

FOREIGN ENVOYS CLASH OFTEN WITH THE POLICE

Halted 37 Times in Capital Alone for Drunken Driv- ing and Other Violations of the Traffic Laws.

Washington, June 28.—Foreign diplomats, from an Ambassador and ministers plenipotentiary down to ordinary attaches, were halted by police on the streets of the national capital 37 times within recent years for driving automobiles while drunk and for other traffic violations, Major Henry G. Pratt, police superintendent, reported to the Senate today in response to a resolution of inquiry.

The police superintendent listed the diplomats, whom his men had caught violating the traffic law. A few were halted more than once, Pratt reported, "by members of the police department and warned for operating automobiles in the district of Columbia while under the influence of liquor or other traffic violations."

The most prominent name on the list was that of "Von Frittwitz" from the German embassy. The only member of the official German staff here by that name is Herr Friedrich W. Von Frittwitz and Gaffron, the German ambassador.

The foreign ministers listed by Pratt were Edouard De Midina, the Bulgarian minister, Count Laszlo Szechenyi, the Hungarian minister, whose name appeared twice, and J. H. Van Royen, the minister from the Netherlands. Several courtiers and charge d'affaires were also named.

The police chief's report showed that but fourteen diplomats were halted by the police for traffic law violations in the eleven years from 1917 to 1927 inclusive. Last year, however, there were thirteen diplomats halted while in the first five months of this year, the report showed a growing "crime wave" among the foreign representatives, with police forced to halt ten violators of the traffic code.

The police superintendent did not cite which diplomats were caught driving while drunk, but he simply lumped all the names under the generalization that they had been halted and warned for one offense or the other.

The report showed the Argentine embassy had the largest number of traffic violators, it being listed four times. The three-time offenders were the Bulgarian, German and Persian embassies. The single-offense list included Sweden, Greece, Ecuador, Spain, Venezuela, Rumania, Italy, Turkey, France, the Irish Free State, Japan, Great Britain and Egypt.

Prior to 1922, Count Szechenyi, the Hungarian minister, led the list of traffic violators. He was stopped by police in 1922 and again in 1926. The report did not say what his offense was in each case.

ENGLISH MAYORESS ON WAY TO LYNN

To Attend Tri-Centennial Celebration of Bay State City; Rules Lynn, Eng.

New York, June 28.—The Marchioness of Townsend who rules over the British town of King's Lynn, England, and is addressed as "Mr. Mayor," if you speak the King's English, arrived here today aboard the Cunard liner Mauretania, to attend the tri-centennial celebration of the founding of Lynn, Mass.

"My plan is to make all towns in America bearing the same names as English towns as friendly as the two Lynns," said "Mr. Mayor."

The marchioness, who is a widow, was accompanied by her 13-year-old son, George Patrick Dominic, also known as the marquis. "Call me George," suggested the clear-eyed, sun-burned lad, to the newspaper photographers who addressed him as "Your Lordship." "Sonny" and "Prince."

The picture boys had a lot of trouble digging up George to pose with his charming mother. He was down in the hold saying goodbye to his friends in the crew.

"I want to see your boys and girls and baseball games and ride your horses," he answered enthusiastically. "I want to see everything," George insisted. "As a warning to the girls it" (Continued on Page Three.)

BAY STATE COURT DISBARS READING

Former Atty.-Gen. Accused of Accepting Fee from Concern He Was Probing

Boston, June 28.—Arthur K. Reading, who resigned as attorney general while impeachment proceedings were pending against him in the Legislature, today was disbarred from practicing law in Massachusetts courts.

Justice George A. Sanderson in Supreme Court filed an order with the chief clerk disbarring Reading.

Reading was accused of accepting a retaining fee of $25,000 as private attorney for Decline Club Incorporated while the club was under investigation by his office and also for being affiliated with the United L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation while his office was probing that concern.

Bar Association Acts.
Following his resignation as attorney general, Reading had been practicing law. The Massachusetts Bar Association looked into the Reading case and decided to refer it to the Supreme Court, simply asking for the court's decision, but not actually asking for disbarment, although an adverse decision was equivalent to disbarment.

The trial before Judge Sanderson lasted more than two weeks, with Reading acting as his own defense lawyer. He pleaded that he might have made a mistake of judgment but that his "heart was right."

The police chief's report showed that but fourteen diplomats were halted by the police for traffic law violations in the eleven years from 1917 to 1927 inclusive. Last year, however, there were thirteen diplomats halted while in the first five months of this year, the report showed a growing "crime wave" among the foreign representatives, with police forced to halt ten violators of the traffic code.

The police superintendent did not cite which diplomats were caught driving while drunk, but he simply lumped all the names under the generalization that they had been halted and warned for one offense or the other.

BIG CROWD HEARS FIGHT BULLETINS

Over 600 Persons Gather in Front of Herald Office to Get Returns of Big Bout.

A crowd estimated at over 600 persons lined Bissell street from Main street to Kittle's Market, and packed like sardines in the rear of the State theater building to listen to The Herald's exclusive blow by blow description of Max Schmeling's triumph over Paulino Uzcudun, the bounding Basque in fifteen rounds at the Yankee Stadium last night.

Interest in the elimination contest ran unusually high. Telephones in The Herald's editorial room jangled intermittently until midnight, all callers wishing to know the outcome of the fight.

The Herald was the only newspaper in this vicinity and one of the few in the state that had the fistic encounter sent over the wire from the ringside. Though returns were a bit slower than by radio, they were much more accurate and understandable. Use of a megaphone to relay the description by the I. N. S. sports editor, Davis J. Walsh made it audible to the extreme reaches of the crowd.

Judging by the cheering during the first ten rounds the crowd seemed to favor Paulino but as the fight progressed the sentiment changed.

So quickly did the fight fans gather that it was necessary for a policeman to direct traffic and hold back the mob on Bissell street. Cars lined the roadway on both sides as far as L. T. Wood's office and the parking place in the rear of the filling station was filled with automobiles, which in turn were filled with fight enthusiasts who even from there could hear the running description plainly.

It was without doubt the greatest crowd ever listen to returns from the Herald.

ALL GERMANY IN MOURNING; WAR PROTEST

Cabinet Signs Manifesto Saying That Germans Were Not Alone Responsible for Outbreak of World War.

Berlin, June 28.—Germany observed the tenth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Versailles today with a day of mourning in solemn repudiation of the accusation that Germany alone was responsible for the outbreak of the World War.

President Von Hindenburg and all members of the German cabinet signed a manifesto declaring the day one of national mourning, protesting against the stigma of war guilt contained in the treaty, and holding that the charge undermines the confidence of other nations.

Church Services
Public mourning services were held in churches throughout the country. Mass meetings of protest by numerous national organizations were held in every community of the country. White flags were flown at half mast and draped with ribbons of black. At 3 o'clock this afternoon, exactly ten years since the signing of the treaty, Protestant churches throughout Germany were to toll bells of mourning.

The nationwide protests being staged against the so-called "war guilt" resulted in a near riot before the ministry of culture in the Unter Den Linden today. Police were forced to use clubs and fired in the air in an attempt to disperse 400 students of the University of Berlin who held a demonstration in the thoroughfare because the authorities had refused permission for a mass meeting to be held in the college group.

Call Out Reserves
In spite of the official refusal, the students staged a meeting in the rear of the college grounds, and then marched to the ministry of culture to renew their protest. The situation was so serious for a while that reserves had to be called out.

Meanwhile, the royalist faction of the court rejected the view of the Reichstag had refused to prolong the law for the defense of the republic under which former Kaiser Wilhelm, now in exile in Doorn, Holland, is barred from Germany.

The treaty expires on July 22. Its expiration will automatically permit the former monarch to return to Germany without special dispensation on the part of the government. Whether or not he will avail himself of the opportunity to return remains to be seen but the greatest barrier to his return has been lifted.

The public declaration of a day of mourning by President Von Hindenburg, Chancellor Mueller, Foreign Minister Stresemann and the other members of the Cabinet was the only official notice taken by the government of the anniversary of the treaty.

The president was invited to attend a mammoth military demonstration in Berlin Stadium tonight prepared by monarchist organizations but refused in order that his manifesto might be the only official recognition given the anniversary.

NO SOLUTION YET OF MARLOW CASE

Police Pick Up 20 Persons But Release Them After They Prove Innocent.

New York, June 28.—Several of the angles of the vigorous investigation being made by Police Commissioner Grover Whalen into the slaying of Frank Marlow, Broadway racketeer, apparently ended in a blind alley at dawn today when the other Boston men had willingly agreed to tell what they knew when picked up by detectives at the Schmeling-Paulino fight at Yankee Stadium here last night, but had not anticipated being grilled all night against their wishes.

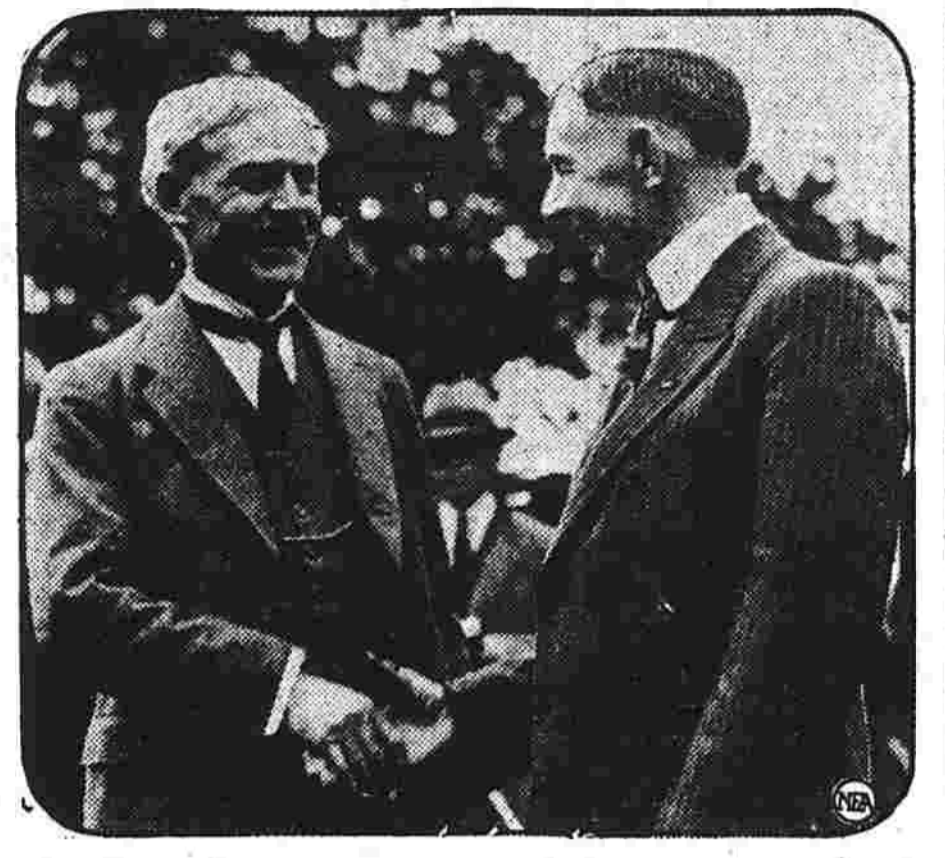

Those taken to headquarters included four prominent Boston sportsmen. They were Dan Carroll, prizefight manager; Eddie Mack, matchmaker of the Boston Stadium; Charles Solomon and his brother, Chink.

After being released Mack was so incensed at being held for questioning for six hours that he declared he intended to file a suit for personal damages against the City of New York. He said that he and the other Boston men had willingly agreed to tell what they knew when picked up by detectives at the Schmeling-Paulino fight at Yankee Stadium here last night, but had not anticipated being grilled all night against their wishes.

Not Arrested
The Boston quartet had not been arrested but Police hoped they might be able to furnish some leads in the search for the two men who lured Marlow from a restaurant here last Monday evening, "took Winged Foot golf club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 28.—Al Espinosa, and Gene Sarazen, great golfers both, were deadlocked at the head of the field in the National Open Golf championship today with a score 142 strokes for two rounds of the classic event.

Sarazen followed his 70 of yesterday with another this morning. Espinosa replied with a 72-70, 72, which with his 70 of the first round, brought him to the club house in a dead heat with the Italian.

Bobby Jones, the leader yesterday with a 69, hadn't started on his second round at this juncture.

Hagen's Score Poor
Walter Hagen the perennial British champion had started and finished—finished with the round and virtually with the tournament. He took a 39-42—81 for one of his worst rounds of championship history and closed the day with an aggregate of 157.

Espinosa's card follows:
Out 344 453 346—35
In 444 534 454-37-72.
In some respects Espinosa's round was more meritorious than Sarazen's for the latter got home before the wind began to blow a gale which was late in the morning. Even with his early start, Gene began to wobble in the wind on the late holes and only his putter kept him at the pace. Espinosa also was putting well but an 8-for-10 on the 18th that was needed to

BLOOD STAINS ON BORDEN AXE

37 Year Old Fall River Murder Mystery May Be Solved by Noted Chemical Expert.

Boston, June 28.—Chemical science, battering at the lock of the long-closed famous 36-year old Borden murder mystery, has found that stains on a cooper's axe found in the barn in Fall River were blood stains.
But whether they were stains of human blood will not be determined for a couple of weeks, Dr. William F. Boos, Harvard toxicologist and government expert, said today.

Sections of the stains from the axe have been injected into the blood of live rabbits. The chemical reaction to the rabbit's blood may perhaps solve—in some part at least—the mysterious murder of the wealthy Andrew Jackson Borden and his second wife, Abbie, in their Fall River home, 37 years ago. Lizzie the daughter of Borden, was tried and acquitted of the double murder—the most celebrated in the history of New England.

After living in seclusion for years she died two years ago.

Willimantic, June 28.—Two of three New Hampshire boys who escaped the reform school in that state early in June and rampaged across Massachusetts and Connecticut to fall into the hands of state police at Danbury, were entered as inmates of Connecticut reformatory institutions today. Jerry Nelson, 13, of Gilsum, N. H., went to state prison for a term of six to ten years while Wendell Hardy, 17, of Littleton, N. H., was sent to the Cheshire reformatory.

The two boys were taken into Superior Court on bench warrants and charged with robbery while

DRY SENATOR DECLARES HE MAKES WINE

Dr. Doran Says It Breaks Volstead Law But His Bu- reau Will Take No Action In the Matter.

Washington, June 28.—Another Dry member of the United States Senate today was adjudged guilty of violating the prohibition laws.

Admission by Senator Arthur R. Gould (R) of Maine, that he purchased unfermented grape juice from a St. Louis firm and then allowed nature to take its course, "obtaining fair results," constitutes a violation of the Volstead Act, it was stated at the Prohibition Bureau.

Bureau's Policy.
Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition administrator, explained that while it is against the law to permit nature to make unfermented grape juice into wine, the Bureau has long followed the policy of "not bothering" people who lay no restraining hand on nature's impulses within their own homes.

"Manufacture of wine for beverage purposes is a violation of the law," said Dr. Doran. "The only thing permitted under the law is naturally occurring wine from non-intoxicating fruit juices. If the wine is intoxicating it is illegal." The grape juice concerns that have sprung up since prohibition, selling the unfermented juices to customers with instructions as to how to allow nature to take its course, have long been a problem to the prohibition authorities.

FAVORS LIGHT WINES
Ponque, Isle, Maine, June 28.—"That's nothing new. I have always advocated limited use of licensed light wines and beers," said United States Senator Arthur R. Gould, Republican, today in commenting on published reports of his receipt of a testimonial letter he was said to have written to a grape juice company and said to have been used yesterday in a civil suit here.

"Many of the things I have been quoted as saying, I did not say," continued the Senator. "My views have always been known to my friends. Apparently my enemies are trying to make political use of them at this time."

News Causes Str.
The Pine Tree Commonwealth was one of the original prohibition states and the publication of news despatches from St. Louis and statements attributed to Senator Gould caused a stir among prohibitionists. Word reached here that he would be strong Dry opposition to Gould at the next election. However, he has not announced that he was a candidate for re-election.

That he said the making of wine from elder berries and grapes was practiced in Aroostook county, adding that "God Almighty put those flowers and vines on the earth and He intended them to be used," was denied by the Senator.

"An attempt is being made to injure me politically," he said. "Fantastic stories are attributed to me. What is the use of rehabilitating this over and over. My friends know my sentiments and that's enough."

MANY MEN INDICTED ON LOTTERY CHARGE

Some Come from Hartford; Headquarters of Concern Located in Springfield.

Boston, June 28.—More than a score of secret Federal Grand Jury indictments have been returned in connection with the $1,000,000 Imperial Lottery, of Springfield, which the Federal Grand Jury began investigating Thursday, it was learned today.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Hubert C. Thompson, who presented the case to the Federal Grand Jury, admitted that the secret indictments had been returned, Pittsfield, Boston, and from Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport, in Connecticut where they were involved.

All indictments charged violation of the interstate commerce laws by the transportation of lottery tickets.

It was stated that court orders would be issued for the apprehension of the men named in the secret indictments.

Witnesses to the number of 26 had testified before the Federal Grand Jury. The investigation of the Imperial Lottery, which had first originated at Bridgeport but later moved to Springfield, resulted, it was said, because of the failure of two men, one from Pittsfield, and the other from Providence, R. I., to obtain their prize money.

WAR PILOT KILLED, GIRL FLYER HURT, AS PLANE CRASHES

Near Death

Viola Gentry in Critical Condition With Both Arms Broken and Internal Injuries—Were Trying to Break Endurance Record—Gas Gives Out and Plane Hits Tree in Fog.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 28.—Jack Ashcraft, veteran war pilot and barnstormer, is lead and Viola Gentry, noted woman flyer is in a critical condition in the Nassau county hospital today because they over-estimated their supply of gas when they took off from here in their biplane, "The Answer," last night in an attempt to set a new refueling endurance record.

The Answer crashed head-on into a tree on the Hicks road here between 6:30 and 7 a. m. today when the flyers attempted a forced landing after finding their gas supply exhausted. The plane was scheduled to fly over the airport at 9 a. m. to be refueled by a plane piloted by Carl Dixon and Clyde Kincaid. Because of the dense fog that hung low over Long Island this morning, the two pilots were unable to see the tree that blocked their path.

Plane Hits Tree
The plane struck the tree with a terrific impact and Ashcraft, who was at the controls in the forward part of the cabin was killed instantly.

Miss Gentry, who was in the rear part of the cabin, was unconscious when she was dragged from the wreckage by Henry Hicks, his son, Edwin, and Henry Balkan, a workman, who were aroused from their beds by the crash. As they lifted her into an ambulance summoned hurriedly from the hospital, however, she regained consciousness long enough to reveal her name.

Little hope was held for her recovery at the hospital, although it was admitted that the exact extent of her injuries could not be determined until later in the day.

Both Arms Broken
After a preliminary examination physicians announced that Miss Gentry's arms had been broken in the crash and that she may have suffered internal injuries. They also declared she was suffering from painful bruises and shock.

She regained consciousness and spoke of the accident as a "tough break."

Gas Tank Empty
Nassau county policemen who hurried to the scene a short time after the crash, found The Answer's tanks dry. At 5:50 a. m. the plane had circled over Roosevelt Field and dropped a note requesting that the refueling plane be sent aloft, but explaining they believed they had sufficient fuel to last them for two hours longer.

When the plane took off shortly after 8 o'clock last night, the flyers believed they carried sufficient gasoline to last them for 23 hours, Her Second Crash.

This was Miss Gentry's second crash. On January 21 last, two minutes after she had taken off from this field in an attempt to better the woman's endurance record established by Elinor Smith, she crashed 200 feet into a gully. She was badly shaken up, but escaped serious injury.

Miss Gentry was born 27 years ago in California. She had her first airplane ride in Florida in 1911 and has maintained an active interest in aviation since then. She has been a licensed pilot for some time.

Ashcraft was 33 years old, 6 feet 2 inches tall, and was exceedingly popular with his follow flyers. He learned to fly during the World War and spent many years barnstorming in the south and mid-west. In recent months he had been employed as a commercial pilot by the Gates Aircraft Service at Holmes Airport in Jackson Heights. Upon hearing that Miss Gentry needed a pilot he volunteered to join her in her endurance flight over the protest of his employer, Ivan R. Gates.

Flew Under Bridges
Miss Gentry first attracted attention by flying "for a thrill" beneath the spans of Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges in 1926. She then returned to her cashier's cage in the restaurant in which she worked while Department of Commerce officials deliberated on her daring act with a view of disciplining her.

Only last year, Ashcraft, who was known as a daring but safe pilot, engaged in a stunt exhibition at Macon, Ga. His young brother, Steele, and his best friend "Buck" Frank, were throwing aerial "bombs" from the plane when one prematurely exploded, killing both but leaving Ashcraft unharmed.

WOMEN CONTINUE CLUB ACTIVITIES

Wednesdays have been designated as women's day this spring at the Country club and much more than ordinary interest has been taken in the events, due to the efforts of an enthusiastic bridge and golf committee. Owing to the heat and the absence from town of many of the women golfers, the tournaments, luncheons and afternoon bridge parties which have been a feature of the summer will be suspended until the first Wednesday in September. However, a number of the members have planned to get together on Wednesdays throughout the summer and those who can make it convenient to do so will doubtless always find players on the course and congenial partners for bridge.

8TH IS ASKED TO LEASE SEPTIC TANK PROPERTY

Cheney Brothers Explain Notice Given in Regard to Further Rental of Land.

In explanation of the notice given to the Eighth School and Utilities district by Cheney Brothers with regard to the lease of the property on which the north end districts' septic tanks are built, Cheney Brothers today issued the following statement:

"The land on which the filtration tanks are located, just north of the railroad where it crosses the Hockanum River just north right-of-way thereto, was leased to the Eighth School and Utilities District by Cheney Brothers at a rental of $1.00 per year on March 25, 1904 with a privilege of renewal for an additional twenty-five years on or before the expiration of the first twenty-five year term. The Eighth School and Utilities District did not exercise their option of renewing the lease, which option expired on March 25, 1929 and Cheney Brothers advised the Eighth School and Utilities District of the cancellation of the lease, as per notice which followed the expiration of the lease...

"The former lease was of course a gratuity and our directors do not feel morally obligated to extend it further. They do wish, however, to act in a way not to cause any hardship and with that in view they are having an appraisal made of the property in order to determine what would be a fair rental."

"The result of the appraisal will be communicated to you in due time and thereafter we will be willing, if you desire, to negotiate a new lease upon terms fair to both parties."

"Yours very truly, CHENEY BROTHERS."

NO SOLUTION YET OF MARLOW CASE

(Continued from Page 1) him for a ride and threw him out of their automobile to die in the shadow of the ambitions of a cemetery at Flushing, Long Island. Other persons rounded up during the night and later released included two attractive, stylishly-dressed girls, apparently night club entertainers, and a telephone girl said by police to have seen the Broadway racketeer enter the death car with his two supposed friends. The identity of the girls was not revealed. Maloney's Manager Carroll is the manager of Jim Maloney, prominent heavyweight who recently lost on a foul in a bout with a novice Italian fighter managed by Marlow. Police previously had advanced the theory that Marlow had become involved in a feud with a group of Boston men as a result of the unexpected outcome of the bout. Others questioned during the night were the five persons who were with Marlow at his last supper at the La Tavernelle restaurant here. They were Johnny Wilson, formerly middleweight champion and once a member of Marlow's boxing stable; "Boston Louie" Lewis, gambler; Al Seikel, Broadway lancer; Ignatius Coppa, owner of the restaurant; and "Mickie" Seiden, night club entertainer who was in Marlow's room at the Victoria hotel on the evening of the murder. Last evening Police Commissioner Whalen had intimated that the two murderers might be apprehended today. Aglow with satisfaction, he chief of the "finest" also announced that the death car had been found. It bore Massachusetts license plates and was registered in Boston under the ownership of Louis Hurwitz, from whom it was believed to have been borrowed or stolen. New York again became the center of the investigation after Michael Rocco, known as "Mickey, he Wise Guy," was released in Boston. It had been reported that the little Boston racketeer was seen in Brooklyn on the night of the murder, but New York detectives who seized him in a Boston barber shop apparently were satisfied with his fib that he was in the Hub at the time. The detectives also had planned a grill Rocco concerning Marlow's sported activities in the alcohol racket in Boston, on the theory that the gambler's death had resulted from a feud caused by his intrusion into the stamping ground of Boston racketeers.

ENGLISH MAYORESS ON WAY TO LYNN

(Continued from Page 1) should be recorded that George is at least a good looking as the Prince of Wales. Attractive Woman. The marchioness is an attractive woman in the forties. She was dressed in a stylish gray ensemble with a silver fox fur trimmed coat. She wore a double string of pearls about her neck. "Mr. Mayor" was elected unanimously by representatives of the three British parties. Although a Conservative, the marchioness has a non-partisan attitude. When asked what she thought of the new British labor administration, she said: "If any party works for the highest good of the most people, I approve of it." In addition to her administrative duties and taking care of George and a 12-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, Mary, officially known as "the Mayoress," the marchioness manages her broad estates and is well known for her mission and welfare work. "I most want to meet the American woman," she said. "I believe that both the British and American women have started on the road to destiny." Benjamin N. Johnson, Lynn attorney, and chairman of tri-continental reception committee, went down the bay to meet the marchioness and her son. "Mr. Mayor" will leave this afternoon for Lynn, and at Boston will be met by a committee of 100 from Lynn.

PRESIDENT FAVORS SMOOT SUGAR RATE

Sliding Scale from $1 to $3 Will Be Submitted to Finance Committee Soon.

Washington, June 27.—The Senate finance sub-committee, dealing with the sugar tariff, continued today to gather evidence on which to base a new duty.

Committee members were studying the recommendation of the American Farm Bureau Federation, given through W. R. Ogg, for a tariff of $3.90 per hundred pounds on sugar imports. Ogg said the farmers belonging to his organization favored this increased rate over the House bill provision for $3 per hundred with a special rate of $2.40 for Cuba.

Favor Sliding Scale.

Belief prevailed, however, that the committee in the end will adopt the proposed "sliding scale" being prepared by Senator Reed Smoot (R) of Utah, chairman of the committee. Reports were current that President Hoover favors a sliding scale for sugar and will endorse the tentative Smoot schedule. This would provide a range of sugar rates from $1 to $3 per hundred pounds, the low tariff applying when refined sugar sold at $7 per hundred pounds and the high tariff when prices sank to $4 per hundred pounds.

The Smoot-Hoover scale, it was announced, will not be made public until submitted to the full finance committee after the public hearings are concluded.

The "Great Geyser" in Iceland has a basin of 70 feet in diameter. It throws up a column of hot water to a height of from 80 to 200 feet.

54 YEARS AT SOUTH MANCHESTER

is the real test of a motor fuel

EASY STARTING. Without sacrifice of power, Atlantic Gasoline contains just enough of the lighter or more volatile elements needed to let the spark take hold at low temperatures—when the motor is cold.

Do you buy this or that motor fuel because of some lone outstanding feature claimed for it? . . . And in doing so, do you forget or underestimate the importance of the other qualities needed for its many-sided job?

"One-armed" motor fuels are numerous. It is easy to develop any one quality at the sacrifice of others. . . . But it is quite another matter to develop all of them to a high degree.

High all-round efficiency is an accomplished fact in the new-type Atlantic Gasoline. It is smooth-acting. The extra power in it is pronounced. . . . Yet Atlantic is amazingly easy-starting—marvelously quick on pick-up—and so unbelievably clean-burning that carbon and valve-pitting are ancient history.

EXTRA POWER. By bringing more of the higher power-producing elements of petroleum into the form that enables modern motors to utilize them fully, a pronounced degree of extra power has been developed in Atlantic Gasoline.

QUICK PICK-UP. Easy ignition, through a scientifically balanced "chain of boiling points" makes Atlantic instantly responsive to the command of the throttle.

READY OBTAINABILITY. No matter how good a motor fuel may be, it is of little use to you unless you can get it when you want it. Atlantic is always nearby.

Helge Pearson and Wesley Warwick resumed their duties at Camp Pioneer this week.

The final Court of Honor until September will be held tonight at the school street Rec at 7:30 o'clock. Scouts should remember that they may pass nine merit badges at the September Court of Honor.

Troops should not disband for the summer even though only a few Scouts attend the meeting. It's a lot harder to resume after a whole summer's layoff.

Camp Pioneer opens tomorrow. For those who are planning to go there sometime this summer, the following will be of value:

Camp Pioneer
Camp Periods—Camp will open this year on Saturday, June 29th, and close Saturday, August 24th. Scouts should plan to arrive at camp if possible by three P. M. and not before noon. See application card for periods.

Camp Aims—Camp Pioneer is the training camp for Boy Scouts in Hartford Council and provides opportunities for boys to give expression, as far as possible, to their ideas and ambitions, with a minimum amount of interference on the part of adults. We provide the facilities and endeavor to have the boy work out his own problems and thus develop initiative and originality. Adequate rules and regulations for the safety of the boys in Camp are rigidly enforced, but within reasonable limits a boy is permitted to express himself in unhampered action. Wholesome fun, the ability to live with other boys, to advance reasonably in Scoutcraft, to learn more about Nature, to love the great outdoors, to get the joy and pleasure of recreation in the open, to learn how to take care of himself on hikes and overnight camps, to become handy with tools and know woodcraft and campcraft and to guide his life by the principles of the Scout Oath and Law are the ideals for which we strive.

Sanitation and health of the Camp is carefully supervised by a resident camp doctor who is a student in the Medical Department of Yale University. Daily inspections are made of camp and of the boys. The State Board of Health examines the drinking and swimming water and the sanitary arrangements at Camp each summer.

Safety at camp receives first consideration. Adequate rules are rigidly enforced governing swimming, boating, canoeing and other activities where hazards might be present. Boys are not allowed to use boats or canoes until they pass an examination. The Buddy System and a Checking System are used for the boys in swimming during which time they are carefully supervised by Red Cross Life Savers. All water activities are scheduled and schedule enforced. In cases of serious illness we communicate with the parent whenever possible and call in a nearby doctor. We expect the parents to pay for any outside medical attention.

Overnight Camping on a Hike—Food is ample and wholesome and of good variety. Menus are supervised by the Camp doctor. We make it a practice to provide one quart of milk per day for each boy. Fresh fruit and vegetables are used when possible.

Equipment—Our Camp is amply provided with buildings, boats, canoes and other accessories. We have a good tennis court, baseball field, large recreation hall and it is hoped that several other buildings will be added this summer.

Telephone and Mail—We have a camp telephone for business and emergency only. We ask parents not to call their boys unless it is absolutely necessary and boys are not allowed to call their homes unless in an emergency. Some boys get homesick when talking with their parents on the telephone. Telephone is in Winsted exchange. Address mail to Scout (John Smith) Camp Pioneer, Winsted, Conn. When writing please try to avoid subjects and expressions that might cause homesickness.

How to Reach Camp—By auto from Hartford: Out Albany Ave.

due, through Avon, Canton, New Hartford to Winsted. Turn left at first beacon, go south about two miles on Torrington road, left at blind corner marked by Camp Pioneer sign, cross railroad tracks, turn left at fork and next right at tree with many signs, including Camp Pioneer, up long hill to Camp Pioneer entrance on left and marked distance about 31 miles from Hartford.

By New England Transportation Bus: Leave railroad station (Hartford) for Winsted. Transfer at Winsted to bus for Torrington and get off near Herman's crossing. Hike about two miles to Camp Pioneer, following the signs. Bus fare $1.25 to Winsted, 15 cents to Herman's crossing.

What to Take—Scout uniform of shorts, shirt, stockings, hat. (If in Sea Scout Unit, take sailor uniform. See Headquarters for details.) Two pairs of shoes—tennis and leather. Extra stockings, bathing suit, toilet articles—soap, comb, toothbrush and paste, bath towels, mirror, pajamas, handkerchiefs, test advancement card, three heavy blankets, sweater or sweat shirt and Doctor's health certificate. Health examination by family physician must be made within one week before the date scout enters camp.

Desirable but not required: Scout axe, scout knife, camera and films, thread, buttons, needles, safety pins, Bible, musical instruments, costumes for special parties and stunts, small pillow, tennis racket and balls, baseball glove, fishing tackle, flashlight, raincoat or poncho, knapsack and cash for candy. At 8 o'clock the troop went to the Center church and discussed troop items. The meeting ended at 8:45 o'clock.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Friday, June 28.

“Mosquito,” a famous Russian folk-song, will be the feature of the program of Russian music to be broadcast by WOR and the Columbia stations at 10 o'clock Friday night. This composition is a satirical song created by the Cossacks about Catherine the Great and Graf Potemkin. It was Catherine who abolished the independence of Ukraine, and scattered the Cossack bands all over Russia, and the foiling against her is clearly seen in this song which represents Catherine as a fly and Potemkin as a mosquito.

OFFER BIG PROGRAMS AT SANDY BEACH BAL

The future of any community musically is reflected by the interest music commands at home and that is the reason many of the towns within a radius of ten miles of Rockville are so largely represented at Sandy Beach whenever music is announced and that is often. Never in the history of Tolland County has there ever been anything so musically perfect as these bands like Mal Hallett's, McEnelly's, Perley Stevens, The Commanders, Dick Newcomb's, Marc Barthello's scheduled for July 3rd and 4th, the sensation of Massachusetts; Bill "Asillo's, Governor's Foot Guard Orchestra of 12 pieces, Ferdinando and his orchestra of 15 pieces and others equally as high classed.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening there will be a continuous program at Sandy Beach Park and ballroom starting with the grand opening of the giant water slide that is now complete and ready for the opening tomorrow when a record crowd will visit Sandy Beach to try the big thrill. In the evening there will be provided when the Commanders featuring Danny Haig and Bill Smith formerly of Paul Whiteman's orchestra, bring their 12 piece sensational orchestra to Sandy Beach Ballroom. Dance lovers will not only be privileged to dance to this perfect band and hear Danny Sullivan sing and The Commanders do their hokum but there will also be a prize waltz for a purse of gold.

With such a program offered for the pleasurable enjoyment of the public it is not difficult to choose the place to spend Saturday afternoon and evening and to plan where to get a real thrill July 3rd and 4th and hear the finest dance bands in Massachusetts with 12 musicians, singers and comedians. Giant flood lights are to be installed very soon at Sandy Beach for night dancing and to afford bathers an opportunity to ride on the giant Seltzer water slide after dark.

Tomorrow's program at Sandy Beach offers three big feature thrills and if you miss hearing the Commanders, probably the most sensational dance band in the state, you will miss a treat.

GIANT WATER SLIDE AT SANDY BEACH

The Giant water slide completed this week at Sandy Beach will be opened to the public Saturday and the tests that have been made of the thriller have more than equalled expectations. The slide is sure to prove immensely popular with the bathing public.

The Giant will be lighted with a series of electric lights on both sides and with a large flood light that is to be installed before the end of the week. Additional flood lights are about to be installed at the beach—and when completed night bathing will be introduced. The beach and lake for 200 feet will be lighted with these giant floodlights, the largest and most modern in the country, identical type of floods used at all the principal bathing beaches of prominence.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening there will be plenty of interesting features at Sandy Beach including the double feature at the ballroom in the evening with the crack Commanders of 12 pieces and a grand prize waltz for a purse of gold. The Commanders will put on the finest dance program including specialties of the year.

THEN THEY CLINCHED

They were talking about modern music and dancing. "I don't like dancing to jazz," said the girl. "It's nothing but hugging set to music."

"Well," asked the man, "what is there about that to which you object?"

"The music," she said.—Tit-Bits.

MAY SETTLE LAW SUIT OUTSIDE OF THE COURT

New Haven, June 28.—Judge Edwin S. Thomas, of United States District Court, filed a memorandum here today in which he suggests that counsel for the Petrie Transportation Co., Inc. of New York, and Maher Brothers Corporation, of Greenwich, get together and decide the amount of damages Maher Brothers should pay the transportation company for damage received by the scow E. R. Petrie, when anchored near the Maher dock in Greenwich on November 3, 1927. If they cannot agree, Judge Thomas announced he would name Philip Reich, of Bridgeport, to take testimony and so decide the amount.

The Petrie company contended that its scow was badly damaged when it went aground in Greenwich because of the rough condition of the harbor bed. Judge Thomas found, through depositions, that the harbor bed was indeed bad and that the Maher company had failed to post warning signs on its wharf to announce the fact. Hence he decided the Greenwich concern was liable for the damage. The repairs to the scow amounted to $329 and the judge believes it should be easy for the two sides to agree how much more ought to be added to this to reimburse the Petrie company, all to be paid with six per cent interest from November 27, 1927.

CAPT. HAWKS STARTS BACK TO NEW YORK

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, June 28.—Aiming to smash his own trans-continental non-stop flight record, Captain Frank Hawks took off at 3:37 a. m. here today, pointing his slim Lockheed monoplane Texaco toward Roosevelt Field, Long Island, his destination.

Before entering the cabin of his plane, Captain Hawks said he hoped to accomplish the coast-to-coast air journey in about 15 hours.

The record he now holds is 18 hours and 23 minutes for a flight between Los Angeles and New York.

Captain Hawks' departure occurred more than 7 hours after he had arrived from Roosevelt Field in 19 hours, 10 minutes and 23 seconds, almost five hours better than the time established by the late C. B. D. Collyer and the late Harry Tucker on an east to west coast country flight.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT FAILS.

A THOUGHT

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Falling Hair
Question—R. H. J. writes: "I have been told that falling hair is caused by thyroid gland trouble. Is this correct?"
Answer—There is, no doubt, a close relationship between the growth of hair and the function of the thyroid gland. Those who have an insufficiency of the thyroid secretion usually become fat and have a poor growth of hair, while the thin person is usually of the hyperthyroid type and has plenty of strong hair.

Gums Causing Trouble
Question—R. J. H. writes: "I would like to know through your column something about the care of the gums. In two or three places in my mouth where the gums extend downward there is a noticeable redness, and when brushing them and often during the day, for that matter, they bleed quite a bit. Is there anything that will remedy this condition?"
Answer—Cut down your stomach acidity by living on the right diet and have your dentist treat your teeth and gums. You are doubtless suffering from pyorrhea or alveolar absorption, and need both local and constitutional treatment.

The Lunch Box Problem
Question—Housewife writes: "My husband does hard manual labor and must carry his lunch to work. Will you be good enough to tell me some suitable combinations through this column, as I know there are others who need this same advice."
Answer—If you can procure the genuine wholewheat bread, make sandwiches of it with fresh butter or peanut butter and lettuce. Provide him with a thermos bottle in which he may carry any of the following cooked vegetables: Spinach, stringbeans, asparagus, summer squash, egg plant, small carrots or beets, etc. Add one or two of the salad vegetables, such as celery or cucumbers wrapped in a damp cloth, and you have a lunch both appetizing and healthful. Send for my special article on packing lunches; it will offer other suggestions.

What Kind of Mattress?
Question—Mrs. F. W. writes: "I would like your opinion of the materials used in mattresses. What would you advise—felt, cotton, or silk floss?"
Answer—It does not matter of what material the mattress is made as long as it is soft and comfortable, yielding readily to the pressure of the body.

World circling mileage World beating quality

The simple statement that this tire assures every owner of complete immunity from major tire troubles and expense for at least 30,000 miles is ample proof of its superlative quality.

It is purposely a tire of supreme quality. The manufacturers use only the finest materials obtainable in it. By every standard of measurement it is in our opinion the Finest Tire Ever Built!

In size it is so much larger than ordinary tires we recommend its use only in pairs, never singly. Its tread, extra thick, with extra deep cut non-skid blocks is a design acknowledged to be one of the most attractive ever produced. It will appeal especially to the man who prides himself on owning equipment "as fine as money can buy."

The guarantee behind Super-Quality Riversides is absolutely unconditional. It is a lifetime guarantee against defects of material and workmanship. In addition, it covers all kinds of wear and all kinds of damage, including rim cut, blow out, stone bruises, rut wear and curb damage—for 30,000 miles. FANATICS AND THE SCHOOLS

We have had no fear that propaganda for the 18th amendment would ever reach the point of general distribution in the public schools of the country. Schools are under state supervision. School committees and school boards are too jealous of their rights to permit such fanaticism, at least as a general thing. It would be legitimate for Washington to supply printed material on any subject to such schools as applied for it through the proper school authorities. The trouble with the sort of propaganda that Miss Anna Sutter, educational director of the Prohibition Bureau, had planned to distribute through school teachers to the pupils under their charge is that it presents only one side. That is true of all school material furnished by fanatics. It is true of much of the history taught in the public schools. Written by enthusiasts, frequently without proper research, they wrote primarily for the glorification of the American cause. Our children grow up with the belief that nothing the Colonists and later governments of the United States ever did by any possibility was not for four square, upright, honest and based only upon the principles of right and justice for all.

So it is with the propaganda Miss Sutter had intended to disseminate through teachers to the public school children of the United States. It has one purpose and one only: the teaching of Volsteadism, not temperance. Teaching temperance is another matter. That, properly presented, would be beneficial. No objection of a general character would be offered. But that was not the purpose of the prohibition department in preparing to expend the $50,000 appropriated by Congress for "dissemination of facts." Such facts as were to have been disseminated were to have been confined entirely to showing that Volsteadism, and Volsteadism only, is the solution of the temperance problem. Nothing was to have been intimated of the harmful side of the eighteenth amendment.

But Commissioner Doran at the last moment, as Miss Sutter was ready to board a train for Atlanta with her bundles of pamphlets to distribute to the teachers at the National Educational Association meeting, decided to "revise them" before permitting their general circulation. Miss Sutter's "Hints to Teachers" undoubtedly are pleasing to some of the fanatical dry organizations but others, who earnestly seek temperance, have failed to enthuse over their all too apparent radicalism. Among other things they suggested that arithmetic, civics, English, practically every study, should be based upon prohibition "problems." We admit that there is room for modernism in some of the arithmetic problems we saw in an arithmetic in use not so long ago where coal was $5 a ton. But we maintain that even that now forgotten day and price is preferable as an example to some that might be used with bootleg liquor as the basis of the example. And were high school pupils to seek interviews, even from parents, as the basis for essays on prohibition, we can conceive where the results would be anything but those desired by the fanatics—or any one else for that matter. Propaganda of any kind is poor stuff for public schools.

KEEPING FAITH

As a smasher of precedents Ambassador Charles G. Dawes continues the pace he set as Mr. Dawes, as General Dawes and as Vice-President Dawes. He has had the knack in the past of "making 'em like it." So far as is apparent yet he retains that knack even after violating the tradition, once before broken by William Howard Taft, that appearance at a court reception must be in knee breeches. He was the only civilian present in conventional evening clothes. In consequence he was conspicuous, at least among those of the male gender. We can imagine, back in Queen Victoria's time, that even Ambassador Dawes would have done considerable heavy thinking before venturing to affront such a royal mandate. He did have permission of the Court Chamberlain and such permission was granted, undoubtedly, because of, among

OVERCOMING APATHY

A moment's thought will convince anyone that Fire Chief James T. Delaney of Bridgeport is correct when he says that the weakest link in fire control is the indifference of the average citizen. He does not pay enough attention, said the chief in addressing the convention of fire fighters in session at New Haven, to know where the nearest fire alarm box is to his place of business about which he should have concern, or to his home, in which lives all that he holds most dear. A fire department cannot function until it knows there is a fire and, more important still, knows where it is. Delay in sounding an alarm naturally increases not only the work of the department, but the loss to property owners and insurance companies. Chief Delaney advocated educational courses in every community to teach citizens how to assist fire departments.

There is nothing new about this latter idea. More than thirty years ago in a Massachusetts city the superintendent of fire alarm once a week advertised that he would be at a certain fire alarm box at a specified time to demonstrate to residents of the neighborhood how to sound an alarm. He was always assured of the presence of children in numbers and some adults. One thing was certain: the children of the neighborhood knew the location of the box and the method of sounding an alarm. So did some of the older persons. Children have no difficulty in remembering what they have seen and heard at such a demonstration. They grow up and retain that knowledge. Something has been gained. Such demonstrations could be made general and be of real benefit to fire departments and property owners alike.

PROMPT ACTION

Seemingly there could have been no other verdict by the three judges who sat in the case of Frank Di Battista in Hartford than that of conviction on a charge of first degree murder. He had confessed to the police soon after his arrest in April that he had fired the shot that resulted fatally but he insisted that the weapon was discharged accidentally. The judges returned their verdict forty minutes after they took the case under advisement. He was sentenced to die August 15. It is not the speed of the trial, which was simplified by the confession, or the decision of the court that calls for comment. It is the fact that in this case at least we have shown commendable promptitude here in Connecticut in bringing to a conclusion a murder case. Usually, the country over, there are too many delays.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington—Here's a perfect gem from the Congressional Record. It's not a fair sample of senate debate, but it shows what happens sometimes. Senator Caraway of Arkansas had several times interrupted Norris of Nebraska as the latter argued in favor of putting census takers under civil service instead of letting the jobs become political plums.

Mr. Norris: Yes.

Mr. Caraway: Is it the senator's idea that no one, simply because he is a member of Congress, can be honest and can be trusted?

Mr. Norris: No. I have not said anything of that kind, and I have not said anything from which any reasonable man can draw such a conclusion as that.

Mr. Caraway: Well, what does the senator mean when he says—

Mr. Norris: That is the argument which has been made from the beginning of the civil service.

Mr. Caraway: Oh, it is not.

Mr. Norris: The argument which the senator from Arkansas is making now is the one which has always been made against the civil service.

Mr. Caraway: Well, I know that happens not to be true; it is not an argument against civil service. I am just asking the senator a question.

Mr. Norris: That question is an argument against civil service.

Mr. Caraway: It is no argument against civil service.

Mr. Norris: The senator ought not to make it.

Mr. Caraway: I am not making it. I am only asking a question.

Mr. Norris: If the senator is not making an argument against civil service then do not ask it.

Mr. Caraway: Let me ask the senator—

Mr. Norris: Cannot the senator wait until I answer one question before he propounds another?

Mr. Caraway: I do not think I will live long enough for that.

Mr. Norris: Perhaps the senator will not; he need not wait that long.

Mr. Caraway: I do not have to wait.

Mr. Norris: It does not make any difference to me. If the senator does not want to wait, that is his business.

Mr. Caraway: The senator thinks he owns the Senate.

Mr. Norris: No. I do not think I own the Senate. That is another statement the senator is absolutely unjustified in making. Have I not a right here to oppose a provision in the bill because I think it is wrong?

Mr. Caraway: May I ask the senator a question?

Mr. Norris: Yes.

Mr. Caraway: What is there about it that the senator should become so angry, when I was merely trying to ask him a question?

Mr. Norris: The senator from Arkansas—

Mr. Caraway: Now—

Mr. Norris: Will the senator allow me to answer that question?

Mr. Caraway: I suppose I will stop for the rest of the afternoon.

Mr. Norris: Perhaps the senator will. It might be well if he would stop here and wait and listen a little while. It might be well for him. He might get some information perhaps that would be valuable for him.

Mr. Caraway: I have listened for a good while and have not obtained any information as yet.

Mr. Norris: The trouble is the senator does not listen.

Mr. Caraway: Oh, yes, I do.

Mr. Norris: He gets into the debate when there is no call for it.

Mr. Caraway: I have been listening for eight years.

Mr. Norris: Now let us get to the senator's question. He has interrupted me so many times since the question was asked that I have forgotten what it was.

Mr. Caraway: I knew the senator had and I tried to set him right.

Mr. Norris: Why does the senator say I got so angry about it?

Mr. Caraway: Because—

Mr. Norris: Now, I remember what the question was. Let the senator keep still while I answer it. Let me answer it. The senator has asked it of me.

Mr. Caraway: I know, but I do not expect any candid answer.

Mr. Norris: If the senator will

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

BATTLE OF MONMOUTH

One hundred and fifty-one years ago today, June 28, 1778, the British were defeated in the Revolutionary War battle of Monmouth by Americans under George Washington.

The English army, under Sir Henry Clinton, had evacuated Philadelphia and reached Freehold, Monmouth county, N. J., June 28, Washington, following closely, resolved to attack Clinton's left wing, 8000 strong, marching in the rear and detailed General Charles Lee with 6000 troops to assail its flank until the main division could come up.

Lee advanced accordingly, but instead of attacking, intentionally wasted time in feinting and futile maneuvers, and, after a little skirmishing, ordered a general retreat.

Rushing forward, Washington rebuked Lee, rallied the demoralized forces and checked the advance of the British.

The English then fell back and took up a strong position, but were forced to withdraw to the heights of Middletown.

The Americans lost 362 in killed, wounded and missing and the British 416.

Lee was shortly afterward tried by court-martial for his conduct, was found guilty of disobeying orders and of making a shameful retreat. He was suspended from command for a year.

The king has been at his occupation of hoboeing for nine years and has traveled a distance of 382,500 miles. He was elected to office at a convention in Minneapolis in 1927.

AND ALL GOOD?

To keep American automobiles in running condition, 300,000 mechanics are employed in garages and service establishments in this country, the American Automobile Association says.

keep still I will answer it; I am going to answer it. The truth is that the senator is entirely wrong when he assumes I am angry.

Mr. Caraway: The senator does not make that kind of a face when he is in good humor, does he? (Laughter.)

Mr. Norris: The senator has looked at so many bad faces that he does not know a good one when he sees it. (Laughter.)

Mr. Caraway: I will not admit that.

Mr. Norris: Mr. President, if there is one thing I cannot do after my long association here, it is to get angry at the senator from Arkansas.

Mr. Caraway: Then do not look at me in that tone of voice.

Mr. Norris: I have, however, seen him go wrong occasionally.

Mr. Caraway: Yes, when following the senator from Nebraska.

Mr. Norris: And cannot follow him when he goes wrong.

Mr. Caraway: That is where I differ from the senator. I follow him when he goes wrong; I could not follow him otherwise.

Mr. Norris: The senator would do better if he would follow me when I am right.

Mr. Caraway: I have never found the senator to be that way.

The Presiding Officer (Mr. Dale in the chair): The senator from Nebraska has the floor. Senators desiring to interrupt must address the chair.

Mr. Heffin: Mr. President, does the senator yield to me?

(Anyone who wants any more of this can read it in the Record. All concerned were perfectly sober.)

GOING PLACES AND SEEING THINGS

Aboard the Packet Boat, Betsy Ann, Somewhere on the Ohio River—It is a tremendous dive from Broadway into the Ohio river. And the transition of a subway sardine into a passenger aboard quality in the physical appearance of places which belie this sportive flavor by springing into life the moment the landing plank is lowered. It gives one the pleasant sensation of participating in a legend.

The illusion can be broken by contact with the mill towns that spread away from Pittsburgh and can be caught up again by a peace which seems to settle over miles of settlements.

The river is a terribly personal thing to the dweller along its banks. So are the agencies of communication—the river boats. These are in the very blood of the river folk. For "Ol' Man River" has been rolling along before the eyes of many generations.

And the stern-wheeled packet and anticipate the tomorrow. They are a brief and casual visit from an old, old friend.

When they pass, the children run down to the river bank and shout and wave and caper, as their sires did before them and as their children will. The people of the river are not much for change.

To give you an idea of this personal element—Within the past half dozen years, as many children have been named after the Betsy Ann. This was because the packet boat happened to be whistling into dock when the child came into the world. Such a happy harbinger becomes, of course, part of the folk lore and legend of a community. Did not the good boat whistle when little Nellie was born?

So little Nellie and her playmates seldom miss a packet's passing. The old packet is a tale or legend. The whistle toots here and the whistle toots there. Now it is a message to a wife waiting on the bank; now it is a greeting established by tradition; and again it is to give notice to the shore folk that the boat is coming and if they want it to stop they'll have to wave a signal.

A few months ago something went wrong with the whistle. A new one was put on. Within a few weeks, from up and down the river came letters and verbal eulogues to Frederick Way, Jr., young owner of the Betsy Ann. How dared he? The old timers of the river, who knew the old whistle as they knew their mother's voice, didn't know the new whistle. They had been fed completely astray. How were they to know when the packet boat was coming?

TWO AVIATORS KILLED.
South Bend, Ind., June 28.—Pilot Reid Sellers of Walkertown, N. D., and J. E. Parrish of Peoria, Ill., were instantly killed here today when their plane crashed from a height of 2,000 feet.

A New York pastor says the middle class is not drinking. Maybe that's why they manage to keep to the middle of the road.

BEN'S BIRTHDAY.

London. — Everyone probably knows of London's "Big Ben," the clock whose chimes are broadcast all over the world by radio. It has just celebrated its seventieth birthday, and is practically as good as new. The works are in perfect condition and the only sign of a run-down condition is its cracked bell, which developed at the very beginning of the clock's career.

NASH '400'

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

This is the Sedan you will buy, if you Compare in the $900 Field

WE will not need to urge you to buy the Nash "400" Standard Six Sedan if you only compare it to other Sedans in the $900 field.

First of all, it is a Nash, built in the traditional Nash manner, with precision workmanship in every part.

And second, it is a Nash "400", and that means something in today's line-up of motor cars.

It means more powerful, more durable, more enjoyable motor performance. The engine in this sedan is a new high compression type with 7 bearings instead of 3 or 4, with aluminum alloy (Invar strut) pistons instead of cast iron pistons, and with full pressure lubrication to every single bearing point. Even the connecting rods in this Nash engine are rifle drilled, to supply oil under pressure up to the wrist pin bearings.

Other "400" features which this car brings to you are the world's easiest steering—a luxury and refinement of interior decoration far beyond expectation at its price—size and capacity for five full grown passengers—riding ease attained by alloy steel springs individually designed for its size and weight, plus outboard mounted, Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers.

And finally, no extra charge for bumpers, front and rear, Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, spare tire lock and tire cover. There's nothing except a spare tire to buy—none of these other items, customarily charged for as "extras" at retail prices, to pay for, when you buy the Nash "400"!

Price Range (f. o. b. factory) of 23 Nash "400" Models, $885 to $2190 including Towing. Roadster, Coupe, Cabriolet, Victoria and Sedan Models

AT THE STATE
"Voice of the City"
Vitaphone Vodvil

"The Voice of the City." Willard Mack's talking picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is the feature attraction at the State theater for today and tomorrow.

This thrilling and fast-moving drama of the underworld of a big city, is packed to the final reel with romance and suspense. It is the type of a picture that will appeal to everyone. The stirring dialogue sequences are among the best that have thus far been recorded for the screen.

"The Voice of the City" has a most unusual factor about it. That is, it presents Willard Mack in a triple-talented manner. He not only wrote the story, but he directed the film and plays the principal part.

Supporting Mr. Mack in this picture are such well known players as Robert Ames, Sylvia Fields, John Miljan and Duane Thompson.

The inimitable Bobby Falsoim, popular stage comedienne, and the "Plantation Trio," a well known group of songsters, are seen and heard in two Vitaphone presentations. These two acts, together with the current episode of "The Mystery Rider" and the State News Events will round out the program.

On Sunday evening the State will present Billie Dove in her first talking picture, "Careers."

You Can Buy
Graham-Paige Quality

at $855
at factory

MANY people are surprised to learn that Graham-Paige quality can be purchased for as little as $855, at factory.

The 612, with prices beginning at this figure, is a large, powerful automobile.

When you lift the hood, you see a big engine—delivering 62 horsepower, with smooth operation assured by good balance. A seven-bearing crankshaft (2½ inches in diameter) is supported by a rigid motor block. Water jackets extend clear to the bottom of every cylinder, giving complete and uniform cooling for dependable performance and long life.

The internal expanding hydraulic brakes, protected from dirt and water, are larger than usual in a car at this price. Brake drums are machined absolutely true, insuring contact for the full surface of the brake shoes on all four wheels. This means less need for adjustments and relining, and greater security through more efficient braking.

The emergency brake is entirely separate, giving the protection—which we believe essential—of two independent braking systems.

All through the 612, you will find extra size, weight and strength. Every one of its 3,125 pounds contributes directly to better performance and increased comfort and safety of its passengers.

The bodies are roomy and beautifully finished. Upholstery is genuine mohair, with a guarantee of long wear attached to every cushion.

Study the 612 and get a demonstration before you select your next car.

MENTAL COMPLEXES

The science and art of psychoanalysis has given us an insight into many peculiar activities of the mind. On every hand you hear the word "complex" bandied about. There are both the inferiority and superiority complexes, the sexual complex and a dozen others which you hear discussed.

One of the greatest truths brought out by the psychoanalyst is that past events which should have had an unimportant meaning are given undue present power through the magnifying ability of the imagination and the multiplying strength of exaggeration. A "complex" is thus built as the seed of an idea in the memory mind, and seems to collect around it all of the materials for its growth, that is, other ideas of a similar nature and those possible of association seem to gather together, making a complex of associated ideas. The trouble is such a complex is often a destructive one. A simple sexual incident of childhood may become a devouring monster in later life because the neurotic patient unconsciously gathers together all of the ugly and unwholesome ideas around this subject.

A child, criticised for his failure in school, may build up a destructive complex of failure lasting all through his life. He may learn to think more of failure than success—to actually scan the newspapers for stories of failures, to find excuses for his own anticipated failures, and thus spend all of his life making excuses—instead of making good. The psychoanalyst and the psychologist can be of great help to such neurotic individuals by helping them to uncover the complex. This is done by simply helping the patient to unravel the tangled skein of destructive ideas and understand each thing for its true worth. The greatest difficulty in doing this is that the patient is usually unaware that the complex has been developed through his own imagination and exaggeration. To be bluntly told this fact will often defeat the object of the well meaning friend or of the psychologist.

The one who honestly wishes to get rid of destructive mental complexes should learn to earnestly study over all the events of his past life and view each happening in its true importance, as viewed in the light of more mature understanding. He must, figuratively, lay all his cards on the table and not be surprised at what he finds. All experiences must be honestly judged at their true worth. He must learn to balance his thinking and emotive life so that he will no longer suffer from an undue exaggeration of some idea.

Many psychologists are publishing books today which are of great help to the patient who earnestly wishes for the proper mental and emotional balance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Eggnogs
Question—T. H. asks: "Are eggnogs good for a working man who is underweight, and if so, when is the best time to take them?"

Answer—Eggnogs, being made of raw eggs and milk, are always a bad combination. One should never take such food in an effort to gain weight, as more trouble will only develop from such a stuffing process with foods in bad combination.

Removing Baby's Birthmark!

Question—Mrs. M. F. B. writes: "My baby, four months old, has a large red birthmark on the end of his nose. Is it safe to have it removed now, and what method would you advise?"

Answer—It would probably be advisable for you to have the baby's birthmark removed while he is still young, as the scar will not be so large when he grows older. Various methods are used such as electricity, carbon dioxide snow, and acids. The first two methods are usually more easily controlled.

Can't Retain Cold Drink

Question—Mrs. T. H. writes: "When my mother takes a drink of anything cold it comes right up, even before it seems to reach the stomach. Hot drinks stay down. What causes this? She is 81 year old."

Answer—Your mother may have inflammation of the stomach, an the cold water and sensitive lining causes the stomach to contract. The best method of getting rid of the inflammation is to follow a milk diet for a time and then a well balanced diet.

Sweating Hands

Question—J. L. K. writes: "I have been troubled with my hands sweating. Will you please publish a cure for this?"

Answer—Excessive sweating of the hands is generally a sign of some nervous disorder. If you will search out the cause of your trouble you will no doubt find that your nervousness originates from dietetic errors and lack of exercise. If you will get up a good sweat every day this will help materially in throwing out irritating impurities which may be causing your nervousness.

QUINN'S

RIVAL WIVES by Anne Austin Author of The Black Pigeon

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Because she is in love with her employer, JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, successful lawyer, NAN CARROLL, secretary, decides to resign. She lingers however when she learns Morgan is to be divorced by Crawford...

Nan saves Morgan from despair by forcing him more deeply into his work. For six months she acts as long-distance housekeeper for him, winning the love of little CURTIS, his son, and bringing comfort to a man who ironically thinks only of another.

Morgan finally stutters a proposal, and after a quiet wedding, they are prevented from going on their honeymoon by the unexpected arrival of a pleading client. Nan urges Morgan to stay with the case.

For three months their farcical marriage continues. Nan is on the verge of despair. She decides to leave but Morgan finds her packing. He confesses he adores her but has believed she married him out of pity...

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVII NAN CURTIS MORGAN was not one of those women who thrive on drama. She had never lost her little-girl horror and sick distaste of scenes.

Her own well-bred home had been singularly free of open discord, but once, inadvertently, when she was a child, she had overheard her mother and father quarrelling bitterly. For days her ashamed eyes had avoided them, fearful of seeing those two who idolized in that dreadful state of soul-hkness in which their quarrel had stripped them.

Now, her hand on the knob of the door beyond which an unpeppery, shameful scene was being enacted, every drop of blood in her face which the girl possessed had to be desperately summoned before she could force herself to go on.

A wave of nausea swept over her. If she had had only herself to consider she would still have done as Estelle had feared to do—she would have fled the house, leaving Iris in possession. But, as always, John Curtis Morgan came first. What was it he had said last night?—"I was a slave in bondage. Count she, whom he had loved as his dearest, ever, consist him to slavery again? He had said, too, 'I hope I shall never see Iris again.' Well, now that he had seen her again. . . . But he had sent Estelle to find her. He needed her. She had never failed him yet.

Nan's icy fingers turned the knob slowly, noiselessly, though with no intention of muting her entrance. She forced her eyes to take in every detail of the tableau before her. Iris, pale as a ghost, stood in the doorway, her pale face stern and forbidding, but such agony in his deep-set black eyes that Nan could have screamed. Swaying against his stiff body, her hands locked behind his rigidly unbending neck, was an Iris Morgan such as Nan, in her most uncontrolled flights of imagination, could not have pictured.

The divorced wife had torn off her hat and thrown aside her fur coat—the same mink coat in which she had gone away to John Bert Crawford. The glorious red-gold hair was in wild disorder, the thick knot on her neck almost shaken free by the violence of her emotion.

Before Nan became aware of the words Iris was pouring out upon her former husband her eyes took in, with curious detachment, the fact that Iris normally slender body had become painfully thin. But somehow, subtly, her beauty had fed upon the wasting of her body. Undoubtedly Iris had suffered, and as a result was far lovelier than ever. Even her voice had a new quality, a throbbing sincerity in what had formerly been an artificial, beautifully modulated ripple of music. Gradually her words beat into Nan's still half-dazed brain:

"It can't be true, Jack! You've said these horrible things to punish me. I'm punished! See! I'm crying, Jack! Now put your arms about me. Kiss me! Hold me so tight I can never leave you again! And then tell me—tell me! With her hands straining at the neck she tried frantically to shake the rigid figure—"Tell me you were lying—that you haven't divorced me and married that girl!" Over the wild disorder of red-gold curls Morgan's harassed eyes caught sight of the small, erect figure of his new wife, waiting before the door she had closed softly behind her. Nan's wide brown eyes met his steadily, unflinchingly, without question or reproach. As if their aloof gravity had a magic power over him, the man suddenly raised his hands and tore apart the locked fingers of the woman who was no longer his wife. "Stop, Iris!" his hoarse voice commanded sternly. "I can't have you humiliate yourself and me like this. I've told you the truth. I'm sorry you had to learn the truth in this way. If you had written before returning I could have warned you—all this—" "So I should have written, should I?" Iris panted, stepping back from him and rubbing the delicate wrists which his repudiating hands had bruised. "As your wife, I had a right to return without warning if I pleased. And I am your wife! Do you think for a minute that I'll let you cast me off like this?" "It was not I who cast you off, Iris," he reminded her sternly. "You dissolved our marriage by deserting me. I merely made the divorce legal."

"Legal?" Iris shrieked. "When I had no chance to consent. It was your lawyer, Jack Morgan! And I'm a lawyer's wife still! I'll fight you through every court in the land."

"Iris, please!" Morgan interrupted sternly, but with a betraying tone of pity in his voice. "I'm more sorry than I can say that you could not be reached before the suit was filed, but I give you my word that it is perfectly legal and that Nan is my lawful wife."

"Nan? Nan?" Iris cried, her voice rising on hysterical laughter. "Nan! Oh, ah! What started as laughter rose and rose until it was a nerve-shattering scream. Then, abruptly, when Nan felt that human ears could no longer endure the agony of that dreadful assault, the sound broke off. Iris' clenched hands, which had been flung above her head, dropped suddenly, wavered. Then, before either Nan or her husband could move to give her help, the tall, fragile body crumpled, fell in a heap at John Curtis Morgan's feet."

"Nan! She's fainted!" Morgan called hoarsely, as he dropped to his knees. "Brandy—quick! The sideboard! I'll carry her into the living room."

Nan was too sick and dazed to obey quickly, but somehow she managed to get to the sideboard, spilled some into a glass, caught up from the breakfast table her own untouched glass of water, ran with them perkily, on icy feet. But just on the threshold of the living room she halted involuntarily. Her husband had laid the unconscious body of his former wife upon the big couch and was kneeling beside her, his head bowed upon her breast, his hands locked over her head in a gesture of such profound despair that Nan's heart cried out in passionate prayer for unconsciousness for herself.

As if that prayer had reached him, instead of the God in which it had been directed, John Curtis Morgan suddenly raised his head and turned it toward the door where Nan stood. In his eyes was no recognition of the girl as his wife, only a wild urgency. "For God's sake, hurry! I'm afraid she's dead—"

Nan stood beside him, watching with that queer grave aloofness which had come upon her, as his shaking hands held the tiny glass of brandy to Iris' pale, open eyes. She did not speak. What could she possibly say that would help him now? But when Iris' bonze lashes began to flutter against her almost transparent white cheeks, Nan quietly moved out of range of Iris' returning vision, took her place at the end of the couch, her grave eyes fixed in an unwinching stare upon her husband's ravaged face.

A white hand rose feebly, wavered, and then fell to rest upon Morgan's black-and-silver head. "Such a horrid dream, Jack," a thread of a voice whispered. "I knew all the time I was dreaming, but I couldn't wake myself up. Dear silly Jack, the little white fingers, rumpled his hair feebly."

With a groan of sheer agony the man dropped his head to her breast again. Nan knew he did not even remember that she was there. The thread-like voice went on: "So tired, Jack—so tired! Poor Iris has been awfully sick. Did you know? So sick! Tried to commit suicide. So sick, Jack! . . . Waked you, didn't she?—the As-headed to come home—but I did I came home—" the thread spun itself gossamer-fine and broke; the eyelids fluttered down over the blue-green eyes.

"Oh, my God! The words were wrung from the man on a sob that shook his body. "Jack! Silly Jack! There was a ghost of a laugh. "Everything's all right. Iris has come back to you. You're glad, aren't you, Jack?" In that horrid dream you told he you'd divorced me and married Nan Carroll. Wasn't that a foolish dream, Jack?"

The long white fingers twined about a lock of the man's hair, tugged at it with feeble playfulness, which suddenly became frantic as his head remained bowed on her breast. "It was just a dream, wasn't it, Jack? Tell me!" Suddenly, though how she knew she could not have told to save her life, Nan was sure that Iris Morgan was shamming, that the fainting spell had been faked. Just as this feebleness of voice and hand, the childlike prattling of a "horrid dream" were faked for the purpose which had been so completely accomplished—of bringing John Curtis Morgan to his knees.

She might have known—she told herself with that queer, aloof calm that had descended upon her—that Iris would fight like this. What other weapon had been left to her? Well—Nan shrugged mentally—it seemed to be a very effective weapon. Odd how little pain she felt; just an absorbed, grave curiosity, as if she were looking upon the melodramatic second act of a drama whose conclusion she could not guess. Her eyes slowly elaborated the metaphor: "A modern problem play entitled RIVAL WIVES, starring Iris Morgan, with a notable cast, including John Curtis Morgan and Nan Carroll Morgan."

She felt the little twist at her lips; wondered "Am I going crazy? Or am I just having what Iris calls a 'horrid dream?'" But if it was a dream her husband's voice—or was he Iris' hand really?—seemed amazingly real. She listened with grave attentiveness.

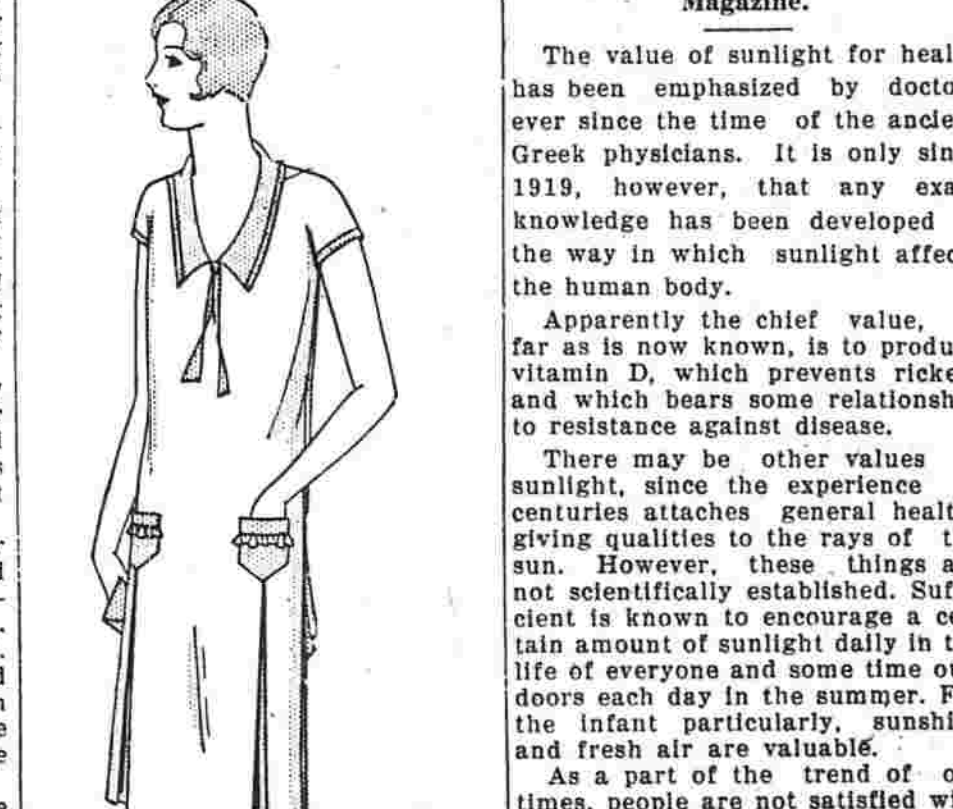

You mustn't talk just now, Iris, he was saying slowly, hoarsely, as if each word was wrung from him. "Close your eyes and try to sleep, darling." He caught himself, remembered Nan, fashed her a look of such piteous appeal that her numb heart stirred, lunged sickeningly.

It was not a play any longer. It was bitter reality and happiness was being snatched out of her lax hands. A loof no longer, Nan was swept into the whirlpool of pain and horror into which Iris' return had plunged her husband. If she did not do something both of them would be lost. Before she realized what she was doing, Nan had fled from the living room, found herself shut into the library, the receiver of the phone pressed hard against her ear, a frantic hand shaking the hook. "Crescent 3400," she gasped into the mouthpiece, and leaned back in her husband's desk chair, shuddering and trembling as she waited for an answer. "Dr. Black, please! . . . Oh, this is Nan Carroll, Dr. Black—I mean Mrs. John Curtis Morgan," she corrected herself. The very speaking of the name acted as a powerful stimulant. The trembling ceased suddenly. "Can you come at once, Doctor? . . . No, no! It is—Mrs. Iris Morgan. . . . Yes! I can't explain now. She's been ill. I want you to come, please, and take her to a hospital. Can you take her in your car? . . . No, she doesn't need an ambulance." That strangled laugh must have startled the doctor. . . . "At once, please, Doctor! Thank you. And will you make her go to the hospital whether she wants to go or not? Oh, hurry!"

It was several minutes before she had sufficient command of herself to dare return to the scene she had fled. Her husband was still on his knees beside his former wife, but now his head was bowed upon his hands, not upon her breast. Iris was speaking, her voice no longer feeble. "Look at me, Jack! . . . Oh, you don't dare look at me and tell me you don't love me. That unpeppery girl has wormed herself into your life, trapped you. I tell you—your marriage isn't legal! I'll make the courts annul it—you belong to me—" "John!" Nan called from the library door. The man dropped his hands, stared at her as if he did not recognize her. "I've called Dr. Black. He's coming right over to take Iris to the hospital. It's getting late, dear. Hadn't you better leave for the courthouse? You're to open the Blackbull case today, you know."

Daily Health Service Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famous Authority

SUMMER SUN IS HEALTHFUL, BUT TOO MUCH OF IT IS DANGEROUS By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The value of sunlight for health has been emphasized by doctors ever since the time of the ancient Greek physicians. It is only since 1919, however, that any exact knowledge has been developed of the way in which sunlight affects the human body. Apparently the chief value, so far as is now known, is to produce vitamin D, which prevents rickets and which bears some relationship to resistance against disease.

There may be other values in sunlight, since the experience of centuries attaches general health-giving qualities to the rays of the sun. However, these things are not scientifically established. Sufficient is known to encourage a certain amount of sunlight daily in the life of everyone and some time outdoors each day in the summer. For the infant particularly, sunshine and fresh air are valuable.

As a part of the trend of our times, people are not satisfied with enough of anything, but having learned that some things have value indulge in them to the point of danger. Too much sunshine may be just as dangerous, indeed more so, as too little. Indeed, it is actually dangerous, than not enough. When the sun becomes too hot, a burden is thrown on the heat regulating mechanism of the body. Some people do not perspire as easily as others. Their skin becomes hot and burning and the failure of fluid to evaporate from the surface of the body results in heat stroke.

When heat stroke occurs, the person affected should be taken into the shade as quickly as possible. When there, the body may be cooled by rubbing it with ice or by exposing it to an electric fan. If the temperature falls too rapidly, the results may be exceedingly serious. Therefore, if the temperature of the body is low, hot applications should be placed around the arms and feet to restore the circulation and to keep the patient warm. Since heat stroke may be fatal, competent medical advice should be secured as soon as possible in order that the physician may give drugs which will stimulate the heart and the falling circulation. People who have suffered heat stroke once are likely to develop attacks later in life.

Such people should avoid overheated rooms and exposures to the direct rays of the sun. They should take cool baths frequently, drink water freely and eat lightly. They should also avoid indulgence in alcoholic drinks and keep their heads as cool as possible. The clothing, as has been emphasized in the previous article, should be selected according to the occupation and should be light enough and porous enough to aid the evaporation of heat from the body.

MIGHT AS WELL "Look here, Smith. It's no use your coming round here again, you've borrowed everything I've got in the place." "Oh, but this is different, I wonder if I could borrow your garden for a bit of a party I'm giving on Saturday."—Passing Show.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SMITH

Dr. James Snook who, until he was fastened upon as a suspect in the murder of Miss Theodora Hix, a college co-ed, was a respected member of the faculty of Ohio State University, and who will soon go on trial for the brutal slaying of the girl, is not nearly so interesting a figure as his wife who is prostrated with grief at his deed.

She is interesting because she is so typical a type of woman—of wife. Her husband was protected for many hours after the body of the girl was found by his wife's alibi. She insisted that he was home reading at the time the murder was committed and he was not giving under stiff grilling, she admitted that she merely heard a door open downstairs when she was upstairs, and took it for granted that he was home.

When her husband's confession was made, to the effect that he had maintained an apartment with the murdered girl for some months; that he hammered her to a pulp and slit her jugular vein because she had threatened to kill his wife and child because he was not giving her enough companionship; and, later, that this was not only the extra martial love adventure he had had, his wife, denying herself to all callers, even her family, issued the usually wifely statement. It was something to the effect that because the man she had been married to for seven years had been a good provider, a good husband and father, he simply could not have been guilty of first degree murder, or any other kind.

LIKE THE OSTRICH. No species of human beings has the great genius of imitating the famous ostrich act of "head in the sand and I'll know nothing" quite so well as wives. "Good provider" because synonymous with all earthly virtue. If they, and their immediate own, are properly fed and clothed and sheltered, ergo, by virtue of that very fact, the one who provides food and clothes and shelter must be virtuous in all his social relationships. As a matter of fact, the "best providers" are often the very gen-

There is always, to me, something a little more shocking about the wife of a suspected murderer who insists that he "simply could not have done that" than there is in the wife who insists that she knew "he was up to some devilry." The first wife connotes an utter lack of sympathetic understanding, an absolute isolation of soul, one from another, which is tragic with its implication of loneliness and an understanding at least. And I wonder if I am unduly cynical in feeling that the wife, so utterly unsuspecting that she could accept the largess of her "good provider" in utter unconcern as to his real life outside the home, is not as often moved by bewilderment as to what will become of her if she leaves him in outraged virtue as sweet charity's sake.

Legion Loses Contest Played Under Protest

The local Legion baseball team journeyed to Glastonbury last evening for the opening game of the Junior Baseball League but upon arrival learned that the Glastonbury team was not even organized, nor registered with the state officials and had no knowledge of a game.

However, at 7:15 nine young men had been rounded up by a Glastonbury Legionnaire, and as the rules and regulations laid down by league officials had not been compiled with the game was played under protest.

The lateness of the hour limited the contest to five innings at the end of which the local players were on the short end by a score of 4-2.

South Manchester was the first to score tallying twice in the second inning. O'Leary was hit, stole second and third.

Wimbledon, England, June 28.—America suffered another setback in the Wimbledon tennis championships here yesterday when Elizabeth Ryan was eliminated by Senora Lili De Alvarez.

Miss Ryan and the Senora fought a stubborn battle, the latter being favored by dazzling half-volleys against which the American's chop strokes were unavailing.

William T. Hilder and Mrs. Molla Mallory, paired in the mixed doubles, advanced into the second round of this event by defeating Wm. Kehring of Hungary and Miss Jean Sandison of India, 6-2, 6-2.

Mrs. L. R. C. Mitchell, of England, staged a surprise by eliminating Betty Nuthall, 6-3, 6-3, in the third round of the women's singles.

The weather was cloudy and somewhat cold, in contrast to the splendid sunshine which had featured the first three days of the tournament.

It was a bad day for British women favorites, Mrs. Michael Watson, a member of the Wightman Cup team, was defeated by the youthful Joan Fry 6-1, 6-4.

U. S. Players Win. In the mixed doubles Francis T. Hunter and Helen Wilks beat A. Brown and Miss C. Tyrrell of England in straight sets 6-1, 6-0.

In the women's doubles, Mrs. Mae Sutton Bundy and Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., eliminated Mrs. Usher and Miss K. Lewis of England, 6-4, 6-3.

Another American victory was chalked up in the doubles when George M. Lott, Jr., and John Hennessey beat L. De Takacs and P. Leiner 6-2, 6-1.

Helen Jacobs entered the fourth round of the women's singles by defeating Mrs. Randolph, crack English tournament player, 6-2, 6-2.

MAX SCHMELING MAX HURTS HAND IN FIFTH ROUND

Talks to Mother in Berlin Over Phone Afterward; Scenes in Dressing Rooms

By JAMES L. KILLGALLEN.

New York, June 28.—His eyes aglow with the fire of victory, Max Schmeling, the "German Dempsey," bounded into his dressing room after his victorious battle with Paulino Uzcudun, the lion-hearted Spaniard, hurled a rubber's table in sheer joy and shouted: "Na, Jetz Hab Ich's Gesehmessen."

Which, translated into good old Americana, meant: "Now I've made the grade."

And there were corroborative "Hochs" from a swarm of admiring countrymen who flocked at his heels, some of them singing "Schmeling, Schmeling, over the bounding basque."

In the adjoining dressing room, a scene in marked contrast was unfolding. Paulino, his chest red with his own blood, his eyes almost closed and his lips swollen twice their normal size, sat on a table—starting straight ahead and saying not a word as a Negro trainer untied his shoes and cut the bandages from his hands.

Schmeling, however, was as happy as a schoolboy starting on his summer vacation. Turning to his manager, he exclaimed: "Ich will zunaechst mutter aufrufen" (I want first to call up mother).

And that's just what he did after he had taken his shower and dressed. He talked over the trans-Atlantic telephone to his mother, Mrs. Amanda Schmeling in Berlin, assuring her that he "wasn't hurt a bit."

And, apparently, he wasn't. There wasn't a mark on him to indicate that he had been through 15 rounds with the rough-and-tough Spaniard.

"I want either Jack Sharkey or Jack Dempsey next—I don't care which," Schmeling told International News Service as he stood under the "Hurt My Hand."

"How come you couldn't put Paulino away for the count?" he was asked.

"I hurt my right hand in the fifth round," replied Schmeling, extending a swollen finger as evidence. "I had to coast along for five rounds, relying on my left jab to the face. I know Paulino didn't like those jabs, especially when his eyes began to close. In the fourth round I felt him getting weaker, and I knew then for sure that the fight was mine. I think if the bout had gone a round or two more I surely would have put him away."

"Paulino is a tough fellow, one of the hardest men to fight I ever have encountered. Will I give him a return match? Sure—why not? But I'd rather take on Sharkey or Dempsey."

HARTFORD GOLFERS HAVE GOOD CHANCE

New Haven, June 28.—Eight Connecticut golfers tested off here today in the fourth round of the state championship. The contenders today were Paul Haviland and W. P. Seelye, of Brookline; Frank Jarvis, Jr., and R. M. Grant, of Goodwin Park; W. K. Reid, of Farmington; James J. Geoghegan, of Middletown; C. C. Elwell, Jr., of New Haven Country club, and Don Ahearn, of Williamantico.

With the line-up today the championship match appeared to be a contest between Hartford and Bridgeport, with Hartford putting three and Bridgeport two men into the fray.

While Paul Haviland took the medal play on the first day of the contest, C. C. Elwell, Jr., son of the Public Utilities Commissioner, had the widest margin of victory in the third round. Elwell is the sole New Havener left out of a large number in the qualifying round.

Walsh Says First Nine Rounds Were Dull—Tide Turned Down the Home Stretch; Schmeling's Assault Would Have Floored Any Other Fighter; Uzcudun's Sheer Gameness Enabled Him to Weather Storm.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 28.—Fifteen years ago, the Kaiser dreamed of world dominion, the silly, empty dream of a mind that knew vanity as its engrossing emotion.

Today, he sits at Doornik, alone, unhonored, and waits for death while the world he sought to conquer by force lies at the feet of a former subject who, wiser than the master, is content to conquer only on the field of sport.

The world is not yet Max Schmeling's for the mere asking but one more victory such as that scored over Paulino Uzcudun, the Spaniard, in fifteen rounds at the Yankee Stadium last night and the foaming stein will be the water bucket and the pretzel the favorite bouquet of fatiana.

Schmeling today needs another step up the ladder and the heavyweight championship of the world will be his, to have and to hold until the better man comes along.

Now Face Sharkey. He will try to take that crucial step in September in a final bout of the heavyweight series against Jack Sharkey, the volatile one, and many last night in the Milk Fund's crowd of 40,000 seemed convinced that ultimate failure would not and could not be his.

Unbeaten in five American starts and with successive victories over Risiko and Paulino, they regard him now as a man of destiny.

Schmeling was only a lad just out of his toddling kilts when the Germans broke over the borders of Belgium in 1914 but from the tenth round onward last night he was out for the fighting. Prussia, of the old days, staunch in adversity and desperate in his will to win.

Dull Until Tenth. Going into the tenth round of what had been a dull fight and a fairly even one, he fairly cut the stout, old Basque into human hash with short, chopping, punishing punches and, at the end, Paulino as a pitiable sight as, with eyes all but closed and his face a vague, unhuman smear of crimson, he tottered on the verge of a knockout for the first time in his career.

The knockout didn't materialize but Schmeling was quite without blame in the matter. He hit that carried old whalebone that Paulino carried directly below his lower lip and landed upon upon jaw with almost unrelie monotony. The Basque, not unlike the stricken animal in the bull ring just before the kill in his own Seville, stood braced in mid-air, his mouth open and glazed eyes peering agonizingly out from nugged and bleeding lids and took the rain of blows upon a head unbowed.

Took Hat Beating. He reeled but he didn't fall. His knees buckled and drooled but they didn't forsake him altogether. Paulino was a stirring figure in defeat. He looked the part of a downright zood fighter once his handers sent him out to fight.

They said afterward that they were "pacing" him. If this is the case I would tomorously suggest that they try him out here after in some of the trotting events. Schmeling, much after the manner of the rest of the world, is a good fighter only when he fights.

His own version of the circumstance after the fight was that he injured his favorite right hand on Paulino's favorite eyebrow in the fourth round, and thereafter he had to fight largely with his left, supposedly an inferior weapon.

Comparing Rounds. Whatever the reason—and this wasn't it—one must go thumbing through the dictionary for another word for courtesy in order to call this fight a fight at the end of nine rounds. Neither had done anything to the other on a very large scale. The first two were Schmeling's because he was willing to let go with a left hand and let the other forget, but he can't with anything. The next two were even because neither man was able to muster a scowl more ferocious than the other's. Paulino then came on with a body attack to win the fifth, sixth and eighth, with the seventh eventful. The ninth also was with the line-up, but he was any observer to call his shots; then suddenly they took the blankets off a man who really could pitch and the idea was very bad news to the man who only could catch.

Used "Injured" Right. If Schmeling's right hand is injured, then Paulino was lucky for the first and only time during the evening, for it was with the damaged right that he sorted the wet wash for the trip to the laundry that followed. However, mistaken notions of this kind will crop up and let one forget, but he can't bump you in the ante-room and occasionally on the china closet with some degree of emphasis. In fact, he not only could, but did last night and Schmeling took it

GERMANY ENTHUSED OVER MAX'S VICTORY

Berlin, June 28.—All Germany was stirred today by Max Schmeling's victory over Paulino Uzcudun. Although today was a day of mourning in protest against the treaty of Versailles, the victory of the "Black Ullan of the Rhine" shared honors with the solemn observance of the tenth anniversary of the treaty in newspapers and conversational content.

Schmeling's mother was overjoyed at her son's triumph. She requested International News Service to forward the following message to Max: "Dear Maxie, I am the happiest and proudest mother on earth. I would love to draw you to my motherly heart, your mama."

Although the fight occurred between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning (German time), the streets in front of newspaper offices in this city were crowded with people anxious to learn from the bulletins how Schmeling was faring.

Last Night Fights. Otto Von Porat, Chicago heavy, weight, scored technical knockout over K. O. Meyer, Christian, of Akron, Ohio. Angus Snyder, Dodge City, Kan., heavy, stopped Johnny Grosso, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., 5. Roy Wallace of Indianapolis, knocked out Primo Valido, Italian light-heavyweight, 3.

CAREFUL AUTOIST NOW SAVES MONEY

New Insurance Liability Law Goes Into Effect July 1; E. J. Holl's Views.

Careful driving of motor vehicles in the State of Connecticut, after July 1, will mean additional money in the owner's pocket, according to E. J. Holl, who is a representative of The Travelers Insurance Company here in Manchester, as on that date the amendment to the State Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act will become effective. The owner or driver who fails to operate his car with care as regards the public will be required, after July 1, to pay more for his automobile public liability and property damage insurance, varying from 10 to 50 per cent additional, whereas the owner or driver with a good motor vehicle record for two years will have the cost for such insurance, as applicable to his private passenger car, reduced 10 per cent.

Beginning with the first of next month, there will be five different rate schedules for automobile public liability and property damage insurance in the state, Mr. Holl explains. Three of these rate schedules were provided in the amendment to the Financial Responsibility Act which the last legislature enacted, and which Governor Trumbull signed just recently. The fourth schedule classification consists of the standard rates and the fifth was provided some time ago by a 10 per cent merit rate for good drivers.

Mr. Holl interprets the amendment as a declaration to motorists in the state that it pays to drive with care, and he believes it is a move that will aid in reducing Connecticut's motor vehicle accident toll, which last year took the lives of 459 persons, an increase of nearly 29 per cent over the preceding year's automobile accident death record.

The amendment's creation of three classifications of drivers, on the basis of driving records, was made possible by the carefully-kept data of the state Motor Vehicle Department under Commissioner Robinson B. Stockett. The law still provides, as it has for several years, that the State Motor Vehicle Commissioner may require evidence of financial responsibility from any owner or driver whose car has been involved in an accident causing personal injury or property damage in excess of $50, or who has been convicted of violation of certain motor vehicle laws. This evidence of financial responsibility may be in the form of a liability and property damage insurance contract, a corporate surety bond, a personal surety bond, or a cash deposit with the state treasurer.

Under the act, as amended, Mr. Holl says the Travelers Insurance Company will file a standard scale of automobile public liability and property damage insurance rates similar to that in use in Connecticut for some time. These rates will be charged to motorists who have driven cars less than two years and have been required by the State Motor Vehicle Department during that time to provide evidence of financial responsibility. The 10 per cent reduction from this rate, which was announced in March by the Travelers, was extended to private passenger car owners with a good driving record for two years, and will still be available to all such owners and drivers of two years' experience or more who have good driving records and who have not been required to give evidence of financial responsibility.

Drivers who have been involved in accidents according to the state motor vehicle records, or who have been convicted of major violations of the motor vehicle laws, resulting in the filing of proof of financial responsibility, will be classified by the State Motor Vehicle Department, and under these classifications Mr. Holl explains that all casualty insurance companies operating in the state will be required to charge the motorists affected 10, 25 and 50 per cent additional for their public liability and property damage insurance.

Class A, which requires an additional premium of 10 per cent, will comprise the motorists who shall have committed the least serious injuries or damage and for which occurrences they shall have been held responsible. In Class B, requiring an additional charge of 25 per cent, will be included the motorists who shall have committed more serious offenses, or in the opinion of the State Motor Vehicle Commissioner, shall have been at least partially responsible for accidents causing more serious injuries or damage, or shall have a greater degree of responsibility than Class A drivers. Motorists placed in Class C, where 50 per cent additional will be charged, will be those who have committed the most serious offenses, or in the opinion of the commissioner, shall have been at least partially responsible for accidents causing the most serious injuries or damage.

Since the reduction of 10 per cent in the cost of public liability and property damage insurance to private passenger car owners as offered by the company which Mr. Holl represents is dependent upon a good driving record for two years, he feels that the extra charge for automobile public liability and property damage insurance in each of the three classes enumerated, will serve to promote more careful driving, and to reduce the motor vehicle toll of dead and injured in the state.

Under the operation of the 10 per cent reduction, as based on good driving records, it has been estimated by statisticians of The Travelers, that careful drivers in Connecticut will be rewarded by approximately $500,000 during the current year in the way of reduced automobile insurance premiums, and this saving, it is felt, will become even greater as the demerits provided in the amendment to the State's Financial Responsibility Law become known and consequently serve to cause other drivers to operate their cars with more care.

Under the amendment to the Motor Vehicle Laws of Connecticut by the last legislature, the Motor Vehicle Commissioner in certain instances is empowered to suspend operators' licenses and also registrations, where a judgment, other than costs or nominal damages, has remained unpaid for more than 60 days, provided notice of appeal has not been filed by the defendant. Such suspensions shall remain in force until the defendant party files with the commissioner of motor vehicles a copy of a satisfaction of the judgment in question, and as certified by the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered.

Connecticut was the first state to enact a financial responsibility act for all motorists, and the example has been followed by other states. Acts similar to the Connecticut law have been enacted in Vermont, Maine and Rhode Island, while New Hampshire also has a financial responsibility act, and in Massachusetts there is a compulsory automobile insurance law. Within the last few months among the other states which have followed the lead of Connecticut are New York, New Jersey, Iowa and California. The Connecticut amendment goes further than the act of any other state, and has been made possible by the well-kept records of the State Motor Vehicle Department of every owner and operator of a car. According to Mr. Holl, the new Connecticut law is a great step forward in the promotion of rate equities among automobile owners, and should be an important factor in advancing safe driving within the state. Any owner or driver of a car who wishes more particulars about automobile insurance will be able to get additional information by writing Mr. Holl, 865 Main street, or by calling phone 560.

"G" BIDS FAREWELL TO LIEUT. THOMPSON

Soldiers Give Dinner in Honor of Recently Resigned National Guard Officer.

A farewell dinner was given last night by members of Company G in honor of Lieutenant Edgar M. Thompson who recently announced his resignation. Sergeant Raymond E. Hagedorn who has been with the company since 1922, was named by Captain Philip C. Hawley to succeed him as second lieutenant. Speaking on behalf of the company, Captain Philip C. Hawley presented Lt. Thompson with a handsome sole leather traveling bag and commended him for his interest and service with the company. The latter responded with a short but appropriate speech thanking the members of the company and adding that he will always be interested in the doings of the National Guard in Manchester.

Among the guests present were several former officers of Company G who were well acquainted with Lt. Thompson. Included were former captains, John Pentland and Herbert H. Blissell, Sergeant Jim Hynes and Arthur Keating. The latter favored with a solo, "Sonny Boy." The others spoke briefly about their experiences with the company. Mess Sergeant Harry Bellucci served a roast chicken and spaghetti supper and also gave a humorous sketch about the manner in which he joined the army in 1917.

COAST GUARD RESCUES CREW OF LUMBER SHIP

Schooner Wedged Between Rocks is Doomed—Sailors Taken Ashore in Breeches Buoy.

Point Reyes Coast Guard Station, Calif., June 28—Rigging a breeches buoy from the lumber steamer Hartford, which went ashore here last night in a heavy fog, Coast Guardsmen today were removing the remaining members of the crew from the stricken vessel.

Captain C. M. Enstrom and the chief engineer are still aboard the doomed ship. Other members of the crew, Mrs. Enstrom, her son, and the son of the first mate were rescued last night. The Hartford, a vessel of 946 gross tonnage, is firmly wedged between two huge rocks. Coast Guard officers believe the ship will be a total loss.

OLD MURDER REVIVED.

Fall River, Mass., June 28.—Dr. Frederick L. Barnes, medical examiner today had the report of Dr. William F. Boos, Harvard university toxicologist, that the stains found on an axe located in the Borden barn, were human blood. The report, following study of more than a month, confirmed beliefs of police that the slaying of Andrew Borden and his wife 37 years ago, for which their daughter Lizzie Borden was tried and acquitted, was done with the old axe, which resembled a roof shingler's instrument.

Plants make a noise when growing, a scientist reveals. For that matter so do children.

U. S. BRINGS SUIT AGAINST BONDSMAN

New Haven, June 28 — The United States today brought suit against Frank Matusavice, of Middlebury, for $750 damages because of his failure to make good on a $500 bond that he furnished when an alleged liquor law violator failed to appear in United States District Court to answer the charge. According to the writ in the case, Michael Jarusavice was arrested in Waterbury and bound over for trial by United States Commissioner E. J. Finn on March 30, last, being held in bail of $500. Matusavice was bondsman and Jarusavice went free, agreeing to appear in court during the April Term. Jarusavice failed to show up and Matusavice didn't make good on the bond. The government wants the bond plus $250.

A girl who sews too steadily snally knits her eyebrows.

SENSE and NONSENSE

DIDN'T FIND IT
Wife—What delayed you two men?—I was showing Sandy where Washington threw the dollar across the Potomac and he insisted on searching for the dollar.

Clerk: "Sir, my wife wants me to take the afternoon off for shopping.
Manager: "Impossible."
Clerk: "Thank you sir."

The census taker called at the home of the Smith sisters who were maiden ladies. Upon informing them that he must know their ages they asked if he had called on the Hill sisters.
"Yes," he replied, "and they told me their ages."
"Well," said the Smith sisters, "we're the same age as the Hill girls." So the man wrote in his book—Mabel and Nellie Smith, both as old as the Hills.

In the parlor there were three. She, the parlor lamp and he. Two are company, no doubt. So the little lamp went out.

"You boy over in the corner!" Thus the brutal examiner to the nervous-looking pupil in the class. The boy over in the corner shot up like a bolt.
"Answer this," continued the examiner. "Do we eat the flesh of the whale?"
"Y-yes, sir," faltered the scholar.
"And what do you do with the bones?"
"P-please, sir," responded the nervous one, with chattering teeth. "we leave them on the s-side of our p-plates."

Salesman—What terms would you prefer?
Customer—Oh, I think I'll take it on the installment plan—a dollar down, and the rest cash-as-cash-can.

LETTER GOLF

WIDE AND LONG.

Today's puzzle is WIDE and LONG. But par is only four and one solution is in another page.

Letter Golf puzzle grid with words WIDE and LONG.

THE RULES.

1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

What a Difference Just a Few Strokes Make By Fontaine Fox

OUR BOARDING HOUSE By Gene Ahern

THE TINYMIES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)
When Scouty had a nice long trip upon the hopper he cried, "Yip! This surely is a heap of fun. Please jump me up some more. It doesn't seem so hard at all, to hang on tight. I will not fall. Let's do some funny little jumps and make the others roar."
So Mister Hopper did just that. Upon the ground he'd lie down flat, and then he'd leap into the air. It was a sight to see. At last wee Clowzy yelled, "Hey, there, I'd like to hop up in the air. I would appreciate it much if you would just take me."

TWO LOCAL WOMEN
GRANTED DIVORCES

Mrs. Mary Gravino Barrea and Mrs. Lillian Russell Armstrong Win Petitions Yesterday.

Two Manchester divorce cases were heard in the superior court of this county yesterday, both complaints being brought by women.

Mrs. Mary Gravino Barrea of Eldridge street was divorced from her husband on the grounds of cruelty and witnesses testified to seeing marks on her body which she claimed were administered by her husband while they were living together on Packard street in this town. She was granted her divorce and the right to resume her maiden name. There are no children.

Lillian Russell Armstrong was granted a divorce from her husband, Richard Armstrong, on the charge of desertion, which desertion took place in April, 1925, when the complainant and witnesses testified she attended a church fair against the wishes of her husband. She and her husband had lived together but six months when the separation came. She was permitted to resume her maiden name.

AFTERMATH OF FIFTH'S
FIGHT SEEN IN CALL

District of Scraps to Talk Over Legal Bills Resulting from Recent Lawsuit.

The annual meeting of the Fifth School District will be held in the school on Keeney street Saturday evening. Included in the call for the meeting is one clause which relates to the borrowing of money to pay the legal debts of the district. The amount asked for is $4,000. Although this amount includes the bills for the current expenses there were certain bills that were not presented at the special meeting a few months ago. There were other bills that were not paid in connection with the lawsuit of the district and the meeting was given to understand that they would come up later. This item is attracting the attention of many of the residents of that district.

MERCHANTS HERE MAY HAVE JOINT OUTING

Members of C. of C. Division to Discuss the Project at Meeting on Monday.

An attempt will be made at the next meeting of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce to be held Monday morning, July 1 at 10 o'clock in the Chamber rooms to further plans for a combined outing of all retail stores in celebration of Merchants Day, Wednesday, July 17.

In the past outings were held separately by the stores but it is felt this year that a much more enjoyable time can be had if the merchants combine.

Reports on the result of the Community Days held the second week in June will be heard at the meeting. A discussion will be held on the revision of the schedule of opening and closing hours.

William Rubinson is chairman of the Merchants Division.
