

NAVAL RACE HOLDING UP FRENCH PACT

Italy Wants to Build as Many Ships as France—France Objects and Tells Her Reason.

London, June 6.—France and Italy are engaged in a naval armaments race in the Mediterranean which has resulted in delaying the signing of the proposed Franco-Italian pact, according to word from Paris.

Negotiations for this pact of friendship have been in progress for many months, but something has always come in the way of the conversations from reaching a successful conclusion.

This time, says the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle, it is directly due to naval rivalry.

The bone of contention is said to be equally of naval strength. Italy has launched out in a warship building program that is almost openly admitted to be aimed at a total tonnage with France.

France's answer.

This is hotly resented by Paris naval experts who hold that France's Mediterranean fleet alone must be equal to Italy's whole armada, since Italy's interests are concentrated in the middle sea, while France has a scattered world empire.

This view is also held by the French government and was clearly stated towards the end of last year by M. Lemery, the then secretary of the naval committee of the French Senate, who told that body: "On every possible occasion we are informed from the other side that French and Italian naval tonnage must be equal."

Cannot Be Equal

"Equality with Italy, total tonnage against total tonnage, would be the most flagrant of inequalities, for, while all Italy's interests are concentrated in the middle sea, therefore, keep her fleet there, we must maintain in the Atlantic a fleet equal to that which the Treaty of Versailles allowed to Germany, and keep practically all over the world the units necessary for the protection of our colonies."

Lemery intimated that in view of this it was Italy's duty to build two 10,000 ton cruisers and two 5,200 ton destroyers.

This caused another furor in French naval circles and resulted in the following reply, made by M. Lemery, in March before the naval committee of the Senate.

"The Italian fleet," he declared, "has conducted violent campaigns"

POOR BECOME RICH BY RACE LOTTERY

Millions Buy Tickets in Britain in an Attempt to Gain a Fortune.

London, June 6.—There were many happy hearts in England today, and many of them beat flutteringly in the breasts of bookmakers.

The victory of Trigo, a 33 to 1 outsider, in the annual British Derby at Epsom, Downs, gave the "bookies" one of their greatest days in years, for a comparatively small amount of money had been bet on this horse, the bulk going on Crayford, Mr. Jinks, Kopl and Hunter's Moon, none of which finished "in the money."

Besides the bookmakers, a small but select number of persons throughout the world also had reason to be cheerful. They were those fortunate enough to hold winning numbers in the great sweepstakes which are run each year on this classic of the British turf.

Principal Sweepstakes.

The principal sweepstakes are the Calcutta Sweep, with three prizes totalling more than $550,000 each, the London Stock Exchange Sweep, with two first prizes of $25,000 each, and the Baltic, in which first money totalled nearly $500,000.

Millions of persons bought tickets in these three sweepstakes and a hundred or so will draw out enough money to make them rich and independent forever.

Wins $300,000

One of the biggest sweepstakes winners is Julian Cahn, well-known Nottinghamshire cricketer, who paid $2,500 for a half share in the Stock Exchange ticket on Trigo, and as a consequence profits by more than $300,000.

An aunt of Cahn, from whom he purchased the half interest, also will receive $300,000. She is a widow, and another woman in her station, Mrs. Katherine Merath of Dublin, mother of four children, will profit by almost $125,000 for her good fortune in

ENGLAND IS SLOWLY WASHING INTO SEA

London, June 6.—The sea is claiming England at the rate of 40 feet a year.

The town council of Lowestoft recently voted to consider means of building barriers to prevent the washing away of the land in its vicinity. At Pakefield, a village near Lowestoft, the sea has been gaining on the land at an average rate of 10 feet a year.

Erosion is felt in other places in England. A road, at Pennington, is endangered. A suggested plan is to remove this road, and to tunnel through a cliff bordering the sea.

CIVIC LEADERS SEE DIAL PHONE SHOW

Exchange Manager W. B. Halsted and Assistants Give Demonstration Here.

The three local service organizations, the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, the Manchester Kiwanis club and the newly formed organization of Lions united in a joint meeting last night at the Masonic Temple, for the purpose of learning about the use of the dial system of telephoning, which is to go into general use in Manchester about the middle of July. About 65 attended.

Preceding the meeting a luncheon was served by Osano, the well known caterer.

Willis Presides

Harlowe Willis, president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, called the meeting to order and remarks were made by Arthur A. Knolls, head of the Kiwanis club and George H. Williams, head of the Lions.

The meeting was then turned over to William Halsted, manager of the Manchester Telephone exchange, who reviewed the history and growth of the telephone in Manchester since its inception.

Two reels of motion pictures that had to do with the operation of the dial system were shown. Following the pictures and the talk by Mr. Halsted, three telephone men put on a real instructive exhibition of the use of the dial system.

GIRL SCOUT REVIEW TOMORROW EVENING

Annual Program to Be Presented in High School Hall; 150 to Take Part.

Manchester's Girl Scouts, about 150 in number, will hold their annual Review at High School hall Friday evening, June 7, at 7:30 o'clock. The seven troops have been rehearsing for some time and have an interesting program to present.

The Review will open with the bugle call "assembly" by Suzanne Watson, entrance of the Girl Scouts, and the formation opening ceremony in charge of Mrs. W. M. Brownell, commissioner. After this ceremony, the Manchester Girl Scout Bugle and Drum Corps will play and march, with Lieutenant Esther Sutherland as drum major, Robert Richardson and Robert Von Deck as the instructors of the Corps, which is in charge of Mrs. Frederick Snow, deputy commissioner.

The feature event of the program will be a special Manchester edition of the national Girl Scout magazine, "The American Girl," of which each troop will present a camp tableau. Troop 7, Captain Irene Bjorkland, will present a camp tableau, a cover design.

Troop 6, Captain Thornton, will give the Ceremony of the Scout Laws, in costume, as an editorial. Troop 1, Captain Richards, will demonstrate fire-building for the Scouting department. Troop 4, Captain Evelyn Johnston, will present a play adapted from a story in "The American Girl." Troop 5, Captain Miriam Welles, will demonstrate four of the home-making badges as merit badge department. Troop 3, Captain Gertrude Reinartz, will present a burlesque patrol meeting as the joke department. The final number is a tableau of flags by Troop 2, will illustrate the international department. Following the presentation of "The American Girl," there will be group singing by all the Girl Scouts, and special songs by the individual troops. The formation of the double circle, with singing and "laps" will be closed by Lillian Schiele, will play the Review.

The Council members in charge of the Review are Mrs. Earl G. Winslow, chairman; Mrs. Charles Holman, Mrs. Harry Melchior, and Mrs. Stephen Hale. The review is open to the public, and a small admission fee will be charged to cover expenses.

MABEL IN NEW YORK.

New York, June 6.—Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former assistant United States attorney general in charge of prohibition prosecutions, was in New York today to confer with officials of the aviation company, for which she has been named Washington counsel. She refused to discuss prohibition matters.

11 STOWAWAYS SPEND A MONTH IN TINY CABIN

Cape Verde Islanders Discovered When Schooner Goes on Rocks Off Nantucket—To Be Deported

Providence, R. I., June 6.—Disillusioned by the turn of events which threatens imprisonment when they reach their homes in Portugal, eleven Cape Verde Islanders, who spent a long month in a tiny secret after cabin aboard the two-masted fishing schooner John B. Mantu on its tempestuous voyage across the Atlantic, were under detention aboard the vessel today pending deportation proceedings.

That the eleven men would have gained admission to this country, were it not for the fact that the schooner went aground off the rocks of Nantucket Shoals, almost within sight of their "land of promise" was belief of immigration officials.

Schooner Refloated.

The 101-foot schooner was refloated and towed into Providence, under the convoy of an United States Coast Guard cutter, and at a search the eleven Cape Verde Islanders were found in a small cabin covered with coils of rope. It was reported by the Coast Guardsmen.

The 17-year-old master of the small John B. Mantu, the 21 members of the crew and the 22 paid passengers were questioned.

Since the eleven aliens did not take out passports when leaving their own country, immigration officials here said they probably would be imprisoned on their return home.

Paid for Passage.

Officials said that each of the aliens told them that they had paid Henry Rose, alleged owner of the vessel $250 for transportation. The three elements they were under the impression that the same man was master of the vessel on its 3,600 mile journey, but found when they first saw the sight of land at Nantucket that the 17-year-old youth was in command.

After the vessel went aground, the crew of the cutter and two fishing vessels were obtained to aid in pulling her off the rocks.

Learning of the plight of the vessel Federal immigration officials remembered that the John B. Mantu was formerly a whaling schooner of the Cape Verde Islands, and later a packer and had never been in difficulty in the waters of Nantucket, ordered a Coast Guard patrol boat to look for the vessel.

The subsequent search revealed the men, hungry and cramped, in the small after-hold of the schooner.

POPE PIUS SCORES ADDRESS OF DUCE

Says Italian Premier Used Heretical Expression in His Speech to Deputies.

Rome, June 6.—Dante's rift between Pope Pius XI and Premier Mussolini over the interpretation of portions of the Lateran treaties, notably the clauses relating to the education of youth, optimistic belief prevailed today that the differences will be composed in future diplomatic conversations.

The divergent views was emphasized by the Pope's letter to the Papal Secretary of State Cardinal Gasparri taking Premier Mussolini to task for speeches he made in the Senate and Chamber of Deputies while the treaties were under debate.

"Heretical Expressions"

The strong tone employed by the Pontiff in criticizing what he termed the "heretical expressions" of the Italian premier has tempered the jubilation which followed the settlement of the 59 year old conflict between the Catholic church and the state.

The Pontiff claims for the family the inalienable right to direct the education of the young.

Preparations for the exchange of the ratifications of the Lateran treaties continue. It was announced today, however, that this ceremony would take place in Consistory Hall of the Vatican instead of the Palazzo Venezia, as first stated.

PORTERS GET A RAISE.

Chicago, June 6.—George the porter's "yassuh" seemed heartier today; he stepped a little livelier, plied the broom a bit more briskly and exposed a few extra teeth when he smiled.

Announcement by the Pullman Company of a $5 a month wage increase was the reason.

Twelve thousand porters and maids are affected by the boost effective as of June 1.

The pay increase was the result of three years agitation.

Europe's New "Little Entente"

They represent a strategic new power in European politics. The recently formed Little Entente—Rumania, Jugo-Slavia and Czechoslovakia—is making a bid for a permanent place in the League of Nations, and here are the ministers of the three nations who signed the important conciliation pact at Belgrade. Left to right are: Benes of Czechoslovakia, M. Kumanid of Jugo-Slavia and M. Mironescu of Rumania.

SCIENTIST ANNOUNCES IMPORTANT DISCOVERY

For First Time Spectrum of Chlorine Gas Has Been Photographed—Will Aid Astronomers.

Washington, June 6.—Once more science has triumphed in the never-ending conquest of nature's secrets. Dr. C. C. Kells, of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, whose researches led to the discovery of the deep red of the spectrum of lithium, the only chemical element ever identified in the United States, announced today that within a short time the spectrum of Chlorine gas would be given to the world for the first time.

After seven years laboratory study Dr. Kells has succeeded in photographing the lines of the spectrum of chlorine gas, a chemical element whose radiations are of the deep red or invisible red wave lengths.

Aids Astronomers.

The discoveries of Dr. Kells will be of great value in spectral chemical analysis, to astronomers in interpreting the composition of the sun and stars, and in a practical way of widespread application in biological and medical science.

From 200 to 300 wave lengths running from 4,000 to 10,800 angstrom units (one ten-millionth of a millimeter) were photographed in the chlorine spectrum. A single atom of chlorine contains 17 electrons. The photographic plates registered the light waves, or energy, given off by these electrons when excited.

His Next Problem.

Later in the year Dr. Kells will be ready to announce the results of the spectrum study of bromine, and next year that of iodine.

These three elements have been laid on the shelf by scientists all over the world owing to the fact that all emit the deep or infra-red light radiations, highly difficult to photograph.

SIGNING OF BILLS RAISES LAW POINT

If Law is Obedied Salaries of State's Judges Have Been Illegally Paid.

Hartford, June 6.—If, as argued by lawyers in the appeal of the McCook estate against condemnation of land in Mystic, the Governor must sign all bills three days after the adjournment of the Legislature to make them legal, a most unusual state of affairs becomes apparent. If this be true all the salaries paid judges from 1919 to 1927 are illegal. The point is being discussed by lawyers at the capital today.

The Law

Section 12 of the State Constitution was referred to as follows: "Every bill which shall have passed both houses of the General Assembly, shall be presented to the Governor. If he approves, he shall sign and transmit it to the Secretary, but if not, he shall return it to the house in which it originated, with his objections, which shall be entered on the journals of the House; who shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If after such reconsideration,"

SOUTHERNERS WIDEN SPLIT OF DEMOCRATS

Harmony Dinner Planned for Monday Will Find Many Senators Among the Missing.

Washington, June 6.—The harmony which the Democrats have been talking about—and some of them praying for—since the great November split is proving a very elusive bird.

Not only has Bishop James Cannon, Jr., gone on the warpath in Virginia again, with a plea to the anti-Smith boilers to stand firm and name their own candidate for governor, but the widely advertised "harmony dinner" to be given here next Monday night in honor of Jett Shouse, of Kansas, is being quietly—and in some cases noisily—cut by the anti-Smith southerners in Congress.

Shouse a Southerner

Shouse recently was elected to organize and preside over permanent Democratic headquarters in Washington, the theory being that a militant, aggressive national organization, functioning under a Democrat of Shouse's background, would heal some of the wounds suffered last fall. Shouse is a southerner by birth, a former McAdoo lieutenant, and generally popular with all factions.

Local friends of Shouse arranged Monday night's dinner, in the furtherance of the harmony theory. Naturally, Rasbick was invited, chairman of the national committee and put down for a speech.

Hate Rasbick

But the local harmonizers reckoned without such figures as Senator Furlford Simmons of North Carolina, Senator Cole Bleas of South Carolina, Senator Tom Heffin of Alabama, and other well known southerners to whom the very name of Rasbick is anathema.

The mere fact that Rasbick is to be at the board and make a speech was sufficient to move many of them to find previous engagements for the next Monday night; others to decline for various reasons.

DEBENTURE CLAUSE OUT OF FARM BILL

No Other Way Possible to Pass Measure; Now Goes to the President.

Washington, June 6.—The new farm bill, providing $500,000,000 relief for American agriculture but stripped of the export debenture plan, will be sent to the White House for President Hoover's approval by next Wednesday, under a program adopted today by administration leaders.

The compromise measure will be ratified by the House this afternoon or tomorrow and then rushed to the Senate where a fight is pending over elimination of the debenture. Administration leaders, however, announced that a careful poll showed the Senate would abandon the debenture, which it once added to the bill over presidential opposition.

To Switch Votes

Fifty-two Senators were reported ready to vote against the debenture on its second appearance in the Senate. The plan was adopted by a vote of 47 to 44, but eight other Senators were equally divided for and against through pairs. The new poll by administration leaders indicated that four Senators, who voted for the debenture, were now ready to switch. It was rumored that Senators Schall (R) of Minnesota, Trammell (D) of Florida, and Kendrick (D) of Wyoming, formed this quartet.

Other Problems

The farm bill presented but one of two problems facing solution before the summer recess, which is scheduled to start next Tuesday or Wednesday. The other will be to secure an agreement in the Senate fixing a date for voting on the tariff and limiting debate afterwards on the conference report. This agreement will not be asked, however, until the farm bill is out of the way.

Tariff Hearings

Tariff hearings meanwhile will start before the Senate finance committee next Wednesday, when witnesses will be heard on valuation. One June 15, the committee will divide into four sub-committees which will hold hearings simultaneously on rates. The first day's hearings will be devoted to (1) chemicals, oils and paints; (2) sugar, molasses and their manufactured products; (3) cotton manufactures, and (4) papers and books. All the hearings will be concluded by July 10 at the latest.

HOUSE IN BATTLE OVER CENSUS BILL; PARTY LINES SPLIT

THOMAS IS CHOSEN FOR CABINET POST

To Be Minister of Employment, a New Post Created by British Labor Party.

London, June 6.—A newly created post to deal with unemployment will be included in the labor government of Premier-Designate J. Ramsay MacDonald, it was learned this afternoon.

J. H. Thomas, one of the leaders of the Labor Party, confirmed that he has accepted the portfolio of minister of employment—the new office which will attempt to ameliorate unemployment conditions in Britain.

London, June 6.—Speculation continued rife today as to the complexion of the Cabinet to be formed by J. Ramsay MacDonald, newly-appointed prime minister of England.

No official announcement regarding the personnel of the Cabinet will be made until Saturday, when MacDonald formally takes over the reins of government by accepting from King George's hands the seals of office surrounded by Stanley Baldwin, defeated Conservative premier, yesterday.

These seals, visible symbols of the highest office in the land, will be turned over to the Labor premier with fitting ceremony, provided the King's health permits his participation in the time-honored custom.

Cabinet is Chosen

The Cabinet to be announced will be virtually the same in all particulars as that which MacDonald submitted to the King for approval at Windsor Castle yesterday. There may be minor changes, but in the main it will be that agreed upon by MacDonald and his colleagues almost immediately after the election.

Its nature is at present a closely guarded secret, although it is a foregone conclusion that Arthur Henderson and Philip Snowden will hold important ministerial posts in the new government. The names of J. H. Thomas and Sir Oswald Mosley have also been prominently mentioned, and before the election it was conceded that if the Labor Party were placed in office, Miss Susan Lawrence, one of the most brilliant women members of the House of Commons, would be made minister of health in the new Cabinet.

Meanwhile, MacDonald is busily engaged on preparation of the King's speech outlining the program of the new government. This will be read to parliament when the new government is formed on June 25, and great interest attaches to its probable nature.

Foreign Affairs

MacDonald's past public utterances make it seem obvious that foreign affairs will occupy an important part of the speech, and political observers feel that he will immediately pledge his government to work for the amelioration of Anglo-American relations, the settlement of debt problems and the evacuation of the Rhineland by British troops.

Disarmament is also expected to be touched upon.

SCARLATO FAMILY OUT AGAIN TOMORROW, IF

Obstinate Debtor Gets One More Day to Redeem $3,000 Equity for $400, Then to Be Bounced.

The Orazio Scarlato family were still occupying their home on Cottage street today, after having been evicted and restored to possession on Tuesday last, when Scarlato failed to lift a judgment lien on his property by paying a judgment of $200, with costs, obtained against him by Mrs. Rose Annillo, and then promised faithfully to pay the balance yesterday. But unless Scarlato settles up by tomorrow, it is understood that a second eviction will take place and it is highly probable that Mrs. Annillo will become owner of his $3,000 equity in the Cottage street home in lieu of getting her $200 cash—which she is reluctant to do.

Yesterday morning Scarlato declared that he had the $400 necessary to pay the judgment, and attended Mrs. Annillo's lawyer, W. J. Shea, up to late this afternoon. Apparently Mr. Scarlato has as yet been altogether convinced that this law stuff means anything.

Never Since Reconstruction Days Has Lower Branch of Congress Seen Such Sectional Animosity; Negroes and Aliens Would Not Be Counted If Amend- ments Carry—May De- feat Measure.

Washington, June 6.—Alarmed by the bitterness of the struggle over proposals to reduce southern representation in Congress because of disfranchisement of negroes and that of northern states because of alien population, House leaders today appealed to the membership for harmony. Not since Reconstruction days has the House seen such sectional animosity.

All attempts to invoke the power of the Republican organization to settle the quarrel have been abandoned, but informal negotiations with leaders of the various factions were continuing today as the House neared final consideration of the reapportionment-census bill.

To Be Defeated

Fear was expressed by friends of the measure that it would be defeated, and their efforts to force Congress to abide by the Constitution and direct a reapportionment of the House membership on the 1930 census would be lost.

Rep. Tilton (R) of Connecticut, majority leader, declared that no rule would be proposed for elimination of the Tinkham amendment aimed at southern states and the Koch amendment to exclude 6,000,000 aliens from the population count in dividing Congressmen among the states. This suggestion was rejected by the House steering committee.

Members Calmer

There remained the hope that the rancorous matter which forced adjournment of the House on Tuesday has passed and that both the amendments may be voted down.

Rep. Tinkham (R) of Mass., author of the amendment designed to transfer 30 of 50 southern congressmen from southern to northern states by excluding negroes from the South's population count on the ground that they are denied the right to vote, and Rep. Hoch (R) of Kansas, author of the alien amendment, both were inclined to stick by their guns.

Opponents of reapportionment which would give California, Michigan and other fast-growing states more Congressmen, because they have outstripped many mid-west agricultural and southern states in population, found some satisfaction in the situation. If either the Tinkham or Hoch amendments remain in the bill, they believe it will be defeated.

Party Lines Split

The situation has split party lines and divided the House into both sectional and state groups. New York is one of the states. Democrats are bitter over the blow at their states by excluding aliens from the population count for reapportionment and have indicated they would support the Tinkham amendment, even though it cuts democratic membership.

Mid-west Republicans from states likely to lose Congressmen have joined the southern Democrats in the fight on the alien amendment, and are divided on the Tinkham proposal.

"It is our hope," said Representative Tilton, "that as members reflect upon the serious consequences to reapportionment that will result if amendments that they will reverse their action and strike both from the bill. It does not appear that the bill can pass with both in it."

East Hartford is to have a referendum in the near future on combining all sections of the town under one government, and its officials were in doubt whether to use that section of the machinery where names of candidates generally appear, or the section used to vote on questions. They asked Dr. Higgins and he in turn passed the matter along to Mr. Allen.

CANAAN ELECTION.

Hartford, June 6.—Benjamin W. Alling, attorney general, today told Dr. William L. Higgins, secretary of state, that it does not matter what part of a voting machine is used in an election as long as the electors have a chance to record their votes honestly and accurately.

East Hartford is to have a referendum in the near future on combining all sections of the town under one government, and its officials were in doubt whether to use that section of the machinery where names of candidates generally appear, or the section used to vote on questions. They asked Dr. Higgins and he in turn passed the matter along to Mr. Allen.

Hartford, June 6.—Governor Trumbull today issued a call for an election in the Canaan probate district where a judge must be chosen to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge G. Willis Parsons.

Governor Trumbull set July 11 as the election date.

MILLION
have been built

With every department of the Frigidaire factories running at maximum capacity, with orders greater than at any time in the history of the business, on Thursday, May 16th, the Millionth Frigidaire was built

In both the Household and Commercial fields Frigidaire leads in sales to customers

THERE are definite reasons why more Frigidaires are in use than all other makes of electric refrigerators combined; why it is the choice of home owners, of builders, of apartment owners, of commercial refrigeration users throughout the world.

Beauty, power and convenience

Frigidaire has surplus power that meets every emergency in the hottest weather, and yet operates economically always.

Frigidaire cabinets are beautiful—they are finished in gleaming porcelain enamel, or white Duco—clean and easy to keep clean. The mechanical part is completely enclosed and so quiet that you don't hear it start, stop, or run. Food shelves are elevated so that stooping is unnecessary.

The famous "Cold Control"

And in addition to the standard temperature regulator which automatically maintains an ideal temperature in the food compartment, Frigidaire is equipped with the famous "Cold Control" that speeds the freezing of ice cubes and makes possible dozens of new and delicious desserts and salads.

Low Prices

Because Frigidaire has achieved the million mark—because it is the overwhelming choice of the majority—the economies of quantity production have made prices so low that every model represents a tremendous saving to the buyer.

URGES SPRAYING ALL ELM TREES

Park Superintendent Murphy Asks Property Owners to Aid in Cause.

At a recent meeting of the Park Board, the members decided to try to induce property holders in Manchester, who have elm trees to have them sprayed in an effort to further reduce the damage done by the elm tree leaf beetle. In former years the town has sprayed all the trees along the streets, but the trees which are located on private property have been left to the ravages of this beetle which is very destructive to the foliage of the elm if left unchecked.

The Park Department will spray the elms on the streets as usual but wishes to have the property owners spray theirs also as in this way a greater number of the insects will be killed. For those who are reluctant to spray because they feel that it is a waste of money it can be said that where the tree goes without spraying for several years, death finally results.

Arrangements for the spraying of the trees, which will be done about June 15th, can be made through the local tree warden, Horace F. Murphy, who can be reached at the Municipal Building every morning between nine and ten o'clock or in the afternoon between three and four o'clock. He may also be reached at his home by calling 1825.

MANCHESTER TAKES PART IN CITY FLOWER SHOW

Fine Exhibit at Morgan Memorial Tonight and Tomorrow; The Local Committee.

Manchester was well represented at the opening of the flower show this afternoon at the Morgan Memorial, not only by noteworthy exhibits of the local Garden club and individual members, but by attendance of garden enthusiasts. The big show is being held at the Morgan Memorial until ten o'clock this evening and again tomorrow from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

An early visitor at the show spoke in terms of the highest praise of the beauty of the Italian garden with its central pool and laburnum planting and other outstanding exhibits such as the iris garden arranged by Mrs. Louise Kellogg in one corner of the main exhibit room with stepping stones leading to it; the rock garden with electrically illuminated miniature house by one of the Goodwins, another rock garden arrangement by Mrs. Mary Kennedy; the beautiful garden entrance exhibit of the Manchester Garden club and the magnitude and beauty of the individual exhibits as a whole.

The local club's exhibit was arranged by Miss Mary Chapman, Mrs. William C. Cheney, Mrs. Clifford Cheney, Helen Chapman and George Clark. Mrs. C. R. Burr contributed box trees for the special planting. J. W. Galvin, pianist. Lovely flower arrangements were entered in different classes by Mrs. Clifford Cheney, Miss Helen and Miss Mary Chapman and other Manchester people.

The Kiddies' camp committee of the Manchester Kiwanis club went out to Hebron this afternoon to plan for the opening of the camp July 1. C. R. Burr, chairman of the committee was host. The party will enjoy a Connecticut river shad dinner before returning.

OBITUARY

FUNERALS

Charles Stenberg
The funeral of Charles Stenberg was held yesterday afternoon at the home at 24 Eldridge street and was largely attended. There were numerous floral tributes. Rev. Robert A. Colpitts officiated. Burial was in the East cemetery. The bearers were Robert R. Keeney, George F. Keeney, R. G. Little and Pehr Peterson.

against the alleged imperialism of France on the occasion of the reorganization of her fleet.

"But we must not lose sight of the fact that, in case of war, France is obliged not only to maintain her communications with North Africa, but protect her Atlantic seaboard and her channel coast."

"A power dominating the Mediterranean would be greatly tempted to make use of its superiority at a given time and insist that we should pay a right of way. The price might be one of our colonies or protectorates."

"In the Mediterranean we must have the same naval strength as the entire force of Italy. The French government, therefore, must reply to the Italian decree to build four new warships by immediately starting to construct new units in addition to its present program."

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phillips motor to this morning to Vermont and will spend a two weeks' vacation visiting relatives in St. Johnsbury and other places in Northern Vermont.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Manchester Rod and Gun Club will be held Friday evening in the K. of C. assembly hall.

The monthly meeting of the Manchester Fish and Game Club will be held Monday evening June 10, when action will be taken on the incorporation papers and regulations will be drawn regarding the fishing in the trout pond recently leased by the club on Keeney street. There will also be action taken on the drawing of rules to govern the proposed bass club which the club is to form, prizes to be awarded to members of the club only.

Francis Copeland, who was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital Sunday evening suffering with acute appendicitis and operated on at 10:30 that night, was today reported as resting comfortably.

Directors of the Manchester Kiwanis club will hold their monthly meeting at the Country club tomorrow noon.

The Ladies Aid society of Second Congregational church at its meeting yesterday afternoon at the Manchester community club, planned several activities, the first of which will take place on June 18—a strawberry supper at the church. In the fall, probably the last week in October when chrysanthemums are in bloom, it was voted to have a Japanese Garden party. Lists of committees and details will be announced later.

At the South Methodist church Sunday evening at 7:30 a candle light installation service will take place. This is somewhat of an innovation and it is believed will attract a large number. The officers who will be seated at this time are: Stephen Klein, president; Marion Brookings, vice president; Howard Holman, second vice president; Gladys Harrison, third vice president; Evelyn Beer and Wilbert Tadford, fourth vice presidents; Margaret House, secretary; David Hutchinson, treasurer.

Sunday is Children's day at the South Methodist church and the children will present a special program, sent out by the Board of Education of the Methodist church and entitled "Red Velvet Pocketbook Dog." More than 35 children from the primary, junior and intermediate grades will have a part in the program. They have been rehearsing faithfully under the direction of Miss Ruth Nyman. Miss Helena Booth, and Rev. James E. Greer. The offering will be devoted to the work of the Board of Education for college students. A baptismal service will also take place in connection with the service Sunday morning.

HOSPITAL FUND

Although the campaign for $36,000 for the Manchester Memorial hospital officially closed yesterday the total amount secured increased today with the receipt of further contributions. The total today is $21,306.80. As announced in The Herald yesterday Cheney Brothers will give the hospital half of the amount the rest of the town raises. Other contributors are yet to be heard from and Chairman E. L. G. Hohenthal, Jr., is confident the $36,000 quota will be reached when all possible sources have been heard from.

LOCAL BOY WAS 10TH IN EDISON CONTEST

Elliott W. Knight Rated 72.66 Per Cent in Examination for Scholarship.

A boy who travels eight miles to school daily and who has never been absent or late, will represent Connecticut in the national competition for the much-sought Thomas A. Edison Scholarship Award. Announcement was made yesterday afternoon that his examination was the best of the 27 contestants at the State Capitol last week. The boy's name is Charles H. Brunissen. He lived in West Redding and stands at the head of a class of 80 students at Danbury High.

PUBLIC RECORDS

The following instruments were today filed with the town clerk for record:

- Warranty Deeds
Robert P. Knapp, to W. King, land located on Comstock Road, adjoining property already owned by C. W. King.
- Felix O'Connell to Agnes McGee, house and land located on Ridge-wood street.
- Richard O. Cheney, Jr., and Annie H. Cheney to Albert S. Chapin, land and building located on the west side of Wetherell street.
- Michael J. Coughlin and wife to Frank A. Nickerson, land located on Woodland street consisting of 59,400 square feet being part of what was known as the McKee Tract.

The Hartford National Bank of Hartford, trustees for the estate of John M. Shewery, late of Manchester, to Frank Cheney, Jr., four separate tracts of land located in the town of Manchester bordering on the Bolton and Glastonbury line. The first tract contains two acres, the second nine acres, the third 15 acres and the fourth 16 acres.

Lease
Christopher Yakitis and wife to the Apothecaries Hall Company of Waterbury, twelve acres of tobacco land on Tolland Turnpike with shed room sufficient to house tobacco. The growing of the tobacco is to be done by Yakitis without pay as a return for materials and tools furnished by the Apothecaries Hall Company.

Marriage Intentions
Application, for marriage licenses, showing intention to marry, have been filed by James J. Horan of Hartford a florist, and Miss Alice C. Shea of 27 Foster street, Manchester; by Vincent D. Flay of Rockville, and Miss Josephine F. Smythe of Spruce street.

78 OF 87 TEACHERS IN 9TH TO REMAIN

Net Increase of Only One Found Necessary; Ten Appointees Selected.

The Ninth School District faculty will remain nearly 90 per cent intact for another school year. It was announced today by Superintendent Fred A. Verplanck. Only ten changes will be made in the force of 87 employees.

Nine teachers are resigning, some to be married, some to seek further education and others for various reasons. Only one new teacher will be required because of an increased enrollment. That will be at the Lincoln school at the Center.

The teacher who have tendered their resignations are Miss Ruth Orger, Miss Clara Holbrook and Miss Margaret Drechsler of Nathan Hale school; Miss Mary DeWolf, Miss Catherine Devaney and Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey of Barnard; Miss Helen Fospiel of Washington; Miss Gladys Orcutt and Mrs. Viola Wet-ham Locke of the Lincoln.

The new teacher added because of increased enrollment is Miss Ruth W. Pollard, graduate of Williamstown Normal, '26, with three years teaching experience in Hristol. The other new teachers, who take the place of those resigning are: Miss Helen Christensen, Williamstown Normal, '27, with two years at Groton; Miss Alice Terrill, Danbury Normal, '26, who taught previously at South Norwalk; Miss E. Elizabeth McDonough, Danbury Normal, '29, Miss Julia Dytko, Williamstown Normal, '29; Miss Marion Browning, and Miss Rosalia Anderson, both Williamstown Normal, '23; Miss Marjorie Morgan, Danbury Normal, '23, who previously had nine years teaching experience in western Connecticut; Miss Mildred B. Kelleher, Westfield, Mass., Normal, '23, who taught six years at Thompsonville; Miss Mabel W. Keith, New Britain Normal, '24, who taught here for a year some time ago.

For the first time in several years none of the new teachers are Manchester young women. Four of the newcomers are completing their education this month in normal schools.

WEATHER ASSURES LAWN FETE CROWD

"Hellkists," Spectacular Diving Act, to Feature North End Carnival.

With fine weather a certainty and with a galaxy of crowd-drawing amusements on tap the prospects of a record breaking attendance at the Community Club Lawn Fete, opening tonight, are brighter than ever before.

The feature of the Fete, at all three nights, are "The Hellkists" in a marvelous display of spectacular high diving, said to be a thrill beyond comparison. Another specialty will be Krahl's Phantom Orchestra, bringing in music from all of the leading stations east of the Mississippi river. There will also be a twelve in one comedy show, about which the less said and the more seen, the better.

TAXI DRIVER THE HERO OF NORTH END BLAZE

Sees Smoke Coming from Attic, Helps Little Girl Put Out Flaming Rags.

Manchester had a fire yesterday afternoon at 5:30 for which there was no alarm and a taxi driver was the hero. Burton Hagenow, driver of a "20 cent taxi" was going west on North Main street, with no particular point in view when his attention was attracted to a fire in one of the houses that stands back from North Main street, in the low spot that is located to the east of the North Methodist church.

He stopped his car, ran into the house and was informed on questioning a young girl who was alone in the house, that there was a fire in the attic. He ran into the attic and found a pile of rags on fire. He took other old clothes and tried to beat out the fire and asked the girl to bring him a pail of water. The girl hurried down stairs and soon came back with a tumbler of water. This did not have the desired effect so Hagenow became his own water carrier. Four times he ran down stairs and each time brought up a pail of water. The fourth pail did the trick and made it possible to stamp out the rest of the fire. It spoiled his shoe shine, but the house was saved.

LOCAL BOY PLAYS PART IN ACADEMY SHOW

Rodney Wilcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Wilcox, Greenhill street, South Manchester, won distinction in the character of "Fred Alden" in the three-act mystery comedy "Oh Kay," recently presented by the senior class in the chapel hall at East Greenwich Academy, E. Greenwich, R. I. The comedy was played to a capacity audience and included the following students: Erdix Capen, Monson, Mass.; Milton Rusotto, New Bedford, Mass.; George DeWitt, N. Easton, Mass.; Ethal Brown, Worcester, Mass.; James Walters, New York City; Marion Vaughn, Frances Brown, Caroline Lincoln, Frederick Lenz, and Elizabeth Eldredge, E. Greenwich, R. I.

sons, a few to come out openly and criticize the effort to reach any harmony.

Unhorse Raskob "Harmony," said Senator Simmons, who led the revolt against Smith last fall, "demands the unhorsing of Raskob."

"I don't care about any reorganization that is to be in the hands of the Smith crowd," said Senator Blease.

Others were not so open in their comment, but inquiry has disclosed that comparatively few southern Senators will be present. Senators Glass and Swanson of Virginia, have "other engagements," the Georgia Senators, Harris and George, have not accepted; the four Senators from the two Carolinas are out; the Alabama will not attend; Senator Sheppard of Texas, author of the 18th amendment, will be missing, and there have been numerous denials from southern members of the House.

A good many of the southern Senators come up for re-election in 1930, and are primarily interested right now in bringing back into the fold those "Hoovercrats" who rolled up the enormous anti-Smith vote in their states last November.

They prefer time and quiet as a poulitice at this time rather than speeches and dinners.

POHLMAN-PRODELL

Joseph Frederick Pohlman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pohlman of Hudson street, and Miss Mary Esther Prodehl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Prodehl of 112 Smith avenue, Norwich, were married yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at St. Andrew's church which was artistically decorated with palms, ferns and flowers. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. E. J. Norris, the double ring service being used.

The bridal attendants were Miss Irene Prodehl, sister of the bride and Miss Gertrude Pohlman, sister of the bridegroom; Frank J. Prodehl, brother of the bride was best man and the ushers were Frederick Pohlman, brother of the bridegroom and Laurens Hamilton of Norwich.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father wore a gown of white chiffon crepe. Her veil of tulle fell from a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Edna Prodehl wore a dress of blue georgette crepe and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Miss Pohlman's dress was of yellow georgette crepe and she carried yellow carnations.

The ceremony at the church was followed by a reception for 75 guests at the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated with cut flowers by the girls. Friendly society of which the bride is a member.

On their return from a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Pohlman will live at 46 Hudson street.

ONCE you use Kelly REGISTERED Balloons you'll never be satisfied with any other tires. Size for size they are even larger and sturdier than the regular Kelly line. The tread is much thicker and is carried further down the sidewalls so that the possibility of puncture is negligible. There is more rubber between the plies, and the seven-inch size has two extra plies of cord. Furthermore, for your protection, each that house shall again pass it, it shall be sent, with the objections, to the other house, which shall also reconsider it.

"If approved, it shall become a law. But in such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays; and the names of the members voting for and against the bill, shall be entered on the journals of each house respectively.

"If the bill shall not be returned by the Governor within three days, Sundays excepted, after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it; unless the General Assembly, by their adjournment, prevents its return, in which case it shall not be a law."

It is this last clause that started the dispute.

Impossible to Do The report that Governor Trumbull is withholding his signature from some 250 bills now before him was denied at his office. The governor is signing bills as rapidly as they come from the engrossing clerk.

The governor does not believe that the constitution makers ever intended to impose upon the chief executive the physically impossible task of perusing and signing the mass of bills coming from the Legislature within three days after the adjournment of the Assembly.

COURT PUNISHES BOYS FOR WINDOW BREAKING

In order to put an end if possible to the destructive element displayed by the boys who attend the Washington school, two of them were brought into police court this morning.

Monday night 17 lights of glass were broken in the school. The damage was estimated at between eight and nine dollars. An investigation was started and resulted in the arrest of the boys. They were represented in court by Probation Officer E. E. Elliott, Jr., who entered a plea of guilty. Judge Raymond A. Johnson told the boys that it was not a small matter but very serious business, the destruction of public property. He placed the boys on probation for three months with the understanding that they must pay the damage.

Heretofore the spectra of the elements of chlorine, bromine and iodine have been virtually unknown. In other words science was without knowledge of the physical composition of these elements, their energy stages or activity.

holding a Trigo ticket in the Baltic sweep. The names of all the winners have not yet been received, but those which are known give eloquent proof of how Lady Luck can lift a person out of humdrum existence into a position of totally unexpected wealth and affluence.

Clerk is Lucky. A clerk in a business office in Oudtshoorn, South Africa, drew Trigo's Calcutta sweepstakes ticket, and unless he parted with all or a portion of it, he will receive almost three-quarters of a million dollars. G. L. Brill, a young clothing merchant of Leeds, England, and a British army officer stationed at Rajputhana, India, each drew Calcutta tickets on Walter Gax, which finished second, and will make about $325,000 apiece.

The holder of the Exchange Sweep ticket on Trizez, which ran third, is owned by James Mackle, employed in the accounts department of the Commercial Cable Co. here. In a few days he will receive a check for $160,000.

But there were some who were not so lucky. One syndicate of wealthy men spent something like $250,000 in buying up Sweepstakes tickets, and failed to get one winner.

EQUITY'S BREAK
It is to be feared that the Actors Equity Association, a trade union, in effect, which has earned the unstinted respect of thousands of persons who are far from subscribing to the operations of many trades unions, has, it is to be feared, made a sorry mistake in challenging the movie industry with an ultimatum which declares that no Equity player may appear in a cast that is not 100 per cent Equity.

One tremendous advantage of the movies over the stage has always been the possibility of the employment, perhaps for a single picture, of character people and extra whose appearance happened to accurately fit them for the parts to be filled. Sometimes dozens of scores of such extras have been employed. Sometimes it has been possible for a director to pick off the streets some unemployed individual who had never given the movies a thought, to set off in a particular way some point for which it would be impossible to employ any professional actor so efficiently.

It is none but Equity actors can be employed in talking pictures, then the splendid elasticity in casting, which has been such a tower of strength to the movies, will be destroyed—and it is seriously to be anticipated that the pictures will suffer sorely as a result, with consequent resentment from the public and agony in the box offices.

For the principal characters, perhaps. But to limit the movies to Equity members entirely—that would seem to be a proceeding over which a disastrous war may be fought.

RECKLESS
It is a little spectacular when a former prosecuting officer of the Hartford police court is instructed in practical interpretation of the automobile laws by a justice of the peace in Rocky Hill, incidentally being fined for reckless driving. There seems to be an impression that justice Buton's Rocky Hill court is a rather tough mill for traffic violators and that it is one of those "traps" that a certain type of motorist indignantly desires to have "done away with."

It is reported that in the course of the hearing in his case Attorney John P. Harrison, who used to handle the prosecution of motor vehicle violations in the Capitol City, demanded to be shown any statute that prohibits a driver from passing another car on a bad curve, the particular offense with which he was charged. It is also reported that the justice, in explanation, quoted the law from the little book of regulations issued by the Motor Vehicle Department. He could have quoted it from memory, for the law forbids the operation of a motor vehicle "recklessly" and that gives any court all the law it needs to soak those gay spirits who storm around short curves on the wrong side of the road in complete ignorance as to what or who may be coming in the opposite direction.

If the passing of a car on a short curve does not constitute recklessness the driving down the steps of the State Capitol with a slipped clutch and no brakes is as safe as sleeping in a jail. Mr. Harrison, of course, appealed. But the outcome of the case, whatever it may be, is not likely to diminish the respect for the Rocky Hill justice who does not wait till recklessness has been proven by manslaughter before holding it punishable.

GOOD WORK
Announcement by Bank Commissioner Shippee that he proposes at an early date to institute proceedings against any fly-by-night investment fakers whom he finds doing business in Connecticut in defiance of the new fraud act passed by the last session of the Legislature will agrieve no one who is honest, and may have the effect of chasing more than a few dishonest persons out of the state.

We have nobody but Mr. Shippee to thank for the adoption of some excellent protective legislation during the recent legislative terms. It was at his urge that the law was passed which made it possible for him to throw the Parker-Smith Company into a receivership. There has been a peculiar reluctance in Connecticut to add to the body of law under which fraudulent investment concerns, or unfit ones, could be proceeded against or controlled and for several sessions all such proposals fell by the wayside. Mr. Shippee, however, made the necessity of restrictive law so clear that at last we have in this state ample law for pretty complete protection of the public against all sorts of wildcat banking and associated activities.

ONE RAY OF LIGHT
We have the editor of the Waterbury Republican to thank for the only glimmer of consolation yet experienced in connection with the new nuisance currency. "We see only one way," he says, "in which the smaller size can work to the advantage of the average person, seeing that he is not troubled by so fat a roll of bills that their bulk in the old form seriously discommoded him. The one advantage will come from the superior ease with which the new bills can be fitted into and drawn out of a bill fold."

This, in itself, a happy thought, since the notorious skimpiness of the bill fold has been one of the standard annoyances of the American people as well as one of the industry's major mysteries. Yet behind the happy thought lie ready tears; for what good will it do to have your bill fold fit the new currency when inevitably, for countless ages, the big old bills will persist in sandwiching themselves into the circulation? The only time you can ever get any benefit from the margin between the billfold's area and that of the bill will be when you happen to have just one frog-skin and as shooting any time you have so many as two bills one of them will be an old timer and crab the game.

Nevertheless we, having so many times only the one bill, will hope for the best.

PATERNALISM
Very general were the congratulations to the town of Haddam when it developed that, through the munificence of the late Edward W. Hazen, resident, the community was to be rid of that haunting bugbear of all peoples, taxes. Now more felicitations are being showered on Haddam because it has been determined by the Hazen Foundation to replace the burned town hall by remodeling the historical Brainard Academy building.

Haddam is a lovely old place and its people are the salt of the earth, and no good fortune that can befall them would be begrudged by any but a pretty mean person. Nevertheless we are not so sure that we rejoice over the Hazen benevolences. Perhaps if some of the newspapers and others who are so hearty in their congratulations had had more experience with the effect of benefactions to a community they might not be so sure, either.

Manchester has been the beneficiary of a great many privately assumed responsibilities and has been privately relieved of many a public expenditure. And, in profound appreciation of the spirit in which these aids have been extended, giving full credit to those who have held them forth, it is seriously to be doubted whether such paternal fostering has been of any real benefit to the community in the end. It has bred in the people here, it is to be feared, something less of self-reliance as citizens than it would be well for them to have. It has established in certain degree a tendency to dependency that is not for the spiritual good of the town. As a result Manchester is, perhaps, less ready and less valiant in tackling its problems, its people less responsibly interested in their own public affairs, than they would have been if they had always stood on their own community feet throughout all their history.

It may be that Haddam will never prove to have been softened and made less capable of looking after itself as the result of the Hazen benevolences. Sincerely we hope so, because it is not too healthful a state.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.
Washington, June 6.—Apparently it takes an Indian to keep his youth and his health. The Senate's Indian, Vice-President Charles Curtis, is 69 years old, but for all his occasional gray hairs he could pass for a young buck in his fifties.

The House's Indian is Congressman William W. Hastings of Tahlequah, Okla., who is 60 years old and might get by as no more than 45 if he wanted to lie about it.

Hastings, whose blood is also predominantly white, was reared in the Cherokee tribe, one of the Five Civilized Tribes, and was first educated at the Cherokee Seminary. The Cherokees had an independent government for 75 years, electing their own governors, legislators and other officials without federal supervision.

Hastings was sent away to study law at Vanderbilt University and returned to practice in the tribal courts. He often appeared in Washington working for Cherokee interests and was attorney general for the Cherokee nation from 1891 to 1895. He wound up the legal affairs of the Cherokees after their political status had been changed by Congress and when a new congressional district was created in his territory he defeated the speaker of the Oklahoma legislature and a state senator, who opposed him for the job.

Most Cherokees, of course, voted for Hastings, but Indians are only a small minority in his district. Hastings has now been here 12 years and has devoted most of his time to agricultural, Indian and highway legislation. He is on the appropriations committee.

He believes the Indian wards of the country have been progressing as rapidly as they can safely go. He points out that whereas there were 100,000 members of the Five Civilized Tribes, only 8,000 of them are now under any kind of government supervision. Most of these tribesmen, he says, have been making pretty good progress as farmers.

In 25 years there won't be any Indian problem," Hastings says. "Eventually the entire Indian population will be absorbed into the general population. Down in Oklahoma, as between Indians and whites, the racial question never arises."

The congressman's oldest daughter is named Ahnawake, which means dainty or delicate in the Cherokee tongue.

GAS POISONING.

Breathing poisonous gases still seems to be a favorite method used by those who wish to commit suicide. Usually, the gas from a stove or from a gas jet is turned on and the doors and windows stuffed with clothes to keep it from escaping. In a room thus prepared, the one attempting suicide will find release from life in from thirty to sixty minutes.

Accidental deaths from this kind of gas will usually take much longer, owing to the fact that a great deal of gas escapes through openings in the room, such as cracks in the door and windows.

In spite of all warnings, there are many deaths each day from carbon monoxide gas poisoning. This gas is formed at times from improper combustion of the ordinary natural or artificial gas used in stoves.

The fumes from burning gas are ordinarily not highly poisonous, and only at times is the carbon monoxide gas produced. A housewife who does not have the proper vent to the cooking stove or to small heating stoves is constantly in danger of getting a breath of the carbon monoxide gas at any time. The important point to remember is that this gas is practically odorless and is also colorless.

Any exhaust from a gasoline engine may contain some of this poisonous gas. Most deaths from carbon monoxide gas poisoning that are reported have occurred in garages. The engine is left running while the driver is in the garage and if for a few seconds the gasoline combustion is imperfect, enough carbon monoxide may be generated to make the victim unconscious almost as quickly as if he were felled with an ax.

There is very little warning. One full breath of air containing this gas may be sufficient to cause unconsciousness. This is because the carbon monoxide gas combines with the hemoglobin of the blood and destroys its ability to carry oxygen. Even if the victim is discovered and carried to fresh air, he may not recover, due to the serious blood change which has been produced. In case of recovery it may take months for the blood to be restored to its normal condition.

The air of the city streets is being more polluted each day with the exhaust gas from automobiles and although these odors may not be pleasant, there is only a small amount of danger from carbon monoxide due to its rapid mixture with freshly moving air.

The great danger lies in the closed garage and in the heating gas devices without the proper vents.

New York, June 6.—Our latest supply of gangster slang has just been furnished by one W. R. Burnett, a young man who has arrived from Chicago to be introduced as author of a forthcoming book club selection.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Arms Get Numb.)
Question: M. J. writes: "Please tell me what causes the arms to go to sleep and get numb at night. Is this because of high blood pressure?"
Answer: If you know you have high blood pressure you have doubtless answered your own question as this does cause the arms to become numb. Valvular leakage of the heart is also sometimes responsible for poor circulation and numbness of the arms.

(Pelagra.)
Question: Mrs. R. C. H. writes: "I would like some information about pelagra. Can it be cured?"
Answer: The best dietetic treatment seems to be an occasional short fruit fast for four or five days at intervals of about a month apart, followed by a well balanced diet as outlined in my weekly menus. It is especially important that you obtain sufficient protein, such as meat, in overcoming this trouble.

(Sauce for Vegetables.)
Question: J. J. N. asks: "How can one prepare a palatable sauce for green peas without discarding the juice, and without making a 'wrong' combination?"
Answer: A palatable sauce can be made by adding cream and butter to the desired amount of juice, and thickening with a little dextrinized, or browned, flour. The juice that is not used should be saved for soup, which may be made very appetizing by the addition of milk or cream and any finely chopped non-starchy vegetable you may wish.

(Cysts on Eyelids.)
Question: E. A. P. writes: "Please tell me how to prevent cysts forming on my eyelids. I have been having them cut out, but is there not some preventive?"
Answer: The tendency toward the formation of cysts seems to be caused by a condition of acidosis. This can be overcome by the use of a fasting and diet regime, as outlined in my Cleansing Diet Course, which I will be glad to send you. Local applications of wet compresses to the eyes for about 20 minutes each morning and evening would be helpful. The efficacy of the remedy you inquire about is probably due to its demulcent mucilaginous property. This could also be obtained by various substances added to the wet compresses, such as flaxseed, Irish moss, glycerin, gum arabic, or starch paste.

sure I could tell him, but I think I could show him.
One of Broadway's favorite tales of Broadway lore concerns the theatrical firm of Wagenhals and Kemper. Whereas most transactions are bound in ironclad contracts, their partnership was started with a brief handshake. A "contract," according to one Broadway cynic, is a document of mutual distrust—and so it generally is.

But in the instance referred to, the producers built the Astor theater on their sheer nerve and they put on three of the biggest money-making dramas in the big street's history—"The Bat," "Seven Days" and "Paid in Full." And no one ever had to go to court, in spite of the lack of usual legal documentation.

Texas Gulman, having been shuffled all over Broadway by the padlocks, finally has taken to the roadhouses of the Long Island country jail. The way off, however, is that she then advertised herself as "Texas Gulman, the Broadway Joan of Arc." That last trial must have "burned her up." GILBERT SWAN.

YOUNGSTER MADE AUBURN SUCCESS

E. L. Cord Heads Company He Saved from Disaster Five Years Ago.

Auburn, Ind.—Five years ago the Auburn Automobile Company of this city turned out 10 automobiles a day and even then had a hard time getting rid of them. Today the same company produces a car every two minutes and is 6,000 cars behind its orders for this year. He's a young fellow, only 34, not especially striking in appearance, yet he's looked upon as the brains and the motive force back of the entire organization.

Yet those who are acquainted with the business say that it is only one man to whom credit is given for this rise of the Auburn company to success. He's a young fellow, only 34, not especially striking in appearance, yet he's looked upon as the brains and the motive force back of the entire organization.

The man is E. L. Cord, president of Auburn.

Cord used to think of automobiles when he was very young. Today he is entirely wrapped up in automobiles. Slender, dark of eye and square of chin, his sleek dark hair combed back and his lips set firm, though full, he looks the man of action that he is. As an executive he issues few orders. He's a great listener instead.

Makes His Own Tests

Just after the auto show in New York last January, the Auburn engineers had completed a new product. Cord took it immediately on a 10,000-mile journey over desert and mountain and valley, through all sorts of terrain and weather, to try it out in action. He wanted to prove to himself that the car was built right.

On the way, Cord stopped into gasoline stations and asked the attendants how they liked the looks of the car. He asked them how they thought an automobile should perform and got their opinions on rival cars as well. He asked about lines and colors, about seating position, riding comfort, brakes and in fact every detail a regular driver would be interested in.

Then he drove into garages and talked to shopmen, to foremen and to salesmen. Not satisfied with their "expert" opinions, he parked his car at curbs, stood on the sidewalk and talked to passersby who stopped to inspect it.

Learns from People

Here was this youthful manufacturer, many times a millionaire, head of half a dozen companies, with an engineering staff of 200 men at his command and a sales force of several thousand, finding out what he wanted to know directly from the people on the sidewalk. This incident gives a true insight into the character of E. L. Cord and the factor that has made him a success.

Significantly Cord was born in Missouri. He remains a Missourian.

Early in his life he got into the automobile game, "just like any other kid," he says. He used to hang around automobile garages. He drove cars and watched auto races. And his first job of any account was selling automobiles in Los Angeles. As a salesman, from used to new cars, then as a dealer and later as a trucking operator in Arizona, Cord floundered about until he turned up in Chicago, again selling automobiles for the distributor there. In three years he became general manager of the firm.

In 1924, with the bankers threatening the fate of the Auburn company, Cord took a hand. He became the firm's general manager and in less than two years its president.

Nothing Unusual In It

Since then Auburn has grown fast. Today it is one of the most important independent factors in the manufacture of automobiles. Yet Cord is nonchalant about its success. It was nothing unusual to him. He merely refrained from making the mistakes which other

AUTOMOBILE FACTS AND FIGURES

New York, May 22.—The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has compiled the following table of statistics covering automotive activities during 1928:

Automotive freight carried by railroads during 1928 amounted to more than 3,500,000 carloads.

Automotive products rank first in export of manufactured articles, with a value of $500,174,431.

Motor vehicle taxes in 1928 amounted to $808,000,000.

Seventy steam railroads are using motor trucks for short hauls on terminal service.

Total registration of motor vehicles is 24,493,124.

There are 92,000 motor busses in the nation.

small companies had made in the past. He worked hard with the rest of his men and pulled through from a critical condition to one of safety and profit.

In his administration, Auburn has acquired the Lycoming Motor Company, Duesenberg Motors, the Limousine Body Company and one or two parts companies, all combining to advance the prestige of Auburn as well as themselves.

Cord, though careful and conservative in his progress, isn't afraid of trying out anything that to others might appear too radical for their financial health.

Witness the front drive automobile which Auburn is soon expected to spring into the American automotive field.

Cord knows his business thoroughly. He's just as much at home among a group of his directors discussing the financial problems of Auburn as he is among his engineers planning next year's model. His associates call him a genius.

Modest and Appreciative

Yet he, on the other hand, considers himself merely a human being who is willing to work hard to achieve his purpose.

"When I become convinced that I am a pretty smart fellow," he says, "you can conclude that our company has gone forward as far as it can with me at its head."

That modesty extends to his faith in those who work for him.

"Most men have ability," he explains. "Given the proper working conditions, they will apply it. At Auburn we have merely given a lot of good men a chance to prove their worth."

Outside of his work, Cord does little in the way of recreation. He plays golf rather indifferently. He dislikes social functions. One of his chief interests lies in fine horses, and he is often found with his two small sons horseback riding. Again he spends hours at times in the boys' miniature machine shop helping them build some mechanical device.

STORE THIEVES SENT TO JAIL

Group That Stole Clothing from Laufer's Sentenced; Woman Freed.

The four men and one woman who figured in the theft of clothes from the store of Jacob Laufer on April 26 and were captured before they got through East Hartford, and later tried in the Manchester town court, all pleaded guilty at the opening session of the Superior Court yesterday. Mrs. Beatrice Murphy, the only woman in the party, was given a thirty-day suspended jail sentence. Her husband, James V. Murphy, was sentenced to jail for thirty days as was Charles Brodribb, driver and owner of the taxi in which they made their trip to Manchester. They came here after robbing a store in Rockville and were caught with the goods in the automobile when arrested.

The new six with the sparkle and snap, the responsiveness, balance and ease of control of a truly fine car, with the added advantage of BUICK-built sturdiness is the MARQUETTE. Call THE CAPITOL BUICK Co. today for a demonstration.—Adv.

HEBRON

Able Garblch, aged three, was the victim of an automobile accident on the Amston road near the Loren M. Lord place Saturday afternoon. The child was walking with his mother, Mrs. Max Garblch, when a truck driven by employees of the Redwing Feed and Lumber Company, of Colchester, came along at a rapid rate going toward Colchester. The child was struck and suffered a compound fracture of the leg. The Redwing Company is insured. The child and its mother were taken to Colchester for medical inspection, and Dr. C. E. Peniston advised hospital care. The child was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, Saturday afternoon, and it is said will have to remain there for five weeks.

Benjamin H. Bissell is spending his first year at the General Theological Seminary, New York, and will be ordained to the diaconate in St. Peter's Church, Hebron, June 29, on St. Peter's Day. It is expected that two members of the senior class of Berkeley Divinity School, New Haven, will be ordained here at the same time with Mr. Bissell. So far as is known, this will be the first ordination to take place at St. Peter's Church. Mr. Bissell, who is president of St. Peter's school, is considering plans for the opening of the school which will probably begin June 30, and extend two weeks into July.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Perry and daughter, Miss Lois, of New Haven, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lord. The Rev. T. D. Martin, rector emeritus, officiated at St. Peter's church on Sunday, administering the Holy Communion.

companied by a friend, Mr. Spencer, was a week-end guest of his sister, Mrs. Leon Rathbone, and other relatives.

Miss Harriet Hough of the Hartford High School spent the week-end at her Hebron home. She had as her guest a classmate, Miss Ruth Winchester.

The Christian Endeavor meeting was led by Miss Edna Latham, Sunday evening, in place of Mrs. Maurice Keeffe.

The first coat of paint was given to the Methodist church in Hopevale on Memorial Day, and repairs on clapboards and cupola made by members of the Seventh Day Adventist faith holding their services there. The church already looks much improved and other necessary coats of paint will be given later.

Mrs. Paul Coates and her son Donald were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Waldo in Kingston, N. Y., making the trip by automobile.

MINER ENTOMBED

Sutter Creek, Calif., June 6.—Crews of fellow miners dug desperately today to rescue C. E. Matlich, entombed 700 feet, below the surface in the South Eureka mine here.

Matlich and two other shaft workers were trapped by a cave-in while setting bolting timbers. His companions were ten feet above him and subsequently escaped.

Burrowing through hundreds of tons of rock and gravel toward the spot where Matlich is imprisoned, the rescuers were hopeful of reaching him by tomorrow.

GILEAD

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Way of Bloomfield avenue, Hartford, spent the week-end at their local farm.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hutchinson of Manchester visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hutchinson, Sunday.

The Grange held its regular meeting at the hall Tuesday evening. General Deputy Case of Portland was present and inspected the Grange books. The competitive program by married members consisted of songs, readings and tableaux.

Mrs. Ames W. Sisson recently went on a motor trip to Brookfield, Mass., where she was the guest for a day of her niece, Mrs. Anna Kennedy.

TALCOTTVILLE

Manchester called at A. H. Post's and E. E. Foote's Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Buell returned to their home Monday evening after spending the week-end with their son D. L. Buell and family.

An Army dirigible was plainly seen in the west Tuesday evening and with glasses several airplanes were visible.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Foote and Mrs. E. E. Foote were visitors in Hartford Tuesday.

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

NAN CARROLL, private secretary to JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, discovers she is in love with her employer. Being honor- able, she determines to resign. Her resignation is postponed when she learns Morgan is taking his professional honor on the innocence of his friend, BEHT CRAWFORD, who is indicted for embezzlement.

Nan dislikes Crawford, distrust- ing him and IRIS MORGAN, beau- tiful wife of the lawyer. Nan confronts him with the facts, tell- ing Crawford the price of her silence is that he give up Iris Mor- gan at once.

On the last day of the trial she finds convincing proof of his guilt and his intention to elope with Iris in a note which little CURTIS MORGAN has evidently stolen from his mother's handbag. She arrives in the courtroom just as the jury brings in a "not guilty" verdict. Morgan refuses the fee of $20,000 which Crawford offers him and Crawford cleverly sug- gests he give it to Iris.

Crawford announces he is leav- ing town. When Iris Morgan leaves later on a supposed pleas- ure trip to New York, Nan be- lieves she intends to desert her husband and child. She throws herself vehemently assisting him with his next case, the de- fense of a nurse who is accused of murdering her patient, an elderly woman whose stork hus- band is known to be in love with the nurse, LOIS DOWNS. A spir- itual delivery letter comes from Iris, which they are working. Nan's heart stops as she watches Morgan open it.

CHAPTER XVII.

Nan wanted desperately to run from the room, so that Morgan should be spared the added humili- ation of having a witness to his shock and grief. But she was so fully unprepared, had told her to stay while he read his letter from his wife. And now, before she had time to collect her wits and make an excuse to go into her own of- fice, Morgan was drawing the scorching sheets of expensive note- paper from the big square envelope addressed in Iris's handwriting.

Out of sheer decency and pity she did close her eyes, so that when he looked at her—as at length he must—she would think that she was still concentrating on the Lois Downs mystery, would be grateful that she had not seen his face before he had time to control it.

Nan never knew how long she sat there, with her eyes screwed tightly shut and her mind reeling drunkenly from thought to thought. However long it was, there was no sound at all from the man who sat less than two feet from her, until his voice, unrecognizable in its re- strained hoarseness, called to her: "Nan—"

"Yes, Mr. Morgan." She tried to make her voice sound normal— cheerfully expectant—in case he was looking at her, she blinked her eyes rapidly and said:

But the best of acting was un- necessary. The man's long, thin body was hunched forward against his desk, his face shielded from her sight by a cupped hand.

His words came jerkily, with the sound of labored breathing between phrases. "I'm sorry—but I don't think—I'll work any more—to- night. Tomorrow—" But he could not drag his voice past that word, which can be the most terrible in the English language.

Nan could feel in her own heavily throbbing heart the man's wor- riedly recoil from all that the word meant—days stretching endlessly ahead—The need to annihilate those two feet of space between them—that small yet infinite dis- tance that had always separated Nan Carroll, private secretary, from John Curtis Morgan, employer and married man—became such an unbearable ache that she felt her- self impelled to her feet, was bending over him, her arms outstretched in a passion of tenderness and pity to clasp his beloved head to her breast, when Morgan straightened in his chair.

Nan's arms dropped to her sides. She stepped backward just in time to prevent his head striking her. Thank God, she hadn't betrayed herself; he hadn't seen. He would think she was simply leaving the room at his implied bidding.

"I apologize for accusing you— of curiosity, Nan—"

Amazed, then more profoundly moved than she had ever been in her life, Nan halted on her way to the door, waited, scarcely daring to breathe. He was not buckling up weakly under the blow. Not he! Not he! Oh, she might have known he would be like this. . . .

But his voice was jerking on. "But I want you—to know, I'm afraid I can't—talk about it—yet. Will you—read this letter, Nan?"

From the expensive pale-gray sheets rose the faint, but un- mistakable odor of Iris's favorite perfume, a fragrance of which had been one of John Curtis Morgan's Christmas gifts to his wife. Now its seductive odor was helping Iris to appease the senses of another man.

Hot anger cleared Nan's vision. Her eyes leaped down the page: "Dear Jack: I am not coming back. You must have suspected for a long time that I did not love you. My chance for freedom has come at last and I have taken it. You told me the $20,000 was mine to do with as I pleased, and I am using it to start life over. You must not worry about me, for I am safe and happy. If I told you my plans you would try to find me, and that you pos- sively must not do. Of course I wanted to take Curtis with me, but I know how deeply you love him, and I did not think it would be fair to take your son from you. I know that you will take the best care of him and that you will not teach him to hate me. No man could have been a better husband than you, Jack. It is not your fault that I do not love you. But it isn't mine either, is it? Do one last generous thing for me, Jack: do not try to find me. I would be worse than useless, Iris."

Nan's first reaction to the letter was a deep, quivering breath of relief. Whatever her motive—and Nan knew that Iris Morgan had not been actuated by pity—the desert- ing wife had not mentioned Her- bert S. Crawford. Morgan was still spared the supreme humiliation. He need never know that the man he had called friend, and whom he had defended against a criminal charge, had been planning to re- turn to use the freedom which Morgan had won for him and the money he had stolen to run away with his defender's wife. For that Nan was profoundly grateful.

But oh, the diabolical cleverness of the woman! In a red flare of anger, Nan saw Iris's motive as clearly as if Iris had written it out in a detailed postscript. If Iris had mentioned Crawford, either by name or anonymously, as the man who had won her love from her husband, Morgan would have hunt- ed down his false friend, and the despoiler of his wife, if it had taken him the rest of his life to do so.

Iris must have been sure of that. If not, Crawford himself standing over Iris and censoring the letter she wrote, had taken no chances. She had not even dared suggest that her husband get a di- vorce for fear he would jump to the conclusion that she wanted legal freedom in order to marry another man.

And how cleverly the letter had been worded, to appeal to every generous and chivalrous instinct of the deserted husband's nature! "No man could have been a better husband than you, Jack. It is not your fault that I do not love you. But it isn't mine either, is it? Do one last generous thing for me, Jack—"

Oh, the bitter cruelty of the hand which had written slowly, like a man adjusting himself to receive and carry an intolerably heavy load. The faint sound aroused Nan from the welter of emotions and speculations into which Iris's incredible letter had plunged her. She stepped softly to the desk, laid the stiff sheets of notepaper upon the edge of it. She must say some- thing, of course. . . .

It was to his friend, not to his secretary, that he had shown the letter. . . . Her voice was husky and rough with tears. "Is there—anything I—can do? I'm so—terribly sorry—"

Nan hated words then; they were such silly, futile things. If only she could touch him. Hold his head against her breast, so that he could feel how her heart throbbled with compassion and love. But that was silly, too. Only one woman's arms and love could comfort him now.

"Thank you, Nan. I—thought you'd—better know. Sorry to dis- tress you." He did not look at her as he spoke, in a flat, dead mon- tone. "I'm afraid there isn't any- thing—you can—do—just now."

Good-night, Nan. The ache to touch him was too great to be borne. His right hand lay clenched upon the desk, the knuckles gleaming white through the tightened skin, and before dis- cretion could stifle her own un- hand went out, all gently upon his, her little cold fingers pressing tight for a breath-taking instant. She was about to withdraw her hand after that fleeting contact when Morgan's fist unknotted and his long, thin fingers reached up and imprisoned hers.

There were no spoken words be- tween them, as Morgan's hand clung to Nan's, the grip of his fingers almost crushing her, but if the man had only known it, one woman was dedicating her heart and her life to his service, while he was striving to realize that another had deserted him.

When his clasp was loosened, Nan withdrew her hand gently and slipped from the room. She knew

Daily Health Service

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

EACH ADULT SHOULD DRINK EIGHT GLASSES OF WATER EVERY DAY

By MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

All sorts of estimates have been made of the value of a human being. In a paper given by Dr. J. S. Elliot, president of the British Medical Association Branch in New Zealand, he said that man possessed enough fat to make seven bars of soap; iron enough for one mediat- sized nail; sugar enough to fill a shaker; lime enough to whitewash a chicken-coop; phosphorus enough to make 2200 match heads; mag- nesium enough for one dose of salts; potash enough to expiate a toy cannon; and sulphur enough to rid one dog of fleas.

Of the approximately 80 elements listed by the chemists, at least 29 have been located in the human body. These are carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, sodium, cal- cium, potassium, magnesium, chlo- rine, phosphorus, sulphur, iron, iodine, arsenic, fluorine, silica, man- ganese, bromine, aluminum, lit- hium, copper, lead, zinc, vanadium, molybdenum, cerium, chromium, lanthanum and didym. Of the latter elements the body contains only a trace. Nevertheless modern chemi- cal research is beginning to as- sign to these traces, functions of the greatest importance.

Water is composed of hydrogen and oxygen. The amount of water in the human body varies with the increase in years. Six months he- fore its birth the infant is com- posed 94 per cent of water. At birth the water content has changed to 69 per cent.

When the man is 20 years old the water in his body constitutes 62 per cent, and when he is 70 years old the amount has diminished to 54 per cent. The body of the old man is drier and wrinkled. The water content of man closely ap- proximates water contents as they occur in nature.

An egg has 65 per cent water, meat has 75 per cent, fish has 80 per cent, and milk has 87 per cent.

Some of the tissues of man con- tain more water than do others. For instance, the brain is 79 per cent water, the kidneys 83 per cent, liver 70 per cent and muscle tissue 75 per cent.

These facts are of the greatest importance since they indicate how necessary water is to the body for the carrying on of its functions. Hence, whenever a person is parched and unable to get water the physician sees to it that water is put in his body by injection or by some other route.

The average man ought to drink from six to eight glasses of water a day, preferably the larger num- ber. The best way to distribute this amount of water is a glass in the morning, before going to bed, a glass at each meal and a glass a few hours following meals.

Still the fellow who believes in pre-destination jumps just as far at the sound of a hunk.

Styles by MOTTIE Paris—New York

SMART FEMINITY

Smart occasions require smart clothes that show new trend of femininity that has entered the afternoon and informal evening mode. The genuine creative lines of the model sketched in flowered chiffon is only found in Paris frocks. The one-sided rever of plain chiffon in blending tone is trimmed with alien lace. The hips are smartly skirted with a bow at left side of waistline. The skirt is cut so as to keep the hip- line slender with full circular flare at hcm that dips at either side of front and back. The French cuffs that reach almost to elbows are fast with lace. Style No. 540 is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Black chiffon is dignified. Purple and white printed crepe de chine with revers rating for town or resort. Printed voile, georgette crepe, handkerchief linen, and dimity appropriate. Pat- tern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

We suggest that when you send for this pattern, you enclose 10 cents additional for a copy of our Fashion Magazine. It's just filled with delightful styles, including smart ensembles and cute designs for the kiddies.

New Belts

RED WOODEN beads, attached to a red leather strap which fastens with a metal buckle, compose a novel sports belt.

At a little after 11 the door of Morgan's office opened and Nan looked up, startled and apprehen- sive, to see him standing in the doorway. Twice, during her career as private secretary to Morgan when he had been district attor- ney, Nan Carroll had seen convicted murderers receive the death sen- tence. One man had sunk to his knees after the awful words had been spoken, and had been half- dragged, half carried, sobbing like a hysterical woman, from the court- room. The other had stiffened his body and his spirit to meet the blow like a man. His hopeless, yet courageous eyes had not flinched from the judge's face.

As Nan looked up at Morgan now, standing straight and stiff and very tall, his deep-set eyes—two fathomless wells of despair—meet- ing her steadily, it was like look- ing into the face of the man who had been strong enough to receive a sentence of death unflinchingly. Her love leaped proudly in her heart.

She did not give him time to ask her why she was still there. "I've been going over the Lois Downs case and I'm sure my hunch is right. Want to hear it?"

She held her breath for his reply. Would John Curtis Morgan show as much courage in receiving a "life" sentence from that implacable Judge, Duty, as he was displaying under the death sentence of Love?

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

We know that most fibbing among children is caused by fear of one sort or another. Usually it is fear of scolding or punishment—sometimes it is fear of being laughed at or teased, and occasion- ally it is dread of losing a parent's good opinion.

But it is evident that lying can also become a habit at the instiga- tion of another. It is amazing how often this "other" is the parent himself.

"Mary, go and show your new coat to your father."

"But, Mother, you said he'd fuss about it."

"I know, but he has to see it some- time, so get it over with. If he asks how much it was, say it was fifteen dollars instead of twenty-five. Don't rent the shoes or hat, though. He won't un- derstand."

Carrying a Lie.

On a certain day the bell rings. Mary's mother makes a swift men- tal calculation and whispers, "The radio man! I hadn't his money the last time and I haven't got it to- day. What'll I do? Mary, you go and tell him Mother isn't at home now, you?"

Mary hesitates. She doesn't like to tell a story, but her mother's face is so distressed, she goes—and finally to deliver the message. "Mother's gone to town and isn't back yet." She puts in that way so he'll believe her. She is getting very clever.

He does believe her and touches his hat as he goes away. A little thrill goes through young Mary. She de- cides that fibbing isn't so hard—or so wrong if you can put it over neatly.

The telephone rings. Mary an- swers, "Mother, it's Mrs. Gay," she whispers. "She wants you and Daddy to go over tonight to play bridge."

"Oh, pshaw! I don't want to go. I'd planned to see that show. Any- way, I don't want to go to her house at all."

"I could tell her that Daddy is going out of town. Then she won't ask you for another night. Shall I?"

"Yes, do, dear."

Becomes An Expert. And Mary gets her mother out of another fix glibly enough to satisfy the importunate Mrs. Gay. She is getting expert.

One day recently, Mary wanted to go somewhere her mother wasn't allowed. She told her mother she was going "somewhere" else—and went. She told herself she was lying to save her mother's feelings.

It will go on. Motive may change but not the fact. It's an easy grade once the ball starts.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SWANBERG

For the first time more than twenty million American women will find themselves listed in the U. S. census. Report has it that the 1930 census will list "the home-makers" of the country as "persons of occupation," some- thing which has never been done before.

Report also says that only those "home makers" who work for no Saturday night pay envelope will be included, with special emphasis on the fact that those benighted females who work outside the home for hire and also attempt to run a house will not be included in the census.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

While it seems only sensible to include "home-makers" as per- sons of occupation, and while the majority of housekeepers in this country were sweeping with brooms, carrying water from an outdoor well, filling kerosene lamps, heating the Saturday night bath water, and in short, carry- ing on in a modern way with utterly archaic tools.

Call them "home makers" or call them plain garden variety "housekeepers," list them in a cen- sus or deny that their work is important enough to list, the fact re- mains that these hitherto persons of "no occupation" have the hard- est, grabbest, most thankless job known to man.

PARADISE FOR WOMEN? Meanwhile, such voices as that of Sinclair Lewis continue to jab- ber that America is a Paradise for women, and visiting authors and lecturers return to their home- lands to tell audiences what a gold- digging parasite the Ameri- can wife is.

It's just the old story of think- ing the whole world is just what that little arc of it seen from where one sits is.

Visiting celebrities are not en- tertained in homes where the "home-maker" carried—in water from the well, and his dinner is lit with crystal candelabra and not kerosene lamps.

But the women of the kerosene lamps are there—ten hundred thousand strong, waiting for life to be made as simple for them as for the city woman who presses buttons, and in the same work is done which her sister of the far- ranging places does to the tune of—thing back and shortened hours.

NEAR EAST SPEAKER IS HISTORY STUDENT

Henry W. Littlefield to Address Congregation at St. Mary's Episcopal Church Sunday.

Next Sunday brings to St. Mary's Episcopal church a speaker of intimate acquaintance with the work being done by the Near East Relief overseas, as he, Henry Wilson Littlefield, has served on the staff of that organization for the past two years.

An alumnus of Bates college, Mr. Littlefield has, in connection with his Near East Relief activities, continued his studies in New York University, with the aim of teaching history. He therefore presents the contributions that America has made to the Near East from the standpoint of an historical student.

His address will be made at the morning service at 10:45 o'clock.

FREE KELVINATOR FOR STATE PATRONS

All-Electric Refrigerator to Be Given Away Tonight.

Tonight the management of the State theater will present to the holder of the lucky number the new all-electric Kelvinator refrigerator that has been standing on exhibition in the lobby for the past three weeks.

This new and modern creation in electric refrigeration is a sales product of Alfred A. Grezel's store in Manchester. It is the last word in up-to-date household equipment. Tomorrow will find it in the home of some proud possessor.

The drawing of the Kelvinator will take place about 8:30, immediately after the first evening performance. The winner is not required to be present at the theater in order to claim his or her prize. This was made clear today by the management.

UNITED CIGAR STORES TO USE NEWSPAPERS

Abandon Coupon Merchandising System and Will Convert Money to Advertising Space.

An indication of the value of newspaper advertising in comparison with other forms of merchandising is found in the results recently obtained by the United Cigar Stores company through increased use of space in the daily press. In conjunction with the lowering of the prices of blended cigarettes, the United instituted a campaign through the newspapers which vastly increased the patronage of its stores.

The experiment was first tried out on the Pacific Coast and attracted 200,000 new customers in the first month. May. On May 24, the new merchandising policy was put into effect all over the country. The result, for the first week, was to bring in approximately 600,000 additional customers to the United Cigar stores. The abolition of the coupon form of merchandising will result in a saving of approximately $3,500,000 a year, part of which sum will be turned over to permanent increase in the use of newspaper space.

WARSHIP SINKS

Girls of today are brim full of beauty.

SENSE and NONSENSE

A TOUCHING APPEAL. I note the following appeal for charity in the current local bulletin of the Business and Professional Women's club:

- Less schooling and more real education.
—Less gas burned for pleasure and more in church attendance.
—Pluck more weeds and fewer eyebrows.
—More honest workers and fewer public suckers.
—To live within its means.
—More songbirds and fewer jail birds.
—More fence and less expense.
—One "men only" day each week in the barber shops.
—Good weather and sound judgment.

LETTER GOLF

FUN WITH AN OIL CAN.

If your letter golf swing is bad, try an OIL CAN to limber up. Par is six and one solution is on another page.

Letter golf grid with letters O, I, L, C, A, N.

THE RULES.

- 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes.
2—You change only one letter at a time.
3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump.
4—The order of letters cannot be changed.
One solution is printed on another page.
