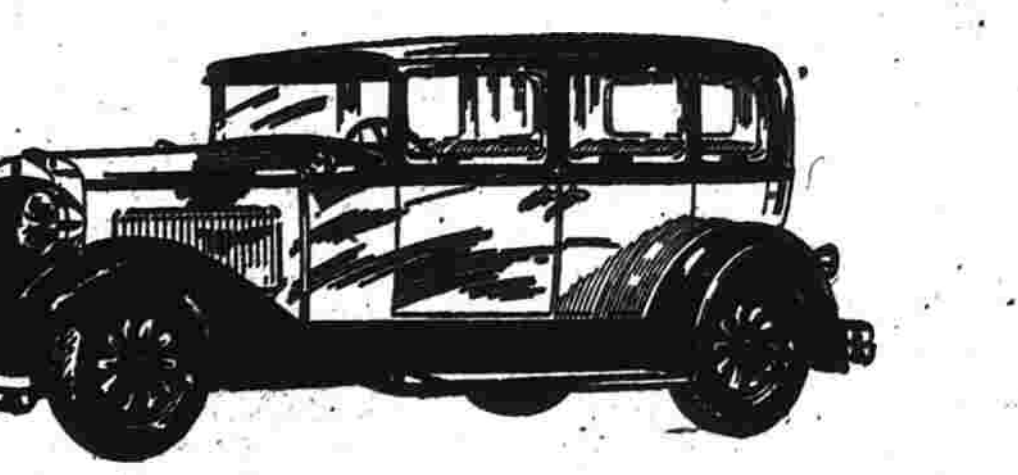

Company B: Captain Philip W. Hudson, Lieutenant Chanucy Hodges, Top Sergeant William H. Chadwick, Corporal Henry W. Burrows, Corporal W. L. Norton, Corporal George Scheldt, Wagoner James H. Bonson, Privates Henry T. Gray, John Horsley, William Hughes, A. W. Keeney, Amador C. Keeney, James B. Keeney, Samuel W. King, David A. Loveland, Levi F. Lyman, William J. Lyman, Dennis Mahoney, Henry Potter, Davis Ross, John W. Shaw, Andrew M. Spencer, George G. Woodbridge, George Wright.

Other Manchester men in other units of the regiment were Delos B. Bidwell, Selman H. Bidwell, Charles H. Dutton, John Burton, Henry B. Gleason, Charles Robinson, George M. Spencer, Charles I. Green, George G. Barrett, Conrad George Russell A. Ristey and William C. Wilson.

Browning has hired "the entire arena" of Madison Square Garden for a party on June 17.

It will be a real estate party—auction of 58 pieces of Browning's property, valued at $5,000,000 by him. The receipts will go to the Browning Foundation. Browning recently announced the foundation would aid various welfare work for children.

BILLY MISCELL

General Billy Mitchell, so-called stormy petrel of military aviation, who never did give a hoot for that quality usually called tact, which he doubtless would describe as pussy-footing, and whose outspoken criticism of and impatience with everybody who failed to see the proportionate value of air armament as he sees it, have often stirred the country, is at it again.

While we have always agreed very largely with Mitchell and had the greatest sympathy with him when the War Department ran its steam roller over him, it seems hardly fair for him to select Calvin Coolidge for his target. Mitchell ought to be able to understand what substantially all intelligent Americans have always understood, that the peculiar strength of Calvin Coolidge as a President of the United States lay in his perfectly conventional conservatism.

The country needed, at his period, not nearly so much a constructive genius as a steady hand, for it was entering upon an era of erraticism and unsteadiness that might have had ruinous results had it continued. Coolidge never was and never affected to be an expert in new ideas; he never pretended to any great ability as a sorter and examiner and selector of the good from the bad among them. He did have and did employ, to the huge advantage of the country, certain tried and tested convictions as to basic principles. But as between the old and the new it was inevitable that he must choose the old in default of visual demonstration that the new was unquestionably the better.

On such a problem as that involved in the proposition to shift the burden of national defense into the air, Mr. Coolidge, with a native predisposition in favor of the time-honored and the customary, would inevitably have to depend almost entirely on the suggestions and advice of his subordinates immediately concerned with such matters. The policy which Mitchell attributes to Coolidge in "chaining aviation to the Navy, Army and Commerce Departments" was, of course, about as much of Coolidge origin as is the Decalogue.

When General Mitchell assails the Navy and the Army concerning aviation he is within his moral rights, for it was the duty of those departments to know whether the people's money should be spent on great ships costing scores of millions and military land forces representing oceans of human blood, instead of on aircraft capable of wiping out such defenses in the twinkling of an eye. A secretary of the navy or a secretary of war has no right in the world to be a conservative—he must be an open-minded investigator. That's what he is for, theoretically. But no President can be rightfully held blameworthy because he is a conservative who does not understand the minutiae of such technical matters. Billy Mitchell hasn't, in this instance, been nearly as convincing as usual.

At the end it is inconceivable that this commission will deliver any judgment that is not buttressed by millions of unquestionable facts and by unassailable logic.

GOOD BOOSTING While a multitude of booster clubs and organizations of one sort and another all over the state are shouting loud demands to know "why we don't advertise Connecticut" the Litchfield Hills Federation, a group of Litchfield County men representing all the towns in the county, which came into being only a little over a year ago, has prepared and printed the first number of fascinating illustrated magazine bearing the effective title "The Lure of the Litchfield Hills," which is to be issued four times a year.

So enchanting are the photographic illustrations of many of the numberless scenes of rare beauty to be found in the Litchfield country, and so convincing, and well written is the subject matter that the outsider into whose hands this magazine falls is pretty likely to finish reading it in the conviction that there, at least, is one part of America that he must not, on any account, miss visiting.

There are few of us in this state who have not some degree of familiarity with the Litchfield Hills. But few from all of us have realized to the full how profound and manifold are their beauties. The excellent photography and deft description matter in the magazine bring this realization even to the people of the state. How much more revealing, not to say astonishing, must they be to strangers.

It is in its way, the program of British Labor is as revolutionary, if infinitely more intelligent, as the actual achievements of the Russian Bolsheviks. That is to say, it yields about as little respect to the established order of things for any sake of tradition or inherited predispositions.

Apparently Great Britain faces one of the greatest experiments in economic politics that the world has ever witnessed. It is perhaps fortunate, if such experiments are to be undertaken anywhere—and who can say that they may not eventually guide the future progress of mankind—that they should be made in a country so largely populated by a homogeneous people educated by centuries of experience to an admirable self-restraint and having little use for violent passions or violent actions.

If British Labor has, as appears, succeeded in arriving at complete control of the British government the merits or demerits of practical socialism, administered by highly intellectual and profoundly trained minds, seem to be on the point of receiving their first efficient demonstration in the history of the modern world. The outcome will be observed with breathless interest everywhere.

THE CRIMES BOARD Bigger than the tariff bill—perhaps many times; bigger than farm relief; bigger than any job undertaken by the United States government in a dozen years, is the work set in motion yesterday when President Hoover's crime tribunal re-gathered at Washington and started in on the preliminaries of at least two years of effort to diagnose and administer therapeutic treatment for the disease of law contempt from which this country is so seriously suffering.

Not since the tremendous task of mobilizing the nation for the World War was undertaken has this country set itself such a job of work as this of restoring its own broken morale. And it is patent that in the conception of this crimes commission, and in the selection of its personnel, President Hoover has brought to the enterprise the best of those rare abilities for the possession of which the nation chooses him as its leader.

It is highly probable that, for a great many of the items of its revolutionary program, it will receive sufficient support from the Liberals to put them into effect.

Not many Americans realize how far reaching are the purposes of the British Laborites and to what lengths they are prepared to go in eliminating special privilege in the interest, as they see it, of the masses of the people. Some of the enterprises to which the Labor party is committed, and which it will undoubtedly proceed to put into effect if its power proves to be sufficient, would frighten conservative Americans pallid if there were any prospect of their adoption in this country.

In its way, the program of British Labor is as revolutionary, if infinitely more intelligent, as the actual achievements of the Russian Bolsheviks. That is to say, it yields about as little respect to the established order of things for any sake of tradition or inherited predispositions.

It is the greatest strength of the commission that it is not only able to envision the enormous ramifications of the problem set for it but to approach them undismayed and with confidence. Very evidently the members of the commission realize that they are embarking on an adventure which, if it is even measurably successful, will result in one of the most profound achievements in the history of the world. They have ahead of them infinite delving, harassing puzzlements, demands for the exercise of superlative wisdom. But they are preparing to give themselves, for years, to the finding of the right road through it all.

At the end it is inconceivable that this commission will deliver any judgment that is not buttressed by millions of unquestionable facts and by unassailable logic.

GOOD BOOSTING While a multitude of booster clubs and organizations of one sort and another all over the state are shouting loud demands to know "why we don't advertise Connecticut" the Litchfield Hills Federation, a group of Litchfield County men representing all the towns in the county, which came into being only a little over a year ago, has prepared and printed the first number of fascinating illustrated magazine bearing the effective title "The Lure of the Litchfield Hills," which is to be issued four times a year.

So enchanting are the photographic illustrations of many of the numberless scenes of rare beauty to be found in the Litchfield country, and so convincing, and well written is the subject matter that the outsider into whose hands this magazine falls is pretty likely to finish reading it in the conviction that there, at least, is one part of America that he must not, on any account, miss visiting.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

CLAMS AND OYSTERS.

These two most prolific shellfish are similar in composition. They were probably among the first animal foods to be eaten by primitive man. Oysters and small clams are readily digestible when raw, even though the flesh is swallowed whole.

When cooked they are a little more difficult to digest and should be well chewed. Oysters contain 8.8 water, 6.5 protein, 1.2 fat, and 8.5 of mineral matter, being especially rich in chlorine, sulphur, phosphorus, and sodium. Clams are almost of the same composition, but contain a little less protein, fat and carbohydrates, but more of the mineral matter.

Both of these are highly acid-forming and should, therefore, be used with a large quantity of the non-starchy vegetables to provide an alkaline balance.

While the smaller clams may be served raw, as oysters are, the larger ones are more tastefully broiled, fried, steamed, baked or stewed. The best flavor probably comes out in clam chowder or upon roasting over coals.

Neither of these two are very rich in nourishment, although they make a pleasant addition to the menu. It has been stated that over a dozen oysters are required to produce an equal food value to one egg.

Many people believe that oysters should be eaten only during the months in which "R" occurs, in order to avoid the spawning season, but, while this is true of the northeast and New York oysters, it is not true of Chesapeake Bay, the greatest oyster source, in southern waters the spawning season may occur at any time of the year.

Canned oysters are as wholesome as the fresh, and may be obtained at any season. Oysters may be shipped alive in good condition for several days. There is, of course, more danger of the oyster becoming decomposed during the warm weather, but careful packing in refrigerated cars would prevent this.

At one time the practice of raising oysters in beds where city sewage was dumped and this resulted in a number of cases of contamination and typhoid. This danger hardly exists at the present time, as the Government exercises a careful supervision over the beds and harvesting of the oyster.

The best portion of clams and oysters is the muscular tissue. Because these shellfish are scavengers, all of the stomach and intestinal portions should be discarded. Their stomach may contain an accumulation of rotting protein material which they have sucked up from the ocean bed. We occasionally may read of a case of acute poisoning because of this, and since there is no method of telling whether or not this is the case, it is better to discard this portion of the oyster or clam.

While I cannot consider clams and oysters as especially healthful foods, they may be used occasionally, for variety, by those in good health.

DAILY WASHINGTON LETTER

By EDDIE BURKINS

Washington — The so-called power trust, which the Federal Trade Commission has shown to be engaged in newspaper financing and to be trying to fill the columns of others with propaganda, sometimes undertakes to put a newspaper out of business when it fights the trust, according to Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. He says Main "is perhaps the most hard-riden state by the power trust that there is in the Union."

Up in Maine, if you want to get into business, see Insull of Chicago, Norris says. "If you want to establish a newspaper, see Insull of Chicago. If you want to advertise in a newspaper, see Insull of Chicago. If you want to run for office, see Insull of Chicago."

Norris says Dr. Ernest Gruening went to Portland to establish the Evening News and met with an advertising boycott.

"The story of the struggle of the Evening News, like a romance," he says, "another place where the power trust existing in Maine, as I have outlined it, used its wealth, its influence, and the old-established newspapers to try to browbeat and drive this man out of the newspaper field."

Norris cites Gruening's charges that the power magnates, through personal influence and banking pressure, have dissuaded Portland's principal merchants, especially department stores, from advertising in the Evening News.

"I think the proof exists," Norris says, "that the connections of the trust, through its banking institutions, have called notes against business men and refused to follow their advice and decline to advertise in the Evening News."

Norris does not pretend that the well balanced diet between the eating period. Cold applications should be used on the eye, as far as possible. Send for my article, "Inflammation of the Eyes."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Progressive Muscular Atrophy.) Question: Mrs. E. writes: "My brother has been gradually losing the use of his arms and legs for the last two years and has been told that he was suffering from a progressive muscular atrophy and nothing could be done for him. Can you tell me the cause of this and if there is any treatment to at least check this disease, as he is getting more helpless all the time."

Answer: Progressive muscular atrophy is undoubtedly a serious condition but I have had some good results in cases not too far advanced. Usually a prolonged fasting regime is necessary at the beginning of the treatment in order to rid the system of the toxins causing the atrophy. This followed by well balanced diet and manipulatory treatments, especially from a doctor who uses the Morse wave or sinusoidal current, would probably be helpful.

(Craves Raw Potatoes.) Question: Mrs. G. E. writes: "I seem to have a craving for raw potatoes, and I would like to know if it is harmful to eat them."

Answer: I do not believe the raw potatoes are injurious to your health. Perhaps there is some element or vitamin they contain that your system craves. Eating large quantities of other raw vegetables would probably overcome the desire for the potatoes.

(Eyelids Inflamed.) Question: Miss W. P. writes: "My eyelids are always inflamed, especially in the evenings, and they remain red all day." I have spent considerable money having them treated, but to no avail. What is your advice?

Answer: I suggest that you take short fasts at frequent intervals of about a month apart, following a

THE JOHNSTOWN FLOOD.

Today is the anniversary of one of the greatest tragedies in the history of America—the Johnstown flood.

On May 31, 1889, less than a month after the centennial anniversary of the inauguration of our government under the Constitution was celebrated by a gala exposition in New York City, the country was plunged into sorrow by the sudden horror which befell this peaceful western Pennsylvania community.

A sudden break in the dam at the outlet of Conemaugh Lake released a 40-foot wall of water, half a mile across, which swept down through a deep and narrow valley. In less than 15 minutes the flood waters had swirled over 13 miles, and had reached the town of Johnstown. It swept seven towns off the map and ended by carrying away the greater part of Johnstown.

The flood choked the entire valley with ruins and claimed 2209 lives. The property damage was estimated at $10,000,000 in official figures.

New York, May 31.—A sky-scraper next to a hotel for "business women," and hence the Barbizon. But in the Barbizon Silk stumbled upon still another idea. At the Sunday concert given there, he found that there was any amount of talent going about the great city without engagements.

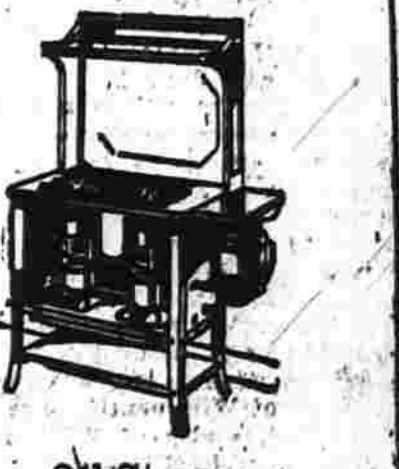

As any concert manager could have told him, thousands of young women drift into the city each year in search of a musical career. He began to give the unknowns who lived at his hotel a chance to be heard. And he wound up by planning the first cross-country hotel musical circuit ever attempted.

Himself defeated in the aspiration to be a musician, the idea ran away with him. And so there rises the Art-Music Residence Center, the first skyscraper dedicated entirely to artists. There will be sound-proof studios for pianists who care to do their practicing after midnight, and there will be sound-proof bedrooms for tenors who want to take their naps for an airing in the early morning. There will be places for teachers and there will be places for students. A student can get a liberal education in any art without leaving the building. There will be places for painters and glass sculptors and places for songsters. There are concert halls and galleries and everyone can art away to his heart's content.

Noting the number of bookshelves about New York, he got the bright idea of introducing "club hotels"—lavatories fitted with swimming pools, billiard rooms and reading parlors.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

After working three years as private secretary to ATTORNEY BEN CURTIS MORGAN, NAN CRAWFORD discovers she is in love with Morgan and believes that it is a matter of honor for her to resign. Her resignation is temporarily postponed, however, because she believes Morgan is going to need a faithful secretary during his defense of BERT CRAWFORD who is indicted for embezzlement of funds accumulated in a suspicious stock-selling scheme.

Nan distrusts Crawford and IRIS MORGAN, beautiful wife of the lawyer. Morgan has implicit faith in Crawford, but Nan is suspicious and by means of a listening-in device overhears a conversation between Crawford and his switchboard operator, ALICE BELTON, which takes place in Morgan's office. With a bribe, he "fixes" this witness so she will forget that he talked with the cashier of the bank approving the check young BOY BLAND cashed before his disappearance.

Nan quickly types off the notes she took of the conversation she overheard and, after a conference with Alice Belton's coaxed testimony, she confronts Crawford with the typed evidence of his perjury. Crawford asks her what her price is and she tells him that she will tell Morgan the truth unless he gives up Iris Morgan at once.

He at last agrees and Nan keeps her secret. Morgan defends Crawford so ably that every prediction is for an acquittal. Iris Morgan comes to the courtroom every day. Nan is beginning to wonder if she was wrong in suspecting Crawford of the embezzlement when Fast places in her hands absolute proof of his guilt.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

It was Saturday morning the last day of the Crawford trial. Nan Carroll was at her desk before nine, although she had worked with Morgan until nearly twelve the night before, helping him to prepare and speak to the jury. Now, at half-past nine, the last of the notes which he would require in making his summation and his plea for Crawford's acquittal were ready for him.

His tall, thin shadow loomed against the pane of the door, and as it always at his approach Nan's heart leaped with painful joy.

She straightened her tired shoulders, put on the cheerful, friendly grin that he liked. "Good morning, Mr. Morgan."

Morgan grinned back at her, his eyes ringed with the circles of fatigue but sparkling with anticipated triumph. "I still live in hope of your getting your tongue twisted on that and saying: 'Good morning, Mr. Morgan.' Well, Nan, it's nearly over. Brainard knows he's licked—I never heard him make such a wishy-washy speech before a jury as he made yesterday. But I'm not going to relax on my speech. Everything ready?"

"Everything," Nan smiled as she handed him the bundles she had typed. "Good luck. The jury's going to have a treat. I'm glad the poor things will have a chance to get away by Christmas, though. You don't think they'll take long to reach a verdict, do you?"

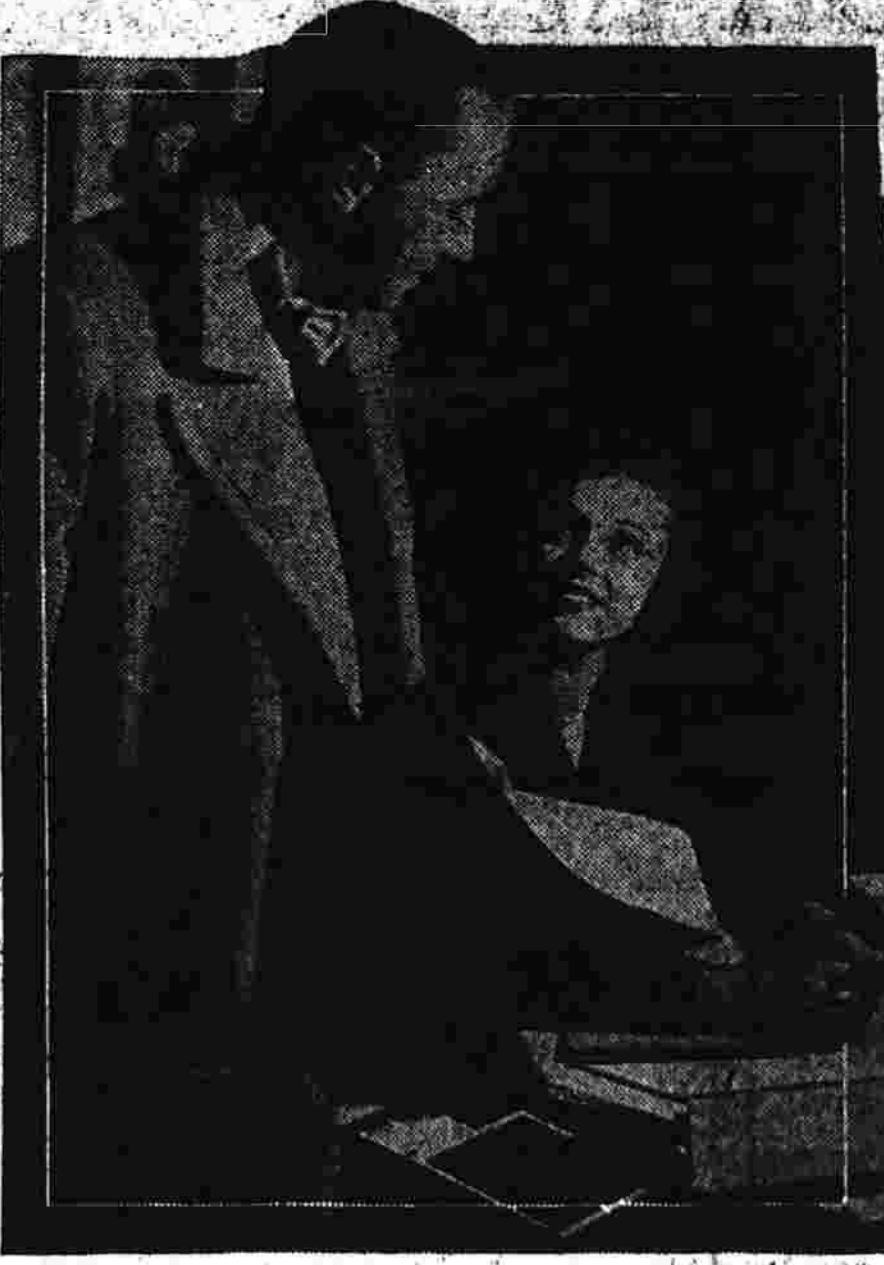

"I doubt the jury will be out in an hour," Morgan assured her. "Why don't you come along to the courthouse with me? Iris is going to be there. This Saturday before Christmas, you know. No use working today."

"I've got one or two things to do first," she told him, "but I'll be awfully glad to come as soon as I'm finished. I'll probably be there before you've opened."

"It was ten o'clock—just time for court to convene—when Nan closed her door. The courthouse was only a few blocks away; she wouldn't miss much of his speech—

"Merry Christmas, Nan! Look at the little Santa Claus that has come to see you! Hurry, lover! Mother hasn't a minute to waste!" And Iris Morgan, with her face brilliant with wintry color, impatiently ushered her little son into the office.

"Oh! Nan wheeled from the hat tree. "I thought you were at the court house, Mrs. Morgan. I was just going over myself. Hello, little fellow! Merry Christmas! she added to the child, her voice tender in spite of herself.

"Why don't you come along to the courthouse with me? Iris is going to be there."

Christmas; two or three unimportant letters that might as well be answered as late as that Supreme Court opinion to be looked up—

Now and then, as she worked, her eyes fell upon the package which Curt had brought her? Let it lie there, silly thing!

"Nana, I wanna scissors and paste!" the little boy, a trifle subdued by her angry ignoring of his presence, began to follow her about the office, his voice plaintive and coaxing by turns. "Nana, I'm hungry! I wanna cup o' hot chocolate, Nana! Nana, I wanna see Sandy Claus. Nana..."

Nan shook him off resolutely. But when at last he gave up and sat huddled forlornly in one of the big chairs, tears slipping down cheeks that were always frighteningly pale, Nan was stricken with pity. "The little boy, a trifle subdued by her angry ignoring of his presence, began to follow her about the office, his voice plaintive and coaxing by turns."

Nan shook him off resolutely. But when at last he gave up and sat huddled forlornly in one of the big chairs, tears slipping down cheeks that were always frighteningly pale, Nan was stricken with pity. "The little boy, a trifle subdued by her angry ignoring of his presence, began to follow her about the office, his voice plaintive and coaxing by turns."

Smiling at him for the first time that morning, she hastened to get out the old battered typewriter which had been relegated to the status of plaything; set it on the edge of a table, added paper, scissors, paste pot and colored crayons. Then, beckoning his tearful mother touched her heart, she drew a big, not very clear picture of Santa Claus stepping into a chimney with his pack.

"Now you draw one just like it for Nan," she told him. "I've got to work, honey."

He was so quiet, so happily busy for the next hour that Nan, with the cockiness of a girl who has never had a child to rear, congratulated herself: "You just have to be firm with them. He's good as gold since I disciplined him."

It was nearly noon when his utter silence made her apprehensive. Turning in her revolving desk chair, she saw that the child had fallen asleep, his head flopped over the curved arm of the big chair. Smiling, she tiptoed to him, wondering how she could make him more comfortable without waking him. As she stood considering beside the table at which he had been drawing, cutting and pasting, her eyes swept over the litter he had made.

"He draws pretty well for such a little tad," she mused tenderly, as she picked up a sheet of paper he had covered with chimneys, apples and stars.

She was about to clear the mess from the table when her eyes rested on a thick sheet of letter paper, covered with bold black writing, upon which were superimposed some of Curt's impressionistic drawings.

"The little devil!" she thought, snatching up the sheet. "He's got into my files when I wasn't looking. . . . No! Where in the world did this come from?"

Her startled eyes swept from the mutilation, "My darling, Iris," to the single initial "B" with which the letter was concluded. Then, her breath drawn in sharply, she began to read:

High School Course NOT ENOUGH FOR MEDICAL STUDENT NOW

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

It is no longer possible to begin the study of medicine with a high school education or less. Indeed, it is difficult to study some of the single track branches of medicine with this minimum amount of education.

Every reputable medical college now requires two or more years of work in an approved college of arts and sciences, in addition to a four-year high school education, before a man can take up such subjects as anatomy, physiology, pharmacology or bacteriology, which are among the fundamental branches of medical education.

Several of the colleges in our country require three years of college work in addition to the four years of high school. These are Dartmouth, Missouri, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rochester, Stanford, Tulane, Utah, Vanderbilt, Washington, Western Reserve and Yale. Two medical colleges, namely, Rush and Johns Hopkins, require a college degree before a student can take up the study of medicine.

Furthermore, 37 of the state licensing boards also insist on two years of work in a liberal arts college before the student takes up medicine before these state licensing boards will permit a man to appear for an examination to receive a license in their states.

It is, therefore, important for the prospective medical student to find out in advance the requirements in the state in which he plans to practice before he selects a medical college. This is easily done by writing to the secretary of the state board of medical registration in the capital city of the state, who will be glad to send to the student a list of the requirements.

The American Medical Association at 535 North Dearborn street, Chicago, publishes a pamphlet on "The Choice of a Medical School," which gives full information concerning requirements in various states relative to admission into various medical colleges and other matters of importance to the prospective student. This pamphlet is sold for 15 cents.

ABOUT TOWN

The High School all star girls baseball team will play Champer's Girls A. A. at the West Side playground, Monday night at 8:30 sharp.

E. H. Swartz of 123 School street spent Memorial Day in New York visiting relatives.

Harry and Hugo Pearson of Worcester were holiday visitors of their brother, Albert Pearson of Manchester.

Miss Myrtle Bennett, newspaper editor of the Chamber of Commerce, spent yesterday in Hartford.

Among the many Manchester people who went to Florence, Va. to spend Memorial Day were Elizabeth and Mrs. William W. Smith, Carl H. Smith, Miss Sawyer and Mrs. William W. Smith.

TAEN AND NOW

THE MEN HAVE ALWAYS SAID THIS

BUT NOW THEY REALLY MEAN IT!

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by N.E.A. Service, Inc.

"If I thought my child would do a thing like that it would kill me," a certain mother is fond of saying to her friends.

And her friends regard her soberly without reply, wondering what will happen if the day comes when she will discover that her child is doing enough things right now under her very eye to cause this hypothetical "death" several times over.

Her son is about the worst 17-year-old in a certain town. But he has become clever in the years he has spent trying to keep her in the dark about his doings. And to her he is still the soul of honor and devotion.

I think I can imagine how it started in the first place for I know another mother who has a method all her own of exacting obedience and of expressing disapproval. Already her young son is as clever a young deceiver as you could find anywhere.

To begin with, when he was born she said, "This is going to be my boy. I am going to teach him that I must come before everything else in the world."

The Plan She Adopted. When he was a tiny tot, if he wouldn't drink his milk she would cover her face with her hands and pretend to cry. He'd pull her hands away, say, "Don't cry, Mother," and hastily gulp down his milk with two serious distressed eyes gazing at her over the edge of his mug.

When he was naughty, or wouldn't go to bed, or stamped his foot and shouted, "No," when she wanted to take him to the barber's, she would say in an agonized voice, "Darling, you're hurting Mother dreadfully. Don't you want Mother to be happy?"

WOMAN'S

A collection of Richard Wagner's letters, diaries and journals, and even some unpublished works, has just been unearthed by an American playwright in London, and it is prophesied that it will shake two nations, as Germany is bound to get hold of this intimate matter about one of her greatest geniuses.

THE LOVE ELEMENT More commotion is being raised about what is called "the famous missing letter to Mathilde" than any other feature of the Wagner Wagner wrote this letter to Mathilde Wesendonck for whom he wrote "Tristan and Isolde." He sent the supposed act to her with the note, "His wife, Minna, intercepted the letter. Wagner left home, and Minna died of a broken heart. There are hundreds of beautiful letters which passed between Wagner and Minna in the collection, too.

THE SECOND WIFE Meanwhile, with all the artistic world on tiptoe over the find, Cosima Wagner, second wife of Richard Wagner, is alive in Bayreuth. She is 84. One wonders a little about her thoughts and emotions as she reads the heart of her husband as it was long years ago before she was in his life. How re-

HE THOUGHT TOO LATE Replying to a Harvard note that life was too hard in trying to support both a wife and a career, an American student, George Charles Cannon, stationed in the State of Liberty Military Police, shot himself and died two days after they were married.

THEY'LL GO HOME Still, the young man must have known his income before he married, and why they did it when they can't? He took his way out in his own way. Hundreds of other June brides and grooms will take their way out with a pistol shot, but by galloping back home to one mother or the other, and the old folks can figure it out for them.

Theaters

AT THE STATE

"Glad Rag Doll" Dolores Costello, never more beautiful and alluring than in her present Warner Brothers Vitaphone talking vehicle, "The Glad Rag Doll," is to be seen in that particular picture at the State theater today and tomorrow.

"The Glad Rag Doll," is undoubtedly one of the best talking pictures yet to be released. It presents the vivacious star in the most vivid characterization of her film career—that of a Broadway show-girl who sets out to demonstrate to a wealthy aristocratic family that their blood is not as blue as it is painted. Numerous thrills, coupled together with laughs have been deftly woven into the story.

Besides Miss Costello the cast includes such prominent stars as Ralph Graves, Claude Gillingwater, Andre Berens, Audrey Ferris and Grant Withers.

Two selected acts of Vitaphone vaudeville featuring the Ingenues, a snappy all-girl jazz orchestra and another starring Jay Gabby will also be shown. The second chapter of "The Mystery Rider" and a single reel will also be seen on the same bill.

Sunday, Monday and Tuesday will bring William Haines in his very latest sound picture, "A Man's Man."

Newspaper dispatches say the Tacoma-Arica dispute has been settled, but didn't say who was objecting to taking it, or whether or not they preferred sulphur and molasses.

Maybe you thought Kansas was respectable. But the other day a Kansas newspaper reported "the bride's going-away outfit was an old rose, with hat to match."

Marion Talley says there will be no pigs on her farm. Having been in grand opera for several years, Miss Talley probably is tired of them.

AUTOMOBILES BEHAVE WELL ON HOLIDAY

One Slight Accident, One Drunk Driver and Two Have Useless Brakes, and One Speeder.

Automobiles played no great part in the news of yesterday. Early in the afternoon a Gladstone man was arrested on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, two were examined for defective brakes and were placed under arrest and there was one case of speeding.

The only accident of the holiday here was a slight one that occurred on Main street at 3:30 this morning when an automobile owned by Jacob Greenberg, parked on the west side of Main street, opposite the Cheney building was struck by an automobile driven by William Burke, Jr., of School street, who was driving south.

Sergeant John Crockett was standing on the curb on the opposite side when the collision took place and was upon the road before the driver had climbed out of the car. Burke had not been driving fast and did not see the parked car until he struck it, driving it up onto the sidewalk. But slight damage was done to the Greenberg car and the front right wheel of Burke's car was broken.

West Hartford Barely Emerges 3-2 Winner; All Matches Except One Are Very Close.

Manchester High's tennis team came within a single point of winning its important league match with West Hartford High here Wednesday afternoon. The visitors, however, displayed just a bit more punch and confidence to emerge the winner 3-2.

STARS OF TRACK TO MEET TODAY

West is Picked to Win the Title as It Did in Previous Years.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 31.—Lifts the gent who permanently borrowed Mark Twain's lawn mower, the Pacific Coast was in here again today to extend its reign on the intercollegiate track and field championship an eastern institution but seemingly a far western possession. Seven times in the last eight years has the coast won this title and today Stanford, champions also in 1926 and 1927, seemed destined to renew the mortgage.

RAY KEECH WINS BIG AUTO RACE

Goes 97 Miles an Hour; Billy Spence Is Instantly Killed.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 31.—Ray Keetch was the magic name that echoed over the automotive world today. He is the plucky young daredevil whom Dame Fortune smiled upon yesterday with victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis speedway classic.

It they place from two to three men in the discus, shot put, javelin and broad jump trials, as they have every right to expect, then the finals tomorrow night as well as allowed to go by default. For, with the rays of an impending sunrise lined up Stanford, won't romp to the title; it will stroll.

RAY BOWERS' 67 HIGH NET SCORE

Gross Goes to D. V. Burgessor With a 78; Hutzfeldt Second, Bowers Third.

Raymond A. Bowers, Manchester attorney-at-law, captured the low net score in the 18-hole sweepstakes tournament played over the Manchester Country Club course yesterday. His 15 stroke handicap gave him a net of 67. A field of 34 players, one of the largest in a long time, competed, and some good scores were turned in despite the torrid heat.

Winsted Team To Play Bon Ami Here Tomorrow

Manager Carl Allen announced this morning the Bon Ami baseball team will tackle the strong Gilbert Clock Company of Winsted at the Community Club Playgrounds at 3:15 tomorrow afternoon.

NOON STOCKS

New York, May 31.—Heavy selling of the motor stocks and the high-priced specialties broke out in the first half-hour of trading on the big board today, to the accompaniment of another drop of 2 to 3 1/2 cents a bushel in wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade. Selling promptly spread to other sections of the market and prices tumbled, the Rails meanwhile holding the bulk of their early gains.

The big-five in American motor stocks all dipped to the year's lowest prices in an avalanche of speculative selling. General Motors broke to below 70 for the first time, and sold at 68 3/4, down 8. Chrysler, after a one-point rally to 70, fell abruptly to 68. Nash at 83 1/2, Studebaker at 73 1/2 and Hudson at 77 represented new low levels for a year or more, and direct losses of from 20 to 70 points from February and early May boom prices.

Weakness in the market today was due to a number of factors, the newest of which is the disappointing drop in grain prices. In addition to cutting the buying power of the great agricultural sections of the country, these heavy declines have played havoc with speculators

COMPSTON BEATS HAGEN 8 AND 7

Moorpark, England, May 31.—Archie Compston, the rangy long-driving Britisher, overwhelmed Walter Hagen, British Open titleholder eight up and seven to play in a 36-hole match here today. Hagen was two down when the 18 holes of the morning round were completed. The first 5 holes of the afternoon round gave no indication that he would be so badly defeated, as he won the fifth after Compston took the first keeping the match at 2 up for Compston.

Then came four successive disastrous holes for Sir Walter. He scored three 8's and a 6 while the Britisher was turning in steady 4's and Hagen was six down on the 27th.

To top it all Hagen lost the next two holes and the match was over. Compston was in perfect form, his driving, putting and iron shots being equally good. The same could not be said for Hagen.
