

EXPECT CLOSE VOTE ON BILL FOR FARMERS

President Seems Likely to Win Out But by a Narrow Margin—To Vote Late This Afternoon.

Washington, June 11.—The Hoover administration faced a vote of confidence in the Senate today on its farm relief program, with the President's victory expected. The vote will come at 4 o'clock upon the conference report on the new farm bill, from which the export debenture plan has been eliminated.

Adoption of the report will send a debentureless farm bill to the White House within 24 hours for the President's signature. Rejection of the report will send the bill back to conference, deadlock the farm relief bill, delay enactment of the bill and probably force the house to a direct vote on the debenture—something the astute politicians in that branch have dodged throughout the special session.

The President seemed likely to win, although by a very narrow margin. A careful check by International News Service indicated the debentureless report would be approved by the Senate by a margin of two votes, 47 to 45 or 48 to 46, depending on the number of absentees. This would be in contrast to the 44 to 47 vote by which the debenture plan was first rejected in the bill over the President's opposition. Two Senators—Trammell and Fletcher, Florida Democrats—have shifted since their State Legislature unanimously condemned the debenture.

The vote will be so close, since a single Senator changing against the President could bring a tie, that Vice President Curtis will be held in the presiding officer's chair. Administration leaders have no desire for a repeat of the Warren incident, in which the absence of Vice President Dawes resulted in the rejection of a Cabinet nomination, by a tie vote.

The Next Problem. Once the tie has been taken, there appeared a strong possibility that the Senate would dispose of the President's request for repeal of the National Origins Immigration Act.

HOOVER INVITED PREMIER TO COME Initiative for Personal Conference Was Taken by President Long Ago.

London, June 11.—It was accepted as a certainty today that Premier Ramsey MacDonald, of the new labor government, will go to Washington late in July or in August to hold a personal conference with President Hoover upon Anglo-American relations, especially naval reduction.

The premier plans to go to Scotland tonight for a ten day vacation and expects to find President Hoover's invitation awaiting him when he returns.

Hoover's Invitation. There are indications today that the initiative for a personal conference with the head of the British government was actually taken by President Hoover some time ago. International News Service learned that, before the general election on May 30, Stanley Baldwin, who was then premier, received an invitation from President Hoover to visit Washington if the Conservative Party was returned to office. Instead of the Conservatives winning, the Labor Party came into power.

AWAITING DAWES. Washington, June 11.—An invitation to Ramsey MacDonald, the British Premier, to come to the United States for a series of conferences with President Hoover on Anglo-American problems probably will be extended in the very near future, according to authoritative reports here today.

It likely will await, however, Gen. Charles G. Dawes' arrival in England to take up his duties as ambassador. Then, if Dawes reports that MacDonald is sincerely desirous of making the trip, the next step will be for President Hoover to formally invite the British premier, and also Premier W. L. Mackenzie of Canada.

EXTRA! THIS WOMAN DRESSED TOO MUCH

New York, June 11.—Believe it or not, but Mrs. Ruth Greenberg, 49, is in Bellevue hospital today suffering from the effects of — too many clothes. She is said to have been wearing four suits of winter underwear, three dresses and fifteen pairs of heavy stockings.

Mrs. Greenberg never saw a Ziegfeld girl.

SMITH STILL TITULAR HEAD OF DEMOCRATS

Washington, June 11.—The Hefin-Simmons-Cannon faction in the Democratic party, who have been demanding the official head of Chairman John J. Raskob and the elimination of every vestige of Al Smith leadership, might as well save their breath. For Raskob is not going to resign, and in the natural course of things Gov. Smith will remain the titular leader of the party until the party chooses a successor.

This was made crystal clear last night to several hundred national prominent Democrats at a "harmony dinner" given in honor of J. H. P. Cannon, the Kansas who was recently chosen to organize and conduct a militant national party headquarters in the capital. The dinner brought together more Democrats than have assembled anywhere for party purposes since the great November debacle.

Raskob Cheered. Moreover, there was every appearance of harmony—at least among those present. Speaker followed speaker with the battle cry of "Get Together." Raskob was given an ovation when he spoke, and the only indirect reference to "our leader in the last campaign" (Gov. Smith) brought the diners to their feet with volleys of applause.

Some of the more bitter anti-Smith people, like Senator Hefin of North Carolina, well known by their absence, but the south in general was well represented by a dozen senators and many members of the House. Senator Overman of North Carolina, attended and spoke for unity.

"I am a Democrat," he said, "and an unrepentant one. I am for unity, but unity with courage."

To Reorganize Party. Chairman Raskob made it emphatically plain that he has taken on the job of reorganizing party machinery to stay with it until it is finished. He wants to apply to political organization some of the principles of the modern business corporation.

"To a man trained in business as I have been," he said, "the Democratic party's lack of organization is its greatest weakness."

REFUSES TO TAKE ALLEGIANCE OATH

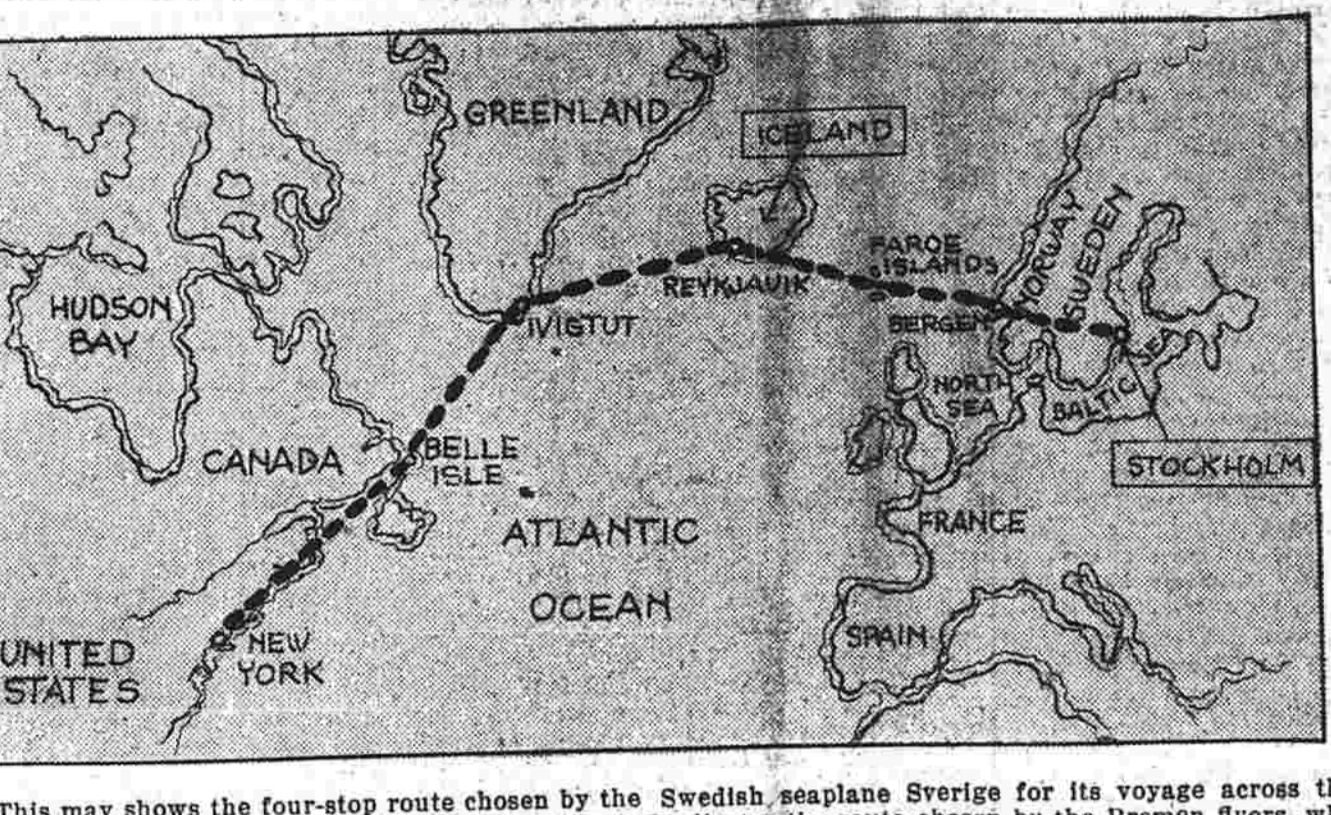

Yale Man Applies for Naturalization Paper With Proviso; To Be Test Case

New Haven, June 11.—The refusal of Dr. Douglas C. Macintosh, Dwight professor of theology, Yale Divinity School, to accept the required oath of allegiance in applying for his naturalization certificate, has roused interest among Constitutional lawyers here. The belief exists that Dr. Macintosh may be endeavoring to make a test case, and has able lawyers to aid him, though he himself will say nothing about the matter. Dr. Macintosh wants to tell his story to the Federal judge who presides over the next session of a naturalization court here.

A Parallel. Constitutional lawyers point out that the Supreme Court has just decided against a woman who was refused naturalization when she would not take the oath while it contains the provision of a promise to defend the Constitution "against all enemies, domestic or foreign." That case is looked upon as being parallel to Dr. Macintosh's case.

Dr. Macintosh is a Canadian and so subject of King George V. It is understood here that he objected to citizenship provisions when he applied for his first papers, two years ago. Dr. Macintosh received an honorary degree from Yale several years ago.

ROUTE OF NEWEST ATLANTIC FLYERS

This may show the four-stop route chosen by the Swedish seaplane Sverige for its voyage across the Atlantic from Stockholm to New York, which almost duplicates the route chosen by the Bremen flyers, who landed on Greenland yesterday. Captain Albin Ahrenberg and his two companions on their first day out all short of their scheduled second stop at Reykjavik, Iceland, landing nearby, but planned to continue on. A previous stop had been made at Bergen, Norway, and others were scheduled at Irvigt, Greenland, and Belle Isle, which is near Greenland island.

INSTITUTION BOYS HOLD UP AUTOISTS Get Revolvers and Lock Up

Manchester, N. H., June 11.—Three armed youths, who escaped from the State Industrial School here, were reported today as having conducted a militant national party headquarters in the capital.

The trio, at pistol point, forced motorists to drive them to Merrimack, where they were alleged to have stolen an automobile and started down the Daniel Webster highway to Merrimack. The youths are Perry Neilson, 19, Wendell Hardy, 17, and Frank Rokas, 13.

They were playing in the school yard when they held up their guard, beat him and, after locking him in a closet, escaped.

Spectacular Escape. The run for the border was as spectacular as the break for liberty. A short time after Charles Allen, the guard, was beaten, a motorist called the institution and said he had been held up by the three youths and forced to drive the trio toward Merrimack. A short time later a second motorist explained that he too had been threatened and was obliged to drive the youths to Merrimack. In that town according to the authorities, the youths stole a coupe, which was traced as far as Nashua.

Young Rokas had been arraigned on a manslaughter charge under the fatal shooting of another boy here last fall. The pair, with another boy, had previously been arrested for larceny and it was claimed that Rokas shot his companion because he "squeaked." Rokas being sent to the industrial school.

JERSEY TORCH SLAYER TAKES STAND TODAY

Elizabeth, N. J., June 11.—Henry Colby Campbell Close, on trial for the murder of his bigamous wife, Mrs. Mildred Mowry, of Greenville, Pa., who was shot to death and burned with kerosene on Springfield avenue, Crawford, February 29 last, took the stand to testify in his own defense before Supreme Court Justice Clarence E. Case and a jury in the Union county court here today.

Mrs. Campbell was the first witness called by the defense this morning. She testified that her husband was a drug user, a man who suffered from blinding headaches and sought relief in morphine, and who on occasions even gave it to her.

Defense Attorney Francis A. Gordon in opening his case did not directly deny that Campbell committed the murder, nor did he directly admit it either. He traced Campbell's life back, step by step, to the time when, at 22 years of age, the prisoner was sent to Folsom prison, California, for forgery.

DRY AGENT GUARDED. International Falls, Minn., June 11.—Although admitted to bond of $1,500 on a second degree manslaughter charge, lodged against him for the killing of Henry Virkula, Big Falls restaurant owner, Patrolman Emmet J. White of the Customs border force, today chose to remain in the Koochiching county jail, which was guarded by half a dozen armed deputies. After Governor Cantwell had declared that feeling was strong against the prisoner and trouble was feared.

FOUR KILLED IN WRECK. Madrid, June 11.—Four persons were killed, three seriously and fourteen slightly injured today when a passenger train was derailed entering the north station here.

5 OF FAMILY ARE DROWNED

Not One Could Swim—Try to Save One Another and All Go Down.

Randolph, Vt., June 11.—Three children, ranging in ages from two months to four years, were orphaned today following the drowning of the other five members of the family of Henry Boardman here last night in the swift and treacherous current of the west branch of White river. The little surviving children were being cared for by neighbors while town authorities sought to find relatives of the family.

Harry, 15, trying to swim with an inflated automobile tire, lost his grip on the wet rubber and sank, crying for help. Swiftly, his two sisters, Beatrice, 17, and Ona, 10, sacrificed their lives in a vain effort to save their brother. Then, trying to save their three children, the frantic father and mother were drowned.

No member of the family could swim.

The surviving three children were at play in front of their home when the bodies were brought in from the river, where they had been recovered.

MURDER, SUICIDE, LAWRENCE VERDICT

Police Think Jealousy Was the Motive Behind Double Tragedy in New York.

New York, June 11.—The body of Margaret Lawrence, famous actress, shot and killed by her lover in her roof-top apartment here, will be taken to Germantown, Pennsylvania, today for burial according to the rites of her Quaker faith.

Police have now satisfied themselves that the actress, who a few years ago was conceded to be the most brilliant comedienne on New York stage, was shot and killed by Louis Brennan, old-time cowboy actor of the screen, who then turned the gun on himself.

Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, who examined the bodies

HOSPITAL DRIVE OFFICIALLY ENDS

Total Subscriptions, Excluding Cheney Brothers Donation, Reach $22,109.

Although subscriptions to the Hospital Fund still continue to come in, it has been decided to officially close the 1929 drive with the publication of the few additional amounts received to date. These latest subscriptions bring the amount to $22,109.30, exclusive of Cheney Brothers, whose subscription will be based upon their proportion of the Grand List and their proportionate share of the town tax.

Loyal List. The amount received this year will fall slightly short of the amount asked by the hospital trustees, but on the whole the drive officials and the trustees feel well pleased with the success of the campaign. As usual the drive has been loyally supported by the thousands or more, who can be depended upon for their subscription cards from year to year without solicitation. The total number of givers this year has been increased about 300 over last year, due to the increased activity of the soliciting teams.

One special feature was the receipt of an envelope, by Treasurer W. W. Harris containing $25 in Federal reserve notes, which he mailed with the penicil with the words U. S. Bee Gees, without address. On the whole there were less complaints received by team workers than in the past. The workers at campaign headquarters, reported many very pleasant incidents in connection with people who brought in money and told of their hospital experiences. One man in particular brought in a two dollar bill expressing regret that it was so late but that he had to wait until his check got her day envelope, which he could make this contribution. He said that in the past two years he and members of his family had been inmates of the hospital eight different times and they had universally received wonderful treatment. He expressed regret that the amount he was giving was not $2,000 instead of $200 as he believed the institution was worthy of it.

Last Contributions. The drive officials wish to renew their expression of appreciation to all loyal teams and individual workers who have given their time to make the drive the success that it

Dutch Lodge Complaint Over Raid In Curacao

Amsterdam, June 11.—The Netherlands government plans to lodge a formal protest with Venezuela asking punishment of the alleged Venezuelan nationals who raided Willemstad, capital of the island of Curacao, and escaped after invading the city in a reign of terror for several hours, it was reported today.

Two Dutch battleships have been sent under urgent orders to Curacao in the fear of further disorders. It is anticipated that the incident will result in general reinforcement of Dutch colonial troops.

According to official advices received here, the raids took the governor of Curacao and the commander of local troops captive aboard the steamship Maracabo, returning them later unharmed. Five Dutch soldiers, however, were reported killed in attempting to prevent the abduction.

STATE READY TO IMPROVE E. CENTER ST.

Wants Selectmen to Decide on Type of Highway Desired; Had Hoped to Start the Work This Summer.

The state highway department is ready to proceed with the improvement of East Center street from the Center through to Manchester Green, the Board of Selectmen was informed last night. The department is anxious to learn Manchester's attitude on the proposition of a new highway in this section and is seeking opinions on the type of roadway desired here.

The new road from Manchester Green through to Bolton Notch will be started July 1 and it was the original intention of the state highway department to reconstruct East Center street at the same time. However, the local authorities did not feel that the townpeople would sanction an additional highway expense and for this reason the work was put off.

To Make Layout. Now, however, the state is desirous of planning its work for next year, and for this reason the Selectmen were asked to select a definite plan for proposal to the state. The Selectmen instructed Town Engineer Frank J. Bowen to draw up proposed layouts for the beautification of the thoroughfare and these will be discussed at a later meeting.

Several plans have been suggested for improving East Center street, but the one chosen will probably be that agreed upon by the Selectmen and the Park Board. One plan proposed is to eliminate the grass plot in the center of the highway and devote all the middle of the roadway to travel allowing the extra width to be used as wide lawns in front of the homes on the street. Still another plan is a series of grass plots in the center of the street with travel areas on both sides. If this plan is followed it is proposed to leave a large area, or plaza at the Center removing the present so-called side of safety.

Will Come Up Later. When the local authorities have agreed upon a plan for the reconstruction and beautification of the thoroughfare estimates of the cost will be secured and then the proposition will be placed before a town meeting. It is not probable that any action will be taken before the fall.

SWEDISH FLYERS DELAYED AGAIN

Had Taken Off for Greenland But Propellor Trouble Forced Them Back.

Reykjavik, Iceland, June 11.—The Swedish monoplane Sverige, in which Captain Albin Ahrenberg and two companions are attempting a trans-Atlantic flight from Stockholm to New York, returned to Reykjavik today two hours after taking off for Irvigt, Greenland, on the third leg of the flight.

The Sverige loomed up out of the clouds at 8:30 a. m., after virtually the entire population of this city had given the flyers an enthusiastic send-off some two hours earlier.

Propellor Trouble. This is the second time the air-men have encountered trouble on the flight. They were forced down on the Iceland coast, because of gasoline shortage after battling adverse winds for hours on the second leg of the trip, from Bergen, Norway to Reykjavik.

U. S. BORDER PATROL HAS THE APPROVAL OF THE PRESIDENT

President Approves Bill Introduced by Rep. Hudson Which Proposes Service Patterned After the Royal Mounted Police of Canada—All to Be Uniformed

Washington, June 11.—President Hoover has approved proposals for a sweeping reorganization of law enforcement methods on the Canadian and Mexican borders. It became known today with the introduction by Rep. Grant M. Hudson (R) of Michigan of a bill creating a "United States border patrol service."

The proposed service—patterned somewhat on the idea of the Royal Mounted Police of Canada—would embrace the customs service, Immigration inspectors, Prohibition and Coast Guard officers and bring under its jurisdiction some department of Agriculture agents.

Before introducing the measure, Rep. Hudson, one of the leading Drys of the House, discussed the plan with President Hoover, who, he said, approves the principle. The border patrol service was included in the subjects Mr. Hoover listed for study of a joint Congressional committee.

Forces on Borders. There are now 712 Customs agents on the borders, 870 Immigration inspectors, 80 inspectors of the Agriculture Department and 800 prohibition agents and many Coast Guardsmen.

They frequently duplicate the work of each other and smugglers of all kinds profit by a division of authority and duties, Hudson asserted.

"The border patrol should be a uniformed agency, and the most important measure of this suggestion is presented with the question of conspicuousness of dress," said Rep. Hudson. "It is unanimously agreed that a uniform, when the wear is considered a real officer, is a horror to criminals. It is a preventative emblem."

"It is said that the uniform worn by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police of Canada has had much to do with the wonderful success and established reputation of that admirable organization.

"An organization of this kind would go into the field to prevent violations and enforce all federal laws."

To Unite Forces. Hudson's bill would give the president power to consolidate agencies by executive order, placing the new border patrol under the Department of Justice.

One of the chief arguments for it, he said, is that criminals operating along the borders usually engage in more than one violation. The violations are certain rings include smuggling of aliens, liquor, opium, and narcotics traffic.

In urging conspicuous uniforms, Hudson meets a demand of Congressional "Wets" for the certification of all officers engaged in prohibition enforcement.

Organizing in Detroit. Detroit, June 11.—Establishment of martial law, enforced by the Marine Corps along the Michigan run war border here, was intimated today as plans were made to carry out the mobilization of Prohibition, Customs and Coast Guard units for the greatest war on liquor smuggling in the history of prohibition enforcement.

FRANCE CURBS SAX PLAYING

Curfew Law Passed in Nancy—Horns Must Cease Moaning at Stroke of 10 p. m.

Nancy, France, June 11.—A law against the nocturnal use of the saxophone has just been passed here and is effective today.

So far as known Nancy is the first community to establish a saxophone curfew. However, it may not be the last.

Now may awaken the quick and the dead with jazz and dirges from the horn of this lugubrious instrument all day long, but on the stroke of ten p. m. the curfew law for saxophones goes into effect.

This law was provoked by the opening of a new night club in a quiet neighborhood of Nancy. The music kept everyone in the district awake. Complaints poured in and the curfew law is happy but the saxophone players.

FISHERMAN IS SHOT BY FEDERAL AGENT

Youth Dying in Detroit Hospital—Was Mistaken for Rum Runner.

Detroit, June 11.—Archibald Eugster, 21, who claimed he was fishing with three companions when Federal agents opened fire on them, was believed to be near death in a hospital here today from a bullet wound in his abdomen.

The shooting followed on the heels of plans made here yesterday at a conference of national and local prohibition chiefs for the biggest dry campaign in the Detroit area in the history of prohibition enforcement.

Eugster was brought to the hospital in a serious condition by Federal Agent Jonah Cox, who, according to police, did the shooting.

According to Eugster's companions, Ray Malchi, 21, and Joseph Lakatos, 20, they were in a row boat near the mouth of the River Rouge when several shots were fired from another boat close by. They climbed to shore, a man wearing a uniform such as that worn by Federal agents shot at them. Eugster dropped with a bullet in his abdomen.

Hospital physicians held little hope for Eugster's recovery.

Cox, according to police, was guarding a drunken liquor boat in the hopes of capturing rum runners, whom, it was believed, would attempt to pick up the liquor.

AMBASSADOR TELLEZ UP FOR PRESIDENT

Mexico City, June 11.—The newspaper Universal Grafico today announced that Manuel C. Tellez, ambassador to the United States, would be a presidential candidate at the next election.

AUTHORS AT FUNERAL OF CONNECTICUT POET

New Canaan, June 11.—Two hundred people gathered in St. Mark's Episcopal church at noon today to attend funeral services for Elias Carner, poet who died here Saturday afternoon.

Rev. Charles Lawrence Adams, rector of St. Mark's conducted the funeral services which were followed by committal services.

The body was sent to Middle Village, Long Island, N. Y., for cremation. Burial will take place in Lakeview cemetery here, and not in Canada.

Representatives of governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the Canadian Authors Association, the Authors League of America, and the Poetry Society of America attended the services today.

"Hello, is this The Herald" came an inquiry at 4:45 last night, or less than fifteen minutes after the paper was off the press. When told that it was The Herald Office, the voice continued:

"This is Clarence Anderson, the insurance man up in the Fair building. I saw a manila envelope down in front of my place this morning and after reading the advertisement went down and took a look. It contained a check. Tell the owner I'll be right down with it."

And the check was back to the owner before 5 o'clock. Results like this occur every day. Get your share! Call 674.

ization for conducting a national campaign is truly appalling."

In contrast, he cited the Republican organization which maintains an alert national headquarters in Washington the year around and keeps its fencibles in all parts of the country.

Must Keep Working

Shouse further emphasized the need of a national organization that will keep functioning. He pointed out that in the past the national committee has plunged into feverish activity once every four years, at campaign time, and otherwise been a dormant inactive institution.

The burning question of future candidacies will be taboo around national headquarters, Shouse said.

"There is one thing," he said, "with which headquarters will refuse absolutely to have any concern. That is the question of candidacies. It is our duty to try to build up an effective fighting force to turn over to those who will direct the next campaign. The most unwise, the most destructive action that could be taken would be to lend even to the slightest degree any influence or help or encouragement to the candidacy of any of the various men who may aspire to the next presidential nomination. Mr. Raskob feels exactly as I do."

Raskob reported that the $1,500,000 deficit at the close of the Smith campaign had been reduced by two-thirds and that by the end of the month he hoped it would be cut to $350,000.

His vision of a new Democratic organization embraces intensive work to cover every election district in the country, of which there are some 150,000. He pointed out that if it were possible to get a contribution of only $4 from each district, the deficit would be wiped out and the party assured of work funds to keep up a militant and aggressive headquarters.

It is to that work that he plans to devote his own energies, leaving Shouse to conduct the Washington end.

of the dead pair, listed Miss Lawrence's death as homicide and that of Bennison as suicide.

Both Intoxicated

Autopsies performed on the bodies revealed that both were literally saturated with alcohol. The official statement disclosed that alcohol was present in both bodies in "plus 4" quantities—that being the official medical designation for the physiological limit of intoxication.

The original theory of a suicide pact between the couple, who had lived for several months together in Miss Lawrence's luxurious penthouse atop a fashionable apartment building, has now been discarded by the authorities. The view is taken that Miss Lawrence was murdered as she slept while under the influence of liquor for reasons not yet clearly defined.

Jealousy as Motive

One possible explanation that is being looked into is that Bennison might have been jealous of other men who sought the affections of the pretty actress. A more bizarre accounting of the tragedy is that the actor, who long ago had passed the zenith of his career and whose youth was fast slipping away, murdered his sweetheart in a fit of morbid dependency for fear that one day she might tire of him, and then took his own life.

But in any case, one of the murder of one of Broadway's most talented actresses was put squarely on Bennison today, the only excuse being found for the slaying was that for weeks he had been intoxicated, and had long nursed suicidal intentions.

Miss Lawrence's body was removed from the City Morgue yesterday after it had been claimed by the sister, Mrs. Emma Lawrence Franks, of Germantown. Neither could bear to look upon the chemise-clad figure on a cold marble slab in the morgue for the purpose of identification, so this was done by L. S. Treadwell, of this city, an old friend of the actress.

Bennison's body remains at the morgue as no claimant has arrived to give it burial. No word has been received from his wife, whom he is reported to have deserted in California a year ago, a short while before he came to live with Miss Lawrence.

GARDEN CLUB MEMBERS LISTEN TO REPORTS

Unusually Well Attended Meeting Held at Manchester Community Club House.

The Manchester Community club assembly hall was filled to overflowing last evening for the open meeting of the Manchester Garden Club. Nursery covensent from Tolland, Ellington, South Windsor, Hartford, Burnside and different sections of this town and brought their friends. The program was one of absorbing and timely interest—flowers, iris and Connecticut wild flowers.

During the routine business session the sum of $25 was voted to the Memorial hospital campaign for funds, now closing. Mrs. C. R. Burr gave a report on the highly successful plant sale conducted in May for the benefit of the Garden club, also of the sale which Mrs. Burr and other members of the club managed for the Manchester Community club. This sale netted for the Community club work a total of $57.35. Mrs. Burr recommended that the secretary extend the club's appreciation to all who helped to make the May plant sale such a success, and the motion was carried.

Among those who contributed were Blush Hardware company, who donated garden tools. Anderson Greenhouses, Park Hill Flower shop, Mrs. W. C. Cheney, C. E. House, boxes; Wells Strickland and G. E. Willis, transportation; Frank Anderson, use of store; C. E. Wilson Nursery company for plants. Miss Helen Chapman suggested that a vote of thanks be extended to Mrs. W. C. Cheney, who with many courtesies, and this was also carried. Mrs. Burr was given a rousing vote of thanks and a big hand for her tireless work on both sales.

Miss Mary Chapman, who with Mrs. W. C. Cheney was at the head of the Garden Club's exhibit at the show in Hartford last week, gave a report of the difficulties surmounted in staging the woodland beauty spot and garden, gate arrangement which captured the silver medal. Miss Chapman stated that the members of the Hartford Garden club expressed their pleasure that the local club entered so heartily in the project, and she complimented a local spring flower show. Miss Chapman expressed the committee's gratitude to all who helped in any way by loaning flowers or other equipment for the Garden club's exhibit. Miss Chapman's report was greeted with a burst of applause.

In line with a suggestion made at the May meeting that the members who cared to do so throw open their gardens to the public, L. J. Roberts, Jr., of East Middle Turnpike, announced that their gardens would be open to all who cared to visit them Saturday afternoon and evening, when the iris, oriental poppies and a multitude of other summer flowers will be at their best. It was suggested that a silver collection might be received for the benefit of the club's treasury. Mr. Robertson has been an active and enthusiastic member of the local club since its organization, as well as of the Connecticut Horticultural society. Through his efforts in arranging it, the Manchester club's exhibit won a prize at the Hartford show last year. He is hoping for a warm weather Saturday and a throng of visitors.

There was a fine display of peonies, iris, Galvina pansies and other novelties in the floral world at last night's meeting. Mrs. Charles J. Johnson of Wallingford, who has made deep study of peonies, discussed their habits and needs, recommended outstanding varieties and answered numerous questions. In the absence of Mrs. J. R. Lowe, who was to lead in the discussion of iris, Miss Mary Chapman ably dealt with the subject.

The principal speaker of the evening was Mrs. Belle Holcomb Johnson of the library committee of the Selectmen's Board of Education. Mrs. Johnson's colored slides of gardens, native wild flowers, with poems appropriate to every flower were a delight. The subject is engrossed with the speaker and imparted her enthusiasm to her hearers in large measure. There wasn't time for her to show all the slides and it is expected she will be invited for a return lecture.

PROPERTY OWNERS WANT SEWERS BUILT BY BID

Object to District Doing Work So Directors Comply and Will Seek Contract Prices.

At the meeting of the directors of the Eighth School and Utilities District last night action was taken on the question of laying sanitary sewers through Phelps road from Woodbridge street to the Green road. At the last meeting of the directors a petition was received from the residents owning property abutting the section through which the sewer line would be extended and as every property owner had signed it was not necessary, under the district charter, to call for a meeting, consent having been shown in the petition.

Dr. F. A. Sweet, president of the district informed the district meeting at that time that it was well to do the work at once and that the district could do it cheaper than Hockanum and elsewhere. The celebration of the golden wedding began with a family dinner for forty of the immediate families, held Sunday at the home of Mrs. Handel. Yesterday afternoon from 3 to 5 and again from 8 to 11 Mr. and Mrs. Couch received their friends from Manchester and elsewhere and had a very happy day. They were showered with congratulatory messages by mail, and also were remembered with many beautiful floral gifts and money.

Mrs. Couch is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchinson and came with her parents from Lanarkshire, Scotland, when a young girl. They lived to celebrate their golden wedding and within the year, Mrs. Couch's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Hutchinson of Laurel street, observed that event, so that this is the third in the family.

Mr. Couch was born in Glastonbury and is a grandson of Mrs. Lydia Couch the real daughter of the Revolution on whose monument in Nipisic cemetery Orford Parish Chapter Daughters of the Revolution of this town placed a bronze memorial tablet at the time they placed two on monuments in the East cemetery last month. Both Mr. and Mrs. Couch are enjoying fairly good health. He retired from active work at Cheney Brothers' mill a number of years ago.

MORE BAD LUCK FOR FRED KRAH

Turtle Devours All the Fish He Had Caught During Night's Fishing Trip.

Fred Krah, former dog warden, owner of the property that was destroyed on Tolland Turnpike Saturday night while he was in Lebanon fishing, is running in hard luck. There were three other fishermen with him and after making a good catch they rowed to shore, secured a stick and shined the fish on a pole, leaving it so that the fish would be in the water.

For the remainder of the night the fishing was poor and in the morning when it was light enough to see, Krah found a messenger waiting on shore to notify him of his trouble. Rowing for his fish, Krah found that the pole on which the fish had been placed was without any fish. Krah had placed the pole across a hole in the bank not realizing that it was the nesting place for a turtle, which had come to the conclusion that someone had provided him with a good meal.

DELAYED SHIPMENT SPOILS PIGEON RACE

Birds Did Not Reach Destination—Will Be Sent Back; Are Out of Condition.

A message received by the Manchester Homing Pigeon club today said that the 36 pigeons shipped to Chatham, Virginia last Thursday for the final race of the local club day, when a miniature electric train will start at the order of James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation in New York City. It will mark opening of the annual convention of iron and steel electrical engineers here.

Farrell's order "Go Ahead!" carried from his office in New York by telephone, will be transmitted through radio station WOAE here, and picked up by a receiving set in the convention hotel. The miniature train, dubbed "Casey Jones" by its constructors, the General Electric Company, at Schenectady, N. Y., will pick up the command, through a specially constructed receiver, and will obey.

Comets are carried through a radio detector tube to a special selector, which determines the polarity of the track, and it is upon this polarity the direction of the tiny locomotive depends.

"Back Up, Casey," sends the engine into reverse.

"Stop!" breaks the circuit.

National origins quotas have claimed victory but the industrialists who that the President would meet defeat. It seemed entirely likely that the Senate would refuse to discharge the Senate immigration committee from consideration of a repeal resolution. This action would give the repeal and the new quotas would go into effect July 1.

Other Bills to Consider.

With these two issues out of the way, the new census and reapportionment bill must be finally enacted before Congress leaves on two months' vacation. Due to the refusal of the Democratic Senators to fix a definite date for enacting the tariff next fall, administration leaders decided to shorten the Senate's vacation from three months to two months. The recess will start late in the week, unless the farm fight is still unsettled, and the Senate will be recalled in middle August while the House can stay away until September.

The Senate finance committee will meet during the recess to read the House tariff bill. The Senate hearings begin Thursday and will last until July 10. The bill probably will be ready for the Senate by August 7 and the Senate will be brought back to be kept in continuous session until the new tariff measure is a law.

HOPE TO LAY ASPHALT ON MAIN STREET JOB

State to Ask for Bids on Amiesite, Too—Will Remove Patchwork Before Starting Top Layer.

Representatives of the State highway department and members of the Board of Selectmen yesterday made an inspection of Main street between the Center and Depot Square which section is now being prepared for a new top coating of either asphalt or amiesite. The State highway department will be ready to proceed with the reconstruction work about the first of July.

At the present time the various utility companies are installing new pipe outlets and the road surface is cut up in many different spots. These holes will be all filled with concrete before the new surface is applied. The highway department engineer who was here yesterday said that all the "dental work" or patches of tar and concrete that have been placed along the trolley rails will be removed before the work is started.

The highway department wants to use the asphalt to the present concrete road. However, bids on both asphalt and amiesite will be asked for next week. If the asphalt bid is too high amiesite will be used. As soon as the state is ready to proceed the various utility companies will be asked to raise the man-hole levels. It is estimated that from the time the contractor starts applying the top coating until he completes it will take three weeks. The through highway will not be closed at any time during the work.

QUICK THINKING SAVES NEWSBOY BAD INJURY

Edgar Manley Suffers Foot Fracture When He Jumps as He Loses Balance in Coal Pits.

Quick thinking on the part of Edgar Manley of 19 Hamlin street, a Herald newsboy, saved him from possible serious injury while playing in coal pits along the South Manchester railroad yesterday. As it was Edgar sustained a broken bone in his foot and will be laid up for about six weeks. He was treated by Dr. D. C. Y. Moore.

The twelve-year-old boy was standing on top of the pit when he lost his balance. Jumping hastily, as he realized he would fall, he landed on his feet instead of his head, sustaining a small fracture.

SMALLER NATIONS PROTEST TO PRESS

Say Report on Their Case to League of Nations is Absolutely Unsatisfactory.

Madrid, June 11.—Official representatives of the principal European minority populations protested to the press today against the report of the League of Nations Council minority population committee as "absolutely unsatisfactory."

"We protest," says the communication, in the name of 35,000,000 members of minority populations against this committee, as useless. Its method of procedure is destroying our confidence and discrediting the League of Nations."

Object of Committee

This committee, composed of three members, appointed to deal with proposals submitted by Germany to give greater aid to minority populations in states whose frontiers were extended after the war.

The German move is aimed to assist the German minority population in territory acquired by Poles through the Treaty of Versailles. Germany wants a permanent commission created to handle the complaints of minority populations.

The League Council was not in session today, but will meet again tomorrow.

GERMANY'S CHARGE

Berlin, June 11.—Allegations that France is "intriguing at Madrid to establish permanent military control of the Rhine" were printed by German newspapers today.

All sections of the press, from Nationalist to Socialist papers, printed articles that were apparently inspired, accusing France of attempting to "sabotage Rhine evacuation" in order to bring about military control of the Rhine and to create an "eastern Locarno agreement" to prevent further frontier revisions.

The League of Nations Council is now in session in Madrid.

SHAVING used to be a symbol of denoting that the person was in mourning. In some respects the custom hasn't changed.

MISS ALICE CHENEY IS WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMP

Captures Honors in Last Women's Day Meet at Manchester Country Club's Course.

At afternoon bridge Mrs. Ray Johnson was first, Mrs. Harold Alford, second.

The tennis courts at the Country club are now in excellent condition and devotees of that sport are urged to remember the fact.

The Wednesday luncheons at the clubhouse are getting to be a real attraction. The only stipulation is that the members must make reservations the Tuesday evening previous to the latest.

Playing tomorrow will be in four-somes. The players may make up their own combinations.

The golf or bridge committees are already making plans for Wednesday, June 18 and hope all who can possibly do so will reserve the date. Special prizes and other features will be arranged.

Dr. Howard Boyd returned home yesterday from Meadville, Pa., where he was called because of the illness of his father, Joseph Boyd.

BOARD HOLDS UP
LINES DECISION

Not to Start Hartford Road
Action Until Counsel Tells Proper Procedure.

The Board of Selectmen last night voted to table action on the re-establishment of lines on Hartford Road until Town Counsel William S. Hyde informs the board what procedure is proper. A letter to the Selectmen last night advised them to establish the lines proposed by Town Engineer J. Frank Bowen, and if any property owner was in disagreement he could carry the case to court. However, in the Birch street widening case Town Counsel Hyde advised the Selectmen to petition the Superior Court first for a settlement of the assessments of benefits and damages. Desiring to know what procedure is best for the town to follow the Selectmen decided to await the advice of counsel.

Sidewalks Voted
Five feet concrete sidewalks and granite curbing were voted on Hartford Road and on Wadsworth street following hearings at which but few property owners appeared. This work will be started immediately since Contractor Henry Ahern has completed all work previously laid out by the town engineer. George England who is building a new gasoline filling station at Spruce and Eldridge streets was before the board to learn if his new station would pass inspection and check up on a few details regarding construction.

Counsel William J. Shea, representing Mrs. Helen Witherell, who broke her arm in a fall on an icy sidewalk last winter informed the board that a settlement of the case would be made for $450. The proposal was referred to the public safety committee. Cheney Brothers asked for definite highway lines on Charter Oak street so that they can make out proper deeds for property they own on that street. Miss Jessie M. Reynolds made her monthly report showing she had made 244 calls, 143 for the town and 101 for the board of health.

Other Business
Building Inspector Edward C. Elliott, Jr., submitted his regular report and it was accepted. It appears elsewhere in today's Herald. The town's monthly bills were ordered paid. A list of them will be found in other columns of today's Herald.

The petition of Patrick Moriarty of West Center street for two more gasoline pumps at his station at West Center and McKee streets was granted. The proposition of Morris Elm to open a highway off East Center street that the Selectmen term a "dead end" street will not be accepted, it was decided.

TWO AMERICANS
IN SECOND ROUND

Sandwich, England, June 11 — Charles Sweeney, an American playing on an English Club, advanced to the second round of the British amateur golf championship today by defeating C. H. Brickhill in the second half of the first round, six up and four to play.

Sweeney had things his own way all around and was never in the slightest danger of being eliminated.

Max N. Behr was the fifth American to be eliminated from the tournament. The Lakeside, California, golfer met his superior in Captain H. S. Tippet who won four up and three to play.

John Dawson, of Chicago, the most favored American among the entrants, will meet Dr. J. D. McCormack, of Ireland, in a second round match tomorrow. Dawson advanced to the second round without a struggle yesterday when his opponent scratched.

A sixth American was eliminated when D. H. Gardiner Hill defeated R. Sanders of Miami, Fla., five up and four to play.

The next American to taste defeat was Norman Newton, who found F. A. Bourne, of Sunningdale too much for him. Bourne won two up and one to play.

MOTHERS ARE LEARNING USES
OF MAGNESIA

From the beginning of expectation until baby is weaned, that's the time Phillips Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many mothers.

It relieves the expectant mother's nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness." Inclination to vomit; helps her digestion. Its mild but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding. A teaspoonful of it does the work of a half pint of lime water. It is a mild laxative; harmless, almost tasteless.

All drug stores have Phillips Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

FREE: to young mothers and prospective mothers; "Useful Information," an invaluable little book on the health of mother and child. Write the Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent absolutely free of charge.

NO REASON TO JEER

The Swedish fliers have been forced to make an emergency landing. The Yellow Bird and the Green Flash at this writing are still awaiting favorable weather reports by their crews. We can almost hear the sneers and the jeers of the millions who could not be forced into an airplane unless a thoroughly good job of chloroforming had been done on them. That's human nature, unfortunately. It's the bystander who does not know how to attach the nozzle to a garden hose who criticizes the fire chief's handling of a fire of three bigger proportions.

We should have made no progress since Alcock and Brown hopped off from Newfoundland ten years ago next month for Ireland had any of the fliers now engaged in attempted trans-Atlantic flights not availed themselves of the best equipment and information attainable. Alcock and Brown had no radio, no ground inductor compass; their plane compared with any of the planes of today as the first flivver is comparable with the modern product of the same plant. While these flights are adventures the pilots are taking all reasonable precautions. Nothing would be gained for aviation otherwise.

The Swedish fliers, their plane equipped with radio, were able to notify the world of their predicament, location and the cause of their forced descent. The world knew nothing of Alcock and Brown from the time they disappeared towards the east until they landed. The fierce battle of the Graf Zepplin with the gales that beset her was followed with breathless interest by the entire civilized world through means of radio. But of far more importance was the ability of the commander of the huge craft to communicate his needs to officials of a foreign country and receive the necessary aid to make a landing. To have ventured without radio would have been foolhardy. You can safely bet your last pair of shoes that the astute young man who has been engaged in making reporter-detectives look like the proverbial thirty cents, would not again attempt the crossing of the Atlantic with the equipment he used to carry him to France. He had what was the best available at that time. He took advantage of the best available weather reports. He flew now, when not engaged in piloting his bride away from the greedy eyes of the world, and he flies in the best available.

Accidents are bound to occur. The automobile is now more than a quarter of a century old and, we seem to remember, has been blamed for several fatal accidents. The early days of railroading piled up wreck after wreck. Probably the first man who hunched up a nag to a wheeled vehicle was smashed up in a runaway. Several who later emulated his example were, if he escaped, it has been so from the first. Improvement is at the cost of lives.

Men found better ways to harness horses and to break and train them. Improvements on railroads were, and are now, continuous. The automobile of today no more resembles the puny affairs of 25 years ago than the Los Angeles does an ancient spherical balloon. Men are constantly improving the airplane and the dirigible. Each improvement must be tested. From such tests do we learn. Flight after flight has come to an unexpected end because of broken oil or gasoline feed pipes. This must be overcome and will be. It is distinctly a weak point in the modern planes. The Yellow Bird and the Green Flash are merely waiting for what the weather bureau says will be reasonably good flying weather.

Acting on the promise of the weather bureau is risk enough without taking additional chances that would teach aviation experts nothing.

NEW ENGLAND'S CALL

"The Lure of the Litchfield Hills," the magazine recently issued by the Litchfield Hills Federation on which we recently commented, is typical of the sporadic advertising we of New England have been accustomed to put out. We still lack the results that persistent, consistent advertising, nationally distributed has produced for other sections of the country. We bang away at short range now and then and are much inclined to pout and complain because it seems to have been ineffectual. And it has been.

This magazine of the Litchfield Federation, to be issued four times each year, is the best sort of boosting. Beautifully produced, it has an appeal well nigh irresistible—if it gets far enough and the promoters are persistent enough. The merchant who advertises only occasionally makes slower progress toward success than does the persistent advertiser, admitting, of course, that the persistent advertiser has dependable products to market.

It was the New Englanders, moving westward, who opened that country. They sought more population and advertised the beauty and worth of their newly founded home territory. They tempted more New Englanders to leave just such beauty spots as the Litchfield Hills. The wide open spaces, the more fertile fields, the virgin forests, the plenitude of game appealed to the venturesome who, before the advertising, had been content with their first homes.

The West and the South grew by leaps and bounds because of consistent, continuous advertising. And former New Englanders were responsible for it. Their descendants, who have never seen the homeland of their fathers and grandfathers, have not only kept up the pace in the advertising field but have increased it. New England is hopelessly in the ruck.

There is Massachusetts after 300 years struggling to prepare a tempting advertising campaign to draw back to New England for its tercentenary next year the descendants of the pioneering New Englanders who have made the West, and like it, and who would like the Litchfield Hills, the White Mountains, the Green Mountains, the lakes and rivers and the historic places could they be persuaded they were worth seeing. Nothing but convincing, continuous nation-wide advertising, at least as tempting as that of the far West and the far South, will bring them.

And once they are tempted by the "Lure of the Litchfield Hills" they will look farther before going home. Litchfield is advertising New England just as other places and organizations advertise their points of appeal. But there is not enough of it. Advertising is expensive, but good advertising and lots of it pays big returns and that is what New England, like Litchfield, wants. We have the goods. We always have had. To convince those who should see them requires New England-wide application of the Litchfield method which, after all, is typical of the West and the South.

THE OTHER SIDE

There died Sunday in Pittsburgh an old woman, famed for her long and bitter battles to save her son from the electric chair and later from incarceration in insane asylums. Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw for a quarter of a century has been known to the general public only as the mother of Harry K. Thaw, murderer. From the day when, arriving in England twenty-three years ago this week, she learned of her son's act in shooting Stanford White, through the long months of the bitter court battles, later of her efforts for him when confined in an insane, the public has known her as a wealthy and, many believed, misguided mother, who willingly was spending her fortune on a wayward son.

Most of them have been ignorant of her philanthropies which were constant and were continued during all the years of her fight to save her son. She built a mission in Alaska, another in Slam; she built schools for Kentucky Mountaineers, for the Negroes and for the Indians of the Southwest. Her benefactions at home never received publicity for they were unknown. At 87 years of age Mrs. Thaw died after four years of confinement to her bed the result of a fall. The world has been the better for her living. Her wealth was expended generously for others; not entirely in behalf of a wayward son. Her mother love may have over-riden sound judgment but the score is more than balanced by the aid she has given to those who had no call upon her.

FOOLISH QUESTIONS

We now have with us the time of year for fool questionnaires. The girls and boys about to graduate from college are bombarded with questions. Will you marry or work? Will you work to marry? Do you prefer blonds to dark-skinned males? Now that you are out of college do you believe with Volstead? When you are a mother will you believe in petting parties for your daughter? If you were to start over again would you know less or more when you reached graduation day? When you send your child to your college will you believe as much money is needed as you have claimed has been for you? These may not have been asked before but we submit they are of equal importance with those that are customarily compiled by some one for some unknown reason and given place in the public print.

LET GEORGE HAVE IT

The question is: Now that Pullman porters are to receive more pay will they accept smaller tips? Each of 12,000 porters and maids is to have $5 more a month in the pay envelope. It will take some figuring to properly pare down the individual tip to keep George's gross revenue at the same point it is now. So, perhaps, it will be as well not to bother but to hand him your customary pour boir for brushing the back of your neck and your hands with the broom and let him have that $60 extra a year to add to his income tax return.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The nearest approach to the work about to be tackled by President Hoover's law enforcement commission appears to have been made by the commission appointed by the Pennsylvania legislature to study the laws, procedure and other factors relating to crime and criminals in a state of about 10,000,000 inhabitants.

How closely the methods and findings of the Hoover commission will parallel those of the Pennsylvania committee is a matter of forecast, but the size of Pennsylvania and the fact that it has cities and towns of all sizes as well as nearly all types of law enforcement problems makes a summary of what the minor body discovered and accomplished of national interest.

Eight prominent citizens were members of the Pennsylvania commission. Its chairman was Charles Edwin Fox, a former Philadelphia district attorney and veteran penologist and social worker. Attorney General Thomas J. Barrigrove was chairman ex-officio. The group was instructed in 1927 to study all matters which had relation, directly and indirectly, to the crime situation. Its term of office is about to expire.

The commission started out in a big way. It asked Chief Justice Von Moschizsker to call together all the judges in Pennsylvania who had any contact at all with the administration of criminal law. The chief justice did his stuff and in April, 1928, there assembled in Philadelphia seven supreme court justices, five members of the superior court, 84 judges of the common pleas court, members of the Philadelphia municipal bench, two county judges and a few others. This judicial conference is to be a continuing body, subject to the call of the chief justice.

The judges considered only the trial and sentencing of accused persons. With virtual unanimity, they passed nine resolutions as follows:

That the law forbidding adverse comment by court or counsel on a defendant's failure to testify in his own defense be repealed.

That evidence indicating that a defendant is a professional criminal be admissible in evidence in the discretion of the trial judge.

That the trial court be given the right to separate or consolidate the trial of defendants jointly indicted for capital offenses.

That the time for making appeals in criminal cases be limited to three weeks and that in all but capital cases and cases involving constitutional issues appeals should be permitted only after allowance thereof by a judge of the appellate court where the appeal lies.

That the courts be given more latitude in adopting and enforcing such rules as would expedite and standardize trial and punishment and that a uniform rule be established of four days after the trial in which motions for a new trial and in arrest of judgment must be filed.

That trial of criminal cases not involving higher felonies be permitted by a judge without a jury, if the accused voluntarily consents.

That a system of graduated penalties dependent upon the number of former convictions be incorporated in the penal system.

That the state law forbidding the minimum sentence to exceed half the maximum sentence be repealed.

Endorsed by Commission

These proposals, all calling for legislation, would immensely increase the power of the courts, but the crime commission endorsed them in large part. It expressed its report to the legislature early this year, that permitted comment on the defendant's failure to testify should be the custom in many states, that all facts about criminals ought to be known to judge and jury in the past interests of society, that defendants equally guilty of the same crime were often treated differently when tried by separate juries, that the Federal Judicial Council headed by Chief Justice Taft had recommended questioning of telegrams by judges conducting federal jury trials, that a cardinal defect in administration of criminal justice is the possibility of incessant delays between original trial and final disposition of the case and that trial without jury immensely speeds up administration of criminal law.

The state District Attorneys' Association, meeting last, sanctioned with the proposals of the judges and added recommendations for higher penalties for involuntary manslaughter and more effective extradition arrangements with other states.

BANANAS.

The banana occupies a position in the diet of tropical countries similar to that occupied by potatoes, sweet potatoes and other highly starchy foods in the cooler climates. As to the quantity of food produced by the banana plant, it cannot be rivaled in the vegetable kingdom. Although very prolific, it requires but little care if it has a moist, warm climate, and anti-oxidant plants are kept down.

An acre of bananas will yield from two to twelve times as much carbohydrates as could be obtained from a similar sized field of cereals.

The banana tree is highly ornamental, with palm-like leaves, and is often used in landscape gardening in southern California and Florida. Some of the homes of the motion picture stars in Hollywood look almost like tropical gardens because of the abundance of banana plants and palm trees, but the climate while suitable for growing the plant, only permits the fruit to ripen in exceptional instances.

Bananas do not grow with the points downward, but hang in the store. Upon the banana plant the points grow upward.

Bananas are sold throughout most of the market in North America, but they must be picked in the tropics and shipped while still in a green condition. Most of the bananas are imported from Central America, Jamaica, Colombia and Cuba. After being stored for a time, the skin becomes yellow, with dark spots, and the starch becomes converted into sugar, principally cane sugar and dextrin. It is a popular fruit because of its very pleasant flavor.

The banana is undoubtedly more wholesome in the tropics, where it attains the full ripeness upon the tree, but it can, nevertheless, become quite wholesome if subjected to heat, as in baking or cooking. Those with a non-catarhal tendency may also eat of the banana in its fresh state after it has become fully ripened, but not mushy.

The banana contains about 80 per cent of the carbohydrates, mostly in the form of starch, proteins 1½ per cent, and mineral matter a little less than 1 per cent, in which potassium, sodium and chlorine are most abundant.

The banana is deficient in lime and iron, and should, therefore, be eaten with green leafy vegetables, it should be combined as any other starchy food.

Bananas are very rich in carbohydrates and are not to be eaten in large quantity should not be eaten at one time. It is estimated that one banana equals two slices of bread in calories.

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 11.—The Broadway shimmy little speakeasy in a hotel way had-mongers now offer you a "take-your-choice-while-you-wait" apparatus.

What with the vogue of the "talkies" the motion picture industry has reached the tinny stage. Just a season ago, that section of the Gay White Way which is dedicated to an imitation of Coney Island was an imitation of slot machines, and now it is a vast record can be attached to any regulation phonograph and, when you get home, you see—or rather hear—your own capacity to register, if any.

They tell me that this machine is being rushed by those green-struck demagogues who once flooded the movie studios with their photographs. Now, I am told, they make records of their voices and send them in to casting directors.

Another popular vogue among the youngsters who once exchanged bracelet hearts, and such things, is to prepare a record for a "loved one" who is leaving town, or who is inclined to "forget" you. Records slop over with sentimental verses, and songs done in a pseudo-Vallee fashion.

A paragraph in the papers informs me that Jacques' (Jack) Bustanoby has been fined $100—or thereabouts—for maintaining a you suggest the proper diet for a child of two and a half years? He does not seem to be ill, but has rough red spots on his cheeks at times and is unusually cross and irritable after waking from his afternoon nap."

Answer—Try giving him four feedings of milk a day, using eight or ten ounces of milk at each feeding. At the second, third and fourth feedings give him a good sized dish of minced spinach, carrots, string beans, summer squash or celery. If a good plan to use also one of the vegetables raw along with the cooked one.

Epilepsy.

Question—H. J. J. writes: "I am going to start the fasting and diet regime for epilepsy, and I would like to know just how the treatment will affect me in the start, what changes or other indications of a cure will take place. I have tried so many things without result, that I wish to know all these things at the start in order that I will understand all symptoms and not become discouraged, for I believe your method is the right one."

Answer—There are always decided changes after using the fasting regime for epilepsy. Either the spells disappear altogether, or they become temporarily worse. When the latter occurs it is an indication that there are certain definite conditions in the system which require treatment. Usually these causes are kinks or prolapsus of the intestines. The use of luminal or bromides which deaden the nervous system, cannot be considered a cure, and I believe actually handicaps recovery in most cases.

Goitre.

Question—Mrs. J. H. writes: "I have been following a fasting and dieting regime to overcome my goitre. I have lost considerable weight, and during the fasting period the goitre became much smaller, but since I have started to eat again it seems to be getting large again. I am worried about my loss of weight, and hesitate to fast again on account of that. What is your advice?"

Answer—You should not worry about losing weight as long as you are trying to overcome your trouble with goitre, and it will perhaps be necessary for you to take another fast. Be sure to adhere strictly to the diet between the fasting periods. The goitre is going down at first was due to the fasting regime. Its subsequent enlargement might have been caused by some dietetic indiscretion, uterine trouble or strain of the neck.

A STEP TOWARD LIBERTY.

One of the most important events in the history of our republic occurred on this date in 1776 for then Congress appointed the commission which framed the Declaration of Independence.

Two commissions, in fact, were appointed on this date. One to prepare a declaration, and the other to frame a plan of confederation.

On the committee which drew up the Declaration were Jefferson, Franklin, John Adams, Roger Sherman and R. B. Livingston. They reported to Congress on June 23, 1776, but action was delayed for several days.

When the Declaration finally came up for consideration, it was passed unanimously on July 4, 1776, by the delegates of 12 colonies. New York's delegates could not vote on the Declaration because they had not been authorized to support the movement for independence.

Thomas Jefferson is credited with having written the Declaration of Independence almost in its entirety. At least, in the form in which it was submitted to Congress and adopted. All the committee members doubtlessly contributed their share to the ideas incorporated in the document.

NAN CARROLL, private secretary to JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, attorney, discovers she is in love with her employer and determines to resign. Her resignation is postponed when she learns Morgan is staking his professional integrity on the innocence of his friend, BERT CRAWFORD, indicted for embezzlement. On the last day of Crawford's trial, little CURTIS MORGAN, six-year-old son of IRIS and John Curtis Morgan, innocently places in Nan's hands a note which he apparently took from his mother's handwriting. The note is from Crawford and virtually admits his guilt and his affair with Iris. Crawford leaves town after his acquittal and a few days later Iris departs for a supposed pleasure trip to the east. Morgan receives a special delivery from his announcing her desertion, and begging him not to hunt for her. She makes no mention of Crawford and Nan does not tell Morgan of their relationship.

Morgan is crushed. Later Morgan in desperation is about to place his child in a boarding school when Nan dissuades him pleading that the boy needs a home. When Morgan is called to the capital on business, Nan offers to stay at the Morgan home with the boy and to attempt to organize the housekeeping so Morgan and the boy can carry on.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI
As soon as Nan Carroll looked into Maude O'Brien's broad, plump face she knew that the two would like each other.

"Go on with your dishwashing, Mrs. O'Brien," Nan suggested, looking about the immaculate kitchen with frankly approving eyes. "I know you want to get through as soon as you can. You don't live in, do you?"

"No, miss. There's me husband and me boy and we can't be separated, miss," the cook answered cheerfully. "I did make so bold as to ask Mrs. Morgan to let the three of us live in the servants' rooms over the garage, seeing as how Big Pat—"

"Estelle's a nice enough girl, and I guess I'm fair-to-middlin' easy to get along with, but neither of us knowing which one is to take hold and give orders, like... Me—for instance, I like to have the lady of the house write out the menus for me, not having much gift that way, though being a fair cook."

"You're a wonderful cook, Mrs. O'Brien," Nan corrected her warmly. "But I do understand what you mean, and I think it's awfully nice of you to put it so honestly. I wonder if you and Estelle would very much mind my keeping an eye on things? I would give you the menus for the week every Monday, and you could be responsible for the marketing. I'm sure you would, try to be as economical as if you were buying food for your own table," she flattered the cook.

"That I would, miss, and glad to do it for the poor lone man," Maude O'Brien agreed heartily. "It's a grand idea, miss, if you could spare the time."

"Then suppose we figure on that basis," Nan beamed. "I'll have all tradesmen's bills sent to me at the office, and will check them with your duplicates once a month. I'll say salaries, too, and see that raises come when they're earned. Men don't notice about such things, you know. And I'll do the shopping for the house, if you and Estelle will keep a list and give it to me once a week. Curtis' clothes, too, of course." "No, miss. Hat, a red woman, comes two days a week—Monday for washing and Tuesday for ironing and mending," Maude answered. "She keeps the clothes in order, as well as the linens. She's good, Hattie is."

"Fine!" Nan cried, seeing the last of her most pressing problems slipping away. "When could you move into the rooms above the garage?" "Tomorrow, miss," Big Pat answered, grinning his approval of her quick decisions. "I take it you'd like to see the little shaver settled while you're here, miss. With me and Maude and Little Pat on the premises you won't need to worry about the lad, miss."

When she returned to the living room Nan found Curtis lying before the fireplace, his mournful black eyes gazing upward at the life-size portrait of his exquisite mother. His languid fingers pulled absent-mindedly at the ears of a sleeping puppy.

Nan's heart, which had been so full of pity and love for the deserted husband, swelled suddenly to make room for the forlorn little boy who had been made worse than motherless by Iris' guilty passion for Bert Crawford.

"Bed time, man-child," she called blithely, but her voice was husky with tears.

"Man-child," Curtis repeated dreamily. "That's what Father calls me—man-child. Sometimes he says Sonny-boy, too. Mother calls me 'lover.' What's a lover, Nana?" "One who loves, of course," Nan glibly replied, but there was a swift stab of pain in her heart at the thought that some day Curtis would know a different, less simple, more sinister meaning of the word, and that he might hear it applied to the man who had stolen his mother from her husband and her son. "Come along, now. It's eight o'clock. And I've got something awfully exciting to tell you while you get ready for bed."

The girl and the child were walking up the stairs together, hand in hand, when the telephone rang. "That's long distance!" Curtis shrieked, beginning to jump up, and down on the stairs. "The phone's in the library, Nana. Whoopee! Betcha it's Mother! I knew Estelle was a liar when she said Mother wasn't coming back!"

"And I bet it's your father!" Nan cried, bounding down the stairs two steps at a time. "But oh, what if it was Iris? Could she possibly make herself rejoice, if Iris was coming home?"

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority
BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

CANCER OF THE MOUTH OFTEN DUE TO EXCESSIVE USE OF PIPE

The average person thinks of cancer as a horrible sore or tremendous growth. That is because cancer is all too frequently neglected until it has reached a serious stage. In the earliest stage the cancer is a tiny spot, often just a little scaly place on the skin or on the lining of some internal organ. This very early beginning of the cancer, indeed the change even before it becomes visible, can be prevented so far as we know, only through prevention of the irritating factor that may give it an initial start. Obviously that is so difficult under many conditions that it cannot be prevented at all.

However, once the cancer is recognized in its earliest stages, the growth and spread may be prevented by early complete removal. The importance of this fact is greater than can be estimated. It is the only certain thing that is known about controlling cancer in the human being—the hereditary factors seem beyond control in man.

The prevention of cancer therefore rests on elimination of sources of irritation and on the removal of all precancerous lesions, particularly moles, warts, skin eruptions which are subject to irritation and which experience teaches may become the basis of cancer. Cancer of the lip and tongue are among the most common cancers of men and have heretofore occurred infrequently among women. Cancer of the mouth is found most frequently among men who use tobacco to excess, who neglect their teeth and allow broken or jagged teeth to cut the tongue, who wear heavy, ill-fitting dentures, and who use roughened edged dental accessories.

Some men smoke the same pipe year after year, holding it always at the same corner of the mouth and directing the stream of warm smoke at the same spot on the tongue. It is believed that thorough cleanliness of the mouth and teeth, correction of all dental defects and the avoidance as have been mentioned will do much to lower the incidence of cancer of the mouth.

On the other hand, women have now taken up smoking, and a habit far beyond that of many men. It will be interesting to study the cancer statistics of the future to find out how far this change in the habits of women affects the incidence of cancer of the mouth among them. At present they suffer primarily with cancers of the organs that are specially feminine and which therefore do not concern men.

SANDWICH IS KING AT AUTO PICNIC

By SISTER MARY. This is the time of year when we like to pack our lunch and drive to some quiet place to enjoy it. Sandwiches, fresh fruit and a drink of some sort can make a well balanced and adequate meal if carefully prepared.

When a sandwich is to form the main dish, so to speak, it should be substantial and both the filling and the bread thicker than the tea sandwich.

Yogurt, as well as cheese and meat must be included in the picnic sandwich if a well-balanced diet is maintained. Various kinds of breads are good and are of value in adding variety to the menu.

No matter what kind of sandwich is to be made, the butter should be creamed and spread lightly on one side of each slice of bread. The butter is necessary for the filling and also aids in keeping the filling from seeping into the bread, making it soggy.

Crisp lettuce leaves should always be used in a meat sandwich. If the lettuce is trimmed so that it just fits the bread there will be no unappetizing wilted edges. The same treatment is required to keep lettuce crisp that is used to keep sandwiches moist—and that is careful wrapping to exclude air.

Cabbage, carrot and celery sandwiches may be given to small children. Cottage cheese and finely chopped nuts put between graham bread will be good for small folks. Prune and peanut butter is another popular mixture with juniors. With milk and fruit, even four-year-olds can find a picnic not at all upsetting if the sandwiches are wisely chosen.

In the picnic of sandwiches and fruit does not mean packing and unpacking of baskets, dishes to be washed at home and scraps to be disposed of when the lunch is eaten.

Celery Sandwiches. One cup shredded crisp celery, 2 tablespoons chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons minced ripe olives, mayonnaise, graham bread. Combine celery, nuts and olives with mayonnaise to moisten. Spread between slices of buttered graham bread.

PURSES' SUITABILITY. Some stores now advertise that purses should be "tried on" with the costume they are to go with. Only that way can be sure they are the right size, shade, and in other manner be entirely suitable.

HOUSE FROCKS. The tight bodice and full skirted vogue offers charming designs for colorful peasant house frocks. Made of tawny yellows and reds, they give the home a glow and give lift to the spirits of their wearers.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

We adults, hard set in the error of our ways, would give anything for the possess, often, to snap out of our "emotional" habits. We realize that that fierce temper of ours has done more to cause us trouble than all our unlucky breaks put together. If we only could shake off that horrible consuming jealousy, how much happier we'd be.

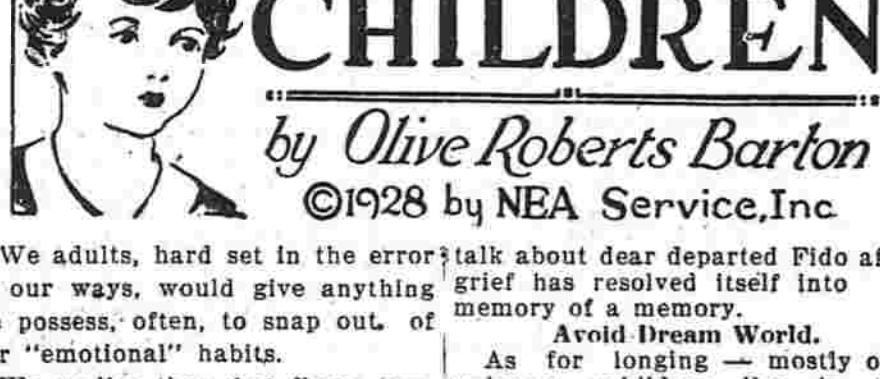

But change we cannot—it's much too late, and so we turn our worried attention to our children, which is far, far better, and try to liberate them from these veritable monsters so that every day in every way they'll be finer people than we are, when they grow up.

Four Evil Emotions. Hate, fear, jealousy, and rage—this is the list we write on our cuffs when we're delivering our little sermons to the small fry. We're on the alert to nip any and all of these in the bud the minute they appear.

But not many of us know that other emotions may be almost as bad for children when carried to extremes as the primitive passions just mentioned. For instance, there is sorrow. Sorrow can be developed to an alarming extent in a certain type of child. If he has a natural tendency to melancholy and a leaning toward the morbid, watch him and don't allow him to fall into the habit of feeding on his feelings. There are certain children who go on regular sprees of sadness. And not abnormal children, either.

In any case, I should try to get them out of the habit of dwelling unduly on any sad occurrence. Divert their attention as soon as possible. Grief over repeated, may become a questionable pleasure. There are too many grown-up neurotics of this type. And it has its dim origin in childhood. At the risk of making children a bit hard-hearted, I should try to steer them clear of the experience of sadness as often as possible. Don't let them dwell on the death of a pet after the first poignant pang is over. Get them another or keep him busy. Don't jabet.

Styles by ANNETTE Paris—New York.

GRACEFUL WRAP AROUND.

Its graceful, modish and slender in fashionable wrap around silhouette, quite the newest idea of Paris. It's one-piece too! This makes it most interesting for home seamstress, because it takes so little time to make. The surplus vest adds a bit of contrast in white silk plique to floral print in silk crepe in vivid red tones—sketched in Style No. 494. Pattern can be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Note in miniature diagrams one-piece back; two front sections with circular flounce joined to right front. In the 36-inch size, 3 3/4 yards of 40-inch material with 1/2 yard of 40-inch contrasting, is all that is needed. It will also make up splendidly in featherweight woolen, georgette crepe, printed cotton foulard and plain silk crepe with suede finish. Price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap entirely carefully.

PARIS NEME

The fine straw that is most popular for hats to top georgette or chiffon frocks is Paris Neme. A majority of these hats are pastel colored, with extreme novelty in cut and ribbon trim the favorite.

VELVET GIRLDE

A pale pink chiffon evening gown, with skirt fullness introduced front, back and both sides, has a wide girde of rose velvet that is quaint and charmingly feminine looking.

LINEN TUCK-IN

A pale peach handkerchief linen blouse, worn with a black silk suit, is made tuck-in and has a scalloped collar which sits outside the coat's collar and a triple, scalloped jabot.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SCA NER

Come to think of it, isn't it to believe that "the public" has reached the stage where it can over-see tennis played by stockless custard pie usually appear just that, plain and unadorned, on most any menu? And, come to think of it, isn't there something about "vanilla custard pie" that makes your mouth water just a little more than plain "custard pie"?

All these sage reflections being brought about by the fact that the restaurant where I lunched this noon listed it as "vanilla custard pie," making it taste extra good, and making me think I was getting something quite superfluous, and making me wonder why similar tricks couldn't be used in a dozen ways—as well as matters of personality as well as culinary ones.

TWIN DIVORCE. Two twin sister wives recently appeared before a Los Angeles lawyer asking divorces from their twin brother husbands. Somehow that sounds a little thick—as if the ladies were intrigued by the colorful publicity phase of the case rather than deeply distraught about it. Still, perhaps it's consistent at that. Perhaps the two sisterly temperaments were so alike as to find it necessary to simultaneously divorce two brothers, also with too like temperaments.

NO, NO! A school-marm of Cambridge, Md., aged 19, eloped a few days ago, but was sent back to her home and school when detectives who trailed her told her that her paramour in the elopement was married. The girl learned that her mother had hired a substitute for her classes while she was gone, and rather expected to return to her school teacher's desk with no questions asked. If that really happened the millennium has surely come, for the date few indeed have been the school teachers anywhere who have "gotten away" with anything.

WHAT OF RARE LEGS? Queen Mary, who really does seem to have considerable influence so far as the fashions of her country are concerned, is probably responsible for the edict forbidding the tennis players at Wimbledon to play bare-legged. Officials at Wimbledon merely issue the notice, explaining that the public comes to see tennis, and not to be distracted by bare legs. Oh hum, somehow one is inclined

PUBLICITY'S POWER. Probably very little sympathy need be wasted on Madame Rosika Schwimmer, 52, known as "the woman without a country," for her country, Hungary, has expatriated her, and America refuses her citizenship papers because she will not say that in time of war she would "bear arms for her country."

BETTER PUBLICITY HOUNDS. Women, however, as a class, are not yet educated to the value of publicity as are men. What woman, for instance, would have herself nailed into a packing case and shipped thousands of miles in order to get inside a Hollywood studio for whom there isn't a "no admittance" sign before? That's what Charles Loeb did a few days ago. Women may not do the spectacular stunt like this to attain their chance, but Hollywood casting directors say that hundreds and thousands of girls will stand the "gaff" of waiting and cash-girling and doing all kinds of drab, menial labor just to wait their chance for the studio job, while the boys and men who come for the big shot, soon get discouraged and trek back home to an easier way of living.

WATER-CRESS SOUP. Delicious and very pretty is water-cress soup. It is best made with a little chicken broth as a base, to which thickening and cream or milk have been added. Season and put the chopped water-cress in just five minutes before serving.

FLARING SLEEVES. New afternoon frocks of figured chiffon for hot days feature flaring sleeves. Often they are tight to the elbow and then grow bell-shaped or split to form a sleeve that falls away from the arm.

TOBACCO LINGERIE. New French lingerie introduces a chic tobacco shade in ninon, trimmed with beige Alencon lace.

Predict Million Gate For Schmeling Bout

Only 16 Days Away—Report $125,000 Worth of Ducats Sold—Unusual Interest in Show.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, June 11.—If you tried to tell anyone two years ago that the time would come when a German and a Spaniard would fight before a million witnesses in an American city, he would have remonstrated with you in a mild, gentle way about remaining out in the sun too long. I personally am acquainted with a lot of Germans and Spaniards who could fight from now until next Thursday a week and the event would remain strictly confidential for years and years. It must be that a lot depends on the German and the Spaniard in question. Anyhow, the milk fund show, featuring Schmeling and Paulino, is all of sixteen days away this morning, yet the betting is "six, two and even" that the enterprise will run into a million dollars. If it does, it will be the only fight in all history to draw a million or better with two men, neither of whom is named Dempsey.

According to those running the show, there is as much as $125,000 "inside the window" even at this immature date, it being an accepted fact that only the rich or the rabid or both go for a thing like a prize fight with a lot of unseasonable haste. The rest of us are too busy until the last moment trying to hold out breakfast money on the little woman. Anyhow, I sense the fact that Madison Square Garden is much impressed with the prominence of its early customers, for it is soon to publish a list that is as long as the principal's list this time. They say the first 25 rows of "patron ringside seats" are pretty well shot.

This never happened before in any fight with which Dempsey was not identified. A Spaniard named Tommy tried it with a certain Heeney, or an uncertain Heeney, and failed in the most artistic manner imaginable. Previously, Brother Tunney had been identified with some $4,500,000 worth of fighting, assisted by Dempsey. The only inference to be taken from this is that the assistance must have been more important than the foreman, overseer or scoutmaster, as the case may have been.

Dempsey to Be Absent

There also is only one inference to be drawn from the belief that Schmeling and Paulino will "gross" more than a million dollars on the night of June 27. Dempsey won't be one of the principals this time; in fact, according to the latest report I get, he won't be there. The inference, therefore, is that boxing sollar is to sponsor its second million dollar man and, if this name isn't Schmeling, there must be three of them.

Paulino has what is known as a Spanish following and there are those who string with the Basque because he innocently believes that prize fighters should fight. But Schmeling's name undoubtedly is the real come-on. Next to Dempsey and perhaps Firpo, he is the greatest personal magnet in boxing has known in all the years of its history. Like Firpo, he attained this distinction within a brief period of months and, like Firpo again, he did it legitimately.

In fact, both of the milk fund principals are drawing in the dollars on their merits. They are selling tickets with which to cull the customers and, in four of his five big money fights, even Dempsey himself couldn't say that.

The Nut Cracker

Did it ever occur to you that perhaps the reason you don't see much horse sense displayed at a race track is that so many people make asses of themselves?

In accordance with our annual custom of making at least one serious mistake annually, this department hereby picks the basque wood-chopper to win.

Our reason is that we hear somebody told Max that he looked like Jack Dempsey. Ever since then he has been weaving and bobbing all over the place.

Pat Malone of the Cubs was given the name, "Jughead," when he broke into baseball down in Knoxville. Pat found the guy and pulled several teeth for him with a left hook, but the name stuck.

The fans called him "Irish," which he liked, when he was winning, and "Jughead," which he despised, when he was losing the business. He won about 70 per cent of his games, but the name of "Jughead" stuck.

Thigo was the subject of a "hot tip" just before the English Derby by "Everone" who was completely fooled when he actually won.

THOMPSON CAPTAINS MONTANA

"Cat" Thompson, one of the greatest college basketball players, will captain the Montana State basketball team next season.

Last Night Fights

At Newark, N. J.—Vince Dundee, Baltimore welterweight, outpointed Izzy Grove, New York, 10.

At Flint, Mich.—Del Fontain, Canadian middleweight champion, kayoed Roy Williams, of Chicago, 4.

At Springfield, Mass.—Floyd Hybert, Cleveland, knocked out Spider Kelly, California, middleweight, 2.

If somebody doesn't come to the rescue with a solution pretty soon, boxing writers in general are going to lose a bit of their prestige. Truly, it's a tough job judging a boxing bout, but when it reaches a point where a dozen so-called experts sitting in the first row on four sides of a ring are divided in their opinions as to which fighter won, it is high time some one invented a more satisfactory way of telling the winner of a prizefight.

This sort of a situation is coming up continually in New York. It wasn't so long ago that the famous Grantland Rice and W. O. McGeehan of the New York Tribune emphatically declared in their paper that Dempsey had fouled Sharkey only to have the slow motion pictures prove that their eyes had misled them.

The latest occurrence of this very common phenomenon comes from Philadelphia where "Kid" Chocolate was returned the winner of Vidal Gregorio the other night much to the disgust of many of the cash customers. Mr. Murray Lewin of the New York "Daily Mirror," and Mr. Wilbur Wood, of the New York "Sun," were among the distinguished metropolitan critics who sat in at the ringside and viewed the carnage. Mr. Lewin expresses himself as quite in accord with the decision rendered. "To have rendered any other decision than that one given—would have been nothing short of robbery," he wrote the next day and his tabulation of the battle gave Chocolate eight rounds and Gregorio but two. Mr. Wood must have been sitting on the other side of the ring. The banner over his story the next day brands the decision as "the most atrocious known to boxing." New York, opines Mr. Wood, has seen some "atrocious decisions in the last few years but the verdict handed down in favor of Chocolate tops them all." Gregorio, continues the expert for the "Sun," clearly won all but two rounds—the fourth going to Chocolate by a shade and the tenth being even. It must all be very discouraging to the poor soul who places his trust in the boxing writers and is a firm believer in the infallibility of the press. Fortunately we have a suspicion that the number of such poor souls is decreasing rapidly.

We had a similar affair all our own at the recent clash between O'Brien and Ebbets in Hartford. State boxing writers were divided in their opinion as to which man won. The two Hartford papers were divided. Two others in Springfield had the same attitude while in Meriden it was the same story. With a grand mix-up like this, I cannot help but sympathize with the poor fans who form their opinions principally from what they read in the newspapers.

About the best remedy we can think of for a boxing fan is to read only one newspaper account of a fight. For if he takes a glimpse at two or three of them he is sure to be more bawled up than ever. If that particular story doesn't agree with your version, let it go at that, for, after all, one opinion is about as good as another in this much abused boxing racket.

Von Porat Just About Kayoes Emmett Rocco

Chicago, June 11.—Otto Von Porat, Lank Norwegian, remained a heavyweight menace today, but by the closest of squeaks, after a bout in which he had no end of trouble in connecting for a knockout over Emmett Rocco, hefty Pennsylvania Italian.

Von Porat eventually deposited a terrific left hook on Rocco's elusive jaw in the seventh round of what was to have been a 10-round go. The bell saved Rocco but he was in no shape or mood to report for the eighth round and his seconds tossed the towel in surrender.

The match featured a show witnessed by 12,000 in Chicago stadium.

Lakewood, N. J., June 11—Joe Jacobs, Max Schmeling's American manager, declared today he was in receipt of two offers for a bout between the German heavyweight and Jack Dempsey.

Athlete's Instinct Greatest Asset; Born in Men, It Can't Be Acquired

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 11.—What makes the great athlete great? That question has stymied some of the larger intellects since time without memory, yet it is so elementary that it ought to be in McGuffey's Third Reader with the following: (Q) What do you see? (A) A horse. (Q) Will the horse kick the lady? (A) The horse is an intelligent animal. Nobody with intelligence ever kicks a lady. It is simpler to shoot, hit, stab, cut with or without intelligence seems able to answer the original question intelligently. Pressed for an answer, the great one attributes his success to clean living and plenty of rest, to study and application, to the fact that he is kind to his mother and to any and all of the obvious responses that go into the making of a set of banal ideas. And they miss the most obvious and plausible answer of all; namely, instinct.

Dempsey as Example

Somebody asked Jack Dempsey, a great natural puncher to illustrate his right and left hook one day this spring when he was working out in Artie McGovern's. He obligingly complied or, at least, he thought he did. The method actually illustrated was How Not to Punch. Dempsey apparently had no idea of form while practicing on this air. But if you placed a chin in front of him, he would have hit it perfectly. His instinct would have guided the punch, where previously his Reason failed.

Ruth probably has no notion to what goes into the swing that propels the ball into distant horizons. I doubt if Gehrig has, either. They simply know how to swing in order to get the maximum of results, without knowing why they are able to do it. Instinct, again. Keeler and McGraw and Hall Chase probably were more technical about the why and wherefore of the matter but Nature originally made them good place hitters and any studying on the subject of cause and effect merely made them better. In fact, I doubt whether the most studious of technicians could better even a fair hitter without the necessary co-ordination of eyes and

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Every time you wear a shoe that's too small you put your foot in it.

SENSE and NONSENSE

A MOTORIST'S PRAYER. "Teach us to drive through life without skidding into other people's business. Preserve our brake linings that we may stop before we go too far. Help us to hear the knocks in our own motors and close our ears to the clashing of other people's gears. Keep alcohol in our radiators and out of our stomachs. Absolve us from the mania of trying to pass the other automobile on a narrow road. Open our eyes to the traffic signs and keep our feet on the brakes."

THERE'S ONE IN EVERY AUTO. Young Wife (to husband fixing balky car)—What's causing the trouble, dear? Novice—I don't know exactly, but I think it's the exasperator.

IT'S LIFE IS AN OPEN BOOK. Ford Sport Coupe—Model A, rumble seat, used very little privately; will sacrifice my equity.—St. Louis, Mo., Post-Dispatch.

Keeper (speaking of new arrival at Asylum): What's the matter with this fellow? Superintendent: He says the air is free and goes around releasing it from people's automobile tires.

"There's no back seat driver in our car," he boasted. "So your wife always is at the wheel when you go riding, eh?" sarcastically retorted the other married one.

"Is the country very thickly settled around your farm?" "Heavens, no! There ain't more than six filling stations to the mile."

Motorist (waking): "Where am I, where am I?" Nurse: "This is No. 110." Motorist: "Room or cell?"

Tourist—Say, boy, where does this road go to? Indignant—It don't go anywhere. It's here every morning when I come along.

Judge (to woman witness): Do you understand the nature of an oath? Witness: Well, my husband is a golfer and my son drives a second hand flyver.

"Dear Editor: What should I take when I am run down?"—Anxious. "Dear Anxious: Take the license number."

Blinks—"She's an awful snob, isn't she?" Jinks—"Say, she even gets sore if a cheap flyver parks within 25 feet of her high-priced bus when it is parked downtown."

Dealer: Smith, why don't you sell that rattle-trap, and buy a new car? Smith—Nothing doing. It makes so much noise I can't hear my wife's directions from the back seat.

It's a feminine age. Lizzies everywhere, three Ruths in Congress, and the cars run by Ethyl.

LETTER GOLF

A NATURAL PUZZLE. Today's puzzle is an expedition into nature lore. Change a TREE into a BUSH in seven strokes. That's par and one solution is on another page.

Grid for Letter Golf puzzle. The word 'TREE' is written in the top row. The bottom row contains the word 'BUSH'.

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2—You change only one letter at a time. 3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The mule that kicked the poor scarecrow laughed out loud, "Ha, ha! Ho, ho!" "You bad, bad mule," one Tiny cried. "You are no good at all. We really ought to punish you, and make you very sorry, too." Just then the band of Tinymites heard Mister Scarecrow fall. "Oh, never mind that crazy mule," yelled little Scouty. "As a rule, a mule is always kicking. Maybe that is all they know. I just never heard the scarecrow yell. Perhaps he's calling for our help. Let's all of us run up to him. That's where we ought to go." "You're right," cried Carpy. "I can see that he's as helpless as can be. That was an awful kick, I guess. Come on, let's lend a hand." And then they heard the scarecrow shout, "My hay insides are falling out. The mule has nearly wrecked me and I don't think I can stand. They reached the scarecrow right away. He almost seemed a bunch of hay. The mule had kicked his clothes near off, and torn them badly, too. "Oh, my," said Clowny. "This is sad. The whole affair is just too bad. I fear we've lost our scarecrow, 'cause there's nothing we can do." "Oh, yes there is," kind Scouty cried. "At least my plan can now be tried. I have a needle and a thread, and I know how to sew. We'll put his stuffing right back. Come on, it's time that we begin. He'll be a brand new scarecrow, lads, the first thing that you know." And so they stuffed him up real tight. Said Carpy, "You'll soon be all right. Just lie real still. We Tinymites will have you looking fit." Then Scouty started in to sew. At first he took the task real slow, to save the scarecrow pain, but, see, it didn't hurt a bit. (The Tinymites run into a field in the next story.)
