SILK WORKER DROPS DEAD AT HIS JOB

Rumor That He Was Electrocuted Causes Doctors to Work Over His Body for Hours; Old Employee.

Edward Stevenson, 62 years old, who for nearly thirty years has been an employee of Cheney Brothers either dropped dead of a heart attack or received 220 volts while at work in the Ribbon Mill at that plant here shortly before noon today.

Complete details as to how the accident happened were not available this afternoon. It was announced at the mill that a statement would be made later in the day by Howell Cheney, official of the firm.

Meanwhile several relays of workmen kept working over the man, refusing to admit defeat. The man was stricken about 11:30 this morning when he came in contact with one of the looms in the RIA department over which Roger Williams is foreman.

Physicians Arrive Dr. Thomas G. Sloane and Dr. Robert P. Knapp, who are connected with the Medical Department at Cheney Brothers, rushed to the first aid room in the Ribbon Mill to give whatever aid they could.

FRENCH PLANE IN PERFECT TAKE-OFF

Paris ahead! The perfect take-off of the huge French monoplane "Yellow Bird" as it roared into the air from the beach at Old Orchard, Me., soon to head out over the Atlantic, is shown above. Five minutes after this picture was taken the bright-hued craft, despite a weight of 13,700 pounds, had disappeared over the horizon at a speed which quickly left behind a coast guard plane that was to have accompanied it 150 miles to sea.

PRESIDENT WINS HIS FARM RELIEF BATTLE

WANT STATE COURT TO TRY MURDER CASE

All Minnesota Aroused Over Killing of Confectioner by Customs Guard; Federal Report "Whitewash."

International Falls, Minn., June 14.—Efforts were in motion today to substitute a charge of murder for one of second degree manslaughter against Emmett J. White, government border guard, and to resist transfer of his prosecution from state jurisdiction to federal courts.

White killed Henry Virkula, confectioner, as the latter was motoring Saturday night to his Big Falls, Minn., home with his wife and two daughters.

Citizens today were signing a petition addressed to Gov. Christianson and Attorney General G. A. Youngquist asking that state courts be permitted to retain jurisdiction in White's case.

Congressman William A. Pittenger of this district telegraphed from Washington that he had requested the treasury department not to attempt to take the prosecution from state jurisdiction.

A determination to change the charge from manslaughter to one of murder, with life imprisonment as a possible penalty in event of conviction, was voiced by David Hurlbut, Koochiching county prosecutor.

"Considering the nature of the crime," Hurlbut declared, "the present bond of $1,500 is ridiculously low. I shall demand that the charge be changed to one of murder, not only because this designation more fittingly describes the act, but also because the defendant then can be held without bond or under one that is prohibitive to his resources."

White has elected to remain in jail because, it is understood, of feeling roused by the Virkula slaying. Completing their investigation here, Henry A. Roberts, special agent of the treasury department, and Oscar Dahly, federal customs inspector at Duluth, went to Duluth to consolidate their findings in a single report to be forwarded to Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of customs and prohibition.

Asserting he has been apprised of the substance of their report, prosecutor Hurlbut described it as "almost a whitewash."

AVIATORS HONORED

Madrid, June 14.—King Alfonso today pinned aviation medals upon Ignace Iglesias and Francisco Jimenez for their trans-Atlantic flight from Seville to Brazil. The King also pinned the military medal upon Commander Franco, Spanish aviator planning a round the world flight.

Senate Opposition to Hoover's Policy Collapses Overnight Following Decisive Vote of House Yesterday.

Washington, June 14.—President Hoover's farm relief program encountered clear sailing today after the storms of the past weeks, and progressed swiftly toward final enactment.

The House and Senate conferees met this morning, speedily agreed to knock out the debenture plan, following its overwhelming defeat in the House yesterday, and shortly thereafter the House formally adopted the debenture-less report without a dissenting vote.

There was no debate, no opposition and no roll call. The completed report now goes to the Senate where it is expected to pass. Even Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, who has fought for the debenture, acquiesced in knocking it out, and his signature was attached to the report along with the other conferees.

If quick action can be obtained in the Senate, it is likely that the bill will be on President Hoover's desk tomorrow for signature.

Washington, June 14.—A year to the day after his nomination for the presidency, Congress was ready today to send to President Hoover a new farm relief bill carrying out his interpretation of the Republican platform.

MERCHANTS REPORT "BRISK BUSINESS"

Opening of Community Days Finds Town Crowded by Bargain Seekers.

Judging from an interview with several of the principal merchants along Main street, business was very successful yesterday and last night which marked the opening of Manchester Community Days.

Several of the stores that offered special bargains in certain articles, reports a complete sell-out. Others did a satisfactory amount. The streets were thronged with people, all anxious to get first "shot" at the numerous bargains.

Many Autos Parking space for automobiles was at a premium. All of the spaces on Main street were continuously occupied and the side streets were occupied for a considerable distance from the main thoroughfare.

The promised "showers tonight and tomorrow" failed to materialize last evening, and up until noon, at least, today. This was considered a good break for the merchants and they are hoping that the remaining two days will find conditions as favorable. Many out of town people came here to trade last night.

INAUGURATE NEW AIR-RAIL FAST TRAVEL

Week-End Jant to California Starts from New York Tonight; Reach Los Angeles Monday Morning.

New York, June 14.—Just a week-end jaunt to California! That's exactly what's going to take place for a party of men and women leaving Grand Central Station at 6 o'clock this evening, on the inaugural trip of the air-rail service of New York Central, Universal Aviation Corporation and the Santa Fe Railway.

For that group will be in Los Angeles at 9 o'clock Monday morning, in plenty of time for business, or whatever else they want to do.

This unprecedented speed for a regularly established daily service from coast-to-coast is made possible by a 1,000 mile span by airplane from Cleveland to Garden City, Kansas.

The departure of the inaugural party will be celebrated by informal ceremonies at 5:15 o'clock on the east gallery of Grand Central Terminal.

Mayor James J. Walker, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central, and a number of other distinguished persons will take part.

Heading the list of travelers are Graham B. Grosvenor, president of the Aviation Corporation, of which Universal is a subsidiary, and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, new Washington counsel for Aviation Corporation.

Just before the Southwestern Limited pulls out at 6 o'clock, Mayor Walker is to give Mrs. Willebrandt a bottle. It will contain water, taken from the Atlantic ocean, and to be emptied into the Pacific upon the party's arrival there.

Other members of the inaugural party leaving here are C. W. Y. Currie and F. H. Baird of New York Central and Donald M. Ewing of Universal. At Cleveland tomorrow morning they will be escorted to the Municipal airport, there to board 12-passenger Fokker tri-motored monoplanes of

New 60-Hour Service The new 60-hour service, America's first coast-to-coast air-mail route, has been named the "Great Circle Line," because the course followed a continuation on land of the Great Circle path followed by Lindbergh and other trans-Atlantic fliers on water.

Arriving in Cleveland at 6:05 tomorrow morning, the party will be escorted to the Municipal airport, there to board 12-passenger Fokker tri-motored monoplanes of

Frank Rockas, 13, the youngest of the trio, was remanded to the Industrial School. Jerry Nelson, 19, and Wendell Hardy, 17, were bound over to the next term of Superior Court in September under bonds of $5,000. They will await trial in jail.

YELLOW BIRD WINGS WAY STEADILY ACROSS ATLANTIC

N. COVENTRY YOUTH DROWNS AT BOLTON

Manchester Police and Firemen Assist in Recovering Body of 19-Year-Old Boy

Apparently seized with cramps or with a heart attack, Elmore L. Burnham, 19-years-old North Coventry youth, was drowned late yesterday afternoon at Bolton Pond. It was the first tragedy of its kind at the lake in 100 years.

The Burnham boy, with two other friends went to the lake for a swim. The other youths were Roy, his 15-year-old brother, and Charles Scott, a chum.

Not satisfied with doing the stunt once, they tried to repeat the trip. Roy and the Scott boy were in the lead. Twenty yards from the goal, the pair turned around to see how close Elmore was. They were shocked when he was nowhere in sight.

Manchester Called. Telephone calls were sent, among other places, to Manchester Police Headquarters and to the South Manchester Fire Department here, both of which sent men to assist in the work of locating the body.

Chief Samuel G. Gordon and Lieutenant William Barron went from Police Headquarters while Driver James Schaub of Hose and Ladder Company, No. 3, accompanied by John Wagner, Jack Hunt, Michael Sulte and Tado Vince, all hurried to the scene in automobiles.

Near Holl Cottage. The scene of the drowning was about 40 feet beyond the diving raft in front of E. J. Holl's cottage. It was nearly two hours after the drowning the body was recovered, this being largely due to the fact that Burnham's two companions did not know the exact spot at which he went down.

Found by Schaub. After considerable effort, the body was finally located by Schaub who was scanning the bottom of the pond through an ordinary piece of drain tile. The body was then brought to the surface by the aid of potato hook. The boy had been drowned in ten feet of water.

Efforts to resuscitate the boy were unsuccessful although willing hands worked over the boy's body for nearly three quarters of an hour. Bernard Sheridan, a Manchester man, was one of Witnesses summoned today, which included Thomas W. Martin, president, and Logan Martin, general counsel, of the Alabama Power Company; R. B. Chandler, publisher of the press, and Joseph F. McGowan, Mobile financier, were excused by Judge Robert Healy, counsel for the commission.

"I'm very certain," Healy said, "that I cannot develop all the things I want to develop about the Mobile Press unless I have the opportunity to examine the witnesses together."

TWO DESPERATE BOYS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Third of Trio Who Escaped from New Hampshire School Is Sent Back by Putnam Court.

Putnam, Conn., June 14.—The three youths who escaped Monday from the New Hampshire Industrial School at Manchester and were arrested in Danbury Wednesday night, were arraigned in City Court here late yesterday on two counts of theft.

Frank Rockas, 13, the youngest of the trio, was remanded to the Industrial School. Jerry Nelson, 19, and Wendell Hardy, 17, were bound over to the next term of Superior Court in September under bonds of $5,000. They will await trial in jail.

NO "OFFICIAL GREETING" AWAITS FRENCH AIRMEN

Paris, June 14.—In view of the private character of the flight, the Yellow Bird will not receive an "official" greeting from the government if it arrives safe and sound this evening, as hoped.

The air ministry gave the following statement to International News Service: "It is uncertain whether Air minister Laurent-Eynac will be present at Le Bourget field to meet the fliers. However, every facility to assist the landing of the monoplane has been ordered despite the private, unofficial character of the flight."

THREE KILLED BY EXPLOSION ON STEAMSHIP

Explosion on Gulf Pier in Dry Dock in Brooklyn Followed by Flames That Swept Ship.

New York, June 14.—Three men were instantly killed and a number injured today by a terrific explosion aboard the steamship gulf pier in the Robbins dry dock at the foot of Dwight street, Brooklyn.

Flames swept the ship after the blast. Ambulances, rescue squads and fire apparatus were rushed to the scene.

TORCH MURDERER SENTENCED TO DIE

Counsel Declares He Will Defeat Electric Chair by Appeals to Higher Courts

Elizabeth, N. J., June 14.—"Even if it is only by means of the natural death that is bound to come soon, we will defeat the electric chair."

This was the statement made today by Francis A. Gordon, young attorney, whose client, Henry Colin Campbell, was sentenced yesterday to die during the week of July 15 for the torch murder of his bigamous wife, Mrs. Mildred Mowry.

Immediately after Justice Clarence E. Case of the Supreme Court meted out the sentence of death to the 60-year-old slayer following the verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree reached by the jury after four hours' deliberation, Gordon laid his plans for an appeal to a higher court.

"The case will be taken before the Court of Errors and Appeals," Gordon said. "This will automatically act as a stay of execution, for the court does not meet until the fall."

"If this court sustains the verdict, I will appeal to the Court of Pardons. No stone shall be left unturned to prevent this broken, irresponsible man from going to his death in the electric chair."

Gordon said it was likely that the case will not be disposed of finally until after the first of next year. Medical men who have examined the murderer have expressed the opinion that the ravages of disease and drug addiction are almost certain to end his span of life before that time.

Verdict a Surprise The unequivocal verdict of murder in the first degree came as a surprise to the huge crowd which jammed into every nook and corner of the tiny courtroom where the sordid details of the woman's murder were unfolded. Twice the jury came out of the deliberating room, and on the second occasion their questions clearly indicated they were considering a verdict of first degree murder coupled with a recommendation of mercy from the court.

They asked the judge to define the precise meaning of "mercy" and just what powers it placed in the hands of the court.

Campbell, once a $30,000 a year publicity man and advertising executive, murdered Mrs. Mowry, a widow, on the morning of Feb. 23, after driving aimlessly through the country in his car. He shot her through the head, drenched her

CHANGES COURSE TO PASS AZORES

Reports During Night Show Steady Progress But Unexpected Gas Consumption Causes Deviation from Route—Crowds Gather at Le Bourget Field—Rumor of Disaster Off Portugal Unconfirmed.

BULLETIN:

At 2:30 o'clock the "Yellow Bird," somewhat off its course, appeared to be approaching the coast of Spain.

LATEST REPORTS

Paris, June 14.—An unconfirmed rumor reached Paris early this evening that the French trans-Atlantic plane, the Yellow Bird, had been forced down off Portugal.

There was no confirmation of the rumor. Frantic efforts were made immediately, both from Paris and direct from the field at Le Bourget, to get into touch with Lisbon either by wire or radio.

Spread of the rumor caused tremendous excitement among the throngs gathered at the flying field in anticipation of welcoming the fliers.

NO NEWS AT LISBON

Lisbon, June 14.—No news concerning the progress of the flight of the French monoplane, the Yellow Bird, had been received in Lisbon at a late hour today.

No confirmation could be obtained here on a rumor reported from Paris, that the airplane had been forced down somewhere off the Portuguese coast.

S. S. NIAGARA REPORTS PLANE

London, June 14.—The Yellow Bird passed over the steamship Niagara 110 miles northeast of the Central News. The French monoplane sent a radiogram saying "All O. K."

This message was received by Central News shortly before 5 p. m. (London summer time). This is 1.15 a. m. Connecticut daylight saving time.

NOT SIGHTED AT AZORES Horta, Azores, June 14.—A strong south wind was blowing off the Azores late this afternoon. Up to 5 o'clock the Yellow Bird had not been sighted.

Paris, June 14.—The giant trans-Atlantic monoplane, "Yellow Bird," driving relentlessly over the long "water hop" between the Main and European Atlantic coasts, had reached a position of 26 west longitude, 47 north latitude, at 1 p. m. Paris summer time today. This is 8 a. m. (Connecticut daylight saving time.)

This information was contained in a wire-less message from Armeno Lotti, Jr., radio operator and sponsor of the flight, to his father.

This was the corrected position, the first bearings given by young Lotti having placed the plane at 29 west longitude, 42 north latitude.

The senior Lotti, a wealthy Paris hotel owner, received the message from his ocean-flying son shortly before departing for Le Bourget flying field, the Yellow Bird's destination.

In Better Position The corrected bearings place the big monoplane in a much more favorable position than those first given in the message, which placed the plane about 200 miles due north of the Azores; approximately 2,100 miles east of Old Orchard, and 1,500 miles southwest of Paris.

The corrected position places the plane about 500 miles northeast of the Azores and between 1,000 and 1,200 miles southwest of Paris.

The difference in the two positions was considered highly important by aviation officials at Le Bourget field, because the corrected bearings place the plane fully 300 miles nearer Paris at an hour when the consumption of motor fuel on the long grind must have considerably depleted the tanks of the plane. At 5 o'clock this afternoon (ten a. m. Connecticut daylight saving time) the crowds of spectators already were trekking toward the Le Bourget field to welcome the fliers. They were kept in order at the approaches to the field by troops.

New York, June 14.—Another trans-Atlantic flight appeared to be nearing a successful termination as the late hours of the morning wore along today. At 9 a. m. the giant Paris-bound monoplane, "Yellow Bird," carrying Armeno Lotti, Jean Assolant, Rene Lefevre and possibly an American stowaway, should have been approximately 740 miles from Bourget airport, Paris, or 2,400 miles east of Old Orchard Beach, Me., where the huge ship made a "take off" at 10:08 a. m., yesterday.

LOG OF YELLOW BIRD

June 13.—10:08 a. m., New York daylight saving time—Yellow Bird hopped off at Old Orchard, Maine, for Paris.

6:45 p. m.—Reported by steamship Wytheville, about 850 miles at sea.

June 14, 8 a. m.—New York daylight saving time—M. Lotti, Sr., received a radiogram from his son, Armeno Lotti, one of the fliers in the Yellow Bird, giving the position of the plane as 500 miles northeast of the Azores.

8:30 a. m.—French liner Rochambeau received radiogram from the Yellow Bird, saying it was changing its course, planning to fly southward toward the Azores.

6:00 p. m.—London Time—Passes over S. S. Niagara, northeast of Azores.

New York, June 14.—Another trans-Atlantic flight appeared to be nearing a successful termination as the late hours of the morning wore along today.

At 9 a. m. the giant Paris-bound monoplane, "Yellow Bird," carrying Armeno Lotti, Jean Assolant, Rene Lefevre and possibly an American stowaway, should have been approximately 740 miles from Bourget airport, Paris, or 2,400 miles east of Old Orchard Beach, Me., where the huge ship made a "take off" at 10:08 a. m., yesterday.

At 8 a. m., today (Connecticut Daylight Saving Time) an L. N. S. cable from Paris started the plane passed directly over the Azores, according to Armeno Lotti, Sr., who announced he had received a radiogram from his son.

International News Service dispatches indicated that the plane had maintained an average speed of 100 miles an hour during the first 23 hours of its flight; if it holds to this pace for the remainder of the hop it should reach Le Bourget about 4 p. m. (East Daylight Saving Time) this afternoon.

The latest authoritative dispatch, originating with high-powered radio stations along the coast of New England, indicated that all was well aboard the plane.

This dispatch revealed that two steamships had been in radio communication with the "Yellow Bird," when it was about 2,000 miles from Old Orchard. The fliers, according to the dispatch, talked with a ship whose radio call letters were G J C. D, believed to be the liner Laconia and a French steamship, whose radio call letters were F N T W.

Some concern was felt for the safety of the fliers during the night but this was quickly dispelled with the coming of dawn. Because of its great speed and possibly because it was flying unusually high the big plane was not sighted nor heard during the hours of darkness and early today.

Bad Weather Prevails off the European Coast today, but aviation men here do not believe that this will seriously hamper the fliers. They point out that the plane will be able to ride wind bumps and circulate low pressure areas with comparative ease because it has already consumed the greater portion of its heavy load of gasoline.

Another element — unforeseen when the plane took off yesterday — came into the situation, however. This is the case of the young stowaway, Arthur Schriber of Portland, Me., who is believed to have secreted himself behind a gas tank when the "Yellow Bird," started its flight.

The added weight of the youth may interfere seriously with the operation of the plane if unusually stormy weather is encountered.

If all goes well, the "Yellow Bird" and its crew should arrive here sometime this afternoon or early this evening.

All Popular. The three airmen are exceedingly popular.

SILK WORKER DROPS DEAD AT HIS JOB

Dr. Sloane's Opinion
Dr. Sloane said that he did not believe a current of 220 volts would prove fatal to a person regardless of whether or not he had a weak heart. He said that he believed there was no hope for Stevenson to live; in fact, he practically so much as said that he was dead, although adding that resuscitation methods would be continued until about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Stevenson was employed as a helper in the weaving department of the mill and his chief duties consisted of delivering filling to the weavers in Foreman Williams' room. It is believed that he collapsed against a loom operated by Kane in view of the fact that the latter was the first one to reach his side.

Eyewitness Story
Although it was impossible to interview Kane at the mill this afternoon, his wife said that her husband was all upset when he came home for dinner and didn't eat a bite. "He told me he got hurt by electricity," she said, using the words, "I got some of it in my arms." She said he was badly shaken and after letting her know he was alright, hurried back to the mill.

Some Suppositions
In case both men did get an electric shock, it is not plain how they came into contact with the current. Whether it was due to a short circuit or whether Stevenson touched part of the motor, has not yet been determined. The majority of the baskets in which the filling is distributed hang on wire framework which separate the looms and one of these may in some way have become charged.

News Spreads Rapidly
The news of the accident spread like wildfire through the mills, especially at noon when it was the chief topic of conversation. Mr. Stevenson was born in Ireland, in December, 1867 and entered the employ of Cheney Brothers in 1890. He had worked steadily for that concern with the exception of a ten year period during which he worked elsewhere.

In addition to his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Stevenson, lived with his daughter, Margaret, who is employed in the training section of the weaving department at Cheney Brothers.

can campaign pledges to agriculture.
As a result of the President's two-to-one victory in the House, Congress will approve a farm bill, stripped of the export debenture plan which the Senate twice adopted over Mr. Hoover's opposition. The debentureless bill will be approved finally by both House and Senate, probably this afternoon, as a routine matter. The Senate opposition to the President's farm policy having collapsed overnight.

With farm relief about to be disposed of, the reappointment and immigration issues already settled and the tariff not yet ready for the Senate, both Republican and Democratic leaders have agreed for an all-Summer vacation for Congress. Senator Watson (R) of Ind., the majority leader, announced it would begin next Wednesday, although Senator Robinson (D) of Ark., the minority leader, declared he was ready to send Congress home Saturday.

ABOUT TOWN

The Lindy Social club will hold a meeting Saturday evening at the home of Miss Doris and Miss Ethel Chambers, 39 Hungerford street, Hartford. The usual social time will follow the business.

The fact that this was flag day was proclaimed by the nation's colors flying from occasional private houses, and the flags placed in the stationary standards along Main street.

More than 42,000,000 rabbits are imported into England every year.

PRIMA DONNA WINNER IN SQUARED CIRCLE

Miss Hope Hampton to Enter Opera After Displaying Her Upper Cut.

Paris, June 14.—The first public prima donna on record will enter the ring at the opera comique next week.
She is an American, of course—Miss Hope Hampton.
Miss Hampton began as a movie star. She won great success. She took up boxing and was a smashing success.

Now she is entering the operatic racket where she will knock them cold as manon.
If Miss Hampton packs an oral wallop equal to her left uppercut, she should take the coloratura championship of grand opera, and make all previous singers of the role of manon look like weak sisters.

Coming over on the Leviathan, this tall blond beauty knocked the professional boxing instructor cold in one round. It was a straight left to the jaw, not a look that did the trick.

The singer Miss Hampton will be matched against the "operatic bout," are expressing some fear that the new manon may forget which game she is playing and suddenly drop into pugilistic habits.

While awaiting her debut as a soprano Miss Hampton spends her days punching the bag, trilling the scales and buying new scenery.

TWO DROWN, THREE HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Brooklyn Party Ends at Goshen, N. Y., When Woman Grabs Steering Wheel.

Goshen, N. Y., June 14.—Fannie Rushton and Frieda Friedelmann were drowned, Jennie Elmer, Anna Grossfield and Jacob Gultstein, all of Brooklyn, are in the emergency hospital here suffering from injuries received when the automobile being driven by Gultstein got out of control.

One of the women passengers, riding in the front seat, got panic stricken and steered the car off the road into Brooks pond, just outside village limits at Monroe.

those who helped in this work. Another man who helped in the work was Benjamin Strack, uncle of the drowned youth, who operated a gasoline station nearby. A Good Swimmer.
The odd part of the accident was the fact that Elmore was said to be the best swimmer of the three. The boys swam from the raft to the dam twice and rested for 15 minutes after which Elmore suggested that they repeat the stunt.

All agreed and again they plunged into the water. When Elmore remarked to his fellow companions, "It's not so easy this time," they thought nothing unusual of the incident, for they, too, were tired. And so they kept on toward their destination only to find Elmore missing when they finally looked back.

Did Not Yell.
The fact that no scream for help was heard has failed to shake the belief of the other two boys that their companion was seized with cramps. Others suggested that a weak heart might have been the cause.

Elmore, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burnham of North Coventry, was born in Waterbury, His family only came to Coventry last December from Louisiana where they had been living. The boy's father, who is an insurance investigator, was in Boston at the time of the drowning, but was summoned by telephone and arrived home last evening.

Medical Examiner Dr. William R. Tinker of Manchester viewed the body and pronounced death due to accidental drowning. He was unable to say whether death was caused by cramps or from heart attack.

The funeral of the Burnham boy will be held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock (D. S. T.) from his late home, Rev. Atwood of North Coventry will officiate. Burial will be in South Windsor at 4:30 o'clock.

During the trial, Campbell's attorney made no attempt to mitigate the guilt of his client, but tried to prove the murder was committed by a man so saturated with narcotics that he had not the slightest realization of the crime he was committing. Gordon pleaded for a verdict of guilty in the second degree, so that Campbell might die in prison instead of in the electric chair.

RECORDS SHOW NINE TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHTS

There have been nine successful airplane flights over the North Atlantic since the first flight from west to east, in the 10 years. If the Yellow Bird succeeds it will be the tenth.
The first crossing was made by the United States Navy plane No. 4 in 1919. The other west to east flights were made by:
Sir John Alcock and Sir Arthur Whittell Brown, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, Commander R. E. Byrd and party, Edward Schlee and Edward Brock, Wilmer Stultz and Miss Anna Eshart.

The east to west flights were made by:
Captain Eric Nelson and Lieut. Lowell Smith, Karl von Huenefeldt, Captain Koehn and Major Fitzmaurice.

popular with the French people. Assolant and Lefevre, known as the "Lindberghs of the French aviation, are among the French pilots. Lott, son of a wealthy Parisian, is an amateur pilot. Together the three men have worked for more than a year to make the first French trans-Atlantic flight.

Lott, who is the sponsor and financial backer of the attempt. Keeping in the background at first, he purchased the "Yellow Bird," one of the largest European ships, and outfitted it for a flight across the ocean.
Earlier flight.
Early last September, the expedition was ready. Twice in the early days of the month the three fliers made futile attempts to take off from Le Bourget. Their ship was heavily loaded on September 4, they finally started. Lott, still keeping in the background, was regarded as a stowaway.

After the take off, the fliers intended to proceed to New York, but were blown over Spain and they decided to fly to Rio de Janeiro. The winds shifted again, and the fliers were trying to decide whether to make a long flight down the west coast of Africa or to cross to South America, and then over the Atlantic to them down at Casablanca, Morocco.
The belief was expressed here today that if the flight is successful, the French government will probably change its plans about displacing Assolant and Lefevre. Opposing a flight because of the mendaciously heavy load aboard the plane, the French air ministry compelled the two sergeants to resign from the army, but it is felt they will be re-instated if the flight ends successfully.

SHIP REPORTS THEM

Boston, June 14.—High-powered radio stations on the New England coast at 12:52 a. m. (eastern daylight time) detected the definite word that the Paris-bound monoplane Yellow Bird at approximately 11:52 o'clock last night was talking with two steamships about 2,000 miles east of this coastline.

Searching the air for some trace of the plane, the stations finally received a reply from the United States liner American Farmer.

The radio operator on the American Farmer reported that the Yellow Bird had reported to two other liners that "all was well aboard."
The American Farmer did not receive a message from the plane.
Armeno Lott, Jr., sponsor of the flight from Old Orchard Beach to Paris, is the radio operator on the transatlantic plane. With him are Pilot Jean Assolant and Navigator Rene Lefevre.

Heard Two Calls
The radio operator aboard the American Farmer said that at approximately two hours previous he heard the Yellow Bird radio to a British steamship, whose radio call letters were F N T W.
Radio operators on the New England coastline estimated that the American Farmer was at least 2,000 miles east of the position of the American Farmer was at least 2,000 miles east but the position of the plane at the time the radio-grams were sent by Lott was not known. However, the wave length of the radio pending apparatus aboard the Yellow Bird was 600 metres and the plane, radio operators in this vicinity estimated, must have been within the range of the American Farmer. The call letters of the Yellow Bird are F A X.

CROWDS AT LE BOURGET

Le Bourget, France, June 14.—The hitherto unparalleled enthusiasm which greeted the arrival of Col. Charles Lindbergh on this morning after his trail-blazing flight across the Atlantic two years ago, was threatened with eclipse today as France prepared to welcome its native heroes, Armeno Lott, Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, bound for Le Bourget from Old Orchard Beach, Maine.

As the hours passed with no unfavorable news of the daring attempt, in which the French aviators are trying to cut down Lindbergh's record for the ocean crossing, public excitement reached a pitch, and if the fliers land safely this afternoon, the reception accorded them will be unprecedented in history.

From the early hours of the morning the administrative headquarters of Le Bourget was deluged with requests from persons interested in the progress of the flight, and the break of day saw a huge crowd already assembled at the airport. The airfield was crowded with people, and many brought their lunches prepared to stand about the entire day in the hope of greeting the fliers personally. Almost every hour additional forces of police were assigned to strategic points on the field to keep the crowd in order.

If Lott, Assolant and Lefevre land safely, it goes without saying that the fliers will be considered as conquering heroes, for the French, ever an emotional race, have prayed ever since Lindbergh flew the Atlantic that some daring aviator of French blood might eclipse, or at least equal his magnificent feat.

REPORTED NEAR AZORES
Paris, June 14.—The Yellow Bird was approximately 200 miles north of the azores at 1 o'clock this afternoon (E. A. M. Connecticut daylight saving time), according to Armeno Lott, Sr., who announced he had received a radiogram from the monoplane.

Lott, whose son promoted the flight and is one of the three fliers in the plane, notified Le Bourget Field that his wireless message gave the location of the Yellow Bird as 29 longitude and 42 latitude at 1 o'clock.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the government weather bureau forecast that the fliers would be overtaken by a tall wind, but there were indications of stormy weather off the coast, through which the plane would have to travel.

At that time the Yellow Bird had completed approximately two-thirds of the flight from Le Bourget.

Fayal, Azores, which lies due south of the reported position of the fliers, is about 2,100 miles from Old Orchard, Me.

From their position north of the azores the Yellow Bird must swing in a northeasterly direction.

1500 Miles From Goal
It was estimated that the distance from their 1 p. m. position to Le Bourget Field is approximately 1,500 miles, but air experts assumed that the plane would pick up speed in the later stage of the journey due to steadily decreasing weight from fuel consumption.

Air experts estimated that Aviation Assolant and his companions could do better than 100 miles an hour and that they might reach Le Bourget Field about 1 a. m. Saturday morning. Paris time, or eight o'clock, tonight (Connecticut daylight saving time) if all went well. This was considered about an hour and a half before their arrival at the estimated time off at Old Orchard yesterday morning.

STORMS AHEAD
London, June 14.—Stormy weather and strong headwinds confront the French transatlantic fliers as they approach the European coast, it was announced by weather officials here today.

Gale warnings have been hoisted at virtually all English ports on the west coast of England, and shipping in the vicinity has been warned to be prepared for nasty weather.

LONDON HEARS OF THEM
London, June 14.—The United States liner American Farmer intercepted a radio from the Yellow Bird at 11 o'clock last night, eastern standard time, saying that all on board were well, according to the Exchange Telegraph company.

The radiogram did not give the monoplane's position.

CHANGED COURSE
New York, June 14.—Commander Rollin French, who flew the Rochambeau received a wireless direct from the French monoplane "Yellow Bird" this morning. The message read:
"On account of heavy use of gas we are changing course and going by way of Azores and Portugal coast."
The message was received by Commander Rollin at 7:30 a. m. (Connecticut standard time).

PILOT'S BRIDE WORRIED
New York, June 14.—If Mrs. Pauline Assolant, four-day bride of the pilot of the Yellow Bird, ever gets a good grip on Arthur Schreiber, Arthur's 23 years would save him from a good old-fashioned drubbing.
Arthur, the young man who is believed to have stowed away on the Yellow Bird and Arthur is the young man Mrs. Assolant blames for the diminishing of the plane's fuel supply.

"It is wicked—to stow away on a plane," she said today at the Ritz tower, where she sits hour after hour by the radio. "Do you really think that stowaway is aboard? Terrible—terrible—terrible—I never heard of such a terrible thing."
"They tried to tease me into stowing away, but I would not do such a thing," she said.
Although she was obviously worried, the pretty bride insisted that the Frenchmen would "make it." She was elated when word came that they were near the Azores and remarked that "pretty soon I'll be taking a boat to join Jean."

She's never been to Paris, she said, but "it's Jean I want to see, not Paris."

LICENSE SUSPENDED
Bridgeport, June 14.—Edward T. Buckingham, Jr., a bond salesman, had his license suspended indefinitely here today after a hearing before Philip Devenaux, deputy motor vehicle commissioner, because Buckingham was a few weeks ago collided with a automobile driven by Representative Osborn, of Bethel.

Buckingham was charged with reckless driving.

COLORED MAN STABBED
Middletown, June 14.—William Brown, 35, colored, of Portland, was placed on the danger list at Middletown hospital here this afternoon because of stab wounds he received at Portland last evening apparently at the hands of Alvin Mitchell, 18, also colored, who objected to the way a crap game was going. Mitchell started for Hartford after the stabbing but was arrested by state police on the Glastonbury turnpike, and is being held here without bail on a charge of aggravated assault.

2 YALE STUDENTS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Their Car Wrecked on Way to Smith Graduation; Both in Hospital.

Southwick, Mass., June 14.—Two Yale students, one of them a prominent athlete, were injured, probably fatally, in a motor crash on the College Highway here this afternoon, when a new roadster in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a motor truck.

Fred Loesser, of New Haven, star Yale center and William Robbins of Sewickley, Pa., were the men injured. Both were removed to the Noble hospital at Westfield. Both Loesser and Robbins were unconscious when extricated from the wreck of the roadster which the physician pronounced the injuries of both men serious.

The pair were on their way to the commencement exercises of Smith College at Northampton. The roadster sideswiped the truck after colliding with the rear end and crashed into a heavy timber boundary fence at the side of the road.

TAXES OF PRESENT DAY A PENALTY ON THRIFT

Swampscott, Mass., June 14.—"Some of our Solons might obtain a hint from one of the South Sea islands where men pay taxes according to their height, or from France, where doors and windows are assessed with reference to the population, the inhabitants of the more populous places paying a higher levy for their fresh air and sunshine than the less populous ones."

So declared John G. Lonsdale, St. Louis banker and vice president of the American Bankers' Association, today at a gathering of New England bankers in warning that "there is always a danger point beyond which taxation should not go, a point that is the dividing line between profit and loss, between success and failure."

"The income tax on corporations is too high and I should like to see on record unequivocally for an adequate reduction," said the speaker. "Tax on earned income does deserve attention, because in its present status it imposes a penalty on thrift."

WOMAN IS ACCUSED OF POISONING FOUR

Belair, Md., June 14.—A stern-visaged woman, who has buried her mother-in-law, her husband and two sons in the last four years, sat in the Hartford county jail here today and doggedly protested that she was no modern Borgia, the poisoner of her own kin.

"I don't care what you say or what you suspect," said Mrs. Hattie Stone, "it's all a lie to say I had anything to do with George's death, or the others. I didn't do anything, I tell you."

George was her youngest son, 17. He died ten days ago in convulsions—just as his grandmother, father and elder brother had died before him over a period of several years. He had just graduated from school. Examination of his vital organs disclosed traces of strychnine. Mrs. Stone's arrest followed. And today the authorities were discussing the advisability of exhuming the bodies of the others.

The mother has steadfastly maintained her innocence ever since her arrest in the Stone home at Havre De Grace Wednesday.

Harold Coburn, her attorney, announced today he would apply for a writ of habeas corpus to secure her release if the authorities didn't release her.

The petition today stated that "it is common knowledge" that a merger is impending between the R. C. A. and the International Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Washington, June 14.—Charging that National Chairman John J. Raskob is seeking to pervert the Democratic Party to some unworthy purpose, Rep. John C. Box, (D) of Texas, took the floor of the House today to urge Democrats throughout the country to organize in resistance.

Moscow, June 14.—A solid chunk of pure gold weighing eight pounds was picked out of the government gold mine Nezamety, in Siberia, by a "greenhorn" miner, who had been on the job only a week, according to work from the scene of this strike, today.

The "nugget" is the largest ever found in Siberia.

"Sure, we had several hundred, but they've all gone," came the reply over the phone.
"What? Several hundred admitted and discharged the same day? Heat?"

"Heat is right. It's got you."
"Say, who is this, anyway?"
"Bliss Hardware."
"Excuse it please, I wanted the hospital."

East Hampton, June 14.—William Holmes, of the Grayhill district, was on trial all the morning on a charge of possessing a still. When court adjourned for lunch, Holmes asked his attendant constable for permission to go outside for a breath of air.

Two minutes later Holmes had vanished, and a posse headed by State Policeman Roy Pettigill was seeking him. Two 50-gallon stills were found a mile from his home last evening, and Holmes, the nearest resident, was arrested.

He denied the ownership strenuously and at noon the justice of the peace presiding decided to have new witnesses sought. Then Holmes disappeared.

MUM IS THE WORD WITH AMBASSADOR

Dawes Suppresses Desire to Speak Up on Arrival at Cherbourg.

Cherbourg, France, June 14.—Charles Gates Dawes, newly appointed United States ambassador to England, arrived today on the liner Olympic enroute for London, maintaining a diplomatic silence upon all Anglo-American matters.

A large group of reporters boarded the Olympic and bombarded Ambassador Dawes with questions. He was asked about Premier MacDonald's proposed visit to Washington, his own conference with Premier MacDonald on Sunday, disarmament and other questions, but refused to say a word.

There were times when the ambassador appeared ready to break through his diplomatic silence with some of his justly celebrated strong language, but he contented himself with: "I have nothing to say about that."

FIRE DIST. NEEDS A NEW PULMOTOR

One Now at No. 1 House Out of Order—Could Not Be Used at Bolton.

The South Manchester Fire District is faced with the necessity of purchasing a pulmotor.

Last night when the firemen got the call it was taken at No. 1 house. They at once got into communication with No. 1 company and learned that the pulmotor was not in working order and it would be useless to send it to Bolton as it was out of order and has been for some time.

Life Saver at Scene. Fortunately there was at the scene when the body of the youth was brought to shore last evening.

Chief Foy is of the opinion that it is more dangerous using a pulmotor in Manchester than in the larger cities where they have experienced operators who are not likely to cause lung trouble.

NOON STOCKS

New York, June 14.—The stock market's fame spread far and wide as the result of Thursday's brilliant upward move in the utility, steel and other favorites.

General Electric finally topped 300, but the stock was freely offered at that price and in the flow of week-end profit taking it fell back about 4 points to 297 1/2.

American waterworks fell back about 6 points to 134 1/2 when selling orders flooded the market, but Standard Gas and Consolidated Gas took over the leadership of the utility stocks and pushed forward aggressively.

TOWN IN CENTER OF HEAT WAVES

Mercury Mounts Toward Hundred Mark; No Relief Promised.

With the mercury in the thermometer mounting rapidly towards one hundred early this afternoon, the predictions of the Weather Bureau promise nothing but continued fair weather followed by increasing cloudiness for the next 24 hours.

Averages reached in other cities and states show that Manchester is right in the thick of the heat wave having averaged well over 80 early this morning to 70 for many of the principle cities.

The heat on the tobacco fields is tremendous but no prostrations were reported from there or anywhere else. One death occurred, that of Elmore Burnham of Coventry, who, seeking relief from the heat, was drowned while swimming in Bolton lake yesterday afternoon.

For those without automobiles to take them to Bolton or Coventry or other resorts where cooling breezes and water abound, the bathing suits are in demand.

One spot very seldom used but a veritable Paradise is Center Spring Woods. Here it is not merely cool but cold. And it is right in the center of the town, available for all.

PUBLIC IS INVITED TO VIEW GARDENS

L. J. Robertson, Jr., to Throw Open His Garden to Flower Lovers.

L. J. Robertson, Jr., chairman of the program committee of the Manchester Garden club, has invited the members and the general public to enjoy his spacious gardens at the family summer home, 940 East Middle Turnpike, tomorrow from 2 to 10 p. m. Refreshments will be served and a silver collection received for the benefit of the Garden club.

There is much of interest in the gardens just at this time. Admirers of iris will find many varieties blossoming in the borders and grounds across the highway. Peonies and poppies are at their best, delphiniums and roses are beginning to bloom. There are numerous other attractions to people who love flowers.

Mr. Robertson is hoping the heat will not deter visitors from motoring out there as there is always a breeze stirring and many cool retreats, as well as plenty of parking space on the grounds.

THIS OLD WOODCHUCK WOULD A LINDY BE.

Woodchucks are supposed to live on land, or under it, but like human beings their ranks include odd specimens.

Gary D. Carpenter, well-known Bolton farmer who delivers farm products in Manchester weekly, found one sitting on the branch of a tree near his home the other day.

Everyone knows that woodchucks are a nuisance to farmers and this tree-climber proved no exception. In fact, his ambitions to become a Lindy, provided his own Waterloo—one charge—or rather, discharge—of a shotgun did the trick and the woodchuck came back to Mother Earth pronto.

Where GASOLINE PERFORMANCE

must do the talking

HAVE you ever seen the office system of a large taxicab, bus or truck operating concern? Record upon record! ... Records of each vehicle's earnings! Records of costs—driving costs, repair costs, supply costs, mileage costs!

One of the very first items in the calculation of operating costs of commercial-car fleets is gasoline. That puts it up to the purchasing agent. He doesn't guess. Empty claims mean nothing in the face of actual figures. Proved performance—power, dependability and all-round economy—is the basis on which he buys.

It is on that basis that Atlantic Gasoline has become one of the most largely used motor fuels in the commercial-car field. If you believe that proved performance is a good basis for choosing a motor fuel for your own car, isn't the experience of thousands of commercial-car operators—as well as of tens of thousands of individual motorists—worth your consideration?

NEW-TYPE Atlantic Gasoline is easily the most outstanding all-round motor fuel of the year. The extra power in it is unmistakable.

Your starter will tell you that Atlantic snaps into action with rarely a second prodding.

Atlantic's pick-up reminds you of the getaway of a crack sprinter.

The unlabored smoothness of your motor, even under hard pulls, is clear-cut evidence of complete, clean-burning combustion and maximum mileage.

Never have you found a gasoline that so thoroughly combines all the qualities you look for in a motor fuel!

ATLANTIC Paraffine Base MOTOR OIL

is the most amazingly slow-consuming oil you have ever used. . . . That means longer-lasting efficiency—and less oil to buy.

SWEDEN'S LIQUOR PLAN UNDER FIRE

Great System of Spying Has Grown Up; Many Demand Control Be Changed.

By MILTON BRONNER.
London.—American wets, who are all worked up about dry spies, have their counterpart in Sweden where there is a furious newspaper and political campaign against a spy system that it is alleged has grown up in connection with the Bratt system of control of the liquor traffic.

This has come with a shock to those half-way drys who have pointed out that Sweden had found a solution to the liquor problem which was far superior to America's drastic prohibition. In fact, hitherto these European students of the booze problem have contended that the Bratt system was the happy medium between extreme dryness and unlimited wetness.

Under the Bratt system, the Swedish government went into the liquor business, both wholesale and retail. All wholesale purchases of liquor were made by the state. The people got their liquor through the retail agencies of the state. The business worked so well that the government secured quite a revenue out of it.

Under the Bratt system there is little or no regulation of the amount of beer and light wines that a citizen can consume in his own home.

But the whole weight of the Bratt system is thrown against the consumption of drinks high in alcoholic content. This, because in the past the Swedes had been heavy drinkers of these beverages.

Under the Bratt system, every householder has to apply for and receive an allowance card which stipulates how much highly alcoholic beverage he may buy each month for consumption in his own home. Each individual case is considered on its own merits, according to the number of people in the householder's family, his income, and his social status. The limit for anybody is four litres per month of schnaps, cognac, whiskey or Swedish punch. The holder of a ticket permitting him to purchase this booze from a government-controlled retail shop, is not allowed to sell any part of his allowance.

In the restaurants nobody can get anything to drink unless he is a bona fide purchaser of a meal of some sort. Beer and light wines are not hard to obtain, but the allowance per meal of highly alcoholic beverages is 15 centilitres.

It is now claimed that in Sweden the Bratt regime has given rise to a gigantic system of espionage. In the restaurants men circulate about among the guests watching what they drink. These officials are designated as "Controllers," but the public has labeled them "Spirit Spies."

But the worst feature of the Heroine.

Diving for a girl companion who sank in eight feet of water where they were bathing in a creek near Salem, W. Va., Evelyn Meredith, above, fought the girl's death grip and swam with her to a ledge on the shore, where friends brought them both to safety. Evelyn is 14 and though she is not an expert swimmer, has spent much of her life out of doors. She also excels in studies. Her father is a newspaperman.

system is that it has encouraged the sending in of information to the central bureau concerning misuse of the liquor cards. "Mr. Anonymous" is another popular Swedish term these days, being applied to those folks who send in reports on their neighbors, with the understanding that their own names are to be kept out of proceedings. The anti-Brattiers claim that within the state of Sweden there has thus grown up another state—a giant bureaucracy handling the liquor traffic and making life miserable for the people by its spy system.

A recent case in point has brought the entire matter to a head. In one big Swedish town a man was hauled up before the authorities and was told bluntly that they had information that for many months he had sold a considerable portion of his fourlitre allowance of booze.

He was also told that his liquor card would be withdrawn from him. This meant that he could not get any highly alcoholic beverages at all. He denied the charges and demanded the names of those who had made them. That's where he ran up against "Mr. Anonymous."

He went home and grieved over the thing. He worried over who could possibly have told such things about him. He finally got so wrought up over what he deemed injustice that he hung himself.

The result is that many newspapers and politicians are demanding that the whole system be re-cast. They admit that the system of liquor cards has made for a greater degree of average sobriety, although the total consumption of alcoholic beverages has not been greatly diminished. But they say the system is a menace to the state.

IN THE FUTURE

Periodically for many years there has come up the old proposition of the unification of the Protestant churches. The Institute of Religion which has just concluded sessions at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., is responsible for the latest agitation. Business men in the conference expressed repeatedly their impatience over the slow process. It is a business proposition, they claimed. The ministerial class replied that churches with different doctrines and shades of belief could not be merged as can railroads and chain stores.

But a more potent argument was that presented by several of the clergy who explained to the laymen that business men and not clergy have been responsible for the very delays the business men rail against. It is a knock-out reply as anyone who has lived in a small town knows. In any number of those towns attempts have been made to support two or more churches of the Protestant faith. Inadequate salaries are paid, generally behind schedule, to ministers whose ability is more often than not indicated by the amounts of their stipends. Each of these churches has one or more members better fixed than the majority upon whose contributions are dependent the minister's hope of salary and the other fixed charges. They are strong in their love of the old home church, staunch in their faith and firmly determined that any decision to merge with the other church in town will be made only on the penalty of the loss of their generous share of the financial burden.

Such cases are on record in every state and in every branch of the Protestant faith. It is one of the misconceptions of staunchness in the faith of their fathers that handicaps the work of the Protestant church throughout the country. Here and there are to be found notable examples of the success of consolidated churches which represent on the part of the clergyman who presides over the religious life of his combined flocks and on the part of every member of the congregation the relinquishing of some minor phase of his fundamental religion to the end that the true spirit of religion may be exemplified in the highest degree. It is to be regretted that more have not seen fit to go and do likewise but in the continued agitation of the question is to be found hope for the future. It is one of those great movements that can not be brought to a successful conclusion in a hurry.

CORRECTING THE RECORDS

It is inevitable that as time passes we shall be robbed, as we have been in the past, of some of the heroes we hastily raised to pedestals during and immediately following the World War. The enormity of the task of gathering and studying with care the mass of data, letters and records; the eliminating of friendly enthusiasm for individuals, is essential for accuracy. A decade after the war we are only now beginning to view with some degree of accuracy and slightly more balanced judgment some of the notable acts of prominent figures of 1914-1918.

Prof. Charles Seymour, provost of Yale University, who was chairman of the Austro-Hungarian division of the American commission to negotiate peace, in an article in the current issue of the Yale Review declares that Foch, not Wilson, prevailed upon the Allies to accept the request of the Germans for an armistice. And we had learned from Ray Stannard Baker's book that "except for Wilson's influence Foch would have led the triumphant armies across the Rhine and dictated peace in Berlin." Prof. Seymour quotes from Col. House's letters to show that it was Foch who prevailed upon the Allies to accept the request and that Wilson merely offered the Germans the privilege of applying for an armistice.

The impression was general that Mr. Baker's book was slightly colored, at least, by his interest in and devotion to the late former president. Later publications by Winston Churchill, D. H. Miller, the final volume of "The Intimate Papers of Col. House" as well as some others, have confirmed this belief. But this is inevitable. It always will be. In a few more decades the future generations will be in a position to give credit where credit is due. But not before.

CHICAGO'S NEXT FAIR

Chicago by obtaining pledges of ten millions from business men of the Windy City has begun the actual plans for the World's Fair in 1933. It is to mark Chicago's centennial celebration. The name officially announced by which this fair is to be known is "A Century of Progress." They promise, the trustees of this gigantic undertaking which is to open four years hence, that it will be as different from the Columbian exposition of 1893 as that was different from anything that had preceded it. The dominant feature is to be the science building. Science is to be the keynote of the whole affair. "Authoritative," says President Dawes of the trustees, "that will be the note of this fair." The research committee council will determine what exhibits from the United States and from other countries are to be admitted as representative of the progress of the century culminating in 1933.

Undoubtedly it will be a remarkable exposition, one we should all see but, with our faint memories of the Columbian exposition, we shall hope, in case we may be able to attend, that even if Ferris wheel is not there for us to get stuck in high in the air, and if there is no Midway under that name, no camel on which to ride, that there will be something besides science there. We approve of science and what it has done for us. But we want one or two less highbrow attractions on the side. And "authoritative" ones, too.

THE RIGHT MAN

To Daniel Guggenheim has been awarded the first Aeronautical medal by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers for "meritorious service in the advancement of aeronautics." In all the awards of medals and prizes the country over there will be no recipient more deserving of the honor or granted him than in this case of Mr. Guggenheim. He has given more than generously of his fortune for the improvement and development of aviation. He established the School of Aeronautics at New York University and endowed generously the "Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics" and has financed with equal generosity the furthering of research experiment. These are only samples of the useful contributions to our knowledge of the principles and practice of aviation. To Mr. Guggenheim the rightful award has been made.

WE ARE FOR THEM

Whatever doubt we may have had about the value of a college education for young women has been removed. College girls are taller and thicker than they were thirty years ago. And we like 'em tall and we like 'em plump. If college education has brought this about we strongly favor it—with bounds, that is. Mrs. Katherine Blunt of the University of Chicago, being a college woman with a bent towards statistics has reached this conclusion after compiling facts and figures from her own university, Vassar and Smith colleges and Stanford university. Thirty years ago girls entering college averaged 63.1 inches tall, 117 pounds in weight with a girth averaging 24.3. Now the college girl has increased to 64.9 in height, her weight to 123.9 and her girth to 25.4. This having been done in spite of the attempt to attain the fashionable figure that resembles a lath makes us strong for college educated women.

FINDING OUT ABOUT STEEL

The first steel skyscraper ever built is now being torn down in Chicago. Put up in 1887, it is now out of date, and is being removed so that a bigger structure can take its place.

Experts from the American Institute of Steel Construction are watching the demolition with great interest. For years there has been considerable discussion about the way a building's steel framework will endure the changes wrought by passing years. Some experts have thought one thing, some another; no one has been quite certain.

Now, however, they are going to get a chance to find out. Steel from this pioneer skyscraper will be put through all kinds of tests, so that the experts can tell definitely just what, if anything, has happened to it. The new knowledge thus gained will prove of great value in future steel construction work.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, June 14.—Voltaire's great classic "Candide" cannot be brought into the United States, but it has quite a few respectable companions on the Index expurgatorius of the Customs Service, along with several score books more wild and riotous.

In all, there are about 300 books, most of them printed in French, German, Spanish or Italian, which customs collectors and inspectors are ordered to seize as often as they make their appearance on the American shore, under the 1922 tariff act which forbade importation of "obscene" literature.

All collectors of customs are permitted to act as censors and so set up as experts on pornography, but the boss censor of all is the Hon. Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of customs and prohibition. When an appeal is taken from the customs officials at the port it comes here to Lowman's division in Washington.

When your correspondent went to see Mr. Lowman about all this Mr. Lowman had in his desk a copy of D. H. Lawrence's "Lady Chatterley's Lover," privately printed in England in a limited edition. Some subordinate had thoughtfully put paper book marks in all the pages containing objectionable passages and Mr. Lowman was good enough to read them to your correspondent.

Just to show what books the customs people have to guard America's morals against. Neither Mr. Lowman nor your correspondent fainted—or even turned pale—but the paragraphs were extremely explicit.

Mr. Lowman wanted it understood that the copy of Candide barred by the customs people in Boston was an unexpurgated French copy which contained certain shocking sex details. He said it didn't make any difference whether obscene books were printed in English or not. Other customs officials, of course, have often boasted that they were just as firm against offending classics as against books obviously written for "low purposes."

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 14.—"What most of us need," writes a contributor, "is a pocketbook-of-the-month. . . . Count me in, buddy!"

The "fog belt" is no longer a suburban beat—for Manhattan's policemen. They are now "sentenced" to the Holland tunnel which, from the viewpoint of a policeman, is something approximating solitary confinement. All alone in the great closed space of that amazing underground structure, the copper has time and opportunity to speculate on nothing in particular. He has no one to talk to, and life becomes a monotonous panorama of cars whizzing by.

"Ah," sighed a dieting lady who sat next to me at a recent luncheon, "there seems to be a destiny that ends our shapes."

Long ere this, I have no doubt, the wire dispatches have carried word that Richard Dix did not renew his contract with Paramount pictures, but signed up with the new Radio pictures.

Lunching with Dix the other noon, I learned a little inside information. Behind the change is not only Paramount's neglect to "take up" an old contract, but a tale of friendship which started when Dix was barely squeezing bread and butter money out of Broadway.

At the present moment William Le Baron is production manager for RKO pictures. And years ago Le Baron had a similar job in the Astoria plant of the Dix. The Little Brother, Le Baron saw him and, in a sense, discovered Dix. It was Le Baron who first put Dix into the comedies that made the latter's screen reputation. They have been good friends for years.

It has been open gossip in the film "inner circles" that Dix has been in a Baltimore hospital recovering from an operation. Meanwhile a number of others came by wire. The contract the young comedian finally signed stipulated that all pictures in which he will appear shall be supervised by Le Baron.

Meanwhile, Dix has taken on a large number of pounds and tells me he will hibernate on a Minnesota farm to train down. He has one picture left on his Paramount contract. It will be "The Boomerang."

My suggestion for a theme song was, "Boomerang, Come Back to Me."

Speaking of movie matters Tiffany-Stall pictures tossed a party for May Murray on the same morning I talked with Dix. May is slated, I believe, to make a singly-

THE SCHOOL VACATION

During the school vacation period of approximately three months, you should allow your child to forget about his studies and develop as much as possible in a physical direction.

You are, of course, anxious that your child learn rapidly, but remember that the child can learn things from nature which cannot be obtained from books.

Many parents make the mistake of "cramping" children at the expense of the nervous system, and the children look pallid, and are irritable, temperamental, and are obviously worn out. If the child's nervous system and brain are strained in its youth, the injury will persist throughout life.

There is a grave danger that many of our children are given too much of a strain in obtaining educational degrees during the school year. They often detest many of the studies but are nevertheless forced to remain in the classroom for six to eight hours, and a pernicious practice is carried out of having them take home extra work requiring two or three hours to complete. Such training continued for any length of time without periods of recreation is certain to ruin the mind and intelligence of children and to make them unfit for practical purposes. It is certainly carry the "grammings" too far to insist upon having the child study during the summertime.

This is a wonderful time of the year for recreation and intensive cultivation of the physical body. Give the child a chance to be out in the sun and take plenty of exercise through such games as tennis, horseback riding, swimming, boating, hiking, baseball, etc.

Let them romp and play to their heart's content, even if they are a little more careless with their clothes and personal appearance. You must realize that your child is a growing individual who has probably been pushed beyond his mental capacity, and you will find so much good from a vacation in the woods that you will realize that your child should be allowed to go back to primitive enjoyment for at least two or three months if you expect him to regain the strength of body so necessary for the coming term of school with its many responsibilities and unnatural mental strain and tension.

It is a good plan to teach the child to excel in various kinds of athletic games, checking up upon his activities and commenting on

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Baby Slow to Walk
 Question—Mrs. C. writes: "My 11-month-old baby seems perfectly healthy in every way, but makes no attempt to try to walk or even crawl. I weaned her at seven months, and am feeding her milk into which I put malt sugar; also I give her cereals, vegetables and toast. I was wondering, if her food was something lacking in her food diet might be bringing on bone trouble of some kind."

Answer—Many babies do not begin to walk until a year or more of age. If your little girl obtains plenty of certified milk and orange juice, I do not believe there is much danger of her developing any trouble with her bones. It is a good plan to allow the baby to crawl on the floor because this develops her strength.

Inflammation of the Perioosteum
 Question—Mrs. A. L. writes: "I have been told my trouble is inflammation of the perioosteum. The trouble seems to be with the end of my spine. I have difficulty in sitting or lying. Have been painting the area with iodine, but without results. How can I cure this condition so the bone will not become diseased?"

Answer—The trouble with the end of your spine might be brought on by some injury even without your knowledge. If it affects the coccygeal bone at the end of the spine, it sometimes requires much time to overcome. I do not believe that the iodine applications will be of any benefit, but I would suggest that you use hot sitz baths for about ten minutes, followed by cold sitz baths for five minutes each day. It would also be well to have an osteopath or chiropractor examine your spine to see if there is any improvement within a short time.

KRAH'S INSURANCE PARTLY ADJUSTED

Paid for Policy on Buildings Burned But There is a Delay About Tobacco Insurance.

The insurance on the buildings owned by Fred Krah of Tolland Turnpike has been adjusted. He carried but $1,400 on the barns and sheds and was paid the full face of the policy as the adjusters considered that there was a much higher sound value and that the property was far from being insured to the amount that it should be. The fact that it was outside of fire protection made the rate high, but there was no reduced rate conditional clause, which saved him the full amount, through R. G. Rich.

On the tobacco however, which was carried as a separate policy the value on the tobacco was issued at $7,000. This not being a specially rated building would also be on a flat rate, which would be paid on proving the value. If the tobacco burned was worth the face of the policy. However when the adjusters first came to the place they left without making the payment on the policy.

Mr. Krah has the policy, which is the contract binding the company to pay the assured and from present outlooks there may be some delay in getting a settlement.

A CHARMING ROMANCE IS "MOLLY AND ME"

A love story you can't help loving is told by Belle Bennett, Joe E. Brown, Alberta Vaughn and Charles Byer in "Molly and Me," the Tiffany-Stahl Tiffany Tone production that delighted audiences yesterday at the State theater, where it remains until Saturday.

It is about a pair, Molly and Jim Wilson, who have loved truly through ten years of one night stands only to nearly founder when they reach the success of Broadway stardom. There is nothing ugly, sordid or cruel in their story—just human, real and tender.

Jim gets a New York engagement, but without Molly, who finds life too empty merely as his wife and goes back to the burlesque troupe. Jim's pretty little partner in the act he and Molly, used to do, is a practiced petter—she pets everyone everywhere. But Jim takes her petting so seriously that he decides to break with Molly and marry Peggy. When he finds Peggy is engaged to someone else he has to eat humble pie before Molly, but he does it most engagingly and Molly is, as he realizes, an angel! Dialogue and singing by the principals enhance the film, which Albert Ray enchantingly directed.

On the same program two acts Vitaphone Vaudeville, Codes and Orth in "Stranded in Paris," is one of the most amusing sketches yet made for the talking screen. It offers the inimitable pair of comics Codes and Orth. Also the "Serenaders," A golden voice octet. Also "The Mystery Rider," Chapter Four. Latest news events will round out this snappy program of entertainment.

WILSON HAD NO PART IN ENDING THE WAR

Yale Professor Says President Merely Placed Request of Germany Before Supreme War Council; Pershing Was for Continuance of War—Foch Influenced Allies to Accept Armistice.

New Haven, Conn., June 14.—Facts surrounding the causes which led the Allies to grant Germany's request for the armistice which preceded the end of the World War have been re-aligned as a result of recent revelations by Charles Seymour, Provost of Yale University, who was chief of the Austro-Hungarian division of the American Commission to Negotiate Peace. Writing in the Summer issue of "The Yale Review" to be published today, shortly before the tenth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty, Professor Seymour quotes from a letter written to Col. Edward M. House which shows that it was the opinion of Marshal Foch that prevailed upon the Allies to accept the request. Professor Seymour says the charge that except for President Wilson's influence Foch "would have led his triumphant armies across the Rhine and dictated peace in Berlin" is "based upon a complete misconception," and uses the official records of the armistice discussions, which are included in the House papers, to prove his assertion. He also reveals that of all the generals who participated in the discussions on the request, "Pershing was the only one who did not wish to grant an armistice, and urged the continuation of the offensive against Germany." When Colonel House laid Pershing's memorandum advising the continuance of the war before Clemenceau and Lloyd George, Professor Seymour says, "they brushed it aside with some contempt."

Who Stopped the War.
After reviewing controversial opinion on the responsibility for, and conduct of the war, Prof. Seymour, in part, says: "At least one controversy, which arose immediately after the conclusion of the war and which has cropped up on various occasions since, can now be definitely settled. The question at issue is whether the armistice was concluded with the full approval of the Allied military and political leaders, or whether it was merely urged by President Wilson and imposed through American influence. Stories current at the time and since then have laid upon the president the responsibility for a premature peace. Except for his influence upon Allied leaders, it has been asserted, Foch would have led his triumphant armies across the Rhine and dictated peace in Berlin. The diary of Sir Henry Wilson bears evident traces of the feeling prevalent in Allied military circles that as the Germans were retreating, President Wilson was intervening to prevent a complete victory.

"Publication of the House papers has now made plain that such charges are based upon a complete misconception. What the president offered Germany in his October Notes was not peace, or even an armistice, but merely the privilege of applying to the Allied and Associated Powers at Versailles for an armistice. Wilson gave no instructions to Colonel House nor did he himself exercise any direct influence upon Allied leaders. He merely made peace practicable by putting Germany's request before them. They were free to accept or refuse it. In the end, it was the opinion of Marshal Foch himself that prevailed.

"That Foch himself approved the granting of the armistice is plain from the following conversation. It is recorded in a letter to Colonel House written by Paul Mantoux, secretary for the Supreme War Council. According to his notes the conversation was as follows: 'House asks Foch, 'Will you tell us, M. le Marechal, solely from the military point of view, apart from any other consideration, whether you would prefer the Germans to reject or to sign the armistice as outlined here?'

Foch's Answer.
'Foch replies, 'Fighting means struggling for certain results: ('On ne fait la guerre que pour ses resultats.') If the Germans now sign . . . those results are in our possession. This being achieved, no man has the right to cause another drop of blood to be shed.'
'The official records of the armistice discussions, which are found among the House papers, show that Sir Douglas Haig not only merely insisted that an armistice should be granted but advised granting very moderate terms. Petain agreed with Foch. Bliss also agreed, although he desired simpler and more stringent terms. Of all the generals, I pershing was the only one who did not wish to grant an armistice and urged the continuation of the offensive against the Germans. When House laid Pershing's memorandum advising the continuance of the war before Clemenceau and Lloyd George, they brushed it aside with some contempt.

"The decision to grant an armistice was thus made by the Supreme War Council and the Allies—and without any pressure whatever from the United States. The terms of the armistice were also left to the Supreme War Council. At the first discussion of the Allied political chiefs regarding the armistice, House stated clearly to Clemenceau and Lloyd George: 'The President is willing to leave the terms of the armistice to Marshal Foch, General Pershing, Field Marshal Haig, General Diaz, and General Petain.'
'The literature of the Peace Conference is naturally controversial. As Clemenceau once remarked, 'The task of making peace is so much more difficult than that of making war that it need not surprise us that it inspires more bitter animosities.' The first rather journalistic sketches in each country attempted to show that the representative of that country had been hoodwinked by the others; the French insisted that the British had stolen the fruits of victory; the British complained that Clemenceau had triumphed; and the Americans were convinced that the simple-minded idealist, Wilson, had been out-manoeuvred by the experienced and wily diplomats of Europe. No one has thrown higher lights and deeper shades into his picture of the Peace Conference than Mr. Ray Stannard Baker, who was chosen by Mr. Wilson to edit his Peace Conference papers. Mr. Baker had at his disposal the secret documents of the Conference and produced in 1921 his three-volume work, "Woodrow Wilson and World Settlement." No other historian had at that time access to his sources, and it is only within the past twelve months that it has been possible effectively to answer him.

"I didn't want to tell you tonight, but you'll see it in the paper; the little Morgan kid was in an accident today—"

THIS HAS HAPPENED
JON CURTIS MORGAN, successful lawyer, is passionately in love with his beautiful wife, IRIS, and does not suspect that NAN CARROLL, his private secretary, has fallen in love with him. Nan, having a high sense of honor, decides to resign, but postpones her resignation because she feels Morgan will have particular need of her in his defense of a supposed friend, BERT CRAWFORD, indicted for embezzlement. On the last day of the trial, little CURTIS MORGAN, six-year-old son of Iris and Morgan, innocently places in Nan's hands a note apparently taken from his mother's handbag. It is from Crawford and reveals his guilt and his and Iris' intention to elope after the trial. Crawford leaves town and Iris departs for a pleasure trip a few days later.

Iris announces her desertion in a letter which cleverly omits mention of Crawford and pleads with Morgan not to try to find her. Morgan is heartbroken. Nan convinces Morgan he should not place little Curtis in a boarding school and that he should keep his home intact. While Morgan is at the capital on business, Nan stays at the Morgan house with little Curtis and organizes the housekeeping so father and son may carry on. She places little Curtis in public school.

Nan wins the love and confidence of Curtis and is herself happy serving the man she loves, but who ironically loves another woman. Morgan returns unexpectedly from the capital to report a commutation from death to life imprisonment for a client. Nan is radiant as she, Morgan and Curtis go in to the dinner that Nan has planned.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVI

"Well, Nan!" John Curtis Morgan dropped to the couch beside the girl and stretched his long legs to the warmth of the fire in the grate. "Now that between us we've managed to get the young hullo of mine to bed, I'd like to have a first-hand account of how certain miracles have been wrought."

"I go away and 23 hours later I return to find my son not only enrolling in public school but crazy about it, and provided not only with a boy playmate but with a whole delightful family to look after him. The O'Briens were a stroke of genius. I don't know how you take the same and tell the whole story in your own words," he added, burlesquing his own manner in the courtroom.

"Nan obeyed, giving her employer a vivid account of her activities in his home, as well as the reasoning which had motivated her. Morgan listened attentively, but his eyes were fixed, throughout her recital, upon the startling life-like portrait of his wife that hung above the mantel."

"I think you've been inspired in your handling of the boy," Morgan said, when Nan had finished her "defense."

"Inspired by my love for you, which you don't suspect, thank God!" Nan agreed in her heart.

"I suppose you had had time to hire a housekeeper. Lord, but I dread having one of those middle-aged, genteel women in reduced circumstances pervading the house," Morgan sighed. "She will inevitably be fat, and with varicose veins, and fever and a wart on the side of her nose. And she'll have a dozen pesky little legal troubles that she'll want to consult me on every night I'm at home."

"I giggled, thrust out both legs and regarded them with rueful humor. "And I was just datter myself tonight that they're quite nice legs. And at six o'clock this evening, the last time I consulted a mirror, there was absolutely no hint of a wart on my nose, significant but satisfactory nose of mine."

Morgan stared at the girl for a moment as if he thought she was crazy, then she saw dismay and embarrassment leap into his black eyes. She hastened to reassure him, indirectly: "Yes, I've hired myself as your housekeeper, if you please, sir, but a new sort—a long-distance housekeeper. I can furnish the best of references and I'm permitted to become neither stout nor genteel, and not to pervade the house. In fact, your housekeeper's desk has a strange resemblance to your private secretary's."

"But—Nan! My dear girl!" Morgan remonstrated. "There's nothing that completely unnerved the girl who was already trembling at her own audacity. He reached for her hand and lifted it to his lips. She closed her eyes so that he could not possibly see in them that which he must not guess."

"You should have been named Martha," he said gently, when he had released her hand, "because your joy is in service. . . ." She saw his eyes sweep upward to Iris' pictured beauty, and she wondered if John Curtis Morgan was, for the first time, comparing or contrasting these two women who had been closest to him. He sighed, then said almost abruptly: "But of course I can't let you take on the burden of my house as well as of my office, Nan. Not even your splendid health and your enormous capacity for work could stand up under the strain."

"Bunk!" Nan retorted inelegantly. "I intend to be a home efficiency expert working? There isn't a great deal more to be done—just supervising, mainly. I've already made an appointment to take Curtis to Dr. Black, the child specialist, to-morrow."

"Morgan was startled and alarmed. "Is the boy sick?"

"Not exactly sick, but malnourished," Nan explained, firmly. "I'm going to ask Dr. Black to prescribe a diet for Curtis, then exercise all the ingenuity I possess to keep the kid from knowing he's on a diet and to get him to eat it. Tonight's 'Hidden Treasure' was the first gun fired in the campaign. Curtis simply must eat lots of milk and green vegetables, and he refuses to touch either—until he dug into my famous 'Hidden Treasure' tonight. You'd never expected to see him eat spinach, had you?" she challenged the thoughtful man beside her.

"No, I'm afraid I—let me let him dictate his own diet," Morgan remitted ruefully. "Was there a hint of accusation in the glance he flashed at Iris' picture?"

"I'm going to trick him into eating some of the things he thinks he doesn't like, and let little Pat bully him into consuming the others. I'm counting heavily on little Pat—his assistance in more ways than one," Nan told Curtis's father gravely. "But to get back to my job as long-distance housekeeper. Every Monday morning I'll furnish the cook with complete menus for the week. She'll do most of her marketing Monday, buying fresh vegetables, eggs, etc., during the week as they're needed. I might add that I took a thorough course in dietetics in college and that I'm no slouch as a cook, myself!"

"You're no slouch at anything, Nan, dear," Morgan laughed. "Go on! You're certainly a glutton for punishment, child!"

"Maybe I like showing off," Nan retorted. "Anyway, there are your meals taken care of; Curtis looked after by the O'Briens, mother and son, when he's not in school; and your house kept in apple-pie order by the efficient Estelle. Then what remains? Shopping for Curtis and for the house, of course, as equipment and linens wear out. Poo! I can do it all in three or four hours a week, and you wouldn't cheat a poor girl out of her fun, would you?"

"I'll agree to let you try it, on two conditions," Morgan answered slowly. "First, that you let me pay you what I would have to pay a housekeeper; and second, that you take an afternoon a week off from the office and give Curtis and me the great pleasure of your company for dinner. Otherwise, I'm afraid it's going to be a bit lonely for the Morgan men."

"Good! I can use a free dinner every Monday," Nan accepted happily, to hide her joy. "You can gamble that Monday's dinner will always be a feast. Now I'm going to pack my suitcase and toddle on home or you'll be accusing your housekeeper of 'pervading the house.'"

"I'll take you home," said Morgan.

During the six months that followed, Nan Carroll lived from Monday to Monday, and all the words in the English language, the most important, the most musical, and the most heart-shaking became, so far as Nan Carroll was concerned, "I'll take you home."

For during each of those Monday night drives from the Morgan home to the tiny apartment which she also found time to keep immaculate, the girl played a pathetic little game with herself. She pretended that Morgan was not an abandoned and grief-stricken husband at all, but a young man entirely free to be in love; that he was in love, in fact, and that these Monday night drives were not at all a host's duty to his guest, secretary and housekeeper-of-sorts but "dates." And so, while the Nan that Morgan knew carried on an animated conversation about Curtis, domestic problems and legal tangles, the Nan that only Nan knew whispered soft, sweet nonsense with her "mystical steady."

Weak by week Nan found joy in measuring John Curtis Morgan's slow but definite recovery from the tragic depression into which Iris' desertion had plunged him on that dreadful Friday when he had received her cruelly curt letter. At first, she knew, he fostered a stubborn hope that Iris had decided hastily, that she would write and ask forgiveness, that she would return. But when, after three months of utter silence from his wife, he evidently made up his mind to accept her desertion as final, his sensitive face took on an expression of sad resignation. And after resignation came a sort of peace, for Nan was making him and his boy very comfortable indeed in the beautiful home which she was managing from his office.

Of course it was not so easy as she had pretended to Morgan that it would be. A hundred trivial annoyances and at least half a dozen major problems came up during those six months, requiring far more of her time and energy than Morgan dreamed that she spent upon his home affairs. She spared him here, as she had spared him the knowledge that his wife had run away with another man—a man whom he had called friend and whom he had saved from prison.

He would never know from her how nearly Curtis had come to disgrace in school for kicking a teacher until her shins bled. Neither would he know from her that Curtis had stolen money from Estelle on a candy tray which she left upon his home affairs. She spared him here, as she had spared him the knowledge that his wife had run away with another man—a man whom he had called friend and whom he had saved from prison.

And every Monday night she saw that he was a little more at peace, a little more at ease with her and with his son, whose friendship and confidence he was cultivating, as if he were a little bit jealous of the boy's devotion to Nan.

In June Nan went to the state capital to take her bar examinations, for Morgan persisted in his desire to see his secretary become his junior partner.

On her return Willis Todd, with whom she was still having a date or two a week, met her at the station. It was nine o'clock of a soft June night.

"Are you a lawyer yet?" he teased, his gray eyes very fond and tender.

Nan squeezed his arm. "Oh, it's always nice to see you, Willis. . . . I see they haven't built a new station yet! Doesn't anything ever happen in this town?"

"Wait!" Willis stopped her as she took a newspaper from the seat of his car. "I didn't want to tell you tonight, but you'll see it in the paper: the little Morgan kid was in an accident today—"

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1925 by NEA Service, Inc.

Curiosity is a good thing in children. It is what we might call a "natural" impulse.

Like all tremendous forces that lie behind behavior it can be used for good or evil. As a matter of fact the child's tendency is to use it for good. Often, however, he is punished for attempts to find out things, simply because the parent doesn't want him to find them out. His motive may be pure enough. A parent's chagrin is the real cause of a whipping or scolding more than nine out of ten times in this as in many other things.

As far as is sensibly possible we should satisfy a child's curiosity when he asks questions—but please get this—only up to a point that is consistent with his age and the stage of "understanding" his mind has already reached. Otherwise only perplexity may result, or a false impression.

When Curiosity is Wrong.
 Now then, in what way may curiosity be a force for bad?

When the parents deliberately whet that curiosity and keep a small boy or girl in torment for weeks awaiting some grand climax, just so they themselves can enjoy the denouement. They anticipate the thrill or kick they will get out of his sudden delight or amazement and permit him to get worked up to a white heat of curiosity that takes away his appetite and won't let him sleep for days on end.

We're all guilty. We do it before birthdays—we do it at Christmas. We do it wherever we think it will give Johnny (and ourselves) a thrill. Surprises are all very fine, but we shouldn't keep them up too long. It is a very cruel form of teasing.

We shouldn't lie things about the house, ever. That's bad, too. His natural urge for discovery should not be diverted into cunning. Who is to blame if he becomes cleverly sly at finding that things hidden from him?

This matter of curiosity is an important factor in a young child's training. We should think it over.

One of the hottest places in the United States is in Death Valley, Calif., between the Panamint and Funeral Mountains. Its temperature sometimes reaches 122 degrees above zero, Fahrenheit.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famous Authority

THE BATH TUB CAN BE A DANGEROUS PLACE, IF YOU'RE CARELESS

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When Charlotte Corday discontinued the existence of Marat while he was seated in the tub, one of the most interesting fatalities in the records of mortality was added to the list. Recently Dr. Guy Hindsdale has assembled from various sources records of similar accidents occurring in bathtubs and human carelessness.

Some years ago a woman in Chicago left her twin babies in the tub while she went to talk to a peddler at the door. When she returned she found both babies drowned.

Dr. Hindsdale calls attention to the following classification of accidents during bathing:

- Falls on slippery places in the bathroom; falls on getting in or out of the tub.
- Faintness or vertigo in getting in or out of the tub.
- Epileptic convulsions occurring while in the tub.
- Fainting attack from heart disease.
- Brain hemorrhage or apoplexy.
- Drowning in the tub.
- Scalding in mistake for a cold shower.
- Burns from steam in the Turkish bath.

Death from electric shock while in the bath through short circuit from heating lamps or wipers.

Death from escaping gas from the bathroom heater.

Death from plunges in water that is too cold while one is overheated.

When baths are given for medical purposes the patient needs much more supervision than when baths are taken for ordinary cleansing. A person with a weak heart is much more likely to have a fainting attack or heart failure.

The sudden application of heat or motion may rise the blood pressure in the aged with hardened weakened arteries and produce brain hemorrhage. Most of the electrical vibrators, heating devices, and similar electric accessories used in the bathroom are not insulated in such a way as to protect them fully against contact with water which may conduct the full strength of the current into the body and thus produce death.

It is dangerous to touch an electric bulb, socket, or ever a push button or an electric heater while standing in the bathtub or in contact with it.

THAT'S TOO BAD.

"I nearly ran over my mother-in-law with my car yesterday."

"Wouldn't the brakes act?"

"Yes, but I couldn't start the thing, gain really enough."

Pages Gates, Yerdon.

HE MEANT WELL?

"What? Is this you, Jopost? I was told you were dead."

"No, it is my brother—who is dead."

"Oh, I am sorry to hear that."

Buen Humor, Madrid.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SCOVILLE

Because Harriet Connor Brown of Washington, D. C., was not too busy to listen to the tales of older people, not too interested in and sure of the superiority of everything modern and a little scornful of any worth in the good old days, she has won fame and fortune.

The Atlantic Monthly prize of $5000 "for the most interesting biography of any kind, sort or description" has just been awarded Mrs. Brown for her biography called "Grandmother Brown's Hundred Years, 1827-1927."

Over half a thousand manuscripts were submitted. Napoleon, Lincoln, Gladstone, Disraeli, all the classic figures for biography were resurrected, of course. But Mrs. Brown merely picked out a common garden variety little old woman who had lived through one of the most remarkable hundred years ever known to man.

IMPORTANT YEARS.
 Grandma Brown's span of days has seen all the vital events of our nation. She knew the old pioneer days of growing Indians and no water to drink. She has lived through the most vital wars, battled in the temperance cause, marched at the Chicago World's Fair, given grandsons to the World War, prayed for Lindbergh and voted for Hoover.

The biography is not only an account of the things one woman has seen, but in running dialogue form preserves her spicy, pungent, mellow, human comments on life as she has seen it.

Harriet Connor Brown who wins the $5000 award is not a daughter or granddaughter, but a daughter-in-law of "Grandma" Brown, or Mrs. Maria D. Brown whose biography it is.

This is quite in accord with the common occurrence of "outsiders" seeing the real quality of people rather than those nearest by blood or association to that person.

Many families have been given smoother sailing by the advent of a new in-law opening the entire family's eyes to the interest and charm of one of their members hitherto given little notice or found not at all worthy of attention.

It was a family party held in honor of "Grandma Brown's 99th birthday that her youngest daughter-in-law, the now celebrated author, took the old lady aside and drew her out on the events of her

DAWES COMMENTS.

Former Vice President Charles Dawes says of the book: "Here is a fine picture of the New England character as it reacted 200 years after the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers to a new environment. The book is more than that. It is an epic of American life in the early and later days of the Middle West."

Most of us in this bustling modern day are "too busy to bother with the old folks." We sort of assume that they have nothing for us. But the famous "acres of diamonds" are often lying in the minds and hearts of those figuratively relegated to the chimney corner.

Because she was wise enough to see and hear, Mrs. Herbert D. Brown is $5000 richer and famed as the author of "the most interesting biography."

CHINESE LOGIC.

He had employed a Chinese cook for many years, and one day, after a particularly good dinner, decided to raise the man's wages.

When the Chinese received the increased money at the end of the week, he was very surprised. "Why are you paying me more?" he asked.

"Because you have been such a good cook," the master replied.

"Oh!" the Oriental frowned. "Then you've been cheating me for years, eh?"—Answers.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

THE FLAG.

Today is the birthday of the American flag. On June 14, 1777, 152 years ago today, the Continental Congress adopted a resolution providing "that the flag of the 13 United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." Historians disagree as to the origin of this design. Many authorities believe that it originated with the Washington coat-of-arms, which contains both the stars and the stripes.

The honor of having been the first to raise the new national emblem over a naval vessel is usually accorded Paul Jones. And the first use of the Stars and Stripes on land was at Fort Stanwix, where a hastily improvised flag was raised on Aug. 3, 1777.

Vermont and Kentucky were Union after the flag was adopted and Congress amended the original design to make it 15 stripes and 15 stars. As additional states were admitted, however, the original 13 stripes were substituted and a star added for each state.

President, Mrs. George Herzog; vice-president, Mrs. George Walwright; secretary, Mrs. Hoyt Hayden; treasurer, Mrs. Dora Preusse. The reports of the officers were read and approved.

Mrs. W. B. Bean of Stafford Springs was the speaker of the evening and her talk to the mothers was very helpful and educational.

Mrs. C. P. Redfield, president of the Union church Missionary society gave a short talk on the missionary boxes which are being distributed among the women of the church. The entertainment program was as follows:

Vocal solos—Mrs. Elisabeth Kuhnly, accompanist, Mrs. Elsie Behnhauer.

Recitation—Miss Lois Zimmermann.

Piano solos—Miss Ruth Metcalf.

Reading of Edgar Guest's poems—Mrs. Charles Mead.
Following the program Mrs. Kuhnly in behalf of the members of the club, presented Mrs. Leonard with a gold piece which came as a complete surprise to the outgoing president. She has served faithfully for the past two years and it was with regret the nominating committee accepted her resignation.

Refreshments and a social hour followed in the social rooms.

Frey—Hirth
Miss Mabel Hirth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hirth of 124 Orchard street and Paul Frey of Windemere avenue were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. F. Baummann, pastor of the First Evangelical church officiated, the single ring service being used. The home was attractively decorated with palms and cut flowers.

Miss Lillian Friedrich, cousin of the bride acted as bridesmaid and Herman Frey attended his brother as best man. The bride looked very pretty in a period gown of white satin and Persian embroidered lace. Her silk veil was caught up with a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower of roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was attired in a gown of yellow georgette and hat to match and carried Madame Butterfly roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Relatives and friends were present from Manchester, Holyoke, Hartford, Fitchburg and this city. Later in the evening the happy couple left for a wedding trip which was unannounced.

Mr. and Mrs. Frey are popular young people and have a host of friends who will wish them much future happiness.

The wedding gifts were numerous and beautiful.

FRIENDSHIP'S END.

Frank Nekola Signs To Play With Yanks

Holy Cross Junior Ends College Career to Get $5,000 Salary and Maybe $18,000 Bonus.

Worcester, June 14.—Frank (Bots) Nekola, sensational South-paw pitcher of the Holy Cross baseball team, hinted today that he was to receive a bonus of approximately $18,000 for signing a contract with the New York Yankees last Saturday night in Boston after the Harvard game.

Nekola admitted this after Holy Cross had received word from the office of Commissioner K. M. Landis that Nekola had agreed to report to the Yankees on June 21. Although stories have been going the rounds that Nekola was to join a big league team it was not until today that official word was received on Mt. St. James that Nekola had jumped college tracks for professional baseball.

When the telegram from Landis was received Cleo A. O'Donnell, athletic director of Holy Cross, was quick to announce that Nekola, a junior, was all through as a pitcher at Holy Cross college. O'Donnell asserting that the receipt of the telegram ended Nekola's career with the Crusaders.

Paul Kritchell, Yankee scout, did business with Nekola in Boston but Gene McCann, another scout, has followed Nekola's career all season. Nekola is to receive that salary of $5,000, the agreement being for one year only. There is a clause in it to the effect that Nekola will be farmed out to no lower than a class A club if he is sent out for seasons.

A product of Cranford Child High school of New York City, Nekola has pitched sensational ball for Holy Cross. He is 21 years of age. He has been used against Holy Cross' toughest opponents and he has always filled the assignment. He has two one-hit games to his credit and his strike out record is exceptionally high.

His loss comes as a blow to Holy Cross. He was due to hurl the second Boston College game Saturday. Instead, Hebert, who beat Providence College Tuesday, will face the Eagles. Nekola beat B. C. Memorial day.

Nekola will remain in Worcester to witness the two final Holy Cross-Boston College games.

During the visit of the White Sox to Boston there was a report that Nekola was to sign with the Chicago team for a bonus of $20,000.

The Nut Cracker

Earl Averill, the Cleveland center fielder who has been acclaimed as the season's greatest discovery, likes to spend his spare time in zoos watching the monkeys. You'd think he'd get enough of that sort of stuff on the ball field.

He must be a bear for punishment, going to the zoo after watching some of the umpires.

But at that, Earl probably picks up a lot of tips on baseball out there. A few hours' study of the canaries and the squirrels would give him a good line on the talent of the Boston Braves.

He can watch the elephants playing with one another. Think he's watching a wrestling match.

Max Schmeling also loves to play with animals while training, if you'd believe all the pictures you see. It's a treat to play with an honest snake or hyena, after having had a little experience with boxers' managers.

Up to date Max has posed riding a horse, swinging a golf stick, mowing the grass, shadow boxing—in fact everything but shaking hands with the Statue of Liberty.

Max has picked up a lot of English words. He can order ham and eggs now all by himself.

BASEBALL HIS FIRST WISH UPON REGAINING STRENGTH

Baltimore, Md., June 14.—Baseball was the first thing Clifford Dillon, of Webb, W. Va., thought of when he saw the light for the first time in his sixteen years, a few days ago.

An operation at the Baltimore Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital removed cataracts from heretofore sightless eyes. When the bandages were removed his finger was lifted before him and he was able to see it. Later, when his eyes could stand more light, he saw trees and the sky.

He yearns to see a baseball game, many of which have been described to him when he attended them with friends.

WASN'T THAT A MEAN THING?

It is no secret that there has been a sensation on the White Sox ball club. Family troubles, as the magnates like to term it, is no secret that Art Shires, who has been in print for everything but his ball playing, took a punch at his manager in the clubhouse and delivered a single black eye.

These things have been published and forgotten, perhaps, by now. Shires is back with the ball club and acting well.

But an interesting story came out recently about the disputes in the clubhouse. It has been told by one of the players that several of them stepped between Shires and Blackburne when the swinging started.

It is the usual thing to do in a case like that, but it is said that the players who took hold of their manager, Blackburne, held him firmly around the arms. And those who essayed to pacify Shires held the player around the waist. And the manager got the shiner.

What Will They Do? Considerable interest in the middle-west is being devoted to the probable action of the Amateur Athletic Union on the 9.4 seconds record which George Simpson, the Ohio State sprinter, made in the recent national intercollegiate championship meet.

A lot of politics are involved. The men who promote the nationals have not been in sympathy with the officials of the A. A. U. They even have been at war with them and relations haven't been any too friendly between the middle-western officials and the men in charge of the eastern intercollegiate championship games.

The differences arose from the fact that the eastern colleges wouldn't send their teams to the western games and refused to grant any recognition to an athlete who did something in the western meet for the reason that no eastern stars were entered.

It is the same situation that used to exist in football. Can't Run, That Fast. There once was a feeling of animosity between the east and the Pacific coast. That was before the California colleges started sending teams to the eastern intercollegiate games that were the life of the games and the big boost for the gate.

During that period Charley Padlock clocked 100 yards in California in 9.5 seconds and when the time came for the A. A. U. to consider the application for recognition of the record the application was tabled.

The reason for the rejection was an unusual one. The wise minds of the A. A. U. said it was impossible for any one to run that fast and they made wise cracks about the rubber watch on the coast.

Administrations have changed since then. One change brought in good will between the east and the far west. And under the new administration it is likely that friendly relations will be established between the east and the middle-west and Simpson will get his record.

SCHMELING SEES WIN OVER PAULINO

Der Maxie Says Rival Will Be Wide Open When He Hits; Scribes Favor Him.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

Lakewood, N. J., June 14.—"In order to fly, the housefly must open his wings. In order to hit, Paulino must open his arms. If he does open his arms, he will lose anyhow, for then I will hit him."

Simple, isn't it? The Herr Schmeling thinks it is and, after listening to him propound some views today on the Milk Fund's semi-final of the heavyweight championship of ries, thirteen days hence, one is inclined to believe that what he happens to think might be right. He's nobody's chump, this German, and apparently he hits and things in the same direction—straight.

It takes straight thinking for a German to taboo beer. He says he doesn't know what it tastes like. He served wine to his guests at the table today but poured none on his plate. He never drinks, training or out. He ordered cigarettes for the company, adding in a semi-apologetic tone that he never has smoked. Feminine society, it seems, doesn't intrigue him, so the assumption is that he has allowed himself no major interests outside the ring.

This is an idea that can be termed somewhat "um-dumb," meaning not. Even a poor fighter, with a single-purpose complex, might beat a good fighter whose purposes are many.

He was smart enough, too, to be a good listener when the guest-conductor of his managerial staff, Joe Jacobs, eased his soul of the rather startling declaration that, if Schmeling wins and the New York Boxing Commission insists on a Phil Scott fight after the Paulino meeting, Schmeling will return to Germany and meet Tom Heeney, instead of going through with the title fight in September against Jack Sharkey.

"He'll keep," added Mr. Jacobs, meaning that Schmeling could wait until next year for his championship shot. He didn't add that Schmeling will "keep" indefinitely if he doesn't beat Paulino. Mr. Jacobs isn't paid to think those kind of thoughts.

As a matter of fact, I suspect that the Herr Schmeling manages to go a lot of thinking on his own behalf. He made a hole-in-one when he took up the matter of Paulino's crossed-arm defense. This is the rock on which expert opinion has split, it being the contention of many that Schmeling will be baffled or something when he is pummeled with the spectacle of a couple of malignant eyebrows glaring out at him from behind a barricade of elbows. Instead, it seems that he has seen as much of Paulino as has the average American fighter.

Saw Him Fight. "I saw him fight in Germany and again at Madison Square Garden with Von Porat," the German explained. "I have fought on the plain, with him blind and I don't see what all the mystery is about. Paulino is a brave man but not a versatile one. I consider Risko a smarter fighter; he can win with his left hand. Paulino swings but he does nothing else."

He went on to say that he had met a similar fighter in Berlin and, finding nothing else to hit, he concentrated on the obvious target—the "hit his eyes," he said with the gusto of one who remembers the incident with satisfaction. "After seven rounds, they close. Then, I knocked him out."

The law, he finds, is Paulino's weakness, this being the reason for that member. That, anyhow, is the Herr Schmeling's reasoning and, as I say, he seems to reason along the straight line that runs between two given points.

DAWSON WINS WAY INTO SEMI-FINALS

Sandwich, England, June 14.—John Dawson of Chicago fought his way into the semi-finals of the British Amateur Golf Championship Tournament today, by defeating A. J. Evans, 6 up and 5 to play.

TILDEN VICTORIOUS

Amsterdam, June 14.—Big Bill Tilden continued his progress in the tennis tournament being played at Noordwyck, Holland, by defeating the Frenchman Landry in straight sets, 7-5, 6-3, 6-0. Paired with Miss Bouman in the mixed doubles, he again emerged victorious, defeating the Dutchman Staphenhorst and Miss Peltz, 6-2, 6-2.

FROM MORNING UNTIL NIGHT, YOU ARE IN THE HANDS OF A CHEMIST

In this article especially written for THE HERALD and NEA Service, Dr. Charles M. A. Stine, famous chemist, discusses the way in which the work of the chemist touches on the ordinary, every-day activities of the average American.

By DR. CHARLES M. A. STINE
Chemical Director of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

Modern life owes most of its possibilities to chemistry. Chemistry has been able to release man from purely manual drudgery and free him to lead a life of the mind and spirit rather than a life of bondage to physical labor which was the lot of our ancestors.

The clock we glance at on awakening owes its luminous dial, its crystal, its compensatory movements, even its fibroid case-covering to chemistry. Our pajamas are rayon, the first artificial fiber produced by man, dyed with chemical dyes whose brilliancy lasts as long as the fabric. The sheets of our bed and the coverlets and blanket all owe either color or softness to chemistry; even the bedsprings themselves were produced by metallurgical chemistry. The tiled floor and the pyroxylin paneled walls of the bathroom are chemical products. The porcelain enameled tub, the various fixtures and the mirror are all produced by some wizardry of the chemist. Not only the razor we shave with but the brush and shaving soap have been improved by chemistry.

Chemistry and Our Suits

The suit which we wear is chemically dyed by the new fast dyes which have done so much to improve the wear of fabrics. The buttons on it are molded from a plastic, chemically produced. Our necktie is very likely rayon.

The ink and the paper of our daily newspaper are both chemical products. The morning glass of water is cleared of germs by the chemist. Our ham or bacon is chemically preserved and shipped and kept in a refrigerated state; again a chemical triumph, since the very ice is chemically produced. Our bread is kept sanitary by a transparent cellophane wrapping which also keeps it moist.

The kitchen where breakfast is prepared is as much a laboratory product as the bathroom. The pipes, the taps, all metal ware, even the aluminum, glass and enameled cooking utensils, owe their shining perfection to the chemist. The gas range is chromium plated to keep it rustless. The walls are cheerfully colored in a washable lacquer. All the furniture of the house in fact is enameled with this extremely wearable finish.

On leaving the house to get our car, we slip on rubbers and perhaps a raincoat. Both have been chemically treated; the rubber to prevent its deteriorating with the action of air and heat and the raincoat with a material which leaves it rainproof and yet light in weight.

Our car is entirely chemical from the special "gas," which makes it run smoothly, to the waterproof top and the durable colored enamel. The batteries, the tires, even the button on the horn are the results of chemistry, the latter a chemical resin.

In the business man's office the telephone and dictaphone both remind us of the hundreds of chemists constantly experimenting to improve these materials. The very office building itself, put up in record time, owes its rapid completion to the fact that dynamite has greatly increased the amount and availability of metals and minerals as compared with hand-labor production in mines.

The fountain pen we sign our letters with is a chemical product. Its tube being made of a plastic called pyralin. The shoe paste which the shoe-boy is using on our shoes contains a chemical dye and other elements; the box toe of the shoe is Dumold, a chemical product which preserves the shape of the shoe.

At dinner the various tropical and western fruits, vegetables, the game and meats are available because of the refrigerated cars used in shipping. Even the matches or lighter we use afterwards on our cigars, cigars or pipes, are chemical products. If we pick up a magazine, we remember that the colored photographs are the triumph of a chemist.

If we go to the movies instead of staying home, we are treated to a thousand chemical productions which make the talking and the moving picture possible.

PINE LAKE SHORES PROVING POPULAR

New Development at Eagle-ville Reports Brisk Business During the Week.

Since the opening of Pine Lake Shores at Eaglesville, South Coventry as a summer colony, a few weeks ago, Miss Gladys M. Andrews, president and treasurer, of Pine Lake Shores, Inc., reports that over two hundred camp and bungalow sites have been sold. There are over eight hundred lots on this plot with a shore frontage of nearly a mile.

Most of the lots have pine trees on them, some as many as two hundred, there being in excess of 22,000 pine trees on the tract.

Several cottages have been built, with quite a number more under construction. All drives and trails are completed and the plans for the Community Clubhouse are in the hands of the architect. The field is now completed and there are numerous rustic benches and tables set out in Pine Lake Park, which is reserved for property owners and their friends.

Pine Lake Shores boasts of one of the largest floating docks on any lake in Connecticut and great activity is anticipated over the week-end.

Benton Still Is Winning at 42

Forty-two years old and still winning, is the record of Rube Benton, pitching this year for Minneapolis. His record for the season thus far is nine won and two lost, beating the record of any other pitcher in the American Association. This is Rube's 21st year in organized baseball.

LOCAL MAN AS SOLOIST

Albert Pearson, bass soloist of the Beethoven Glee Club, heads the recital program to be given by the pupils of Mrs. Nellie Carey Reynolds, in the Hartford Woman's Club on Broad street on Wednesday evening, June 19 at 8:15 o'clock.

Mr. Pearson in his first appearance will sing "Mor Lilla Mor" (In Swedish) by Heijkorn; "The Blind Ploughman" by Clarke and "The Pretty Creature" by Wilson. In his second he will sing "O Du Mein Holder Abendstern" (Tannhauser) by Wagner.

When we talk of "dog-days," we mean the period of the year between July 3 and August 11, 20 days before and after the rising of the "dog-star."

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS MAKE THEIR CLASS WILL

Usual Wisecracks Feature Freak Document Composed by Class of '29; That Washington Trip.

What was probably the final assembly of the school year and also the final one for the senior class was held in the High School Auditorium yesterday afternoon.

It was originally planned to read the Will on Class Day but due to the fact that the chairman, Leslie Buckland, and Robert Treat will be absent on that day taking College Board Entrance Examinations.

Second. To our respected Superintendent, F. A. Verplanck, we bequeath our deepest appreciation for the debt we owe him.

Third. To our amiable Principal, Mr. Quimby, we leave our sincere gratitude for the inspiration of his leadership, through our trials and tribulations.

Fourth. To the faculty—we leave surcease at last. We hope that the Class of 1930 will be more appreciative, especially in English.

Fifth. To the Class of 1930 we bequeath all honor, dignity and senior responsibility.

Sixth. To the Class of 1930 we also give the privilege of occupying the center front seats in Assembly Hall, and of walking out first from Assembly Hall.

Seventh. The right of using the upper halls of the Main Building, we give to the Class of 1931.

Eighth. To the Class of 1932, we extend a sincere invitation to come over and occupy the lower "B" of our Main Building.

Ninth. We give to the remaining student body of the Manchester High School, the right to win three consecutive C. C. I. L. championships, provided they do it fairly and squarely.

Tenth. We pass on to the Class of 1930 the right, as Senators, to cut in on underclassmen at school dances.

Some Requests
Eleventh. To Horace Burr, we give Gladys Harrison's scholastic ability.

Twelfth. We give William Johnson's athletic ability to Ernest Dowd.

Thirteenth. We give Joseph McCuskey's ability as a track man to Frank Scario.

Fourteenth. To Jimmie Goiman, we bequeath Robert Treat's Red Flyer, provided he takes good care of it.

Fifteenth. To Carey and Hayes, we give the right to follow in the footsteps of Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton.

Sixteenth. We offer to John Johnston, the position of Campaign Manager for Al. Smith, providing Mr. Lee is willing.

Seventeenth. To Bertha Carlson, Inez Anderson, and Hazel Rogers, we bequeath the ability of Donald Healy, Herbert Crockett and Everett Glennie to "bum" rides.

Eighteenth. We will bequeath the right to sing in the quartet to Everett McKinney, provided he learns to open his mouth as Kenneth does.

Ham Davis' proficiency as a shiek to Roger Cheney.
Thirty-second. To Francis Happony we give the right to lat. h like a Chinpanzee.

Thirty-third. We give Marie Keating's ability to gold-dig with a pick in each hand, to Gertrude Stevenson, under the condition that she doesn't vamp Howard Turkington.

Thirty-fourth. We give to William George, George Flavelly's ability to explain the Einstein Theory.

Thirty-fifth. To Thelma Carr, we give the right to live as dairy-maid on Woodbridge street after her graduation.

Thirty-sixth. We give and bequeath to George Polteror, and Lovina Foose, the ability of Edgar Opizzi and Mary Obremski as dancing partners.

Thirty-seventh. To Everett Glennie, we give the right to be the sole understudy of Tom Graham.

It is our sincere wish that any person mentioned or omitted in this testament will not take offense at what we have said, implied or suggested.

In testimony whereof, we have to this, our last Will and Testament, set our hand and seal, and to this instrument we hereby subscribe our name on this thirteenth day of June, in the Year of Our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Nine.

(Signed) The Class of 1930.
THAT WASHINGTON TRIP.
The humorous accounts of the Washington trip are much too long to reprint here but the following are extracts from each day:

"Bob" Smith writes, "Saturday morning dawned after Friday night as usual but it was not the ordinary Saturday morning in the time of our cause on this day the Seniors were leaving for Washington. It was a great relief that we learned that 'Kenney' Graham was on board, because he was doomed (according to a fortune teller) to spend this morning in bed while his fellow schoolmates left for their destination. To say his faith in clairvoyants is shaken, is to put it mildly, and he is considering suing the clairvoyant for the dollar he paid for that dire (but very, very false) prophecy. He is now telling us that a black, black, cat crossed his path this very morning which in itself forbodes great evil.

"There's the Capitol now! We will be in our hotel in about five minutes." "Horror! Disappointment! No showers in our rooms. In addition the meal was absolutely nothing to write home about. The peas and string beans were the only good thing about it and they were quite cold, but that may have been because we arrived a little later than we were supposed to."

Mercer's Account. "After having spent our first night at Washington, during which we had slept between seven or eight hours, we awoke bright and early, none the worse for our long train ride of the previous day. We went down to the dining room and consumed string beans, our old stand by from then on. After breakfast we were told which buses were ours and we loaded in.

Later: "After having walked about five miles through this building we were dragged to the buses and went to the hotel and obtained our proteins and vitamins by grinding them out of our now famous string beans.

"Again we boarded our busses and were transported to our mansion, the Burlington, and immediately became quiet for the night."

Tale Continued. Here John Johnston takes up the narrative: "We arose at 7 o'clock, a. m., on Monday, at least most of us did, and breakfast was served at 7:30. Immediately afterwards we left for the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. We arrived at 8:30, just in time to avoid the rush of early sightseers. The party was split up into groups of twenty-five or thirty with a guide for each group. The ride in the elevator was the most thrilling part of the day's trip, and the only remark one could make was, 'This is a nice ride, wasn't it?'"

"We went to Fox's new million dollar theater at night and had a very delightful evening's entertainment.

Wes Willis Robyn, the tenor soloist with Major Bowes' Capitol theater family. However, the most humorous part of the entertainment was furnished by the Ever Ready Trio, three musicians of exceptional talent.

"Immediately after the show we returned to our hotel in order to retire because we knew that on the morrow we were in for a day of walking as we were to be prepared for the "bunion derby."

Came Tuesday Thelma Carr relieves Johnston: "On Tuesday morning, we were called at seven-thirty, had breakfast at eight and left the hotel in relays shortly after 8:30 for the Lincoln Memorial. When we got there we found visitors were not allowed inside the temple until 9 o'clock. When we did reach the top of the steps we saw the famous figure of Lincoln with whom everyone is familiar. On either side of the structure are written in bronze the Gettysburg address and the Second Inaugural Address. If you counted the columns all there was around the building you would find there were thirty-six—symbolizing the number of states at the time of the Civil War. The dancing ceased around twelve, in respect to the other occupants of the hotel and most everyone ascended to the upper floors to pursue various forms of spending the night."

The Conclusion Ruth McMenemy assumes the burden for the last two days, Wednesday and Thursday: "Six a. m. on Wednesday was the time set for arising to leave for Luray. Although we had been looking forward to this day all week none of us were particularly wide awake or waiting to hear that bell announcing the dawn of our last day in Washington. C. P. Q. with more than his usual persistence finally succeeded in making the fellows believe that they wanted to go to Luray.

"We didn't get back to the hotel until about 8:30 o'clock and almost immediately sat down for the last time to our humble repast of string beans and rolls.

"C. P. Q. had told us that we might spend our last evening in Washington in any way we chose as long as we were back at the hotel at 11 o'clock. Most of the class was back at the appointed time but at 11 the evening had only begun. From this time on some very peculiar noises were heard throughout the hotel. The house detectives threatened to put most of the fellows in a big black dungeon underneath the hotel if they didn't keep quiet.

"There is some doubt as to whether or not any of us had any sleep that night but at any rate everyone, even Flavia Pinney and Ruth Behrend, was on the train at seven the next morning.

"On behalf of the class I would like to thank Mr. Quimby for so carefully planning and conducting our trip for us."

MRS. COOLIDGE TAKES HER PEN IN HAND

Former President's Wife Joins Ranks of Writers to Reveal More of White House Life.

New York, June 11.—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has joined her husband in the ranks of the magazine writers, it was announced today, and her first article will appear in the September number of the American magazine.

Mrs. Coolidge, writing from the viewpoint of a president's wife, throws new light on the famous "I do not choose to run" pronouncement and also tells of life in the White House.

She discloses that she did not excel as a cook and that her pies on one occasion drew comment from her husband.

Many angles of the former president's own personality which he could not reveal in his own writings are set forth by Mrs. Coolidge.

COL. LINDBERGH SAW YELLOW BIRD START

Sighted Today Off Star Island, N. H., and Believed to Have Been Beneath French Flyers as They Started.

Star Island, N. H., June 14.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride, sighted aboard their power cruiser Moutoua off here today, were believed to have seen the trans-Atlantic Yellow Bird fly away from the Maine coast for Paris in an attempt to span the ocean somewhat as did "The Lone Eagle."

The Moutoua took on gasoline and supplies at Cape Porpoise, near Kennebunkport, about 5 p. m., yesterday on the way down the Maine coast, on the honeymoon cruise from New York to above the island of North Haven and return.

During the beginning of the flight overseas by the Yellow Bird it was above the "trail blazer of the Atlantic airway" and his bride.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Laura Paisley of North Elm street and her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Thresher, motored to Hanover, N. H., today to attend the commencement exercises at Dartmouth college. Lawrence, son of Mrs. C. A. Paisley and the late Edwin F. Paisley, graduates with honors on Tuesday of next week. The young man was graduated from Manchester High school with the class of 1925. Where he was an honor student and is only in his twentieth year.

The outing club of the Hartford Y. M. C. A. will have its annual picnic for the fourth year on the summer home of L. J. Robertson, 940 East Middle Turnpike. Secretary Robinson of the Y. M. C. A. will be in charge and Rev. W. B. Tutwiller will be the principal speaker.

A lawn bridge and whist party, open to the public will be given at the home of Mrs. Margaret Griffin of Hilliard street, Wednesday afternoon of next week. If stormy it will be held the day following. Six prizes and an attendance prize will be offered. Mrs. Griffin will be assisted by Mrs. Ida Yost and Mrs. Catherine Monte. The hostess is one of the delegates to the Mooseheart Legion convention at West Haven, Friday, June 22.

The Commanders with twelve musicians, singers and dancers, will be at Sandy Beach ballroom, Crystal Lake, tomorrow evening. Their melodies are unusually pleasing to dance fans. Danny Haik and Bill Smith who head the band are high class musicians who have played with some of the best bands in the country. The attendance at Sandy Beach is gradually increasing and with the opening of the hundreds of cottages at the lake the crowds will be greater than ever.

FIRST MARRIAGE IN NEW VATICAN STATE

Worcester, Mass., June 14.—Plans were being made today for the first marriage to be solemnized within the bounds of the newly created Vatican state.

The principals will be Miss Mary M. McLoughlin of Worcester, Mass., and Frank D. Comerford, of Brookline, Mass.

Monsignor Spellman, of the American college in Rome, is planning to have the wedding performed in the new Vatican parish church, formerly the chapel of St. Ana, near the Pauline tower.

No date has been set for the ceremony.

MRS. SAYRE DECLINES

Boston, June 14.—Mrs. Jessie Woodrow Sayre, daughter of the late President Woodrow Wilson, prefers her home duties to a democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

Regarded as one of the leading candidates for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, Mrs. Sayre announced today that she would not seek the office.

A Los Angeles aviator won the solo endurance record, the other day, which doesn't mean so much after all, because there are a good many people whose neighbors are "musicians."

GAS BUGGIES—An Unexpected Sight

DAN DRESSER, AS SALES MANAGER FOR THE NULSTER AUTO POLISH COMPANY, IS ORGANIZING THE TERRITORY AROUND HARTFORD. TODAY HE IS GOING TO MLLS CENTER AND HAS TAKEN VIOLA WITH HIM. THE ROAD LEADS PAST JED MILLS' FARM.

LOOK AT THAT FARMER OVER THERE. FARMERS ARE SIMPLE SOULS WHO LIVE CLOSE TO NATURE, BUT THEY NEVER HAVE A CHANCE TO ENJOY THE FINER THINGS OF LIFE, SUCH AS AUTOS, THEATERS AND BEAUTIFUL CLOTHES.

GREAT CORN-HILLS! THERE'S DAN WITH VIOLA! OH! VIOLA DEAREST ANGEL! WHAT WOULDN'T I GIVE FOR A CLOSE VIEW OF YOUR DEAR FACE—BUT THEY MUSTN'T KNOW I'M HERE. OH, GOOD GRIEF! DAN IS POINTING AT ME!

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

With skirts so short, it looks as if clothes are going to women's hearts.

SENSE and NONSENSE

WHY SOME MEN FAIL
Too much talk;
Not enough walk;
Too much sigh;
Not enough try;
Too much bask;
Not enough ask;
Too much blow;
Not enough go;
Too much blink;
Not enough think;
Too much mope;
Not enough hope;
Too much shirk;
Not enough work;
The result is,
You miss the biz.

"How sweet and gracious, even in common speech, is that fine sense which men call Courtesy! Wholesome as air and genial as the light! Welcome in every clime as breath of flowers, It transmutes aliens into trusting friends And gives its owner passport 'round the globe."

"How do you get rid of these cooties?"
"That's easy. Take a bath in sand and rub down with alcohol. The cooties get drunk and kill each other throwing rocks."

"My sister is awfully lucky," said the little boy to another.

"Why?"
"She went to a party last night where they played a game in which the men either had to kiss a girl or pay a forfeit of a box of chocolates."

"Well, how was your sister lucky?"
"She came home with 13 boxes of chocolates."

Daddy—Very careless, I should say.

"Why do they do that?"
"Oh, just to keep the moths out of their trunks."

2-You change only one letter at a time.
3-You must have a complete word of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)
Brave Clowny held the scarecrow tight and ran right on with all his might. The forest fire was near at hand, and crackling in the air. The brilliant flames shot way up high, until it seemed they touch the sky. No wonder Clowny and the rest were given quite a scare.
"I thing," said Clowny, "we will be all right. If you'll leave this to me, I know you can't run very fast. That's why I'm dragging you. The other Tinymites are near, and when we come they'll give a cheer. I'm heading for the stream, which is a real smart thing to do."
So, on he went for quite a ways, and then he stopped, like in a daze. "I fear I'll have to rest a bit. I can't go on much more."
"Oh, please don't stop," the scarecrow cried. "I'll try to run right by your side. I know that we will both be burned. I hear the huge flames roar."
This pepped we Clowny up a bit and he exclaimed. "Oh, I am fit. I'll carry you to safety just as sure as I'm alive. I must admit it's growing hot. The fire seems near. As like as not I'll toss you in the water just as soon as we arrive."
So, on they ran. It didn't seem so long until they reached the stream. The Tinymites were on the shore, and they began to shout. "Hurrah for Clowny! He was brave. We left it up to him to save the scarecrow who was near the fire. And Clowny pulled him out."
Then Clowny, with a cheerful scream, tossed Mister Scarecrow in the stream. "You're safer there," he shouted. "And real safety always pays. We Tinymites will stay up here and fight the flames as they draw near. We know that splashing water may put out a roaring blaze."
(The Tinymites fight the fire in the next story.)

He was defended by the local court by William Harnes of Hartford. Mr. Lauffer is considering an appeal.

Mrs. Allene J. Burns, who is in the home service department of Landers, Frary and Clark, manufacturers of Universal ranges, gave a thoroughly enjoyable lecture-demonstration yesterday afternoon at the Manchester Electric company's store on Main street. Mrs. Burns cooked a six-pound crown roast of pork with pears and bread dressing; vegetable dishes of creamed cabbage and stuffed carrots in the oven during the course of the class. The day was hot and yet the perfectly insulated oven of the Universal range radiated no heat. Details of the cooking and recipes will be given on the home page tomorrow.
