AUBURN CONVICTS IN REVOLT PREPARE TO BATTLE TROOPS

ATTACKS OF REBELS CHECKED AT CANTON

Bloody Battle Since Monday With Thousands of Casualties; Foreign Warships Now in Chinese Waters.

Canton, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The rebels' initial attempt to capture Canton appeared today to have been temporarily checked by Nationalist government troops after a heavy engagement since Monday night, with many thousands of casualties on each side.

WOUNDED ARRIVING Shanghai, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Wounded began to arrive in Nanking today from a battle in progress 30 miles north of Pukow between Loyalist soldiers and the retreating Pukow garrison. Fighting was described as violent. British and Japanese warships were on their way up the Yangtze River to aid in evacuating their nationals in case events require such a move.

An American flotilla is expected here tomorrow with like intent. A rebel victory, it was thought, might conceivably initiate a turning of events, ending in fall of Nanking and the Nationalist government.

Rebel forces advancing on Canton Monday night were only 27 miles away, Chinese advisers here said. It was said a fierce battle raged for several hours that distance north of the city.

Large bodies of reinforcements were rushed from Canton to stem the rebel advance. Hospitals in the city were full of wounded, steamers reaching Hongkong from Canton were crowded with families of Chinese officials.

2 HURT IN CRASH ON SILVER LANE

C. L. Lessner and Wife of F. H. Anderson's Chauffeur Injured in Collision.

Two persons were injured, neither seriously, in an automobile accident on Silver Lane just west of Bunce's Corner shortly before noon today. One man was arrested.

Charles L. Lessner, 53, who lives at 50 Oak street, a well known local poultry man, suffered a bad bruise of the leg in addition to being severely shaken up. He was in a highly nervous condition when removed to his home following medical attention.

Lessner was driving his one-ton Ford truck toward town, having been to Hilltown on business. According to Patrolman John McGinn, who conducted the police investigation, Lessner was on the wrong side of the road when the accident occurred.

Chauffeur's Wife Hurt.

Lessner's car was struck by a Buick coupe owned by Mrs. Grace E. Anderson, wife of Frank H. Anderson, treasurer and general manager of the J. W. Hale Company. Mrs. Anderson was not in the automobile, which was being driven by Raymond H. Deshield, negro chauffeur, who lives at 249 West 148th street, New York City.

Deshield's wife was riding in the automobile with her husband and suffered a bad mouth injury. She was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson on Green Hill for treatment. Deshield was not injured. Both automobiles were badly damaged. The cars collided almost head-on. The steering wheel, left front wheel and radiator of the Ford truck were badly damaged while the Buick had its left front wheel, fender, radiator, headlight and windshield damaged.

Patrolman McGinn said Lessner would be arrested for reckless driving when he has sufficiently recovered.

TUNNEY HAS A COLD.

SHATTUCK SAW HOOVER BEFORE HE TOOK POST

President of Cuba Sugar Company So Tells Lobby Probers; Understood President Was Agreeable

Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Company, sugar importers, testified today before the Senate lobby committee that Edwin P. Shattuck would not accept employment with his concern until he had consulted with Mr. Hoover, then president-elect, at Miami, Florida.

Lakin said he wished to employ Shattuck to work for lower sugar duties and that the latter accepted after conferring with the then president elect. He added that he understood that the President "said it was all right."

Saw President

"In effect, you offered to hire him and he asked Hoover if it would be all right?" Chairman Caraway of the Committee asked Lakin.

"Yes," the witness answered, "to see if it would cause the President any embarrassment."

Lakin reiterated previous testimony that Shattuck, an attorney, had been employed "chiefly because of his relations" with President Hoover and Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee. He had told the committee that Shattuck was probably Mr. Hoover's "closest legal friend" and that he was the personal attorney for the President and his family.

COAST GUARD OUT ON THREE CALLS

Two Vessels in Distress and One is Burned Off Atlantic Coast.

New London, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Two vessels in distress and one which burned to the water's edge and sank were receiving the attention of the Coast Guard off the Atlantic seaboard today.

Early today word was received at Coast Guard headquarters here that the fishing schooner Julia was on fire off the Isle of Shoals. Before a Coast Guard vessel could reach the scene the crew of the Julia was rescued by the fishing schooner Antonia and later transferred to a Coast Guard cutter. The Julia burned to the water's edge and sank.

Two Other Wrecks

This afternoon the destroyer Burrows was making full speed to the assistance of the Dragger William Killebrew which reported that it was disabled by engine trouble 75 miles southeast by east of Cape Cod.

A report received here from the destroyer Cassin stated that the Coast Guard had arrived alongside of the four masted schooner C. A. Collier about 300 miles south of this port. The collier was disabled by the loss of her rudder and has exhausted its supply of water when the Cassin arrived alongside. Today the cutter Gresham was making full speed from New York to take the collier in tow.

TAXICAB RATES.

Hartford, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The question of rates has not been determined by the commission but when that question is decided it will undoubtedly be based on the belief that there should be no discriminating rates and such rates as are fixed should result in a benefit to the taxicab industry and to the public generally, announced Richard T. Higgins, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission at the conclusion of a hearing before the commission when the question of the fairness of rates was largely the question at issue.

Dry Agents Killed 147 Since Law Was Passed

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union today made public a communication from Dr. James M. Doran, United States commissioner of prohibition, in which he said that since the prohibition law went into effect 147 persons have been killed by agents of his department "while acting in the discharge of their official duties," he said 97 agents had also been killed.

"I have no present intention of making a general reply to the recent charges of excessive force in enforcement," Dr. Doran wrote the W. C. T. U. "I am very glad to give you a tabulated statement of the number of persons killed, both in and out of the service, insofar as it relates to the activities of the agents of the bureau of prohibition. It is a very great change from the condition of three years ago, and the figures themselves tell the story."

His Table.

|----------------|-----|
| Persons killed | 147 |
| Agents killed | 97 |

His table shows five agents and 25 persons were killed in the fiscal year 1927 while 11 agents and 7 persons were killed in 1928, the lowest number of any full year since the law went into effect. The most deaths were in 1923 when 13 agents and 21 persons were killed.

"The agents of our service will continue to use weapons for self-defense as they are not going to be shot at by violators and be without adequate means of protection," Dr. Doran wrote. "The detailed instructions, however, and continual attention being given to this feature of enforcement has brought about a condition that, considering the great number of arrests made and the class of violators handled, is, I think, really remarkable."

The prohibition commissioner's statement was in reply to a query from the W. C. T. U. asking if he intended to make any official reply to charges that official reports of persons killed in the course of prohibition enforcement were incorrect.

BROKEN NECK PROBLEM PUZZLES JUDGE, JURY

Man Himself Does Not Know, Lawyers Say; Medical Men Clash at Trial in New Haven.

New Haven, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Anselmo Suozzo, a tailor, looked on in puzzled silence while attorneys and medical men clashed in Superior Court here before Judge Newell Jennings and a jury in an endeavor to prove or disprove that Suozzo is going about with a broken neck. The trial is of an action for $25,000 against the Connecticut Company and Joseph Arbour of New Britain, growing out of Suozzo's permanent injuries resulting from a collision between a truck and trolley last January.

X-Ray Pictures

Dr. Louis F. Wheatley, director of the X-ray department of Grace hospital startled the court when he declared "the alleged fracture is a shadow that is formed by a distortion of the neck position." Dr. Wheatley supported his testimony by producing X-ray pictures of his own neck and that of Charles Watrous, attorney for the defense showing he claimed the fracture in two normal necks held in a distorted position. Dr. Russo, another expert witness testified that although Suozzo walked in court with a marked rigidity in his neck, the plaintiff when he first examined the plaintiff, Russo first examined the plaintiff had not mentioned losing consciousness but had used an Italian word meaning "stupified."

Many Dialects

An attorney for the plaintiff said there was no such word in the Italian language, whereon Dr. Russo stated there are 47 Italian dialects and it occurred in the one spoken by him and Suozzo.

Dr. Leonard Bacon testified that in his opinion the exaggeration of the plaintiff's symptoms between the first time he examined Suozzo in October and again in November was caused by the effect of litigation on the man's mental outlook.

It is held that Suozzo speaking only Italian, does not know his neck is broken.

FLOODS THREATEN ENGLAND, PORTUGAL

Waters Mount as Fresh Gales Sweep Over British Isles—Death Toll 184.

London, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Flood waters were mounting in England today as fresh gales swept across the British Isles, adding to the possibility of further havoc by the terrific storm which already has taken 184 lives along the British and Continental coasts.

There were heavy floods in Portugal, swollen rivers in France and flood conditions in many parts of England, particularly along the Thames river, which last year overflowed its banks with great damage.

Historic Points Menaced

Several historic points near London were being threatened today. The Tate art gallery, with its rich collection was being guarded carefully as the House at Derby, the lower grounds of Windsor castle were under water while the grounds of historic Eton college across the river also were flooded.

The famous meadow in Runnymede near Egham where the Magna Charta was signed is now a big inland lake, while punts and boats were navigating the main streets of various riverside towns.

In general the storm of the past week had abated except for sporadic outbreaks. Worse weather nevertheless was still feared.

YOUTH HANGS SELF IN YALE BOATHOUSE

Derby, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Bob Cook boathouse, Yale's rowing quarters on the Housatonic at Derby, was the scene of a tragedy today. George Van Deusen, Jr., 18, son of the caretaker, hanged himself there this morning. The body was discovered by a crew of workmen fully as the boat was being pulled out of the water today. The lad had locked himself inside and the grief-stricken parent battered down the door with a crowbar and cut the boy down himself. The young man had been ill for some time, but was apparently on the way to recovery and was able to work at the boathouse. Police said the lad had prepared a perfect "hangman's noose" out of the rope which is used to haul the shells from the river. It was in the shell room that the tragedy occurred.

JAPAN FAVORS A NAVAL CUT, SAYS ADMIRAL

Will Go as Far as Any Other Nation But Must Keep Its Submarines to Protect Itself.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 11.—Reijiro Wakatsuki and Admiral Takarabe, heading the Japanese delegation to the forthcoming London disarmament conference, asserted here today that their country would go as far toward reducing its naval force as any other power.

Wakatsuki, former premier of Japan, arrived with the remainder of the delegation last night from Yokohama. They are on their way to Washington to meet President Hoover before proceeding to London for the conference, which starts next month.

The Japanese delegates displayed interest in radio dispatches received at eating of the affiliation of the United States with the World Court.

Favors Co-operation.

"Japan favors co-operation of all nations in the world, as it has been actively engaged in the World Court for some time," Wakatsuki said. "I feel personal satisfaction that the United States has decided to adhere, as it has in a corporation in which our nation is much interested."

Wakatsuki said he did not think entry of the United States into the tribunal would "have any direct bearing on the forthcoming London conference, but the fact that the United States has taken this step, is to be felicitated."

The former premier said his country desired to keep submarines as a naval weapon.

Needs Submarines.

"A country like Japan with no aggressive designs and of inferior naval strength, is dependent in a

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Henry Grey Crosby, 32, and Mrs. Josephine Rotch Bigelow, 22, a bride, socially prominent in Boston, were found shot to death in an artist's studio in West 67th street last night in what police said was a suicide pact.

The bodies, fully clothed, were found facing each other on a bed. Crosby's left arm was about the woman's neck and in his right hand was a 25 calibre pistol. Mrs. Bigelow was shot in the left temple and Crosby in the right. There were no notes.

Crosby had been registered since Nov. 28 at the Savoy Plaza hotel, with his wife, the former Mrs. Mary Jacob Peabody of New York, to whom he was married in 1922 and his mother, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby. He was the son of Stephen Van Rensselaer Crosby, Boston banker, a graduate student at Harvard and a former Harvard hockey player.

Artist's Studio

The studio at the Hotel Des Artistes in which the shooting occurred was that of Stanley Mortimer, Jr., a Princeton graduate, who had had met Crosby in a Paris cafe five years ago.

He said Crosby telephoned him yesterday afternoon asking for use of the apartment and that he had given his consent. He arrived with Mrs. Bigelow shortly afterward.

When Mortimer returned home 9:15 last night he found the door locked and bolted and receiving no answer to his ringing, notified the superintendent who forced an entrance.

NEW HAVEN POST HAS FAMOUS BELL

Act of Congress Gives A. L. Bell from the Old Battle- ship "Connecticut."

New Haven, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Naval Post 110 American Legion this city has by an act of Congress received the bell from the U. S. S. Connecticut, famous flagship of the late Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans of the American Navy. The U. S. S. Connecticut since her date of commissioning in 1906 has always served as flagship, notably the famous trip around the world in 1908.

During the World War she served as flagship of the third division of the Atlantic fleet. In 1922 the Connecticut was commissioned at the Bremerton Navy Yard, Washington, and after dismantling was sold for scrap iron and steel.

In the early part of 1918, the naval post desirous of commemorating the deeds and memories of the only battleship named after the "Constitution State," enlisted the aid of Congressman John Q. Tilson to enact a bill giving the bell to the local post.

The bell, which weighs 1,200 pounds arrived in New Haven last night and is now at the naval post rooms after completing a 15,000 miles trip via the Pacific, Panama Canal and up the Atlantic coast to Brooklyn.

WARDEN AND GUARDS HELD FOR TWO HOURS

FREE ROAD OR DEATH FOR ALL, RIOTERS' DEFI

Prisoners Demand That All Troops and Police With- draw and All Gates Be Opened for Them.

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Henry Sullivan, spokesman for the ring leaders in the riot at the prison here today, sent the following message to state troopers who were covering the main gate of the prison which had been opened by order of Warden Edgar S. Jennings while he was being held by the rioting prisoners, along with a number of guards who had been captured by the prisoners:

"We are all going to die together unless you order all gates opened and all state troopers, city police, National Guards and all civilians away from the vicinity of the prison and give us safe conduct to freedom. If this is not done immediately, we will all die together."

State troopers from the Oneida barracks; Auburn city police and firemen, and members of the local units of the New York National Guard were summoned at the outset to help in quelling the riot.

Information filtering through from the prison was to the effect that the warden and the mutineers were parleying as to the conditions under which the ring leaders were to be released. It was reported that the plan was to release them from the rear door of the prison, and troopers and police massed outside that door were issued orders to shoot to kill as they emerged.

It was also reported that the ring leaders would insist that Jennings and the other keepers walk out with them, and it was feared that the machine gun blast, which met them would mow down the prison guards as well as the mutineers.

Principal Keeper Durnford was believed to have been slain when he attempted to break through the ranks of his captors to summon aid. He is survived by a widow and two children.

Mrs. Jennings, wife of the warden, was reported barricaded within her house, inside the prison walls, but was said to be well protected by armed civilian employees. This fact also was expected to prevent the convicts making a break through the front part of the prison.

3 PRISONERS KILLED IN THE FIRST ATTACK

Over 1,500 Prisoners Start Trouble in Prison—Troops and Police from Many Cities Rushed to Scene; Troop- ers Use Tear Bombs to Rescue Warden and Four Guards—Others Still in Hands of Mutineers—Early Reports Say Three Prisoners Are Killed.

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Warden Edgar S. Jennings and four prison guards, held for more than two hours today as hostages by a score of long term convicts rioting in Auburn state prison, were snatched from the hands of the mutineers by a picked squad of state troopers. One convict was reported killed during the attack.

Robbed of their last means of purchasing safe conduct from the prison the convicts prepared to make a last desperate stand in the main hall, while troopers and National Guardsmen, armed with tear gas and machine guns, prepared to rush the barricade in the few hours remaining before darkness would throw the entire prison into pandemonium and enable the main body of prisoners to escape.

Henry Sullivan spokesman for the mutineers, and two other convicts not yet identified, were killed during the attack by state troopers.

Hurt Tear Bombs

The rescue of the warden and four prison guards was made under cover of a tear gas attack. A detail of troops hurried the gas bombs through the inner gate into the main hall and waiting until the gas had taken effect, flung the gates open.

Warden Jennings and the four men rushed through, but were followed by a scattering fire of revolver shots.

Guard George E. Atkins was shot through the neck, Guard J. F. Van Housen tumbled through the opening with his eye gouged out. The two remaining to escape as well as Warden Jennings were suffering temporarily from the gas attack.

The two, Claude Dempsey and Milton Riker, were sent to the hospital with Jennings, Atkins and Van Housen. Riker was wounded in the outbreak of last summer.

HOW TROUBLE STARTED

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Shortly after 12 o'clock the rioting convicts, through a spokesman named Sullivan who figured in the last riot, sent word out to the authorities:

"We have guns trained on Jennings and twelve guards. If you don't give us a free passage out in 15 minutes, we will kill them all."

Warden Jennings sent a message through a trusty to the police urging:

"For God's sake, give them what they want."

Kiebs' Orders

Lieutenant Solway Perry, of Troop C, commanding the troopers sent communication with Dr. Raymond F. C. Kiebs at Albany by telephone.

"If they come out, shoot," Kiebs ordered. "If they don't come out, go in and get them."

Must Take Chances

Perry returned to command, drew his men up in a firing line in front of the open gate and declared:

"The warden will have to take his chances. If they come out, we will come out before a load of tear gas we have ordered gets here, we will go in anyway, and we will go in shooting."

How It Started

The first discovery of the mutiny occurred when David Winney, a guard entered the main hall of the prison. As he walked through the doorway a convict pulled a gun on him and ordered him to throw up his hands.

Winney threw himself down and sideways behind a post and then broke through the door. The convict fired at him but missed and Winney reached the main office of the prison, where he spread the alarm.

Telephone wires within the prison walls were found to have been cut, severing communications between the office and the warden and keepers who were in the main hall at the time the outbreak started. Telephone wires outside the walls were found to be intact, however, and were used to summon aid which arrived within half an hour.

Meanwhile, whiplow runs from

NO COMPROMISE

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Acting Governor Lehman today flatly refused to compromise with the demands of rioting convicts at Auburn prison that they be given their freedom in consideration of the safe conduct of Warren Edgar S. Jennings and other prison officials held by the rioters.

"There will be no compromise," said the acting governor.

The ultimatum was relayed to the prison department here by William Sullivan, sergeant of guards at the prison. Sullivan called the department by telephone saying 15 convicts were holding Jennings and several guards and had demanded safe conduct for themselves. If the ultimatum was not accepted, no effort was made to apprehend them as they left the prison they would allow the freedom of the officials; if attempts were made to capture them they would kill the warden and the guards.

Kiebs immediately told Sullivan that "this could not be done," and "that society must be protected."

Lieutenant Perry of the state police, telephoned Governor Lehman in connection with the prisoners' ultimatum, and asked he had sent word into the prison that "if the state troopers come in, they will come in shooting."

Governor Lehman told him this was "entirely in accord," with his views.

Acting Governor Lehman, amplifying his statement, said:

"As long as I am here, there will be no compromise no matter what the circumstances, or what the outcome may be. I would regard such a course as possibly leading to the breakdown of the whole prison system."

"Every authority in the state has been ordered to take every step necessary to uphold the state's position."

TROOPS CALLED OUT.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The 108th Infantry, New York State National Guard, was ordered to rioting today, by Acting Governor Herbert Lehman.

The order followed out a plan for hurried mobilization of troops to handle prison outbreaks perfected after the riots of last summer.

The 108th Infantry is composed of two Auburn companies and units from Geneva and Syracuse.

By a coincidence, it was Warden Edgar S. Jennings' old command that was ordered to the rescue of the besieged prison officials. He was brigadier general of the Tenth Infantry at the time he resigned to become warden of Auburn prison.

PLANES TO BE SENT.

Miller Field, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP)—An airplane piloted by Lieutenant Ronald E. Appel, of the New York National Guard, left at 1:50 p. m. today for Poughkeepsie where it will take on a load of tear gas bombs, and then proceed to Auburn to aid in quelling the riot of convicts there.

Another plane was in readiness to take off for Auburn as soon as a Manhattan Studio Blaze Started from Arc Lamp or Cigarette Butt Latest Belief.

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Authorities sought to learn from survivors today the cause of the fire in the Manhattan studio in which ten members of a talkie company lost their lives and 18 were injured. Four of the dead were chorus girls, the cast of a song and dance revue being filmed by Pathe Sound Studios, Inc. Two theories for the probable cause of the fire were advanced as the police and fire departments and the district attorney's office began separate inquiries to blame. Witnesses told officials of the fire marshal's office that a glowing spark was seen to drop from the carbon of a sunglow arc lamp a moment before a mass of scenery and drapes burst into flames. Peter S. Spauld, chief of the fire prevention bureau of the fire department, said he believed the fire probably was the result of a surreptitiously smoked cigarette.

PUBLISHER SUES EX-RED LEADER

Berlin, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Leon Trotsky, banished Communist leader who is now living in exile in Turkey, has become the center of a trial here in which a Dresden publisher is demanding that the former Red Army leader surrender manuscripts of his memoirs in accordance with a contract.

Trotsky has refused to carry out the contract, because he learned that the publisher had previously brought out a work by Alexander Kerensky, one-time Russian premier in which Lenin and Trotsky virtually were accused of treason. On the technical ground, however, the aid of the German courts has been invoked to clear up the issue. Karl Reissner, Dresden publisher, insists that Trotsky carry out his agreement for the publication of two volumes of memoirs, one to be entitled, "Lenin and His Epigones," the other, "The Political Situation of the World." The case has come before the copyright chamber of the Central Berlin Court of Justice. The first question to be determined is whether the Berlin court is competent, inasmuch as the complainant is domiciled in Dresden and is a foreigner. On several candidates and a social hour with refreshments will follow.

TOWN CAN'T HELP LIGHTING COSTS

Selectmen Cannot Vote Donation to Christmas Fund; Routine Business.

The Board of Selectmen in their regular December meeting last night decided it could not appropriate town funds to help defray the cost of Christmas lighting decorations in the business districts here. An appeal was made to the Selectmen by the Merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce through Arthur L. Hultman the Christmas decorating committee chairman. Much of the lighting faces property owned by the town. However, no fund is available for such an expense here and the Selectmen are forbidden by statute to make donations of town money towards any cause.

To Have Trees
It was decided, however, that the town would carry out its annual custom of having decorated Christmas trees at the Center and Depot Square. This is a municipal project and has been a custom for many years. Despite the extensive decorations this year the Selectmen felt that it would be poor judgment to discontinue the custom and so decided to have the trees erected as usual.

Hearings for the establishment of building and veranda lines on Wells street and on West Middle Turnpike were ordered called so that a definite line can be given those desiring to build on these streets. Assessments against property owners on Purnell Place for recently constructed sidewalks were made without opposition. The town's monthly bills were ordered paid and the report of Building Inspector Edward C. Elliott, Jr., was accepted. Copies of these will be found elsewhere in today's Herald.

Bowers Appointed
Judge Raymond A. Johnson notified the Selectmen that he had declined the appointment of him from accepting the appointment of Examiner of Public Records this year. Attorney Raymond R. Bowers was appointed. This job requires a thorough searching of all legal documents filed by the town to see that the work is being done legally. The examiner is paid in accordance with the time it takes to do the work. It pays about $125 a year.

The layout of Cumberland street in the north end was approved and will be put before the next town meeting for acceptance. A complaint was received about the lack of parking space on Spruce street because of extra driveways at the filling station at Spruce and Eldridge streets. The highway committee will investigate.

Refrigerator Purchase
The board voted to rescind its vote on the purchase of an electric refrigerator because of the disclosure of unfair competition in the filing of bids. A committee consisting of W. A. Strickland, George H. Waddell and Edward C. Elliott, Jr., was named to investigate and purchase a refrigerator for the Board of Health office in the Municipal building.

Edward J. Holl notified the board he would sell the town land at the end of Edgerton street, needed for an extension through to Hemlock street for $300. The board tabled the matter. Frank Wallatt was named a special constable at Center Springs park for the skating season.

Consideration was given the enactment of a by-law designed to force property owners to clean sidewalks of snow and ice. A by-law on this question will be drafted and presented to the next town meeting.

TEACHERS OF CENTER CHURCH AT SUPPER

The Sunday School teachers of the Center Congregational church held a meeting and supper in Tinker Hall with 35 teachers and officers present. A committee comprised of Florence Benson, Francis Howe, Roy Warren, Allen Thompson, Mary Wilcox, Evelyn Johnston and Doris Langdon, was appointed to prepare for a Christmas party.

The report of Giles Vickerman, treasurer, showed the school in excellent financial condition. It was voted to give $255 towards worthy causes that the school has been helping out of the $300 in the missionary fund.

While the Sunday school is being held in the Masonic Temple it is holding up in attendance and is gaining in membership. The Junior department with an enrollment of 166 has had an attendance of 156 for two Sundays.

The primary department under the leadership of Gertrude Carrier is collecting funds for new equipment for its part of the new building now under construction.

D. OF L. ELECT

The Daughters of Liberty elected the following officers at their meeting in Orange Hall Monday evening: Worthy mistress, Mrs. Minnie Smith; deputy mistress, Mrs. Mary Dunlap; chaplain, Mrs. Martha Leemon; recording secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Caverly; financial secretary, Mrs. Jennie Stratton; treasurer, Mrs. Jennie Johnson; first conductress, Miss Colby Trotter; second conductress, Mrs. Hetty Binks; inside guard, Mrs. Georgina Tomlinson; outside guard, Mrs. Ellen Ferguson; trustee, Mrs. Susan Morrison. It was voted to hold a Christmas party on Friday evening, December 27, for the members and their children. Mrs. Minnie Smith will serve as chairman of the event.

WOMEN GRATIFIED AT MISS HUNT'S ADDRESS

League of Voters and Mothers Club Listen to Able Talk by Celebrated Speaker.

Miss Alice Winsor Hunt of Providence, Rhode Island woman speaker, measured up to all expectations when she addressed a meeting held last evening at the South Methodist church by the League of Women Voters and the Manchester Mothers' club. She occupied the platform for an hour, spoke rapidly and fluently and was listened to with the greatest interest and attention by the large audience of women.

Her subject was "America's Opportunities" and she handled it in the light of a wide experience in civic affairs in her home state, and frequent trips abroad. She said the greatest opportunity was the education of the people. She said that the 64 countries of the world are like one big family and when there is trouble between two of the little countries the others step in. This was the case when Austria and Serbia became involved at the outset of the World War and this country and several others had to help settle their quarrel.

While this country is the most prosperous and wealthy we are dependent on other countries for at least 21 of our raw products, such as rubber, nitrate, etc. After manufacturing them, we have to have a market for the finished product.

Miss Hunt told the story of her brother while in an obscure town in Africa, finding, in a barber shop the same way with the products of Manchester's factories, Cheney silks may be found all over the world, also Bon Ami.

One opportunity for America is in helping out by arbitration in South America. There is another in the management of Haiti. America was first to introduce disarmament, arbitration and the world court, and in spite of that fact we are one of the last six out of the 64 countries to sign up for the latter.

We have a great inheritance, the speaker said as she paid tribute to Washington and Lincoln and to William Penn for his peace treaties with the Indians, and yet we made five reservations which could not be accepted by the other countries, the fore going into the world court.

Miss Hunt told of hearing Ramsay MacDonald two years ago at the peace conference in Geneva give a wonderful speech, and heard him say that Great Britain would sign on the dotted line, this in spite of the fact that several years before a great British statesman asserted that England would never join this world court. Miss Hunt said that was one thing Ramsay MacDonald "put over."

The Kellogg Peace pact of July 1929 practically makes war impossible, said the speaker. She believed it was largely through the influence of the women, who within the last ten years have played such an important part in the country's politics, that this pact was signed last July 24.

The meeting voted to urge the Senators at Washington to use their influence toward ratification of world court adherence.

PATTON TO SING HERE IN FEBRUARY CONCERT

Thomas J. Rogers, president of the Manchester Friendship club of the South Methodist church, announced last evening that negotiations have been under way for a very important concert to be held at the church in February under the club's auspices. The date has not been set, pending conferences with the artists, one of whom will be Fred Patton, formerly a Manchester boy and well known Metropolitan Opera basso. The others will be outstanding Manchester musicians.

It is the aim of the club to make this concert the musical event of the year in this town. The object is to raise funds for the redemption of the pledge made by the Friendship Club to the church. The promoters feel confident that this aim will be achieved.

large part on submarines as a defensive weapon," he asserted. "Japan has many ideas and many hopes of lasting good to come from the London conference," he continued. "The fundamental thing in our minds is reduction, a sweeping reduction if it proves practicable, and the conference shows it to be advisable. It must be accomplished, however, without involving a menace as between the conferring parties.

"The Washington conference was a great success. I feel somehow that the forthcoming London conference will be equally successful."

Wakatsuki indicated that the question of whether Japan would seek a change from the 5-5-3 basis to a higher ratio of 10-10-7 could not be determined in advance of the conference.

The delegation will start eastward tomorrow night. It is scheduled to arrive in Chicago December 15 and in Washington the next day. The party will sail from New York for London December 20.

About New York

By RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Christopher Morley's "Last Seacoast of Bohemia" is still a seacoast and again a long way from Broadway, as theatergoers' tours are measured.

It was just about a year ago that Morley and his three musketeers, Gribble, Throckmorton and Milliken, experimenting with the drama on the west bank of the Hudson, by chance found a hit on their hands in "After Dark."

In 51 successive weeks several hundred thousand New Yorkers and their friends ferried across the Hudson, or traveled through the tubes under it, to eat sauerkraut and pigs' knuckles, drink beer and disport themselves at Dion Boucicault's revived hokum of the gay nineties.

Whoopie Hoboken

That was what the Hoboken chamber of commerce calls its city's whoopie period.

The sophisticated, the intellectuals and their followers had found a new diversion. In Hoboken they could be part of the show, hissing the villain, applauding the hero, tossing pennies across the footlights, stamping feet in time with the airs of antique ballads.

For a time Hudson street, on which the Morley theaters are situated, threatened to go Broadway.

The playgoers came for dinner and stayed after seeing the show to dance in German beer cellars. Hence the restaurateurs, after first resenting the strangers' disturbance of their accustomed leisure, hired half-check girls, uniformed doormen and additional waiters, enlarged quarters, stretched awnings in front of entrances and hung out the colored electric signs and metropolitan commerce.

New restaurants sprang up, and a few night clubs. The extra-theater entertainment was invariably Bavarian song and dance in native costumes.

Repossession

The natives excepting the brauhaus proprietors, were scarcely touched by any of this. Their favorite beer and pretzel places were overcrowded by outlanders, it's true, and repeated talk about excellent potatoes caused a number of old stands to be padlocked for violation of the prohibition law.

But business generally was unaffected and the people were unbothered by the noisy aliens, for both Morley theaters, the Rialto and the Lyric, are within three blocks of the ferry and tube terminals.

Eventually the invading horde dwindled until "After Dark" closed. The Rialto is dark until Morley revives another old melodrama, "The Blue and the Gray." The Lyric, too, is chilly and vacant, the "Shoe-string Revue" having folded up its scenic tent and silently stole away to the old foundry that serves as Morley headquarters.

Hudson street and byways are no longer traffic-burdened by town cars and taxi-cabs from Manhattan.

The restaurants are roomy and the unhurried waiters again are cheerful as Jersey purgers trickle in to gossip. Hoboken got its name from an Indian word, hobocan, meaning "tobacco pipe," and the people, after a year of entertaining-cigar smokers, are again peacefully pulling away at pipes over their foaming setdels.

They were canny enough to make no boom of sickle fortune's visit.

FARM BOARD MEETS

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Members of the Federal Farm Board and representatives of cooperative and growers agencies in 15 cotton producing states went into final session today of their conference to act on proposals looking to the creation of a centralized cotton marketing agency similar in its ground work to the organization recently decided upon for the grain belt of the west.

"Definite progress," was reported at the end of the preliminary executive sessions last night. Today's sessions also were executive.

Alexander Legge, chairman, James C. Stone, vice chairman, and Carl Williams, members of the farm board for the cotton states, are attending the conference with more than 150 representatives of the cotton growing states.

Gulf No-Nox Motor Fuel - Aviation Grade is the perfect winter gasoline... its initial is under 100° Fahrenheit... its end point is 374° Fahrenheit... against 437° Fahrenheit of ordinary gasolines... Miss Clarissa Pendleton and Miss C. E. Fitch N. Jones has returned from his cattle buying trip to northern New York, with a carload of cows.

A recent sale, Nov. 30, was of the Samuel Goldberg place to John Carle of Brooklyn, N. Y. The place consists of 132 acres of land, with dwelling house and farm buildings. It is located on the Marlborough-Westchester road, in what is commonly known as the Jones street district.

Mrs. Mary E. Cummings took the lead of the Christian Endeavor meeting at the center Congregational church Sunday evening, in place of Miss Victoria Hilding, who was prevented from attendance because of illness. The topic, "What is back of Christian Giving?" was discussed. Miss Marcia Zabriskie played for singing. At a business meeting held at the close of the service the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Miss Helen Hough; vice-president, Miss Thelma Cummings; secretary, Miss Gladys Hough; treasurer, Miss Edna Latham. Topic cards with leaders for the meetings for the coming year were arranged for at a previous committee meeting held at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Hough. The members of the committee were Mrs. Edward A. Smith, Miss Thelma Cummings and Miss Gladys Hough. Mrs. Francis G. Waldo accompanied her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Asa W. Ellis of Gilead, on a motor trip recently, to Wethersfield where the party called on Mrs. Mary E. Teft, a former neighbor of Mrs. Waldo. Mr. and Mrs. Giles Olin had as their guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dingwell and son Ernie of Meriden, also Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Keeney and children, of Manchester. Mrs. Keeney was formerly Miss Harriet Olin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Giles Olin.

Grinton I. Will of Mamaroneck, N. Y., spent the week-end with friends here. He made the trip for the purpose of getting his car which had been laid up for a week for repairs in Middletown. The injury to his car was received when passing through Middletown the week before. Stopping to do an errand he parked his car for a short time. Returning, he found that a truck had backed into it and broken the radiator and otherwise injured it. A bystander supplied the information but was unable to give the number of the truck. It is said that truck drivers and drivers of other heavy cars are in the habit of backing into cars in their rear, trusting to the bumpers to protect the parked cars, and with little feeling of responsibility in the matter. Mr. Will continued his trip by bus.

Local clergymen of the town were called upon to solicit charity for a family recently moved here from East Hampton. Owing to the illness of the father of the family the six children have been without necessary food and clothing and have been unable to attend school. Mr. Deeter of the Congregational church and Mr. Carr of St. Peter's church, of Calvary church, Colchester, laid the matter before their people and a generous response has been made. One woman in Colchester walked six miles to get her contributions to Mr. Carr to be taken to the family.

The children have lacked coats, shoes, rubbers, etc. It is thought that the family, with the help that is being given them, can be helped somewhat better and the father is working part of the time, going back and forth to East Hampton, where he is employed by the place at the Bell factory. The family occupy the Wilmer Dingwell place on the Marlboro road. The house occupied by them in East Hampton was sold and they were unable to secure another rent there.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stratton of Suffield were Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. Stratton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Griffin. Mrs. Frank Munsell, a sister of William Griffin, who has been laid up with an attack of rheumatism and from the effects of a fall received recently, is recovering. The Rev. F. D. Martin was present at the monthly meeting of the Pastors' Union, held at Spring Hill, Mansfield, on Monday. One of the interesting features of the meeting was an address on the subject of slavery by the Rev. Mr. Ayre, a Baptist clergyman, now living at the Williamantic Campground, but formerly of the south. The Misses Pendleton and Mrs. Anne C. Gilbert, accompanied by Allan L. Carr, motored to Hartford Monday evening, to attend the lecture given by Professor Odell Shepard, of Trinity College, at the Center church, the subject being "Connecticut from Afar." Professor Shepard has recently returned from a two years' sojourn in England with his interest in and love for his home state augmented rather than diminished.

TNBE TRAFFIC BLOCKED
London, Dec. 11.—(AP)—London's network of tubes and underground electric systems was held up nearly an hour today by an explosion at the Chelsea power station. Thousands of city workers were delayed. Many trains were halted in tunnels. Congestion of passengers in hundreds of stations was relieved by a rush for buses and later by restoration of electric current. No one was injured at the power station but many windows were shattered.

COPELAND FAVORS AMERICAN ROUTE

Says St. Lawrence Canal is Water Power Scheme; Would Not Aid U. S.

Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Discussing the long controversy over location of a proposed waterway linking the great lakes with the Atlantic ocean, Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, in an address before the National Rivers and Harbors Congress today, said that "selfish interests" who favored the St. Lawrence route were seeking to "corral the water power resources of the country."

The New York Senator advocated development of the so-called "all-American" route through New York State to the Hudson river and thence to the ocean.

"Frankly," he told the Congress, "I regard the St. Lawrence waterway as a water-power scheme. The navigation feature is merely incidental to hydro-electric development."

Copeland said the St. Lawrence waterway, approved by the growers of the west, was "out of the question."

All American Canal
"It does not compare in value to the United States with the so-called all-American canal," he continued. "The latter is capable of accomplishing for the great lakes and the west all that the St. Lawrence can give."

He added that the latter route would "run to an American port, carry domestic freight to and from the Atlantic seaboard, give the manufacturers and farmers of the west access to Central and South America, the Panama canal, the west coast of Africa and the entrance to the Mediterranean."

"It will help to develop our own United States," he said, asserting that the money would be "spent in our own country, and its control will be forever in our own hands."

He admitted, however that if the proposed canal "were to be used exclusively for the exportation of wheat and flour," the St. Lawrence route is "superior," but he argued that "unfortunately water traffic cannot succeed on a one-way basis" and that "within a very short time the United States will disappear as a wheat exporter" because Great Britain will prefer to import Canadian wheat almost exclusively.

Asserting that American and Canadian wheat growers are on the same basis of water transportation, Copeland said the figures "show conclusively that the St. Lawrence waterway will not better the prospects of the American wheat farmers."

"He will continue to be," he said,

EXPRESS AGENCY AIDS HOLIDAY SHIPPING

In anticipation of a substantial Christmas business this year, the Railway Express Agency has prepared more than a million special holiday package address labels for distribution to express shippers during the next few weeks according to F. A. Nickerson, president of the agency. The purpose is to encourage early shipping and good preparation of Christmas gift packages.

The express traffic of the country, Mr. Nickerson's opinion, is a good barometer of general business conditions. "It is significant," he states, "that the traffic is well up to the average of other years. Proper packing of gifts, with consideration to the fragile nature of the commodity, is urged by Mr. Nickerson, who advises that much of the holiday traffic comes from infrequent shippers not familiar with the essentials of a 'good package.'"

The complete and legible addressing of package is of vital importance, as illegible or incorrect "marks" often cause delays in cities, express people urge that the complete street and number of the receiver of a package be indicated in the address. Mr. Nickerson announces that a supply of holiday package address labels has arrived at the local express office and are ready for distribution.

TELLS OF MONTGOMERY'S WASHINGTON SCHOOL

Mrs. Lina Montgomery has returned to her apartments in the Rubino building where she is accustomed to spend her winters. Much of her time during the summer and fall is passed with her sons, E. P. and Harry at their homes in Washington, D. C., and New York.

Manchester people will be interested to know that Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Montgomery who conduct the Fairmont school for girls in Washington have made a number of improvements during the summer vacation. The school occupies the former Senator Dupont mansion and many of the priceless art objects are still left there by the heirs.

The growth of the school has been such that Mr. Montgomery has leased the building adjoining and has made two connections between it and the Dupont house. A laboratory has been installed, as well as a stage for theatricals and assembly programs. During the Christmas recess of about three weeks when the students leave for their homes in all parts of the country, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery are planning to make a trip to Connecticut and other places north. They recently celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

At the church Sunday morning the topic for the sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Deeter was, When the Son of Man Cometh, Will He Find Faith?

CAMPBELL WINS FIGHT ON TREES

Judge Rules He Cannot Be Restrained in Filing Station Argument.

Denying the petition of Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald for an injunction restraining Earl J. Campbell from cutting down two shade trees, partly on his property and partly on the State Highway Department line, Judge L. F. Waldo declares that the statutory power of the state highway commissioner to prevent the removal of trees, for the sake of beauty, on a landowner's property but within the limits of the highway, unconstitutional, in a written decision returned in Superior Court yesterday.

Denying the petition of Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald for an injunction restraining Earl J. Campbell from cutting down two shade trees, partly on his property and partly on the State Highway Department line, Judge L. F. Waldo declares that the statutory power of the state highway commissioner to prevent the removal of trees, for the sake of beauty, on a landowner's property but within the limits of the highway, unconstitutional, in a written decision returned in Superior Court yesterday.

The decision ends, temporarily at least, ten months of litigation between Campbell and property owners on East Center street, who made the complaint when Campbell began the erection of a filling station on the land he had purchased at the corner of Foster and East Center streets. This morning Campbell said that as the morning work would not be renewed until February of next year, and in the interim the property owners may have another legal move to spring.

The statute concerned in the case is Section 3, Chapter 309 of the Public Acts of 1927, an act giving the commissioner exclusive jurisdiction over trees within the limits of trunk line and state aid highways. The judge comments that the case in question has nothing to do with the power of the Highway Department to remove trees incident to making the highway safe or convenient.

The power to prevent a landowner from removing trees without compensation and except on the written consent of the commissioner, he finds, is "confiscatory and so unreasonable as to be arbitrary."

Decision "It is clear enough" the court's decision reads, "that our people are coming to put a true value upon shade trees and that, whether or not the excuse for exercise of police power is found in the aesthetic sense or in promoting the public welfare in other respects, such extension of police power as these two acts (the 1927 statute referred to and Chapter 76 of the Public Acts of 1929) exemplify will be sustained if framed in such a way that the use of private property shall not be destroyed without compensation and upon the authority of one man (the highway commissioner) from whose decision there is no appeal.

Mr. Campbell's victory was an expensive one. He purchased the property in 1926 at a cost of $18,300, with a view of erecting a filling station. In February of this year he began the development by moving a house to the rear of the lot and purchasing modern equipment to the sum of $6,000. The work was not sooner begun than a complaint was lodged against him by property owners. Campbell held a license from the Motor Vehicle Department for the erection of a filling station on the condition that the trees were removed, but the State Highway Department refused through Tree Warden Luther M. Keith to allow their destruction.

Goes to Court Campbell represented by Judge E. Howard, Jr., then appealed to the Superior Court, which complaint, later withdrawn, was met by a cross complaint from the Highway Department asking an injunction to restrain Campbell from destroying the trees. The case was submitted to the court on a stipulation signed by Judge Howard and Raymond A. Johnson of the attorney general's office.

ELABORATE NEW YEAR PARTY AT RAINBOW

Each year at the Rainbow, a gay New Year's Eve fete is held and this year the plans are being formulated on a more pretentious scale than ever before.

The elaborateness of the program for New Year's Eve at the Rainbow will arouse the festive spirit of young and old alike and both classes of patrons that are already planning on seeing the old year out and the new year of 1930 in will enter into the festivities with unbounded enthusiasm.

One of the many attractive holiday features will be continuous dancing at the Rainbow dance palace from 9 until 3 in the morning and the music by The Commanders will be so inspiring that the evening will be one long to be remembered. In addition to this pleasing feature will be a special vaudeville program that will be comparable to any of the midnight shows on New Year's Eve.

In keeping with a long established custom, the Rainbow Inn will also feature an elaborate program with music entertainment and special food and to insure the privacy that many parties feel so desirable on such an occasion, several reservations have already been made.

This week's program is again being featured with one of the popular Thursday night dances for which Bill Waddell and his band will again provide the program, with Harold Gates in charge of the old-fashion numbers. On Saturday evening The Commanders will return to The Rainbow with a holiday program of popular hits, songs and novelties and the tired Christmas shoppers find in the dances at the Rainbow just the sort of diversion that makes for the perfection of a happy week-end where fun reigns supreme amid the soothing strains of perfect dance music.

The Rainbow continues to prove the most popular dance resort in Eastern Connecticut and Saturday will witness one of the largest crowds of the season with an extra large gathering of the Cloverleaves for their annual banquet at the Inn after which they will enjoy the dance at the Rainbow dance palace. Myron Lee, the singing cop, will again render several ballads.

FEDERAL OIL SUIT NEARING THE END

Los Angeles, Dec. 11.—(AP)—With the announcement of defense attorneys that the presentation of their testimony probably would be completed today or tomorrow, indications are that the government's suit against Edward L. Doheny and the Pan-American Petroleum Company for the cancellation of valuable Elk Hills, California, naval reserve oil leases will close by the end of this week.

Federal Judge Frank Norcross of Nevada, who is hearing the case without a jury, has announced plans to return to his home bench by Monday.

A deposition by H. Foster Bam, former chief of the United States Bureau of Mines, was introduced by the defense yesterday in an effort to show that the leasing in 1921 of 690 acres of the Kern county reserve to the Doheny interests by Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, was legitimate.

Bain's Statement In his deposition Bain said he often had pointed out to Secretary Fall and others the necessity of drilling certain offset wells in the reserve to protect the government's interests.

Bain said Doheny had protested against high royalties on certain oil leases and the department felt he "had something coming" to him.

For this reason, he said, the leases now in controversy were awarded without competitive bidding.

The government is seeking cancellation of the leases, contending they were awarded through conspiracy between Doheny and Fall after the late President Warren G. Harding had transferred control of naval oil reserves from the Navy to the Interior Department. A $100,000 bribe Fall recently was convicted of accepting from Doheny also is cited as involved in the leasing.

NEW CENSUS QUESTIONS

Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Five new questions are included in the questionnaires prepared for enumerating the population in the 1930 census.

For the first time the enumerators will ask the value of the home, if owned, or the monthly rental, if rented, whether the home, owner or first marriage, whether actually at work, and whether a veteran of the armed forces of the United States and during what war.

In making public this questionnaire today, the Commerce Department said the question of home ownership would make possible a classification of families according to economic status or buying power.

The counting of radio sets is expected to give a direct answer to the question as to the size of the potential radio audience.

Enumerators will pay special attention to the classification of gainful workers according to occupations and industry and a special schedule for unemployment will contain a number of questions designed to separate those not working into several classes.

TALCOTTVILLE

There will be an exhibition by the school children in the Talcottville School House tomorrow evening between 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock. Everyone is welcome to attend.

KINGS DAUGHTERS DINE OVER NORTH

Ever Ready Circle Kings' Daughters held their meeting last evening at the Second Congregational church, beginning with a supper at 6:30, served by the December group, Mrs. C. E. Wilson, Mrs. George Wilson, Mrs. John Wolcott and Mrs. Joseph Wright. The menu included shrimp patties, potato chips, macaroni and pepper salad, sponge cake, jello and coffee. The tables were gay with red candle- and miniature Christmas trees.

The Junior choir of the North Methodist church sang several Christmas carols. Miss Mabel Lester read selections from Dickens' Christmas Carol and Miss Irene Lydall sang a solo, "There were Shepherds Abiding in the Field." Miss Bernice Lydall and Mrs. Charles Strickland played a piano duet.

The following officers were unanimously elected for the year 1930: President, Mrs. E. E. Segar; vice president, Mrs. L. A. Gilmore; treasurer, Mrs. M. D. Wells; relief committee, Mrs. E. F. Walton, chairman; ways and means committee chairman, Mrs. Charles Loomis; membership, Miss Bernice Lydall.

Following the business Christmas presents were exchanged. The toys were afterwards divided between the North Methodist and Second Congregational church schools for their Christmas celebration.

The next meeting, January 14 will be held with Mrs. George F. Borst.

POPULAR SONGS

If, as seems to be quite generally accepted, the radio, song, publishing and talkie folks succeed in their avowed attempt to give the people of this country something in the way of music instead of the thumping and screeching noises that have masqueraded as jazz during the last ten years, it is to be hoped that the immediate future holds less of dreadfulness than the recent past. But we confess to being a bit nervous about it, at that.

We are sufficiently stricken in years to recall some periods of popular music that were possibly even worse than jazz. Times when there appeared one after another, like a long, long funeral procession, songs about Mother's grave and the young lady whose fiancee died and who forever after sought her in the Lake of the Dismal Swamp, where her spirit was supposed to be paddling a ghostly canoe, and about weeping and loneliness and bereavement and beautiful young brides who went into declines and hopped the perch, and empty chairs at the fireside and Juanita and all her countless relatives, and a boy's-best-friend was his mother done in fifty-seven varieties and a whole lugubrious mess of bunk and twaddle which was really white man's blues without a speck of Negro blues music—mostly set to droning waltz time and admirably calculated to promote the sale of much hot whiskey with red pepper in it at the adjoining bar.

We may get rid of the rough-stuff jazz, and there may be less deafness and slightly fewer unexplained sudden murders, in consequence, but we doubt if there will ever be a school of popular music worth listening to or which won't be utterly vacuous and sickening so long as the purveyors keep on trying to produce something new every fifteen minutes.

All the songs worth singing or worth listening to that have been composed in the centuries since the musical staff was invented could be sung in a series of one-hour daily concerts lasting three months. The rest have been bunk. And so long as the producers of songs strive to rival Henry Ford in the matter of volume we shall continue to have ninety-nine samples of musical tripe for every song that has any merit at all, whether we make jazz or blues or tinkles or melody our objective.

A real piece of new music, like "The Wedding of the Painted Doll" or like "Oh Promise Me" was in its day, comes once in a blue moon. We shiver to think of the things that may be perpetrated if jazz is banned and Tin Pan Alley gets hold of some of those old song books of the eighties and nineties.

STATISTICS

Dr. Thbrnton Read, professor of mining at Columbia University, has been doing a startling job with figures. He has been reckoning up the work of the world, finding out how much of it is done by each country and thus determining the earning power of the individual worker in the various lands. Fifteen nations are included in his estimates.

Dr. Read discovers that, making the amount of work done by a person in China the unit—that country being least of all aided by labor-saving machinery—the comparative amount of work by the individual in British India is one and a quarter units, in Italy two and three-quarters, in Japan three and a half, in Germany twelve, in Belgium sixteen, in Great Britain eighteen, in Canada twenty, in the United States thirty.

In other words the productive power of the American worker is half as much again as that of the Canadian, more than half as much again as that of the Briton, more than twice that of the German and thirty times that of the Chinaman.

So, argues Dr. Read, you can see why the American has half as much again as the Canadian, more than twice as much as the German, thirty times as much as the Chinese. It is because he, on the average, produces much more.

This is all very gratifying. We are quite sure that in a general way it is also more or less true. But we are frankly quite skeptical as to the precision of Dr. Read's statistics. We very much indeed doubt whether human effort or even the results of human effort applied to the resources of nature, are susceptible of such close analysis as this. Just precisely what does Dr. Read mean by the results of work, the fruit of effort, that they can be weighed and measured into this kind of a formula?

Does he mean, for example, that where a Sheffield cutler produces eighteen pocket knives an American cutler produces thirty of equal rating? Probably; but if he does he omits an element that would seem to some folks to be quite important—the fact that the Sheffielder makes the best pocket knife in the world, one that the American cutler hasn't with the best of intentions, succeeded in quite equaling. Does he mean that where a Hindu carver produces one teakwood elephant an American worker can produce twenty-odd walnut elephants each selling for as much as the Hindu gets for his? If so, what of it? The Hindu's elephant is a work of art, a thing into which enters the skill of fifty generations of teakwood elephant carvers, whereas the American elephant represents the spooling of just so many perfectly good gunstocks.

Does he measure, yard for yard or even dollar for yen, the embroideries achieved by Chinese men and women against the product of the whirling Yankee embroidery machines? We wonder.

Much that we do in mass and by machine is better done as well as infinitely faster than that done anywhere else. It would be nonsensical to assert that the slower processes of other lands nowhere bear fruit in more worthwhile product. We have no doubt that one workman in American can and does create several times as much steel stovepipe, for example, as one can produce, from iron, in France or Belgium. However, the steel stovepipe is junk and the iron stovepipe lasts. We should be interested to know how Dr. Read compared the comparative efficiency of American and Belgic stovepipe workers.

Let us, lest we fall into the soup, mer's desire to remove two trees which prevented his utilizing property of East Center street as a filling station, is not at all directed against the inherent right of the people to exercise a public authority over shade trees which are, so to speak, a part of the community's plant of conveniences and municipal beauty, but against the character of the law by means of which the state sought to give effect to this inherent right. Judge Marvin finds the state invalid because it undertakes to establish as factual truth the mere opinion of a single official and makes no provision for appeal from his arbitrary ruling.

It is unusual for a Superior Court judge in this state to pass upon the constitutionality of a legislative statute and it is fair to assume that Judge Marvin was very deeply impressed by the fundamental wrongness of the law in question before he did so in this case. General opinion will be that he ran little risk of having his decision reversed by the Supreme Court.

A few more such rulings as this and it is probable that the Legislature will tread more carefully in the passage of laws conferring on commissions, boards and bureaus the power to interfere arbitrarily in the behavior of citizens and with the duties of the courts.

A SIGHT FOR SORE EYES

A Fairfield County branch of a Connecticut Girls' Protective Association has stirred up the editor of the South Norwalk Sentinel by "deciding to investigate" the basketball situation down that way, feeling "morally certain that young girls are being exploited for their youth and beauty of face and form." The Sentinel makes it clear that these nosey are off on the wrong foot since the girl basketball players of Norwalk—who seem to be attracting a lot of attention—are getting noticed not for any special graces of feature or figure but because they are a lot of hardboiled knock-em-olds who can win games and as like as not have bruised eyes.

We can sympathize with the impatience of the editor, but our advice would be to let the protectors do their investigating, after arraying the girls in trailing skirts, puffed sleeves and bustles. Thus his favorite team would not only placate the snoopers but draw, for the game so costumed, the biggest gate on record.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 11.—From the North river to the East river in Manhattan's upper Forties is a stroll that occupies but a few minutes, yet which covers: a world of contrasts.

It's a world which leads from grimy looking coal barges and mammoth liners on one hand to the swankiest of yacht clubs on the other.

It's a world which tumbles from dirt smeared faces and hunger into the lap of Broadway's gaudy and rushes bluntly on to a tiny world of costly automobiles, immaculately dressed women, and a dizzy array of places where the Volstead amendment is violated with relative ease.

The particular hearts of this world are 50th street and 49th street—a district which, by the way, will surrender ere long to the hands of the wrecker when the Metropolitan Opera House center turns something like four square blocks of territory into a fantastic assortment of over-the-street highways and modernistic architecture.

In these two streets, between the two rivers, can be found almost everything that Manhattan has to offer in the way of luxury and squalor, pleasure and pain.

The North river takes off with symbols of toil and traffic. The sea lanes present their enchanted palaces and the barges present the workers who make the engines go round.

Just up the street is Madison Square Garden, with the sports of the world—the prize fights, the boxing matches, the horse shows, the circuses and rodeos and the dog shows.

The actor's church—St. Malahy's—all but bumps corners with this goal of the sport kingdom. Here, upon a Sunday morning, most of the who's who of Broadway may be observed chattering in front of the church doors, for all the world like a gathering of neighbors at the little white church down the lane.

Just a hop-skip-and-a-jump ahead, the theater belt begins. Whether you were to choose 49th or 50th, the food of the universe is to be found in an area so compact as to seem dizzying to the prospective diner.

If, by chance you were to choose 50th, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, the selection would range from tricky little tea rooms with sidewalk tables to French or Russian cafes.

Someone has claimed that 49th, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, has the widest cast selection of any block in the world. If I recall correctly there are some 23 varied eating places packed together—something of a world's record.

The swankier of the speakies are just a block beyond. One of these attracts the leading figures of the literary world—publishers, writers, essayists, critics and magazine folk. Just one doorway away, those who pay $1 per each for cocktails will find the companionship of theatrical and movie folk. Near Fifth avenue, the social registers are more likely to be encountered

WASHINGTON LETTER
 By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington, Dec. 11.—It won't be long now before the newspapers are printing photographs of the man who doesn't belong to one of Mr. Hoover's commissions. The folks of low distinction doubtless will be so unique and solitary that he will be offered movie contracts.

But if there should happen to be any unsolved problem left which has no commission of its own, the president doubtless will disqualify him from future claims to fame by repairing that error of omission.

There are, of course, millions of Americans who are not members of Hoover's commission and who have no problems with which no committee has been appointed to deal. But just give the president time. He's organizing commissions as fast as he can.

His Keeping His Promises

His message to Congress bristled with reports of commissions already organized and the promises of more to come. Both he and Al Smith were busy promising all kinds of commissions in the last presidential campaign and now Mr. Hoover is giving an astonishing demonstration of the fact that a president cannot only keep some of his campaign promises but can also go far beyond them.

The president believes that it is far better to have one man to boss a job than a group of two or more men with equal powers. But he loves the commission idea for all sorts of research, study and recommendation.

He reports a difficult problem in Haiti, "the solution of which is still obscure." So, with the approval of Congress, he would send a commission there to study and try to arrive at "some more definite policy" than is represented by our 700 marines now stationed in Haiti.

Mr. Hoover mentioned to Congress the way he had been calling meetings of business men and others recently with the idea of heading off a business depression and although he did not refer directly to his plan for organizing permanent "prosperity councils" of business, labor and agriculture, there will be more commissions or boards growing out of that plan.

If it isn't a commission it's a committee. The president also told how he had appointed an inter-departmental committee consisting of the secretary of the navy, secretary of commerce, postmaster general and chairman of the Shipping Board to survey mail contract policies with reference to the merchant marine.

Turning to banking he urged careful investigation of various problems and suggested a joint commission of members of Congress and other appropriate federal officials to study and report.

He recommended a new Federal Power Commission, holding that the secretaries of interior, war and agriculture now comprising the commission could not give power problems proper attention and that full-time commissioners should replace them. The Radio Commission, too, he said, should be recognized into a permanent commission instead of being allowed to die.

Talking about Muscle Shoals, he went on to "suggest that Congress create a special commission" with authority to negotiate and complete some sort of contract or contracts on behalf of the government.

Here are a few more appointments of the president reported the appointment of his Commission on Conservation of the Public Domain to consider problems of conservation and reclamation and the question of turning more of the public lands over to the states. He also cited the co-operative movement he had inspired among agencies interested in child health for a "nation-wide White House conference," the committee he had appointed to recommend a federal policy on education and his voluntary committee assigned to work for abolition of illiteracy. His National Commission on Law Enforcement and Observation, he predicted, would make a notable contribution to solution of present problems.

He doubtless left out a few commissions in his message—there are so many, in fact, that he probably will need a special secretary to keep track of them.

A FURTHER STUDY OF DEAFNESS.

(Second article of series.)

The acuteness of hearing is generally stronger in youth. A child will hear a pin drop when an older person will miss the sound. Too much coffee, tea, quinine or alcohol is thought to lessen the acuteness of hearing.

The reason we do not hear when we are swallowing is that the eustachian tube which comes from the mouth to the middle ear is temporarily blocked during the yawn or the swallow. Because of this tube, we have the rule to open the mouth when blowing the nose hard, as blowing the nose against the mouth closed may alter the pressure of the eustachian tube and cause a temporary deafness.

Very loud or grating noises are hazards to hearing. Soldiers and sailors exposed to the noise of artillery maneuvers may be affected frequently, or those who work in boiler factories, or steel riveters of buildings who often find that the sense of hearing is lessened as the days go by. When there is a sudden loud noise such as a shot or dynamite drum off close to the ear the eardrum may be punctured, especially if the mouth is closed at the time of the explosion. When the noise is not so violent but more continuous, so that the sense of hearing becomes fatigued, that kind of deafness may result known as the "boiler-makers deafness."

The symptoms of approaching deafness are, first, a gradual loss of ability to hear fine sounds, second, ringing in the ears; third, dizziness. Contrary to popular opinion, swimming does not harm the ear by letting water get into it if the eardrum is whole. If the drum is ruptured there is some danger, as water may enter the middle ear and cause infection.

In taking care of your ears, the old-fashioned rule is a good one—never stick anything into the ear smaller than the elbow. Many people destroy their ear drums of course by attempting to clean out the ear-wax with such objects as tooth-picks and hairpins.

A common cause of ordinary deafness is the accumulation of hardened ear-wax against the eardrum, but the wisest plan for one so affected is to leave the ear strictly alone and consult a physician who can syringe the wax out without endangering the ear drum.

Besides being the means of hearing, the ear has several other important parts in the body. It is also your balancer or your means of recognizing if you are in a state of equilibrium. It is the inner ear that lets you know whether you are standing on your head, turning around, or lying on your side.

Deafened people do not do so well in high diving into water as those possessing the normal hearing sense. This is because their balancing canals are also likely to be affected, and once under water they may not know which is the way to the top. They do have an advantage over most of us in that it is very difficult for them to feel dizzy or seasick. In seasickness it is thought that the equilibrium finders of the inner ear become tired out in trying to send messages while the body is subject to the sudden and perpetual symptoms due to the waves of the boat. Since deafened people do not have such a sensitive equilibrium, they do not become fatigued as readily, and do not have to have two or three days for their "sea legs" to arrive.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Bright's Disease)

Question—E. J. P. asks: "Is Bright's Disease fatal, or do people with it live as long as the average person? What are the symptoms?"

Answer: Many people who discover they have Bright's Disease adopt better habits of living to cure it or, in any case, after live a good many years after this disease is discovered. Incipient Bright's Disease is very difficult to diagnose and almost impossible for the patient to ever diagnose. It requires a very complete physical examination, including an examination of the blood pressure, urinalysis, etc.

(Lime)

Question—H. F. M. asks: "What foods contain lime, and of what use is lime in the human body?"

Answer: Lime is one of the most valuable minerals in the body and goes to make up a large part of the body structure. All vegetables contain some lime, the non-starchy vegetables being particularly rich in this element.

Dirt-eating

Question—Mother writes: "I have a child two years old who eats clay; or dirt at every opportunity. What makes a child do this, and how may I stop him?"

Answer: This dirt-eating practice is probably only a habit which the child gets into because he is not kept sufficiently interested in his playful play. Some claim that it is because the child craves certain foods containing minerals, and not getting enough of these foods gives him the instinctive desire to eat dirt. My observation is that it is not true, but that the dirt-eating habit or the habit of putting objects into the mouth is simply a bad habit of a poorly trained child.

SKY WILL SHOW PICTURES ON SCREEN-HALF-MILE UP.

Chicago.—(AP)—Picture screens half a mile above the earth, made of artificial clouds, are planned for display lighting at the Chicago World's Fair.

Walter D'Arcy Ryan, director of the Illuminating Laboratory of the General Electric Company, says that colored pictures 200 feet square will be projected upon these clouds.

The clouds will be made by use of smoke projectors.

AUCTION, TWO FEATURES ON PROGRAM AT STATE

Theater Will Probably Be Filled to Overflowing Tonight.

The final two-dollar auction will be held at the State Theater tonight. Aside from the auction, the evening's program will include the showing of two feature pictures, seductive Greta Garbo in "The Kiss" and Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller in the all talking production "The Sap."

It is expected that more than enough people to fill the theater will present themselves at the State tonight, and in order that everyone placing a bid-slip in the box may have an opportunity to claim a high bid, whether they are in the theatre or not, the management has installed a broadcasting equipment which will enable the merchants committee to announce the results of the bidding on every article to the people outside the theatre as well as those in the theatre. Anyone outside the theatre who is high bidder on any article will be permitted to enter the theatre and claim their bid. The box-office will open for the evening performance at 5:45 p. m., the performance will start promptly at 6:45 p. m. and the auction will follow the showing of the first feature picture at 7:45 p. m. This earlier starting of the two-dollar auction will be greatly appreciated by those unable to gain admission to the theatre, and it will not entail standing in the cold until a later hour for the auction to begin, as was the case at the last auction.

An unusually attractive program has been arranged for Wednesday and Thursday. Greta Garbo has never been seen to better advantage than in "The Kiss," and it is expected that her portrayal of the role of Irene Guary will be considered the finest performance of her career. As the woman unhappily wed to a jealous husband, she offers a striking performance which works up to a climax in which she murders her husband and consequently faces the guillotine. Conrad Nagle, as her old lover, fights to save her life. Others in the strong supporting cast are Anders Randolph, Holmes Herbert and Lew Ayers, a newcomer to the screen who has registered an instant hit.

"The Sap," with Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller, is a laughmaker for the whole family, from eight to eighty. The story shows the making over of a village sluggard and dreamer into the hero who is welcomed back to the home town with life and drum and spreadeagle speeches of local politicians. While the story is told in a highly humorous vein, it is filled with extremely human situations and characters. It is delightful travesty. Don't miss it.

My Favorite Bible Passage

Today's Choice by J. FRED WOLLE, Director of the Bach Choir, Bethlehem, Pa.

Now when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, there came unto Him a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on His head as He sat at meat.

But when His disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this waste? For this ointment might have been sold for much, and given to the poor.

When Jesus understood it, He said unto them, Why trouble ye the woman? For she hath wrought a good work upon me. For ye have the poor always with you; but Me ye have not always. For in that she hath poured this ointment on My body, she did it for my burial. Verily I say unto you, Whosoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her.—Matthew 26:6-13. Also Matthew 26:26-29 and 64 Comment

Taylorville, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The fledgling group of workers who have set themselves up against the United Mine Workers of America and organized as the National Miners Union, has accomplished a 100 per cent. shutdown of coal mines in Christian county today.

Members of the new union, striking for better working conditions, shorter hours and $35 weekly minimum wage as well as to break the older union, had their eyes today on mines at Nokomis, Staunton and in the Springfield district. Their leaders said three thousand men were out in this county and that the intention was to make the strike state-wide and possibly nation-wide.

STATE AID PLAN ADDS 150 MILES TO HIGHWAY NET

Eighty-two Towns Construct Roads Under 1927 Act; Only Connecting Sections Being Built.

Approximately 150 miles of town road has been constructed in Connecticut since the state aid appropriation enacted by the General Assembly of 1927 went into effect two years ago this fall, according to a statement issued today by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. The construction work has taken place in 82 towns located in every section of the state.

In conducting this state aid program of construction, which is the largest in the history of the state, it has been and will continue to be the policy of the highway department to avoid building or improving isolated sections of town road and to concentrate on those roads which can be used to join trunkline highways or to extend and complete previously existing roads. Roads being made to serve the greatest number of people.

Agreements have been made between the highway department and 75 of the 82 townships to provide that all future state aid funds made available to those towns will be utilized on the same roads until they have been completed to the town line or made to connect with already improved highways. Cooperation of adjoining towns in the completion of roads passing through each has also been secured, so that the state roads now being constructed will, in the future, become important links in the state's general trunkline system.

Considerable time will be required for the completion of the present state aid program, but with a continuation of the annual allotment of approximately $8,000,000, much more progress can be made by concentrating upon a few important highways than if that appropriation were to be expended in the building of scattered sections of road, few of which would be of use except to a small number of people.

The value of the present policy can be seen in some of the roads completed since the start of the program. One of these is the new road from Andover through Parkville and Lebanon which connects with the recently finished Norwich highway and which affords an additional improved route between the southeastern part of the state and the Route No. 3 leading from Waterbury through Hartford and Willimantic to Providence.

The Brooklyn-Pomfret road completes an unfinished section of highway leading from the Norwich-Putnam road at Wauregan to Pomfret Station. Another eastern improvement is the Pendleton Hill road connecting North Stonington and Voluntown and affording a connecting link with the Norwich-Putnam highway at Jewett City.

Between Bristol and Terryville, a new section of town road affords a connecting route between the College Highway and the Waterbury-Torrington route at Thomaston. The new Meriden-Cheshire road joins the College Highway and the Berlin Turnpike between New Haven and Hartford over a much shorter and more direct route than was heretofore possible. Many other like roads have been finished and there are also many others upon which only short sections have as yet been completed, but which will eventually provide accessibility to many parts of the state which could be reached before only upon rough, muddy roads.

Some of the towns have adopted the stage construction plan under which their appropriation is used in building a fairly long section of road stage by stage each year until completion. Since under this method the town must maintain the road until the final stage, the laying of waterbound macadam pavement, is finished, most communities prefer to complete short sections each year and then to turn the pavement over to the state for maintenance and repair by the highway department.

When the present state aid program, sometimes referred to as the "out of the mud campaign," is terminated, Commissioner Macdonald states, Connecticut should have the most comprehensive system of improved, connecting roads in the United States.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

VALLEY FORGE

On Dec. 11, 1777, General George Washington's army went into winter quarters at Valley Forge, Pa. Occupation of Valley Forge came after the battles of Brandywine and Germantown and the encampment of the British in Philadelphia.

Washington chose Valley Forge partly for its defensibility and partly to protect Congress, then in session at York, Pa.

Due to incapacity of the quartermaster-general and the commissary department, the men were left without adequate shelter, food or clothing, and in consequence suffered terrible hardships, many dying of cold and starvation.

It was at Valley Forge, however, that Baron Steuben trained, disciplined and reorganized the army, and thus enabled it to fight with greater efficiency in later campaigns.

About 450 acres of the original camp ground has been converted into Valley Forge Park, containing Washington's headquarters and other historic landmarks that have been preserved or restored.

Out of 11,000 movie extras registered in Los Angeles last year an average of 756 worked each day for an average wage of $8.94.

They will be turned on every evening at 5 o'clock and will remain until 11 o'clock. The illumination is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

WHO'LL FIGHT MAX?

On the same ocean as that honored by Mr. James Joseph Tunney, out a few worlds ago, Mr. Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, the Hurtful Hamburger, returned to our shores the other day. He bears news to the effect that Max will sail for America about the middle of the month and will be in Atlantic City Jan. 1 to begin training for a fight on Washington's birthday.

As far as Max is concerned, Jacobs tells you, he'll fight anybody. Looking over the assembled heavyweights casually, it looks as though that's just who he will fight anybody. How nearly this comes to nobody is left to your own imagination.

We think John Risko would surprise the Black German. It is true that when he is in condition he is shot. When he is in condition he is always tough, and he is in condition now and means to keep that way.

Tunney on Loughran.

Gene Tunney shocked a little group of boxing writers with whom he dined at a hotel after his return from Europe the other day. It was his opinion, he said, that Tommy Loughran doesn't fully understand the finer points of boxing science. He implied that Loughran was too much of a defensive fighter.

Gene was somewhat of a defensive fighter himself, the oldest inhabitant probably can remember, and this sounded just a bit quaint coming from him.

Tunney's plan of battle nearly always would be explained by two words, "counter punch." That was his best offense and defense, too. Slightly different from the Dempsey style, but more or less tailored to fit it.

However, we still believe Loughran knows a little about the finer points of boxing science. It is a fact that Loughran knows how to counter punch and do it well indeed. Perhaps we have not heard the last of Loughran.

Do you suppose, by any chance, Tommy is getting into condition to fight none other than the Hurtful Hamburger in Atlantic City in February? Stranger things have been seen and heard of.

Two Heavyweights.

Tunney was asked by one of the writers to name two heavyweights. "Primo Camera," he replied at once.

It is true the Powerful Panatela is as big as almost any two heavies in captivity (if you leave out Godfrey and Campolo). Victo, by the way, wouldn't be such a bad bet for Atlantic City, either. You would have the international angle of 45 degrees in that kind of brawl.

SHORTER BASEBALL SEASON NEXT YEAR

Broadcast of Major League Comes Up for Discussion Today at N. Y. Confab.

BY WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—National and American League magnates assembled at the Hotel Commodore today for the second session of the annual marathon talking contest with the question of shortening the schedules the most important business before the two houses. The National League yesterday went on record as favoring the shorter season, and a poll of the rival circuit showed the National League magnates also ready to vote affirmatively upon a September 28 closing.

Both leagues today were ready to take up the question of broadcasting regular league games, but this issue, like the schedule matter doubtless will be finally decided only at the joint session tomorrow.

The chief item before the opening session of the two leagues yesterday was that of requiring clubs purchasing franchises in smaller circuits to make a formal report of any such transaction to commissioner Landis, to the two major leagues and to the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

The National League magnates acted favorably upon the commission's plan but deferred definite decision until the joint meeting tomorrow.

The American League believed the question could better be solved by restoring the universal draft.

The National League elected a directorate composed of Barney Dreyfus of Pittsburgh; Charles S. Stoneham of New York; William Veeck, Chicago and E. E. Fuchs of Boston. The shift of American League directors provided for in the constitution brought into office Jacob Ruppert of New York, Robert Quinn, Boston, Alva Bradley, Cleveland and Charles Comisky, Chicago.

The vexing deadlock among warring factions of the Brooklyn club was broached only in President John A. Heydler's report to the club owners. Heydler merely said he hoped the two factions would meet. As matters stand, Wilbert Robinson cannot be ousted as president by the McKeever interests, but can be deprived of his job as manager.

Local Sport Chatter

The High school basketball team plays only one game this week. That will be a return engagement with East Hartford on the latter's floor. Manchester won the first game, 28-9, and hopes to make it two straight. Next week Manchester goes to Rockville. The latter school defeated East Hartford 22 to 15 last night on its own floor.

Wallace Nelson made an auspicious debut as a basketball referee here last night in the Rec games. He kept the teams on the go every minute and made his decisions without the least hesitancy. It seems good to see a Manchester boy make such a successful showing. Home town talent is seldom given the proper credit. Here's wishing him further success.

The Rec Five will be flirting with defeat in its game with the New Britain Guards in the Hardware City this evening. Like the Manchester combine, the New Britain team is composed of youth and speed rather than age and experience. Luke and Cohen will play forward positions for New Britain with Holden or Hewitt at center and Aurbur and Sheehan, guards. Incidentally, the latter mention might be considered an exception from the "youth and speed" classification.

Figuring that four games a week is too strenuous a program for the Rec Girls, two of these have already been cancelled.

The Chrysler Red Heads got the surprise of their lives last night when they were given a shellacking by the Rec Five. They admitted that they came to town expecting some soft picking after what happened to the Manchester team in Branford. The manager of the Red Heads said it was the worst defeat his team has tasted in three years. He got so discouraged that toward the end of the slaughter he didn't bother to mark down the Rec baskets any more.

The Bridgeport team however expects to reverse the count Sunday afternoon in Red Men's hall at Bridgeport when they meet the Rec in a return engagement. This contest will be played under professional rules.

TO SUPPORT ZAIMIS.

Athens, Greece, Dec. 11.—(AP)—French Venizelos today announced he and his party would support Alexander Zaimis, former premier and now president of the Senate, for presidency to succeed Admiral Konouriotis who resigned yesterday. It was believed the premier's action insured the election of Zaimis.

ALEXANDER TRADED TO PHILLY OUTFIT

Famous Pitcher Involved in Player Swap; Goes to Team He Started With.

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Evening World today said Grover Cleveland Alexander, famed old pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, had been traded to the Philadelphia Nationals, the team where he made his big league bow almost a quarter of a century ago.

Alexander and Harry McCurdy, former to the University and Chicago White Sox catcher, the World says, have been sent to the Phillies in exchange for outfielder Peel and Pitcher Bob McGraw.

Suspended for infraction of the rules during the fall campaign, the action in trading Alexander was not unexpected. In announcing the trade, however, Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals said he wanted it made plain that he was not definitely through with "Old Pete" that the great old pitcher could have a job with him any time and as long as he wants it. He hoped, however, that returning to the scene of his early triumphs would give the Nebraska farmer a new lease on baseball life.

Alexander for years was the star pitcher with the Phillies. Transferred to the Chicago Cubs, he pitched winning ball for them until 1925 when he was shipped down the river to St. Louis by Manager Joe McCarthy "for the good of the team."

The benefit was all to St. Louis. "Old Pete" helped pitch the Cardinals to a National League pennant in 1926 and then was the hero of the World Series when the Cards trimmed the New York Yankees four games to three. He went in for the crucial game and fanned Tony Lazzari with the winning run on base.

Change Of Heart Shown By Tunney About Boxing

Former Champion Now Seems Willing to Do All He Can to Help Sport Save Taking Part Himself.

New York, Dec. 11.—Gene Tunney who quit boxing last year driving Jack Dempsey into retirement apparently has had a change of heart.

The former heavyweight king will not fight but he will keep in close touch with the game which enabled him to climb from an obscure Marine to a position of affluence.

Gene won't go in for promoting or refereeing like Dempsey did. Gentleman Gene doesn't need the money and he doesn't care to be quite that active in the big business. From a position just far enough away to avoid the distasteful things he had to endure during his climb toward the top, Gene will do anything compatible with his social standing.

This conclusion is drawn from the former champion's remarks made with the very evident intimation of having his public fully informed.

Most of the New York sports critics have adopted a "show me" attitude. They believe Gene is pretending a fatherly interest in boxing to atone for the disinterested attitude he assumed during preparations for his final ring appearance.

Old time boxing writers who take the game seriously profess to have a recurrence of the grief which first overtook them when a champion good for several years of hard fighting, stepped down and out.

High among the ranks of the mourners is Billy Gibson, Gene's old manager. It was not so bad for Billy when Benny Leonard quit. That meant that Billy could concentrate on Tunney. Since Gene retired Gibson has had no ring interests whatever.

It's all very sad but Tunney seems to be bearing up very well, thank you.

BAY STATE MAYORS LOSE AT ELECTION

Boston, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The mayors of Chelsea, Everett, and Malden, three out of four seeking re-election in Massachusetts cities, were defeated in municipal elections yesterday. Col. C. Sinclair Weeks, son of the late Secretary of War John W. Weeks, was elected by an overwhelming vote in Newton and Mayor Michael A. Landers of Lawrence was re-elected.

The mayors elected were: Newton: John J. Whalen (N. P.); Everett: Michael C. O'Neil (N. P.); Malden: William A. Hastings (N. P.); Woburn: Philip J. Gallagher (Dem.); Lawrence: Michael A. Landers (N. P. Re-elected).

Michael C. O'Neil, former school teacher, won the office in Everett by a plurality of 2,004 votes over his opponent, Mayor James A. Roche. O'Neil received 8,777 votes and Roche, 5,773. Detectives detailed to watch for illegal voting made no arrests.

In Chelsea, former Mayor John J. Whalen was elected to the majority by defeating Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley by 157 votes. Whalen received 6,149 votes and Quigley 5,992.

Former Mayor William A. Hastings of Malden defeated Mayor John D. Devlin by 233 votes, receiving 8,875 to 8,642 for his opponent.

RACING FOUR YEARS, CAR WINS $150,000

Washington, — (AP) — Louis Meyer's little Miller Special has set up a record unequalled by any other racing car.

In the four years of its life, says the American Automobile association, the car has won $150,000 in prizes for Meyer and Frank Lockhart, its previous owner, and established three world's speed records for cars of its class. Only once has Meyer been forced to retire from a race.

Lockhart first raced the car in 1926, winning the Indianapolis 500-mile race and finishing the racing season runner-up for the championship.

The next year, on the California Dry lake, he set up a world speed record of 164 miles an hour for cars of 9 1/2 cubic inches piston displacement.

The same season he established five and 10-mile records of 133.5 and 135.57 miles per hour, respectively, on the Atlantic City track.

A spit gas tank forced him out of the Indianapolis race that year, but he finished a second time runner-up for the championship.

Meyer purchased the car after Lockhart's death on Daytona Beach and drove it to victory in the Indianapolis race of 1928 and to the championship that year.

Meyer finished second at Indianapolis this year and again won the championship. The championship of American autoracers is an annual award based on total points scored on all tracks during the season.

The Los Angeles driver is the first to have won the national automobile racing championship twice in succession.

Cruisers can chase and fight anything except capital ships and are a special menace to destroyers. In fleet battles they are the most im-

As for those provided for in the 15-cruiser bill, five of which are in initial process of construction, the cost limit was set at $17,000,000 each, which means that our existing 10 first-line cruisers cost about $1,000,000 a year to operate and carry a personnel of nearly 500. But these are all 7500-ton ships, armed with 6-inch guns. The new 10,000-tonners will each be manned by 600 officers and men. Operation costs will be at least 20 per cent higher. Japan consequently he thought, must go slowly. He added he believed China would better concentrate on establishing conditions which would permit abolition of extra-territoriality than by insisting immediately on such abolition.

MOVIE STAR IS SUED BY YOUTHFUL ARTIST

Los Angeles, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Maurice Costello, one-time idol of Broadway and now gray-haired member of the Hollywood motion picture veterans ranks, today prepared to combat in Superior Court a $100,000 breach of promise suit filed yesterday by Miss Vivienne Sengler, youthful musician, author and artist.

Declaring he was astonished at the suit which he termed an "absurd" attempt to "stake me down," the father of Mrs. John Barrymore and Helene Costello, prominent film actresses denied there ever had been an understanding between him and Miss Sengler. He said she had proposed to him, but asserted his reaction was such that he had not seen her since.

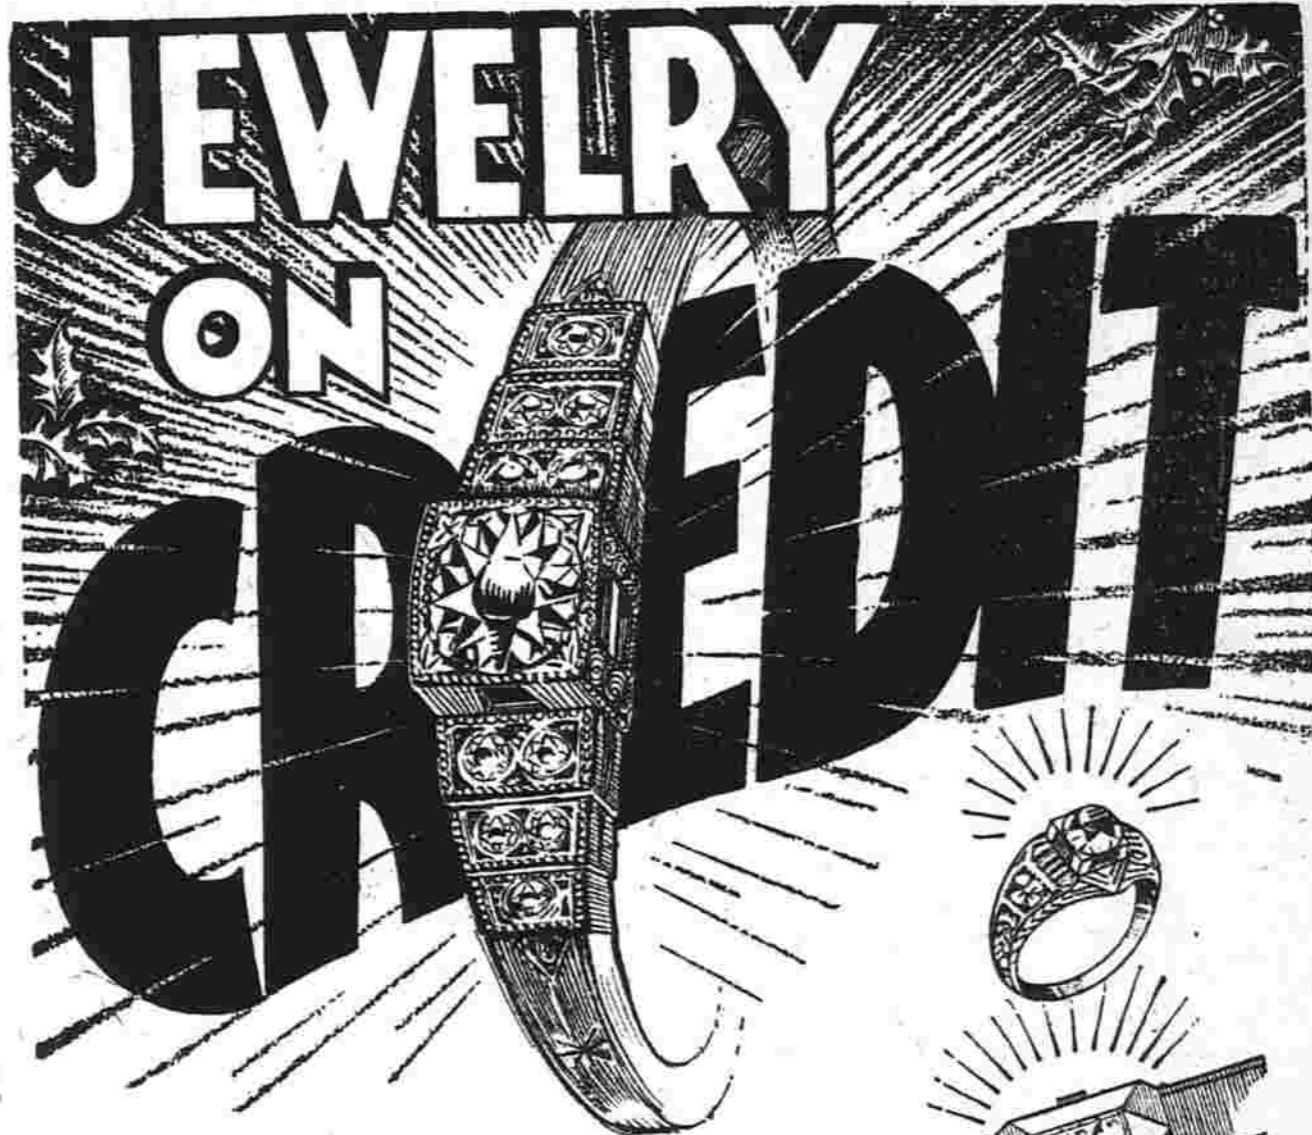

The girl however, declared Costello proposed to her in Stockton in 1925 and they mutually agreed to be married last April.

The Avenging Parrot

By Anna Austin, author of 'The Black Pigeon', 'Tival Viver', etc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MRS. EMMIE HOGARTH, inmate of Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house is strangled to death. BONNIE DUNDEE, "cub" detective, assists POLICE LIEUT. STRAWN, EMIL SEVIER, former boarder whom Mrs. Hogarth accused of trying to rob her, is sought.

CORA BARKER, boarder, thought to have had an affair with Sevier, is out on bail. Other boarders under suspicion are: HENRY DOWD, NORMA PAIGE, WALTER STYLES, near bankrupt, who had quarreled with Mrs. Hogarth; BERT MAGNUS, amateur scenario writer, and DAISY SHEPHERD.

Dundee, from papers in Mrs. Hogarth's trunk that the SALLY GRAVES who wrote her once a month was her daughter, and that she lived in her daughter's home, DAN GRIFFIN, sought for mysterious details of Sally's murder in New York June 2, concludes Griffin murdered both women and that he is or has been living in the Rhodes' house.

An old rail-tickler, showing with Dowd's name on it, showing he left New York June 3, increases suspicion. Sevier, captured Tuesday night, insists he did not murder Mrs. Hogarth but implicated Cora. Dundee goes to Cora, who is to confront Sevier, and finds her dead, strangled with her own braids of hair. Sevier is accused of both crimes. Inquest into the death of the two women concerning Daisy is questioned by Wheeler, a former boarder, Magnus is called.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XL

Coroner Price's first half dozen questions brought out Bert Magnus' story of Saturday night. As Dundee listened to the familiar tale he averted his eyes from the sight of Bert's suddenly wild and avenged face. "The amateur scenario writer looked as if he had passed through some terrible and blighting illness during the few hours since he had stood beside Cora and sung in his surprisingly good tenor. "Drink to me only with thine eyes" Occasionally, as he answered the coroner's questions, his voice wavered and he pressed his hand into his uncrisp left hand into his temples as if trying desperately to remember things which had now, in comparison with the terrible tragedy of the night before, lost much of their meaning and importance.

When he told how he had become so absorbed in the revision of his scenario, "More to Be Piled," that he had neglected to keep his appointment with Cora Barker, he spoke brokenly, and tremulously, the look of his eyes and the wretched, half-awakened, between the withered fingers and the thumb which had escaped injury.

"I realize," he said unsteadily, "that if I had kept my appointment to meet Miss Barker at the theater last Saturday night, to take her to supper after the last show, she would not have had occasion to go into Mrs. Hogarth's room and would not have become involved in the case as a rising murmur of excitement, punctuated by sharp exclamations from reporters, witnesses, and the audience of mortals, bidly curious. For this was the first time the public had had that Cora Barker had been in the murdered woman's room after the crime was committed."

Dr. Price looked somewhat nonplussed at the unsolicited revelation, but asked his next question quietly:

"Did Miss Barker confide in you concerning her visit to Mrs. Hogarth's room after the murder?"

"She did—as we were walking together to the Little Queen theater on Monday night," Magnus answered huskily. "I believe she told me the whole truth about her connection with Emil Sevier. I believe she was unnecessarily ashamed."

"Please tell the jury as nearly as you can remember just what Miss Barker told you," Dr. Price directed, after pounding with his gavel for order in the excited audience.

head proudly. "She—valued my good opinion of her," she said, but not unkindly.

"As I said, it was fear that Mrs. Hogarth had gossiped against her to me which made Cora decide to return from the theater at 10 minutes after 12 Saturday night. She told me that she knocked on Mrs. Hogarth's door, after having seen that the light was still on, and that when she received no answer she tried the knob and found the door unlocked. She entered and found Mrs. Hogarth dead. Knowing that Mrs. Hogarth kept a diary and feeling sure the diary would contain an account of Sevier's visit to her room on the night of May 18, Cora, as she told me, tore the page from the diary before leaving the room. Fear of being implicated caused her not to give the alarm, she said—and I quite understood and sympathized with her decision."

"Did Miss Barker tell you, in confidence, anything to implicate Sevier or anyone else, beyond the fact that Sevier had asked her help in robbing Mrs. Hogarth?"

"No, except that he again asked her the Saturday night, and she again refused."

"She did not tell you that she saw Sevier in the room or at the window on the porch?"

"She did not. I feel sure she did not know any more than she told me," Magnus answered, with a note of pride and faith in his shaken voice.

"Now, Mr. Magnus, you were in private conversation with Miss Barker from on Tuesday evening," Dr. Price continued, and the audience held its breath. "Will you tell the jury the gist of that conversation?"

"It was of an extremely private nature," Magnus protested. "I am afraid it can be private no longer, and I must ask you to answer the question fully and frankly," Dr. Price replied with a firm but kindly emphasis.

Dundee, who had been an eavesdropper and unsuspected witness to part of that conversation, leaned forward and listened intently as Magnus answered, unhesitatingly:

"Cora played the piano—we were all in the Rhodes House parlor—and I sang, and—she told me she had been very unhappy—"

"She was floundering hopelessly, and Dundee sympathized with his dilemma. How could any man be expected to repeat the tender intimacies which he had overheard between Cora and Bert—she shy half promises, made more by eyes than by lips?"

The coroner cleared his throat harshly, and took off his own spectacles to wipe the moisture from the lenses. "I will ask you, Mr. Magnus, if you and Miss Barker became engaged to be married, during that conversation yesterday evening?"

A dull red spread over Bert Magnus' chubby, plain face, but his eyes were steady and his voice unflinching as he answered:

"Not exactly, in so many words, but I intimated very plainly to Cora that when this bad business—meaning the Hogarth case, of course—was cleared up, and she was free to go where she pleased, I would have something to ask of her. As a matter of fact, I believe I did not even complete the sentence, but Cora understood, and we were very happy, looking forward to a future of which we could not even talk until—"

"I understand," the coroner cut in hastily. "Now, Mr. Magnus, did Miss Barker tell you why she had been so unhappy?"

Dundee leaned forward tensely. Was Magnus going to introduce Jewel Briggs' name? He remembered very clearly that Cora had cried: "Then you didn't mean what you said to Jewel?"

Then he settled back in his chair, undecided whether to be disappointed that the small mystery concerning Jewel was not to be cleared up, or to admire Bert's chivalry in leaving the girl's name out of the record. For Bert was saying, haltingly:

"I think it was—well, obvious that Cora was sad and humiliated over her arrest as a material witness, and over the gossip connecting her with Emil Sevier."

"Did she mention Sevier's name that evening?" the coroner prodded.

"Yes!" and Bert's voice rang with sorrowing rage. "She said she would see me in jail, if she knew Emil Sevier was safe behind bars—that her dreams were haunted by fears of his coming to avenge himself upon her for the little she had told the police against him."

The close-packed audience was suddenly as still as if the wings of death had swept over it. Dundee, sitting between Norma Paige and Daisy Shepherd, saw both girls shiver and huddle lower into their seats.

"Did she definitely say that she had cause to believe Sevier would kill her?" Dr. Price asked at last.

"Not in so many words. I have repeated what she said as nearly as I can remember," Bert answered, his voice breaking. Then, "I begged her to ask for protection until Sevier was caught. But she refused. She said the police might think she had good cause to fear Sevier—"

"Did Miss Barker tell you that she believed Sevier to be guilty?"

"She did not express such a belief, but I know she was afraid it was true. She was a loyal friend, even to a man like Sevier," Bert answered huskily.

After a few questions concerning Magnus' movements after the breaking up of the impromptu party the night before, Dr. Price said:

"I understand then, Mr. Magnus, that you heard nothing, saw nothing until you opened your door about half past four this morning and saw

IT'S SO SMART!

Any little sub-deb would be thrilled to wear this new neplum frock with raised waistline and full flaring skirt, just like older sister's new frock.

It can be worn to school too, for it is a simple washable wool challis print, with crisp white pique collar and cuffs edged with Irish picot, with grosgrain ribbon tie at neckline. It is in flattering French blue background printed in bois de rose tones.

Style No. 110 can be made at an unbelievably small outlay. It is designed in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

Another interesting choice quite as effective, is navy blue wool crepe with collar and cuffs of white pique with vivid red bow tie.

Rayon printed crepe in capucine tones on dark brown ground with collar and cuffs of orange crepe is most attractive.

Bottle green cashmere jersey self-trimmed with fudge bow tie of matching shade falls crepe printed in yellow polka-dots is unusual idea that is very serviceable.

Scarlet red crepe de chine, electric blue crepe silk, tweed-like cotton in yellow-beige and brown tones, and Nile green pique are smart combinations.

BIB FRONTED STEP-INS ELIMINATE BRASSIERES

Paris—(AP)—Turquoise and amethyst colored lingerie are the new shades for dance ensembles.

Step-ins with bib fronts are more or less replacing brassieres and v-neck tops with the French clientele.

Racine lace in sunburn shades is still the general favorite but deep cream shadow lace is never with triple voile sets.

Today there are titled women from the British aristocracy on the stage, and earls and lords of high degree have married stage beauties. There is no country where you find greater allegiance to theatrical favorites than in England.

Actors and actresses will always tell you that if you once win the heart of the British theatergoer, you will find him faithful ever afterward. And yet this old unwritten law, completely repudiated by reason and fact, is still as binding today as it was in the days of Robin Hood.

In a democracy such as ours we have our problems, but marrying in or out of class is not one of them—theoretically, at least. In fact, there is nothing we like better than to have our local Cinderellas walk away with the princes. But there is a certain romance about giving up a career for love. There is a triumph that no woman can despise in being more important to a man than his position.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

The other day I heard a young mother tell how her two-year-old baby had reached for a rare old vase on a table and smashed it.

Now I know what kind of a home she has—beautiful and filled with costly things from all over the world. Both she and her husband belong to prominent families and their wedding was a seven-day wonder. The gifts they received could never be duplicated.

And as it happens this young couple, as with many other young couples with rich parents, do not have such an opulent income themselves. Their house, although beautifully furnished, is small and modest in its way. And except for a young girl to wheel the baby out for his airing and attend to the baby's small tasks, the young mother takes care of the baby herself.

The baby is just at the beginning of his period of investigation that all children must go through. He started out most nobly with the hundred-dollar vase.

"You'll just have to put things out of his reach," said another woman, an older one, who had had experience. "If you don't, he'll ruin everything you own. Just see if he does!"

"Indeed I'll not!" answered the baby's mother. "I'm not going to make my house into a barracks just to make a playroom for him."

"Very well, but just wait till he breaks when you begin to realize what's happening, you'll change your mind and lock the stable door after the horse is gone. Then you'll wish you'd done it earlier."

"I will not! If he keeps on, I'll smack the daylight out of him. He's simply got to learn not to touch things."

I made a mental note of this, and I hope I won't forget to go calling on that young woman in about two years. I'll bet a dollar to a plugged penny that by that time she'll have her best things beyond reach; what's left of them. That is, unless she happens, then, to have a house with playroom space where her boy can have freedom without disaster either to himself or her bric-a-brac.

How Will Child Learn?

Of course, she possibly may be able to teach him not to touch things by "smacking him" into obedience. But how is he going to know what not to touch? He may reach up and grab a brass ash-tray and no one will say a word, or even break a 25-cent flower pot and no one will think it worth while to mention it. But just let him smash a sevres urn worth two or three hundred dollars or spill a bottle of ink on a rare rug, and judgment will be swift and terrible. It's always the same. I never knew it to miss.

Is it fair? There comes a time a little later when children can and should discriminate and with a little telling they can learn to take care, but I'm afraid that two is far too young for that.

My advice to mothers with very young children is to try to arrange for a playroom or at least play space for them. Barring that, I'd keep the house furnishings as simple as possible with little chance for tragedies. Accidents will happen.

NEW GLIDER RECORD

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 11.—(AP)—W. H. Bowler, America's premier glider expert, today claimed a new American record for duration of flight in a motorless plane. HEALTH

SPANIARD'S "MIRACLE CURES" ARE NEITHER CURES NOR MIRACLES

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Again and again within the last few months newspapers have mentioned the miracle cures which were being worked by a Spanish physician named Asuero at San Sebastian in Spain. Outside the gates of his home thousands of crippled and ill swarmed waited for him to apply his new and magical method.

The Americans are not the only people who crave miracles. The French gave us Coue and his system of autosuggestion, and there is hardly a place in the world that has not its legend of some miracle healer.

The Spanish physician Asuero combined the power of suggestion with what was alleged to be a scientific method. With a cautery he touched the nerve endings in the nose and he claimed by this method to be able to control all sorts of pains and to cure paralysis.

As usual, all the cases of hysterical paralysis from miles around were brought to the miracle worker. Willing to be healed after they had waited for a long time to be paralyzed, they promptly walked.

Those cases which represented actual paralysis due to disease or degeneration of nerve or muscle tissue did not walk but were overlooked in the excitement and the encomiums attendant on those who had miraculously recovered.

The joker in this case of the Asuero system is the fact that a number of physicians have shown on various occasions that stimulation or cauterization of the nerve endings in the nose and particularly of the sphenopalatine ganglion has definite relationship to certain forms of headache and to some types of intestinal disturbances. The exact relationships are not definitely established.

However, in this application of the treatment to the nose the Spanish physician used the mesmeric art, fixing the patient with his gaze, and saying confidently that the symptoms for which relief was sought would disappear and that the patient would recover function. The hysteria of the mob added to the impression.

Who remembers Emile Coue and where is his method today? It needed only a brief period to complete the vogue of Asuero. Spanish periodicals announce that he is now planning to leave San Sebastian and that he will establish himself in South America.

With proper exploitation he would do well in our country, which is ever ready to welcome new miracle workers, faith healers, and any sort of patient who chooses to disregard the facts of science.

The spans of American bridges have increased from 520 feet in 1884 to 4000 feet now under construction across San Francisco Bay.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Customs change so much faster than laws and edicts. Here it is an accepted condition of life that beautiful actresses marry rich and highly eligible men, so we are never in the least surprised when it happens. In fact, if a Follies girl, for instance, marries a rich man, it isn't news, but if she marries a poor one it is.

"Isn't it marvelous?" we ask. "Here is a beauty who could have her pick of husbands, who has a dozen millionaires at her feet, and yet she marries that poor haberdasher—just for love. Isn't it too romantic?"

There is a cavalier gesture that is rare enough in these prosaic days. And after all, though Francis may give up his uniform, all is not lost. He gains the right to use that priceless phrase:

"Remember what I gave up for you."

A Case in Point

And yet, in London, when Francis Francis, the wealthy young guardsman wants to marry Sunny Jarman, who is a musical comedy actress, he has to resign from the Royal Horse Guards.

There is an ancient custom, it seems, which has become an unwritten law, that no officer in His Majesty's brigade of guards may so far forget this superior station in life as to marry an actress.

Frequently before, the same situation has arisen and custom, it becomes love and duty to the king.

Naturally, it does not become news unless the man chooses love when it is always something to give up as desirable and showy a position as that of royal guardsman.

The custom of course, originated in the days when theatrical folk had no social standing, and could not possibly be considered eligible matrimonially.

Today there are titled women from the British aristocracy on the stage, and earls and lords of high degree have married stage beauties. There is no country where you find greater allegiance to theatrical favorites than in England.

Actors and actresses will always tell you that if you once win the heart of the British theatergoer, you will find him faithful ever afterward. And yet this old unwritten law, completely repudiated by reason and fact, is still as binding today as it was in the days of Robin Hood.

In a democracy such as ours we have our problems, but marrying in or out of class is not one of them—theoretically, at least. In fact, there is nothing we like better than to have our local Cinderellas walk away with the princes. But there is a certain romance about giving up a career for love. There is a triumph that no woman can despise in being more important to a man than his position.

"Yes, that is what I said," Magnus spoke from behind his shielding hands. "I had told Cora, as we came upstairs together, that if she were really afraid of Sevier, I would stand guard over her. She refused, said there must be no more scandal against her in that house."

"Now, Mr. Magnus, can you tell what awakened you at half-past four this morning?"

"No—I really have no idea," Bert stammered. "I dislike the word 'premonition,' but I woke terrified, sure that something dreadful had happened. It is possible, of course, that I was subconsciously aware of the entry of the police and of the low-spoken conversation of the officers. But I can now recall no definite noise that awakened me. As I have told you, I went to sleep about midnight, and did not awaken at all until half-past four."

"That is all, Mr. Magnus—and may I extend to you the sympathy of myself and this jury? Bring in Emil Sevier," Dr. Price directed, turning brusquely to a parolman stationed at a door leading into another room of the morgue.

A smart gift for the young girl is this little basket fitted with braided felt topped with two yellow beads.

SENSE and NONSENSE

HINTS FOR MEN

I like candy
And I like poetry books,
I like jewelled pins
And things that help my looks.

I like bracelets:
Flowers are a treat.
I like candy
Or anything to eat.

All these things are dandy
I'd like to have them, too,
Especially if they are
A gift to me from you.
But—diamond rings are really nicest.

boy was gazing at a set of false teeth in a dentist's show case.

The beggar peered from behind the flask and yelled: "Nix! Nix! None

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)
The Tinymites were tickled. Gee! they all looked happy as could be. At last they'd met old Santa Claus and found him very nice. They watched him chuckle loud with glee. And then he said, "Well, follow me. I'll take you to a nice shop in this land of snow and ice."
"Now, when we get there, just behave. I'll promise I won't make you slaves. But I am sure you'll all be glad to help me make some toys. For everything that you lads do will wake up cheerfulness anew on merry Christmas morning, for a lot of girls and boys."
They stepped into the open air and Scotty said, "We'll do our share. In fact we're very anxious to sail in and lend a hand. We usually learn things very quick and soon we'll all be working slick. I'll try to tell the others things they do not understand."
