ACCEPT ONE JUROR AT PEAFOX TRIAL

May Take Two Days to Fill Box at Hearing of Fa- mous Torch Murder; Pris- oner Appears Calm.

Court House, White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 16.—One juror was accepted today at the trial of Esau Peacock for the murder last April of his pretty young wife, Dorothy Halmelman Peacock, after a forenoon spent in examination of witnesses. The juror accepted was Edward C. Rossmasser, a silk manufacturer, married and the father of four children.

Twelve talesmen were questioned during the forenoon. Eleven of them were excused for various reasons, chiefly because they had formed a fixed opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant and Peacock, his stubby mustache shaved off, sat in the prisoner's dock advising his attorney in the examination of the jurors, he was immaculately attired in black and his dark hair was neatly slicked back. His mother, Mrs. Catherine Peacock now and then whispered to him. She constantly dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief.

No spectators were allowed in the court room this morning. The small, stuffy court room was jammed with 150 talesmen and a score or more of reporters. Indications were that it would require at least two days to obtain the jury.

Peacock will take the witness stand and tell why he killed Dorothy, his attorney, Sidney A. Syme, declared repeatedly as he examined talesmen.

Young Peacock will tell the jurors, according to Syme, that he killed Dorothy in the heat of an altercation, first hitting her with the butt end of a pistol which he carried.

Would the jurors be prejudiced against Peacock because he carried a gun? That was one question asked many times. Would the fact that the bride whom he killed was only 20 years old prejudice them against the defendant?

Or would they be prejudiced if the evidence showed that Peacock, a married man, had been on intimate terms with Miss Frances Newman, a young hostess in a Broadway dance palace?

Attorney Syme told the prospective jurors that when Peacock was friendly with Miss Newman his wife had "packed up and left him."

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 16.—With a crowd of curious thrills seeking spectators in court at the trial of Esau Peacock, charged with the "torch murder" of his pretty young wife, Dorothy, got under way here today.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins opened the trial and ex-

AUSTRIA ARMS AS FACTIONS BEGIN FIGHT

Chancellor Taking Steps to Prevent Civil War; Fas- cists Oppose the Social- ists; Soldiers Called Out.

Vienna, Sept. 16.—A large section of the Austrian republic is an armed camp today as the result of hostility between political factions and between the government and the rural provinces that are jealously fighting to retain many of their prerogatives.

Federal Chancellor Steuerritz is taking vigorous steps to maintain the peace and to prevent further fighting.

The police and detachments from the regular army are being used to localize the clashes between the opposing armed factions and to prevent fighting at all, where it is possible.

Fear Civil War.
General alarm and tension arising from the growing strife between the hostile factions grew to such proportions that the federal chancellor decided that a definite pacification program was necessary, if actual civil war was to be averted.

Chancellor Steuerritz is described as the "first business man to govern Austria since it was made a republic." He has American ideas of efficiency to get things accomplished.

Meets Opposition.
After deciding to disarm the two

FRENCH ENTER GERMANY AS BRITISH QUIT

New Complications Loom in Effort to Evacuate Rhine- land—Europe Surprised at France's Action.

London, Sept. 16.—New complications loomed today in the Pan-European efforts to liquidate problems hanging over from the war with the revelation that exodus of British occupational troops from the Rhineland is being followed by the entry of French troops into the German territory.

On the heels of the departure of the first British troops from Wiesbaden, one of the most important occupied towns, has come official intimation that French soldiers are to be stationed there to take their prerogatives.

The Daily Express correspondent at Wiesbaden, in a message to his paper today, declares that the entire Rhineland population is incensed over the new occupation, coming out of a clear sky just when residents of the town were bidding a none too sad, farewell to the "Tommys" who had made Wiesbaden their home since the close of the war.

Complicates Matters.
The correspondent declares that the length of time the French troops will remain in the Rhineland, and the kinds of diplomatic complications have to be sorted out.

News of the French re-occupation caused considerable surprise here, although it is pointed out that the action is entirely orthodox and that France is perfectly within her rights in sending forces into the newly-evacuated territory.

As a result of the French announcement, it is reported that Lord Shaw, British war minister, has summoned General Sir William Thwaites, commander of the British Rhineland occupational forces, to London immediately for important conferences on the situation. It is understood that General Thwaites will confer not only with Lord Shaw, but with Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald also.

On technical grounds, France has complete justification for occupying Wiesbaden, or the entire Rhineland territory actually remains an occupied zone until June of next year.

Recent dispatches from the Rhineland, however, have told of the joy felt by the population over the decision of the British government to begin evacuation immediately, and reports from Wiesbaden today described the keen disappointment felt over the fact that contrary to expectations the town was not freed from alien military control for a considerable period.

AS BRITISH PREPARED TO EVACUATE RHINELAND

Evacuation of the Rhineland has begun. After a decade of occupying German soil under command of Lieut. Gen. Sir William Thwaites, pictured above, center, British troops are being returned to England under the terms of the historic Hague agreement. Below a battalion of Tommies is shown moving to a concentration point from which actual evacuation of German territory was to be started.

SECOND AUTO ARREST MEANS SENTENCE NOW

State Courts Not Allowed to Suspend Sentences Twice for Drunken Driving; What Law Says.

About 6,000 persons in Connecticut may be said to come within the provisions of a new law which prohibits courts of the state from suspending execution of sentences in cases of second violation of the law against driving motor vehicles while under the influence of liquor. The records of the State Motor Vehicle Department show that during the past six years, the period affected by a provision in the new statute, fully 6,000 have been found guilty of drunken driving at least once.

The new law, which is an amendment to Chapter 62 of the Public Acts of 1928, also provides that the reasons for all suspensions, whatever the case may be, must be spread upon the records of the court.

What Law Says.
The law reads: "Any criminal court in any case within its jurisdiction, except in cases of commitment to the State Prison, may impose sentence and suspend the execution thereof indefinitely, when the mitigating clearly justify such action, and upon such suspension, the court shall forthwith cause to be spread upon its records the reasons upon which such action is based, provided the court shall, in no case, suspend the execution of the sentence of an accused convicted of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor if such offense shall have been committed within a period of six years imme-

NAVAL CONFERENCE NOT TO BE CALLED 'TIL END OF YEAR

Five Power Parley to Be Held in January, Says Sec. Stimson — Hoover- MacDonald Conference Means Planning for Many Weeks in Advance.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The five-power naval conference proposed to be held in London in December probably will not be called until January, it developed today.

Some of the powers have indicated that the December date is too early, and that more time will be required for preparation of their plans. Secretary of State Stimson said, however, that the change in dates did not indicate any hitch. The January date, he indicated, is simply more convenient for some of the countries concerned.

A conference such as President Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald are planning involves weeks of preparation for all the countries concerned, and in Japan's case particularly her delay will have to travel half way to the world to attend.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Although completion of the Anglo-American naval agreement has removed the largest obstacle in the way of further world-wide naval reduction, negotiations are being conducted today that the five-powered conference to be held in London in December is not going to be any love feast.

Administration officials were surprised and a little shocked today at the sharp criticism of the British-American program voiced in the French press, and the "notice" served that the other powers, France, Italy and Japan, do not intend to sit back and accept the British and the United States to dictate the size of their navies.

The criticism thus far has all been in the press, but the subsidized press of Europe, particularly of France and Italy, usually give its color from the government in power.

Other Powers Informed.
Both President Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who is coming to Washington two weeks hence to complete the naval accord, have taken meticulous care throughout the Anglo-American negotiations to keep the other powers informed of each step in the exchanges. This has been done, not by written notes or memoranda, but by informally acquainting the ambassadors in Washington with London with the progress of the negotiations and to report to their governments. Paris, Rome and Tokio at all times knew what was going on.

France and Italy
It is noted here with some uneasiness that even before the call for the five-power conference has gone out that the French press is "serving notice" that France will not accept naval parity with Italy, and it is also noted that the Italian press, undoubtedly reflecting the policy of Mussolini's government, is similarly serving notice that nothing short of parity with France will appease Italian sentiment and national aspirations.

Washington forces trouble ahead in this Franco-Italian jealousy. Both countries have been engaged in hot competitive naval building in the last few years, and both claim the Mediterranean as their particular sphere of influence.

It is not forgotten here that but for the French objection the original Washington conference eight years ago undoubtedly would have limited auxiliary naval ships, but it did capitol ships and perhaps abolished submarines altogether. The other powers were willing, but France, smirking under the comparatively minor ratio accorded her in capital ships, refused to go along.

Others Must Agree.
Both President Hoover and Premier MacDonald have consistently stressed the patent fact that the success of the Anglo-American accord hinges entirely upon the willingness of the other powers to go along in a world-wide agreement. The United States and Great Britain cannot drastically limit their respective navies if the other powers are left free to build freely. Consequently, the rumbling of thunder in France and Italy is attracting considerable attention here.

This phase of the matter undoubtedly will occupy a good deal of the time of Mr. MacDonald when the latter reaches here for a week's conference.

There is considerable speculation in Washington over the make-up of the American delegation that will go to London.

Stimson As Chairman.
Secretary of State Stimson, it is believed, probably will head the delegation. If President Hoover follows the precedent set by President Harding there will be Senatorial representation in the delegation also, and this was brought up in the question of whether Senator William Borah would be included.

SEEK N. Y. GUNMAN IN RHEINSTEIN CASE

Hub Police Say "Chink" Sherman Was Implicated In Death of Racketeer.

Boston, Sept. 16.—Powerful police machinery was set in motion today for the apprehension of Charles "Chink" Sherman, of New York, wanted in connection with the slaying of Samuel Rheinstein, New York fur dealer and alleged racketeer, who was shot to death in the Hotel Huntington.

Police said they suspected that Sherman either fired the pistol that killed Rheinstein, or hired others to do it.

Sherman was wanted for the murder of Louis Tucker in the south end. He was arrested by Detroit authorities and taken to New York, but extradition to Massachusetts was refused, when he was said to have given New York police a perfect alibi concerning his whereabouts at the time of the Tucker slaying.

Knew Dead Man.
Boston police said that Rheinstein was acquainted with Sherman, as letters found in the slain man's room, indicated that Rheinstein was told to "lay low" while efforts were made to "straighten things out."

Meanwhile, William O'Donnell and Michael ("Mickey the Wise Guy") Rocco, who had been taken into custody were expected to be released, it was learned at police headquarters. Both Rocco and O'Donnell were placed in lineups at police headquarters, but employees of the hotel were unable to pick either as one of two men who had secured rooms adjoining those of Rheinstein and then checked out the night of the shooting.

The woman in the case, Miss Margaret Wheeler, of Baltimore, Md., who faced arraignment today on charges, as result of her story that she has lived with Rheinstein as his common law wife, denied knowing anything concerning her sweetheart's business or his acquaintances.

TWO BLOCKS AFIRE AS GAS EXPLODES

Score Injured When Leak- age from Main Catches Fire in Newburgh Street.

Newburgh, N. Y., Sept. 16.—One man is expected to die and a score were injured, many seriously, at noon today when gas mains running along Water street in the business section here, exploded, and two blocks of stores and office buildings set afire.

William Green, proprietor of a stationary store in the hospital suffering from burns and a fractured skull. He is not expected to live.

Leakage from the gas mains along the two blocks of main thoroughfare caused the explosion, according to police.

Search For Miles.
The terrific blast caused by the explosion could be heard for miles around and residents here became panic stricken.

The Cornwall Fire Department as well as volunteer fire fighters from seven small towns nearby were called to aid in fighting the blaze and search for any possible victims who did not escape the explosions. Residents who gathered at the scene were aiding in searching among the partly demolished buildings.

An hour after the explosion the

BOUNDARIES START LYDALL ST. FEUD

Judge Johnson Refuses to Rule on Assault Case That Involves Survey.

A boundary feud between two families living next door to each other on Lydall street culminating in a fist fight in the street Saturday night, was aired in Manchester Police Court this morning but Judge Raymond A. Johnson called the suit a draw by declining to decide which party was to blame. He advised that the boundary line be determined and respected.

Raymond V. Streeter had had his next door neighbor, Daniel Civiello, arrested for striking him. Motorcycle Officer Albert Roberts made the arrest and Prosecuting Attorney brought a charge of breach of the peace against Civiello.

Conflicting stories were told in court by Streeter and Civiello, from which the only definite conclusion was that ill feeling has existed between the two families for a long time and that Civiello had committed other trespasses on its land. Only a small piece of property is in question.

Fared Forth To War.
Saturday night, when one of the Streeter children passed over the disputed territory, Civiello objected. One word led to another until the remarks became so abusive that either Streeter or Civiello offered to settle the matter with fists—just which one is still in dispute. Both admit they walked 100 feet to the road, where there was plenty of room, and there swapped punches.

Streeter insists that Civiello struck the first blow, a hard right to the jaw which nearly felled him, but adds that he came back with some rights and lefts that caused Civiello to beat a hasty retreat to his yard. There, Streeter said, Civiello picked up a club and started back to the battlefield. In the meantime, however, Streeter, at the advice of his chief second, his wife, went indoors and telephoned the police.

Civiello was defended in court by Attorney William J. Shea. Civiello claimed that he had called police in connection with the boundary dispute prior to Saturday's trouble. Officer Roberts said that he had seen Civiello strike Streeter three times before, twice by Chief Gordon and once by Captain Schendel. He said he did not know who had made the complaint on any of these occasions.

Question of Property Lines.
Attorney Shea said there was considerable doubt as to which man was the aggressor. He reminded the court that it takes more than one man to make a fight and said that the testimony which had been offered did not show which party was responsible.

Prosecuting Attorney Hathaway argued that Civiello had admitted that he had followed Streeter when the latter crossed "his" property prior to the fist fight.

Judge Johnson said he was not going to let any police court decision settle the boundary question and that there was doubt as to which man was the aggressor. He advised both Civiello and Streeter to consult the town engineering department and find out where their property line is, and then each stay on his own land. He found Civiello not guilty of breach of the peace.

Drunk Driver Fined.
Alois Mitterholzer, 38, of South Coventry, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence and was fined $125 and costs. The arrest was made by Patrolman John McGinn who testified that he found Mitterholzer staggering drunk in his own coach following a collision with a Hudson sedan driven by Lucia M. Foster of Highland Park Saturday at the Center. Damage to the automobiles was slight.

Frank Edgar of Spruce street, arrested by Patrolman David Galligan on a charge of intoxication, had his case continued until tomorrow morning.

ATTEMPT TO END JEWISH BOYCOTT

Trade Disarranged in Jeru- salem—Children Taught to Spread Propaganda.

London, Sept. 16.—Strenuous efforts were being made by the British authorities in Jerusalem today to bring an end to the trade boycott between Jews and Arabs which has existed since outbreak of the recent inter-racial clashes.

Scores of the picketers have been arrested, according to a Central News dispatch from Jerusalem, and stern punishment is threatened to any persons conspiring to obstruct trade in the Holy City.

The Jewish-Arabian trade is entirely deranged. For days Jews and Moslems alike have picketed each others' shops endeavoring to prevent entry of customers.

Spread in School.
Boycott propaganda, the messengers declare, is being fostered in many Jewish communities, and people are forced to pay exorbitant prices. The co-operative establishments organized by the Jews to cope with the situation have thus far been unable to render any important aid.

American intervention in one phase of the situation was seen today with regard to suspension of the publication of the Hebrew daily newspaper "Dear Hayom." The dispatch continued. The Journal is edited by an American citizen, Paul Kaebenstein, American consul in Jerusalem, is expected to demand immediate lifting of the suspension.

SENATORS DEMAND EARNINGS REPORT

Democratic-Insurgents In- terested in How Much Big Corporations Are Making.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The names of 200 American industrial corporations, benefitting under the tariff, were forwarded to the Treasury Department today by the Senate for a report on their profits, to be taken from their income tax returns for the years 1922 to 1928.

The list was drafted by leaders of the Democratic-Insurgent coalition which is fighting the new tariff bill. The information, if and when obtained, will be used by the coalition leaders to oppose any increase in duties on commodities, manufactured by corporations showing substantial profits over the last eight years.

The names of the corporations, on which a report was asked, may be made public during the day. It was learned, however, that the list included the U. S. Steel Corporation, the Bethlehem Steel Corp., the Great Western Sugar Co., the Aluminum Company of America. All these concerns have been giant money-makers for many years.

Officers Salaries.
The information asked included a statement of the "profits or losses" and a broad report on its expenditures for labor, materials and machinery. A request was made not only for a report on the total amounts spent for wages of employees but for compensation to officers as well.

The Treasury's report, it made, may reveal the salaries of such men as John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Charles M. Schwab and other industrialists, who actively head great corporations.

A very ticklish legal question has been raised, however, by the Senate's action in requesting this information. The Treasury already has asked the Department of Justice for a legal opinion on its right to inspect the Senate's command, inasmuch as Congress authorized in-

The Life Story of the Greatest Flyer of All

Dr. Hugo Eckener's ambition was to be a writer on political economy and philosophy. He went to three universities to prepare himself.

And then Count Zeppelin, who had flown balloons in the Union Army during the Civil War in America, began to experiment with dirigibles.

Both of them—Zeppelin and Eckener—settled on the shores of Lake Constance, one to build and fly the airship of his dreams, the other to bury himself in his studies and his writing.

In his youth Dr. Eckener had been a sailor and an expert navigator. And, as later events proved, he was the one man to carry on the plans of the aging count.

Today Dr. Eckener's name is on lips of countless millions; but the world at large, knowing of his history-making accomplishments, knows scarcely anything of the man himself.

The story of his life is now ready. In Hartford County it will appear exclusively in The Herald, as written for The Herald and NEA Service by Hugh Allen, personal representative of Dr. Eckener during the latter's recent sojourn in America on his epochal round-the-world flight in the Graf Zeppelin.

It is one of those biographies that appear once in a lifetime and it has been approved by Dr. Eckener himself. It begins Wednesday, Sept. 18.

$100,000 IN DUOS IN CIRCULATION

Sales Promotion Plan Grows in Popularity by Leaps and Bounds—The Plan.

Ask for your Duo-Dollars! Remember the Bible saying, "Ask and it shall be given unto you." And Duo-Dollars are with the assurance already in the Manchester Trust Company and the Home Bank and Trust Company have disposed of $100,000 of this "money," a sure sign that the idea is taking hold.

In case it has slipped your mind here is a little reminder about the scheme. Instead of an eye for an eye you get a Duo-Dollar for a dollar or rather for every cent of a cash purchase made in the thirty-odd local stores co-operating in the scheme, an equivalent in Duos is given. In each store there is an exhibit of articles to be auctioned off at the State theater each month.

How To Bid The retail price of the articles are marked on them. Pick out the articles you wish to bid for. The store provides you with bidding slips for the asking. Fill out these slips and place them in the box which has been placed in the lobby of the State theater. On September 27 the first monthly auction will be held. There the sealed bids will be opened. Don't place your Duos in the envelope with your bid. If you win, then is the time to pay. If you do not win there are other auctions at which to bid, for this plan will operate for four months. Three more auctions follow.

Cash Prize If you, as an individual, are not interested in bidding for articles there is the special monthly cash prize offered to churches and fraternal organizations only. You, as a member of a society, turn in your Duo-Dollars to an officer of the lodge. An authorized officer of the organization sends in a bid on a special bidding slip obtainable at the Chamber of Commerce on Main street.

Duo-Dollar stores are easy to find. Stop at the store with the large yellow placard in the store window. And ask for your Duo-Dollars!

EAST AFRICAN SAVAGES PRACTICE BIRTH CONTROL

Companionate Marriages Also Known Says Traveler Just Returned from the Tropics.

New York, Sept. 16.—There is nothing new under the sun—not even birth control and companionate marriage. For Frederick Carnochan brought news of the Gogas today when he returned on the White Star liner Baltic from Africa. The Gogas are a savage, war-like tribe in the jungles of East Africa, and according to Carnochan, they have been practicing birth control and companionate marriage for centuries.

The birth of a child to a Gogo couple within the first two years is followed by social ostracism. Carnochan says that the knowledge of birth control is no less than that among civilized nations and their means of ensuring it is probably more effective.

Carnochan spent eighteen months in Africa studying native plants and herbs with a view to their use here. He bore knife scars above his eyes and on his chest which, he said was accepted as "passport" by native wild doctors.

ABOUT TOWN

Joseph P. McCuskey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McCuskey of 40 Foster street, has entered Fordham University, to take a four year course of business administration and accounting.

Manchester Camp No. 2640 Royal Neighbors will meet tomorrow evening in Tinker hall. A full attendance is desired as plans for the season's work will be discussed.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ambrose who recently moved to their new home at 30 Summer street were Saturday afternoon entertained by a number of their relatives and friends, who came prepared with all the essentials for a buffet lunch, as well as a shining testimonial of their good wishes in the shape of a floor lamp for their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nichols of 127 Porter street returned Saturday from a 1,300 mile trip which included a visit to the Finger lakes, and Niagara Falls, Thousand Islands, Montreal, returning via Lake Champlain, Ausable Chasm, Schroon Lake, Lake George, and the Adirondacks.

Harbin, Manchuria, Sept. 16.—Soviet Russian troops along the Siberian-Manchurian frontiers were reported today to be moving into winter positions.

An official communique stated that quiet now prevails "upon all fronts." IS GRAVELY ILL, RESULT OF SCRATCHING PIMPLE

Blood Infection Develops in Little Anna Thuck Following Sore on Her Nose.

Anna Thuck, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thuck of 59 Withers street, is seriously ill at the Memorial hospital as the result of infection which developed from scratching a small pimple on her nose. The infection developed a week ago at the hospital last Friday. She was reported this morning as being a little brighter but her condition is regarded as grave.

The case is a most unusual one. Six doctors have examined the little girl and tonight another specialist will be called in consultation. She is suffering from streptococcal poisoning. An unusual infection in connection with the case is that the girl is believed to have caught the infection from an insect-bitten hand which her mother has been suffering from since the day after Labor day. The hand was opened and had responded favorably when Anna's nose and left eye suddenly began to swell.

The infection continued to grow worse and last night a blood transfusion was given, the mother giving her blood for her child. The reason for the mother's blood being used is in hopes that the antitoxins which she developed might help offset the infection in her child. Doctors say this is a very unusual treatment and apparently is the last hope, every other having failed. Today the child's condition was noticeably improved, however, another consultation of doctors will be held this evening. It is feared that the infection has reached the sinuses of the brain and the chances of her recovery are growing slimmer.

AIR TRAFFIC GROWING

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 16.—The phenomenal growth of air passenger and express service in the United States was reflected here today by the optimistic attitude of representatives of 29 major air lines who assembled for the first national air traffic conference of the National Chamber of Commerce of America.

More than 100 specialists in the technical and commercial phases of air traffic development were registered for the conference which opens at a noonday luncheon today. The air transport lines represented fly approximately 88 per cent of the 80,000 miles flown daily in the United States with mail, passenger and express.

"The prosperity of the aeronautical industry in 1929 is hinged upon the success of air transport officials in developing increased mail and passenger traffic over the air routes," declared Frederick B. Rentschler, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, who called the conference, said today.

"The general public must take to the air if the rates for air transport fare are to be reduced. One of the chief problems today is selling air traffic to the earthbound traveler." The conference precedes the international air circus and pilots reunion which opens here Thursday.

CHEMIST EXPLAINS SPLITTING ATOM

Was Figured Out Mathematically But Only Recently Performed by Chemist.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—In an interview with Professor George F. Whitmore, head of the Northwestern University chemistry department, explained the formation and structure of the hydrogen molecule and its relation to the discovery of "splitting" the molecule.

The discovery was made by Dr. P. F. Bohmhofer and demonstrated recently before the American Chemical Society in convention at Minneapolis. Although the hydrogen molecule has been known and studied for a hundred years, said the professor, "it was not until recently that scientists realized that the electron revolved on a certain path and did not revolve around the proton of a hydrogen atom. It is composed of a proton and an electron, different electrical charges, and we now realize that the direction of an electron may be changed."

The Experiment "Now if we take two atoms of hydrogen and put them on top of each other," explained Whitmore, "we would simply reverse the direction of that atom's electron and the result is paralyzation, as was demonstrated by Bohmhofer."

All this was prophesied and well known mathematically. But it was left to the young German scientist, said the professor, "to prove the mathematics were correct. We have known for some time that the hydrogen molecule could be divided and Bohmhofer worked out the method. It is not, however, a splitting of the hydrogen atom, as was erroneously reported at first."

A Precedent Prof. Whitmore further explained that the method of mathematicians in solving the double nature of the hydrogen atom is comparable to the discovery of the planet Neptune by Urbain Jean Joseph Leverrier of the Cole Polytechnique, by sheer mathematics. Leverrier calculated the size and orbit of Neptune before it was discovered.

When Galileo of the Berlin observatory, following the French mathematician's computations, pointed his telescope at a designated spot in the heavens, he saw the hitherto unknown planet. Leverrier's figures were less than one degree from perfect.

"I do think, however," said Whitmore, "that Bohmhofer's demonstration was marvelous and he should receive all credit for it."

OPOSES R. R. MERGER

Washington, Sept. 16.—The Washburn railroad has a plan before the Interstate Commerce Commission to link up a number of important railroads into an eastern trunk line system, today opposed the application of the Baltimore and Ohio to acquire control of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh.

While the Washburn is not an applicant for control of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh, it is opposed to the Baltimore and Ohio getting such control "in the belief that a precipitate and premature acquisition of this important strategic railway is almost certain to prove embarrassing to the commission in developing a sound and permanent solution of the consolidation problem in eastern territory."

ASKS DAMAGES AS PLANE CRACKS UP IN PASTURE

Gustave Bansemmer, Owner of Trotter Block Here, Makes Unusual Claim.

Claiming that gasoline and blood from airplane accident had made the grass in his pasture land unfit for cows to eat, Gustave Bansemmer of Forbes street, Burnside, owner of the Trotter Block on Center street here, filed a claim for damages after a plane cracked up on his property shortly after noon yesterday.

Airmen who flew to the scene of the wreck to give aid to the occupant of the plane, Clifford W. Simon, 23, of 54 High street Hockanum, a student flier, were flabbergasted at the claim which is believed to be the first of its kind made in the United States in the history of aviation.

"How much do you figure the grass damage?" one of the airmen laughingly inquired. "Well, I'm uncertain, but it ought to be worth $5," he is quoted as having replied. Bansemmer was indignant to think that Simon should have been so inconsiderate as to have picked out his meadow in which to crash 100 when the motor stalled. He said it was the second time that a plane had damaged his grass.

Milton H. Moore, owner and director of the Interstate Airways, agreed to pay the requested damages. As for Simon, he is in the hospital with a broken nose, blackened eye and bruises in general. He had a very narrow escape from death.

PAPER WARNS POPE

Rome, Sept. 16.—The influential newspaper Giornale D'Italia today made hostile comment upon the Sunday speech of Pope Pius XI in which the Pontiff told 12,000 members of the Italian Catholic Youth's Association to disregard Fascist informers, but to continue their obligations to expand the ranks of their order.

The Pope's speech was regarded as a reply to the recent speech of Premier Benito Mussolini when "Il Duce" denigrated that 9,000 watchers were on duty throughout Italy to keep an eye upon the clergy. Giornale D'Italia, accused the Pontiff of meddling in politics. It warned the Pontiff that he must be careful what he says when he detaches himself from his duty of teaching devotion to God."

Otherwise, the newspaper concluded, the Pope may find ready opposition from 99 per cent of the Italians.

TELLS KIWANIANS ABOUT PALESTINE

Rev. George S. Brookes, Rockville Pastor, Gives Excellent Talk Today.

Rev. George S. Brookes, pastor of the Union Congregational church of Rockville, Kiwanis luncheon speaker, had his audience of 35 Kiwanians so interested at the Country Club this noon that it was unanimously moved to ask him to return in the near future.

Rev. Brookes, who spent the summer in Biblical research, and spoke of his journeys through Africa, Constantinople, Baruth, Egypt, Damascus, Palestine, Alexandria, Rome, Paris, and London. He spent some time in his old home town of Middleburg, England and stayed in Glasgow for two weeks. While there he spoke on two Sunday mornings and said that the church was so crowded that the congregation sat on both sides of the pulpit.

The trip from Constantinople to Palestine was made in company with 75 Jewish Zionists, who greatly amused the American party with their songs and wit. At Constantinople Rev. Brookes met a Bridgeport man who had been converted to the Moslem faith and who acted as guide and explained the customs and manner of conducting mass in that city. When asked what he thought of the Moslem faith the convert replied that it was the same to the Moslems as the Christian religion was to people in America.

The speaker said that he was exceedingly disappointed with Palestine, most of the people there being ignorant, and commercialism holding the upper hand in everything. Even the children begged in the streets. The Arabs in some places were very lazy while in others their industry was such that it could never be equalled by a Christian. Rev. Brookes described Palestine as a land of beautiful things and a land of sad things. The speaker felt that the prejudice between the Jews and the Arabs was because of religious and political differences.

At Jerusalem, in which there are 15,000 Christians, Rev. Brookes made the acquaintance of a Dr. Bridgeman, a bishop in a cathedral there and who had been educated in New York. He had many fine talks with him over the afternoon tea cups.

Charles Huber won the attendance prize donated by Willard Messier. Next week the speaker will be Charles "Sandy" Chapman of the Gannett Company, fire alarm manufacturers of Newton Upper Falls, Mass.

GASTONIA

Generations of wrong sociological theories lie behind the murder of a woman striker by a mob at Gastonia. The idea of class rule, which has been the foundation of the civilization of the Southern states of America since the very beginning, is at the root of injustices and impossible political and economic ideas which have been responsible for the backward development of the South for more than two centuries.

It is a serious question whether these ideas grew out of the institution of slave labor or whether slave labor grew out of the ideas. In any event the element of compulsory service has always been a part of the Southern civilization. The emancipation of the Negro slaves did not, by any means, put an end to it. Laws have been twisted and maladministered in a thousand instances so as to practically compel the service of Negro labor at the employers' own terms. Such a thing as actually free labor has been substantially unknown in the South at any time. The white man who attains to the position of boss over any considerable number of his fellow men conceives himself to have inherent rights to their services, which must at all times be rendered on a basis of profit to himself without any particular regard to the well being of the worker.

Such being the case it follows logically that Red agitation stirs up, among a class of persons bred to the theory of enforced labor and utterly cynical concerning "proletarian rights," an uncontrollable bitterness of resentment. The average Southerner who has in any degree become associated with the employing class—and that naturally includes all the white-collar group as well as the petty business people and the professional element—can see, in an assertion of such rights, nothing but the beginning of servile insurrection. Unused to such questioning of his God-given right to command the destinies of his fellows, he gives way to blind rage—and we have as a result such abominations as the spectacle of a mob firing into a truckload of men and women strikers who were trying to run away from the vengeance of the outrageous classists.

The interference of communist agitators in labor troubles is exasperating enough, even to balanced and understanding minds. The Reds are as wrong headed in their way as the Southern white-collar is in his way, and we have plenty of instances, here in the North, where their activities have produced violent and unprovoked reaction—as in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. But in the South it is not a case of an unreasonable agitation being met, as it is in the North on the whole, by cool-headed wisdom and a basic sense of human rights; it is a case of one undisciplined extreme meeting another.

Between these elements the much vaunted new industrialism of the South is extremely likely to fall in ruin. The Southern employing classes—and this means satellites as well as bosses—blindly do their level best to fertilize the soil for extremist agitators, and then attempt to undo their own work by resort to bloodshed.

They are fifty years behind the North's development in sociological knowledge, besides suffering from the handicap of a deeply imbedded misunderstanding of the facts of human liberty.

SAME OLD TIMBER

The resignation of Thomas J. Spellacy from the headship of the Democratic party in Connecticut, inevitable after the complete failure of the party's campaign in this state last November, is followed by the appearance of several candidates for his place on the Democratic National Committee, not one of whom could by any possibility put the party in a substantially better position than Mr. Spellacy himself.

Enjoying considerable reputation as a practical politician and personally well liked, Mr. Spellacy never demonstrated those very special qualities of leadership which would most certainly be needed to put his party on a sturdy footing in Connecticut. And neither, by the same token, do any of the politicians whose names have been so far suggested as his successor.

What the Democratic party in this state needs is a Moses, a zealot and a flamer, so to speak. You do not find such people among the veterans of a party which for years has fallen into backneyed discouragement for want of ideas. Mr. Morris is not one. Mr. McNeil is not one. And, emphatically, Mayor Guilfoile of Waterbury, whose administration has been the most expensive ever imposed on a Connecticut city, is not one.

We are sincere in saying that we wish the Democratic party in Connecticut would find a leader with at least a streak of political genius in him. It is not the healthiest condition imaginable when one political party serves as a mere punching bag for the other—and not a particularly lively punching bag at that. But the quality of political genius seems to be strangely lacking among the Democratic wheel horses. Unless a new man is picked—new in kind as well as person—political contests in this state will probably continue to be the same pro forma affairs as in the past, for a long time to come.

NERVY MR. CHILD

We have always been impressed by the audacity of Richard Washburn Child, his capacity for enlisting his literary ability on the obviously profitable side of public questions and his calmly confident assumption of superior information on and insight into any subject in which large political or economic interests are concerned—that information and insight being invariably favorable to the upper dog in the fight. We would hardly have expected Mr. Child's cool audacity, however, to have led him into the Shearer navy controversy with a nervy demand for the investigation of "all propaganda."

Mr. Child, who it may be remembered was Warren Harding's ambassador to Italy, has elicited exactly the kind of a rejoinder that he invited in the form of a suggestion by the New York World. The World agrees enthusiastically with Mr. Child's proposal and asks if an excellent place to begin wouldn't be Mr. Child's own production of endless newspaper and magazine articles and books boosting the Fascist administration of Signor Mussolini.

Mr. Child is an extraordinarily prolific writer. Apparently he has to spend almost no time in research—few writers do, in fact, whose material is supplied to them by parties in interest. But of the hundreds of articles he has produced it would be difficult to put a finger on one that gave, to the observing reader, the slightest suggestion that it was written from inner conviction or without the purpose of boosting somebody's game.

For such a person to demand a sincere Congressional investigation of all propaganda requires a gall so stupendous as command the awe and admiration of persons whose own activities are restricted by a sense of decency or consistency.

BIG-NAVY PRESS

One effect of President Hoover's determined drive against the undercover propagandists for a huge, useless and extravagant navy is to be observed in the sudden disappearance from the columns of the big-navy newspapers of those at-most daily special articles forecasting, by inference, the failure of naval arms reduction.

Right on the heels of the Shearer expose and the demand of the President for the suppression of reasonable activities on the part of big-navy boosters, comes the news that there is really, after all, nothing serious at issue between the United States and Britain in the matter of cruiser parity—that, in truth, accord on that subject is as good as guaranteed and there is nothing to prevent the calling of a general five-power conference for the reduction of sea-power.

Very gracefully the big-navy newspapers are yielding to the inevitable and accepting the facts in the case. It is our sincere belief that most of them are glad enough to do so. They had simply been deluded, as so many of the people of this country had been deluded, into the belief that there was truth back of the big-navy assertions that this nation was in constant peril through naval inferiority. Shown, at a stroke, the real animus back of such doctrine, the newspapers which have been played for suckers by the navy boosters will naturally be glad enough to get out of that galaxy.

They will never have a better chance than the present, and it is our suspicion that neither in the daily or the periodical press will there be found, hereafter, any such welcome for the jingo-navyists as met with in the past.

SPRINGFIELD JAM

All of Central New England, so to speak, tried to drive to Springfield and attend the Eastern States Exposition yesterday. The result was that thousands of persons put to their Sunday—one of the most delightful days of the year, by the way—tied up in traffic jams the like of which nobody in Springfield or vicinity, according to the city's own newspapers, ever saw before. On the grounds, when a weary and nerve worn motorist did succeed in reaching the enclosure, he found so many ahead of him that he could see little and enjoy nothing; but when he tried to get away again he faced yet other weary hours of crawling through tangled traffic.

Yet the chances are that among all the tens of thousands of automobilists who started happily from home yesterday with the Springfield fair as their destination, not as many hundreds envisioned anything but a perfectly comfortable drive and a pleasant day of sight-seeing. In this respect the average person seems to be wholly lacking in imagination. People will set forth on expeditions that are just naturally certain to land them in the midst of a huge jam and then allow themselves to be perfectly amazed and vexed when they find themselves in a situation which was inevitable.

Also it is inevitable that the motorists themselves will make such a condition as that at Springfield as much worse as they possibly can by trying to outjockey and outsmart each other. Springfield police say the jam there yesterday was many times as bad as it would have been if each driver had been content to keep in line and take his turn. Crowding converted two lanes of slowish traffic into three and sometimes four lanes of practically stalled machines, where smartness counted for nothing.

Great are the joys of all going to the same place at the same time by automobile.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

TRY COOKED CUCUMBERS

The cucumbers seems to be a native of South India, but has been cultivated in Assyria and Egypt, even in the most remote historical times.

Many people are of the opinion that cucumbers are an indigestible food. This is because those who have a tendency to belch notice the taste of the cucumbers predominating over the other flavors. Usually cucumbers are eaten with a meal of indigestible combinations, and as they are served with vinegar, onions or starch, they receive the blame for the discomfort produced by the other foods simply because of their persistent flavor. There is no reason for believing that cucumbers are any more indigestible than raw cabbage, carrots or celery, and they are certainly more agreeable to most people than radishes, onions or green peppers.

Cucumbers may be secured throughout the year; although the natural crop occurs during the summer, in winter they must be raised in a hothouse. The summer varieties have a generally more acceptable and juicier texture than the hothouse varieties grown in winter which out of season, may sell for as high as sixty cents each.

Cucumbers are especially rich in potassium, iron, magnesium and lime, and for this reason are valuable for the foods to use in the diet. They should be eaten fresh, as they are more valuable than when consumed in the form of pickles. The old-fashioned notion that cucumbers should not be eaten uncooked in salt water is no longer accepted.

In peeling cucumbers it is a good plan to peel them from the blossom end toward the stem end, and in this way one avoids the bitter juice which is found near the surface toward the stem end. The skins are also wholesome, but a little more difficult to digest than the center.

Very few people have tried cooked cucumbers, and yet they are delicious when served in this way. The peeling may or may not be removed before they are put in the pan with a little water, cooked, mashed and served with butter. The Egyptians consider cooked cucumbers a valuable dish. Cucumbers may also be fried, but they are more difficult to digest in this form. They should never be eaten with vinegar, which has a tendency to cause flatulence, especially if eaten with any starchy foods.

A large combination salad made of fresh tomatoes, lettuce and cucumbers is often used by patients desiring to add valuable mineral salts and vitamins to the diet. This combination salad and lamb chops make a satisfactory reducing diet if no other food is used. The bulky cellulose contained in salads of this sort are beneficial to the teeth and in assisting to overcome constipation.

An unusual salad but quite appetizing can be made of chopped spinach, nasturtium leaves and blossoms, and cucumbers. Cucumbers and watercress also make a good combination. In making a sandwich spread of vegetables for children to take on picnics or outings, grind finely three small carrots and, through a little larger grinder, one cucumber and two sticks of celery. Try cucumbers in the right combination, and you will be pleased to find that they are quite wholesome and especially refreshing during the warm season.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Tuberculosis)

Question—E. S. writes: "We have adopted a child who was born of a consumptive mother. She is three years old. Has tubercular glands in his neck. Do you think three is any way of preventing consumption in this child? Will it help any to have these tubercular glands pierced?"

Answer—Young children frequently have glandular enlargements which are not necessarily tubercular. Lancing these glands will only make more trouble for the child's burden is thrown on the other lymphatics. Write for a special article on the cause and cure of swollen glands.

(Spices)

Question—Mrs. R. P. H. writes: "Please advise what you think about spices." Answer—The main fault I have to find with spices is that they tend to over-increase the appetite which encourages one to eat more than he would otherwise. There is no doubt but what all condiments have some irritating effect upon the mucous membranes of the stomach and intestines, and therefore may be one of the causes in the development of stomach and duodenal ulcers.

(Headaches)

Question—M. G. R. asks: "What causes headaches on top of the head, and is tea bad for one's nerves? I always notice I am more nervous after drinking tea. Is buttermilk good for one?"

Answer—Headaches in the top of the head frequently come from syphilis or some form of bladder irritation. I do not consider a moderate amount of tea drinking bad for the nerves, but find that nervous people seem to like to drink hot drinks, as they feel more quieted thereafter. Buttermilk is a good food, but must not be considered a "drink." It should be used as a meal, and not in addition to other food.

BATTLE OF HARLEM HTS.

On Sept. 16, 1776, the Battle of Harlem Heights, in which the Americans repulsed the British troops, was fought on what is today the site of Barnard college of Columbia University. British battleships had opened fire on the Americans the preceding day and a general panic ensued. General Washington, galloping down to the scene of the battle, came upon the disordered troops. He succeeded in getting his army off without loss and then took post at King's bridge, beginning to strengthen and fortify his lines.

While Washington was thus engaged, the British advanced and on Sept. 16, the Battle of Harlem Heights took place, in which great bravery was shown by the Connecticut and Virginian troops, the two commanding officers being killed. This skirmish was the first taste of victory for the Americans and encouraged the troops.

However, few days later the British warships came up the Hudson past the forts, brushing aside the boasted obstructions, destroying the Americans' little fleet and obtaining command of the river.

After a series of unsuccessful maneuvers, Washington was forced to retreat across New Jersey. Miss Mildred Erickson and Mrs. Ann Waddell have returned from Pleasant View, R. I., where they spent this summer.

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, Sept. 15.—One of the most certain things about Premier Ramsay MacDonald's visit to Washington is the assurance that the British prime minister won't come unless he and President Hoover have reached a complete naval understanding in advance. His appearance here is planned as a gesture of agreement between the English-speaking peoples, a felicitous move of probable great moral effect toward world peace. The agreement itself is still being worked out and there is still just a bare chance that no satisfactory conclusion will be reached. In any event, it should be understood that MacDonald has had no thought of coming or here to conclude the unsettled negotiations in person.

MacDonald and Hoover both realize that the British premier's "good will" trip without an agreement would be worse than no "good will" trip at all. The political effect would be bad in both countries and might especially react against MacDonald, whose position is none too strong. The effect on British and American psychology probably would be even more serious.

Laurence Richey, the Hoover secretary, captured a strange beast recently on the Virginia estate where the president goes fishing. Returning from a holiday devoted to fire-fighting, Richey brought the animal back in a nice clean tin can to find out what it was and dumped it onto Secretary George Akerson's desk for the inspection of Secretary of Agriculture Arthur Hyde, who was waiting for an audience with the president.

The critter turned out to be of the crawling variety, about six inches long and less than an inch thick, most fearsome in aspect. The general color scheme was slight green and it was armed with horns, claws and talons. "Don't touch it!" warned Richey to several who gathered around the desk to gaze in awe. Then he attempted to return it to the can with an envelope opener, unsuccessful until Hyde rushed in heroically. "What are you all so darned afraid of?" he demanded, as he tossed the thing in with a quick swoop. At last reports the beast was being psychoanalyzed at the Bureau of Entomology.

Among recent political gossip is the rumor that Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Joseph M. Dixon is being groomed to oppose Senator Thomas J. Walsh in the Montana senatorial election next year.

Dixon failed to defeat Senator Burton K. Wheeler last November, losing by some 12,000 votes while Hoover was getting a majority of 35,000 over Smith. There are some reasons, however, why he might have more success against Walsh, despite the tendency in off-years to return Democratic senators where the race is customarily close. Dixon was sent to one of the western governor's conferences to pass along the message from Hoover suggesting delivery of the public lands to the states and more recently sat in on an important reclamation conference in Chinook, Mont. Thus he is enjoying opportunities for service to the home state which should make good campaign material in line with the old argument that each state should have at least one Republican senator who can be publicans control the administration if it is to get all that's coming to it. Walsh is not as strong among Montana farmers as Wheeler, nor as good a campaigner as the younger senator. Also, he is a Catholic. But he will be a hard man to beat.

books were crated and sent into New York.

A few days later the entire library appeared in the cheap book racks that decorate the fronts of all such stores. There they were mauled and skipped over by the usual crowd of passers-by who edge up to bargain stalls. Some were grabbed up, and some were left.

It so happened that a young man connected with a book store in lower Fifth avenue was passing and stopped to see what the bargains might be. As his eyes glanced over the titles they suddenly fastened upon one in particular. "Jum'pin' Jehoshaphat!" or perhaps some stronger language—"Say, what'll you take for this?" "They're all marked at a dollar," said the old dealer.

The young man, who knew a great deal about rare editions, hopped a taxi that he might reach his office more hurriedly. His astonishment he checked up his sources—yes, there it was! He had bought a first edition of Poe's "Fall of the House of Usher" for $1. There are but two such first editions loose in the world. I'm told that, knowing his market, he at once got on the phone and called Colonel Owen Young. And I'm told that the price was $20,000. I'm also told that Colonel Young has "ince refused $75,000 for it."

There's a slight sequel to this story: Some weeks after the young man had picked up his dollar bargain, the old book dealer fell ill. He had to close his shop, and not having money enough money to buy decent medical care for himself, he died—not so many weeks ago. The books in his store were peddled off to pay his funeral expenses. He had had $75,000 in his grasp for a few hours—and hadn't known it. GILBERT SWAN.

Advertisement for 'DESERT TRIBES PLAY BAGPIPES IN DRY SAHARA'. Text: 'Paris—Bagpipes are played in the middle of the Sahara desert by a native tribe—the Troglodytes. Early Irish art is found traced on the walls of their homes, which are holes in the ground. All of which was discovered by Horace Ashton, Fellow of the Royal Geographic Society and of the American Academy of Sciences, and has led him to the theory that the Celtic race had a long sojourn in this part of Africa several thousand years ago. Following up this theory, Mr. Ashton is leaving on another exploration trip, this time through the Basque country, for more evidence of the route taken by the Celts on their journey up to their present abode. This idea is that the (tinny of the early Pats, Mike, and Macks, was from their beginnings in Asia, across through Persia, Arabia, the Sudan, and across the Sahara. Then up through the Rif country, the Basque and the Breton countries, and at last to Ireland and Scotland. The Troglodytes, in the Sahara, he says, seem to be of the same race, but are about a thousand years or more behind the present members of the Celtic race. At the Troglodyte women rule and the men have long hair, wear jewelry, and are veiled, it would indicate that the life of Riley was at one time much softer, and that Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. MacPherson once did all the voting for their families. These now in use here are long and heavy, and without sufficient seating space. Eighteen per cent. of the people die with their eyes closed; the remainder have them open. This was the expert testimony of a well-known French physician which saved a certain Charles Jezorski from the gallows recently. Jezorski murdered his wife in January because he had learned she had been unfaithful to him. At his recent trial he denied that he premeditated his crime but killed her in a fit of passion after a violent quarrel. Madame Jezorski was found with her eyes closed, seeming to indicate that she was asleep. Dr. Paul, eminent medico-legiste gave testimony which seemed to bear out the murderer's story and declared that the woman might have died with her eyes closed even though she were not asleep. The jealous husband was acquitted. The man who made porterhouse steak famous, Francois Rene, Viscount de Chateaubriand, celebrated French author, has once more been honored by a commemorative plaque which was recently affixed to the wall of the old house where he lived. Paris, whose auto busses play a major part in her increasing traffic difficulties, is considering a change to double deckers. These sky-scrapers in bus form will do what real sky-scrapers achieve: take up less ground space and accommodate more people. The new busses favored by the municipal council are to be modeled on the lines of the London busses, slightly heavier than New York's famous double deckers. These now in use here are long and heavy, and without sufficient seating space.'

ASK ALL OF WINDSOR STOCK TO JOIN MOVE

Many Persons Here Akin to Oldest Town Invited to Aid Tercentenary.

Literally hundreds of Manchester residents are descendants of ancestors whose lives were passed in whole or in part within the old time limits of the town of Windsor, for the original Windsor included what are now the towns of East Windsor, South Windsor and Ellington, as well as Windsor Locks, Granby, Simsbury, Bloomfield and East Granby. There are a great many families in Manchester and vicinity whose forebears hailed from one of these towns or from ancient Windsor itself. And to all of them there must be especial significance in an invitation, now being broadcast by the Windsor Historical Society, to all Windsor descendants everywhere to become connected with that society well in advance of the celebration of the tercentenary of the founding of Windsor, the oldest town in point of permanent residence in the state of Connecticut, and so to take part in determining the plan and scope of that momentous celebration in 1933.

The society is conducting a drive for membership, hoping to increase its present enrollment of more than 200 members to a thousand long before definitely formulating the plans for the tremendously important historic celebration three years hence. The drive began today and will continue for ten days.

Has Its Own Home
The Windsor Historical Society was founded September 26, 1921, and has continued to grow ever since then. It has acquired from various donors a large and very valuable collection of antique and curios worthy of a proper place for their display. It is fostering its avowed objects according to its constitution, which include such collections, and the gathering of historic material relative to the history of the town and its citizens; the identification and marking of spots of historic interest; the recording of current history for future generations; and the publication of documents relative to the history of this neighborhood.

On September 26, 1925, the Windsor Historical Society formally opened its own headquarters, "The Old House," which it had purchased from the previous owners and had put into useable shape. The home was built in 1640 by Sergeant, later Lieutenant, Fyler on land granted him in recognition of his services in the Pequot War. Subscriptions for its purchase for the society came from all over the United States. It is the permanent home of the organization, with a resident host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Dugan, Jr., who are ready at any time by appointment during the summer and without appointment every Monday and Thursday afternoon from May to November to show the old home to interested visitors.

Garden Party Saturday
Saturday, September 21, will mark a new epoch in the life of the country who are interested in Windsor, this organization or the celebration of the tercentenary are invited to a garden party at the Fyler Homestead. It is not a money making scheme, nothing will be charged for anything, but it will not be deemed a success unless those all over Connecticut who are interested make it a point to attend and find there the welcome of the officers of the society and of the Fyler House Committee.

GIRL SLAIN IN AUTO
New York, Sept. 16.—The tragic death of Dorothy Dyer, pretty 22-year-old girl, during an automobile ride after a gay birthday party on Staten Island, was to be followed today by the arraignment of a companion, William Cleary, 18, on a manslaughter charge.

Meanwhile, police searched for another man known only as "Jimmy" alleged to have driven the death car. Cleary told the authorities that, awakened in the automobile by screams, he saw Dorothy lying on the sidewalk and "Jimmy" walking rapidly away. Cleary picked up the girl and rushed her to a hospital where she died of a fractured skull.

GRAF TO GREET ECKENER
Friedrichshafen, Germany, Sept. 16.—The round the world dirigible Graf Zeppelin will fly to Cuxhaven early tomorrow morning to greet Dr. Hugo Eckener, who will arrive at that port upon the liner "New York." Final preparations for the flight were made today.

Official ceremonies of welcome will be held at Berlin when Dr. Eckener reaches there. Dr. Eckener stopped over in the United States after the world flight of the Graf, the airship being brought back home under command of Captain Lehmann.

DRUG TRAFFIC
Geneva, Sept. 16.—France has decided to adopt the American viewpoint regarding limitation of the manufacture of narcotic drugs and curb their output, it was announced today.

This announcement was made by M. Pernot, who informed the fifth commission of the League of Nations that France will publish within eight days a decree curbing production.

PRETTY BLONDE WITH BIG VOICE BEST IN TALKIE

Hollywood.—I say, my pretty blonde, have you a brunette voice? Then maybe they can use you in the talking pictures.

Blondes are all right, in fact delightful, but the ones with brunette voices are preferred in the studios. The reason is that brunettes, as a class, have lower pitched voices than blondes, producers say.

The higher pitched voice does not register as well or easily on the sound apparatus as the lower tone. Formerly it was a matter of finding a face that would suit the part; now the producer must find a face and a voice too. It would be nonsense to let a woman with a high pitched, strained voice take the part of a subtle, quiet, beautiful vamp.

The producers point out. That would be as bad as letting Buddy Rogers play the Hunchback of Notre Dame.

Catherine Dale Owen, who is making her screen debut in a role opposite John Gilbert, is generally agreed by producers to have a brunette voice along with blonde beauty. Miss Owen spent years cultivating her voice before and during her New York stage career.

These songs took a hard right to the chin when William Le Baron, RKO executive, issued orders the other day to the effect that as far as Radio Pictures are concerned, the theme song is a part of the past. "Swat the theme song," is the theme of Le Baron's remarks.

"Theme songs are unnecessary, weary, stale, unprofitable, and slow up the action," the executive protested. "Hereafter, Radio Pictures will contain plenty of good new songs, but we won't afflict the public with any more musical nonsense, called, by courtesy, 'theme songs.'"

The "sound angle" is the latest in sound recording technique of the studios. Lewis Milestone, United Artists' director, is credited with being the first to see its possibilities.

By means of the sound angle, the talking picture may give a more faithful impression of a scene in which many different sounds are being made, such as a cafe or a street. Also, the director may bring out the more significant sounds for the audience, so as to attain realism without sacrificing progress of the plot.

It is done this way: the camera takes in the whole scene and does not move, but a rapid succession of sound close-ups is made in different parts of the scene by the sound-recording apparatus, so that the sound flashes from one part of the scene to another, and amplifies noises that are most important to the audience.

"A person entering a crowded room would pick out certain groups of sounds, and amplify them beyond sounds he did not care to hear," said Milestone.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

It doesn't pay to kick unless you are doing it for exercise.

Don't jump at a conclusion; you might scare it off.

Boy—Gimme some male and female spuds.

Grocer—Are you crazy? Boy—No. Me fadder sent me after two sex of potatoes.

Eat less and you'll feel so much better you won't worry about the high cost of living.

Jury service may not be tedious, but it certainly is trying.

The easiest way to lose your memory is to borrow money.

You know a man is successful when the newspapers start quoting him on subjects he knows nothing about.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Lucky It's Not a Month "I would like to look at some overnight bags." "Right this way, sir." "Better give me about seven, I'm going to be gone a week."

The only traveling some folks do is from bad to worse.

Small Son—What are diplomatic relations, father? Wise Parent—There are no such people, my boy.

Hank says to his wife the other night, "I sure miss that cuspidor." "You always did miss it," says Mrs. Beasley, "that's why I threw it on the trash pile."

If the folks who dictate women's fashions aren't careful, they'll work themselves out of a job some day.

Mother's Help—We clean your dirty kids for a quarter.—From a dry cleaning ad.

The bootlegger is one agent who cannot violate the law without an accomplice.

Perseverance rather than brilliancy is the best in a long race.

Stupidity with a shut mouth is often mistaken for wisdom.

"If you really loved me all the time, why don't you let me know?" Her Adorer: "I couldn't find a postcard with the right words on it."

Once a man worked three examples for his small son and didn't look pleased with himself all evening.

"What kind of an animal is a Dangler?" "Never heard of one."

"Well, at the circus there was a sign on one cage, 'Don't go near the cage; these animals are 'Danggerous.'"

"Has Jack always been a woman-hater?" "No; only since his marriage."

It might not seem near so hot if we'd keep our minds on the job and off the thermometer.

Poppa (at dinner): "Willy, you've reached for everything in sight. Now stop it; haven't you got a tongue?" Willy: "Sure, Pop, but my arm's longer."

Carrying a grudge against a brother will eventually stoop the stoutest shoulders.

Murphy had just been presented with triplets and was so elated over the event that he called in everybody to see them. Among the visitors was Hogan.

"An' what do ye think of that?" demanded the proud father, pointing to his row of offspring.

"Well," replied Hogan, judiciously looking the babies over carefully and pointing to an especially healthy specimen, "I'd be keeping that one."

THE TINYMIES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The wooden cow then barked some more, 'till Copsy cried, 'I'm scared and sore. I've been so badly shaken up I think I've had enough. This cow's not friendly. Not at all. Oh, gee, supposin' I would fall. I'd rather ride a real live cow that wouldn't be so rough.' 'Well, jump right off,' one tiny cried. 'If you're afraid, let someone ride who knows just how to do it. Surely, that cow's not so bad. He's made of wood and should be tame. The answer is that you're not game. I must admit the way you ride looks very, very sad.' So Copsy slipped down to the earth and ran for all that he was worth. He simply didn't want to take the chance of being kicked. And then he shouted, 'Someone go ahead and stage a brilliant show of riding. I am not ashamed to say that I am licked.' Then Copsy bravely raised his head, looked at the bunch and calmly said, 'Please all stand back. I'm going to ride this cow and ride him right. I'll hop on bravely as can be and I will be a sight to see. I'll promise that I won't fall off—although, perhaps, I might. The cow stood still while Copsy jumped upon its back. Oh, how he thumped. 'Now, watch me, boys,' he loudly cried. 'This ought to be real good.' And then he said, 'Giddyap, there, cow, I want to show the Tinnies how to ride you very nicely like a classy rider should.' The cow began to moo real loud. Then laughter broke out in the crowd. They knew the cow was getting mad. Soon it began to rear. At first this seemed like thrilling sport, but then it quickly stopped, real short. This took place through the air. (Copsy lands away up high in the next story.)

MRS. BRENNAN SPEAKS AT S. M. E. SERVICES

Mrs. Harold R. Brennan of Hartford was the speaker at both the young people's meeting at 8 o'clock at the South Methodist church and the outdoor harvest moon service which followed. Mrs. Brennan was formerly Miss Mabel Pollard and before her marriage to Rev. H. R. Brennan was director of religious education at the South Methodist church and during her stay here made a number of warm friends among the congregation. Mrs. Brennan in her talk to the young people stressed the importance of their having an object in life. At the outdoor services which were attended by more than 200 a brass quartet from the Salvation Army assisted with the music. Rev. Robert A. Colpitts who was to have been the speaker announced that he had decided to surprise his audience by having Mrs. Brennan speak instead. Her remarks closely followed the announced topic, "The Great Stone Face" commonly called "The Old Man of the Mountain," which she visited recently during a tour of the White Mountains, taking for her theme Margaret Eggleston's fabled story. Following the meeting Mrs. Brennan was warmly greeted by many of those present.

AGED VET VISITOR HERE SEEKING FRIEND

Manchester was host Friday night to John Walsh, an 88-year-old Civil War veteran of Pittsburgh, Mass., who homeward bound from the annual convention of the G. A. R. held at Portland, Maine, stopped off for a short visit with friends in town. He first went to Hartford but found that the man he was looking for had moved to Manchester. Remaining in Hartford Thursday night he came here the next morning. The motorman on the trolley car let him off at the South End postoffice. After several inquiries he found that his friend, E. R. Machell lived at 444 Center street. He was given a lift to Mr. Machell's home where he remained over night. After attending the 7:45 o'clock mass at St. James' church he continued on to Pittsfield.

BAPTISED IN BLANKET THAT IS 266 YEARS OLD

Baby Wears Robe Worn by First White Child Born in Norwich in 1660.

At the baptism of Catherine Safford Chase, infant daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Chase of Easton, Pa., at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Hebron, recently the child wore a baptismal blanket owned by Miss C. E. Kellogg and in which the first white child born in Norwich, Christopher Huntington, Jr., was baptized in 1660. The baptismal robe is alluded to in a manuscript copy of the History of Connecticut now in the Saybrook Library, as "the sacred blanket," and is said to have been brought from England by the Huntington family. It descended from Christopher Huntington, Jr., in a direct line of eldest daughters until it reached the present owner. The blanket is of an excellent state of preservation, though at least 266 years old. After the ceremony a tea was given to the baptismal party at the home of the Misses Pendleton and Mrs. Anne C. Gilbert. Among those present, Miss Clarrissa Pendleton, one of the sponsors, is a direct descendant of the Rev. James Fitch, who performed the ceremony of baptism for the Huntington child in 1660.
