Although no actual drive has been made here for additional funds to start work on a new St. Mary's Episcopal church the pastor, Rev. James Stuart Neill, today received an unsolicited contribution of $3,000 towards the fund. The contributor was anonymous and lived outside of Manchester. This contribution has stirred the enthusiasm of leaders in the church who have been informed of it and no doubt action will be taken shortly towards raising the $75,000 needed to complete the building fund.

TOWN H. S. BOARD TO BE VOTED ON

Action Must Be Taken Monday on Proposal to Set Up Special Committee.

Manchester's annual town meeting on Monday will be asked to approve of a new town-by-law setting up a high school committee. This vote will be taken on the voting machines since the act calls for a referendum vote. The polls at the municipal building will be open from eight in the morning until eight in the evening for the election of the various town officers and for action on the proposed high school committee.

At eight o'clock in the evening the annual town meeting will be adjourned to a public meeting in the high school for the purpose of acting on the town's budget for the year and various other items listed in the call.

The act creating a high school committee for the town of Manchester, to be enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly convened:

Not more than three members of such committee shall be registered in the same political party at the time of their election or appointment. Vacancies occurring in said committee shall be filled by appointment by the remaining members of said committee until the next annual election of said town, when the vacancy shall be filled by ballot.

Section 2. The committee shall select from its members a chairman and a clerk, and shall appoint a treasurer, and may fix the compensation of such treasurer.

GEORGIA SWEEP BY FLOODS

Floods in the wake of torrential autumnal rains caused high property damage, cut off communication and imperiled many lives in parts of Georgia. How high waters blocked traffic on the important Coastal Highway near Savannah is shown in the picture above. In the background are relief cars that ventured as far as possible into the flood zone. Below, right, rests on the outskirts of Savannah are shown as they waded through rapidly rising waters to salvage their household effects. Left, is a motorist who evidently got a "bum steer" when he tried to drive his car through an inundated area.

PRISONERS' REVOLT ENDS AS LEADERS KILL THEMSELVES

Thirteen Lives the Toll of Warfare and Massacre at State Penitentiary in Colorado.

Canon City, Colo., Oct. 4.—(AP)—One of the bloodiest prison mutinies in the nation's history, which claimed the lives of seven guards and at least six convicts, ended at the Colorado state penitentiary here this morning when the four ringleaders of the uprising committed suicide.

Barricaded with more than 150 other convicts in cell house No. 3, surrounded by troops, police and prison guards, and hopelessly outnumbered, the ringleaders first killed a wounded comrade and then fired bullets into their own brains.

The other convicts then surrendered and were marched out of the cell house just at sunrise.

The mutiny left in its wake a list of thirteen dead, and as many wounded, some of whom may die.

Four Guards Killed

Four of the dead were prison guards, disarmed and slaughtered in cold blood inside the cell house, to emphasize the convicts' demand for unqualified freedom. Warden Francis E. Crawford, who declined offers to parley with the embattled prisoners, was himself wounded during one of the attacks on the cell block.

National Guard troops and police details of four Colorado cities fired more than 7,000 rounds of ammunition into the convicts' stronghold during the night. The battle was marked by two attempts to dynamite the cell house walls, one blast breaking all the windows, but failing to effect a breach in the masonry.

Priest a Hero

The hero of the dynamiting attempts was a Catholic priest, Father Patrick O'Neill, who carried the bombs to the foot of the cell house wall, under cover of machine gun fire from the prison walls.

Three guards were killed at the outbreak of rioting yesterday and four more during the night rioting were Roy Brown, Walter Rinker, Elmer G. Erwin, Charles Shepherd and John W. McClelland.

The convict dead included Danny Daniels, who led the rioting, and removed to cell house No. 3 by the other convicts, he was found this morning with a bullet through his head, fired by one of the other convicts to end his suffering.

Three of the other ring leaders were found dead in the same cell; powder burns on their temples bearing mute testimony to shots fired in close range. The body of Daniels

HIS PLATFORM— "NO HIGH HEELS"

Senatorial Candidate Also in Favor of Shooting to Kill All Rum Runners.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—(AP)—James H. Kirby of Springfield has announced his candidacy for democratic nomination for United States Senator on a platform which calls for outlawing high heeled shoes for women and for a "shoot-to-kill" enforcement of the prohibition law.

Kirby, a member of the 50th Illinois General Assembly and a Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator in 1926 against Col. Frank L. Smith, has been active for years in an effort to limit the height of heels on women's shoes.

In connection with prohibition law enforcement, Kirby said he would seek authorization for officers to "shoot to kill to enforce this law." "It will be necessary," he added, "to kill somebody—and plenty of them."

NO NEWS RECEIVED OF FRENCH FLYERS

For Last Five Days Coste and His Companion Out of Touch With the World.

Paris, Oct. 4.—(AP)—One full week had elapsed today since Dieudonne Coste, French flyer, took off from Le Bourget on a long distance flight to the Far East. For five of these days the noted aviator and his companion, Maurice Bellonte, have disappeared into a mysterious silence.

The continued lack of news since the men were reported far over the Siberian steppes northeast of Lake Balkal today caused a conference attended by M. Laurent-Eynac, the air minister, Louis Breguet and Jean Lacoste, representing respectively the builders of the plane and motor of the missing "Question Mark."

A decision was reached to request Moscow to identify the search and the French ambassador in Moscow was asked for a report upon receipt of which it will be decided whether French planes should start for Siberia to scour the wastes northeast of Irkutsk.

All hope has not been given up, it declared officially. It was pointed out that the Russian plane "Land of the Soviets" was once lost five days within a hundred miles of the Trans-

THOUSANDS CHEER MacDONALD DURING STOP AT METROPOLIS

Premier's Statement To American Public STARTS AT ONCE FOR WASHINGTON

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—An anticipated barrage of questionnaires from the large delegation of newspapermen which greeted him on board the Berengaria today, Premier Ramsay MacDonald gave out a prepared statement. The statement follows:

"At the moment of arrival I greet my hosts. His Majesty has honored me by telegraphing his good wishes for the success of a mission which I feel instinctively is to have benefits far beyond its boundaries of our two countries. The United States and ourselves are really making an appeal by example to all nations to gather round a council board of peace. So that whilst cherishing their historical past and engaging in all the healthy rivalries of genius and skill and work they will remember the wider unities of a humane civilization. You almost make me afraid by the boundless hospitality you crave to be preparing for me. I hope I shall be equal to your kindness. The problems of armaments are full of hidden difficulties, and a patient working at details in an atmosphere of mutual confidence is required to overcome them, and I am a judgment from you as generously sympathetic as your welcome is to be generously lavish. When I return and it is all over I pray that I shall leave behind me some memories which will make it easy for you to think well of Great Britain and be a reason for close co-operation between your country and mine in the great causes of democracy and liberty which inspire the peoples on both sides of the Atlantic."

CHAMPION AGAIN WINS HER MATCH

Glenna Collett Defeats Mrs. O. S. Hill at Golf, 3 Up, 2 to Play.

Oakland Hills Country Club, Birmingham, Mich., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Miss Glenna Collett, defending champion, defeated Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, 3 up and 2 to play today, to enter the finals of the National championship tournament.

Miss Collett went one up on the short thirteenth with a par three. Mrs. Hill drove into a trap, dubbed her putt and took a 4. A perfect stroke forced Mrs. Hill to halve the 14th with a 6, one over par. Collett took the 15th with a 4 and was two up.

Miss Collett ended the battle on a 14th green by finishing a birdie 4 to Mrs. Hill's par five.

ROCKEFELLER KIN GRANTED A DIVORCE

Bridgeport, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Florence Lincoln Rockefeller, 29, of Greenwich was granted a decree of divorce here today by Judge Carl Foster from William A. Rockefeller, 36, grand-nephew of John D. Rockefeller.

The decree was granted upon an allegation of habitual intemperance in one of the shortest divorce actions presented in this court.

In addition to the decree, Mrs. Rockefeller was granted the custody of her three minor children with rights of visitation to Rockefeller, who it was testified, had been an inmate of an unnamed private sanitarium for over three years.

In Sanitarium

When the court hearing opened today, Mrs. Rockefeller was called to testify in her own behalf. She gave the date of her marriage as February 9, 1916, and told of the effect upon her husband of continual drinking. "He has been in a sanitarium for years. I have been told that his condition has not greatly improved and that there is a possibility of his remaining under treatment for some time."

Other witnesses who appeared for the plaintiff were Frederick W. Lincoln, Jr., and Sidney Lanier, both of Greenwich. They testified that Rockefeller was a heavy drinker.

Mrs. Rockefeller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lincoln of Greenwich. Her father is a New York exporter.

JEAN EAGELS DEAD; WAS NOTED ACTRESS

Star Who Created Sadie Thompson Character in "Rain," Dies Suddenly. Was 35 Years Old.

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The theatrical world was shocked today by the sudden death of Jean Eagels, actress, who created the character of Sadie Thompson in "Rain." She was 35 years old.

She was seized with convulsions last night as she was preparing for examination in a private sanitarium. After an autopsy, Dr. Thomas A. Gonzalez, assistant chief medical examiner said death was caused by alcoholic psychosis.

Miss Eagels underwent an operation four weeks ago at St. Luke's hospital. She was preparing to return to Broadway after an absence of 18 months enforced by her suspension by the Actors' Equity Association. She was suspended for walking out on the play "Her Cardboard Lover" in St. Louis in March 1928, leaving the show stranded without a star.

BOOTLEGGERS' CUSTOMERS DO NOT COME UNDER LAW

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Months imprisonment and $20,000 fine.

Upheaval Appeal

By a two and one vote the Circuit judges upheld the appeal, declaring that although Norris may have induced Kerper to transport the liquor to him in New York, he was not guilty of aiding and abetting either its sale or delivery.

"It is conceded, the Circuit Court's opinion said, "that under the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act, the purchase of liquor is not the offense. While the seller of liquor, who delivers it to the purchaser, is liable under the law both for the sale and transportation, the purchaser to whom the goods are delivered is chargeable with neither the purchase nor the transportation."

"We are satisfied that the purchaser is not an abettor of the offense within the meaning of the statute."

Federal authorities, it was stated, may appeal the case for final decision to the Supreme Court of the United States.

GUNS BOOM SALUTE AS PRIME MINISTER'S SHIP ENTERS NEW YORK HARBOR—LOWER BROADWAY DENSE WITH HUMANITY WHEN HONORED GUEST IS ESCORTED TO THE CITY HALL; "HELLO MAC" IS GREETING HEARD ON ALL SIDES—BRIEF CEREMONY PRECEDES TRIP TO RAILROAD STATION.

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Cheered through the streets by thousands who lined lower Broadway to catch a glimpse of him, J. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, passed through this eastern gateway of America today on an errand of peace to the nation's capital.

The special train taking him to Washington and the conferences with President Hoover on limitation of naval armaments which are the purpose of his visit, pulled out at 11:33 o'clock this morning, scarcely more than an hour after he had landed at the Battery.

But during that brief period he had ample opportunity to judge the sentiment of the people whose President he had come to see. The north end of the Battery was black with crowds and all along Broadway they filled the sidewalks. City Hall plaza was crammed with other thousands who cheered as the prime minister entered the City Hall to be presented the freedom of the city by Mayor James J. Walker.

From that ceremony Mr. MacDonald and his party were escorted directly to the Pennsylvania station, where the special train was waiting.

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—J. Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister, enroute to Washington, to visit President Hoover on a good will mission, was enthusiastically acclaimed today as he set foot on American soil.

The distinguished visitor felt the first warmth of his reception at the Quarantine station, shortly after he arrived there on the liner Berengaria which was escorted by the American cruisers, Memphis and Trenton. A welcoming committee, which had gone down the bay on the city tug Macomb, boarded the liner and formally welcomed him to city and nation.

"These preliminaries over, Premier MacDonald, his daughter, Miss Isabel, and members of his party, were taken on board the Macomb, which proceeded to the tip of Manhattan island at the Battery. Vessels of all descriptions in the harbor gave the party a mighty whistle salute.

Hawser Breaks

An accident was narrowly averted at Quarantine when a hawser holding the Macomb against the Berengaria parted just as Mr. MacDonald was preparing to step aboard the gangplank.

The Macomb slid back several feet, almost pulling the gangplank off her hook. Mr. MacDonald was waved back and a new hawser quickly adjusted. He and his party then clambered aboard the bobbing city tug.

A police band in an accompanying tug played "Britannia Rules the Waves" as the party left the Berengaria.

In the little cabin of the Macomb, jammed almost to suffocation by a hundred or more reporters, Mr. MacDonald submitted to an interview. After several minor questions, the British prime minister, his voice deep with feeling turned to the purpose of his visit to this country.

"I know that I shall find here a great treasure of good will toward England," he said, and then after a few remarks concerning the proposed conversations with President Hoover said:

"If we (England and America) stand side by side for peace, who can stand against us?"

In Morning Attire

He was dressed in formal morning attire, a sprig of heather in his buttonhole, held fast by a bit of plaid ribbon.

One of the reporters, just before the interview was terminated, asked Mr. MacDonald:

"Do you know William B. Shearer?"

Mr. MacDonald looked a bit puzzled for a moment and then, smiling, said:

"I do not believe he is known on the other side."

While her father was being interviewed in the main cabin, Miss Isabel was in another with a group of women reporters. She was smiling and lighthearted but rather hesitant to answer questions regarding her impressions of America.

Finally she said, "Oh, my goodness, I'm missing the skyline" and asked to be excused went out on the deck as the Macomb steamed slowly through the harbor.

Twelve Army planes soared overhead as the marine parade moved along the harbor and a salute of nineteen guns boomed out from Governors' Island as the Macomb drew abreast the Army reservation.

A great wave of cheering rolled along the Battery wall as the crowds there sighted the Macomb and continued until the Macomb was securely tied up and the party was coming ashore to get into automobiles for the ride to City Hall.

Among the first to grasp the premier's hand as he stepped ashore was Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, who with Sir Esmé Howard, British ambassador at Washington, had waited at Pier A for the premier's party.

They exchanged a few words, smiling delightedly at each other, and then the party climbed in cars and started up through the canyon of lower Broadway to the City Hall.

The sun which had hidden under a cloud, came out just as the premier stepped ashore giving a rainbow effect to the arching streams of water which the fire boats were shooting into the air in their salute to Britain's leader.

Thousands, many of whom had been there, since dawn, lined the route to City Hall and down the procession streamed the storm of ticker tape as a continuous applause rolled through the deep streets and echoed back from the towering buildings.

In City Hall park a greater crowd even was waiting, packed in until it seemed there was hardly room for another person.

They broke into wild applause as the premier's car rolled through the lane, held open by police and stopped at City Hall steps.

"Hello, Mac" several shouted, taking up the British laborer's usual greeting to the premier, their voices clear above the din.

In Good Humor

The premier, his cheeks glowing and his eye sparkling, seemed in high good humor as he bowed and smiled, waving his hat in a continuous greeting to the welcoming crowds.

There were several bands in City Hall park, one of them a children's Scottish band, attired in kilts, that shrilled out a highland greeting to the man from Lonsborough.

On the steps of City Hall, forming a lane through which Mr. MacDonald ascended, were 150 recent graduates of the Police College, tall, brawny chaps in regulation police uniform, but wearing white leggings and white gloves. They saluted as the premier passed between their ranks.

Lining the sidewalk in front of the hall, in the front rank was a delegation of 20 Scotchmen in Highland costumes, their kilts and sporrans forming a colorful contrast to the severe blue and white of the police uniforms.

Hesitating but a moment on the steps to wave a greeting at the crowd in the plaza, Mr. MacDonald and his party were escorted to the Aldermanic Chamber where Mayor James J. Walker and Edward J. Flynn, New York's secretary of state, greeted him in the name of the city and state.

The time being short, Mayor Walker launched immediately into his welcoming address and presented the premier with an embossed

LEGION DELEGATES RETURN TO HOMES

Over 64,000 Visitors in Louisville for Convention of Our World War Vets.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Turning homeward after the four-day carnival that was their eleventh annual convention, members of the American Legion today had before them an ambitious program of activities for the twelve months that will elapse before they gather in Boston next autumn.

The veterans had placed direction of their organization in the hands of O. L. Bodenhamer, the first national commander to be elected without opposition. Bodenhamer today was aboard a special train with a group of Arkansas Legionnaires headed for a rousing reception at his home town of El Dorado, Ark.

As the convention ended, official estimates were that it had brought 160,000 visitors to Louisville, including those who came last Tuesday for the parade. Approximately 64,000 persons had registered as guests. The meeting was proclaimed a success in all particulars by local officials and national leaders of the Legion.

Future Program.
An extensive program of work in behalf of veterans and their families was outlined in resolutions adopted by the convention, outstanding features including proposals for material increases in hospital facilities for disabled men in practically every section of the country and in urgent request that the government provide funds for families of men in hospitals who, because their illness is not service-connected, receive no compensation.

During the next year the Legion also expects to make progress toward passage of a law providing for universal conscription of capital, labor, industry and transportation in case of war. The immediate objective is adoption by Congress of the Reed-Wainwright resolution calling for a commission to draft a suitable law.

The auxiliary, also under new officers, headed by Mrs. Donald Macrea of Council Bluffs, Iowa, was reinspired to carry on its work of rehabilitation, Americanism and child welfare.

The carnival side of the convention, with the street crowds, the colorful musical organizations, the decorated buildings, the confetti and the swanky Legion canes left both visitors and hosts weary in body, but agreeing that the gathering had thrilled and had inspired a closer sense of comradeship among the men who served the colors together.

PRISON REVOLT ENDS THIRTEEN ARE KILLED

was in the doorway, sprawled half in and half out of the cell. The door of the cell house, which last night served as the execution chamber of four unarmed guards, was slippery with blood. The bodies of Charles Shepherd and John W. McClelland, two of the slain guards, were found in the cell house, bound hand and foot. Both had been shot through the head.

Close estimates fix the time of the suicides of the riot leaders at 4 a. m., but it was not until an hour and a half later, at daybreak, when C. E. Earl, one of the surviving guards, made his way into the prison yard, that the attacking forces learned of the fact, entered the cell house and rounded up the prisoners.

Early said he was afraid to leave the cell house until daylight, for fear of being mistaken for a convict and shot by the watchers on the walls. With him in the cell house were two other prisoners: Lawrence Roche, who escaped the fury of the convicts; Roche's sister, Josephine, secretary to Warden Crawford, had remained at the prison all night, fearing each minute she would hear the bullet-riddled body tossed out of a window of the cell house, as the bodies of Elles and Wiggins were tossed out.

Giving her brother up for dead, she had left the prison shortly before daylight. When she learned that he was alive, she collapsed. Guttered by fire, which destroyed the dining room and chapel and two of the cell houses and scarred by machine gun bullets and dynamite, the prison yard this morning was in utter ruin.

Marvin Duncan, one of the guards in the cell house, was carried to a hospital this morning, stark mad from terror.

He was found locked in a cell and it was necessary to take off the door to get him out. He was at first thought to be dead, but examination revealed he was not even wounded. He saw Elles, the prison hangman, shoot Wiggins and his body tossed out of the cell house window.

He stood by while Danny Daniels asked Wiggins, another guard, if he had said his prayers.

Rockville, Winsor Locks and Thompsonville exchanges gathered to do honor to Joseph T. O'Gorman of Manchester on the observance of his 20th anniversary with the Telephone company.

William B. Halsted, exchange manager of the Manchester and Rockville exchanges, acted as toastmaster and introduced T. G. Fraser, district equipment superintendent, of Hartford. Mr. Fraser paid a very fitting tribute to Mr. O'Gorman and told of the latter's rise in the business from that of an inside wire man, 20 years ago, to his present position of wire chief with jurisdiction over the four exchanges mentioned above.

Mr. Halsted, on behalf of the employees gathered, presented Mr. O'Gorman with a sum of gold and Mrs. O'Gorman was given a beautiful basket of roses.

Others who were called upon to address the gathering were Miss Katherine T. Cannotta, Manchester chief operator, and George C. Rising, manager of the Windsor Locks and Thompsonville exchanges.

During the entertainment program Miss Caroline Milanes, of the Rockville exchange, rendered several pleasing vocal selections. The whole affair was a huge success and the major part of the credit goes to Alton Hall of the Manchester exchange who had full charge of the arrangements for the party.

DONAHUE AT WAR WITH ARENA HEAD

State Boxing Commissioner and New Haven Promoter at Odds; Club Suspended.

New Haven, Oct. 4.—(AP)—State athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue and Nathan Podoloff, general manager of the New Haven Arena are to meet this afternoon for a conference on the commissioner's suspension of the Arpa A. C. for laxity in the payment of state taxes on boxing bouts.

Commissioner Donohue said here today that the state law requires taxes be paid within 24 hours of a show and that the Arena frequently delays two or more weeks before sending in its check.

The commissioner indicated his action was due chiefly to his desire to prove his power over sporting interests. He said he wanted to correct a situation at the Arena before fighting operations are resumed.

Another reason for the suspension he declared was the faulty police protection he had observed at arena shows. At the Buddy Howard-Jack Kelly state heavyweight championship bout which Howard lost, said Donohue, he saw only seven policemen on hand to control a crowd of five thousand.

Podoloff contends he is not violating law or a rule in delaying payment of taxes, for one of the commissioner's own rules provides a fine of $500 or suspension or both for failure to pay taxes within 20 days of a show. Podoloff says the Arena has always paid within 20 days.

The commissioner declared the "matter came to a head" in a heated discussion between himself and Podoloff following the Howard-Kelly bout. Donohue said he insisted on immediate payment of the tax but Podoloff refused on the grounds that his ticket money had not come in. The refusal precipitated suspension.

The suspension is of indefinite tenure. Al Well, matchmaker for the arena said he was going ahead, despite the suspension, with plans for a bout October 15.

Well is endeavoring to bring about a return match between Kelly and Howard on that date. Jack Red Knight and Frankie Marteno, New Haven favorites are expected to be in the semi-final.

ELLINGTON HOUSE BURNED TO GROUND

Job's Hill Place Scene of Disastrous Fire Early This Morning.

A large farm house on Job's Hill, Ellington, owned and occupied by Mrs. William Nieman was burned to the ground at eight o'clock this morning. A delay in giving the alarm by telephone to the Ellington fire department and a shortage of hose prevented the fire-fighters from saving the house. The barn and part of the furniture in the house were saved.

The Rockville fire department was called upon to supply the extra hose and members of the city department under Assistant Chief William Conroy did good work in saving nearby structures. It was necessary to lay 3,000 feet of hose to the scene of the fire from the nearest hydrant.

LADY HEATH ASSERTS SHE WILL FLY AGAIN

Cleveland, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Lady Mary Heath, noted British aviatrix, who has been recovering from a badly fractured skull and other serious injuries suffered in an air crash here a month ago, has not lost her nerve and hopes to take to the air again soon, she said today.

It was Lady Heath's first public statement since the accident and marked her almost complete recovery.

The noted flyer has been participating in the national air races here and was practicing a dead stick landing at the time she was hurt. Her plane crashed through the roof of a factory here and she was rushed to a hospital, unconscious, and believed dying.

A delicate operation on Lady Heath's brain saved her eyesight and her life.

She discussed the accident freely today, light-heartedly. "Some one asked me if she would fly again," "Oh, yes," Lady Heath answered, "why not?"

THOUSANDS CHEER PREMIER IN NEW YORK

scroll from the City of New York commemorating his visit. The premier made a short response.

The mayor then escorted Mr. MacDonald and his party to their automobiles and they were whisked away for the Pennsylvania station to the special train to Washington.

CAPITAL'S RECEPTION
Washington, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A welcome from all America was embodied today in the capital's greeting to Britain's premier.

Here, as he expressed it, on a "voyage of peace," the acclaim at hand was of a warmth seldom extended to a visitor from a foreign land.

Although forced to wait until New York had shrieked its salutation immediately after the arrival of the Berengaria at Quarantine, the seat of government had cancelled all else in his honor for late in the day.

The capital's celebrated street flags were early adfuter and a touch of Old World splendor was added in honor of the occasion.

Accustomed to the entertainment of distinguished visitors, care had been taken by State Department officials to omit no detail from the reception.

Natally uniformed marines, a battalion of field artillery and two troops of cavalry were ordered to the station to meet Prime Minister MacDonald upon his arrival. These were the escort, along Pennsylvania avenue, to the British Embassy.

From the Embassy, after a brief rest, Mr. MacDonald's first point of call was the White House and the long awaited meeting with President Hoover.

Brief Visit
This visit was only for short duration—long diplomatic custom requiring the first official act to be an exchange of greetings between the visitor and the chief executive.

That formality over, the prime minister was left free to look forward to an evening of informality and rest after a brief meeting with newspaper correspondents.

Another round of formal calls tomorrow morning—the Vice President, Chief Justice, Speaker of the House and Secretary of State—once begun, a search for Mohafa's departure from the British Embassy to be the guest of President Hoover.

Whether the President would whisk him away to the quiet of his fishing camp at the headwaters of the Rapidan in Virginia depended on the results of a survey of the roads. The temperature didn't matter, for the camp is comfortable, for the condition of the roads after recent heavy rains was important.

Except during his visit with President Hoover—which expected to bring the real purpose of his trip close to fruition—the prime minister's days in America will be a severe strain, despite efforts to keep the program as informal as possible.

Busy At All Times
Until he leaves October 10 for Philadelphia, New York and Canada, he will have only a few hours to do with as he pleases, sandwiched in between formal and informal social functions and the meetings necessary to the business of his history making trip.

In addition to administration officials, he will meet many of the members of Congress at social functions and during a visit to the capital Monday.
He will be accorded unusual honors at the capitol. Escorted first to the House floor as it adjourns shortly after noon, he will be given an informal reception by members.
Accompanied probably by his daughter Isabel, and by Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, who will proceed then down the longest corridor in the world to the Senate wing and directly into the office of Vice President Curtis.
There, he will be greeted by Senators Watson of Indiana and Robinson of Arkansas, Republican and Democratic leaders, and they with the vice president will escort him to the Senate floor.
If he accepts an invitation to speak, he will be introduced to the Senate by the vice president. If not, a recess will be taken and Mr. Curtis will present him to the membership at an informal reception.
Most of the important luncheon and dinner functions will follow beginning with the White House dinner Monday night in his honor.
The arrival of Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, and his young daughter, Miss Isabel MacDonald, set Washington into a great state of excitement at the White House they are assigned the suite at the east end of the building facing the Treasury, the rooms on the south looking out over the Washington monument, the Lincoln Memorial and the Potomac river and the north rooms over Lafayette Square.
Many Guests
The White House was never so constantly filled with guests as it has been since the arrival there of the President and Mrs. Hoover, and only these suites are kept ready for formal guests.
There are wide open fire-places in the large rooms and they are exceedingly homelike and comfortable. conspicuous at this end of the private quarters of the President and Mrs. Hoover, is a piano, and radios are in each room. It is doubtful if the visit of the Prince of Wales, who traveled in this country during the Wilson administration, created more of a flutter as the coming of the MacDonalds.
LINDY AS EXPLORER
Guatemala City, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh will begin tomorrow a survey of the ancient Maya Indian ruins lying between Quilana, Yucatan and British Honduras.
Leaving here today they go to Beliste, British Honduras and from there Saturday to Cozumel Island off the coast of Quilana Roo, which they will use as a base for about five days flying over the Yucatan Peninsula where archeologists agree, a civilization surpassing that of the Incas probably once thrived.
A man we know gets up and writes verses when he can't sleep. Insomnia must be an awful thing.

HARD USAGE DEMANDS BEST IN REFRIGERATION

In explaining the advantages of the new all-steel General Electric Apartment Model Refrigerator W. H. Dempsey, salesmanager for M. H. Strickland stated that refrigeration for apartment installation must be constructed to meet more exacting conditions than are met in the average home.

"In the first place," he said, "the apartment refrigerator must be extremely quiet and require a minimum amount of attention. It must be easy to install and be independent of the refrigerators in the other apartments. The individual refrigerator can be defrosted at will or moved from one apartment to another. Apartment residents cannot be expected to give their refrigerators the necessary attention and owners have found that the unit requiring no attention is best suited for their buildings."

Alme DeMars, well known builder and contractor has just installed four G. E. Refrigerators in an apartment at 24 Maple street. After considering every type of refrigerator Mr. DeMars decided on G. E. due to quiet operation, sturdy construction and trouble-free mechanism.

It took just one hour to install the four refrigerators. The apartments are of three rooms each and include built-in ironing board, breakfast nook, hardwood floors, etc. Three apartments have been rented already. Mr. DeMars is considering equipping two more apartment houses the same way.

STRESEMANN FUNERAL TO BE IMPRESSIVE ONE

Berlin, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Arrangements moved forward rapidly today for an impressive state tribute to Dr. Gustav Stresemann, Reich foreign minister who died of a heart attack early yesterday morning.

The statesman, who more than any other molded post-war Germany, will be buried in the small Luisenstaedische cemetery in the northern part of Berlin, in accordance with wishes he expressed in a recent last will.

Saturday evening the body will lie in state in the plenary sessions hall of the Reichstag, scene for years of Dr. Stresemann's political activities.

Chancellor Mueller will deliver the funeral oration, after which the body will be removed to the front public allowed to pass by. Only a few personal friends, government officials and co-workers will witness interment.

A number of Dr. Stresemann's favorite songs, including a hymn or two, will be sung at the graveside. Mourning for the dead statesman deepened with realization of the full extent of his work for the Fatherland. Messages of condolence have poured into his home and at the government offices from all over the world.

WAPPING

Mrs. Sherwood Bowers, chairman of the fancy work booth for the Wapping Grange Fair, which is to be held at the Center on Saturday, October 6, requests all the ladies, who find it possible, if they will furnish some small articles for the sale table besides any other things that they may wish to exhibit. Connected with that booth there will also be a table for the exhibition of any small antique articles which may be arranged under glass.

There were about a dozen ladies of the Federated Workers who met at the home of Mrs. Anton Simer Jr., last Friday afternoon. They planned an all-day meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Congdon on Friday of this week.

At the Christian Endeavor society's business meeting and social, which was held at the parsonage with Rev. and Mrs. Harry B. Miner, last Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected: President, Luther Burnham; vice-president, Mrs. Lois Collins; secretary and treasurer, Miss Dorothy Stoddard. The chairman of the missionary committee is Miss Irene Skinner; lookout committee, Ward Stiles; prayer meeting committee, Miss Faith M. Collins, and social committee, Homer Lane, Jr.

Mrs. Winnie (Foster) Smith is visiting at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster of Foster street.

Mrs. Anna Wheeler has been the guest of Mrs. Ella Beardsley in Plymouth recently.

The Christian Endeavor society will hold no services at the church here next Sunday evening but will motor to the Second Congregational church, Manchester, where they will unite with their Christian Endeavor for a union service. At the Federated church here at 7:30 o'clock there will be lantern slide lecture by the pastor, Rev. Harry B. Miner.

RAINBOW DANCES

It has often been said and with ample supporting evidence that one of the great contributing factors to the amazing success of some dance palaces is the fact that the management of such popular ballrooms never allow themselves to become old-fashioned, but on the other hand, they must keep abreast of the times, changing their tactics as exigencies demand. With this thought in mind The Rainbow management is conducting Eastern Connecticut's most popular dining and dancing place at Bolton along these lines and the results thus far, have been very gratifying to Mr. Pinney, whose sincere purpose is to provide the patrons of The Rainbow with high-class music and entertainment throughout the season. The programs will be sufficiently diversified to be pleasing to both the dance fans and those who attend the dances, but do not care to dance. The Commanders will furnish another of these characteristic dance programs Saturday evening featuring several specialty numbers by members of the band and this announcement will be received with interest and enthusiasm.

With the opening of the new cement highway several days ago, it is confidently expected that a great many people from Manchester and contingent territory will visit The Rainbow Inn and dance palace.

Saturday, Oct. 12th, a special Columbus Day program will be featured in the evening with Ray Morotti and his Dixie Strutters of ten pieces providing a splendid novelty dance program from time to time during the season various dance bands will be brought to The Rainbow and there will also be special vaudeville programs as extra attractions. People are being attracted to this popular dining and dancing place at Bolton from all over the state, with a steadily increasing patronage that has reached record proportions this early in the season.

About 45,000 carloads of fruits and vegetables are shipped into New York City annually.

NEW REFORM PLANS.
Lisbon, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A long manifesto published today gave notice of important social and economic reforms adopted by the Cabinet Council in all night session which broke up at daybreak. President Carmona presided.

The reform schemes contemplate reorganization of the Navy, development of better relations between the metropolis and the colonies, elaboration of the new educational program, and drafting of a new constitution to come into effect as soon as the present exceptional regime has concluded its work, and has restored complete stability to the country.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Non-cataract-producing Foods
Question: Mrs. J. H. writes: "Please name the foods that are non-cataract-producing. I have a cold in the head all winter. I may have chronic cataract. If so, can diet cure this trouble?"
Answer:—You can use all of the non-starchy vegetables and fruits without producing any excessive cataract mucus. All of the foods high in calory value, as the starches, sugars and proteins may be said to be cataract-producing if used in large quantities. The hydrocarbons, that is, the fats and oils, also contribute their share in adding to the toxins which irritate the mucus membranes, and produce cataract. The best diet for you to take is one free from starches, sugars and fats, but with a small amount of protein and plenty of non-starchy vegetables.
Sulphur and Molasses
Question A. D. asks:—"Is the old-fashioned remedy composed of sulphur and molasses good for the blood? If so, how often and how much should be taken?"
Answer:—The sulphur and molasses treatment is no doubt effective in removing some intestinal toxemias, but a fruit fast is far superior for accomplishing this effect.
Baby has Rash
Question: Mother writes:—"For the last four or five weeks my baby, five months old, has been breaking out in a rash. It seems to come on during the night. The doctor does not seem to know what it is. His diet is one pint of water each day, with a little sugar in it."
Answer:—I don't blame your baby for having a rash if you dilute his milk so much and put sugar into it. Give him four ounces of ure Holstein cow's milk every four hours, and do not dilute the milk or put anything in it. Just before each feeding give him a teaspoonful or two of pure orange juice.

SUICIDE CLEARS UP A MURDER MYSTERY

South Hero, Vt., Oct. 4.—(AP)—With the discovery in a field here of the battered and mutilated body of Mrs. George Destautels of Winoski, 39-year-old mother of two children, police today believed they had found the solution of the suicide, Wednesday, Arthur Mercure, Winoski fruit store proprietor and "friend of the family."

Mercure jumped to his death in the waters of the Winoski river leaving behind his bloodstained automobile in which Mrs. Destautels had been seen riding with him several hours earlier.

A motorist who stopped his automobile on a lonely road discovered the woman's body and, beside it, a hammer and hatchet.

OPENING STOCKS

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Selling pressure was renewed at the beginning of today's Stock Market, following the drastic decline yesterday, and prices moved irregularly lower.

Standard Oil of New Jersey, International Nickel and Anaconda Copper opened with blocks of 10,000 shares at declines ranging from a fraction to nearly 2 points.

U. S. Steel Common, which lost 10 points yesterday, opened unchanged at 213. A. M. Byers opened nearly 4 points higher and American & Foreign Power 1 1/2.

The unexpected increase of $43,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans to another new high record and the closing out of numerous weak and speculative accounts as a result of the many margin calls sent out overnight brought heavy selling into the market at the opening.

Low records for the year were established in the few minutes of trading by International Combustion at 37 1/4, Kolster Radio at 20 1/2, Yellow Truck at 21 and Warner Brothers pictures at 48 1/4, the losses ranging from 2 to 4 points.

The Same Old Tug o' War!

ARMS COURT PARLEY.

Paris, Oct. 4.—(AP)—It was understood here today that the British government already has prepared in-itations involving a five-power naval conference in London the third week in January. As Premier MacDonald reached the United States it was reported in international circles that the main difficulty in arriving at a tentative accord between Great Britain and the United States lay in two things. The first of these was a matter of total tonnage of cruisers which the United States wants to make as low as possible. The second had to do with the yard stick of measurement, which fundamentally is a question of how many 8-inch gun cruisers should be regarded as equaling one 8-inch gun cruiser. Six per cent of the world's population lives in the United States.

NEW NASH CAR IS INTRODUCED Twin-Ignition Straight Eight Is First of Its Kind in the World.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 4.—A twin-ignition straight eight—the first fine car of its kind in the world—led the imposing presentation of three new "400" Series models for 1930, introduced to the motoring public today by the Nash Motors Company. Built with the sound experience and the broad understanding of modern needs that has made Nash engineering a sterling standard of the American industry, these three entirely new lines of cars, on five wheelbase lengths and in three Nash price fields mark a startling advance in performance beyond any previous accomplishment, and serve to lift moderate priced motoring to its highest level of satisfaction. They appear as another fulfillment of C. W. Nash's undeviating ambition to supply at moderate cost automobiles which possess everything in appearance, performance, comfort and quality offered by the country's most costly cars and to develop finer cars as his thirty-seven years of successful manufacturing roll forward the record of industrial achievement. These new series of motor cars, in our opinion, are most worthy to carry forward the name Nash and the name "400," be used in commenting on the master work of his famous engineering department. "They are in every way worthy to succeed the first '400' of which we think and speak with so much pride—worthy successors to a great success. In every advanced feature, believe that they add something vitally finer to the efficiency and enjoyment of motoring." Three complete groups—the Twin-Ignition Eight, the Twin-Ignition Six and the Single Six—are included in this valuable Nash offering. All of the new models are equipped with motors so far advanced as to be considered a forecast of future fine car design, but based on engineering principles proved and enriched by practical service and national public approval. Highest standards in coach building are set by the new and finer Salon bodies, so carefully engineered to each type of car, and a score of important but perfectly co-ordinated advancements in design and equipment await the critical appraisal of experienced motorists. Introduction of the Nash Twin-Ignition Eight represents the product of more than three years intensive study and experiment by Nash engineers and one which embraces advancements in eight-cylinder design and performance not obtainable in any motor car built today. It is powered by an eight-cylinder, twin-ignition, valve-in-head, nine-bearing motor, with an integrally counter-balanced, hollow-pin crankshaft; with aluminum alloy Invar-strut pistons and aluminum alloy connecting rods capped at the crankshaft and with hardened steel, a motor that develops 100 horsepower in its 288.6 cubic inches of displacement and matches its amazing power and speed with surprising quietness, smoothness, ease of control and fuel economy. Nash Eight carburetion has been brought to peak efficiency through dual manifold and a new "high-high" speed jet that cuts in at 50 miles an hour to maintain maximum fuel economy in the higher ranges. New features of the Eight chassis include: steel sacketed and life-time-lubricated springs individually tailored to the weight of each car; cable-actuated, internal expanding 4-wheel brakes which are self-energizing both forward and backward; the world's finest, worm and roller steering system; automatic, thermostatically controlled radiator shutters; Bijur centralized lubrication system which automatically oils 21 chassis points including all spring shackles at the pressure of a convenient foot pedal; dash button starting control and numerous other advanced features which are equally impressive. Straightened hood lines, wheelbase lengths of 133 and 124 inches and a Salon body belt line give the Twin-Ignition Eight the long, low, powerful profile characteristic of the smartest of hand built custom cars while non-shatterable. Security glass in wind-protection. The new narrow-rim radiator design, handsome built-in shutters and the arched-in upper structure all unite to produce slender grace when the car is viewed head on.

BATTLE OF GERMANTOWN Today is the 152d anniversary of the famous Battle of Germantown which took place Oct. 4, 1777, between the Americans under Washington and the British and Hessians under Howe.

Washington opened the engagement early in the morning of the 4th and at first his army forced back the British and victory seemed almost certain. But the Americans became confused in the fog and opened fire on each other, while a body of English, who had taken refuge in a large stone house, in the rear, detained a part of the American forces.

The accident coupled with the continual firing in the rear, threw the American troops into confusion, but Washington succeeded in restoring order and led them from the field. The British lost 575 men and the Americans 673. Germantown, a former suburb of Philadelphia, since 1854 has been included within the municipal limits and now forms the 22d ward of the city.

CHEERING McNAB

It is doubtful if one ardent dry in a hundred will believe it, but it is our utter conviction that nine-tenths of the enthusiasm of the anti-prohibition press over the appointment of John McNab comes straight from the heart.

If Mr. McNab, brother of the celebrated Gavin McNab, is half as good as his reputation in California, he is completely qualified to accomplish the purpose of his appointment by President Hoover, which is to draw up a program under which prohibition enforcement may be stripped of its handicaps and made to function to the very limit of its possibilities.

There may be and probably are, here and there, newspapers whose opposition to prohibition is predicated on no finer or more worthy impulse than that of the souse who curses the Eighteenth amendment only because it makes his liquor worse and more troublesome to get. But the vast majority of those which decry Volsteadism, we are intimately convinced, are animated by a keen desire for the welfare of the nation and aspirations for the cause of true temperance and sobriety.

Almost every one of these is greeting the sane and efficient course of President Hoover with genuine rejoicing. All, we sincerely believe, want above all things to see as complete enforcement of prohibition as is possible under the Constitution of the United States. They want to see this experiment get the benefit of every ounce of energy and every measure of ability that can be lawfully applied to it. They want a 100 per cent test.

The men who dictate the policies of the hundreds of leading American newspapers are not debauchees. They are not victims of appetite. They are not enemies of the race and of civilization. They do not want to see the people betrayed and impoverished by liquor. They are not, above all things, playing to a gallery or propagandizing for an interest. They are fighting for their own conception of good order, good living and a good future for the nation.

Therefore they want this test to be complete, convincing beyond quibble. If prohibition cannot be enforced, they want to see something better, in the interest of temperance, take its place. If it can be enforced, then they want to see it enforced—believing that if it is enforced we shall have one of two results, either an entire readjustment of the habits and theories of tens of millions of American citizens to law-made conditions of alcoholic abstinence or a quick and effective mobilization of public sentiment against a deprivation which now only affects the few but which then would affect an enormous number of the well-to-do and influential who are now indifferent to it because it does not touch them.

BOULEVARD-STOPS

The full effectiveness of the boulevard-stop system of highway traffic control is called into question by the New Haven Register in connection with the proposed establishment of such a system from Bridgeport to Hartford by way of Farmington, Cheshire and New Haven. The Register does not oppose the system but foresees that merely compelling a car from a cross road to come to a full stop before entering an arterial highway would fall short of giving full right of way to the car on the boulevard. The Register thinks the cross-road car would be likely, after stopping, to jam its way into the stream of traffic without waiting for a suitable opportunity.

This, as nearly as we can learn, has not been the experience in those states, which, like Maine, merely require the full stop before entering the traffic artery. There is an element of psychology in the matter. Very few drivers, being forced into a mental condition of caution by an imperative stop sign, are going to emerge from that condition instantly. It is the rarely exceptional driver who ever gets into a collision or a jam of any kind within a few moments after starting his car ahead, under any circumstances. The crashes come, in the majority of cases, because he is already rolling and instinctively hates to stop.

Granting of absolute right of way to the arterial road car might possibly be a still further safeguard but we doubt if it can be proven without demonstration over a long period. Under the boulevard-stop system the driver on the main stem must still recognize that the cross-road driver has some rights and that a due amount of caution is required of the former.

Anyhow, the Boulevard-stop system would be a long advance over no system at all, and that's about where we stand now, with the right of way of the man on the right a dead letter.

NOW FACTS

Leading what appears to be an organized fight for the appointment of Hugh M. Alcorn as successor to Mabel Walker Willebrandt is Dr. Fred B. Smith, of White Plains, N. Y., chairman of the Citizen's Committee of One Thousand for Law Enforcement, a national organization of broad purposes believed to be largely responsible for President Hoover's choice of the Connecticut state attorney as the man to head prohibition enforcement.

In Springfield a day or two ago Dr. Smith flatly stated that Mr. Alcorn was put at the head of a list of five persons suggested by Mr. Hoover by the Committee of One Thousand at the President's request; that the President himself had obtained Alcorn's reluctant consent to take the job, and that the appointment was held up through the influence of J. Henry Roraback, Connecticut Republican leader, and Senator Hiram Blingham as the result of a political grudge. Now Dr. Smith directly asserts that it was President Hoover himself who made the statement that it was antagonistic Connecticut influence that had so far prevented Mr. Alcorn's appointment—and that this statement was made by President Hoover directly to Dr. Smith.

What has heretofore been the subject of more or less surmise, almost generally credited surmise, now takes on the aspect of fact. In view of the responsible quality of the head of the Committee of One Thousand, unless there is immediate denial of his statement from the White House itself the situation can be regarded as beyond the field of speculation and must be faced as a set of ascertained facts.

NO HAND-CLAPPING

Unless we are greatly mistaken there will be no tumult of applause throughout the country over the Treasury Department's backdown in the matter of custom house favors for high federal officials and members of Congress returning from abroad. The backdown is complete and is made in face of almost universal commendation, outside of official circles, of the orders of last June restricting the issue of expedite orders to officials bringing in the bodies of friends or hastening home because of illness or death in their families.

Under the new orders issued by the Treasury Department free entry is accorded to high government officials who have been abroad on federal business. We take it that under this ruling a returning diplomat might bring in half a million dollars worth of diamonds, duty free, for the fattening of his private purse. Furthermore, any high official who has been out of the country purely in pursuit of his own pleasure is to be extended the "courtesy of the port" on arriving here—which means that he can get his baggage and clear out, on his mere declaration as to dutiable goods, while all other passengers must take their turns with the customs inspectors.

This special privilege to federal officials and Congressmen has always seemed to the great majority of people to be without the slightest foundation in fairness and justice. There is even some question whether the Treasury Department has any strictly legal right to issue an order establishing any such privilege. Certainly there is no moral justification for it. It smacks a bit too strongly of the old practice of Austrian officers of pushing civilians off the sidewalk.

We are considerably surprised that Secretary Mellon has permitted this reversal of his department's recent policy—if he knew anything about it.

STONE MOUNTAIN

We can thoroughly understand the disgust of the Danbury News with the rowing of the Stone Mountain Association with the various artists it has employed in its scheme of sculpting the face of the mountain into a Confederate war memorial; the antics of the association have been unworthy of grown men and women. But we don't quite see the News' point that the whole enterprise was necessarily in bad taste and that at best it could only result in spoiling a good mountain to make a foolish looking monument.

Our impression has always been that the original conception of Sculptor Gutzon Borglum was really magnificent and that if he had been permitted to carry it out he would have created something of almost unparalleled grandeur.

We wonder if the News hasn't permitted its contempt for the picaresque character of the befuddled promoters to obscure the possible genius of the artist's conception. Gutzon Borglum is a highly temperamental and possibly difficult individual but we should hardly say that he would ever have left himself to any enterprise that, off-hand, could be condemned for bad taste. He is too discriminating and has too much self-esteem for that.

AT IT AGAIN

Albert B. Fall, described as amazingly well on the day he reached Washington to face his oil lease bribery trial, "leaned heavily on a cane" and "looked twenty years older than his age" when he was arraigned in the Washington court on Wednesday, so the dispatches say. Just as was expected, Albert is at it again.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 4.—Surveyors for social welfare organizations have discovered that, in addition to the nerve damage exacted by the routine noises of Manhattan, one of the most disturbing factors may be found in the sleep-destroying night noises and early morning cacophonies.

Certainly in no place outside a madhouse could a greater variety of dawn-destroyers be conceived. The shrill sirens of the fire engines, for instance, are never muted. And fires have a spectacular and disturbing way of breaking out just as the sun is swinging up from the East river. To anyone who has been in New York for more than six months, there is something about the whistlings, screechings and gong-rings of the fire trucks during the night which greatly affects the imagination. The tragedies of tenement fires are too common to wipe from the immediate memory. Lying snugly and warm in bed, it is not hard to be visited by a sort of nightmare which pictures the crowded dwellers of the slums trapped in their cages.

Meanwhile, from the various rivers which hem in this island comes the early morning chorus of strange whistles—sounds which range from a moaning fog siren to the shrill blasts of a tug going out to meet a daylight liner. The garbage men rattle their cans and the milkmen toss their bottles up stairways; trucks rattle by on their way to the waterfront, and before sleep can be recaptured, some early riser has turned on a phonograph and begun his daily dozen.

And yet millions of people choose to live here!

Another statistical report upon my desk bears the information that a fairly staggering number of books have just been published for the winter season. It is, I believe, a book record for America.

And, like so many mushrooms, new publishing houses spring up out of old.

This season, for instance, has seen the young Mr. John Farrar withdraw from Doubleday-Doran with Alan Rinehart to form the firm of Farrar and Rinehart. From the British publishing fields has come one Jonathan Cape to form the firm of Cape and Smith. The suave and youthful Elliot Holt, having withdrawn from the older Holt establishment, now operates a one-man concern. The brothers Boni, having split up in an argument, one finds A. Boni turning out his paper covered book club. And so it goes.

The theatrical field has seen a similar activity among youngsters and oldsters who suddenly felt the "call" of production. Abe Blatt, who was a mere publicity get a season or so ago, now wears his name in large type, thanks to the success of "Harlem," and steps forth this year with a novelty in the form of a subway murder mystery. And scanning a number of programs, I find myself looking at such relatively new names as Irving Lande, Lewis Genauer, and Lew Cantor, with many others in the offing.

HEALTH & DIET ADVICE

PROPER QUANTITIES OF DIFFERENT FOODS

This is the third of a series of articles giving condensed food classifications and rules for their use.

Protein Foods

These foods are perhaps the most important of any used by the body. The nitrogenous material contained in protein foods, together with their salts and vitamins, supply most of the tissue-building material in the body. The over-use of these foods has led to the exaggerated statements in favor of vegetarianism. However, there is no reason why the abuses in their use should induce anyone to prohibit their entire use. Temperance in the use of proteins as with all other foods is an important thing to be taken into consideration!

Starches

Pure starches are really unnecessary to the body's growth but, of course, many of the starchy foods contain other elements which the body can use. Most of my patients are denied all starchy foods while but our appetites have been developed so much for these foods that it seems wise to outline the best rules to be observed whenever starches are eaten. A good rule for everyone to follow in this regard is to use a very limited amount of starch—and to confine their use to one meal in a day, such as, possibly at luncheon, when a small amount of one kind of starch may be used, together with one or more cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables. No acid fruit or proteins should be used at this meal.

Non-starchy Vegetables

All of the foods listed as non-starchy may be used in large quantities. It is even often advisable to actually "stuff" on these foods in order to supply a large amount of bulk for the intestines to assist in overcoming constipation, which is such a universal cause of disease. I often advise patients to use one of the cooked, non-starchy vegetables with their breakfast, with such foods as eggs and stewed fruit. This takes the place of toast or bread, and supplies the needed amount of bulk.

Fats and Oils

These are good foods to be used in limited quantities with any of the other meals of the day.

Acid Fruits

One acid fruit meal a day may be used, but only one kind of fruit should be used at any one meal.

Stewed Fruits

One dish of stewed fruit daily is the minimum to be used, and the maximum not over two fair sized dishes, one dish to be used at each of two meals in a day.

Canned Spinach

Question: Mrs. J. E. S. writes: "I have heard that a certain mineral or element in spinach attacks the can (in the canned product) and draws off objectionable matter which makes it difficult for the kidneys to eliminate. Please explain, if this is so."

Answer:—I do not know of any injurious element which is developed in canned spinach. Of course, there have been many beliefs and rumors about all canned goods, but my investigations have shown that these reports have very little foundation in fact.

Eye Trouble

Question: J. H. writes:—"For some time I have been troubled with a swelling of my left eye. When I preside at the side or under it there is a discharge which seems to come from a pinpoint of an opening in my lower lid just as though there was a hair out. I have very little pain from it, but it would like if you could tell me what to do, as I am afraid it might cause some disease of the bone of my cheek or nose."

Answer:—It would be wise for you to consult an oculist and have him give his opinion about the cause of your trouble. If the treatment which he suggests does not help, write me again, giving me his diagnosis, and I will make whatever suggestions I think best.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The Kellogg peace treaties with several foreign nations are pending to pile up in the State Department basement along with some 800 other treaties which we have signed in something less than 150 years.

Beautiful things these treaties are, suitable for decorations in anyone's home. Foreign offices should just stick a treaty into an envelope and mail it off. Each document is elegantly bound in leather, between boards averaging 14 to 20 inches. The binding is the finest material, stamped with gold with all kinds of fancy designs and with the various national seals. In green and gold, black and gold and red and gold, the treaties are a rich-looking pile.

It's All Very Neat

They keep them down in the archives room in the basement, a nice, clean, cool room where you couldn't find a speck of dust. Only a few years ago most of these old documents were lying around in the sub-basement of the State, War and Navy building in a pile of debris. But their present home is in fire-proof boxes and floors. And each one has a dust-proof buckram box of its own.

Here you may see the very first treaty signed by the United States—a great case in a room with fire-proof doors and floors. This treaty, signed in 1778, worked fine during the Revolution, when we needed French help, but a few years later when France needed American help it became our first "scrap of paper." Yet expedition kept us from living up to it.

The Louisiana Purchase treaty was a gaudy thing in its day, with its great velvet covers and its over-laying network of golden sequins. The parchment within, in which the treaty was written, was adorned with scroll work and loops and whirlligs by a master penman. The document bears the signature of Bonaparte. Valleyrand, Robert Livingston and James Monroe, the ink of which has well stood the test of time. Napoleon's seal is on a big red wax plaque about six inches in diameter, set in a gold box which is tied to the bindings with a golden cord. Most of the old treaties of importance were bound in satin or velvet; today they nearly always come in leather.

A Dandy Whale's Tooth

These are some of the items in Miss Holland's collection. Take the big whale's tooth from the Fiji Island which the king of that country was naive enough to send to President Grant in the hope of getting some "thing" in return. Every politician in Washington knew that Grant required bigger and better gifts than

ROOSEVELT EIGHT TO BE DISPLAYED

Frank L. Hamby, export manager of the Marmon Motor Car Company, has sailed to attend this year's international automobile shows in London and Paris at which the Roosevelt Eight will be prominently displayed before the motor car leaders of England and the continent.
Mr. Hamby is an annual visitor at these exhibits as well as to every other outstanding automobile show the world over. His visit to London and Paris this season, however, holds greater importance than usual since the Marmon-Roosevelt line has gained a strong position abroad and sales have increased rapidly in practically every country where automobiles are the accepted mode of everyday travel.
Always appreciative of advanced steps in engineering, European motorists were quick to voice their approval of the Roosevelt straight-eight, which, even abroad, is priced considerably lower than any other car of its type. As a consequence, the Roosevelt is expected to attract more than usual attention granted American-made cars at the international displays.
The first of the two great foreign exhibits to be attended by Mr. Hamby is the Paris Salon, October 3 to 10. He will then travel to London for the Annual Olympic Show, the British counterpart of the French display.
Before returning to this country, Mr. Hamby will visit a number of Marmon-Roosevelt distributors in European countries. He will arrive back in the United States in time for the New York Automobile Show in January, an event that is attended each year by many foreign automobile dealers.
Aside from establishing an enviable European sales record this year, Marmon-built cars won signal prominence a short time ago through their participation in the automobile Elegance Contest at Bois de Boulogne, Paris. In this event, Marmon 68 roadster, Marmon 68 standard coupe and Roosevelt collapsible coupe were awarded prizes for their appearance, beauty of line and appointments; and their showing attracted great interest not only in France but in other European countries as well.

BLIND CONGRESS TO BE HELD SOON

Sightless Persons from All Over World to Meet in Vienna Later in Month.

Vienna, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The United States, South America, the British Empire, and every European state will be represented at the forthcoming International World Congress of Blind People, which will be held here during the month.
The Austrian government has placed the famous Belvedere palace, the town residence of the late Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Hapsburg, who, with his consort, were assassinated at Sarajevo in 1914, at the disposal of the delegates.
Two thousand delegates are expected in Vienna. The United States, Germany and Soviet Russia are expected to supply the largest contingents. Many of the delegates will be ex-servicemen, who, through the loss of their eyesight, are unable to find work. The delegates will demand that their governments shall no longer look upon them as burdens, but as respectable citizens, victims of fate.
Germany's Solution
It is stated that Germany already has found a solution of her "blind" problem. Schools for the blind have been opened in all parts of the country at which various crafts are taught to the sightless. Some of the successful blind have qualified for high public functions. One of the most distinguished professors of theology at Berlin University is blind. He was blind from childhood. Another professor of mathematics at Halle college came into the world with closed eyes. Today he ranks among the learned men of the republic. The dean of Breslau University is likewise blind.

Sixty per cent of the world's telephones, 15,500,000, are in the United States.

The Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

HELEN PAGE feels hopelessly in love with her handsome guardian, LEONARD BRENT. A chance meeting with a dying beggar, CHARLES NEELIN, causes Brent to change his plans for Helen's future. Soon after he tells the girl that according to a promise given her parents, he is now to reveal her identity and that she is the only grandchild of a millionaire, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM. Brent takes her to Cunatingham and offers proofs which the lonely old man accepts. Hoping to make up for the injustice done her mother, Cunningham shows the girl with affection and gifts and she learns to love him.

Among Helen's new friends are EVA ENNIS and her brother ROBERT who falls in love with her. Brent finds another locket which matches the one he had taken from Nellie to establish Helen as the heiress. He also becomes jealous of Bob and plots to secure the girl for himself quickly. Hearing of the doctor's sudden shock would kill the old man, Brent gets the servants out of the way and rushes into the sick room shouting wildly that Helen has been killed.

His plan works and when the attendant returns, Cunningham is dead. Then Brent appears as friend and former guardian of Helen and takes charge of arrangements.

Brent had amused himself by making love to Eva and now he tries to break off the affair without making Helen suspicious. Meanwhile, Bob is too proud to speak his love until a chance meeting breaks his reserve.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII
Bob took the dish Helen offered him and put it on a nearby table. His eyes had not left her face. Helen felt his gaze leveling the intangible barrier that a moment before had made them merely two hungry young creatures turning their search for food into a kitchen lark.

She knew that Bob had discovered something new in her—something that overwhelmed him. For his understanding glance had followed a look of slow-dawning surprise.

It was as though he saw her for the first time, and the vision he established in his mind flashed into his eyes the eternal truth of love. He saw the girl he knew he must have. Saw her without the forbidding background that had stopped him even before her subsequent indifference had made wanting her an idle aspiration.

Perhaps it was the domestic touch; perhaps the hint of laughter at the corners of her mouth—mating laughter, the soft, satisfied notes that are heard only in the intimacy of a happy exultation. Perhaps the effect of her appearance in an apron had something to do with it.

Whatever it was, Bob kissed her. Helen was gasping for breath when he released her. He had not let her go voluntarily. She had struggled out of his arms, though she was never to be without a yearning to return to them.

"Don't expect me to ask your forgiveness," Bob said as she stood off from him, desperately trying to control her voice for speed. "My love for you is something I will not apologize for."

In spite of the flood of despair that Helen felt engulfing her, she experienced a thrill of happiness over his declaration. This was no toy lover, to kiss and say "I'm sorry!"

"No," she said, "no, I would not want you to. Only..." Her choked utterance broke and left her helpless, with only her tear-filled eyes and unsteady lips to tell him that she must strike at his happiness.

"What is it?" Bob was ruthless with the rush of premonition that came to him.

Before Helen answered he burst out bitterly: "I didn't get so far as to imagine I could have you. Just wanting you was enough to blind me to reason."

"Yes, you were blind," Helen cried; "blind as could be, else you would have seen that I did not want this to happen."

Bob's answering laugh was as mirthless as a dirge. "So you anticipated it?" he asked.

Helen looked at him with unashamed honesty deep-seated in her unwavering gaze.

"I thought of it," she said simply.

"You say that, and expect me not to kiss you again?" Bob was a trifle wild.

Helen hesitated, drew in her breath sharply and said: "I expect you never to kiss me again."

Bob too hesitated, weighing her tense sincerity for its true value.

"I do not obey injunctions as blindly as I love," he threatened.

"I shall tell you why I make this one," Helen replied, fighting to keep her voice level and clear. "I am engaged to marry..." She stopped, unable to bring Brent's name to her lips.

Bob stood as though turned to steel. Across his eyes pale lines lashed back and forth like a shadow. Helen turned her face away and gulped back the sob that rose in her throat. His silence was an unbearable reproach.

"I thought once," she said with a fierce desire to defend herself, "that it would be... that I'd like to have you kiss me."

She heard him stir; hear his half-suppressed exclamation. She put out a hand. "Wait," she entreated. Bob did not move.

"That was when I first met you," Helen hurried on, scarcely aware of how she was bearing the truth between them; "but I... I thought I was in love with someone else."

"And you promised to marry him," Bob supplied, too painfully unhappy to be conscious of his lack of originality.

Helen's head dropped in assent.

"You can't keep such a promise now," Bob cried, reaching out to grasp her shoulders. His fingers sank deep into her flesh and Helen winced, but she did not struggle to free herself. "You can't, I say," Bob raved. "How do you know how I loved you? You thought you loved him! Don't you see what that means?"

"I've promised," Helen said weakly.

Bob's hands fell to hers, held them tight. "Helen," he pleaded, "Helen, why didn't you give me a chance? I love you so. I might have made you care for me a little."

Helen's lips twisted into the semblance of a smile. "Would it be right to marry on just a little love?" she asked.

"Better than on none at all," Bob declared. "And you don't love this man, I know you don't. Not even a little bit. You are mine Helen. Right now I could kiss you—no, don't pull away—I won't do it, but don't say you thought this wouldn't happen. Be fair to me. Three times we've been together—outside of casual meetings—and each time we've been drawn to each other as though one of us..."

He paused and laughed shortly. "Well, you are the magnet, dear."

Helen's hands had grown chill as ice in his grasp. His words frightened her—for in her heart she knew the answer. She loved him.

Love! Love! Love! She wanted to shriek it, but her throat was tight with pain. Love! She had called her school girl infatuation for Brent by that sacred name. She felt herself shaking with hysterical laughter, knew that in a moment it would peel out mockingly to betray her complete emotion.

Bob's arms opened her a haven. It was impossible to stave off her mounting hysteria and fight the temptation to have him hold her close at the same time.

And she wanted to be there, her head on his shoulder, forgetting her mistakes. Surrender was too sweet to be resisted.

The instant she lost her battle Bob's arms slipped about her. But he did not kiss her now and she lay passive until the soft, broken sob gave way to easier breathing and the beating of her heart was less the pounding of a trip-hammer.

Then she lifted her hands, placed the palms against his cheeks and raised her head to press her lips to his. Bob needed no words from her to interpret that kiss for him. It sent the message of her love to him more convincingly than anything else could have done.

"And yet he knew that it was a farewell caress. The bitter-sweet anguish that filled Helen's heart flowed somehow into his own.

When she drew away from him he did not seek to hold her. The old knowledge that he could not possess her had caught him in its grip again and he was helpless against the inevitableness of their parting.

"I love you, I love you, I love you," the words pounded over and over against Helen's quivering lips but she refused them utterance.

Bob would know—it would be easier if she did not say it.

"Helen," he pleaded in a rush of despair, "you aren't going through with it? You aren't going to marry anyone else?"

"I must, if he still wants me," Helen told him.

"Of course he will want you! But can't you see what a beast that would make him if you tell him you don't love him? How can you think of marrying such a man?"

Helen could not restrain a faint smile. "Perhaps you misjudge him," she said, "and he may not care so much as you think."

"You know in your heart that he does," Bob retorted.

"But I mean to tell him about this," Helen appealed him, "and ask him to break our engagement."

Bob looked deep into her eyes before answering. "You kissed me goodby a moment ago and you are quiet. We both knew that, Helen. Why do you try to deceive me with false hopes now?"

"Oh, I'm not, I'm not," Helen cried. "I'm telling you all the truth. I'm afraid. You have, in a way, called all men beasts, for you say any man could seek to hold me—hold the girl he loved—whether she cared for him or not."

"You knew you would have to refuse me before I said that," Bob answered.

Helen swayed against him and he fought with himself to keep from crushing her to his breast.

"Yes," she admitted scarcely above a whisper. "Yes, I knew that, Bob."

"How?"

"I don't know. It was just a feeling, but I'm daring to hope that I am wrong—that we will be allowed to take our happiness."

"That's up to you," Bob retorted rather harshly. "This isn't the day for foolish mistakes about love. Helen, if you are sure about yourself—if you know that you do not love this man—it is unforgivable of you to marry him."

Helen tried to hold her honest gaze with one as equally frank, but she knew that the complexity of her situation was worlds removed from the direct path he pointed out to her.

There was, for instance, the debt she owed to Leonard Brent.

The flight will cover approximately 900 miles, somewhat longer than the direct air line route, as the course outlined West west of the many islands along the Alaskan and British Columbia coast. The flyers expect to reach Seattle after 24 hours of flying.

Hints On How To Keep Well

TROUBLED NERVES CAN HAVE BAD EFFECT ON STATE OF HEALTH.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Bureau of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Almost 10 years ago Professor W. E. Cannon of Harvard University published a book on bodily changes in love, hunger and rage, in which he emphasized the evidence that has been developed in various places indicating that emotions have definite effects on the physical actions of the body. In 1908 it was known that the movements of the intestines would be stopped if a person showed signs of anxiety, distress or anger. Since that time Cannon has studied the subject intensively, particularly with a view to finding the mechanism by which such action takes place.

The public realizes that the mental state of the individual does have a definite effect on its activities, and for this reason far too often people resort to fatiguing physical exercises to change the mental state when it seems likely that the physical condition cannot otherwise be controlled.

The scientific side of medicine has for almost a century emphasized the actual changes that may be observed in the body after death, and medical diagnosis demands scientific recognition of such changes.

The human being differs from the animal in the development of his brain, hence the behavior of the human being is not always the same as that of the animal that takes place in the animal following a definite stimulation. Whenever a human being expresses fear, joy or grief, certain physical responses occur. If a person feels happy, he is likely to smile and in smiling the laughing certain muscles of his face will take certain positions. In some forms of paralysis affecting one-half the brain, the patient is unable to move the face on the paralyzed side.

There are, however, certain movements which are involuntary; that is, they are controlled from the nerve centers without the patient's wish. In case such a patient has an emotional reaction, the side of the face which is usually without expression will reveal a simple, mechanical response that takes place in the animal following a definite stimulation.

Professor Cannon points out that an evening's meal may remain undigested all night in the stomach if there is persistent worry. The saliva, the gastric and the pancreatic juices responsible for digestion do not flow when a person is worried or frightened.

Eminent clinicians estimate that anywhere from one-third to one-half of all the people who suffer with digestive disturbances have disordered emotional states and the digestive disturbance is relieved when the emotional condition is restored to normal. These facts should not be taken as a warrant for disregarding physical causes or for neglecting physical measures in treatment. The assumption that emotional agencies are causing the disturbances, Professor Cannon believes, should always be held as a last resort.

Sister Marys Kitchen

BY SISTER MARY

An excellent ice-box dessert for children that is festive enough to take the place of ice cream for a birthday party is found in "Graham Cracker Roll Supreme."

Each slice can be decorated with birthday candles. Each small guest in turn blows out the candles on his dessert and makes a wish for the small host or hostess.

The dessert is not too rich and has the advantage of being prepared the day before wanted. It also answers for both ice cream and cake.

Graham Cracker Roll
One pound graham crackers, 1 pound dates, 1/2 pound marshmallows, 1 cup nut meats, cream.
Wash and stone dates. Any kind of nuts except peanuts can be used. Put crackers, dates, nuts and marshmallows through the food chopper, alternating the ingredients to prevent chopper from becoming clogged. Turn into a large mixing bowl and work with a wooden spoon, adding cream to make mixture moist enough to hold together. Shape into a roll about three and one-half inches in diameter and put on a platter. Put in refrigerator to chill and become firm. Allow at least twelve hours for the roll to chill.

Cut in slices about one-half inch thick and serve with a garnish of whipped cream.

Dates are a natural sweet, perfectly harmless for children. Since the nuts are very finely chopped there is practically no danger of their being indigestible for children.

Graham crackers are the children's "brown" and marshmallows are a pleasant confection. Cream is one of the most easily digested fats. So taking the roll in whole or in part, it's an ideal dessert for children as young as five years of age.

Soft, wavy hair!

The modern sculptured bobs do wonders to bring out your personality. But like other present-day modes of arranging the hair, they call attention to it. That's why it's so important nowadays to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant. The easiest and quickest way to give new lustre and color to hair which has begun to look dull and lifeless, is with Danderine. And it makes the hair softer, easier to arrange; holds it in place.

Here's all you do. Each time you use your brush just put a little Danderine on it. It removes the oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color; gives it more gloss than brilliantine. Waves "set" with it stay in longer.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It stops falling hair. A small bottle is enough to show its merit. Start on it tonight.

YOUR CHILDREN

Schools can't cover all the ground and give to children all the knowledge in life.

A child going to school learns many facts; he learns about the world, its countries and people, in his geography; he learns about the things these people have done in the past in his history; and he learns many other things; but not all the things. That would be impossible.

There is other knowledge to be gained besides that which the school teaches him, and in one way it is the biggest of all. It is knowledge of the world about him. Things going on every week, every day, every hour, at home, in other cities, other states, and across the sea.

Schools haven't time for everything. Learning in school, and out of school, is the biggest of all. It is knowledge of the world about him. Things going on every week, every day, every hour, at home, in other cities, other states, and across the sea.

Learning in school, and out of school, is the biggest of all. It is knowledge of the world about him. Things going on every week, every day, every hour, at home, in other cities, other states, and across the sea.

So many things are occurring every day of vibrating interest and vital importance. History isn't past—it's present! Dead history is interesting—living history is life. There are thousands of other interesting things, too, in the way of general information that children should know. Things about trees, houses, animals, the weather, music, mills, textiles, farming, mines, bridges, water-power, bridges, courts, kings, architecture, printing, sculpture—over-thing under the sun.

Where can it get it all in school. Where can they get it, then? For their parents, and from books, magazines, and newspapers.

Don't allow them to read stories constantly. Try to get them into the habit of reading for information also. There are fascinating sets of books full of general information arranged especially for children to understand.

Dinner Hour Forum
It is amazing how much they can pick-up by just talking about things at the dinner table. Every family table should be a sort of forum. It shouldn't be difficult to arrange things so that a meal can be peaceful and quiet enough for conversation.

Children should be trained out of the habit of talking about personalities and themselves, and cultivate the bigger outlook. Minds cluttered with petty grievances about what someone said or did, or with things they want, or can't have, aren't in a receptive condition for knowledge.

Parents can give children a liberal education right at home and incidentally have not only a great deal of pleasure in doing so, but the opportunity to gain much knowledge themselves.

WHEAT SITUATION
Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The dominance of wheat as a farm relief issue stood out today in the Senate agriculture committee's examination of the views, policies and records of the Federal Farm Board membership.

Progress of the hearing, which is intended to pave the way toward confirmation or rejection of the President's nominees, pointed definitely toward the conflict of views over the right way to handle the wheat situation as the one most likely to cause a bitter dispute in the Senate.

The WOMAN'S DAY

A man was explaining to me a new idea he was sure would fill a much-needed want in our present day existence.

He proposed a furniture exchange, like an automobile exchange—you could turn in your last year's furniture and buy this year's models, allowing a certain percentage for wear and depreciation.

Said he: "A man takes pride in driving the newest model in a car, and to have the newest improvements on it. He likes other people to know that he is progressive. Now why should his wife use the same furniture year after year, when newer and handsomer pieces are being turned out? Why not exchange a dining room set when one is tired of it, and have the latest style?"

"There are folks today using the furniture they bought when they started to keep house a quarter of a century ago. They aren't wearing the same clothes, are they? This is an age of progress."

WHAT ABOUT ANTIQUES?
"Do you think women want constantly to be changing?" I asked. "Don't you suppose they get attached to their possessions, and care for them? And don't you care for them? And don't you know that many women, who can, buy antiques just because they like the mellowness and the association that only time can give?"

"That's all right," he agreed. "We could have antiques, too. A woman could change her antiques when she got tired of them—the point is, people want to change. They want variety. This is an age of progress."

The man was thoroughly sold on this idea; he is a clever promoter, and I shall not be surprised to see him put the idea into effect, and start an effective program of advertising that will make women self-conscious about their furnishings, and as unwilling to be out of style in cosmetics as in coats.

THE HUMAN SIDE
This recalled a sad scene I once witnessed, of a little old lady, unassertive and bewildered, whose furniture was being disposed of by two daughters who had all the assurance she lacked.

"You are too old to live alone, mother," said one. "You can have a room at my house and one at Grace's and you can spend your time between our homes as you will."

"And we will call in the second-hand man to dispose of all this heavy, old furniture. You won't need it any more. I should think you would be glad to see the last of this heavy black walnut stuff, that needs a truckman to move. And these old carpets—at our homes you will have nice clean hardwood floors and rugs—"

And so they went on. And between them, they completely transplanted the old mother from the possessions of a lifetime, quite disregarding the heartbreaking appeal of her agonized face. The daughters meant well, and thought they were being sensible in dealing with a sentimental old lady.

They could not, or would not, realize that that black walnut furniture had been bought piece by piece in a day when they represented the stability and beauty every housewife craved. It had been saved for, shopped for and cared for. It was the background against which the family drama had been played.

LOVE OF OLD THINGS
Some people have a definite attachment for things as well as for people. An old rocker in which a mother has rocked her babies one by one, and that has stood in a certain spot for years, is something more than just wood and cane.

This old sense of association is dying out in this fast age, when we move into a new apartment of every few years, and refurnish every few years. Maybe the time is not far ahead, when we will buy our furniture, as we do our cars, and turn back the old models each year—but I hate to see it come.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL SHELLS ARE READY TO INFLICT DAMAGE

Gunners Train Sights on Targets All Along Atlantic Seaboard Tomorrow Afternoon.

By HERBERT BERKER

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—There'll be firing football shells over the Atlantic seaboard tomorrow, but the real victory will lie with the schedule makers, just as it did last Saturday.

The former "Big Three" and Lafayette open their activities against minor opposition. Yale meets Vermont; Harvard plays Bates and Princeton with Amherst.

Penn. hopes to make a better showing against Swarthmore than it did against Franklin and Marshall but Columbia will be fairly satisfied if Union falls down easily as Middlebury did. Cornell plays a Niagara team that held Penn State to a 16 to 0 count and Dartmouth's steamroller is ready to make mincemeat of Hobart. Rhode Island wouldn't object to pulling a "springfield" at Brown's expense but the chances are all against it. Army takes on Gettysburg without anxiety and Navy has done no worrying over the William and Mary contest. Syracuse figures to do about as well against St. Lawrence, but New York University has little hope of getting more than 35 points against West Virginia Wesleyan at the Polc-Grounds.

A better than average Rutgers eleven hopes for a field day against Delaware and Pen State should get no more than a Labanon Valley. While Pittsburgh is meeting Duke at Durham, N. C., Carnegie Tech will do the entertaining in the steel city, meeting Thiel.

Fordham meets St. Bonaventure which do not appear to be evenly matched. Boston College meets another strong small college in Maine. Holy Cross should have no trouble with Providence. Williams should clean up Middlebury, but Wesleyan seeks all sorts of trouble with the Connecticut Aggies.

Lateral Replaces Forward On Yale Eleven Practices

New Haven, Oct. 4.—Albie Booth the diminutive sophomore back, who is expected to furnish many of the thrills of Yale's coming football season, was not on the first team yesterday in its long supervised scrimmage. Charlie Sneed being at left halfback, and Bob Wilson at quarterback. He was in at quarterback later, however, when Coach Stevens made a few substitutions and had a fifteen minute scrimmage with the scrubs.

The varsity won the short scrimmage 15 to 0. Herb Miller going over for touchdowns twice on short line plunges and Booth making a dropkick for goal after touchdown the only time he tried.

The lateral pass was prominent in the supervised scrimmage and worked almost perfectly in the first workout in which it has been especially stressed. The forward pass was ignored in the practice. With the lateral pass added to its stock of plays, Yale's attack against Vermont tomorrow should be the most surprising and varied offensive that a crowd of Yale rooters has seen used by a Yale eleven.

Other changes which were made in the line-up just previous to the real scrimmage which was held in full view of the few spectators who braved the cold weather to come to the field, put Mark Tyson at left end for Johnny Godman, Johnny West at right end for Johnny Walker, Truxton Hare Jr., at left guard for Fred Lesser, Ned Austen at left halfback for Sneed, and Booth at quarterback for Wilson.

This team had an easy time marching through the scrubs, the first touchdown coming after a march for fifty yards, and the second being made after an advance of 95-yards. As usual, Herb Miller and Albie Booth were the big guns of the varsity attack.

SPORTORIALS

HERO-WORSHIP

THE chief criticism of American sports has always been that most people participate in them as spectators rather than as players.

Several million people will enjoy our college football games this autumn—but only a few hundred will do any of the playing. The rest will sit in the grandstand and watch.

It is the same with baseball. Millions of people are extremely fond of the game—but not one in a thousand ever plays. Most of us get our baseball at second-hand, watching someone else get the exercise that we might be getting.

Now, however, comes Dr. A. B. Brill, famous psychiatrist, to say that this state of affairs is altogether proper.

Writing in the current North American Review, Dr. Brill declares that sitting in the grandstand is good for us—better for us, in fact, in most cases, than actually playing the games themselves.

Here's the way he explains it: The average man has an itch for athletic supremacy. He longs to display physical prowess. But the cards are stacked against him. It simply isn't in him. No matter how hard he tried, he could never make a good athlete.

Yet his spirit demands that he become one. So he goes to a baseball game as a spectator and subconsciously identifies himself with the men on the field. When Babe Ruth slams the ball over the scoreboard the fan, in the secret recesses of his heart, does the same thing himself. He shares in Ruth's triumph. His psychic urge for supremacy is satisfied—and he is, actually, healthier than he would have been if he had stayed at home.

Perhaps this explains more things than our fondness for watching baseball, football and boxing contests. It may explain, also our age-old tendency to be hero worshippers in other walks of life.

Lindbergh, for instance, did something that none of us can ever do, but that all of us, secretly, would like to do. He triumphed over darkness, loneliness and fear. Quite aside from the mechanics of flying, we know that we ourselves could never do that. We should not have the nerve. So we transfer our desires to Lindy's shoulders, and share in his victory.

Then there was a president named Roosevelt. He was the very thing that we would like to be and are not. He was outspoken, always. He feared neither man nor devil. He had a genius for defying powerful people, powerful forces.

We know most of us, anyhow—are too submissive for our own good, and we know it. But Teddy—couldn't we identify ourselves with him, bare our teeth when he bared his, thundred when he thundred, rage when he raged? We could and we did; and Roosevelt, in consequence, was idolized by millions of people.

It'll be a long time before the race gets over its hero worship. If the day comes when all men are brave, honest, fair-minded and energetic, the Roosevelts and Lindberghs will lose their luster—just as Babe Ruth and Red Grange wouldn't excite a race of athletes.

Until then, however, most of us will have to take our triumphs at second-hand.

Cubs Irish In Color If Not In Personnel

Smiling Pete Happenny Paints Shoes and Head-gears Favorite Shade of the "Ould Sod."

Pete Happenny.

If color means anything, the town champion Cubs are likely to be mistaken for the "Fighting Irishmen" of Notre Dame when they trot out Mt. Nebo field Sunday afternoon to tackle the powerful New Britain Blues. At least the nationality angle will be as plain as day.

In other words, the Cubs' uniforms with the exception of the pants will be green. The jerseys were green anyway, but now Assistant Manager Pete Happenny has conceived the idea of applying a coat of green duc to the headgears and shoes. He has been doing the work himself, and it must be admitted that the equipment looks snappy even though the procedure may be a bit unusual. "Pop" Reggetts has printed the word "Cubs" across the front of the headgears in white letters.

And so the Cubs will be Irish in color if not in personnel. One glimpse through the lineup of the Iowa changes reveals about as many players of that nationality as there are in Greenland. There's more Irish in Pete Happenny than in the rest of the team put together. Certainly you can't call these good old Celtic names—Konecki, Minnicuel, Yen-trillo, and most of the others miss the target by just about as wide a margin.

Asst. Mgr. Happenny, the good-natured hard-working co-pilot of the Cubs is also contemplating having the pants dyed green—but has decided to await the fans' reaction toward the first installment of self-enforced green. The work of applying the several coats of duc to the shoes and headgears has been done by Mr. Happenny himself. The leather arrival of the maroon hoot-jackets, ordered before the start of the season is anxiously awaited by Cub officials. Happenny said last night that the order would be shipped from New York to Hartford by airplane today.

ISHBEL MACDONALD MAY SEE BASEBALL

Washington, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The wish to see a baseball game expressed on the Atlantic by Ishbel MacDonald may be gratified while her father is visiting President Hoover.

The Prime Minister's daughter was not sure that the pleasure could be arranged, but any steps to that end will be supported by Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Club. Through the Evening Star, he offered the British visitors the President's box for the Saturday or Sunday games with the Boston Red Sox which closes the season.

Who Will Be The Hero Of 1929 World Series

BY BILLY EVANS

How They Stand

Who will be the world series hero of 1929? Since the series started in 1903, remarkable individual feats have been performed. Let us consider the heroes of each year, starting with 1903.

In 1903, Pitcher Bill Dinneen of Boston stood out. He won three games from Pittsburgh, setting a record that has been tied but never beaten. In a pinch, he struck out two batters in the National League's greatest batter to help save the day, Dinneen is now a valued member of the American league staff of umpires.

There was no series in 1904, the Giants refusing to play the Boston Americans.

Christy Mathewson, now dead, was the big noise in 1905. He thrice blanked the hard-hitting Athletics in that series.

Given no consideration in the 1906 pre-series, George Ruhe, a Chicago White Sox substitute, made possible a victory over the supposedly invincible Cubs—two triples, delivered in a pinch with runners on, helped decide two games and win the championship.

Mordec Brown's Pitching of the Chicago Cubs, who then tied with Mathewson as the outstanding pitcher of the National League, hogged both series by his super-pitching against Detroit. In doing the Cubs two victories almost a out.

The rookie Babe Adams with three victories over Detroit pulled the big surprise in 1909. Little figured, he was selected by Fred Clarke to start, also finish the series for Pittsburgh. He stood the Tigers on their heads with his great curve ball.

Eddie Collins, with his great work in the field and at the bat, took the spotlight in the decisive victory the Athletics handed the Cubs in 1910.

Baker's Homers Frank Baker with his two home runs off Christy Mathewson and Rube Marquard, in 1911, won for him—the title of "Home Run" Baker. Both hits were the deciding blows in their games.

Joe Wood with three victories for Boston over the New York Giants captured the honors in 1912. The almost unknown Hugh Bedient ran him a close second for pitching honors.

It was Eddie Collins again in 1913 because of his .421 batting average, only eight points less than his swat record which won him the hero title in 1911.

Hank Gowdy sprang to great heights in 1914 as a member of the lowly Boston Braves, who beat the supposedly invincible Athletics four straight. Batting around .250 during the season he hammered the ball for .525 mark in the series.

In 1915, Duffy Lewis featured with a couple of home runs. Dutch Leonard, with his pitching, in 1916 and Red Faber of Chicago, with three victories over the New York Giants, in 1917, stood out.

George Whitman, a substitute outfielder, playing much the same role as did George Ruhe of the White Sox in 1906; by his batting and fielding helped Boston defeat the Chicago Cubs in 1918.

If there was a hero in the much discussed 1919 Cincinnati-Cleveland series of 1919, won by Cincinnati, it was Dutch Ruether, who did some mighty good pitching.

Covey's Hurling Stanley Coveleskie, with three wins over Brooklyn in 1920, giving Cleveland its first world championship, gets the call, although the

Harry Ebbetts Scores Most Impressive Kayo

New York, Oct. 4.—Sid Terris, erstwhile ring phantom of the east coast, failed last night in his most serious attempt to stage a comeback in the ring of Madison Square Garden the remnant of a once brilliant boxing product went down to defeat before Stanislaus Loayza of Chile in a disappointing battle before 10,000 fans.

Referee Mike Hyias and Judges Tommy Shertell and Joe Agnello collaborated in the decision, which was justified. Loayza took five rounds, Terris four, and one, the second was even. Terris looked impressive early in the fray, when he showed flashes of his old-time skill. But this soon developed into a disorganized retreat.

It took the stolid Chilean six rounds actually to catch up with Terris, but when he did he made a good job of it. Loayza's studied aggressiveness stood out, and then through the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth rounds, he flashed the determined fighting which earned him the decision. Loayza weighed 137 pounds and Terris 134 1/2.

Referee Mike Hyias and Judges Harry Ebbetts, Freeport's hard-hitting middleweight, scored the most impressive local victory of his career when he knocked out Nick Testo, sturdy Troy middleweight. The end came in the ninth round of a scheduled semi-final when Referee Jim Crowley stepped between the combatants at a time when Testo was rocking helplessly about the ring.

GORDON COCHRANE ZACH TAYLOR

In Gordon Cochrane, the Athletics have the best catcher in the majors. Last year he was voted the most valuable player in the American league.

Has continued that reputation throughout the 1929 season. The margin of Cochrane over Bishop in the place for the Cubs catchers is as wide as Hornsby's edge over Bishop in the second.

Cochrane is a collegian, learning baseball among other things at University of Boston. Also starred in football and has to his record a 60-yard goal from field as a "Rah Rah."

A left-handed batter, always a 300 hitter, he is one of the most dangerous men at the plate in the American League. Give considerable credit for the fine showing on the Philadelphia pitchers to Cochrane's mastery handling.

Has a fine arm and gets the ball away quickly. There is no more courageous player in baseball. He never quits and woe to the pitcher who is about to weaken with Cochrane doing the catching.

Such a pitcher is in for a tough lashing he will never forget. Bank on one thing in the play of the Athletics, Cochrane will hold up the catching end of the game.

Has played with four National league clubs.

"BRUTE STRENGTH" MAY BE SUPERIOR TO KEEN STRATEGY

Few Solid Hits Have Often Been Known to Overthrow Most Cunning Plans.

By ALAN GOULD

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—If the tactics of a baseball sage and master craftsman guiding the play of his youthful talent by the wig-wag of a score card; if strategy, in other words, develops as a vital factor in the forthcoming world series, the Athletics seem likely to have the advantage of the Cubs.

It may contribute nothing to the advancement of science for "brute" force to triumph, yet it is a well-known baseball fact that a few solid base hits can overthrow the most cunning strategy. For that reason the clouting Cub circus probably is not worried by the threat of being outsmarted by Connie Mack. The Yanks have given ample proof that the homerun represents one of the cleverest methods of offsetting many maneuvers.

Nevertheless, the Athletics start with the benefit of Mack's long experience, his skillful player manipulation, in a short series where every move counts.

For that matter the Cubs can do plenty of heavy thinking, or contribute any inside stuff on their own account with General Joe McCarthy in command. Colonel Jimmy Burke nearby for advice and Hornsby on the field to toss his experience in with that of Field Captain Charles Grimm.

McCarthy was a school kid, playing on the sand lots of Philadelphia, when Connie Mack managed his first championship club in 1902.

Even McGraw yields in technique to Mack who controls the moves of every player with his famous score card, although he has denied the legend that he directs every pitch.

The pitching strategy is much more complicated for Mack than it is for McCarthy.

The A's may defy the Cub murderers row of righthand batsmen with their star lefthander Groves, at the outset if they may rely on one big right-hander Earnshaw.

It is all much simpler for McCarthy who has a logical starter in Pat Malone, the ironman member of an almost exclusively righthanded curving corps. Malone in fact can pitch every other game until the series is decided with Guy Bush and Charley Root to fill in the gaps.

This would reduce the Cubs pitching strategy to a minimum.

CUBS AGAIN BEAT REDS; SCORE IS 8-1

Major League baseball outpointed the weatherman yesterday but easily lost all decisions to the fans who refused all along the line to give the turnstiles a workout. The Cubs and the Reds again had the National League stage to themselves, and the Bruins seized the opportunity to win another game and so to forge ahead of the Hendricks forces in the series by two decisions to one. The score was 8 to 1. Joe McCarthy divided his box work among three men, Hal Carlson, Art Nehf and Pat Malone. The Bruins nosed out the Indians by 3 to 2 in ten innings through two later rallies against Willis Hudlin, and retained a chance to tie the Peck's club for third place. In the other American League game, Ted Lyons pitched the White Sox to a 3 to 1 victory over Detroit at Chicago.

150 Years After, Nation Plans Honors For Polish Hero Who Gave Life For U. S.

Many Cities to Honor General Pulaski in October.

Poles and Americans alike will pay tribute early in October to the memory of General Casimir Pulaski, Polish count, revolutionist and soldier of fortune, who lost his life fighting for liberty of the United States when he was only 31 years old.

The daring young officer was mortally wounded while leading both the American and French cavalry in a general assault on the British lines in the siege of Savannah, Ga., on Oct. 8, 1779.

The British met the advancing cavalry with volley after volley, and one shot struck Pulaski in the side, hurling him from his horse. He died two days later, aboard the United States brig Wasp, which lay at anchor in the nearby harbor and was buried at sea.

General Pulaski's heroism so deeply impressed the nation that Congress voted him a monument, but it has not yet been erected. It is proposed to build one from all over the world which will attend the ceremonies in Savannah, Oct. 9, 10 and 11, in honor of Pulaski.

On various other days in October, Poles in the United States will hold special local ceremonies honoring the memory of the famous general.

As a mere boy, Pulaski threw himself into the struggle for Polish liberty. At 21 he stirred up a revolt in Lithuania against the tyrannical Russians, who were gradually crushing out Poland's national life.

He was commander-in-chief of the Polish Army of Independence at 22. But as the result of a series of mishaps, he was forced to flee to France. In Paris, he met Benjamin Franklin who gave him letters of introduction to American leaders in the revolution in this country.

Young Pulaski joined Washington's army as a volunteer and so distinguished himself in his first battle at Brandywine — that

The proposed Pulaski monument at Savannah, Ga., and a sketch of the famous Polish hero.

Fell While Fighting Against British at Savannah.

As a cavalry leader he performed many dashing exploits in Pennsylvania and New Jersey and would have accomplished much more but for ill-feeling that sprang up in his troops, some of whom did not like to receive orders from a foreigner who could scarcely speak their own language.

Pulaski threw over his command and persuaded Washington to give him a body of light infantry and cavalry and enlist for prisoners and deserters. The count was made commander of the corps of 350 troops, which was known as the Pulaski Legion. With this odd following he harried the British.

He went south and, despite ill health brought on by the heat and the steaming marshes, won new laurels in Charleston, S. C., the British stronghold in Savannah and other points.

Then came the regular siege of the British stronghold in Savannah in which Pulaski's brilliant work brought him added fame — and death.

Football Briefs

New Haven.—Yale's attack so far as it has been shown in practice, is at least consistent. The Elis marched 50 yards for one touchdown against the scrubs yesterday and 95 yards for the next.

Buckhamton, W. Va.—Floods nearly stopped the West Virginia Wesleyan team when the Bobcats started for New York for Saturday's game with N. Y. U. But it takes more than mere water to put them out of action. They obtained motorboats for the first part of their trip.

Providence.—Brown's prospects are looking up a bit. Lincoln Fogarty, star Bruin back, took part in his first scrimmage yesterday and showed he is in shape to play a real game.

Annapolis.—Navy evidently is expecting to do some forward passing this week. The two best receivers in yesterday's drill were assigned the end positions, while Gannon, who does the passing was posted at quarterback.

Hanover.—Jackson Cannell seems to be satisfied with the work of his team. The scrimmage yesterday was devoted almost entirely to the reserves.

SETTLING THE POINT IN GOLF

Moving Objects. Any flat stick, guide flag, movable guide post, wheelbarrow, tool, roller, grass cutter, box vehicle or similar obstruction may be removed from the course without penalty. If the ball is moved while moving the obstruction, it may be replaced. However, if the ball lies in a hazard under such circumstances, it must be dropped in the hazard.

Provisional Ball. If a player thinks he has driven out of bounds, he may at once play another ball. If it is discovered, however, that his first ball is not out of bounds, it shall continue in play without penalty. The provisional ball saves delay.

Casual Water. If a ball on the putting green lies in casual water, if casual water intervenes between a ball lying on the putting green and the hole, the ball may be played where it lies or may be lifted without penalty and placed by hand either within two club lengths directly behind the spot from which the ball was lifted, or in the nearest position to that spot which is not nearer the hole and which affords a putt to the hole without water intervening.

If the ball lies so near casual water that the water interferes with the player's stance, it may be treated as if it lay in casual water. When Ball Hits Truck. If a ball lodge in anything moving such as a truck or cart, a ball shall be dropped. However, if a ball in motion be stopped or deflected by any agency outside the match or by a forecaddie the ball shall be played from the spot where it lies.

WESLEYAN READY FOR CONN. AGGIES

Middletown, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—In preparation for the game tomorrow with the Connecticut Aggies, Coach Bill Wood of the Wesleyan football team today shook up the lineup of his team. The return of Bill Coffin, star guard, who had been called away by his father's illness, will greatly bolster the Cardinal and Black defense.

Gray and Frescolom, ends; Schwenk and Lum, tackles; Scoffin and O'Brien guards, and Miller at center will start in the line. In the backfield will be Millsbaugh, Blakeslee, Striebenger and Tirrell.

Poison Sumac Branches Gathered by Gay Collectors of Autumn Trophies.

Among the chief of the roadside beauties of the fall in this vicinity is the poison elder, sometimes known as the poison sumac. This slender tree has foliage which in the autumn seems unrivaled for beauty and its leaves often attract motorists. Cars have been seen recently passing through the neighboring villages with boughs of the elder which had been gathered lavishly to carry home to decorative purposes. Probably the admirers of the beautiful leaves have by this time repented of their gay enthusiasm, since the poison resulting from this foliage is said to be even more virulent than that from poison ivy. The latter may be seen everywhere adorning walls and fences and also makes a tempting bait for gatherers of autumn leaves. It can be distinguished from the Virginia creeper by its three-part leaves. The poison sumac grows in a small tree and its leaves resemble that of the ordinary roadside sumac. Much of it may be seen on the road to Willimantic through Columbia.

ANCIENT CUSTOMS SLIPPING IN CHINA

Oriental Have Gone Air-Minded; Passenger and Mail Route Organized.

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS
A. P. Correspondent.

Shanghai, China, Oct. 4. (A.P.)—China has gone air-minded. Along with the abolition of pig tails, the practice of binding the feet of baby girls and a dozen and one other ancient customs, the wheelbarrow and the ricksha are beginning to give way to more modern means of transportation. And it is only natural that China should take to the air. Probably no other country in the world offers such a fertile field for aviation development.

China's entrance in the field of aviation on a large scale is comparatively recent. The military of the country has been acquainted with flying machines for several years ever since the World War, various factions have purchased airplanes of an airplane type mapped out on the battlefield but they failed to do much with them.

First Commercial Plane
On February 17 of the current year, China made its official bow into the realm of commercial flying when the first strictly commercial plane ever brought to the country was assembled, flight tested and turned over to what is now known as the Wuhan Civil Aviation Association of Hankow. Since that time, the association has acquired five more planes, all high grade American made, cabin monoplane capable of carrying four passengers besides the pilot.

These planes are slated to be used on an air mail and passenger route between Hankow and Canton, China. Some will be flown by pilots loaned to the aviation association by the military forces in the Wuhan district. Several trial flights have already been made and have proven successful.

A Big Country
If one journeys from Hankow to Canton today by the usual method, eleven or twelve days are required to complete the trip. One must travel down the Yangtze river to Shanghai, a little jaunt by plane that takes a week by boat. If good boat connections are to be had in Shanghai, one can reach Hongkong three days later. Another day or two is required to complete the trip to Canton. By air the trip can be made in less than half a day. Similar conditions exist elsewhere in the Orient to a marked degree. Days and even weeks are required to travel to certain cities and the railroad and highway plans mapped out by the new government will take years to complete.

Since the beginning of the Wuhan Civil Aviation Association at Hankow, several other similar enterprises have come into being. The Shanghai-Nanking air mail and passenger airway has already started to function with four planes as a nucleus. The venture, although only in operation a short time, has proven a success.

LARDNER COMEDY

Jack Oakie, Evelyn Brent and Skeets Gallagher in "Fast Company" at the State.

Jack Oakie, Evelyn Brent and Skeets Gallagher in Ring Lardner's wise-cracking comedy riot "Fast Company," heads the new program at the State today and Saturday. It is real amusement of the highest order with comedy of the rib-ticking kind. Jack Oakie is the main reason for the laughter. He is a very clever comedian, and is best remembered for his high-class work in conjunction with Skeets Gallagher in "Close Harmony." Oakie is a new type of comedian on the screen and he will add thousands of admirers to his string with his swagging "big league" comedy capers in this one. Evelyn Brent, as the girl who spurns him but who warms to his naive charm, does a great job, as always. Skeets Gallagher, as the slang-talk manager of Oakie, has risen rapidly in comedy roles and gives a remarkable performance. Everybody who ever read Ring Lardner's stories—and we guess that is everybody in America, will want to see this picture. It is based on an original Ring Lardner story, and Director Sutherland has exerted all his directorial ability to have the famous slang dialogue of the great humorist injected into the play. The program also includes the closing chapter of the serial "The Diamond Master." All who have been following this thrilling and interesting picture will want to see the exciting climax, wherein all the mystery is cleared up. The bill also includes a comedy, news weekly and a Vitaphone Vaudeville act. The four Marx brothers, with Mary Eaton and Oscar Shaw, will be seen at the State in "Cocoanuts," for three days starting Sunday night.

IT ALL DEPENDS
Distracted Wife (at bedside of sick husband): Is there no hope, doctor?
Doctor: I don't know. What were you hoping for?—Tit-Bits.

THE HELPFUL WIFE
FRIEND: That villain in your new play is a masterpiece. Where did you get the character?
DRAMATIST: I imagined a man possessed of all the varieties of wickedness which my wife ascribes to me when she gets angry.—Sidmouth Observer.

THE MERGING OF HALE'S TWO FOOD STORES INTO ONE STORE AT THE OLD LOCATION—THE CORNER OF MAIN AND OAK STREETS.

After one year of operation on the corner of Park and Main Streets, besides the fact that we enjoyed a greatly increased business, we found that the new store location was too close to the old building. As a result we were our own competition. In the interest of economy and efficiency, we have merged the two stores at the one location—the corner of Oak and Main Streets. We promise all our old and new customers a much better service than before in both our Self-Serve Grocery and Health Market.

SENSE and NONSENSE

BUY QUALITY
Don't try to buy a thing too cheap
From those with things to sell—
Because the goods you have to keep,
And time will surely tell.

ROMANCE STILL LIVES
Wanted by a bachelor of middle age, to correspond with a lady or widow of same age, with idea in mind of entering poultry business.

"Gus," said Bill, as he caught up with him on the way back to Camp,
"are all the rest of the boys out of the woods yet?"

A BREED of chickens without wings has been evolved, so the next thing to do will be to raise some with built-in bread stuffing.

The bleachers ought to be allowed to umpire one baseball game just to see how many runs the home team could make.

Americanism: "Look at the darned foreigner! What? He's a prince?
Let's give him a banquet."

Small Boy: "What is college bred, Pop?"

Office Boy: "The boss is beginning to take an interest in me."

Mistress (severely) — "Sarah! I found my blue dress in your trunk."

Now that even chain cigar stores are putting in lunch counters you

THERE ARE JUST AS
MAIN "CUTEST CHILDREN"
AS THE WORLD AS THERE ARE CHILDREN.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

A football player may play a perfect game, but a spectator seldom goes without a miss.

can get something to eat almost anywhere except at home.

"I regret that I have but one son to give to the university," sighed the elderly football fan. "I need a couple more tickets to the state game."

Popular songs age almost as rapidly as news.

"I have reached that stage of senile decay," said a man, "where I take a nap after lunch."

Keeper: "Didn't you see that notice, 'No fishing here?'"

"Can we play at keeping store in here, mama?"

Myrtle: "My folks are going to send me to a girl's finishing school."

A college education never hurt anybody who was willing to learn something afterward.

And some of us can be fooled a lot easier than we can fool others.

LEFT?—FIRED!
"And was Mrs. Swank surprised when she found out you were leaving her, cook?"

ABOUT TOWN

Rev. Robert A. Colpitts left for New York last night, where he will today attend an executive meeting of the Eastern Area of the World's Service Commission. He will return tonight.

Nicholas Malmich, 6, of 98 Spruce street, Hartford, was knocked down and injured by a car driven by Walter Olson of 483 East Center street, Manchester at the corner of Sigourney and Asylum streets Wednesday afternoon. The boy had run out into Asylum street from Sigourney in pursuit of two companions. His injuries were treated at the emergency hospital. Olson was not detained.

The two Manchester National Guard units, Co. G, and the Howitzer Company, 169th Infantry, will both assemble at the State Armory here at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for participation in the parade at East Hartford which is to constitute an important part of the ceremony dedication of that town's World War memorial. The trip will be made by trolley. Elaborate preparations have been made by the East Hartford ceremonies committees for the entertainment of visiting Guardmen and the soldiers are assured that there will be plenty to eat after the parade.

CORN BORER INSPECTION OF AUTOS ILLEGAL

An opinion handed down by United States District Attorney John Buckley in which he holds that motorists ordered to stop for inspection by officers of the Federal Department of Agriculture under the corn-borer laws are not compelled by law to so comply. There have been several evasions of late by motorists who objected to being stopped and searched, and an opinion was sought Thursday by the Willamantic prosecutor who has charge of the cases. Major Buckley said that there is no authority specifically conferred in the corn-borer laws which would allow the procedure of stopping and searching vehicles, except that the officer on duty was positive of an attempted evasion.
