

MADRID PLANS BIG WELCOME FOR AVIATORS

Expected to Reach Gibraltar At 9 O'Clock Tomorrow Morning; Capt. De Alda Wearing Luxurious Beard

Madrid, July 1.—All Spain continued its preparations today to bestow the most lavish welcome in the history of the nation upon Major Ramon Franco and his three companions, rescued by the British aircraft carrier Eagle after floating for seven days at sea off the Azores.

With H. M. S. Eagle due to arrive at Gibraltar at 9 a. m. tomorrow, aeronautical societies, government officials and virtually every individual in Spain were laying plans to provide the rescued aviators with the most vociferous and pretentious welcome ever accorded a national hero.

Is Nearing Land
The Eagle, which picked up the four fliers and their giant hydroplane Numancia just one week after they had been forced down in the sea while attempting a trans-Atlantic flight from Spain to New York by way of the Azores, is steaming toward Gibraltar at approximately fifteen knots, and as each hour brought her nearer land, additional preparations for the fliers' arrival were put under way.

It was learned today that Captain Ruiz de Alda, one of Franco's assistants aboard the plane, may be scarcely recognizable when he disembarks from the Eagle at Gibraltar. In a wireless message to his family, the aviator revealed that he had grown a luxurious beard the week the Numancia tossed helpless on the waves, owing to the utter impossibility of shaving.

Not To Shave
Apparently he found the hair-cutting to be his liking, for he has apparently decided not to take advantage of the Eagle's tonorial facilities and will leave the ship with his face shrouded in unfamiliar whiskers.

Another development of this sort resulting from the fliers' narrow escape from disaster is that General Primo De Rivera, dictator of Spain, is seven pounds lighter than he was when the Numancia took off from Los Azcazares Aerodrome on June 21.

JERSEY FINANCIER REPORTED MISSING

Police Think Him Victim of Kidnapers; Had Resigned Position at His Bank.

East Orange, N. J., July 1.—Believed to be victim of a daring kidnaping gang, Willard H. Elliott, vice president of the Hobart Trust Company of Passaic, was still missing today.

Elliott left his home here for his office Wednesday morning. He has not been seen or heard from since.

"The further we go into this case the more mysterious it becomes," declared Chief of Police William H. O'Neill today. "I am of the opinion that Elliott has been kidnaped or done away with. The next few hours should bring important and unusual developments."

Had Resigned at Bank.
Officials of the Hobart bank announced late Friday that Elliott had resigned. His disappearance was not reported to the police until Saturday. His wife explained that Frank Campbell, an official of the Hobart bank, had advised her against reporting it earlier because it might hurt the bank.

Chief O'Neill has questioned both Campbell and Mrs. Elliott at length concerning the mysterious disappearance.

The bank issued a statement immediately after the disappearance was reported declaring Elliott's accounts were in perfect condition.

The state banking examiners examined the bank's accounts Wednesday, the day Elliott disappeared, and pronounced them in perfect condition.

So far as can be learned, Elliott had not told his wife or any of his friends that he had resigned or was about to resign.

WOULD FENCE RIVER FRONT

To Protect New York Drunks from Falling Into Water—Other Novel Ideas of Candidate.

New York, July 1.—Mr. Axel F. Fredlund, former street car conductor and public school teacher, has tossed his leghorn headpiece into the mayorality ring as "Independent Democratic candidate." If he is elected, he promised today, he will bring about many innovations for New York City.

For example, he will see to it that men who occasionally or habitually fall off the water wagon are accorded better treatment.

"If I am elected mayor," he said, "I shall establish recuperation stations in convenient places throughout the city. Intoxicated men will be conveyed to these places by policemen and there they may obtain rest and, if necessary, medical attention."

It is a deplorable fact, Mr. Fredlund pointed out, that many drunks fall into the rivers surrounding New York. Therefore, he proposes to have fences constructed at all dangerous points along the river fronts to protect these men.

And, incidentally, his scheme of doing away with the thousands of speakeasies is simplicity itself. He would license the sale of liquor at all soda fountains. The fountains would understand the speaker's meaning and drive them out of business.

Mr. Fredlund said he holds the degree of A. M., and B. S. Columbia University.

"FIGHTING FIFTH" OUSTS MANNINGS

Complete New Slate Is Named at Saturday Night's Annual Meeting.

The Mannings, long a political power in the famous "Fighting Fifth" school district, bowed to the mandate of a well organized opposition in the district's annual meeting Saturday night, and when the peck measure ballot boxes were emptied an entire new slate of officers was in charge of the potential affairs of the Fifth.

Up His Sleeve
But that doesn't mean the Fifth won't be a battle ground at school meeting time any more. Because when Attorney Frederick Manning, ex-clerk and treasurer, slipped the copy of the motion made on the tax rate into his pocket, his smile disclosed his thoughts of further fighting. The tax motion, made by Edward Keeney, was not legally worded and it didn't mention the list against which it was levied, so it looks like the Mannings will hold this trump card for play in a later deal.

The new board of control over on Keeney street is as follows: Committee, Henry Gordon, Thomas Prentice, and Edward Keeney; clerk, Irving Wickham; treasurer, Peter Frey; collector, Robert McLaughlin; auditors, Mrs. Leona Nevins, Mrs. Louise Prentice. For the first time in about 25 years a Manning failed to finish in the money in a 7th district fight.

7th Attend
The annual meeting, coming on a Saturday night did not draw out as large a crowd as had been expected in some quarters but more than was expected in others as the ballots that were cast in the few contests that developed showed that seventy-five were present. It was evident from the start that there was something unusual going to happen as soon as the meeting opened and in a short time it was learned that there was going to be an effort made to oust Frederick R. Manning from his office and to put in a new set of officers. It was planned to make the test on the question of a moderator.

The meeting was called to order by Harley Palmer who suggested that the first thing to do would be to select a moderator. This was the test. Arthur Manning has been presiding over about all the meetings held in the district for the past four or five years, or since the test started, so he was named by a Manning supporter for moderator.

Wickham Wins
The name of Irving Wickham, an anti-Manning candidate was next named. There were no other nominations, each side deciding to make their test right on the first ballot. The vote was ordered taken, ballots being passed, and collected in peck and half peck measures. The result was the forerunner of what was to happen as it showed as follows:
Total number of votes cast . . . 66
Necessary for a choice . . . 34
Wickham . . . 33
A. Manning . . . 23
Mr. Wickham was declared elected and the antics had won the first skirmish.

Mr. Wickham lost little time in getting down to business and assuming the gavel announced that

ACCIDENT AT END OF RECORD TRIP

A round trip from coast to coast in 36½ hours broke three records and an airplane for Captain Frank M. Hawks, left. The only mishap came at the very end of his epic flight, with the result pictured above. He dashed from New York to Los Angeles in 19 hours, 21 minutes—a record for the east-west flight. His return to Roosevelt Field, Long Island, took 17 hours, 39 minutes—bettering his own previous record. Naturally, the elapsed time for the round trip gave him another title. Swooping down to the eastern field for a night landing, Captain Hawks taxied too far, saw a wire fence and tried to hop it to avoid a collision. But he landed on the fence instead, with slight damage to the Lockheed Vega ship. "It's just too bad," said the speed champion as he climbed out, grinning and uninjured.

PSYCHIC POWER HELPS MISS BARRYMORE'S ART

For Past Few Months Great Actress Has Felt New Force and Fears It, She Tells Reporter.

(The following is the first of three unusually interesting articles based on an exclusive interview with Ethel Barrymore, the world's famous actress. This interview by David P. Senter is one of the few which she has granted in her long and brilliant career. In tomorrow's article, among other revelations, Queen Ethel gives her reactions to the talking motion pictures.)

By DAVID P. SENTER
New York, July 1.—A strange, supernatural power has been added within the past few months to the genius of Ethel Barrymore, high priestess of stagecraft. Her recent theater audiences have been mass exhibits of the weird phenomenon. Under the new and old Barrymore spell, they sit like so many sphinxes with ten thousand ears. They forget to move, to cough, to listen with all their hearts.

"I have noted the difference in the past few months," said Miss Barrymore. "I have been able to hold them tighter than ever. Something in here makes me do it." She pressed her heart. "I believe it is

ANONYMOUS LETTER LEADS TO MURDER

Father Kills Neighbor Who Was Accused of Being Intimate With His Daughter

New Haven, July 1.—For more than a month Joseph Battaglia, of Seymour, brooded over an anonymous letter in which he was told that his friend and neighbor Salvatore Cicso had been intimate with one of Battaglia's daughters. Then late Saturday night when Cicso had come on a business deal, Battaglia discharged one barrel of a shot-gun into Cicso's body. Cicso crumpled at Battaglia's feet and Battaglia, uncertain as to the thoroughness of his deed, put the shotgun to the head of the prostrate man and discharged the other barrel.

An hour or so later Battaglia walked into the police station at Ansonia and told Sergeant John Mahoney he had killed a man to protect his daughter's honor.

Have Letter Writer.
Such was the story related to Coroner J. J. Corrigan here today, as the coroner went about his inquest into Cicso's death. Dr. V. A. Kowalweski, medical examiner of West Haven, performed an autopsy on Cicso's body on Sunday and today and then hacked his own throat with a razor. Both are in St. Joseph's hospital.

Wells will die physicians say, but his wife will recover. The couple had been separated until about three months ago when a reconciliation was effected. Mrs. Wells lived with them and when Wells awoke at 5 a. m. today he locked the door leading to his room and attacked the wife. Aroused by his daughter's cries the father was just breaking through the locked door when Wells covered with blood, opened it and said: "Now you can come down, dad."

PREDICT BIG BATTLE OVER RAIL MERGERS

Three Petitions Now Before Commerce Commission; Fight Centers About Roads Around Pittsburgh

Washington, July 1.—A hot fight for control of a number of strategic railroads in various consolidation plans loomed today, following the presentation of the Interstate Commerce Commission of the Washab railroad's plan for a fifth and independent trunk line system. The fight will center particularly for control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and the Western Maryland.

The Washab plan is the third now before the commission for consideration, the Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio plans having been filed some months ago. In each of these plans the three minor roads mentioned play an important part in linking up the systems. In some quarters it is believed that the Washab plan has the tacit approval of the Pennsylvania.

Other Mergers
On top of this the Taplin brothers, of Cleveland, who control the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Erie and the Western Maryland, and they intend to put up a battle royal against the Van Sweringens, who control the Chesapeake and Ohio, Daniel Willard, guiding hand of the Baltimore and Ohio, and the Washab crowd.

The Washab plan contemplates the acquisition of the Lehigh Valley, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Western Maryland, Lehigh and New England, Akron, Canton and Youngstown, Elgin, Joliet and Eastern, Toledo, Peoria and Western and the Chicago and Illinois Midland. A sixth interest in some short lines and trackage right over the Pennsylvania, Reading and Grand Trunk Western at certain points also is sought by it.

The Washab application said it was obviously in the public interest that the great industrial districts in and about Pittsburgh should have available as many rail routes as practicable giving them access to the great markets of the middle west.

MEXICAN CHURCHES FILLED BY CROWDS

Estimate 50,000 at Services At Shrine; Religious News Ban Is Suddenly Lifted.

Mexico City, July 1.—Roman Catholics throughout Mexico rejoiced today over resumption of unrestricted worship in the churches made possible through solution of the conflict raging between the Vatican and the Mexican government for almost three years.

The greatest outpouring of the faithful in the history of the country took place yesterday when the churches were thrown open for worship for the first time since the conflict began.

Every edifice was jammed to capacity, and police had to be assigned to each church to maintain order among the crowds and render first aid to those who fainted in the crush. It was estimated that 50,000 persons attended services at the church of the Virgin of Guadalupe, the national shrine.

STULTZ IS KILLED WITH TWO OTHERS AS PLANE CRASHES

Machine Goes Into Tailspin Shortly After Take Off at Roosevelt Field—Stultz Became Famous When He Piloted Miss Amelia Earhart Across the Atlantic.

Mineola, N. Y., July 1.—Wilmer Stultz, trans-Atlantic flyer, was fatally injured today when the plane he was flying crashed near here today. Two passengers also were killed.

Stultz was piloting a small Waco biplane and had just taken off from Roosevelt Field. He had flown about a quarter of a mile when the plane went into a tail spin.

The ship nearly crashed into a dirt hauling truck.

Plane Turns Over.
Two men in the truck ran to the wrecked plane which had turned over when it crashed. They removed Stultz, still living from the wreckage, and rushed him to Nassau county hospital where he died on the operating table.

Stultz's two passengers who later were identified as Edward Harwood and Pat Castelluccio, both of Rosyia, N. Y., were dead when the rescuers removed them from the wrecked plane.

Noted Pilot.
Stultz since his flight to London from Old Orchard Beach, Me., with Amelia Earhart, had been recognized as one of the most efficient pilots in the air.

It was his handling of the giant plane Friendship, on the long trans-Atlantic trek that drew the admiration of Miss Earhart, who led her to declare that virtually all of the success of the flight should be given to him.

Harwood was connected with the flying supervisors' office at Roosevelt Field.

Stultz was 29 and served with the air corps of both the army and navy in the war. He was associated with Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson in her first two attempts to take off for Europe. His name was mentioned in connection with the Byrd undertaking but he finally made the trip in the Fokker plane Friendship with Miss Earhart and Lou Gordon.

Stultz was awarded the medal of honor by the International League of Aviators for the trans-Atlantic flight. He was the first pilot to loop the loop with passengers in a big Sikorsky 12-passenger amphibian plane.

George Haven Putnam, backer, selected him to fly the "Friendship" on the trans-Atlantic flight. He declined any credit saying the honors belong to Miss Earhart and Gordon.

MOTHER RECEIVES NEWS
Williamsburg, Pa., July 1.—To Mrs. John Shradel, sister of Wilmer Stultz, who was killed at Mineola, N. Y., in a plane crash, today fell the task of giving the news to Mrs. Clara Stultz, his mother.

International News Service telephoned the Stultz residence here, and on learning from Mrs. Stultz that she had no word of her son's fate, her daughter, Mrs. Shradel was called to the phone and told of the flyer's death.

Mrs. Shradel took the blow like a soldier. "Oh," she sobbed, "Dead! Dead—I'll tell mother."

"We're sorry, but he's been in an accident," she was told. "Oh, was it serious?" she asked. Her voice broke, and fearing for the consequences of the shock, the reporter asked that Mrs. Shradel be called to the phone.

Famous Flyer
Stultz, who brought fame to Blair county when he participated in the trans-Atlantic flight of the Friendship, operated a flying field at Tipton, near here, with Walter Hite.

The plane, property of John Hay Whitney, was demolished.

When the ship crashed from an altitude of 200 feet, the motor instead of burning itself in the ground, crashed back into the cockpit, crushing the passengers.

Only one reason could be assigned for the crash by airport officials. It was pointed out that a new propeller had just been fitted on the plane and that this was the first flight with the new "prop."

It is probable, the experts said, the new "prop" failed to give the plane enough lift to fly with three persons aboard.

A week ago Sunday, Stultz had a narrow escape from death in a Sikorsky amphibian. He had flown to the Harvard-Male boat races

TELLS OF "LOW SPOTS" IN SOME NOTABLE LIVES

Rev. Truman Woodward Deals With Famous Men from a New Angle at Kiwanis Lunch.

"Low Spots in High Places", was the subject of Rev. Truman Woodward's talk before the Manchester Kiwanis club today at the Country Club. He recounted the troubles and low spots in the lives of our early Presidents among them Washington, the two Adamses, Thomas Jefferson, Lincoln and Andrew Jackson. He did not deal with their successes but rather with the moments when their lives were at low ebb, according to history. The model of it was that we should benefit by our failures; the man who doesn't won't get anywhere. He showed how these Presidents, and all other men who have fought for a principle and stuck to it at all times, came out ahead. Mr. Woodward is a fine speaker and held the attention of his audience during every moment of the time allotted to him.

EARLY ANGLERS OUT FOR BLACK BASS TODAY

The 1929 season for the legal taking of trout ended yesterday and today the open season for black bass began.

The patrolmen on duty were notified through the signal system to be on the lookout for the car.

At 10:45 the same night, simultaneously with Trivigno's complaint, Policeman Donaldson, who was covering the outlying districts in the police automobile turned from Adams street into North Main street at Buckland corners he saw a car standing. He stopped. The driver of the standing car appeared to be drunk.

Arriving at the police station Donaldson discovered that he had captured the missing Trivigno car as well as a saturated motorist, Joseph Coleman of Foster street.

NOON STOCKS

New York, July 1.—Buying demand for active industrial and utility stocks flowed into the market over the week-end and higher prices were recorded for most of last week's favorites. The shorts were badly squeezed in Columbia Graphophone, which jumped 5 points to 69 1/2 on sale of a block of 15,000 shares. Utility stocks and electrical manufacturing stocks continued to push ahead. Westinghouse adding 2 points to last week's 21-point rise. Though financial and industrial conditions were favorable from every standpoint, the Stock Market encountered the usual handicap of heavy profit-taking before the end of the first hour, which flattened out the advance in some sections of the market. U. S. Steel, International Tel, American Tel and American Can fell back about a point on the average. The utilities and the airplane stocks forged ahead in good style, with North American crossing 150 for the first time and Bendix leading the rise in the airplane shares. Wash common sold up a point at 71 1/2 coincident with the filing of that road's application with the commerce commission for acquisition of important railroad properties to form a "fifth trunk line" into New York. The Rails as a group, were steady, with slightly higher prices for Lackawanna, New York Central, Allegheny, Frisco and Southern Railway. Money was unchanged at 10 per cent. FINANCING ILLNESS

At last the installment plan of buying the services of a doctor has been invoked by the Chicago Medical Society. This plan has been given the name of the "Modern Medical Budget Plan" with the purpose of financing worthy sick on a cost basis, the patient to make repayment in weekly or monthly installments over a period commensurate with his ability to pay. Dr. James H. Hutton, president-elect of the society, explains the plan as "simply adapting to the sick the modern method of financing employed by the automobile, the radio and other industries, and enabling the family of moderate means to arrange for medical or hospital care on a time-payment basis." The doctor said the plan would cut down the cost of illness and minimize the risk of financial loss to doctor and hospital.

It is not just clear to us how it is going to keep down the cost of illness. But without doubt it will materially help in saving physicians and surgeons and likewise the hospitals in which they do much of their work from severe financial losses. Especially in the small towns physicians and surgeons stand heavy and undeserved losses. They dislike to crowd, even to send bills to patients with whom they are on more or less intimate terms socially. Too often they lose for this reason bills that could have been and should have been paid, even if in partial payments. As a matter of fact the man of ordinary means with a family can seldom pay a smashing big doctor's or hospital bill in one lump, especially if he has been the patient and his income stopped during his illness.

Doctors for hundreds of years have been getting their pay, when they got it at all, on the partial payment plan. The modern city physician is more of a business man than was the old country doctor who knew his patients from the time he ushered them into the world until he closed their eyes for the last sleep.

But this plan should result in the doctor getting at least something for his skill and knowledge. Under it the doctor diagnoses the case and estimates the probable cost, fills out a card as authorizing to finance a loan to the patient at 6 per cent interest for the physician's individual account. As soon as the loan is made the physician is mailed a check for 25 per cent of the cost he estimated. The doctor gets the balance due him in installments consisting of one-half of the moneys due, principal and interest, when, as and if collected. Eventually the physician gets 86.37 per cent of his total fee, the finance organization retaining the balance to create a special fund against all bad loans. A loan that proves uncollectible means that the doctor gets only the 25 per cent originally advanced to him but it does give him something for his time and services which in the old days he did not get in many instances. The plan, Dr. Hutton says, is ethical. It seems fair to all concerned.

AUTO INSURANCE

Connecticut's new motor vehicle law becomes operative today. It ought to have the effect of causing more careful driving on the part of some. A good driving record for two years means a reduction of ten per cent in the cost of a driver's automobile liability insurance. In contrast to this the driver who has been in accidents will pay from 10 to 50 per cent more for his insurance, the percentage of increased charge depending upon the nature and extent of the accident or accidents in which he has been involved. Insurance men express the belief that this arrangement is sure to induce more careful driving, especially on the part of those who find it necessary to pay a decided increase in insurance premiums. Insurance statisticians estimate that careful drivers in Connecticut will benefit half a million dollars during the current year in the way of reduced automobile premiums.

Vermont, Maine and Rhode Island have acts similar to this just about to become operative in Connecticut. Massachusetts has the compulsory insurance act. Some features of this are worth keeping an eye on for it is yet an experimental stage. No resident of that state can legally drive his automobile without having taken out insurance. He cannot get his license to drive without satisfying the registrar of motor vehicles that he has such insurance. It has been argued that some drivers, knowing they are insured, are more inclined to recklessness than they otherwise would be.

But a reckless driver is a reckless driver, insured or uninsured. Insofar as the residents of that state are concerned while driving within the state it hit by another Massachusetts registered car, there is the assurance that there is some chance to collect damages which is not by any means present when the damage to the Massachusetts car is done by the driver of a car from another state who, quite likely, has neither insurance nor financial responsibility. As against this it is claimed that the driver of a Massachusetts car who hits someone here in Manchester, even though his state requires compulsory insurance before he can drive within its borders does not require coverage wherever else he may be. Indisputable as this is there yet remains the fact that a majority of those Massachusetts drivers, being under obligations to take out insurance anyway, pay a few dollars additional and have their coverage effective wherever they drive within the borders of the United States.

We can all find something wrong with any of these laws governing automobiles and their owners or drivers. Each unquestionably has some good points and any law that presents a chance of inducing more careful driving ought to be tried.

MODERN "TOMMY ATKINS"

The modern application of Kipling's "Tommy Atkins" is found in the attitude of a chief usher in a New York motion picture house. He put an American seaman and his mother out of their seats in the orchestra because the young man was in uniform. The chief usher is now serving two months in jail as a penalty for insulting the United States Navy. Happily there is no war now in which this country is engaged. Unhappily it is the habit to have little regard for those who are wearing the uniform of either army or navy in peace time. Yet only ten years ago the same individuals who today can see nothing glamorous in the uniform or in service to the country were cheering themselves hoarse, opening their homes to "the boys", hysterically providing anything and everything that imagination thought they might need. Theaters extended a glad hand to them. Uniforms were everywhere. But it's different now. It is the modern day picture of "Tommy Atkins." We wonder, had the young man been an officer, even a petty officer in dress uniform, whether it wouldn't have made a difference with the chief usher unless, perhaps, he would have resented the presence of anyone whose uniform might have tended to even slightly put his in the shade. We are fairly certain of one thing; he didn't wear a uniform ten years ago.

THE BALANCE

In spite of warnings that the treasury balance June 3 would not be a balance at all, but a deficit, we have come through with a fairly satisfactory one and that after $50,000,000 allowed the railroads for retroactive mail rate has been taken out of it. The income tax returns for June, including the second quarter's payment of the 1928 tax have shown an increase of something like $90,000,000 over the same period last year. There must be prosperity somewhere even if it hadn't been perceptible to the treasury officials before. On top of this increase in income tax customs receipts have grown $35,000,000 over the same period of 1928.

That this condition, a quite satisfactory one, reflects the insistence of Mr. Coolidge on economy there is no question. Without emphasizing this particular phase of governmental efficiency President Hoover is none the less determined that there shall be no waste of funds. That goes against the grain of an engineer. In order to keep expenditures to the limit of last year he faces the job of paring off or seeing that others pare off, many hundreds of thousands of dollars from estimates already presented which total far more than the President believes are necessary to conduct the government affairs efficiently.

MORE WARNINGS

Dr. Wynne, Health Commissioner of New York, has been broadcasting warnings to swimmers and near swimmers. There is nothing new in his words of caution and advice. It has all been said before; every word of it has been repeatedly printed. But each year the long list of drownings is repeated. The early surge of the hot spell has been the cause of a formidable number even at this time in the summer and, according to Dr. Wynne, over confidence in one's ability, has been responsible for many of these. Particularly is this true in salt water bathing where even the powerful swimmer ventures too far, or remains in too long, and the undertow gets him. In no other sport, the commissioner warns, is it so dangerous to go just a little too far.

This is the very simplest of the list of warnings. The others include warnings not to seek too much tan at once, not to swim on a full stomach, not to swim alone. Too many deaths are of those who do not believe such simple rules apply to them.

CONGRATULATIONS

After we, like all the world but the crew of the British airplane carrier, had given up the Spanish fliers for lost, the near-miracle of their rescue has gone on the records. And this rescue should prove of value to students of aviation. Causes of crashes that have ended previous trans-Atlantic flights with loss of life have remained mysteries. In this instance we will know the reason for the failure. That should be of value. But what congratulations are due now to the fliers on their rescue which seems to have been brought about entirely by the persistence of the British in continuing what must have seemed to have been a hopeless task, after the representatives of all other nations had abandoned it? Well directed persistency pays large dividends.

GOING PLACES AND SEEING THINGS

Wheeling, W. Va.— Show boat! Show boat! But there is no crowd down on the river bank to meet the "Mencke Brothers floating theater, Hollywood," as the slides under the bridge white and shining in the morning sun.

It is early of a Sunday morning and Wheeling is not yet awake. And it's far too early in the morning for an actor to be up and around.

The reception committee on shore consists of three wide-eyed little vendors of Sunday morning papers who have deserted their street corners to run down to the water's edge where they stand, each sucking a dirty finger.

Up the bank, in the shadow of the green river parkway, an ad-these boats on the Hudson .. make the Jersey flats, too, and get around Long Island sound. Some day someone's going to do it, and take last year's by taking a show boat troupe to Broadway . . . I told 'em not to do it . . . But, no, they had to try it. Show boats is for the river, not for the New York theater . . . Fine season we had this year . . . We got two of the finest show boats going . . . Tell me they're going to fix up the old Cotton Blossom and take her out again . . . Yep, we seat 700 people, including women and children . . .

The theater still bore the earmarks of a busy Saturday night engagement. In a corner was piled a little heap of "prize pack-vance agent for the show sits on the running board of a Ford on which have been built canvas signs announcing the week's repertoire. On the upper deck a listless stinky sits polishing the steam calliper of his pocket. An unlighted cigar stub is clutched in one corner of his mouth, a renovated Panama tilt over his fast whitening hair—and you just know that he doubles in "dear old father" roles. With slow, gliding, roundabout manipulation the show boat, Hollywood, is finally pushed into her muddy berth, the landing plank is lowered and a square framework filled with well worn pictures of the principals is placed on display.

This, I blush to admit, was my first encounter with a show boat, and there's a thrill about it I haven't got out of a Broadway theater in two seasons. The show boat, gliding nesterly below the bridge and floated down stream while the gent in the gray duster showed me about.

"Yesir, you could use one of age" candy boxes. At the entrance hung a sign reading: "Women will please take out crying babies and save the management the embarrassment of asking them to leave."

And in that sign you have the whole story of the communal nature of a show boat audience—women with a bevy of youngsters, men down from the hills, in from the fields or from the nearby mills.

The soubrette, dressed in a flaming red outfit, appears on deck. The leading man tilts a small mirror as he starts shaving on a deck. Several of the performers are New Yorkers, from minor Broadway productions who get lots of fresh air and sunshine and a whole season of work. They're "old" on the river life and eat up the small town idolatry. The three little newspaper vendors are augmented by a half dozen men who have been loafing in the parkway. There is little activity aboard. No show Sunday to spend.

And a full week's engagement ahead. And then, on down the river.

For the show boat is still a vital factor in the river life. The movies have not affected the floating theater, and don't seem likely to. Up and down the river, romance still rides with the square white "river palaces."

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG.

On July 1, 1863, the most hotly contested battle of the Civil War in America, the Battle of Gettysburg, began.

The conflict took place at Gettysburg, Pa., between the Federal Army of the Potomac, numbering about 80,000 men, and the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia of 73,000 men.

About 8 a. m. Confederate and Federal troops clashed. Both sides suffered heavy losses during that day. The battle continued with minor conflicts until July 3, when General Meade decided to hold the Federal army in the position then occupied until further attack.

Misconstruing this lull, the Confederate troops made one of the most magnificent charges known in military history. Advancing steadily in three columns in the face of a destructive artillery fire, the Confederates promptly filled up the great gaps cut into their lines by the Federal shells. Within 300 yards of the Federal line they met the musketry fire of the Federal Infantry, which had been previously demoralized.

Soon Confederate troops were in rapid retreat, their ranks being enveloped by the Federal army.

During the three days' battle the Federal army lost 3072 killed, 14,497 wounded and 5434 captured or missing. The Confederate army, according to official reports, which have been questioned, lost 2592 killed, 12,709 wounded and 5160 captured or missing.

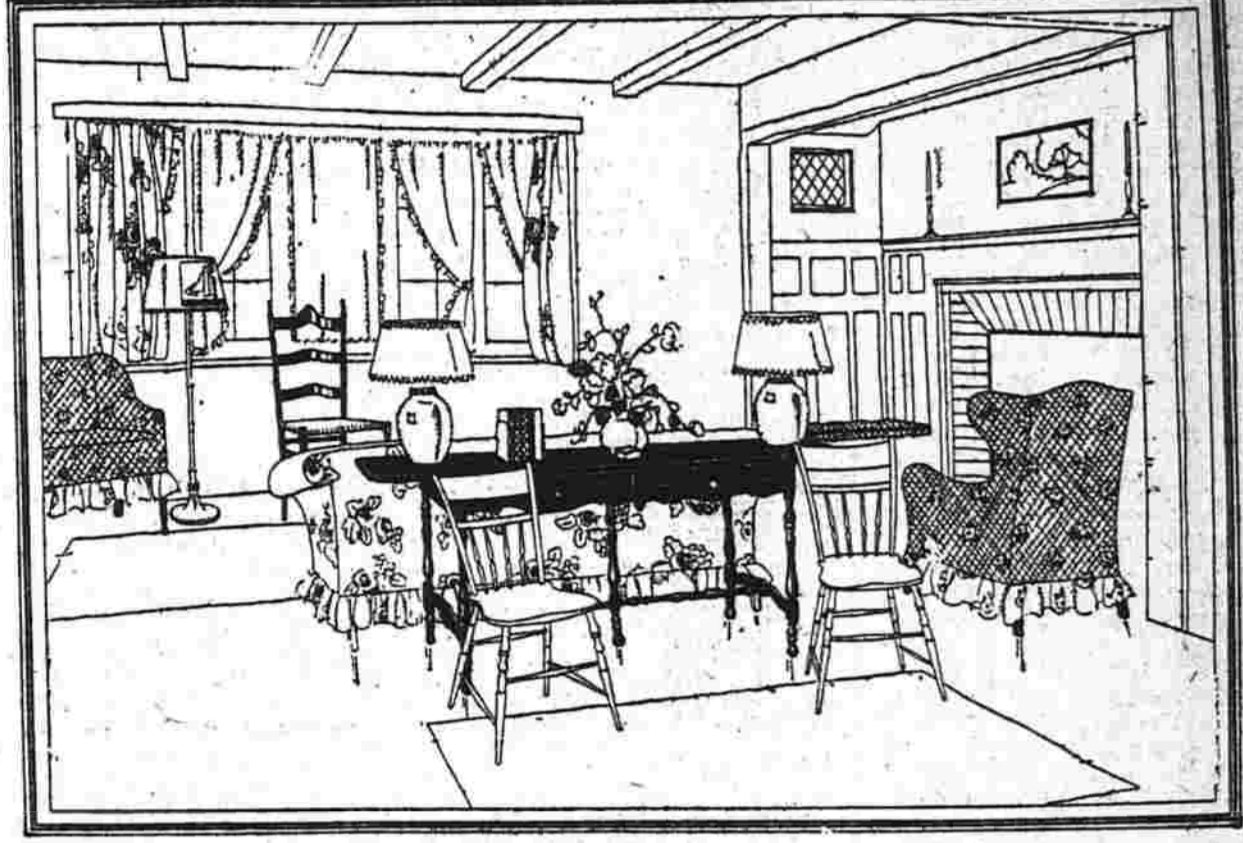

The battle is regarded as the turning point in the Civil War.

Broadway is full of actors out of work and we don't suppose the poor chaps even had the foresight to send a lobby to Washington to work for actor relief.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, July 1—Organized labor believes it won a substantial victory in the recent settlement of the textile strike at Elizabethton, Tenn., although only a minority of workers there have as yet been able to regain their jobs, according to Miss Matilda Lindsay, southern field representative of the Women's Trade Union League.

Reports from the scene have conflicted in so far as they have sought to explain whether the settlement was a victory for the strikers or the owners of the Bemberg or Gianstoft mills, the two rayon plants affected. The point is one of considerable interest because the Elizabethton strikes have received more national attention than any labor effort in a long time.

Miss Lindsay was one of the first labor leaders to reach the Tennessee mill town. The strike began without any local union or outside assistance, but subsequently Miss Lindsay co-operated with officials of the United Textile Workers and the A. F. of L. in an intensive program of organization and morale work. She organized the relief work for the second strike.

"The thing to remember," Miss Lindsay says, "is that the strikers won their wage increase in the first strike, and that the second strike began only as pro-doing either of these things. The Communists have been spreading all sorts of rumors, including such yarns as that we have been given hundreds of thousands of dollars for strike relief which never reached Elizabethton.

"Mr. Wilson says he expects to get most of the strikers back at work by July 4, but he has not been willing to turn the strike-breakers out all at once and says he prefers to ease them out gradually as they demonstrate their inefficiency."

Some people try to learn as much by watching the mistakes of others that they never see their own.

Do YOU know how to Dial?

A Message to Telephone Subscribers in the Manchester Exchange

PRACTICALLY every telephone in the Manchester exchange area will be changed to the dial method of operation very soon.

A booklet giving complete information on the use of the dial telephone has now been mailed to each of these subscribers.

Please read this booklet carefully, so that you may know how to use your dial telephone before the new system is put into service.

After you have read the instruction booklet, if you desire further information about the use of your dial telephone, please come to our business office, 52 East Center Street, or to one of these two demonstration locations—Murphy's Drug Store, 4 Depot Square, Manchester, and 985 Main Street (a few doors north of the Post Office), South Manchester—where you will have opportunity to make trial calls over working dial telephones.

It is important that you know how to dial correctly, for while the dial telephone is simple and easy to use, the accuracy of your service will depend to a large extent upon your knowledge of how to dial.

Mantelli Fans Thirteen As Manchester Wins 6-3

Silk City Seems to Be a Jinx to Peppy Majors; St. John Hits Hard.

For the fourth time this season, Manchester and Wilmington met on the baseball field yesterday afternoon and for the fourth time the Silk City was victorious. The Peppy Majors from the Thread City have a good club and have furnished some fine opposition. Local teams, but the breaks just don't go their way.

Yesterday it was Massey's tribe that sent them home on the short end of another score. The tally sheet read 6 to 3. A few weeks ago Wilmington lost double header to the team also by close scores and then played Manchester Green with the same result. The Major's have Massey's outfit booked for a return game in Wilmington soon when who knows but what they will be able to shake off the jinx on that occasion.

Mantelli in Form.

Too much Mantelli just about tells the story of Wilmington's downfall yesterday. The chunky star-batted finger was in rare form and had the visitors eating out of his hand after the first three innings. A teasing slow-breaking outcurve and a dandy change of pace were his greatest assets.

Mantelli retired 13 on strikes and walked but two. He got six kayotes the first two innings and yet was scored upon twice. Joe McInnes, former Bulkeley High sensation from New London, was the only one man on strikes.

Doubles by Massey and St. John and a single by Stratton accounted for Manchester's two runs in the first. The second inning run scored by Mantelli who singled and later came home on Massey's sacrifice fly to right. McLaughlin singled in the third and rode home on Carlson's triple. St. John got a triple in the next inning but was out by no-carrier. Wilmington scored its three runs in the first three innings, one per frame. Baker singled in the first and came in on F. Kegler's single. Southward doubled in the second and came in when Carlson's throw to the go by Hewitt. Baker scored the other tally in the third when he raced home on a play to catch a runner at second.

The score stayed 4 to 3 for several innings. It was the eighth Mantelli got a lucky hit to left when Southward dropped his low fly to left that brought in Dowd and McLaughlin who had singled before him.

The Manchester team will play the Bon Ami at Hickey's Grove tomorrow evening. Yesterday's summary:

BON AMI TRIMS SOUTH WINDSOR

Jack Godek Allows Four Hits and Slaps Home Run, Seven Innings Played.

The Bon Ami scored another triumph on the baseball field yesterday afternoon when it easily took the measure of the South Windsor contingent 5 to 1 at Hickey's field. Rain called an end to the battle in the seventh.

Jack Godek again got himself into the limelight through his splendid work on the mound. The visitors touched up when it easily took the measure of the South Windsor contingent 5 to 1 at Hickey's field. Rain called an end to the battle in the seventh.

RAIN ROBS GREEN OF DESERVED WIN

Locals Lead 6-2 When Weather Calls a Halt; Noel Goes Good.

Manchester Green seemed well on its way to a sure victory in its clash with the Windsor Athletics yesterday afternoon at Woodbridge Field. The locals were sitting on top of a 6 to 2 lead when old Jupiter Pluvius called an end to festivities at the completion of the fourth inning thus saving the visitors from an official defeat.

The Green whaled the tar out of Amos in the first inning and scored six runs. Ty Holland started the assault with a clean double and it remained for Joe Noel, Lowell southpaw imported by Manager Sam Prentice, to finish the job with the same kind of a blow. There was no further scoring except in the third when Windsor got to Noel for two tallies.

The Green is planning a double-header for the Fourth, one game to be played here. The summary of yesterday's contest as far as it progressed was as follows:

CAN'T KEEP HIM DOWN

Robert (Bobby) Tyre Jones

Jones Again Rules U. S. Open Champion

Overwhelms Espinosa by 23 Strokes in Play-off After Tying Him Saturday; New Stars Needed.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, July 1.—Word was expected hourly today to the effect that an enterprising coal dealer had gone and delivered another load to Newcastle and, while defining the information was lacking, a certain dog, well known to the authorities, was believed to be a vegetarian no longer. He is understood to have bitten the man again, once more beating the latter to the bite. And while we are reaching for another sedative, it might as well be mentioned that Bobby Jones won another golf championship yesterday.

He won the thirty-third of a list of National Open events out at Winged Foot in a play off that rapidly became a laugh off after the first six or seven holes. So that if there is any further biting to be done around here, the man will do it in connection with the dog. He will go around behind the clubhouse and bite himself.

The Scores.

The man in this particular instance is Al Espinosa, who tied Jones for the title on Saturday and then lost by twenty-three strokes in yesterday's play-off for probably as bad a beating as ever one ranking bad a medal rounds of 72 in the morning and 69 in the afternoon for a thirty-six hole total of 141, three under par. Espinosa had 84 in the morning and 50 in the afternoon and you will have to figure for yourself just how much over par this is, because Espinosa is a worthy young man and it is fast becoming necessary to maintain some kind of a censorship over details in connection with what Bobby Jones, the amateur, does to professional golfers. Yesterday he broke Espinosa as one might expect a soft-boiled egg—but it is apparent that in a play off with Jones in 1923 but every front rank golfer has one big year and probably this was Johnny's. He didn't even qualify for the final two rounds of this tournament. Sarazen also had a single season of brilliance but this was seven years ago. He still is good but not good enough. Neither apparently is Armor, who won the title in 1927 and very little since. Diegel lacks consistency; so does Melhorn. As for the Smiths, Horton and Mac, it might seem that neither is what they call a big tournament player.

Old Guard Passing.

However, all of those mentioned are great golfers and they would be "up in the lights" today, pampered heroes of their profession, if it weren't for one thing. Their brilliance is so much brass in comparison with that of Jones, Furthemore, they are getting old trying to beat him. If professional golf is to sponsor a man who can meet this amateur phenomenon on common ground, day in and day out, that man seemingly must come from the younger school. The old guard is definitely passing.

Horton Smith, being young, is a possibility, unless that winter season of his down south was just so many horse collars and cuffs.

Densmore Shutes, who finished in a tie with Sarazen for third place.

SALVATION ARMY CAMP IN SO. COVENTRY OPENS

Sixty Boys from Connecticut Cities to Be Given Vacation on Lake Wangumbaug.

South Coventry, July 1.—Nestling among the green hills of this historic town and washed by the clear waters of Lake Wangumbaug "Camp Nathan Hale," the Salvation Army's new fresh-air camp for underprivileged children, opens here this afternoon. Three weeks ago, the camp was a 6 1/2 acre farm. Today the 60 boys who arrive to spend two glorious weeks here as guests of the Army, find it a well-equipped and thoroughly modern health-camp. This transformation has been worked in this amazingly short time by the indefatigable labors of Brigadier Albert E. Bates, officer in command of Connecticut, and his staff.

With their own hands—and while carrying on the arduous executive duties of the Army work in this state—the Brigadier and his staff have erected tents for the 60 boys, cleared away barns and useless buildings, erected a kitchen and a dining-hall and other necessary structures, remodeled and furnished the farm-house, built and graded paths, prepared the waterfront for bathing and accomplished the 1000 and one things necessary to make a camp where the boys and girls of Connecticut may find health and happiness.

The 60 boys arriving today will stay here two weeks. Then, another contingent of 60 boys will enjoy two weeks. The first of August, 60 girls will come and, their two weeks done, the final group of 60 girls will come for their fortnight. Thus 240 boys and girls, underprivileged children from 11 to 18 will exchange the heat and discomfort of the congested sections of Connecticut's cities for the health and happiness of the camp.

As far as practicable, children will be selected from every larger city in the state and every effort will be made to select the most worthy children. Another year, it is expected that the resources of the Camp will be so increased that more children can be taken.

Six miles from Willimantic and 22 from Hartford, the Camp is situated near the birth-place of Nathan Hale and adjacent to the historic Coventry burying ground where he lies. The camp is ideally situated upon a sloping meadow which runs down from the road to the lake below. Gardens and magnificent trees cover the place and it will be a paradise for the children.

The chief feature of the camp is what is known as the "Point." This is a wooded knoll some 50 feet high, almost an island, which juts out into the cool waters of the lake. Wind-swept and pleasantly shaded, it is a marvelous spot. Here, with the bathing beach on one side and the boat landing on the other and with the long vistas of the lake on both sides, the main outdoor life of the camp will be carried on. In a little basin, the council ring will be built and, of nights, after the hustle has calmed away, the children will gather around a blazing fire and come close to the out-of-doors.

In back of the "Point" is a heavy wood which is not only filled with all sorts of trees and flowers but which boasts of a great variety of bird-life. Thus an ideal opportunity will be afforded the children to learn something of the botany and ornithology of their state.

Diets for the children are being carefully worked out and the child that does not go home several pounds heavier than he came will be an exception to the rule. Every care will also be taken to guard their health. Milk and cream, fruits and vegetables will be supplied in abundance and—all in all, the children will have a wonderful time.

On Sundays, arrangements have been made for everyone in camp to attend Nathan Hale's church in the village.

DR. BISSELL ORDAINED AT CHURCH IN HEBRON

Californian, Here for Annual School Session, Becomes Deacon in Saturday Ceremony.

(Special to The Herald)

Hebron, June 29.—The ordination of Dr. Benjamin H. Biswell, of California, to the diaconate took place at St. Peter's church on Saturday, at 11 a. m. The Right Rev. E. Campion Acheson, bishop of the diocese, was present and took charge of the ceremony. The Rev. J. H. Fitzgerald, rector of Christ church, Bay Ridge, N. Y., preached the sermon, basing his discourse on the life and influence of St. Peter. Mr. Fitzgerald, who is a son of the late Rev. John Fitzgerald, a former rector of St. Peter's, alluded to the debt which he feels that he owes to his early associations with this community and church.

As the day was St. Peter's Day, altar hangings, hymns, etc., were arranged appropriately for the occasion. Other visiting clergy who assisted in the ceremony were the Rev. Frederick C. Williams, of St.

Paul's church, Willimantic, the Rev. Mr. Wright of Putnam, the Rev. L. R. Richards, of Pomfret, and the Rev. Mr. Jones of St. Alban's church, Danielson. Holy Communion was administered, the bishop celebrant, assisted by the Rev. T. D. Martin, rector emeritus of St. Peter's church. The Rev. Mr. Richards read the litany, and the rector emeritus presented the candidate for ordination.

This was the first occasion at which a candidate for ordination to the diaconate has received his ordination in this church at Hebron, though the Rev. Jared Ellsworth was ordained priest here in 1880, having received his ordination as deacon previously. The majority of ordinations take place at the Cathedral of the diocese. Following the ceremony the entire congregation adjourned to the rectory grounds and partook of a bountiful lunch provided by the women of the parish. Visitors were present from many of the different parishes of the state. The music was rendered by an augmented choir and Dr. E. A. Warren, dean of St. Peter's school, officiated at the organ.

Theaters

AT THE STATE.

"Careers." "Talking pictures are here to stay!" That was Billie Dove's opinion when she was interviewed a few months ago by a prominent newspaper correspondent during the filming of "Careers," her first 100 per cent all-talking First National Vitaphone picture, which is now being shown at the State theater. "To be able to talk and act at the same time is a great pleasure for me," said Miss Dove. "Not only that, but it seems to make my work lots easier. It is really quite hard to try and convince an audience that you have dramatic ability in a silent film. The only reason I can give for this is that to be able to act according to the script of the picture you must talk. Even before I was given my chance on the Vitaphone, I was always accustomed to speaking most of my lines anyway. Talking pictures, to my knowledge, are here to stay."

In "Careers," Miss Dove seems twice as beautiful when she speaks. Her voice is like sweet music coming from a magnificent instrument. Not once does she fail to impress her admirers.

Supporting her in this picture are Antonio Moreno, Noah Beery, Thelma Todd, Robert Fraser and Holmes Herbert.

A Hal Roach MGM comedy, a synchronized song reel and the current issue of State News Events will also be shown.

Wednesday and Thursday bring Monte Blue in the Warner Brothers Vitaphone talking picture, "From Headquarters."

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

NAN CARROLL, finding herself in love with her employer, JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, lawyer, decides to resign. Her resignation is postponed, however, when she learns Morgan is engaged to a supposed friend, BERT CRAWFORD.

Morgan wins Crawford's acquittal. Crawford leaves town at once, followed closely by IRIS, Morgan's wife, who writes Morgan she will never return. Reference to Crawford, whom Morgan does not suspect, is cleverly omitted.

Nan saves Morgan from despair by forcing him into his work. For six months she acts as lawyer, tending housekeeper for him, winning the love of little CURTIS, Morgan's son, and bringing comfort to a man who ironically thinks only of another woman.

Morgan tells her he is divorcing Iris and asks her to marry him. They are prevented from going on their honeymoon by the unexpected arrival of a pleading client. Nan urges Morgan to accept the case.

Their farcical marriage continues for three months. Hysterically, Nan prepares to leave, but Morgan intercepts her, confesses he adores her but has believed she married him out of pity.

The next morning, Iris returns, apparently deserted by Crawford. She feigns unconsciousness and illness in an effort to bring Morgan to his knees. Nan, determined to fight, has the doctor remove Iris to a hospital. Morgan accompanies her. At the office that day, Nan remembers a letter proving Iris perfidy—but no, she can not fight that way! In her room that night, she locks the door. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

It was 6 o'clock when Nan Morgan, in a temper of unreasoning fury and fear, locked her doors against any attempt her husband might make to bring her his load of despair and newly revived love of his first wife.

"She shan't haunt this room, too, as she does every other room in the house," Nan murmured. She was trembling with the fury of her own determination, but her ears betrayed her by straining to catch the faintest sound which would indicate that he was trying to come to her. After many minutes she heard him open his door. Breathlessly she waited, savagely eager to have him turn the knob of her door and find it locked.

She herself was suffering so terribly that it gave her a fierce, perverse pleasure to think of his being hurt, too. Kneeling down before that woman who had never loved him and who had deserted him! Nan clenched her hands as her eyes stared at the doorknob. Going to the hospital twice in one day to see her husband who wasn't really sick at all, but just shamming to win his sympathy! He'd always been wax in Iris' hands. Well, let him be hurt now! It would serve him right. She had been hurt enough, God knew. But he had not touched the knob of her door.

She heard water running; faint, familiar sounds which told her he was getting out his shaving things. She could see every step of the process as if she were in the bathroom beside him. The way he stretched his upper lip in a comical grimace; the brooding gravity in his deep-set black eyes, which saw nothing funny in the facial contortions a man makes when he shaves himself. The infinite care with which he circled the safety razor about the little brown mole on his right cheek. Oh! Nan caught her breath as she saw that he had not touched the knob of her door.

"wormed her way" into John Curtis Morgan's home, into his grief, into the affections of his son, so that marriage with her had come to seem inevitable, he and the child would have been free to welcome Iris home. What did it matter that they had been better off without her? If they preferred sickness to health, misery to peace, Iris to Nan, why shouldn't they have them? People never thanked you for doing things for their good.

"Oh, excuse me, Mrs. Morgan, I didn't know you was there," Estelle apologized as she almost bumped into the frozen figure in the doorway. "Dinner is served, ma'am."

The two before the fireplace started, the man guiltily. The 7-year-old boy stared at Nan as if he had never seen her before, a strange hostility in his lithe, black eyes. There was a deep flush on his cheeks. Nan's heart contracted sharply with anxiety. Did he have a fever? Why was he staring at her like that? Had Iris already begun to poison the child against her? Again that curious, direct glance of hostility from the black eyes which had been so full of love as late as this morning.

"Yes," Morgan agreed, flushing and lowering his eyes. "They were operating on her. Now she could walk. Minutes ago I telephoned the hospital and the poor old man has come out of the ether all right. If there are no serious complications he'll pull through, Dr. Matthews says."

"I'm glad," Nan said in a low voice. There seemed to be nothing else to add, nothing worth noting to talk about.

For Iris was as much a member of the party as the others, as if she sat on the vacant fourth side of the table. Nan felt that the insolent blue-green eyes were mocking them all.

"Don't want any spinach and carrots—peas," Curtis said suddenly, violently thrusting aside the vegetable dish from which Estelle was about to serve him.

Morgan snapped out of a period of brooding abstraction to frown upon his son. "Eat what's put before you, Curtis," he commanded sternly.

"I won't!" Curtis shouted, the feverish flush deepening alarmingly on the face which had once been so thin and anemic and now was plump with health. "Mother says I don't have to eat things I don't like! Sides, she gave me all the chocolates I wanted out of that big box you took her. I aren't hungry!"

Morgan seemed glad of the chance to show righteous anger. The two who were so alike and yet so different glared at each other.

"Then leave the table!" the father ordered savagely. "And go straight to bed. You know you're not permitted to eat between meals and that's all!"

The child's howl of rage cut across his father's furious rebuke.

Involuntarily, Nan reached out a hand and laid it soothingly upon Curtis' clenched fist. "Please, John! Let me . . . Curtis, darling, you don't want to lose your gold star, do you? A perfect Health Chart, do you? If you aren't hungry, you can skip dessert, but Nan does want you to eat the vegetables—"

"Won't eat them!" Curtis screamed, pushing his plate so violently that part of the food spilled upon the immaculate white cloth. "Don't have to do what you tell me! You ain't got any right to boss me! Mother says—"

"Go to your room!" his father roared, rising and bending over the child as if his clenched fists longed to strike him. "And stay there till you're ready to apologize to Nan and to promise to obey her implicitly. Do you understand?"

Nan shrank into her chair, every nerve outraged by the scene, the like of which had never taken place in that home since she had become its mistress. Helplessly, she watched the child scramble out of his chair and run howling from the room.

"I'm sorry, Nan," Morgan apologized stiffly, extreme pallor suddenly taking the place of the flush of anger.

Nan nodded dumbly and the miserable meal progressed in silence. Dishes were brought and removed, their delicious contents scarcely touched by either. It came to an end last and the two who had been so close moved together, but miles apart, toward the drawing room.

For a few minutes they talked the Blackhull case, then abruptly Morgan introduced the only subject about which either of them could think:

"I—Nan, we'd better face this thing, hadn't we? I've got to talk to you about Iris."

"How did the trial progress?" Any jurors chosen? Nan asked in an apparently cheerful casualness.

"We went to the hospital to see my mother," Curtis cut in, his voice sounding oddly mature and childishly belligerent. "She—"

"What a question, son," the father reproved him sternly, but laid a hand on the boy's shoulder. "Haven't you seen the afternoon paper, Nan? The trial is adjourned until January 9."

No need now to pretend interest. Nan cried. "Adjourned? Why? What happened? You don't mean Brainerd wasn't ready? Or do you suppose he'd got wind of what we're going to spring?"

Morgan was obviously grateful for her interest and for the chance to think and talk of something else besides the amazing return of his divorced wife. He drew out a chair for Nan with his usual meticulous politeness, as he answered:

"Oh, no, nothing like that. We were impeaching the jury, had agreed on four men, when about 3 o'clock this afternoon Brainerd got word that his star witness, the butler, Edgars, had been stricken with acute appendicitis and rushed to the hospital for an emergency operation."

"How did the trial progress?" Any jurors chosen? Nan asked in an apparently cheerful casualness.

"We went to the hospital to see my mother," Curtis cut in, his voice sounding oddly mature and childishly belligerent. "She—"

"What a question, son," the father reproved him sternly, but laid a hand on the boy's shoulder. "Haven't you seen the afternoon paper, Nan? The trial is adjourned until January 9."

Greta's Shadowy Lashes Given Expert Care

Greta Garbo

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of "Close-Ups" of motion picture stars—brief, sparkling interviews on beauty topics—which will appear in The Herald.

By MABEL DUKE.

There's a legend in Hollywood concerning the eyelashes of Greta Garbo. When she first came to this country from Sweden to make pictures, it is said she was asked to clip the ends of her lashes to remove the shadows they cast on her face before the camera.

Be that as it may, those long, thick, curling lashes are responsible for much of the mysterious allure which is hers.

"Any girl may have long thick lashes if she will give them the proper care," advises Miss Greta Garbo, "and, incidentally, they require as great care as the hair, hands or complexion.

"The two factors I've found important in encouraging their growth are nourishment and stimulation. Yellow oxide of mercury is best for nourishment. Rub it into the lashes each night before retiring. It also may be used to remove powder from the lashes after making-up. Those who find mascara too obvious.

"Vaseline may be used instead of this preparation.

"For stimulation, form a habit of pulling the lashes gently with the thumb and first finger, pulling out the loose hairs. Don't pull too strongly, for it will break down the tissues of the eyelids. Further, brush the lashes each night with a soft eyelash brush, always brushing upward for the upper ones and downward for those beneath, encouraging a graceful sweep of the lashes."

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

SUMMER CAMPS ARE NOT ALWAYS GOOD THINGS FOR CHILDREN

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Nowadays many mothers and fathers give themselves two months' vacation in the summer by sending the children to summer camps. This may be excellent for the parents and bad for the children, or vice versa.

The summer camp may benefit the child's health and morals, but it has the tendency to diminish too greatly the intimacy of the parents with the child, an intimacy which is becoming less and less in these modern times. It may be the wrong type of vacation for both parents and children.

That, after all, is a matter which every parent will have to decide for himself.

The primary object of a vacation is rest, and the primary object of rest is relief from strain. Some persons suffer far greater strain during a time when they are not occupied than in an interesting employment. Most people feel the strain of the vacation the first two or three days. Since the vacation activities bring into play muscles and ligaments not usually used, the vacation should therefore be taken up gradually.

It may be highly desirable to take a nap every day after lunch before embarking on the physical activities of the afternoon. Nothing is so sad as a vacation that goes sour. It brings the person back to work dissatisfied, tired and irritated and disatisfied. Better no vacation at all than one with such a serious effect on the temperament.

If one worries unduly about the business when away, the vacation will do harm. Be sure you are satisfied with the business before you start. And when we say business in the case of mothers, we mean the condition of the children and the home.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

When school is over Dad looks over his glasses at Johnny and says, "Well, son, now that you've got nothing to do, I think I can manage to find a few little odd jobs to keep you busy."

"That lawn out there needs to be carried once a week, the car needs a shampoo twice a week, and the hedge ought to have a hair cut about once a month."

And he mentions a few other things that Johnny might do in his spare time, such as cleaning out the cellar and painting the porch steps, and he adds that Johnny's Aunt Clara and Johnny's Grandma are waiting to have a few things done too.

In the meanwhile his mother hasn't been idle. Her mind has a neat little stack of choice jobs waiting for Son John that we needn't unveil.

Poor Johnny!

The whole family is singing a chorus, "When Johnny gets out of school! When Johnny gets out of school! When Johnny gets out of school! When Johnny gets out of school!"

We shall now skip the next month and raise the curtain in the theater of Johnny's great performance.

Act 1—The lawn of the Smith house. In the foreground one medium-sized lawn mower. Two slices of lawn extending a fragrance of newly cut grass, the remainder billowing and rippling in the breeze, like a field of young wheat.

Players—Mr. Smith and Mrs. Smith.

Mr. Smith alighting from his car and looking around. "Hm! Same old story."

Mrs. Smith (appearing at screen): "He been gone since noon and I can't find him. I've called up every place I can think of, but he's just nowhere. Isn't this place a disgrace!"

Mr. Smith: "Disgrace! Will you please lift your eyes and look at that car. It still has the mud on it we got Sunday week ago in the storm. Don't talk about disgrace to me. I'll tell you what's a disgrace. It's that worthless boy we've got. Not a darn thing done. Look at that hedge! Look at those steps! One step painted and the rest of the paint still in the can waiting for me to trip over it in the garage. He's gone swimming, I'll bet a dollar. Just plain worthless—that's what he is."

No second or third act. That's all there is, there isn't any more.

Oh, fathers, fathers! Oh, mothers, mothers! Vacation, summer time, children, work. Mix them if you can. Some way or other I never could get a very good idea, and if you can, you're a wonder.

JELLY IS DELICIOUS WITH ROASTS

By Sister Mary.

Most housekeepers like to have a few glasses of home-made jelly in their fruit cupboard. With the "home-made" went so much in vogue, the housewife can be quite in vogue.

Current jelly is one of the best to have on hand. It's delicious with roast lamb or mutton and adds a piquant touch to many a dessert or sauce. It is exceptionally easy to make in as much as it is sure. To "jell," currants are rich in that peculiar jelly-making factor, pectin, and make a perfect jelly without the use of commercial pectin. They are excellent to combine with non-acid fruits lacking in pectin.

All fruit for jelly making should be under-ripe rather than over-ripe. Keep this in mind. Under-ripe fruit will make a fine firm jelly while jelly made from over-ripe fruit has a tendency to be syrupy and granular.

Plain currant jelly is suitable to serve with meats while the "four-fruit" jelly is good with rolls or biscuits.

Plain Currant Jelly.

Wash currants and pick over but do not remove from stems. Put just enough water in a smooth broad preserving kettle to prevent burning and add fruit. Cover and bring quickly to the boiling point. Reduce heat and crush with a wooden potato masher. Simmer until currants look white. Strain through a jelly bag without pressing. Measure the unpressed juice and put into a broad sauce pan. Bring quickly to the boiling point and slowly sift in as many cups of sugar as there were cups of juice. Do not let the boiling stop while adding sugar. Boil rapidly until the syrup "absorbs" from the spoon. Another test is to pour a teaspoonful of syrup onto a cold saucer. If the syrup stiffens and forms jelly quickly the jelly is done. Pour slowly into hot sterilized glasses and cover with paraffin when cold.

Four Fruit Jelly.

One quart strawberries, 1 quart red raspberries, 1 quart currants, 1 quart cherries measured after stoning, sugar.

Wash and hull berries. Save juice from cherries that escapes while stoning. Pick currants from stems. Combine fruit, add cherry juice and put into jelly bag. Press hard and let drip. When all juice is extracted measure and add as many cups of sugar as there were cups of juice. Put into preserving kettle, mix well and bring quickly to the boiling point. Boil rapidly until a little tried on a cold saucer jellifies. Pour into sterilized glasses and cover with paraffin when cold.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Ask and It Shall Be Revealed. The goose had been carved, and everybody had tasted it. It was excellent. The negro minister, who was the guest of honor, could not restrain his enthusiasm. "Dat's as fine a goose as I ever set ma teeth in, Brudder William," he said to his host. "What did you get such a fine goose?" "Well, now parson," replied the carver of the goose, exhibiting great dignity and reluctance, "when you preaches a sermon, a spushful goose, I never axes you what you got it. I hopes you will show de same consideration."

A colored boy failed to show up for work one Monday morning. His employer upon investigation, found Moses in bed with his head badly bruised and one ear nearly chewed off. "You see, boss, it was dis way," Moses explained; "me and Rastus got in a fight and he got me down. Every time I tried to tell him I had enuf he would hit me on de haid and chew mah ears and, boss, hones, I neveh got so thied of a neggah in all my life."

Dinah, crying bitterly, was coming down the street with her feet bandaged. "Why, what on earth's the matter?" she was asked. "How did you hurt your feet, Dinah?" "Dat good-to-nothing man (sniffle) done hit me on de haid wit a club while I was standin' on de hard stone pavement."

Mrs. McPherson—"I caught the maid making love to the iceman again. You had better speak to her."

Mr. McPherson—"What? The iceman—when we still owe for last month's ice?"

Tenderfoot: I came near selling my shoes today. Second Class: How come? Tenderfoot: I had them half-sold.

Wife (during quarrel): "You're becoming absolutely unbearable. It will soon be impossible to live with you." Hub (hopefully): "How soon?"

Eddie—"Do you know what Ford is figuring on now?" Jack—"No. What?" Eddie—"Scratch pads."

Teacher: "Give me an historical example of inappropriate action." Bright Pupil: "When Rome was burning, Nero played the fiddle when he should have been playing the hose."

A guide showing an old lady over the Zoo took her to a cage occupied by a kangaroo. "Here, madam," he said, "we have a native of Australia." "Good gracious," she said, "an' to think my sister married one of them!"

She was only a banker's daughter, but she certainly held plenty of interest.

"Rastus, is my bawth warm?" "Yassah, the wahmest Ah was evah in."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.) "What are those eyes?" wee Clowny cried. "Let's find a cave in they rushed, and felt they were all right. Perhaps they are a friend's eyes, but I fear that I am wrong. It is so dark we cannot see just who, or what it is. Oh, gee, some place where we are good and safe is where we all belong." The scarecrow then snapped, "I agree. Come on, you Tinsies, follow me. I'll find a place where we can hide. Be quiet if you can. A cave, of course, would be the best. We'll find one, if with luck we're blest." And so the scarecrow took the lead, and off the whole bunch ran. They all glanced backward now and then, and everyone ran faster when they saw the eyes traveling too. Said Coppy, "We are lost. Those eyes are getting closer now. I'm sure we'll soon be in a row. We'll have to find a hiding place right now, at any cost." The scarecrow whispered, "Here's a cave. I know that somehow I

START INSTRUCTION IN DIAL PHONING

Three Demonstration Locations Are Opened Here; Are Easy to Operate.

Equipment for the practical demonstration of how to operate dial telephones has been installed in three locations in this exchange area and telephone subscribers who may be in doubt about the simple way of placing dial calls, are cordially invited to call at any one of these places, between July 1 and July 13, where an attendant will be glad to answer their questions and show them how a dial telephone operates.

At the Telephone Company's office, working dial telephones will be available for use from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. daily, except holidays and Sundays. Dial equipment for demonstration purposes has also been set up at Murphy's Drug Store, Depot Square, Manchester, where attendants will be in charge from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. and at 986 Main street, South Manchester, a few doors north of the Post Office from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily, July 4 and Sunday, July 7, excepted.

Exchange Manager Halsted stated today that while the dial telephone is easy to operate, it is important that subscribers know how to dial correctly to assure that their telephone service will continue to be satisfactory. Mr. Halsted stated that in the past, subscribers in other sections of the state who have from time to time been changed to dial service, called at the demonstration places and through making
