

DRY ENFORCEMENT NOT UP TO STATE RITCHIE ASSERTS

GOVERNOR ANSWERS CHAIRMAN

Chief Executive of Maryland Replies to Wickersham's Letter at Governor's Parley — "18th Amendment Imposes No Legal or Moral Obligation to Enforce Prohibition," He Says.

Groton, Conn., July 18.—Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland precipitated a sharp debate on the Prohibition question at the conference of governors here today when he took the floor and vigorously dissented from the Wickersham suggestion that the states assume a greater part in the burden of the Federal government in enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment.

Half a dozen governors promptly took occasion to express their views on Prohibition and the Wickersham proposal, and two of the governors, Governor John G. Richards of South Carolina, and Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina sought to have adopted resolutions they had introduced pledging to President Hoover the support of the governors in his effort to bring about stricter law enforcement.

But the resolutions were referred to the executive committee. It was announced that it was the custom of the governors at their annual conferences not to adopt resolutions, and that this instance, this policy was adhered to. The chair pointed out it was not the intention of the assembled governors to "disparage" the resolutions offered by Richards and Gardner.

Groton, Conn., July 17.—"The Eighteenth Amendment imposes no obligation, moral or legal, on the states of the union to enforce prohibition,"

Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland made this vigorous declaration today before the twenty-first conference of governors in replying to the suggestion of George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's Crime Commission, that the governors should take the Federal government with a proposal to assume the burden of exercising internal police regulations to prevent the sale of intoxicants in saloons and speakeasies.

Under Mr. Wickersham's scheme, the Federal prohibition authorities would have only to prevent importation, manufacture and shipment of liquor in interstate commerce. Thus far the Federal government has "borne the brunt" of enforcing prohibition, Wickersham said in a letter read before the governors' session yesterday.

Imposes No Obligations.
"It is time for the country to realize," said Mr. Ritchie, "that the Eighteenth Amendment imposes no obligation on the states to enforce it."

"The amendment gives the state concurrent jurisdiction with the Federal government in that regard but whether the state exercises it is optional with them. If they choose not to do so they violate no legal or moral obligation."

"Mr. Wickersham suggests that the Federal government stop the importation, manufacture and the interstate shipments of liquor and that the states enforce their laws in their borders. He adds a suggestion in this event the national and state might be modified so as to become reasonably enforceable. But his language is so uncertain that I am unable to understand what he means so I cannot comment upon that."

"However from Mr. Wickersham's suggestion that the state must take over the enforcement of the Volstead Act within their borders, I have already pointed out that this is neither their constitutional nor their moral duty."

"I now add that in my opinion it would not tend to remedy the crime situation which Mr. Wickersham's commission was appointed to study."

Governor Ritchie declared that aside from the class of crime such as bootlegging and hi-jacking, "which federal prohibition under the Volstead Act has created and aside from crimes for which they are responsible and for offenses under the Volstead Act, I doubt very much whether there is any crime wave."

PICKETT SCORNS RITCHIE'S VIEWS

Methodist Leader Says His Suggestion, If Followed, Would Disrupt Union.

Washington, July 18.—Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, has taken an indefensible position in the speech he made today at the governors' conference, at Groton, Conn., E. Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, declared.

He said Ritchie's statement that the Eighteenth Amendment imposed no obligation on the states to enforce prohibition was morally false, and asserted general acceptance of such a view would disrupt the Union.

Indefensible Position
"Gov. Ritchie has taken an indefensible position," he said. "There is every moral responsibility for the state to enforce prohibition. Ninety-nine per cent of all the prohibition troubles have been because of negligence or worse on the part of individual states. No union of states would be possible should the views expressed by Ritchie be carried out to a general conclusion."

REPORT 20 AIRPLANES LOST IN WILDERNESS

Hurricane Sweeps Them from Mooring in Woods in Northern Canada.

Toronto, Ont., July 18.—The Ontario government was making frantic efforts today to learn the fate of more than twenty airplanes adrift in the wilderness areas of the northwestern sections of the province, near Long Lac.

The planes, all government owned and used in the forest patrol and survey service, were caught in a hurricane that felled huge trees, snapped telephone and telegraph cables and spread havoc throughout the district.

Twenty government planes are stationed in the Long Lac area. Only two have been accounted for. These two were lifted from water moorings at Long Lac and blown thirty feet up the rocky shore by the terrific sweep of the whirlwind.

The Long Lac area is the aviation center of northern Ontario's forest mining empire. In addition to government planes, there are scores of private development company aircraft and planes owned by mining companies in the district.

DRY OFFICERS SEARCH FOR STILL IN CONVENT

Kick in Door But Find No Evidence of Law Violation and Later Apologize.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 18.—How officers kicked in a door of a Catholic convent and searched the place for a still was revealed here today when it was learned that officials of the Catholic church had protested the incident with the district attorney. The convent was entered without the formality of a search warrant it is charged.

As an aftermath of the incident, Burch Pitts, district attorney, has apologized to Catholic authorities, made his officers pay for the door and has ordered that no more raids be made without search warrants.

WICKERSHAM'S PLAN EXCITES SOUTH'S DRYS

Congressmen Open Campaign to Force President to Endorse or Disavow Chairman's Suggestion.

Washington, July 18.—Southern Congressional Drys today opened a campaign to force President Hoover to endorse or disavow the proposal of ex-Attorney-General George W. Wickersham, chairman of the president's law enforcement commission, to divide prohibition enforcement between the federal government and the states.

At the same time they attacked the sincerity of the administration's enforcement pledge, and injected politics with the declaration that Wickersham has done what the Drys said Alfred E. Smith would have done if he got into the White House.

Although heads of some dry organizations have defended the Wickersham proposal as the present government policy, the southern Senatorial Drys rose en masse to condemn it as the capitol somewhat recovered from its astonishment over the pronouncement.

Wets Puzzled.
The Wets generally were still somewhat puzzled over the possible effect of the idea. They particularly welcomed what they assumed to be an implication that the present law is unenforceable.

With Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas, calling for Wickersham's resignation, "unless Mr. Hoover know that his chairman was to make such a proposal" other Dry Senators attacked it as a plan to virtually nullify the 18th Amendment.

While Senator Borah (R) of Idaho has declined to discuss the plan, it is expected that he will join in the criticism.

If Smith Had Won.
"If Governor Smith had been elected president and had appointed Wickersham chairman of the investigating committee which he proposed, the letter of Governor Smith's chairman would have been hailed as the first effort looking to the modification of the 18th Amendment, reversing the states' grant of powers to the government in the 18th Amendment," said Senator George (D) of Georgia, a rival of Smith for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas took the same view, declaring: "If Governor Smith were president and he made such a suggestion, every Dry in the United States would say that Smith was plotting the destruction of prohibition, and there would be no answer to it."

Senator Thomas (D) of Oklahoma also declared that "Governor Smith could not have appointed anyone who would do more than has the chairman of the Hoover

GODDARD'S ROCKET SCARES RESIDENTS

Giant Metal Projectile Shot from Gun; Scientist Plans to Reach the Moon.

Worcester, Mass., July 18.—Everybody agreed today that Goddard's "Moon Rocket" is a "wow."

Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark university announced that a new propellant had been used and that a test was thoroughly satisfactory.

Residents of the countryside about the peaceful town of Auburn declared that they thought the end of the world had come.

As the metal projectile on a trial trip was fired from a bomb-proof room through a tower in Auburn, the blast echoed for miles, shook windows, caused some alarm and started searchers out for a fallen airplane.

Would Reach Moon
For years Professor Goddard has been working on a plan to shoot a rocket skyward to reach the moon or Mars, modern application of Jules Verne's dream. His latest test, he said, was one of a series of experiments with rockets using a new kind of a propellant. The rocket was noisy, attracted considerable attention but the test was thoroughly satisfactory said Professor Goddard. He declared that nothing exploded in the air and that there was no damage except that incident to landing. He declined to go into the matter any further.

Residents of Auburn, however, said that a terrific explosion was followed by the roar of a projectile as it shot into the air from a specially constructed rocket gun.

It was learned that radio was now figuring in the Goddard experiments but to what extent the scientist refused to state.

COOPER RAPS FAKE MERGERS IN ADDRESS

Warns Public Will Deal With Force Against Combinations Founded on Greed and Selfishness.

Groton, Conn., July 18.—Warning that the people will deal "with directness and force" in big utility mergers that have for their purpose "selfishness and greed" was voiced by Governor Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio in an address today before the conference of governors. The right kind of consolidations, however, will meet with no objection from the public, he declared.

"If consolidations and enlargements bring to the people advantages of service and a consequent lowering of the cost, then benefits will accrue and such consolidations will prove of advantage to the people," said Governor Cooper.

"If on the other hand great aggregations of wealth enjoying monopolistic privileges fail to contribute to the economic and social well being and use these enterprises for the purpose of selfishness and greed, the people will not be without remedy to deal with the situation and that with directness and force."

The Important Question
Governor Cooper declared that an important question before the American people has to do with proper regulation of great aggregations of wealth invested in enterprises of a quasi-public nature for general service of the people.

"The attitude of the people toward the function of government in this matter is definitely fixed and clear," he said, "while recognizing the need for expansion, the people demand that government shall so regulate these vast interests as fully to protect them against unjust rates and inferior service."

Age of Bigness
To talk about destroying or tearing down structures of this character is simply to ignore the bigness of the age in which we live and the tremendous exactions made upon such service.

"The real test and value to the people or large corporate interests is found in the capacity and the will to better serve, and, since

RESULTS!

Mrs. Clara Reymander while on her way to the Mma. Frances gown shop Tuesday lost a valuable pearl and platinum crescent pin, greatly prized as a gift. Careful search of the route she traveled failed to find the pin, and she hopefully inserted a little classified ad in The Herald.

Result: A Fairview resident while passing the store of Montgomery Ward found the pin and consulted the classified advertisement columns of The Herald. She tried yesterday to get in touch with Mrs. Reymander at the gown shop but as it was Merchants' day all the stores were closed.

Mrs. Reymander's voice as she telephoned the news to The Herald this morning was in decided contrast to the disconsolate tone used when placing the advertisement.

CHINESE ENVOYS IN RUSSIA ASKED TO LEAVE COUNTRY

Area of Russo-China Dispute

Here's a map showing the far eastern sector where the Russo-Chinese dispute over the seizure by Chinese Nationalists of a railroad operated through Manchuria by Russia is centered. Soviet officials were driven from Harbin to Chita by Nationalists when the property was seized. The Chinese eastern railroad passes through Manchuria from Krasnoyarsk to Vladivostok, far eastern terminal for Russia.

Today's Developments In Manchurian Dispute

A clash between Soviet Russian troops and Chinese on the Manchurian frontier when the Russians attempted to cross the Amur river was reported in an unconfirmed press dispatch from Peiping to the London Daily Mail today.

Attaches of the Chinese Legation in Moscow and Chinese Consulates throughout Soviet Russia are preparing to evacuate the Soviet Union, according to International News Service dispatches direct from Moscow. On the Manchurian frontier, troops equipped with airplanes, poison gas apparatus and field guns, are gathering. The concentration at Pogranichnaya was reported to be exceptionally heavy.

Shanghai reports 40,000 Soviet troops massed between Manchuria, the gateway to Siberia, and Blagovestchensk.

Train service on the China, Siberia-Harbin, Manchuria, Railway has been suspended.

A dozen American travelers, bound for China, were caught unawares in Siberia by suspension of train service and will have to make their journey via Vladivostok.

The Soviets are closing business houses throughout Manchuria and are evacuating women and children.

Chinese Nationalists are continuing the deportation of Russian Communists from Manchuria according to word from Arden, via Peiping.

Red military planes are reported ready to make a hostile demonstration at Pogranichnaya.

Japan is maintaining an attitude of aloofness. The Japanese general staff has decided not to send additional troops to Manchuria, according to Central News dispatch from Tokyo.

25 DEAD, SCORE HURT IN COLORADO WRECK

Express Train Crashes Through Bridge; Nine Cars Derailed—Relief Trains Rushing to Scene.

Denver, July 18.—Between sixteen and twenty-five persons are believed dead and more than a score injured when the west bound Rock Island Atlantic Express, a through train from Chicago to Denver, crashed through a bridge over Spring Creek, near Stratton, Colo., 150 miles east of here today.

Spring Creek, normally virtually a dry bed, had been turned into a swirling torrent from a cloudburst that had also weakened the bridge.

Twenty passengers on the train are believed to have been drowned when one of the all-steel Pullmans plunged into the water.

Rock Island officials here said that nine cars of the train were derailed, only one however, being completely submerged in the waters of the creek.

The engine and first two cars of the train passed safely over the bridge, a 75-foot span across Spring Creek. The third car, in which virtually all the passengers are believed to have been trapped and drowned, went into the water. The next three cars were piled upon the bank of the creek, one of them being partially under water.

Great Confusion
Great confusion followed the wreck, which occurred just before sunrise in a sparsely settled section

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS ARE SEVERED BY SOVIET

Clash on Manchurian Border Reported, But This is Unconfirmed—Shanghai Reports 40,000 Soviet Soldiers Massed at Frontier—Chinese Continue to Deport Russian Reds—Military Planes Being Prepared by Both Sides—Japan Maintains an Attitude of Aloofness

Moscow, July 18.—Attaches of the Chinese Legation and all the Chinese Consulate throughout Soviet Russia prepared today to evacuate the Union following the Soviet's decision to break off all diplomatic and commercial relations with China.

Train service on the Chita-Harbin line has been suspended. At least a dozen Americans, including Dr. Derizas, of the University of Pennsylvania, who were en route for China, will be forced to travel via Vladivostok.

It is claimed that the security of the eastern frontiers is menaced. The official newspaper Izvestia announced that the Soviets are taking measures to repulse possible attacks by White Guards (Anti-Communist Russians) and Manchurian (Chinese) troops.

The situation is such that guerilla warfare on the frontier is possible at any time.

Peiping, July 18.—The Soviet Russian charge d'affaire, and the Soviet consul were recalled to Moscow by the Soviet government today.

The Soviet have begun closing Russian business houses throughout Manchuria and are withdrawing Russian women and children from Manchuria's summer resorts.

Moscow's action in breaking off diplomatic and commercial relations with China has increased to the utmost gravity the seriousness of the situation arising from China's seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway (Sulfenbo) lies on the Manchurian-Siberian border nearly 100 miles northwest of Vladivostok.

Consulate Closed
The Soviet Consulate at Harbin is being closed except for a skeleton staff to issue visas for passports of persons bound for Japan.

According to word from Darien, deportation of Communists by the Chinese authorities continues.

Train service between Manchuria, the Siberian-Manchurian frontier, and Harbin is interrupted. Harbin reported today that no trains had arrived there from Manchuria since the 16th.

It requires 36 hours for consular messages to reach here from Harbin owing to congestion of the Chinese telegraph lines south of Harbin.

Red (Soviet) military planes are reported to have made a demonstration at Pogranichnaya.

Pogranichnaya (Sulfenbo) lies on the Manchurian-Siberian border nearly 100 miles northwest of Vladivostok.

CONCENTRATING TROOPS
London, July 18.—Reports of heavy troop movements along the Manchurian border and an unconfirmed rumor of a serious clash between Soviet and Chinese troops reached here today.

The clash was reported in a Peking dispatch to the Daily Mail. This dispatch reported that a large body of Russian troops attempted to cross the Amur river, which forms the border between Manchuria and Soviet Russia, and were repulsed by superior forces.

Other messages told of troop concentrations at strategic spots on the frontier. A Peking message to the Daily Telegraph detailed an unconfirmed report that a large force of Russians, equipped with airplane poison gas apparatus and field guns, were concentrating at Pogranichnaya as a probable point for entry into Manchurian territory in the event of war.

Preparations Continue
A Shanghai message to the Daily Mail reported that 40,000 Russian troops were massed between Blagovestchensk and Manchouli. At several points, the Soviet forces were faced by Chinese troops, the report stated, but no clashes were reported.

Later dispatches reaching here this afternoon from Harbin confirm reports that Chinese military preparations were continuing, and stated that troop trains were proceeding in the direction of Pogranichnaya and Manchouli.

The Mukden arsenal is reported working at fever pitch. Railway communications between Soviet Russia have already ceased.

A dispatch to the Daily News from Peiping (Peking) states that French passengers on a Trans-Siberian railway train were delayed for three days between Moscow and Harbin by Russian troop trains blocking the lines.

Action of the Soviet government in breaking diplomatic relations with China is looked upon in authoritative circles here as close to a declaration of war. It reports of the heavy troop concentration are authentic, it is feared that only a spark is needed on the Manchuria front to set both countries ablaze with war.

WAR RUMBLINGS.
Moscow, July 18.—The situation between China and Soviet Russia over the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway hovered today between war and peace.

With diplomatic relations between the two nations pre-emptively broken off the Soviet government has declared a state of belligerence that all means of reaching an amicable settlement of the question have been exhausted.

Thus far, no possibility of solving the issue has presented itself, and as things stand today, there is at least a fifty per cent chance of Russia and the Oriental Republic bringing the dispute to a head on the field of battle.

Haines China.
First definite indication of the extent to which war clouds are hanging over Asia came when the Soviet government, in making public its reply to the Chinese note on the situation, placed entire blame for the flare-up on China, and announced complete severance of diplomatic relations.

All Soviet diplomatic and consular officials, it was announced, will be recalled immediately from China, and the latter nation has been requested to withdraw its representatives from the Soviet Republic.

The official Chinese reply to the Soviet ultimatum of Saturday rejects every demand made in the Russian communication, and on this ground, the Soviets announced their drastic measures of reprisal.

These measures are four in number, in addition to recalling diplomatic representatives and expelling Chinese consular officials, the Soviet government has several communications on the Manchurian frontier, and recalled all Soviet representatives of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

LEAGUE NOT WORRIED
Paris, July 18.—Although the League of Nations is keeping a watchful eye upon the Far East, it has made no motion towards averting war between Soviet Russia and China.

"Everything will turn out all right," exclaimed Foreign Minister Briand today when questioned by International News Service regarding the imbroglio in the Orient.

"What if China should appeal to the League?" the foreign minister was asked.

M. Briand appeared embarrassed and it was obvious that the question of the League's action, and the Soviet government's action, were not serious, it was far from satisfactory.

"They forbade him from attending the afternoon session of the Chamber of Deputies stating that they felt it was best to take no chances.

Meanwhile the deputies continued to drag out their debate upon the question of ratification of the Mellon-Berenger war debt agreement, with the United States. None of them, however, made any definite move either for or against ratification in the premier's absence.

OPEN FORUM MISS DEXTER DESCRIBES TRIP THROUGH WEST

Editor, The Herald:

After a most inspiring Convention of the International Society of Christian Endeavorers at Kansas City, Mo., the eight-day tour began. Those taking the Pacific coast and Alaska tours, numbering twelve with a conductor, left Kansas City Tuesday, July 9th, arriving at Pueblo, Col., Wednesday morning very early, where an entire day was spent in San Isabel National Forest, visiting North Hard-Scrabble Canyon, the Kit Carson trail, the giant snow capped Sangre de Cristo, Wilson Ravine, Squirrel Creek Canyon and Beulah Valley.

Pueblo is an important manufacturing and shipping center with a population of 65,000 and an elevation of 4,685, with the largest steel plant west of Chicago. One entrance to the San Isabel National Forest is from Pueblo and our party was met at the station by a representative of the Grey Bus Line, who took us to a fine hotel for breakfast. Afterward we entered two Cadillac autos for a long day's ride through the forest which lies about twenty miles west of Pueblo in southwest Colorado. It is in three divisions, the Greenhorn, the Spanish Peaks and the Sangre Cristo Range, covering 651,200 acres. These rear their heads in close succession forming an awe-inspiring skyline nearly 100 miles in extent. There are ten peaks over 14,000 feet in height, some higher than Pike's Peak, which is the fifth in the state of Colorado.

After a long ride over a flat country we entered the region called "Hard-Scrabble Canyon" in the far distance saw tall mountains covered with snow. The rock formation here is different as the strata is slanting instead of being horizontal as in the Garden of the Gods. The various ranges of mountains in the San Isabel Forest are clothed with virgin stands of pine, spruce and aspen, affording a picture unusual in that it has been untraversed by fire for the past thirty years.

The roads through the forest run curving round and round the cliffs up and down, first high up then down where the look up the sides of the deep chasms caused exclamations of admiration and awe. Sometimes the road runs so near the edges of the sharp curves and cliffs to make one hold his breath, but so far no auto has had a mishap.

There are many queer formations of rocks and one was passed on Tuesday. After a long motor trip through Continental Europe, they will go to New York City to live.

Col. Rogers himself is at present on his honeymoon with his new wife, the widow of the late Esau Miles, whom he married here on Tuesday. After a long motor trip through Continental Europe, they will go to New York City to live.

There, home-made bread, butter, cream, and fried apples could be had. It is a real spot to spend a week or so. We ate our lunches at an altitude of over 8,000 feet. Our ride took us up to over 10,000 feet without any bad effects to any of us.

San Isabel is one of 150 National forests distributed over the United States and Alaska and is under the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Its object is to preserve, protect and develop trees for the benefit of the country.

This wonderful country is just being found out and people are coming into the Canyon. Places are arranged for campers and many cabins for summer visitors to stop in. It is a recreation ground for the people of Pueblo, and many fine summer residences are being built. A long wonderful day was spent and that night a tired group of tourists took the train for the Grand Canyon, the next stop.

ALICE F. DEXTER.

N. Y. BANK CLOSED

Albany, N. Y., July 18.—The Citizens Bank at Fleischmanns, N. Y., was taken over today by the State Banking Department for conducting its business in an unauthorized and unsafe manner.

The bank was organized in 1910. It has a capital of $25,000 and a surplus of $28,000 and deposits totaling $319,000.

"The amounts invested in banking houses, real estate and bonds and mortgages during the past few years have been out of proportion to the amount of its resources," said a statement issued by the banking department.

Several improper and unsound practices have just come to our attention which render it inadvisable for the bank to continue business under the present management in order to conserve the assets and protect the depositor, the department has taken possession of the bank.

SOME FISHING YARNS

New York, July 18.—Here are the season's best "fish" stories to date, as "covered" today by International News Service correspondents.

HOLD BANK OFFICIALS

New York, July 18.—Arthur F. Beyerle, former comptroller of the Atlantic State Bank and Joseph M. Cohen, its former assistant to the president, were arraigned before Supreme Court Justice James C. Crosey in Brooklyn today on charges growing out of the $7,000,000 crash of the City Trust Company.

The Atlantic State Bank became a unit in the City Trust Company following the defunct institution's merger with the Harlem Bank of Commerce. Cohen is charged with accepting gratuities for approving loans and Beyerle is charged with grand larceny and subornation of perjury.

TO LIVE IN PARIS

Paris, July 18.—Mrs. Mary Benjamin Rogers, divorced wife of Col. Henry H. Rogers, is planning to make her future home in Paris. It was reported in the American colony today.

This report was strengthened by the fact that Mrs. Rogers is having the ancient Rogers mansion rebuilt and modernized for a permanent residence. She is spending money lavishly and is having all the modern equipment of up-to-date homes installed. The newly renovated home will be ready for occupancy in November.

Col. Rogers himself is at present on his honeymoon with his new wife, the widow of the late Esau Miles, whom he married here on Tuesday. After a long motor trip through Continental Europe, they will go to New York City to live.

TWO FLYERS KILLED

San Antonio, Tex., July 18.—Lieut. W. E. Banker of Brooks Field and Lieut. E. O'Donnell, student officer, were instantly killed here today when their training plane fell from a height of 1,000 feet.

Copper and Oil stocks refused to give ground, though liberal supplies of stocks were shipped to market by professionals and others. Utility stocks fell behind the procession at the start, but stocks were snapped up as quickly as offered and recovered their former prices.

Some shifting in buying demand for the Rails was seen in the advance of Kansas City Southern in 104 1/2, up 2 1/2, while Katy fell off 3 points to 60. Both stocks are in the so-called Loresse group. Baltimore and Ohio moved up a point to 133 1/2 in anticipation of a favorable earnings statement for 1928 to be issued next week.

The rise in farm implements and fertilizer stocks was still in evidence, with Davison Chemical rising to 56 1/2. The stock at that price showed a recovery of 14 points from its recent low.

Johns Manville was the feature of the high-priced specialties, rising 3 points to 200 1/2, and completing a recovery of 40 points from the May break.

A run-in of the shorts in Radio by an ambitious bull party resulted in a 4-point jump in the stock to 82 1/2, the first important move since the stock since the middle of June. The bulls were also held responsible for the heavy buying of Conqoleum above 26.

United Corporation, the Morgan-Bondright Utility Holding Company, passed 70 today. United Gas Improvement, also a curb graduate, was actively bought at 58 1/2. Public Service of New Jersey topped 118 for the first time in its spectacular career, setting up a new peak at 118 1/2.

United States Steel did not waver more than a point or two from yesterday's closing price at 200, and speculative interest in the Copper, Oil, Motor and other important groups was close to the vanishing point.

TURFMAN ROBBED.

Chicago, July 18.—Fred Grabner, millionaire turfman, and Ruel J. Selzer, restaurant chain operator, and their wives were robbed of gems valued at $20,000 and about $200 in cash by bandits who hopped aboard the Grabner limousine, according to a report today to police. Grabner owns Windy City, winner of the recent American Derby.

The robbery briefly held up a stream of traffic issuing from the Arlington track and impatient motorists, behind honked their horns, unaware of the reason for the delay.

Seattle, Wash., July 18.—Seattle's most disastrous fire in nearly twenty years was checked today after damage estimated at about $1,000,000 was done at the Union Pacific docks.

DRY ENFORCEMENT NOT UP TO STATE

portant than anything else in determining a question as to whether or not there is a crime wave. He said the larger cities are just beginning to get the right kind of statistics on crime.

"No Crime in Baltimore," said Governor Ritchie, "we have been getting this data for some years and certainly there is no crime wave there. We had less burglaries in Baltimore in 1928 than in 1924, less robberies, and practically the same number of murders."

After citing Baltimore crime statistics at some length, Governor Ritchie continued: "We have no state enforcement act in Maryland. The Baltimore city police, under a ruling from the attorney general, do not arrest for offenses under the Volstead Act, and the city courts do not have to try that class of cases. The result is that both police and courts are free to give their whole time to the detection and punishment of crime, and we have in Baltimore less crime than ever before, and more arrests and more convictions than ever before."

Same in Other Cities. "I can see no reason why what is true about Baltimore should not be true about other cities. Their people are no worse than our people, and their police and their courts should be able to make records just as good as ours if they are free to give their attention to crime."

"What is needed to find some way of stopping the class of crimes which are caused directly or indirectly by federal prohibition under the Volstead Act. If there is any crime wave, there it is. There is no use disguising this, or trying to make it seem only a part of a bigger picture or problem. It is the Genesis of the whole story."

"This class of crimes must be eliminated if law and order are to be secure. You can't do this by compelling the states to take over the intrastate part of the Volstead Act."

"The only way is to strike at the root of this trouble and substitute something better for the present system of Federal prohibition—something which the people as a whole will respect and obey and which can be enforced."

Crime Will Disappear. "If this can be done, then I believe that such crime waves as may seem to exist will disappear, and crime can be adequately handled, as it is in Maryland, by efficient administration of justice."

Governor Ritchie said he believed that surveys have pretty well exploded the theory that the criminal type is either inborn or is subnormal. He expressed the opinion that much good in a preventative way can be done by improved handling of juvenile cases and by arresting drift toward crime in early youth.

He also said that the country should take advantage of all the work and discoveries of science dealing with the correction of criminal tendencies.

"Make the criminal see that crime does not pay and you have taken a long step to keep the criminal out of the crime business," he declared. "He is apt to see that crime does not pay if the arrest is prompt, the indictment prompt, the trial prompt, the conviction prompt, and the sentence prompt—in other words if justice is quickly and efficiently administered."

TO USE BASEMENT FOR H. S. CLASSES

Congestion in Present Building Forces Authorities to Usurp Storage Space.

The steady growth of the Manchester High school enrollment especially during the last five years has brought about a congestion which can be eliminated only through the addition of two new school rooms and two more teachers, it was learned today.

Due to the lack of space elsewhere, the entire basement in the high school building is to be completely renovated, Superintendent F. A. Verplanck said this morning in discussing the situation. Two rooms in the north end of the basement will be used by commercial department typewriting classes.

One room has been used as a store room and will require but little work to put it in suitable condition for school work. However, the one across the way has cement floor and walls. Holger Bach, local contractor, has been given the job of putting in a new floor and making other necessary alterations. These two rooms will be used exclusively for typewriting. Previously the typewriting classes have assembled in a room opposite the art department on the third floor of the building where 44 typewriters were located. These will be removed to the new typewriting rooms in the basement and ten new machines added. The former typewriting room will be used for other school classes.

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Howes of Hudson street are registered at the Ocean View Hotel, Watch Hill.

P. W. Smith of 217 Main street will spend the next three weeks at Exeter, N. H.

The Young People's society of the Concordia Lutheran church, and the members of the Luther League of Trinity Lutheran church of Hartford will go to Bolton tomorrow evening for a dog roast.

South Manchester Camp No. 9280, Modern Woodmen of America, will hold its regular business meeting at 8 o'clock this evening in Tinker hall.

Miss Ada Webb is visiting her sister in Philadelphia.

Boys, girls, women and children who have been getting some work in the tobacco fields are finding themselves without employment temporarily because of the weather condition. The dry weather has prevented the growth of the tobacco. A large number are left without employment until next week Tuesday or Wednesday.

Thomas Morgan, employed in the Depot Square Garage, while removing a splash pan from an automobile that was brought in for repairs, cut himself across the lower part of three fingers on his right hand. It required the attention of a doctor and prevents him from working for a few days.

Henry Thompson, who has been employed by William Cowles of Manchester Green, is to leave town the end of the week and will take charge of an apple orchard in Castleton, Vt.

Women were in the majority in taking examinations for drivers' licenses at the session held here this morning. Seventeen were granted their applications, one being rejected. The next was the largest on record when thirty were examined. The high record before that was twenty-seven from Manchester. All applicants today were from town but one. The out-of-town applicant came from Wapping.

John Copeland accompanied by his wife, left this morning for a fishing trip in New Hampshire.

C. L. Vanderbrook of Lydall street, returned last night from Boston where he attended the annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at the Hotel Statler.

Ben Macri, who was before the town court yesterday morning and given until today to raise a bond of $200 as a guarantee that he would pay $15 a week to his wife and the eight children, under a suspended jail sentence of sixty days, failed to raise the bond and this morning was taken to jail.

Cian McLean No. 252 will hold its regular meeting in Tinker Hall tomorrow evening at 7:30 p. m. Business of importance will be transacted which means every member is expected to be present.

government has authority and undertakes to regulate and to determine such matters as service and rates on a basis of fairness and equity, we are at the point where public rights may be fully protected by proper administration of public affairs.

Speaking of law enforcement, Governor Cooper said that President Hoover, "with clarity and deep conviction," recognized in his inaugural address the great need for cooperation on the part of the people. He said this was a "challenge" to every individual citizen.

"A spirit of lawlessness lifted its ugly and menacing head at the conclusion of the World War," Governor Cooper continued, "and, strange as it may seem," we have seen in otherwise reputable quarters the condoning rather than the denouncing of offenses against the law.

It is clearly the obligation of all good citizens to be obedient to the law and uphold those who are charged with responsibility of its enforcement. Problems of law enforcement are for the private citizen as well as for the public official, and we should not become impatient if progress appears slow. We need it to make it a popular thing to observe the law and we should not popularize the breaking of the law.

Bad Legislation Governor Cooper scored the tendency to resort to legislation as a panacea for social, moral and economic ills, adding, "The truth is, there has been an all too common disposition to legislate on everything and to regulate everybody on the theory of public good."

He asserted that governors render real public service in helping head off numerous bills and resolutions offered in the State Legislature.

Of legislative conditions in Ohio, he said: "The total of Ohio legislative enactments of the last session of the General Assembly was two hundred and twenty-two measures and of this number, twenty-two were voted. Of all the bills passed, less than one-fourth were of state-wide importance."

"It was a matter of satisfaction, both to the administration and the Assembly, that not a single new enactment infringed upon personal initiative or legitimate business enterprise, and that with the enactment of two hundred laws there were repealed at the same time more than one thousand sections of the general code of Ohio."

NOON STOCKS

New York, July 18.—With the exception of a few high-price specialties, stock prices moved in a narrow range in trading up to noon today.

Speculators throwing over their stock on the usual "Thursday nervousness" over Reserve Board reports and redoubt rates found ready buyers near the levels of Wednesday's final prices.

Oils and Coopers made a better showing and money was in good supply at 8 per cent.

Rattling of words between Russia and China was hardly considered as a Stock Market factor of any importance. Neither nation has any credit in the outside financial markets, and would hardly attempt to borrow money or to buy war materials in the United States in any considerable volume. Profit taking and professional selling was therefore held responsible for the irregularity of industrial stocks in the early trading.

Copper stocks stiffened on assurances of leading producers that the price of the red metal will not break 18 cents. Shorts in Radio were squeezed when the stock was run up 3 points to 81 1/2. Johns Manville continued its spectacular rise and gained about 6 points at 19 1/2. Buying of Pan American was again the feature of the Oils, the "B" stock rising 1-2 to 64 1/2 in a heavy turnover. Steel stocks were firm, within a fractional range of Wednesday's close. The utilities were slightly reactionary and equipment stocks steady.

Wheat sold off about 2 1/2 cents a bushel on a natural reaction from yesterday's sensational advance. Cotton sold a few points higher. Money was in good supply, with the prospect of a lower rate later in the day.

commission to start a movement to break down the 18th Amendment. The Oklahoma Senator declared that he not only opposed the Wickersham plan but the enforcement policies of the administration.

"The Wickersham proposal, if carried to its logical conclusion, would virtually nullify the 18th Amendment," said Senator Caraway. "He is proposing what the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has proposed."

"Unless Mr. Hoover repudiates the letter, it will be taken as an intimation to district attorneys and judges that the Hoover administration is not too much concerned over enforcement of prohibition."

Caraway declared that unless the president did repudiate the plan, he would take it for granted that the chief executive approves it.

Senator Walsh (D) of Massachusetts, a Wet, reiterated his view that the Wickersham idea suggest a return to the state's rights policy of enforcing and handling the liquor question, which has been urged by many wets.

Chairman Wickersham had thus far declined all appeals to amplify or clarify his letter which Governor Roosevelt of New York read to the governor's conference at Groton, Conn., Tuesday.

He was busily engaged in the work of selecting more experts for the commission's work. It was announced that one expert of note from the middle west has agreed to aid the commission. His name will be announced soon.

of the eastern Colorado prairie, not far from the Kansas line. Surgeons, nurses and train wrecking crews were immediately dispatched to the scene of the disaster from Denver, Limon, Burlington, and Goodland, Kan.

First rescuers to reach the scene were powerless to search for any possible living victims in the submerged car, which was buried in the sand beneath roaring waters of the flooded creek.

Carried 400 Passengers Railroad officials here said that the train, consisting of eight Pullmans, and several coaches in addition to the baggage and express cars, probably carried between 350 and 400 passengers.

Information received here by A. L. Nowry, general passenger agent of the Rock Island Road, said that it would be four or five hours before the water in the creek would subside, permitting rescue workers to enter the submerged car.

A majority of the passengers were asleep when the terrific crash came and scenes of indescribable confusion followed attempts of the injured and uninjured passengers to escape from the wreckage.

Children Among Victims Screams of women and children could be heard above the roar of the creek water.

According to John McNary, a resident of Stratton, one of the first to reach the scene, only one person escaped alive from the car that was buried in the creek. He managed to crawl through a window, McNary said, but was badly cut.

Scores of passengers lined the railroad track, many of them in their nightclothes. Dozens of others in scanty attire, unhurt by the crash, immediately set about the task of lending first aid to the injured.

TO BAR TROTZKY

London, July 18.—The Labor government decided to bar Leon Trotzky from England because it believed Trotzky's presence here would lead mischievous persons "to exploit him for their own ends," Home Secretary J. R. Clynes announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The statement was in response to questions whether Trotzky's exclusion was not due to the negotiations now in progress with Soviet Russia regarding resumption of diplomatic relations. Clynes pointed out that the government feared that Trotzky's presence here might become the source of grave embarrassment.

WATKINS OUTING AT POCOTOPAUG

Baseball Game, and Osano Dinner Are Features of Big Day at Lake.

Nature landed out a perfect day for Watkins Brothers 25th annual outing at East Hampton yesterday. The temperature in and out of the water was ideal for sports and they were entered into by salesmen and official force, drivers and finishers, decorators, platters and undertakers with equal zest.

Watkins Brothers inaugurated the custom of an annual outing for employes twenty-five years ago. Other retail stores followed with occasional events of the kind, but Watkins Brothers have made this midsummer event a feature of their store life.

With the exception of the first two years when the outings were held at Bolton Lake, Lake Pocotopaug at East Hampton has been the favored spot.

Each year for the past 15 years there has been a baseball game between the Hartford and Manchester stores. There was a time when the two stores could put out very nearly equal teams.

The rivalry was so intense that it lasted throughout the year. Now that the Hartford men have grown older or taken on avoidpious and the new salesmen are of such a dignified type it becomes humiliatingly necessary to draft players from the Manchester store.

The game yesterday was technically won by Hartford—that is the team was called "the Hartford team" because William Rush played at first base. The batteries were both drawn from Manchester however which takes most of the sting out of the seven to one score. Speaking about batteries East Hampton spectators seated on the side lines, said the pitching was superior to any they had seen in the Eastern league. "Butch" Lovett struck out fifteen men and no one would have a first base if Henry Smith had been able to hold his terrible delivery. Henry stood it for four innings but flesh and blood could do no more. He was relieved in the fifth by Harold Richmond who also did splendid work.

The other battery consisting of Eddie Gleason and "Wiggie" Wiganski spelled each other and fooled the batters by alternating positions. "Wiggie" was the hero of the day as he both pitched and caught the game with a broken finger received in practice. Features of the game were the catch of a terrific liner by Eskil Buckland. Few men would have risked putting their hands to it. A fly to deep center field good for a home run was speared by Henry Smith after an exhausting run. And there was the spectacular hitting of "Pete" Baldwin and "Bill" Frazier manager of the Exchange department.

In order to put the latter out "Butch" Lovett (deliberately as we thought) hit him on his batting elbow. The sound of the crack was sickening. Lou Williams, manager of the office had to be rushed with salts. But Bill came back with his threatening bat in the next inning.

It would have been remiss in us not to mention the splendid job done by the umpire, Undertaker R. K. Anderson.

No matter how trying the situation, no matter how loud the clamor for his removal, he maintained throughout the game that splendid dignity which so well becomes one in his profession. His decisions were made in clear, ringing tones and once made were unalterable.

Charles Marshal told the Herald reporter privately that he would like to see R. K., drafted for work with the major leagues.

In the other sports, Mary Whipper easily took first honors in fancy diving and Mary Walker was discovered as a new star in volleyball. Among the men "Win" Jones stood out most prominently. Carl Senkbell caught the biggest fish (a 2-lb. bass). The watermelon eating contest was won by Henry Johnson, colored janitor of the Hartford store. Helen Richmond was judged the best all-round girl athlete. Harry Roth in an endeavor to hang some draperies in the Heublein hotel and at the same time run the American Legion carnival and attend the outing was apprehended three times in twenty minutes by guards of the law posted along the highway from Hartford to East Hampton a new world's record.

Bill Haginow was acceded the most graceful roller skater while Etta Gienney's permanent wave stood the damp test best.

The damp test consisted in circling the lake in the rear seat of a big motor boat while the driver did dips and turns at forty miles an hour. On the turns especially when the wind was right the occupants of the rear seat were lost to sight beneath the water.

Of course Osano catered otherwise the day would not have been perfect. Following is the menu: Cham chowder, one-half chicken, potato, string beans, tomato and lettuce salad, olives, pickles, rolls, honeydew melon, cigars, candy and coffee.

there in response to advertisements. The store doors were about to be open and the sidewalk was jammed. Suddenly the window panes began to drop. To an observer the pieces of glass appeared to shower down for five minutes from the time the windows first gave in.

A Tremendous Buying Power

That brings to people of Manchester and vicinity Fine Furniture at Lower Prices than ever before - -

KEITH'S are now associated with the Allied Furniture Buyers Syndicate . . . consisting of a membership restricted to seventy-five of New England's finest furniture stores . . . having a buying power of over $10,000,000. As the name indicates, the Allied Furniture Buyers Syndicate, is a group of high-class stores who have united their efforts to buy in one unit . . . achieving new efficiency in furniture retailing. The syndicate is for buying purposes only and does not in any way affect our local management or personal service . . . but it does give us an impregnable position to offer good furniture at more moderate prices.

For several months we have been an active member . . . reaping rich benefits through this group buying power . . . for instead of having the buying resources of only one store we now have a corps of trained merchandise men and the combined buying power of $10,000,000. Factories and markets all over the country are "shopped" by these buyers who select paramount furniture and secure price concessions that are offered only to syndicate members. As a member we can select furniture that meets our requirements of high quality, as little or as much as we need, at prices that are in all cases lower than what an individual store could obtain.

There is more than just "price." As an allied store we can get first quality merchandise and secure the exclusive sale of it for Manchester and vicinity. The syndicate deals with the best manufacturers. Every piece is built to exacting specifications and trademarked with a guarantee.

This is a new and vital factor in making Keith's the place "where you can afford to buy good furniture." We have always operated on a policy of low overhead, inexpensive location, with resulting low costs of selling. Now our affiliation with the Allied Furniture Buyers Syndicate enables us to serve our customers with better furniture and better values than ever before.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

Film Fight May Close French Movie Theaters

By MINOTT SAUNDERS

Paris—There is not much talk about the talkies here in France. The chief concern of moving picture houses and those who like to attend them is to have some ordinary silent pictures to talk about.

The moving picture business is in rather a desperate way owing to the French demand that for every three American-made films allowed to enter France one French-made film must be purchased. This proposal, which is before the government, caused American distributors here to close their offices. American producers had been shipping films on a 7-to-1 quota, but that has been discarded by France and a failure of a compromise has caused a deadlock.

French producers of films, acting through the Superior Cinema Control Commission, want the lowest possible quota in order to develop the French industry. The theater owners, however, are against it because their customers like American films and French films in the house men had business.

Many Thrown Out of Work
There is still hope for an agreement because it is thought that the government is less anxious to antagonize French exhibitors and the vast number of workers in French theaters. It is estimated that over 2000 theater employes have already been thrown out of work because of the withholding of American films.

It is now likely that the trade here will be forced to release a large number of old American films of the cheapest kind, those that have been shelved by the French producers during the past three years and which have been a dead loss on their books.

The supply of new French-made films is estimated to be under forty—probably a long way under—and with the cutting off of American films the situation is becoming acute. France in a normal year provides a market for about 600 films and to fill this want there are today available only the more or less nebulous forty French films, such American-made films as were bought before the shutdown was put in operation, and the old films that were declared unfit for release. Certain German, English and Russian films will be available, but as they will be affected by the quota in the same way as the American films, it is difficult to see what the theaters here are going to run.

In brief, the situation is this: the French people want to see the best films, and these are made in America; the French exhibitors want to fill their houses and make money, and to do this they must give the public what it wants; the French producers are ambitious of building up a great industry that will challenge the American film domination but they have not the money, the talent or the opportunity because of the popularity and superiority of American-made films; the American distributors have lots of good films to sell, but don't want to take too many poor French films in payment; and the Ministry of Fine Arts wants peace all around. Coordinating these various interests isn't so easy, however.

Few Talkies Shown
Only three or four of the highest class downtown picture theaters are now able to produce talking pictures. Such as have been shown have met with great success, but they have chiefly been singing roles, or news reels with French events featured. So far talkies are a novelty here. The language difficulty is disturbing exhibitors because the best talkies are either American or German. The first French language film, produced in Hollywood and featuring Maurice Chevalier, has only just opened and is attracting capacity houses.

FINDS HIS ROMANCE IN BUSINESS WORLD

After Twenty Years In Industry Executive Gives Advice to Young Men.

Dayton, O., July 18.—The best way to find romance in modern America is to plunge straight into a career in American business.

That, "byway," is the conclusion of J. H. Barringer, first vice-president and general manager of the National Cash Register company. He expresses it like this:

"The day romance passes away from our industrial life in America we face a hard future. It is romance, the glamor of getting ahead, of doing something that someone else never did before, that puts life into any kind of career."

Naturally enough, Barringer's own life story expresses this principle.

About 20 years ago Barringer moved into Dayton from a farm near Osborn, O., and got a job as filing clerk with the National Cash Register Co., at the salary of $13.50 a week.

Attracted Boss' Attention.
Now a file clerk's job hardly looks like a stepping stone to better things. But Barringer was resolved to make it one. His work on the job with all there was in him; and lo and behold! one morning the late J. H. Patterson, president of the company, happened to find him on the job before the opening whistle blew for work to begin. No one else in the place had started work yet. Patterson, impressed, gave him a promotion and raised his salary to $25.

"I liked my job, and that was why I put in as much time as I could on it," reminisces Barringer. "I had no other idea in mind in to another with a variety of concerns never gets you anywhere. If you have anything in you, and the company you are working for is progressive, someone, sometime, will discover your abilities and you will move ahead.

"There is no place in a successful business today for a swivel chair executive. We, in the N. C. R. executive offices, spend about 60 per cent of a year's time in the field alongside our sales forces. We travel thousands of miles a year studying trade problems and helping the salesmen with jobs they are troubled with.

Listen to Suggestions.
"Then again, it is important that that executive officers keep a close contact with the men at the work benches. They, after all, are powerful factors in the industry's growth. All the orders in the world are worthless unless there are competent mechanics to turn out perfect workmanship. A general manager's office ought always to be open to the man in the shop who has a legitimate complaint to offer or a suggestion to make.

"After 20 years with the only industry with which I have ever been associated, I think I am prepared to say that the four cardinal elements which go to make up a successful career for any young man or young woman are these: aim straight at the job you want; work hard to attain that goal; study hard after you have reached it, and play fair with everyone you come in contact with."

Saturday evening at Rau's, Crystal Lake, the sensational "Commanders" will be the feature attraction. They have been secured after numerous requests from the public and should go over big. The Commanders who are composed of the pick of musicians from Hartford, Stafford and Willimantic are under the efficient and capable direction of Danny Halg and Bill Smith, who for a number of years have been firmly entrenched in the orchestral field, having been associated with some of the most renowned units in the business. With their vast knowledge and experience they have developed a pleasing combination rendering special arrangements, vocal solos, the latest word in blues and hot harmonies, and everything else within the scope of any superb organization. Danny Halg and Bill Smith who have both been to Europe in tour with a Paul Whiteman unit will be present in person, and those in search of a novel brand of entertainment and snappy, peppy dance music, will find genuine enjoyment at Rau's new dance Palace Saturday from nine to one o'clock daylight saving time.

proposed, through what influence it was adopted, the very processes of its enactment are surrounded by a haze. Very strangely indeed, though it contemplated a veritable revolution in public service control that ought to have attracted instant attention at the time, no law passed by the recent session of the Legislature aroused less interest. We are not at all sure that it was ever mentioned in any printed report of the legislative proceedings. It has, in fact, every earmark of a sneak law, put over by Legislative legerdemaine while every observer was looking out the window, so to speak.

The history of this measure is something that may be well worth close inquiry, just as its ultimate purpose would well deserve the most meticulous scrutiny. But we know of no agency likely to successfully carry on either unless the persons directly and adversely affected combine to bring the facts to light.

Meantime, however this transfer of tax control from the Motor Vehicle Department to the Public Utilities Commission was engineered, the outrageous character of its administration is manifest enough. For the Commission to drive Mr. Tatem's taxicabs off the streets of Manchester on the ground that public convenience and necessity did not require such a service is an example of dunderheaded tyranny that would be funny if it were not so sinister.

Up to the time that the Tatem cabs appeared on the streets of this town there were but two taxis in operation and both of these were quartered at the north end. It is extremely doubtful if there is another town in America, from one end of it to the other, of equal size with Manchester that hasn't a taxi service several times larger than that. Many towns and cities no larger support taxis by the dozen. It would have been utterly impossible for the Public Utilities Commission to pick out, anywhere, a community where the denial of a permit for taxi operation would have been so flagrantly unjustifiable.

That there was in the proceeding some animus having not the remotest connection with public convenience or necessity is too obvious to admit of doubt. What that animus was it is up to the taxmen to show. They ought not to have much trouble in doing so.

Meantime the Public Utilities Commission, if it be well advised, will make haste to undo this blunder, which contains the germ of very serious trouble. This state cannot afford the luxury of a political revolution, and there are always the seeds of political overturn when power permits itself to take the form of unbridled tyranny.

TOO BIG

If John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had not been the son of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., he might or he might not have been an exceedingly rich man. He might or he might not have been a moderately rich man. He might or he might not have been a poor man. Nobody knows the answer to any of these speculations, not even the Junior Rockefeller himself—perhaps least of all himself.

But being the son of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and inheriting a propensity for acquisitiveness whose ruthlessness is historic, he performs precisely in form when he removes two thousand other human beings from their homes in order to get a satisfactory amount of elbow space in which to live himself.

Fourteen hundred persons used to live in Pocantico Hills. There are less than a hundred living there now. That village faces elimination, along with the neighboring village of Eastview. They had to go in order that the Rockefeller estate should contain eight thousand acres.

It is doubtless true that Rockefeller money paid for all this property, to the top notch of market value—which fact doesn't, so far as we can see, affect the quality of the phenomenon of the erection of an American principality.

John D. Rockefeller, Junior, shows up somewhat in the light of modern Medici, founding a family paramount. Promoter of many reformations, patron of the arts, builder of churches, lord benefactor in all measures of public welfare—but an exceedingly bad egg for any democratic country to have laid on its doorstep.

Eight thousand acres of land in a populous region, dedicated to the use of one small family and guarded from the public like the home of a Florentine nabob, is too much. It is a challenge to the herd-millions of an adjacent city which no wise man would issue. It has nothing to do with the abstract fact of wealth and power. It has everything to do with an enormous, exaggerated personal aggrandizement that belongs to a past and barbaric age.

COMPLICATED

It is easy to imagine the Navy casting a cold and clammy eye at the Army's military maneuvers in New Jersey. The Army, in order to create the kind of a situation it best loves, has introduced a theoretical invading Red force into New Jersey and has erected a defending Blue host whose business it is to lick the invaders. To justify the presence of the foreigners on American soil it was necessary for the Army to assume that the Navy had been defeated at sea. It is that assumption that must raise the gorge of the seagull fighters. For the Army to predicate its course or its policies on the possibility of the fleet's failure to lick the enemy is, of course, positively insulting.

What makes it more uncomfortable still for the Navy is the added fact that it can't very well challenge the assumption of the Army without stepping, so to speak, on its own tongue. So loud and long and many have been the Navy's cries that it must have ships, ships, and still more ships in order not to be hopelessly outclassed by what don't know how many different navies, that any present protests against the idea that it can be licked would be, to say the least, shockingly contradictory. The Navy, having been treated like a worm by the Army, is perforce under the sore necessity of preserving a wormlike silence. But we'd bet that it is gnashing a terrible lot of teeth—for a worm.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, July 18.—Mr. Rudolph Spreckels, the sugar magnate, who is the only man in town wearing a collar which resembles President Hoover's, is trying to promote a sugar tariff plan which will make everybody happy. Mr. Spreckels is author of one of the numerous sliding scales now being proposed as a method of sliding out from under the outburst of criticism which met the provision in the House tariff bill which boosted the sugar duty to three cents — 2.40 cents on Cuban sugar, which is most concerned.

Mr. Spreckels is a sugar refiner and president of the Spreckels Sugar Corporation. He believes that his scheme will protect the domestic beet and cane producers, the Cubans, the Filipinos, the Porto Ricans and even the consumers themselves.

Another Millionaire

Anyone who professes to be as benevolent as all that naturally says himself open to suspicion. But it is relatively easy to believe in the sincerity of Mr. Spreckels. He is a millionaire, but he doesn't belong to the union. He turned in his card when he participated actively and expensively in the LaFollette presidential campaign of 1924.

Mr. Spreckels says two things ought to be done:

1. Domestic producers and consumers ought to be protected by a sliding scale which would raise the tariff on sugar when the price dropped and lower it when the price rose.
2. The sugar industry ought to be protected from the ruthless competition of Hawaiian planters, who, he says, provide the most serious menace to the domestic producers.

GOING PLACES AND SEEING THINGS

Los Angeles, July 18.—Rambling notes of a roving reporter—the film and society women wear browned bare legs with their evening dresses. And very becoming too!

Distance is too common-place to lend enchantment here. Your closest friends are likely to live within flying distance. Asked to lunch the other day by Estelle Taylor and Jack Dempsey, I left the hotel and found myself nearly 55 miles away in the Santa Monica hills before the dinner bell rang. And that, I was told, was "close in." What's commuting anywhere else in the world is just going calling here. That world-famous pest, the Los Angeles booster, used to tell us how the city would grow. But the old time booster has just about disappeared. Broadways would be astounded if they could hear their home town boys and girls race on. For them it's better than the '49 days. They get their gold and they don't have to dig very hard for it. They sail in with a contract in their pockets and within two weeks they've made two down payments on a hillside mansion, paid $5 down on a car and begin to feel sorry for "the poor guys back home sweating in the heat wave." If this be typical Los Angeles boasting, make the most of it.

The amazing growth of aircraft out here. Half of Hollywood is engaged in buying a plane. Danleis flies her own. And passenger planes go skyrarking here and there even in Europe. The Coast is years ahead of the east in aviation promotion. One can skim the Rockies into Salt Lake, cut a short path to the Texas and Oklahoma southwest, leap over to Catalina or down to San Diego and the Mexican border resorts or hit all the spots en route to New York from Kansas City to St. Louis in Chicago. This is the most air-condensed and on our map, and the citizenry is playing it strong. Corporations spring up over night. Little airplane factories are all about the countryside. Landing fields grow almost as numerous as garages. Stock is sold as it once was in the oil fields or in real estate projects. But then, Manhattan never was greatly aware of what the rest of the country was doing. It's just as well to get away once in a while!

Trick paper mache statuary at scores of roadside spots. . . . Everything from the battle of Bull Run to Washington crossing the Delaware, all advertising somebody's lunch counter or motor oil. The sense of musical comedy which projects itself everywhere. Thousands of houses trying to look like movie sets and thousands of movie sets trying to look like houses.

Telephones attached to the barber's chairs in the Biltmore hotel. The thousands of girls on the streets who try to look like their favorite movie stars. If Lili De-la-Rue curls, the next day half of the shop girls are doing it. And it's just impossible to get away from the movies. The store windows tell you that So-and-so buys her sweaters there. The hat stores tell you that Carleton Pheny buys his bowlers there. All about the studios spring up little shops to lure the credulous tourist. One place deals in autographs—copies of stage pictures. . . . Instance. "Don't ask me whether the stars ever signed them or not. I merely know that the shops deal in them. In a second hand store, I saw articles of furniture and knick knacks that were guaranteed to have come from the homes of the movie folk. And oh, how the movie mob loves them!

Oranges at two-bits a crate along the auto trails. . . . The amazingly few people one sees walking the residential district. . . . Everyone has a car and nobody walks except in the business belt. . . . Once removed from there it's as lonely as a country road.

Hawalian sugar, he says, is the nigger in the wood-pile.

"I realize that the protection theory is desirable and necessary," he says, "but I am opposed to a flat duty because it must inevitably do injustice to the consuming public. When the world market on raw sugar went up the cost of raw sugar plus the duty and plus refining costs would make a prohibitive price for sugar."

"With the sliding scale, the world price goes up and the duty comes down. Inevitably the world price of sugar is going up, for the Cubans are going to restrict production and establish a single selling agency. They are not now receiving a proper price and are selling below cost of production. The Porto Ricans, the Filipinos and the Hawaiians are making a profit because they have no duty to pay on their sugar."

"The Hawaiians are favored above everyone else because they send their sugar to their own refinery in California. Their western refined sugar which they produce by refining at full capacity and so they have reached out into what normally would be the selling territory of the best sugar producers. That's where the best producers find their real competition."

"The Hawaiian planters make sufficient profit on raw sugar to forego any refiner's profit. Domestic beet and cane sugar doesn't compete with duty-paid raw sugar. It competes with refined sugar. If the Hawaiians sell without any refining profits they can sell below everyone else."

"Suggests a Refiner's Tax

"The way to give the domestic producer the protection which Congress wants to give them is to establish a compensatory tax, which the government would collect in the form of a refiners' tax based on the

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Tuberculosis of Bone)

Question—M. K. asks: "How does tuberculosis of the bone start, and what is the cause of the disease?"

Answer—The cause of bone tuberculosis is practically the same as that of tuberculosis in any other part of the body. There is a long period of enervation and a gradual building up of a poisoned state of the blood. Often a bruise or blow seems to start the trouble, but the real cause is from the conditions I have mentioned.

(Spinal)

Question—N. W. writes: "I find it impossible to get spinach in a restaurant that is free from sand and grit. Will you please state in your column if it is possible to thoroughly clean this 'king of vegetables' and how it is done?"

Answer—I know it is true that the greatest objection to spinach you get in restaurants is because the cooks are careless about the preparation of it. This is one of the principal reasons why spinach is not used in the cheaper restaurants. It requires a long time to prepare it by washing in several waters, and many restaurant managers feel that their patrons are not willing to pay enough for spinach to justify taking the time necessary to properly clean it. To clean spinach at home you should separate all the leaves and hold each leaf under running water, placing the washed leaf in a clean dish, the safer plan being to wash each leaf the second time, placing in another clean dish. While the spinach is still wet, place in a covered pan without water, then cook with a high fire for five minutes. Do not remove the cover until ready to serve.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION HELPS WILLIAM FOX

Movie Magnate is Recovering from Injuries Received in an Auto Accident.

Mineola, N. Y., July 18.—Proud over the distinction of having aided William Fox in his recovery from serious injuries sustained in an automobile collision, J. Carroll Nash, young actor who gave a pint of his blood to help strengthen the injured film magnate, today hailed the movie king as "one of the bravest men I have ever met."

Nash was interviewed in the Nassau country hospital, where Fox is still confined, suffering from shock and in a weakened condition from loss of blood. Attending physicians stated today that the film magnate is making satisfactory progress, and it is hoped he will be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

The blood transfusion was performed at 7 o'clock last night. It was deemed advisable because of the amount of blood lost due to severe lacerations of the head.

Nash was one of two men who offered themselves for a blood transfusion. The other was Gerard R. Court, of New York City.

DECAYED TEETH SHOULD BE GIVEN THE PROPER CARE, AND WOULD NEVER DEVELOP VERY FAR IF THE DENTIST WAS CONSULTED FREQUENTLY.

Some of the most common of the disagreeable odors in the breath come from the fact that the lungs are forced to eliminate quantities of poisonous gases because of the toxic condition of the body due in many cases to constipation or colitis which causes the poisons of the intestines to be re-absorbed and actually thrown out through the breath.

All smokers must realize that a smoker's breath is never pleasant, even to other people who are also smokers. Those who enjoy smoking should always brush the teeth after each smoke or at least two or three times daily. There are many harmless deodorants on the market which a smoker can use as a gargle. Most of these can be used several times daily without harm to the

WICKERSHAM DRY PLAN WAS NOT PRESIDENT'S

He Was Speaking for Himself; Calls It Test to Probe Country's Sentiments.

Meredith, N. H., July 18.—When George V. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, proposed that the states take over the police enforcement of prohibition he was speaking for himself alone and was putting out a test to see how the people of the country felt about the question.

Other "fallers" may be expected in order that the commission may have the benefit of opinions held by others.

This today was the view of the so-called "Wickersham Dry Plan" suggested in a newspaper interview by Miss Ada L. Comstock, president of Radcliffe college and member of the Hoover commission.

Miss Comstock added that she thought the Wickersham plan interesting and worthy of careful consideration, although personally she had not made up her mind as to the best method to pursue.

SERVICE for the MOTORIST

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

Both Should Be New

Trying to use new parts with old ones is a plan that never works out. In the case of gears it results in humming and in some instances the old part has a queer way of wearing the new.

King pin bushings illustrate this. When these wear the wheels do not run true and may shimmy, and the tires wear at too rapid a rate. If new bushings are used with the old pins, however, the looseness will soon return. This is because it is difficult to fit new bushings to old and worn pins. If the fit is poor and there is looseness the bushings wear rapidly and are but slightly more useful than the old ones.

If parts must fit together and work in harmony replace both of them.

Keeps It Cleaner

When you come in out of the wet with the car do you drive it into the garage immediately or to you allow it to stand out awhile?

Most motorists garage the car immediately, which accounts for the amount of cleaning they have to do the next day.

Just allowed to stand in the rain a car will enjoy a cleansing bath and will be far easier to put into presentable condition the following day. In driving through the rain much mud, dirt and water is thrown up over the body. The rain itself often will wash this off if the car remains idle.

Stand the car in the driveway or away from other vehicles when allowing it to wash off in this manner.

Exceptions Are Risky

Just by accident it sometimes happens that a motorist car ignore a rule of car care and get away with it without any serious consequences. This usually leads to trouble because it suggests the possibility that the rule is unnecessary. Take the case of the starter. Every driver is cautioned against stepping on the starter button while the engine is running, yet frequently drivers violate the rule and are surprised when nothing happens.

To save getting caught eventually in this sort of carelessness it is a good idea to know just why a starter does not always break under these conditions or while the starter motor is not injured. If the engine happens to be idling the starter pinion may be able to mesh without clashing.

Just because it takes this punishment is no reason to assume that it will be able to stand enmeshment when the engine is running faster.

Guards Against Grooves

Why does the competent mechanic always grind valves by rotating them one-eighth or one-half turns, first in one direction and then in the other, instead of giving them full turns?

Is it just a matter of habit with him, custom or plain superstition? The car owner is always cautioned against rotating the valves full turns. If he does the work himself, this happens to be one of those things a skilled mechanic considers second nature and scarcely thinks of discussing with an owner. He probably isn't conscious that he is limiting the rotation to half turns at the most. But there's a good reason for this custom.

And it's because full rotations of the valves will cut grooves in their faces, thereby defeating the purpose of the grinding process.

Just Shy of Water

Why is it that the average motorist will think his engine is overheating when steam comes from the radiator?

In nine cases out of ten the appearance of steam is but evidence of too low a water supply in the cooling system. If there is not enough cooling fluid it will overheat and turn to steam even though the engine itself is not overheated. Should the driver continue with the radiator emitting steam of course the engine itself would overheat, but most people become alarmed when the first puffs of steam appear, and then stop. The chances are that, up until that point, the engine is not efficiently hot.

All of which suggests the advisability of adding water to the radiator before making a further test by way of driving to see if there is anything else wrong. There is no need to wait for the engine to cool off since, in most cases, it really hasn't overheated.

Rule Works both ways

Sometimes we forget that a rule that works one way can be used for some other purposes, when it is working in reverse.

How many drivers, for example, ever think to save their curves where the grade is less?

Many drivers climb hills by selecting the outside of the curves and find that by doing so they spare their engines unnecessary labor and finish the grade more easily in high gear. But when they descend they overlook the reverse use of the rule.

This is a handy pointer to remember when the brakes are not in particularly good condition or when road conditions are treacherous. In general, just as a means of saving the brakes, it is a good rule to follow, provided traffic conditions permit.

An ordinary human hair, one inch long, weighs .00007668 of an ounce.

How She Likes Her Care

By ISRAEL KLEIN.

Too much can never be written about the care of the spark plugs, for these little attachments mean a great deal if the engine is to be kept running with the smoothness and power for which it has been designed.

Spark plugs have become more important in the last two years with the coming of the high compression engine, for these necessitate perfect ignition if they are to run properly. Here, too, with increased compression bringing higher operating temperature and much faster operation, much more stringent demands are made on the spark plug than heretofore.

The motorist, therefore, will find that loss of power, missing of the motor, knocking and other such difficulties may be traced to either fouled or improperly set plugs.

A new automobile is certain to have the right type of spark plugs in it, for these have been placed there by the manufacturer, and have been expressly specified for that particular engine by the engineers.

After a year's operation, however, a car needs a new set of plugs. Spark plug designers say that plugs run down after about 10,000 miles of operation and should be replaced to maintain efficient engine performance.

It is in replacing the spark plugs that the motorist should watch his step. He should find out, either from the booklet of instructions furnished with each automobile or from the automobile dealer, exactly what type of plugs should go into his motor. There are several types and sizes, in accordance with the size and design of the motors in use today, and only a definite type and size will fit into a certain motor.

The proper spark plug, if properly fitted, will be so placed that the bottom of its shell will set flush with the top of the firing chamber, and only the firing points will extend into the chamber. Also its points will be just the distance apart required for the motor for which it is designed.

As a result there should be no trouble so far as ignition is concerned.

However, poor gasoline or oil pumped up into the chamber will foul the spark plugs and result in missing of the engine. The remedies are obvious. But a fouled spark plug, if comparatively new, needn't be thrown away. It can be cleaned with alcohol or any liquid metal polish and carbon soot rubbed off gently with a cloth.

The fouled plug, however, should not be put back into its former cylinder. A plug from a cylinder that has caused no fouling should be substituted for it and the fouled plug, with points reset at the proper gap and cleaned, may go into the cleaner chamber.

If a pinging knock is heard in the motor, and the carbon has been cleaned out of it, the cause of this knock may be traced to overheated spark plugs, which cause the mixture to ignite too soon. If the spark plug is of the right type and size for the motor and if it is installed properly, this trouble should not come up. It is brought up here as another reason why only the proper type and size spark plugs should be used.

The only trouble that might arise from properly used spark plugs, aside from those caused by loose pistons and poor gasoline or a rich mixture, will come when the plugs get old. A recent test in Chicago showed that a motor with plugs that had been used for 12,000 miles had lost 15 per cent of its available power. New plugs brought it back to normal.

YOUTH AT THE WHEEL

Despite the vigilance of police, many youngsters are seen entering their teens can be seen operating automobiles in city streets. It is one of the most dangerous practices this motor age can permit. A boy of 10 or 12 can be as accomplished a driver as many an adult, yet when the emergency comes the inexperience of his youth may tell on him.

TO EXTEND DIAL PHONES THROUGHOUT THE STATE

Facts outlining the telephone company's program for an extensive expansion of dial telephone service in this state during the next four years were given in an interview today by Frank L. Moore, general superintendent of traffic, and an interesting feature of his statement is, in effect, that a relatively small decrease from the total number of telephone operators now employed, will result from the introduction of the dial in several cities. We will always need operators to give certain service which the dial cannot give now and probably will never be able to give. That fact is well understood by our operating people and they see just as much of a future ahead of them as they did before the dial telephone was perfected to its present high state of service efficiency.

OPEN FORUM

"THE STONE CRUSHER" Editor, The Herald: A little while ago, strict Sabbatharians here in town dragged a man into court because he was nailing on laths in his house, on Sunday. Last Sunday morning, the Connecticut Company sent its famous trolley car with the three-cornered stone crusher, over the line, to Manchester. It awakened everyone along the line, but so far no arrests have been made. The poor man who was arrested tried to build a nest for himself and family the best way he could. The Connecticut Company's three-cornered wheels on its cars not only make more noise on Sundays than a thousand lathes, but they have cracked many ceilings and walls. Why did the Sabbatharians have the poor man arrested, and why was he found guilty of violating the law? Is there no law for the Connecticut Company? Yours truly, MATHIAS SPIESS July 17, 1929. "I think it's outrageous!" stormed Molly. "He hasn't any right to buy things he can't pay for. But he does pay for them," protested Rita gently.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

A tragedy has befallen MOLLY BURNHAM and JACK WELLS, who love each other devotedly and quarrel beyond all reason. Jack has bought his sweetheart an engagement ring, and because Molly seems hesitant about wearing it to work the next morning, he imagines that she is ashamed of the size of the tiny diamond.

Humbled and heart-broken, he drops the little shining stone into the lake, where they are rowing.

Next morning Jack is going to New York, to work in the home office of a large architectural firm. And Molly is to report for the first time to a newspaper office, where the city editor has promised her a tryout.

Molly has recently inherited $10,000, of which Jack refuses to borrow a penny. They will be married as soon as he has earned money of his own. Molly goes with him to his room, to help him pack, and then goes to the Y. W. C. A., where she has taken a room. A few days later her father sends her a check, and she determines to find new and more luxurious quarters.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII

Molly found an attractive apartment on Peterboro street, subtleting from an artist, who had done amazing things with packing boxes and a paint brush. There was scarcely a piece of real furniture in the place. But the walls were hung with gay, moth-eaten damask, and there were great gay cushions instead of chairs.

Molly's bed was a feather mattress on a box spring, with a piece of red velvet thrown over it. And instead of tables there were Oriental tea trays that stood a mere six inches from the floor. There were hardly two pieces of china that matched. Peasant crockery from southern Europe, amusing and colorful. A samovar from Russia, and tall brass candle sticks.

Molly bought her own kitchen things in buttercup yellow enamel, and made a gingham curtain of bright blue checks for the kitchen window. She painted the woodwork ivory. And bribed the janitor to put down a piece of linoleum.

It was all quite charming. But Molly began to feel like a widow. She wanted Jack tearfully.

Bob and Rita lived down the street a block, and Molly had loaned them most of the furnishings from her room at college. Bob was doing a little legal work, but not earning nearly so much as Rita, who had a part-time social job, and a gymnasium class four afternoons a week at Miss Mayhew's School for Girls. As if that weren't enough, Rita gave swimming lessons on Wednesday and Saturday nights at the Y. W. C. A. And tutored two of Miss Mayhew's backward little girls in First Year Latin.

"Bob is so dissatisfied," she told Molly, "because I happen to be earning more money than he is. He seems to consider it a personal affront. He acts as if I'd crucified his pride."

Molly noticed that Bob was extravagant, where Rita was thrifty and frugal. He bought, for instance, an electric radio, in which Rita was contributing to meet the payments. And he purchased any number of books, which he never seemed to find time to read.

Once he picked up a small Oriental rug, with a dash of dusty saffron that took his eye. And again a bit of Chinese damask of an indescribably lovely blue. Sometimes he bought woodcuts.

"I think it's outrageous!" stormed Molly. "He hasn't any right to buy things he can't pay for."

"But he does pay for them," protested Rita gently.

"Yes. And let's you pay the rent, and buy the groceries," declared Molly indignantly.

"Why not?" stormed Rita. "I'm perfectly willing to. Besides, I'm glad he loves beautiful things."

Rita had grown very thin. And her red lips were like a bleeding gash in her white face. They made evident distress, he relented. "You were so cocksure of yourself, Sister, I let you strut your stuff. Now I'll show you the ropes."

He hailed a taxi, explaining as he helped her in. "Taxis don't go so hot on the old swindle sheet, but if we want to grab a factory crowd doing the noon hour, we haven't any time to lose. Get a gang together, that's the idea. Then they think it's a big lark. Here's a tip for you. Phone a bunch of places, and get the foreman to line up some smooth-looking janes for us, and a couple slick Johns. We can shoot the works in 10 minutes. Give you a chance to kill a little time on the job."

It was, after all, the simplest thing to do. But Molly felt very uncomfortable about it. To protect the photographer, who had a weakness for shooting crap and liked to steal an hour or so, she was obliged to waste that amount of time every day. To ease her conscience, she devoted her time to observant little strolls along the water front, or through the Public Gardens, and along the Common. And she wrote pithy paragraphs about people and circumstances that seemed unusual or interesting to her. At the end of the week, she submitted several sheets of copy to the city editor.

"Good stuff," he approved. "I like your bit about the old man and the little lame girl. And this dog story's good. People like animal stories. Keep it up."

On the following Monday Molly was relieved of her Inquiring Reporter assignment, and given the joyous privilege of compiling a column of her own. "About Town," they called it, and it proved a popular feature.

And, before long, she was doing news stories. Stories with a human interest slant. A boxing match, from the woman's point of view. And then a wrestling match. She talked with ball players and their wives. And finally she interviewed theatrical stars.

It was great fun, sitting down front on a press ticket, and meeting the press agent in the lobby, between acts, to be taken to the star's dressing room. It was always the nicest dressing room, and it usually had a star painted on the door. Usually the glamorous lady had a maid, and sometimes she had a secretary. Her maid frequently helped her dress while she chatted with Molly.

Molly loved theatrical interviews. But the biggest thrill of her life came on the day she was assigned to cover a murder trial.

SMALL CHILD SURE TO SUFFER IF DIET ISN'T CAREFULLY PLANNED

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The developing intestinal tract of the child requires a different type of food than can be put into the well-developed tissues of the adult.

Most parents today realize this, yet it is so much easier to feed the child what the rest of the family are eating and to encourage it to eat a little more or women that far too often the beginnings of gastrointestinal disease are established by careless parents in childhood.

Today the specialists in the care of children carefully regulate the diet of the child until it is at least six years old and have certain definite rules regarding quantities of certain foods that are to be wrong kind of food soon chokes the furnace and creates a lot of snarls and snafus.

Recently Dr. W. M. Hupp has outlined a series of diets for infants, from two to four years and from four to six years of age. It is important, first of all, that the amount of the food gives bear some relationship to the individual requirements and appetite. The food should be specified to make sure that the child gets enough of the essential food substances.

BRINGING OUT THE HIDDEN LIGHTS IN BRUNET HAIR

By MABEL DUKE

Despite the bob, a woman's hair remains her crowning glory. And now that many girls are letting their locks grow, they would be wise to take precautions to make them as lovely as possible when the growing stage is past.

Norma Shearer's crisp brown hair is one of her loveliest features. She never has bobbed it.

"A woman's hair can be so lovely when it is properly cared for," Miss Shearer says, "but in this day of maracul and permanents few girls will give their hair the proper care. The first requisite for lovely hair is health, both of the hair and of the body. If there is a trace of dandruff it should be treated immediately with a good tonic. And then comes the brush. Hair should be brushed at least 100 strokes daily to bring out the hidden lights. A scalp massage with the fingertips is also beneficial."

Shampooing methods for blonds and brunets differ.

"An excellent soap for the brunette," Miss Shearer says, "is pine tar soap, shaved and melted in hot water. Besides its cleansing properties and the lovely lights it brings out in dark hair, this soap also has a pine odor which is delightful."

"A lemon rinse, followed by a clear water rinse, makes the hair soft. Another rinse which will bring a lovely gloss is a few drops of olive oil added to the last rinse water."

"One other note: if you are one of those fortunate girls blessed with a 'cow-lick,' be thankful and make the most of it. Don't try to hide it, but comb the hair back the way it grows."

Chicken may appear thin without number and never seem to lose its popularity. North, south, east and west this domestic bird holds sway for family or party meals.

The hostess planning a luncheon menu or club refreshments may welcome a few embellishments for the prime favorite dish of chicken. Chicken salad and chicken a la king are always good but have been used many times while chicken mousse and chicken roll are quite out of the ordinary and no more trouble to make.

Whenever chicken is to be cooked a second time, that is reheated in any fashion, a fowl must be chosen. Otherwise the meat becomes tasteless. Fowl is chicken from eight to twelve months old.

There are two kinds of chicken mousse, hot and cold, but since cold dishes are usually preferred in hot weather the accompanying recipe is for the cold mousse.

Chicken roll is a variation of chicken and biscuits that is interesting but simple. A rich baking powder biscuit dough is rolled quite thin and spread with a savory mixture of minced chicken and olives with a few drops of onion juice. This is rolled up just like a jelly or cinnamon roll, baked and cut in slices for serving. White sauce or chicken gravy can be served with it.

Two cups minced chicken, 1 cup seasoned chicken stock, 2 egg yolks, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, 4 tablespoons cold water, 1 cup whipping cream, 1 canned pimento, half pecan meats.

Strain chicken stock through cheesecloth and heat with salt and pepper. Add egg yolks slightly beaten and cook over hot water until mixture begins to thicken. Stir in gelatin softened in cold water. Remove from the fire and add the chicken and let stand until cool. When it begins to jelly fold in cream whipped until firm. Turn into a mold rinsed in cold water and put in refrigerator until thoroughly chilled and firm. When ready to serve dip mold for a second into hot water, turn out on a large platter and garnish with strips of pimento and nut meats.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Again youth—comparative—beauty, silks, nose, and a chic hat won. Miss Ann Livingston, 29, "Tulsa divorcee," as she was constantly described throughout the trial, was awarded by the middle aged jury $25,000 heart balm money from Franklin Harding, oil millionaire.

It is probably unfair to say that Anne didn't have a good story, or that the jury, as well as pretty hat and good looking ankles, but lawyers used to call "a sure fire case" seem to be here, especially with that all-male, "middle aged" jury, notoriously susceptible to fair plaintiffs.

MAYBE IN SPITE OF

This hasn't happened for a long time. We had about come to believe that the very prevalence of the tale of their susceptibility toward strong men to grin their teeth down on their instinct to give a favorable award to a fair plaintiff. Perhaps Miss Ann won her $25,000 in spite of her comeliness and not because of it.

Have you noticed, too, the use of that phrase "divorcee" whenever woman is caught in the public print? Have you noticed that the fact a man may be a divorcee is never tacked onto him publicly? We still cling to the idea that a divorced woman is a bit of a rarity.

"KISS ME AGAIN!"

"People kiss more strenuously than they did 15 years ago," declared some Dr. before a recent medical convention, explaining that too much "necking" was causing a spread of mouth diseases.

We have heard advantages of an unrepressed and demonstrative and affectionate age over an age which primarily pursed up its lips, frowned upon kisses, while hearts were out through denied affection.

We'd take a chance on the health and happiness of the kissed baby over that of the unloved one any day in the week.

A PROBLEM

And do you think that there should be a law forbidding the marriage of Slamese twins? It seems that the marriage license clerk in Manila denied a license to Lucio and Simplicio godina, 21-year-old Slamese twins, to marry two sisters. The clerk ruled that the twins were one person, and that their marriage would mean one person having two wives.

Whether it was all a publicity hoax or not, there is surely a nibble for thought here. Our own venture would be that two girls fool enough to marry them certainly need no help in being prevented, and that the Slamese twins themselves may be entitled to whatever they can get away with, their earthly pleasures seeming few enough at best.

POT AND KETTLE

Divorce is no legal in Brazil. If a couple wish to separate, one or the other states that he or she was forced into the marriage against his or her will.

At that, this isn't so different from our own law which makes collusion illegal while it knows perfectly well that collusion enters into the majority of all divorce cases.

GO TO IT!

French school teachers are threatening to strike on examination days till they are given better pay. They are being severely criticized, of course, for it has always been assumed that teachers should be delighted to work for the good of the race, no matter how little the good to themselves.

We're for the school teaching strike! The school kids like it, too.

BY THE MILE

Alfred Reeves, general manager of the American Automobile Association, talks of motor vehicles by the mile, rather than the unit. The automobile industry is building between 35 and 40 miles of motor vehicles every day, he says.

MOSTLY RIGHT-HANDED

The majority of the nations and colonies of the world employ the "keep to the right" system of traffic. Sixty of them use this system, while 43 still cling to the left.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

"Mother, when Mrs. Smith asked me where I got this dress I said you made it. Was that right?"

"She knows very well that Aunt Kate sends us things and she just asks to see what you'll say. But I don't know—I don't like your fibbing. It might be better to say next time that you don't know where I got it."

"But I do know. That's a fib, too."

"Well, but it's not such a big fib. I want you to stick to the truth as nearly as you can!"

As nearly as you can!

Isn't that the code that a good many of us have adopted? To tell the truth as close to the fact as possible, but just what we call possible rests with ourselves. That's our motto, isn't it?

Eviding Teacher.

"When the teacher asked if any of us got any help with our home work I didn't answer. When I didn't answer I wasn't saying 'no,' was I?" asks one boy.

"When the girl in the movies said, 'You'll have to pay full admission if you're over twelve,' I said, 'I'll be twelve on my next birthday.' Because I will, won't I—twelve and one," said another.

Telling the truth "as nearly as they possibly can!"

It may not be convenient and it may get us into all sorts of hot water to have the children going about telling the absolute truth about private family affairs to curious neighbors, but I believe the dodging evasive habit of practiced equivocation to be one of the most pernicious influences there is on child character.

The small amount of inconvenience, mortification, or embarrassment we or the children may feel if the whole truth is told is nothing compared to the loss of absolute straightforwardness and honesty in them.

Truth in thought, word, and action is the real foundation of character. Any substitute is cheap and tawdry. A code of morals built around any substitute for the truth will reflect the same spuriousness. It can never be wholly sound.

Silence Not Always Truth.

Let the neighbors know Aunt Kate sent the dress. Or say to the children to tell Mrs. Smith when she inquires, "Mother will tell

For there is no law against saving feelings when we honestly can. And teach children that silence is not always truth. It is often quite the opposite. And any twist such as the bright boy of twelve gave to his answer is deliberate falsehood also.

Teach the children to tell the direct truth all the time to you and to everyone else. And see that they are not too much afraid of you to tell it to you at all times. A certain cruddy gentleman said, "I am teaching my sons that there is no black and white about truth. When truth is unkind, it shouldn't be told."

The question here is, "Which is more important? To save someone's feelings or build your boy's character?"

I leave that to you.

Five Baseball Teams Chase Mythical Town Championship

Interest in Title This Year; May Lay Foundation for Return of Diamond Sport Here.

Several teams in and around Manchester are going to aspire for the town title this season according to the best of reports. And among these teams there is going to be some spirited bidding for the cream of the baseball crop. Sammy Massey's outfit, according to the dope, has the edge. The Bon Ami, Green, possibly Highland Park and a picked team from the Senior League of the playgrounds will undoubtedly enter.

Although a determined effort to make the fans support at least one team this season has apparently been passed up by the management but this is not a certain fact as yet. Massey has welded together a real aggregation and may yet, when the vacation season is over place the team back on the home town pasture for another fling at the gate receipts.

Box Am Strong
Over at the north end the Bon Ami has a real good club. It is strong in every department except reserve pitchers. Godek is the real ace of the team and it is doubtful if he can carry the burden of a title series. This club has played together all season without attracting much attention but the supporters of the team point out the fact that team work, when consistently applied has the desired effect of bothering opposition.

Highland Park may or may not, as the case may be, enter a team. Here is another club with good players, teamwork and will have plenty of support from the lofty section of the town if it does enter the contest for the town championship.

Playgrounds Team
Now that all the other entries have been accounted for let us take a peek at Pat Carlson's idea of a town title contender. No doubt but what Pat will do the catching and lead the aggregation onto the playing field. That makes the Playgrounds' gang even with all the rest. This chap alone has the pep, grit, leadership and playing ability to make the team a possibility to be reckoned with.

Green Confident
That Manchester Green is confident goes without saying. Prentice, Mayor Samuel, has instilled a lot of pep, confidence, real or otherwise into his outfit and he has got them believing that any Eastern League team would be easy for them.

Now the big question arises. Jealousy among ball clubs is a good deal like the same disease in camps of prize fighters. Generally a good topnotcher wants his opponent to go and get a reputation. One can imagine the arguments when the managers get together for the series.

Whoever finally manages to get the series ironed out and played before Christmas deserves a real medal. It is going to be a task that few will relish and none will want to undertake. But there will be a series, no doubt of that.

Odds Are Even Today—Interest in Fight Grows and a Big Gate is Certain; Sentiment Seems to Favor Challenger.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, July 18.—A champion of the world, a fighting champion and a good one, will stand at the cross road of his career tonight and, by the choice he makes, either will go forward and upward to greater things or backward and downward to the inevitable limbo of pugilism's forgotten. Tommy Loughran, they say, is at the crisis of his young life.

He will defend his light heavyweight title for the seventh time in a year and a half in a fifteen round fight with Jimmy Braddock at the Yankee Stadium tonight and the ghouls who relish the end of an old dynasty are all-a-witter at the thought that it may turn out to be one defense too many. Braddock not only is the strongest challenger the man has faced but the man himself is presumed to be ready for the old laundry bag. Just off two unimpressive fights with Arnold Emanuel and Mickey Walker, the champion is believed by many to have left the best of him on a set of coldly impersonal scales that will demand 175 pounds at two o'clock this afternoon.

A Weakened Champ
The drama probably will be met but they say it will not be a keen, strong arm brawl. Loughran who will do it, if you string with their notion, the weighing-in rendezvous will have kept a bloodless, tottering champion, weak of the point of incipient collapse. I am disinclined to believe it. Loughran's weight-making is no dance of the spirits as dawning. He did around 187 pounds for Ernie Schaaf not so long ago and the eleven pounds he shed in the meantime undoubtedly represent self-imposed cruelty that only a religious fanatic or a champion would undergo.

The ritual has hurt Loughran or they wouldn't be giving Braddock the chance that they do. He is about even money in the betting today, an unusual circumstance in connection with a championship fight, and he may even go in there as the popular favorite. A great right hand puncher and a young man who may be about to come overnight, much as Tunney did, Braddock is a challenger of distinct possibilities.

Loughran's Side
But Loughran hasn't been wrong yet about either an opponent or the matter of making weight. He bats an even 1,000 both ways and it may be significant that, faced with a chance for the heavyweight championship, he took the Braddock fight without demur. No man, figuring on the heavyweight title, would willingly let himself in for a defeat in the class below. Loughran is wrong, I'm willing to bet. He at least can make one more fight for what money I have.

The prospect of a turnover in championship incumbents at least has had its effect upon the receipts. It has served to make a "gate" out of what previously looked very much like a mere hole in the wall, for Braddock, game, fast and a puncher, has a local following that at least will turn out to see him win. This following, however, hasn't even a nominal interest in seeing him lose and, when the match first was made, it appeared reasonable to expect that he would lose no more than fourteen out of a possible fifteen rounds.

At that, this conception of the fight was based on the Loughran who, eighteen months ago, was being touted into the heavyweight championship. Today, however, it is the same Loughran today and, frankly, it is a good thing for tonight's fight that he isn't.

They always like to see perfection ruined. Tell the mugs that a man can't be hit and they will stay away in a body. Tell them that he might be hit and they will attend in orderly, respectable way. Tell them he will be hit and they wouldn't keep some of them away with a court order.

LEGION BLASTS CARDINALS 9-2

Vennart Clears Bases in First to Clinch Victory.

The local American Legion Junior baseball club had little difficulty winning over the North End Cardinals last evening at the West Side playground, the final outcome being 9-2. This is the second time the Legion has taken the north aggregation into camp.

A stiff workout or the Post nine preceded the game and it had its effect for the boys played a dandy fielding game. Werner's poor throw to second being the only misplay. Vennart's double in the first inning which came with all the bases occupied and accounted for three runs and a triple from the bat of Acting Captain Ed Joly in the second inning were the battery features.

CHENEY TRAILING BY TWO STROKES
New Haven, July 18.—E. Trednick of Meriden scored a brilliant 78 over the new Haven Country club course today to take a lead of two strokes over J. P. Cheney in the first day of a two-day senior golf tournament. The Meriden player also tied for low net with R. L. Walkley of New Haven and J. H. Kirkham of New Britain who had rounds of 70. The tournament drew a field of 53 golfers from all sections of the state.

Last Night Fights
At New York—Wittorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, won from Arthur De Kuh, Brooklyn Italian, on fourth 13.
Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, won decision over Young Bob Fitzsimmons (10).
Roy Wallace, Indianapolis lightweight, won decision over Dave King, New York (6).

RAMBLERS MEET CARDS TONIGHT

Senior Leaguers at West Side Grounds at 6:15 O'Clock.

The Ramblers and Cardinals will mingle at the West Side playground this evening in the second tilt of the Senior Baseball League. This game will start promptly at 6:15 o'clock and all members are requested to be on hand before that time.

Tomorrow evening the Pirates and Aces will play and judging from the interest shown both games will be well attended. It was also announced that the teams expect to strengthen up, and that the officials of the league will get together and select an all star aggregation from the league to show someone that there is still plenty of kick left in the old sport houses.

CAMPOLO VICTOR ON FOUL IN 3RD
By SID MERCER.
New York, July 18.—Victor Campolo, giant ox-slayer from the Argentine, went on trial last night at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, before a flimsy jury which is still debating the question of whether he is a worthy successor to the old Wild Bull of the Pampas, Loui Angel Firpo. The jury is still out on Campolo because he did not travel far enough with Arthur De Kuh, another Goliath of the ring, to determine his real class.

In justice to the newcomer, however, it must be admitted that he was cutting De Kuh down rapidly with stiff punches to the body and had him holding on the third round when the tall Brooklynite was disqualified by Referee Jack Denning for hitting low with his right hand. De Kuh had been guilty of at least four low shots and had previously drawn two warnings from the referee.

Although Campolo was doubled up in pain after being struck low in the second round, he came out for the third round apparently in good shape and was not hurt by the low right that provoked the referee to disqualification of De Kuh.

The Argentine giant, weighing 228½ pounds, battled from a crouch. De Kuh weighed 217 pounds and might have evened up Campolo's digs to the body if he had led with his right from a distance that would have enabled him to put something on it. He can hit as hard with that right as any man in the ring today but his timidity against good punchers and the old inferiority complex were beating him when the referee called it a night.

Local Sport Chatter

Here is a letter from an old friend of the writer's and who suddenly became foolish and joined the National Guard. It may be possible that the "mob" he was running around with during the past four years got after him and forced him to seek safety in numbers. But Bud Weiser writes from Natick and tells about the regular sports editor in the next paragraph.

Written on the back of an old envelope and apparently full of white noise, Bud writes, or peeps the following short snappy letter.
Natick, July 17, 1929.
Hello Pat Wanupus.
Well the other half of the Herald is down here and according to the boys who have been here before with him he caught the National Guard flatfooted. By that I mean he was not supposed to come down this year and then crossed the Adjutant General, whoever he is, and came down. By catching the Guard flatfooted I mean that the Guard was not prepared for him. They only had two cooks for each company because he was not coming and then when his boots finally pushed him off for ten days, not enough. But I get my cats. Stove or no Stove because I was handed permanent kitchen detail so you see mine comes first before the rest of this mob. Anyway I am writing you a longer letter, (it can stay sober long enough) in time for Saturday's page. Here's hoping that the dynamite blows up and you with it.

Yours, drunk or sober,
Bud Weiser.
P.S. Come down I know all the places where you can get some Jakey.
P.S.S. Bring some jack with you.

FOUR TRACK STARS SAIL FOR EUROPE
New York, July 18.—Four of America's premier track and field athletes will sail on the "President Roosevelt" today to compete in several meets in Europe. They are Dick Rockaway, Ohio state hurdler; Leo Lermond of Boston, National mile champion; Fred Sturdy of Yale, National pole vault champion; and Leo Sexton, Georgetown's all-around star.

DAVIS CUP TEAM TO PLAY GERMANS
Berlin, July 18.—William T. Tilden and Frank Hunter members of the United States Davis Cup team, were to take both morning and afternoon workouts today on the tennis courts of the Rotweiss Club, where the Americans will play Germany in the intercontinental tennis match. They began practice yesterday.

NO FIGHT RETURNS AVAILABLE TONIGHT

Like the Schmeigel-Uzudun fight, there will be no radio broadcast of the Loughran-Braddock bout in New York tonight, unless last minute changes are made.

Neither will the returns be carried over the telegraph wires in Connecticut by The International News Service of which The Herald is a client. Therefore, it will be impossible for this newspaper to give the returns tonight.

Lack of sufficient interest in the fight is the main reason. However, any fans who happen to be greatly interested may be able to hear a description of a relayed wire account over some of the smaller radio stations.

GOVERNORS SPLIT OVER ENFORCEMENT

Sharp Division of Opinion Before Parley Convenes at Groton Today.

Groton, Conn., July 18.—Sharp conflict over the prohibition question loomed today at the conference of governor's when it became apparent that certain governors intended to say their say on the law enforcement issue and particularly the Wickersham suggestion.

Governor Albert G. Ritchie of Maryland, a Wet, planned to take the floor and attack the proposal of George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's crime and law enforcement commission, for a division of the enforcement procedure so that the states could take over a larger part of the "burden" now carried by the Federal government. Under the Wickersham proposal the Federal prohibition authorities would have only to prevent importation, manufacture and shipment of liquor in interstate commerce while the states would handle the police duties of suppressing the bootleggers and speakeasies.

Dry's Proposal
 At the same time, Governor John G. Richards of South Carolina, a Dry, made it plain that he is going to find out why the governors cannot see their way clear to adopt a resolution he has introduced pledging to President Hoover, not only the sympathy of the conference but its "hearted cooperation" in his efforts toward law enforcement. In some quarters the Richards resolution was interpreted as an indirect endorsement of the Wickersham proposal, although no reference to Wickersham's suggestion is made in the resolution.

Then, too, another resolution approving President Hoover's law enforcement efforts has been prepared jointly by Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina and Governor Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, and introduced at the conference.

Both resolutions have been referred to the executive committee of the conference, and there were indications that no further action on them was contemplated. This procedure is unsatisfactory to both Governor Richards and Governor Gardner, who introduced them, and both plan to stage a fight to bring the resolution to a vote and force the conference to go on record on the issue.

Governors' Policy
 The governors at previous conferences have had a policy of not adopting any resolution that might be construed as a controversial nature. Both resolutions are regarded as highly controversial.

Governor Ritchie, leader of the "Wet" minority at the conference, is determined not to allow the governors at this session to gloss over the prohibition issue which has been tossed into their laps by the Wickersham suggestion which came before the conference in the form of a letter read to the governors by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

To Denounce Plan
 Ritchie is understood to have prepared a sharp address denouncing the Wickersham proposal and pointing out what he regards as its weak spots. He is also expected to oppose the Richards resolution and also the Gardner-Byrd resolution, utilizing the rule of the conference against passing any resolutions of a controversial nature.

Governor Richards told International News Service this morning that in his opinion there is "nothing

Flood Inundates Kansas Town

Water, water everywhere, in some places as much as ten feet deep, inundated Hutchinson, Kas., when a nearby creek overflowed and a wall of water three miles wide poured over the city. More than two million dollars' worth of damage was done. Above is a scene of the main street when water was at its highest; below, policemen are patrolling the streets in a boat.

DAUGHTERS GIVE FOLKS ANNIVERSARY SURPRISE

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Filbig, of 203 Main street were married 17 years, July 16. Their daughters, Miss Beulah and Miss Elizabeth, believed the event should not pass without recognition. They accordingly invited 20 of the relatives and close friends of their parents, and arranged with Paul Packard to have his orchestra of four pieces present to provide a lively music. Mr. and Mrs. Filbig on their return from a ride were very much surprised to find so many of their friends gathered in honor of their anniversary. Music, games and a delicious buffet lunch helped to pass a merry evening. Mr. and Mrs. Filbig received individual gifts, and a joint gift from several of the gathering of a purse containing $14.

BLOUSE'S IMPORTANCE

Blouses augment the uses to which summer suits may be put. A black linen suit has three blouses, each with a different aspect. One is a sleeveless blouse in red and white checks; for sports; one, a yellow handkerchief linen for country club luncheons and the third, a fine batiste, with matching ecru lace, for dressy affairs.

PREVENTING STREAKS

When washing a fragile frock, streaking can be prevented if thorough rinsing is done and the sleeve and body and skirt of the frock are filled with either tissue paper or towels. The filter absorbs the extra water that is what causes streaks.

FRUIT'S TANG

When serving a chilled fruit cocktail to begin a meal, do not sweeten as for dessert, but, rather, add a bit of tart or lime to give it an appetizing tang.

"If I had I wouldn't be working here," came the girl's prompt reply.

WATER GOLF

FOR REFINED GOLFERS. Today's quiet round for WELL BRED letter golfers is a par six. Perhaps you can beat the solution on another page.

WELL BRED grid for letter golf.

THE RULES 1-The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2-You change only one letter at a time.

3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

One solution is printed on comic page.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Robert W. Chambers and family and Mrs. Mark Hewitt of Middle Turnpike are at Chalk Beach for two weeks.

The Manchester Electric Company this morning started opening a trench on Bissell street for laying conduits to carry power lines from the New street sub-station to the outlying sections of the town.

There was no session of the town court this morning, the first time in a week that no cases had been called.

Dr. F. F. Bushnell, local milk inspector and assistant to Dr. D. C. Y. Moore as town health officer, has been literally besieged by milk dealers since the publication of milk standards in The Herald recently. Many of the dealers were not satisfied with their showings and they are seeking information from Dr. Bushnell as to the best methods to follow to improve their ratings.

Although yesterday was Merchants' day in Manchester and stores through the business section were supposed to be closed all day, by actual count there were 18 places of business open between the Center and the south end terminus. The places included restaurants, shoe repair shops, confectionary shops, drug stores and a few groceries and bakery shops. Older merchants recall one Business Men's day years ago when every place of business, even including the old saloons, closed their doors for a one-day vacation.

Mrs. Edson M. Bailey of Holl street, who is vacationing with her husband near Burlington, Vt., recently underwent an operation for appendicitis and has recovered satisfactorily.

Town Treasurer George H. Waddell, Probation Officer Edward C. Elliott, Jr., and Francis E. Miner motored to Niantic yesterday afternoon and witnessed the war maneuvers at the Stone farm.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of trustees of the Memorial hospital was held yesterday afternoon. Routine business occupied the major part of the session.

James Richmond and family of Green Hill street are spending two weeks at Atlantic Beach, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montie of New street and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Montie of Bigelow street are spending their vacation at White Sands beach.

Employees of the Pinehurst Grocery held their Merchants' Day outing at Block Island.

George Douthwaite of Hartford, father of Mrs. John H. Darling of 234 Keene street, died yesterday at his home, 106 Capen street. His funeral will take place at his late home, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be in Spring Grove cemetery.

Mrs. George E. Wallace and daughters Marjorie and Madeline of East Center street, have returned from a visit with friends at Crescent Beach.

Manchester Tent No. 2, Knights of the Maccoebes will hold its regular business meeting in the Balch and Brown hall this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Alton and family of East Center street are at White Sands beach for the remainder of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Ramsdell of Pittsburgh, Pa., arrived in town Monday, after a pleasant motor trip through Pennsylvania and New York states, to spend their vacation period visiting with Mr. Ramsdell's parents Mr. and Mrs. W. Ramsdell of 35 Main street, and other relatives in town. Mr. Ramsdell's father made the trip home with them after spending a ten days visit in the Smoky City.

Harry Vitullo, a local barber, and Miss Mary Gravano of this town, made application yesterday for a marriage license at the bureau of vital statistics, Hartford.

Mrs. George Fletcher, Miss Sadie Murdock of Philadelphia and Mrs. Arthur Floyd of Asbury Park, N. J., returned this morning after a visit with George Murdock of Walker street.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Von Deck of Alexandria, Va., former Manchester residents, will return home Saturday after spending a two weeks' visit with friends here and in Tolland.

A group of about 20 Manchester boys, newspaper carriers for The Hartford Courant here, went to Riverside Park in Springfield today along with more than 500 other carriers about the state. Arthur Manley, circulation manager here, was in charge of the local contingent. There were 19 busses in the group and they were escorted by state police.

In Gibson's garage, there is an automobile bearing Washington, D. C. markers that is badly wrecked, caused by going over a bank in Oakland yesterday morning. The car was coming from the west on Deming street and on striking Tolland Turnpike went over the edge and turned over twice. The occupants of the car were in a hurry to get going and ordered the car drawn in. The driver of the car, a man, got a slight cut on his head. The body of the car is damaged to the extent of over $200. The party secured other means of conveyance and continued on after seeing that the car was towed in.

Ernest Roy of the Depot Square garage has been having trouble for some time past in preventing cars in storage or under repairs, or wrecked from being stripped of such parts as are valuable. In order to comply with the law and not have old cars around the place Mr. Roy has been storing his automobiles in barns in the Oakland paper mill. Time after time the barns have been entered and tires and other parts taken. Unable to catch anyone at it after several different men had been kept on guard the matter was this morning turned over to the police for investigation.

GILEAD MAN FINDS MORE CHESTNUT BLOOMS

C. W. Buell Has Been Watching Trees and They Seem to Be in Good Condition.

Editor, Manchester Evening Herald, South Manchester, Conn.

Dear Sir: We were much interested in the article in the Herald last Friday regarding chestnut trees. We have three or four chestnut trees about two and one-half inches in diameter that appear to be in good condition, and some of them are in blossom now and may continue. We had many acres of chestnut killed by the blight, and we have watched quite closely any sprouts that have appeared. Most of these have died after a year or two, but it is possible that some of those now alive may continue. It certainly will be a great asset to the people if the chestnut ever comes back.

Very truly yours,

ONLY 2 STORES HOLD OUTINGS

Watkins and Keith Concerns Have Group Parties; Others "On Their Own."

Despite ideal weather only two Main street stores held employees outings yesterday, Merchants Day, the pair being Watkins Brothers, who held its annual at East Hampton and Keith's Furniture store, whose employees spent the day at Rocky Point. There were, however, innumerable individual outings held by store employees and their families.

From the Center to the terminus, Main street was swept clean as a whistle—hardly a pedestrian in sight. A few salesmen unaware of the general closing, tried doors vainly along the street then left discouraged.

One reason for holding so few combined outings this year was advanced by a clerk this morning and can probably be taken as representative of all the stores. "We see enough of each other every day," he said, "without continuing to do so on a holiday."

Twenty-five persons went to Rocky Point on the Keith outing, leaving Manchester at 7 o'clock in the morning. A program of games, arranged in advance, was run off before noon, including a baseball game between the shipping clerks-outside gang and office force-salesmen. When the game ended the shipping clerks-outside gang were on the long end of a 8-7 score. Most exciting of all the contests during the day was a hot-fought croquet match and a clam eating contest. The latter took place during the noon hour when the force was attacking one of the famous Rocky Point shore dinners. With considerable gorging the salesman finally triumphed in this contest. The many attractions and swimming at Rocky Point were enjoyed and at 6:30 o'clock a weary but happy group started homeward.

PLAN MAIL DELIVERY FOR NEW SECTIONS

Postmaster Toop Hopes to Include Hollywood, Marvin Green and Bluefield Tracts.

Postmaster Oliver P. Toop is busy working on a new schedule of carriers' mail delivery that will affect more than 500 persons. About 175 families will be added to the present list. They are getting their mail at present either through general delivery or by having boxes at the South Manchester post office.

The new sections which are to be added to the other routes are to be in the Hollywood, Marvin Green, Lakeview and Bluefield tracts. It will be quite some time, however, before it will be possible to start the service in the new territory. Also it will be necessary to readjust other routes bordering in those vicinities so that the amount of mail to be distributed can be properly balanced.

There is a strong possibility that with the addition of the new territory now being mapped, an additional carrier's service will be needed. If so, Postmaster Toop will forward a request to Washington for permission to increase the personnel.
