STEAM SHOVEL SCOOP KILLS WAR VETERAN

Charles F. Meyers, of Florence Street, Struck and Crushed by Digger as It Slips Down Cable.

Crushed under the weight of a large steam shovel scoop which fell on him, Charles F. Meyers, 42 years old World War veteran of 33 Florence street, was fatally injured late yesterday afternoon and died two hours later without regaining consciousness at the Manchester hospital. The accident happened on Brookfield street in the Green Acres at 3:40.

Scoop Hits Him.

Meyers was standing on automobile truck owned by Alexander Jarvis, Jr., by whom he was employed as a truck driver, waiting for the gasoline steam shovel to supply his load. The shovel was loaded with gravel and hoisted high in the air over the truck. Meyers was knocked from the truck as the shovel slid down the boom and into the front part of the digging machine.

Badly Crushed.

Meyers was rendered unconscious instantly and workmen carried him to another automobile and he was rushed to the hospital. It was found, however, that there was no hope. When the ambulance arrived Meyers had a fractured arm and pelvic bone in addition to numerous injuries about the head and body where he was hurt internally, several ribs being broken. Relatives were immediately notified and were at the bedside when he passed away.

Mother Dead a Year.

Meyers was well known about town, especially at the south end.

FRONTIER DISPUTE IS AGAIN SERIOUS

More Clashes Between Chinese and Russians in Manchuria, Are Reported

Tokio, Aug. 16.—The Sino-Russian border along the Siberia-Manchuria frontier is becoming more serious hourly, as news received here today indicated.

Sharp clashes between Chinese and Soviet troops were reported at several points. Several border towns were reported to have been occupied by Russian troops.

Soviet gunboats were reported to have made several attacks upon Chinese troop encampments on the Sungari river.

General Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian war lord, has ordered three brigades of well-equipped Mukden troops to the frontier to reinforce weak spots in the Chinese lines and guard strategic points along the Chinese Eastern Railway.

SOVIETS MOVE.

Moscow, Aug. 16.—No business transactions between citizens of any of the world powers and China involving the Chinese Eastern Railway will be recognized by the Russian Soviet government.

Vice-Commissioner of Foreign Affairs L. M. Karakhan served notice to the world to this effect last night in a statement inspired by reported plans of foreign banks in China to float a loan for the Nanjing government with the Chinese Eastern Railway as collateral.

Karakhan declared the Soviet government would not recognize any obligations contracted by the present management of the railway. He further announced the intention of the Soviet government to claim indemnity for loss of operation revenue and damage to equipment during the "present illegal management."

To Hang Rum Pirate In Florida Hangar

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Aug. 16.—Resigned to his fate, James Horace Alderman, 60-year-old rum pirate, today began his last 24 hours on earth.

Amid utmost secrecy, he will hang from a scaffold tomorrow in explanation for the murder of Spyros C. Sanderlin and Victor A. Lamby, two coast guardsmen, and Robert E. Webster, a Secret Service operative, killed in a gun battle on the high seas two years ago.

The hanging will take place in a metal seaplane hangar on the grounds of the United States Coast Guard base here. Reporters have been barred from the grounds.

The officially designated witnesses have been instructed that no information regarding the hanging is to be divulged. The secrecy order was given by Federal Judge Halstead L. Ritter of Miami, who signed the death warrant.

An executioner, spiritual adviser for the execution, but their names were not announced. Arrangements also have been made for the delivery of the body to the family at Miami.

Alderman has been moved from Miami to a cell in the Broward county jail here. Declaring he has no fear of the noose, the prisoner reads his Bible almost continuously. "I am not afraid to go," he said.

BRUSSELS WOMAN WEDS 50 HUSBANDS SHE SAYS

Admits Having Been Engaged 652 Times; Ex-Husband Notifies Police and She's Held for Bigamy

Brussels, Belgium, Aug. 16.—When Adrienne Guyot, a ravishing blonde, calmly informed the Brussels police that she had been married to fifty husbands, they were politely incredulous. When she admitted having been engaged 652 times they were knocked for a row of romances.

All records for such marriage among women of all ages, colors and nationalities were broken by Adrienne, who is under arrest charged with bigamy. According to the confession the police claim Adrienne has made, she is a super-polygamist.

Hymen, the Pagan deity who is understood to preside over nuptial affairs, has been entitled to time and a half for overtime ever since Adrienne cast her devastating orbs upon the first of her matrimonial victims.

Her Life Story

The life story of this pulchritudinous prisoner promises to be the most sensational brought to light. She was born in Mons of humble parents, but early in life began to dawn upon her that her physical qualifications were such as to keep her engaged if not actually married. Wherever she went, Belgian congregations thick as flies. It was no trick for Adrienne to have the pick of the herd at her side begging for commands and favors.

Early in life Adrienne decided that Paris was the place for her. It was. She had not been in the French metropolis very long until she was married to a wealthy man and she not yet 19. It appeared to Adrienne as a pretty good racket. She liked fine clothes and luxurious living quarters and high priced food as well as plenty of jeweled geegaws.

Liked Gambling

Adrienne developed a passion for gambling and her first romance soon collapsed. Then she began a round of the capitals and fashionable watering places of Europe and she found out just how easy it was to marry a rich man.

An American is reported to have scuttled a fortune upon her, abandoning an engagement, proved too costly and eventually Adrienne found herself without either a husband, who was in active harness, or funds. She came to Brussels and was about to contract her 51st marriage when an ex-husband recognized her. This was not surprising in view of the number of her ex-husbands scattered over Europe; but this one was vindictive and turned her over to the police.

Adrienne, despite her admission, claims she has done no wrong and wants the police to let her go so she can get married and settle down.

FALL OVER 100 FEET BUT SLIGHTLY HURT

Auto Turns Over 15 Times Near Winsted But Occupants Escape Serious Injury

Winsted, Aug. 16.—Three men driving along the state road over Hartland mountain came back to town during the night to be treated for minor injuries after escaping death only by what seemed to state police, who investigated, a miracle. Their machine went over an embankment to a point 122 feet below by fifteen measurement, turning over fifteen times in the descent and being dashed to pieces.

The men in the car were Charles E. Crounley and John Nash, of Ridgefield, and L. H. Crossman, of Winsted. They clung to the wreckage, to the amazement of witnesses, with only slight cuts.

The trio were headed for Northampton, Mass., over a road that was new to them. The car failed to take a turn in the road, going turning on its side, and rolling to rocks firm enough to stop its progress.

NO PROGRESS AT NAVAL CUT CONFERENCES

Britain Refuses to Reduce Her Present Cruiser Tonnage and There the Matter Rests.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Despite the "substantial progress" regularly announced in the negotiations toward a British-American naval agreement, it was learned today that up to the present there has been considerably more vocal optimism by "the statesmen" than actual accomplishment by the experts.

Instead of an agreement being expectedly near, it might be inferred from some of the announcements in London and Washington, the "brass tacks" stage of negotiations has not even been reached.

This is true at any rate concerning cruisers, which comprise the only real naval difference there has been between the two countries.

Britain's Stand

At no stage of the negotiations has Britain conceded or intimated willingness to materially reduce her present cruiser tonnage. If the United States is to attain anything even remotely approaching cruiser parity, this inevitably means that President Hoover must proceed with the suspended American program, calling for 15 new vessels in the next three years, and even go beyond that.

Great Britain's cruiser preponderance is so great that even the addition of 15 new vessels already authorized by Congress will still leave the American navy a good bit behind. The American Navy would then have 305,000 tons of modern cruisers, as against some 407,000 tons for the British.

DEBT DEADLOCK STILL UNBROKEN

Delegates at Hague Are Unable to Agree on Great Britain's Demands.

The Hague, Netherlands, Aug. 16.—In a final attempt to save the reparations conference here from collapse, the delegates of France, Italy, Japan and Belgium today presented to Great Britain their offer toward a compromise.

In a memorandum handed to Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer and head of the British delegation here, the four nations expressed their willingness to grant England 2,000,000 pounds (approximately $10,000,000) in additional annuities over and above those provided for in the Young Plan.

Snowden, however, demands 2,400,000 pounds ($12,000,000). Presented by Belgium. The latest compromise offer was presented to Snowden by Premier Henri Jaspar of Belgium. It was understood to be the final concession the four Allies would consent to make, and that if Snowden refused it, complete break-up of the conference would be the inevitable result.

The new offer came somewhat as a surprise, for it had been understood that yesterday's offer by the Allies represented the full extent of concessions the Allies would make. This offer, which was promptly refused by Snowden, left the British demands directly in half.

COLLEGE BOY DEAD IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Tragedy in Wake of Gay Roadhouse Party; Woman Companion Dying.

Bedford, N. Y., Aug. 16.—A gay party in an up-state roadhouse ended tragically before dawn today when a high-powered speedster careened off the highway near here, carrying a popular Dartmouth student to his death and fatally injuring a beautiful young Cos Cob society matron.

The dead student is Edwin Decker, Jr., 21, one of the leading figures of Dartmouth's junior class. He was spending the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Decker, at Cos Cob, Conn., just over the state line.

Companion Dying.

The dying woman is beautiful Mrs. Beulah Biggs, 31, one of the leading figures in Cos Cob's light-hearted summer colony. She is in Northern Westchester hospital at Mt. Kisco.

The Banksville road, in Bedford, where the accident happened, is a new, straight concrete highway. The shovellers, however, are soft. Not yet having been macadamized. From the rut, Bedford police decided that Decker's car had slid off the concrete, into the soft shoulder. It careened sixty feet through the woods, crashing through many small trees.

The car finally struck a huge tree and turned on its side. The two victims, the only occupants of the expensive speedster, were knocked unconscious.

MAY REVISE BANK SYSTEM NOW IN USE

Survey Shows Over Billion and Half Dollars Drop in Resources in Last Half Year.

Washington, Aug. 16.—A legislative battle bringing into conflict state and national banks, with Congress in the role of umpire appeared inevitable today as a result of the disclosure that there have been serious defections from the national banking system involving a billion and a half dollars drop in resources of the national banks in the past year.

The national system showed a reduction of 39 banks between March and June and a drop of 155 institutions in a year. While many of the banks have succeeded in recouping from mergers and failures, the decrease due to surrender of national charters for those under state governments was sufficient to cause officials grave concern as to the future of the system. A major volume of the reduction in resources came from defections, a number of big banks of the system having dropped out.

Branch Banking

The Congressional fight will revolve chiefly around the much disputed question of extension of branch banking. Two schools of thought appear both in administration and Congressional circles, one favoring either keeping branch banking within its present limits, or curtailing the privilege and the other advocating expansion of this phase of banking to put the national banks on a parity with the state institutions.

Comptroller of the Currency K. W. Poie maintained that it is necessary for the government to possess an instrumentality of finance in the form of a system of national banks, in order that it may through them, in times of stress, be able to enforce a national financial policy.

No Criticism

Poie remarked that it was no criticism of the state banks and trust companies to say that the national government cannot rely upon them, in times of stress, to make it to the advantage of capital to seek the national, rather than a trust company charter. Banking capital is without prejudice or sentiment. It will flow back into national banks normally and with the turn of the tide of advantage.

The alternative would seem to be the elimination of national banks in favor of 48 distinct systems of banks under the supervision of 48 separate banking departments.

Poie pointed out that the MacFadden Act of 1927 was not intended to be a permanent settlement of the branch banking question; it having been a compromise measure.

Charles As a consequence the MacFadden Act held all of these branches in status quo as to number and location but permitted them to be nationalized.

RAIDS IN CHINATOWN

Boston, Aug. 16.—Making four raids simultaneously, Federal narcotic agents together with police, today swept into Chinatown, arrested thirty Chinese, and took possession of large quantities of opium and other paraphernalia.

Butt Snipers In Paris Are Going To Form Union

Paris, Aug. 16.—"Our business is picking up and we should push this expansion still further by seeking an alliance with the Street Cleaning Department," declared Jean Dupont, in an address to the charter members of the newly formed protective union of cigarette butt collectors. M. Dupont is president.

Picking up tobacco scraps has developed into quite an industry in Paris—the home of peculiar occupations and strange livelihoods. When a man has collected a pound or more of tobacco in cigarette or cigar butts he sells it to a special dealer. The tobacco is recast into the cheapest form of cigarettes which are sold in the slums.

These cigarettes are sold on the slum along the Seine river and in slum bars, in defiance of the French tobacco monopoly. These tobacco "bootleggers" are a thriving business as they undersell even the lowest priced legitimate cigarettes by a franc or so.

COAST TO COAST AND RETURN HOP

Plane to Be Refueled in Air; Due Over Roosevelt Field Tomorrow Afternoon.

WENEZUELAN REBS HOLD WHIP HAND

Dominate the Whole Eastern Coast—Are Aboard a German Gunboat.

Mills Field, San Francisco, Aug. 16.—After making two successful refueling contacts, the "Sun God," with its pilots, Nick Mamer and Art Walker, roared away on the second leg of its flight today.

The big Buhl biplane arrived over Mills Field at 4:03 this morning, having flown from Spokane in approximately ten hours.

Arriving before dawn, the "Sun God" flew in wide circles over the field until it was light enough for the "nurse" ship to go aloft for the first contact.

Takes on Gas.

The "Sun God" left after making two contacts, instead of the expected three. It left here at 7:30 a. m., after taking 180 gallons of gasoline aboard.

The "California," the "nurse ship" will load up once more and start in pursuit of the plane headed for Cheyenne. If the latter wants an additional supply of fuel, the transfer will be made enroute.

Inasmuch as it will take from eight to ten hours for the "Sun God" to reach the Wyoming city, the fliers made a hurried departure from here, in order that they might have daylight for refueling there.

AT THIS END.

Roosevelt Field, Mineola, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Charles Lombard, representing the National Aeronautical Association here, was asked today by telegram to note the time of arrival and departure of the airplane "Sun God," in which Nicholas Mamer and Arthur Walker are attempting a coast-to-coast and return flight, refueling in the air.

The orange-hued plane took off from Spokane, Wash., last night at 6 p. m. (Pacific Coast Time) and is due over Roosevelt field tomorrow.

Lombard received the following telegram from Valentine Gephart, secretary of the N. A. A. at Spokane:

"Please observe for N. A. A. time of arrival and departure over your city of Mamer's non-stop orange Buhl plane Number NR 9628. Write me air mail above data Seattle. Plane due over your city 3:30 p. m., E. S. T., the seventeenth."

TO FOLLOW R. R. LINE

Early This Afternoon Graf Was Over the Foothills of the Ural Mountains; Picking Up Speed as She Heads Due East—Good Weather Along Route Thus Far.

LOG OF THE GRAF.

New York, Aug. 16.—Following is the log of the Graf Zeppelin since beginning her round the world flight. All times used are Eastern Daylight Saving.

Thursday, Aug. 9:
12:40 a. m. Left Lakehurst, N. J.
1:45 a. m. Circled Statue of Liberty, the official starting point of the round the world voyage.
Saturday, Aug. 11:
8:00 a. m. Landed at Friedrichshafen.
Wednesday, Aug. 14:
11:35 p. m. Departed for Tokio on second leg of round the world flight.
Thursday, Aug. 15:
5:35 a. m. Passed over Berlin.
9:55 a. m. Reached Danzig on the Baltic coast.
12 noon. Flew over Tilsit.
4:35 p. m. Crossed Soviet frontier into Russia near Duennsburg.
9:30 p. m. Over Ustizhna, 200 miles north of Moscow.
Friday, Aug. 16:
4:30 p. m. Reported over Viatka 500 miles northeast of Moscow, indicating course was being changed southward.
8:00 a. m. Passed over Pejevaska, north of Perm, 740 miles northeast of Moscow on the trans-Siberian railway.

BULLETIN:

Moscow, Aug. 16.—The Graf Zeppelin reached the Ural mountains on the Siberian frontier this afternoon, but news of her progress after that point became fragmentary. At 4 p. m. no news had been received here since 1 o'clock. The Graf, earlier in the day, dropped a package attached to a parachute which was picked up near Ostrovska, 75 miles north of Moscow, after it had drifted southward on the wind for a long distance. The package was addressed to the Moscow correspondent of a Berlin newspaper.

Friedrichshafen, Aug. 16.—The Graf Zeppelin was over the foothills of the Ural mountains, 740 miles northeast of Moscow, early this afternoon.

The following radiogram was received from the Graf:
"At 12 o'clock noon, Greenwich mean time (8 a. m., New York Daylight Saving Time), we passed Pejevaska north of Perm. All well."
Perm is on the trans-Siberian railway, approximately 740 miles northeast of Moscow. It is 210 miles from the Siberian border.

WORTH A FORTUNE NOW IN POOR HOUSE

Moscow, Aug. 16.—The huge Graf Zeppelin fitted like a phantom across northern European Russia today.

She was sighted at Viatka, 500 miles northeast of this city, at 10:30 a. m. (4:30 a. m. New York Daylight Saving Time) according to a wireless message received just before noon.

The Graf's position was reckoned at the 43rd Degree of Longitude at that time. She had picked up speed and was heading due east.

Apparently Dr. Hugo Eckener, the commander, was checking his course and was heading back to the trans-Siberian railway route as Viatka is on that railroad.

Viatka reported good weather in that district with little wind. The Graf passed north of Moscow and did not cross over the city.

POLICE BELIEVE OLD WOMAN HAS $40,000 HIDDEN IN SHACK WHERE SHE LIVED.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Miss Emily Magruder, 90, years old, is in the poor house near here, but a ramshackle house she left six months ago is believed by the police to have secreted in it a fortune of $40,000.

Attracted by vandals seen to enter the place in Old Georgetown, police found the place ransacked and believe about 1,000 was taken. They found more than $500 in old paper money and coins, and from what neighbors said there is much more hidden in various parts of the house.

Miss Magruder has been at Blue Plains, Va., where the poor house for the District of Columbia is located, for about six months. The police were attracted to her home, in the process of demolition in the march of progress, by neighbors complaining of negroes frequenting the place. According to the neighbors, she has the rest of her fortune hidden in the bottom of a well.

HEADED FOR ARCTIC.

Moscow, Aug. 16.—Soaring steadily onward toward the goal of the second leg of her round-the-world flight, the Graf Zeppelin was heading for the Arctic Circle early today on a northeastern course over northern Russia.

She was sighted over Volgoda, about 275 miles northeast of Moscow at 4:45 a. m. today (10:45 p. m., Thursday, Eastern Daylight Time).

The entire population of the town turned out to see the massive "Queen of the Air" as she roared overhead, at a high speed and (Continued on Page 2.)

MAY SLASH RATE ON CUBAN SUGAR

Senate Committee Approaches Final Decision On Much Debated Matter

Washington, Aug. 16.—A sharp slash in the oft-assailed House rate of $2.40 for Cuban sugar, probably to the $2 mark, hovered over the American sugar industry today as Republican members of the Senate finance committee approached a final decision on this highly controversial schedule.

The sugar schedule was "saved for the last" after producers, importers and refiners scuttled the "sliding scale" proposed a fortnight ago by Senator Reed Smoot (R) of Utah. Smoot was reported ready to fight for the House rate as a "just protection" for the American sugar industry but there were sufficient indications to forecast rejection of the higher rate in favor of one around $2 per hundred pounds of Cuban imports.

The final rate will be fixed by the Senate itself, regardless of any recommendation from the committee. A considerable group of Democrats and Insurgents will favor retention of the existing rate of $1.75 on Cuban sugar, with a strong possibility that they may be able to muster a majority against an increase.

The Republican leadership, however, was prepared to defend an increase and the sugar battle will furnish one of the oratorical highlights of the Senate's tariff debate.

Several reverses

Nearing the close of their adjusting activities, the Senate Republicans revised several items in the agricultural schedule. A seasonal reduction in duties, placed a week ago on tomatoes and peas, was repealed. The House tomato rate however, was cut from 3 to 2 1/2 cents a pound but the House rate of 2 cents a pound on peas was retained.

A new section was adopted on watches and clocks. This was prepared by a group of importers and representatives of American watch companies. It generally upheld the House rates. Which have been denounced as confiscatory by independent importers. This schedule incidentally will be fought on the floor of the Senate.

A seasonal rate was placed on fish, not specially provided for, so that from October 1 to April 1, the rate will be reduced from 1 to 1/2 cents a pound. This cut was authorized on the plea that the "down-east" fishermen were not able to furnish a sufficient supply during the winter months.

The committee's action in placing manganese ore on the free list, at the behest of the American Iron and Steel Institute, drew a scathing rebuke from Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana. He charged the steel interests had made a deal with Soviet Russia for a vast supply of this ore and therefore fought any traffic on it.

HARTFORD MAN, SUICIDE

Hartford, Aug. 16.—Eugene Smith, 44, mechanic at the Pratt & Whitney plant here, died in St. Francis hospital today from the effect of two revolver bullets he fired into his head. Dr. Glover E. Bowe, assistant medical examiner, investigated and declared Smith had taken his own life, though no motive could be discovered.

Smith and his wife were ready to start on vacation tomorrow, and had just purchased a new car for that purpose. Mrs. Smith knew of nothing that could have caused the shooting.

FINANCIAL SPEAKEASIES

DR. EMPRINGHAM HAS VANISHED

New York, Aug. 16.—Three objectives in the campaign against the "financial speakeasies" which have maddened millions from victims throughout the country, were listed today by U. S. Attorney Charles H. Tuttle.

They are:

1. Jailing of the bucket shop operators and illegitimate stock market tipsters.
2. Education of those who have comprised the "sucker lists."
3. Enactment of legislation which will control stock issues.

Harry Goldhurst, under indictment on charges of using the mails to defraud, announced to U. S. Attorney Tuttle that he had returned to investors $26,371 out of a sum of $33,849 placed with him for investments in the Ford companies of Germany, Italy and France. Goldhurst said that he would return the balance if given two weeks' time.

Decision was reserved on Goldhurst's offer until the books of his firm could be examined.

EX-MAYOR CURLEY SEEKS INDICTMENT

Boston Official Says He Was Labeled in Speech by G. O. P. Committeeman.

Boston, Aug. 16.—President Herbert Hoover, and Mabel Walker Willebrandt would be summoned by James M. Curley, former mayor of Boston, in an effort to clear himself of alleged statements of bigotry.

Ex-Mayor Curley appeared at the district attorney's office today, and demanded a Grand Jury investigation of what he characterized as "criminal slander" by Louis K. Liggett, national Republican committeeman, who accused Curley of circulating anti-Catholic propaganda during the last campaign.

Criminal libel indictments against Liggett and a Boston newspaper would be sought, the former mayor stated, for uttering and publishing the statements.

To Probe Matter.

The former mayor announced that he was determined "to get to the bottom of this pile," and declared his intention of summoning Mabel W. Willebrandt, Bishop Cannon, and President Hoover in order to clear himself of bigotry charges and to establish the identity of the real authors of the "anti-Catholic" with whose dissemination he was charged by Liggett in a speech at Fall River.

Curley called at the courthouse today, and upon finding District Attorney William A. Foley absent on vacation, arranged an appointment with Assistant District Attorney Frederick G. Doyle.

He requested the district attorney's office to seek an indictment for criminal libel against Liggett and the Boston newspaper at the next session of the Grand Jury, insisting that he was innocent of all corrupt practices attributed to him in a story carried by the newspaper.

Curley labeled the Liggett speech "the most vicious attack on me since I have been in public office," and explicitly denied having disseminated propaganda in any political campaign.

The charges against Curley were made by Liggett in a speech at Fall River in which he attacked the injection of prohibition and religion into the recent presidential campaign.

As a result of his frank declaration against prohibition, Liggett has incurred the bitter hostility of the extreme "Dry" element of his party, who have instituted a movement to force his resignation as national committeeman.

DR. EMPRINGHAM HAS VANISHED

Episcopal Clergyman is Accused of Practicing Medicine Illegally in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 16.—The Rev. Dr. James Empringham, former national secretary of the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal church, who is accused of practicing medicine illegally as the head of a new defunct "Health Institute," has vanished.

Dr. Empringham was recently in Reno, Nevada, seeking a divorce on the grounds of desertion from Ethel M. Empringham and the custody of a child, James Empringham. He is now reported to be "somewhere" on the Pacific coast.

Health Department officials today indicated they would call upon U. S. Attorney Charles S. Tuttle to discuss the possibility of having Dr. Empringham returned to this jurisdiction.

Out of Jurisdiction

"The matter is 'status quo' as far as our office is concerned," said Sol Utman, deputy attorney general, acting for the State Board of Medical Examiners. "He is out of our jurisdiction."

"We cannot extradite him as the charge against him is only a misdemeanor. If he returned to New York state and if witnesses were available we could proceed toward forcing him to face the charges of running a health institute without a license."

One of the main reasons why Dr. Empringham does not return to New York is because he is "broke and hounded by creditors," according to Dr. John J. van Horne, who was formerly medical director of the Health Educational Society. He characterized Dr. Empringham as "an honest man at heart and a prince of good fellows. It is unfair for his creditors to charge that he practiced medicine illegally."

LOCAL ATHLETE PLANS TO WED IN ROCKVILLE

Francis D. Brennan, of North End, Files Application to Marry Miss Amelia St. Louis.

Application has been filed with the city clerk in Rockville today by Francis D. Brennan of Manchester and Miss Amelia St. Louis of Rockville for a license to wed. Mr. Brennan is very well known both here and in Rockville. He lives at the north end and works at the Oxford Soap Company on Hilliard street.

Brennan is best known through his ability to play baseball and football. He first came into limelight playing quarter-back for the Cleveland Indians, an especially brilliant broken-field runner. However, of late this has been overshadowed by his hard hitting in baseball. He plays center field for the Boston team which hasn't been defeated in its last fifteen games.

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Hale of 80 Weldon street, celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary last evening and were the recipients of many useful presents in memory of the occasion. About 30 relatives and close friends were present and a very pleasant evening was spent playing games and what Tracy Brock won first prize and Miss Merle Kelsey won the consolation prize at whist. Refreshments were later served.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Chapman of Strickland street and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fox and small daughter of Benton street, will leave tomorrow morning for Indian Neck where they will occupy a cottage for the next ten days.

Radio fans who tuned in on WGY, Schenectady, about 10 o'clock this forenoon heard a re-broadcast from Holland, according to the announcer. The program consisted of banjo music and ended with a cornet solo.

Company G will assemble at the Armory at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and will go to the range at Hartford. Meals will be served there and the company will bivouac overnight returning Sunday evening. Lieutenant Raymond Hagedorn requests that all members having cars drive in.

SEEKS OCEAN RECORD

New York, Aug. 16.—Victor and vanquished in the competition for trans-Atlantic shipping speed records will pass each other Sunday morning when the Cunard liner Mauretania, former blue ribbon holder, and the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, present "champion" will cross paths in mid-ocean. The Mauretania is bound from this port to Europe; the Bremen is coming this way on her second voyage.

The Mauretania passed out to sea this morning. She had no sooner left the crowded shipping of the harbor than Captain S. G. S. McNeill ordered the engines speeded up. With good weather his favor Captain McNeill is going to make a gallant effort to equal the Bremen's time with his 23-year-old ship.

The Bremen's westbound record, made on her maiden voyage, is four days 17 hours and 42 minutes. Her eastbound record, made on the return voyage is four days, 14 hours, 30 minutes, New York to Southampton, England.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Miss Margaret A. Frederick, Miss Margaret Alice Frederick, 16 years old, of 289 East Middle Turnpike, died at 10:45 last night at the Manchester Memorial hospital where she was admitted last Saturday. Septicemia, a form of blood poisoning, was the cause of death.

Miss Frederick was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frederick. She leaves three brothers, Edward of Kitchener, Ontario; Herman and William of this town, and a sister, Mrs. M. Mirvintch also of this town. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Lutheran Concordia church. Burial will be in the East cemetery.

tined on a northeasterly course. Only an hour and a quarter before the Zeppelin had crossed the border into Siberia, 199 miles to the southeast.

Changes Route.

Owing to reports of a violent storm over mid-Siberia, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the huge air liner, was forced to veer to the north of this capital, thus disappointing the thousands who had anticipated a glimpse of the Zeppelin.

Dr. Eckener revealed his decision not to pass over Moscow in a radio message to the German Embassy here at 3:30 a. m. today (9:30 p. m. Thursday, Eastern Daylight Time).

At that time the Zeppelin was over the town of Ustzhina, about 225 miles north of this city. It was making good speed and continuing on a northeasterly course headed for Volgoda, about 75 miles north and slightly to the east of Moscow.

When over Ustzhina, the Graf had been in the air just five minutes less than 22 hours since leaving Friedrichshafen at 4:35 a. m. Thursday, Central European time, (11:35 p. m., Wednesday, Eastern Daylight Time).

During that time she had maintained an average speed of between 60 and 70 miles an hour. Ustzhina is about 1,350 miles from Friedrichshafen on a sea-level but in the course of her flight she covered well over 1,500 miles.

Having come up over Germany, across Lithuania and Latvia into Soviet territory, some 5,000 miles of dangerous going most of it across uninhabited forest lands of Siberia, still faced the Graf.

Much of the time she will be far to the north, either within or near the Arctic Circle, according to present indications. For at least part of the time during the next four days, her progress she may be completely out of communication with civilization.

May Meet Typhoon.

If the Zeppelin avoids the storms reported over mid-Siberia, she may encounter the wind of a typhoon now reported in the vicinity of Tokio. It is believed, however, that the force of this typhoon will be entirely spent when the Zeppelin reaches the eastern part of Asia.

There was a sharp disagreement among Soviet officials here when Dr. Eckener advised that he would not pass over the city. The officials realized, however, that the Zeppelin could not be expected to chance running into a storm in order to visit the city.

The direct messages received here from the Graf set at rest rumors in circulation that something was amiss aboard the airship. The rumors followed inability of several playing games and what Tracy Brock won first prize and Miss Merle Kelsey won the consolation prize at whist. Refreshments were later served.

MAY CHANGE MAIN ST. TRAFFIC LAWS

Contemplated Regulation Against Turning Will Meet With Disfavor Here

The intentions of the local police commission to enforce new traffic by-laws on Main street in the south end which will make it necessary to travel the entire length of the street or around a block in order to turn will not meet with favor either among the automobile drivers in town or the business men. The south end section is particularly busy on Thursday and Saturday nights and the practice of motorists in turning around in the street is a problem that at times is dangerous, but it is questioned that it is the best judgment to force drivers to go out of their way to seek parking accommodations.

Unreasonable, It is Said

Some local business men have expressed themselves as considering it ridiculous to force automobile drivers to go all the way to Charter Oak street or else around a block in order to turn back up to Down Main street. The police commission contemplates making it a traffic regulation that automobiles shall not turn into the local street between Bissell street and Charter Oak street. An autoist desiring to turn back south of Bissell street would have to go all the way to Charter Oak street and turn around the traffic signal there or else turn into Locust, Park, St. James, or Forest streets on the west, or into Birch, Purnell, Oak, Maple, School or Wells street on the east. With the exception of the blocks formed by the crossing of Cottage street with the local street, Bissell to Maple street, the other districts that the drivers would be forced to travel are not reasonable, in the opinion of many.

Get Opinion

Traffic regulation is not an easy task and it is recognized that autoists must bear with the police in attempting to solve the problems that are constantly arising. However, it has been suggested that it would be far better for the police commission to seek the opinions of the new state of the local police and local autoists before establishing a regulation that they may meet with considerable disfavor.

Some Question

In this connection a question has recently arisen whether or not under the new statute the local police commission has the right to regulate traffic. This authority has regulated heretofore with the Selectmen. The local board of Selectmen has been of the opinion that the Selectmen in town still hold supervision over traffic regulations and the police commissions in cities have that authority. However, Town Counsel W. S. Hyde has been asked for an opinion on the new law and when that is forthcoming the question as to Manchester is however, as it is probable that a statement on the law will be made soon.

STRICKEN AT SHORE, SUFFERS APPENDICITIS

Local 10-Year-Old Girl Rushed Home and Operated Upon at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Stricken with an attack of acute appendicitis while at the seashore last Sunday, ten-years-old Marion Arline Hunevan, was rushed home and taken to the Memorial hospital where she underwent an immediate operation. Today she was reported as progressing satisfactorily. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hunevan of 53 Russell street.

SLLOYD WORK EXHIBIT AT REC ON MONDAY

The annual exhibition of slloyd work done by Manchester boys during the summer months in the Barnard school will be held in the School street Recreation Center next Monday evening from 7:30 to 9 o'clock, it was announced today by Director Lewis Lloyd.

This is one of the summer activities carried on by the Recreation Centers with Henry Miller as instructor. The course lasts eight weeks and has attracted a good-sized class. Expectations are that the usual large crowd of persons will come to the Rec next Monday evening to view the splendid exhibition. Not only are parents of the boys in the class cordially invited, but the public at large. The exhibition will be in the auditorium. Bob and his Bob-links, a newly organized local ten-piece orchestra will furnish music for the occasion. This band has been playing three nights a week at the Swan Inn located in Vernon.

Among the principal hand made articles on exhibition will be two spinet desks, a dressing table, three tea wagons, four chests, a smoking cabinet of the William and Mary period, Martha Washington sewing cabinet, four piano benches, two writing tables and two Priscilla sewing cabinets. Other minor articles are telephone stands, book cases, magazine racks, knife boxes, weather vans, medicine cabinets, book troughs, end tables, smoking stands, book ends, hall tree and upholstered foot stools.

HOOPER GOES AGAIN TO HIS FISHING CAMP

Washington, Aug. 16.—President Hoover planned still another week-end escape today from the humidity of a Washington August. As has been his custom for some Fridays past, he will pick up his rifle and a party of friends will motor down into the Blue Ridge mountains for an over-Sunday stay at his fishing camp on the Rapidan river.

This week's trip will be out of the ordinary in that tomorrow the President expects to go over to Madison, Va., county seat of his camp site, and take part in a big celebration on the fair grounds. The whole countryside, led by Gov. Harry Byrd, has made plans to turn out and publicly thank Mr. Hoover "for locating this year's summer White House in the Blue Ridge." Bands, speech-making, a big barbecue and field events are among the features on the program.

Mrs. Hoover and her son Allan already are at camp, where they have been staying for the past two weeks while Allan convalesced from a stomach ailment. Those who will accompany the President today include Henry P. Fletcher, retiring ambassador to Rome; Assistant Secretary of Navy Ernest L. Jahncke; Assistant Secretary to Commerce and Mrs. William P. McCatcher (Rep. Port 2) of New Jersey; George Akerson and Lawrence Richey, secretaries to the President; James Logan of New York, and Commander Joel T. Doone, White House physician.

12 YEAR OLD GIRL CHOKED TO DEATH

Body Found In Sack—Her Underclothing Found In Cellar Under Shoe Store.

Minneapolis, Aug. 16.—Authorities today were analyzing a blood-stained gunny sack and a suit of underclothing found last night in the cellar of a shoe store during a search for the person who strangled 12-year-old Dorothy Aune to death and bound her body with wire.

According to police, the undergarment was found beneath a pile of rubbish in the basement. The garment was damp, it was said, as though it had been washed recently. Strands of hair, like that of the dead girl, were also unearthed in the basement, police say.

Three gunny sacks similar to those in which the girl's body was bound, were also found, according to police.

Questioning of one of the suspect's brothers continued today in an effort to learn more of his activities during the past three days.

Three other suspects, one a former inmate of an asylum for the criminally insane, were still being held.

note, also, that at the abortive Geneva conference, the British rejected an American proposal to allow each country between 250,000 and 300,000 tons of cruisers on the ground that this tonnage was below the minimum required for empire safety. At that time the British announced their minimum tonnage of 250,000 tons, and 55 cruisers that would mount 6-inch guns, or a total cruiser tonnage of some 240,000 tons.

Moreover, the seeming inevitability of the break-up of the reparations conference at the Hague has threatened to throw additional obstacles in the way of the whole disarmament project.

Britain and France have come to the parting of ways, politically speaking. The British stand alone at the Hague, with France, Italy and Belgium arrayed against her in the battle over reparations, and many competent observers here believe that this split means that Britain will stand alone in the future on more than one question of continental policy.

This fact, it was pointed out here today, is not calculated to make Britain any more amenable to reducing the navy upon which the safety of the British empire depended.

While Great Britain and the United States have been arguing about naval reduction for ten years, France and Italy have not been idle. Quite the contrary is true.

Since 1920, France has built or authorized some 33,000 tons of modern cruisers, in addition to 91 submarines, 24 flotilla leaders, 2 aircraft carriers and sufficient auxiliary vessels to bring the total new naval units up to 164.

Italy, under Mussolini, has been equally busy, during the same period. Mussolini has built or secured authorization for 31,000 tons of new cruisers, 31 destroyers, 46 submarines and auxiliary ships to bring her new units about the 400 mark.

Even before the quarrel at the Hague embittered Anglo-French relations, Britain was unwilling to go below 400,000 tons of cruisers. Confronted now with this ambitious building by France and Italy, observers here do not see how Britain can be any more willing to meet the American desire for drastic naval reduction than she was before.

Any Anglo-American naval agreement must be predicated upon the willingness of France and Italy to "go along." Without a general agreement, any individual agreement must fail.

It is Washington's opinion that the road to naval disarmament is still exceedingly rocky, and getting rockier, despite the optimistic generalities regularly forth on both sides of the Atlantic.

KILLED BY AUTO

Greenwich, Aug. 16.—Edward C. Becker, 21, of Cos Cob, was killed on the outskirts of Greenwich early today when his car went out of control probably through a breaking steering gear, and went down an embankment. Miss Della Brigs, of Cos Cob, riding with Becker, escaped injury.

WALKING IN ROAD, HIT BY LOCAL CAR

East Hartford Farm Hand Run Down by Truck Operated by Jacob H. Greenberg.

Knocked down by an automobile operated by Jacob H. Greenberg of 73 Florence street last night on the Silver Lane road just over the Manchester town line in East Hartford, George Dunca, middle-aged farmhand, was taken to the Memorial hospital here. His injuries are not serious and he will probably be discharged in a few days.

According to Greenberg's version of the accident, Dunca had been drinking and was walking in the middle of the road when struck by the machine. Greenberg said two cars were in front of him and when the second attempted to pass the first, he started to follow suit. The first car meanwhile pulled well over to the right hand side of the road to allow the others to pass.

The other two cars did not stop, apparently not knowing about the accident. Greenberg took the injured man to the hospital in his Chevrolet delivery truck and then reported the matter to Sergeant John Crockett of the local police force who took over to East Hartford authorities for an investigation.

At the Memorial hospital it was said that Dunca suffered a small cut over his right ear and an injury to his right leg, but apparently there were no internal injuries.

HARTFORD EX-MAYOR A KIWANIS SPEAKER

Will Address Local Club Monday; Lieutenant Governor of This District Guest, Too.

Ex-Mayor Norman C. Stevens of Hartford will be the speaker at the meeting of the Manchester Kiwanis club on Monday at the Country club house, and the members who are in town are urged to be present. Dr. H. J. Toward of Waterville, Maine, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Knofta at their Columbia lake summer home, will also be at this meeting.

His assistant, Governor of the Maine district and will no doubt have something to say in regard to the coming New England district meeting at Poland Springs. The dates of the convention are September 23 to 25th inclusive, and an elaborate program is in the course of preparation for the entertainment of the Kiwanis and their wives. Those who have already signified their intention of going include President and Mrs. Arthur A. Knofta, Secretary George H. Wilcox, Ex-President and Mrs. C. P. Quimby, Ex-President and Mrs. William A. Knofta, Charles E. House, Fayette B. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Messier and Mr. and Mrs. John I. Olson. This list will no doubt be considerably enlarged before the time approaches for the district meeting. Mr. Quimby is a candidate for the office of lieutenant governor of the New England district.

The attendance prize at Monday's meeting will be furnished by Arthur Knofta.

REPORT TO POLICE ROBBERY ATTEMPT

The police headquarters here were notified last night on two different occasions of attempts to enter houses. At 12:45 Harry Gordon of Oakland and North School streets notified the department that steps had been heard about the rear door and also at the gasoline station on the property. Scarcely had this report been made when a call came from St. Lawrence street to the effect that someone had attempted to enter a house there.

Sergeant John Crockett investigated at St. Lawrence street and Patrolmen Seymour and Galligan investigated at the north end address. No prowlers were found and no arrests were made.

reassembled a bargain sale rush didn't interest him. "Rudy Vallee," the court clerk bawled out as the case was called.

Rudy wore a brown tweed coat and vest with a black cravat, white trousers with a brown stripe and black and white sport shoes. If the ladies are interested to know, Rudy's attorney declared that it was impossible to go 32 miles an hour over the bridge and that perhaps Officer Olliffe's speedometer wasn't in tune.

"Not guilty," murmured Rudy in silky planissimo. "Discharged," said Magistrate Sylvester Sabatino.

"It's okay with me," said Officer Olliffe. "Now I can get a rest from those fans."

Rudy smiled wearily at Officer Olliffe and nonchalantly sauntered out through the riot in the corridor.

BANDIT IDENTIFIED Slatersville, R. I., Aug. 16.—Identified, according to police as the lone hand who escaped with more than $3,000. Carl G. Houck, 40, well-to-do Uxbridge insurance broker, today was under arrest in connection with the robbery at the first National bank here yesterday.

Police said that Charles E. Seagraves, president and manager of the bank who was held up at the point of a gun, identified Houck as the man who shot him.

where he had lived for many years. He was born in West Hartford but came to Manchester when he was only four years old. His mother was buried a year ago today. His father's death came when he was a young boy. Since that time he had helped in the support of the family.

Services in War Meyer enlisted in the 12th Supply Company, of the Rainbow Division soon after the United States entered the World War and saw service until May, 1919. He drove a supply truck. Incidentally, there is an interesting incident connected with his truck driving. Upon his return to this country at the close of the war, he went to the state capitol to obtain a driver's license and it so happened that the man who was about to give him the examination served in the war. When he learned that Meyers drove an Army truck, he told him no further examination was necessary.

His Family Following the death of his mother, Mrs. James Wetherell, a sister, moved to his Florence street home with her husband and Meyers had made his home with them. There is one other sister, Mrs. Fred Keish of Rockville.

The Funeral A military funeral will be held Sunday afternoon with members of the Dilworth-Cornell Post, No. 102, American Legion attending in a body. Prayers will be said at his late home at two o'clock and at St. Mary's Episcopal church at 2:30. Rev. Alfred Clark will officiate and burial will be in the East cemetery.

VENEZUELAN REBS HOLD WHIP HAND

Jose R. Wendehake, president of the Venezuelan revolutionary committee in Panama. City Captured A cablegram from Barranquilla said that a large insurgent force under Pedro Elias Aristeguieta on August 9th captured Costa de Paris, adding:

"The rebels are now dominating the entire eastern coast, following the evacuation of Cumana by the Federals under Gen. Gomez." The message came from a rebel source. Antoniozuelo called to Trinidad after co-operating with rebel forces on the Venezuelan coast. The ship arrived in South American waters from Hamburg, Germany, in July and since that time has been handling rebel troops, munitions and other war supplies at various points along the coast.

The apparent inactivity of the Venezuelan navy is not explained. This sea force is small consisting only of three gunboats and a training ship.

NOON STOCKS

New York, Aug. 16.—The bears were caught napping and faced the necessity of covering thousands of shares of short sales when the opening gong sounded today on the big board. Instead of the expected increase in "brokers' loans," the total fell off $88,000,000, due presumably to the "lightening of the load" of margin stocks by the little bulls in last Friday's collapse, and the passing of stocks into "strong hands." Powerful financial interests have in the meantime been buying stocks with their own money.

It was the old story of overconfidence in an expected development in the money market which did not materialize. Stocks were "scared" as the big market got under way and prices skyrocketed in the usual fashion. Westinghouse led the bull's procession, with a 9-point jump to 249 1-2. U. S. Steel and American Can jumped 4 points each and popular rails and utilities struck their stride from 2 to 4 points above Thursday's close. In some cases these prices topped all previous performances but in others they were still below the peaks of the week. U. S. Steel at 241 1-2, for example, was off 3 1-2 points from Thursday's record-breaking 245.

Stock sales in the first half hour were approximately 800,000 shares. At the best prices of the forenoon, Westinghouse showed a gain of 9 1-2 points at 250; U. S. Steel up 4 1-2 at 242; American Can up 4 1-2 at 178 3-8; Baltimore & Ohio up 4 1-2 at 138 1-2. New Haven carried its spectacular advance to 123, the highest price in 13 years and Union Pacific rose 3 1-2 points to above 230.

Simmons company, under powerful Chicago market sponsorship, crossed 130 for the first time, recording a new 5-point gain. Motor stocks put their best foot forward and sold at the highest general range since Friday's break. Packard went through to 145 under the impetus of strong buying demand and general motors sold 2 points higher.

A goal of 200 was set for American Can by its market boosters today as that stock crossed 180 in the second hour, completing an advance of 20 points since Monday. Can was hailed as a "New National Bank" which sells today at the equivalent of $1,500 a share for the old stock. General Electric and Westinghouse held around the best prices of the period, General Electric moving up 4 1-2 to 395 1-2.

Swain Left $400,000 New Britain, Aug. 16.—An estate of $400,000 was left by George Swain, a retired business man who died here three weeks ago, according to an inventory filed in Probate Court here today. The estate is practically all in stock holdings and was left to his family.

TICKETS FOR LEAGUE BALL GAME READY

Boys Must Get Their Passes from Director Lewis Lloyd Before Next Tuesday.

Director Lewis Lloyd of the Recreation Centers announced today that the tickets for boys wishing to make the trip to Hartford next Tuesday afternoon to see an Eastern League baseball game, can now be obtained at the School Street Recreation Center. The will not be given out at the West Side Rec.

No charge will be made. Trolley transportation will also be supplied free of charge. Boys must get a ticket before the day of the trip, in cases where a boy is unable to come to the Rec, a member of the family will be allowed to sign for him. However, no boy will not be able to obtain a ticket for another.

There are more than 500 tickets available. Already nearly half of these have been spoken for but the tickets must be obtained.

DEBT DEADLOCK STILL UNBROKEN

new offer will result in success, and as it comes very nearly to meeting Snowden's demands. It created a feeling of greater optimism than has prevailed at the conference for some days. Snowden's reaction to this offer will probably be made known at a meeting of the finance committee of the conference tomorrow. If he should accept, the conference will automatically continue, and the other post-war problems, such as the evacuation of the Rhineland, will be taken up in due course.

Should he refuse however, a temporary adjournment for two or three months, to permit private conversations to pave the way toward compromise, will probably result.

The Hague, Aug. 16.—The official life of the Hague reparations conference, originally summoned to solve the last remaining problems left over by the great war, was hanging in the balance today. Failure of the delegates in private conference to break the deadlock created by Great Britain's demand for revision of the Young Plan for reparations payments caused the utmost pessimism.

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer in the British labor government, is insisting upon his definite action tomorrow upon his plan for revision of the reparations payments schedule in the Young Plan to give Britain approximately $11,000,000 above her present apportionment.

Intensive private conferences were in progress today among the French, Belgian, Italian and Japanese delegates. It was reported that the French, Belgians and Japanese were trying to induce the Italians to agree to a generous concession in favor of England.

Although the spokesman of the continental group, announced that Italy, Belgium, France and Japan were still firm and were standing together in continued opposition to the British demands, the delegates of those powers prepared a conciliatory memorandum for presentation to the British this afternoon. This memorandum detailed a compromise proposal designed to meet Snowden's demand that the amount left by Britain through alteration of the Spa percentages be made up. The full amount demanded by Snowden is not covered, but Loucheur and his continental colleagues thought the offer large enough to satisfy Snowden.

May Adjourn Dr. Eckener apparently doesn't like the streets of New York. He radiogrammed Max or Walker he was looking forward to again seeing the city from the air.

MORROW SILENT ON POLITICS

Mexico City, Aug. 15.—United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who is planning to leave for the United States on Saturday, refused to say whether he would be an active candidate for the U. S. Senatorship in New Jersey.
 While admitting that he had been approached by Republican leaders, Ambassador Morrow branded press reports as "hot weather gossip."
 When Mr. Morrow leaves for Englewood, N. J., his home he will be accompanied by Mrs. Morrow, their youngest daughter Constance and her friend, Miss Lucille Schmedje, of Newark, N. J. The trip will be made by rail.

 The ambassador will go to Washington to report to President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson regarding the presidential campaign in Mexico, the agrarian question and the prospective labor law. A number of American owned ranches are threatened with expropriation in the Tehuantepec peninsula to fill "agrarian needs."
GIRL BELL RINGER.
 London.—Violet Carrier, 20, claims to be the youngest bell ringer in the world. At this age she manipulates the sixty bells of the carillon at Loughborough in a masterly fashion. The heaviest of the bells weighs more than four tons.

erected by the big distributors during a number of years have been nicely calculated to avoid all offense to the eye. Many of them are really beautiful buildings. Very few indeed are either so designed or so painted as to constitute a jarring note in any neighborhood. The big gasoline concerns have spent enormous sums of money in making their retail establishments artistically harmonious and attractive.

Now along comes this foreign competitor, seeking entrance into the American field. And it starts out by adopting for its stations a color scheme which outrages the sensibilities of neighborhoods and travelers alike. Its shrieking red and yellow, obviously adopted in utter disregard of esthetic sense and every other consideration save the one of howling for notice, impinging on the eye like a blow.

If all the Shell stations are to be the same as those we have seen—and it is to be presumed that such is the intention—then we are much mistaken if the company does not succeed in completely antagonizing a very large proportion of the motoring public—and that proportion the one that spends the most money on gasoline.

A TWISTED TARIFF

By the principles of the protective tariff this newspaper stands— all the time. But as more and more figures are brought to light concerning the sugar industry it is becoming more and more difficult for us to see where any sound protective principle whatever is involved in the increase of sugar tariff contemplated by the Hawley bill.

While there is more or less disagreement between the figures quoted by the sugar men and those employed by objectors to the tariff increase it appears to be true, according to any set of statistics offered, that the increase in sugar prices to the consumer invited by the Hawley bill schedule would be all out of proportion to the benefits received by the sugar industry.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, a while ago quoted some figures in this connection which are impressive. According to his statement the present tariff provides protection to the sugar growers amounting to $22,500,000 while the Hawley bill schedule would provide protection to the extent of $50,700,000.

This might be highly desirable if it only cost the housewives of the country a similar amount in order to provide the protection. But we are faced by the fact that the United States does not produce anything like as much sugar as it uses and that, in order to give the sugar beet farmers and the Louisiana cane planters the protection of 1.75 cents a pound provided by the existing law, the consumer has to pay that much extra on each pound of the imported sugar, which totals many times as much as is raised in this country.

Brookhart's figures for the value of the entire beet and cane sugar crop in the country are $63,000,000. But in order to include in that value the $22,500,000 of tariff protection, the people of the country have to pay, in increased prices of both foreign and domestic sugar, no less than $248,000,000, or about four times the total value of the crop.

It is such figures as this that make it easy to understand what Senator Borah means when he says we could much better afford to pay a bounty to the sugar growers than to give them any protective tariff at all. Indeed if the government were to pay the growers the entire value of their crop and let them do what they pleased with it, sell it or burn it up or feed it to the hogs, and if the people in turn saved $248,000,000 on their sugar bill the nation as a whole would be $185,000,000 better off than at present because it would be merely a case of the people paying that much less for nursing the sugar industry, and looking after it far more liberally than at present.

Any proper understanding of the theory of protective tariff never contemplated making the people pay eight or nine dollars for every dollar of protection given, and that's about what the sugar tariff amounts to.

OFF ON THE WRONG FOOT

If the Shell gas concern, in its wholesale invasion of this eastern territory, is selling itself "short" while it is building and decorating the many filling stations now assuming its name and colors, it is doing, we should say, a good job. But if it actually, as it is widely credited with, contemplates jamming its way into the position of a serious competitor with the established American companies, then it would seem to us to be making a very serious mistake indeed.

In America the sale of gasoline has come to be intimately associated with a certain idea of the fitness of things. The gas stations ago. Then the Dowager Duchesse de Marchioness of Conyngham—and she must have been terribly hard-up—sold the house to a commoner named Charles Senior. Mrs. Senior, it appears, doesn't like the place after all, and her husband wants to dispose of it.

The Isle of Thanet isn't what would ordinarily be called an island. It's just the extreme northeast part of the county of Kent. The little river Stour, branching right and left and emptying respectively in the direction of the Straits of Dover and the North Sea, isolate it technically and so justify the name. Within its limits are Ramsgate, Margate, Deal and several other famous shore resorts.

Here's a wonderful chance for some American newly-rich whose wife has been snubbed by Colonial Dames or Daughters of the Revolution or of Virginia to buy something that will put the well known seven-generation family tree at a discount.

Going Places AND Seeing Things

Amarillo, Texas.—This is the land of Jim Williams and Will Rogers. . . and, more recently, of Gene Howe, otherwise identified as "Old Tack."

Rogers and Williams are both boys from the vast ranges herabouts who have traveled far indeed since they shook the prairie dust from their saddles. Fortunately they have never succeeded in getting the sagebrush completely out of their hair, a happy circumstance which has kept them in contact with their native soil.

The natives puff out their chests just a bit when referring to these two favorite sons. Over at the MacDonald outfit where, so you hear, Jim Williams "rode cattle," the old timers will tell you many tales of the days before Jim took to drawing his "Out Our Way" cartoons. And these cartoons decorate many a shack and fence post.

And they'll also tell you of the time when Will Rogers came home after many years' absence and recalled how he once drove steers from Amarillo to Dodge City. The trail used in the old range days has long since disappeared. Someone asked Rogers if he thought he could find it and follow it again. Without a moment's hesitation, the wisecracking comic swung on his horse and started off, leading a band of astonished followers over the exact route.

Howe, in a sense, an "outsider." He drifted in from Kansas, where his father, Ed Howe, had built an enviable reputation as an editor. But he has been adopted by this entire countryside. His appearance in any nearby town takes on the importance and interest of a presidential call or the passing through of the Prince of Wales. Pilgrimages are made to his newspaper office by school children and dignitaries—by farmers, rangers and railroad workers.

And he's done it all through a column in his paper which he signs "Old Tack." His humanity, humor and courage have created this engaging following which is as loyal as any army ever was to its general.

The editorial pranks of Howe have been many and varied. His "Boob Oil Company," which came into being as a sort of burlesque on the flotation of highly dangerous oil stock during the Texas and Oklahoma booms, is something of a classic. Not only did hundreds of readers take his boob company seriously, but they subscribed to its stock, and when, good-naturedly, the venture was carried through they missed by a narrow margin a tremendously fat well.

STORM LOSS

An estimate of $2,500,000 as the amount of the damage done by the recent hailstorm in Hartford County, made very shortly after that visitation by the Hartford County Farm Bureau, turns out to have been almost uncannily accurate according to the results of the survey of the State Department of Agriculture, which appears to have been thorough. The total of the damage to crops discovered by the surveyors is reported as $2,407,000, indicating that the original estimate was not more than 4 per cent erroneous. This is shooting uncommonly close to the mark, since in guessing at the amount of damage in disasters of any kind, as in off-hand estimates of the size of crowds, there is an almost universal tendency to overplay.

It will probably be a little surprising to most people who drove over the devastated country a day or two after the great hail storm, to learn that the damage to crops other than tobacco is placed at less than a twentieth of the tobacco loss, being given as $100,000. It is probable, however, that the salvage on corn, tomatoes and other crops of the kind has been somewhat larger than was indicated the day after the deluge.

Naturally, the Agriculture Department's survey does not represent the whole cost of the storm to Hartford County, for it makes no account of losses other than in crops, whereas many thousands of dollars of damage was done to roads, buildings, automobiles and other property.

Perhaps if we remember the great hail storm of 1929 as having inflicted a total loss of between two and a half and two and three-quarters million dollars in this county we shall be as accurate as it is possible to be in such matters.

ALONG IN YEARS

As Connecticut towns of great antiquity are beginning to prepare for their tercentenary, a house is being advertised for sale in England which is four times as old as any community in this state and which has been lived in continuously ever since it was built almost twelve hundred years ago—to be exact, in 740 A. D. Which is something to think about whenever we are tempted, in this part of the world, to regard ourselves as being of long standing.

The house is Minster Abbey, on the Isle of Thanet, so called, and it is the oldest in England still in use. Benedictine Monks occupied it for 500 years. Benedictine Nuns were its inhabitants for 270 years. It was crown property for a century and it belonged to one family, the Conynghams, for 300 years until something more than a year

NOTE ASTHMA VICTIMS.

London.—In an effort to investigate and cure, if possible, the malady of asthma in the world, the Asthma Council here is requesting sufferers to fill in a family history form supplied by them. It is hoped that study of these forms will give valuable information regarding the influence of heredity in this disease.

LAGARDIA'S STATEMENT

New York, Aug. 15.—Prohibition officials today refused to comment on the statement yesterday of Congressman Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for mayor, that it would take 20 years and convict all persons now connected with the sale of liquor in New York.

The one who is very thin is suffering from some kind of bodily toxemia which is interfering with normal metabolism and thereby preventing proper assimilation and elimination. If the overweight person needs to lose fatty tissue, the one who is thin needs just as much to lose certain chemical poisons which interfere with normal functional activity. Where the fatty tissue loss may be measured in pounds, the thin person may lose only a few ounces of strong poisons. However if one who is thin starts a fast, he will usually lose two or three pounds the first day, and then only about a half pound each day. Of course some of this is also fatty weight, but as the fat and excess fluids are eliminated from the body, the chemical poisons are also thrown out. As far as ultimate good is concerned, five pounds' loss with a thin person will be equal to at least a twenty pound loss with one who is overweight.

If a fruit fast is taken to bring about this loss of weight there will be a great improvement noticed afterwards, due to the fact that the body has been freed from the encumbrance of chemical poisons. Liver and gall bladder can function more normally, and digestive powers will show a great deal of improvement.

A young lady weighing only ninety-eight pounds recently took my weight-reducing course, as I told her it would be good for her if she wished to gain fat. After four days' orange juice fast, she had lost six pounds, but gained this back and six pounds more in the next two weeks. She now reports that she is weighing one hundred and ten pounds, which is a gain altogether of twelve pounds, and that she is much more than she has ever weighed before in her life. She is still taking the diet I prescribed for fat folks, and during the time she has gained has never taken any of the foods ordinarily given by

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 16.—The National Commission on Law Observation and Enforcement has assigned a subcommittee to investigate and report on lawlessness by governmental law enforcing officers.

The commission is in an excellent position to go after that problem. It presents a commonly acknowledged situation which has developed untouched perhaps for the reason that there has been no official organization to deal with it. Law enforcing officials seldom investigate and criticize themselves and their lawlessness has had only the courts to restrict them. The courts, of course, are themselves parts of the law enforcement system and it's almost certain that the commission will consider the extra-legal acts of judges themselves before it is through.

So the commission especially appointed by President Hoover is the only agency which can go into this new field of inquiry. The fact that it has included law enforcement lawlessness as one of the main points on its official agenda demonstrates that this collection of high-grade lawyers believes or fears that the high-handedness of policemen, prohibition agents, prosecutors and even judges has led to the creation of hatred or disrespect for law itself.

Many Angles to Probe

Many will suppose that the commission plans to devote this study mostly to killings of innocent citizens and other abuses by prohibition agents and coast guardsmen. But inquiry reveals there are quite a few more angles.

Take, for instance, the violation of rights of prisoners by widespread use of third-degree methods. The New York Bar Association last fall reported flagrant police brutality toward prisoners and recommended cross-examination of prisoners by the police. Perhaps the Hoover Crime Commission will make a similar recommendation. Prisoners have sometimes died from the effects of third-degree beatings. The commission is aware that the practice has spread to the highest branches of government and doubts recalls the case of the radical Salasdo, who jumped from a high window to his death, allegedly to escape further abuse from Department of Justice agents.

The highest courts are continually undoing the departures from the laws of lower courts and prosecuting attorneys. The arbitrary actions of a judge often rob a defendant of the protection which he is supposed to be guaranteed in the interests of the innocent. The many exceptions taken by lawyers in trial cases, resulting in successful appeals, tends to show the fallibility of judges.

Civil Liberties Violated

Prosecuting attorneys are almost invariably immersed in politics. They often look to their records of convictions when seeking reelection or higher office, whereas the legal theory is that they are parts of the court and supposed to see only that justice is done. The prosecutor's duty is to protect the innocent as much as it is to convict the guilty, but in these days the one idea of the average prosecutor seems to be to get a conviction. For one Mooney case, in which the framing of evidence is eventually exposed, there presumably are hundreds of minor criminal cases where the facts are never disclosed because of the victim's lack of popular support.

Violations of civil liberties by policemen and judges are persistent. Even today the tactics of cops in breaking up political and protest meetings are reminiscent of old Captain Schmitzberger of New York. For one Mooney case, in which the framing of evidence is eventually exposed, there presumably are hundreds of minor criminal cases where the facts are never disclosed because of the victim's lack of popular support.

PROSECUTOR'S DUTY

Prosecuting attorneys are almost invariably immersed in politics. They often look to their records of convictions when seeking reelection or higher office, whereas the legal theory is that they are parts of the court and supposed to see only that justice is done. The prosecutor's duty is to protect the innocent as much as it is to convict the guilty, but in these days the one idea of the average prosecutor seems to be to get a conviction. Violations of civil liberties by policemen and judges are persistent. Even today the tactics of cops in breaking up political and protest meetings are reminiscent of old Captain Schmitzberger of New York. WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 16.—The National Commission on Law Observation and Enforcement has assigned a subcommittee to investigate and report on lawlessness by governmental law enforcing officers.

The commission is in an excellent position to go after that problem. It presents a commonly acknowledged situation which has developed untouched perhaps for the reason that there has been no official organization to deal with it. Law enforcing officials seldom investigate and criticize themselves and their lawlessness has had only the courts to restrict them. The courts, of course, are themselves parts of the law enforcement system and it's almost certain that the commission will consider the extra-legal acts of judges themselves before it is through.

So the commission especially appointed by President Hoover is the only agency which can go into this new field of inquiry. The fact that it has included law enforcement lawlessness as one of the main points on its official agenda demonstrates that this collection of high-grade lawyers believes or fears that the high-handedness of policemen, prohibition agents, prosecutors and even judges has led to the creation of hatred or disrespect for law itself.

Many Angles to Probe

Many will suppose that the commission plans to devote this study mostly to killings of innocent citizens and other abuses by prohibition agents and coast guardsmen. But inquiry reveals there are quite a few more angles.

Take, for instance, the violation of rights of prisoners by widespread use of third-degree methods. The New York Bar Association last fall reported flagrant police brutality toward prisoners and recommended cross-examination of prisoners by the police. Perhaps the Hoover Crime Commission will make a similar recommendation. Prisoners have sometimes died from the effects of third-degree beatings. The commission is aware that the practice has spread to the highest branches of government and doubts recalls the case of the radical Salasdo, who jumped from a high window to his death, allegedly to escape further abuse from Department of Justice agents.

The highest courts are continually undoing the departures from the laws of lower courts and prosecuting attorneys. The arbitrary actions of a judge often rob a defendant of the protection which he is supposed to be guaranteed in the interests of the innocent. The many exceptions taken by lawyers in trial cases, resulting in successful appeals, tends to show the fallibility of judges.

Civil Liberties Violated

GAINING BY REDUCING.

At all of the antifatt lectures I have been giving around the country, I have been assailed with questions from thin people in the audience who wanted to know how to gain weight. They come to the reducing lectures thinking that if they could learn how to reduce weight they could perhaps reverse the process and increase their weight. My answer is always the same to these thin folks—"Get the thinner first." I then explain to them that the one who is unusually thin requires a bodily cleansing treatment with fasting and diet just the same as the fat person requires a similar diet for eliminating excess "fatlow."

The one who is very thin is suffering from some kind of bodily toxemia which is interfering with normal metabolism and thereby preventing proper assimilation and elimination. If the overweight person needs to lose fatty tissue, the one who is thin needs just as much to lose certain chemical poisons which interfere with normal functional activity. Where the fatty tissue loss may be measured in pounds, the thin person may lose only a few ounces of strong poisons. However if one who is thin starts a fast, he will usually lose two or three pounds the first day, dietitians who attempt to fatten patients by stuffing them. Where she was formerly too thin while eating fattening foods, she is now in perfect health and of normal weight because she is using vital foods, and her digestive organs are in a condition to properly digest and assimilate such foods.

(Gets Weak Spells)

Question: H. G. F. writes—"There are times when I get real weak, mostly in arms and legs after I start work, and in the middle of the day my eyes want to close. I even get those weak, tired feelings while sitting down. Is it anemia, or is it due to malaria?"

Answer: I would certainly like to diagnose your trouble, but cannot do so from the meagre description of your case. Go to a good diagnostician and find out if you have anemia or malaria. Then write to me again and I will be glad to send you some literature which I have already prepared on the subject of either.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Lemon Milk)

Question: A. D. asks—"What is 'lemon milk' and how is it prepared?"

Answer: Lemon milk

MENUS For Good Health

A Week's Supply
Recommended By
Dr. Frank B. McCoy

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, August 18th:

Sunday
Breakfast—Poached egg, whole-wheat muffins, stewed raisins.
Lunch—Cooked small carrots and peas, stuffed celery, shredded lettuce.
Dinner—Baked chicken, whole-wheat dressing, cooked asparagus, McCoy salad, apricot whip.

Monday
Breakfast—French omelet, Melba toast, stewed prunes.
Lunch—Berries and cream, no sugar.
Dinner—Salisbury steak, baked gratin potatoes and carrots. Salad of sliced cucumbers on endive leaves, plain Jello or Jell-well.

Tuesday
Breakfast—Cottage cheese, pineapple (fresh or canned).
Lunch—Spinach, raw celery and ripe olives.
Dinner—Roast pork, string beans, salad of diced cooked beets on lettuce, baked apple.

Wednesday
Breakfast—Coddled eggs, Melba toast, stewed pears.
Lunch—Ice cream (1-2 pint portions) with a fresh fruit.
Dinner—Baked sea bass, squash, cooked greens, combination salad of tomatoes, cucumbers, no dessert.

Thursday
Breakfast—Baked peaches with milk or cream, 1 or 2 slices of Melba toast.
Lunch—Buttered beets, okra, head lettuce.
Dinner—Baked lean beef, mashed turnips and carrots, salad of shredded raw cabbage, junket with pure juice and whipped cream.

Friday
Breakfast—French omelet, toast, fruit, applesauce.
Lunch—Melon or grapes as desired.
Dinner—Broiled fillet of sole, spinach, tomatoes, salad of head lettuce, grapejuice whip (no cream).

Saturday
Breakfast—Wholewheat-raisin muffins, peanut butter, stewed raisins.
Lunch—Ice cream and cantaloupe.
Dinner—Roast veal, cooked cucumbers, string beans, salad of grated raw carrots, baked pears.

Baked Peaches:—Peel and halve the desired number of large firm peaches. If the fresh peaches are not procurable, use of canned ones. Heap into each half a teaspoonful or more of ground seedless raisins, and bake for about 20 minutes in a tightly covered baking dish. Serve hot or cold, with cream or milk.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
(Colitis)
Question: Reader asks:—"Will you kindly state what is meant by the following: 'A colon bordering or diverticulous.' (1) What are some of the causes of colitis? (2) Should one suffering from colitis be on a diet? If so, will you kindly suggest what one should refrain from eating? (3) Do you think colonic irrigations are very helpful?"

Answer:—This simply means that pockets are forming in the colon in which food lodges, where it decomposes and putrefies more readily. (1) Wrong food, too much food, bad combinations, and everything which can produce constipation. (2) Diet is the only cure, and no special "queer" foods are necessary. Just follow the diet recommended in my weekly menus. (3) The daily enema is perhaps the best single treatment that can be given for colitis. In severe cases, two or three enemas daily should be used, and at least one enema taken over a period of several weeks. They are always helpful and can be no more harmful than washing the face as long as you use only plain water.

(Pimples)
Question: J. H. K. writes:—"I am 17 years old, and for about a year I have had pimples. My weight is about right, but I have been taking cream to get a little heavier. Could too much cream, butter, or tomatoes be the cause?"

Answer:—Certain kinds of pimples are no doubt caused by the use of too much oil and fat. Try a diet free from butter, milk, cream, and the fat of meat and see if your skin trouble does not clear up. (Child Grinds Teeth)
Question: L. K. asks:—"What causes a child to grind its teeth in its sleep?"
Answer:—The common cause is from indigestion, but sometimes stomach or intestinal worms are responsible.

TO END SHOE STRIKE

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 15.—First step towards settlement of the shoe strike here, in which 6,000 operatives have been out for more than 11 weeks, was taken this afternoon when the Manufacturers Association voted to accept the terms of an agreement drawn up by a committee composed of manufacturers and striking operatives.

In order that the workers return, the agreement must be ratified by them. A vote on the matter will be taken Saturday.

The vote today, taken by the 23 manufacturing concerns involved in the strike, was said to have been almost unanimous.

While the terms of the agreement were not made public, it was stated that the workers would get none of the conditions they demanded.

When the operatives went out on strike eleven weeks ago, they demanded a ten per cent wage increase, and a 44-hour work week instead of the 48-hour week then in force.

It was stated that the wages would not be increased, nor would the time be shortened under the agreement.

CAT'S LONG WALK.

Kentilworth, N. J., Aug. 15.—A maltese cat, owned by Carl Geores of this city, arrived home here today after walking 210 miles from Mariaville, N. Y. The cat had been left behind after an automobile trip and made the return journey in 18 days.

CITY RUNS JITNEYS

New Orleans, La., Aug. 15.—An atmosphere of tenseness permeated the city today as police strengthened their lines to enforce the city commission's plan to ban "jitneys" at noon.

Under the commission's plan jitney drivers will be compelled to post $5,000 indemnity bond before 12 o'clock. Wholesale arrests have been ordered in event the order is not obeyed.

Street car strikers and their sympathizers have petitioned the commission to rescind its decision as long as the street cars are being operated with imported strike-breakers.

Possibility of renewed violence was discussed at a conference yesterday between the commissioners and leaders of the union car men. The commission has given the police department permission to add to its force to cope with any further rioting.

Labor leaders visited the city commission and expressed formal regret over the incident early in the week when a mob visited the council chamber and attacked the commissioners.

No violence has occurred here since two street cars were dynamited yesterday morning.

NO EMERGING CREDIT SOUGHT BY ENGLAND

London, Aug. 15.—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, was quoted by the Evening News this evening as saying he knows nothing whatever about the report in New York that the Bank of England has arranged for an emergency credit in New York.

According to a report printed in New York the Bank of England has arranged with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to obtain an emergency credit of $250,000,000 "within a few hours of calling," if it is deemed necessary at any time in the immediate future.

It was stated that this arrangement was made because the Bank of England's store of gold had been drained by recent heavy purchases by France.

This credit has not been established as yet, the report stated, but the gold is available to establish it as soon as its request is received in New York.

It was understood that the Anglo-French disension at the Hague over reparations allotments was chiefly responsible for the reported negotiations.

STOMACH TROUBLE?

Wonderful discovery brings to sufferers the most powerful starch digesting enzyme—Japtase

ACIDINE never fails to relieve and keep it away. This remarkable new discovery relieves safely, surely and swiftly—Indigestion, acid stomach, gas, flatulence, acid indigestion, acidosis, gastritis, sour stomach, sick headache, acid stomach, chronic constipation, head colds and acid rheumatism. It alkalizes, balances excess acid, keeps the whole digestive system sweet and clean.

ACIDINE is the only perfect, modern, anti-acid which is combined with Japtase, a powerful starch digestant—it digests 500 times its own weight of pure potato starch in 30 minutes. Your stomach deserves protection. ACIDINE gives it.

A meat and starch digestant, anti-acid and carminative beyond compare. Soothing to the stomach and intestinal membranes. Slightly laxative, but not excessively so. A really perfect medicine for mother, father, children and babies. Used and recommended by physicians everywhere. Money back guarantee. At all druggists, or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Dept. 30, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Patience And Modesty Mack's Biggest Virtues

Broke Up Great Combination In 1914 and Has Second Edition at Present.

By HENRY L. FARRELL

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 15.—Patience and modesty are the outstanding virtues of the venerable Connie Mack. Of course he has skill and plenty of baseball knowledge, but they are professional virtues.

In 1914 he broke up one of the greatest teams of all times, a team which he said had become pennant rich and had lost the incentive to make the extra effort to get to first base on a questionable hit.

"I'll build a new team," the grand old man said at the time. He tried to build a new team. First he went after young college boys to whom he could teach his ways. The method failed. Not because of Connie, but because of the inaptitude of his pupils.

Then he went to the other extreme and hired two old men, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, in the hope that they would steady the young promising team he had assembled. The presence of the two old stars, however, worked just the reverse. Dissension came instead of harmony.

Patience Rewards Him
But after 15 years of waiting and after expending plenty of money—don't forget that—Connie Mack has a team that looks to be a clinch for the American League pennant. It took a long time, but the patient old fellow never lost the hope that he could win some more pennants before he retires.

Fox on Bench Three Years
The outstanding ball player on the prospective champions is a kid, Jimmy Fox, and if Connie Mack had not been patient Jimmy Fox might not be with the ball club at all around three years on the bench just watching and listening.

Fox, at the time of writing, is leading the American League batters with a mark of better than 400.

"I can't hit Fox over his head," we asked Mack.

"Indeed he is not," he replied. "I think the youngster will develop into one of the greatest batters of all times. The first time I saw him, I was impressed with his hitting. He hits a ball that carries. His hits look like line drives but they're carrying. And they're bouncing off the fence. As a contrast there is Sammy Hale. He hits the ball full, but he can't carry it. He hits a ball that carries, but it doesn't carry. Some outfielder is always in front of them."

"Earnshaw is doing some good work for you this year isn't he?" we asked.

"Earnshaw is willing worker. 'Indeed he is,' Mack replied. 'He is a very good pitcher. I thought from the time he reported he would be a winning pitcher as soon as he acquired control. We coached him and worked with him and he came through this year. He is a strong fellow and a very willing worker. He will pitch a full nine-inning game and perhaps a very hard one and he will be willing to go in and pitch the next day on the occasion arises.'"

Connie's Modesty
The modesty of the veteran leader is as impressive as his virtue of patience.

"Would you consider an offer to write your experiences in baseball?" we asked him.

"No, I never have done it," he answered. "And I never intend to do it. I have had many offers but I have a principle against those sort of things. The public is not interested in me."

"Nearly every person who writes his life and his experiences does it for money. I am not a wealthy man, but I never have held the accumulation of money as my ambition."

"Furthermore, I am a busy man. There is a certain physical and mental strain attached to the running of a ball club in a pennant race and I am not a young man. I have other things on my mind and I have other things to do than to write about myself."

TUNNEY TO REMAIN IN ITALY FOR TIME

Paris, Aug. 16.—"I am in Paris on business and have no intention of returning to America just yet."

Thus James J. Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world, explained his presence here today and at the same time threw cold water on reports to the effect that he was returning to the United States this month.

"I expect to be in Paris for about ten days or possibly not longer than a week," Tunney added. "When I have completed my business I will return to Brioni."

Tunney and his wife, the former "Polly" Lander have been sojourning at Brioni island for some time. The reports which stated Tunney was returning to America this month implied that he was going alone and for the purpose of attempting to settle out of court the two half million dollar actions filed against him by Mrs. Catherine Fogarty and her former husband.

The Graf Zeppelin stowaway celebrated his 15th birthday shortly after his arrival in this country. Maybe he's old enough to know better now.

MACK IS CERTAIN OF PENNANT NOW

Signed a Contract With Syndicate to Write About the World Series.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Aug. 16.—It doesn't seem possible that a couple of major league pennant races can be won by the middle of August but when Connie Mack and Joe McCarthy tacitly admit they are won, then the book is closed and all further bets must run rapidly for Sweeney, the junk man. The admission was made when the rival managers of the Philadelphia and Chicago Cubs signed this week with a syndicate to "cover" the world series from the players' bench, the incident being notable for the fact that no baseball man is willing to invite disaster by admitting that something has happened before it officially has.

However, if there is any disaster possible in connection with a couple of clubs that are 14 and 8 1/2 games respectively ahead of the parade today, then this pair will have earned their grief without assistance from anybody, Mack and McCarthy included.

Sought by Syndicates.
The incident also is noteworthy for the fact that Mr. Mack has had to fight his way home every night for two weeks, the doorstep being cluttered with syndicate men, accompanied by contracts, or maybe I mean contracts, accompanied by syndicate men. The latter undoubtedly is proper because the game laws clearly state that when a syndicate man is unaccompanied by contracts, he is judged to be no good and must be thrown back in again. Anyhow, the only thing that cluttered Mr. Mack's doorstep between 1918 and 1919 was a lot of milk bottles.

Yes, Mr. Mack had no trouble in resisting the literary urge during the years in question, being somewhat assisted by the fact that the world without him would be a very undesirable place to be in.

But most of them hold that the latter kind of an urge is the more important. In any case, I don't think Mr. Mack was greatly in favor of the tendency of the modern ball player toward self-expression in the newspapers. Possibly he felt that had enough to do on the ball field during the day without going around all night spitting infinities.

possibly he recalled the painful experience of Christy Mathewson, one of the pioneers of the diamond literary movement, in the 1911 World Series between the Athletics and the Giants.

Under his signature, Mr. Mathewson had criticized Red Marquard's judgment in pitching to Frank Baker. It seems he threw Frank a home run ball, losing the ball game. The next day, Mr. Mathewson went out to give a practical demonstration of the idea but, unfortunately, he still was largely theoretical about it. Anyhow, he threw a home run ball to Frank Baker, losing the ball game.

The incident, however, had considerable value, in that it made the ball players' march more respectable. It also showed what they said or what they allowed to be said for them. Today, they confine themselves to discussions of strategy, to the breaks that won and lost the ball game and to an expert view of the situation. Also they approve of the winners and console with the losers. In brief, they have mastered rather thoroughly Section 1, Rule A, of the sport writing racket.

Washing on Won.
The Yankees won their second straight game from Chicago, pounding Faber and Adkins for sixteen hits and winning 9 to 4.

In an extremely fast and well pitched game the Browns trimmed the Red Sox, 3 to 0. Bladholder pitched but the Sox while Russell was touched for six. The game lasted only 76 minutes.

YANKS WIN
The Yankees defeated the Senators in a Junior League playoff baseball game yesterday morning at the West Side. The score was 7 to 0. Rautenberg allowed only two hits and got one more than that himself.

JUNIOR TENNIS
Several matches in the Junior tennis doubles tournament yesterday. More are scheduled for next Wednesday afternoon. The results and scheduled matches:

Austin Brimly and Eddie Weiner defeated Gene Rossi and Ray Dotch 6-2, 6-3. Walter Ford and Chucky Smith defeated Irving Prentice and Red Sheridan 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. Stuart Vennart and Eddie Latwinski defeated John Lloyd and Stillman Keith 6-4, 2-6, 6-4. Ray Dotch and Fred Belber defeated Dan E. Foy and John Gorman 8-10, 6-2, 7-5.

Next Wednesday afternoon: Austin Brimly and Eddie Weiner play Fred Belber and Ray Dotch at 1:30 p. m. Walter Ford and Chucky Smith play Stuart Vennart and Eddie Latwinski at 2:30 p. m.

HEUBNER A BUNDY?

The unexpected victory of 14-years-old Eleanor Heubner over Miss Viola Lalonde, one of the seeded players in the local town championship women's singles tournament yesterday in straight sets 6-4, 6-6, reminds one of the famous Dorothy Bundy.

"Like mother, like daughter," caused a family racket to draw a lot of attention in the eastern women's tennis championships at Rye, N. Y. the other day. Above you see Dorothy Bundy, 12-year-old daughter of famous Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, former national champion, as she made her major tournament debut with a surprise victory over Mrs. Marquis James of Rye, 6-4, 6-2. Critics are predicting she some day will regain the tennis crown which her mother wore for many years. Maybe Miss Heubner will be a champion some day.

Mac Macdonald Wins From Shirer, 6-2, 6-3

Bissell Brothers Win First Round Matches; Gatti, Miss Behrend Victors.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS
Mac Macdonald eliminated Ross Shirer in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

Earl Bissell won from Elmo Mantell, 6-1, 6-7, 6-2. Sherwood Bissell won over Jim O'Leary, 6-0, 7-5.

Ruth Behrend, defending women's champion, eliminated Stella Lincoln, 6-0, 6-1. Aldo Gatti defeated Howard Turkington, 6-2, 6-4.

Five more matches were played in the town championship tennis tournaments last night and three others were started, but not completed because of darkness. A half dozen more will be staged this evening with the remaining first round matches tomorrow.

Pairings for the men's doubles tournament will be announced tomorrow. The entry list closed last night with an even sixteen teams. LoB Is Effective

The best of the completed matches last night was the clash between Macdonald and Shirer, two years ago, and Ross Shirer, which Macdonald won in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3. The winner displayed a splendid all-around game. He was much staidier than Shirer although the latter fought him on level terms at times. Shirer was having a lot of difficulty getting his lobs over the net making a majority of his errors in this manner. Meanwhile, Macdonald was keeping Shirer away from the net with an accurate lob and his placements were also very effective.

A great deal of interest already hinges on the second round match between Macdonald and Bob de Nivelle. This should be a treat well worth seeing. The time has not yet been set but it will be staged early next week. De Nivelle plays a much harder driving game and has the best form of any tennis player in town but in meeting Macdonald he will be up against a heady and steady player who knows how to get the most out of the least exertion with the result that he doesn't tire as quickly as the average player. De Nivelle watched the match and took notes on the work of both players.

Bissell Brothers Win
Sherwood "Cap" Bissell, champion two years ago and losing finalist last year, won his opening round match from the far less experienced Jim O'Leary, youthful high school athlete, last night at the West Side. He won the first set at love but O'Leary forced him to duce to win the next at 7-5. With a couple of years more experience under his belt, this O'Leary chap ought to make it uncomparably for the best of them. He has proved immensely this season and is a real fighter. Bissell's cannonball service was the main reason for his downfall in the first set.

After beating O'Leary, Bissell took on Hudson Lyons in a second round match but darkness intervened after he had won the first set 6-2 and the match will be completed at 5 o'clock tonight.

"Cap's" brother, Earl Bissell, was forced three sets to dispose of Elmo Mantell. The latter came back strong after losing the first set 6-1 and took the second 7-5 and then won the opening two games in the third but Bissell rallied and swept the next six to take the set and match. His next match will be with Donald Janes and this, too, ought to be a humdinger.

Gatti Is Winner
Aldo Gatti, one of the four members of last year's high school tennis team entered in the tournament had no real trouble beating Howard Turkington in straight sets 6-2, 6-4 but the latter gave him a good battle that was interesting from start to finish. Gatti played Mike Cordera in the second round tonight. Herman Yules, another of the M. B. S. team, broke even with Everett Strange losing the first set 6-3 and winning the second, 6-4. They will meet at the Nathan Hale Sunday morning at 10 o'clock to complete the match.

Ruth Behrend, defending champion in the women's tournament, had no trouble eliminating Stella Lincoln in straight sets at 6-0, 6-1. Miss Behrend displayed a splendid all-around game and looks improved over last year's form. She has changed her style of service and is also playing more of a driving game especially with her lobs. Her next opponent will be the winner of the Ethel Robb-Marjorie Smith match.

One of the most stubbornly contested matches of the evening was the slashing battle between Albert de Nivelle, who also has a son entered in the tournament, and Eddie Markley, town swimming champion. Each won a set and they were tied and one up in the third when darkness called a halt. The match will be finished at 6:30 tonight at the Nathan Hale courts from that point with De Nivelle serving.

De Nivelle won the first set at 7-5 after a spirited battle and his youthful opponent, a member of the high school team, came back strong to annex the second at 6-3. This match contained the hardest driving and most daring play of the evening. Both took countless chances in attempt to get to the net for a kill and often paid the cost by losing the point. Trying to pick the winner tonight is exceedingly difficult. Tossing a coin would be about as sure way as any. That's how evenly matched they are. And yet, the deciding set tonight may be one-sided. That's the way with tennis, you know.

Girls to Play
The program for this evening outside of the matches already mentioned calls for Marjorie Smith and Margaret Boyle to meet at Marvin Green at 5 o'clock and Esther Metcalf and Catherine Fisher to clash at the West Side at 7 o'clock. This will leave only the Ethel Robb-Marjorie Smith match in the first round of the women's tourney. Miss Robb is due to return home from the University of Vermont summer school tomorrow.

There are only three other matches to be played in the men's tournament, Bob Smith and Francis Burr meet at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the High School while Ty Holland and David Samuelson meet the same afternoon. Both Holland and Smith have been ill else their match would have been played earlier in the week. Ray Goslee and Harry Kohls will meet either tonight or tomorrow. Illness has also delayed this match.

"ART OF KICKING" TOLD BY PEARSON

This Is One of Most Important Factors in Learning How to Play Soccer.

By FRANK PEARSON

One of the most important parts of a young player's qualifications is his ability to kick. Kicking with the foot does not mean kicking only with the toe. A player who uses only his toe in propelling the ball, never has any definite idea of just where the ball is going. It requires the highest degree of skill to kick the ball in a definite direction with the toe and that skill is only acquired by learning how to kick the ball correctly with the instep.

There are several ways of kicking the ball with the instep, but the easiest way is to kick with the toes of the kicking foot on the ground. The higher the heel is off the ground the more room there is for the toe of the foot to go down and let the instep come in contact with the ball. The other foot to be placed firmly on the ground to preserve balance.

The exact distance which the foot must occupy in relation to the ball can be determined only by practice. A good rule, however, is to place the ball on the ground, then put the standing foot on the ground with the top of the big toe in line with the horizontal center of the ball; then, raising the heel as high as possible, the kicking foot, swinging from the hip with knee slightly bent and the toe down as far as possible come through with the instep in contact with the ball.

The action of rising on the toes and letting the kicking foot swing forward, will bring the body forward without definite effort. It will enable the kicking foot, in the course of its swing, to propel the ball forward and allow the foot to come naturally to the ground with the balance preserved, while the other foot only needs bringing forward in a natural way to enable the player to be in a position to take another kick at the ball.

The ball without any effort will be sent forward a short distance in a straight line, simply the weight of the foot swinging through.

After the player finds the approximate position for his standing foot he can exert a little strength in his effort to propel the ball, increasing the effort until he can make a good standing kick.

After he has acquired the knack of kicking the ball on the ground he must learn how to kick with the instep of the ground while it is in flight. This is easier after he has acquired the art of kicking on the ground and simply consists of raising the knee and judging the distance between the foot and the ball, so that in making the swing will meet the ball properly.

It is well to acquire the art of kicking with either foot. The possession of this ability will be found to be a great asset.

After learning to kick with the front of either foot, it would be well to acquire the art of using both sides of either foot. In making short low passes to the side of the field; first, while standing and then while running. Kicking with the front of the foot is making a short, low pass is like taking a heavy hammer at drive a tack and is of course not only clumsy, but prevents a fast player from being speedy in passing.

Having learned how to propel the ball by the foot, the next important accomplishment is the ability to stop and control the ball, therefore it is necessary to know how to trap the ball. There are quite a number of ways of trapping the ball. Three of the simplest are as follows: 1. Receiving the ball on the stomach. 2. With the inside of the foot and leg below the knee. 3. With the sole of the foot.

The first method is most useful in receiving a ball travelling waist high, either in flight or rising from a bounce or in other words when the ball is about 12 feet off the ground. The manner of receiving is to let the ball hit the body and immediately draw in the abdomen, expanding the chest and bending slightly forward.

The second method is used when the ball is kicked and the ball drops to the ground in front of the feet in a position to be kicked by either foot. This method of trapping is also useful in stopping a ball descending from a height. The second method of trapping is when the right foot is used, by putting the foot at right angles to the line of the direction of the ball, raising the heel and bending the leg slightly inward toward the left leg. The ball if travelling on or close to the ground, is caught in the angle formed by the leg with the ground. The forward inclination of the leg throws the ball into the ground at the foot and puts it in position to be kicked by the left foot without any loss of time. Of course this trap sounds easy but it is only after a lot of practice that the necessary quickness and timing is acquired.

The third method is the use of the sole of the foot; that is, by elevating the foot about six inches from the ground and elevating the toe sufficiently to let the ball come under the foot and when the ball is there, putting the foot down on the ball. This method requires very quick action and accurate timing and is useful in trapping a ball travelling on the ground.

Constant practice is necessary to acquire skill in trapping the ball. Next week the writer will discuss blocking and tackling.

At present there are 17 players who have entered their names. They are Jim Fallon, Guido Giorgetti, Mike Subie, Frank McLaughlin, Pete Happendy, Jim Schaub, Joe Barrett, Pat Furphy, Ell Leggett, Jim Thomson, Bill Gess, Bill Gess, Jr., Moseley, Stuart and Frank Taggart, Bill Brennan and "Punk" Lamprecht.

HUDSONS RETAIN LEAD; WIN 11 TO 4

The Hudsons retained their lead in the senior playground baseball league last night when they trimmed the Aces 11 to 4. The winners fell on Armstrong's delivery for 17 hits and won without any difficulty. The batting of Holland and Wilkinson featured, each collecting three bingles. The Ramblers and Pirates will meet this evening.

Giant South American Soft- ens Up New Zealander With Body Blows Before the End Comes.

BY SID MERCER

New York, Aug. 15.—Victorio Campolo, a swarthy giant from the Argentine, cut down Gene Tunney's score on Tom Heeneey by two rounds last night at Ebbets Field when he split the old rock of the Antipodes asunder with a succession of sieging blows to the heart and toppled him over with a lifting right upward to win in nine rounds.

Although Heeneey was not cut and slashed as the champion left him at the Yankee Stadium last year, he took a far worse beating from the big South American, who ground the New Zealander down gradually with terrific rights to the body and had him willed as early as the fifth round.

But Heeneey whose heart was never displaced by this cruel punishment, kept walking into the Goliath and firing punches that were spent before they landed.

Earlier in the fight he had almost upset Campolo twice when they were exchanging rights and for a time it appeared that the giant might collapse from his own exertions. The body bombardment, however, robbed Heeneey's punch of its sting after the fourth round. He did manage to take advantage of Campolo's weariness to carry the seventh round.

Collapses In Ninth
After that it was only a question of whether the courageous New Zealander could go the limit, a fierce attack by Campolo in the eighth took almost the last ounce of resistance out of the Aztec and he fell early in the ninth.

Heeneey's offense had been reduced to mere gestures by the Argentinian's ripping assaults in the eighth, and he backed up for the first time when Campolo bore down on him with long rights flying as they started the ninth.

The time of the knockout was 2 minutes and 46 seconds in the ninth round. Heeneey recovered quickly and in his dressing room later said that Campolo was the hardest body puncher he had ever encountered.

PUT ON ROAD CREW TO PROTECT CABLES

Telephone Company Puts Road Patrolmen in Field to Watch Interruptions. To cooperate with the state highway department in its large program of road building throughout Connecticut, and to protect telephone cables and other plant from possible damage and consequent service interruptions, the Southern New England Telephone Company has lately placed in the field a number of road patrolmen, so-called, serving under the general supervision of A. B. Sage of New Haven.

During the past six months so much new road work was undertaken by the highway department in all sections of the state that the telephone company decided to create a force of patrolmen to keep in close touch with all this work, cooperate in all ways with the highway department and at the same time plan and carry on such work as relates to telephone plant and will assure its protection.

NASH '400' Leads the World in Motor Car Value. AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY. REDUCED PRICES $300. Reductions on new NASH '400's as high as $300. NASH, in reducing prices last week on 1929 Nash '400' models, gives you a golden opportunity to save as much as $300 on your new car. Only a limited number of these '400' models are available at these prices. The prices on 1930 models, when announced later this year, will be higher than the '400' prices which have prevailed prior to this price reduction. Here is a real opportunity—now you can have one of these finer motor cars at a price you would ordinarily pay for one much less desirable. And just compare them to any competitive car now being offered. You will find these cars still far ahead in style and engineering excellence. These are the cars with the Twin-Ignition motor, with Bijur Centralized Chassis Lubrication, with outboard mounted Houdaille and Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, with the World's easiest steering, and with many other equally advanced and desirable features. And, at the reduced prices, these Nash '400's' are fully equipped, exactly as at the former prices, with chromium nicked bumpers front and rear, spare tire lock and tire cover. Nothing more to buy except a spare tire. MADDEN BROTHERS Corner Main St. & Brainard Place So. Manchester

The SHINING TALENT

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MOLLY BURNHAM, pretty and prosperous, has undertaken the care of little RITA NEWTON, the child of her dearest friend, who has died. Rita's father, BOB, confesses to Molly something of the details of a sordid romance he had had with a girl named ELSIE SMITH, who has met a violent death. Bob seems caloused and hard, and Molly is disgusted with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Molly had never realized there were so many reporters in Boston. They all wanted to know what she would do if the censors padlocked the theater.

"But the censors couldn't do that," she protested. "They'd have to get a court order. And it's not a court order. The critics were very kind. They liked it very much."

"But what did the censors say?" demanded somebody. They said it was all the six deadly adjectives—"obscene, lewd, lascivious, filthy, indecent and disgusting—that's what the censors said!"

"Damn the censors!" exclaimed Molly. And some of the papers led with a screaming banner: "DAMN THE CENSORS!"

MOLLY BURNHAM CONDEMNNS VIGILANTS

Boston Playwright Will Fight Efforts to Padlock Second Sensational Play

The story was wired to New York, and appeared on Broadway almost as soon as in Boston. Mr. Durbin, delighted, telephoned his congratulations.

And that evening Jack telephoned too. He had received Molly's letter, and the ring. He had also read the papers.

"Molly dear," he began, without preamble, "you were an awfully sweet little girl to send me that stunning ring. And I want to thank you. It was mighty nice of you."

"I'm glad you liked it," she faltered. "I suppose you're having a fit about the play?"

"That was one reason I called," he admitted. "Can't you do something about it, Molly?"

"About what?" she asked blankly.

"The play, of course. What did you think I was talking about?"

"What can I do?"

"Lord, I don't know! But it's a pretty mess for a nice girl to be mixed in."

"Did you think the play was indecent, Jack?"

"Now, Molly, be your size, dear. I thought it was a peach of a play. Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton thought so, too. Anybody with any sense would."

"But you know that these reporters are. What's the sense of playing into their hands? How do you think it sounded to hear you'd told them to go to hell?"

"Oh, I didn't," she broke in. "Not really. That is, not intentionally."

"Well, that's what the newsboys are yelling about," he retorted.

"I'm awfully sorry," she insisted. "I never meant to say anything of the sort."

"Why don't you take the play off?" he demanded.

"Take it off!" she cried. "I guess you don't know, Jack, how much it costs to put a play on."

"Well, you'd better get off if you did. It's a success and a sensation, and all that. But a rather dubious one, I'm afraid. First thing you know, Molly, nice people will be cutting you."

"Jack Wells!" she cried. "You're the most provincial creature that ever lived!"

Furiously, she slammed her little pink telephone on her little pink table. But, presently, it was ringing again.

"I only wanted to be sure you knew I liked the ring," said Jack. "I just thought I'd thank you again for it—that's all. You were awfully sweet to get it for me, Molly."

Then the receiver on his end was also up.

A little later a telegram came from Red:

"ATTA GIRL STICK BY YOUR GUNS. EVEN OTTAWA HAS FALLEN FOR YOUR PICTURE IN ALL THE EVENING PAPERS. GREAT STUFF CARRY ON FOR FRANKNESS AND FREEDOM."

What a difference between Jack and Red! Difference enough to keep Molly awake all the night. At three a. m., wide-eyed and sleepless, she conceived an idea. She would compile an anthology of dark and desperate love verses. Tragic, mournful things, for women in love with the wrong men. To be read on sleepless nights, after lovers' quarrels.

She would have it bound in purple. And she would write a preface with beautiful, sad words. She would dedicate it to "Women—Women Everywhere."

Fired with the notion, Molly put on her bed light, and propping herself up on her pillows, reached for the pad and pencils she kept on her bedside table. She would begin immediately, writing from memory all she could remember.

She scribbled as one inspired—a mournful thing of three lines:

*The gift of love is this—
A crown of thorns to thy head,
And vinegar to thy kiss.*

Then there was that wistful little verse of Jessie Rittenhouse:

*You came again, but silence
Had then on your heart,*

And in your eyes were visions That held us still apart.

And now I go on hearing, The words you did not say, And the kiss you did not give me Burns on my lips today.

Then there was that wild sonnet that began:

*"What lips my lips have kissed,
And where, and why,
I have forgotten, and what arms..."*

Molly was growing sleepy. Too sleepy to remember any more. "And my! It's a good idea," she reflected drowsily. "I'll make it an anthology of unrequited love. I'll bet a million women would simply eat it up."

But in the morning Molly's enthusiasm had waned. When she was tired or lonely, she was often sentimental. After a good breakfast, she was apt to grow matter-of-fact. Today was going to be a lovely day.

The nurse was leaving early. She would have little Rita to herself until bed-time. They were going down town, and Rita was to have her hair cut. Then they would have luncheon, and go to see Peter Pan.

Molly had told Rita about how the children flew around the nursery. And how Wendy flew right out into the night, and fell in love with Peter Pan, and lived. Like the fairies, up in a tree. Rita listened wide-eyed and eager.

"Didn't she have no mama?" she asked.

"Yes, indeed," declared Molly. "But Peter bewitched her, and she forgot all about her mother."

"What's bewitched?"

"Molly tried to explain. But Rita shook her curly head. "Wendy was a naughty girl," she pronounced.

"Why, dear? Because she flew away from her mama?"

Rita nodded, and buried her face in Molly's skirt. It was a childish avowal of love.

"You wouldn't want to fly away from me, would you, dearest?"

"No—no!"

Rita hugged Molly's knees ecstatically. "I love you!" she whispered.

And Molly's heart, with joy and thankfulness, was filled to overflowing.

It was some time before she happened to see Bob again. He had called frequently, to take Rita for a ride in the swan boats, or a walk through the Public Gardens. Once he had taken her to the Aquarium.

And another day to Franklin Park, to see the elephants. But Molly had alienated her mother completely. She was writing a novel from the plot of "Sacrifice." Because she fancied she could write better at night, she slept late in the morning, and devoted her mornings to various things. There was a modern art course at the museum in which she was interested. And another in applied psychology at Harvard.

She was taking the course at Harvard, too, and she was to go to get a great deal. He talked occasionally of his mother now. Her heart was beginning to fall, the doctors said. Perhaps she could not live another year. Red was very good to her, buying her a number of absurd and loving gifts.

One day it was a lavender shawl. And the next day a gay French breakfast service. He found pomegranates for her, and avocado pears, and ripe figs. He would go down to the market, to get the Italian cheese she particularly liked. And drive into the country for tender young broilers, and green vegetables, fresh from the gardens.

She never had any money now, and Molly suspected that he was spending it all on his mother. She tried to think of some way she might help him. His specialists' bills, she knew, were enormous. But she was too afraid of offending to make any suggestions.

Her money, she reflected, had never enabled her to help the people she loved most. It had actually kept her from marrying Jack. It had alienated her mother completely. She was never able to do anything for poor Rita. Nor for Ruth. Only for little Rita.

And now—with the way Bob was acting—she was beginning to wonder if anything could ever happen by which she might lose her darling child.

Bob had reformed of late. Molly had been to a concert one afternoon and walked home, for the exercise. Bob and Rita were returning at the same time.

"The least I can do," thought Molly, "is ask him in for tea. After all, he's Rita's father."

They sat in the drawing room, fragrant with flowers, and homey now with books and magazines, and lamps with parchment shades.

Bob's eyes were brighter now, and his skin was clearer. He seemed more alert, and straight-forward. Molly could almost forgive him for Elsie Smith. He seemed actually like a different person.

"Been on the wagon," he offered, "ever since Elsie's death."

"You'd better stay on," advised Molly. "I've never seen you look so well."

He filled his pipe and smiled contentedly.

"I'm being an exemplary citizen," he declared. "Saving money, and everything."

"It's high time," she observed.

"You'd don't know what I've been up against the last few years."

She smiled sardonically.

"Rita was up against a lot, too," she said. "And it didn't make it any easier for her, when you started to drink."

"I know," he admitted. "I've been an awful egg. But you're not going to hold that up against me all my life, are you, Molly?"

"Oh, I don't know," she parried. "I'm apt to."

"But that's not fair. Listen, Molly..."

He leaned, and took her hand.

And she noticed what white, horrid hands he had. Jack's were brown. And Red's were red, and homely, with hair sticking up on his knuckles... But Bob's were white, and so horrid.

She tried to draw her fingers away.

PATOU FORECASTS THE FASHIONS

Evening Gowns' New Length Influences Day Frocks.

Patou, whose annual collections have a greater influence on the fashion world than that of any other style creator, reveals what's smartest in daytime frocks and evening gowns, the best fabrics to choose, the proper length of coats, the newest colors and the mode in furs.

The last stand of individuality! This is my twenty-first collection since 1918. I would like to believe that my efforts have borne some influence on fashions. At any rate, with each season, I find my experience growing.

It may be true that progress is bringing us nearer and nearer to standardization, but the master of real elegance—an essentially French tradition—will always be the Parisian couturier.

This is my main thesis—something higher than in my summer collection, but it is by no means "Empire." Skirts are uniformly long for evening wear; with me the uneven hem is a thing of the past.

Practical day dresses have undergone no great radical change. They show unmistakable signs, however, of the tendency of greater length apparent in evening gowns. There's a touch of fantasy in Evening Gowns.

Nowadays it is the evening gown and its accompanying wrap that one must seek proof of the creator's latest efforts. Every fantasy is permissible in an evening gown and only in this realm can a woman's craving for real elegance and sumptuousness be fulfilled.

My new silhouette is very significant—a practically high waistline and a skirt length which can be but coming to most women. Women will once more be enveloped in mystery! Simplicity is Mark of Refinement, Technique.

One of the most important features of the new styles is that they will demand all the technical skill of tried artists to be successful. A model gown will require several fittings by people thoroughly competent and knowing all the traditions of their calling. As formula that is simple and capable of being grasped by the crowd soon becomes for that very reason of very little value. In all branches of art an apparent simplicity is characteristic of refinement and perfect technique. English Fabrics and Tweeds Will Reign.

So far as materials are concerned, English fabrics and tweeds will dominate this winter. I have used quite a number of plain and fancy wool jerseys. All sweaters by which she might lose her darling child.

HEALTH

This is the first of two articles by Dr. Morris Fishbein in which he discusses the cause and effect of defective vision among school children.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, Editor of the American Medical Association and Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

At the recent meeting of the American Medical Association in Portland, Ore., Dr. Lloyd Mills attracted attention to the importance of the eyes in education.

The excessive speed of modern civilization demands rapid mental adjustments which sometimes children are unable to make because of ocular deficiencies.

Doctor Mills is convinced that ocular adjustments to educational forcing produce weakness of the eye muscles and eye strain through prolonged overattention.

There is a definite limit to the amount of words that any reader can see at a single glance.

Intellectual capacity is practically determined at birth and gains only by proper training.

There is a definite and individual limit to the speed of correct recognition and perception of objects and of words.

The tests that have been made indicate that the most rapid readers can do at best a page of solid reading in a minute and that this speed can seldom be maintained with any usefulness for more than half an hour at a time.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

Don't think your little two-and-a-half-year-old stupid if he copies the older children.

He never seems to think up anything original to do, and just tramps around after the others, digs when they dig, marches when they march, and sits on the step when they sit, don't think he's a dolt and an imbecile.

If he shows any sign of playing by himself aside from pulling a toy around, or pushing himself along in his kiddie car, he's unusual, for three-year-olds as a rule have very little initiative.

Learn Independence. It is just about this time that they discover that they can act and think quite independently of other people.

Up until then, unless, as I say, he is unusual, very likely he was contented to watch the boss of the barnyard and his comical pantomimes. But now Dickie goes further.

"Look, Mom, I'm a rooster," says Dickie as he struts around and pretends to crow.

Up until then, unless, as I say, he is unusual, very likely he was contented to watch the boss of the barnyard and his comical pantomimes.

He'll be Somebody Else. But this isn't all. He loves to pretend that he is somebody else.

Between his third and fourth birthday he will play many parts and pretend many things.

NEW ENGLAND PLANNING TO WELCOME MISSISSIPPIANS

Boston—The New England Council and various community organizations are preparing to welcome the fourth annual tour of 200 business leaders of the state of Mississippi who arrive here August 13 on their "Know Mississippi Better" train.

Earlier in the year when it was learned that the Mississippi businessmen were contemplating tour, the New England Council was prominent in extending greetings and a welcome in behalf of New England communities.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SCHEINER

"Why I Am Going Back to Work" is the confession of an "old-fashioned wife" in a current magazine. She calmly admits that she is going back to work because she owns an automobile, and because this automobile makes it impossible to saunter.

Used cars just don't sell, dealers say. Few want to ride in a second-hand one. It has to be smart and the best.

Her husband, she says, insists that a car, and a very good car, is a business necessity. She can't see that it is, but, anyway, they've gotten used to it, so she supposes they'll always have it.

WHAT FIGURES TELL. The women's department of the U. S. Bureau of Labor has always frothed at the mouth at the idea that any but a handful of women, so insignificant a number not to be worth bother, works for pleasure.

In other words, for every woman who works for "self expression" and for jasmine bath salts and orchid lingerie, there are literally thousands working for hamburg and winter underwear for the kids.

Wives seem to want houses, homes of their own. Husbands seem to want cars. Many a wife has gazed ruefully at a new car in a driveway, reflected that she was living in a rented house, and said, "There stands my house."

THIS AUTO AGE. All of us are used to riding through the country, seeing cars worth twice and three times as much as the houses before which they stand.

One wonders what the basic difference is between male and female psychology which makes men and women so choose. Is it that men like the shower thing? After all, in this age, of wheels, very few people see their house, anyway.

To be sure, it is easy to understand why a house means so much more to a woman than a car, so much more to her, too, than to her husband. Woman's job has always revolved about her home.

MOTOR MAMAS, TOO! Sometimes, justice prompts us to say, it is mama who keeps husband's nose to the grindstone in order that the car may shine in all its nickel and purple, but I believe that in nine times out of ten when man's nose to the grindstone in order that the car may shine in all its nickel and purple, but I believe that in nine times out of ten when

HELPS ON STAGE WORK IN TALKIES

Nothing Better for Actor Than Hearing and Seeing Himself on the Screen.

By DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—Training on the legitimate stage may be a big asset to those who would make good in speaking films. But training in the "talkies" is just as big an aid to those who are, earning their living behind the footlights.

This is the theory advanced by Edward Everett Horton, noted comedian, who is equally well known to stage and screen audiences.

For the past year scores of New York's stage stars, imported to the movie villa for the purpose of making talking pictures, have been telling us what a great help their stage training has been in the making of these same films.

It works both ways. Now Horton comes forward with the statement that his work in the talkies has aided him in his stage productions just as much as his years behind the footlights have helped him in the articulate movies.

"Nothing in the world can help an actor improve as much as seeing and hearing himself," declares Horton. "On the stage such a thing quite naturally is impossible. The talkies have opened that new medium. After finishing a picture we can both see and hear our performances and we can learn what not to do."

"By watching ourselves in the talkies we can learn to be more natural, to speak more distinctly, to time our lines correctly—all factors which must be guessed at on the stage. I already have learned that the quality of an actor's voice is of very little importance. That can be taken care of by the recording apparatus. The thing that is important is the pronunciation, and that is something no mechanical device can govern."

"Another factor I consider important in the talkies is speed. People naturally talk rather fast, so rapidly in fact that we often miss parts of their speech although we understand the general meaning. Consequently when a character speaks slowly and deliberately on the screen it sounds unnatural. Distinct, rapid talking is what is required and that is the thing I have been practicing for weeks."

Horton, having just completed "The Aviator" for Warners and closed his theater here, is now taking a two months' vacation. When he returns he will open a new play and start another picture at about the same time.

Likes to Be Busy "Don't you find it rather difficult to work on the stage and in a picture simultaneously?" I queried.

"No. As a matter of fact I like it," he replied. "If I were just working in a picture I would go home each night about six o'clock, have dinner and then wonder what to do until I was tired enough to go to bed. And if I were only appearing on the stage I would have just as much difficulty in trying to find a way to spend my days. As it is, I am kept busy at the studio all day and have the excitement of the theater at night. And there's nothing nicer than getting paid for doing what you like to do."

COAST TO COAST HOP Mills Field, San Francisco, Aug. 16.—Intent upon writing a new chapter in aviation history, Nick Makmer and Art Walker, pilots of the "Sun God," arrived here early today from Spokane, Wash., on the first leg of their unique aerial project.

The roar of the ship's motor was heard over Mills Field at 4:03 this morning, although it was, yet too dark to sight the plane.

The pilots are attempting a non-stop flight from Spokane here, thence to the Atlantic coast and back to Spokane.

Two contacts will be made here and then the "Sun God" will head toward Cheyenne, Wyo., where two refueling ships will place more gas and oil on the plane.

A THOUGHT

My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and truth.—I John 3:18.

Affection, can withstand very severe storms of rigor, but not a long polar frost of downright indifference. Love will subside on wonderfully little hope, but not altogether without it.—Walter Scott.

GIRL DANCER SWOONS AS SHE TELLS STORY

Los Angeles, Aug. 16.—Excused from further cross-examination after she had swooned and toppled from her chair, Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, was expected to be able today to finish her testimony in the preliminary hearing of Alexander Pantazes, vaudeville magnate, charged by her with criminal assault.

Although she frequently was on the verge of collapse during a three-hour grilling by defense attorneys, the girl clung to her story of how the 54-year-old millionaire attacked her in his office when she called to seek booking of a dancing act.

Miss Pringle denied again that she had had any love affairs with men acquaintances.

The hearing, now in its third day, is being held behind barred doors in Judge Leonard Wilson's court.

After the complaining witnesses' collapse, W. L. Gordon, said by the state to have witnessed part of the struggle Miss Pringle declared she had with Pantazes, was called to testify. Gordon told of seeing the dancer flee in a hysterical condition from Pantazes' office.

WAPPING

Miss Doris Burhans left last Wednesday evening for a weeks visit with her aunt, Mrs. Edith Burhans of Hartford.

Rev. and Mrs. William W. Malcolm and two children Majorie and Billy returned this week from their vacation to their parsonage at South Windsor street where they are making preparations to move their goods to Manchester, Mass., where Mr. Malcolm's new duties will begin on Sept. 1.

Mrs. Ralph M. Collins and infant son Glendon Elmer, returned to her home in Manchester.

F. E. Bidwell of South Windsor, operated upon at the Hartford hospital last Monday for appendicitis complications. He is resting comfortably.

A new shed just completed on William Mulligan's farm in the north part of the town was struck by lightning and burned to the ground, during the recent destructive storm, also at John A. Collins' another tobacco shed was struck by lightning. Several large posts were splintered and the boards torn from one end. Two large trees on the lawn were broken down. Russel Steane had a shed blown down and also a large tree on his lawn.

Miss Irene Buckland motored to Bedford, New York, Tuesday morning and brought Miss Eleanor Stoughton home from a six weeks visit at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Norma Thompson. Mrs. Thompson was before her marriage, Miss Norma Stoughton of Wapping and also of East Hartford.

HULL SURRENDERS. On Aug. 16, 1812, American General William Hull, defending Detroit, surrendered to British General Isaac Brock without a gun having been fired.

Brock's forces, according to his own testimony, numbered 1,330 men, including 600 Indians, and he also had two ships of war. Hull had for duty 1,000 men.

When Brock's army approached, Hull offered to surrender. The articles of capitulation were drawn up and the American general surrendered not only the fort and its garrison, but the whole territory of Michigan of which he was governor.

Hull's officers were incensed at his action and he was subsequently court-martialed, convicted of cowardice and condemned to death; but the president pardoned him, in consideration of his age and previous service.

Subsequent investigations have greatly modified the blame attached to Hull.

DIVER RECOVERS RING AFTER 25 ATTEMPTS

Houlton, Me.—The persistence and lung capacity of James J. Bowring, Jr., Red Cross swimming instructor saved a $700 diamond ring for Mrs. Peggy Voss after she had lost it while swimming in deep water.

The ring slipped from Mrs. Voss's finger while she was swimming in 30 feet of water at Nickerison Lake. She was not sure at what point she dropped the ring and despaired of recovering the valuable gem. Bowering, however, went down 25 times to search for the ring and finally rose to the surface wearing it on his little finger.

Doug And Mary To Star Together For First Time

Hollywood, Calif.—Can you imagine dignified Mary Pickford falling off the back of a horse into a bog of mud?

No, of course you can't—neither can anybody else. But she does just that and a lot more in her new picture. And the reason is that Mary and her dynamic husband, Douglas Fairbanks, have become moviana's newest comedy team—for one picture, Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew."

There's a lot to be said about the noted author's tale of how a little spitfire met her match with Mary playing Katherine, the little spitfire, and Doug portraying Petruchio.

Star Together First Time For one thing, this film brings Doug and Mary together on the screen for the first and only time in their careers. Both already are considering stories for individual starring vehicles to be made upon their return from a European tour this fall. Another feature is that Mr. Slapstick himself plays an important part in this production. Nothing has been spared in making the film a real comedy in the broadest sense of the word.

In making "Taming of the Shrew" Doug and Mary are pioneering Shakespeare on the silver sheet and they are doing it just at a time when the vogue for musical productions is at its height. If this film is successful, as all indications point that it will be, it probably will be the forerunner of other Shakespearean productions.

When the announcement was first made that Doug and Mary were to put "Taming of the Shrew" on the screen, suggestions poured in from every quarter. Shakespeare should be played this way or that way. One couldn't do this or that on the screen. In fact the number of suggestions so bewildered the couple that they threw them all out and decided to follow the book with as few changes as possible with the screen as a medium.

Real Slapstick Comedy "Every actor and actress who has stepped before the footlights in the roles of Petruchio and Katherine have had their own interpretations of the two characters," Fairbanks and Miss Pickford declared. "We studied every interpretation and then proceeded with our screen version."

"To us Shakespeare was an extremely human individual whose wit was far from subtle and whose genius lay in his ability to put gorgeous phrases into the mouths of his characters. "Taming of the Shrew" to us is just as modern in theme as a Broadway musical show. The comedy is broad, the lines sparkling and the theme humorous. That is the way we have brought it to the screen."

Hollywood's newest comedy team spared nothing in order to make their picture a real slapstick comedy. If you can't believe that now, you will when you see Mary fall off the above-mentioned horse or when you see her sock Doug over the head with a stool.

Every effort also has been made to retain every bit of Shakespearean favor in the picture. Many of the lines had to be cut out in order to put the story into nine reels of celluloid film. But all of the lines used are spoken just as they were written.

TOUCHING TALE.

Along came a big she-elephant trudging through the deep, deep jungle of Darkest Africa. Suddenly she stepped accidentally on a mother partridge just a few inches from the nest of little partridges.

The kind-hearted elephant saw what she had done, and, having babies of her own who sometimes got very cold, she felt very sorry for the little birds and sat on the nest to keep them warm.

MORAL: What is home without a mother?—Tit-Bits.

It is estimated that there are now about 3,500 persons in the United States who are more than 100 years old.

MAINE HORSES FEWER BUT BETTER GRADE

Bangor, Me.—The reduction in the number of horses used in Maine has resulted in an improvement in the quality of the animals now being utilized for farming and commercial purposes, according to the report submitted at the 36th annual convention of the Maine Horseholders and Blacksmiths Association.

The blacksmiths agreed that the horses which have come under their care in late years were of much better average weight and grade than those used in the pre-automobile era.

GIRL WRESTLER PUTS MASHES ON PAVEMENT

Chicago—A masher got badly mashed here recently when trying to fight with Miss Virginia Mercereau, champion woman wrestler of the world.

Virginia tossed the over-attentive youth to the sidewalk and quietly beat his head against the pavement.

ANDOVER

Thomas Lewis and son Burton went to New York Monday evening. Burton Lewis who works for the Ford Auto Company in Willimantic will drive home a new Ford car. Mr. Lewis was in New York and Kearney, N. J., several days last week getting new cars ready for the other men to drive to Willimantic and expects to do the same this week.

Chicago Doctors Adopt Novel Plan To Collect Bills On Installments

Chicago—"Only two more installments and the baby's mine." That was supposed to be funny, but family doctors here looked at their stacks of unpaid creditors' bills and rubbed noses. Intentionally or not, the jokesmith who banged out that bright crack let a spark fly that ignited ideas in the minds of local medical men. As a result, the "modern medical budget plan," a name tacked on by its sponsor, the Chicago Medical Society, is about to be put in operation here.

As worked out the plan is simplicity itself, and under it everything from babies to appendicitis and back again can be comfortably endured. There is only one limitation—the patient to whom the installment plan on the payment of doctors' bills to be extended must be of moderate means. The period and amount of weekly or monthly payments will be arranged over a time commensurate with the patient's ability to pay.

Like Other Financing One of its chief sponsors, Dr. James H. Hutton, president-elect of the society, said that the plan "simply adapts to the sick the modern method of financing employed by other industries, and enables the family of moderate means to arrange for medical or hospital care on time-payment plan."

Furthermore, Dr. Hutton pointed out, such a plan is certain to knock down the cost of being sick by minimizing the risk of financial loss to doctor and hospital and by going away with indiscriminate charity.

Aids Collection

Thus, Dr. Hutton explained, the patient is completely financed from the first bill to the last, and the physician finally receives 86.67 per cent of his total fee. The finance organization retains 13.63 per cent as the doctor's contribution to the plan and it piles up a special fund against which all bad loans are charged.

If the loan turns out uncollectable the physician receives only the 35 per cent originally advanced, which assures him of receiving at least a fraction of his costs in time and service.

"The plan prevents the commercialization of medicine on the one hand," said Dr. Hutton, "and on the other hand aids the patient, who pays only 6 per cent simple interest on his unpaid balance. The plan is ethical and fair to both patient and physician."

BOTTLE'S BEEN AROUND

Rochford, France.—A bottle thrown overboard from the liner Celtic in July, 1927, has been found here after two years of bobbing over the sea. It had been tossed overboard at some point between New York and the Azores, and the Gulf Stream has carried it across the Atlantic.

SENSE and NONSENSE

One of her best friends got to heaven on account of an auto accident. It seems a taxi driver stopped to let her cross in front of the car and the shock killed her. Matrimonial problems are no longer solved: they are dissolved. Doctor (to professional sword swallower) — No more cavalry swords, no more daggers: just some small dessert knives to keep your strength up. "A girl no longer marries a man for better or worse." "Indeed!" "No: she marries him for more or less." The in-pardonable sin is the one committed by the other fellow. Don't you think Eve must have felt uncomfortable wearing a fig leaf? Dearie, yes, she must have smothered. Two things nearly every woman will try once: matrimony and a surgical operation. Two can live cheaper than one and feel a heap cheaper while at it. The village cut-up walked into the general store and ordered the following: extract of the Columbia River, goat, bottle of melancholy water, elevating fruit, quart of screech remover, emergency links, grouch eliminator, and one sleep disturber. The clerk, knowing him, puzzled for a few minutes and took a chance and got him salmon, butter, bluing, raisins, oil, safety pins, smoking tobacco, and an alarm clock—and these were just what the customer wanted. "Is there a word in the English language that contains all the vowels?" "Unquestionably." Mac—How gracefully Cushman seems to eat corn on the cob. Eph—He ought to. He's a piccolo player. When milady picks out her 1939 bathing suit she'll have to use tweezers. Gladys—Where shall we go to on our honeymoon, dearest? William—Where do you usually go? Church ushers are unpopular because there are not enough back seats for all the congregation. "I knew your first husband—a fine man—he died too soon." "That's what my present husband says." "Do you know 'The Desert Song' asks a news item. Sure, 'How Dry I Am.' Know any more easy ones? A new instrument is a combination of the violin and the saxophone." WE WERE AFRAID SOMEONE WOULD THINK OF THAT!

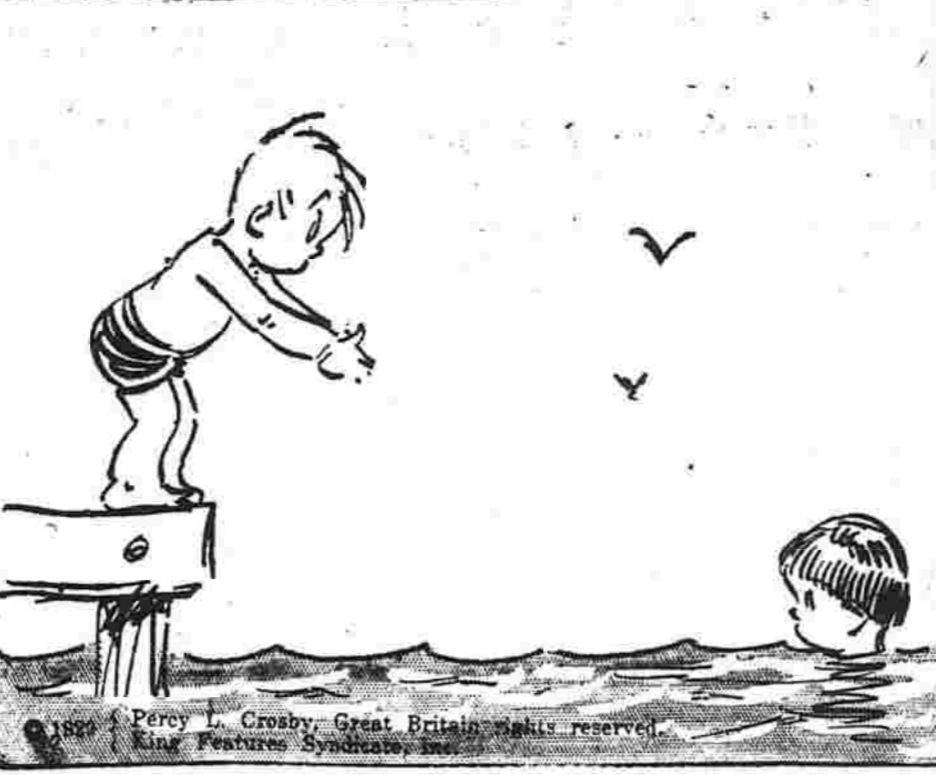

LETTER GOLF

ALL-STAR PUZZLE It's really very easy for expert golfers to make the STARS SHINE. Par is only four and one solution is on another page.

STARS SHINE grid puzzle with letters S, T, A, R, S and S, H, I, N, E.

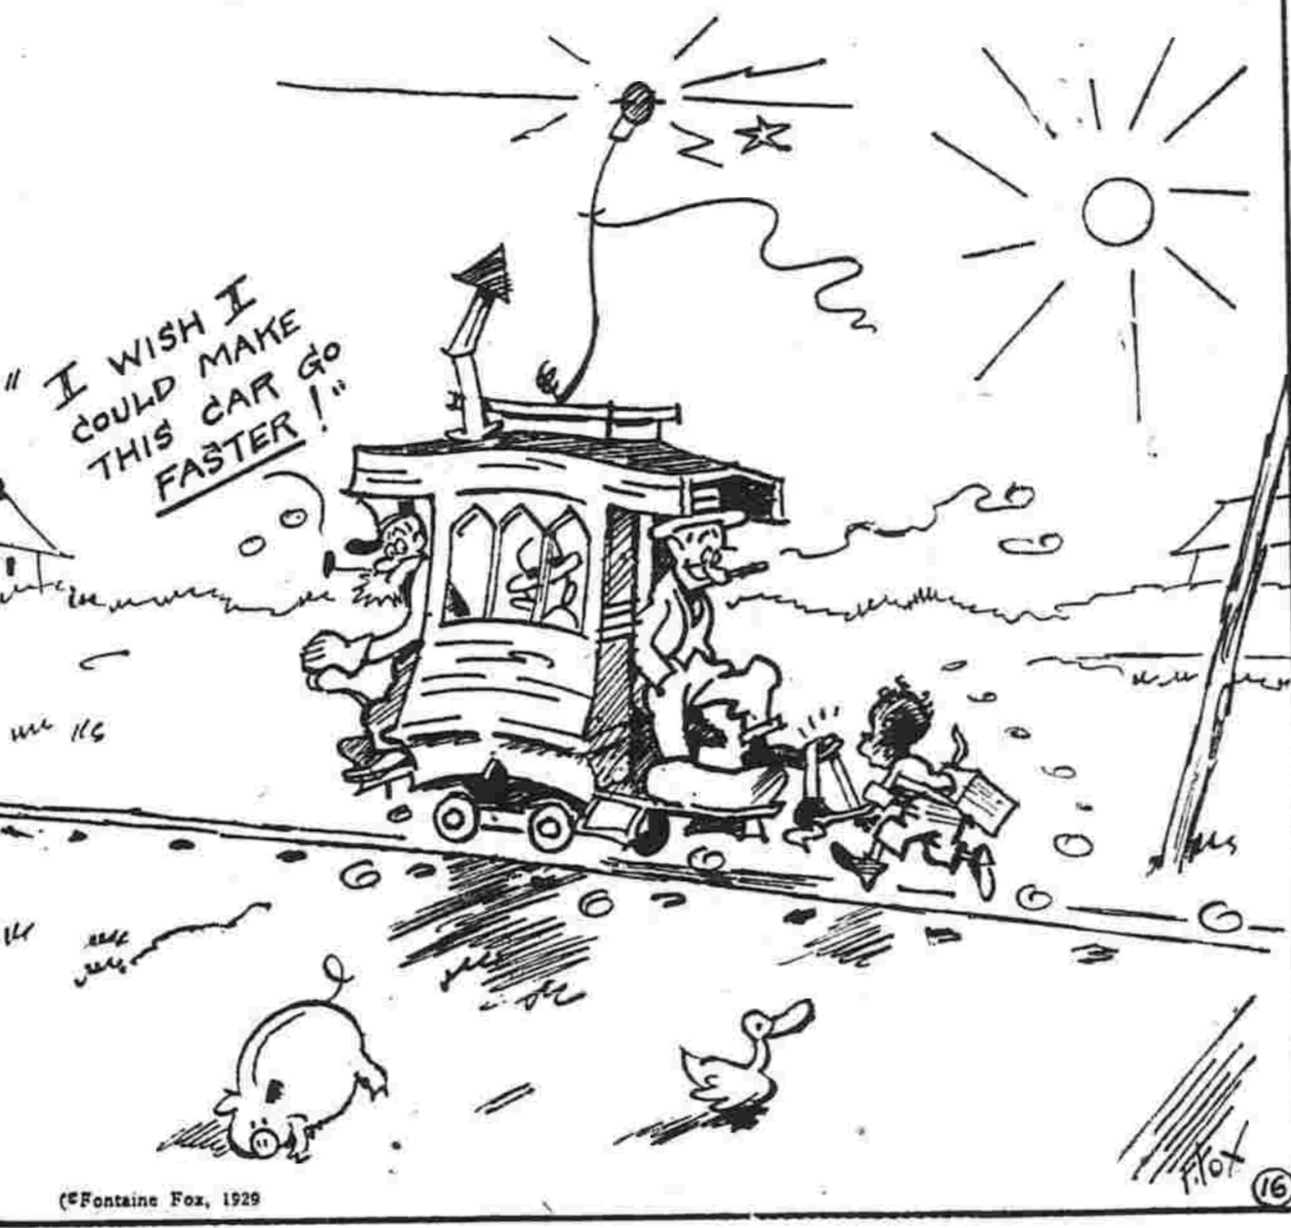

THE RULES. 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, FOW, HEW, HEN. 2—You change only one letter at a time. 3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4—The order of letters cannot be changed. No, Gwendolyn, men who pet dears are not necessarily animal trainers. If a man is unapproachable, and ordinary flattery can't reach him, you can always ask him for advice. When you are spending the day at home and wish some friends would drop in—try taking a bath. Sympathy is all right but it has never helped the under dog get from under.

THE TINNIES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The elephant that Scooty rode to grew tired of his lightweight load. He stopped and snorted loudly and stood high up in the air. Poor Scooty wildly scrambled round and then he slipped down to the ground and shouted, "I am through with you. You did not treat me fair." The show went on, but soon 'twas through. "I'll tell you what we'd better do," said Clowzy. "Let's run to our bunks and get a good night's snooze. Of course I do not like to shirk, but if we stay they'll make us work. Come on, let's run before we're seen. We have no time to lose." So off the band of Tinies tore. They soon were in their bunks once more. Outside they heard much noise. The men were loading up the train. Real soon the train was on its way. The Tinies felt it jerk and sway. "Good night, I'm tired," said Scooty. "This day's been an awful strain." When they woke up at break of dawn, most of the circus folks were gone. They'd hied o'er to the circus grounds. The Tinies went there, too. "I feel like working hard today," said Carpy. "I am tired of play. I'm going to find the boss and see what he will let me do." The boss seemed glad of Carpy's plan. He said, "You work? You bet you can! You got a great big basket. Out front you'll find a little stand. That is the place for you. The labor's really not so much. You'll find fine cones, popcorn and such. Your task is just to sell them. Now let's see what you can do." So Carpy quickly found the stand. He jumped right in and thought it grand. He started shouting out his wares. The folks seemed glad to pay for ice cream cones and popcorn, too. And then the next thing that he knew, he'd sold right out of everything. It was a busy day. (Clowzy gives everybody a laugh in the next story.)

Rev. Harvey Reeves Calkins, D. D., will be the speaker at the Woman's Foreign Missionary society anniversary at the Willimantic campgrounds, August 20. Dr. Calkins has addressed audiences in this town on his work in India.

Dr. Fred F. Bushnell of East Center street and D. W. Kelsey of Mountain View Farm returned yesterday from a two weeks' motor-ing and fishing trip to Canada.

Mrs. Samuel Brock Jr., and children of New Haven, formerly of Brookline, Mass., were recent guests of Miss Hazel Trotter of East Center street. Mrs. Brock, prior to her marriage and Miss Trotter were classmates and close friends while attending the Wheelock Kindergarten Training school in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hobby and daughter Eleanor attended the reunion held yesterday of the Cady and Holmes families, at Crystal Lake. Members of the Hobby family here and in Mansfield are descendants of Oliver Wendell Holmes, the famous New England poet.

Tuesday and Wednesday of next week the Connecticut Gladiolus society will have an exhibition in the old state house building, Hartford. Some of the local growers are planning to have displays at the show in view of the fact that there will be no state fair or exhibition of flowers at Charter Oak Park this year.

The Kelsey family annual reunion will be held Sunday, and those who will go from Manchester will include members of D. W. Kelsey's family just over the line in Glastonbury, the St. Clair Burr and Wilcox families. They will attend church at Killingworth, the service being conducted by Rev. David Kelsey, after which they will dine at the shore cottage of G. H. Wilcox at Point O' Woods.

Miss E. M. Stanley has returned to her home in Highland Park after a vacation spent at Yarmouthport, Mass.

A requiem high mass will be celebrated at St. James's church tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock for the late Mrs. Antonia Farr.

Rev. James E. Greer, Mrs. Greer and their small son will spend the week-end with Mr. Greer's parents, Rev. Jerome and Mrs. Greer of Gales Ferry.

Track practice will be held by the Luther League of the Swedish Lutheran church at the West Side playgrounds at 6 o'clock tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. James Munis Sr., John T. Munis of Center street, with Mr. and Mrs. James Munis of Russell street and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William McCabe, will leave early tomorrow morning by automobile for Old Orchard, Maine, where they will remain until September 1.

Helen Davidson Lodge, Daughters of Scotia will hold its regular meeting in Tinker hall this evening at 7:45.

Mrs. Raymond W. Goslee of Manchester Green is recovering from an operation which she recently underwent at the Memorial hospital.

A number of the attendants of the North and South Methodist churches will attend the Willimantic campmeetings which will begin Sunday and continue through the following Sunday, with excellent speakers and attractive programs each day.

Rev. Roscoe W. Vining will occupy the pulpit at the North Methodist church Sunday at the union service of that church with the Second Congregational.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Sheridan of East Middle Turnpike and children, accompanied by Mrs. Sheridan's brother's family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Logan and child of Springfield, will leave tomorrow for a vacation at Point O' Woods beach.

A Ford coupe driven by Arnold W. Drury, who gave his address as 11 South street, struck a pole at Main and Delmont streets about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The driver lost control of the car which ran up on the sidewalk, tipped over and was badly damaged. Neither Drury nor the young lady who was in the car with him were seriously hurt. Patrolman David Galligan investigated but made no arrest.
