Famous Navy Pilot, Testing New Machine Unable to Draw Out of Headlong Plunge to Earth.

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Lieutenant George T. Cuddy, one of the Navy's experienced pilots, was killed today when the British Bristol Bulldog airplane he was testing crashed in a dive from 10,000 foot altitude and buried itself so far in the earth that only the feet of its pilot were visible above the plowed ground.

More than half an hour after the accident the naval personnel at the Anacostia air station here were digging in an effort to extricate the body.

Just Purchased.

The crash took place at 9:33 a. m. Cuddy had taken the plane aloft to test it. The ship had been delivered to the navy only last week. It was constructed to make 180 miles per hour with full military load and is of the class of latest fighting ships used by the British air forces.

Dive Deliberately.

Air station officers said Cuddy specifically was testing the plane's speed. He had reached an estimated elevation of two miles before entering the dive, and when he attempted to draw out of the dive at about 6,000 feet, they said the ship refused to right itself and tore downward nose first at terrific speed.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Ernest Roy has returned from New York, where she has been on a buying trip for her husband, proprietor of the Depot Square garage. Secarity of L's used in making up Harold Lloyd's name and the title of his current picture displayed on the State electric sign forced the management to substitute an inverted 7 in Lloyd's given name. This should at least signify luck in his antics in this latest comedy thriller.

TAX COLLECTOR TAKES TIME TO 'SHARP' HORSES

Joseph Chartier, collector of taxes in the Eighth School and Utilities district, was not at all busy with tax collection this morning, but was back at his original trade, "sharpening" horses' hoofs. He had more horses in his blacksmith shop on Allen place this morning awaiting attention than are now seen sometimes with a circus.

NEW MAIL DELIVERY AN HOUR LATE TODAY

Orders Mistaken and Truck Doesn't Arrive on Time; New Schedule to Help.

The new mail arrival for Manchester, South Manchester and Rockville, due at the Manchester station at 5:30 a. m. and the South Manchester postoffice by 6:00 a. m. at the latest was over an hour late this morning. The truckman scheduled to be at the station at 5:30 this morning did not receive orders of the change with the result that the mail did not reach the South Manchester postoffice until 7 o'clock. Two clerks in the South Manchester office appeared for duty at 6 and a third coming on at 6:30 waited until 7 before the mail showed up. The same condition existed at Manchester post office where extra clerks awaited the late arrival of the morning mail.

PLANNING TO BLOCK STAMFORD CO. MERGER

Waterbury, Nov. 25.—(AP)—An effort to block the Stamford Gas & Electric Company-Connecticut Power Company merger, interests through exchange of stock is seen through the contemplated acts of William D. Sprague, reputed to be a New York financier of considerable backing. Attorney Mitchell Meyers of this city, who is acting with Mr. Sprague showed the Waterbury American a letter today written by Mr. Sprague to Treasurer Walter D. Daskum of the Stamford Gas & Electric Company offering $550 share for a majority of the common shares of the stock. This compares with a net of $336 which Sprague and Meyers claim would be the exchange value of the Stamford Gas on a basis of four Connecticut Power Company shares for one of Stamford Gas, less rights on the proposed 106,000 additional shares of Connecticut Power Co. stock.

passed in Connecticut was constitutional in that the Legislature had the right under its police power to lay down rules for operation of motor vehicles. Under a previous statute there had not been definition of what constituted "reckless driving," as a basis for litigation and the 1927 law set forth that reckless driving must be wanton negligence as differentiated from the ordinary error of judgment or ordinary misjudgment of a machine. Under the previous statute there had been numerous cases because the grounds were comparatively broad.

Belian and a few neighbors witnessed the removal of the casket. After the hearse four automobiles drove up and thirty guests, those invited by the dead man himself in his last hours, emerged from the house, and saluting the little group of spectators, took their places inside the cars.

An automobile containing the special police commissary Dupin De La Fouchere, was at the head of the cortege as it started on the 250 mile journey. A narrow black tilled as the group on the sidewalk, hatless, watched the procession move out into the night.

A few minutes later and the convey had passed the Fort de Orleans, a southern exit from the city. The hour of burial was kept secret by the government, in its effort to carry out the last wishes of M. Clemenceau.

As M. Clemenceau desired, his body was not embalmed. It was placed in a simple shell of pinelined white satin, with his cane and a little bit of earth from the battlefield at Verdun. The shell was sealed up in a lead covering and the whole enclosed in a simple light oak coffin with gilt handles on it, and a brass plate bearing the inscription "Georges Clemenceau."

All agreed the government could not show greater respect to the man than by observing to the last letter his final wishes. The press united in praise of the man whose "will to victory meant so much to France in the trying days preceding the victorious final drive in the World War."

FUNERAL ORATION

Paris, Nov. 25.—(AP)—M. Bouisson, president of the Chamber of Deputies, in a funeral oration before the Chamber this afternoon, paid solemn tribute to former Premier Georges Clemenceau as the great citizen who saved France in her moment of dire national peril.

The president began by citing the memorable law voted in Parliament in 1918 which declared that the armies and their chief and government of the republic, the citizen Georges Clemenceau, marshal of France, commander-in-chief of the Allied armies, "had deserved well of their country," and that the text of the law should be graven in stone to enquire forever in all the schools and civic buildings of the republic.

Bouisson said M. Clemenceau was above all things and in the most profound meaning of the term, "The citizen," his ardor ever directed toward justice.

"Clemenceau made this tribune illustrious," said the president. "His redoubtable and feared eloquence found its source in the noble and pure idealism inherited from his father and highly dedicated to the principles of the French revolution."

The president described Clemenceau as a true descendant of the men of 1792, for he, like them, proclaimed the republic in danger "and it was Danton anew who pronounced these words: 'Cast aside all the front and the duties behind the lines, let them be one. Let every part of France be the war zone.'"

President Bouisson said M. Clemenceau had never yielded to hostile or superior forces. "That constitutes his true grandeur," he conceived him as of granite like his native Vendee. He had behind him all the people of France and when later he sought isolation he asked only for silence about him.

"He was like one of those sages of Greece or India whom he admired and who nourished his thought," continued the president. "To Georges Clemenceau who served and honored the Republic of France, I give here solemn homage in the name of all Parliament."

VISITED NEW LONDON

New London, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The passing of Georges Eugene Clemenceau recalls his brief visit to this city in 1922 when he greeted hundreds of New Londoners from the platform of his special train.

The Tiger was known to some of the old time residents of this city and Norwich. The late P. Hall Shurts of this city knew Clemenceau as a young man and ventured a bit in real estate. Clemenceau later taught school and was married in Stamford.

When the former prime minister of France came to this city, Mr. Shurts was among those at the railroad station to greet him. The latter mounted the platform and talked for several minutes with Clemenceau, who remembered Mr. Shurts.

FLOODS IN WALES

CAUSE MUCH LOSS

ways with furniture, clothes and household goods lost under it. Rain and hail fell heavily again over the last weekend, and there is a general fear of new floods.

The floors and walls of most of the houses in the valleys are still coated with the slime left by the receding floods of November 11. The occupants have suffered the greatest privations, many of them being unemployed. The mud lies so deep in some places that children have to be watched to guard against their falling into it to certain death.

The floods of two weeks ago were among the worst in the history of South Wales. Mountain streams, swollen by cloudbursts, swept down the valleys and swamped the streets of towns. Torrents of water sometimes ten feet deep raged around the houses, driving people to the roofs.

TRIANGULAR DEBATE CONFERENCE HELD

Manchester, Meriden and Middletown High School Representatives Meeting.

Arrangements for the annual triangular debate between Manchester, Meriden and Middletown High schools will be decided late this afternoon at Middletown when school principals, debating coaches and club representatives gathered.

The H. Wales Lines trophy is at stake. Meriden and Middletown each hold one leg. Three victories gives that school permanent possession of the coveted prize. Manchester is very anxious to get into the win column and Coach Arland Jenkins is already hard at work building up a strong team.

Coach Jenkins, Principal C. P. Quimby and Carl C. Cuddy, club president, are in Middletown this afternoon attending the meeting with Middletown and Meriden representatives.

Affirmative teams will defend home platforms while the negative teams speak from foreign rostrums.

SHOUSE BLAMES HOOVER FOR TARIFF BILL DELAY

secret sessions of the Senate finance committee the President conferred many times with Chairman Smoot of the committee and Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, "who were incubating the Smoot-Hawley bill, the enemies of which when they were finally disclosed horrified the country."

Mr. Hoover had maintained his silence until the Democrats and Independent Republicans struck out the flexible provision which gave the President power to raise or lower tariff duties, he added.

"Then indeed he showed his voice," Shouse said. "But his utterance was confined to an objection to yielding this power, which had only been granted in 1922 on the express understanding that its life was to terminate as soon as the post-war emergency of chaotic financial conditions abroad had passed."

The head of the executive committee said the Hawley draft of the House bill never would have been submitted to the House of Representatives if the President had signified his distaste for it.

Calling it Monstrosity "The revised monstrosity would never have issued from the Senate finance committee had he advised his Senators there that it was contrary to his wishes," he added.

Shouse asked if anyone expected the Senate to disregard the sentiment of the country and to violate their own consciences by "meekly accepting the tariff of extortion" once it was before them.

"It would be a sad day for the republic," he said, "when the United States Senate became merely a vehicle for registering the will of the President. Yet because it is not, its critics are arranging it."

OYSTER SUPPER FRIDAY AT NORTH COVENTRY

Ladies of the Second Congregational church of North Coventry announce an oyster supper for Friday evening of this week. This is the annual thanksgiving of the church which always occurs in November.

The Sunday school and individual classes donate fruits, vegetables, home made foods and staples, and these will be offered for sale and what remains, sold at auction.

This season the adult class of the church school has decided to give a supper as their contribution. It will be served in the chapel hall in North Coventry from 6:30 to 7:30. The committee from the class in charge includes Mrs. J. E. Kingsbury, Mrs. A. B. Porter and Mrs. Henry Barnes.

The menu will include oyster stew and scalloped oysters, cabbage salad, creamed oysters and peas, celery, pickles, rolls, coffee and home made pies.

An informal Thank offering program by the children will be given after the supper.

LEAVES MILLION DOLLARS

Norwich, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Bequests of a million dollars were revealed today in the will of Oliver L. Johnson, a manufacturer of Norwich who died Friday at the age of 75. The document filed in probate court provides seven gifts to public institutions totaling $33,000 including $5,000 each to the Park Congregational Society, the Johnson Memorial Library, Norwich Academy and the United Workers, all of Norwich. To the Franklin Congregational church of Franklin, Conn., is left the income of a $3,000 trust fund.

To each employee in the Johnson household is left $250 and to Edward Harper, chauffeur, $1,000. Another beneficiary is Christine H. Brigham of Buffalo, N. Y., who receives $1,000. The residue of the estate goes to the widow and two sons.

Oliver L. Johnson was for many years principal stockholder of the Aspinook Company of Jewett City.

BIG LIQUOR SEIZURE

Port Chester, N. Y., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Loaded with some twenty thousand cases of liquor, the two masted schooner "Storm Petrel" of New York, was chased into the Creek at Port Chester today by the Coast Guard cutter CG128 and captured.

Arrest of all on board by the Coast Guard officials followed. The vessel was towed to the early hours of the morning, the sailing vessel showing her heels to the coast guard boat for some time.

The liquor was confiscated.

The handsome silver loving trophies to be given the winners of the cross-country run here Thanksgiving Day morning are on exhibition at Watkins Brothers.

Dr. D. C. Y. Moore who has been confined to his home on Benton street by illness, has now resumed practice.

Loyal Circle Kings Daughters cleared about $140 by their rummage sale held last Thursday in the Richards block. This will be spent for Thanksgiving and Christmas cheer for the ill and shut-ins in the community. The committee, Mrs. William Keen, Mrs. W. J. Crockett and Mrs. Harold Belcher were assisted by volunteer workers from Loyal Circle during the day and evening. The ladies are deeply grateful to all who in any way contributed to the success of the sale.

MANCHURIAN CITY IS REPORTED AFIRE

Harbin, Manchuria, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The city of Kharlin in northwestern Manchuria was described as being in flames in messages received here today.

All Chinese officials and soldiers have evacuated the city, which fell yesterday before a force of Soviet cavalry and tanks. The Chinese Eastern Railway today continued to operate trains evacuating Chinese and Russians from the district but all of the refugees cannot be accommodated and many of them are camping by the side of the track.

The situation at both the eastern and western ends of the Chinese Eastern railway was described as precarious. The Russian troops apparently seeking control not only of the Dalainor mines but also the mines on the eastern front as well.

The Japanese consul here has advised Japanese subjects both on the east and west branches of the railway to come to Harbin as quickly as possible. He was understood to have information that the Soviet authorities are willing to evacuate Japanese from Manchuria through Vladivostok.

The consular body has asked the Chinese civil administration at Harbin for details of plans to guarantee the safety of foreigners and to protect foreign property in the event that the situation should grow worse.

CONSIDERED SERIOUS

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson said today he regarded the renewed warlike activities between the Chinese and Soviet as serious and in the event any suggestions on the part of the United States might be thought of value in clearing up the situation, it would be made by the American government.

He added the activities in the Far East were being watched closely. It was made clear at the State Department, however, that many of the reports of the situation there were believed to be exaggerated.

ALMSHOUSE PROGRAM ABOUT THANKSGIVING

Rev. R. A. Colpitts Gives An Illustrated Lecture About Life of Pilgrims.

Rev. Robert A. Colpitts of the South Methodist church treated the officials and inmates at the almshouse Saturday evening with an unusually interesting Thanksgiving program. He was accompanied by Thomas Maxwell who operated the stereopticon, showing 60 colored slides depicting the story of the Pilgrims from the time they left England because of religious persecution, to their landing in Leyden, Holland, and later sailing for America. The picture showed the Pilgrims at Plymouth and various phases of their early life in New England until the first Thanksgiving Day. Mr. Colpitts gave interesting historical facts during showing and his hearers expressed their appreciation of the entertainment and the thoughtful kindness which prompted it.

This same program was given at the South Methodist church at the regular service at 7 o'clock. At the conclusion of the service the members of the Sunday school brought forward Thanksgiving gifts in the shape of fruit, vegetables, preserves and seasonal delicacies. Meat and turkey were bought with money received for the purpose in collections and baskets will be sent to a few of the needy families in which the church is interested. This is a custom established several years ago in which all departments of the Sunday school participate.

YOUTH SURRENDERS

Hartford, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Joseph Canversky, alias John Lynch, 20, of Jordan Lane, Wethersfield, formerly of 7 South Prospect street, Hartford, walked into the State police barracks on Washington street last night and announced to the officers in charge that he was cold, hungry and broke and welcomed shelter. He announced that he had escaped from the Connecticut Industrial school for boys at Meriden on August 14, 1924, and had since been fugitive.

Canversky was taken to the Connecticut institution today. He said he had been committed to the school on Jan. 4, 1920 and paroled July 13, 1922, and returned on November 14 of that year and remained until 1927, when, taking advantage of his position as a trusty, he escaped. He joined the army and was sent to Honolulu where, with three companions, he was sentenced to serve one year in the military prison for holding up a theater ticket office. He was dishonorably discharged from the army.

I. C. C. WITHOUT POWER

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission was declared by the Supreme Court today to be without authority to order the construction of Union passenger stations.

Chief Justice Taft in delivering the opinion said Congress had not specifically given the commission such authority and that it could not be imposed because of the great importance of the controversy to railroads and municipalities.

The controversy reached the courts when the Interstate Commerce Commission declined to order the construction of a Union passenger station in the Plaza area in Los Angeles, Calif.

The commission after a hearing gave its approval to the construction of the station, but took the position that it was without power to compel the railroads to construct it.

STATE ARGUES SUIT BEFORE HIGH COURT

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Massachusetts and Connecticut were in dispute today before the Supreme Court over motions made by them in the case brought by Connecticut to prevent Massachusetts from diverting water from the headwaters of the Connecticut river for use in the metropolitan district of Boston.

Connecticut asked the court to strike from its record the answer which Massachusetts had filed to its complaint, and in event the court refused to strike out the entire answer, then to strike certain parts of the answer from the record.

Counsel for Massachusetts replied that the motion was dilatory, and should not be entertained, explaining that Massachusetts for two years had been trying to get the matter disposed of, and now insists that Connecticut should not be permitted to inject motions which would cause unnecessary delay in the final decision of the controversy by the Supreme Court.

eight years of his life on the important Committee on Appropriations which, under his guidance, supervised the expenditure of $40,000,000,000.

An orthodox Republican, he nevertheless threw his support with President Wilson's policies as wholeheartedly as he later supported President Coolidge in his reconstruction program.

Moving to Cheyenne after the Civil War, he became interested in stock farming, and throughout his long Senate service he showed the ability of a man of the plains, declining to use the elevators in the Capitol building and mounting the steps two at a time, the last day of his Senate service. His bowed legs spoke volumes for his years in the saddle on the western plains. He had been successively policeman in his native city, Cheyenne, Mayor, and was appointed by President Arthur in 1885 serving through 1886. He was reappointed by President Harrison in 1889, serving until Wyoming was admitted as a state, when he was elected the first Governor.

His long and efficient state service was recognized, recently, when Wyoming named its highest peak, rising 13,725 feet in the Windy River Range for Senator Warren. He was a member of the Republican National Convention from his state to conventions in Chicago in 1888, chairman of the Wyoming delegation at four others at Philadelphia in 1900, and at Chicago in 1904, 1908 and 1912.

Senator Warren married on Jan. 26, 1871, Miss Helen Marie Smith of Middlefield, Conn., who died on March 28, 1902. One of their children married General John J. Pershing. Mrs. Pershing died with three of her children in the fire in the Presidio, San Francisco, in 1915. The Senator married again on June 28, 1911, his bride being Miss Clara LeBaron Morgan of Groton, Conn., a niece of former Justice Brown of the United States Supreme Court.

Phosphorescent suits for policemen on night traffic duty have been recommended to the Paris Prefecture by a municipal councilor.

LONDON PREPARES FOR NAVAL PARLEY

May Be Held Either at Foreign Office or Old St. James Palace.

London—(AP)—Active preparations have started for the big five naval disarmament conference to be held in London in January.

The return of Ambassador Dawes to England last week signaled a new phase of preliminary negotiations, while definite announcement to Parliament by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald on his return from America that the sessions will be held in the capital city as originally announced instead of at one of the winter resort towns on the southern coast of England, started foreign officials working out multifarious details of the conference program.

Ranking as it will with the Paris conference and the Washington conference of 1921, the London conference of 1930 is expected to go down in history as the third great gathering of the powers after the World War. The Hague, Locarno, Genoa and half a dozen other place names of conferences held during the last decade are looked upon as lesser milestones on the long road to world peace and disarmament.

Exact Location

Official announcement of the exact location of sessions remains to be made, but of the two probable places, the foreign office in Downing street or historic Old St. James' Palace, the latter the more likely, will be chosen. The great audience chamber there where royal levees are held is the only room of its kind in London suitable for the plenary sessions.

Half the space at these colorful gatherings will be reserved for newspaper men. Unusual facilities will be afforded news writers for picturing proceedings for readers throughout the world.

With five principal delegates expected to represent each of the five participating powers seated around the great conference table, a score of experts from each country in the background, a hundred or more accredited news reporters and members of the public who will have sufficient influence to obtain entrance tickets, the capacity of any available room will be taxed to the utmost.

Starting the third week in January the sessions will last from two to four weeks, according to plans being made. On its arrival here, the American delegation will take up headquarters in a hotel only a block away from St. James' Palace and therefore will be most conveniently located for their work.

PENMANSHIP USED BY GERMAN FIRMS TO JUDGE FEALTY

Berlin—(AP)—Graphology has gained a remarkable foothold in German business life. The handwriting of candidates for jobs is carefully scrutinized by experts whose verdict as to the applicant's honesty and steadiness often has a decisive influence.

Not long ago a cashier was discharged by a business firm after 15 years service with a clean record, just because a graphologist reported to his employer unfavorably on the man's handwriting. The dismissed employe obtained redress in the courts.

A warning against placing too much reliance upon handwriting is voiced in the Journal of the German Chamber of Commerce and Industry by Dr. Albrecht Sommer, who believes nevertheless that graphology, rightly applied, can render important services in the selection of business staffs. Only he says, the employer must not ask the impossible. He must not expect to be told up to just what amount a clerk may be safely trusted. A person's general character and special aptitude for certain classes of work, can, however be revealed.

Dr. Sommer says also that when the expert's verdict is very positive and detailed, it cannot be accepted as trustworthy. The best graphologists are cautious. While testimonials and personal impressions of people are likely to be misleading, they should be taken as factors, in conjunction with the graphologist's report, in judging character and capability.

SPAIN TO BUILD SMALL WARSHIPS

Officials Say She Cannot Hope to Compete With the Larger Nations.

Madrid—(AP)—Spain is planning to recapture some of her lost prestige of other centuries on the seas by pursuing a naval construction policy, which officials of the ministry of marine say will rank her sixth among the great world powers.

The vessels, some of which were begun two years ago, are to be built in Spanish shipyards at Cartagena, Cadiz and Ferrol and will all be under construction by June, 1932. Completion of the program is expected within three years.

At present the Spanish Navy is made up of 63 ships of all classes, mostly smaller craft. The largest are the Alfonso XIII and the Jaime I, each of 15,700 metric tons displacement. Naval experts claim that in trials some of the boats have exceeded 33 knots.

To Build Small Ships

Officials said that in its new construction program, Spain would continue to cling to the idea of building small craft as it was felt that it would be useless to try to compete in extravagant expenditure with the larger powers in launching dreadnaughts.

Among the boats planned for the new program are eight destroyers of 1,800 tons, 12 submarines of 1,000 tons and various auxiliary craft.

The recent naval maneuvers in the Mediterranean at which the dictator General Primo de Rivera, King Alfonso XIII and naval officials were present, served to indicate the present strength and efficiency of the Navy. While officials, after the exercises, declared themselves fully satisfied with results, it is expected in the naval ministry that the projected additions will bring Spain to a more logical place in sea power. One of the divisions in which the country will be best fortified will be submarines, which will reach a total of 25 under the building program.

Virginia's New Governor and "Hostess"

"Official hostesses" are much in the public eye these days—and here you see Dr. John Garland Pollard, newly elected governor of Virginia, and his comely daughter Sue, who will be the first lady of the state for the next four years. They're pictured together at their home in Williamsburg, Va.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION AT NORTH M. E. CHURCH

On Friday evening about seventy five members of the local Young People's Union met at the North Methodist church. Ralph Collins, of the Wapping Federated church, president of the Union, was in charge of the program as follows: Selections by Mandolin Club under the direction of Thomas Maxwell, selections by the Misses Elsie and Helen Berggren, and banjo solo by Miss Carlisle. The scripture was read by David Williams of the Second Congregational church, and prayer was offered by Rev. Stocking of the North Methodist church. The two speakers of the evening were Rev. Phillips, president of the Connecticut Christian Endeavor, of Kensington, and Mr. Kipp, president of the Hartford Christian Endeavor Union. Mr. Phillips spoke on "What is a Young People's Union?" and Mr. Kipp told of the activities in his union and invited the Manchester union to attend a fall conference to be held in Hartford on December 3.

After the devotional service and the speeches, the group adjourned to the vestry for the evening games, under the direction of the Misses Miriam Welles and Charlotte Foster, were enjoyed; and light refreshments were served.

Among the churches represented Friday evening at the union meeting were the following: Second Congregational, Center Congregational, St. Mary's Episcopal, North Methodist, South Methodist, Wapping Federated, Swedish Lutheran, Swedish Congregational, and the Talcottville Congregational.

America Derived Its Name Not From Map Maker

Gautemala City, Guatemala, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Dr. Maximo Soto Hall, Guatemalan historian, believes that the name "America" was derived from the ancient mountain of Amerigo Vesputi. He said that Amerigo Vesputi was the first to discover the continent of America in 1492. He said that the name "America" was derived from the name of the mountain of Amerigo Vesputi.

In the Mayan language the principal city in America, the Mayan suffix, "Pan" meaning principal city. The Guatemalan historian cited the researches of Julius Marcu, a Sixteenth Century historian, to support his thesis. He quoted Marcu as establishing that the name given to the new world was derived from the American mountains in Nicaragua and the city of Americopan referred to in the legends of the Mayans where the country is referred to as "America."

FELICITATE JOHNSONS ON 35TH ANNIVERSARY

Clinton Street Couple Given Surprise Yesterday by Relatives and Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Johnson of Clinton street were surprised yesterday afternoon and evening when about forty of their relatives and friends came to felicitate with them on the thirty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The guests brought with them a handsome buffet mirror, a large basket of chrysanthemums and another bouquet of mums. August Casper, who was present at the ceremony 35 years ago was chosen to make the presentation speech in behalf of the gathering. An informal program of vocal and instrumental music and reminiscences helped pass the time pleasantly. A buffet luncheon was served. The center of attraction on the dining table was a large, beautifully decorated wedding cake contributed by members of the immediate family.

POLICE COURT

The case of Frank Crawshaw of Cambridge street who was charged with reckless driving was continued for two weeks, or to December 9, under a bond of $300. His father, Ernest Crawshaw, furnished the bond. Crawshaw while turning into Cambridge street Saturday evening struck Mrs. Ellen M. Carpenter of Pitkin street. He was placed under arrest by Patrolman John McEllinn. Ely Schlofman of Hartford paid a fine of $10 and costs for speeding. He was placed under arrest by David Gilligan of the railroad tracks on Main street to the Center and testified that Schlofman was going at the rate of 55 miles an hour. Stanley Napiekowski of 449 Summit street, Hartford, was arrested by Sergeant John Crockett at 12:30 Sunday morning for speeding. The officer chased him from the Center to Middle Turnpike before overtaking him. His case will be heard tomorrow morning.

PLANS BLOODY REVENGE

Agua Preceta, Sonora, Mexico, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Last for revenge, which he burned in the heart of Francisco Fimbres since the night three years ago when a band of Apache Indians killed his wife and abducted his small son, flamed to entry into plans for massacre of the entire band of about 25 Apache braves, women and children. Fimbres, a Mexican cattleman, returned here yesterday after a scouting expedition into the Sierra Madre mountains. Fortified high up among the peaks, in a lonely canyon, he found the remnants of the band which took from him his wife and son, he said. Today, conferring in an isolated hut with friends, he planned to rescue his son, who he believes has been raised as a member of the tribe, and then to wipe out the entire band. He has the approval of the Mexican government for the punitive expedition, which he hopes to lead when spring opens the mountain trails.

HOLD AUTO THIEVES

Hartford, No. 25.—(AP)—Three men who are alleged to have taken part in a holdup in Waterbury last night were apprehended in Hartford early this morning. One of them was taken into custody after he had made two desperate attempts to escape from his captors and residents in the vicinity of Maple avenue were awakened by the firing of shots from the pistols of policemen Charles B. Erskine and Peter Mikkelson. They were riding in a new Willis-Knight sedan when halted here and it was later learned that the car had been stolen in Cleveland, Ohio, but it had Connecticut markers. The car is owned by the Lake Shores Sales and Service Company. All three have long police records. They are John Desrosiers, 30 of Williamtic; James O'Brien, 30, who said he had no home when booked, and Henry Policinis, 30, who gave his address at a local hospital, where he has been employed as an orderly.

FLOODS IN PORTUGAL

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A gigantic water-spout bursting over the Sierra Do Suajo, has flooded fifty miles of territory in northern Portugal. The water mains which supply the power stations at Braga and Lindoso were wrecked. Fire brigades, troops and workmen have been sent to the stricken districts, but constant rains frustrated their efforts. Vineyards, olive groves and crops suffered extensive damage. The season of the year is at hand when a cow looks exactly like a squirrel, deer, rabbit or quail.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Nov. 25.—It was reported in Wall Street today that negotiations are in progress for a merger of the Richfield Oil Co., of California and the Rio Grande Oil Co.

The 1930 improvement budget of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad will total about $50,000,000 and includes the purchase of 41 locomotives, 5,000 freight cars and 24 passenger cars.

The American Commonwealth Power Corporation has completed an agreement for merger with the West Shore Gas Co.

Arrangements have been made for the shipment of $2,816,000 in gold from Buenos Aires to London.

The Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Co. subsidiary of the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation, was reported today to have acquired control of the Bavarian Motor Works, of Munich, Germany. Sales of R. H. Macy and Co. have been better each month this year than in the corresponding months of last year, and there are now more than 2,000 more employees on the payroll than at this time last year, it was announced today.

OPENING STOCKS

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Stock prices moved irregularly lower at the opening of today's market. American Can dropped 2 1/2 points on the first sale, Union Carbide 2 1/2, and Atchison, Radio and International Nickel lost a point or so. General Motors opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 40, off 3/8, and U. S. Steel Common dropped 1 1/2. Reading opened a point higher. Selling orders were distributed over a fairly broad list as traders took profits in anticipation of the four day holiday this week. Several blocks of 5,000 to 10,000 shares changed hands, with the tape quickly falling behind the market. General Electric quickly fell back 8 1/2 points, U. S. Industrial Alcohol 6 1/2, and Auburn Auto, American Can, and Otis Elevator 4 each. Early declines of 2 to 3 1/2 points were registered by U. S. Steel Common, North American Co., Air-Reduction and International Telephone. Losses of a point or so were quite common. There were a few exceptions, J. I. Case ran up 7 1/2 points, American Tobacco B 1 1/2, and Norfolk and Western 1.

HOLD MURDER SUSPECT

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Two women and a man were held as material witnesses today after they and ten others had been questioned in connection with the slaying of James Burke, 26 years old. Burke's body was dumped from a taxi cab yesterday at Exterior and Seventh streets. He had been shot in the head and died two hours later in Flower hospital. The prisoners are Louis Draus, 30, Ella Brielke, 34, and Amelia Gagne, 24, all of which lived at the Second avenue address where Burke lived. Miss Gagne is said to have been his common law wife. She gave police a list of guests who were present Saturday night at a party in Burke's apartment. All of these were questioned.

CENTER CHURCH MEN IN SEX DISCUSSION

Relations of Man and Wife Subject of Professor Wells Yesterday.

Professor George R. Wells of the Psychology Department of the Hartford Seminary was the speaker Sunday morning before the Men's League of the Center Congregational Church in the Masonic Temple. "By nature woman is always a woman," said Professor Wells, speaking on the subject "Human Relations." "The attractions of the sexes are different. In the early days of matrimony had very definite rules in respect to marriage. In the beginning marriage was an economic institution to provide heirs for inheritance. Legitimacy of sex intimacy was not considered. Professor Wells drew a picture of the marriage relations from earliest times down to the present age of greater feminine equality and a better knowledge of the sexes, not counting the earlier 'giving away' of the bride. 'Custom demanded that the father legalize the marriage by this highly essential step in the marriage program. Tribes of earlier times would not recognize an elopement unless special dispensation or later forgiveness was forthcoming from the father of the bride.' Professor Wells spoke interestingly of the modern trend of the sexes; how sex matters are essentially serious in the life of the woman and not so in the life of the man. Originally, marriage was made very much to the advantage of man who was understood to be left much to his own freedom, but this view is changing. Women of the past were not taught anything of financial matters. Parents formerly taught their girls not to meddle in money affairs, consequently 18th Century maids reached their majority, oftentimes, with little or no knowledge of this all-important part of the marriage state that is well known by the modern wife. On the subject of extreme physical exposure it was Professor Wells' opinion, after interviewing many women, that they did not realize that such exposure was sexually stimulating to the average male. 'The average woman, whether she wants to be or not is sexually attractive to a man.' The entrance of women in forbidden lines of activities was treated by Professor Wells in a clear unprejudiced manner, showing the advisability of the wife taking over the financial responsibility of the life partnership on occasion, which privilege was hitherto prohibited. 'The woman's daily existence is lonely,' concluded Professor Wells. 'Man is clubby; he seldom works alone. The daily life and associations of woman are usually lonely. Trivial affairs, because of this fact, might they assume the proportions of a mountain.' A rising vote of thanks was given Professor Wells for his highly instructive address.

Weekly Cable Review

By Associated Press

With the development of serious difficulties for the Chinese Nationalist government during the week, the Far East is again a prey to uneasiness and disorder. The Nationalists are facing the greatest threat that has ever been made to their rule. They have powerful enemies in northern, western and southern China, and their allies in Manchuria seem to be slipping away from them. Russia has taken advantage of an excellent opening and begun a punitive advance, or possibly a real invasion, in western Manchuria. Governor Chang Hsueh-Liang of Manchuria is reported ready to negotiate a direct reference to Nanking.

Meanwhile, the position of the present Chiang Kai-Shek's army north of Hankow is precarious. The Kuomintang forces are strong and active, and though a military censorship veils the progress of fighting, foreign reports indicate that the Nationalists have been pressed hard. To the south of Hankow, an advance of Kwangsi troops on Canton caused thousands of Nationalist soldiers to be withdrawn to Kwangtung province. The revolted 'Iron-sides' division also has gained successes, and in Hankow itself a rising had to be put down.

INTENSIVE REHEARSALS FOR "SQUARE CROOKS"

DeMolay Members Working Hard to Make Presentation a Big Success.

Several last minute changes have been made in the cast of "Square Crooks," the three-act comedy drama of crookdom to be presented by an all male cast from John Mather Chapter, Order of DeMolay at Cheney Hall, Wednesday evening, December 4, at 8 o'clock, under the direction of Louis Smith. Chief among them is a change in the male lead. Franklin Richmond is to be replaced by James Wilson, who was originally given the female lead. This latter part will now be taken by Roy Warren. "Square Crooks" is a most ambitious undertaking in that all parts, male and female, are played by members of John Mather Chapter. There are six female characters in the play and its presentation will mark the first time an all male production has been presented in Manchester. Others who will appear in the play are Wesley Warlock, Albert Tuttle, George Potterton, Charles Morgan, Willard Robb, William Gahman, Carl Cobbyer, and Louis Smith. For the past few weeks intensive rehearsals have been held to assure the audience of a fine performance. Yesterday's rehearsal lasted seven hours. This week the cast will meet Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday

WEEK END CRASHES

Bridgeport, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Josephine Cerasbie, 50, of Waterbury, who was injured when her automobile collided with another machine and overturned, was reported by St. Vincent's hospital today as still on the danger list. X-ray pictures have been taken to determine whether her skull has been fractured, but no report has yet been made.

Miss Emma Cerasbie, 16, and Raymond Cerasbie, 18, daughter and son respectively, were reported by St. Vincent's hospital to be improving and their condition as good. Nicholas Cerasbie, 55 and his other son, Nicholas, Jr., 20, who was driving the car, have been discharged. The Cerasbie car collided with a machine operated by David Krugman, 54, of Paterson, N. J., who was driving with his wife. Both Mr. and Mrs. Krugman received slight injuries. Nicholas Cerasbie was placed under arrest pending investigation of charges of reckless driving and driving with faulty brakes, but was not locked up.

HOT WATER when you NEED it...

What a luxury that is when it's time for Junior's bath or father's early morning shave. Hot water regardless of the kind of day or depth of temperature is an assured thing when the heating and plumbing equipment is functioning properly. Possibly it's only slight repairs or overhauling you need in your plant. Or maybe a new type of heater is required. In either case we can be of efficient, economical service.

HALE'S RADIO MANAGER WINS SALES CONTEST

Lewis M. Caldwell, the manager of The J. W. Hale Company's radio department, won a gold watch for selling the required number of Atwater Kent radios during November. Mr. Caldwell's quota was completed Monday, November 18th. Two hundred and twenty-five dealers participated in the selling of Atwater Kent radios, each one employing one or more salesmen totaling about 1,000, for all Connecticut and western Massachusetts. This contest was sponsored by the New Haven Electric Company for all their dealers. Mr. Caldwell's name was included among the first 16 completing the quota. One dollar a mile was the cost of propelling the Graf Zeppelin on its 20,000-mile flight around the world.

reckless automobilists in a great many instances we all know. But the utter mistakeness in this sort of leniency is perhaps not quite fully realized. Let alone the hazard to others involved in permitting constitutionally reckless drivers to use the roads, there is the offender himself and the offender's family to be considered.

When a man has been at fault in two or three accidents it is just about certain that sooner or later he will kill either some other person or himself. The chances are rather better, we should say, that the victim will be himself than it will be another person. This might be supportable if nobody but the offender were to suffer. But almost always there is some one else, as in the case of the wife and child of the Hartford man in question.

The police or the court or the department responsible for allowing this particular person to keep on driving a car served that wife and child a pretty poor turn. Almost always the extension of leniency to heedless or half-mad drivers serves somebody a poor turn. The best kindness possible toward an unfit automobile driver is to take away his license and set him adrift. We wouldn't think of restoring a loaded pistol to a two-year-old child with a mere admonition not to shoot anybody with it.

scenes of his nativity, among the people of whom he was one by right of birth and heritage, honored not only by the superficial outside observer but by those who knew him from childhood, and yet potent enough and broad enough to leave its impress upon the course of events of a commonwealth.

CLEMENCEAU
 Books, many of them and of many pages, could be written and perhaps will be written about Georges Clemenceau. A strange, amazing figure, hewn in inconceivably bold, rough strokes from material of terrific hardness, animated by a factor of force potent enough to equip a score of great statesmen, his career was nevertheless animated by the simplest of principles—the safety and well being of his native land and a rough, ruthless love of abstract justice. And when these principles came into conflict he could scrap, at any moment, the element of justice in behalf of France.

A full lifetime in public affairs, there probably never was in France or out of it a political figure to whom personal fame meant less. The individual Clemenceau was merged absolutely in the mass that constitutes the nation, but as a seething chemical ingredient whose influence stirred every cell of the national structure.

Rude to crudity, ruthless to the point of cruelty in his readiness to sacrifice friend, foe or self on the altar of his country, Clemenceau was one of the giants of all time.

WASHINGTON LETTER
 BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Nov. 25.—The rarity of cases where the fitness of an appointee to a federal judgeship is seriously questioned has attracted national attention to the fight over the confirmation of Albert L. Watson of Scranton as the judge for the newly-created middle district of Pennsylvania.

In this fight Pennsylvania's peculiar politics have once again been brought down to Washington for scrutiny. Mixed up in the case are those famous fellow-sufferers Joe Grundy and Senator David A. Reed, National Committeeman W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Governor Fisher and a Mellon or two.

Watson was appointed one of the three common pleas judges of Lackawanna county in 1917 by Governor Gifford Pinchot, a vacancy existing. Seeking a full elective term, he ran for both the Republican and Democratic nominations to succeed himself and was defeated on both tickets. His opponents point out that during the 20 months on the county bench he was reversed by the superior court on eight of the 10 cases in which appeals were taken from his decision. They also accuse him of making too much in politics while on the bench.

Mrs. Worthington Scranton Republican national committeewoman, initiated Watson's candidacy for the federal judgeship. A member of the Scranton bar promptly filed a protest with Senator Reed. But Reed went to Europe for about six weeks and meanwhile it appears that the support of Vare-Mellon-Grundy leaders was lined up for Watson. The Watson candidacy was aggressively promoted by Judge George W. Maxey, Republican boss of Lackawanna county, but it appears to have been shy of support from members of the Scranton bar. Maxey got the support of Atterbury and Atterbury recorded the support of other politicians outside the district. Atterbury has testified that Reed, on his return, had "some objection" to the appointment.

But Reed apparently changed his mind and decided that Watson was just the man—within two weeks after his return.

A gathering of Pennsylvania politicians was held in Grundy's suite at the Mayflower Hotel. They discussed, among other things, the case of Watson. Governor Fisher was there and so were State Chairman Edward Martin, former State Chairman W. L. Mellon, Attorney-General Cyrus Woods and A. Boyd Hamilton, secretary of the state senate.

According to Grundy at any rate, was Senator Reed. Grundy has testified that all the political leaders present were favorable to Watson. At any rate, three days later Reed filed his endorsement of Watson.

The Justice Department withheld approval of the appointment for more than five weeks. It received a letter from U. S. Circuit Judge Joseph Buffington appointing Watson to the federal seat on the ground that "he is not qualified" and that while "he has strong political support" he "is unfit for the federal bench."

Judge Buffington explained that this was the first time in his 27 years as a federal judge that he had written the president about a judicial appointment. There came also a petition signed by a majority of lawyers in Watson's home county endorsing his principal opponent.

Reed and Martin called at the White House and "took steps to hurry up the attorney general's decision one way or the other." Two days later, June 8, President Hoover sent the appointment to the Senate with the Justice Department's endorsement.

In September, Senator Norris, chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee, had this cablegram from former Governor Pinchot: "Sorry I ever appointed Watson. Once on the bench traded original principles for nomination by machine. Defeated in election mainly by disgusted former friends. Emphatically oppose his appointment."

But despite emphatic opposition from the senior federal circuit judge, the governor who appointed him and most of the district bar, the politicians still demand Watson. As a majority of the Judiciary committee favored him the issue had to be fought on the Senate floor.

Not the least interesting phase of the case is the apparent discrepancy between Grundy's story and Reed's story: how the two of them got together on Watson if they did. Of the hotel conference where the Watson matter was discussed, Grundy told the Senate lobby committee:

"The senator from Pennsylvania was here. He dined with us very courteously. . . . he went over the merits of Mr. Watson and was of the opinion that he was the most available man."

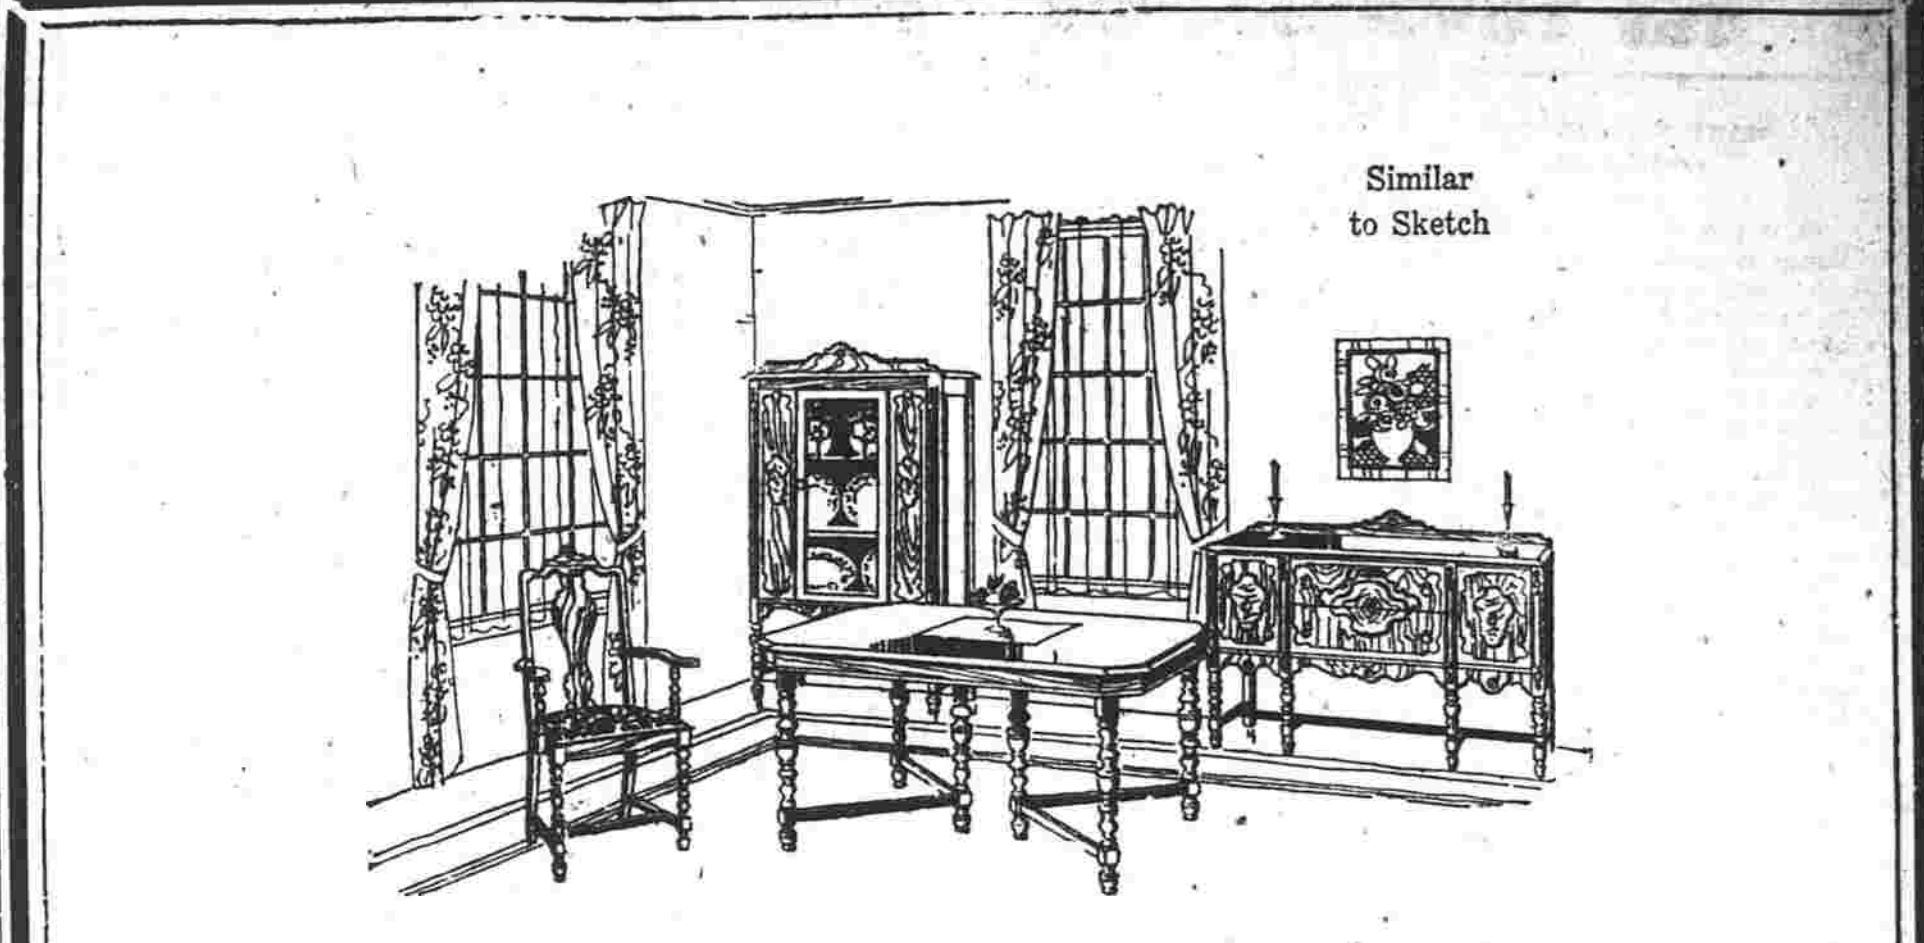

But Reed in the course of a sworn statement before the Judiciary subcommittee, considered in the Watson confirmation, said:

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Grundy never, so far as I knew, knew there was a vacancy, knew that Judge Watson was a candidate, or that anybody else was, or made any recommendation whatsoever about it."

The seeming discrepancy has proved very puzzling.

In years ago, the newly-arrived immigrant was one of the most tragic victims of the old traffic. Ignorant of the new land and its ways, the immigrant girl would trust herself to some kindly-voiced stranger and would end up in a brothel—an innocent victim of credulity. But that's all been wiped out of years ago. The new "traffic" is a creature of the newer jazz age. GILBERT SWAN.

PEACE PROBE
 If the Senate Lobby Committee actually does "investigate" the activities of ten national organizations engaged in the dissemination of peace propaganda, we trust that it will do so with thoroughness and with a resolute determination to make a complete analysis of the purposes underlying such propaganda. For our own part we do not anticipate that any of the ten organizations to be "probed" will be shown to be animated by any very disgraceful urge.

There is something bizarre, something well nigh incomprehensible, to us in the idea that it is shameful to advocate peace and the insurance of peace—in times of peace; that it is discreditable or worthy of condemnation to oppose, with all the force at one's command, the spirit of jingoism or that other spirit of arrogant disregard for the rights of other peoples which has so often led a nation into war and into disaster.

We believe that a very sharp distinction and a world-wide difference exists between the peace-time advocate of peace and the war-time pacifist. With the citizen who will not follow his nation's flag when the nation is irrevocably committed to war, with the pulling sentimentalist who would urge shameful compromises and sacrificial surrenders after the gauntlet has been thrown, we have as hot a contempt as any Legionnaire or any D. A. R. But for him who would help to guide the feet of his country away from those needless hazards of war with which all history is beset, we have only eager sympathy and comradeship.

If there is peace propaganda in America—and there has been and is much of it, praise be!—it is because it is demanded by the presence of sabre rattlers, of tub-thumpers, of self-declared patriots who would exhibit their patriotism in piles of stacked guns and stores of powder; who would have their nation find its security in fright imposed on the rest of the world; who have no faith and no real confidence in the ability of their country to protect itself in case of need except by sleeping in armor and beside a watchfire.

If the Senate committee does make an investigation of the peace organizations, let it go all the way. Let it investigate the causes of peace propaganda—the propaganda in turn of the "defense" organizations, the super-patriots, the jingoes, the contract-seekers and the glory hunters.

There is one thing, at least, that the committee will not find—it will not find that the Federal Council of Churches and the nine other bodies to be investigated are trying to loot the United States Treasury through vast expenditures for defense against imaginary enemies conjured out of thin air for the profits that lie in ships, guns and munitions.

"S-O-C-K"
 There would seem to be some need for the clearing up, in the public mind of Manchester, a certain degree of confusion arising from the occasional but persistent spelling, by its members, of the name of the dramatic club of the High School. Quite possibly some unusually erudite student may have found, in some example of medieval English, justification for spelling the "sock" of comedy "s-o-c-k," and thereby established the unquestioned right of the society to call itself the "Soc and Buskin" club. We make no pretense to any close familiarity with Old English, but we are impressed by the fact that the standard dictionaries, in the bracketing of the terms, spell "sock" with the four letters of the modern word. Also we find, after a little research, that the "s-o-c-k" of medieval English had nothing whatever to do with wearing apparel but was a legal term having to do with a certain type of lawsuit that might be brought by a tenant peasant against the lord of the demesne. If "soc," even in Old English, had any other meaning than this it is scarcely familiar enough to fairly well educated people to be employed, we should think, in place of a perfectly justified and familiar spelling.

Moreover, from time to time, there has been a decided lack of unanimity among the "Soc'ers" themselves as to the form of the word. Sometimes it has appeared "Soc'k" and sometimes "Soc." And to make the matter binding, Principal Quimby has authorized the Herald to say that the name of the society is "Soc'k and Buskin" with a k in each noun.

Wherefore it is suggested that it might be a good notion for the club to put itself in accord with common practice, with medieval as well as present usage and with the edict of the school's principal, and have "S-o-o-k" printed on its programs instead of "S-o-c-k" as on the occasion of last Friday evening's performance.

AN ERA CLOSURE
 The passing of Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming not only takes away the oldest member of the United States Senate both in point of years and in length of service in that body, but it writes "finis" on participation in Congressional activities by members of the Union army in the War of the Rebellion. No other Senator and no Representative now in Congress took part in that conflict with the single exception of Representative Stedman of North Carolina, and he was on the other side of the fight.

Within the memory of persons still in middle life, the bronze insignia of the G. A. R. was almost as common with the houses of Congress as at regimental reunions. Now it will be seen there no more and no Congressional orator can ever again refer to the defense of the Union as something within his own experiences. A cycle has been completed.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Nov. 25.—The perils of a young girl in a great city, which made up the theme of so many melodramas of yesteryear, have undergone a considerable change in style.

A thorough annual survey of vice conditions in New York, for instance, indicates that "white slavery" in its violent old forms has practically ceased to exist—at least in this metropolis. This survey is made by the Committee of Fourteen, a social welfare organization. It sends hundreds of investigators up and down the city lanes throughout the year, checking up the stories of girls whose employment leads them along the shadier and more dangerous avenues.

And this year they have made the interesting admission that "white slavery" which was generally part and parcel of the old "white slave" traffic, "is practically non-existent."

"The new traffic is different," reads the report. "The present species of traffic is conducted by certain types of employment agencies which appear to have ties up with speakeasies, certain night clubs, dance halls and such. Perhaps it might properly be called a traffic in hostesses."

How many unemployed girls walk into the "hostess" traps there is no way of knowing. They are run-away girls from all sections of this land and hundreds of girls from here and there who drop out of sight "back home" and suddenly appear in the Broadway belt.

"In the waiting rooms of the office our investigators have found as many as 200 girls," says the committee report. "It is one of the first places to be visited when missing girls are sought."

Desperate and without money in a great city, they storm the offices in search of employment filled with perilous possibilities.

The part they must play in the night world is simply described—as "hostesses" it's up to the girl to cajole and entertain the cash customers. If her hole is cast in a speakeasy or one of the lower night clubs, she must get the male customers interested in her; urge them to buy drinks and run up their checks. If they are to remain in the places—they must "be regular." To "be regular" means that they must accommodate the customer whatever his demand.

At least the average low employment places are honest in their statements of what is required, and tell the girls so.

Once a girl has agreed to take employment, she has automatically agreed to the approaches of all transients. There is, too, the menace of bad liquor, dissipation and final disintegration.

At the moment there are something like 1000 girls thus employed in the side streets where dingy places pass as night clubs and, in many which, the stranger with a goodly bank roll is a potential vic-

DISERVICE
 A Hartford man, who leaves a wife and son, is dead as the result of his automobile colliding head-on with a truck. He was driving on the wrong side of the road and the truck driver ditched his own vehicle in an effort to avoid the collision. The State Police say that this accident was the culmination of a series in which the man had been involved.

Obviously our system of automobile control is a long way from being as effective as it might be, when it is possible for a driver to continue to operate on the public highways after he has completely demonstrated his unfitness. That there is softness extending to the point of mushiness in dealing with Broths and soups may be made in an appetizing and yet a wholesome manner. The same rules about food combination should be used in making of soups in the selection of other foods to be used at the meal. The meat broths made from cubes are not highly nutritious, but still act as appetizers, and can be used for the meat stock flavoring of a soup made from vegetables.

In many cases, those who like a hot drink with their meals will find an agreeable change in a thin broth made from the bouillon cubes or from an infusion which comes from boiling beef, mutton or chicken. This may be sipped along with the meal, as some people drink their coffee. Very good broth may be made from simply boiling a small amount of ground steak and using only the strained liquid, but of course the entire boiled ground steak soup may be used and possibly with the addition of some of the non-starchy vegetables.

If one desires to make the most concentrated and nutritious broth, it is always well to cut the meat in small pieces or grind it through a meat grinder. It should then be put into cold water and slowly warmed, but never allowed to quite reach the boiling point. In this way more albumen of the meat is extracted and the natural flavor of the meat passes into the broth.

All broths and soups should be cooked slowly, and a richer flavor can always be obtained by this slow cooking over a long period of time, even as long as four or five hours. A good chicken broth can be made the day after a chicken dinner by boiling all of the bones left over and cooking for a long time to extract the gelatin. There is always a certain amount of meat left on the bones and this flavors the broth, together with celery, parley and other vegetables which may be added.

Clam broth is made by washing the clams or oysters thoroughly and then putting them in a kettle of cold water to cook slowly. As soon as the shells open, the broth is ready.

IRISH HAVE NO USE FOR EUROPEAN UNION

Dublin (AP)—Discussion of the proposed United States of Europe, with a view to a holiday from tariffs, has revealed general approval of the attitude assumed at Geneva by the Free State representatives. The Free State has no objection to a United States of Europe provided this country is allowed to go its own way. Its efforts to establish the native industries must be guided by special circumstances of the country.

A United States of Europe, argued the Irish, cannot be directed against America. The old Unionist Press in the Free State, while admitting the possible advantages of a European Zollverein, regards it as impracticable. It suggests instead a British imperial customs agreement with a beginning in the British Isles by a customs union of Britain, Northern Ireland and the Free State.

In 1910 it required seven man hours of labor to produce an acre of wheat. Today, due to machinery, it takes less than two man hours.

INVENT PLANE MOTOR OF 21 WORKING PARTS

Houston, Tex.—(AP)—An airplane engine of only 21 working parts—about one-tenth as many as in an ordinary engine—has been built and tested in flight by two Houston inventors.

The engine, called the "Hurricane," its backers say, approaches the ultimate in simplicity of construction. It weighs 225 pounds, develops 150 horsepower and requires an average of seven gallons of gasoline an hour. Its designers, H. F. Lyons and Victor Toce, say it can be built more cheaply than engines now in general use.

Lyons and Toce have completed the engine after eight years of work. It operates on the two-cycle principle and has neither valves, rocker arms nor carburetor. It is an eight-cylinder radial type.

Sponsors of the "Hurricane" believe its unusually light weight, few working parts, low fuel consumption and low cost of construction will make it particularly suitable for use in small, privately owned planes.

A plane equipped with the engine attained speeds of between 90 and 110 miles an hour. The engine has been sent to an Indianapolis engineering laboratory for further tests and refinement.

At the present rate of increase, the two-billion population of the world now should double within 100 to 150 years, according to estimates.

 Question:—K. G. writes: "I contracted pneumonia following an operation. I progressed nicely and have fully recovered with the exception of the Wee hole which remains in my side and still leaks a little every day. Of late it doesn't seem to make much progress toward healing, and it worries me a little as I am fond of outdoor recreation, especially swimming and tennis. Am I doing right in using this strenuous exercise which may tend to keep the wound open?"

Answer:—The best method for producing a healing to a running sore or wound is that outlined in my article called A Cleansing Diet which I would be glad to forward to you. It is good to use some exercises, but try to avoid moving or stretching the areas affected by the wound. Cold compresses covered with dry woolen material for some distance about the affected area often prove helpful.

CUBS MUCH BETTER TEAM THAN MAJORS

Harvard Bottles Booth And Beats Yale, 10-6

"Resistless our team sweeps goalward. Mid the fury of the blast. We'll fight for dear old Harvard. Till the last white line is passed."

Now college ditties are in the main pretty much inane, especially with music, and the only excuse for offering the above extract from "Harvardian" is that it somehow expressed the quite surprising happenstance in the old Harvard stadium Saturday afternoon, when Harvard licked Yale 10 to 6.

"Resistless our team sweeps goalward"—well, that was Harvard in an 81-yard tramp to a touchdown in the second period. No doubt about the "resistless" as far as Yale was concerned, anyway. And "Mid the fury of the blast" is okay, too. There was plenty of fury in the blast of snow-laden breeze that waited the Crimson jerseys onward from their own 18-yard line, plenty of it, indeed. Enough, in fact, to thoroughly frappe the 37,000 spectators perched in the stands.

Booth Stopped So it is fitting that we start off our Yale today with this extract from a Harvard anthem. If they had permitted Albie Booth, the little human carburetor of the Yale team, to play a natural, so to speak, the result might have been different. Twice Albie was in full flight when his garments proved his undoing. Once Bill Ticknor of Harvard snatched him rudely by the scruff of his sweater and swung him around like a young bull pup, just when it looked as if Albie was as free as a gazelle, en route to a touchdown.

Again when Albie was as loose as ashes and stepping high, Jim Douglas, the Harvard end, crept behind him and clutched a fistful of Albie's jersey, halting the Yale young man's flight in the middle of a stride. Yes, sir, and m'am, if they had let Albie play naked, with a little vaseline on him, he'd have been hard to handle.

Any time they figure Harvard to get a passing from Yale, that's when old John is apt to explode. The lads from New Haven were considered a reasonably sure thing Saturday—as sure as at any time in the half century of football scrimmages between these colleges.

But the game wasn't very far along before the most ardent Yalestians was willing to accept a draw for his.

Misses Field Goal Booth didn't get in the game until the second period when he came in immediately making a poor attempt at kicking a field goal, a kick that was blocked by Harvard at their own 18-yard line, and turned into the starting point for the long march to a touchdown.

Charley Deacons, the Harvard back, broke out in a furious gallop to Yale's 44-yard line, then Barry Wood shipped a long pass to Eddie Mays, putting the ball on Yale's 15-yard line. Harvard's hammer blow the Blue were unable to push the ball over the nine-yard line with four yards to go and the fourth down.

Barry Wood stepped back as if he were going to try a drop kick, and as the Yale line came lunging toward him, Wood lammed a pass over their heads to Mays on Yale's fourth yard line for the first down. The Crimson backs whaled away at the Yale line in a couple of plays. Wood kicked the ball and soon afterwards, Barry Wood kicked a field goal, adding three points more to the score—so you can figure Wood's toe furnished Harvard the necessary margin, if you want to get that technical.

Booth and Taylor made two long heaves, neither of which were completed, then Booth bluffed a long pass, and instead made a little short lateral to Ellis, who found a hole leading from the 23-yard line right to Harvard's goal. He ran about 20 yards to the touchdown, and Booth missed a drop kick for the extra point.

Bill Ticknor of Harvard was very lucky getting Albie Booth by the collar at the beginning of the second half when Albie took the kick-off and was in the clear and groping toward the Harvard goal. O'Connell got up behind him and not another man near, and pulled Albie over. Albie ran from his own 35-yard line before he was captured. O'Connell headed off a sure touchdown.

KICK THREE TIMES BEHIND OWN GOAL

The punting honors in yesterday's game was about even with the Majors having a slight edge. Their eight kicks averaged a little over 33 yards while the Cubs' nine were good for 37. No kicks bettered 45 yards and Eagleson's 18 was the shortest. Three of the Majors' eight boots were from behind their own goal line. The following table tells the number of times a player punted, his longest boot, his average and total yards:

Farr	3	45	42	125
Eagleson	6	42	32	189

FATE OF LEADING COLLEGE ELEVENS TO BE KNOWN SOON

Double-Barreled Climax Comes This Week With Six of Seven Best Teams In Action.

By ALAN J. GOULD

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The college gridiron campaign faces its double-barreled climax this week, on Thanksgiving Day and Saturday, with every prospect of a sensational finish to the championship races still undecided.

The fate of six of the seven major title contenders is involved. Purdue, champion of the Big Ten, has double-riveted its place in the top group by finishing the season with a clean and impressive string of eight victories but Pittsburgh in the east, Notre Dame in the middle-west, Tennessee and Tulane in the south, Texas Christian in the southwest and St. Mary's on the Pacific coast, all stake their title aspirations in important battles this week.

None of these teams have tasted defeat, or the except St. Mary's, which was held to a scoreless draw by California but nevertheless remains as the outstanding team on the Pacific Coast so far as the records are concerned since Stanford's 21 to 0 defeat of California. The expenses for the two games were about $300 each year. Here are the figures for the series just completed:

Pitt vs Penn State On Thanksgiving Day Pittsburgh will seek to clinch its claim to the bid for national honors by conquering Penn State. In the south, Tennessee will tackle Kentucky at Lexington and Tulane will oppose Louisiana in the final Southern Conference game.

Notre Dame on Saturday will battle the Army at the Yankee Stadium in the most colorful fray of the week, an eastern climax game that over-shadows even such attractive contests as the Cornell-Penn and Navy-Dartmouth, both at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

Triumphant in eight successive games as the Hoosier machine was swept brilliantly toward the national peak, Notre Dame will return to a determining Army eleven, featuring the last eastern charge of the All-American halfback Red Cagle.

Cagle's Last Show Approximately 80,000 spectators are expected to see Captain Cagle match his individual passing and running powers against the great Notre Dame cast. The Hoosiers will be handicapped by the absence of their ailing Coach Rocks as by the loss of Tim Moynihan, a dynamic center, who suffered a broken leg in the 26 to 6 victory Saturday over Northwestern, but the Hoosiers so far have had the stuff to rise to every emergency.

The southwester expects a sensational fight for its conference honors when the Texas Christian horned frog tangle with the Southern Methodist mustangs Saturday. On the coast, St. Mary's must beat Oregon to keep at the top of the heap. For the second straight year, Harvard has closed an in and out season by downing its ancient rival Yale. The Elis' were favorites on the strength of previous conquests over Brown, Army, Dartmouth and Princeton but when it came to the final showdown the Crimson forwards outplayed their rivals and the Elis' were given the verdict over Albie Booth in the battle of sophomore backfield stars.

MANY GOOD BOUTS ON TAP FOR WEEK

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP) In a week full of better than ordinary bouts, Chicago, with three shows on tap, seems to offer more promise of spectacular action than any city in the country.

Well to the fore front in the national list is Tuffy Griffith's ten-round battle with the Spanish Woodchopper, Paulino Uzcudun, which heads the Chicago Stadium card on Friday night.

George Hoffman, New York heavyweight, and Les Martinier, former U. of Illinois athlete, are to meet in the ten round windup of the Chicago Coliseum show tomorrow night.

At Los Angeles tomorrow, Tom Morgan, junior lightweight champion, will meet Eddie Mack of Denver, in a ten round bout in which Morgan's title will not be at stake. Leo Lomski, Aberdeen Washn., light heavyweight, encounters former Canadian champion, Charlie Belanger, of Winnipeg, in a ten rounder at Detroit Friday. At Madison Square Garden Friday night, Al Slinger, East Side round brawler, will cross fists with Pete Nebo, seminole Indian from Key West in a ten-round.

HEROES OF CUBS' 22-0 VICTORY YESTERDAY

Title Nets Cubs $1,215 Majors' Share Is $811

The Cubs made a profit of over $1,200 in winning the town football championship from the Majors. The losers received more than $800 for their efforts. This is only slightly less than last year's net receipts and the decrease was very obviously due to the adverse weather. A steady drizzle fell the first Sunday and it was almost too cold to be comfortable yesterday with snow falling at times.

The attendance yesterday was a big surprise to those who thought the one-sided opening game would kill the interest. The paid admissions were only 500 less than at the first game. A year ago the teams took in $2,454 for the two games and the Cubs received $1,292 against $861 for the Cloverleaves. The expenses for the two games were about $300 each year. Here are the figures for the series just completed:

Gross Receipts
First game	$1,280.50
Second game	$1,031.00
Total	$2,311.50
Expenses
Officials	$100

Busy Turkey Day Menu Here On Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving Day is going to be a busy one in Manchester this year so far as athletic events are concerned. Five different events are on the program. The biggest event of all will be the third annual cross country run staged by the Recreation Centers in which nearly two score of runners from all parts of the state are expected to compete. The race starts at 11 o'clock in the morning and will finish about 4 o'clock at the high school building on Main street.

The high school football team will close its splendid season with a gridiron contest against the Alumni at the West Side field starting at 10 o'clock. The lineup of the Alumni will be announced tomorrow Wednesday. Bob Treat, former M. H. S. captain, is getting the Alumni players together.

In the afternoon the Cubs make their bid for state recognition when they journey to Meriden to meet the Falcons who played a scoreless tie and lost to the Wallingford Eagles 16 to 0. The Cubs beat the Wallingford team here 7 to 0 but considerable interest awaits how they will make out playing on an out of town field. The last-time the Cubs played the Falcons in Meriden they were defeated but that was several years ago and in that instance were the victims of a raw deal.

The other two turkey day attractions are basketball games in the evening at the School Street Rec where the Connecticut Mutual teams of Hartford will provide the opposition for the Rec Girls and Rec Five with dancing following.

Town Series Grid Talk

BY TOM STOWE.

Jimmy Spillane and Jack Beneto, injured Major backfield stars, watched the game from the sidelines as did "Kump" Dahlquist and Billy Skoneski of the Cubs. "Hook" Brennan was in uniform but not fit for service with two fingers on his left hand in a cast.

George H. Washburn, former director of the Community Club at the north end, was an interested spectator as were E. Hurley and Bob La Catta, owner and manager of the Hartford Giants who play the Cubs at Mt. Nebo next Sunday.

Scott H. Simon was as busy as the newspaper reporters running up and down the sidelines with his motion picture camera. He took 200 feet of film which includes all the principal plays.

There probably won't be very many Major players on the Herald's All-Manchester eleven which will be announced this week.

Anyone wishing to get tickets for the Cubs' game in Meriden Thursday afternoon may do so from Manager Vendrillo or, Assistant Manager Happeny. The game will be played at St. Stanislaus Field which is enclosed.

Johnny Smith, All-American center while captain of Notre Dame and Harry Herberts, another of Hartford's contributions for the college football world, are expected to appear here next Sunday with the Hartford Giants.

This Tommy Happeny who plays guard for the Cubs is one of the best linemen Manchester has produced in many years. He is to the Cubs what Greene has been to Yale during the past season.

One reason why the Major's poor showing in the town series was so unexpected is because they did not meet strong enough opposition during the season prior to the series and therefore did not know their own possibilities. The Cubs, too, did not run up against any really dangerous foe and likewise their maximum ability was also an unknown power.

Coach Jack Dwyer had promised several promises for the game yesterday but about the only one of importance came in yesterday's Cubs-Major game. St. John, who was released at practice last week for unsatisfactory work, Ambrose didn't play a bad game while he was in there either. Not once did he complain about an injury.

The north end's football plans for next year are uncertain. One thing seems certain. Additional talent and plenty of it is needed before the team can be manufactured that can regain the town title. Certainly one can't blame it onto the coaching of George Mooney, Jerry Fay and Jack Dwyer the past three years.

MAJORS' BOWLING LEAD THREATENED

Night Hawks May Leap Back Into First Place In Herald Loop Tonight.

Chief interest in the Herald bowling league tonight centers about the outcome of the match between the Majors and the Night Hawks which will be rolled at Ruben Bronke's alleys.

The Majors lead the league by the narrow margin of one point. The Night Hawks being close on their trail. If the Majors can come through tonight they will be well out in front but it is imminent. A total of 122.5 was made the standing much tighter. The other match at Bronke's alleys tonight brings together the West Sides and the Pirates. At Joe Farr's Charter Oak alleys, the Herald and Charter Oak teams collide in one match and the Centers and Manchester Construction in another. The British Americans and Shell Gas meet over north.

Win Title For Third Time Beating Rivals Decisively

FARR, EAGLESON, MINICUCCI SHINE IN 22 TO 0 TRIUMPH

Cubs' Great Line Doesn't Yield Single First Down from Scrimmage; Officials Call 22 Penalties in Rough Battle; Majors Fail to Make Touchdown in Four Tries from Two Yard Line; Losers' Defense Keeps Score from Being Bigger; Farr Makes Field Goal, Eagleson and Minicucci Score Touchdowns.

BY TOM STOWE.

Soaring gently upon the silvery wings of a most magnificent football achievement, the town champion Cubs today stand on the threshold of even greater glory. They have visions of being recognized as the leading semi-professional club in the State of Connecticut.

Having disposed of the best available opposition with the lone exception of the Meriden Falcons, the Cubs hope to beat this team in the Silver City Thanksgiving Day afternoon and then close their greatest season in a blaze of glory with a triumph over the powerful Hartford Giants here next Sunday.

More than 3,000 persons saw the south end eleven prove beyond a thread of doubt that it is vastly superior to the Majors yesterday afternoon at Hekey's Grove, winning by the impressive and thoroughly convincing margin of 22 to 0. On the previous Sunday the Majors were trounced 19 to 0.

It was the most decisive triumph the south has ever scored over the north since the inter-sectional gridiron battles were inaugurated back in 1912. The champions in winning the title for the third successive year stamped themselves as one of the greatest football machines in the state. The Cubs yesterday won the greatest victory of their career. The Cubs were under-rated or the Majors over-rated and the truth probably lies in a combination of both statements.

Allow Little Yardage. The secret of the Cubs' success lies in the fact that it possesses one of the strongest lines that has graced a local gridiron in years; a group of well-trained husky stalwarts who yielded only two first downs from scrimmage in two championship football contests! Yesterday the Majors registered but three first downs and all came on successful forward passes. This is the lowest total ever made in a town title battle here.

There is only one reason to offer for the fact that the Major forces failed to gain an inch on the first two plays at right tackle and Rowe's effort to skirt end lost five. Moske then hurried a pass that barely slipped over the fingers of McCarthy and Lippincott in the end zone. Moske stood too far back on both rushes being almost on the ten yard line each time.

With that failure went the Majors' one and only real chance to score. In no other case did they get inside the Cubs' 20 yard line and were forced to wage a defensive battle in their own territory. A 25-yard score-touchdown by Ding Farr from midfield paved the way for the Cubs' first touchdown in the second quarter. Meikle broke through center and squirmed free from the grasp of two tacklers for a first down on the 15 yard line. Groman picked up two yards and Farr shot through for a first down bringing the ball to within six yards of the Majors' goal. On the third try, "Chuckie" Minicucci crashed through center for the touchdown. Farr added the point with a dropkick.

There was no further scoring for the first half as both teams wallowed about in the mud at the north end of the field. Two successive fifteen yard penalties after Minicucci had brought the ball to the two yard line shut off another Cub touchdown. Charter was having a hard time trying to kick out of danger owing to the slippery footing in the section of the gridiron where the baseball infield is located. Early in the third quarter Cheney recovered a Major fumble on the 25 yard line but the pucky north enders smothered their next four plays to take the ball on downs.

Eagleson Goes Over A 20 yard runback of a punt by St. John started the Cubs on their march which resulted in a yard touchdown on the third quarter. Three successive first downs with Minicucci and St. John making most of the yardage brought the ball to within three yards of a touchdown. On the fourth down, Eagleson skirted right end for the score but his dropkick for the extra point was blocked. A moment later this same chap intercepted a Major pass while running at top speed at the 38 yard line and almost scored another touchdown.

Only for Brunig Moske it would have been one. This brilliant player whose efforts were concealed by a much weaker team, tackled Eagleson so hard that the Cub player fumbled. Then Moske recovered on the 25 yard line and the Majors advanced to within two yards of a touchdown on a beautiful forward pass from Brunig Moske to Lippincott good for 23 yards and then

PLAYS DESPITE LOSS OF TWO FRONT TEETH

Danger of another kidney injury was not the only hardship Johnny Groman endured playing quarterback for the Cubs yesterday. The first time he carried the ball two front teeth were knocked out but he pluckily refused to leave the game and few of his teammates knew his trouble. Incidentally, Johnny played a fine game in the place of Dahlquist and Stratton, regular quarterbacks.

FORWARD PASSING WAS NOT SO GOOD

The Cubs and Majors were woefully weak in their forward passing although the Cubs scored a touchdown on one. The Majors tried 13 and completed four with as many intercepted, two by Eagleson and one by St. John. Another by Pentore. The Cubs tried 15, worked one but had none intercepted. The Majors' triple pass play again proved valueless. The aerial attack of both teams in the first game was also poor. The Majors had the edge in the branch of this game.

his own four yard line and punted out of danger. Penalties began to fly fast and furious thereafter but the Cubs managed to slip in two more scores before the game ended.

Farr Boats Field Goal The third score came when Charlie Smith of the Majors was twice penalized for unnecessary roughness. The first violation gave the Cubs the ball on the Majors' 25 yard line a moment later the Cubs were only one yard short of a touchdown thanks to Smith's fouling and a couple of plunges. The Major defense stiffened and Farr stepped back to his own 20 yard line and sent a neat 30 yard dropkick spinning high and handsome between the uprights.

The final score of the game was the Cubs' third touchdown which came after Eagleson intercepted a Major pass on the 25 and raced to the 12 where he was hauled down by Walter Moske. Two plays followed and the Cubs were penalized five yards for offensive butchery. Farr to Cheney more than made up for the damage and gave the Cubs the ball on the five yard line. One play failed to gain and then Farr shot a neat forward pass that Eagleson caught over the goal line without the least opposition. Farr's dropkick for the extra point was a little outside. The remainder of the game was exceedingly rough, once a flat fight was narrowly averted.

Picking the Stars In a game where a team clicks as nicely as the Cubs did yesterday it is hard to select a star. Farr was the Cubs' biggest ground gainer while Moske shared similar honors for the Majors. Eagleson's great work was the biggest surprise and Minicucci proved himself more dangerous than Meikle and a constant force in the opposition both on the offense and defense. Tommy Happenny's line playing was outstanding. Groman played quarter most of the game with St. John and Farr handling the duty a short time. The absence of Dahlquist and Stratton was sorely felt. "The Majors' backfield, however, obviously missed Benevento and Spillane who were out with injuries. Tumenisky, Lippincott, the reinstated Johnny Amrose, Crockett and McCarthy all played about on a par for the Majors with Wright gaining more yardage than anyone else but Moske.

The Avenging Parrot

By Anne Austin, author of "The Black Pigeon," "Rival Wives," etc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Between 11:45 and 12:15, Saturday night, June 29, MRS. EMMA HOGARTH, said to keep a money board in her room on the second floor of MRS. RHODES' boarding house, is strangled to death. BONNIE DUNDEE, "cub" detective, assists LIEUTENANT STRAWN, suspicion falls on EMIL SEVIER, former boarder whom Mrs. Hogarth accused of trying to rob her and who has completely disappeared.

CORA BARKER, thought to have had an affair with Sevier, is arrested as a material witness against him when she confesses she was in the murder room shortly after 12.

Other boarders under suspicion are: HENRY DOWD, MR. and MRS. SHARP, NORMA PAIGE, heiress to the Hogarth hoard; WALTER STYLES, also under suspicion, who had quarreled with Mrs. Hogarth; BERT MAGNUS, amateur scenario writer, who is heard typing in his room until 12:15; and DAISY SHEPHERD, the only boarder who moves from the murder house.

Dunde learns from the postman that a monthly letter came to Mrs. Hogarth from SALLY GRAVES of New York. Recalling details of the mysterious murder of a Sally Graves a month previous, Bonnie Dunde in charge of the case. He meets JEWEL BRIGGS, "cute" stenographer and boarder, absent during the murder. Bonnie examines the boarding house register to find registrants since Sally Graves' murder. He believes the girl killed both women. But who is Griffin?

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The words themselves which Bonnie Dunde's narrowed eyes regarded with such intense speculation conveyed no information not already in his possession—"Henry Dunde, Des Moines, Iowa, June 22." It was the manner in which the line was written in the letter that arrested her attention. The young detective's heart to beat fast with excitement. For the words were printed, not written in the usual sense of the word. Each letter stood alone, as unshapely and clumsy as the first attempts at printing of a child who has not yet been introduced to the art of handwriting.

In college Dunde had known two men who used the printing type of handwriting, but in both cases it was almost cast in metal, and yet so distinctive that a forger would have found it a hard task to imitate it. Nothing at all like this sprawly, childish "printing."

"Mr. Henry Dowd screens his face from the newspaper camera. I don't like to be published. Mr. Henry Dowd disguises his handwriting. Mr. Henry Dowd occupies the room next door to Mrs. Hogarth. Sally Graves is murdered in New York on June 2. On June 22, Mr. Henry Dowd comes to board at the Hogarth house. On June 29 Mrs. Emma Hogarth is murdered." Dunde mused, telling the points of on the fingers and thumb of his left hand. "Ergo, I think Mr. Henry Dowd is asking for my earliest consideration."

He closed the register, placed it in a drawer of his chiffonier, pocketed the key, and was about to leave the room when a sudden thought occurred to him. From his coat pocket he drew the little cheap blue-lined tablet which had belonged to the murdered woman and upon which he had written in shorthand the stories of the inmates of the house as they had been told to Lieutenant Strawn. Turning the pages quickly he found what he was looking for—a vital part of Henry Dowd's story.

Q. (Strawn)—By the way, Dowd, where did you come from?
A.—Des Moines, Iowa. I represented a small manufacturing concern, known as The Housewife's Friend Corporation. They made up a little kit of kitchen tools, including an implement that could pare potatoes and apples and cut them in fancy shapes.

Q.—Where are they located?
A.—Nowhere, now. The company failed, and I was out of work several weeks, then I came to Hamilton, because I'd heard times were good here.

Dunde slapped the tablet excitedly. "Clever Mr. Henry Dowd! Out of work several weeks, were you? And where did you spend those several weeks? In Des Moines, or—New York City?"
He was again on the point of leaving his room when the telephone rang. Eagerly he snatched the receiver from the hook. "Dunde speaking."

"Sergeant Turner, Dunde, a couple of wires for you, received within five minutes of each other. Shall I read them to you or send them by messenger?"
"Read them, please.... Just a minute till I get a pencil.... All right."
"This one is from the Des Moines police department," Turner told him. "Ready?—Receiver for Housewife's Friend Corporation says no such name as Henry Dowd appears on company's books as salesman or other employee. Dowd also unknown at No.—Mondamin Avenue.... Got that?"
"Yes!" and Dunde's voice rang with triumph. "What's the other wire, Sergeant? I'm ready!"
"From Philadelphia," Turner answered. "Here he is: Herbert S. Magnus, employ of Acme Paper Company as bookkeeper from May 1, 1928 to June 4, 1929. Recommendations excellent. Resigned as of June 1, but worked Monday and Tuesday, June 3 and 4 to turn over books to new bookkeeper. Purchased ticket and berth for Hamilton June 4, leaving on 4:20 train. Roomed in private home, No.—Spruce street, Landlady, Mrs. Christine Starrett, not at home Sunday, June 2 until late afternoon, having spent Saturday and Sunday in Atlantic City, but Magnus had supper with family and had been sleeping in Saturday night.... Got it?"

"Every word," Dunde answered. "Thanks, Sergeant."
"Wait a minute!" Sergeant Turner protested. "The quality in the young detective's voice. (Since Strawn's out of town, and you're on the job incognito, don't you want me to grill this Dowd bird for you? He sounds mighty fishy to me.)"
"Not just yet, thanks. I don't want to make any move until I get Strawn's description of Griffin, but I'd appreciate it if you'd detail a plainclothes man to keep an eye on Dowd. He's out of the house most of the day, looking for work or so he says. If he makes any move to leave town, of course I'll take you up on your offer to give him the works."

"Suit yourself," Sergeant Turner answered stiffly, as he hung up the receiver.
"I don't believe I'm very popular with Sergeant Turner," Dunde mused ruefully. "Not that I blame him—having to take orders from a cub detective."

For a long minute he stared at his shorthand notes of the two telegrams, then returned the precious tablet to his pocket.
"I'm afraid you're rather a clumsy liar, as well as a clumsy printer, Mr. Henry Dowd," he murmured, almost regretfully, "and just now I was calling you clever. At any rate, you know your Des Moines, don't you? I'd like to have a look at the ledgers of the Housewife's Friend Corporation, for I have a hunch that you did honor that unfortunate concern with your humble services, even if the name of Henry Dowd does not appear on the payroll."

There was still another telegram which should arrive at any time now, but Dunde had no intention of idly awaiting it in his room. While talking with Sergeant Turner on the telephone he had heard a door across the hall open and close, and now he locked his own door, crossed the hall and knocked. Tilda Brown, half-dressed and with a confession magazine in her hand, opened to him, then a blush suffused her broad, stolid face. She dropped the magazine and clutched at the open front of her cotton kimono.

"Oh!" she gasped. "I thought it was Mrs. Rhodes!"
"I'm sorry I startled you, Tilda," Dunde smiled. "But I want your help, unless you're trying to take a nap. I had a private telephone conversation today, as you probably know—and mustn't mention to anyone else—and I'd like you to listen and call me if it rings. I'll be either in the house or on the grounds somewhere."
"I'll be awful glad to, Mr. Dunde," Tilda assured him eagerly. "You're a detective, ain't you, sir? I just been readin' about a detective that raided a poor, innocent girl's apartment and it med her so her husband could get a divorce and marry a blond."
"I'm sure you don't think I'm that sort of person, Tilda. And you must not tell a soul just what kind of person you do think I am."

He left the chambermaid-waitress staring stupidly at the five-dollar bill he had tucked into her hand, and descended to the main floor, where he found Mrs. Rhodes in the large room behind the parlor—a pleasant chamber which served her as bedroom, private sitting room and office. She was seated at a handsome new mahogany settee, frowning over a sheaf of bills.

"Why the heavy scowl, Mother Rhodes," he asked lightly but sympathetically.
"At the honorary title which her new boarder had bestowed upon him, Mrs. Rhodes' dark eyes misted with tears. "Goodness knows I try to be a mother to my young people, but sometimes I think I'm nothing but an easy mark. Just look at this light bill! Women in a house are always smuggling in electric irons and curling tongs and fans. And on top of that, somebody's been trying to use a fan or something that's got too high a voltage or whatever you call it, because the fuses have burned out three times this last month. Running a boarding house is enough to try the patience of a saint—"

"I'll try to find the culprit for you, Mother Rhodes," Dunde promised, "for I'm afraid it's my unpleasant duty to make another search of the boarders' rooms. I presume you have a passkey?"
Mrs. Rhodes drew her brows together. "Of course I have—but—" She sighed deeply, resignedly, then she handed the key from one of the drawers of the secretary. "I suppose, being a detective, you've got a right to go poking about as much as you please, but I do hope, Mr. Dunde, that you'll try to leave everything as you find it, so my boarders won't get on their high horses and leave me flat. This is the only way I've got to make a living."

"I'll be very careful," Bonnie assured her gently. "I don't know what I'd do without your help. And now—one more thing. Can you tell me whether Emil Sevier was in Hamilton the week-end of June first and second?"
"He was right here every week-end after he came to board at my house early in May," Mrs. Rhodes said positively. "He was always grousing about having to work on Saturdays. Friday was his day off at the theater, and Tuesday is Cora's." "You're sure that Sevier was here both Saturday and Sunday, June first and second?" Dunde persisted.

"As sure as I'm sitting here this minute," Mrs. Rhodes retorted. "And here's proof of it."
She reached into a pigeonhole of the desk and drew out a small note-book. "I always set down in this book the date each boarder pays me," she told him. "Let me find it—Here it is! E. Sevier—$15—June 2. He usually paid on Sunday, instead of Saturday—when he paid at all. He owed me two weeks' board very far off the right track, Emil Sevier was not a murderer."
Dunde grinned. Emil Sevier was undoubtedly a very objectionable person and a defrauder of landladies, but unless he—Dunde—was very far off the right track, Emil Sevier was not a murderer.
"That's a handsome desk," he remarked admiringly, as Mrs. Rhodes returned the notebook to its place.
"It's the first new piece of furniture I've treated myself to in years," Mrs. Rhodes answered, her work-worn fingers caressing the satiny wood. "I let Mr. Magnus have my old desk."
"Any secret drawers in it?" Dunde asked quickly.
Mrs. Dunde snorted. "Huh! Now you're talking like a storybook detective! Get along with you now, and let me worry over these bills."

But, helping her brusqueness, her great dark eyes followed him fondly as he left the room, swinging the passkey on its loop of soiled twine. The first door he opened with it permitted him entrance into the room of Henry Dowd.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

BATTLE OF CHATTANOOGA

Sixty-six years ago today, on Nov. 25, 1863, the Battle of Chattanooga, one of the most important engagements of the Civil War, was fought in the vicinity of Chattanooga, Tenn.
A Federal army of 60,000 under General Grant and a Confederate army of about 40,000 under General Bragg. Preliminary skirmishes were fought on Nov. 23 after Grant had been reinforced by troops under Sherman.
On the 24th, Sherman, on the left, carried a detached point of Missionary Ridge, and Hooker, on the right, in the famous "Battle Above the Clouds," captured Look-out Mountain.
Grant ordered another assault and Federal troops drove the panic-stricken Confederates from the field in one of the most remarkable charges in military history on Nov. 25th.
The losses in killed, wounded and missing were: for the Federals, 5815; for the Confederates, 6687.

DON'T YOU WISH

With his pack on his back, ready to bring joy and happiness to good little girls, he is bringing a complete wardrobe for Dolly, one of the most attractive gifts of season. What a real surprise for daughter, to make a "sister outfit" just from remnants, for each little garment, perfect in every detail takes so little material to make it. The combination waist and drawers and slip are made of batiste, the dress of pale blue chambray and hat of royal blue flannel. The pajamas can be made of chambray or striped percale. Style No. 856 is designed for dolls of 18, 20, 22, 24 and 26 inches in length.

The WOMAN'S DAY

The modern department store is an excellent gauge of our social progress. From a shop girl I learned that what was done in one of the largest ones in New York and it may interest you, as it did me.

It seems that the store had graded up its merchandise, modernized its furniture, redecorated its walls, and done about everything that could be done to make the place physically alluring for the shopper, and then the next step was to grade up the clerks.

So they started in on that. Stylists were brought in to give the girls talks on styles, and to advise them individually on the types of dresses to buy and the lines that would suit them best.

Particularly they were taught the knack of selecting, with the smallest margin of failure—the new long skirted and high waisted dresses. It was good psychology that if the clerks looked smart in them, customers would be prompted to buy them in spite of a lingering regret for the less advanced models.

Then beauty experts were requisitioned to teach them the fine points of grooming. Much stress was laid on the aesthetic appeal of the clean hand, with the accent of the well manicured nail. A hair-dresser came forward with inside information about hair dressing and dwelt upon the advisability of the frequent shampoo. Later a monitor was appointed to look over the heads every so often, and to issue a gentle reminder in case the matter of the washing was neglected.

They Got Results
Well, naturally, the store's personnel picked up in looks like flowers after the sunning.
And one insignificant clerk, who had always worn baggy dresses loosely tied in at the hips, and a Zulu type bob, was found to have a figure second to none when she appeared in a black crepe, molded to her natural waistline, and a beautifully modelled head was unearthed when she stopped frizzing her hair, and brushed it smoothly over her forehead.

Transformed, she was so effective that she was transplanted to another department, and in a time the buyer of that section realized here was something new to have about the home, and in a very short time he made her his wife.

Lady of the Taxi
Here's a new way to work your way through school, that has a modern flavor:
A woman summoned a taxi recently, also in New York City, and though she gave an address familiar to most taxi drivers, the driver seemed utterly confused. After attempted explanations on the part of the woman who wanted to be transported, which seemed also incomprehensible to the driver, the woman suddenly noticed blonde hair under the driver's cap, and saw she was dealing with a very pretty girl, instead of a hard-boiled driver.

Then the girl explained: "I don't know the city at all, though I can drive as well as any man. I came here to work my way through aviation school, and since I am a mechanical-minded, this was the only way I knew to get money."

MACDONALD'S GARDENER KEEPS A RULE OF SILENCE.
London.—(AP)—After forty years' gardening for Prime Ministers of England, Harry Simpson, the official gardener of Number 10 Downing street, has raked his last leaf.

the chancellor of the exchequer, were placed under his care.
He has worked under every premier since Gladstone and was kept faith with the traditional silence that has marked the important little street since its use by ministers. Even on his last day of work he answered an energetic "no" to all questions.
"I will not tell you anything," he declared, turning abruptly to rake the premier's lawn for the last time before retirement.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

When Mytyl and Tytyl went in search of the Bluebird of Happiness they found it right at home.
And it looks as though other children are going to find more happiness at home than ever before; that is, they are not going to be compelled to explore the Land of Grown-Ups for their pleasures hereafter. They are going to have things that belong to themselves.

I wonder how many of us realize that children live in a world of grown-ups? Our houses and furniture are built for grown-ups—great towering objects high above little heads, small seesaws forever stretching up to neck, and little bodies climbing up to get on top of things?
In everything else, almost, except books and to a very small extent, music, they are continually climbing up, mentally and spiritually trying to understand things meant for older people. Movies have been produced for grown-ups, the theater is for grown-ups, orchestras and concert masters have never seriously considered children as an audience.

In one day recently, however, I received three notices. Perhaps you may guess, as well as I, their significance. It looks like a concerted movement to recognize children at last as a very important audience in all three fields of production.
One was from the Little Theater Guild, who were giving a special play for children and a character sketch at a Saturday morning performance in one of the big theaters. The second was to inform me that one of the big symphony orchestras was putting on a special concert for children at 4 p. m., on Friday afternoon at one of the big music halls. Outside of New York City, such a thing as an orchestra of prominence giving a concert especially for children has been just about unheard of before.

The third was in the form of a small pamphlet issued by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. It contained information concerning a conference held recently in the interest of motion pictures. One of the things accomplished was the appointment of a committee "with authority to compile a list of pictures of the type of Peter Pan and 'The Blue Boy' for use at special children's performances, the list to be submitted to the industry, and prints made available."

Better Days Ahead
It takes time for everything and this is only a beginning, but isn't it encouraging!
Won't it be nice when, if Johnny and Mary ask to go to the movies, instead of feeling a bit uneasy and conscience-stricken as we hand out a couple of quarters with the remark that we don't know whether they ought to see it or not, we look over the paper and state happily, "Children, here is a movie I want you to see tomorrow, and there is to be a play too. I must buy you tickets for on Saturday morning. You mustn't miss it." Dear, what a relief!

Good times are coming, it's pretty certain.
Funny how we are just discovering it! But better late than ering that children have rights, never.

Then the girl explained: "I don't know the city at all, though I can drive as well as any man. I came here to work my way through aviation school, and since I am a mechanical-minded, this was the only way I knew to get money."

FINDINGS SECRET ON MULLIGAN BOYS

Yale Scientist Presents His Report to Milford Court; Not Made Public.

Milford, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A psychiatrist report on the mental condition of James and John Mulligan, aged eight and seven years respectively, was presented before Judge Robert C. Stoddard at a special session of the Milford Town Court today. After an hour's deliberation upon its findings, the case of the boys, who are held for the death of Albert Kikenas, 32, of Milford last July was continued until Wednesday morning.

The continuance was granted at the request of David Fitzgerald, Jr., counsel for the boys.

The problem dealing with their case to serve best the ends of justice is perhaps one of the most delicate ever presented to any Connecticut court. A month ago Dr. Healey, of Boston, head of the Institute of Human Relations at Yale was assigned to study their mental attitude and to make recommendations.

The report today was of a confidential nature and was not revealed. The question is one of either charging with delinquency and committing them to a reformatory and placing them in private home or semi-private school with no charge against them.

Fitzgerald maintains the Mulligan boys are not of a vicious type and that a greater good can be done by intrusting them to a semi-private school or a private home.

The body of the Kikenas child was found in a swamp near Silver Beach, Milford, August 21. He had been missing since July 20, when he was taken on a picnic to the beach by his mother Mrs. Kate Mikenas of Ansonia.

The Mulligan boys, inmates of an orphan asylum, confessed to the killing and to setting fire to a roadhouse.

BULGARIA SPURNS RUMANIAN BRIDE FOR KING BORIS

Sofia.—(AP)—Rumors concerning the probability of a marriage between King Boris and Princess Ileana of Rumania have bobbed up again, but have been squelched by the Bulgarian government. Officials here declare that the reports, which had their origin in the Rumanian press, were inspired and that they were without foundation.

Since the opposition of the Vatican wrecked the project of an alliance between the Bulgarian ruler and Princess Giovanna of Italy, the king has seemingly given up, for the time being, ideas looking toward the perpetuation of his dynasty.

Ever since the close of the world war there have been recurrent rumors of a Rumanian alliance. It was generally believed here, however, that they were part of a plan which Queen Marie of Rumania conceived of having her three daughters marry the Kings of Jugoslavia, Greece and Bulgaria, consolidating the relations among those countries and increasing Rumanian prestige in the Balkans.

Two-thirds of this program was actually carried out. The monarchy disappeared from Greece, but in Jugoslavia Queen Marie's name sake shares the throne with Alexander.

The third part of the program was delayed first by the political situation in this country. Bulgaria was disturbed successfully by the communist movement, the agrarian agitation and a Bolshevik menace and the bachelor king had plenty to think about without considering marriage.

After the domestic problems had been settled, King Boris began to consider the future. He decided that national and dynastic interests would best be served by an alliance with the House of Savoy. But when the Pope prevented this because of the Bulgarian constitutional provision that the eldest son of the king must be reared in the Bulgarian national church, the monarch decided to let the matter rest.

YALE'S FENCE BACK

New Haven, Nov. 25.—(AP)—For the segment of Yale's famous college campus fence which was taken from Pech's studio a week ago Saturday and turned up at a Harvard Lamppoon dinner in Cambridge Friday night, was delivered at the studio this morning.

The express company to which the fence was delivered in a crate early Saturday, in Boston by a group of Harvard and Yale men, took the package to the studio. It was not immediately uncrated and may not be for a day or so. It was stated there is no immediate use for the fence as a photographic background.

The fence arrived here early yesterday. Express charges of $8.35 on it had been prepaid and the consignee gave his name as Eric Gustafson.

Captain Firpo Greene of the Yale football team probably will be the first to be photographed against the fence. He had delayed having his picture taken until the fence was recovered. The first photographs made with the fence were in 1879 when the late Walter Camp, captain that year had his picture and that of his famous team made with the fence in the foreground.

The Yale football squad will have its dinner and elect a captain tomorrow night. After that it is expected the 1929 picture will be made.

ROCKVILLE

Arrests Made Saturday.

On Saturday evening shortly after 5 o'clock officer Richard Shea arrested Charles Sweet of this city for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Sweet was driving along near the Barstow Garage on Prospect street, when he bumped into a Ford car owned by John P. Schmidt of Vernon, damaging it badly. Sweet was released on $500 bonds to appear in court Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Samuel Below of Grand avenue and William Stankiewicz of Village street were having an argument on Vernon avenue on Saturday night. They were arrested by officers Dowd and Cedor and locked up for the night. On Sunday morning they were released on a $50 cash bond to appear in court Monday at 9 a. m.

Sweet was fined $100 and costs amounting to $113.78 in court this morning and in the below-stated case the former was fined $10 and costs for both intoxication and breach of peace and the latter $7 on the intoxication charge and $5 for breach of peace.

It was announced in court this morning that a coroner's inquest in the case of Edwin Woodford will be held tomorrow morning. Judge Yeomans will preside.

Edwin Woodford Dies.

Edwin Hawley Woodford, 80, of 10 Davis avenue, died at the Rockville City hospital on Saturday evening at 9 o'clock, from the result of injuries received a week previous, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Deraphin Pollio, 21, of Ellington, as he was crossing the road near the Maxwell estate on Union street on the evening of November 16. The condition of Mr. Woodford was critical from the night he was taken to the institution and little hope was held out for his recovery.

Mr. Woodford was born in Avon, May 28, 1849, the son of Cordelia (Hawley) and Franklin Woodford. He has been a resident of Rockville for many years, and for sixty years previous to his retirement, a few years ago, Mr. Woodford was connected with the United States Envelope Co., where he was superintendent of the concern for a long time. He was a member of the Men's Union of Union Congregational church.

Mr. Woodford is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Grace Wilcox of Springfield, Mass., six grandchildren and one great grandchild of Springfield, a grand niece, Mrs. Eleanor Broderick of Naugatuck, and a niece Mrs. E. E. Sikes, who resided at the Woodford home on Davis avenue.

The funeral of Mr. Woodford will be held from Union church chapel on Tuesday at 1 p. m. Rev. George S. Brookes, pastor of the church will officiate. Interment will be in the family plot in the Farmington cemetery, Farmington.

The many friends of the deceased, who are unable to attend the services, will be given an opportunity to pay their last respects during the noon hour, as the church chapel will be open to the public after 11 a. m.

Veterans' Night Observed.

About one hundred members of Aiden Skinner Camp, Sons of Union Veterans and its Auxiliary, with several members of the Grand Army and widows of the Civil War veterans, enjoyed a turkey dinner in G. A. R. Hall last Saturday evening. Each year "Veterans' Night" is observed in commemoration of Lincoln's Gettysburg address, which was delivered on November 19, 1863.

Past Department Commander Dr. Charles W. Roberts of Hartford was the principal speaker and he delivered a forceful and eloquent address, befitting the occasion. There were also remarks by James Haggerty of Williamant department commander of the G. A. R., Morgan B. Haven of New London, department president, Sons of Union Veterans and Mrs. Rice of Danbury, department president of the Auxiliary.

Leroy Marin, a member of Aiden Skinner Camp, was master of ceremonies and his witty remarks as he introduced the speakers and other entertainers, caused much merriment. The program was one of the best. "The Making of the Flag" in tableau form being a special feature. Mrs. Oliver Peck took the part of Betty Ross and Joseph Wilkolek was an ideal George Washington. Others in the cast were Mildred St. Louis, Naomi Binheimer, Caroline Davis and Lillian Greenwood. The reader was Mrs. Mattie Degenkolbe. Mrs. Kitty Yost was the accompanist. Other numbers on the program follows: piano duet, Mrs. Mildred St. Louis and Mrs. Kitty Yost; vocal duet, Mrs. Bessie Blinn and daughter Ruth; vocal solo, William Stamps. Members of the committee were Mrs. Flora Stamps, Mrs. Rose Lacrosse, Mrs. Lizzie Avignon, Mrs. Lulu Binheimer, Mrs. Bessie Blinn, Mrs. Pauline Blinn, George Hammond, Aiden Usher, Francis and Felix LaCrosse.

Baptist Church Extends.

At a Congregational meeting of the Rockville Baptist church held following the regular morning service on Sunday, it was voted to extend a call to Rev. Edward L. Nield of Montville, this state to become pastor of the church, which has been without a pastor for the past two months.

Mr. Nield preached as a candidate on Sunday, November 24, both morning and evening, impressing the large congregation present.

Rev. Warren P. Grant of Hartford presided at the meeting and Reginald Kent was clerk.

Mr. Nield is forty-five years of age, married, and has two grown children. He is highly recommended by the State Baptist Association and it is hoped by the congregation of the local Baptist church that he will accept the call.

Pulse Whist and Dance.

The children of Mary of St. Bernard's church will give a public whist and dance in the Town Hall Memorial Building on Thanksgiving Eve for the benefit of the church.

Handsome prizes will be awarded. Music will be furnished by Ernie Rock and his orchestra.

Steve Gerick Quits.

Steve Gerick, 58, of South street, who was shot several weeks ago by his daughter Jeanette Gerick, 16, and who has been at the Rockville City hospital undergoing treatment, was released from the hospital on Friday and has gone to Hartford to make his home with his sister. Mr. Gerick still carries the two bullets, one of which is located in the center of his head and the other in his neck, near his spinal cord.

His daughter, Miss Jeanette Gerick, who did the shooting is at the Tolland County jail in default of bonds of $7,500 awaiting trial in the Tolland County Superior Court at the January term on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Lions Club Meets.

The Rockville Lions Club met at the Rockville House on Friday night. Following a supper, William B. Halstead, manager of the Rockville-Manchester division of the Southern New England Telephone Company addressed the club and told of the manner in which the company served the public. The president Philip Howe presided at the meeting.

Open Shoot Thanksgiving.

There will be an open snoot on Thursday, November 28, Thanksgiving Day under the auspices of the Rockville Fish and Game Club. It will take place at the club's traps at the west end of the city. Prizes will be awarded and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend and look on.

Nursing Classes.

The two home nursing classes being conducted by the Rockville Chapter of the American Red Cross will meet tomorrow. The regular Tuesday class will meet in the afternoon at the usual hour, while the class which met Thursday evening will meet on Tuesday night in place of Thanksgiving Day.

Liedertafel Picnic.

The Liedertafel Singing Society celebrated its fifty-third anniversary at its Grov on West street Sunday. At noon an elaborate dinner was served, followed by music and an entertainment.

Legion Membership.

Stanley Dobosz Post, American Legion, of which William C. Pfunder is commander, is asking its members to renew their membership for the year 1930. Over 25 per cent of the members have already renewed and the request of the commander that all members attend to this matter before the end of the year.

Notes.

Mrs. George Semple of East Hartford was the guest of her son, Joseph Semple and family of Union street on Sunday.

Mrs. Alice Schart and Mrs. Nicholas Isch of Wethersfield were visitors in this city on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carpenter and children of Hartford were the guests of Mrs. William Jones of Union street on Sunday.

Mrs. Nicholas Isch of Wethersfield entertained members of the Ever Ready Club at her home on Saturday night. A luncheon was served and a musical program enjoyed. Mrs. Isch was formerly in charge of the club.

The uniform Christmas decorations are being installed in the center of the city. The lights will be turned on early in December and Rockville will be brilliantly illuminated during the Christmas season. The movement for uniform Christmas decorations sponsored by the Rockville Chamber of Commerce, has received the hearty co-operation of the merchants and others.

BISHOP VISITS POPE.

Vatican City, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Pope Pius today granted an audience to the Right Rev. Thomas M. O'Leary, bishop of Springfield, Mass.

The Pontiff asked a number of questions regarding diocesan administration and at the conclusion of the audience imparted the benediction upon the entire diocese.

SCHOOLS HERE TO CLOSE TUESDAY FOR VACATION

Thanksgiving Recess of Five Days—Mills Close Thursday—Stores Schedule.

With Thanksgiving on Thursday of this week, all schools in Manchester will close tomorrow afternoon for the rest of the week and will reopen on Monday, December 2. This affords the students a vacation of five days, and also gives the teachers an opportunity to reach home in plenty of time for Thanksgiving dinner.

As usual Cheney Brothers will close for Thursday only, starting work again on Friday morning. All stores along Main street will be closed for the day, with the exception of groceries and markets. They will be open until nine Wednesday night.

Only 20 were killed the other day when Mexico voted on a new president. We can do almost that well in Chicago alone.

Airmail transported in the United States during the first six months of this year was approximately 3,400,000 pounds.

GIFT LAW VALID

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—

Gift taxes imposed under the Federal law were held valid today by the Supreme Court in a case brought by Joseph H. Bromley of Philadelphia who was required to pay a tax of $20,598 on gifts totalling $568,300.

The court passed upon the gift tax imposed under the 1924 Revenue Act and amended under the 1926 tax law.

Bromley contended the gifts were not made in contemplation of death and that the tax was illegal because direct and not apportioned, and further because it lacked uniformity.

Government argued Congress had authority to make disposition of property by gift subject to taxation, like any other method of transfer.

Justices Sutherland, Butler and Van Devanter dissented in the opinion. They took the position the tax was a direct one, and that it had been invalidly imposed because not apportioned as required by the constitution in imposing direct taxes.

BUSSES TO TRANSPORT FANS TO MERIDEN

Cubs Rooters to Travel to Silver City Thanksgiving Day for Big Game.

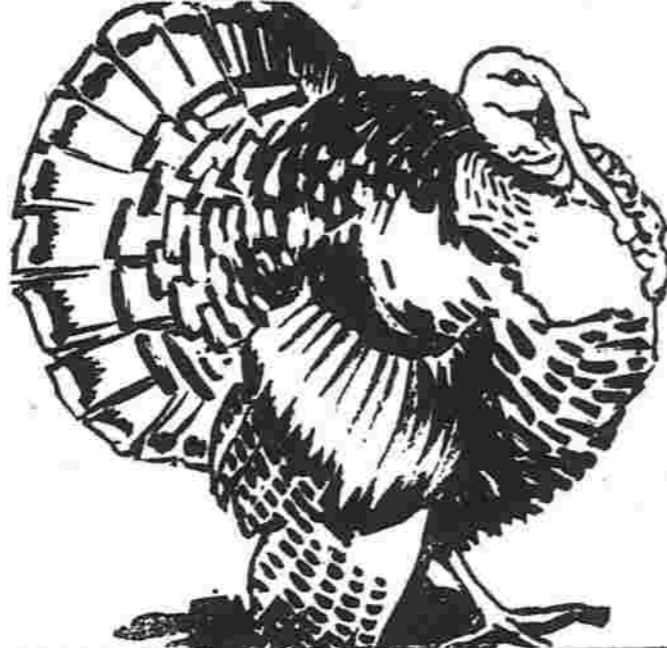

President Harold R. Germaine of the Cubs football team announced this morning that busses were being hired to transport Manchester fans to the football game between the Cubs and Falcons in Meriden Thanksgiving Day afternoon. The busses will leave the School street Recreation Center at promptly 12:30 with the team leaving shortly before.

A round trip charge of only a dollar will be made for transportation. The game will be played in the St. Stanislaus field. Anyone desiring to go on the trip should leave his name at the Herald office, by telephone or with Manager Vendrillo, Assistant Manager Happney or President Germaine.

According to the manager of a big London hotel, German visitors to England are the best spenders, eating and drinking more than their closest rivals, the Americans.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinymites were mighty glad to meet the coal lumps. They had had enough of searching in the cave. "Well, greetings," Scouty said. "We're Tinymites chock full of cheer and glad you're glad to have us here. We don't know how we got here, but we came upon a sled."

DANCE
Tuesday Evening, Nov. 26
ORANGE HALL
At the Center
Adm.: Ladies 35c, Gents 50c.

ABOUT TOWN

The whist which is held each Wednesday evening in St. James' Hall under the auspices of a committee selected each week composed of women with a man assistant, will be held this week on Tuesday evening rather than Wednesday evening.

Campbell Council, K. of C., will hold its regular meeting this evening in their rooms in the State theater building. The meeting will be called promptly at 8 o'clock followed by a card party that will get underway at 9 o'clock. Prizes of chicken and turkey will be offered winners.

Purnell Place is taking on a businesslike appearance. Due to the leasing and alterations on the Purnell block for the new Economy store, the radio and plumbing store of Alfred Grezel has moved to Purnell Place. Two houses opposite the Hayes stable are now being remodeled for new stores. Several other houses owned by E. J. Hill on this street will be converted into stores if conditions warrant. A new sidewalk and better lighting makes this a more desirable location for commercial enterprises.

Miss Alice Jarvis of Center street was pleasantly surprised Saturday evening with a miscellaneous shower given at her home by her sisters. The house was prettily decorated with pink and yellow and blue and yellow streamers. Whist and bridge whist and setback were played and prizes were given at each table. A dainty buffet lunch was served to forty-five guests present from Burnside, Hartford, Rockville and Manchester. The bride-to-be received many beautiful and useful gifts including glassware, woodenware, china, linens and silver. Miss Jarvis is to be married this month to Arthur Dawent of Hartford. This is Alice's fourth shower.

A union Thanksgiving service of the North and South Methodist churches will be held at the latter church Wednesday evening at 7:30. The speaker will be the Rev. F. W. Gray of Burnside Methodist church. It has been arranged that the meeting will last only 45 minutes so that all present may be able to return to their homes to prepare for Thanksgiving.

Memorial Temple Pythian Sisters will hold its regular meeting in Odd Fellows hall tomorrow evening. The business will include the election of officers and a roll call of members.

Tonight the Ways and Means committee of the Buckland Parent-Teacher association will give a whist and dance in the assembly hall of the Seventh District school. They will give $2.50 gold pieces for first prizes, four other prizes and refreshments. Dancing will continue until midnight.

Mrs. Rose Kronick of the Wilrose Dress shop is in New York on a buying trip.

Mrs. A. M. Gordon of Main street left this morning for New York, where she will take the S. S. Mohawk of the Clyde Line tomorrow noon for St. Petersburg, Florida, to spend the winter.

The W. E. A. Guard club will have a special rehearsal tomorrow evening at 7:30 at the West Side Recreation Center. The regular Guard club meeting will be held at the time and it is desired that everyone be present.

The Ladies Sewing Circle of the Concordia Lutheran church will meet tomorrow at 2 o'clock. Work will be on articles for the Christmas sale, December 13.

The committee in charge of the Indoor Circus, to be presented at the North Methodist church, Thursday and Friday evenings, December 5 and 6, will meet tonight at 7:30 in the vestry of the church.

Robert Shelander, field agent of Lions International, will be the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Lions Club to be held at the Hillside Inn, Bolton, at 6:15 o'clock tonight. Francis Miner is chairman of the committee in charge, which includes Henry Smith and Dr. Mortimer Moriarty.

Every station in its turn—

Choose your station on the Grebe—among the high and low frequencies—there is no overlapping, no tangling of tones. This new set gives you clarity at every hairline move of the dial. Razor-edge tuning... made possible by the equalized band pass filter, an exclusive Grebe development. You get the station you want—when you want it—without intrusions—with tone that is natural, lifelike. Let us arrange for a 48-hour demonstration in your home.

THANKSGIVING SALE

*Delicious Groceries and Meats—
At Attractive Prices*

The best place in town to buy food every day is the best place to buy food for the Thanksgiving feast. Hale's Self-Serve and Health Market are the best places to shop because food is always fresh. Every provision has been made to see that they are that way.

But besides this all-important point, there is also the fact that Hale's Self-Serve is the easiest place to shop. You wait on yourself. Everything is displayed with prices plainly marked on open shelves. You walk through a turnstile, take a basket, pick out the groceries from the shelves, go to the cashier who figures the amount you have purchased and has your package wrapped. It is all so quick... it is all so easy... it is the easiest place to buy food in town.
