

HERALD ADV. GETS WITNESS TO ACCIDENT

Fred Robinson, Chauffeur for H. B. Cheney, Hits Sil- ver Lane Man; Classified Adv. Secures Witness.

Fred Robinson of Porter street, chauffeur for Horace B. Cheney of 78 Forest street was in East Hartford town court this morning charged with reckless driving as the result of an accident Friday night on the Silver Lane road. His case was continued until July 8 to await the outcome of injuries suffered by Thomas Futtner, elderly farmer who was struck by the Cheney car while crossing the road in front of his house.

Victims Old

Futtner, who is nearly 70 years old, is in the Hartford hospital with broken ribs in addition to an injured right elbow and right kidney. His age makes it difficult to judge the outcome of his injuries. Futtner stepped in front of the Cheney machine, a La Salle, from behind a car passing in the opposite direction.

How It Happened

Mrs. Cheney was riding in the car at the time, bound for Hartford. It is understood that the chauffeur was driving at comparatively slow speed, but was unable to see the pedestrian being blinded by the headlights from a passing car. The accident happened a short distance west of the yellow overhead street light at the intersection of Forbes street and Silver Lane road. Futtner was delivering a can of milk at the time. A local doctor was called by Mrs. Cheney and the injured man was given first aid treatment. Later Futtner was removed to the Hartford hospital.

Herald Adv. Figures

Just as the accident took place Mrs. Cheney noticed an automobile headed for South Manchester passing but did not get the number. Robinson was placed under bonds to appear in East Hartford's town court this morning and in the hope of getting the assistance of the witness she did not know Mrs. Cheney inserted the following advertisement in The Herald of Saturday:

WILL THE MAN running his automobile East to South Manchester last evening, Silver Lane Road, who witnessed an accident please communicate with telephone 350, Manchester, at once? At 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon Fred Blish, Jr. read the advertisement and answered the telephone number given. He learned what had been the outcome of the accident and said he would be willing to appear in behalf of the driver this morning. According to Mr. Blish, the car that Mr. Robinson was driving was not going fast.

COOL WEATHER AIDS HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN

Workers Are Stimulated to Put Drive Over Before It Ends Wednesday.

The cool weather which greeted the hospital drive teams over the week-end stimulated their determination to "bring home the bacon" in the form of $26,000, the quota set for this year's hospital campaign and brought the total to date within halting distance of the half-way mark with $17,553.20.

- Because of last week's heat wave the drive is continuing until Wednesday. A partial list of contributors follows:

Cold Wave Cuts Down Car Wrecks

Auto accidents dropped with the thermometer over the week-end and reports reaching International News Service showed 18 dead and 118 injured throughout the country.

The sudden change from mid-summer weather to the wintry blasts of late May kept thousands of automobile owners off the roads during Sunday.

Ohio led the list with ten dead and fifty injured. New York state ran a close second with six dead and fourteen in the hospitals. Massachusetts reported one dead and fifty-four injured. Oregon brought up the rear with one dead.

CONGRESS SET FOR A RECESS ABOUT JUNE 11

Minor Tasks Must Be Completed in Meantime—La Follette Starts Another Little Row.

Washington, June 3.—The special session of congress, which President Hoover called for the relief of agriculture and for revision of the tariff, entered its eighth week today with its program sufficiently advanced to warrant the leaders arranging an allsummer vacation.

The New Farm Relief Bill

upon which Senate and house conferees are rapidly reaching an agreement, will be placed upon the statute books within ten days unless some unforeseen development bars its path.

Recess June 11

The new tariff bill already has passed the House but will not be ready for the Senate for another two months, while the Senate finance committee considers it. In the meantime, administration leaders, with the concurrence of Democratic chiefs, have decided to send Congress home probably from June 11 or 12 until September 9.

A number of relatively minor bills must be completed before the recess begins.

First, the House must pass the new census and reapportionment bill and both branches approve its conference report. Second, the Senate must do something about President Hoover's recommendation for repeal of the National Origins Act, which changes immigration quotas on July 1. Both these tasks will be accomplished this week, if administration leaders have their way.

Publicity

The question of Senate publicity may be decided, too, before Congress quits. The Senate rules committee has recommended publication of all roll-calls and a new rule, providing for public consideration of presidential appointments whenever a majority so decides. The Senate must act on both proposals though before they can be adopted.

Another little row has been initiated by Senator La Follette (R) of Wisconsin, who introduced a Senate resolution, directing its finance committee to conduct public hearings on the tariff. The committee starts its sessions June 11 so a resolution before Congress quits or the usual secret sessions will be held. These hearings incidentally will last six weeks and the committee probably will require several weeks more to draft the bill, so that it hardly will be ready for the Senate before September 1.

KILLS SWEETHEART AND THEN HIMSELF

Jealousy Thought Motive for Double Tragedy in Moorestown, N. J.

Moorestown, N. J., June 3.—Two possible solutions loomed today in the mysterious double shooting of Ruth Wilson, 25-year-old daughter of a socially prominent and wealthy family, and her former fiancé, Horace Roberts. In both cases, both found mortally wounded in the girl's home here yesterday.

One was the theory of murder and suicide, the explanation held out by Burlington county Prosecutor George M. Hillman. The other was a possibility that the deaths were a double murder, and although all surface indications pointed to the former, this second theory was being given full consideration by the investigating authorities today.

A FAIR DAY AT THE POLES

This dazzling photo, introducing the newly elected mayor of St. Petersburg, Fla., in attractive southern surroundings, may throw some light on why his job was sought by that famous Beau Brummel and veteran politician, Major Amos Hooper. For the garrulous start of the "Our Boaring House" comic actually did receive one vote for mayor of St. Petersburg, and despite the protests of certain board members that vote has gone into the election records of the city. The Major expressed himself as being "tremendously gratified, egad, with such a powerful expression of confidence and admiration on the part of the public" and has sent his congratulations to Mayor Arthur R. Thompson, above, for his victory at the polls. The poles in this picture, however, are being operated by four beautiful, bare-legged fisherwomen, and left to right they are Vernia Clyde, Sherman King, Anne Dewberry and Alice Mohan.

ADVISES COLLEGE BOYS TO WED ONLY FOR LOVE

Also to Become Snobs; Students Nowadays Dress Carelessly, M. I. T. Professor Declares.

Boston, June 3.—"Be a snob. You will find it just as easy to marry the boss's daughter as the stenographer."

Professor Robert Emmons Rogers, of the English and history department of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, discovered today that he started something when he gave this advice to Tech seniors at the class banquet on Saturday night.

"Dress, speak and act like a gentleman and you will be surprised at the amount of murder you can get away with," said the southerner, the noted Philadelphia artist. "Never buy a suit of clothes unless you get an extra pair of trousers. Keep one suit of clothes pressed every week. Never buy shoes unless you buy shoe straps with them. Keep them shined, shave yourself and never wear the same collar at night which you wear all day." He urged college men to be aristocrats—to be members of the "ruling class."

Present Day Students, he flayed on all sides. Prof. Rogers was explaining that he was using the word snob in the better or

OUR GENERATION IS "SEMI-PAGAN"

So Says Speaker at 107th Anniversary of Yale Divinity School.

New Haven, June 3.—Ours is a "restless, dissatisfied semi-pagan generation," Dr. Henry Hallam Tweedy, of Yale Divinity School, told the graduation class at that institution today, and declared the only "religious problem for the education mind" is:

"Is there a good God? And if there is, how can I find him? And if I find him, what can He do for me and for mankind?"

"Simple folk may be disturbed about the geology of Genesis, and misguided religious teachers stake the truth of the gospel of the virgin birth. For us those are no longer problems. Neither do they have any interest for college graduates," Dr. Tweedy then charged the graduating class "never to be discouraged, never to give up, never to lose faith in yourselves, or in the Christianizing of the social order, or in the reality and power of God."

107th Anniversary

The occasion of the address was the 107th anniversary exercises of the school. An alumni luncheon followed, with a reception to alumni and the graduating class at 2:30, and class reunions at 4 Degrees will be conferred upon the class at commencement time, June 19.

The Divinity School class of 1929 has 46 members who represent

CONSERVATIVES ASK BALDWIN TO QUIT JOB

Leaders Think It Most Graceful Way Out of Delicate Situation—Liberals Are Against Him.

London, June 3.—The Conservative Cabinet is divided upon the question of resigning as a result of the Labor Party sweep in Thursday's general election, it was learned this afternoon.

It is understood that Premier Stanley Baldwin is anxious to resign immediately, but a majority, including Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain and Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill are in favor of the Cabinet holding on and meeting the new Parliament.

Belated returns show that there will be 14 women in the new House of Commons instead of 13. Miss Eleanor Rathbone, an Independent, was elected by the English combined universities.

London, June 3.—Politicians of the three great parties and the populace of the nation as a whole were anxiously awaiting today the expected statement of Stanley Baldwin, defeated Conservative prime minister, as to his future course of Parliamentary action.

The fact that Ramsay Mac Donold, victorious leader of the labor forces, failed to get a working majority in the House of Commons in the general elections of last week, has suggested the possibility that Baldwin may return to the House in the role of its prime minister and ask for a vote of confidence to determine whether or not he shall resign his post.

Is Understood to Resign

It is understood, however, that at a conference of Conservative party leaders at Chequers, official country residence of the prime minister, Baldwin was urged to tender his resignation immediately as the most graceful way out of an extremely delicate situation.

This advice was prompted by the fact that to succeed in his attempt to win back the premiership in the labor victory at the polls, Baldwin would have to depend upon liberal support in the House of Commons.

The decision probably means that at the conclusion of his present sentence, late in July, the oil magnate will start immediately on the longer sentence, which will keep him in jail until long after Christmas.

Coincidence with the Sinclair Case

SICK KING UNABLE TO REVIEW TROOPS

Trooping of Colors Takes Place on Monarch's Birth- day; Beautiful Ceremony.

London, June 3.—In a beautiful ceremony marred only by the absence of the man in whose honor it was held, the annual trooping of the colors in recognition of King George's birthday took place on the Horse Guards' parade here today.

Sixteen hundred picked troops took part in the display while King George, who is known to enjoy this ceremony perhaps more than other of the colorful functions he has to attend, was in bed at Windsor Castle, suffering from an abscess in the right side of his chest.

Takes King's Place

The Duke of Connaught, uncle of the king, who recently returned from his villa on the Riviera, acted as the king. Often described as the finest physical specimen in the entire royal family, the 79-year-old duke presented an inspiring picture as he watched the display held in honor of his ailing nephew's 64th birthday.

Annual Affair

The trooping of the colors is held each year in the great parade grounds back of Whitehall, and familiar to most American visitors to London by the two seemingly immovable guardsmen who sit on the front entrance. Grandstands are built to accommodate the crowd which invariably turns out for this function, one of the most picturesque military manoeuvres performed in this country.

HOOVER PROPOSES ACTUAL REDUCTION OF WORLD NAVIES

MUST TEAR DOWN BARN TO GET PLANE OUT

St. Joe, Ark., June 3.—The test flight of the home made plane of Sam Allen, local rural mail carrier, had to be postponed today until Allen can tear the side out of the barn.

Allen constructed the plane in his barn during spare moments. He planned to make a test flight today, but in assembling the plane he overlooked providing an exit for the plane from the narrow doors of the barn.

POLICE PROBE DEATHS OF TWO COLLEGE GIRLS

One Found in Detroit, the Other in Wellesley, Mass.; Both Students of the Same School.

Wellesley, Mass., June 3.—Discovery here today of the body of Miss Louise M. McBride, 18-year-old Wellesley college sophomore and resident of Weston, W. Va., brought to light a second puzzling death of a Wellesley college graduate and undergraduate. In Detroit, police were investigating the death of Mary Baylis Lee, 30, Wellesley college graduate who was found in a hotel room.

Miss McBride died in Freeman Hall on the Wellesley college campus. Her body was found today by Mrs. H. Lyman, the house-mother.

In Excellent Health

It was stated at the office of the president of Wellesley college that Miss McBride had been in excellent health, had stood high in her studies and had been in good spirits last evening. This caused them to report the matter to the Wellesley police, who, in turn, called Dr. Frederick Stanwood, the local medical examiner. It was stated at the college president's office, however, that the death of Miss McBride might have been due to heart failure or some other natural cause that came suddenly and unexpectedly during the night. The only thing that caused them to

As Soon as Ambassador Dawes Reaches London Negotiations With Great Britain Will Be Resumed; Has New Plan to Propose, Different from Any So Far Submitted by Experts.

Washington, June 3.—Negotiations for a naval understanding between the United States and Great Britain will be speeded up as soon as Charles G. Dawes arrives in London to assume his ambassadorship.

It is probable that Dawes' first major task in London will be the presentation of the new plan for measuring the relative strength of the American and British navies, which has been worked out under President Hoover's direction. In naval circles the plan is called "A New Yardstick." While its details remained undisclosed, the understanding is that it involves a totally different method of arriving at each nation's needs than has ever been discussed by the experts in their various attempts to get together at the Geneva meetings.

Meanwhile, there was an undercurrent of rumbling in Congress today among those who led the bitter fight in the last Congress for the enactment of the 15-cruiser program, which calls for the laying down of five 10,000-ton cruisers each year until 1932.

President Hoover's forthcoming proposal to the British involves the scrapping of these cruisers, which now exist, of course, only on paper. Under the new act, a concession, President was given power to suspend building in the event of an "international agreement," which he was "earnestly" importuned to promote. The Navy people allowed that to go into the bill as a concession and now it has arisen to plague them.

America's "Yardstick"

If the new American "Yardstick" is acceptable to the British as a basis for arriving at the relative naval needs of the two countries, the 15-cruiser program goes by the boards, for President Hoover aims not only to regulate the size of navies, but to actually reduce them. A decision must be had in the next two months, or by Aug. 1, when the act becomes law. Secretary of the Navy Adams, at President Hoover's direction, has delayed submission of his cruiser estimates to the Bureau of the Budget. If no understanding is reached with the British by August 1, however, the estimates must be submitted and the work goes ahead with under the law.

Bids This Week

It is considered doubtful, however, whether all the fifteen cruisers ever will be laid down. Five of them must be laid down this week, under the law, providing no agreement is reached. The navy will receive bids on them this week. Under the enactment law, the President is empowered to stop construction any time "an international agreement" is reached, so that even if the five keels are laid down for this year, it would still be possible to suspend the building of the ten for 1930 and 1931.

The heart of the Anglo-American naval differences lies in cruisers. The British, with their coaling stations and naval bases all over the world, can utilize small cruisers to just about as much advantage as large cruisers. The United States, with its far-flung bases and tremendous distances, cannot. American experts contend that American defense requirements demand the cruiser of 10,000 tons. It was upon the rock of this difference that the Geneva meeting went completely to smash.

The new "yardstick" which the experts here have worked out under President Hoover's directions, aims at an adjustment of this stubborn controversy on a basis of relative keels.

STORMS IN KANSAS

Wichita, Kansas, June 3.—Tornado-like winds dashed by tornado-like winds swept this section of Kansas during the night causing heavy property damage.

Airplanes and buildings wrecked at two of Wichita's airports entailed a loss estimated today at $200,000.

No deaths had been reported today.

The rains, which were general over Kansas, caused some damage to the record wheat acreage and further delayed corn planting.

CHICAGO MURDER

Chicago, June 3.—Authorities were puzzled today over the death of Herman Bloom, 35, a paving contractor, who was shot through the heart last night as he was about to enter his home. Neighbors who heard his shots, saw two men standing over the body on the sidewalk. A moment later they fled. One police theory is that Bloom was killed while resisting highwaymen.

KING'S CONDITION

Windsor, Eng., June 3.—The condition of King George, who is suffering from an abscess in the right side of the chest, was understood to be satisfactory today.

The King's physicians have discontinued the issuing of daily bulletins, feeling that his majesty's condition is improving.

LA COSTE WINNER IN TENNIS FINALS

Tilden's Master Conquers Borotra in French Finals, 6-3, 2-6, 6-0, 2-6, 8-6.

Roland Garros Stadium, Autell, June 3.—Rene La Coste today proved that machine-like steadiness can overcome dazzling brilliancy when he defeated Jean Borotra in a stirring five set match and won the men's singles title of the French hard courts championships.

The "Bouncing Basque" fought grimly for every point but his exertions of Saturday and Sunday when he rose to great heights to successively defeat Francis T. Hunter and Henri Cochet in sensational five set matches, did not leave him sufficient stamina to cope with La Coste's tennis.

The last set today was as stirring a duel as has ever been witnessed here. Both men played superlatively. Although almost exhausted, Borotra forced his famous countryman to extra games but in the end, the strain was too much for him and La Coste won out.

La Coste won the first set 6-3, in his placid yet effective way, striking steadily and masterfully and continually finding holes in Borotra's defense.

Then the "Bouncing Basque" staged one of his spectacular rallies and won the second set 6-2. In steam-roller fashion, La Coste swept through the third set without losing a game and those who favored his chances freely predicted that the end was near.

But they figured without Borotra. Drawing fresh life from the short rest after the third set, he threw the spectators into a frenzy by magnificently rising to the occasion and winning the fourth, 6-2.

Then came the final grueling set and there La Coste's smooth steadiness and unruffled calm overcame the brilliancy and gameness of Borotra. Without seeming to exert himself, he gave an amazing exhibition of effectiveness. Like a true champion, he was always there to return the ball when a point counted most. His placements were accurate, his drives bewildering and his service perfect and he proved himself the better today of two of the greatest tennis players in the world.

WEEK-END CRASHES

Buffalo, N. Y., June 3.—Two men and a girl were killed, two men were probably fatally injured and seven others less seriously hurt in automobile accidents in western New York during the week-end, a check-up revealed today. Robert Abbott, 57, a farmer, was killed when his automobile was hit by an Erie train near Campbell, N. Y. Carl Vanderburgh, 35, an electrician of Niagara Falls, was killed when his automobile hit an abutment at Black Creek. James Cooper, 40, of Montrose, Ontario, a passenger, suffered a fractured skull. Eleanor Kramer, 7, of Derby, N. Y., was killed, and her brother, George, 20, received a fractured skull, when their automobile collided with another machine. Seven others were less seriously injured.

WARREN TO LEAVE THE TRADE SCHOOL

students to over 450 who receive instruction as all-day, co-operative high school, high school draughting, seventh and eighth grade, pre-vocational and evening school students. An average of approximately 50 students graduate from the Manchester State Trade School each year and they have given such satisfactory performance to employers that the local institution has had a standing order from many manufacturers for its graduates, many of whom are now working in a supervisory capacity. This tends to reflect highly on the training they received under the direction of Mr. Warren. Employers of these students have been loud in their praise of the work rendered by local Trade school graduates.

The friendly co-operation of the local business men and manufacturers has been one of the encouraging features surrounding Trade school activities. Mr. Warren said. The pleasant relations with school officials here and in surrounding towns has been maintained for many years and is a source of pleasure in Trade school work. Mr. Warren declared.

Mr. Warren has always been a firm believer in the policies of former State Superintendent of Trade Schools Trinder, whose theory was that the function of a trade school was to teach only those subjects and science that directly bore upon the development of mechanical and technical skill. Recently there has been a movement on the part of the State Board of Education to superimpose upon the technical instruction courses in these schools, or only indirectly bearing, education, and which some trade school educators consider to be of no benefit to the pupils and wasteful of their time.

"My hope is that the integrity of vocational training will be preserved and that the practical skill of students acquiring under the plan effective during the last 15 years will not be sacrificed by the introduction of 'indirectly related academic work.'" Mr. Warren said. "A machinist or toolmaker employed by any local or Hartford manufacturing concern is definitely expected to do his own work from a standardized type of blue-print producing a finished product that is comparable with the standard set by that trade. Failure to do this after graduation from a trade school will require additional training after entering industry with a consequent loss of time and money to the employer."

His Training. Mr. Warren was born in Lynn, Mass., on June 30, 1889. He received his grammar and high school education in that city after which he entered the employ of the General Electric Company at Lynn. Five years later he went to Wentworth Institute in Boston for additional technical training following which he returned to the General Electric Company where he completed his student engineering work.

The Women's Home League of the Salvation Army will hold its regular meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the citadel in the city. All members are urged to be present as important business will be discussed.

BOCKUS FARM BECOMES SCENE OF MANY PICNICS

The Bockus Farm in Buckland is becoming a picnic ground for the Lithuanians of this section. On Sunday there was a gathering there, composed of the United Lithuanian Societies of Manchester and vicinity. Next Sunday the South end societies will hold a picnic at the same grounds and will have an entertainment and an out of town speaker. On Sunday, June 16, another picnic is being planned to be held at the same farm and on Sunday, June 23, the largest gathering of all is looked for in the annual picnic hall of the Polish Hall Cooperation when visitors are expected from all sections of Hartford County and many from Tolland County.

GOT LICENSE SATURDAY TO FISH; LOST IT TODAY

Reinhold Lamprecht Takes 15 Under Size Perch from Globe Hollow; Other Court Cases.

Reinhold Lamprecht of 34 Village street, aged 19, secured a fishing license Saturday and went fishing in Globe Hollow pond Sunday morning. He pulled out 15 yellow perch not one of which was of legal size. He was arrested by Deputy Game Warden Walter Luettgens and appeared in the Manchester police court this morning and paid a fine of $10 and costs. The fish were on exhibit in the court room in a small can and resembled shiners that are used for bait.

The young man's father appeared for him in court. He said his son knew nothing about the fish and game laws. The father paid the bill of $9.72 and the son not only loses his license but his fishing tackle which were taken by the game warden. Peter Fay of Glastonbury, whose case was continued from last week, through his attorney, Raymond A. Bowers, pleaded guilty to driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. A fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

Edwin C. Scott of Providence, R. I., who was arrested for speeding yesterday will be given a hearing next Saturday morning. Thomas J. Soule of Providence, R. I., who was arrested for speeding yesterday will also be given a hearing next Saturday. Frank P. Selgia of Bristol, arrested for speeding yesterday will be given a hearing next Saturday.

100 CASES OF MEASLES ARE REPORTED IN TOWN

Manchester physicians report an unusual number of cases of German measles in Manchester. One doctor today estimated that there were at least 100 cases in town. The disease while not serious is highly contagious. It affects adults as well as children. One peculiarity is that it is contagious before the rash appears making it difficult to avoid.

ABOUT TOWN

Harry Sladen, early truck motor-man on the Crosstown line and relief operator on the Manchester Green line, began breaking in today in Hartford as a bus driver. George Cleveland, night operator on the Crosstown line has also been called to Hartford for instructions as a bus driver. In spite of the fact that it was assumed, when the Connecticut Company recently called for run bids, the local trolley lines would be operated until the middle of July, there are indications now that the substitution of buses will come much earlier than that.

The annual meeting of Hose Co. No. 3 of the South Manchester Fire Department, will be held in their headquarters Tuesday evening. There will be a supper at 6:30 preceding the meeting, following which officers for the year will be elected and reports given.

Through the efforts of Charles A. Sweet, caretaker of Depot Square Park, the park presents a much more attractive appearance this year than ever. The tulips that were planted around the edge of the park have had their season, but Mr. Sweet gives daily attention and there are no leaves or papers allowed to gather. The lawn is well kept and in such a condition that it is attracting words of favorable comment daily.

A unique and enjoyable program will be given at the South Methodist church this evening under the direction of the assistant pastor, Rev. James E. Greer, assisted by Mrs. Greer and Mrs. L. S. Burr. The purpose of the entertainment is to raise funds for attendance at some of the summer institutes. The attractions will be the presentation of a bridal pageant in which a number of the young women will take part, and the wedding gowns those worn by Mrs. Esther Abbey and Mrs. James Tracy, down the intervening years to those of this spring; a play "Patsy" music by a girl trio, recitations by Hazel Driggs and songs by Miss Ruth Nyman. Strawberry shortcake and other good things will be on sale.

Manchester gardeners who are interested in entering exhibits at the combined show of the Garden club of Hartford and the Connecticut Horticultural society Thursday and Friday of this week at the Wadsworth Atheneum, may obtain schedules by mail, by conferring with the secretary of the local garden club, Mrs. Harold Belcher, 13 Walker street. There is no charge for entries. Competition is open to all whether members or not and the time has been extended until Thursday; forenoon, Mrs. Lucius Robinson of Hartford is general chairman. Others on the committee are Mrs. Arthur Shipman, S. H. Deming and R. E. Newell.

SEEK 200,000 ACRES OF FOREST LAND

Forestry Commissioner Austin F. Hawes Tells Kiwanis Club His Objective.

State Forester Austin F. Hawes addressed the Manchester Kiwanis club this noon at its regular meeting held at the Country Clubhouse. He explained what the state of Connecticut is trying to do in forestry and fire prevention. He said at the present time there are 16 forests which the state has acquired by purchase and donation, with a total acreage of 45,000 acres. It is the hope of the commission to increase the state's holdings to 200,000 acres. Mr. Hawes firmly believes in state ownership of forests for the reason that the individual owner in times of financial stress, very often sells off timber land, the clearing out of which would be a valuable lumber. The state will not do this but will allow the trees to grow to maturity.

The speaker stated that the greatest menace which they have to combat are fire and blight, such as the chestnut blight. Mr. Hawes is not very optimistic over the return of the chestnut. He said people do not realize that there is an excellent speaker in Connecticut. Ninety per cent of the lumber used here is shipped from the states of Washington and Oregon, and even those great forest states without a program of reforestation would be depleted within 25 years.

By strict attention to their duty the forest rangers and fire wardens of the state have reduced the fire damage to a minimum by proper methods, such as digging well holes to furnish water for fire fighting, employing forest patrols, establishing lookouts and other approved methods. Mr. Hawes said nature had been especially kind to the forests of this state. There had been scarcely a fire due to the heavy rains of April and May. There was a time when the annual fire damage to Connecticut forests was 3 1/2 per cent, while now it is down to 1/2 per cent.

Connecticut is a hardwood state, the oak and the hickory will thrive in the soil here and take care of themselves. They are experimenting with softer woods. Mr. Hawes is an excellent speaker and enlightens his talk about the forests with one or two good stories. The aim of the forest commission is to instill in the people a deep love of wild life and an appreciation of the forest.

Bill Halstead won the attendance prize donated by Arvid Gustafson.

BOY IS DROWNED WHILE FLEEING POLICE

New Haven, June 3.—A finding of accidental death by drowning was filed here today in the case of Albert Blondella, 13, who last evening plunged into West river near St. Bernard's cemetery, in an effort to escape police who raided a crap game, and was trapped in mud and quick sand so quickly that he sank. Blondella's body was recovered an hour later by the harbor police squad after a staging of planks had been erected over the sand.

New Haven and West Haven police made a concerted raid on the crap game, in which six men were engaged. Three were arrested in New Haven, one in West Haven after he swam the river just above the spot where Blondella went down, and two escaped through the back door. Officer John E. Lawlor stripped himself and plunged into the muck where Blondella disappeared. Lawlor almost lost his life in the effort, being exhausted by fellow officers so rescued that he has not yet taken home.

Dr. Marvin M. Scarborough, medical examiner, examined the body, ordered its removal for burial and declared death due to accidental drowning in his report to Coroner James J. Corrigan.

PEACOCK GOES ON TRIAL FOR LIFE ON JUNE 24

New York, June 3.—Earle Francis Peacock, torch-slayer of his estranged wife, will go on trial for life on June 24, on charges of first degree murder. He is charged with the slaying of his wife on the morning of June 24.

Although he has lost nine pounds since he entered the county jail and although the threat of the electric chair has exacted its mental toll, his voice was clear as he looked at the jury. "Not guilty."

Peacock is charged by the state with killing his wife from whom he had been estranged and then attempting to dispose of her body by soaking her clothes in kerosene and burning her.

HIGH COURT TO RECESS

Washington, June 3.—Almost caught up with its work for the first time in many years, the United States Supreme Court will recess today after handing down a number of decisions. Among the decisions which may come down is that which will determine whether Harry F. Sinclair, multi-millionaire oil magnate, is to serve another six months in prison at the conclusion of the three months sentence he is now "working on."

W. B. A. TO PLAN CONVENTION TRIP

President Mrs. W. H. Cowles Urges Large Attendance at Meeting Tomorrow Evening.

Mrs. W. H. Cowles, the newly elected president of Mystic Review, Woman's Benefit association, urges a large attendance at a meeting of the W. B. A. officers, to be held in Odd Fellows hall tomorrow evening. Final arrangements will be made at this time for attendance at the big Atlantic City pageant this month. So far only five of Mystic's members have expressed their decision to go and Mrs. Cowles believes if the members will attend the meeting tomorrow night, or the group meeting in Hartford, a little later, many more will want to take advantage of this wonderful opportunity to see Atlantic City at its best and avail themselves of the low excursion and entertainment rates. Members of the association, who are expected from all over the country and Canada, it will be necessary to make reservations at this time.

It is proposed that the party from this town will join the Hartford delegation and go by bus to New York. From there the party will join the W. B. A. excursion and will insure round trip tickets for the price of one-way fare plus one dollar. The trip to Atlantic City can be made from Hartford and return for $10.87, and it has been figured that the total expense will not exceed $25 if strict economy is exercised.

Atlantic City is celebrating its seventy-fifth year; the fiftieth anniversary of Edison's discovery of electric illumination is also being celebrated in Atlantic City, the world's greatest convention hall. The W. B. A. pageant alone would be well worth the trip and local members are urged to consider it seriously. It is proposed to leave on the 25th and return on the 28th.

BASTIN HAS SOME MORE TROUBLE WITH GARAGE

First Had Lumber Stolen, Now New Lessee May Lose His Driver's License.

Joseph Bastin of Deming street, is having his troubles in more than one way. He obtained a permit to erect a garage and gasoline station and the first thing to happen to him was to have the lumber stolen almost as soon as it was loaded. After that he bought his lumber piecemeal each day as he was able to use it, taking no chances with it lying around at night.

The building was finally completed and he looked around for some person he could depend on to conduct the place. He leased it to William Killish of Union street, Manchester, and Killish was to have taken over the management of the place as of today. He was to have on hand to open the place this morning and an investigation disclosed that he had an appointment in East Hartford town court. It all came about by a Killish desire to become familiar with the streets of Hartford. He was traveling along the wide way from Chauca corner towards Hartford when he struck a car coming from the west, and across the street crossed into a car parked on the north side of the road over the driveway. The noise attracted attention of the East Hartford police, who concluded that Killish had been driving recklessly and had been driving under the influence of liquor. His case was continued until June 13.

SINCLAIR FACING SIX MORE MONTHS

prosecutors, Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, were fighting to gain their first conviction for the alleged "branding" lease of the state's great oil reserves by Fall. Near the close of the trial, Donald Kay King, a Washington Herald reporter, published a story detailing a conversation with Edward J. Kidwell Jr., one of the jurors, in a Washington "special." He declared that Kidwell had talked about how one could "get a car a block long" out of the case and promptly turned his information over to Roberts and Pomerene. Immediately thereafter the government prosecutors disclosed knowledge that 15 Burns detectives had been shadowing members of the jury and prying into their family histories and private lives. A mistrial was moved immediately and was granted. The charges of contempt of court followed.

The contempt petition alleged that Day had employed the detectives as Sinclair's confidential aids, and he later admitted that he acted under Sinclair's orders. The petition alleged that the detectives were at their work in Washington from October 18, 1922, until the mistrial was declared in Nov. 2.

NEW LINDY RUMOR

Boston, June 3.—Reports from New London, Conn., today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had been seen at Block Island Sunday refusing his motor yacht, Moustique and that he said he was enroute to Boston were scouted in marine circles here today. The watch at Deer Island had no seen the Moustique and was believed to be at her dock in Bayonne, N. J.

doubt was the fact that apparently she had everything to live for. Wellesey police through a vale of secrecy went about their investigation and meanwhile Dr. Stantwood was preparing his report on the cause of death. The father of Miss McBride, W. F. McBride, of Weston, W. Va., has been notified. The death of Miss McBride was somewhat of a parallel to that of Miss Lee in Detroit, although the Detroit revealed that her neck was broken and her body bruised while in the case of Miss McBride there was no evidence of violence, authorities deciding on one of two theories, suicide by poison or natural causes.

DRY SLAYERS PUT ON TRIAL TODAY

Feeling Runs High Against Officers Who Killed College Student.

Abingdon, Va., June 3.—A tense feeling pervaded this little community, nestled in the Cumberland mountains, today as three county officers went on trial for murder in the killing of J. M. Kendrick, a college youth, because they suspected he had liquor in his automobile or had been drinking.

Hill Folks Gather From out in the forks of the creeks, which have labored stills for a century and whose "reverbs" are still immensely unpopular, the hill folk drifted into town today to witness the novel spectacle of three enforcement agents standing trial for their lives. They are charged with first degree murder, and so intense is public feeling that the hitch-hack betting was there will be one or more convictions, although the degree may be changed.

Officers Hidden It is eloquent testimony to the state of public feeling that the enforcement agents were seen in Abingdon today or the first time since the killing. They have been secreted in the mountains for weeks for fear of violence.

To the regular prosecution staff today was added Peter J. Davenport, dean of the criminal bar in southwest Virginia, retained by friends of the slain youth and to be paid by popular subscription. The officers will be defended by George M. Warren, a well known criminal lawyer in this section.

The ringing of the town bell early in the morning on "Court day" is a ceremony. Immediately after this rite, Sheriff Keyes Bordwine appeared on the steps of the courthouse and shouted to the public square "Oye, Oye, Citizens take heed that this honorable Circuit Court of Washington county is now in session. God save the Commonwealth, God save the Commonwealth."

DR. BURR RECUPERATES FROM PNEUMONIA SIEGE

Is Confined to Hospital Here After Trip to Berkshires; Recovery Slow.

Dr. N. A. Burr of Park street, well known Manchester physician, is confined to the Memorial hospital convalescing from an attack of pneumonia which followed a siege of influenza. Dr. Burr recently returned from a trip to the Berkshires for recuperation. Although his condition is not serious the patient is recovering slowly. It will be at least two or three weeks before he will be able to be about again.

condition is not sufficiently serious to warrant this step. It is not yet known whether Stanley Baldwin, defeated premier, will visit the King this week to discuss the stalemate arising out of the general elections. This visit depends largely upon the King's condition, but it is understood that if the present rate of progress is maintained, Baldwin will be permitted to see his majesty in the near future.

The abscess, which formed under the site of a wound in the King's earlier illness, is understood to be draining satisfactorily.

PUBLIC RECORDS

The following instruments were filed for record with the town clerk this morning:

Harry England, to Adam and Amelia Thier land and building located on North Elm street. Administrator's Deed Walker A. Deverney, estate, to Sarah Deverney, land and buildings on Doane street.

TEMPERATURE DROPS.

New York, June 3.—Topocasts reappear on the weather map. New York today as the temperature continued to fall rapidly in direct contrast to the heat wave that gripped the city last week.

Indications were that the weather would remain uncomfortably chilly throughout the day. The almost total absence of serious automobile accidents in the Greater New York district over the week-end was attributed to the cold weather. Many motorists were unwilling to brave the wintry blasts and those who did returned to their homes before nightfall. Motor accidents took a heavy toll last week-end.

C. Wilson, well-known Camden, N. J., lawyer, and a graduate of Wilson college, Chambersburg, Pa., died a short while after her father found her lying side-by-side with her former fiance. Roberts lived for several hours, but neither regained consciousness although the degree may be changed.

Planned To Marry Conflicting stories of the events preceding the tragedy have been told, but it has been established that although Miss Wilson and the young man were never formally engaged, it was taken for granted among their friends that the romance would culminate in marriage.

Two months ago, Miss Wilson returned a ring Roberts had given her, but the couple remained friends. They were often seen together. Recently, according to acquaintances of the couple, Roberts and Miss Wilson quarreled over her friendship for another young man living in Moorestown, and Roberts had been depressed and worried over his courtship.

Investigation is being made into a motor ride the dead couple took Saturday afternoon with John Collins, young Princeton graduate, and a young woman whose name has been withheld by the authorities.

NOON STOCKS

New York, June 3.—The Motor Car, Oil, Utility and most of the specialty stocks started the week at a slightly higher level of prices, as the result of a good influx of week-end buying orders from all sections of the country. Last week's rough shake-out of margin holdings of industrial stocks, in addition to strengthening the technical position of the market, released $22,000,000 of so-called brokers' borrowings for other uses and helped to hold down money rates over a very trying period.

Wall street did not take seriously the action of important Senators in trying to pass a bill imposing 5 per cent tax on "stocks turned over within sixty days." Measures of this kind have been bobbing up in Washington every so often, seldom if ever emerging from committee. Incorporation of the Stock Exchange has been almost yearly demand and as often turned down by the legislative heads.

General Electric leadership in the high-priced specialties was again established by its 6-point jump to 273 1/2 in the first half-hour. International Combustion and other "Durant" stocks pushed up a point or two as Wall street houses sent out assurances that liquidation for the account of the pool had been completed. Chrysler and General Motors struggled with another heavy load of selling orders, and emerged a point or more above last week's close.

A one-point rise in wheat prices on the Chicago Board of Trade put an altogether different construction on the farmer-buyer-power situation and stocks which slumped with the drop in wheat last week recovered sharply. Intramarket Harvester jumped 7 points to 104 and Montgomery Ward 4 1/2 points to 106 1/2.

The Rails and Utility stocks continued the "good work" started last week with no change in the leadership of the advance. New York Central forged ahead to fractionally above 200; Illinois Central moved up 5 points to 139 1/2, and new gains of a point or two were recorded for Atchafalpa, Chesapeake and Ohio, Union Pacific. Consolidated Gas and American Waterworks sold up about two points each, to the accompaniment of rumors of a new allotment of important utility companies. Buy-in demand for U. S. Steel was sufficient to force that stock up 2 1/2 points to 167 1/2. American Can and Gold Dust were active and strong.

The money rate was unchanged at 6 per cent, with prospects of a moderate increase today. Cotton recovered 25 points in the early trading and sold more than a dollar a bale higher.

COLD IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, June 3.—New England was in the grip of a cold wave today, having escaped the grip of a hot wave last week.

The mercury, which last week touched the 96 degree mark, today was down to 45. Vermont reported some snow flurries while frost in this section worried market gardeners. Historic Concord and Lexington reported temperatures from 35 to 29 degrees.

WAR DEBT PARLEY IS NEARING CLOSE

Reparation Experts Hope That Report Will Be Signed Before Wednesday.

Paris, June 3.—Although Belgium and Germany have not yet reached an agreement upon the Belgian claim for reimbursement for depreciated marks left behind when the Germans evacuated Belgium, a majority of reparation experts were hopeful today that the conference report could be signed before Wednesday night.

A formal accord, bearing recommendations to the interested governments, will not be signed until the Belgians and Germans settle the depreciated mark problem.

The Beigo-German issue is the only important point that remains to be settled.

Confere With Belgians. The German government has entered into direct negotiation with the Belgian government upon this issue. A German spokesman expressed belief to International News Service that a satisfactory solution would be found possible. He said he did not think the Belgians would obtain the full amount they demanded, but that the Germans are confident of a compromise.

Virtually the full report of the conference, as compiled by the subcommittee headed by Sir Josiah Samp of England, is in the hands of the delegates. It is possible there will be revisions although the main features will remain practically unchanged.

When the Dawes plan ends and the Young plan becomes effective the International Bank of Payments will be created to collect and disburse the reparation payments. This bank will take the place of the post of agent general for reparation payments now held by Parker Gilbert.

It is understood that the official accord when it is signed, will promise Germany a reduction of reparation obligations should the United States, at any future date, reduce the war debts owing to that country by the European allied powers.

unusual sense. He was explaining that he found college men of this great generation setting low standards—have a good time, get by with as little work as possible, effect slovenliness, and deprecate any difference between a man who has had education and the man who has not. He pointed out that President Nelson of Smith has said that after ten or fifteen years a college bred man was not distinguishable from the other man in manner, speech or in the appearance of general intelligence.

Marry for Love. As for marrying, the boss's daughter, he said he meant that it was obvious that a lot of young fellows intend to get married the moment they are making enough money to support a wife, no matter how poorly, and that the only thing to be considered was a love match. He said his feeling of the man he tried to describe, who wants to be something of a personage in his world, is going to wait until he has a little money and some position to offer. This means, he added, that he will get the kind of a girl who herself is of the superior type and who will expect a certain amount of money and position. Prof. Rogers expressed a willingness to offer an audience of young women to try for the man who has made good.

The habit of sloppy dressing by college men and their falling superiority was blamed by Prof. Rogers on "mass production" by colleges, which meant standardization. He thought organizations like the Rotary clubs foster it.

Heritage, the professor believed, played no part in the climb to the "ruling class," for, he said, the rag picker's son with the right idea, will beat his hands down, the rich man's son who does not take his responsibility seriously.

AUTO DEATHS DECREASE.

Boston, June 3.—Encouraging reports over automobile fatalities reaching Registrar of Motor Vehicles George A. Parker revealed today that motorists in Massachusetts caused seven deaths last week as against 14 the week previous and fifteen in the same period a year ago.

Memorial Day records were most encouraging, the registrar said, there being no automobile fatality on Memorial Day this year as against five deaths on Memorial Day, 1928, 17 in 1927, and 7 in 1928.

Special appeal to motorists to be careful of children—driving where children congregate or backing cars where children are about—was issued by the registrar.

HALF-DAY CLOSING BEGINS THIS WEEK

Stores to Have Half Holiday Each Wednesday During June, July and August.

A weekly half-day closing throughout June, July and August, agreed upon by Manchester merchants last January, will begin this week Wednesday, June 5. The number of stores that will close or remain open is doubtful, depending entirely upon the individual merchant. However, it is certain that all chain stores will close Wednesday afternoons though food stores in general will probably remain open.

With the half-holiday observed in the majority of stores along Main street and barber shops also closed the same afternoon the street will assume the aspect of a Sunday afternoon.

YOUNG TAGGART PARTY BOSS IN FATHER'S PLACE

Indianapolis.—The late Thomas Taggart, former United States Senator who was one of the few national leaders of the Democratic party, may be succeeded by his son, Thomas B. Taggart. The older Taggart died here on March 6.

Already Indiana Democratic chieftains are talking of young Taggart as a possible successor as Indiana member of the party's national committee to Charles A. Greathouse, who has expressed the desire to give up that place.

The son of the veteran leader is not without long experience in Indiana politics. He has been in touch with the political activities of his father and even inspired, it is said, some of his father's political judgments. He has been a delegate to both state and national Democratic conventions.

Furthermore—and this is interesting to many Hoosier Democrats—the younger Taggart retains the bump of generosity of his father, which means that the Taggart fortune probably will be always available.

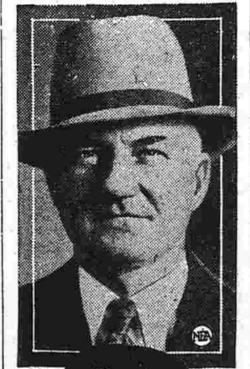

Thomas B. Taggart has been the head of the French Lick Springs Hotel and other enterprises for a decade. He has been on the board of directors of two large Indianapolis banks for some time and succeeded his father as treasurer of the Lincoln Memorial Association, seeking to erect a $3,000,000 memorial at Lincoln City, Ind.

Young Taggart is a graduate of Yale. After college days, he entered business with his father, assisting in the direction of the French Lick Springs Hotel with its 3,500 acres, three golf courses, hot springs and mineral waters and baths. Under his management an addition of 250 rooms and a convention hall seating 1,800 have been built.

The hobby of Thomas B. Taggart is blooded horses. He has owned some of the finest horses on the American trotting turf, including the Senator and Peter Pluto and now owns one of the recognized best three year old trotters in Volomite, 2:06 which last year as a two year old won the Kentucky Futurity at Lexington. Volomite is one of the great favorites in the three year old stakes, including the Hambletonian to be raced on the Grand Circuit this summer.

The owner of three golf courses, Taggart plays no golf. But he is to entertain the Indiana golfers this summer as he did last summer and several times before, in the Indiana amateur championship to be played on the upper course at French Lick Springs. In fact the Indiana Golf Association has selected the French Lick courses as the permanent place to hold the annual Indiana golf championships.

J. A. Grogg, of Oklahoma City, shown in upper photo, was a butcher until a traffic light he invented was bought from him. Now he's independent. L. D. Stephens, below, of St. Louis, was a plumber when he bought Grogg's patent. Now he also is independent—and an authority on traffic.

NORTH END FIRES TWO AT A TIME

Whistle Alarms Sunday Morning Call Department Twice Within an Hour.

The extraordinary event of two fires at the north end, both of them of the whistle variety, within an hour or so, called the Manchester fire department into action yesterday forenoon. The first one resulted in the destruction of a barn and a hen house on the property of Clarence F. LaChapelle, at 72 Oakland street, better known as the old Deacon Henry Griswold place, and some damage to a garage on the adjoining property of Joseph Grabonski, at 16 Edwards street. The other blaze was in a two family house on Hudson street and was extinguished with some damage to the building and contents.

Get Out Cars

Mr. Grabonski, looking out of a back window, saw smoke and some flame issuing through the roof of the barn on his neighbor's place. He ran out and opened the big door of the structure just as Mr. LaChapelle came running out of his house. Together they pushed out of the barn an automobile belonging to Frank Ripplin which has in imminent danger of destruction. Then they turned in an alarm from station 44. By the time the firemen reached the scene, which they did promptly, the barn was all ablaze and the fire had extended to the roof of Mr. Grabonski's garage, about a third of which was burned off. There were four automobiles in the latter building but all were run out safely.

It was a hot fire and there was no chance to save the barn or the henhouse but the small buildings on the property, which took fire, were saved and the blaze in the garage was conquered without damage to any part but the roof. The pump of the north end department did efficient work.

The loss on the LaChapelle property was estimated at about $1,500 covered by insurance. Robert M. Smith, insurance agent and state senator, was on the spot almost as soon as the firemen and effected a settlement with Mr. LaChapelle before the fire was really out.

Second Fire

William McGonigal, foreman of No. 2, had just returned home from the Oakland street blaze when he saw fire in the roof of a house on Hudson street formerly owned by George Kahney but now the property of Walter Hobby. It is a two-flat house occupied on the ground floor by the family of Charles F. Edward Glazier. Mr. McGonigal found some difficulty in getting an alarm turned in but the men at the firehouse were notified and got the apparatus to the fire and the alarm was sounded.

The blaze—which started from papers, which were being burned in the fireplace in the lower apartment, whirling up the flue and water on the roof—had gained considerable headway when the firemen arrived. They had to use a lot of water to extinguish it and the Glazier apartment was pretty well soaked and considerable plaster was displaced. No important damage was done to the building, however.

It has been years since there were two fires in the north end, unless we count grass fires, in one-half day.

Danger

IN many furniture stores quality is optional—you have the choice of fine furniture or inferior furniture.

Keith's offers no such dangerous alternative. The moment you enter Keith's you have the unique protection of being able to buy furniture of sound value only and nothing else.

You may buy different grades of furniture but never an inferior grade. You will find in the Keith collection for instance, the plainer more substantial pieces or bedroom suites of the inspirational design of the great masters, usually so prohibitive in price, yet within the reach of those who want moderate priced furniture in authentic design and in addition the protection of sincere workmanship. What you wish to spend is your business and to show you how to spend it profitably is ours.

CONSERVATIVES ASK BALDWIN TO QUIT JOB

confidence vote in the House, which is now regarded as almost impossible.

Hated by George. Lloyd George, leader of the Liberal forces, which hold balance of power, is intensely bitter against Baldwin and the Conservative Party, and though he has no love for Labor, it is regarded as highly probable that he and his delegation would abstain completely from voting confidence in Baldwin, thus automatically registering a non-confidence vote by virtue of the force of Labor's numbers.

Baldwin is expected to summon his Cabinet shortly for a discussion on the matter. No official word has come from Conservative headquarters as to the party's course of action but shrewd political observers now incline to the belief that Baldwin will resign and allow Mac Donald to take over the portfolio of prime minister.

This would save him from the disgrace of being forced into resignation in the House when Parliament reassembles, and give time to allow factional hatred to simmer down to some extent. Under these conditions, a Conservative-Liberal coalition at some future time would immediately result in throwing Mac Donald and the Laborites out of office and precipitate a new general election.

LARSON PIGEONS WIN WASHINGTON RACE

Manchester pigeon entries, owned by Henry W. Larson, came through winners in both the Manchester Pigeon club race and the Hartford Nutmeg Racing Pigeon club race held Saturday afternoon in Washington, D. C., a distance of 300 miles. Larson's entries also took second in the Hartford race while Jacob Kotch of Manchester won third and fourth honors. Walter Tedford, the only man besides Larson to have entries finish the local club's race, finished second.

First place winner in the Hartford club's race was a blue-checked cock, "John Barrymore" timed at an average speed of 119.3 yards per minute, the second at 119.9. Larson to have entries finish the local club's race, finished second.

HEBRON

Truman C. Ives, aged 45, died at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, on Tuesday, May 28. Mr. Ives had been taken to the hospital the day before, suffering from an intestinal attack. He had been under treatment for the past several months for bone tuberculosis and in the opinion of specialists he was making good progress toward recovery. He made a brave fight for existence but in his weakened condition the strain on the heart was too great to be overcome. He leaves his wife and six children, William, Richard, Andrew, Fred Jeanne, and Helen, also three brothers, Charles and Lewis of Willimantic, and Edward of Saybrook, and a sister, Mrs. Linus Perkin of Willimantic. Mr. Ives and his family came here from North Plains, Conn., and for the past few years lived on the Gates farm at the foot of Post Hill which he purchased. He was born in Saugerties, Mass., and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Ives of that place. Funeral services will be held at the Congregational Church on Friday at 2 p. m., standard time, the Rev. John Deeter officiating. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

A birthday party was given in honor of the 13th birthday of Miss Stella Johnson, and of the 11th birthday of her sister, Stanile Johnson, the two anniversaries coming so near together that they were celebrated as one. 21 young friends were present and enjoyed the games and social pleasures of the afternoon, all partaking of a birthday feast with cakes in honor of the occasion. The Misses Stella and Stanile are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Johnson.

The annual speaking and spelling contest took place as announced at the town hall Tuesday evening. Speakers were Conetta Tiera, from the Jones Street school, Mildred Pagach, Amston; Marlon Porter, Jagger District; Stella Johnson, Hebron Center; Margaret Pickering, Gilead; Marjory Foote, White school. The judges were Miss Florence Battle, of Willimantic, assistant supervisor, Mrs. Elmer T. Thienes of Marlborough, and Miss Mary Quinn, of Willimantic Normal School. They gave first place to Marjory Foote who recited, "The Sea King Burial," and second place to Stella Johnson, who recited "The Name of Old Glory." In the spelling contest Anna Bednar represented the Amston school, Nancy Kulynych, Hebron Center, Mary Kurel, Jones Street, Margaret Pickering, Gilead, Carl Barron, Jagger District, and Marjory Foote, the White School. Nancy Kulynych, Hebron Center, was winner, Carl Barron coming second in place. The hall was filled to capacity with many standing. Choruses sung by the pupils of the Center School were pleasingly rendered.

Mrs. Gertrude Hough entertained the Women's Bridge Club at her home Wednesday evening. Mrs. Anne C. Gilbert held the highest score for the evening.

Mrs. Carrie I. Burnham will leave for Sound View in a day or two where she expects to spend the summer months.

CHURCHMEN DISCUSS FOREIGN RELATIONS

Detroit, June 3.—International relations, farm relief and prohibition were the topics of discussion on the program today at the 32nd regular meeting of the National Council of Congregational churches here today.

Principal interest centered about the recommendation of the commission on international relations that the United States Senate be petitioned to ratify an agreement with other foreign governments to prohibit "the export of arms and implements of war to private individuals without license from their own governments," and to "allow foreign governments to import such arms under due conditions of publicity."

The commission on international relations is headed by William E. Sweet, of Denver, former governor of Colorado and retiring moderator of the National Council.

THE BRITISH PROBLEM

Lively is the speculation as to whether the Liberal party under Lloyd George will play with the Laborites under Ramsay MacDonald in the formation of a government for Great Britain, and if so how far will it go in factuating the program of the Labor party.

There is a notion, rather prevalent on this side of the water, that Lloyd George is more likely to coalesce with the Conservatives than with the Laborites. But that impression fails to take into consideration the fact that the little Welshman is one of the most astute personal politicians in the British realm and an opportunist of the opportunist. In view of his political history it would seem to be unlikely that he will elect to ride behind the saddle on a faltering horse when there is just as good a seat to be had on one that is gaining in strength at every stride. In this country Lloyd George would be called a hand-wagon rider, albeit he must always have a large flag to wave or a big drum to thump. In Britain he is not the type to tie up to a falling cause when there is a growing one ready to welcome him.

The enthusiasm, amounting almost to fury, with which British voters have rushed to the standard of the Independent Labor party in this election is tremendously significant. If a new election were to be held next week it is doubtful if Lloyd's would give you better than an odds-on bet that the Labor party wouldn't win a clean majority in Parliament. And in such a situation it is a rather unlikely thing that Lloyd George and his followers will tie up with a Toryism which the plain people seem to have lost all patience.

How it comes that the British Labor party can pull so tremendously from the old Liberal party as it certainly did in this election and as it would probably do to a still greater extent, after this showing, in a new one, is better understood in this country when it is realized that the Labor party there is a very different kind of organization from anything we have in the United States. It is not a trades union party; it is not a manual labor party; it is a party which admits to membership, and as often as not to leadership, persons of every conceivable gainful occupation, as opposed to those who live on the "unearned increment." Herbert Hoover, rich man as he is and employer as he has been, would be completely eligible to membership or candidacy in the Labor party as an engineer, were he a Briton. So would Calvin Coolidge be, as a working lawyer. So would Warren Harding have been, as a newspaper editor. So would Woodrow Wilson have been, as a college president.

It is that tremendous inclusiveness, that wise recognition that there is no essential difference in the basic interests of the dock laborer and the $100,000 a year railroad executive, which has given such strength to the Labor party of Britain. It is that policy which has already caused it so nearly to supplant the Liberal party. And it is because of that accreting political sympathy between the man in overalls and the white collared salary earner that Mr. Lloyd George is going to be extremely wary of trying to lead his followers into any partnership with Conservatism.

NOT OUR WEATHER

We desire to have it distinctly understood that this newspaper is not responsible for the weather. If it were it would either make some extraordinary effort to arrange things so that the thermometer would not stand at 88 at getting-up time one morning and then, the third morning after, stand at 33; or else keep very still about it. But we can assure our readers that neither the Herald nor any news syndicate with which it is connected bears the slightest measure of responsibility for the weather—neither for its character nor for the predictions as to its early nature which appear from day to day at the top of the first page.

We find this necessary because so many people seem to harbor at least a half formed resentment against the newspapers—their own special newspaper in particular—when something goes wrong with the weather and the forecasts; which, we must admit, is often enough the case. "Your paper said," etc., jeeringly remarks a citizen, "that we would have slightly cooler weather today—and look at the darned thing! Almost freezing!"

That's the idea. It's "your paper" that makes the weather bulls. Well, your paper isn't either a weather maker or a weather prophet. Your paper prints the weather dope that is sent to it by wire by the United States Weather Bureau—which does profess, not perhaps to make the weather but to know all about it. It prints the latest weather dope that the United States government furnishes. And your paper hereby serves notice that when you feel like cussing somebody for the weather it declines to be the goat and emphasizes the appropriateness of transferring your cussing to the Weather Bureau—which, so far as we can see, hasn't improved a mite in its

ARMAMENTS AND WAR

Some commentators have been finding fault with Mr. Hoover's disarmament arguments because he employs the term "relative" with relation to the naval strengths of the various nations, pointing out that it is not the actual size of its navy which is important to a nation but its strength in proportion to the strength of other navies, and urging the reduction of the burden of great fleets. The point is being made by his critics that navies, so long as they retain their relative effectiveness, even though but a fraction of the size at which they are now maintained, would still be competitive and as likely to be employed actively as at present.

There is, of course, a measure of truth in this, but it is only a measure and not full to the brim at that. No amount of disarmament, even the reduction of armies and navies to the barest police limits, would be positive insurance against wars. Nations, aggrieved at each other beyond reconciliation and becoming inflamed with the passion for conflict, could and would fight at each other's throats as readily if the army of each consisted of a single regiment and the navy of a single ship, as if each had a million men under arms and a fleet of five hundred vessels. If there were no great guns they would fight with little ones and if there were no guns at all they would fight with knives and clubs and stones. Always provided that the real war passions were aroused by real or fancied grievances.

Grant all that, but it must be granted, too, that a great many wars, probably the majority of all wars in modern times, have arisen, not from any sudden flaming of anger between nations, but from calculated purpose, from political causes within one of the countries that become belligerent rather than from incurable controversies between the peoples. And the commonest of all such political causes is the necessity of a ruler or a government to seek pretended justification for the maintenance of a great war machine by putting it to work. A thousand men are of a thousand minds as to the actual causes of the enormous catastrophe of 1914. Yet there will be very few who will be able to imagine the upgrowth of that terrible conflict from any international political complications existing in June of that fatal year, if there had been no great armies and no great navies.

Huge military machines are in themselves temptations to and causes of wars otherwise causeless. Right at this moment there is nowhere in the world any international situation even remotely suggesting adjudication through armed conflict, were we to eliminate the urge of the silently waiting armed hosts, kept at burdensome cost to the populations and always confronting their peoples with the temptation of profitable activity. And yet everybody knows that the peril of a great war is always with us.

We are heart and soul in sympathy with Mr. Hoover in his declaration that the United States should go farther than weasle words in leading the world toward the abandonment of the grisly, ruinous business of war, sweeping reduction of naval armaments must become a recognized component of civilization.

PUSSY-FOOTING

According to the Meriden police and the published accounts of the affair one James Callahan of that city was drunk when he drove his car with insane recklessness and in a crash killed a father and son named Bell, also Meriden residents. Callahan was released in $5,000 bail and the charges laid against him are those of criminal negligence and drunken driving. Since the case was an obvious one and since one of the victims was instantly killed it is about impossible to conjure up any reason why this man was not immediately charged with manslaughter; any reason, that is, save the fact that throughout the entire state of Connecticut there is a disposition to minimize this class of crimes.

It would be far nearer to real justice if the statutes should be amended so that a charge of murder could lie in circumstance like the Meriden case, and if the prosecuting officials would use as much diligence in sending to the gallows this type of criminal as they do in hanging gunmen and passion-murderers who are not one whit more of a menace to society than the crazily drunken driver.

HEALTH AND DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

SNUFFLES AND ADENOIDS.

Adenoids are a common affection of children between the ages of five and ten years. At least ten per cent. of these children are estimated to have enlarged adenoids. Adenoids are really an overgrowth of the adenoid tissue in the pharynx. This is really lymphatic tissue similar to the tonsils. It is only when this tissue becomes enlarged that it may be considered dangerous to the child's health.

There is usually also an enlargement of other lymph glands and the tonsils. Adenoids may seriously affect the body growth, the metabolism, and facial expression of a child. Almost all children having snuffles are really troubled with enlarged adenoids.

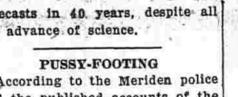

The most noticeable thing about adenoids is mouth breathing, which sometimes causes a deformed chest, stupid facial expression, stunting of growth, and even deafness. Sleep is greatly disturbed, usually accompanied by loud snoring breathing and nightmares.

When adenoids are present, the child will usually be troubled with other disorders of a catarrhal nature, more especially bronchitis. Often children are accused of being stupid or cross when they are simply troubled with adenoids.

The teeth are sometimes greatly misshapen because the bony framework does not form properly. Pigeon breast, barrel chest, or funnel breast are three types of deformity frequently affecting the chest of the mouth breathers who have adenoids.

There are two ways in which the body may be injured when these growths occur. Either from poisonous toxins caused by their infection, or from mechanical interference of the air passage from the nose. Children with adenoids are often unable to blow the nose. The voice becomes hoarse and muffled and there is often a loss of sense of smell.

When the adenoids become infected, the inflammation may spread to the inner ear and cause deafness. The skin usually is pale

Washington, June 3.—President Hoover appears to be the only man in the United States who can explain a black eye and get away with it.

The presidential eye has now virtually regained its normal shade and no one at all has been heard to suggest that the bruise was incurred in any way other than the official explanation. Cartoonists and editorial paragraphers have been conspicuously silent.

The first explanation was that a branch had swung back and hit the president in the eye while he was tramping around during an outing. Then it was reported that the president had stumbled and bumped into the branch.

Latest of all, one was advised that the president had stumbled on a rock and crashed into the branch.

The Washington correspondents have been unable to make a mystery of it.

Barring press association correspondents from the Senate floor is rather a bother for the three or four newspapermen affected, but it has no serious effect as far as getting the news is concerned.

All newspaper correspondents have the privilege of sending in messengers to any senator on the floor, asking him to step outside into a nearby room. There are special messengers for the purpose as well as a special room.

But sometimes the senator doesn't come. He may be speaking or awaiting a chance to speak. Or he may be especially interested in the speaker spouting at the time. Or, possibly, he may even be too lazy.

A representative of each press association, under the custom prevailing hitherto, was given the privilege of going on the floor so that the large news agencies could obtain faster action in interviewing and anemic. The adenoids cause a disfigurement by broadening the root of the nose and causing the arch of the upper jaw to stick out. And the roof of the mouth becomes narrow and highly arched. Often the teeth do not meet together properly.

The treatment for adenoids should not be delayed once the discovery is made, as they not only endanger the child's health but may lead to almost incurable malformations of the jaws, palate, nose and face. An examination for adenoids should be made whenever the child shows any symptoms, such as mouth breathing, deafness, stupid expression, disturbed sleep, muffled voice, or frequent colds.

In most cases the large adenoids can be reduced to normal by short fruit fasts followed by a non-starchy diet, but if the adenoid tissue has become greatly enlarged it may be sometimes advisable to use surgical measures. However, before an anesthetic is considered, the thymus gland should also be examined, for if it is too large, death may occur during an anesthetic. An enlarged thymus is frequently found with adenoids.

During the treatment with the fast and diet to bring about a cure, the child should be trained to breathe through its nose rather than its mouth and it is a good plan also to increase the breathing capacity by systematic exercise.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Suffers With Limbs.)

Question: Mrs. P. writes: "I am 53 years old and am suffering with what the doctors call 'locking out' of the cartilage, and gives me no hope to get better or even find relief. I get around only with the aid of a cane. Will you please tell me whether there is anything I can do?"

Answer: This drying out of the cartilage, as your doctor supposes, is probably due to some chronic irritation from toxemia and there is no better method for eliminating this from the body than the fasting regime, instructions for which I will be glad to send you. Hot applications over the affected joints would also be helpful.

(Popcorn.)

Question: Mrs. W. M. asks: "What do you think of popcorn as a food, and with what other foods should it be eaten?"

Answer: Popcorn is a form of starch which is easily digested when it is cooked in the usual way, that is, by heating the popcorn till it pops open, splitting the kernel and exploding the starch cells. It should be used as the principal starch part of a meal, and may be seasoned with butter and salt. Use it with the non-starches, but not protein.

(Falling Hair.)

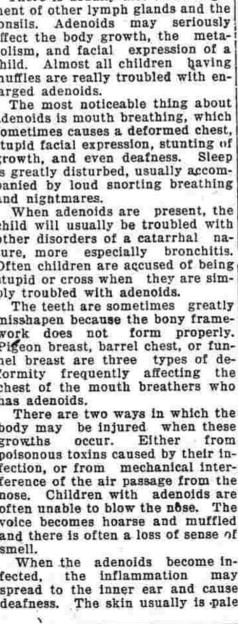

Question: P. F. writes: "I am 23 years old, general health fairly good, and I use an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables; I have no scalp disease, such as dandruff, but my hair is coming out very fast, having already one small bald spot. What is your advice?"

Answer: If the loss of your hair is not due to some glandular deficiency you should be able to prevent further loss by a daily massage of the scalp to increase the circulation. Ultra-violet light treatments are also helpful.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc.
54 YEARS AT SOUTH MANCHESTER

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 3.—Life just be-spurred by the passing elevated low the elevated tracks of lower Greenwich street is as strangely patterned as the designs made by the sun as it trickles through the tracks.

Lower Greenwich street, in case you don't know your New York, is a suburb of Wall street. Any street more than a block away is a suburb in that busy belt, where brokers have their lunches brought in great baskets and deposited alongside their precious tickers.

Clerks, stenographers and such like look upon lunchtime as school children look upon holidays. They rush away from their offices ahead of the time clock and they return at the last moment tolerated by their bosses. And so the tardiness of life in the damp shadow of the elevated has been colored by the invasion of countless eating places.

On one corner an old Colonial dwelling becomes a cafeteria. And five times a block, sandwich counters elbow chop houses and are in turn elbowed by dineries which spring to life between the hours of 12 and 2:30. Mean places are all about, clinging to the tradition established before lower Greenwich street found itself flocked with rushing and pushing diners.

For humans live above these shops... humans whose windows are so close to the elevated tracks that they could lean out and touch them. How and why they live there, don't ask me. Life is difficult enough in New York without having one's front window eternally

But Bwang and Massamba, imported by one Dr. Dan Davenport, an explorer, who came home with many reams of motion pictures, must adjust themselves to things so strange as to appear incomprehensible. The auto, the street car, the crowds and the buildings are objects unknown to their jungle lives. Nor is the dwelling place in which they must live particularly pleasant to an aboriginal, accustomed to his grass hut and his vast spaces. Four walls are the contraptions of the urbanite.

I'm told that to keep them from running completely amuck, Bwang and Massamba are taken regularly to the Bronx Zoo, where they can feel at least slightly at home among wild animals and cultivated trees.

The clothes they have been forced to don are uncomfortable.

And when they go about the streets, crowds follow them or stop to stare.

Small wonder that Bwang and Massamba believe that most everything they see is crazy—that the life is crazy and the food will crater—for they have eaten little other than dried fish and rice since their arrival.

And I can't say that I entirely disagree with them.

$30 Towards An Electric Range

A Vote Of The Directors

WHEREAS the desirability for a general use of the electric range in the territory served by this Company has been demonstrated through the satisfaction of our customers who have purchased ranges, and

WHEREAS the price and cost of installation inevitably make the introduction of ranges slower than would be the case if the costs were lower, and

WHEREAS under the present condition of our development every installation postponed means a loss of profitable revenue to the Company as well as a deferred comfort to the customer.

BE IT RESOLVED that the Directors appropriate from surplus the sum of $3,000 to be applied to defraying in part the cost to our customers of 100 ranges to be offered during the month of June; said appropriation to be applied at the rate of $30.00 credit on each order; and that the management is authorized to offer during June 100 ranges under the above terms and to make equitable allotment of same among the customers in accordance with the sequence in which their orders are received.

Also for the benefit of those customers who have all ready purchased ranges, to offer this same sum of $30.00 as a contribution toward the cost of installing an electric hot water heater.

Foreign Queens of Beauty Prove Ordinary Flappers BOBBED AND SHORT-SKIRTED, THEY'D "FIT IN" ON BROADWAY OR MAIN STREET

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS

New York. —If you don't believe that modern manners and maids have become standardized, you need only see the eight international beauties who have just landed in our country to vie for the world title.

And if you believe the flapper is dead, put the idea firmly outside your consciousness, for the lives in every land. From Seville, supposed city of maquilas and shawls, comes bobbed haired Senorita Rosario Balmoresque.

Every beauty wears her hair and dresses short, and together they form just as typical a group as you can find on Broadway or "Main street."

You probably never would guess that they're the beauty queens of three great nations, so typically American flappers are they.

Two Nations Prefer — The two outstanding blondes are Miss Ingeborg Grahn, representing Germany, and Germaine Laborde, of France.

Blaze of Lights and Jewels at Atlantic City to Honor Edison's Invention

Atlantic City, June 3.—Lighted and colored jewels, in so vast and varied a collection as has never before been gathered into a single display, will transform this city into the world's capital of brilliance for the greater part of June.

Illumination experts have vied with one another to transform the boardwalk and other attractions of the city into colorful spectacles. Their combined efforts are now being completed for the opening of a dual event of national significance.

The celebration coincides with the opening of the new auditorium, one which will seat 40,000 people and allow more room for theaters, ballroom, bath houses and a garage for parking 400 automobiles.

The boardwalk lighting standards will throw showers of golden light, while steam jets from urinal stanchions stretched the length of the walk will be lighted so as to appear like curling tongues of flame.

The sur along the walk will be lighted in various colors, while at the end of each avenue running toward the sea will be an illuminated seal of the state for which the avenue is named.

One of Ryan's masterpieces will be the Arch of Jewels, which he designed for use in a number of important expositions the world over.

Light will be put to a new and novel use at this time when Dr. Vladimir Zworykin, Westinghouse research scientist, will show the visiting illuminating engineers his method of transmitting photographs on a beam of light.

"I'm not down and out yet, and I never will be. If you don't want the money give it to Iris."

THIS HAS HAPPENED
NAN CARROLL discovers after three years' work with ATTORNEY JOHN CURTIS MORGAN that she is in love with him, and having a high sense of honor, determines to resign. Her resignation is postponed, however, because she believes Morgan is going to need the services of a faithful secretary during his defense of BERT CRAWFORD, a supposed friend, who is indicted for embezzlement. Nan distrusts Crawford and IRIS MORGAN beautiful wife of the lawyer.

Nan overhears by means of a listening-in device a conversation between Crawford and his switchboard operator in which he "fixes" the girl's testimony to divert suspicious evidence from him. When Nan confronts Crawford with what she has heard, and tells him the price of silence is that he give up Iris Morgan, he angrily agrees.

Morgan defends Crawford ably. On the last day of the trial, Nan prepares to go to the courtroom when Iris rushes in, accompanied with little CURTIS MORGAN, whom she leaves on Nan's hands for the morning. Nan is furious. When the little boy drops asleep, Nan finds beside him a note, evidently stolen from his mother's handbag, in which Crawford protests his love for Iris, admits his guilt, and lays plans for their elopement.

Nan hurries to the courthouse. She is too late. The jury comes in with a "not guilty" verdict. Outside the courthouse she meets WILLIS TODD, an old suitor, who takes her to lunch. Knowing he is trustworthy, she shows him the note and he advises her to tear it up. She tucks it in her bag, knowing well she would have hurt Morgan with that note.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XIV
"Nice Christmas, Nan?" John Curtis Morgan greeted his secretary cheerfully on Tuesday morning. "Look! I'm wearing the tie you gave me. Best-looking one I ever had."

Nan Carroll could have burst into tears with relief. The two days since she had seen him had been a period of almost intolerable suspense. Her mildest nightmare had pictured him alone on Christmas Day, deserted by his wife for his "best friend"; her worst fear had been that he might be lying dead on his living room floor, his slight eyes turned toward the portrait of the woman who had betrayed him. She had actually not possessed the courage to read the papers.

"You always say that!" she forced her trembling lips to retort flippantly, hoping that her eyes did not too shamelessly betray her. The cravat of dark-blue and silver-gray striped silk did suit him amazingly well. "Yes, I had a nice Christmas," she lied. "I've been trying to frame a letter that would adequately express my thanks for the roses and the check, but—"

"Don't be a goose!" Morgan interrupted brusquely. "I'm so indebted to you for your help on the Grace Cox case and the Crawford case, to say nothing of all the other cases—that all the thanks passed between us should come from me. Consider the hundred a salary bonus and not a tenth of what you're entitled to."

He passed on into his private office, and Nan sat staring at her typewriter, the tears, which she had had to control in his presence, slipping hotly down her cheeks. Her need to resign, to get away from this man whom she loved so much and so hopelessly, had become a desperate pain on Christmas Eve, when his roses had been delivered to her and the sight of his handwriting on the card and check which had accompanied them had made her ill with too great joy.

The buzzer on her desk sounded. Nan dabbed furiously at the tears on her cheeks, snatched a powder puff from the top drawer of her desk and covered the traces of her self-pity; then took notebook and pencil and went into him, smiling.

A few minutes later, when he was dictating with a day-after-Christmas leisureliness and tendency to irrelevant conversation, Bert Crawford charged into the private office without knocking.

criminal lawyer in the United States? By golly, you're certainly a demon for work! Why don't you knock off for a few days? Hello, Nan! Happy New Year!

Morgan frowned slightly. For the first time Crawford's blithe badinage seemed to annoy him. "Anything special, Bert? We're pretty busy this morning."

Crawford laughed boisterously and slapped his friend on the back. "Nothing very special, old timer. Just thought I'd get rid of a scrap of paper while I was in the neighborhood." And he drew his wallet from his pocket, abstracted a check, and ostentatiously laid it before the lawyer. "You wouldn't give me a bill, old man, so I let my conscience be my guide."

"Twenty thousand!" Morgan exclaimed. "I should judge then that you had a very troublesome conscience!"

"Twelve good men and true said 'not guilty,'" Crawford reminded him, laughing, good-naturedly. "But seriously, old boy, you've earned that and more too, and I'll be glad to make the check bigger if you'll let me."

"I told you there wouldn't be any fee, Bert," Morgan frowned. "This business cost you dear enough, God knows."

"Fortunes of war, Jack!" Crawford shrugged. "I'm not down and out yet, and I never will be. If you don't want the money, give it to Iris. A woman likes to have a little fortune of her own tucked away in the bank."

Morgan's face lighted up with the tenderness which his wife's name always evoked. "That's not a bad idea, Bert. If you insist on paying, I'll open an account in her name today. She'll certainly be surprised and pleased. Mighty decent of you."

But Nan, sitting quietly, with pencil poised over her notebook, did not for a moment believe that it was "decent" of Crawford. He was either being diabolically clever or insolently childish. If he was really going to run away with Iris Morgan, Bert Crawford would not lose the $20,000 so grandly presented to the man he had used and deceived; he and Iris would have every penny of it, in addition to the quarter of a million that Crawford had stolen from the Mid-West Packing Company.

And if he was not going to keep his promise to Iris, was planning to abandon her as he had doubtless abandoned many other women, then this $20,000—a small sum to a man who had a quarter of a million salted away—was a cad's way of cancelling his love debt. And John Curtis Morgan—blind, trusting darling that he was—thought, Bert Crawford was "mighty decent!"

"I didn't like to throw a damper over the Christmas gayeties yesterday, but the fact is, Jack, that I'm going to shake the dust of this man's town from my heels."

"Well, what kind of Christmas did the boys have?" she demanded with scintillating cheerfulness.

her at the Traylor and break the news then." Crawford admitted candidly, his blue eyes flicking a glance of triumph at Nan. She no longer had the power to keep him from seeing Iris Morgan, his mocking eyes reminded her. "But don't you worry about Iris, old boy. She'll bear up under the loss of her playmate too well to suit me. By the way, I'll tell her to meet you at the bank at half past two, if you're really going to open an account for her with that check."

"Thanks, Bert. I wish you would," Morgan agreed, a little stiffly. It was obvious that he was a little hurt at not being included in the luncheon invitation.

"Now," thought Nan, her narrowed brown eyes trying to probe the tricky mind that lay behind the smiling blue eyes of Bert Crawford, "just what does he mean to do? Is he going to shock her with him or not? Would he have had the audacity to come here and say goodbye to her husband if he were taking her? And if he doesn't take her, what will Iris Morgan say and do when she learns that her lover has left her $20,000 as heart balm?"

At two o'clock, after Nan had returned from an almost untasted luncheon, Morgan shrugged into his overcoat and announced that he was going to the bank. She was so sure that Nan knew he was still hurt: "I'm going to snatch a bite to eat, Nan, and then step over to the bank to meet Mrs. Morgan. If she calls up, tell her I'll be there at a quarter to three."

Nan had to watch him go, unprepared for the shock that might be thrown into her mind. At half past two, the hour the bank closed, he came back to the office troubled and bewildered, with the news that something must have detained Iris, since she had not met him, then she came. And now, thought Nan, the hour the bank closed, he came back to the office troubled and bewildered, with the news that something must have detained Iris, since she had not met him, then she came.

Her fingers were so cold with nervousness that she could not type. And now, thought Nan, the hour the bank closed, he came back to the office troubled and bewildered, with the news that something must have detained Iris, since she had not met him, then she came.

"Well, what kind of Christmas did the boys have?" she demanded with scintillating cheerfulness.

Listening to their lengthy replies mercifully consumed almost half an hour; three telephone calls were providentially disposed of nearly 30 more minutes. She was just hanging up the telephone receiver when Morgan's shadow loomed against the glass panel of the door.

She braced herself to meet whatever his beloved face might reveal, but as the door opened she heard of my sudden wealth, I suppose? Wasn't Bert a lamb to make Jack give it to me? And now this stupid old husband of mine wants me to let it lie in the bank, accumulating interest. I've been dying for a trip to New York and now I can take it.

No, you can't come along, Jack, and if you aren't awfully nice to me I won't come back."

"Oh, don't look at her like that, as if you could kiss her feet!" Nan wanted to scream at Morgan. "Don't you realize that she's warned you?"

Cinderella's slippers were really not glass, says an author. With George Washington's cherry tree declared false, the apple that William Tell shot from his son's head taken away from us, it wouldn't be surprising now if some one were to declare brazenly that there is no such thing as farm relief.

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

MANY NEW DEVICES USED IN MEDICAL PRACTICE

By DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The changes that have taken place in the form of medical practice are already apparent to everyone even slightly conversant with the problems of the profession.

A quarter of a century has seen the introduction into medical service of a wide variety of techniques for delivery to the patient of what the doctor has to offer for the prevention of disease, or the relief of symptoms or for cure, when cure is available.

The advancement of medical science has been associated with the introduction of innumerable complicated devices planned to aid the senses of man in the study of the changes that go on in the human body in health and disease. The microscope is familiar to every student of medicine but the cystoscope, proctoscope, electrocardiograph and the techniques of blood chemistry are to the practitioner of an older generation and even to many recent graduates tools beyond facile employment.

General practitioners, confronted with problems beyond simple solution, refer those problems to specialists. In a difficult diagnosis or in a complicated problem of treatment several specialists may be called in.

The old-time practitioner of medicine is passing. But he left an impression on the people of this country that they should not forget. He may not have known as much about as many things as does the physician of today but he was abreast of the knowledge of his time.

Today all of the professions and trades have committees which are attempting to draw up for them something resembling the principles that have guided medical practitioners for more than two thousand years.

These things are not lightly to be tossed aside from pecuniary considerations; they should be borne in mind even in attempts to deliver adequate service to a maximum number of mankind rather than to deliver exceptional service to a few.

TOMORROW: General practitioners or groups practice.

A THOUGHT

There is a sore evil which I have seen under the sun, namely, riches kept for the owners thereof to their hurt.—Ecclesiastes 10:12.

Wealth is not his that has it, but his that enjoys it.—Franklin.

Morgan, still frowning, nodded comprehension if not approval. "Have you told Iris good-bye? This is going to be a blow to her, Bert. She thinks a lot of you. I'm not much good at playing around and whooping it up, and she loves it. I'm afraid she's going to find life pretty dull for a while."

Printed Frock With Plain Coat Wins Paris' Favor.

Mid-season collections in Paris show a preference for the printed frock with plain colored coat, lined with the frock's fabric, for travel or steady daytime wear.

Jean Patou uses a fine, hand-drawn white georgette for the collar, jabot and cuffs of a black and white polka dotted crepe Alhambra frock. It is belted at natural waistline, is longer than last season's daytime apparel and has its pleated skirt posed on a hip-yoke that rounds up nearly to the waistline in front, making the very front of the skirt double pleats.

The black silk coat has the ends of its collar rounded, instead of being attached to the lapel—just a little French touch that makes all the difference in the world in the feminine look of the garment. The cuffs have rounded edges on the outside, too. That hat is black ball-tail, with an unusual cut to its mushroom brim and its edges and banding of white grosgrain.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

"And you're going to put all money into beautifying just a school building?"

The head of the School Board looked at the member of the Board of Commerce and answered seriously. "Yes, we're putting all that beauty into just a school building."

"The Board of Commerce man said his opinion. 'Well, you fellows know what you're doing, but it strikes me that the money you are using to decorate that place would do more good teaching those kids something useful.'"

"I know, I know," replied the head of the School Board with an expression of weary patience that this was not the first time he had listened to this comment.

"But we figure that beauty counts for enough in this world to teach the children how to appreciate it. They do learn all sorts of useful things and we decided that they need the other too. After all, lovely things aren't any more expensive, often, than ugly things. Why, do you know, the plans we accepted for the new building were next to the least expensive and they were miles ahead of all the others in architectural beauty."

Still a Bit Dubious
"That's so, I guess. But I'm talking about the inside. That 'art of all nations' room and those mosaic floors and all that mural decoration. Do you really think that's necessary for school kids?"

"Yes, Wallace, have you got time to get in my car and drive out home with me? It will take about three-quarters of an hour both ways."

Wallace looked at his watch. "Yes! I guess so. What's up?"

"I'll show you."

The ride took about twenty minutes, and then the head of the School Board stopped his car in front of a new apartment building—chew and beautiful. Even the other man broke out with, "Say, that's a fine place!"

"It is beautiful, isn't it? Come on in. It's just as nice inside. I want to show it to you."

The lower floor was fairly paved with fine Oriental rugs. The visitor looked around admiringly, but the resident looked around keenly. Finally he seemed to find what he sought, and he pointed, "Look there!"

The Needed Lesson
In the center of a fine Serouk lay a half-smoked cigaret. It had been thrown down lighted and ground in by a heel. "If you looked over the building you would probably find fifty of these cigarettes and burned matches in halls and elevators. Why? Because these adults who are grown up children, never learned to appreciate beauty. They probably grew up in homes where telephone memoranda were marks on the wall paper and the bed spreads were not removed at night. Either that or there was no wall paper or bed spreads. I can't figure out the wilful destructiveness of the average human being. We're going to teach children respect if not actual love for beauty. Do you see what I mean?"

"Well, I'll say I do," remarked the other man thoughtfully, still looking at the cigaret. "I'm surprised. Really I am."

"Then you think we're right?"

"Right? Say, I'm making a speech at the meeting tomorrow, and that's going to be it. I guess you do have to catch 'em young, don't you?"

An article on the woman's page of a British newspaper is headed, "How to Exercise the Chin." Newspapers over there exert a lot of wasted effort.

The WOMAN'S DAY

One travel bureau has sent out a self-contained and "courtious" but none the less firm letter to the various associated restaurant and lunch room keepers of Europe, exhorting them to have some consideration for the great amalgamated stomach of the half million or so American tourists bound to be in the old world this summer.

The travel bureau points out that Americans in Europe have great gastronomic difficulties; that they miss the balanced menus to which science at home has accustomed them, and that the dainties which are set before them at Europe's tables are unpalatable and health destroying.

Granted that such gratuitous advice may not be the most tactful thing in the world, and that it does little to promote this international good will of which we hear so much, I am not so utterly convinced that there is no need for such a request as the travel bureau sent out.

The point is that there is a big difference between palatable and delicious cooking and in food which is good for us.

We Americans of the present era are saturated with propaganda exhorting us to look to our vitamins and calcium and fresh fruit juices and calories and be sure

Whether the meals we may eat when our health is duly considered are pleasurable or not, is nobody's concern.

But our friends across the sea have not reached that stage where they regard eating as a duty for health's sake rather than a pastime.

When a French chef grills a broiler in butter, finishing it with a pure cream sauce stuffed with mushrooms, or when he lights his little alcohol lamp under a chafing dish of croques, Suzette broiling and brewing in brandy and sherry and powdered sugar, he is not concerned so much with the welfare of his diners' stomachs as with the ohs and ahs of real pleasure with which they will flock their chops over his food.

But we who are trained to our salads and light sandwich lunches, to say nothing of real breakfasts with cereal and cream in the coffee and even a platter of bacon and eggs, are apt to look askance upon a dinner of all-butter-cooked meats and vegetables, or sigh for a real American breakfast, though in this respect, whether for that reason or not, perhaps the continentals have the more healthful bliant. We are told, too, that hot breads aren't good for us, but we continue demanding our pancakes and waffles for breakfast.

There'll be Kicks
It is too early to get Europe's own outraged fare-back at this accusation and request. But any number of paper and magazine of our own have commented on the matter to no little extent.

"Outrageously discourteous and presumptuous" is the leading phrase. And any number of editorial comments run that it is especially presumptuous for a country which knows little or nothing about the high art of cooking to presume to offer gratuitous advice to a country which has raised cooking to an art comparable with that of Michaelangelo or Beethoven.

Oil Your Watch

Every 2500 Miles

The little watch of yours ticks five times a second—300 times a minute, 18,000 times an hour, 157,680,000 times a year! Its quarter-inch balance wheel travels approximately 1.18 inches every tick, 5.9 inches per second, 1770 feet an hour, 2930 miles a year.

Like an automobile, a watch must have its oil renewed at regular intervals. A small wrist watch will give better service if all the bearings are cleaned and oiled at the end of nine months or 2,500 miles. Men's large pocket watches should be cleaned and oiled every year.

M. H. S. EASILY CAPTURES TRACK TITLE

12,000 Fans Watch Wills Retain Her Title, 6-3, 6-4

French Champion Forces Helen to Exert Herself; Tilden Loses to La Coste; Borotra in Finals.

Paris, June 3.—With the women's singles title in the possession of Helen Wills for the second successive year, the French hard court tennis championship were to close today with the final match in the men's singles between Jean Borotra and Rene La Coste.

La Coste was a slight favorite to win the title. Borotra played superlative tennis yesterday in eliminating the title-holder, Henri Cochet, in five sets, but this gruelling battle, followed his hard-fought five-set victory over Frank Hunter, was expected to take a heavy toll upon his speed and stamina today.

The bounding Basque beat Cochet by a score of 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, 5-7, 6-4.

Twelve thousand spectators, the largest crowd ever to attend a tennis match in this country, saw Miss Wills retain her title by defeating the old French champion, the 20-year-old Frenchman, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, the French champion scored many dazzling placement shots, won by three of Helen's services and forced her to play at the top of her game.

For the second straight year, Helen Wills, California's queen of the courts won the women's singles title at the French hard court tennis championships yesterday.

In a slugging match in which power of stroke predominated, Miss Wills defeated Mme. Rene Mathieu, ranking No. 1 French player, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, in the final round.

The American, French and British women's championship saved her best tennis for the final day. Although Mme. Mathieu put up a gallant fight, Miss Wills, in the opinion of all the experts assembled here demonstrated that she dominates feminine tennis just as skillfully as did her former rival, Suzanne Lenglen, some years ago.

Borotra Beate Cochet. Although the finals of the women's singles held a major share of interest among the 12,000 spectators—the largest crowd that ever saw a tennis match in France—Jean Borotra the "Bouncing Basque," sprang a stunning upset when he eliminated his fellow-musketeeer, Henri Cochet, ranking No. 1 player of the world, in the semi-finals of the men's singles. Borotra pulled out the match by scores of 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4 to gain the right to meet Rene La Coste, another of the great French Davis Cup team, for the title today.

HERE'S THE DOPE by Tom Stowe

TITLES IN THREE OF SIX SPORTS WON BY M. H. S. DURING THE YEAR

While it is true that baseball and basketball have not come up to the desired standard during the 1928-29 school year, sports followers here should not get the idea that sports in general are at a low ebb at Manchester High school. Such is far from the truth.

As a matter of record, the local schoolboys have captured the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League championship in no less than three of the six sports during the rapidly closing year. The titles were in swimming, football and track. West Hartford is Manchester's closest rival having won the pennant in baseball and being almost sure to cop the tennis honors. Bristol won only in basketball while Middletown, Meriden and East Hartford were simply members of the "Also Ran Club."

However, just because Manchester High had an unusually poor basketball season due almost entirely to a dearth of real talent and now that the baseball team has failed to "hit on all six," the false impression seems to have been created M. H. S. is slipping badly in sports. But a peep inside the record books blasts this opinion sky high. Three championships in six sports, all of them most decisive, together with a near triumph in tennis, certainly is more than a lion's share of the glory.

There was a time when baseball, football and basketball were considered about the only sports of importance not only in high schools but in colleges and the professional field at large. Conditions are steadily changing, however, and while these sports still rule and will for many years as the "Big Three" of sportdom, interest in the so-called minor sports is growing in leaps and bounds. They have already reached a pinnacle where they are highly respected. Competition in track, tennis and swimming is flourishing as never before and it won't be long before golf will be regarded on the same scale of importance.

While it is the athletes themselves who actually win or lose the battle, it is unfair to pass on without giving a bit of credit to the coaches and others who help make the teams what they are. As a tribute to the excellent work of the man behind the team which has just added new laurels, it is no more than fair to mention first the name of Charles L. Wigren. Then there is Thomas F. Kelley who built up the first championship football team here last fall and who also coaches baseball. Wilfred J. Clarke directed the school's products in basketball and swimming. Neither must one forget the fine work of Faculty Manager Edson M. Daley or the active interest taken by Principal Clarence P. Quimby in sports in general.

Holland, Plitt, Brennan And Picaut Hit Homers

Bon Ami Loses to Winsted Team 8 to 6 While Manchester Green Drubs South Windsor 9 to 2.

Four home runs were whaled by Manchester baseball players over the week end. Emil Plitt and "Hook" Brennan hit the ball out of the lot for the Bon Ami Saturday but the locals were defeated by the Gillette Clock Company of Winsted here by an 8 to 6 count. Ty Holland and Joe Picaut skinned out circuit clouts for Manchester Green yesterday up in South Windsor and their team was returned a 9 to 2 winner.

The Green-South Windsor contest was a fairly close affair for seven innings but five runs in the last two frames made the victory decisive for Manager Sam Prentice's combine.

Holland, Picaut and Bill Forgett were the hitting stars for Manchester Green, each getting three safe blows apiece, some for extra bases. Holland got a double and triple as well as a homer.

Joe Prentice was on the mound for the local and allowed only five hits, setting back nine on strikes. The fielding of Benjamin and Plunk featured for the losers. The Green will practice tomorrow night at Woodbridge field and may play a home game Thursday night.

EDWARDS' GREAT 880 IS FEATURE

Colored N. Y. U. Star Registers Third Fastest Time Ever Run Outdoors.

Philadelphia, June 3.—Small in numbers but great in accomplishment, the fourteen-man Stanford team marched on to its third consecutive Intercollegiate A. A. A. track and field championship by rolling up the largest point total since the war as the two-day college classic came to a close here Saturday afternoon over the scarred turf and cinders of Franklin Field.

The Cardinal tide engulfed some of the best college teams in the country, as the Stanford stalwarts registered 45 1/2 points to give the West eight teams victories in the last nine years. Southern California added to the lustre of the Pacific Coast by scoring 21 points less than half the Stanford aggregate, but sufficient to lead the University of Pennsylvania with 18 1/2, New York University, the indoor champion, with 14, and Yale with 13 1/2.

Edwards Outstanding. But even the overwhelming Stanford team triumph, generally conceded before an event was held, could not outshine the magnificent half-mile of Phil Edwards of New York University. That personal clock of grass and power glided over the slate-gray surface of the track in 1:52 2/10, the third fastest 880 yards ever run outdoors.

Back in 1916 Ted Meredith set the world's record at the precise figure in which the Stanford team clocked today. Ten years later Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany broke the Meredith mark with 1:51 6/10. Meredith's time still stands as the American record and the ill-famed Violet ace will be bracketed with him in the national compilation.

USES CHILDREN AS DIAL INSTRUCTORS

Telephone Company Teaches Young Folks First in School Demonstrations.

Officials of the Southern New England Telephone Company have decided that school children are the best medium through which to introduce the manner in which the dial system is operated. It is figured that in no other way can the use of the dial phone be taught to the community as by having the children in town familiar with it. Representatives of the company are at present engaged in giving such demonstrations. The work was started last week and will be completed next week. In all, 17 schools will be visited, and 57 demonstrations made to a total of 2,870 pupils. The men doing this work are Joseph J. O'Brien, B. O. Brainard and J. A. Reynolds.

Today the student body of the High School received the instructions in the auditorium of the School Street Rec. They went to the building in groups, receiving the instructions during the course of their study periods. A large dial about three feet in circumference was used for the illustration. The program started last week Monday when students at the Robertson and South Main Street schools were visited. The next day the representatives of the telephone company went to the Green, Buckland and Kenney street schools and on Wednesday visited the Hollister and Highland Park schools. The instructions to the high school students will be completed today. Tomorrow the men will go to the Franklin school and on Wednesday will take in the Lincoln, Bunce and Nathan Hale schools. Thursday comes the Washington and Barnard and Friday will be a continuation at the Barnard. More work will be done next week Monday at the Barnard and the Parochial schools and the work will be completed next Tuesday at the Trade school and Connecticut Business College.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

DON'T FORGET ABOUT WEDNESDAY. Madame the Housewife, we invite your memory to the fact that during June, July and August Wednesday afternoons are to be devoted to giving the hard working personnel of Pinehurst a bit of leisure and a breath of outdoors. And that all Wednesday marketing will have to be done before noon. Our customers are so used to having Pinehurst always on the job, always ready to respond to phone calls for a rush delivery, that we anticipate a few disappointments for them when, on a Wednesday afternoon, "Central" says, "They don't answer." Unless Madame makes a very special mental note of the Wednesday afternoon closing. Day after tomorrow will be the first of the half holidays. Meantime, with the prospect of a half day's outing ahead, this crowd will be even more eager and prompt and painstaking—if that is possible—in meeting your every wish. Pinehurst's customers are so much Pinehurst's friends that we feel sure they will co-operate with us in making the best of service possible by bearing in mind the half day off and getting in their orders betimes. We thank you. Phone 2000.
