

HEAVY BUYING TURNS PRICES TO UP GRADE

Selling at Opening Forces Leaders Down $1 to $4 a Share — Closing Prices Higher Than Yesterday's.

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Stock Market closed with an outburst of strength today after successfully overcoming an early flurry of liquidation.

Early declines of $1 to $4 a share in the active issues, and $5 to $21 in a sprinkling of specialties, were largely wiped out, and scores of issues closed with net gains of $1 to more than $12 a share.

Rails and public utilities were in the forefront of the advance.

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Heavy buying of the railroad shares turned the course of stock prices upward today after an earlier flurry of selling had carried many of the leaders down $1 to $4 a share, and a few specialties down $5 to $21. Most of the early losses were cut down, or wiped out, soon after midday, and a long list of stocks were selling $1 to $3 a share above yesterday's final quotations.

Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange in the first two hours were 1,658,400 shares as contrasted with 1,902,000 in the same period yesterday.

U. S. Steel Common, which sold down to $165.50, rallied to $168.75. Otis Elevator broke $21 and quickly rallied $12. Warren Bros. advanced $13 a share. General Electric $8.50 and Standard Gas and Electric, Allied Chemical, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Westinghouse Electric and American Tobacco sold $4 to $6.50 a share higher.

Norfolk and Western led the rail group with an early gain of $7. Gulf, Mobile and Northern advanced

SOUTH ASKS PROBE OF TEXTILE MILLS

Social Service Commission Wants Conditions in North Also Investigated.

Gainesville, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Recommendation that Congress authorize President Hoover to appoint a National industrial commission to make a thorough and scientific study of the textile industry of the country, north and south was made to the Georgia Baptist convention today by the convention's social service commission.

The commission decried the movement of textile mills to the south "brings us face to face with new problems" and urged that the facts of the proposed survey "thus impartially ascertained may be made known and the remedies needed, if any, provided for."

Textile Situation.

The report said of the textile situation:

"The coming of these industries to the south is face to face with new problems. The cotton farmer has almost altogether used negro tenant labor, who have farmed on the shares. The cash wage was negligible. Settlement was had at the end of the year. In the mountains and in the foot-hills lived many white people who saw very little money in the course of the year. To these, the cotton mills proved peculiarly attractive. It means ready money in wages. And so they went to work in the textile mills in great numbers and for low pay.

"Everybody is rejoiced to see these evidences of expanding business in the southeast. However, to thoughtful people there is no satisfaction in the self-announced statement that these mills are coming because the south offers 'low wages and docile labor,' indeed, this is humiliating rather than pleasing.

"A few years ago, we southerners were bitterly denouncing New England cotton mills for the way they treated their labor. Now that some of these mills are coming south, we find some of our southern statesmen angrily defending these same practices in the south. Then they denounced high protective tariff of New England industries; now they are clamoring for that same protection for southern mills. Surely dollars makes us all do alike."

Mother of Crime.

The commission declared that "an under-wage is a fruitful mother of poverty, disease, immorality and crime. Long hours, low wages, docile labor is an economic mistake. A man's wage should be enough to support himself and his family in reasonable comfort."

Right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively was recognized by the commission as "indispensable" and it declared: "The good wages

SISTERS DIE WITHIN HOUR

Aged Women Had Lived Together Practically All Their Lives—Die in Adjoining Rooms.

Keene, N. H., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Two aged sisters who had lived together nearly all their lives, died here within a few hours of each other. One, Mrs. Myra A. Stevens, 70, unaware that the other, Miss Mary Isabelle Perkins, 71, had predeceased her by five hours.

Death came to Miss Perkins suddenly just before midnight from an attack of heart disease. Mrs. Stevens, an invalid for three months, passed away at 5 o'clock this morning in an adjoining room.

CAPITAL BLAST HURTS SCORES; BLOCK WRECKED

Early Reports Give No Estimate of Damage or Number of Persons Hurt in the Explosion.

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—An explosion in the downtown commercial district of Washington wrecked a portion of a city block today and injured numerous persons.

Fragments of stone broke across plate glass windows in stores along the street. Blood covered a portion of the thoroughfare. Women's shoes and hats of children were mingled with the wreckage—firemen were clearing away but no bodies were found immediately.

Rush to Hospitals

Fire apparatus, ambulances and privately owned automobiles were used to take the injured from the scene, which is one of the busiest spots in the city. A number of injured could be seen being supported by persons in these conveyances.

Meanwhile, hundreds of persons attracted by the sound of the explosion and fire apparatus gathered around the place and the police were forced to hold them back. Police reserves first called were augmented by reserves from all adjoining precincts.

Police lines were thrown about the area.

Search For Bodies.

Steam poured from the cavity upon a score of firemen as they worked feverishly to lift huge blocks of concrete which had fallen.

None of the victims taken to emergency hospitals were dead when they arrived, although several were believed to be severely injured. Three were reported after first examination as probably having fractured skulls and internal injuries.

Dr. Walter Atkinson, chief of the staff doctors at the hospital, organized an emergency staff.

O'CONNOR FUNERAL IN LONDON TODAY

Premier MacDonald Present During Ceremonies for Veteran Irish Statesman.

London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The wish once expressed by T. P. "Tay Pay" O'Connor, veteran Irish statesman, that he might be buried in England to typify the reconciliation of the two races, was fulfilled solemnly today.

Westminster cathedral was crowded with mourners this afternoon, anxious to pay their last tribute to the famous "Father of the House of Commons" at a requiem mass celebrated by the Archbishop of Liverpool, prior to a burial service at Kensal Green cemetery.

The chief mourners were the widow and relatives and Alderman Austin Harford representing the body of members of Liverpool and Joseph Devlin.

The vast congregation, representative of all classes, included Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, the speaker of the House of Commons, members of the Cabinet, lords and earls, a numerous literary figures in London's life.

Music for the service was taken from Mozart's mass and Cardinal Bourne gave the absolution.

A crowd waited outside the cathedral to pay respects as the body was carried to the cemetery. When the plain oak coffin covered with the Irish flag was borne out, men and women broke through the police lines and crowded round the procession which took twenty minutes to marshal. Thousands lined the streets near the cathedral and traffic was suspended to allow the cortege to pass.

THANKSGIVING, REAL ONE FOR NEW ENGLAND

President of Council Says Past Year Has Been Most Prosperous in History of the United States.

Boston, Nov. 21.—(AP)—New England's own holiday, Thanksgiving, was declared by President Redfield Proctor of the New England Council in an address prepared for opening the annual conference here today as an occasion for great celebration.

Listing advantages with which he said the six states were blessed in a speech which in his absence at Washington, D. C., was delivered by Acting President Henry D. Sharpe of Providence, R. I., he prefaced them by declaring simply, "we are here today near the close of a year which has seen the highest level of industrial activity ever recorded in New England."

Reasons for Prosperity.

Continuing, he cited the nearness to Europe, the density of population, the bordering of five states on the sea, the recreational resources, the long-established communities and their high standards of living, wealth and income higher than the average over the country, skilled labor, and cultural advantages and historical associations within the six states.

"New England already has," he said, "what most communities are striving for and what many of them can never possess."

Such a sense of well-being, however, he declared, may strangle initiative and prevent progress. In order to increase and maintain New England prosperity adaptations of individuals and business organizations to prospective economic changes must be made, he added.

The council was described as a method of organizing and solving common problems.

Regionalism is also working in other sections of the country, he continued. Several trends of modern business, however, were seen as aiding the six states in this competition. The creation by large businesses of New England-wide distributing organizations were said to be such a uniting force. Mergers of New England public utilities, branch plants of manufacturing industries to serve the whole territory, similar tendencies in the field of finance and the acceptance by the rest of the country of New England as a single economic area were said to help break down boundaries among the states of the section.

Marketing Bureau

The accomplishments of the New England farm marketing bureau, developed through the aid of the council, and the action of the presidents of the New England railroads in forming a committee last winter to aid the council were cited as examples of similar co-operative effort to aid the section.

In the last four years, President Proctor concluded, the New England attitude of mind has been changed. "We are all conscious of a healthier tone. A more stimulating atmosphere—we have given the rest of the country a healthier impression of New England, as is proved by the practical elimination of derogatory references to New England in the press of the country," he explained.

FIVE KILLED IN CRASH

Jacksboro, Tenn., Nov. 21.—(AP)—W. H. Metzler, a coal miner, his wife, two daughters and a son were killed instantly today when their automobile was struck at a railroad crossing by a Louisville and Nashville passenger train, en route from Knoxville to Corbin, Ky.

COSTE BREAKS RECORD.

Lebourget, France, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Captain Dieudonne Coste and his companion, Maurice Jacques Beline, landed here at 11:35 a. m., setting a new record of four days, 50 minutes from Hanoi French Indo China, to Paris. This was six hours and twenty minutes faster than Coste and Joseph Lebric traveled the same 7,500 miles last year on their round the world trip.

The two fliers today were returning from their flight over Asia a few weeks ago which ended with a forced landing at Tsitsihar, Manchuria, creating a new record distance endurance flight.

LEVITT FILES PROOF

Hartford, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Professor Albert Levitt of Redding, today submitted for the consideration of the office of the attorney general, the information requested in support of the contention of Prof. Levitt that the members of the Public Utilities Commission should be removed from office because of neglect of duty in failing to order the removal of railroad crossings within the state.

Nothing was made public as to the contents of the Levitt letter.

"THE TIGER" IN GREAT PAIN

Here is a picture of the aged statesman, at the left, as he received a national tribute and congratulations on his recent recovery at the little Brittany town of Vendee.

Ex-Premier Clemenceau Suffers Colic Attack

Paris, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Former Premier Georges Clemenceau, veteran French statesman, who was just recovering from an illness, was again stricken today.

While his doctors, who had been summoned urgently, said he appeared much better this afternoon, there were reports among his friends in the Chamber of Deputies that he was "gravely ill."

Paris, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Former Premier Clemenceau, who had a severe heart attack in October, suffered an acute attack of colic today, but early this afternoon seemed much better.

Dr. Degennes and Laubry who attended him during his recent illness were called urgently and gave him morphine injections which relieved the pain.

Leaving the house just before 2

sp. m., Dr. Laubry merely said that Clemenceau was suffering from a colic and was in a good deal of pain. He added that the doctors would return for another consultation at 8 p. m.

The former premier, who has been taking morning physical exercises under the guidance of a gymnastic teacher in recent days found himself tired for his daily dozen this morning.

He complained of great fatigue and stretched out on a chaise-longue. Shortly after 11 o'clock he suffered his first abdominal pains and these had become so intense by noon that Dr. Degennes was called urgently.

Dr. De Gennes gave the Tiger an injection of camphorated oil at the second examination, fearing his patient's heart might weaken under the stress of intense pain.

MARKET CRASH CAUSED BY BUSINESS DECLINE

But Ford Says President Will Be Able to Show the Country There Is Nothing to Fear.

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Henry Ford after attending the White House business conference today attributed the Stock Market deflation to a decline in business, but added that the President "will be able to show the country that there is nothing to fear and that if everyone will attend to his own work the future will be secure."

Other of the country's leading business men who attended the conference which lasted more than three hours, commented optimistically on the business situation over the country.

Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Company, said the business of his own company was very satisfactory, running well ahead of last year in all except two sections. He did not name those.

Others Satisfied

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, and Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation, said they were satisfied with the general outlook.

MARKET NOT TO BLAME

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Henry Ford said today after leaving a conference of business men called by the President that the first thing to do, was to correct the impression that the present condition of affairs is due to the Stock Market.

"Collapse of speculation may have been the occasion of a business hesitation," Mr. Ford continued, "but it certainly was not the cause.

"The Stock Market does not take prosperity but prosperity is absolutely essential to such an inflation of values as we have seen during the past year. When an inflated Stock Market breaks, it does not necessarily carry general business down with it, but when general business declines it invariably deflates the artificial values of the Stock Market.

"That is what happened. It was only the temporary diversion of business men's attention that prevented them from seeing what was happening. It is now clear to all that the real explanation of the present situation is not to be found in recent Stock Market history but in recent business history."

If the public understands, the manufacturer said, that the Stock Market cannot permanently effect us for either good or bad, "the way is clear to constructive views."

He added that business showed

HOUSE ALSO VOTES TO ADJOURN FRIDAY

Concurs With Senate to End
Special Session—No Record
Vote Taken.

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The House today agreed to the Senate's plan to adjourn the extra session of Congress sine die Friday.

The action was taken without a record vote.

Since September 23 when the summer recess taken in June ended, the House has held perfunctory sessions every three days, ready to send the tariff bill to conference in event of its passage by the Senate.

In presenting the concurrent resolution passed by the Senate yesterday, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican floor leader, said the Senate had by its action proclaimed that it was incapable of passing the tariff bill at the extra session, adding the Senate had thus accepted responsibility for the failure of passage of the tariff bill at the session.

CONCURRENCE

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Nov. 19 were $7,413,498; expenditures $8,035,339; balance $129,119,727.

SEN. EDGE NAMED ENVOY TO FRANCE

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The nomination of Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey to be ambassador to France was confirmed today by the Senate.

As soon as the nomination was received, Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee asked immediate confirmation, and it was voted without discussion.

Edge was not in the Senate, being in Santa Fe, New Mexico, visiting his son who is in school there.

Senator Informed

A telegram was dispatched immediately, informing the Senator of the nomination and confirmation. Edge, it was said, probably would send his resignation to Governor Larson of New Jersey by telegraph today.

The usual procedure was dispensed with. The nomination was not sent to the committee, receiving unanimous confirmation in open session.

BAIRD APPOINTED

Newark, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP)—David Baird, Jr., of Camden, today was appointed United States attorney to succeed Walter E. Edge by Governor Morgan F. Larson. He will serve until the day of the next state election in November 1930.

FIVE WOMEN DIE IN AUTO CRASH

Car Crashes Into Railroad
Bus During Snowstorm
In Texas.

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Five women were killed here today when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a motor car of the Santa Fe railroad.

The accident occurred on the East Grand avenue pike near White Rock lake during a blinding snowstorm, the first of the winter. The railroad car was operating on the Paris-Dallas line of the Santa Fe system.

A negro who was driving the car for the women, was taken to a hospital. Before losing consciousness he gave his name as "Rabbit" Gatt and said his home was in Leonard, Tex.

Among the effects of the women were papers bearing the names: Mrs. Dolly King, Forth Worth, and Mrs. E. G. King.

ASKS FARE INCREASE.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Public Service Commissioner Transport today petitioned the Public Utilities Commission for an increase of its fare of five cents to ten for the casual rider.

The concern, a subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, which serves millions of trolley and bus patrons in the state, proposed "for an experimental period" a plan providing for the purchase of twenty tokens for $1 by the regular rider, and a charge of ten cents for the casual rider who would pay cash fare.

PLANE CRASHES

Mitchell Field, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Major William Schroeder, piloting the Schroeder-Wentworth entry in the Guggenheim safe flying competition, crashed today. The plane was badly damaged, but the major was uninjured.

Forget Party Lines To Answer Critics

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Republicans and Democrats in the Senate struck out today at critics of the Senate and more particularly at those who would blame Congress for the recent Stock Market collapse, the debate including an attack by Senator Harrison of Mississippi, upon the "propaganda" disseminated for President Hoover.

Senator Sackett, of Kentucky, one of the Republican regulars, defended the Senate, which has been under the control during the tariff contest of the Democratic-Republican Independent coalition, and asserted that the criticism given his colleagues was unjustified.

Harrison, one of the Democratic leaders, asserted "today this Senate is more responsible to the will of the American people than ever before."

The Mississippian referred to some newspaper friends of President Hoover, whom he did not name, "who dine at the White House and are taken down to the President's camp to write comment unfavorable to the Senate and favorable to some one else."

Senator Johnson of California, Republican, attacked critics within the Senate membership, remarking "the most contemptible wretched bird there is, is the bird who fouls his own nest."

McMANUS WAS IN ROOM AS GAMBLER WAS SHOT

That Is Contention of State As Murder Trial Opens; Witnesses Stories Are Told to the Jurymen.

Criminal Courts Building, New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The state will present evidence showing that George McManus was in Room 349 in the Park Central hotel ten minutes before Arnold Rothstein was shot there a year ago, November 4, it said today in the opening of its case in the trial of McManus for Rothstein's murder.

Ten minutes after Bridget Barry saw McManus there, George N. Brothers, assistant district attorney, said Mrs. Marjiam A. Putnam of Asheville, N. C., a guest in the hotel, heard loud voices in the room, a curse, a bang.

Frightened, she ran down the hall, turning aft to attempt to see a man staggering after her, his hands to his stomach.

Terrified, she ran to her own room and locked the door.

The man she saw, Brothers shouted, was Rothstein, who staggered down a servants' stairway and was taken by police to Poly-clinic hospital, where he died.

STATE OUTLINES CASE.

Criminal Courts Building, New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The state today began the outline of the case of murder it will attempt to prove against George A. McManus, the Broadway gambler accused of shooting to death his associate, Arnold Rothstein.

Convening at 10:35, the "blue ribbon" jury of business and professional men was called, and George N. Brothers, assistant district attorney, began the outline of the case for the state.

He first showed to the jury a copy of the indictment returned against McManus, Hyman Biler and two unknown men last December.

Mr. Brothers had hardly swung into his opening statement when James D. C. Murray, defense counsel, objected to the phraseology of Mr. Brothers and was sustained by Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr.

The first proof given by the state, Brothers continued, will be the proof of the death of Rothstein.

Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, will testify that Rothstein was killed by a bullet wound in the stomach.

The state further will prove, he continued, that some time previous to the killing, McManus, Rothstein and other men met in the apartment of James Meehan, a Broadway gambler, and that there Rothstein lost $219,000 and McManus $51,000, most of it paid in cash to Rothstein.

Motive for Murder.

From all his feelings engendered there, Mr. Brothers said, came the smoldering hate which led to the killing of Rothstein November 4, a year ago.

McManus also will be shown to have been the leaser of Room 349 in the Park Central hotel, where Rothstein is alleged to have been killed. The room was taken under the name of "George Richards," an alias he said McManus frequently used.

In the night Rothstein was killed, Brothers said, he and Meehan rode down Broadway together in Rothstein's car, going to Lindy's restaurant at 50th street and Seventh avenue, not far from the Park Central.

In Lindy's the telephone rang and the cashier, answering, was asked if Rothstein was there. As was his custom, he said "no" but took the message which Brothers said was "this is McManus, tell Rothstein to call up Room 349 of the Park Central."

The cashier gave the message to Rothstein, who talked over the tele-

Senator Glass Says He Is More Responsible Than Others for the Trouble.

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York, was blamed in the Senate today by Senator Glass, Democrat, of Virginia, for a leading part in the Stock Market collapse, while Senate leaders of all factions assailed those who were putting the responsibility on the doorstep of Congress.

Glass, a former secretary of the treasury, said member banks of the Federal Reserve system had nothing to do with the crash, but "Mr. Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank was the chief offender."

"He is the man," Glass asserted, "more responsible than all others together for the excesses that have resulted in this disaster."

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Five women were killed here today when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a motor car of the Santa Fe railroad.

The accident occurred on the East Grand avenue pike near White Rock lake during a blinding snowstorm, the first of the winter. The railroad car was operating on the Paris-Dallas line of the Santa Fe system.

A negro who was driving the car for the women, was taken to a hospital. Before losing consciousness he gave his name as "Rabbit" Gatt and said his home was in Leonard, Tex.

Among the effects of the women were papers bearing the names: Mrs. Dolly King, Forth Worth, and Mrs. E. G. King.

ASKS FARE INCREASE.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Public Service Commissioner Transport today petitioned the Public Utilities Commission for an increase of its fare of five cents to ten for the casual rider.

The concern, a subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, which serves millions of trolley and bus patrons in the state, proposed "for an experimental period" a plan providing for the purchase of twenty tokens for $1 by the regular rider, and a charge of ten cents for the casual rider who would pay cash fare.

Forget Party Lines To Answer Critics

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Republicans and Democrats in the Senate struck out today at critics of the Senate and more particularly at those who would blame Congress for the recent Stock Market collapse, the debate including an attack by Senator Harrison of Mississippi, upon the "propaganda" disseminated for President Hoover.

Senator Sackett, of Kentucky, one of the Republican regulars, defended the Senate, which has been under the control during the tariff contest of the Democratic-Republican Independent coalition, and asserted that the criticism given his colleagues was unjustified.

Harrison, one of the Democratic leaders, asserted "today this Senate is more responsible to the will of the American people than ever before."

GREAT INCREASE IN 'PHONES HERE

Nearly 300 New Stations Installed in First Ten Months, Says Halsted.

An increase of nearly 300 telephones has been made in Manchester during the first ten months of the year, it was announced today by Manager William B. Halsted of the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone Company.

The increase in the Hartford district exchanges furnishes convincing proof to those who regard telephone development as a fair index of business conditions, that this section of the state, at least, has enjoyed a period of industrial and commercial activity.

The largest change as expected was in Hartford where 3,175 new telephones were installed bringing the total to slightly over 56,000 which is nearly 5,000 more than New Haven has.

The increase and total number of telephones at the present time in some of the other exchanges of this district follow:

Table with 2 columns: Exchange Name, Increase, Total. Includes New Britain, Manchester, Bristol, Torrington, Winsted.

At the beginning of the current month there were 317,830 telephones in the Southern New England system, an increase since the first of the year of 17,900 which is 2,200 more than the estimated increase at the beginning of the year, showing that the large area under the Hartford exchanges in the Hartford district has had a period of commercial and industrial activity which is reflected in the increased demand for telephone facilities.

ROBBED TOM MIX HE GETS A YEAR

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Russell Everett, negro, of Peru, Ind., was sentenced from one to two years at hard labor in state prison today by Judge Oscar L. Young after he had pleaded guilty to larceny of $200,000 from Tom Mix. Everett was employed by the screen actor as a valet and the theft occurred while Mix was appearing in this state with a circus. Much of the loot, the greater part of which was in currency, was recovered.

Rene Dubois, Newmarket textile strike leader, was sentenced today by Judge Young to three years in state prison to a charge of attempted second degree manslaughter of two deputy sheriffs.

Everett, Dubois and two other strikers previously sentenced to similar terms will be taken to court today to begin their sentences. The other strikers are Albert St. Malire and Fred Langlois.

BANK HEAD RESIGNS

Brattleboro, Vt., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Brattleboro Trust Company today announced that the resignation of its president, Martin A. Brown of Boston, Mass., and William H. Brown of New York, N. Y., had been accepted by the executive committee. Ill health was given as the reason for his resignation.

It was also made known that Brown had resigned as treasurer and general manager of the Parker Young Company lumber firm of Boston which operates mills at Lincoln, N. H., and in the states of Maine and Washington.

NEW TELEPHONES

Bridgewater, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A net increase of more than 2,500 telephones in the first ten months of 1929, bringing the total in service in the Bridgewater exchange to the high mark of 31,900 is disclosed in figures given out today by Exchange Manager L. R. Harney of the S. N. E. Telephone Co.

The net gain for Bridgewater is larger than that in other city in the state with the exception of Hartford, it was stated.

COMMISSION TO MEET

Hartford, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Judge Raymond A. Johnson of Manchester, chairman of the special bridge commission appointed to investigate a report on a proposed new bridge over the Connecticut River at Hartford, announced today that a meeting of the commission would be called for next week to consider the employment of an engineer to study the situation.

PERFECT BOWLING SCORE

Wallingford, Nov. 21.—(AP)—William De Roy, local bowler yesterday turned in a perfect score of 100 for ten frames at duck pins without a strike or spare. Several splits which he swept off on his third ball were different ones. The bowling was on a regulation alley, with regulation pins and according to rules.

Three years ago Ray Gaines, a veteran state leaguer and former champ of that city made a perfect score in Hartford without a mark. At the time it was said Gaines was the first in the state to have made this score without a mark.

TO ADDRESS COUNCIL

New Haven, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Miss Emily Louise Plumley, president of the Connecticut State Federation of Women's club will address the New England Council of Commerce tomorrow at the Hotel Statler, Boston. Her subject will be "Keeping Youth in New England."

Miss Plumley will be the first woman ever to address the council which begins a two days' session today.

The general subject of the session will be "Maintain prosperity by holding young men and women in New England."

ASK EXTRADITION

Westport, Conn., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Chief John A. Dolan of the Westport police department today appealed to Governor John H. Trumbull for extradition papers against Patsy Knox 23, now held by the New York police as a fugitive from justice. Knox is wanted here on charges of assault with intent to kill.

On October 13, a short time after he had finished serving a jail sentence for assaulting two girls, he shot Nichola Aneloini of Valley Road during a brawl. The bullet entered the calf of one leg and lodged in the knee of the other. As a result of the wound in his left leg Aneloini is a cripple for life.

FALLS FROM TREE

Clinton, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Earl Bartman, 28, of Deep River, an employee of the landscaping division of the state highway department suffered an injury to his spine today when he fell from a tree. McMANUS WAS IN ROOM AS GAMBLER WAS SHOT

Heard Shot. A few moments later Mrs. Mariam Putnam, a guest at the hotel, was waiting for an elevator near Room 349 when she heard loud voices, an oath, a "bang."

Frightened, she ran down the hall. Turning, after a few steps, she saw a man, a stranger to her, staggering after her, his hands clutched to his stomach.

The man Mrs. Putnam saw, Brothers said, was Rothstein who staggered down a servants' stairway to the street, from where police took him to the Polyclinic hospital, where he died two nights later.

Sleuths Search Room. Detectives went to Room 349 an hour or so later, where the lights were still burning. There were four half empty whiskey bottles, and McManus, a gambler, and a handkerchief bearing his initials, also a hole in the screen.

A search immediately was started for McManus, who was not found for three weeks.

Find Revolver. Meanwhile, Brothers said, a chauffeur had picked up a revolver in the street outside the Park Central, where it could have been thrown through a broken screen in Room 349.

This gun was the one from which came the shot that killed Rothstein, Brothers said.

The state will further prove, Brothers said, that on the day of the shooting McManus had ordered whiskey sent to Room 349 and there drank it, in company with Mrs. Ruth Keyes of Chicago and others.

Closing his address, Brothers said: "Gentlemen of the jury, the shooter of Rothstein left that room hurriedly. Evidence we will give will show that McManus must have left Room 349 in a hurry."

He then turned to Mr. Brothers, who was doing the questioning, the bullet that took Rothstein's life. The bullet was entered as Exhibit "A."

Clothing Identified. A bundle of clothing then was brought to the witness stand, where it was identified as being that which Rothstein wore the night he was shot. Dr. Norris pointed out on the right side of the blue, single breasted coat, a hole in the apparent position the bullet in Rothstein's body would have entered. There was no powder marks on the coat.

He also pointed out a hole in the watch, the trousers and traces of blood near it.

McManus twisted uneasily in his chair as Dr. Norris testified, his smile of the past three days missing.

In the rear of the court room sat Mrs. Amanda McManus, the defendant's wife, and his five brothers.

While outside the witness room, carefully guarded from all intrusion, were "Nigger Nate" Raymond, Meyer and Sam Boston, all big gamblers; Thomas Farley, Rothstein's valet; Stacey Stazer, a Rothstein beneficiary, Beatrice Jackson, a Park Central telephone girl, and others whose names were not available.

In the court room Rothstein's coat, trousers and shirt had been introduced as evidence.

On cross examination, Mr. Murray asked Dr. Norris where the rest of the clothing of Rothstein had gone — "underwear, vests, shoes and socks."

"I don't know," Dr. Norris. He said he thought all the clothing had been turned over to police.

"Did you ever see powder burns or marks on any of the clothing?" Murray asked.

"I did not," he said.

Course of Bullet. Murray then had the doctor again describe the course of the bullet down through Rothstein's abdomen to it lodging in the left side, six inches below, where it entered. He brought out that in following that course it passed through what the doctor called the "belly muscles."

Would the abdominal muscles be necessary to a man walking down a hall, three flights of stairs and pushing open two heavy doors," Murray asked.

"Yes," the doctor answered.

"Would it be painful?"

"I don't know, I've never been shot in the stomach," Dr. Norris answered.

Sharp Exchange. Followed a rather sharp exchange as to whether a doctor had to experience a disease or wound before he could tell what its effects were.

"Did you ever operate on anything but a corpse?" Murray asked.

"Yes," snapped back the elderly, bearded physician, who, as head of New York's medical examiners, directs many autopsies.

Followed a long series of questions by Murray, attempting to get Dr. Norris to testify that extreme shock and pain followed the passage of the bullet through Rothstein's abdomen.

Dr. Norris said he could not testify as to what pain and shock was registered in this case, whether it was extreme or slight.

Murray apparently was seeking to bring out testimony to show that Rothstein could not have walked from Room 349 in the Park Central to the street if he was wounded in the manner Dr. Norris had testified to.

LOBBY PROBERS CONTINUE QUIZ

Take Up Again the Affairs of the Southern Tariff Association.

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Activities of the Southern Tariff Association came under the scrutiny of the Senate lobby again today as it turned aside temporarily from questioning representatives of sugar companies in regard to their work in connection with the pending tariff legislation.

The committee summoned G. S. Fletcher of Miami, Fla., and L. C. Chandler of Goulds, Fla., for questioning concerning the work of the tariff association in the south. The committee already has questioned J. A. Arnold, vice-president and general manager of the association on eight days.

Examination of Fred I. Kent, a director of the Bankers Trust company of New York, was deferred until tomorrow on account of a directors meeting he had to attend today. He will be questioned about his recent statement that the actions of the Senate coalition on the tariff bill were partly responsible for the Stock Market disturbance.

OTHERS SUMMONED

Stephen H. Love, president of the United States Beet Sugar association, and W. L. Petrikien, president of the Great Western Sugar company, also were summoned to appear today, but the committee declined to inquire into the tariff association's activities.

There was also a possibility today that Roger Babson, statistician, who also made a statement that the action of the Republican Independents and Democrats contributed to the Stock Market break, might be called for questioning.

The Senate, however, has already taken note of Babson's remarks, the statistician being criticized by Senator Borah, Republican, Independent, Idaho, and a group of Democrats, including Glass of Virginia, George of Georgia, Walsh of Montana and Heflin of Alabama.

BORAH'S COMMENT

Borah said those opposed to carrying out the Republican pledge of the last campaign to equalize agriculture with industry "now sneak through the veil voice of Mr. Babson."

Gordon Rentschler of the National City Bank of New York was on the stand most of yesterday, being questioned at length with regard to money spent by his organization in an effort to lower tariff duties.

Rentschler said the bank had contributed $10,000 to a fund for lesser duties and had used its monthly bulletin for matter urging such tariffs.

CATCH GERMAN ART THEIF

Berlin.—(AP)—The man who is believed to have stolen paintings valued at $25,000 from an art dealer at Leipzig recently has been arrested here. In his possession was found one of the missing Rubens and a Tischen portrait. Another of the stolen Rubens and a painting by Feuerbach have not been recovered.

PERFECTING PLANS FOR INDOOR CIRCUS

North Methodists to Give Big Fair on December 5 and 6; Not a Bazaar.

An enthusiastic meeting of the general committee in charge of the Indoor Circus, the attraction at the North Methodist church Thursday and Friday evenings, December 5 and 6, took place last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus G. Tyler in Vernon. Another general committee meeting will be held Monday evening in the vestry of the church to complete arrangements.

It was reported that Madame Squires, a well known fortune teller in this section of the state, had been engaged for both evenings, and it was believed she would be a drawing card. The parade of animals will only be held on the first evening of the circus, it was announced, as some of them will be used in the numerous side shows. Robert Reed, the well-known auctioneer, will be the circus crier. Details are being worked out by the committees that promise lots of surprises and no end of fun both evenings.

All the drinks and eatables to be found at an honest-to-goodness circus will be on sale. Another attraction that will appeal to many planning to attend the show, will be the substantial suppers served each evening by the ladies of the church under the supervision of Miss Beatrice Lydall. During the supper hour from 6 to 7 music will be furnished by a trio consisting of Miss Rosina McGill, pianist, Miss Ruth Wickham and Miss Martha Kisman, violinists. Amusement aptly will be furnished by the clowns each night of the circus. Members of the general committee have been in Westfield, Mass., to purchase balloons, appropriate decorative features and other novelties.

While the circus is not exactly a bazaar, it is intended to take the place of the annual fair of the church, and it has been decided to display for sale a variety of useful and fancy articles for Christmas gift purposes, also to have a scarf and necktie booth for the sale of Cheney Brothers' products.

Young women in the firm's employ will be in charge.

Clarence L. Taylor of the ticket committee has placed a large number in the hands of the church people. The admission is only a dime but the committee is hoping for generous patronage at all the side shows and special features.

CANDY MAKING CLASS FORMING AT THE REC

A class for instruction in making candy has been decided upon by Miss Gertrude E. Fenerty, supervisor of women's activities at the Recreation Centers. The sessions will be held each Friday afternoon from 2:15 until 4 o'clock at the East Side Rec, starting November 29.

Miss Fenerty says that now is the time to learn how to make candy with Thanksgiving and Christmas rapidly drawing to hand. First instruction will be made with simple fudges and later more fancy candies will be taken up. A small charge of fifteen cents a week will be made to cover the cost of supplies. Anyone who is interested in joining the class should leave her name at the School Street Rec office either personally or by telephone.

The class starts a week from tomorrow. Women members of the Rec are also encouraged to sign their names for a bowling league which is to be organized and started as soon as sufficient names have been entered.

The meal will be ready at 6 o'clock and will consist of fruit cocktail, celery, olives, pickles, roast beef with gravy, mashed potato and turnips, salads, rolls, Jello with whipped cream, cake, coffee, mints and nuts. There will be chorus singing of popular songs between the courses. The standing social committee will cater and an urgent invitation to be present has been given every mother and daughter in the community, whether members of the Highland Park community club or not.

The banquet will be followed by modern and old-fashioned dancing to music by an orchestra of four pieces. Oscar Strong will announce the old time sets.

some decline even while speculative values were at their height.

"The reasons are plain," he said. "First, there was a serious withdrawal of brains from business. Men who otherwise have been working out better designs for commodities and better methods of manufacture and planning to put more value into their products were drawn off from the work they were best fitted to do by the promise of quick profits in speculation. This most serious for business."

He has often said that we need the experience and judgment of men in middle age or older, and when this is withdrawn, business feels it."

ABOUT TOWN

The Young Men's Community club will have basketball practice tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock at the Hollister street school gymnasium.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Army and Navy club will hold its regular business meeting at the clubhouse this evening.

SNOW CAUSES ACCIDENT

New Haven, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Today's light snow fall was blamed for an accident which sent Andrew Wojty, 42, of this city, to the New Haven hospital, with a fractured leg, and arm, and possible fractured ribs. He was struck by an auto operated by Thomas Gambarella, 19, also of this city, who told police that the snow, which was falling at the time of the accident, had obscured his vision.

The bulkheads of the submarines have been reinforced to withstand a pressure of 88 pounds per square inch from either side—a notable engineering achievement in view of the fact that less steel has been used to do this than was formerly used on bulkheads which would stand up against only 27 pounds per square inch. This was brought about largely by the use of welding instead of riveting...

Padeys have been fitted to the outside of the hull in such a way that a total of eight pontoons may be quickly attached to the vessel in case she is disabled on the bottom. When the water is blown out of the pontoons a total emergency lift of over 600 tons may be applied to bring the submarine to the surface...

At each end of the submarine has been installed a marker buoy which can be released from inside the vessel by an entrapped crew. The buoy is painted yellow and carries a light which can be seen at a distance of several miles at sea. In addition a telephone head piece and transmitter is carried in the buoy in a small watertight compartment by means of which rescue units may talk with the personnel in the sunken submarine. The anchor cable on the buoy may be used as a descending line by a diver...

Valves have been fitted which will permit a diver from the rescue vessel to attach an air hose and blow the water out of the submarine's tanks one at a time or altogether as desired. Others have been so fitted that a diver can sup fresh air at atmospheric pressure to mend submarine no matter in which, or in how many, compartments they may be...

A new type of quick closing door has been fitted on each bulkhead, making it possible for the crew to close and dog down any door tight against a sudden rush of water, in a small fraction of the time required with the old type of door...

Where ventilation pipes pierce the bulkheads a quick closing type of valve has been installed.

STIFF SENTENCES FOR AMERICAN REDS

Ten Years and $5,000 Fines for Group Who Attacked Kellogg Pact.

St. Clairsville, Ohio, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Three members of the Communist Party today face maximum sentences of 10 years imprisonment and fines of $5,000 through their conviction of criminal syndicalism, the first case of its kind in eastern Ohio.

The defendants, Tom Johnson and Miss Lillian Andrews of Cleveland and Charles Cowan of Lansing, Ohio, were found guilty late yesterday after the jury deliberated only three minutes.

The three self-styled members of the American Soviet Union were accused of distributing literature attacking the Kellogg peace treaty, League of Nations, the recent armament Congress and the National Congress in Martins Ferry last August during observance of International Red Day.

SINCLAIR, NOW FREE, VISITS HIS STABLES

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—So intent was Harry F. Sinclair upon preparing for his departure from the District of Columbia last night, that he passed up the first entertainment program that he missed during his stay at the institution.

Whenever shows were offered at the jail, Sinclair was always one of the attendants; but with freedom so near at hand, last night's vaudeville program held no attraction for the multi-millionaire oil operator.

Robert McPherson, the central figure in Washington's mysterious "pajama cord" killing was there and so was Dexter Dayton, the confessed murderer of Miss Marjory O'Donnell and all the other notable of the jail population, excepting Sinclair.

HEBRON

The Sunday evening service of the Christian Endeavor was omitted on account of the rain on Saturday. Some of the members attended the moving picture program given by the Andover Endeavor Society. The Gilead Endeavor Society was also omitted to allow the members to attend the Andover program to which they were invited.

Schools of the town were closed Monday afternoon. The teachers of the towns under the supervision of Martin E. Robertson attended a teachers' meeting at Wilmanville. The Rev. John Deeter, Miss Helen Hough, and Mrs. Edward A. Smith represented the Hebron and Gilead Christian Endeavor Societies at the fall meeting of the Willimantic Christian Endeavor Union, held in South Coventry, on Saturday.

Miss Clarissa Lord, went with more than two hundred of the students and faculty of The Connecticut State Agricultural College on Saturday to witness the football game played at Kingston, R. I. between Storrs and Brown University.

William Dowling has been taken to the Backus Hospital at Norwich by selection of the town. Mr. and Mrs. Little were struck by a paralytic stroke, and his condition is said to be very critical.

Recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Etta Rathbun and her daughter, Miss Mildred, were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Park and children, Mrs. Maro Hatch, of Stafford, and Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Patterson, of Freeport, Long Island. Mrs. Hatch and Mrs. Patterson also visited Colchester where they used to live, and called on old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Little of Wilmanville were visitors at the home of Judge and Mrs. Leon Rathbun on evening recently. Both Mr. and Mrs. Little were residents of Hebron. Mrs. Little was Miss Bertha Williams.

Mrs. John Mitchell and her infant son, John, Jr., spent a little time on Monday at the home of Mrs. J. B. Tennant, Howard Kelsey, Mrs. Tennant's brother, of Montville, were also a Sunday visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hilding of New York came to the week-end and which they spent as guests of Miss Victoria Hilding at the Hilding homestead, returning to their home on Monday.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT DIAMOND MARKET POOR

Norwalk, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Robert Wakeman, 10, of Westport is in Norwalk hospital resting comfortably after a miraculous escape when he was accidentally shot in the chest by his 15-year-old sister.

The bullet which struck the lad as the girl who was carrying a .22 rifle, stumbled, entered his chest, glanced off to the left and passed directly over his heart before lodging in his shoulder blade. Dr. George G. Fawcett of Norwalk declared the boy's escape was remarkable as the slightest deflection of the bullet would have meant instant death.

Misfortune is relentlessly pursuing the Wakeman family. Two other brothers are on the injured list, Isaac 17, with wounds received when he was hit on the knee by the prongs of a pitch fork, and Stephen, 24, suffering with lacerations of the right hand received when he fell upon a broken milk bottle.

Antwerp, Belgium, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Antwerp jewelers and diamond merchants are suggesting that all the diamond workshops in Belgium be shut down temporarily to reduce to a minimum the difficulties caused in the diamond industry by a recent slump in the American and British markets.

By closing the shops for a period of three to six months, they hope to stabilize the market, avoid over-production, and maintain the difficult prices of diamonds. Belgian diamond merchants would like the Amsterdam cutters and dealers to adopt similar drastic measures to protect the industry, which is an important one in Belgium. About 15,000 skilled workers, drawing high salaries, are engaged in it. Belgian diamond exports last year amounted to more than $50,000,000, one-third of which was paid by American jewelers.

ROCKVILLE

Mother's Club Meeting

There was a large number of the members of the Mother's Club of Union Congregational Church present at the regular monthly meeting held in the south parlor of the church last evening. The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by the president, Mrs. George Herzog. Plans were discussed by "Family Night", which will be held in December, this taking the place of the regular banquet, which is usually held in May. The executive committee, consisting of the president, Mrs. George Herzog; Past President, Mrs. Ethel Leonard; Vice President, Mrs. George Wainwright; Treasurer, Mrs. Otto Preusse; Secretary, Mrs. Hoyt Hayden; Mrs. George S. Brooks; Mrs. Thomas Neill and Mrs. Herbert Cockayne, will be in charge of the forthcoming event. The Past President will act as chairman.

Miss Alice Watts of this city was the speaker at the meeting last evening, and she had as her subject, "Amy Lowell and Excerpts from Her Works," which proved most interesting.

Mrs. Elma Hansen Johnson sang two vocal solos and Miss Viola Hoerig delightedly entertained with two piano selections.

Bohossz Post Meets

Stanley Bohossz Post, American Legion held its regular meeting in G. A. R. hall on Tuesday night, with William C. Pfunder, the new president, presiding. A report was given by the committee in charge of the recent fair, and a goodly sum was realized to carry on the good work of the organization. Important matters were discussed and Edward Newmarker was appointed to take care of the local members receiving adjusted compensation. Lester Martin was appointed the head of a committee in the interests of aviation.

Following the meeting a luncheon was served and a social hour enjoyed. There were about forty members present.

Mrs. Bridget Davy, 78, died in Hartford on Tuesday following a long illness. She was the widow of Michael Davy, who died a few years ago. The deceased had been a resident of Rockville for many years and lived here until a short time ago. She was a member of St. Bernard's church. Her husband had many friends in this city, who will be sorry to hear of her death. The funeral of Mrs. Davy was held today.

Farm Bureau Annual

The annual meeting of the Tolland County Farm Bureau, will be held on Thursday of this week, with morning and afternoon sessions in the Rockville Girls' Club rooms in the Prescott Block on Park street. A program of unusual interest has been prepared, in addition to the routine business, which includes reports and election of officers. People from all parts of the county will be in attendance. The program are some eminent speakers on practical subjects of genuine interest, not only to the members, but to the public, which is cordially invited to attend. The address at the afternoon session will be given by Dr. George Alan Works, the new president of the Connecticut Agricultural College.

At noon a dinner will be served in the Club rooms at 60 cents per plate, by the Crackerjack, 4-H Cook Club of Rockville.

The program of the day will include movie films, addresses and the transacting of important business.

Past Master's Night.—The "Past Master's Night" will be observed by Fayette Lodge No. 69, A. F. & A. M. on Friday evening, November 22, in Masonic hall, Fitch block on Union street. Elaborate preparations have been made, and the special communication, which will open at 7:30 o'clock, promises to be a noteworthy event. Visitors are expected from Hartford, Broad Brook, Stafford Springs and Merrow.

The Master Mason Degree, which will be conferred, will be in charge of the past masters. After the meeting there will be a social hour and refreshments will be served.

R. H. S. Basketball Friday.—The Rockville High School basketball team will open its season on Friday evening, November 22, playing the Clerk's basketball team of this city. In the latter's lineup are some well known and experienced players, who should give a good account of themselves. Coach Chatterton of the R. H. S. five has rounded out what looks to be a lively team of players. Friday evening's contest should prove fast and interesting from start to finish. After the game there will be a dance in the Sykes Gymnasium.

Death of Former Resident.—Word has been received in this city of the death on Sunday in Putnam, of Mrs. Hulda Hill, 66, wife of R. E. Hill. She was born in Switzerland and was a resident of Rockville for more than twenty-five years, leaving here about twenty years ago.

The funeral was held from her late home this morning at 11 o'clock and burial was in Grove Hill cemetery, this city. Rev. George S. Brooks, pastor of Union church conducted services at the grave.

Ladies' Aid Play.—On Friday evening at 8 o'clock the Ladies' Aid society of the Vernon Methodist church will present a play entitled "Deborah's First Luncheon" followed by a social time of games and refreshments. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Wheel vs Clerks.—A large crowd is expected to attend the football game at the Rockville Fair grounds on Sunday, when the Wheel will meet the Clerks in the deciding game of the series at 2:30 o'clock.

Last Sunday's game between the Wheel and the Clerks was a thriller, full of action and fight and was won by the former team.

Notes.—The Men's Club of the First Baptist Church will hold its monthly business meeting and social on Friday evening in the church social room at 7:45 o'clock. Every member is asked to be present and also bring a friend.

The Every Mother's club will meet

COUNTY FARMERS TO DINE TONIGHT

Items Furnished by Members; Potatoes from This Town—Affair at Bond.

"We anticipate one of the liveliest meetings the Farm Bureau has ever held this evening at the Hotel Bond when 165 membership workers and directors will meet to file their returns," according to Charles D. Lewis, county agricultural agent for the Bureau. "The dinner this evening will be unique," according to Mr. Lewis, in that the food is being furnished by farmers, the turkey, the L. L. Grant and Thomas Burgess of Buckland, the potatoes; Carl Mexcur, Bloomfield, the squash; the ladies of the county the pumpkin pies; the Hartford Market Gardeners' Association, the vegetables; President Smith of Endfield is contributing the butter and cream; Stancliff Hale, Glastonbury, the sweet cider; George Seger of Canton, the turpines; Mrs. George Lewis, Farmington, the cranberries; Harold Rogers and L. C. Root, the apples; and the pickles are being supplied by several of our expert canners and picklers.

Howard Thrall of Windsor is chairman of the membership program this year and he states that he anticipates close to 1,000 members for 1930. Mr. Thrall based his statement on the excellent preliminary reports that are being received at the office and the fact that his town secured 54 members last year which if used as a basis for other towns would point to a membership of over 1,000.

LONDON BANK RATE DROPS TO 5 1-2 P. C.

London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The bank rate was reduced today from six to five and one half percent.

Since the discount rate of the Federal Reserve bank recently was lowered discount rates here have been sliding on the assumption that a lower official minimum would be established. The Bank of England has had difficulty in making the six percent rate imposed October 31 effective.

With more funds returning from America, the gold drain into France checked and the international monetary situation easier the Bank of England was enabled to give traders the benefit of a half percent reduction. However, its gold stock is at present $30,000,000 below the level of a year ago.

The money market anticipated today's reduction of discounting bills at low figures and is expecting another reduction of the official minimum rate in the near future, especially if the American Federal Reserve bank makes a similar move.

LONDON BANK RATE DROPS TO 5 1-2 P. C.

London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The bank rate was reduced today from six to five and one half percent.

Since the discount rate of the Federal Reserve bank recently was lowered discount rates here have been sliding on the assumption that a lower official minimum would be established. The Bank of England has had difficulty in making the six percent rate imposed October 31 effective.

With more funds returning from America, the gold drain into France checked and the international monetary situation easier the Bank of England was enabled to give traders the benefit of a half percent reduction. However, its gold stock is at present $30,000,000 below the level of a year ago.

The money market anticipated today's reduction of discounting bills at low figures and is expecting another reduction of the official minimum rate in the near future, especially if the American Federal Reserve bank makes a similar move.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR MRS. THOREN

Simple Home Treatment Brings Amazing Results

Mrs. Carl E. Thoren, of 224 West Center street, was pleasantly surprised last night on the occasion of her birthday, by a party of 25 friends. Mrs. Thoren was presented with a set of cooking utensils and a large bouquet of roses. The evening's amusements were begun with a peanut race, first place being won by Miss Hilma Gustafson and booby prize by Miss Viola Thoren. Cards were then played for the remainder of the evening. Refreshments which had been brought by the guests were served.

Anyone suffering with Varicose Veins should start and take immediate precaution because untreated veins have a tendency to grow worse and worse until finally they can only be relieved by an operation.

It's now an accepted fact that the best home treatment to banish Varicose Veins is Moore's Emerald Oil—a powerfully penetrating and antispasmodic oil which quickly stops the pain, wonderfully strengthens the legs and swiftly reduces most enlarged and swollen veins to normal.

Why let your leg beauty and attractiveness be ruined by ugly veins when a 2 ounce bottle of Emerald Oil at Magnell Drug Co., or any drug store swiftly reduces the worst and most long standing cases? A woman from Oregon writes: "I suffered with Varicose Veins for 35 years and finally tried Emerald Oil. I must say it's every thing you claim—I can't praise it enough and I'm so glad I read about it in the Oregon Journal."—Adv.

Youth Has Found The Way!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has cultivated the fertile field of opportunity and invites everyone to roam in search of desired pursuits. Nothing remains of that ancient prejudice which bound the apprentice, without choice, to his career.

"toasting did it"

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

Queer Twists
In Day's News

London—Oliver Baldwin is to make his maiden speech in the House of Commons a month hence on "The Distribution of Wealth." When the young Socialist gave notice of his intention, his father, Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, with his feet on a table, smiled, and the House laughed.

Tokyo—A case of Madame Butterfly in reverse is the Japanese newspaper's interpretation of the death of Dr. Seitaro Miura, husband of the opera singer, Tamaki Miura. She has been in the United States seven years and was expected in Tokyo to join her husband shortly.

Mexico City—It will cost President Portes Gil $100 to take a drink and $50 to smoke a cigarette. He has an agreement with General Pedro J. Almada of three months' standing. The general must pay, too, if he indulges.

Wabash, Ind.—George Ross, back of Indiana University, has been elected an honorary member of the barbers' union. His two touchdowns against Northwestern enabled 300 members of the university's no-shave club to have their faces scrapped.

London—For threatening to reveal to customers a prison record unless paid $2,500, Thomas Blake has been sentenced to serve three years in prison. The threat was made against another director of a business corporation with whom Blake served time before their association in business.

Mexico City—What will the rock 'em and sock 'em boys of Yale football teams do if they find Yale and Root, who once played at Yale and is now teaching the game here, embraced his Mexican pupils before they went on the field for a game with Mississippi. Coach Stevens better not try it in the Harvard Stadium, Mississippi won.

Jersey City—John Beggans, municipal director of safety, dislikes to see cops wearing wrist watches. "I wish they would give them back to their sisters," he said when an officer explained his absence from post by saying he was hunting for a lost watch.

New York—J. P. Morgan shaves himself. The disclosure came when news hunters upon arrival of the steamship Olympic were curious as to the tips the barber received.

Washington—White House bears apparently have caused a big crash in a market. Learning that a New York dealer wanted a fancy price for President Hoover's geometric scribbles, attaches pointed out that lots of the President's body friends have them.

New York—There was a big mystery aboard the Olympic at sea when the vessel rocked. The officers hunted here and there for signs of a collision with something. One passenger was certain long before a radio message told of an earthquake. "You couldn't fool me," said Anita Loos. "I have lived in California."

PUBLIC UTILITIES

INCOME MODERATE

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Henry C. Atwell, chairman of the Massachusetts Board of Utilities, said today that public utility corporations in his state contented themselves with moderate income because they realized that drastic rate increases would cause the people to demand public ownership.

Mr. Atwell made this statement at a hearing before the State Legislative Commission investigating public utility control and regulation.

He said the Massachusetts board maintained only a small staff and allowed the utility corporations to prepare most of the rate data presented for consideration. The board's decision, Mr. Atwell added, have been challenged only four times since 1855 and in each unsuccessfully.

JAP RAILWAY SCANDAL

Tokyo, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Investigation into the railway scandal which in October resulted in indictment of Heikichi Ogawa, former minister of railways and other high officials, it was revealed today has involved also members of the preceding Minseito ministry.

The charges relate to receiving bribes from promoters. Sango Satake, vice-minister of railways in the Cabinet of Reijiro Wakatsuki, has now been indicted and accusations have been leveled at other leaders of the Minseito party, although it was believed, in many quarters for political purposes.

In some quarters the opinion was heard that M. Wakatsuki, leader of the Minseito party, ought to be replaced as head of the Japanese delegation to the London conference. It appeared however in official quarters the charges were not taken seriously and that there was at present no intention of considering a substitute for him.

TUNNEY DEPOSITIONS.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Attorneys taking depositions to be used in the trials of the two suits for $500,000 each brought against Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty and her husband, John Fogarty of Fort Worth, Texas, today transferred their activities to Little Rock. The persons taking the depositions were concerned chiefly with the financial affairs of Mrs. Fogarty from February, 1925, to June 1929. Mrs. Fogarty was reported to have had an account in the Exchange National Bank here and to have deposited $20,000 in the bank during this period.

TO LIFT GOLD EMBARGO

Osaka, Japan, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Official announcement was made today that the gold embargo would be lifted January 11.

QUOTATIONS

"A public official who lives on money paid by the taxpayers but nevertheless refuses to stop flagrant and contemptuous violations of the law, is himself a law violator and unfit for public office."
—C. A. Sorensen, attorney general of Nebraska.

"The trouble with prohibition, in this country, is too much feeling that the law is for the little man only."
—Senator Brookhart.

"To return men to civil life with a clearer idea of their obligations to their fellow man, with a finer conception of their duties to society, a more wholesome respect for the law and a firm determination to live uprightly before God and man is sufficient reward for the warden of any prison."
—H. M. Beard, superintendent reformatory of Kentucky.

"There never was an impression so false as a contented prisoner does not riot, simply because there is no such thing as a contented prisoner."
—Joseph Pulling Fishman. (Plain Talk.)

"Every woman should be thoroughly familiar with her worst lines and then make the other people forget them."
—Ina Claire, actress.

"What we have, and what we feel aviation needs in any consolidation, is a federation of leading pioneers—not so much dollars, or machinery, or buildings, as men."
—Fred Rentschler, president United Aircraft and Transport Corporation. (Forbes Magazine.)

COLD IN ST PAUL.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The northwest had a forecast of winter today as below zero temperatures were reported from North Dakota and northern Minnesota. Grand Forks, N. D., registered the lowest, 2 below, while Thief River Falls, Minn., had 1 below.

WAPPING

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Whitney and family who have been living in the north part of the town have moved from there on Saturday, November 9th into Waldo W. Grant's house at Wapping Center.

Mrs. Augusta Burger went to Seymour over the week-end. Miss Jessie Loomis of Windsor, and who is state treasurer of the D. A. R., gave an interesting talk on her trip to Greece last summer, before the Martha Pitkin Wolcott Chapter of the D. A. R., at their November meeting, which was held at the Wood Memorial Library, South Windsor. The hostesses were Miss Jessie W. Hayden and Mrs. Olcott F. King.

At a meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association of South Windsor held last Thursday evening it was decided to hold a fair in the Town Hall early in December. Mrs. H. V. Parker will be the general chairman; Mrs. George Wilson will be chairman of the entertainment committee; Mrs. Alfred Wilson chairman of the advertising committee. The people in charge of the booths will be as follows: Grab-bag, Mrs. Michael McGrath; food, Mrs. Roderick King; ice cream, Mrs. McGuire; fancy work and miscellaneous, Mrs. George Busher; candy, Mrs. Manchester; dolls and handkerchiefs, Mrs. Nellie MacLaughlin; flowers, Mrs. Robert Risley.

Mr. and Mrs. William Burnham and daughter Betty Joyce, motored to Seymour last Sunday, where they visited friends. Grant Husted of Oil City, Penn., was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Bidwell of South Windsor.

OUR NAVAL ENVOYS

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The selection of the group of men who will represent America when the world's principal naval powers meet at London, to consider a limitation of the instruments of sea warfare is now complete.

STUDY LEGAL PROCEDURE

Boston, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Eight members of a special commission created by the last session of the Illinois Legislature were here today to study Massachusetts legal procedure. The group included Supreme Court Judge Frederick R. D. Young and William Black, president of the Illinois Bar Association, and will stay here three days before going to New York. They arrived yesterday, after visiting several Canadian cities on the way.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

PORT ARTHUR CAPTURED

On Nov. 21, 1894, Port Arthur, a town and strongly fortified naval station in Manchuria, China, was captured by the Japanese.

A treaty signed shortly afterward provided for its cession to Japan with the whole south coast of Manchuria from the Liao to the Yalu.

But Russia, Germany and France intervened and induced Japan to relinquish all this territory for the sum of 30,000,000 taels and on Nov. 30, 1895, its evacuation was begun.

With adjacent territory, Port Arthur was released by China to Russia for 25 years in 1918, Russia's object being to obtain a naval station which she could defend for the use of her war vessels in eastern waters.

It was invested by the Japanese in the Russian-Japanese war and surrendered Jan. 2, 1905. By the treaty of Portsmouth, September, 1905, the town was ceded to Japan for the duration of the Russian lease.

The lease was further extended in 1915.

SCHOONER AFIRE

Woods Hole, Mass., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The oil-burning fishing schooner Naomi Bruce, commanded by Captain Manuel P. Cunha, Vineyard Haven, was afire off Mutton Shoal gas buoy at the south end of Martha's Vineyard, according to a radio message received here at 8:45 this morning from coast guard patrol boat No. 172. The Naomi Bruce is valued at $7,000. The patrol boat has picked up the few aboard the Naomi Bruce and is standing by, the radio message explained.

PLANE AS AMBULANCE

San Juan, Porto Rico, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A Pan-American plane was called into emergency ambulance service today between islands of the West Indies, when a request was received to send a plane to Trinidad to take two doctors to Antigua. Save that haste was requested details were unknown here, but a plane was immediately dispatched to Trinidad which is approximately 800 miles from San Juan. Pilot W. A. Brook planned to make one stop en route. Antigua is about 400 miles from Trinidad.

SOLD DOPE BY MAIL

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Dr. William V. Whitmore, formerly chancellor of the University of Arizona, was on trial in Federal District Court today on charges of conspiracy to violate Federal narcotic laws. A co-defendant with him is Tito Flores, proprietor of a Tucson drug store.

A federal narcotic agent, the state's first witness, testified that during an eight months period from June, 1928, to March, 1929, Dr. Whitmore issued approximately 2,400 narcotic prescriptions to fifty persons, which were filed by Flores.

The government alleges also that Dr. Whitmore and Flores conducted a mail order business in narcotics, supplying customers in several Arizona cities.

SINCLAIR SKIPS SHOW

Washington, 21.—(AP)—Harry F. Sinclair today laid aside the duties of pharmacist at the District of Columbia jail for the freedom and leisure of a multi-millionaire oil baron and proprietor of racing horses.

His sentences for contempt of court and of the Senate arising from the oil scandals of the Harding administration were completed last night at midnight and a few minutes later he emerged from the jail, to be greeted by a few close friends and hasten at once to the Mayflower Hotel where Mrs. Sinclair awaited him.

His plans were somewhat indefinite, but he expected to go first to New Jersey where the stock farm of the Rancocas Stables is located and then to his Long Island home and New York office.

KILLED FOR DEER.

Bangor, Maine, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Murray Smith, 17, Herman High school senior, mistaken for a deer and shot in the hip yesterday, while hunting at West Sebobeis, died here today.

Edgar A. Babcock of West Hampden, member of another hunting party was arrested today on a charge of manslaughter.

"RIGHT" OF CONTRACT

New York state had an Emergency Rent law which, applying to apartments renting for $15 a room or less, prevented landlords from raising their charges unless they could prove to a competent court that the increase was reasonable. That law expired last May after a bitter fight for its re-enactment by the Legislature failed. Immediately thousands of tenants complained that property owners were taking advantage of the situation and boosting rents 50 per cent or more. So the city adopted an Emergency Rent law of its own, following the lines of the expired state law. Promptly the landlords got the city law before the appellate division of the Supreme court and that body has now declared it unconstitutional. This means that the occupants of 400,000 apartments, approximately a quarter of the city's population, have been yielded up to the landlords to squeeze as they please.

To be sure the argument as to the merits of the law may not all be on one side. It is just barely conceivable that in some instances it may have worked hardship on the owners of the apartments, though there was provision for reasonable increases in rent under court sanction. But aside from the merits or demerits of the law, one of the grounds on which the ordinance was declared invalid is peculiarly exasperating, for it is that iniquitous, hoary sinner among legal fabrications, the so-called "right of contract."

Justice Nathan Bijur, who wrote the division's decision, declares that the Emergency Rent law interferes with the right of contract between landlord and tenant. This theory has been invoked for the destruction of almost every social law that ever was proposed. To a certain type of legal mind nothing in the world is so sacred as the right of contract—neither human lives or human souls, and if it were possible for a new Faust to sell himself to the devil this legalism would contend that any evil he did in consequence was privileged under that sacrosanct contract right.

Ten thousand infamies have been buttressed behind this factitious principle. If it were a real and abiding thing instead of an occasional and emergent recourse, we could as well cast nine-tenths of our beneficent laws to the winds, because a scratch of a pen, under duress no matter how evil, could nullify them. Employment of such a shabby subterfuge as this for the invalidating of a protective law which seems to be desperately needed is a shameful thing.

Apparently, too, it was quite gratuitous, for the court also finds another much more respectable reason for annulling the Rent law—that it usurps the powers of the state of New York.

DEFEAT? FAR FROM IT

What is hailed in some quarters as a defeat for the Senate "Young Guard" in the passage of the adjournment resolution is far from being any such thing. Probably no one knew better than the members of this freshman group the hopelessness of their insistence on the passage of a tariff bill for conference before the end of the session, from the very beginning of the new bloc's formation. They were, however, determined to call the attention of the country to the fact that the tariff program of the President and the Republican party was being endangered not merely by the Coalition group but by the uncompromising attitude of the Old Guard. This they have succeeded well in doing.

The real cause of the complete failure of the extra session—and it has been a failure of historic proportions—has been sectionalism. The Southern Democrats and the Western insurgents have been animated by a determination to serve the interests of their sections at any cost to the East. The Old Guard Republicans, it must be admitted if we are to be fair, have been animated by a determination to serve the interests of their section, at any cost to the West and South. There has been, until very recently, no party or group in the Senate whose determination was to serve the interests of the United States of America—and it is just that service that is the passionate purpose of President Hoover.

Now that the little group of junior Senators, of whom we are proud to say that our Senator Walcott is one, has hoisted the Hoover-policy banner, there is, for the first time, a nucleus around which genuinely patriotic and broad-minded statesmen in the Senate can rally, in complete confidence not only of the support of the nation as a whole but of the genuinely patriotic majorities of their respective constituencies.

The work of the "Young Guard" was not really to conjure a tariff bill out of the maelstrom of this most futile of all Congress sessions, but to prepare the way for a new ideal in the regular session soon to open. In our candid belief they have scored a tremendous success. They have opened the eyes of Congress to its responsibilities.

FOOTBALL RIVALRY

Manchester has two adult football teams of unusual excellence. They are made up of skilled, clever, courageous players. They give a tremendous lot of time to perfecting their games. One represents the more populous south end, the other the untrifled if somewhat less numerically strong north end. Their rivalry is traditional and intense. Their sectional followers are intensely loyal. And, whichever team may happen to win, anyone will admit that they are very closely matched. One side's superiority in any given game is merely occasional and a matter of a very small percentage. It has been that way for years.

The stimulation created by such a situation is, in many ways, a good thing. A lively interest of almost any kind is good for any community. The partisan rivalry of Cubs and Majors and their adherents in Manchester certainly keeps the town, or at least its younger people, pretty well stirred up; which is good for the circulation and perhaps helps develop facility in debate. At all events it is a safety valve.

Not a bad thing at all—up to a certain point.

But in the past there have been occasions when this spirit of rivalry and sectional partisanship didn't stop at that certain point. It passed beyond the stage of sporting interest and became ugly, bitter, quarrelsome. That gums the whole works; makes a bad thing out of a good thing.

It is sincerely to be hoped that this year the Cub tribe and the Major tribe, adherents and players alike, will strive to hold their excitement sufficiently in hand so that football will remain in Manchester what it is supposed to be, a sport and not the nucleus of a sour and surly feud. And whichever side wins the town championship, let us have no such demonstrations as that of last year, no intentionally taunting parade and no over-the-limit retaliation. Let's be sporting over our sport like men and not like peevish little boys who get mad and cry and throw rocks.

BACK TO NORMAL

Reading between the lines of the proceedings of the Hoover railroad conference, at which a program of construction and betterment involving an expenditure of perhaps half a billion dollars in six months was effectually adopted, it is to be deduced that, in the opinion of the great rail leaders and in that of our engineering President, there is a good deal of "inflated thought" in the notion that automobiles and airplanes are to even importantly affect the basic transportation business.

A major item in the program of magic which has been louted by the big stock peddlers during the last five years is the manufacture of motor cars. Another is the infant airplane industry. Countless thousands of pages of publicity have been given to these enterprises, nicely calculated to make the public see a future in which the railroads would join the ox-cart and the transportation business of the world would be done by air and over the road—with all the obvious investment implications. So successful has been this sort of propaganda that it is probably with much surprise that the people have learned of the determination of the railroads to proceed with development plans which make very little account indeed of any serious competition, present or future, with their all-important function.

Yet there isn't the slightest doubt that for a very long time, despite all the side issues of motor transport and air carriage, the railroad—and the inland waterways—will constitute the backbone of our transportation system. President Hoover knows this and the big railroad men know it. So will everybody else after the country gets over the whirl-in-the-head produced by the everlasting balloony about a new day and a new world.

CONFUSION

Postmaster General Brown is quoted as saying that ocean mail contracts will be awarded to owners of American ships making the lowest bids. He is also quoted as announcing that, in order to stimulate business in the shipyards, the department would favor companies planning immediate building—this, of course, being in contrast to any possible purpose to favor ships purchased from the United States shipping board.

We can't think that both these intentions are possible, and so it is unlikely that the postmaster-general has been quite correctly represented. Either the contracts are to go to the lowest bidders or they are to go to the builders of new ships. You can't offer a prize for rifle target shooting and then award it to somebody because he wins a contest at croquet.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 21.—New seasons may come and go at the Metropolitan opera. The Met may attempt the last word in operatic novelty or hark back to the beginning of song. But only death seems to remove those familiar personalities associated with its operation. Thus, as the "diamond horseshoe" sparkles again, Thomas Bull, the veteran ticket man, stands as usual behind the heavy entrance doors. He wears, as usual, his elegant opera cape and his silk evening hat. He bows as familiarly and pleasantly to "the regulars" as in years ago.

There is a tale to the effect that Tom Bull is the one theater attaché in New York City who may address certain celebrities by their first names. Having stood guard at the portals for so many years he has known millionaires, social leaders and captains of industry almost from childhood. He has seen them grow and he has been introduced to their wives. He has taken their tickets and bowed them in. He has seen them bring their children and now watches the children growing. Fluctuates and leaders of the "who's who"—he's "Hello, Tom" to them all.

But before the portals are reached, one passes a small table loaded high with librettos and hears the monotonous chat—"Get your libretto for the opera." For year upon year, this post was held by Al Foley, who died not long ago. The present chair holder was Foley's assistant—a mere tyro, since he has been there for but 20 years. In the box-office you'll still find Sam Lewis, who knows every seat in the Met without looking at the seating chart. His service has also been long. He is said to know the phone voices of more than a hundred veteran actors and seldom has to ask their names—recognizing the tones at once.

And finally, encased in a musty sanctum, toward the rear of the theater, seemingly buried beneath clipping books and files and dusty pictures and newspapers you'll come upon "the last of the Bohemians." Manhattan has no more charming man-of-the-world figure than Billy Guard—otherwise William J. Guard—who for 19 years has been the purveyor of publicity.

His vintage is that of the late Hamaker and the gay days in Jack's cafe. Perhaps he is the only person in New York who still wears those elaborate Windsor ties oftentimes as large as a girl's hair-ribbon. Cloaked in his opera cape, his drooping black felt hat, his cane and his spats, he is a truly romantic figure in this standardized age. He is the one suggestion of the boulevard; an echo of a more chivalrous time—something of a phantom.

Guard by the way—back in his newspaper days—is credited with having created the first rotogravure section for the New York Times.

Just a couple of offices away Gatti-Casazza, the famous director, operates something approximating a four-ring circus. While manipulating the future attractions and attending to a hundred details, a loud speaker carries to his desk the sounds which are coming from the theater.

He can turn this off or on as he chooses. Generally speaking, he has his instrument muted and the singers and orchestra come in like a far-away echo.

Nor does the personnel of the ensemble change much from year to year. But few voices are in the chorus this season. Hundreds seek to crash the gates from every section of the nation, haunting the stage door for a chance to sing in the Met. But the chorus comes from the union and newcomers must have a year of schooling in the Met training department before even an obscure place in the chorus is possible.

GILBERT SWAN.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington — American newspapers and courts have been clashing lately with more than ordinary frequency. There is no expert testimony available as to whether this is due to a greater yearning among editors for fuller freedom of the press or an increasing tendency among judges and prosecutors to adopt an all-powerful attitude and keep the newspapers "in their place."

The national capital has been the scene of one of the most sensational conflicts between courts and press this year. Three young reporters for the Washington Times are serving 45 days in jail for refusing to become prosecuting witnesses against bootleggers and speakeasy proprietors whom they had met during their work on the newspaper's exposure of the wetness of Washington. Their city editor had turned over evidence to the grand jury, giving names and the addresses of speakeasies.

There is no law here granting immunity, but the three reporters newspapermen professional immunity, but the three reporters argued that their information had been gathered confidentially for their newspaper in rendering a public service and that the grand jury had been given enough evidence to conduct an inquiry of its own. They were sentenced by Justice Peyton Gordon. Most of the other Washington newspapermen are envying them because their salaries have been doubled for the period of their incarceration and their employer has promised each a $1000 bonus, a gold watch and a public reception when they get out.

The case has attracted almost as much national attention as the incidental wherein Paul R. Mallon of the United Press gave the secret roll call of an executive session of the Senate and refused to divulge the source of his information. After some talk about punishing Mallon for contempt, the Senate voted that in the future secret roll calls might be abolished in separate instances by majority vote. In both this case and that of the Washington Times reporters, newspapers over the right of reporters to preserve confidential information.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, a newspaper publisher himself, has promised to promote a bill providing that no newspaperman shall be compelled in the District of Columbia to divulge the source of information which he gathers for his newspaper. This law, if enacted, would resemble one which has been in effect in Maryland since 1896.

The question whether newspapermen should be required to become witnesses when they have exposed vice and bootlegging has been raised before. The judicial attitude often seems to be that the newspapers should leave large masses of citizens in ignorance of conditions unless they are prepared to act as prosecuting witnesses. Recently the editor of the Daily Register of Colwell, Pa., R. V. Lucas, was summoned before a county grand jury to explain why he had said that officers of the law had passed by several speakasies on their way to raid places in Colwell.

Down in the Canal Zone the Panama American has been bravely speaking its opinions of officials and judges there and has had trouble from time to time. The other day Pete Brennan, its editor, was sentenced to five days in jail for failing to produce the originals of certain editorials upon the demand of the mayor of Balboa.

Some loud booming shots for freedom of the press have also been sounded in Mississippi by Major Frederick Sullens, editor of the Jackson Daily News. A story in Editor & Publisher points out ironically that after two years of federal investigations and trials centering on Perry W. Howard and other colored politicians accused of bartering federal offices, Sullens is the only person to be found guilty of anything. Major Sullens wrote in his newspaper that Howard and his defendants would be acquitted, regardless of their guilt or innocence. They were acquitted, sure enough, but Federal Judge Edwin Holmes found the major guilty of contempt of court and placed him "on probation" during "good behavior." Major Sullens replied with an editorial refusing probation, promising to forecast public events whenever he felt prompted to do so and defying any attempt at public censorship. The judge hastened to announce that he had no intention of exercising censorship.

But probably the most notable recent victory for the press over the courts is to be seen in the election of George R. Dale, fighting editor of the weekly Post-Democrat of Muncie, Ind., as mayor of Muncie. Some three years ago Dale started a combined attack on the Ku Klux Klan, graft and a local judge. They retaliated with contempt convictions, a sentence to the state farm and confiscation of his newspapers on the streets. Dale kept on fighting and eventually the judge only escaped impeachment by the Indiana legislature through the fact that a two-thirds vote could not quite be mustered against him. Now Dale is sitting on top of the heap.

BISCUITS AND CRACKERS
 Those who have been following my health articles know that I usually recommend wholewheat flour rather than white, but there are two methods in which the white flour may be used. The first is in the form of thoroughly toasted or dehydrated bread, and the second quantity is in the form of baking powder biscuits. The best method of making these baking powder biscuits is to combine the white flour with wheat germ and milk with the addition of baking powder. The biscuits should be made very thin so that they can be thoroughly cooked. They should not be used in addition to other starches at the meal, but should be considered the principal starch food and be properly combined with the non-starchy and salad vegetables. Either white or wholewheat flour may be used in the preparation of these biscuits. Proper prepared biscuits should be light, with a golden brown crust of a fluffy composition and never soggy. In making them one should be accurate with the measurements, have an oven of correct temperature, and avoid over-handling or kneading the biscuits. A good recipe is as follows:

Two egg whites, two level teaspoons of baking powder or less, depending upon the type of baking powder used. (Follow the directions given on the can.) Two cups of flour, a pinch of salt, and a half cupful of milk. Beat the egg whites until stiff and fold in the flour with as little stirring as possible, adding the milk a little at a time along with the flour, which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt. The yolks should be beaten in the milk and not thrown away. Drop the batter in small spoonfuls on an ungreased aluminum sheet and bake in a hot oven until brown.

Most of the biscuits sold from the bread counters are made of yeast rather than baking powder, and resemble bread rather than baking powder biscuits. Biscuits should never be used as a substitute for wholewheat or with any acid fruit. Crackers may occasionally be used as the starchy part of a meal instead of biscuits. They are better when toasted so that they are thoroughly dry and of a golden brown. Crackers may be taken on camping trips in place of bread. There are also a variety of whole-wheat crackers baked in a hard, flat form. Some have the addition of flaxseed, raisins, etc. One of the latest to be developed is the wholewheat cracker to which various vegetables have been added. This is a good type of cracker to feed children, as the vegetables are disguised and they can eat a large quantity.

There are a number of shredded wholewheat biscuit products which are quite wholesome when broken open and reconstituted under the broiler. Because of these products being so brittle, they may be softened by pouring hot water over them and then seasoning with butter. They can then be eaten with a spoon as a very tasty substitute for Melba toast.

Cornmeal flour may be used to replace the wheat flours in preparing muffins, but the wheat flour and cornmeal should not be mixed together in the same recipe. If you are preparing any of these biscuits or crackers, remember that they are starchy foods and should be used as such and not be combined with acid fruits.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Yellow Teeth
 Question: L. G. asks:—"What will whiten the teeth harmlessly? I have tried salt, soda, lemon juice and toothpastes regularly, but still my teeth have a yellowish tinge. I do not smoke."
 Answer:—It may be that the yellow tinge to your teeth is natural for you. Ask your dentist about this, for if your teeth are made can surely be removed through some preparation which your dentist could suggest for you to use.

Rheumatism
 Question: G. H. asks:—"What causes the whole body to ache? Some mornings it is painful to even move my arms up, but after I stir around a bit I seem to be all right. Does the weather have anything to do with this condition?"
 Answer:—You undoubtedly are having the start of some form of rheumatism. You will notice the stiffness more in cold or wet weather, but as you move about, or as the sun comes out, you will feel better. I have a series of articles on rheumatism which I will be glad to send to you if you will write again, giving me your name and address.

Just A Little Tin Box Stablemen's Protection

Container Secreted Beneath Seat Told Horse and Buggy Owners All About Driver's Behavior.

A little tin box patented Jan. 28, 1890, destined to serve its valuable purpose beneath the wagon seats of the horse age—was the Stablemen's Protective Association. It was a very necessary little piece of equipment, this little crudely made box with a big name, during those days of horse thieves, and the crookdom of the stables.

Archie Hayes produced one of these insignificant little informative cases the other day from the dust of the old Hollister stable on Purnell Place. The kernel of the whole affair—a little printed card, two inches square, lay within with the number of the Hollister stable as fresh and clear as if it had been laid aside but yesterday. Sounds mysterious, maybe, but it's all very clear and simple.

How It Worked
To begin with, in the days of the late lamented mode of 1880 transportation, a man might have sauntered into a local stable, hire a rig to go to Glastonbury or some nearby point and would disappear without a word or a sign of his whereabouts. This was happening too frequently. One rig-stealing ring was run down in the south part of the state, after they had gathered in some sixty horses and rigs in this manner. Stable bosses were expert in detecting out-and-out horse thieves, but once in awhile an especially slick article, well-dressed and emulating a prosperous drummer got away with a good outfit. To combat this rapidly increasing evil all stablemen of the state were organized in what was then known as the Stablemen's Protective Association—the little tin box—and immediately such wholesale thievery stopped as if by magic. Here's how it worked:

The Little Card
Underneath the seat of every wagon or rig that left the stable the tin box containing an innocent little printed card, was affixed to the bottom of the seat. This card, numbered with the local stable number, contained the following information in small type:

"Was at my stable and was all right."
"Was in my stable but not fed."
"Was found hitched on street and evidently not fed nor unhitched from carriage."
"Had too much load, (horse) abused."
"Was being driven too hard and abused."
"Horse overhated."
"Driver intoxicated."
"Offered to trade."

YALE STUDENT WEDS

New Haven, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Romance which led to the marriage altar once again this year entered the classes of undergraduate Yale when last night it was formally announced that Howard C. Frantz of Reading, Pa., a senior in Sheffield Scientific school had taken Miss Margaret Fielding Broatch of Milford as his bride. Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Broatch, parents, made the announcement. The ceremony was performed last Friday by Rev. Dr. Charles O. Scoville, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, the time however not being stated.

GOVERNORS MEET AT BOSTON PARLEY

Fifth Annual Conference of New England Council Opens Today.

Boston, Nov. 21.—(AP)—An economic parliament of the six northeastern states of the country met here today for the fifth annual conference directed by the New England Council.

Led by the six governors, the council with its membership of 72 and delegates appointed by the agricultural, commercial, and industrial organizations of the section gathered here for a two day convention. Fifteen hundred were expected to attend.

Presidential recognition of the meetings was foreseen with the summoning yesterday of former Governor Redfield Proctor of Vermont, council president, to Washington to meet with President Hoover's economic conference. His return with a message from the country's chief executive was expected tomorrow.

Sixty Speakers.
Sixty speakers were on the two days' programs. Two general sessions were planned, individual conferences of each of the six states were to be held tonight, and group meetings on agriculture, community development, industry and recreational development were on tomorrow's list.

The conference was to open with a meeting of the council and the governors today at 11 a. m., followed by a luncheon at 12:30. All sessions during the two days were to be held at the Hotel Statler.

The convention was to assemble for the first general session at 1:45 p. m. with Henry D. Sharpe of Providence, R. I., chairman of the Rhode Island division, presiding in the absence of Mr. Proctor at Washington. Following an address of welcome by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Governor Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts was to speak on "Massachusetts in New England."

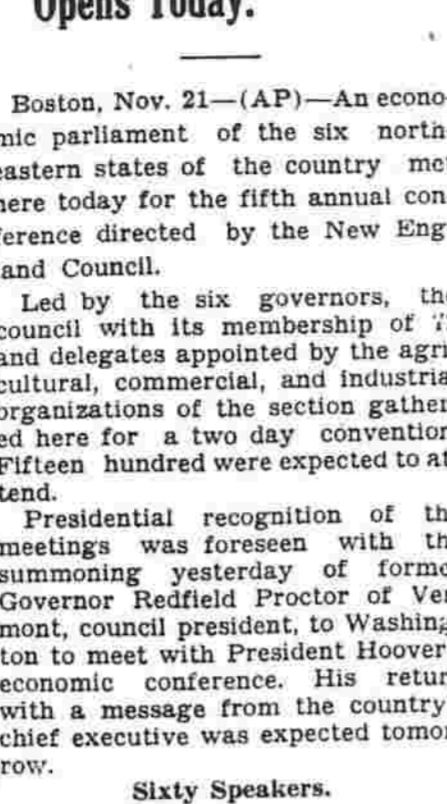

The members of the council were to be presented by the state vice-presidents.

It was expected that President Proctor's address would be read for him. John S. Lawrence, treasurer, was to report next and the governor of each of the remaining states were to speak briefly.

Prof. Edwin F. Gay, professor of economics at Harvard University, was to follow with an address on "What Does Business Stabilization Mean for New England?" Prof. Gay is director of research for the National Bureau of Economic Research.

FIRST HEAVY SNOW COMES AS SURPRISE

Town Awakens to Find Winter's Calling Card Has Been Left Here.

Manchester had to rub its eyes vigorously when it awoke this morning to believe the sight it beheld. The town had been sleeping beneath a beautiful white blanket of snow, the first storm of its kind this winter. Coming as it did, so totally unexpected, the sight was at first almost unbelievable. It is the first time in many years that the first snow storm of the season has been a major one. Almost invariably spasmoidic flurries preceded the first real storm by days if not weeks.

The advent of snow came as a big surprise largely because the weather forecasts had predicted fair weather. While officially winter is still a month hence, the town's appearance was just the opposite of the first real storm by days if not weeks.

The snow failed to act as a deterrent to the faithful. They knelt on the slushy ground near the shrine, oblivious of the weather conditions. There was an unusual ly large morning crowd of about 2,000 persons which formed in several lines near the grave.

A woman from Virginia was among those there today. She suffered from a paralytic ailment. Another woman, from Long Island, N. Y., dear and dumb since birth, was escorted to the shrine by friends.

WALES ALMOST HITS AIRPLANE IN FLIGHT

London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales narrowly escaped a collision in the air, while he was making a practice flight in his Moth airplane at Heston yesterday.

There was a slight mist over the ground as the prince circled over the air field before landing, and it obscured his view of another airplane preparing to come down. The prince and the other pilot saw the danger in the nick of time and avoided each other by a very slight margin.

The prince had a chat with the pilot of the other airplane before he left the field. He took the night train to Edinburgh, where he has a number of engagements today.

TEACHERS' PARTY IN BUCKLAND SCHOOL

Forty Instructors in First Eight Districts Guests at Bridge-Whist Last Night.

The teachers of the first eight school districts, enjoyed the first party of the year, at the Buckland school last evening. The teachers of the Buckland, Kenney street and South Main street schools, with Miss Eleanor Stoughton as chairman of the committee, entertained with a bridge and whist party. Forty teachers were present. First prize in bridge was won by Miss Carolyn Waterbury and consolation by Mrs. Lucie Bengston. Among those who played whist, Miss Nona Pearson received first prize, while Miss Katherine Bossen was given the consolation. Miss Frances Conroy sang two songs, "Morning" and "Painting the Clouds with Sunshine."

Refreshments were served in the dining room, which was beautifully decorated with autumn colors.

TO PUT BAN ON FLYING

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Regulations to prohibit any but experienced pilots from flying planes over Manhattan were demanded today by Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen because of the fall of a plane, in West 64th street near Central Park.

Charles I. Reid, 34, an amateur pilot, was killed and his passenger Robert Baile, 34, saved himself only by a parachute leap yesterday when the plane crashed against the fourth story setback of a New York, C. A. building.

CEMETERY CROWDED DESPITE SNOW STORM

Malden, Mass., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A white mantle of snow covered the grave of Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Power in Holy Cross cemetery today as pilgrims, seeking the spiritual assistance of the deceased priest in their ailments, prayed there as hundreds of thousands of others have done during the past several days.

The snow failed to act as a deterrent to the faithful. They knelt on the slushy ground near the shrine, oblivious of the weather conditions. There was an unusual ly large morning crowd of about 2,000 persons which formed in several lines near the grave.

POPE RECEIVES BISHOPS.

Vatican City, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Pope Pius today received in audience the Right Rev. John B. Peterson, auxiliary bishop of Boston.

Bishop Peterson presented the congratulations of the archdiocese on the Pontiff's jubilee year as well as the personal homage of Cardinal O'Connell.

The Pope thanked the bishop warmly and recalled the visit of the Boston pilgrimage last May conducted by Cardinal O'Connell. He imparted the Apostolic blessing upon the Boston archbishopric.

Bishop Peterson will sail for home aboard the steamship Vulcania from Naples tomorrow.

Freight on Increase

Chicago, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Freight traffic over the nation's railroads so far in 1929 has been greater than for a corresponding period in any previous recorded year, the American Railway Association announced today.

Loading of revenue freight from Jan. 1 to Nov. 9 totalled 46,478,088 cars exceeding by 79,209 cars the previous high record for the same period set in 1926.

Needless Pain!

Nowadays, people take Bayer Aspirin in for many little aches and pains, and as often as they encounter any pain.

Why not? It is a proven antidote for pain. It works!

And Bayer Aspirin tablets are utterly harmless. You have the medical profession's word for that; they do not depress the heart.

So, don't let a cold "run its course." Don't wait for a headache to "wear off." Or regard neuralgia, neuritis, or even rheumatism as something you must endure. Only a physician can cope with the cause of such pain, but you can always turn to Bayer Aspirin for relief.

Bayer Aspirin is always available, and it always helps. Familiarize yourself with its many uses, and avoid a lot of needless suffering.

bout at Foot Guard Hall. Verde, one of the busiest featherweights in the east, has a draw with Bushey Graham to his credit and wins over several good boys.
Martin's goal is a bout with Battalino and it is more than an even chance that they will get together during the indoor season. Nick Christy of Bristol, whose last Hartford fight was the slashing battle with Frankie Marchese at the ball park, takes on Joe Pasquale of New York in the semi-final of eight rounds.
A six and two four-rounders complete the card.

M. H. S. THIRD TEAM IN 6 TO 6 DEADLOCK

Red Sheridan the Second, Dashes Over for Locals Score In Third Quarter.

The third football teams of Manchester and Hartford High schools played a 6 to 6 tie at the West Side playgrounds yesterday afternoon. The contest was hard-fought and interesting from start to finish.
Neither team scored in the first half but Manchester put over its touchdown in the third quarter when "Red" Sheridan (the second edition) ran around right end on a reverse play. Hartford tied the score in the fourth period when a colored lad intercepted a forward pass and sprinted 30 yards for the six points.
Both teams missed the extra point. Ed Dillon of East Hartford was referee, Ed Bailey of Manchester umpire, and Lincoln Murphy of Manchester head-linesman. The seniors and juniors were scheduled to play their inter-class game tomorrow but the weather this morning didn't look much that way.

ROCKNE ORDERED TO STAY IN BED

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 21—(AP)—Knut K. Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, was informed yesterday by his physician, Dr. R. L. Senenich, that he must not accompany the team to Evanston, Ill., next Saturday, for the Northwestern game. Rockne was also directed to remain in bed for another week. He has been afflicted with a blood clot on one of his legs.
The physician's orders preclude the possibility of Rockne having direct charge of the team in preparation for the Northwestern contest and the Army game which is to be played in New York City November 30. Tom Lieb, assistant coach, will direct the remaining workouts.

BOOTH'S CONDITION IS STILL BIG WORRY TO YALE COACHES

May Play Only Few Minutes In Harvard Game Saturday; Limps at Practice.

BY WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN.

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—With the climax of the 1929 football season only forty-eight hours away for half a dozen of the most important eastern elevens, hard work has all but been finished for the week. The big question all along the Atlantic seaboard is whether Albie Booth will be able to lead Yale's attack in the Harvard Stadium and if so for how long. The tiny minuteman of the 215s appeared in uniform at the practice field in New Haven yesterday but merely tried his hand at forward passes and spun a few dropkicks at the bar. Booth limped yesterday, but Coach Mal Stevens insisted that it still was uncertain whether Booth would face the Crimson.

Adams Walsh sent the Yale line through a session of "live" tackling yesterday as the backs went through a passing drill. Later a dummy scrimmage was held against the scrubs who used Harvard forward and lateral passes. The practice was secret.

At Cambridge Harvard reported great success by the varsity in halting the scrubs using Yale running attacks. The Harvard team returned to work after a brief vacation at the Myopia Hunt club.

Fordham varsity has learned some new offensive tricks which it is hoped will turn back the strong Bucknell eleven at the polo grounds on Saturday. Bucknell worked in the snow and rain at a good stiff workout for the clash in New York.

New York U. is working with more of an eye for its Thanksgiving Day struggle here with Carnegie Tech than for its game against Rutgers at the Yankee Stadium on Saturday.

The Navy also is casting its eyes into the next week when Dartmouth will be met, but West Va. Wesleyan is gunning for the Midshipmen this week. It is hardly likely that the Wesleyans will give the Navy anything more than a good stiff workout however. Much the same situation prevails at West Point where the Army meet Ohio Wesleyan.

Villa Nova and Temple worked hard yesterday for their respective games against North Carolina State and Drake, but kept in mind their more important date with each other next week.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Harvard varsity football team will probably hold its last practice of the season here today when head coach Horween gives them another taste of Yale plays, as put on by the scrubs, and a final review of their offensive tricks. Horween spent much time yesterday dummy scrimmaging his regulars with Jimmy Knox's scrub team, which demonstrated the Blue's running attack. All of the Harvard first stringers except John Trainer, guard were in action. Trainer, shaken up in the Holy Cross game is expected to be in condition to take part in today's workout.

Blind Giant Seeks Berth On Washington Boat Crew

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A blind giant ambitious to gain his varsity letter may some day stroke the University of Washington crew in intercollegiate regattas.

With a good record in inter-scholastic sports as a sprinter and swimmer, Howard "Will Bill" Dent, six-foot freshman, came to Washington in September.

He told Al Ulbricksen, varsity crew coach, of his ambition to earn his letter in some sport. Ulbricksen's appraising eye took in the muscular lines of the youth's 175-pound form and told him to turn out for the freshman crew.

Under Ulbricksen's tutelage Dent has made fine progress and has helped his own with his more fortunate teammates. A great Washington stroke himself a few years ago, Ulbricksen has taken a keen interest in the youth.

"There is no reason why a blind youth could not stroke a shell,"

Ulbricksen commented. "A man does not have to see to pull a racing oar. In fact it might be better if he could not. If Dent can develop into an able oarsman, I am going to give him a chance to stroke the Washington freshmen."

Dent was a track man in high school, having run the 100 yard dash in 10.3 second and the 50 yard dash in 5.4. He was president of his class, cheer leader, and is an expert swimmer and diver. He was graduated from Edmond high school near Seattle.

ENGLAND WINNER OVER WALES, 6-0 AS 20,000 WATCH

Fiftieth Annual Renewal of Ancient Soccer Classic Played Under Ideal Conditions.

London, Nov. 20.—(AP)—England defeated Wales in an international soccer match at Stamford Bridge today by six goals to nothing.

Teams representing England and Wales have been meeting annually in soccer fixtures since 1870 and of the series England has won 32 games, Wales 6, while nine have been drawn.
Today's match was played under ideal conditions, with 20,000 persons in attendance.

FOOTBALL BRIEFS

State College, Pa.—The weather is giving Penn State a hard time in its preparation for the Thanksgiving Day game with Pittsburgh. Snowy, after three days of rain made the field so bad practice was cut.

Cambridge—If Yale can't do any better with its plays Saturday than Harvard's scrubs and sophomore class team did yesterday, Harvard can expect to win any easy victory. The Crimson had no trouble in practice breaking up the Yale plays brought back by their scouts.

Philadelphia—Drake plays, as interpreted by Temple's freshman team, were good enough to score a quick touchdown yesterday as the varsity held its last scrimmage before meeting the western team, but that wasn't enough to cause much worry. The regulars came back with three scores.

Johnny Ambrose Dropped At Last Night's Workout

Report from Cubs' Camp Says Dahlquist and Donnelly May Play Despite Injuries; Both Teams Practice Tonight; Moonan to Play With Majors.

There will be several changes in the lineup of the Majors when they take the field against the Cubs in the second game of the town football series next Sunday afternoon at Hickey's Grove. Just what they will be is not yet definite. Charlie Ward may start at quarter-back. He was used at that position last night at a secret practice session held at Turn Hall where additional drills will be held tonight, tomorrow and Saturday afternoon.

Coach Jack Dwyer announced this morning that Johnny Ambrose, star tackle of last year's town series for the Cloverleaves, had been dropped from the squad. No reason was given. However, it is a fact that Ambrose is injured to such an extent that his services would be useless to the club the remainder of the season. It is understood that he had to leave work at Cheney Brothers yesterday because of his knee injury. Dwyer was on the verge of releasing another lineman on his team for unsatisfactory work but made a eleven hour decision to give the man another chance.

Benevento is out morning that Jack Benevento, regular right half-back, was positively out of the series because of his ankle injuries. Benevento is still out of work and remains at home. It is also a question whether Mike Saharek will see much action next Sunday. His ankles, too, are badly swollen and although he reported for practice last night, he was only able to hobble about. Benevento did not report. Herb Wright was used at full-back in part of the signal drill last night. Nick Angello was also used in the backfield combinations which Dwyer tested.

Dwyer also announced that undoubtedly George Moonan, star of the original Majors would see service at end part of the game. McCarthy, Crockett and Lippincott will also be called upon to prevent the Cubs from skirting the flanks for long gains. Last week the Major ends were often boxed but next Sunday may be a different story. In fact, Coach Dwyer is most confident that it will.

Dead Come To Life
Meanwhile reports from the south end are to the effect that the so-called "dead and maimed" are not so incapacitated after all. It is understood that "Yump" Dahlquist may be pressed into service at quarter despite his broken rib and that "Cody" Donnelly has been declared ready for action notwithstanding the blood poisoning which sent him to the hospital here only a few days ago for an operation and still has his left arm in a sling. The swelling has gone down almost completely and the few remaining days before the second title game are expected to make him available for service.

Billy Skoneski will not play due to his dislocated left elbow and Felix Mozzier, last year's star end, will be here from Boston. Jack Cheney and Sully Simmonds will probably get the starting assignment at the wing positions for the champions. Coach Tom Kelley said last night that his team would probably play defensive football next Sunday and that he would be entirely satisfied with a one touchdown margin. Both teams are expected to be far more successful in their aerial efforts. The Cubs practice tonight at the School street Rec.

Camel has the quality that smokers depend upon

It is all right to experiment but a pity to spend too much time experimenting when you might be enjoying the fragrant pleasure of smoking Camels.

It has been the experience of many smokers, after trying other brands, that Camels give constant and unflinching pleasure. Their mildness, due to choice tobaccos and expert blending, makes it possible to smoke them liberally without any tiring of the taste. This quality, which smokers have learned to depend upon, will be maintained, because Camels are made for those who know and appreciate the real pleasure of smoking.

OLD APEL OPERA HOUSE UP FOR SALE OR RENT

North End Landmark Has Just Been Renovated; Herman Lewis the Owner.

Apel's Opera House building, a landmark at the north end of the town is offered for sale or for rent in another column of today's issue of The Herald.

The building is quite modern and is equipped with electric elevator. The electric lights, and steam heat. The various rooms are laid out to afford plenty of space as the dimensions are 50 x 100 feet.

The opera house was built by the late Bernard C. Apel, for many years one of Manchester's leading furniture dealers.

The theater is suitable for motion pictures, theatricals or large meetings. The building could be used for manufacturing or as a warehouse.

GUARDIANSHIP FIGHT INVOLVES MILLIONS

Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Trial of a suit involving the guardianship of Stanley McCormick, incompetent multi-millionaire son of the late Cyrus K. McCormick, Chicago harvester king, begins today.

The suit, brought by Mrs. Katherine McCormick, wife of the invalid, seeks the removal of his brother and sister, Harold McCormick and Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine, as guardians, and the establishment of herself as the sole administrator of her husband's estate.

Mrs. McCormick charges she has been prevented from visiting her husband, and that his estate, most of which is in Chicago, is being dissipated. Among other things she alleges the payment of exorbitant medical fees citing $300,000 to one physician since 1927.

Mrs. McCormick is represented by Newton D. Baker, secretary under President Wilson, and Walter K. Tuller, Los Angeles attorney. The legal staff of Harold McCormick and Mrs. Blaine is headed by Oscar Lawler of Los Angeles.

Two weeks have been set aside on the court calendar for the hearing.

NORTH END CHURCH SHOWS "SKY PILOT"

"The Sky Pilot", Ralph Connor's famous story of the Canadian Northwest, will be shown in motion pictures at Second Congregational church Sunday evening at 7:30. This will be the first of a series of five special motion picture services to be given monthly throughout the winter.

The committee in charge is bending every effort to make these services of unusual interest to the townspeople and a general invitation has been extended through the press and by circulars to Manchester residents regardless of whatever church they are affiliated.

Whatever the anti-freeze used, practically the same preparations should be made. This includes the thorough cleansing of the cooling system and tightening of all connections from motor to radiator.

POULTRY FOR PRIZES AT WHIST AT GREEN

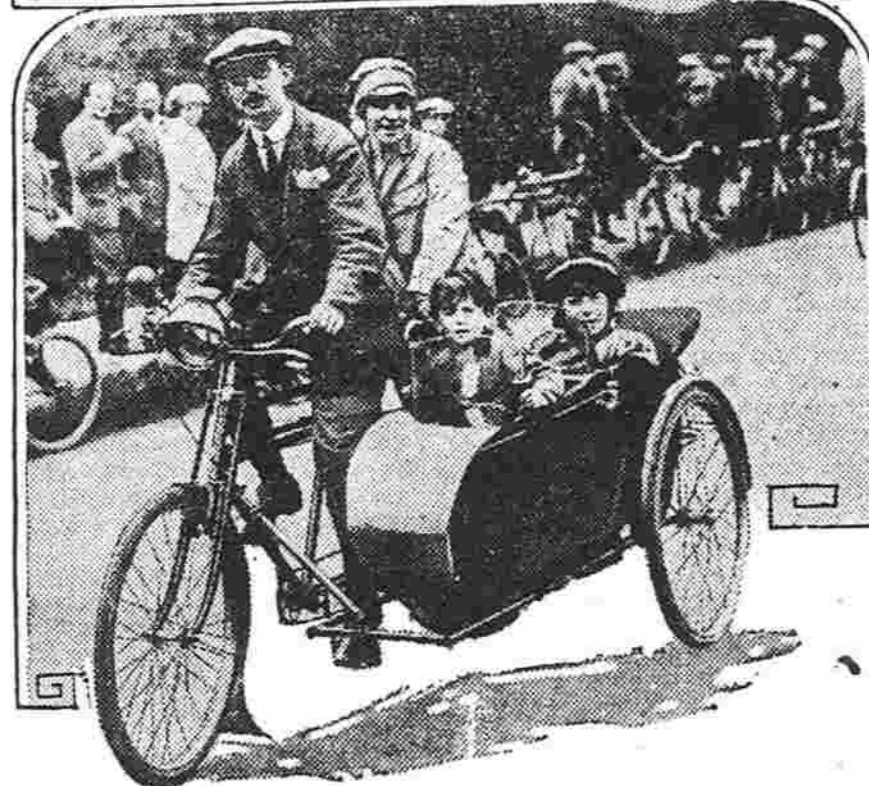

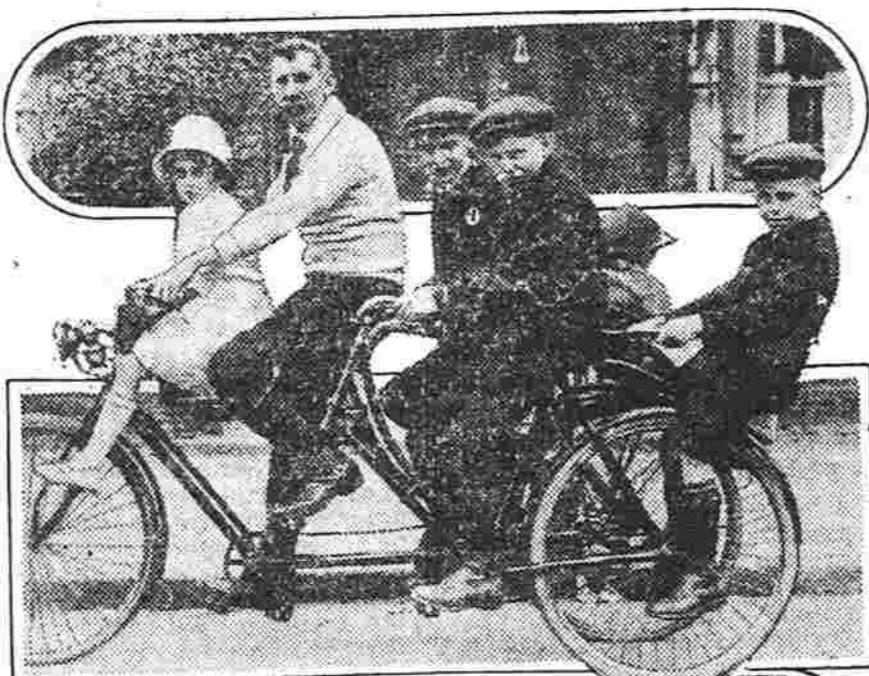

Poultry prizes—six of them—will attract whist players from all parts of the town to the Manchester Green school hall tomorrow night, when the Green Community club will give another of its fortnightly whist and dance socials under auspices of the women's committee.

Briton Lords Highways With His Tax-Free Bike

Over in England the whole family goes bicycling. Above, father takes the children for an airing on a tandem bike. Below, the youngsters jog along in a side car while the parents furnish the motive power.

By WADE WERNER

London.—(AP)—An Englishman's home is his castle, but his bicycle is his throne.

As a pedestrian, motorist and taxi driver may treat him with scorn; as a motorist, driver of trucks and coaches may crowd him off the road. But put him on a bicycle and he is king of the highway.

His rule of roads and lanes is unquestioned. No one, least of all the chauffeur of a limousine, may toot him into the ditch.

For a motorist to hit a train at a grade-crossing is unfortunate. If he collides with another automobile or a motorcycle he still can plead it was an accident.

But if he sees a flock of wheel-pushers just ahead of him he slows down and edges past them. He knows better than to spill an Englishman off his bicycle. Hitting a bicyclist in England isn't an accident. It's an atrocity.

So the common man in this country, who may be earning only a fourth as much as the American factory worker who boasts an automobile, still manages to enjoy himself on the highways.

How's the Hitter? Limit on Car Care

By ISRAEL KLEIN.

Science Editor, NEA Service.

The most important part of the automobile to prepare for the winter is the cooling system. If proper attention is paid to this at this time, there should be no trouble with it throughout the cold months.

If a glycerine is to be used as anti-freeze, instead of alcohol, however a little more thought must be given to the various connections. It is essential that every link be tight and in perfect condition, or the solution will find an opening through which to leak.

The rubber hose couplings must be in good order and the links that hold them should be tight. Every nut on the cylinder head should be tightened when the motor is warm.

One of the first places where a leakage might occur is at the water pump. Here the packing should be renewed and the large nut at the side of the pump well tightened to avoid a leak through here.

Tightening of these essential points may be done after the cooling system has been cleaned out. The cleansing is worth the trouble, whether alcohol or glycerine is used.

First the old water in the cooling system should be drained out. Then fresh water should be poured into the radiator, mixed with two table-spoonsful of baking soda or sal soda. The locknut at the bottom of the radiator should be closed and the motor run for a while with this solution in the cooling system.

After the motor has been well warmed up and the solution was circulated thoroughly through the system, it should be drained again and then fresh water should be flushed through. This flushing operation should be done while the motor is running slowly and should be kept up for some time.

It is necessary to flush out every vestige of the baking soda solution, for while it cleans out the rust in the system, the baking soda will also eat into the metal if left in for any length of time.

Upon thoroughly flushing the cooling system and tightening up all connections, the proper mixture of water and anti-freeze may be poured into the radiator.

If there happens to be a leak in the radiator after it has been cleaned out, no matter how tiny that leak, it should be soldered up or otherwise repaired by a competent radiator repair man, or the cooling solution will gradually be lost.

As an important part of the cooling system, the fan must also be checked up and the belt tightened. Although it may be cold outside and the engine should be kept going at quite a warm temperature, cooling of the solution that keeps this motor temperature steady is essential.

With the anti-freeze like glycerine or alcohol in the system, the possibility of the solution's getting too hot is increased. The fan's part in avoiding this is important, and it should therefore be in good working order.

SERVICE for the MOTORIST

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

USE HEAVIER LINING.

Squeaky brakes being due very largely to vibration it is a good plan to consider the possibility that the brake bands and drums may be too light, if the car is troubled with this sort of annoyance.

Though it is too much of a job to consider using heavier parts on the car one way to get around the difficulty is by using a thicker brake lining. A 3-16 lining on a light hand for instance, will admit of less squeaking than one of 5-32 inch thickness.

Anything that sets up vibration in a brake is amplified into sound by the bands and drums, just as the violin obtains its tones by the vibrating of its strings. Heavier linings help destroy this amplifying action and being relatively inexpensive furnish a logical solution to the problem of squeaky motoring.

JUST AS IT SHOULD BE.

Borrowing trouble is bad business in automobile ownership. There is enough of it in the normal course of events without going to all this bother.

Recently a motorist with a new car and a type of instrument board meter that was new to him made himself and the service people a lot of unnecessary trouble by mistaking a normal situation for something that wasn't according to the rules.

It seems that every time he switched off his engine the heat indicator started to register higher than when it was running. He was worried.

Yet, that the engine runs the water is circulating through the head and block, these parts continually receiving fresh supplies of cooled water. But when the engine stops this cooling action ceases.

GOOD SHIFTING PAYS. Rather than attempt to master the art of shifting the gears of the new car skillfully it is a matter of dollars and sense to make sure you shift them fully.

When running in second be sure the gear shift lever is as far toward the second gear position as it will go. The same rule applies to low, high and reverse, but especially to second.

Gears that are run half meshed soon wear on the edges. The result is they develop the annoying and often dangerous habit of slipping out of mesh. Also a partial mesh of gears causes vibration and wear on the splined shaft and bearings.

FOUR HANDS FOR THIS. Too many motorists may know the broth but when adjusting the position of an engine fan two people can do the job better than one.

Arrangements differ for various cars but usually it is possible to make a lever of a broom handle or a stout stick and hold the fan up at the proper position while the other party is tightening the adjusting nut. Between the two accuracy can be injected into the work so that the belt, after the adjustment, will neither jump off nor break.

TESTING FOR TIGHTNESS. Whether the engine of the new car really is "tight" cannot always be told from driving it. If the gears are stiff the impression may be gained that the engine is tighter than it is.

A more satisfactory way of finding out the truth about the engine is to "stop" test. While the engine is running it is suddenly switched off and its behavior observed.

TRY A NEW CAMSHAFT. The camshaft is one unit of the engine few car owners ever think of changing, yet substituting a new and slightly different one produces marked changes in the action of the engine. This is something to be considered by owners who complain that their present engines lack pick-up.

Maneuvering a camshaft results in quicker valve action. If the positions of the cams are changed slightly the valves will open sooner or later, whichever is needed to produce desired results.

Engineers have to compromise on a cam design as well as in the location of the cams. Too sharp a valve lift is noisy. Too early valve opening can be troublesome as too late an opening. But sometimes the particular needs and tastes of the driver justify a camshaft slightly different from the one sent through as standard equipment.

Horses can be trained like sheep to follow a leader. If you doubt it, just go to any race track.

NOT ALWAYS DRIVERS

It's not always the motorist's fault when an accident occurs. According to Edward H. Fox, deputy superintendent of police in Detroit, nearly one-half the pedestrians killed there in accidents recently were responsible for their own deaths.

RECORD SERVICE

L. R. Chipell of Grand Rapids, Mich., is still driving the same car he bought 12 years ago. He has driven it more than 100,000 miles, and all of the essential parts are still of the original equipment.

LARGER COOLING AREA

Cooling systems of automobiles have increased from one to four quarts during the last year, a survey taken by the Glycerine Producers' Association shows.

STILL MORE GAS

Motorists are using more gasoline. The consumption in the United States during August, 1929, totaled 37,579,000 barrels, an increase of more than 4,000,000 barrels over the August consumption of 1928.

The Avenging Parrot

By Anne Austin, author of "The Black Pigeon," "Rival Wives," etc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MRS. EMMA HOGARTH, said to keep money in her room on the second floor of Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house, is strangled to death. BONNIE DUNDEE, "cub" detective, assisting LIEUTENANT STRAWN, attaches significance to the utterance "Bad Penny" made by CAPT. the victim's parrot, when he finds in her diary reference to a mysterious "D." of whom she lived in dread.

Suspicion at once falls on EMIL SEVIER, former boarder whom Mrs. Hogarth accused of trying to rob her. CORA BARKER, theater pianist, also a boarder, thought to have had an affair with Sevier, is arrested as a material witness against him when she confesses she was in the murder room shortly after 12.

Other boarders under suspicion are HENRY DOWD, MR. and MRS. SHARP, NORMA PAIGE, WALTER STYLES, who had quarreled with Mrs. Hogarth; BERT MAGNUS, newcomer and amateur scenario writer, and DAISY SHEPHERD.

The boarders all agree to stay on except Daisy, who packs and leaves. Dundee pays Styles a visit and finds him washing, socks and a pair of gloves! Magnus, obviously in love with Cora, worries about her arrest. Dundee learns from Mrs. Rhodes Mrs. Hogarth's secretive method of sending and receiving mail making only the postman her confidant. Monday morning Bonnie waits anxiously for the first mail delivery, to learn the name of Mrs. Hogarth's correspondent.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV

"Good morning, sir," Dundee greeted the little old postman deferentially. "You've probably heard that Mrs. Emma Hogarth is dead. I'm a detective," and he showed a badge which Strawn had brought him Sunday, to be used in emergency. "I understand that you have been delivering a registered letter to Mrs. Hogarth on or about the first of the month for the past five years."

"That's right," the postman nodded. "And I was saying to myself just as I come up the walk that this is the first time that letter ain't come regular as the calendar itself."

"What?" Dundee ejaculated. "You're sure the letter didn't arrive? I'm afraid this is serious—"

"No, sir, it ain't here. You can see for yourself," the postman insisted. "First time—no, it ain't the first time either. I recollect now that one month it didn't come till the third and the old lady was in an awful stew over it. But it did show up finally, and I reckon it will this time—"

"Probably, but the letter is important," Dundee interrupted. "Mrs. Hogarth's correspondent is undoubtedly a close relative, and we sorely need the name, in order to notify her of what has happened here."

"Well, if that's all that's worryin' you," the postman brightened, "I can help you out, my boy. Fast as I can, I'll take the letter to you myself, my own. Reckon I ought to, after five years—"

"What is it?" Dundee was sorry to be so impatient, but the old man might ramble indefinitely.

"Name of Mrs. Graves," said Sally Graves, the postman replied liberally. "Address—No.—West 53d St., New York City."

"Graves?" Dundee repeated. "Sally Graves? That name sounds familiar—"

"It's a common sort of name," the postman told him. "mildly. A funny thing—the poor old lady never got letters from anybody else and never wrote to anybody but to this Miss Sally Graves. Always put her letters to Miss Graves in an envelope addressed to me, and I had to take 'em out and mail 'em for herself myself. A queer character, that poor Mrs. Hogarth—"

"Yes," Dundee agreed absently, his brow knotted with an effort to remember why that name rang a bell in his memory.

"Yes, sir. A funny character," the postman went on, with almost ghoulish relish. "I've seen many a funny thing in my time—husbands and wives gettin' secret letters and usin' false names at the general delivery, but in all my experience, I never did know of a woman being afraid for it to get out that she was writin' to another woman—"

"Well, sir, I'll be moving on. Want to take this matter to the house for me, young feller? Save these old legs of mine a few steps. And don't you worry. That letter'll come along on the next delivery, more'n likely—"

"No!" Dundee almost shouted. "No, it will never come!"

And pausing only to snatch the bundle of Rhodes House mail from the astonished postman's hand, Bonnie Dundee plunged up the steps and into the hall. As he tossed the mail to the hall table and reached for the phone he was half-sobbing under his breath: "My God! My God!"

Into the transmitter he breathed urgently: "Police headquarters! And make it snappy, for heaven's sake!"

"Dundee speaking. Put Lieutenant Strawn on the wire, please," he panted.

"Hello, boy! What's up? Have you caught the murderer?" the welcome voice of his chief came bantering to the excited new detective.

"Listen, chief! I've got to see you right away. Wait for me there, won't you? Something big's broken! Something that puts an entirely new light on the whole terrible business!"

Ten minutes later, a breathless, hatless young man catapulted into Lieutenant Strawn's small office at police headquarters.

"What's up, Bonnie? Take it easy, boy, or you'll be passing out with the heat," Strawn urged, as he rose and swung up a chair for his subordinate. "S. dead! Murdered!" Dundee panted.

"Who the devil is S.?" Strawn puzzled. "Oh, yes, that dame in the old lady's diary. How do you know she's dead? Nothing in the diary about it—"

"Remember I told you I was going to watch for the postman and get the regular first-of-the-month letter from S.?" Dundee tried to get control of himself. "Well, it didn't come, but the postman was able to tell me who S. is—or was! Sally Graves! Sally Graves, of New York City!"

"Graves?" Strawn puzzled. "Does sound familiar—"

"Such is fame, even when you get murdered," Dundee cut in brutally. "Sally Graves was murdered while I was in New York. Let me think—yes—yes, it was on June 2. A Sunday. I remember, because my boat from England docked on Saturday and one of the first things I read in a New York newspaper was the mysterious murder of an equally mysterious young woman—Sally Graves, living in an old brownstone house on West 53d St. She—"

"Have they caught her murderer?" Strawn asked, almost as excited as Dundee. "I remember it dimly now, but didn't keep up with it—"

"No, unless they've caught him since I arrived in Hamilton," Dundee assured him eagerly. "But let me tell you all about it, as I remember it from the newspaper accounts."

"Sally Graves was the head milliner in a smart West 57th St. hat shop. Had been with the shop for three years, coming to it from the millinery department of a big store. I remember that the papers commented on the fact that she had been extremely reticent about her past; in fact, none of her business associates knew the slightest thing about her, except that she was an excellent designer and apparently had no friends outside the shop."

"How was she murdered?" Strawn interrupted, impatiently.

"Strangled," I suppose—just to make it more hair-raising."

"No," Dundee retorted reluctantly, but with a grin at his own expense. "Her head was bashed in with a heavy desk lamp, but there were no fingerprints on it—just blood and a few hairs. And there were no fingerprints on anything, except the dead woman's although the murderer had ransacked her one room and kitchen apartment. She had the rear half of the second floor in one of those old brownstone fronts, converted into light house-keeping apartments in the police district. The police department is dictating that the murderer had burned all of Sally Graves' papers, for none were found—not even a letter or an advertising circular."

"Any clues as to the murderer?" Strawn demanded.

"Practically none at all. The tenant of the front apartment on the second floor told police that he heard the faint ringing of a doorbell in the rear apartment about 8:30 that Sunday morning. The medical examiner placed the time of death at 9:15 and 8 of that morning. The tenant told of hearing a man's voice call out, 'Special delivery for Miss Graves,' but paid no attention. Did not even open his door to look out; no reason why he should spy on his neighbor, of course."

"That he went out for breakfast about 10 minutes later, he says, he heard and saw no one. As a matter of fact, the murderer could not have picked a better time to enter and escape unobserved. New York is still asleep at 9 o'clock on Sunday. The Graves girl—police placed her age at about 28—was dressed in nightgown and kimono. Evidently she had risen from bed to answer the doorbell, rung by the fake special delivery postman. Post office records showed no such letter had been received for her."

"Who discovered the crime?" Strawn asked.

"Miss Graves' first assistant designer at the hat shop. It seems that Sally had asked her friend to read the word in a loose sense, since she did not make a real friend of anyone, apparently—to have Sunday breakfast with her at 11 o'clock. The two girls were going to make new summer hats for themselves—a sort of business holiday—and the young assistant brought some of the materials with her. When she could not arouse Miss Graves she became alarmed, and asked the janitor to open the door with his passkey. The last I read of the case was that the girl was still lying in the morgue, waiting to be claimed by some close friend or relative. And the police were no nearer a solution than they had been one hour after the discovery of the body."

"I wonder why Mrs. Hogarth didn't happen to read of it in the local papers?" Strawn asked questioningly. "Wait a minute! We've got a file of the three local newspapers. I'll look it up."

He returned very shortly. "No wonder she didn't see it. June 3 was the day that passenger plane crashed at our local airport, killing 11 people. Everything else was crowded out of the paper that day, and since they hadn't printed the lead story, the papers here practically ignored it. An obscure New York murder doesn't mean a whole lot in Hamilton, you know—"

"Well, boy?"

"Well!" Dundee smiled, but without triumph. "D. turned up, didn't he? I wonder what he was looking for. Evidently he failed to find it in his wife's apartment in New York, found her mother's address instead, and came on here to look further. My God! No wonder Mrs. Hogarth 'dreaded' that he would 'turn up'!"

"Aren't you jumping to conclusions?" Strawn frowned. "In his wife's place, you don't know that Sally Graves was Mrs. Hogarth's daughter; in the second, you have absolutely no evidence of a connection between the two murders."

"Good Lord!" Bonnie Dundee ejaculated, in honest amazement. "I'll lay you two bets: first, that Sally was Mrs. Hogarth's daughter, and second that the 'bad penny' turned up! Let's have a look at that trunk of hers. I'll lay you a third wager that we find something in it on which to win at least one of my bets!"

New Herald Patterns
The Christmas gift suggestions on the home page yesterday and the "Kunning Kiddle Kostume" shown today are from a new bunch of patterns just received. Glancing over the array there is a very apparent raising of the waistline, only slight lengthening of the skirts, except for dipped hems on some of the afternoon gowns, only one or two patterns are decidedly princess in cut.

There is a cute dolly's wardrobe of five garments which mothers might like to make before Christmas. The five patterns are only 15 cents for dolls from 18 to 26 inches in length. Then, too, there are new pillow designs with ships and soldiers for the boys' room, square and round pillows for boudoir or living room, bins, towel ends and whatnot.

There is a particularly charming pattern for undies with unusually full flares. These would be lovely made up in the new dark peach shade, trimmed at edge of bodice and panties with black chantilly lace, white lace or bound simply with self material of color. Bag-taste or checked voile would be equally suitable. This would be an ideal gift for mother to make for her daughter or intimate girl friend.

put in a layer of very thinly sliced apples, sprinkle with sugar and a little cinnamon and dot with pieces of butter. Fill to top with alternate layers, covering with a layer of Kellogg's Corn Flakes. Bake in moderate oven until apples are soft.

Simplicity distinguishes the new imported clothes for children. In both England and France little boys wear the slacks for party dresses. The small girl of six wears a sweater and diminutive pleated skirt. Over this goes a sensible coat, with a detachable short circular cape for extreme weather. For festive occasions little girls' dresses are devoid of the frills and furbelows of former years. The easily soiled pale pinks, blues and whites have been superseded by more practical browns, beiges, greens and purplish shades. The so-called wash fabrics are the slacks for party dresses. Smoking has been the vogue in Paris for little girls' frocks. Very few long trousers are seen on little French boys, they wear them well above the knees until the age of 10 or 12. From 14 years on girls' dresses take their cue from those made for grown women, with godets, berthas, princess effects and the higher waistline.

Order the Thanksgiving turkey early. Your butcher or poultry man can give you a better selection if he knows a week or more ahead just what you and his other customers want. If your family gathering will be only six or eight persons, order a hen turkey weighing 8 to 10 pounds. This will allow generous servings on the feast day and plenty to leave over. If the family is increased to ten or more, two small turkeys will be perhaps more satisfactory than a bird weighing eighteen or twenty pounds. The meat on the smaller turkeys is as a rule more tender and sweet than the larger ones. Short claws mean a tender bird, proving that he has not had to "scratch" for a living."

Corn Flake Strudel
Line a buttered pudding dish with Kellogg's Corn Flakes—

Fig and Orange Jelly
One and 1/4 cups figs, 2 table-spoons gelatine, 1 lemon, 1 1/2 cups orange juice.
Cook figs until tender in boiling water. Heat 1 and 1/2 cups fig juice with 3/4 cup water and, when boiling, add gelatine softened in 4 table-spoons cold water. Remove at once from fire and add juice of lemon and orange juice. Stir well and let stand until cool and beginning to jelly. Add figs cut in thin pieces and turn into a mold. Let chill on ice for several hours and serve with whipped cream.

A lemon rinse is good to bring out the golden tints in the blonde and red tints in brunette hair. But no matter what color one's hair may be, if only becomes attractive when it has a live appearance and that fine luster that comes from giving it the attention it requires.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Smart New Yorkers gasped in surprise when the Hon. Mrs. Reginald Fellows, interviewed at the Ritz the day she arrived in New York, said positively:

"I object to being known as the best dressed woman on the continent. Clothes are secondary in my life. I came over to the states to see football games, look at the tall buildings, see the new plays, and see what you are doing in art and music. I don't want to have to be a fashion plate all the time."

"Chic to her finger tips, with a lovely face, a perfect figure, and an obvious style sense, she was the complete contradiction of her words, yet I am sure she was quite sincere."

There is something unpleasantly limiting about being known as the best dressed woman on any continent. It assumes an interest in nothing but clothes, and it makes them sound much more important than the woman—which is highly undesirable.

However, if the lady is sincere, it is the easiest title in the world to get rid of and get rid of quick. Let her appear in a cloth hat, a short skirted and long waisted model and see how quickly she wins her "Ex."

Nose Knows
"I usually know what part of the city I am in by the odors," writes Helen Keller in her new book, "Mid Stream." There are as many smells as there are philosophies. I have never had time to gather and classify my olfactory impressions of different cities, but it would be an interesting subject. "I find it quite natural to think of places by their characteristic smells."

Fifth Avenue for example, has a different odor from any other part of New York or elsewhere. Indeed, it is a very odorous street. It may sound like a joke to say that it has an aristocratic smell, but it has nevertheless.

"As I walk along its pavements, I recognize expensive perfumes, powders, creams, choice flowers and pleasant exhalations from the houses."

Sometimes when a door opens as I pass, I know what kind of cosmetics the occupants of the house use. I know if there is an open fire, if they burn wood or soft coal, if they roast their coffee, if they use candles, if the house has been shut up for a long time, if it has been newly decorated, and if the cleaners are at work in it.

"I suggest that if the police really wish to know where stills and speakeasies are located, they should sniff with them. It would not be a 'new idea' for the United States government to establish a bureau of aromatic specialists."

Not a bad idea. Most of us are a pretty blind, and don't use our eyes.

We haven't cultivated our other senses to such a point as those who actually lack eyesight. Aromatic specialization might help out a lot.

SOCIETY ENGAGEMENT
Chicago, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Katherine Winterbotham Buchanan, the former Mrs. Thompson Buchanan, last night announced her engagement to the Persian Consul General Dr. Marcelus P. Von Redlich. The marriage has been set up for a long time, but the announcement said, but was postponed because of the illness of Mrs. Buchanan's mother, Mrs. J. R. Winterbotham.

128 IT'S PLAYTIME!

It's always playtime for normal healthy kiddies of 2, 4 and 6 years, for that's the way they exercise.

They are most happy when they are dressed in suitable togs as the little bloomer frock sketched in Style No. 128.

It is a one-piece affair in printed broadcloth trim. It is finished at neckline with round collar that is rather one-sided, with applied band carried down left side of front with button trim.

It is designed with considerable flare toward hem, with the sides of skirt left open part way and trimmed with applied band. There is a pocket for hanky.

The generously full cut bloomers keep beneath and are gathered into knee bands.

It's a smart outfit that allows plenty of room for freedom for active wee maids.

Nile green checked gingham with plain gingham in matching shade, red and white, polka-dotted pique with plain white pique, lake blue chambray with French blue pique, yellow linen with yellow and white dotted linen, candy striped percale with trim in predominating tone of print, and beige wool jersey with soft cocoa brown shade are fetching combinations.

Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

We suggest that when you send for pattern, you enclose 10 cents additional for a copy of our new Fashion Magazine.

BE CAREFUL NOT TO GIVE YOUR CHILD TOO MUCH CANDY

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

At the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association held in Minneapolis last month, the committee on nutritional problems gave special consideration to the problem of sweets for children. This committee included such distinguished hygienists and nutrition experts as Drs. H. C. Sherman, C. E. A. Winslow, E. L. Fisk, T. P. B. Jones and D. B. Jones.

The committee points out that the human being depends for his diet on proteins, fat, carbohydrates, which include sugar and starches, the mineral elements, and the vitamins. One does not, however, shop for proteins or fats or vitamins; one buys bread, meat, milk, fruit and vegetables.

There are all foods containing all of the substances that have been mentioned, and characterized by the committee as many-sided foods as contrasted with one-sided foods, such as oils, fats, pure sugars and starches. In the selection of a proper diet it is important to have some of all of the necessary ingredients.

The danger of a one-sided food is the fact that it will encroach on the diet generally and the special danger attaching to candy is the fact that it is so attractive, particularly as developed under modern conditions of manufacture, that people are likely to eat more candy than they ought to once they begin to yield to their tastes.

Experts in nutrition are convinced that the human dietary should be built around bread and milk, with fruits and vegetables occupying the place of next importance. Eggs are said to stand about midway between milk and meat in their nutritional properties. Sugars and starches, however, have special virtue as a means of attaining flavors and textures in food mixtures or in made or sophisticated dishes. The chief value of sugar in the diet is its nutrition of calories or energy.

Children are active and spend more calories in proportion to their weight than do the ordinary adults. However, the children require liberal supplies of proteins, vitamins and mineral elements along with their calories and pure sugars are lacking in these substances. Hence the committee urges particularly that sugar should be of all foods the most cautiously used in feeding children.

Too much sugar may spoil the appetite for other foods of less pronounced flavor. A moderate amount of jam may be good for children and a liberal amount of ice cream may be good, and indeed all of these things which produce both sweetness and other food qualities may well be recommended. The conclusions of the committee are that "in general the proper place of sugar in the food supplies and eating habits of children is not in such concentrated forms as candy, nor in the indiscriminate and excessive sweetening of all kinds of foods, but rather as a preservative and flavor to facilitate the introduction into the child's dietary of larger amounts of the fruit and the milk, the importance of which to child health has been increasingly emphasized with each year's progress in our knowledge of nutrition."

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

We all think too much about ourselves. Children think too much about themselves.

There is too great an abundance of ego in the world—consciousness of self. It's in "ego" that most of our failings get their start.

Selfishness gains impetus with years. A baby may be selfish in two ways. A child of five in a hundred ways. Then watch out.

That beautiful unconsciousness of self that is one of the most admirable qualities of childhood is going to disappear forever unless something is done about it. For too often the selfish child becomes the unhappy, self-conscious child. His "ego" becomes paramount.

Observe the unselfish child. You'll find almost invariably that peculiar absence of ego. His thoughts aren't on himself at all. His interest lies in things about him that usually have no direct bearing upon himself. He is interested in birds and dogs and flowers and trains and little stoves and new buildings, games, and market-stalls and pictures and street-paving-machines, and stores and people. Particularly people.

Not a Thrill Seeker
Not just movies and circuses and zoos and parades and fireworks! Of course he is intensely interested in these things too, as he is human first of all, but I mean that he can be and is interested in other things besides those that give him a thrill.

The first things that bring thrillers and conduct to excitement probably won't interest the self-centered child very strongly, at least for very long periods at a time. Anything that doesn't directly contribute to his pleasure soon loses its charm.

I've watched different types of children and observed their reactions to things outside their little world of home and I have discovered that the more selfish the child the more limited are his interests.

Our brains are a peculiar network of causes and effects. This matter of interest can become a motivating power as well as a result. By that I mean that by increasing a child's experience with things absolutely not touching himself, things that don't thrill him, nor pamper him, nor contribute to his personal appetites, a selfish child can in a great measure be trained out of the unlovely habit of self centralization.

Value of Experience
It is a good thing to increase a child's experiences as much as possible — to arouse a genuine interest in the thousand and one activities around him. A mother can do wonders with a little child if she can take a little time to show him things and explain them.

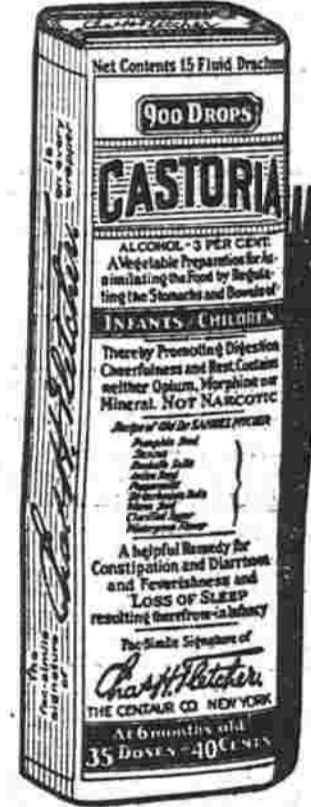

It is so often the idle child that becomes selfish, or the child who has all his thinking done for him. If he has too many toys piled on him, he loses half the initiative of play — for selfishness does not come from the fact of too many possessions always, but from the mental atrophy resulting from over-supply.

So, mothers who are worried about selfish children, here is a suggestion. Increase what we might call their "disinterested interests" and see what happens.

I think I can predict that each child will move from the center of his circle toward the orbit, and when that happens and he can look from the outside in, instead of from the inside out, he's going to be a very big person indeed.

The Cyclops were supposed to be a one-eyed race of giants living in Sicily.

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use.

As often as Baby has a fretful sleep, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

ABOUT TOWN

Hudson Wesley, Jr., five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hollister of 268 Woodland street who has been very sick with pneumonia is on the road to recovery.

E. J. Smith, who recently took W. E. Whoolley's place as manager at W. T. Grant's, has been transferred to Carthage, New York. C. W. Vibberts of the Grant store at Rahway, New Jersey, has taken his place.

Owing to other activities in which members of the board of governors of the Knights of Columbus were engaged last night the meeting scheduled to be held last night was postponed, but went over until tonight at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. William Kean and Mrs. W. J. Crockett are in charge of Loyal Circle, Kings Daughters, rummage sale which opened this morning in the Richards block and will continue throughout the evening.

The Emblem club held an enjoyable social yesterday at the Elks home in Rockville, in charge of Mrs. Connors. The first prize in bridge was won by Mrs. Helen Garvin and the second by Mrs. Mary Brown, both of Rockville. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served at the social hour. A special meeting to complete plans for the big charity card party on November 29 followed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cowles of Woodbridge street have as their guests for a few days Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stimpson and two children of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Mrs. Stimpson's mother. Mr. Stimpson is a brother of Mrs. Cowles.

Mrs. Lillian S. Bowers will be hostess for the meeting of the Cosmopolitan club tomorrow at the South Methodist church, when the club will celebrate the 25th anniversary of its organization.

Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution is anticipating a large crowd at its card party tonight at 8:15 in the Masonic Temple, which is open to all players.

The December group of the North Methodist Ladies Aid society, Mrs. Leonard Dart, chairman, will hold a Christmas sale tomorrow at the home house, Main street at Hilliard. The sale will begin in the afternoon and continue throughout the afternoon and evening. Afternoon tea will be served and a fish pond will amuse the children. Aprons, gift articles of all descriptions, food and home made candy are other sale items.

The combined charity committees of the B. P. O. E. and Rockville Emblem club will hold their annual card party at the Elks home in Rockville, Friday evening, November 29. Mrs. Raymond Hunt of Rockville will serve as chairman of the card party and Herbert Clough of that place will be general chairman. The proceeds will be devoted to Christmas charity in Manchester, Rockville, Stafford and Windsor.

CRANBERRIES

No fruit so definitely betokens the coming of a season as the cranberry. Strawberries used to mean spring, but that was long ago. They are on the market now when this part of the world is knee-deep in snow.

So with most other fruits, available—if you have the price—pretty nearly any time. Not so the cranberry. It ripens in its bog only after the summer has gone and the frost gleams of morning in the crisp fall. Cranberries are in the market now, suggesting Thanksgiving turkey and cold weather—emphasizing the changing seasons that provide the chief charms of our entertaining climate.

Have you ordered your Thanksgiving turkey. You can get a good native or Northwestern bird at Pinehurst, and indications are that prices will be the lowest in years.

CONNECTICUT TURKEYS MUST BE GRADED

Connecticut Fancy Grade turkeys occupy a position in markets apart from the usual stock fattened under ordinary farm conditions. Most of the Connecticut Turkeys that will be offered by Connecticut turkey growers are birds grown under strict sanitary conditions and fed with sweet and wholesome foods. The bulk of this class of stock is milk fed and should furnish the housewife with a tender and juicy turkey for the Thanksgiving dinner.

The largest raiser of native turkeys in this section is Karl Marks who at present has a stock of 1700. He expects to dispose of all of these during the holiday season either by direct sale or in the markets throughout the state.

AND AS TO FUEL OILS!
 The oils we carry represent the pick... the acme in quality. Critical tests were made of the national market offers, exacting tests to discover the best oil that would meet every Manchester condition.

IF IT IS MASONS' SUPPLIES—
 We suggest that you investigate what we have to offer... quality unquestioned and prices reasonable.

It's plane to me

—and it ought to be plain to everybody that now is the time to build. Plenty of material on hand; plenty of men to do the work; plenty of demand for houses; banks will listen to reason; prices down where a dollar can whisper in their ear—and the welcome sign on our front door. Come in or call up.
