McMANUS MOTION DENIED BY COURT

Defense Asks All Testimony About Poker Game Be Stricken from Records; Nate Raymond on Stand.

Criminal Courts Building, New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The defense of George A. McManus made its first offensive move today in his trial for the murder of Arnold Rothstein when James D. C. Murray presented a motion to strike out as irrelevant all testimony adduced regarding the big stud poker game where the state alleges arose the motive for the killing. The motion was denied.

"The state in its opening," Murray said, "said it would prove a motive from these witnesses. No motive has been proven and I ask that the testimony given be stricken out as irrelevant."

Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., said it was a matter for the jury to decide as to the relevancy of the testimony and whether it showed a motive, and overruled the motion.

Raymond's testimony was made as "Nigger" Nate Raymond, little olive-skinned, smartly dressed gambler from the Pacific coast, finished his testimony as the first witness of the day.

Raymond, who described himself as a "speculator" on sporting events, testified that he won $219,000 from Rothstein at the poker game but had never been able to collect it.

He asked Rothstein for a note the night of the game, he said, to take the place of the L. O. U.'s he had won but when the other gamblers laughed, he said he realized he had "made a faux pas" and withdrew the request. He made the admission with a crooked little smile at McManus, who sat at the defense table, deeply interested.

Was Once Suspected.
Raymond was a suspect in the killing for some time, Mr. Murray brought out, as he had several heated arguments with Rothstein during the two months between the game and Rothstein's shooting over the money the latter owed him.

He also lived in the Park Central, where the state alleges Rothstein was killed, but spent all the evening of November 4, 1928, with his wife who was ill.

CALL WITNESSES.
Criminal Courts Building, New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The trial of George McManus for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, was resumed today after a holiday recess, with witnesses called to the stand for the first time since last Friday.

The first three days of this week were taken up with selecting a new juror to take the place of one excused because of illness, and the reading to him of testimony taken last week.

The court room was only partially filled as Judge Charles C. Nott presided.

PRESIDENT RUBIO PLANS A VACATION

Mexican Chief Executive to Come to United States for Well Earned Rest.

Mexico City, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Dispatches from Nogales, Ariz., to the effect that the tentative Cabinet of President-Elect Paschual Ortiz Rubio is practically completed and will include two former chief executives, are regarded here in the best informed circles as entirely premature.

It is believed here the president-elect thus far has not gone deeply into the consideration of his Cabinet and will make no effort even to select a tentative slate until his forthcoming visit to the United States is completed.

To Take Vacation.
In going abroad shortly after election, Ortiz Rubio is following the precedent of President Hoover, especially since he desires to escape politics and the turmoil of office seekers or a time, meanwhile enjoying a thorough rest from the arduous task of six months campaigning.

It is likely as well that Ortiz Rubio will sidetrack the forming of his Cabinet, as Hoover did, until he has recuperated and carefully studied from a distant outlook the multiple problems facing his administration.

As soon as the electoral machinery has officially pronounced him president, Ortiz Rubio plans to leave with a few friends for Rochester, Minn., where he will enter the Mayo brothers clinic for a thorough rest. Those friends point out the president-elect is suffering from no ailment, but he needs simply thorough rest and recuperation.

CURTIS BACKS YOUNG PLAN IN THE REICHSTAG

Germany's New Foreign Minister Asks Assembly to Reject Nationalists Motion Against It.

Berlin, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Dr. Julius Curtius, Germany's new foreign minister, placed himself squarely behind the Young plan today in his first speech before the Reichstag since his appointment. He succeeded the late Dr. Stresemann.

Affirming that the Young plan was a great improvement over the Dawes plan, Dr. Curtius asked the Reichstag to reject the Nationalists' motion against it, which came up for the first reading today, and declared that the recent plebiscite was an attack upon the authority of the state.

In a witty speech that was frequently interrupted by the Nationalists and the Fascists, he said the Nationalist proposal for renouncing Germany's confession of war guilt "attempts to ram open doors and is based upon senseless assertions that Germany's foreign policy is an attack upon the authority of the state."

TWO DIE, SIX HURT IN HOLIDAY WRECKS

Traffic in State Cause of Many Accidents; Mother Falls Out of Car.

By Associated Press.
Holiday motoring in Connecticut cost the lives of two persons and brought injury to six or more others in a succession of mishaps, with the likelihood that at least one more may die.

Clarence Glover, 31, of Stamford and Michael Heido, 47, also known as Gickett, of Bridgeport, are dead. Glover was killed late yesterday in West Main street, Stamford, when struck by a motor car driven by George Lindsay, 22, as he was attempting to cross the street. He died on the way to the hospital. Lindsay was held in $2,500 on a charge of criminal negligence.

Hold Driver.
Herbert Rahm, advertising manager of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co. of Stamford is under arrest today charged with manslaughter following the death of Pickett at Bridgeport. Pickett was struck and hurled to the pavement on the Post road, soon after 11 o'clock last night, near the United States Aluminum Co.'s plant. He died within a few minutes.

Clifford Lewis of King street, Stratford, is in St. Mary's hospital, Waterbury, with possible spinal injuries and his wife and Miss Nora Ford, the latter of Bridgeport, are less seriously injured after a motor crash which prevented them from attending a marriage. Mrs. Lewis' back was seriously hurt and Miss Ford suffered a fractured leg.

With severe lacerations of the scalp and other hurts, Frank Mooney, 30, of 256 Fairfield avenue, Hartford, is in Hartford hospital. His car rolled down an embankment on the Berlin Turnpike.

Condition Serious.
The car was owned by his brother Joseph Mooney. At the hospital it was reported his condition was grave.

Mrs. Ralph Carpenter, 36 and her six-year-old son Darwin of Bridgeport, were badly cut about the face, neck and body, when they were precipitated onto the pavement by the opening of a side door of the car in which they were riding toward Hartford. Carpenter, the husband and father was at the wheel and the other two were sitting beside him when the right hand door became unfastened and as the machine swayed, Mrs. Carpenter with the boy on her lap disappeared out of the door. They were between East Hartford and Glastonbury. Carpenter went back and found them in a gully at the roadside. He rushed them in his car to a doctor's office and they were later treated at Hartford hospital.

FOOTBALL STAR DYING

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Percy Lee of Ludlow, Miss., star of the Mississippi college football team, who suffered a fractured spine in the game here yesterday with Southwestern, and underwent an emergency operation today was in a serious condition.

Lee scored his team's only touchdown in the first period. In the second quarter he was knocked unconscious and taken to a hospital where an X-ray revealed his spine had been injured. Doctors ordered him to the operating room. The shock of losing the star had a bad effect on the Choctaws and Southwestern came from behind to defeat them, 20 to 7.

FLYING FLAPPERS DOWN AGAIN

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The second attempt of Bobbe Trout and Elmer Smith of New York to establish a new record for endurance flight here failed today when lack of fuel forced them to land their plane at 3:45 a. m. They had been in the air 42 hours and five minutes.

It was their second attempt within a week to better the record of 420 hours, 21 minutes, 58 seconds held by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine of St. Louis.

The 42 hours and 5 minutes, is a record for women, however, as they are the first women fliers to make a refueling endurance flight.

FIRE DESTROYS FIVE STEAMERS AND BUILDINGS

Damage of Two Million Dollars at Hull, Mass.; Docks and Bathhouses Also Are Ruined by Flames.

Hull, Mass., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Flames fanned by a forty mile an hour wind swept the Nantasket excursion fleet and pier here late yesterday, destroying five steamers, adjoining waterfront structures, the state bathhouse and three dwellings with a loss of two million dollars.

Firemen from six towns, Quincy and Boston were summoned to the blaze, the worst in the history of the south shore. Two firemen and a policeman were injured.

Embers borne on the wind leaped over several hotels and small beach buildings to set fire to the state bathhouse. Flames were started on the roofs of a dozen cottages and the church of St. Mary of the Assumption. The church steeple was damaged.

Steamers Destroyed.
Known to thousands of tourists, the five steamboats the Mary Chilton, Nantasket, Rose Standish, Betty Alden and Old Colony, which were moored at the pier caught fire and were destroyed successively. A low tide and the absence of tugs prevented towing them to safety. They were valued at $350,000 apiece.

Starting from an unknown cause in the ticket booth on the pier the blaze was discovered by Captain John MacFarland, skipper of the Nantasket, shortly before 4 p. m. He turned in an alarm, but the flames spread rapidly along the pier, setting the coal houses afire.

Burning the other way the Old Colony was soon attacked by the flames. Captain Joseph T. Gallano promptly left the ship adrift, thinking to drift into the bay, but the wind blew the craft against the Mayflower. The Betty Alden at the end of the pier and the three steamers moored on the other side were successively set afire. The Mayflower was maneuvered away.

BYRD BEGINS JOURNEY TO THE POLE AND BACK

With Three Companions He Expects to Fly Back to His Base in Antarctic Within Twenty-Four Hours.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The New York Times, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the newspapers affiliated with them in publishing reports from Commander Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition today announced that Commander Byrd started from his base, Little America in the Antarctic at 3:29 p. m. yesterday afternoon (10:29 p. m. New York time) on a 1600 mile flight to the South Pole and back.

Commander Byrd who is flying with Bert Balch as pilot, with Harold June as radio operator and Captain Ashley C. McKinley as photographer, in the big tri-motored airplane he took to the Antarctic, expects to be in direct communication throughout the flight with the New York Times radio station in New York as well as with his base and will report his progress as he goes. If all is well with him, he should return to his base before 24 hours have elapsed.

Planning to carry the Stars and Stripes to the bottom of the world by air as he has already carried them to the top, Commander Richard E. Byrd set out on Thanksgiving Day to fly across the South Pole just as summer approached the vast frigid Antarctic continent.

The flight recalled his own flight in May, 1926 in the tri-motored Fokker airplane the "Miss Josephine Ford and King's Bay Spitzbergen, across the North Pole and returned in 15 hours and 50 minutes. The round trip was 1600 miles, a trip in Arctic springtime about the same distance as the flight on which he is engaged today over icy wastes and mountains.

First at North Pole.
He was the first to fly to the North Pole and the only one to fly across it in a heavier than air machine. Two dirigibles, the Norge and the Italia, cruised later above the pole which was discovered April 6, 1909 by Admiral Robt. Perry, American in sled expedition.

Commander Byrd is the first to attempt the flight above the South Pole although both he and Captain Sir George Hubert Wilkins previously last year used airplane in flights over Antarctica.

Discovered in 1911.
The South Pole was reached first by Roald Amundsen, Norwegian, December 14, 1911, and a few days later by Captain Robert F. Scott.

SMOOT TO KEEP HIS OLD POST IN THE SENATE

Senator from Utah Retains Chairmanship of Finance Committee; Watson to Continue as Party Leader—G. O. P. Heads Are Now Organizing for Regular Session of Congress.

Washington, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Senator Smoot of Utah, announced today he preferred to retain the chairmanship of the finance committee in the reorganization of the Senate Republican committee assignments, thus opening the way for Senator Jones, of Washington to become chairman of the appropriations committee.

Smoot's decision is regarded as the key to the organization's plan. As a result, Senator Watson of Indiana, is expected to continue as party leader. Watson would have been next in line for chairman of the important finance committee which handles all revenue legislation. Smoot took over the chairmanship of the appropriations committee last week by the death of Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, the "Dean" of the Senate.

Senator Watson returned to his office today and began consultations with the party leaders preparatory to mapping out plans for the regular session. With Senator Jones in line for the chairmanship of the appropriations committee, it appeared likely that Senator McNary of Oregon, would become assistant party leader, a post now held by Jones.

Difficulties in Sight.
Some difficulties are in sight for the faction-split Republicans in the Senate in welding together an organization for the regular session. The western Independents have demanded a man for the finance committee, and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin is their choice.

Senator Smoot gave notice today that as soon as the Senate disposes next week of the question of seating Senator-Elect Vane of Pennsylvania, he would bring up the tariff bill again. Hoping to complete action on it early in the next year, he noted before that, Smoot said he would demand a resumption of the long daily sessions, beginning at 10 a. m., and running until 6 p. m. He was not prepared to state whether night sessions will be asked.

RUSSIA'S SIDE.
Moscow, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Izvestia, official government organ, today declared that the Nationalist government at Nanking was trying to prevent an independent settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway controversy between Russia and the Manchurian authorities and "imperialists" were trying to get a hold on the railway.

Commenting on the attitude of the Nanking government toward the reported independent negotiations between Mukden and Moscow, Izvestia says:

"Immediately upon learning that the Manchurian army was unable to withstand the resistance of the Red Army, Nanking's agents in foreign capitals began to weave a net of intrigues aimed to involve imperialist countries in the Sino-Russian conflict.

"Undoubtedly Nanking, foreseeing the independent move in Mukden, planned intrigues beforehand with the object of blocking the way to peaceful termination of the conflict by bringing in the aid of outside intervention. The statements of Secretary of State Stimson and Foreign Secretary Henderson, the exchange of opinions between certain countries and the anti-soviet campaign in the capitalistic press, clearly indicate intensive preparations for

CHINA SEEKING PEACE WITH REDS

Hostilities Cease in Manchuria—To Settle Dispute Over Eastern Railroad.

Nanking, China, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Nanking Central Chinese government moved today to solve its quarrel with Soviet Russia over ownership and management of the Chinese Eastern Railway built by the Czars in Manchuria. Meanwhile it was reported actual military hostilities in Manchuria had ceased.

But in a note forwarded to the Moscow government from the Chinese ambassador at Berlin there was a distinct belligerent tone. It was said that rejection of the Chinese terms "will indicate Russia entertains warlike ambitions toward China. The National government will be prepared to meet the Soviet move accordingly."

Denies Reports.
C. T. Wang, Nanking foreign minister, denied emphatically official announcements at Moscow that the Manchurian provincial government at Mukden had moved for conciliation of the railroad dispute, meeting the Russian demands. Wang said the Moscow reports were "false, groundless and never existed."

Soviet military operations in Manchuria seemed to have ceased at least partially, although an air bombing raid was made on the new Chinese military headquarters at Buchatu yesterday.

HOUSE TO HASTEN INCOME TAX CUT

Chairman Hawley Predicts Resolution Will Be Adopted End of First Week.

Washington, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Chairman Hawley of the House ways and means committee predicted today the House would adopt a resolution to authorize the $160,000,000 tax reduction on 1929 incomes before the end of the first week of the regular session.

The resolution, Hawley said, would be introduced Monday and he would call a meeting Tuesday of the ways and means committee. Hearings, he added, probably would be short in view of the approval of the reduction by the administration and leaders of both parties in both Houses.

In the event the House would agree to consider the resolution Wednesday, under unanimous consent, without waiting for the committee report, it probably would be approved that day, he said. Otherwise it would be brought up Thursday for action.

To Speed Up Work.
Senate leaders have announced that an effort would be made to expedite passage in that chamber. Hawley's statement today was even more optimistic for early action than his utterance at the time the tax cut proposal was announced by Secretary Mellon. The ways and means chairman then predicted the House would dispose of it shortly before taking the Christmas recess. If his latest prediction materializes the Senate will be given an opportunity to act before going home to hang up stockings Christmas eve.

House leaders expect but little activity in putting the resolution through. Since it proposes only one form of reduction—a one per cent cut in the rate on corporation and individual incomes—the leaders believe there will be but slight opposition on the part of members to indulge in protracted debate.

The House leadership indicated that if this would develop they would enforce the drastic rules of that chamber which shut off discussion.

RESCUED BY FIREMEN FROM HORRIBLE FATE

Bridgeport Man Caught by Quicksands and Held Four Hours—Only Shoulders Out of Water.

Bridgeport, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Rescued by firemen as he was being engulfed slowly by quicksands Walter Warland, 78, a clam fisher, was recovering today from exposure and the horror of facing for four hours what seemed to be certain death Wednesday night.

Warland, who lives in Stratford, had ventured a dozen feet into the icy water seeking clams, when he stepped into a quicksand trap and began to sink. Efforts to extricate himself were unavailing. The quicksand sucked him down until only his shoulders were out of water. Warland's cries for help were growing weaker when a passerby heard him, investigated his plight and turned in a fire alarm. He was almost unconscious when removed.

FEAR FOR FISHERMEN LOST IN SNOWSTORM

Blizzard Starts Three Days After Fifty of Them Leave Canadian Settlement.

Ile A La Croix, Sask., Nov. 29.—(AP)—With a 30 mile an hour gale from the Arctic tundra whipping the falling snow into blizzard, anxiety was felt for the welfare of the fifty fishermen who left here three days ago in two groups for northern fishing lakes.

The fishermen heading for the Narrows, according to dog mushers, had practically exhausted the small supply of food they had purchased here. The men had hoped to make the 90-mile trip to the Narrows in two days, and being short of funds had not taken a larger supply of food.

The thin ice covered with a heavy blanket of snow has become slushy owing to the mild temperature.

FIRES ON OFFICER THINKS HIM THIEF

Shoots Three Times Before He Discovers Mistake; Policeman Is Not Hit.

Hartford, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Superintendent Policeman James Buzzell today has a keener appreciation of life since he almost lost it shortly after midnight, this morning. Any one of three bullets might have ended it.

Andrew Stockman is owner of the Hillside Battery Service Station and his living quarters are in an adjoining building on Hillside avenue. Some time ago he rigged up a burglar alarm system in the station and it connects with Stockman's residence. Stockman had retired when he heard the alarm "let go."

Through a side window of the station he saw a man with a flashlight. Buzzell dropped to the floor as Stockman opened fire. All three bullets were embedded in the outside wall of the service station but dangerously near a window in front of which the patrolman had passed only a moment before.

The officer made his way cautiously to the door and stepped outside. Stockman then discovered his mistake. The policeman had entered the service station when he discovered that a side door had been left unlocked.

FIRE IN NEW LONDON.
New London, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A stubborn fire which broke out in a tailor shop in the heart of the business area at noon today called out every piece of fire apparatus. The fire was in a tailor shop conducted by Harry Hollander at 30 North Bank street and it got off to such a start that for a time it appeared as though the entire building would go. The fire quickly extinguished, however, and the damage will not exceed $3,000.

Notit, Jr., took his place on the bench promptly at 10:30 a. m. McManus, the smiling defendant, was in his seat early, dressed today in another of his blue suits. He said he attended the N. Y. U. Carnegie Tech football game at Yankee Stadium yesterday, but smilingly shook his head when asked if he had a bet down the right way. Wednesday he favored N. Y. U. to win. They lost 2-0.

"Nigger Nate" Raymond, suave little olive-skinned gambler from the Pacific coast, was the first witness. "What is your business, Raymond?" Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora asked. "Speculator," Raymond answered crisply.

He explained that he "speculated" on the outcome of sporting events. Raymond was a participant in the big stud poker game where, the state contends, arose the motive for McManus to shoot Rothstein. He won $219,000 from Rothstein, but never collected.

He said he knew Hyman (Gillie) Biller, indicted with McManus and two unidentified for the murder, a McManus' cashier and pay-off man. Knew Card Players.

He said he knew the participants in the game, five of whom have already testified and others who haven't. These include Meyer and Sam Boston, Martin (Red) Bowe, "Titanic" Thomas of Milwaukee, Joe Bernstein, James Meehan, the host, and McManus.

Raymond brought a new and unidentified player into the game, "Charley" who won some $15,000 from Rothstein.

He said he "bought" Meyer Boston's lucky seat in explaining how he knew that Boston had won. "How much did you win or lose?" Pecora asked. "I lost in cash and won in paper," he said.

"How much?" "Twelve thousand in cash and $219,000 in U. S. U. S." He never collected the U. S. U. S., which were won from Rothstein, and which were merely given by word of mouth, with no visible sign of indebtedness.

Raymond gave all his answers in a clear, well modulated voice, and two or three times pointed out to Mr. Pecora that he had already answered questions the attorney phrased differently and asked a second time.

Raymond said he made his biggest bets at the stud poker game with Rothstein. "How much did you bet with Rothstein on any one play?" "Forty thousand," said Raymond unblinking.

On that deal, against his objections, Rothstein "cut" the cards. "Did you win or lose?" Pecora asked. "I won."

Lived at Park Central Pecora then brought out that Raymond was living in the Park Central Hotel, No. 4, 1928, the night Rothstein allegedly was shot there.

He said he never saw McManus in the Park Central. The state contends McManus registered there November 4, lured Rothstein there and shot him.

Raymond said his wife had been sick on that afternoon and evening and he stayed with her until after midnight, two hours after Rothstein was wounded, when he took her for a ride in Central Park.

Mr. Murray took over the witness. "You didn't kill Rothstein, did you?" Murray asked. "No," said Raymond. "But police accused you of it, didn't they?" "Well, no. They thought I was implicated, though."

Murray then brought out that Raymond and Rothstein had had an altercation in a taxicab sometime before the shooting. Raymond said police had asked him about it.

He didn't remember whether they had exchanged blows. Raymond was followed on the stand by Benjamin Hickey, a civil engineer, employed by the district attorney, who identified large scale diagrams he had made of the Park Central and the street outside where the alleged "death" pistol was picked up.

Before Hickey testified Murray had made a motion to strike out the testimony of the gambler witness, already heard in that was irrelevant and showed no motive for McManus to kill Rothstein. His motion was denied.

After Hickey had identified the charts they were passed to the jury, who eagerly scanned them. It was the first time they had had occasion to do anything but sit and they seemed to welcome it. The diagrams were for the purpose of showing graphically the alleged scene of the murder, Room 349, its position in relation to the rooms of other witnesses yet to be called and the route the state contends the wounded Rothstein took to the street down the servants stairway.

SETTLEMENT SOON

Shanghai, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The North China Daily News, a British newspaper here this morning published a statement purporting to be from local Russian Tass Agency sources stating that the Chinese commission of foreign affairs, Li Hardin had inaugurated negotiations between Mukden and Moscow seeking settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute. The newspaper added that the authority was granted "on the express authority of both Nanking and Mukden officials."

Nanking officials declined to comment on the report indicating that a statement likely soon would be forthcoming. The British newspaper, continuing the alleged official statement concerned the purported negotiations said: "The Chinese Eastern Railway impasse has been settled between Manchurian authorities and Soviet Russia on November 21 a former attaché of the Soviet consulate at Harbin and a railway Russian translator arrived at Harbin, accompanied by a Chinese military colonel who delivered an official declaration from the Chinese commissioner of foreign affairs at Harbin stating he had been authorized by both Nanking and Mukden to open negotiations for liquidation of the conflict."

Discussion and provide a parliamentary short-cut for an early vote. The ways and means committee, which must all revenue legislation, will be ready to function as soon as the bang of Speaker Longworth's gavel calls the House to order Monday. It was organized at the outset of the special session last April and will not be held up, as will many other committees, by the filling of vacancies.

Favorable Sign. The announcement today by Senator Smooth of Utah that he preferred to retain the chairmanship of the Senate finance committee rather than take over the chairmanship of the Senate appropriations committee, also was regarded as a favorable sign for action on the tax resolution.

Smooth long has been head of the finance group which handles all revenue legislation in the Senate. His remaining in that post will leave that committee ready to work on the measure as soon as it is sent over by the House. An earlier start will be responsible as under the constitution the Senate cannot consider revenue legislation until it has been acted upon by the other chamber.

BYRD BEGINS JOURNEY TO THE POLE AND BACK

British, both using overland methods of travel. Commander Byrd's expedition has been in the Antarctic since December of last year. After various reconnaissance flights from his base, Little America, he and his party established winter quarters on the ice barrier about the Antarctic continent, and only recently with the coming of spring have resumed activity.

One fruit already of their Antarctic expedition has been confirmation of the existence of Scott Island and discovery of various uncharted mountain groups on the Antarctic continent.

BROTHER NOT SURPRISED. Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Governor Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, said today he was not surprised to learn that his brother, Commander Richard E. Byrd, had hopped off from his base, Little America, in the Antarctic for a flight to the South Pole and return.

Governor Byrd said he knew his brother was contemplating the flight at about this time but that he had not known of his departure until notified by Associated Press dispatches. He expressed optimism for the success of the flight.

Governor Byrd said the family had received personal messages from his brother within the past week, but that they contained no reference to a date having been set for the flight.

RELATIVE IN STATE

New London, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Bernie Balchen, who is piloting Commander Byrd's huge gray plane on its 1,600 mile flight from the dappled barrier in Antarctica to the South Pole and back is a nephew of David G. Dedrick, of 57 Park avenue, Groton, who is watching closely the work of Balchen. Capt. Dedrick himself, was skipper of the City of New York, formerly known as the Sampson, when she was brought from Norway to America. She is now the flagship of Commander Byrd's expedition.

When she was 2,500 miles from New York the boiler blew up, and by skillful manipulation by Captain Dedrick and crew she was brought into port under sail.

WIFE GETS MESSAGE

Stamford, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The wife and daughter of Lieut. Harold June, radio man with Commander Byrd on his flight from Little America to the South Pole, received her first word of the flight from the Stamford Advocate this morning. She took the news cheerfully and was confident her husband was returning safely. His daughter received a message sent from Little America, which read:

Dear Daughter: Everything O. K. I am well and rested from the flight and ready for another now. Give mother love and kisses. I am thinking of all at home constantly. Love, Father.

The message was sent through the American Radio Relay League from New York the latter part of the week ago. She expects his return with the expedition next June.

CARE FOR VETERANS AT SOLDIERS' HOME

Hartford, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Veterans admitted to the Fitch's Soldiers Home and Soldiers hospital at Noroton need have no cause for apprehension as the care accorded them by the State of Connecticut, said State Commissioner of Finance and Control Edward F. Hall today, commenting on the suggested "rigid economy" policy which had been reported as the plan for the remainder of the fiscal year. Following the meeting of the veterans' home commission Wednesday afternoon at which it was reported the number of inmates at the home had been increased by 110 during the last year and it was brought out that a request would have to be made of the board of finance and control for a transfer of funds to meet the situation this year. Mr. Raymond F. Gates, secretary of the veterans' home commission, declared today that all veterans now at the home were eligible for admission when received there and the number there simply represents an increase which was marked and which came about all in one year.

HALE'S ALL SET. FOR XMAS RACE. Tigers and Bulldogs to Battle Until Holiday for Biggest Sales Total.

"Fourth down and half a yard from the goal line." Unusual, yet this may be the report issued from Hales at any time from now until the curtain rings down on the big sales-team race, waiting tense for the start on Monday, Hales' folks are going to battle it out for honors, this year, in the form of two football teams: Hales' Tigers and Hales' Bulldogs, with C. J. McCann as referee. The Bulldogs are captained by Elton Johnson with Alex Lang as coach, and the Tigers will line up with Eric Crawshaw as captain and Elmer Weden on the sidelines urging them on. From top to bottom of the big store all await the kickoff with expectancy.

There is no small wonder at the interest in this season's sales race by Hales. The addition of many new imported and domestic lines in nearly all departments brings the holiday tone of the store to a higher degree of effectiveness with this added color and improved service. The interior arrangement of the store has undergone several radical, but effective changes as in the creation of a central, easily accessible booth in the rear of the street floor for that greatest of Christmas gifts — handkerchiefs. There is promised better service through this centralization.

Store decorations this year and in the form of pole placards of poinsettias and candles in Christmas colors. Prominently displayed at the store front will be the gold jewelry and leather goods with the hosiery and toilet goods on the immediate right. At the left of the entrance a very complete line of Eaton, Crane and Pike and Montag stationery is to be the great jewelry prizes, neckties and new linens and tapestry bags featured nearby.

Displayed prominently in the center of the street floor are the new Cannon towels in solid colors and the Lady Gray colored hemstitched slits and sheets. The new Holland two-tone all-wool blankets are distinguishable from all parts of the store, as are the beautiful rayon and taffeta puffs.

The notion counter containing a full line of Xmas decorations is this year at the foot of the stairs. The book department and Christmas greeting card division are together at the left rear of the store in a space allotted in keeping with the seasonal demands for these articles. In the main floor center are displayed the new rayon-stain bedspreads with pillows to match. The silk garment gift department is on the first floor rear.

The house furnishing department in the basement is showing new imported pottery and tea sets in their holiday display with a full line of modern and colonial lamps. Carved, brass, tray and serving dishes are shown in the new non-tarnishable chromium plate.

The house furnishing department will be host to a family of real, live, trained monkeys—four of them during the month. They will cavort for the amusement of the patrons in their new cage near Toyland.

Toys. Toyland! What that word brings to the imaginations of modern youth is but a hazy mirage as compared with the actual scenes prepared for Toyland's shoppers this year. The principal trend of Toyland this year is towards Aviation, planes and zeppelins in every conceivable size and degree of perfection for the boys. And for the girls there are dolls, dolls, and dolls, with the usual line of doll furniture. Two new games featured this season will be "Ballo-Ball" a parlor game destined to be unusually popular and "Who's Who" for the grown-ups. In construction sets the new Build-a-Zep for boys is sure to be popular. All toys are in the new color scheme, larger and better than ever before.

On the second floor the new gift department for the convenience of the late or puzzled shopper will no doubt prove its worth through the medium of the wide range of gifts employed for all. Throughout the entire store the scheme of arrangement is to allot space according to the current demands made for accessibility, space and service.

Santa Claus. But best of all, Santa Claus, fresh from his long ride from the workshops of the far North, arrives at Hales' Toyland Department tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 in person. Presents for every child ever accompanied by grown ups will be given at that time.

In the words of Graham McNamee . . . "The teams are now on the field . . . just listen those cheers . . . the Tigers are now kicking off to the Bulldogs . . . they are running back the kick . . . 5 . . . 10 . . . 15 . . . yards . . . the battle is on, folks. . . at Hales'!"

FLOODS IN PORTUGAL

Many streets in the capital were converted into rushing streams of water. Torrential rain fell for more than twenty-four hours rushing into basements and cellars and in some cases undermining walls and chimneys.

The accident happened on Union street in front of the Scott store.

But when you want to throw out of your system one of those old timers, that simply won't be conquered, but lingers on and on causing sleepless nights and days of torment then you've just got to have a real cough medicine. Then you must ask your druggist for a bottle of Bronchiline Emulsion for the harder and tougher and fighter they come the more joy Bronchiline gets in knocking them out. Bronchiline isn't a cheap cough conqueror, mind you, for first raters are never cheap. But if you are one of the unlucky ones that a per-

LOVE'S A DISEASE SCIENTIST AVERS

It's Just Like the Measles Says German Doctor and Explains How.

Munich.—(AP.)—To millions of men and women the world over love may still be life's greatest romance, but to Dr. Waldemar Schweissheimer it is nothing more than a disease to be compared with measles. This physician has just published a volume—"Love Only a Disease"—in which he subjects love to purely clinical laboratory analysis.

He draws a parallel between love and measles and contends that in the person "afflicted" with love there is a disposition for the "disease." He explains that, just like a cold, it is not caught by every person who shakes hands with every other, so the love-germs are not inhaled in every one indiscriminately.

How It Starts

He then argues that, as in all infections, the "love-disease" has its incubation period between its inception and crisis. This he writes, is similar to the incubation period in diphtheria. The infection does not make one violently ill immediately after the germs have lodged themselves in the human system. Love at first sight, the physician holds, is as exceptional as the sudden breaking out of scarlet fever.

Once the "love-disease" has broken out, Dr. Schweissheimer says, its symptoms are indubitable. The eye is blurred, the face becomes pale, the heart palpitates, sleep is irregular and the sufferer loses weight. Those unhappy in love may fade away like flowers deprived of sunshine and water. On the other hand, like faded flowers are brought back to life by sunshine and water, such lovers who see their love reciprocated will recover.

Diagnosis and prognosis in the "love-disease" are established with less difficulty than in medicine, the author contends. Few are those who die while in love.

Even in the matter of therapeutics, Dr. Schweissheimer attempts to show the existence of clinical parallels with other diseases. With love, as with other diseases, a cure is often difficult. Inoculation against the "love-disease" is not yet possible, nor has a curative serum been discovered.

HEBRON

As Leroy Benzinger was driving a two-horse farm wagon toward his home in Hopevale down the Amston road Tuesday at about half past five, p. m., he saw a car coming from the opposite direction several rods distant and on the wrong side toward the side of the road as far as possible, but car and wagon collided and a grand smash up resulted. The wagon was almost completely demolished. Benzinger was thrown out into the ditch. The horse escaped injury, but Mr. Benzinger was badly scratched and bruised. The car, a new Ford roadster, skidded on for 141 feet and turned over. It was considerably broken up and a wrecker was sent to take it back to Amston. The two occupants of the car were not hurt. The driver was Jack Slattery who is time keeper for Medbury and Trowbridge, contractors from Pomfret who are at work on the new dam project on the Charles M. Amis property in Amston, but it is also contended that it lacked a few minutes of the time required by law for lighting vehicles. The impact of the two vehicles when they came together was heard for half a mile, and an excited crowd gathered. The car was owned by Medbury and was insured. The case will come up for trial next Wednesday, at the town hall, Hebron, at 2 o'clock, p. m., before Justice J. Banks Jones.

it's the blend— and the fragrant tobacco

Camels have always welcomed comparison with any other cigarette because the true test of value is the pleasure to be found in smoking.

The most important thing for smokers to know is that genuine cigarette quality must begin with the selection of tobaccos. Nothing can take the place of quality tobacco. Thus the extraordinary goodness of Camels begins with the choicest tobaccos grown and these are blended with expert skill to achieve the mildness and surpassing fragrance of this great cigarette. It is this genuineness of quality which smokers appreciate when they have passed the experimental stage and know real smoking pleasure.

"My coughing and sneezing stopped just like THAT"

"Going home from a dance in my thin evening dress and slippers, I caught a frightful cough. I knew I had to go to work the next morning and I dreaded a sleepless night. When I got home my mother gave me some Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. In no time at all my coughing and sneezing stopped. I slept like a log. In the morning I was quite well enough to go to business." either one of these. I do not know of any disadvantage in being tall. In fact, there are many reasons for believing this is a decided advantage. The Adam's apple seems to protrude more with those who do not have a good muscular development of the neck. This can be avoided through taking strenuous neck exercises, such as wretches take in preparing themselves for a contest.

(Be Patient)
Question:—E. E. asks: "Will you please explain why, after a fruit fast, the bowels do not move naturally for several days?"
Answer:—It usually takes two or three days for the bowels to move well after a fast owing to the fact that the bowels have been practically empty during the fast and must again fill up before there will be a strong peristaltic action.

(Heart Leakage)
Question:—Mrs. M. asks: "Should one with leakage of the heart drive an automobile?"
Answer:—A leakage of the heart valves is not necessarily dangerous, and those suffering from this disorder are not the ones who usually drop dead from what is called "heart failure." Of course, driving an automobile for long distances is very tiring, and this strain should not be undergone by anyone who has a serious case of heart trouble of any kind.

My Favorite Bible Passage

Today's Choice by Morris Sheppard U. S. Senator from Texas

Sen. Sheppard Jesus said unto him, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Matthew 22:37-39.

Comment: "These verses, containing the reply of Christ to the lawyer in the temple, are my favorite ones because they announce the doctrine of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, making love of God and man the pre-eminent duty of the race." (Compiled by the Bible Guild.)

POPE, KING, QUEEN,
TO MEET DEC. 5TH.

First of Its Kind in History;
No Listeners Except the Walls.

Vatican City.—(AP.)—If the walls of the throne room of the Vatican had ears, they would hear words spoken on Thursday, December 5, of historic interest, for the speakers will be Pope Pius XI, King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena of Italy.

There will be no listeners except the walls. The Pope and the King and the Queen will be alone. The doors of the throne room will be closed.

It will be the first visit any King of Italy has made to any Pope. It will be of great significance. But only the walls will hear what the three noted personages will say. To American tourists who "do" the Vatican, the throne room is unknown. It is not on the list of the hundreds of rooms and salons which they are permitted to visit. It is not in the guide-books.

The Throne Room
On the right, as one enters it, is the papal throne, a raised armchair, richly ornamented, standing beneath a square canopy of red velvet embroidered in gold.

Around the room are a few gilded chairs, and several tablets against the wall, with religious ornaments upon them.

The room is very simply furnished. It might almost be called bare, except that what furnishings there are are very rich.

The ceiling and upper walls are decorated with elaborate murals. The floor is covered by a Spanish carpet especially manufactured. It was presented to Pope Leo XIII.

The Sala Clementina
The approach to the throne room is through a series of beautiful rooms. The King and the Queen will first enter the magnificent Sala Clementina, a huge room with beautiful murals. Here a squadron of Swiss guards is always on sentry duty at the entrance to the papal apartments.

From the Sala Clementina the King and the Queen will walk through the Sala Degli Arazzi, or Hall of the Tapestries. In this room hang three great Gogelin tapestries presented to the Pope by Louis XV of France.

Between the Sala Degli Arazzi and the throne room is a small room in which the noble guard, composed of members of the papal nobility, has its post. This room leads to the Pope's private chapel.

Behind the throne room is the Pope's private library. Here the Pope receives privately. This is the Pope's working room.

Above these rooms are the Pope's living quarters. Below them are the rooms of the cardinal secretary of state.

When the King and the Queen enter the throne room they will find two chairs placed for them beside the throne. The King will take the one to the right, the Queen the one to the left.

When their conversation begins, the doors of the room will be closed. The attendants of the Pope and the attendants of the King will gather outside in the ante-chamber. The walls of the throne room will be the only listeners.

PERFECTIONISTS

We have never felt quite absolutely sure that compulsory vaccination laws were good laws. We have, to be sure, long felt that much of the opposition to vaccination and much of the argument of the anti-vaccinationists was unwise and hysterical and we believe, in fact, that vaccination has proven its case as one of the most helpful discoveries of all times. And, believing that, we have perhaps at times been less patient with opposition than we should have been. But where the matter of compulsion is concerned there are other things to be considered besides the scientific facts of preventive medicine. Principally the inherent right of the individual to dispose of his own life as he sees fit, so long as he does not thereby endanger his fellow or society at large.

The best possible argument for the anti-vaccinationist, instead of bucking the whole sum of scientific observation over a long period of time, would be this: If vaccination can and does prevent the occurrence of smallpox in the system of the vaccinated individual, why should that individual regard as a menace to him the likelihood of smallpox in the unvaccinated individual? If vaccination is good and A is vaccinated, how can the unvaccinated condition of B, or even B's illness with smallpox, imperil A who has immunized himself? If it cannot, then what concern is it of A whether B immunizes himself or not? Apparently nobody can suffer from B's obduracy but B himself.

We will grant that this is a rather sketchy presentation of the case and that there may be some question whether B has a complete moral right to subject his family to danger by refusing to have its members vaccinated, but here the situation becomes highly involved and the discussion endless. In its simplest terms, the question would seem to be one of the right of the individual to direct his own life. In its most complicated terms it is the decency and all of a problem.

If, then, after long controversy, the nation and the states have succeeded in fairly well stabilizing the vaccination question, which seems to have been pretty well accomplished by the school vaccination laws, it would seem to be a mighty good thing to leave it alone. But up in Massachusetts they don't want to let this sleeping dog lie and there has been introduced a bill in the Legislature that requires the vaccination of all infants before the end of their first year of life, with re-vaccination upon entering public school.

We think we can see in this movement something very much akin to the prohibitory liquor laws—the repelling of sympathizers and their conversion into opponents. Many thousands of Massachusetts people, who have come to regard compulsory vaccination in the schools as a settled thing and one to be submitted to as a matter of course, are pretty sure to kick over the traces when the law is provided with such new and long and sharp teeth as proposed by the Bigelow law.

Those reformers who are never content with a reasonably good condition but devote themselves to the doctrine of perfection are among the world's worst pests. They destroy faster than reasonable people can build up.

LET SENTENCE STAND

During the period of banditry extending over a number of years, in the course of which a great many reputable citizens have been heartlessly deprived of their lives by the acts of utterly worthless young men, Connecticut has been peculiarly free from killings by stick-up criminals. Perhaps the remorseless manner in which the Chapman case was prosecuted to its rightful conclusion has had something to do with this relative immunity, for it is quite certain that the gangster, the tough and the bandit were through that case deeply impressed by the perils that lay in invoking the vengeance of Connecticut law.

However, though the activities of the gun-toting, hop-stimulated stick-up gangster have been less marked in this state than in many others, that does not mean that none of these gentry has dared to take a chance within the borders of this commonwealth. Nor does it mean that Connecticut has no evil characters of its own who would be quick to take advantage of any slackening of the stern repression exercised by our police and especially by our courts.

IN NEW YORK

There is under sentence of death at this moment one John Feltovic, a Bridgeport gunman who committed one of the coldest blooded murders in the annals of the state in the course of the holdup of a chain store in the Park City. He had a fair trial and was convicted of first degree murder. An appeal, ingeniously argued, has failed in the Supreme Court of Errors, which unanimously approves the conviction. It is probable that a very urgent plea for clemency will be made to Governor Trumbull, predicated largely on the youth of the killer—who is only nineteen.

We have never been utterly convinced of the rightness of the death penalty—it is an extremely difficult question. But so long as death is the punishment prescribed by the law of this state for first degree murder, so long should it be enforced, we feel very sure, in such cases as this. It is the only penalty of which case-hardened criminals of the Feltovic class stand in any real dread. Its great usefulness in keeping Connecticut relatively free from these gratuitous and shocking murders by robbers seems to us to have been pretty well demonstrated. We don't believe that this state can afford to give such encouragement to murderous banditry as might well be supplied by the commutation of this killer's sentence to imprisonment for life.

If Governor Trumbull and the Board of Pardons, in the interest of the security of life among the orderly people of the state, should refuse to intervene to save the life of this one bad young killer, their adherence to recent Connecticut tradition will, we are sure, receive universal commendation.

LOW BRIDGE:

Lest Lady Mary Heath's stay at Reno should bear the customary Reno fruit of a divorce; and lest the titled aviatrix might some day be in this vicinity, say at Brainerd field; and lest some young Manchesterian earning perhaps forty a week should become smitten with the undoubted beauty and charm of the lady of the clouds and seek to wed her; let us fulfill an obvious moral right by pointing out that a witness in a dressmaker's suit against Lady Heath has just testified that the distinguished flier, before she left England for America, declared her intention of making all possible purchases and leaving them for Sir James Heath to pay, saying, "I'll sting the old swine!" It's just as well to know something about the point of view of these fascinating creatures before you let them knock you off the perch.

TERRIBLE:

Dr. Margaret Mead, assistant curator of ethnology of the American Museum of Natural history in New York, has just returned from a long visit to the Admiralty Islands in the Southern Pacific, where she has been studying the physical and mental development of children and adolescent as compared with those of more civilized races. Dr. Mead makes the statement that children of both sexes of the age of three, in the Admiralty, smoke cigarettes of Louisiana twist rolled in newspaper—and that so far as she can see they are just as bright children as any and considerably more agile than white youngsters.

We may now expect to see those twin Dutch Cleansers, the W. C. T. U. and the Salvation Army, chasing Dr. Mead off the face of the earth with the well known big stick.

WARN THE YOUNGSTERS

Parents and school teachers will do well to put in a little time lecturing the children in their charge, at this season of the year, against the peril of venturing on the ice. Every year there are numbers of sad little tragedies as the result of childish lack of comprehension of the danger of adventuring on newly frozen ponds and streams before the ice has been pronounced safe by competent adults. The first of this season's that we have noted occurred in Maine yesterday when three little ones, ranging in age from five to eight, lost their lives. They are all members of one family and their parents barely escaped a similar fate in their frantic efforts at rescue. In the ordinary course of events there will be a good many more such fatalities in these New England states before the end of the winter.

Grant that it is difficult for the guardians of small children to make them appreciate the hazard that lies in the apparently safe surface of a frozen pond, and that it is hard for the little ones to remember the warnings, yet it is a duty to the little folks to lose no opportunity to picture to them, as impressively as possible, the dangers of unproven ice. Perhaps some, at least, will prove receptive of good advice who, lacking it, might become the victims of one of these shocking drownings.

HEALTH AND DIET

ADVICE

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

COODFISH

The coodfish is a fish weighing from three to thirty pounds. It is smooth skinned, white fleshed and fine grained. Where this fish may be obtained fresh, it makes a very desirable salt water fish.

Only a few years ago the fresh cod could only be purchased at the seashore in Maine, Massachusetts, California and Alaska, but now with our modern refrigeration the fresh fish is being supplied to all parts of the country, being shipped on trains direct to countrywide markets.

Cod fishing is no doubt one of the most dangerous occupations, due to the heavy seas and the deceptive fogs which seem to exist wherever the cod are found. The fishing boats are often lost, or the fishers swept overboard and drowned.

Most of the cod is found off the banks of Newfoundland or Labrador, but many tons of the "Cultus" cod are now caught off the coast of California.

The fresh cod is best cooked by broiling or baking, and is cooked in much the same manner as any other fish. An ordinary size small cod will broil nicely in about twenty minutes. It should not be buttered while it is cooking, but a small amount of butter may be melted over the fish after it has been baked or broiled.

The salted codfish is the form in which it is most used, and many of my readers perhaps do not even know that it is possible to buy fresh cod. The salted cod is perfectly wholesome if it is soaked overnight and then parboiled to get out all of the salt.

Most housewives cook fish with milk or cream and a hour sauce, and it is then frequently served over mashed potatoes. I do not approve of this combination from a dietetic standpoint, although I remember with pleasure the taste of this mixture which I used to eat before I was so dietetically-minded. I still use codfish, but in my own home we now prepare it in other different and interesting styles. I would especially recommend to my readers the following recipe:

Soak the codfish, drain, parboil in the salt, cooking the fish from ten to fifteen minutes. Grind the fish in the meat grinder, running it through the second time with some carrots, turnips and beets which have been previously ground. Put this mixture into small casseroles and bake in the oven until well done. For sake of variety, also try stuffing tomatoes with this same mixture of ground fish and vegetables and bake the entire stuffed tomato in the oven until well done.

Many cooks use the codfish left over from the previous meal and mix it with potatoes to make codfish balls. As it is better not to use potatoes and codfish together at the same time, I will give my readers a substitute recipe which is even more delicious dish:

Mix Melba toast crumbs with the cooked codfish, run through the food grinder and make into small patties, baking them in an aluminum dish in the oven. Put a small piece of butter on each patty after taking it from the oven.

And now comes Sidney Howard, one of America's leading playwrights who for years has been associated with the Theater Guild, with a statement that he will use the talking films for social surveys. Howard, who wrote "The Silver Cord," "The Lucky Sam McCarver," "They Knew What They Wanted" and other important dramas, came into association with the talking cinema when he wrote "Condemned" for Samuel Goldwyn.

From this experience Howard believes that millions of Americans could be brought in immediate contact with social injustices through the talkie medium. In fact, rather weary of play-writing and industrious creative effort, he intends to use the speaking camera for a national research campaign.

Howard, who is far from satisfied with all the things as they are, believes the sound films should be on hand at Gastonia and the Pennsylvania coal mines and other places where industrial troubles are in the air.

It's one thing, points out Howard, to read casually and comfortably of hard social conditions and another to see them and to hear the story of those affected. The news reels must be impersonal and show only those "news" angles of any case. Whereas, he would go behind the scenes, reveal the hunger and suffering, the types affected and the lives lived by rebellious workers.

The so-called "coal and iron police" of the coal zones will, he believes, "first command his attention."

A number of the Manhattan studios, I find, are taking other sound films for "library" purposes. A Sousa, for instance, will not live forever and future Americans will be able to hear him playing his "Stars and Stripes" march. The same is true of many other famous orchestra and band leaders, whose best known works will be put away for posterity, along with the famous voices of the time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Abscessed Teeth)
 Question—K. L. writes: "Please tell me if there is any way to find an abscess on a tooth without using the x-ray."
 Answer—In the first place, it is usually a dead tooth that can abscess at the end of the root. A dentist is usually able to determine the presence of a large abscess of a dead tooth by probing through the root canal with a fine probe. However, the best policy would be for you to have an x-ray taken, for the removal of a dead tooth is often not advisable, as it may serve to hold a bridge in place.

(Playing Saxophone)
 Question—M. H. asks: "Is it injurious to the mouth, throat or lungs to play a saxophone?"
 Answer—It is not injurious to the throat or lungs to play a saxophone. However, with the ears, it might be different, not only to the player from the compression caused to the inner ear, but also to the neighbors who are forced to listen to the practicing.

(Joint Adhesions)
 Question—D. W. writes: "Over two years ago I broke my left wrist close to the hand, and the doctor did not set it right. The hand is turned over and seems to be held there by muscles fastened in a sort of gristle growth which has formed. I have spent quite a bit of money to get this corrected, including electrical treatments. What is your advice?"
 Answer—Sometimes adhesions form to the ligaments from a break in the bone and it may be necessary to have an operation performed to loosen the attached ligaments, although this can sometimes be done by persistent exercises of the joint and massage with the fingers. However, I cannot advise you definitely in your own particular case without having a chance to examine your wrist.

MANCHESTER 100-DOLLAR STORE

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Domestic pacific conciliation and arbitration has been obvious.

The Spanish-speaking people probably also have realized that there is a great mass of popular opinion in the United States opposed to the idea of imperialism and to difficulties of any kind with the countries of this hemisphere. This opposition did not head off the original Coolidge-Kellogg strong arm policies toward Mexico and Nicaragua, but it did embarrass the administration and undoubtedly had much to do with the softening of those policies.

Not fearing political imperialism, the Latin-Americans have considered the problem of "economic imperialism"—capital investments, commerce, penetration of industrial technique, education of markets for American goods, mass production, chain stores and subsidiary companies. But there appears to be little worry about this phase among their leaders. It is realized that the United States of foreign capital in the history of the world and that no country can organize its production and accumulate capital simultaneously.

Hoover's theory was that trade might thrive between nations despite a lack of good will, but that friendly feelings were an important element in the foundation for its permanent maintenance. It is worth pointing out, however, that the last year has shown a greater proportionate increase in the value of our exports to Latin America than to any other continent. Exports to South America for the first nine months of 1929 for $420,238,000 as compared with $339,041,000 for the first nine months of 1928. Imports for the same period increased from $436,623,000 to $488,056,000.

Foreign diplomats in Washington have lately been pointing out in private conversation that a great contrast exists between the hard luck Mr. Hoover has been having at home—what with the stock market crash, the miserable position of his party in the Senate and other developments—and the splendid success he has had in his dealings to date with Latin America, Great Britain and other foreign nations.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

UNUSUAL PRICES FOR MANUSCRIPTS

Books Also Sell High at London Bookseller's; Some of the Prices.

London.—(AP.)—Books and manuscripts have brought record prices at Sotheby's lately. Sir James Marrie, George Bernard Shaw, Sir William Conan Doyle and H. G. Wells being especially popular. Five books by Sir James Marrie that thirty years ago were sold for less than £2 ($30) were purchased for a total of £457 ($2,285).

Gabriel Wells, New York collector, paid a record price of $110 ($550) for "A Widow in Trams," which was published in 1889 for six shillings. Wells also paid another record fee when he bought a Burns letter containing the verses, "The Kirk's Alarm," for £1,810 ($9,050). A first edition of Shaw's "Widowers' Houses" also went to Wells for $80 ($400). He had previously picked up the original manuscript of the play at a large price.

Shaw Correspondence.—The bulk of the correspondence between Shaw and Mr. Vedrenne who produced Shaw's plays at the Court of Savoy theatres 25 years ago, also went to the New York collector. The top price of $40 ($200) brought him Shaw's unpublished poem to Ellen Terry on her stage jubilee.

"Oh, Ellen, was it kind of fate, To make your youth so thrifty, That you are young at fifty-eight Whilst we are old at fifty."

One of the big surprises to collectors was the sum of £245 ($1,225) that went for the manuscript of "The Adventures of the Speckled Band," generally considered the favorite of the Sherlock Holmes stories. "The Lost World" found a ready buyer at £160 ($800).

H. G. Wells shared in the day's success, a collection of first editions bringing a total of £146 ($730).

Queer Twists In Day's News

New York.—A blonde Norwegian girl, who immigrated recently and got a job as chambermaid, is in the social register, for a year at least. The latest issue notes that Miss Adelaide Ingebreten was married to William W. Willock, Jr., at Oyster Bay, Nov. 6, Willock, Sr., steel magnate, has forgiven the elopers and presented them a house on his estate. The register omits Mr. and Mrs. James J. Tunney, whose marriage it noted last year. It mentions Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, Bridgeport, Conn.—Donald G. Perkins, in black velvet cap, red coat and gold breeches will be married Dec. 7 to Mrs. Margaret W. Buckley, who will wear a top hat, black coat and black breeches. The honeymoon will start with a fox hunt in which guests will join.

Hollywood, Calif.—The film world has verified its suspicions that Nicholas Pratz and Evelyn Lederer Kiefer are one. Which means that Nick Stuart and Sue Carol, lovers on the screen, are married. They have been Mr. and Mrs. since July, and since then have said often that they are not engaged.

Tucson, Ariz.—Isabel Helen Maynard, stepdaughter of M. J. Hanlon, Speaker of the Arizona House of Representatives, is going to be married to Hassan Saby El Kordi, son of the director of education in Cairo. They met at the University of Arizona, where the groom studied agriculture. The marriage was on the holiday.

Washington.—A two weeks' summer vacation is suggested by James J. Davis, secretary of labor, for some real busy, efficient executives, to wit, wives of workingmen, the greatest business managers in the world, who in their occupations of wife, mother, nurse, housekeeper, cook, laundress, seamstress, shopper, financier and master of trade, combine the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon and the common sense of Lincoln.

London.—The Prince of Wales seems to be quite a diplomat. In Britain amateur boxers must be clothed above the waist. Simon pure fighting in trunks simply isn't done. Primo Carnera, Italian professional heavyweight, didn't understand that when he appeared at a charity show under amateur rules. He refused to fight hampered until the prince, one of the spectators, sent him some sort of a message, and thereby embarrassment was avoided, for so-called prominent women were present.

New York.—Dan, a quiet efficient waiter in a restaurant in the roaring Forties catering to the theater trade is to give a concert in Carnegie Hall billed at Giuseppe Rodella, lyric tenor. He has been earning money for pursuit of a musical career and to bring the wife and children from Italy.

Sofa.—The American Thanksgiving Day, when it comes Nov. 28 is a day of mourning in Bulgaria. Housefronts were draped in black. It was the anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Neuilly, which gave Thrace to Greece.

Albany, N. Y.—The State Commission of Correction urges that inmates be permitted to smoke in Elmira reformatory, where delinquent youths between 16 and 21 are confined.

Dogs and cats suffer from attacks of as many as 475 species of insect parasites. New York's mayor's name is Walker, but he seems to run prettily well.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MRS. EMMA HOGARTH, said to keep a money hoard in her room on the second floor of Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house, was strangled to death by BONNIE DUNDEE, "cub" detective, assisted by LEWIS STRAWN in the investigation. Suspicion is directed at EMIL SEVIER, former boarder, whom Mrs. Hogarth has accused of trying to rob her and who has disappeared.

CORA BARKER, boarder and theater pianist, thought to have had an affair with Sevier, is arrested as a material witness against him.

HENRY DOWD, MR. and MRS. SHARP, WALTER STYLES, BERT MAGNUS, amateur scenario writer who is heard typing in his room until 12:15, and DAISY SHEPHERD, the only boarder who refuses to stay on at the Rhodes' house.

Bonnie learns from papers discovered in the lining of the victim's trunk that the SALLY GRAVES who has written Mrs. Hogarth once a month is her daughter and that the "D." mentioned in her diary is DAN GRIFFIN, whom the old lady lived in dread. Recalling the mysterious circumstances of Sally's murder in New York one month previous, Bonnie believes that "D." murdered both women and therefore turns her attention to the Rhodes' house, newcomers in the Rhodes' house. Dowd's information about himself proves false while Magnus' story checks. However, a trunk of electrical apparatus in Magnus' room puzzles Dundee.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

Dinner that Monday evening began as a rather ghastly affair, due largely to Cora's first appearance in the boarding house family since her arrest the day before as a material witness against Emil Sevier. Much as Dundee admitted her courage, there was no doubt that Cora Barker was like a death's head at the feast. And as it was, for Mrs. Rhodes, whether from fear of losing her boarders or out of the real kindness of her heart, had outdone herself on the menu.

Making a brave effort to ignore the unusually large crowd of "mealers" at the little tables scattered throughout the dining room, the regular boarders tried to chat normally with Cora, expressing their sympathy only with their eyes. But, it was no go. Cora's tragic, suddenly old face brooded somberly over the food, and she scarcely touched the only answers she gave were monosyllables—until Bert Magnus entered the room, a little late.

Dundee wished the two could have had that first moment of meeting after the tragedy alone, unwatched by the curious though sympathetic eyes of all their fellow-boarders. By accident or design, the chair next to Cora's had been left vacant, and now Bert Magnus slipped into it. Without actually seeing the clasp, Dundee was sure that their hands—Bert's unscrupled left and Cora's right—met beneath the table cloth, and there was no doubt at all of the fond, faithful light in Bert's eyes as they clung to the woman's tense face.

It was Jewel Briggs who broke the tension. "I tell you, folks! Let's all walk down to the Little Queen with Cora and see the movie, just to show everybody that we're her friends. Bert, you was with Cora and Walter with Norma, and I'll let Mr. Dundee escort me, if he's very good!"

Dundee's impulse was to refuse, tactfully, but as he was about to speak he caught a strange expression on Cora's face. Her eyes were blazing upon Jewel Briggs and her nostrils were flaring ominously, but she said nothing, and Jewel seemed to be blissfully unaware of the searing glance. But Cora's empy eye toward Jewel Briggs required investigation. Besides, she could do little sleuthing until the next day, when the boarders would again be out of the house.

"Am I going to be left out of this little pleasure jaunt?" Mr. Lawrence Sharp boomed.

"Remember you're a married man, you old sheik!" Jewel laughed. "But since Mrs. Sharp is still out of town, suppose you beau Daisy—it she'll take a chance before she sure."

Daisy Shepherd, whose broad, jolly face was entirely free of any embarrassment, although she had been unmercifully teased about her speedy return to "Mother" Rhodes' good meals, seconded Jewel's suggestion heartily and so the party was arranged.

At a quarter to seven the four couples sallied forth from the Rhodes' house, rather self-conscious of their championship of a woman under arrest, but talking and laughing at a great rate to hide their embarrassment. Before they had walked a block the pairing off had taken place, and Dundee found Jewel Briggs clinging to his arm. A few paces ahead of them, Walter and Norma strolled together slowly, the man's head bent worshipfully toward the hatless, bronze-curl-crowned head of the girl. But that would not bear thinking of, and Dundee resolutely turned his attention to Jewel's chatter.

"Of course I'm terribly sorry for her, but isn't it lovely how this awful murder has brought them so close together?" Jewel was saying eagerly.

"Miss Paige and Mr. Styles?" Dundee asked, slightly puzzled.

"Oh, dear! You weren't listening?" Jewel cried reproachfully. "Of course I don't mean Norma and Walter. They were engaged before the murder. I do believe you're half in love with Norma already, you bad boy! Is my heart going to be broken all over again?"

"Not by me," Dundee laughed and hugged her arm close to his side. He might as well play up. . . . "Whom did you mean, then, Jewel?"

"Cora and Bert, of course, stupid! I'm going to ask Cora to let me be maid of honor at her wedding—if you'll be Bert's best man!"

"Are they engaged?"

"I don't suppose he's asked her yet, but a blind man could see that he will. I've always heard that sympathy is love's first cousin. Now if only I could get into some terrible trouble—"

"I rather imagine you will, if you ask Cora to let you be her bridesmaid," Dundee chuckled. "You don't seem to be her favorite girl friend at the moment—"

"Oh, as soon as she and Bert are really engaged she'll get over that," Jewel retorted happily. "You see, Precious, I used to have a crush on Bert myself and Cora's still just a little mite jealous. I wasn't really in love with him, but I was sorta thrilled over him being a writer and—all that. He's written the grandest scenario! Cora heard me offer to copy it for him, or let him dictate to me, straight to the machine, you know, because I'm an awfully fast stenographer, and it made her wild. Not that she had the least cause to be really jealous; Bert's not the type of man I could love in a big way, not tall and handsome—like you! And he is sort of—well—"

"Boring?" Dundee suggested, laughing delightedly.

"Well, yes, because I'm not a bit literary myself, and a girl does want to talk about something besides stories and traveling. Do you blame me, Precious?"

Bonnie Dundee reassured her with great gravity, and proceeded to talk on the subject most interesting to Miss Jewel Briggs—herself. But at the entrance to the Little Queen Theatre, Jewel hung back, to revert to the topic of Cora's jealousy.

"You really believe me when I say Cora had no cause to be jealous of me with Bert, don't you, Bonnie?" she coaxed, for she had managed very skillfully to extract the secret of the young detective's nickname.

"Of course, Jewel," Dundee assured her gravely.

"Besides," she rushed on eagerly, "when I was flirting with Bert—oh, in a nice way, you understand—Emil Sevier was still at the Rhodes House and we all thought Cora had her eyes for anyone but him. Goodness knows she let him make love to her enough! I thought Bert would be too slow for Cora. Honest, Bonnie, I don't believe that flat-tire ever kissed a girl in his life! And how Cora could fall for him, after—"

But at that interesting moment the rest of the party gaily demanded that the two loiterers join them. There was only time for Jewel to whisper urgently:

"Promise me you won't let Cora tell you any jealous old fibs on me, won't you, Bonnie Dundee?"

He gave the promise readily enough, but he knew he had no intention of keeping it, if Cora Barker had any real information which she might feel impelled to give the "cub" detective. For Jewel Briggs was really worried. Why?

Although he and Jewel walked home together after the first show, leaving Bert to see the picture twice and Cora to her home when her work as pianist was finished, Dundee was no nearer to finding the answer to that question than when they had entered the theater.

He was still tantalized by this new and probably trivial mystery when he set about his usual work upon the major mystery the next morning—a mystery still very little nearer solution than it had been two hours after Mrs. Hogarth's murder. A cold chill of fear settled upon the young detective's characteristic optimism. He who had been so sure of a penchant for criminology that he had stubbornly blasted his father's hopes of making a surgeon of him! Still, he told himself miserably, he had not been altogether useless. It was he who had hit the trail of Dan Griffin, he, really, who had sent Lieutenant Strawn to Belton, Mo. But what if, as Strawn stubbornly insisted, that was a wild goose chase?

What, he shrugged, as he hung up the receiver of his private telephone to police headquarters—if he was falling, he was in good company. The police system of the entire state had as yet failed to turn up the slightest clue to the whereabouts of their own pet suspect—the elusive Sevier. But that reflection, instead of raising Dundee's spirits, depressed them the more. Where the devil was Sevier—and why? Sevier were as innocent of the actual murder as Dundee believed him to be, why in the name of all that was sane and reasonable was Sevier in hiding? Certainly no other crime had been unearthed against him; therefore his extreme invisibility must have some connection with the Hogarth case. But what? What?

These questions nagged at the young detective's brain like buzzing mosquitoes which one slaps at but never hits, as he doggedly followed his program of searching every room in the Rhodes House. To make matters worse, Bonnie felt like a meddlesome busybody as he pawed through the highly innocent and uninteresting possessions of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sharp. For one breathless moment he thought the treasure hunt was ended when he found a thick package of what felt like greenbacks, tucked away between Mrs. Sharp's decorous nightgowns. But the greenbacks proved to be cigar coupons.

"Now what?" Dundee asked himself after he had made a very thorough job of the big, pleasant room. "Guess I'd better tackle the fair Tilda's domicile next. Poor Tilda's so dumb she wouldn't have got wise to it yet if the murderer had tucked his stolen fortune into one of her apron pockets."

But if Tilda could have overlooked such a dubious present, Dundee's keen young eyes would have discovered it—and it was certainly not to be found in that cheerless little room. The chambermaid's cheap tinery—10-cent-store perfume, face powder, lipstick, glass beads—touched the too susceptible young detective's heart. There was no use wasting time on Daisy Shepherd's room, he told himself, since Daisy had returned to it the night before after a 30-hour sojourn in a hotel since the murder. But he might as well have a look on general principles. . . .

Daisy had unpacked her wardrobe trunk the night before, he discovered, but the lazy Dusty had not yet removed it to the basement storeroom. The two halves stood slightly ajar, and Dundee was about to turn away from its obvious emptiness when he caught sight of an envelope lying face downward in the shoe compartment. There was no slip inside, but the address was "Miss Daisy Shepherd, care of Marcus Crane's Department Store, Hamilton."

Odd that this letter should not have come to the boarding house, where Daisy's other mail was delivered, as he had already observed. The postmarks were Chicago, June 27 and Hamilton, June 28. In the upper left hand corner was the picture and name of a Chicago hotel, and below the name of the hotel was inscribed in ink the name of the writer, A. B. Wheeler.

Wheeler? Dundee frowned. He had heard that name very recently, but when, where, in what connection?

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

DOMINICAN TREATY

On Nov. 29, 1869, a treaty for the annexation of Santo Domingo by the United States was negotiated by General Babcock, U. S. A., the independence of the Dominican Republic and President Grant sent Babcock to inquire into the condition of the country and its resources.

Babcock negotiated the treaty of annexation, which was ratified by the Dominican people, but was rejected by the United States Senate by a tie vote.

This followed a long period of disturbed politics in Santo Domingo and at last the United States agreed to adjust all foreign obligations of the Dominican Republic.

A special United States commissioner found in 1906 that half of the Dominican debt of $20,000,000 was unjustified, breaks finally forced the United States to take a hand, and in 1910 the "Military Government of the United States in Santo Domingo" was set up.

Peace was soon established and improvements in finances, education, transportation and government machinery were carried out. The last U. S. troops withdrew from the republic in July, 1924.

A writer discusses the age at which an author should retire. For some we think about 17 would be the right time.

Scientists still seek the positive zero. Our idea of that would be a copy of Xenophon's Anabasis in a football dressing room.

The melancholy days are here when the papers begin printing the number of shopping days until Christmas.

Paris sponsors the black afternoon frock for late luncheons and the tea hour when one dances between sips.

This black velvet frock is new and smart in several features. It accents the normal waistline by means of a fitted hipline below which a peplum flounce flares softly in jaunty, youthful manner. The sleeves are very feminine, with a little pleated flounce pointing up the outside of the cuff. The neckline is very flattering, with soft white framing its vestee cut. The skirt has the new conservative length, with fineness flaring below the knees.

Topping this, a soft little black velvet hat with a narrow, uneven brim adds an individual and distinctive note. A decorative motif adorns it at one side.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Shall you dance, or shall you diet, to keep your figure—supposing, of course, that you want to keep it?

Dancers and dieters are seldom the same person, according to Leo Reisman, who conducts the orchestra at the Casino in New York where the smart people are dancing these days.

With a doctor told you to walk ten miles a day to keep down your flesh, you wouldn't obey his instructions," he said. "But you can dance ten miles in an evening—and many young couples do—and consider that you are having entertainment, and exercise as well."

One evening, not entirely engrossed by this score, it occurred to Reisman to wonder just how much mileage the average couple got out of themselves in an evening of dancing, so he induced a couple to take the dancing test.

They put speedometers on their feet and at the end of the evening it was found that in the hours from eight to midnight, they had covered just a fraction over ten miles.

Why They're Slim

That explained why most of the dancers, young or old, were slim and shapely and light on their feet. For he had long noticed that it was not only the debutantes who danced there night after night, but women of 50, and sometimes more, looking as young as their own daughters, who stepped to his music.

The craze for dancing will have to go out, he says, before the more ample type of figure returns to any degree of favor, because so long as we spend our evenings dancing, we are almost bound to be slim and flapper-figured.

In the days when the more ample woman reigned, with her full voluminous clothes as well as her full hips, she did not dance as she does today. Dance forms were slow and languorous with rest periods between and people "sat out" dances occasionally.

Today dancing is swift, and it takes muscular strength, and poise. Girls dance in the afternoon, dance at tea, dance through their dinners in the evening, and dance after the theater—sometimes until dawn.

All the World's a Stage

Many social dancers today dance as well as professionals, and can do as many tricky, fancy steps. With the present system of cutting in, a popular girl may dance for hours without stopping.

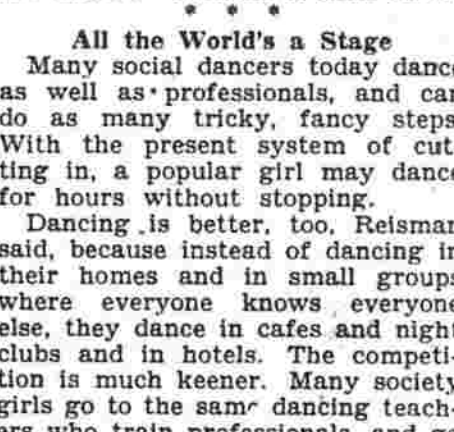

Dancing is better, too, Reisman said, because instead of dancing in their homes and in small groups where everyone knows everyone else, they dance in cafes and night clubs and in hotels. The competition is much keener. Many society girls go to the same dancing teachers who train professionals, and go through the same routine and technique to perfect their steps as if they were going in for stage dancing in a big way.

If you get on the dance floor every night, he insists, you can soon forget all about the weighing scales, and you can resume pleasant relations with starches and sugars.

According to our national meat consumption, each one of us accounts for 15 pounds of lard in a year. Surely that average was reached without figuring in counclimen.

Soft, wavy hair!

The modern sculptured bobs do wonders to bring out your personality. But like other present-day modes of arranging the hair, they call attention to it. That's why it's so important nowadays to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant. The easiest and quickest way to give new lustre and color to hair which has begun to look dull and lifeless, is with Danderine. And it makes the hair softer, easier to arrange; holds it in place.

Here's all you do. Each time you use your brush just put a little Danderine on it. It removes the oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color; gives it more gloss than brilliancy. Waves "set" with it stay in longer.

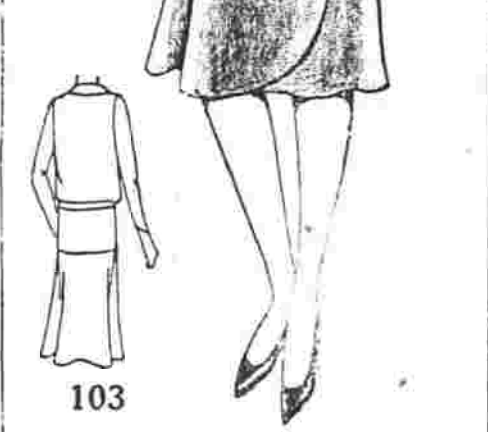

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It stops falling hair. A small bottle is enough to show its merit. Start on it tonight.—Adv.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

© 1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

"Just you wait, young man, till your father comes home. You'll catch it."

William has heard that the chances are hell on pulling the cat's tail, or sliding down the banisters as though his mother had merely remarked that the gas man was coming to read the meter.

But dropping water wears away the stone in time and these constant reminders of William's mother about eventual judgment of William's father are going in young William's mind, to put that parent about in the category of judge, jury and jailor combined, without much doubt. And if I were a father I wouldn't stand for it a minute.

To be sure he has a right to take half the responsibility of guiding his son in the way he should go and showing him the error of his ways. But just half and that's all.

If the child is too much for the mother to handle, something is wrong. The only reason probably that such a child has more respect for his father than his mother is because his father is stronger and can just generally "attend" to him if he feels like it.

When a child gets to a stage that the only thing can hold him in subjection is muscle, then there isn't much to say except that if he had been handled differently from the cradle up he would not have been that kind of a child, most likely. This is a broad statement but perfectly true with very, very few exceptions.

However, we'll just say that William's mother is a nice, sensible, but busy woman, and that William's not a case for juvenile court at all, but just a touch-and-go youngster full of the old Nick and ready to try anything once—or twice.

What happens?

The boy is going to stop loving his father just as sure as the sun sets.

Later on his father will wonder why his son never comes to him to confide in him as he does in his mother—why he isn't his friend.

You have thereon, or at least on the reasons. . . . one of the reasons. I don't say that the father isn't always himself partly to blame. There are away all day. They work for their children just the same as the mothers do but the children don't see it and don't realize it. If they don't get things, it's generally blamed on father. There isn't enough money! If the do it mother who usually gets the credit, for she does the actual buying.

PARALYSIS VICTIMS IMPROVE AFTER MALARIA INOCULATION

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The first recognizable description of a case of general paralysis appears to have been published about 1798.

In that description, the delusions of grandeur, followed by the symptoms of paralysis and complete insanity, are fully emphasized.

Perhaps the two most important observations concerning this disease were those of the Englishman Mott and the Japanese investigator Noguchi, the first of whom indicated and the second of whom proved that general paralysis was invariably the result of infection of the human body by the same organism that causes one of the two great venereal diseases.

General paralysis has always been considered a most serious disease leading progressively and inevitably to death. Within recent years Wagner-Jauregg made an announcement of investigations which earned for him the Nobel prize in medicine. He had discovered that patients, when they became infected with other disorders and in 1917 he inoculated some patients with malaria. The improvement in these patients was for the most part remarkable. Four of them developed complete remissions and were able to go back to work. The remaining four did not do so well.

The experiments were continued not only by him, but by many other investigators in institutions for the insane throughout the world. As a result, figures have been accumulated on thousands of cases which indicate finally that material treatment of general paralysis definitely increases the length of the patient's life and in most instances produces improvement in the mental condition as well as in the physical condition.

In addition to inoculating such patients with malaria, attempts have been made to control the disease by producing fever in the patient and by the injection of other organisms similar to the malarial organism. While these experiments have also been encouraging, at present most of the evidence indicates that the malarial treatment is superior to the others that have been offered.

Rec Five Impressive In Its Opening Game

Record Holiday Crowd Sees Clune's Quintets Win in Starter — Ten Players Used to Test Material.

Manchester's 1929-30 basketball season was opened in a most auspicious manner last night when the largest holiday crowd in years watched the impressive Rec Five dispose of the Connecticut Mutual quintet of Hartford by a score of 43 to 7.

The Connecticut Mutual boys were no match for the Rec Five neither were the Manchester girls for the Hartford lassies. Clarence "Gyp" Gustafson led the Rec Five scorers with four field goals. Roy Norris and Pete Conroy were second with three. Manager and Coach Ben Clune used his entire squad of ten players and all showed up well. Every man took part in the scoring. Clune started his first team of Holland and Faulkner forwards, Norris as center, with the major share of the guard, and used this combination the first quarter and most of the last.

The game started off slowly so far as the scoring was concerned. Norris was first to score with a foul goal and the first field goal was caged by Holland. The narrow Rec court made it difficult for either team to penetrate the other's defense but once the short passing game perfected, the Hartford boys were outclassed. The Mutual team fought hard to the very finish but was unable to cope with the strong Manchester defense which yielded only two short baskets.

Francis McCollum, a Manchester boy, played a fine game at forward for the losers. In the preliminary game, it was Katherine Taylor who came in for the major share of the glory. From a scoring standpoint Miss Taylor was tied from the floor by Miss Krist but the former's floorwork was outstanding. Manchester took the floor with only two regulars from last year's team and this accounts for their ability to cope with the experienced and intact Hartford team.

NOTRE DAME SEEN AS SURE WINNER

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—New York became the center of the football universe today as Notre Dame and the Army moved toward Yankee Stadium for their annual battle tomorrow. Although the unattached public was practically shut out in the distribution of 80,000 seats in the Irish Clash, this year seemed to grip the imagination of football followers in the city to a greater degree than in any previous season.

Although facing the game without the services of Tim Moynahan star center, Notre Dame remained marching clear down to the 12 yard line before the game ended. They were practically unbeatable at any price. Speculators held very few and these were quoted at the way up to $100 a pair with owners holding out for even more money.

Great men live longer than do many individuals, statistics show.

CUBS OUTPLAYED BUT NEARLY BEAT MERIDEN FALCONS

Bitterly Fought Football Battle Ends Scoreless; Fumble Spoils Locals' Big Chance.

The town champion Cubs were held scoreless and outplayed for the first time this season yesterday afternoon in Meriden yet came within a hair's breadth of defeating the Falcons at St. Stanislaus field before a crowd of about a thousand persons, nearly half of whom were from Manchester. The game ended a scoreless tie.

But even though not clicking in the usual manner either because of an off day or too much opposition, the Cubs came the nearest to scoring when they lost the ball four yards short of a touchdown through a fumble in the final quarter. It was the only serious threat to score made by the Manchester eleven. Meriden made several long marches but they were chiefly confined to midfield.

Only twice did the Falcons get inside Manchester's twenty yard line and then they lost the ball. The Cubs came the nearest to scoring when they lost the ball four yards short of a touchdown through a fumble in the final quarter. It was the only serious threat to score made by the Manchester eleven. Meriden made several long marches but they were chiefly confined to midfield.

First Downs 13 to 8
Meriden made a total of 13 first downs against eight for Manchester ripping the highly touted Cubs line to shreds at times in addition to forward passing attack. Yet despite all this, the Falcons were powerless to score once they got within striking distance. On two occasions the Falcons attempted to score via the "go" route but each was a failure. The Cubs tried to score in a similar fashion, Stratton's "blackkick" going wide in the closing seconds of the first half.

The game was hard fought, high-scoring and very cleanly played. Neutral officials were in charge. The two teams battled bitterly but the Falcons had more pep and fighting spirit perhaps due to the fact that they had been established underdogs in the Silver City newspaper. The Cubs were badly handicapped by the absence of both fullbacks, "Chuckie" Minicucci and Tommy Meikle. Otherwise they were practically at full strength.

It was the first game that the Cubs played out of town in something like three years and perhaps this fact had something to do with their lack of usual form. Then, too, it might have been the result of a letdown from the town series.

The Cubs are also pointing for their big game with the Hartford Giants at Mt. Nob Sunday. Twice during the first quarter the Cubs were forced to punt out from behind their own goal line. Meriden's left end, and another well-placed boot went offside at the ten yard line but each time the dependable right foot of "Pop" Eagleton intervened.

Happenny Saves Day

The second half wasn't long underway when the Falcons launched their only real scoring threat. Four first downs in succession were punched through the Cubs' usually stubborn defense and the Meriden fans, sensing a score and possible victory, went wild with delight. The attack was repulsed in short order once it passed the twenty yard line. A timely tackle by the reliable Tommy Happenny for a four yard loss was the deciding factor.

The Cubs' big march came at the very outset of the fourth period. Gaining possession of the ball through a recovery by "Jumbo" Belgrade, the Cubs ploughed their way off tackle, around end and through the air until they reached the six yard line with first down and goal to go. Now the Manchester fans were in an uproar and the Meriden side of the field was contending for the silence of its spectators.

Stratton gained two yards off left end and then was smothered when he tried the quarterback sneak play through center. With third down and the goal four yards away, the Cubs huddled a few seconds and decided to shoot Donnelly off right tackle. "Cody" had contributed much of the yardage during the long march to the Falcon goal but he fumbled on the next play and the Meriden center recovered.

With the aid of several forward passes, the Falcons then gave the Cubs a dose of their own medicine line before the game ended. They probably would not have scored, however, for the Manchester defense had again tightened and it was fourth down with five yards to go. Tasker and Sullivan did most of the ground gaining for Meriden.

High School Defeats Its Alumni, 13 To 7

Played off their feet after leading this brother Bob took the ball and continued to advance to the seven yard line, sliding right end. "Lull" Hanson added three yards through center and Bob made two more. Crashing off left tackle the younger Treat tied the score. A center rush by Johnson and the Alumni were ahead a lead which seemed to mount in size as High School failed to threaten until the last quarter when a driving finish brought victory.

Starring for High School were Nicola, Squatrito and Dowd, for the Alumni the Treat brothers, and Johnson.

W. E. Bennett Finishes First, White Second, McCluskey Third and Craig Fourth; All of 32 Entrants Finish; Main Street Auto Traffic Bothers Runners; Crowe Comes in 13th—C. A. C. Wins Team Prize.

Walter E. Bennett of Dorchester, Mass., a slender young man of 23 summers, who is captain of the cross country and track teams at Springfield College, was the winner of the third annual five mile run by the Recreation Centers here yesterday morning in the feature of a splendid Thanksgiving Day athletic program that also included football and basketball.

Bennett nosed out Charlie White of Conn. Aggies by only a few strides. The pair ran close together throughout the entire distance. Joe McCluskey, ex-high school miler, who is now starting at Fordham, came in eight seconds later to win third place for Manchester with Jim Craig, another Manchester miler, placing fourth. A field of 32 runners responded to crack of the starting gun and everyone finished.

White took the lead at the start but he was headed by Craig when the advance guard came out from behind Rogers Paper Mill onto Charter Oak street. Beakley of East Hartford was running third. White took the lead away from Craig again as they passed Autumn street. McCluskey was running sixth at this point. Bennett was in third place as the pack rounded Nichol's store at Highland Park. McCluskey began to pull up on the leaders as they raced down Parter street. Craig had dropped back to fourth at the Porter street School. Bennett seemed to be running the freest and easiest of all. He was content to let White stay in the lead until almost to East Center street. To be exact, Bennett took the lead at Westminster Road and he held it the remainder of the way to the finish.

Tangled In Autos

White ran a close second all the way to the very finish but Bennett had more stamina. McCluskey moved up into fourth place passing Babcock at the East Cemetery. He was given a big hand as he passed the head of Foster street on which he lives. It was at this point that he passed Craig and moved into third place where he finished. Both McCluskey and Craig were handicapped going down Main street due to a heavy procession of automobiles. This was the only bad feature of an otherwise highly successful affair and next year automobile traffic on Main street will probably be suspended during the finish of the race.

McCluskey and Craig both became tangled up in the automobiles and neither one could see the other or the two runners in the lead. While it was apparent that neither had enough strength left to overcome the lead of Bennett and White it would have been much more interesting and satisfactory if they had been given a clear path. Main street in front of the High School where the runners both started and finished the race was completely blocked during the finish. Hundreds of persons lined the street leaving only a small opening on the trolley tracks in the center for the runners to sweep through to the tape.

The highlights of the successful race was the fact that all 32 entrants finished. Usually some of the runners give up but such was not the case yesterday. There was not a single runner who did not finish.

White was not in good condition but he was not in yesterday because of the splendid treatment accorded him here last year. He said he finished 19th. Jim Crowe, Manchester long distance runner, came in 13th and collapsed into the arms of an attendant. John McCluskey winner of the first race three years ago, came in 16th closely followed by Sam Haugh also of Manchester. The prize went to Connecticut Agricultural College with a seven point advantage over the Manchester Rec team.

The success of the cross country run was largely due to the efforts of Director Lewis Lloyd of the Recreation Centers who worked hard to put the event across bigger and better, a goal which he more than accomplished. Edward F. Taylor, chairman of the Recreation Center committee, was another man who took an active part in making the affair the success it was. John De Ridder of the Hartford Times was the official timer. Chief S. G. Gordon also comes in for his share of the credit.

"South Manchester women should be proud of their well dressed husbands," says Glenney.

WHO IS THAT HANDSOME MAN?

HOW ROMANTIC
TELL ME THE STORY

ONE DAY I SAW HIM ENTER
GLENNEY'S
FOR A SUIT AND

WHEN HE CAME OUT HE WAS THE MOST STUNNING SHIEK IMAGINABLE - SO WE WERE MARRIED

HOW THRILLING

Tell that chap you're in love with that he'd look like a WORLD BEATER in one of our suits. They are priced at from $25 to $49.50. And even A LOOK AT THEM shows that they are worth more money. COMPARISON PROVES IT.

If a letter were addressed to "THE CUSTOMER MUST BE SATISFIED" GLENNEY'S of South Manchester, there's plenty of reason to believe it would be delivered to 789 Main St.

FAMOUS SEISMOLOGIST IS DEAD AT GEORGETOWN

Rev. Francis Tondorf Reported Jap Quake Hours Before Cables Carried News.

Washington, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Father Francis A. Tondorf, director of the Georgetown University seismological observatory, and widely known as a student of earth disturbances, died today. His death came unexpectedly. He appeared at a dinner with other priests and college officials as usual last night, but this morning when he failed to appear, associates went to his room to find him dead in bed. He had apparently succumbed to a heart attack during the night. Tondorf was one of the foremost seismologists of the world. One of his most notable pieces of work was the placing of the Japanese earthquake of 1923 many hours before the world at large heard about this major catastrophe. At that time he located by means of his delicate instruments almost exactly the center of the gigantic earth disturbance. In many other instances he also calculated the area in which earth movements had occurred long before they were reported by telegraph and cable.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—All Gustav Rydberg owned was a copy of Milton's "Paradise Lost." He opened it in his little hotel room yesterday and read:

"No rove thy life, nor hate; but what thou livest Live well; how long or short permit to heaven." Then, with a knife, he killed himself.

Judging from comments by newspaper radio critics and fan mail, the Studio Parties this year have surpassed all others in popularity. Tonight's offering will bring James F. Clancy, manager of Station WTIC to the microphone as interlocutor for the performances of Paul Lucas, Edwin Rogers and Jack Brickley, announcers; Miss Beatrice Bangs and Leonard Patricelli, members of the studio contingent; Tom McCray, program manager and announcer-on-the-air; Miss Laura C. Gaudet, staff pianist; and an orchestra under the direction of Norman Cloutier.

Vatican City, Nov. 29.—(AP)—There was reason today to believe that as soon as a psychiatrist has examined Marguerite Gadum, the Swedish woman who tried Sunday to shoot Monsignor Smit, former apostolic vicar of Norway, the young woman will be sent home as quietly as possible. It was understood the Vatican city authorities have decided to drop the charge of attempted homicide against, changing it to "armed menace."

POLICE CONCLUDE TAYLOR CASE PROBE

New Haven, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A finding in the death by poison of Marshall Driggs Taylor, of Jacksonville, Fla., Yale sophomore found dead in his bed, Wednesday morning, probably will not be made by Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan, it was stated at his office today.

That officer was engaged in an inquest into a homicide of last night in which a negro was killed and another seriously wounded in a brawl. He did not expect to give attention to the Taylor case today if at all.

Practice of the coroner's office is to hold inquiries behind closed doors and to make findings to the court only when inquests are held.

Mr. Corrigan said on Wednesday that Medical Examiner M. K. Scarborough had reported to him that Taylor died of quick acting poison taken internally, naming the poison. No inquest was deemed necessary on the basis of that report, and as Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, the student's father did not so request the body was sent to his home.

Inquiry Ended.

The coroner's office said today that probably the Taylor death inquiry was ended and the medical examiner's report would not be made public textually as this is not done unless as a part of a coroner's formal findings.

The police advanced the theory on Wednesday after both the coroner and the medical examiner had notified them of the death, that Taylor died of quick acting poison taken internally, naming the poison. No inquest was deemed necessary on the basis of that report, and as Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, the student's father did not so request the body was sent to his home.

Classmates and close friends of Taylor in college last night adopted resolutions of regret upon his death which will be spread upon class records and sent to the family.

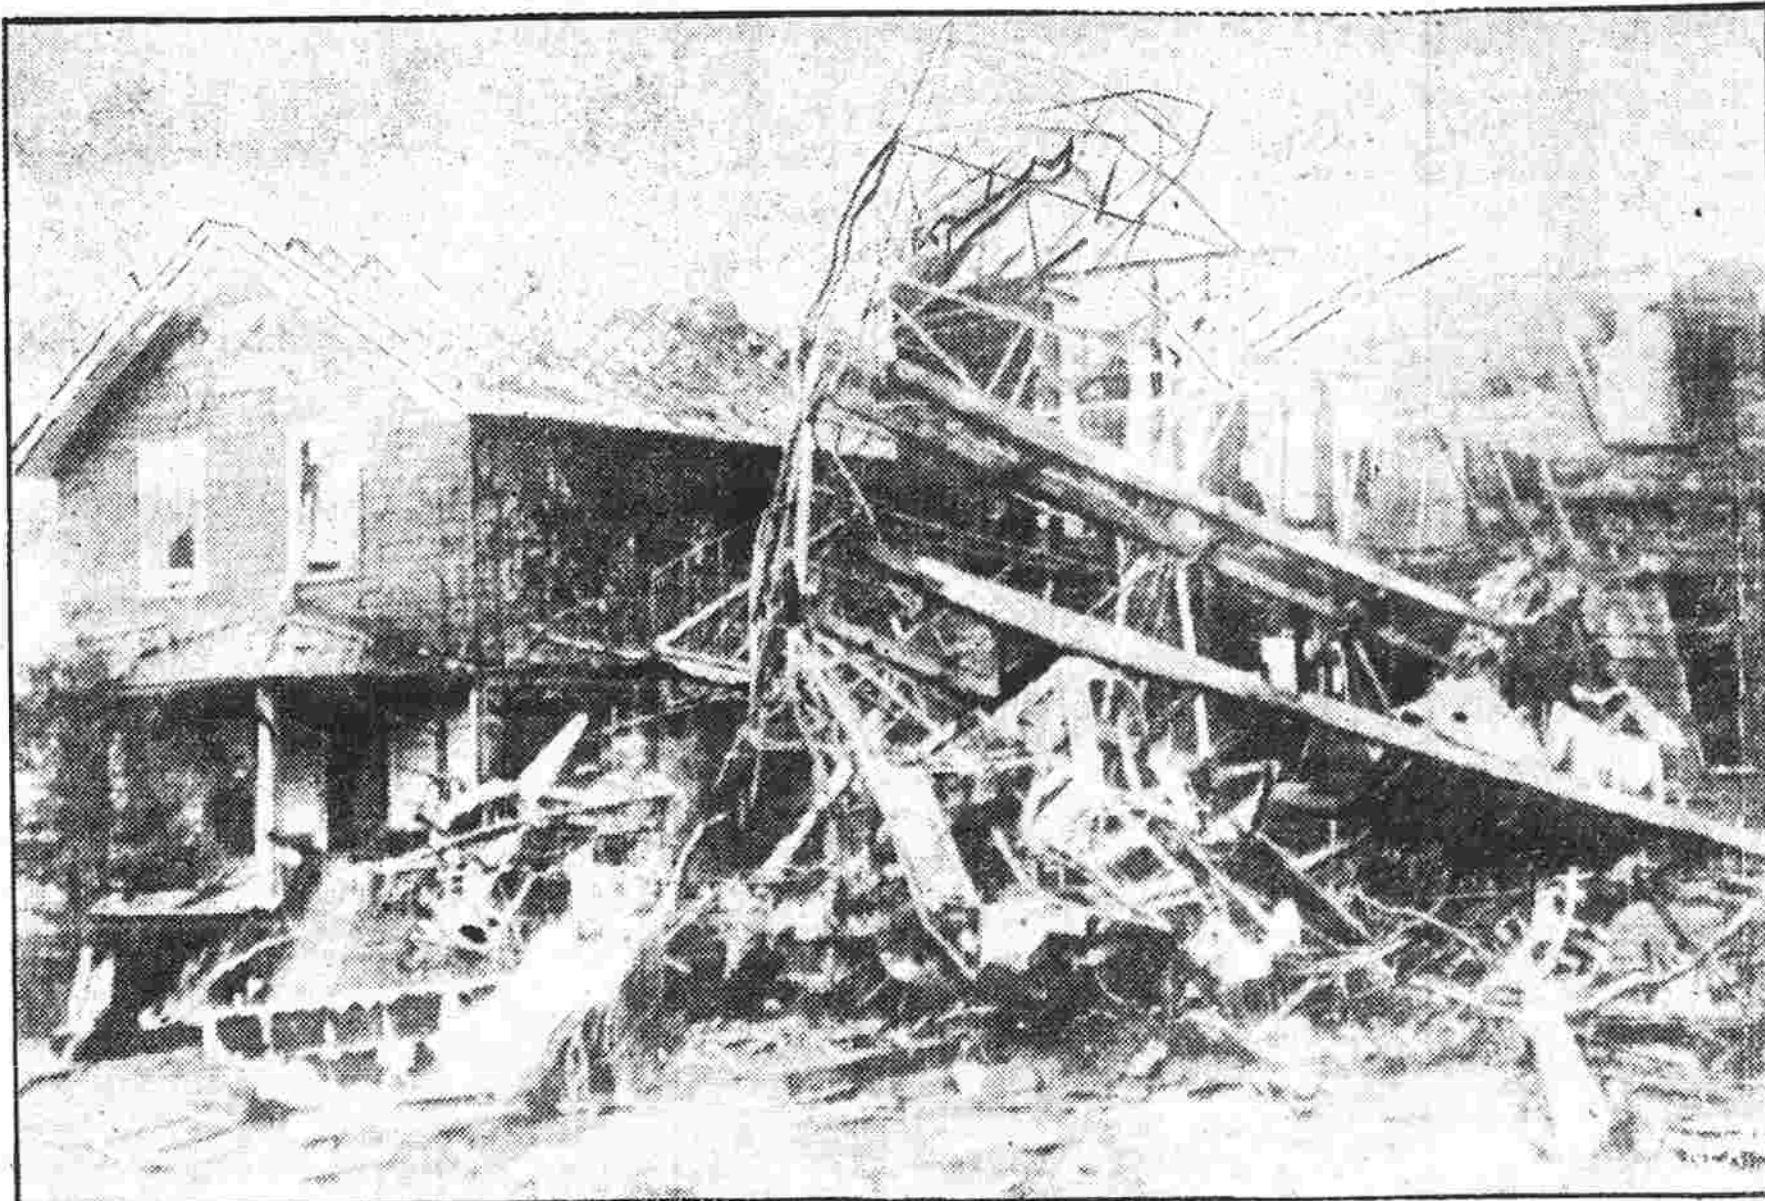

Brutal Murder of Child Is Reported

Felon Strangles Six Year Old Child and Makes Escape—May Be Hiding in Manchester.

One of the most brutal, cowardly and uncalculated murders known to the police, occurred last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dean, 429 East 165th street, Mike Ross, while robbing the Dean home, was interrupted by Dean's six-year-old daughter. Fearing the child would raise an alarm, he seized her and choked her to death. Mr. Dean was in the hall when he saw Ross seize the child. He plunged forward, but was knocked unconscious by Ross's revolver, who then made his escape. Identification of Ross was made through photographs at police headquarters and was further substantiated by fingerprints. All avenues of escape from the city are being closely watched and the police expect to capture him within the next few days.

A late dispatch from headquarters reports that Ross has made good his escape from the city and is present in hiding in Manchester, Conn. Detectives on his trail, however, expect to capture him at a meeting of the better class of the criminal world known in Gangdom as "SQUARE CROOKS" to be held at Cheney hall in that city on December 4.—Adv.

FIRST PHOTO OF SPECTACULAR CRASH OF BIG AIR LINER

This striking NEA Service telephoto shows the spectacular crash of America's largest land airplane, after bumping across the house tops at Carl Place, L. I. When the giant motors of the plane, built to accommodate 32 people, failed shortly after a takeoff, the ship first struck a telephone pole and went skimming along the house tops. It finally partly demolished one house and then burst into flames as it struck the ground. The plane was completely destroyed, one house burned and another was badly damaged, as shown in the picture. Fortunately, only two persons, M. F. Boggs, Department of Commerce inspector, and Harry MacDonald, mechanic, were in the plane and both miraculously escaped serious injury by jumping or being thrown from the big plane.

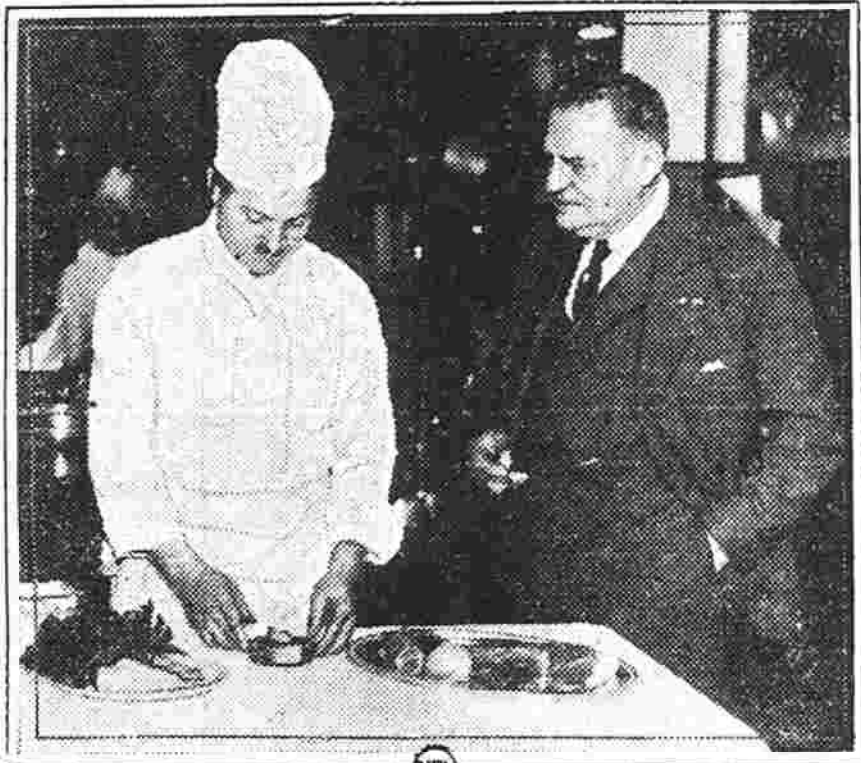

"Oscar of the Waldorf" Suggests YOUR SUNDAY DINNER

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Sunday dinner is a problem to most housewives. Oscar of the Waldorf will suggest menus for this important meal in weekly articles which he is writing for The Herald and NEA Service. The first appears below with a tasty recipe accompanying it.

- Fruit Cup
- Cream of Spinach
- Chateaubriand of Beef
- String Beans
- Souffle Potatoes
- Watercress Salad Waldorf
- Dressing
- Chocolate Blanc Manger

Chateaubriand of Beef

Cut the desired number of thick slices from a tenderloin of beef, and slit each one nearly in half; place a teaspoonful of beef marrow, seasoned with salt and cayenne and a few strips of onion, in this cavity, pressing the sides together, and brush over with warm butter or oil; place on a warm gridiron over a clear fire for ten minutes. Remove, dish and squeeze a little lemon juice over them, serving as hot as possible. Care should be taken to prevent the marrow from oozing out during the process of cooking.

SEVENTY-THREE ANSWER RADIO PLEA FOR BLOOD

Newark, N. J., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Calenia Delpomo lay on a cot

in Newark Memorial hospital near death today despite the proffer of blood by 73 volunteers, and the sympathy of the entire metropolitan area.

A strange anemic condition which agglutinated the woman's blood caused desperate doctors to issue an appeal for a pint of the fluid, from radio station WOR. Seventy-three persons of the thousands listening in yesterday on a holiday program, sacrificed their Thanksgiving dinner to come to the hospital and wait for hours while physicians tested their blood.

Not one was found whose blood mingled properly with that of the patient's.

This morning Dr. Joseph J. Elickson, hospital pathologist, gave up hope of finding a subject and ordered Mrs. Delpomo to the operating room.

Death by boiling was a favorite method of execution in the time of Henry VIII.

CAMPUS JAZZ TALKIE AT STATE; "VIRGINIAN" NEXT

"Sweetie," an extravaganza of campus life, with Nancy Carroll, Jack Oakie and Helen Kane in the leading roles, heads the new program at the State today and Saturday.

Nancy Carroll, petite little red-headed cutie of the Paramount studios, who is rated by the film going public as second only to Clara Bow in popularity, plays the title role in the picture. Her lead man is Stanley Smith, lately seen and heard in "The Sophomore," Jack Oakie—the "wise-cracking" fresh guy comic of "Fact Company" and many others.

The picture is all about prep school boys and girls and it is a tonic. If you miss it you are missing something.

The program will also include the all-talking "Our Gang" comedy.

SEEKS RIGHT TO FELL EAST CENTER ST. TREES

Earl J. Campbell Carries Filing Station Fight to the Superior Court.

Whether or not the two much disputed shade trees located on East Center and Foster streets, partly on the property of Earl J. Campbell and partly over the line of the State Highway Department, will be removed to make way for a gasoline filling station as Campbell wishes or will be preserved as highway ornaments as the Highway Department wishes hinges entirely on the decision of Judge Allyn L. Brown of Superior Court.

After the attorneys, Arthur E. Howard, Jr., representing Earl J. Campbell and Raymond A. Johnson, of the Attorney General's office, appearing for the Highway Department, had agreed in a stipulation of the facts Mr. Campbell's petition for a court order directing the State Highway Department to consent to the removal of the trees and the Highway Department's cross complaint seeking an injunction to restrain Campbell from cutting down the trees were submitted to the court on Wednesday.

Campbell claims he holds a license from the Motor Vehicle Department for the operation of the filling station on a condition that the trees are removed. The State Highway Department's refusal, through Tree Warden Luther M. Keith, to allow their destruction has damaged the value of his property, he further claims, and has kept him from making an estimated profit of $25 a day from the sale of gasoline.

La CHAPELLE-BENNETT

The marriage of Miss Ruth Margaret Bennett, daughter of John E. Bennett of 302 Main street to Clarence F. La Chapelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick N. La Chapelle of 72 Oakland street, took place yesterday with a nuptial mass in St. James' church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. William P. Reidy, Howard Fish and Elaine La Chapelle, sister of the bridegroom, were the attendants.

"Paul Jr. is a changed boy," says HARTFORD mother

DON'T neglect a child's constipation. It is the cause of so many ailments: biliousness, headaches, feverishness, sallow, broken-out skin; a general run-down condition.

The first signs of sluggish bowels are usually bad breath or coated tongue. Then it's time for good old California Fig Syrup. Children need no urging to take it. They love its flavor. And it works every time. It cleanses the little system of all souring waste. It gives tone and strength to lazy bowels and stomach.

sch, so they continue to act naturally. A child's digestion and assimilation improve when it is used. Meals are eaten with zest instead of indifference.

Mothers all around you know its quick benefits. Mrs. Louise Bennett, 41 Colonial St., Hartford, says: "My little son, Paul, is a changed boy since I have been giving him California Fig Syrup. He was losing weight; now he's gaining. He had no appetite or energy; now he's always hungry, full of life."

THREE DRUNK DRIVERS HOLIDAY COURT TOLL

One-Armed Autoist Arrested
Wednesday Night; Two Drive Drunk Last Night.

Within two days three young men pleaded guilty in the Manchester police court to the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Yesterday morning shortly after two o'clock Walter Cooley, now of Meriden, but formerly of this town, was picked up by Patrolman W. R. Martin on Main street, who noticed the young fellow's condition in a restaurant and warned him not to attempt to drive the car. Cooley failed to take the warning and later was placed under arrest. In the police court Thanksgiving morning Cooley admitted his guilt and a fine of $125 and costs was imposed. The judge later remitted $25 of the fine.

Young Cooley has but one arm and because of an accident in which he lost the other arm he is receiving compensation. The car he was driving was bought from a Manchester dealer on the installment plan. It was not paid for and the dealer came to the aid of the young man, who was without funds, and guaranteed the payment of the fine and costs.

Last night Joseph Falvey of Hillside avenue, Hartford, was arrested on Main street by Sergeant Crockett, who stated that the man was not only drunk but was driving without a license and had not had a license for four years. In court this morning he pleaded guilty and a fine of $115 and costs was imposed.

John Gardner of Spruce street paid a fine of $100 and costs for driving while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested on Center street last evening by Traffic Officer R. H. Wirtalla. He had a slight accident with Ignacio Ottone of this town.

PASSENGERS OVERCOME BY FUMES IN A BUS

Cleveland, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Overcome by carbon monoxide gas, eight passengers of a Detroit to Pittsburgh, Colonial stage line bus, were rushed to a hospital today. Doctors said they would recover.

Those overcome were H. E. Manion, 51, Chicago; Louise Wilson, Philadelphia; Pedro Muner, Detroit; Walter Moebus, 26, Pittsburgh; William Weller, 26, of Cumberland, Md.; F. J. Moltor, Pittsburgh, driver of the bus; Miss Teynie Hantula, 23, Amasa, Mich.

Needing repairs to the windshield, the driver guided the bus to the passenger station of another line, and kept the motor idling while the repairs were being made, so that the bus would be kept warm by heat from the exhaust.

Workmen at the repair station noticed the passengers slumped over in their seats and first thought they were asleep, but investigation showed most of them were unconscious. The repairmen immediately carried the overcome passengers to fresh air outside the bus and summoned firemen and ambulances.

Firemen said the poison gas came from the bus exhaust.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Home For Thanksgiving
I must be getting homesick now,
I feel so sort of blue,

I always seem to feel this way
Around this time of year,

I'm getting kind of restless now,
My sleep is troubled, too,

The old town seemed to hamper me,
I longed to spread my wings,

"No doubt money talks," "but about all it ever says to me is
'good bye'."

ABOUT TOWN

Charles A. Sweet of North Main street spent Thanksgiving day with the family of a niece in Willimantic.

At the Chapel Hall in North Coventry this evening between 5:30 and 7:30 the women of the Second Congregational church in that town will serve a hot oyster supper. The women believe this will prove a welcome change to their patrons on the successive turkey tidbits appearing on the plates at their home tables just now.

James Horvath was tendered a surprise birthday party at his home in Buckingham Wednesday night. Upwards of 50 friends and relatives from that place, Hartford, Plainville and this town attended. The evening was spent in dancing and games and a chicken dinner was served at midnight. His friends presented to Mr. Horvath a handsome topaz ring.

Kenneth Shaw of Stamford spent Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Shaw of North Elm street.

Miss Elizabeth M. Vennard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Vennard of 21 Elro street, South Manchester, had one of the leading roles in the French play, given recently at Elmira College, Elmira, New York, November 23. Le Cercle Français of the College gives a play annually and this year's production was Moliere's Le Mal-de-Imaginaire. A very attractive feature was the decoration of the auditorium to represent the Court of Versailles. Miss Vennard is one of the most active members of her class of 1931.

A son, Allan Curtiss, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Johnson of Wethersfield, at the Hartford hospital Wednesday night. Mrs. Johnson was formerly Miss Irene Ratenburg of 313 Main street, town. Mr. Johnson is circulation manager of the Hartford Times.

The regular weekly meeting of the Manchester Kiwanis club will be held Monday at 2:15 in Tinker hall. T. T. Boehman of Hartford will be the speaker, and his subject "America's Greatest Problem." Mr. Boehman is field secretary of the Connecticut Temperance Union and is well qualified to handle his topic in an intelligent and interesting way. Elbert Shelton will furnish the attendance prize.

WEDDING YESTERDAY

Thanksgiving Day Nuptials in Talcottville—Couple to Make Home in Bridgeport.

Miss Alice Harriet Talcott, daughter of Morris H. Talcott of Talcottville, and Gaetano Simoncelli, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Simoncelli of Litchfield, were married Thanksgiving day at 4:30 p. m. at the home of the bride, which was beautifully decorated for the wedding with chrysanthemums and ferns.

There ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. L. Bachelor, pastor of the Talcottville Congregational church. The bridal attendants were Miss Barbara Talcott of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Constance Talcott of Bridgeton, Maine, as bridesmaids and Miss Louisa Talcott of Bridgeton, flower girl. All three are nieces of the bride.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white gown of velvet. Her veil of tulle fell from a cap of duchess lace and her shower bouquet was of Killarney roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids were similarly attired in green dresses and carried arm bouquets of roses. The little flower girl wore a frock of pink crepe de chine and carried a basket of mixed flowers. A reception for fifty guests followed the ceremony.

The bride's traveling costume was a blue dress and hat and opossum coat. On their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Simoncelli will make their home in Bridgeport.

OPEN FORUM
AN APPRECIATION OF PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY

Editor Herald:
I was very much pleased when I read in your columns a few days ago that in less than an hour after Rev. Mr. Colpitts made an appeal at the Kiwanis dinner for one who was out of work, there came a reply from one of the members that he would be able to provide him with a job. I call that a mighty fine example of practical christianity and is a strong argument both for the existence of the church and organizations like the Kiwanis Club. Here was a man distressed and discouraged because he was unable to find work in order that he might support his loved ones and maintain his home. (And no one knows just how he felt who has not passed through a similar experience). He is thrown in contact with a christian minister (God bless them all!) and that minister touches elbows with the business men of the community, who, down deep in their hearts believe in the Christ that the minister is trying to represent to them, though they do not say so in the words of the churchman. The minister brings this man's case to the attention of these business men gathered for their weekly lunch and recreation, and immediately there is a response and one more man with his family are made happy and face the winter with confidence where had been despair. There are many such cases that might be relieved without a doubt if there was a closer cooperation between the churches and the different clubs and organizations where business and professional men congregate. There is no reason for the existence of any church or any organization that is not doing its level best to relieve distressed humanity. "For none of us liveth to himself," said one writer many years ago and it remains true in our present day and generation. We are our brother's keeper in a larger sense than most of us are willing to admit, and our brothers are those all around us who are having a hard struggle when we can help if we will.

President Hoover's appeal to the employer's of labor in every community throughout the length and breadth of our country, to loosen up and employ more help rather than less help, as so many of them have been doing, should find a ready response right here in Manchester. It probably will mean a few less dollars in their own pockets for a short time while it will certainly give them the feeling of having done something worth while to relieve a very serious condition of unemployment which now exists.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kean of Maple street had as their Thanksgiving guests Mrs. Kean's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Beardmore of New Haven and their two sons, Donald and Ernest, Jr.

WAPPING MAN WINS
COAL CO.'S CONTEST

The Manchester Grain and Coal Co. of Apel Place, Manchester, has had an exhibit for the past few weeks a large chunk of anthracite coal. In order to arouse even greater interest in this display, a guessing contest was arranged by The Manchester Grain and Coal Co., whereby the five guessing nearest to the correct weight of the chunk would receive valuable awards from the company.
A great many availed themselves of this opportunity to try their skill as judges of weight. As a whole, the guesses came fairly close to the correct weight of the chunk of anthracite. The correct weight being 3360. The winners were (1) A. Hays, Wapping; (2) Mrs. S. W. Turner, 45 Cone street; (3) Mrs. S. Mole, Bell street; (4) C. J. Heusser, 734 Parker street; (5) F. Wilson, 96 1-2 Foster street.
