Rev. Dr. Raymond Calkins Commencement Speaker; Class Wears Caps and Gowns for First Time.

Bromides, idle phrases, habit forming expressions and words in imitation are a handicap to the conversationalist to such an extent that they rob one of his individuality, Rev. Dr. Raymond Calkins told the 1929 Manchester high school graduating class last night. "Four idle words" the use of which is to be greatly regretted especially in one who has the capacity to know better conversation, were listed by Dr. Calkins as follows: "Everybody does," "I hope I'll get by," "What can I do?" and "It's my temperament."

Wear Caps and Gowns.
For the first time in the history of the school, the graduating class numbering 139 wore caps and gowns and they made an inspiring spectacle as the graduates marched slowly into the spacious assembly hall for the last time as a student body. The audience rose as an act of courtesy when the two rows of students filed into the hall. William Johnson, class president, led the boys and Miss Alice Modin, vice-president, was at the head of the girls.

Weather Fine
The weather was exceptionally favorable for graduation, the cool spell having arrived just in time. This was a decided contrast to other years when it has been so hot that the exercises have been more of an ordeal than a pleasure. The gray caps and gowns will be impressive because they make the class uniform but they are also uncomfortable to wear on hot days, as any senior who took part in the class day program will attest.

Couple Push Baby Buggy On Long Hike

Bridgeport, June 21.—Ruth Hoxie Mangey, a Stamford school teacher, today told Judge Isaac Wolfe in Superior Court, that she and her husband, Howard C. Mangey, now of Milwaukee, once sold all their possessions to travel from Georgetown, Conn., to Milwaukee, where her mother lived, and that when they reached Racine, Wis., their funds gave out. Then they started to walk to Milwaukee, each pushing the carriage in which was their young baby, until a truckman gave them a lift. Mrs. Mangey received a decree of divorce on the ground of desertion.

HERE'S CONFESSION OF HAMMER SLAYER

After Stunning Miss Hix, Dr. Snook Cut Her Jugular Vein With Penknife.

Columbus, O., June 21.—The confession of Dr. James H. Snook, Ohio State University professor, to the brutal slaying of Miss Theora Hix, co-ed at the university, follows:
"I met Theora Hix three years ago.
"The friendship continued in a very intimate way ever since, inasmuch as she was a very good companion.
"I have been living with my wife all during the three-year period, and regard my wife very highly and respect her very much as a wife, but she lacked some of the companionship afforded by Miss Hix.
"During the three years I knew Miss Hix I did assist her in many ways toward an education, but I found out it wasn't appreciated as much as I thought it should be.
"No Love Affair
"Our association was not a love affair in any sense of the word, but in time Miss Hix developed a more determined attitude in regard to dictating my movements and the final culmination of this occurred June 13 when I met Miss Hix.
"We both got into my Ford coupe and proceeded to drive to the Columbus Rifle range on the New York Central railroad, during which she remonstrated with me against leaving the city with my family for the week-end, as I had previously planned to do.
"She threatened that if I did go, that she would take the life of my wife and baby.
"Hits Her With Hammer
"During this quarrel she grabbed for the purse in which she sometimes carried a revolver which I had given her.
"In the struggle she was hit on the head with a hammer with the intent to stun her.
"She continued desperately, and an increased number of blows of increased force was necessary to stop her.
"Realizing then, no doubt, that her skull was fractured, and to relieve her suffering, I severed her jugular vein with my pocket knife.
"I then proceeded to pick up the things that had been scattered during the struggle, leaving her body at that point.
"The instrument which I used to quiet her was a hammer which was lying on the back seat of my Ford.
"After leaving the rifle range I then proceeded to go home."

BLOODY BATTLE WHEN SOVIETS FIGHT BANDITS

Russians Lose 39 and Enemy 201—Turkish Leader Tries to Start Holy War Among Moslems.

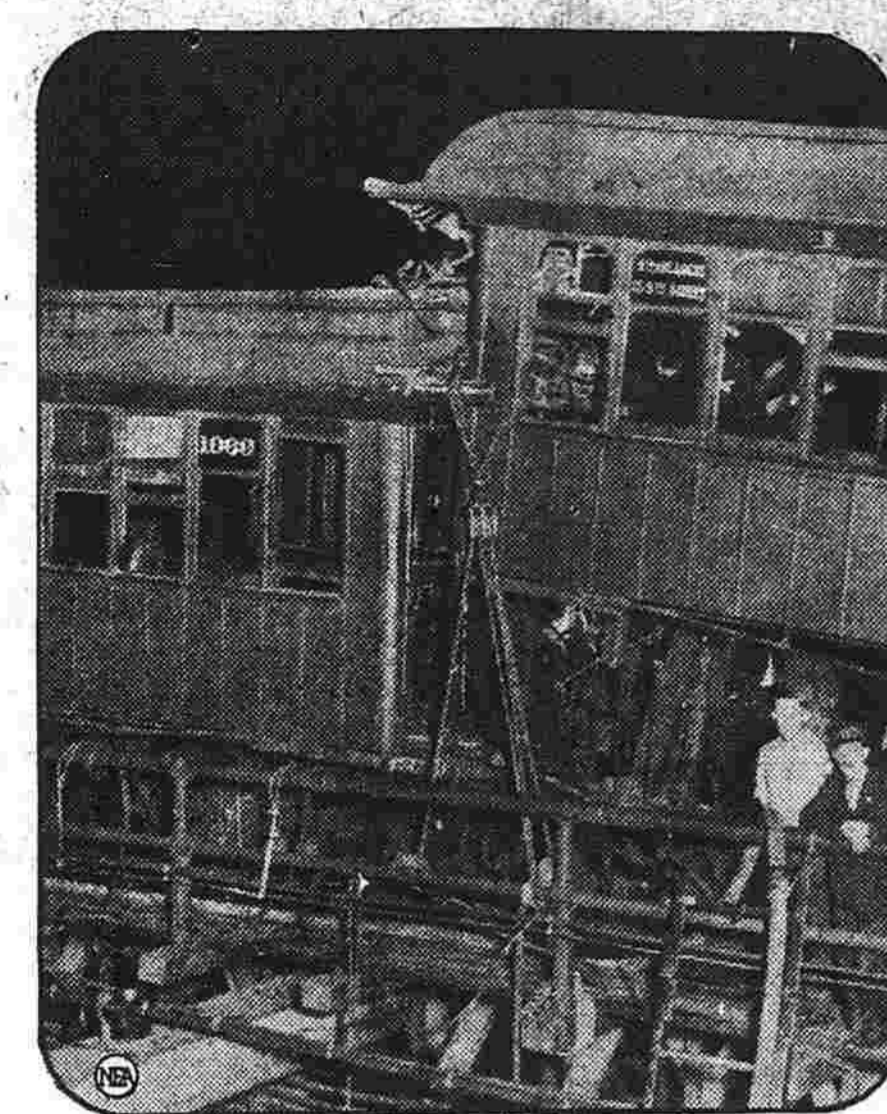

Moscow, June 21.—Vivid details of fierce fighting in Soviet Turkistan, where trans-Caspian Cossacks drove out marauding bands of Afghan tribesmen, have at last reached Moscow six weeks after the last remnants of the raiders fled back across the frontier into the Afghan hills. The total number killed is conservatively estimated at 240, of which the Soviets lost 39 killed and the enemy 201.

Commander Dibenko of the Central-Asiatic Military District reported to the commissariat of war that a small band of Afghan Basmachis, supported by the self-styled Amir of Afghanistan, Bacha Saka. Goes Into Russia
Falsul penetrated 40 miles into Soviet territory to the town of Kall Labiol where he called a mass meeting of 800 Mohammedan inhabitants and proclaimed that he was fighting for the liberation of Moslem Turkistan from the infidel Soviet yoke.
"Two more tribes and British troops are coming to help me in this crusade," he said, and took a handful of British-made cartridges out of his belt and pointed to his English automatic rifle. At Kall Labiol enlists swelled Falsul's forces to 450 men with whom he marched on the important caravan center of Garm, which it captured without control the route across the desert to Soviet Parml.
Used Airplanes
From Dushambah the capital of Soviet Turkistan, Dibenko said he dispatched a cavalry detachment of fifty men to Garm, together with airplanes with rifles and machine guns so that the population of Garm might hold the city until the arrival of troops. The Garm city Soviet called for volunteers to meet the enemy outside of the city gates. Eighteen men, of whom 12 were

Million Out of Work Now.

London, June 21.—"Gods knows, I realize what I am up against, but I am going to apply myself to the work with a single-minded desire to see whether it is possible to grapple with this most terrible of human tragedies."
This is the declaration of J. H. Thomas, the man whom Premier Ramsay MacDonald has given the job of ridding England of its greatest post-war scourge—unemployment.
His task will be to find work for the 1,100,000 men who are now idle. For four years, a conservative government has been trying to do this. For ten years, industrial experts have said it was an impossible task. The main reasons are over-population and the lack of an outlet for British products in Europe, owing to the low rate of exchange in continental countries.
Sacrificed Trade
In order to keep the pound sterling stable, England has sacrificed her continental export trade. Her exchange rate is so far above that of the countries which before the war took most of her exports that they have now ceased to buy from her. Thus, the industries which supplied these exportable commodities are idle, and the men who worked them going hungry.
Labor In Power
The party that represents these working men has now been elected to power, and so labor is going to try to solve its own problem. What J. H. Thomas, as the newly created minister of employment, will accomplish remains a puzzle, even to Thomas himself. But he is confident the question can be solved.
"As yet," he says, "the light is dim, but already I see the dawn of a new era for those whose misfortune it has been to be denied the opportunity of earning a decent livelihood."
One of the first steps the labor government intends to take in order to lessen unemployment is to have the miners return to the seven hour day. It is expected that this alone will make work for an additional 100,000 men.
The eight hour day, which is now in force, was brought about by the Conservative government on the grounds that it was the only way to reduce the cost of production and thus compete with the low-priced products of Germany.

YALE'S OARSMEN DEFEAT HARVARD IN TWO RACES

Blue Freshman and Junior Varsity Crews Shoot Out Ahead After Neck and Neck Contest on Thames.

New London, June 21.—Yale Oarsmen, coached by Ed Leader and inclined to take the name literally, prepared to sweep Harvard right off the Thames in their annual regatta when it won both the Freshman and Junior Varsity races impressively this morning. Since the blue already is conceded a victory in the varsity event to be rowed in the shadows of twilight late today, the dual-triumph of the early hours seemed to forecast a blue day for Harvard and red night for Yale.
The Yale crowd, seeing a clean sweep of all events, rushed the railings of the observation trains to scream their entries down to the line in the innumerable manner that makes a New London race day through so distinctive among all other regattas.
Harvard offered a silent prayer for a break in these, the only races in which it was presumed to have a chance, and for a time, it looked as though one of its entries would need neither prayer nor audible exertion.
By Half Length
The Crimson first year crew was beaten only a scant half length and then only after it had hooked the part of a winner until the final 200 yards. The Harvard Junior Varsity, however, died without a struggle, the Yale Jayvees being paced by Woodruff Tappan, of New York, last year's varsity stroke, in a manner that beat the rival boat off early and kept it beaten off. Yale finally won by 3-1/2 lengths.
This was almost "no race" in the parlance of the river. The freshman event, on the other hand, was all race, the kind one reads about but seldom sees. Both races were conducted over the so-called middle course, a distance of two miles upstream.
Good Start
Harvard caught the water first and was away with oars flashing smartly in the rays of the morning sun. Rowing an even 35, it pulled

NATION-WIDE DEMANDS FOR HIGH TARIFF

All Sections of Country Now Ask for Protection; Southerners and West- erners Combine Pleas.

Washington, June 21.—The star of tariff protection has taken its course from the industrial east to the agricultural west and the newly-awakened south, it appeared today, when southerners and westerners rubbed shoulders with easterners at the tariff hearings of the four Senate finance sub-committees. Occupied with reviewing the tariff rates adopted by the House, the four sub-committees found westerners and southerners demanding higher protection for local products and lower rates on raw materials used at home. A few years ago, these appeals came only from the industrial east.
Corn Belts' Demands
The demand of the wheat and corn belts for greater protection on agricultural products has been matched by appeals for higher tariff rates from Southern states, where industries have taken root after a transplantation from New England. The south likewise has voiced a plea for a tariff on cotton to match the tariff on wool for protection on shingles and other forest products. From Florida and California meanwhile have come demands of protection on fruits and vegetables; just as Louisiana has joined with Utah in demanding higher tariff protection on sugar. The bid for tariff protection apparently has become nationwide.
Insurgents Protest
A different story however will be told within the Senate itself. There a coalition of Democrats and insurgent Republicans will fight many schedules ultimately reported by the Senate finance committee. The insurgents already have organized for the fight, which will be launched as soon as the Senate returns from its vacation on August 19. This group, including Senators Norris and Howell (R) of Nebraska, Frazier and Nye (R) of North Dakota, La Follette and Blain (R) of Wisconsin, Brookhart (R) of Iowa, and Wheeler (D) of Montana, will seek to reduce rates all down the line. To win, though, they must obtain considerable Democratic help.
The western witnesses have come from every section west of the Ohio. California, Kansas, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, and West Virginia have been well represented. Except when asking lower rates on raw materials, these witnesses all have urged higher tariff protection. They have taken the old plea of the industrial east and adapted them for home use.
All this expansion in tariff interest has a dual effect—it is very pleasing to Republican leaders and quite disconcerting to Democratic chieftains. It also may mean greater interest in the tariff as an issue in the elections of 1930.

Unemployment; Over a Million Out of Work Now.

London, June 21.—"Gods knows, I realize what I am up against, but I am going to apply myself to the work with a single-minded desire to see whether it is possible to grapple with this most terrible of human tragedies."
This is the declaration of J. H. Thomas, the man whom Premier Ramsay MacDonald has given the job of ridding England of its greatest post-war scourge—unemployment.
His task will be to find work for the 1,100,000 men who are now idle. For four years, a conservative government has been trying to do this. For ten years, industrial experts have said it was an impossible task. The main reasons are over-population and the lack of an outlet for British products in Europe, owing to the low rate of exchange in continental countries.
Sacrificed Trade
In order to keep the pound sterling stable, England has sacrificed her continental export trade. Her exchange rate is so far above that of the countries which before the war took most of her exports that they have now ceased to buy from her. Thus, the industries which supplied these exportable commodities are idle, and the men who worked them going hungry.
Labor In Power
The party that represents these working men has now been elected to power, and so labor is going to try to solve its own problem. What J. H. Thomas, as the newly created minister of employment, will accomplish remains a puzzle, even to Thomas himself. But he is confident the question can be solved.
"As yet," he says, "the light is dim, but already I see the dawn of a new era for those whose misfortune it has been to be denied the opportunity of earning a decent livelihood."
One of the first steps the labor government intends to take in order to lessen unemployment is to have the miners return to the seven hour day. It is expected that this alone will make work for an additional 100,000 men.
The eight hour day, which is now in force, was brought about by the Conservative government on the grounds that it was the only way to reduce the cost of production and thus compete with the low-priced products of Germany.

HERE'S A FISH STORY FOR YOU, M' LADS

Bangor, Me., June 21.—The "best fish story of the season" was on record here today. Tied the stomach of a seven pound cod, three Islesboro fishermen—L. E. Smith, Burton Padton and Grover Parkinson—said they discovered a sealed pint of whiskey.

DELAY OF VATICAN WORRIES MEXICANS

No Answer Yet from Pope On Church and State Dis- pute; Walsh Wants Action

Mexico City, June 21.—Virtually all Mexico City newspapers today stressed the anxiety of Catholics throughout the nation over the unexpected delay of the Vatican in making known its approval or disapproval of the Church and State dispute settlement, effected by Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, apostolic delegate, and President Portes Gil.
The newspapers pay a great deal of attention to the article which appeared in the "Observatore Romano," semi-official Vatican organ, commenting on the conflict. The article was headed "Premature Optimism."
Walsh Wants Action
Dwight W. Morrow, American ambassador to Mexico, Dr. Miguel Cruchaga, arbiter of the Mexican-French claims commissions, and Dr. Edmund Walsh, of the Catholic University, special papal emissary, today transmitted through various channels urgent messages to the Vatican, describing the psychological and political situation, and stressing the extreme dangers of delay. They urged immediate action on the report of Archbishop Ruiz, setting forth the terms of the settlement.
Vatican's Delay
The only communication received from the Vatican thus far is one acknowledging receipt of the Ruiz document, which arrived in Rome Wednesday morning. Unless the papal decision arrives today there is no way of knowing when Archbishop Ruiz and President Portes Gil will be able to get together again, as the President is leaving for San Luis Potosi tonight and will be gone several days.
Although Archbishop Ruiz was smiling and cheerful, his chief aide, Bishop Pascual Diaz, showed ill-concealed anxiety over the situation.
"I am hopeful the answer will come today," he said.

GIRL PILOT SEEKS ENDURANCE RECORD

To Try to Break Endurance Mark—Plane to Be Re- fueled While in Air.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 21.—Shooting for the refueling endurance record for light airplanes, Miss Gentry, the "Schoolgirl Pilot," took off at 11:22 A. M., today in a Cessna biplane.
Charles Parkhurst accompanied her as relief pilot.
At the present time there is no endurance record on the official books for light airplanes.
Miss Gentry was dressed more appropriately for a tea than for an arduous aviation test. She wore a charming black dress and silk stockings. Parkhurst was dressed in an ordinary business suit.
They took aboard as food 12 oranges, four chicken sandwiches, a quart of coffee and a gallon of water.
"We will stay up as long as we can," said Miss Gentry.
The plane is a two-passenger ship with a glass enclosed cockpit. It has a gasoline capacity of 114 gallons but only 80 gallons were in its tanks when it took off. The 110 horsepower Warner motor consumes about six gallons of fuel an hour.
The plane has been named "The Answer," suggested from the fact that the heavier machine which established a refueling endurance record on the Pacific coast was called "The Question Mark."
Refueling Plane
The refueling for the Gentry plane will be done with a gravity feed from the Fokker cabin monoplane "Exclamation Mark." The latter will be handled during the refueling operations by Emil Bergen and Harold Wilder, both veteran pilots.
A 50-foot hose will be used and school teachers, three members of the city Soviet and three policemen, rode out 25 miles into the desert to meet Faisal's forces of 450. The little band fought valiantly, but it was surrounded and slaughtered. Not a man escaped alive.

Stopped to Celebrate
Faisal's rejoicing at this victory gave Dibenko time to mobilize a few troops for the defense of Garm. If Faisal had not stopped to celebrate, the important caravan city might have fallen into his hands. But Faisal allowed his men to indulge in the favorite sport of goat fighting. Only instead of two goats being goaded to fight each other, one goat was driven to tear to pieces the dead body of a Communist.

When Faisal finally reached the gates of Garm he was met by a force of Red cavalry and infantry with six machine guns. The rider and his followers fled, and the Soviet Cossacks took up the pursuit. With their sabres they slashed 150 rebels to death. All the rest surrendered, with the exception of Faisal and 11 close followers who escaped into Afghan territory, but not until he had slashed off the heads of three modern Mohammedan women who were walking along the road unveiled, a sacrilege in his eyes.

"Assets and Liabilities" tracing the remarkable feats which have been made by outstanding heroes in the past. In conclusion, she said, "Each deed has been a responsibility—a liability, posted on the left-hand page of the Ledger of Life and the balance sheet will balance."

"Idle Words"
Rev. Calkins, the principal speaker of the evening, and incidentally, one of wide reputation throughout the East, took for his topic, "Idle Words." He cited several famous expressions which have brought undesired consequences and then went on to give illustrations of four commonly used words and expressions that should be carefully avoided.

"Everybody Does"
The first was that much abused remark, "Everybody does." This is one of the most deadly phrases that I know," declared the speaker. "Don't give in just because someone tells you 'Why everybody does.' Stand on your own feet, do your own job, live up to your own standards and ideals and stick steadily and steadfastly to what you think is right. You can still have a good time, in fact most of the time a better one, by standing firmly on your own feet, doing what is right, and not letting others over-rule your better judgment."

"Get By"
The second of four phrases which Dr. Calkins strongly urged be never spoken was "I hope I'll get by." He termed it a "mean, nasty, deadly combination of words containing the most abominable philosophy." Where would we be today, if our ancestors merely tried to "get by"? Rev. Calkins asked. Continuing, he added, "There is more sheer joy and satisfaction in tackling some hard, distasteful and difficult job and attaining even a degree of success, than in just being one of the many shufflers who does the least possible work."

"What Can I Do?"
Dr. Calkins' third forbidden phrase was "I can't help it" or "What can I do." A man can do a great deal if he only has the determination—the will power, he said. To use either of these phrases is to admit one's laziness and lack of ambition, Dr. Calkins added.

"Temperament"
Dr. Calkins said that in his opinion the most cowardly word in the English language today is "temperament." The speaker said that it was used by hundreds as an alibi, a screen of defense. People say "I would like to do this or that or be like such and such a person, but my temperament prevents me." Dr. Calkins said, "This alibi was a nothing short of an admission of a weak determination. 'Keep the will operating strongly and steadily. Never excuse yourself from any moral duty on the excuse of unsuited temperament,' was his advice.

One of Best
Rev. Calkins was loudly applauded when he finished his 35 minute talk. It was the opinion of many that his inspiring address was one of the best that has been given at a graduation program here in many years.

"In behalf of the class of 1929 of Manchester High School, I wish to extend a heartfelt welcome to you—school officials, who are the executives of this institution; to you, principal and teachers, who have given helping hands to us when we needed them during the past four years; to you, parents, who have sacrificed for our education and opportunities; to you, friends, who have wished us well; and to you, schoolmates, who have helped to make our school career pleasant and full of happiness. May you enjoy, as much as we, these last exercises in which we participate as members of the student

"During our four years' stay, here we have experienced besides our many pleasant times, some difficulties and hardships which we may well call growing pains. Growing pains are usually attributed to children who are passing too rapidly from the young, light supposedly care-free period of their lives into a more mature period which includes the taking-up of responsibility and work. We may, I believe, consider our graduation this evening as a growing pain. Not that we suffer physically in any way, but that we must, of necessity, sever abruptly, ties of friendship and comradeship which we have woven together in the four pleasant years which we have spent in this school. It, moreover, signifies our passing into another phase of life, into another period of years which are more difficult and contain more duties and obligations. A few of us have, of course, already felt to some extent the weight of responsibility. But we all, I think, may consider this evening as the turning point, or shall I say beginning, of our lives and careers, for from this night on we no longer are children, nor shall we be considered as such. We shall be full-fledged young men and women."

Harvard was less than a quarter length to the good as the pair thrashed their way opposite the submarine base, unofficial designation of the half way point. For a minute or two, they fought their way through the lane of shrieking pleasure craft and, as the clock ticked its way through this interval, the destiny of a great boat race was determined.

MACCABEES PRESENT PINS TO VETERANS

Manchester Tent, No. 2, Knights of Maccabees, held a Veterans night last evening in Balch and Brown hall. The occasion was for the purpose of presenting all those members who had been in the order twenty-five years or more with a service pin commemorating that fact. State Manager Elmer L. Galley was present and made the presentation.

One of the interesting features of the evening was the presentation of a pin to the Record/Keeper Alvin L. Brown who has held that office continually since the organization of the Tent on March 8, 1888. In all these years the Record/Keeper cannot recall missing a meeting.

The meeting was presided over by Patrick J. Touhey Commander, who introduced the speakers who were: S. B. Gaylord, H. H. Spencer, Chas. I. Balch, A. L. Brown.

The following members were presented with the service pins by Elmer L. Galley, State Manager: Alvin L. Brown, Chas. I. Balch, Louis Charlier, Wm. J. Burke, F. H. A. Ery, Walter Smith, Alexander Hanes, Wm. R. Palmer, Wm. Tallon, H. H. Spencer, Patrick J. Touhey, Chas. Crockett, Almeron Gilman, C. H. Strant, John Bantley and Christian Helm.

Refreshments were served. The committee in charge was Wm. J. Burke, Samuel Gaylord and W. C. Goodridge.

honary War, Thomas Paine published a series of political essays. The first of these began with this electrical battle-cry: "These are the times that try men's souls! We all seem to have the feeling that the soul of man, or his character, is tested only by a crisis. The truth of the matter is, however, that every day brings its test, big or little; that every day tries a man's soul; that every day, for the man who develops in mind, in body, and in character is a growing pain.

All Can Learn "Not only we, as individuals, but we, as a class, and Manchester High school, as a school, have felt and will continue to feel growing pains. No one is too old to suffer them. In other words, no one is too old to learn, to develop or to become bigger in every sense. As a class in this past semester especially, we have felt not only the gradual, but at times, the sudden broadening of our minds and a growing ability to meet the task of accumulating money for our trip to Washington. Different groups and group leaders had first to lay out plans, and then to execute them. There were unexpected obstacles to meet and overcome. All this was a form of growth and development in a certain sense, and might be called a growing pain. This, however, is not the only growing pain the class has had. I cannot enumerate more, for they are, as the old guidebook said: "Too numerous to mention." We may take as a general case our inter-class and inter-school contests. We may have won; we may have lost. The result makes little difference, for the effort sustained in the strenuous training in preparation for the actual contest is what counts, what I call our growing pains. They are the price of progress.

Gains From Wars "We may go even further and say that not only an individual, or a class, or an institution, but the world as a whole has suffered and endured its growing pains. Moreover, it will continue to experience them, for suffering or pain, followed by development, is the law of nature, the law of the world. It is gained with some kind of a struggle. In speaking of the world, consider the many inevitable wars, through which we have passed. In many cases, they were fought for a good cause, a cause that would not have lived in America our wars constitute the steps in the evolution of our government. Take for instance the Revolution which brought us freedom from England and the Civil War which gave us unification and abolition of slavery. Wars are outstanding events which we would all probably recognize as steps to world progress. However, the comparatively insignificant everyday affairs, which may not cause world, nation, or even city-wide comment, but which, nevertheless, have a bearing upon our daily lives, either in a political, a commercial, an intellectual, or a spiritual way, must be taken into consideration. These, I feel, are as much growing pains as the wars, fierce and far-reaching events of war, they are all stages through which the world has had to pass, in order to gain her present comparatively prosperous condition. Her present state of knowledge and of general culture.

"I do not mean, classmates, to stress the hardships and difficulties of the life which we are entering, for the unpleasant things in life are undoubtedly outnumbered by the pleasant ones. The joy of success and that good feeling which one invariably experiences after an achievement fully balances the preparations and hard work which is entailed. This is the point I want to stress. Whatever we may have to suffer in the way of growing pains—and their amount shall differ, of course, as our characters differ—let us not feel discouraged or disheartened, but remember that every little difficulty, when overcome, is an indication of progress—a sign that one more process has been completed in the forming of a worthwhile character.

The senior high school male quartet consisting of John Johnson, William Johnson, Warren Case and Kenneth Graham, with Miss Dorward at the piano, next sang "The Night has a Thousand Eyes" by Nevin which had a violin obligate by Edward Daladus, and "On the Road to Mandalay" by Spake. The latter song was particularly well rendered and warmly applauded. Incidentally, this quartet is one of the best that Manchester High has had in years and it is with a feeling of regret that they pass on. Then came Dr. Calkins' address. The combined Glee clubs sang "Mexican Serenade" by Chadwick after which Miss Harrison delivered her essay and victory which follows:

ASSETS OR LIABILITIES

By Miss Gladys R. Harrison

"In the modern day the world has many prominent men who are considered heroes. When you hear of a startling invention, of a trans-Atlantic flight, of a trip by air to the North Pole or a new plan for world peace, you, along with the rest of this generation, take for granted that the man in back of the marvelous work is a hero. A man may gain credit for several achievements, but if he has done them for himself and for no one else, he is not a hero. A well known preacher once defined an asset as something you take in for yourself and a liability as something for which you are responsible.

ble. If a man has many assets and few liabilities, he is worthy to be called a hero? Life is a mere matter of bookkeeping. The assets, in due time, should be posted on the left hand page of the ledger as liabilities. The life book is kept like a ledger in a bank. The balance sheet must balance! The majority of our modern day heroes have one very important liability—one superb task which is a responsibility to them. It may be the completion of a gigantic engineering project; it may be a successful flight from New York to Paris; it may be the organizing of a plan whereby world peace will be insured.

Hoover a Hero "In the eyes of every loyal American, Herbert Hoover is a hero. You might seem to be justified in calling his accomplishment merely an asset, but think it over. After Mr. Hoover heard the announcement come over the air on the night of November 6, 1928, he thanked his fellow citizens for electing him. However, on the following day, he sent out the message that he was happy that his fellow-citizens had enough confidence in him to bestow upon him the responsibility of the most powerful position in the world. Thus, within a few hours the asset was posted as a liability. Mr. Hoover did not forget that the philosophy of true living is summed up in these words: "Myself, my country, not for itself, but for the world." The balance sheet of our President's life book will balance; his assets have been posted.

"In this world of selfishness, it is a true pleasure to discover someone who is leading a life of service and self-sacrifice and who is enjoying it. In Dr. Wilfred Thomson Grenfell, who was called by the lure of the Labrador, we Americans have a man who is worthy to be a hero to us. Dr. Grenfell braves the storms of the most dangerous of all sea coasts and endures the hardships of Arctic winters to care for the lonely fisherfolk of Labrador. He met the world face to face when his call came, and now combined with a life of action and adventure, he has found one of service to others. This world has not very thoroughly considered what Dr. Grenfell has done and is still doing in those Labrador wilds. He is one of those men who is a real hero, and yet is not proclaimed abroad. Dr. Grenfell has not only spent several years of his life in his missionary work, but he has willingly financed his various schemes himself. He has kept nothing for his own but a very meager salary; he has given all to the world. His work will be enduring—a liability.

Many Air Heroes "Aviation in the last few years has given us many heroes. A lean, tan-face smiled from a closed airplane cabin at a cheering crowd; a long strong hand slipped gently to the receiving earth; the tan-face wiped out the smile and reset its lines in serious determination; a long, gray man-made bird that seemed to be the symbol of the gallant soul in its cabin, rose heavily toward the clouds. Charles A. Lindbergh, the "flying fool," had started for Paris. A few days later he returned as the guest of the nation on a trans-Atlantic liner; he had succeeded. Lindbergh flew not for the world-wide fame which was at once attributed to him, but for the flight itself. Was his accomplishment an asset or a liability? He gave civilization something; he was made responsible for something. He was not conquered and in his life book his flight has been posted as a liability.

Lieutenant Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd heard the call of Arctic lands. He answered that call and another—the Call of Courage. He risked his life to blaze a trail to the unknown regions of the North Pole. What reason could a man have for advancing into lands which almost no man had ever seen before him? The commander himself stated that he went to verify Perry's observations and to demonstrate the feasibility of using airplanes in any part of the globe. Mr. Byrd did not go for the fame and the material things he would attain if his flight were successful; he went in order to give something to aeronautics. With his goal shining before him and with courage in his heart, he set out to succeed because he realized that his deed was one of service for others.

Pershing Praised "In the history of America, John J. Pershing, General of the American armies during the recent war, is a gleaming light as a heroic figure. He successfully led the military forces of his fatherland through the fiercest struggle in history. Pershing was not only a general but also a strategist, a tactician and administrator. John Pershing was made a hero not so much because of what he did—not because he led the army safely through the enemy lines at St. Mihiel or because his strategic scheme was responsible for the advance to Armageddon—but more because of the spirit in which these deeds were accomplished. Although he did not go out of his way to seek popular applause and did not attempt to make occasion for ovations, yet, when he returned he was a national hero. General Pershing would not permit the armies of France to idolize him. He was fighting the same cause as they. The common feeling between the general and the army was that they were doing their part and he was doing his. General Pershing's work in France has surely been posted as a liability in his life book.

"After all, to discover that those men whose achievements have been the most valuable in life and who have been worthy named heroes—whether in the field of aviation, of medicine, of science, of soldiery or of statesmanship—have led lives of self-sacrifice and service. Each deed has been a responsibility—a liability, posted on the left hand page of the Ledger of Life. The balance sheet of the life book of each will balance." "The Boy's Club then sang "Autumn Sea," by Gericke and "Song of the Jolly Roger," by Candlish. Howell Cheney, chairman of the High school committee, presented the diplomas to the graduates. For the first time in the history of the town the diplomas were presented by a representative of a town high school committee and not the Ninth district school committee. In presenting the diplomas Mr. Cheney made the following inspiring address: "You have here tonight formally certified, as representing these taxpayers, that the teachers and faculty of the High School have approved of the measure of fidelity with which you have conformed to the disciplines imposed upon you. To be sure these disciplines were always recognized to be minimum, not maximum, measures of accomplishment. They were incomplete measures, as must all yardsticks be that attempt to evaluate human accomplishments. They certify only that you have command of certain fundamental good usages in regard to the spoken and written expression of your mother tongue, and of the elementary and fundamental history of your mother country. These disciplines have further revealed to you the very elementary laws of science and of nature which surround your daily existence and which give you a place of standing, both as an individual in this American era of progress and in a larger sense as a possible leader of men. What this faculty could certify to was most limited in its character, because it rested upon a faith that you have command of certain disciplines of mind and body. It rested upon the faith that you, yourselves, out of the sharpening of the tools and the perspectives and relationships which have been given you, had certain fundamental traits of character without which all this would have been in vain. In other words, and frankly, these diplomas are hardly worth the paper upon which they are written and may never be referred to again, if you have not here developed the ability to use these tools of learning with a power that comes from three superior powers of character—loyalty, imagination, and faith.

"Truth universally begets truth. Hence you have here been constantly surrounded by certain conceptions of truth, by certain ideals of character, by certain disciplines of your relationships to them, that must have nurtured in you the spirit of loyalty—loyalty to the purposes for which this community and this state exists; if these disciplines have not taught you to subordinate your immediate selfish purposes to the larger aims and ends of all human activities, they have been in vain.

"You have here been dealing with the product of the countless imaginative minds of ages, who in all possible contingencies have sought to focus imagination upon future combinations and actions. If these disciplines have not convinced you that the most important motivating factor of a mind lies in its power to propel itself into those unforeseen conditions which face you perhaps hundreds of times a day, the power to look into the future through the grasp that you have of the past, if in these disciplines you have been reading blank pages which express only the accomplishments of the past and which give you no ability to project yourself into the future, its mathematics have been blank pages, its mathematics false arithmetic. One of the most vitalizing and self-continuing tool which God gave to you is this power of imagination. Courses of study can never guarantee it to you—examinations may never accurately certify to its existence. Actions alone will prove whether you have that inestimable gift to successfully and continuously project yourself beyond the conditions of the present into the sun of the future.

"But it is not enough to have loyalty and to propel that loyalty by the illuminating spirit of imagination. The imagination finds its own inspiration in a faith, spiritual in its character, though capable of an infinite variety of expressions; that looks with perfect confidence to the future and with perfect courage in the fulfillment of its own individual career.

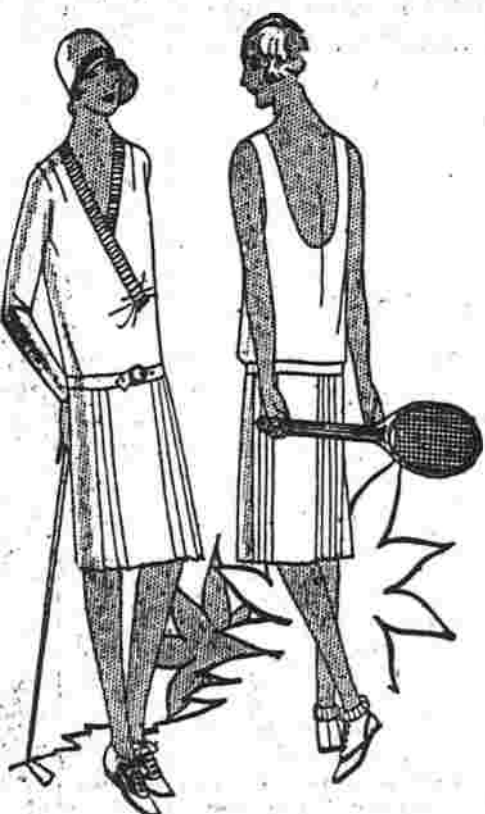

You have witnessed the courage of warriors in the stories of the past and you have seen the inspiring examples of courage on your own battle fields; but the courage that you most admire is that which sees defeat in no untoward circumstances, but which with belief in the fullness of purpose of its own life finds the courage to overcome all obstacles and to justify even its mistakes. Blessed is he to whom corrected mistakes have come because he finds in them not only the power to overcome, but the courage to master the next ones, and the accumulating confidence as life goes on that it all means something finer and more conclusive in its service to the betterment of our fellowmen.

The exercises were closed with the singing of the 129 Class song. The music was written by Miss Martha Kisman and the words by Miss Eleanor Dwyer.

LIQUOR IS SERVED AT EMBASSY DINNER

Washington, June 21.—The liquor supply of the British Embassy is still holding out, and Sir Esme Howard has not yet carried out his expressed purpose to serve no intoxicants. A dinner the British ambassador gave last night in honor of Vice President Curtis and his official hostess, Mrs. Edward E. Gann, his half sister, was wet, according to some of the guests.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the great orator and Dry crusader, was among those who attended, as was former Attorney General Wickersham, head of President Hoover's law enforcement commission. Aside from all this, Sir Esme, dean of the diplomatic corps, gave Mrs. Gann the seat of honor on his right, thus firmly establishing her in diplomatic circles at least, as the Second Lady of the Land.

A THOUGHT

For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace; the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the fields shall clap their hands.—Isaiah 55:12.

One hour of joy dispels the cares and sufferings of a thousand years.—Baptiste.

QUICK COOKING

Most fresh vegetables are cooked too long and in too much water. Asparagus, for instance, should be cooked in very little water, only 10 to 15 minutes, depending on its freshness.

Here is the lubrication you should use for

TRANSMISSION, DIFFERENTIAL and CHASSIS

YOU demand good oil for your motor. But, do you know that neglected transmission and differential gears can run your car into an early repair bill as quickly as a poorly lubricated and neglected motor?

The manufacturers of more than 98% of the cars sold today specify oil, not grease, for transmissions and differentials. And 64% are equipped for oil lubrication of chassis (exclusive of "one-shot" systems, to which this advertisement does not apply).

With sixty years of specialized lubrication experience, The Atlantic Refining Company recommends these as the very finest lubricants of their kind made:

Atlantic 600 Transmission Oil
 Atlantic Gear Case Oil
 Atlantic Worm Gear Oil

The high-quality base and the distinctive Atlantic refining processes make them unsurpassed for preventing wear and insuring quiet and efficient operation of the vital driving parts of your car.

(A) Their adhesive qualities assure abundant lubricant on gears at all times.
 (B) They hold together, insuring a perfect, noise-killing cushion between gear teeth.
 (C) Their unique fluidity reduces gear "drag" to a minimum.
 (D) They contain no soap mixture to clog shackle bolts or oil lines. . . . They are all lubricant—easy to apply—assuring a lubricating film not possible with light oil-soap greases.

Have your transmission and differential drained—now, before your heavy midsummer driving begins—and refill with one of these remarkable wear-proof, repair-saving oils. Atlantic Service Stations and dealers know which to use, and where, on your car.

ATLANTIC
 GEAR CASE OIL
 WORM GEAR OIL

... And for your motor there's nothing in the wide world like ATLANTIC Paraffine Base MOTOR OIL.

Do You Know ... You Can Buy Graham-Paige Quality at $855 at factory

Outstanding—by any measure of VALUE

Graham-Paige motor cars have won recognition for fine appearance and dependability. Now we call your attention to their value and low price.

Lift the hood and see the big, 62 horsepower motor of the Model 612—with water circulation to the very bottom of the cylinder walls. The 2 1/2 inch crankshaft with seven large bearings assures smooth power at all engine speeds.

The 612, ready for the road, weighs 3,125 pounds. We have learned, through long and practical experience, that every pound of this greater weight is essential to safety, comfortable riding, and extra long life.

The bodies are roomy and beautifully finished. Upholstery is genuine mohair, with a guarantee of long wear attached to every cushion.

The Model 612 represents our earnest endeavor to give you more than an average dollar's worth of real value for every dollar invested. Before selecting any car in or near its price class, we ask you to examine it and enjoy a demonstration.

HARVARD HONORS SECRETARY ADAMS

Twelve Honorary Degrees and 1,967 Degrees in Course Are Bestowed.

Cambridge, Mass., June 21.—Secretary of Navy Charles Francis Adams, former treasurer of Harvard, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg and an English professor were among twelve men on whom Harvard bestowed honorary degrees at commencement exercises yesterday bringing to a close its 233rd year.

Harvard conferred 1,967 degrees in course, the largest number in its history, at the exercises held on Sever Quadrangle. Among the 59 winners of the Master's degree in the Graduate School of Education were sixteen men and one woman graduated from the School of Education.

Both the honorary degrees and the degrees in course were bestowed at colorful exercises by President A. Lawrence Lowell.

Among those receiving a degree in course today was Jerome A. Prendergast, of Norwood, a blind senior, who worked four years under great handicap and who had a close call from death late last night on the eve of graduation when he fell into the pit in the Central Square station of the Cambridge tunnel in front of a trolley.

Joseph Scarples, operator of the train saw the blind student reach the edge of the pit while groping his way with his cane. Scarples stopped the train in the nick of time.

For four years Prendergast had gone unaccompanied to and from his classes. He goes to Harvard law school next year.

Prendergast is not the only blind student to be graduated from Harvard. In 1918 William C. Plunkett, the blind son of Admiral Plunkett, was graduated and later he attended the Harvard Law School.

Honorary Degrees.
The honorary degrees follow.
Doctor of laws:
Ernest Barker, of Cambridge, England.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York.
Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy.

Frank Billings Kellogg, late secretary of state.
Serge Koussevitzky, of Boston.
Master of Arts:
Daniel Berkeley Updike, of Boston.

Charles Lanier Lawrence of New York.
Robert Russa Moton, of Tuskegee institute, Alabama.
Doctor of Divinity:
Charles Whitney Gilkey, of Chicago.

James Hardy-Ropes, Hollis-professor at Harvard.
Doctor of Science:
Henry Norris Russell, of Princeton, N. J.
Rene Leriche, of Strassbourg, Germany.

About one-third of those graduating in Harvard college received honors in studies, 536 receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts, 179 with honors, the others being in the science courses.

The law school graduated 392 Bachelors of Law and the business school graduated 249 men, 36 with distinction. The medical school graduated 135 doctors.

BUYS FAMOUS PAINTING

New York, June 21.—Thomas W. Lamont, banking partner of J. P. Morgan, confirmed today that while in Europe as a member of the debt settlement commission he had purchased John Hoppner's painting "The Sackville Children."

He branded as "incorrect," however, a report from London that the price was $100,000 and declined to reveal the exact sum.

"The Sackville Children" canvass has hung since 1797, in the ancestral home of the Sackvilles, near Seven Oaks, Kent.

For over twenty years "Old Faithful," a geyser in Yellowstone National Park, has spouted at average intervals of 65 minutes.

SEXES SEGREGATED IN MOVIE HOUSES

Washington, June 21.—In Ruyphen, Holland, the public authorities are so fearful of moral corruption that a man may not sit with his wife in a motion picture show.

The one cinema in that place was closed for five years when the police on a surprise visit found a "Mrs. X" in adjacent seats, according to a report from Trade Commissioner George R. Canty, of Paris, sent to the motion picture division of the Commerce Department today.

The local law provides that male and female must be separated during movie exhibitions.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Providence, R. I., June 21.—Thirteen-year-old Francis Carroll died at Rhode Island hospital early today from the effects of a bolt of lightning which came out of almost a clear sky late yesterday, tore its way down a tree in But-tonwoods, under which stood tents of campers, and struck young Carroll as he lay on a cot.

Just before the coming of the electrical storm, which broke the heat wave, Ralph Brown, Jr., 23, was drowned while swimming in a pond in Roger Williams Park.

The remains of a fossil forest has been found in an upright position in France.

TOM MIX ROBBED; VALET SUSPECTED

Cowboy Circus and Movie Star Reports Loss of $75,000 in Bonds and Cash.

Portsmouth, N. H., June 21.—Tom Mix, the "cowboy" movie star and circus performer, has been robbed of $75,000.

This became known when City Marshal George H. Ducker and Patrolman Dennis Kelley arrested Cal Frybendahl, 33, native of Denmark and valet for Mix.

The arrest of Frybendahl was made in a spectacular manner. The circus train, to which the private car of Mix was attached, was halted in the railroad yards as it was pulling out for Concord.

Frybendahl protested his innocence. He was taken to police headquarters and booked as a suspicious person. Later he went under a police grill.

The cash bonds, checks, credit slips and real estate deeds missing from the Mix car were not found, police said.

The missing property, Mix told police, was kept in a specially made bag to fit in a box under the berth of Mix in his private car. The missing bag contained, police announced, the following: $35,000 worth of credit slips, $4,000 worth of banker's checks, $25,000 in Liberty bonds, $5,000 in other bonds, $7,100 in cash and several real estate deeds.

Overlooked Jewelry
Mix told police that $6,500 in jewelry, also in the box beneath the berth had been overlooked.

Discovery of the robbery was made late last night at the conclusion of the show here and as the "big top" was being taken down. Police of Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts were immediately notified by telephone and telegraph. Meanwhile, however, local police and the city marshal had been called in and suspicion fell on Frybendahl, one of the few who had access to the Mix private car. The valet had been employed by Mix for several months, according to police.

JUST A MEAN MAMA.
London.—Police-Sergeant Tanner and Police-Constable Icke walked into Woking court recently and exhibited numerous bandages and cuts they had received in a battle with Mary Ann Jones, a gypsy woman. On attempting to arrest her Mary Ann took after the two officers with a stick and then with a chopper, doing quite a bit of damage.

How She Hittin' Limborecare

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

Science Editor, NEA Service
Manufacture of high compression motors in modern automobiles has come with the availability of good high test gasoline and anti-knock compounds. Regular straight gasoline has a tendency to knock when compressed beyond a certain point and it was this that has held back the construction of the more powerful and more economical high compression motors.

High test gasoline or the use of anti-knock fuel, however, eliminates this knocking tendency and thus has permitted auto manufacturers to raise the compression ratio of their engines to points of greater power and efficiency.

Anti-knock producers give these advantages for the use of their liquid in gasoline:

1. It causes the engine to run more smoothly.
2. It delivers more power, especially on hills and heavy roads.
3. It causes the engine to accelerate more quickly and makes the car easier to handle in traffic.
4. It reduces gear shifting.
5. It eliminates knocking without retarding the spark.

Carbon is turned from a liability to an asset with the use of anti-knock fluid, say these proponents. Without anti-knock, carbon deposits cause the motor to slow up and lose power. The anti-knock fluid, however, not only prevents this but enables the gasoline to make full use of the increased pressure resulting from the decreased size of the combustion chamber by the carbon deposit. More power results.

By preventing knocking, permitting full spark advance and therefore reducing the necessity of shifting gears often, the anti-knock fuel increases the car's mileage and economy. And since there is no knock there is no vibration.

It must be remembered, however, that carbon continues to form in the cylinder head, just as with ordinary gasoline, and that this should be cleaned out regularly. The valves, too, need their regular turn of grinding.

Instead of being black, the carbon deposit takes on a gray or reddish brown hue from the lead bromide of the "ethyl" mixture used in one form of anti-knock. But this has no harmful effects, say the chemists.

Sometimes the reddish-brown deposit on the valves is mistaken for burning or pitting, or rust. But this is merely carbon colored from the use of the ethyl anti-knock. The valves need only be ground and will be found unharmed.

The same reddish hue with which the "ethyl" is dyed appears in the carburetor and sometimes dirt and other foreign matter that might get into the gasoline will take on this red color and lodge in the carburetor. But this does no more harm than the dirt in any gasoline. That's why the carburetor and the gasoline tank should be drained every so often.

One warning should be given those motorists who use anti-knock compound in their gasoline. Before they made use of this, when they heard a metallic knock in the engine, especially when it labored up hill, it was a warning to them that the motor or the cooling system needed checking up, that carbon had to be eliminated and the valves ground.

With the use of anti-knock fuel, however, this warning knock is eliminated. But the dangers that it pointed to are still there. It is therefore up to the owner to remember this and have his motor inspected regularly. He must make sure that it has plenty of oil and become too thick on the valves, the piston and the combustion chamber.

anti-knock fuel prevents knock. It doesn't prevent nor cure what ordinarily causes the knock.

BIDDING FOR POPULATION

After all these years a Milwaukee lawyer has announced that he has discovered that the prohibition law has nothing in it that will prevent a state from going into the liquor business. He makes it plain that his statement is nothing more than his own personal interpretation of the 18th amendment and asserts that whatever may come of his claim the question he raises is "certainly a debatable one." We have known men to question the truth of a Higher Power. Voliva insists that this world of ours has edges and if you go far enough and don't watch your step you are liable to step off into something or other. In the opinion of some individuals the questions they raise are debatable. In just so much is this opinion of J. G. Hardgrove debatable.

He explains that the "amendment does not in terms prohibit the personal use or consumption of intoxicating liquor. It does proceed upon the assumption that the use or consumption of intoxicating liquor is in itself harmful, to the great body of citizens and thereby indirectly harmful to the government itself. It is, therefore, suggested that each state government is free to adopt some method of manufacturing or importing and dispensing liquor to its citizens notwithstanding the 18th amendment."

And no sooner is this opinion broadcast than two members of the Wisconsin state legislature introduce a resolution to take advantage of it. Still another is to be introduced. This would make the only requirement for a resident of that sovereign state to obtain his liquor the signing of an affidavit that he needs it for medicinal purposes. It would be sold only by the case which gives one the impression that when and if this bill becomes a law folks are going to have long spells of sickness in Wisconsin. It's going to be genuine sickness, too, because no man would think of making a false affidavit to get whiskey when, if it were to be proved that he had not really wanted it to take as medicine but for the purpose of getting exhilarated, he would be subject to a fine of $1,000 or a year in jail. Yes, sir, they don't intend to have anything but a lie-proof law in Wisconsin. It will become a law, too, after it has been passed by two successive legislatures and then by the people on a referendum. This will give most of us time to make our arrangements to move without being hurried.

A SLOGAN

"This is your country. Beautify it." These six words have earned for Miss Marion Boyd of Detroit, Mich., a high school girl, a trip to Washington. They have been adjudged to form the best slogan tending to arouse popular interest in preserving the natural beauties of the American countryside. You are likely to see these words often during the coming years. The Art Center, through which Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., offered the prize, is to use the slogan to encourage the elimination of ugly waste places and to beautify rural America. The contest in which Miss Boyd, who is 17 years of age, participated, resulted in more than 6,000 slogans being submitted. Among them were several that especially appealed to the judges: "The country is yours—preserve it." "Make every mile of roadway smile" were among them. The contest was a continuation of the program initiated by Mrs. Rockefeller in 1927 which was aimed to eliminate unsightly "hot dog" stands. Some believe this first contest had some effect. At any rate both are commendable and the creation of interest in them cannot fail to have some slight effect.

SPEED NEEDED

Almost two years ago Edward McDermott, son of a wealthy Woonsocket, R. I., family, was held for the superior court on a manslaughter charge. The lower court found "insufficient evidence" to hold him. Two district attorneys have been in office since but the case has never been called for trial. Whatever may be the reason for this delay, it typifies the slowness of our courts in the trial of capital cases. We have yet to recover from the astonishment and gratification induced by the prompt disposition of the Al Capone case in Philadelphia. For some reason unknown to those not on the inside it was possible to take that case promptly without waiting for it to be reached in its regular order.

Until it is proved wrong nothing will change our belief that speed and then more speed in the administration of justice will be the nearest approach to a single plan that will reduce crime. Nothing under heaven would prove so effective in making a criminal hesitate to commit murder as the certainty that, if caught and found guilty, within a few days he would be sentenced and behind the bars. As we administer justice today a man, it would appear, must be a notorious gangman or the assassin of the President to be assured a speedy trial. When we arrange our administration of criminal affairs so that our ordinary mortals who turn murderers can get equally prompt treatment from the courts we shall have taken a long step forward.

WHAT A PRICE!

The recent appalling disaster at the Cleveland Clinic is recalled by the report of the coroner made after a month of investigation. He does not place the blame which, with so many responsible for the existing conditions, in whole or in part, would be next to impossible. But he does find that warning had been sent to the clinic on April 2 by the Ohio Inspection Bureau of the Fire Underwriters Investigating service. This warning called attention to the fire hazard in the type of film used, urged use of another kind, and advised clinic officials that the film, if burned, would generate great clouds of noxious fumes. The film burned. The deadly gases were formed as predicted and 123 lives were the price paid for the failure of someone in connection with the clinic to heed the warning. We are accustomed to advice and warnings from earliest childhood. We are accustomed to let them pass unheeded until some bitter experience overtakes us. Only when some unheeded warning causes some disaster of nation-wide interest do we derive general good from it. As was the case of the Iroquois theater holocaust which resulted in all theaters being made safer so will this Cleveland disaster almost certainly make all hospitals safer so far as the probability of a repetition of such a calamity is concerned. We learn after ignoring advice and warning. But at what a price!

INSIDE FACTS

One thing former President Coolidge is doing by his articles is making plain from first hand sources the appalling amount of work we require of the man we place in the White House. We have had a vague idea in the past from the writings of those familiar with White House routine that the President is a fairly busy man and that he earns some of the $75,000 a year he is paid. But for cold, hard facts told by one who knows and who is fresh from the grind of years at the job, there has been nothing to compare with the articles that are the product of the pen of Mr. Coolidge.

No question but election to the presidency is the greatest honor that can be paid a man. No question but his is the hardest job in the world today. Fifteen hours a day is a long grind but that's what Mr. Coolidge writes was required before he finished a day's work. And yet a part of that time, a tremendous amount of it in the course of a year, could be saved were we to eliminate the ridiculous demand we make upon the President of shaking hands. "On one occasion I shook hands with 1,900 in 34 minutes, which is probably my record," he writes. What a useless strain. Yet, how fortunate that we shake hands instead of rubbing noses.

NEW LONDON'S DAY

New London shows off today. With a fair break in the weather that city is entertaining probably more people of wealth and considerable leisure than ever before in its history. It takes on the glamor of a college town at commencement because Yale and Harvard long ago chose the river there as their annual meeting place for some twenty-odd minutes of back and heart-breaking effort with sweeps. It is natural that the city should put on its best bib and tucker when two commencing crowds rolled into one and it makes rather a hilarious time whether you are a New Londoner, a college man or just a lover of clean sport. It's New London's day.

Health and Diet Advice
 By DR. FRANK MCCOY

ESTIMATING PROPER WEIGHT.

Weight is no longer considered an indication to health. The fashion of today favors thinness. Weighing machines abound in every public gathering place, and they are well patronized, according to statistics. Many of these machines have charts attached to them to show how much one should weigh according to height and age, but these standards cannot be accurate. The correct weight is largely an individual matter, according to build. Some people are naturally slender and others are stocky. It would be foolish to try to make a slender person as heavy as a stocky one, or to reduce a heavier built person down to the weight of a smaller boned type.

Those of the muscular type can carry a good deal of solid weight, but an excess of fat can certainly not be considered healthful. I therefore advise those suffering from obesity to reduce the quantity of food and to exercise a great deal. It is not wise, however, for the thin person to attempt to gain weight by stuffing with rich foods. A thin person should use a well balanced diet.

The standards given in weight charts have usually been taken from the average of a great many people and cannot be considered as health standards. The weight also varies, according to age, temperament, heredity and occupation. No one should go to foolish extremes, either in trying to gain or reduce. The best weight for an individual is the weight at which he has the greatest amount of energy, regardless of all charts. I do not usually try to estimate a person's correct weight until I have studied his bony framework and a number of other factors. Frequently people write in asking for an estimate, and I am very glad to give this if they have given me their present weight, height in stocking feet, age, occupation and full-length picture, preferably in a bathing suit.

If any of my readers wish me to give them an estimate about their correct weight, I would advise them to have two photographs taken, one a front view and the other from the side. Small kodak pictures will do. Write the present weight on the backs of the pictures. I can then give you my opinion based on years of experience and observation of thousands of patients. Many will be surprised when my estimate states that their weight should be perhaps twenty or thirty pounds lower. This is especially true with stout women who frequently talk themselves into the belief that Nature intended them to be heavy. Very few women are tall enough to weigh over one hundred and forty pounds, while men of the same height can weigh as much as two hundred pounds because of their larger bones and stronger muscular tissues.

If those who are interested will send me their photographs at once, I will be glad to give an extra amount of time to answering these letters and sending detailed information about either increasing or

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, June 21.—Final passage of the administration's farm relief bill may be said to hold an element of victory for every one with the exception of the farmers.

President Hoover wins because he adopted the measure and said it must stand as was, without any debenture plan or other fixtures. The House of Representatives wins because it sees the bill enacted as it passed it, without the debenture provision demanded by the Senate.

The Senate wins because it held firm and forced the House to take a vote on the debenture. The Republicans win along with Mr. Hoover, for the farm bill was a party measure.

The Democrats come out of the farm bill fight in excellent shape because they presented a virtually solid front for the debenture in Congress—which, for the Democrats, is a moral victory any day in the week.

Jardine's Triumph, Too.

And undoubtedly the greatest personal triumph of the last year was that of former Secretary of Agriculture William Marlon Jardine, who is the undisputed father of the "Hoover farm relief program." The administration farm bill is identically what was known in the last previous Congress or two as the "Jardine plan." Everybody laughed at it then and it was kicked around most disrespectfully, for both houses were intent on passing the McNary-Haugen bill.

Farm state members of Congress then regarded the Jardine scheme as totally inadequate and the complaint was made that if only offered the farmers a chance to get further into debt. When one considers that Jardine was not retained in the cabinet by President Hoover and will be no more than an interested spectator when the child of his brain is put to work to serve the farmer, it does almost seem that there isn't too much justice.

The most significant, and to many the most gratifying, thing that has happened in Washington lately is the complete success of the Senate in pulling the hard-boiled, high-hatting Longworth-Tilson-Snell triumvirate of the House off the high horse this trio had mounted when the Senate voted the debenture scheme. The effect is to demonstrate decreasing the weight to the normal.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Torticollis.

Question—Mrs. G. H. J. writes: "For the past year my husband has been affected with what is called spasmodic torticollis. Will you please explain something about it, and tell me if there is any way to relieve him?"

Answer—Torticollis, sometimes called wry-neck, is a contraction of the cervical muscles usually caused by some infection of the spinal accessory nerve. In females, it may be a hysterical condition, especially liable to occur in those of a nervous family history. It may appear following a cold or a blow. The back portion of the head is pulled toward the shoulder of the affected side. The face is raised and rotated to the other shoulder. In long standing cases these muscles may become very rigid or even fibrosed. The best treatment seems to be simply the application of heat, and osteopathic treatments. I would also suggest the use of a fasting and dieting regime, instructions for which I will be glad to mail to you.

Sturdy New England Maple Furniture
 for open porches and lawns

SKILLED New England craftsmen fashion this sturdy furniture from our native maple. Seats, and in some models the backs, are made of split cane, woven by hand in double thickness, to give strong weatherproof seats and backs that are cool and comfortable. The clear, selected maple used, is finished in natural varnish. Such pieces will give years of satisfying service on open porch or lawn.

Model A $1.75
 These small side rockers have slat backs, as shown above, and double-woven cane seats.

Model B, $2.25
 Model B (above) differs from Model A in that the back also is double-woven cane. These two models make ideal sewing rockers and you can finish them in colors.

Model C, $3.50
 In Model C (above) we have a larger rocker, with arms. The back is of the slat type, with double-woven cane seat. You can use these chairs at your Summer cottage, too.

Model E, $4.95
 Sketched to the right is Model E, an arm rocker with double-woven seat and back, and turned posts.

Model D $4.25
 (Above) A large, roomy arm rocker with double woven seat and back, and plain maple frame.

Model F, $5.40
 (Left) Here is the largest of this family of porch rockers. Its high cane back assures perfect comfort. At this low price you'll surely want at least one of them.

The Adventures of Jack and Jill!

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 21.—Such are the effects of commercialism and standardization upon the times, that even the dear old hurdy-gurdy seems about ready to surrender.

Within the week I have come upon two ominous potents. First some bright young man from a radio station, seeking novelty, signed up one of the old-time hand organists for his program. This gave another bright young man from the talking pictures a good idea. Within eight hours the sidewalks and curbstones of New York were being combed for bigger and better hurdy-gurdies. By nightfall an entire parade had been assembled in front of a Manhattan talking picture studio, in hope of rewards that seemed truly fabulous to one accustomed to the pennies and dimes of the street crowds.

The result of this recording, so pleased certain magnates that the organ grinder was rushed over to a phonograph recording studio and several records were made. It was argued that there are less places in America where the hurdy-gurdy has become extinct, and where old-timers would dearly love to have childhood memories restored.

Meanwhile the organ grinders of Manhattan fast perish from the streets.

And if I seem particularly bitter today, it is because the little German band paused before my house last evening as I returned from work. And the fellow who ordinarily plays the oom-tat-a-horn was now playing the saxophone.

Which seems to me the last word in something or other.

Another indication of their passing is to be found in the sudden demand for hurdy-gurdies at Park Avenue and Fifth Avenue parties. Here the boys and gitties decide that the innovation is "just too cute" or "so different."

Years ago no picnic was complete without a hurdy-gurdy or a little German band. They could be found on the Hudson river boats and the various excursion steamers. Now everything has gone jazz-tically unknown to New York, and drums are in preponderance. GILBERT SWAN

THURSDAY

Breakfast.
French omelet, toasted cereal biscuit, stewed prunes.
Lunch.
As much as desired of any one kind of fresh acid fruit.
Dinner.
Roast pork, baked ground vegetables, McCoy salad, (lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers), apple whip.

FRIDAY

Breakfast.
Baked eggs, Melba toast, stewed raisins.
Lunch.
Oranges as desired.
Dinner.
Broiled white fish, stewed tomatoes, molded combination salad of chopped celery, cooked string beans and minced raw tomatoes. No dessert.

SATURDAY

Breakfast.
Cantaloup as desired.
Lunch.
Steamed carrots with parsley, cooked spinach, shredded lettuce.
Dinner.
Sliced cheese, cooked asparagus, cooked cucumbers, salad of grated raw carrots on lettuce, dish of berries with cream, sugar.

2. Baked ground vegetables: Run through the vegetable grinder enough raw summer squash, tender young carrots and turnips to make two cupfuls of the squash and one cupful each of the carrots and turnips. Mix all together, do not add water or salt, and place in an oiled baking dish. Cover, and bake in a hot oven for about thirty minutes. When ready to serve, season with butter or a little cream.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Epsom Salts.
Question—Reader asks: "Will you please tell me if you approve of my habit of taking one teaspoonful of Epsom salts in water every morning? Will this aid in reducing? What is your opinion of Epsom salts?"

Answer—The Epsom salts treatment which you are using will induce much bile elimination and frequent bowel movements. This will aid in reducing, but, of course, it is not advisable to carry on such treatment indefinitely.

Colitis.
Question—Mrs. O. L. writes: "My son, 21 years old, is suffering from colitis. The doctor says it will take a long time to cure him, and that he must not eat meat. He is not living at home, but in a boarding house, so I cannot regulate his diet. How best can I help him?"

Answer—Tell your son to move from the boarding house, as it is the last place in the world where he can get a special diet such as he requires for the cure of colitis. The doctor was right when he said it would take a long time to bring about a cure, but wrong when he said that meat produces colitis. "Colon-itis" simply means inflammation of the colon, which comes from dietetic errors of all kinds. I advise your son to eat in a restaurant or cafeteria where he can select the proper foods and thus follow the menus which appear in this paper every Friday.

Question—Mrs. W. L. J. writes: "You mention an article of food in your weekly menus called 'zucchini.' I never heard of it. What is it?"

Answer—Zucchini is a small Italian squash, similar to the ordinary summer squash, and may be used freely as a non-starchy vegetable if cooked by boiling or baking. As this vegetable is difficult to obtain in certain parts of the country, the ordinary summer squash may always be substituted when the zucchini is mentioned.

Condiments.
Question—Mrs. C. W. asks: "Is the moderate use of condiments very harmful? I find it hard to do without a little spice or vinegar in preparing meals."

Answer—Spices and condiments stimulate the flow of digestive juice, and if they are used at all they should be used at a meat meal. Those who suffer from hyperacidity already have more acid than they know what to do with, and anything which will excite an additional flow of hydrochloric acid is bad for them.

DOUBLE EXECUTION IN CHICAGO JAIL

Chicago, June 21.—The first electrocutions in Cook county's new $7,000,000 jail took place today when Napoleon Glover, 19, and Morgan Swan, 23, negroes were put to death for the murder of Charles Metlock, during a drug store hold-up, seven months ago.

Swan was the first to die. He was placed in the chair at 1:04 a. m., and pronounced dead at 1:10 a. m. Three charges coursed through his body before physicians pronounced him dead.

Glover was placed in the chair at 1:16 a. m., and was pronounced dead two minutes later. Both men went to their death calmly.

SANDY BEACH DANCES

The grand prize waltz scheduled for Sandy Beach ballroom tomorrow evening, when Kings College graduates a meritorious dance band of twelve musicians and entertainers come to the ballroom is being talked about by a great many dance fans who are already wagering bets on their favorite dancers that will participate in the contest. THIS HAS HAPPENED

NAN CARROLL, private secretary to JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, lawyer, is in love with her employer, Morgan, however, Iris, Nan's mother, is determined to see that Iris, Nan decides to resign, but lingers when she hears Morgan is to defend a supposed friend, BERT CRAWFORD.

Nan distrusts him, and her suspicion of him and Iris is confirmed by a letter which little 6-year-old CURTIS MORGAN innocently takes from his mother's handbag and places in Nan's hands. After Crawford's acquittal, he leaves town, followed almost immediately by Iris. She writes Morgan she will never return, but cleverly omits reference to Crawford, whom Morgan trusts implicitly.

Morgan is crushed and Nan saves him from despair by forcing him into his work. She acts as long-distance housekeeper, winning the love of little Curtis, who adores her and brings comfort to a man who ironically thinks only of another. Nan goes to the capital to take bar examinations and upon her return Morgan tells her he is divorcing Iris. He offers a proposal.

They are quietly married and Morgan gives her a partnership with him in business. They are prevented from going on their honeymoon by the arrival of DAVID BLANCHARD, a man who is murdering his wealthy father. Nan urges Morgan to take the case and he goes with the boy to give himself up.

Nan goes to the house alone, where Curtis helps her unpack. He wants to bring his father's things into her room, but she says "No, let him bring them in himself."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

With the sometimes leady innocence of childhood, it was little Curtis Morgan who unwittingly completed the destruction of whatever hope had been left to Nan that happiness would come to her before the close of her wedding day.

The first unfortunate episode occurred at the dinner table. Although Nan had longed with desperate intensity to be alone with her husband over their first meal together as man and wife, her love for the child had made it impossible for her to exclude Curtis from what he evidently regarded as a family celebration. He was almost hysterically excited—his liquid black eyes dazzlingly bright, his cheeks scarlet. He had told the splendid news to little Iris and had obligingly given the younger child a number of pointers as to just what his father's and Nan's marriage meant.

Estelle had outdone herself, so that the table at least was as festive as a bride made it on a wedding day. Nan, however, could not but remember that the exquisite china, crystal, silver and Italian linen had been accumulated by her predecessor, Iris again! The centerpiece of delicate, lovely little waxed candles had been brought and paid for by Estelle, however, as a wedding gift to the girl who had been long-distance housekeeper for months and was now mistress of the Morgan house.

Maudie O'Brien, the cook had favored every dish of the wedding feast with her love for the bride and groom. But Nan, at the head of the table, scarcely tasted the delicious foods that were placed before her by Estelle. Opposite her, little Curtis Morgan seemed to have as little appetite, but Curtis, seated between them, ate of everything with frequent, loud expressions of approval.

Whenever the father was engaged in conversation with the boy, Nan still glances him, dropped her eyes. How distinguished, ping her eyes swiftly when he looks handsome he was in his new dinner clothes! A perfect white gardenia in his buttonhole. She had been surprised and delighted when she had seen him come from the office with a huge furtive box under his arm. Atop the mass of long-stemmed yellow roses she had found the lone gardenia, had adjusted it later in the buttonhole with trembling fingers, while he smiled down upon her—his eyes almost as shy as her own. Oh, he was trying to "play up," trying so hard to make her feel like other brides.

Well, she was playing up, too. Estelle and Mrs. O'Brien had gone into raptures over her new evening dress of ivory tulle, the long "period costume" skirt embroidered with a deep border of golden poppies. On the left shoulder she was fitting very low-in-the-neck little bodice she wore a cluster of three of the golden-yellow roses that her husband had brought her. Under the lights, her swirl-waved, short brown hair gleamed like a cap of burnt sienna. "How lovely! Did Morgan really think she was pretty? He had told her so, as she adjusted his gardenia.

But what was Curtis saying? Nan gave the child sudden, startled attention.

"...and little Pat says Nan's my mother now. Is she Father? I got a mother. Can a kid have two mothers, Father?"

Nan did not dare look at John Curtis Morgan's face.

She would not have recognized the hoarse, strained voice that answered, "Yes, Curtis. Just 'Yes,' with an explanation, no attempt at justification. But what else could he say?

"Gee, that's swell!" Curtis exclaimed Nan by exclaiming happily. "The kids at school will stop teasing me now, I guess! All time saying, 'Curt Morgan's mother run off and left him.' 'Curt Morgan ain't got no mother.' 'Bet they'll wish they was me, when I tell 'em got two mothers! Won't they, Father? Won't they, Nan?"

Fortunately, Curtis seldom waited for an answer. He rushed on now,

"Won't my other mother be surprised when she comes home? I'll have two mothers at home, and you'll have two wives, won't you, Father?"

During the four years she had known and loved John Curtis Morgan there had been many times when Nan's heart had ached sickeningly with pity for the burly, which Iris Morgan had inflicted upon him. But the pain that stabbed her heart now made every other pain she had ever felt seem trivial. And as always, she suffered because he suffered, would have died to spare him.

The door from the butler's pantry swung open. With a gasp of relief, Nan realized that the father would be spared the necessity of answering an unanswerable question.

"Gosh! What a cake!" Curtis shouted, beating his hands together in a frenzy of delight. "What kind of cake is that, Estelle? I never saw such a funny, pretty cake!"

Estelle laughed as she set the tall, white cake, surmounted by a tiny bride and groom, before her new bride. "That's a wedding cake, Curtis. Maudie made it herself, Miss—I mean ma'am."

"Oh—that was dear of her," Nan faltered. "You've both been so kind—"

"Can I have the man and lady dolls, Nan? Can I?" Curtis clamped, and her husband, at the foot of the table, seized the excuse to laugh. The tension was broken.

Nan laughed, too, and the magnificent cake was cut. So that Maudie might not have her feelings hurt, Nan forced herself to eat all the main slices she had taken upon her own plate, but Maudie might have favored it with quinine instead of almond; the bride would not have known the difference.

The second incident occurred immediately after dinner. Nan Carroll Morgan was destined that night to be spared nothing. If innocent, blundering little Curtis had been a graduate of the inquisition, he could not have devised more exquisite tortures for the girl who, in all humility, agreed to become a mother to him.

Quite as a matter of course John Curtis Morgan led the way into the drawing room, Curtis dragging at his hand and chattering blithely. Nan's reluctant feet followed them into the room dominated by Iris Morgan's beautiful, almost life-size portrait. She had not long to wonder what revenge Iris would exact of the interloper.

Her husband paused at a table to fill his pipe, but Curtis impatiently and auto-cadically dragged him to the center of the room, so that they faced the fireplace and the portrait.

"Listen, Father! Listen!" Curtis commanded shrilly, pointing to the portrait. "I know what you think Nan is as pretty as my other mother? Do you, Father? I think she almost is, don't you, Father?"

Nan's heart stood still for a second, then huge sickeningly. She was glad she stood behind them, that she could not see Morgan's face. Glad, too, that he could not see hers.

Before her husband had time to answer, Nan's clear, friendly little laugh rang out. "I know what you think young Curtis, my lad!" she cried, her voice convincingly gay and firm. "I think it's time for you to go to bed, or you'll get a black mark on your health cart tomorrow!"

It was a potent threat. The child released his father's hand and came toward his new mother, obediently, if reluctantly. "You'll come upstairs with me for just a teeny while, won't you, Nan? Good night, Father."

When Nan returned to the drawing room 10 minutes later, the feel of Curtis' kisses still upon her lips, she found her husband half-sitting, half-lying in his own particular armchair beside the fireplace, his feet tucked back, his narrowed eyes fixed upon the portrait of the wife who had deserted him.

Nan was about to turn and flee, unable to endure more, when her husband caught the faint rustle of her tulle skirt. He was instantly upon his feet, a smile of welcome routing the brooding melancholy from his distinguished, austere face.

"If he says 'Alone—at last! I'll scream,' Nan said to herself as she waited for each her.

"For we aren't alone! We're never alone as long as she sits there, mocking us, smiling, gloating because she knows he'll always be here—"

"Well, Nan?" Morgan put an arm about the girl's bare shoulders and pressed her close against his side. For a breathless moment Nan thought he was going to kiss her. But he drew her gently along with him to a small Empire sofa, so placed that Iris' portrait was not visible from it. Was that why he chose it? Nan wondered, but was grateful.

When they were seated, Nan taking exaggerated pains with the arranging of her long, poppy-splashed skirt, Morgan again put his right arm about her shoulders and with his left hand gathered up both her cold little hands, lifted them, brushed his lips against the rosy finger-tips.

"Glad you're—here, Nan?" he asked at last, huskily.

"Yes." She could not manage more just then, with her whole body trembling to his touch.

His arm lightened about her shoulders. "I'm—happier than I've been for a long time, Nan dear. It hasn't been a very orthodox wedding day, has it?" he added regretfully. "But—the worst is over, I think, Curtis... Of course you know he adores you, he blundered with his voice thick with embarrassment. "We can't expect him to understand—can we?"

"No," Nan said simply, but her voice sounded cold, odd, Oh, why didn't he kiss her? She had waited so long. Nothing would matter, nothing could hurt her deeply, if he loved her, even a little.

"It's rotten luck that we had to postpone our—trip," her husband went on, haltingly. "Poor little Nan? Precious little Nan!" And he laid his cheek against her shining brown hair, his arm crushing her shoulders with sudden vehemence.

Nan waited, holding her breath, her heart beating so loudly that she was afraid he would hear its clamorous, despairing message. "I love you! I love you! Don't you love me at all? Surely now he would kiss her. But he lifted his head, began to speak again, in that halting, embarrassed way which was agony to her!

"Of course you're to do whatever you like with the house. Throw out anything or everything, do it over to suit yourself, dear Nan—"

"He means the portrait, but he can't bring himself to say so in so many words," Nan interpreted drearily. "I can't take it down. It's up to him—"

But he was going on, doggedly. "I want you to have exactly the kind of home you like. If you don't like this house—"

"Oh, but I do!" Nan interrupted, her heart pounding instantly to the pain which dragged at his voice. He loved the house. She would suffer anything rather than uproot him.

"I thought perhaps... But I'll not pretend that I'm not glad and relieved that you like it," her husband confessed, his voice almost normal. "Don't hesitate to make any changes, though. I want it to be your home... You can forget about me when you make your plans. I'll like anything you do. About my room—"

He hesitated and Nan's heart plunged. "I'm afraid I've grown rather fond of the little guest room, as we still call it. If you'll permit me to share your bath—you're taking the big guest room, Curtis tells me—I'll promise always to leave it spick and span for you."

Above the roaring of blood in her ears Nan heard Estelle's voice, as if from a great distance:

"A telephone call for you, Mr. Morgan. A lady. She says her name is Mrs. Nina Blackhull—"

"Good Lord! Nina Blackhull!" John Curtis Morgan exclaimed incredulously. "I wonder if this means that she's on her stepson's side. Will you excuse me, Nan?"

YOUR CHILDREN

Nothing worries us more than the selfish child.

We can't understand how Edna May gets all the rides on the tricycle, or how she has the nerve to gobble up five out of the ten cakes we sent out to the little crowd of playmates, or how she manages to bluff us into buying more and better clothes on a shopping trip than we buy for Birdie and Louise together. But she does it. She has a method all her own of coralling about every good thing there is in the house, and out of it, and with her big blue eyes calmly regards the world as hers. Selfish!

The worst of it is, she was born that way. We saw it in her when she was a baby. As early as she could walk, she grabbed all the dolls, whether they were hers or not, and screamed herself into a purple tantrum if anyone dared to take them away.

Her Ways Don't Change

We've looked in all the books and followed all the good advice about trying to teach her generosity by steps, and yet here she is, the same as ever, getting all the rides and cakes and dresses. She continues to be entirely unconcerned at all looks out eagerly upon his feet, a smile of welcome doesn't know what it means to cry scarcely, is not sensitive, is smart, bright, likeable, and even affectionate, takes bumps and hurts as a matter of course, never says a word for herself, and possesses a dynamic strength and vitality that seems never to tire. Always on the quiver for something to do, depending as she grows older, more and more on things outside the home to interest her.

In plain words, we must admit, we don't understand her at all. The other little girls are so generous and thoughtful and sweet, and Edna May, we have never been able to conquer. Her will is stronger than our own. Selfish from the word go, we declare. But is she?

She's An "Extravert"

The little girl I have just described, if you happen to have one like her, is not selfish. Not in the sense we generally mean. She is a pure type of "extravert." And, regardless of what we feel, extraverts usually turn out to be wonderful, useful people. For they seldom develop a load of fears and complexes and feelings. They are excellent leaders, possess remarkable executive ability, and if their lives can be guided (and their wills broken) into useful channels, we need them sadly. The thing we call selfishness, usually shapes itself later into other things. Go-getters, these extraverts will always be—but their good sense will develop a certain generosity and regard for others as they grow older.

Don't be too hard on the Edna Mays. Don't try to break them. Just be patient. Your little talks will tell some day. But I have to admit, they are not easy to bring up.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famous Authority

FOODS LIKE EGGS, STRAWBERRIES CAUSE OF ILLNESS FOR SOME.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When a person is sensitive to various proteins, which he is likely to manifest that sensitivity by reactions in the way of various symptoms when the protein gets into his body.

Some people break out every time they eat strawberries. This does not mean that there is anything wrong with strawberries, but there is something special about the person who breaks out which makes him react to strawberries.

Among other symptoms resulting from sensitivity besides rash on the skin, there may be swelling of the lips or of other portions of the body, shortness of breath due to contractions of the breathing tubes and filling up of the tubes with fluid. When a doctor is called to see such a case, he will first find out the nature of the substance to which the person may be sensitive.

Illnesses of the type described have resulted in some people from contact with milk, eggs, animal hair, feathers, flax, the dandruff of various animals, and all sorts of food substances. A person who is sensitive may be affected by an infinitesimal amount of the substance that is concerned in the attack. As much as one-tenth of a cubic centimeter of a solution of 1:10,000 parts of the substance may be sufficient to produce severe reactions in a sensitive person.

A man who was sensitive to some substance in connection with glue was injected under the skin with one one-hundredths of a cubic centimeter of glue and he had symptoms violent enough to cause worry as to whether or not he would live.

When a specialist tries to find out the nature of the substance to which a person is sensitive, he makes a skin test. In the skin test, a very small amount of the substance is put on a scratch which is made on the skin, and the reaction to this procedure is compared with the amount of reaction on a scratch to which simple salt water or some similar substance has been added. In this way it is found that people are sometimes sensitive to a great many different protein substances.

After the nature of the sensitivity is determined, the next step is to desensitize the person, if possible, by gradually giving him not always possible to do this because of various conditions that exist in the body. If the symptoms are severe, the physician can relieve them by the use of various drugs which have the special effect of making the breathing easier and relaxing the constricted breathing tubes, which are in spasm.

FRUIT CUBES

If you have artificial refrigeration, try freezing colored fruit juices into ice cubes, instead of water. They are pretty in fruit beverages and a pleasant surprise when one eats them.

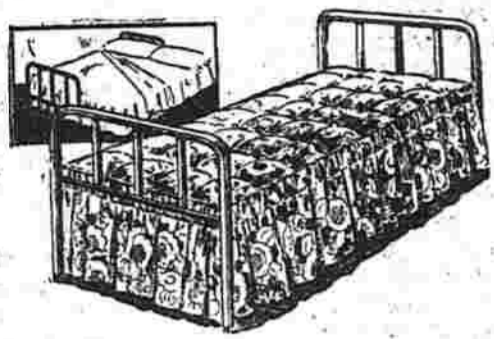

Stoles by ANNETTE

You can't make a better clothe for the important age of 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years than an ensemble of printed and plain cotton pique. It is just the outfit for school, country, beach, travel or motoring. Style No. 577 is easily made at a small outlay. The straight-line coat is in cool shades of red on white ground; The little sports dress is white pique trimmed with the red trim. The neckline scarf tie is slipped through bound openings. Cubs To Defend Lead Against Pirates Today

Hack Wilson Socks Pair of Round-Trippers; Cuyler Steals Three Bases on Smith.

By LES KONKLIN.

New York, June 21.—Having knocked the Cardinals out of first place by polishing them off in four out of five games, the Cubs will endeavor to defend first place against Pittsburgh in the series starting in Chicago today. The wallingpin Wrights drew hammer and tongs with the Pirates in the game ahead of the Cubs by beating St. Louis again yesterday, 7 to 6, while Pittsburgh was idle.

When Hack Wilson rubs dirt on his paws and glares belligerently at the Pittsburgh pitcher as he steps to the plate today, "hardie with care" will be written all over him, for the judge center fielder is on one of his old-time home run sprees. He has uncorked five circuit clouts in the last three days, his two homers yesterday being the blows that killed father Beardon's men.

While Wilson was inscribing numbers 15 and 16 on his home run record, Hornsby smacked the tenth round-tripper of the campaign and Kiki Cuyler caused Earl Smith's neck to turn a deeper red than his hair by pilfering three bases on the fiery St. Louis catcher. The Giants advanced to within almost one game of the third-place Cardinals by making it three straight over the Phillies, 11 to 6. The rejuvenated Boston Braves also made it three straight from Brooklyn, 4 to 2, and displaced the Robins in sixth place. Young Ed Walsh of the White Sox looked like his famous dad at his best when he held the Browns to four hits, winning his own game, 5 to 3, by batting in two runs.

MANDELL TO DEFEND TITLE ON AUGUST 2

Chicago, June 21.—Announcement was made here today that Sammy Mandell, world's light weight champion, will defend his title here on the night of Friday, August 2, at the Chicago stadium. The Rockford "Shiek" will be pitted against Tony Zanzoneri of New York, former featherweight champion.

The closing of the match, Paddy Harmon, stadium president, announced, followed a telephonic conversation with Nate Lewis, stadium matchmaker, who secured Zanzoneri's signature in a conference in New York today. The bout is scheduled for ten rounds.

JONES SETS NEW COURSE MARK—63

New York, June 21.—Don't be surprised if Bobby Jones reels off a scintillating round of 63 in the National Open golf championship at Winged Foot next week. During his round of 63 yesterday, breaking the course record, the amateur champion had a 32 for the outgoing nine holes. And the day before he negotiated the incoming nine in 31. Now all the Atlanta phenom is worrying about is the problem of hooking two such scores together.

TONY LETO BACK ON NEXT PROGRAM

Al Dowd, local featherweight boxer, will meet Homer Thibault of Holyoke in a four round bout that will open the program. It was announced this morning.

DOWD ON CARD

Tony Leto of Tampa, Florida, the only boy to have a Batallino on the floor since Bat turned professional, returns to Hartford next Tuesday to battle Mike Esposito of Stamford in the star bout of the popular priced show at the Bulkeley Stadium.

A SURE WINNER EXPERTS SAY

Pictured above is the Yale crew which is top-heavy favorite to triumph over its ancient water foe, Harvard, in the annual four-mile skiff race over the Thames River course at New London which starts at 7 o'clock this evening. The race will be broadcast over Station WTIQ at Hartford.

Yank's Must Stop A's Or Lose The Pennant

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, June 21.—It was exactly zero by the clock this morning to the shock troops of the Athletics and Yankees as they awaited the word that was to send them out of their dugouts and over the top for the do or don't series that many believe will decide the championship on the pennant in June, everyone seems agreed that this is it, the idea being that if the three-champion Yankees do not cut materially into the Athletics' lead during the five-game series, ending on Sunday, they can go right out and sell themselves to the nearest delicatessen. In other words, they and their pennant chances will be cooked.

The Athletics were 7½ games out in front before today's doubleheader, which was expected to produce a crowd of 60,000 and to re-enclose some of the stirring scenes of last September, when this pair battled to death over the 1928 pennant. The corpse on this occasion was instantly identified by the large A that adorned its bosom. Today's double header may tell a new story or re-tell the old. In any case, it largely will forecast the course this series is to take.

Two games will be played tomorrow and the finale on Sunday, by which time the all-time attendance record, having been 85,265 for a single day, established in the 1928 series, may be no more, Pennock and Hoyt, not the men they used to be, and Grove and Walberg, who never were better, are likely to be the opposing pitchers in today's games.

The series will be played at the club is to get final justification for an orgy of spending such as even modern baseball, with all of its spendthrift tendencies, has been unable to match in any other instance. It is a five-year series, and that Connie Mack decided that the only way to lick the Ruppert bankrupt was to out-last him in the open market. The result has been the dispersal of more than a million dollars for the principal players of both clubs.

KINGSWOOD DIDN'T GIVE DOWD A BID

Statement That He Would Get Board and Tuition There Is Untrue.

A statement appearing on this page in yesterday's issue of The Herald stating that Ernie Dowd, local high school athlete, had been given an offer of free board and tuition if he would attend Kingswood school in West Hartford, was entirely in error. No such offer was made to Dowd, although Dowd himself was authority for the information.

Kingswood school does not secure its students, or athletic material in such a way, nor does any other school of Kingswood's high standing. It is not a boarding school and since it is an institution for college preparedness of the highest type there would be absolutely no point in inducing promising athletes to attend.

HELEN WILLS ONE OF 64 IN TOURNEY

London, June 21.—Sixty-four competitors, including the world's greatest players, are admitted for the women's singles of the lawn tennis championships at Wimbledon which begin next Monday.

HERE'S THE DOPE

Thousands of pairs of eyes will be focussed on the historic Thames river shortly before sundown this evening when eight-oared crews representing Yale and Harvard paddle their way up the four mile stretch in the 77th anniversary of the famous rowing classic. Old Eli rules a strong favorite to repeat its victory of a year ago.

Since Leader Came to New Haven, Harvard Has Won Few Firsts, Start at Seven O'Clock.

New London, June 21.—Harvard and Yale, principals in a vendetta as ancient as so many "Moses from an old manse" will row their annual classic upstream from the railroad bridge to Bartlett's Cove late this afternoon in the midst of pomp and ceremony that survive 62 years of competition, though the race itself has known better days. Fourkeepers, with its nine-crew fleet, has stolen the show from New London during recent years but Harvard and Yale, self-sufficient as always, go right on holding their regatta with the tranquil calm of those who would forget the world without a regret, any time the world shows a disposition to forget them.

So at 7 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time, the old Thames will resound to the shriek of oars on the pleasure craft and the bass-treble duet of the observation stands in quite the immortal manner as the two varsity eights race each other down the four miles of the course. Yale has been a prohibitive favorite for weeks. It remains so today.

Program Starts at 10

The regatta, which once prompted thousands to make high camp for upward of a week, now is a one-day affair, with two races in the morning and the varsity event scheduled for the twilight hour. Starting at ten o'clock, the Freshman and Junior varsity races will be rowed downstream to the Submarine Base, a distance of two miles. They are nothing to make one a-twitter and agog but, ten to fifteen years ago when race crowds moved into town days in advance and didn't leave until the following Monday, they set a lot of store on anything that happened. Usually, a lot of things did.

They still do, for that matter, but what with motor cars, steam yachts and excursion trains, it is all over in 24 hours. Today, the town is a-tilt with the color and dash of its annual event; tomorrow, it will return to its customary repose.

Yale Heavy Favorite

It is the event and not the race itself that continues to muster an overnight population of 30,000 each year, for this time apparently the contest is to be mostly no holdovers. Yale has had the drop on Harvard since 1923, when a Leader came on from Washington to take over rowing at New Haven, and today his crew is favored more strongly than ever before.

Harvard will have a weight advantage of about eight pounds per man but they don't mind. Besides, Harvard has had the disquieting habit of finishing last in its races this season and they say a last-place crew, no matter how much improved it may be, has no hope of beating the boatload from Yale.

The latter, in fact, are believed to be almost a typical Leader entry, meaning that it is presumed to have the speed and power to row with the best of them.

The race between the Yale and Harvard waiters yesterday morning was just what it was calculated to be—simply a test of the students who have been waiting on table at both training camps since the crews came here to train. The Yale waiters had a decided edge in general appearance, for they wore pink tights and green aprons.

They also added fireworks to the occasion and fired off many roman candles as their shell left the float.

This is perhaps the only race known in sport where the winner is the loser. It has become a byword among the oarsmen that the college winning the waiters' race is doomed to defeat in the varsity. To tell the truth, both crews claimed defeat yesterday morning. They drifted down with the tide, doing little or no sweep-swinging. The finish line was about half a mile from the start.

It was the plan of the Harvard waiters to jump overboard so as to let the Yale shell ride over the finish line alone, but as there was some doubt about the swimming ability of some of the Harvard waiters, this plan of strategy was abandoned. Both nondescript crews stalled and stalled and stalled, and although Harvard claims that Yale drifted over the finish line and the Yale waiters maintain that Harvard loitered over first, the real situation is that neither crew crossed the line, the same plan they had followed during the last few years.

KANE REMODELED STORE TO BE OPEN TOMORROW

Local Man Is Head of Sales Force at Big Hartford Furniture Store.

Saturday marks the reopening of Kane's remodeled furniture store in Hartford. The widening of North Main street, required the rebuilding of the entire store front. It has been done in a most attractive manner and the architectural treatment is very much in keeping with the other remodeled buildings in the section in fact everything looks so new and snappy and up-to-date that one would think it was a brand new section of the city.

In connection with the announcement Manchester folks will be interested in knowing that George Graziado, well known resident of this town has made rapid progress in the Kane organization and is now their head salesman at the Hartford store.

He joined their sales force over two years ago and was trained in the Kane Company's large Boston store. After he had completed his sales training there, he was transferred to the Hartford store. He has made good there and has a host of friends in Hartford, Manchester and other surrounding towns.

25 ESCAPED CONVICTS ARE STILL AT LIBERTY

Sweeney, Texas, June 21.—Capture of the remaining 25 of the 43 convicts who yesterday escaped from the Clemens prison farm was expected momentarily today with reports that they were hemmed in near here.

Two more convicts, J. L. Hailey and Tom Nichols, were shot down last night, bringing the number of wounded to four. They were shot while attempting to board a freight train.

Earlier yesterday two of the other prisoners were wounded by a ranchman who opened fire on them with a shotgun after they had tried to steal an automobile from a negro.

Heavily armed guards today were placed in a circle in the bottoms of the Brazos river and were steadily closing in on the convicts who, like hunted animals, were taking desperate chances to escape. Many of the prisoners are considered dangerous.

Rockville

Men's Union Picnic

The Men's Union of the Union Congregational church will hold its annual outing Saturday. The parade will start at 1 p. m. through the principal streets of the city. They will then motor to Vernon Center where there will be a program of sports. The dinner will be served by the ladies of the Vernon Grange. The entertainment will feature a "mock trial" with local people serving as court officers, the jury and the accused.

Foot Guard Band Here
The Governor's Foot Guard Band of Hartford will appear in Rockville on July 4, playing in Talcott park. The concert will start at 8 p. m. and continue until 9:30 when the fireworks display on Fox Hill will start and last about thirty minutes.

High School Alumni Night

The Rockville High School Alumni Association will hold its reunion this evening at the Sykes auditorium. The reception will be held from 7:30 to 8 p. m. after which there will be an entertainment program under the direction of Miss Lelia Church the feature number being a comedy "A Study in Black and White" given by a cast of men. Rock's orchestra will furnish the music for the dancing.

Lions Club Meeting

The Rockville Lions club at its meeting Wednesday evening hope to live up to its name of Service club and like other clubs will try and secure buses so that the children of the Tolland County Home can be given a day's outing at the seashore. Harry C. Smith and Philip P. Howe were appointed a committee to make arrangements. The next meeting will be held July 2.

Epworth League Meeting

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will hold its annual outing Saturday afternoon at "The Green Cottage" at Crystal Lake. There will be games and refreshments.

Sunday School Picnic

St. John's church will hold its annual Sunday school picnic on Saturday at Pine Point Lake, Hazardville. The party will leave the church at 12 o'clock and will go by automobiles. The program will include bathing, boating and other sports.

BARNARD SCHOOL GRADUATES 187

Exercises Held This Morning in High School Assembly Hall.

The High school assembly hall was crowded with grammar school pupils, their friends and relatives this morning to witness the graduation exercises of the eighth grade class of the Barnard school. A total of 187 pupils received diplomas. They were presented by Fred A. Verplank, superintendent of schools in the Ninth district.

The principal addresses were given by Ralph W. Proctor, principal of the Franklin school and Principal C. P. Quimby of Manchester High school. Mr. Proctor spoke first taking for his subject, "Respect for Law." It was his argument that pupils should learn in school to obey the laws whether they liked them or not and then they would not be as likely to get into trouble in later years. Principal Quimby told of the benefits to be derived from long, hard work "You have got to work hard and suffer to get through life," he declared, "and there is much more joy and satisfaction in doing so than merely coasting along."

The complete graduation program follows:

- I. Barnard school orchestra—
 - a. Over the Waves
 - b. A Song in the Night
 - c. Connecticut March
 - d. S. M. G. S. March
- II. Chorus—"Will O' the Wisp"
 - a. Jungmann
 - b. Grade VII
- III. Address—Ralph Proctor.
- IV. Group of songs—
 - a. Boys Glee Club, "March of the Ages"
 - b. Girls' Glee Club, "Night"
 - c. Combined Glee Clubs, "On Wings of Music" Mendelssohn
 - d. Address—Clarence Quimby.
 - V. Chorus—"Olaf Trygvason"
 - a. Grieg
 - b. Grade VIII
 - VII. Presentation of Diplomas—F. A. Verplank.
 - VIII. Chorus—"To The O Country"
 - a. Elgberg
 - b. Grades VII and VIII
 - IX. Orchestra—"United Liberty March."

PROBE GORDON'S DEATH.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., June 21.—Deputy sheriffs today were scouring northern New York for Border Patrolmen Weldon Cheatham and Francis Coveney, wanted for questioning in connection with the killing of Arthur Gordon, 22-year-old run runner.

Gordon was shot to death on a boogie trail leading from Mooers to this city last Saturday. Subsequently John C. Tulloch, Customs official, admitted the youth had been killed by Cheatham, but insisted it was an accident.

Clinton county authorities have been searching for several days for Cheatham and Coveney to subpoena them to appear next Monday at the John Doe investigation into Gordon's death.

SCORES CUSTOMS GUARDS.
New York, June 21.—Another protest was being prepared today against the alleged insolent and damaging behavior of Customs Guards who patrol the waters off Long Island. H. K. Knapp, Jr., socially and financially prominent resident of East Islip, N. Y., revealed that he was going to protest to Washington over the damage done to his fishing cruiser, "Bubbles," which was damaged in a collision with patrol boat while a liquor search was in progress. Knapp also intimated that he is having a damage suit against the government prepared.

ENEMIES OF HEFLIN MADE TOM, JR., DRUNK

Toledo, Ohio, June 21.—Senator Thomas J. Hefflin of Alabama left here today for Washington, D. C., in an effort to assist his son, Thomas, Jr., who has been arrested there and demanded a jury trial on a charge of using narcotics.

Senator Hefflin, before leaving, said he did not doubt the fact that his son had been drinking but claimed, if there was any truth that his son was under the influence of drugs, it was a "deliberate attempt on the part of his enemies to get rid of him through ruining his son."

You will observe no one was hurt in the accident and the driver was willing to drop the matter," said Senator Hefflin, "but my enemies in Washington must have him arrested so they can float over the headlines. "He is a mighty good boy and has lots of talent if let alone—although he does drink occasionally. They try to harm me through him. But they can't intimidate me. I can whip the whole crowd in spite of anything they can do."

COOLIDGE THREE GOES BACK TO CHARLEMAGNE

New York, June 21.—Calvin Coolidge, former president, if he is so inclined, can trace his ancestry back to Charlemagne, according to "your family tree," by Sarah Louise Kimball and David Starr Jordan, which is issued today by D. Appleton & Co. Coolidge's descent from Charlemagne is, of course, not a direct one.

EARLY MORNING CRASH

William Kanehl, Jr., of 519 Center street lost the rear left running board of a borrowed car when he made too wide a swing in coming out of Maple street into Main street at 1 o'clock this morning.

A work car, going south to get a disabled machine which was struck at the terminus was coming down the street and as there were several cars parked along the curb in front of the postoffice it cut off his view. There was a loud crash and in a few minutes a large crowd had gathered.

Kanehl said he did not see the car until it was too late to clear it and he seemed happy that he was not hurt. Sergeant John Crolkett drove up just after the accident and made an investigation. No arrests were made.

KIWANIS "ZERO HOUR" SESSION IN WINSTED

Will Be Held Monday Night at Same Time Convention Opens in Milwaukee.

At least sixteen local Kiwanians will attend the "Zero Hour" to be observed by the "Winsted club" at the Hotel Martin in Norfolk, and by 1,800 other Kiwanis Clubs on the North American continent, Monday evening, June 24 at 8 o'clock.

"Zero Hour" is the exact hour when the opening of the 13th annual convention will take place in Milwaukee and the international simultaneous meeting is a united expression of gratitude for the unselfish service work of members and the social and civic accomplishments of Kiwanis during the last year.

Several of the local members will go to Norfolk in the afternoon and play golf on the Norfolk Downs Golf course. This is one of the most picturesque nine hole courses in Litchfield County.

ENGLISH BISHOP TO BE CAMP GROUNDS SPEAKER

The program for the Willimantic Camp Meeting to be held August 17 to 25 is rapidly nearing completion and will be announced in its entirety in a few weeks. Among the highlights will be a sermon by Bishop W. F. Oldman, one of the outstanding spiritual leaders of the day who is at present in England, two great concerts featuring Justin Laure, noted light and grand opera star and a famous group from Boston, and sermons by Professor W. G. Chanter of Wesleyan University and Dr. Harvey Reeves Calkins. District Superintendent Myron E. Genter is president of the Camp Meeting Association and chiefly responsible for the program.

TOM MIX GETS BACK HIS STOLEN MONEY

Concord, N. H., June 21.—Tom Mix, movie and circus cowboy actor, today again was in possession of most of his missing $75,000 in cash and valuables, while two men, a porter and a valet, were under arrest in connection with the recovery of a satchel from the Mix private car at Portsmouth, N. H. All but $6,000 was recovered, and from one of the two men in custody police learned that two suitcases had been shipped from Portsmouth to Peru, Ind. Police of that city were notified.

The alleged confession wrung by police from Russell Everett, 22-year-old negro porter attached to the circus led to the recovery late last night of the satchel containing the valuables in a battery box of the show car. Everett and Cal Frydendahl, Mix's valet, were the men being held.

LOCAL TEACHER PLANS EDUCATIONAL TOUR

Miss Gertrude Carrier of Cambridge street, teacher of Grade 2 at the Hollister street school, will leave town tomorrow for a special summer educational tour. She will be one of a party of upwards of 300 teachers, students and their friends, who will make the University of Los Angeles their objective. Miss Carrier will take a six weeks' course in primary work, and will return to town about August 22.

The tourists will travel west by the southern route, visiting the Grand Canyon and a number of places of interest on the Pacific coast before taking the special courses at the university. The return trip will be by British Columbia and the Canadian Rockies, with stops at Lake Louise, Banff and other beautiful spots along the Canadian Pacific route.

Night before last about a dozen youngsters congregated about the lawn on the south side of the building, many of them wearing bathing suits, others with just an old dress or a pair of pants—yes there were girls as well as boys. Pete was watering the grass and every time the kids came within range, he gave them the wailing they so eagerly sought.

HOUSE FAMILY GOING ON EUROPEAN TRIP

Mrs. Herbert B. House of East Center street, her daughter, Miss Emily Louise, and Charles House, Harvard '30, will tour Europe this summer. Charles E. House, Herbert B. and Miss Laura House will accompany them to Montreal where they will take the steamer Montcalm of the Canadian Pacific Line, sailing Wednesday, June 26, for Southampton, England. The party will leave here by automobile Monday morning.

Mrs. House, Miss Emily and Charles plan to visit England, Belgium, Holland, The Rhine, France, Italy and Switzerland, returning about the first of September on the Empress of Scotland.

ABOUT TOWN

The seventh grades of Barnard School held a concert in the assembly hall of the Recreation Center yesterday morning.

Swapping "John Hancock's" was the principal activity at Manchester High school today as the official school year came to a close. Students were busy swapping around with their copies of Somanth's Events seeking the signature of teachers and pupils alike.

Tomorrow is the last day for the payment of personal taxes when a settlement can be made for $3. Twenty-ninth this amount this morning. After Saturday the tax warrants will be issued. Taxes and costs will then run up to about $3.

A few are still buying fishing licenses, although the big rush has passed.

A stand portable lawn sprinkler is being used around the Municipal building in hopes of keeping the lawn from burning up.

Nathan Glendenning Richards has been employed for the summer at the town engineers office, on maps. He will also assist the outside department. Mr. Richards, was graduated from Hebron Academy, Hebron, Me., this month, and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Richards. While at school Mr. Richards was the best 44 yard man and was one of the best track men. He was also a member of the school band and the quartet.

WAPPING

The Pythian Sisters held their memorial services at the grave of Mrs. Edith Burban's in the Wapping cemetery and decorated it with flowers last Sunday afternoon and at the same time the Knights of Pythians held a similar service at the grave of Louis Priest. Corwin Grant sang two solos, "Abide With Me" and "Rock of Ages." Warren Case sounded taps and from here they went to Buckland cemetery to hold services there also.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Newberry and son Melvyn are moving into their new home, which they have recently purchased in South Glastonbury.

At the close of the Sunday morning services at the First Congregational church of South Windsor, Mrs. Frank Bidwell was elected a delegate with the pastor, Rev. William Malcolm to attend the ordaining and installing of the Rev. Stuart C. Haskins as pastor of the Glastonbury Congregational church on Friday, June 26th.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Newberry will attend the graduation of their son Ellsworth Samuel Newberry, at the Northeastern University in Boston, Mass., this week.

Rev. Harry B. Miner took the Friendly Indians or the Junior Y. M. C. A. boys, in his auto to Hammonasset Beach on Tuesday of this week. The boys spent a fine time. The Pleasant Valley Club held their last meeting until next fall, September 18, at the home of Mrs. Anna Sheldick, on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Hattie Lane was the assistant hostess.

OFFICIAL BLOOD GIVER NOW DISPENSES WATER

Usually when you read the name of Pete Happenny in the newspapers it is because he is giving blood to save someone's life, but this time it appears he has turned a bit Scotch, for instead of blood, he is giving water.

During the recent hot spell, Happenny has made himself the friend of scores of children living in the vicinity of the fire house at Spruce and Florence streets, by spraying them with water.

Night before last about a dozen youngsters congregated about the lawn on the south side of the building, many of them wearing bathing suits, others with just an old dress or a pair of pants—yes there were girls as well as boys. Pete was watering the grass and every time the kids came within range, he gave them the wailing they so eagerly sought.

NOON STOCKS

New York, June 21.—A number of old favorites returned to the active list in the early trading today, and joined with the Utilities in the forward movement of prices. Demand for some of these stocks was based on expiration of the "rights" which have been clogging the market for the last month or two, and in which hundreds of millions of dollars have been tied up.

Anaconda Copper forged ahead 3 points on heavy buying to 114 1/2, at which price the stock showed a recovery of 15 1/2 points from the May 27 break. Anaconda Wire & Cable, a subsidiary, pushed ahead to 71 1/2, completing a gain of 9 points on the move.

Baldwin Locomotive, a famous speculative actor of other years sold up to 248 on reports that the contemplated split-up of the shares would soon be announced.

For the $138,000,000 increase in brokers' loans, Wall street was inclined to point to the large bulk of new stocks sold during the week on expiring rights, rather than to margin trading on the Stock Exchange, though the recovery in the market was a factor in the increased borrowings from the banks. In any case, the money situation looked good to the bulls, who look for a much easier tone after the turn of July.

In the absence of definite information about the merger terms of Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas (if any) traders were mystified at the continued soaring of the Brooklyn Union stock, which jumped an additional 6 points to 212, up 34 points since Tuesday.

The Morgan Food-merger stocks were quiet and inactive, since accurate information about the merger terms had leaked out in advance of the official announcement.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

If women but knew, they'd still ask questions.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The Only Girl First she's on your thoughts a lot, She has many charms; Soon she's in your motor car; Then she's in your arms.

Our Fruitful Language A girl shows her raisins when she makes a date with a prune for whom she doesn't care a fig.

Joe: "I've got an invention that will make me millions!"

The golfing novice, after disturbing much turf, turned for reassurance to his caddy and said: "I have a brother in Australia who plays this game awfully well."

Bertie—"What's the bell around the cow's neck?"

The station master rushed out of his room after hearing a crash on the platform. He discerned a disheveled young man sprawled out perfectly flat among a confusion of overturned milk cans and the scattered contents of his traveling bag.

"Was he trying to catch the train?" the station master asked a small boy who stood by admiring the scene.

Sunday School Teacher: "And why did Noah take two of each kind of animal into the ark?"

Nature fishes too, with a bait called love on a hook called matrimony, and what a string of suckers she does catch!

A man who boasted that he was the captain of his soul is married now and has been reduced to the ranks.

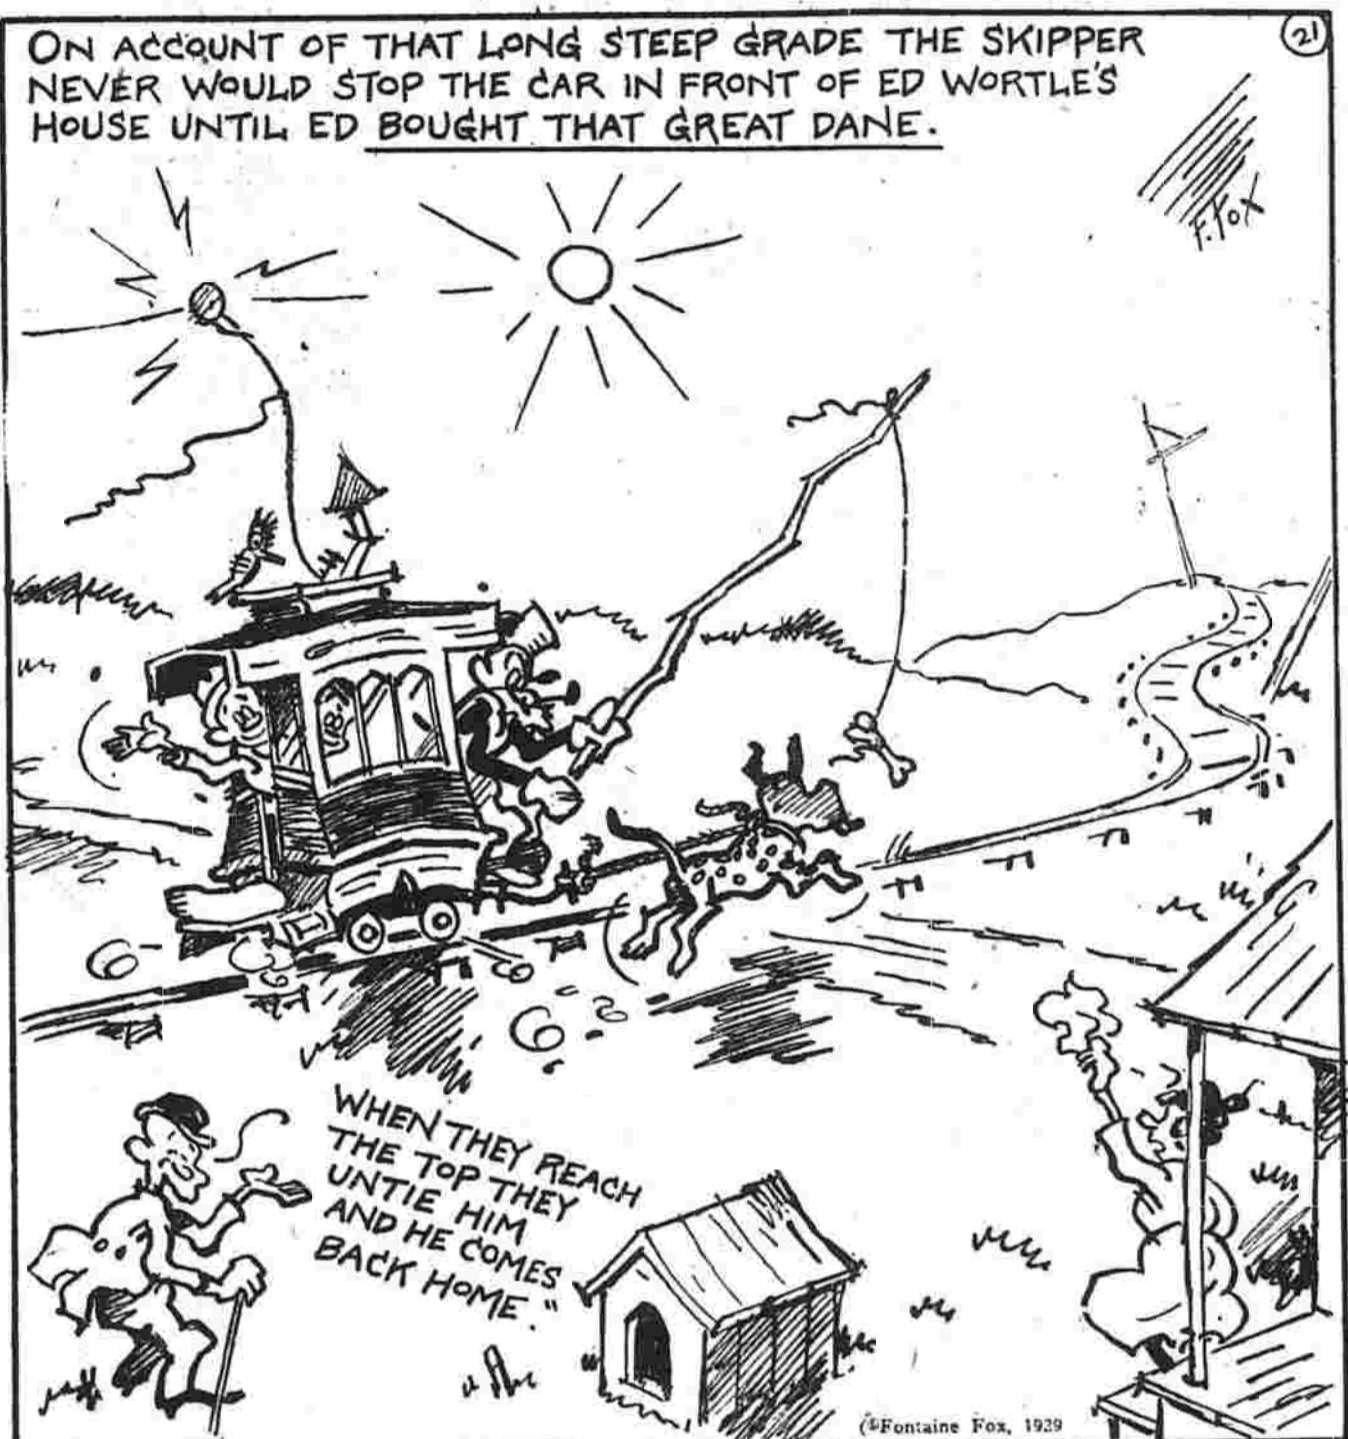

No country can keep out undesirables without the hearty cooperation of the stork.

Some dresses aren't so bad for the shape they are on.

LETTER GOLF

ONE FOR THE KIDDIES A PONY and CART is today's mode of transportation over the letter golf course.

Grid for Letter Golf with words PONY and CART.

THE RULES.

- 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

THE TINYMALES

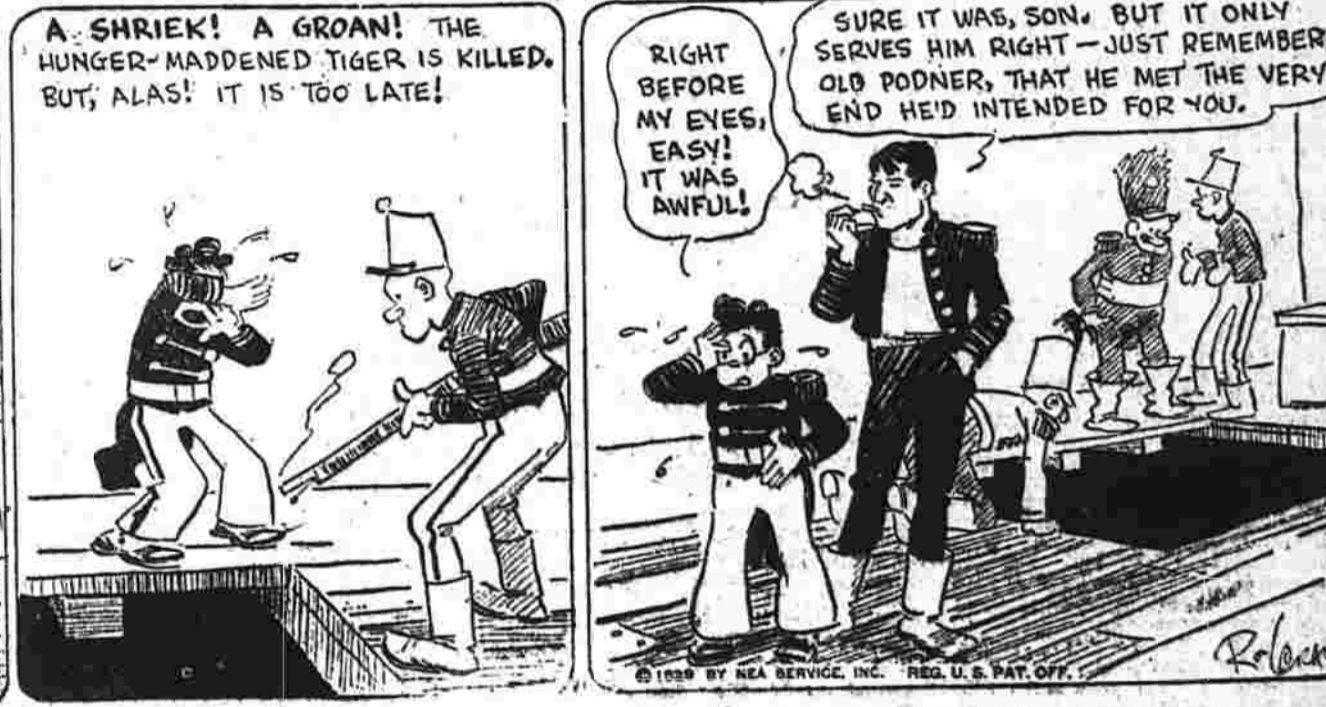

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

The ride across the country was a very wondrous treat because the horses jogged along real slow and didn't jar the bunch. Said Clowny, as they moved along, "Now I know why I'm feeling wrong. I'm getting mighty hungry 'cause we haven't had our lunch."

ABOUT TOWN

A large representation of local DeMolay members are planning to attend the Conclave to be held in New Haven today, Saturday and Sunday.

William George, son of Captain and Mrs. William S. George of Henry street left yesterday for a visit with relatives near Boston.

The final county meeting before vacation of the American Legion and auxiliary will be held Sunday at 3 o'clock at Enfield High school, Enfield street, Thompsonville.

DANCING EVERY SATURDAY NIGHT At LAKESIDE CASINO

The Manchester Green Community club will hold its regular business meeting in the school assembly hall this evening. Plans for summer and fall activities will be discussed and a large turnout of the members is hoped for.

Miss Marguerite Bengs of Park street and Mrs. Earl Robinson of Strickland street left yesterday for a short motor trip through the White Mountains and other places of interest. They expect to return on Sunday.

Miss Lea Chicoine of the Pinehurst office force is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Milton J. Turkington of Winter street, superintendent of the group division of the Aetna Life insurance company, is at Delaware Water Gap, attending a convention of the eastern group offices of the company.

Miss Betty Robbins of Summit street and Miss Anne Smith of Charter Oak street, who graduated today from the New Britain Normal school have been engaged to teach in Ellington Center next fall. Both young women graduated from the Manchester High school with the class of 1927.

Daughters of Liberty, L. L. O. L. No. 125 will hold a special meeting in Orange hall Monday evening at 8:30. The members are urged to be present as several important matters of business are to be acted upon.

Matthew D. McClellan of East Hartford, was arrested early this morning on Center street by Patrolman Joseph Pringle on the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. His attorney William S. Hyde was unable to be in court this morning and asked for a continuance of the hearing until tomorrow morning.
