

HUNDRED THOUSAND 'DUO DOLLARS' BID

Avalanche of Slips Greet Local Merchants in Final Auction at State.

"Duo-Dollars" literally filled the air at the State Theater last night as a crowd that overflowed the theater bid for merchandise in an auction that brought to a successful end the four months sales campaign sponsored by Manchester Merchants.

High And Low Bids

The highest recorded amount bid on one article was $19,000 made by Frank Anderson of 218 Oak street on a cedar chest valued at $24. The lowest bid was $264.15 made by M. C. Hutchinson of 24 Bigelow street on a Woman's Kozy Komfort listed at $3.00. The former bid was made at open auction, and was high after a period of frenzied bidding that resembled the closing minutes of the New York Stock Exchange. The final article bid upon was a coaster wagon. Many in the crowd realizing they had no chance of winning passed their Duos to those who had a large amount.

So noisy was the crowd that the auctioneer heard only a bid of $18,000 for the wagon and as the hammer fell indicating the sale a bid of $40,000 was made by both bidders brought their Duos to the stage and poured them before the men whose pleasant duty it was to count them. Who won the wagon if anyone, is still unexplained, no record of the bid being on hand.

Open Auction

Many of the articles were sold at open auction because one person placed the same bid on anywhere from five to 50 articles, and lacked the Duos to pay for them. In a way it was better so, as the crowd in general had a chance to win at open auction.

At 5:30 o'clock long lines stood waiting for the ticket window to open. Two policemen kept the crowd in order. As soon as the doors were open people began to flock in. The theater was filled in a jiffy. As it was an hour before show time many read The Herald, many others ate their supper having by all indications a better time than at the sight resembled the eve of a World Series or a Championship fight.

One feature was shown and shortly after 8 o'clock the auction began, moving smoothly to a close at 10 o'clock after which the second feature was through on the screen.

DEFIES DEATH IN WAR DIES IN HIS GARAGE

Famous Canadian Hero Victim of Monoxide Gas; Wore a Victoria Cross.

Captain Robert Kerr, V. C. one of Canada's greatest World War heroes, decorated by his King for conspicuous bravery under fire, is dead. Captain Kerr, known to many Manchester people, had just returned from the Prince of Wales Empire-wide assembly for all holders of the Victoria Cross held in London, recently, and died Sunday in his garage, a victim of monoxide gas.

Captain Kerr went to his garage early Sunday morning to start his car. A brisk wind was blowing and the temperature was near zero, necessitating a lengthy period of warming up. A gust of wind blew the garage doors shut and the Canadian veteran was soon overcome by the deadly fumes.

The entire Dominion was shocked to learn of his hero's sad end considering the dangers he had faced during the early years of the war. Captain Kerr leaves a wife and two children.

SUB ZERO WEATHER HITS MANCHESTER

In the sudden drop of temperature was the cause of the trouble. Tow Lines Popular.

Several of those whose cars were affected by the cold weather were given assistance by others more fortunate. Lacking tow-ropes, the good Samaritans pushed the crippled cars from behind, while those parked on inclines turned about and got under way after a short run. Several balky cars that refused to start were churning away long after midnight.

GERMAN LEADERS BACK YOUNG PLAN

marks a definite step in the direction desired by industry.

Faiths Gloomy Picture though President Dulaberg, though presenting a gloomy picture of the present status of German industry nevertheless took sharp issue with the Nationalists' "policy of constant forecasting disaster."

As a model manner of meeting industrial crises quickly, Herr Mueller cited the United States. "How did rich America meet the business slump which, in connection with the financial crisis, strongly influenced her economic life? Why, by immediately lowering taxes by $100,000,000 through legislation passed within three weeks! We can only sigh: 'Happy America.'"

Herr Silverberg said that private business could not succeed if the state pursued a Socialist collectivist policy and that the Young plan would prove illusory if the German budget should be built on the juggling of these principles. He thought that all administrative departments throughout the Reich should be made to cut their expenditures to the extent of five per cent thereby saving 800,000,000 marks annually.

AUBURN PRISON SILENT AS REVOLT IS ENDED

prison guards turned their attention to the other prisoners, numbering about 1,500 who had remained passive but restless during the riot. During most of the time they had been in the prison yard with only the machine guns of the State Police between them and freedom. They were returned to their cells without trouble.

HEROES OF THE RIOT.

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Seven determined state troopers and a chief of police, by daring and use, smashed the key point of the plan for escape conceived by Auburn prison rioters.

The plan of the rioting group of inmates yesterday, executed only in part, to seize Warden Edgar S. Jennings and as many guards as possible, was met by a counterplan of the state police and the chief of police.

Learning that the prisoners planned to march the warden and seven guards out of the main prison gate and into waiting automobiles, using the prison officials as assurance for safe conduct, the troopers secreted themselves in the main guard room, not far from the prison entrance.

In their hands, as they lurked in the protection of corners, was a liberal supply of tear gas bombs.

The counterplan worked to perfection. The convicts, prodding their captives before them, came from the inner recesses of the prison into the guard room. Bombs crashed on the stone floor and the convicts and their captives were trapped in the rising vapor.

Allowing an instant for the gas to take full effect, the troopers plucked from the temporarily disabled convicts the warden and sent them with them out of line of fire, began shooting into the disordered inmate group.

Convicts flee.

The convicts, choking and gasping, fled toward the cell blocks, with the bullets cutting them down as they ran.

The troopers, taking advantage of the situation, proceeded to shoot their way into the interior of the prison and the law had regained a foothold.

The men who played the dual role of rescuers and advance attacking force were:

Captain Stephen McGrath, Lieutenant Tremaine Hughes, Sergeant John Egan, Sergeant F. F. Dillon, Sergeant Solway Perry, Sergeant S. C. LaPoint, Trooper W. M. Stevenson, Chief of Police Morris of the city of Geneva.

MISSING GIRL FOUND HER MOTHER RELEASED

New Haven, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Mary Trentini, 16, whose disappearance two weeks ago resulted in Judge C. L. Avery in a Superior Court committee her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Trentini, of 196 St. John street, to the New Haven county jail for contempt of court, has been found.

Mrs. Josephine Whitney and Mrs. William E. Turley brought Mary before Judge Avery this forenoon and after a brief hearing the girl was placed in Mrs. Turley's care. Upon her reappearance the court freed her mother but ordered the father held for further hearing.

At the conclusion of the hearing Charles S. Hamilton, counsel for the Trentinis announced that Supreme Court of Errors will review the entire case on January 21. The case began a year ago when Vincent Ferrig went into probate court and secured the removal of his daughter and son-in-law as Mary's guardians on the ground they had barred her from work to benefit her earnings. There are nine children in the Trentini family. It was when the girl disappeared that unusual importance became attached to the case. The circumstances of her return were not made known.

FAMOUS WAR INVENTOR DIES NEAR WASHINGTON

J. Harris Rogers Perfected Device to Listen in on German Messages During World War

Washington, Dec. 12.—(AP)—J. Harris Rogers, whose inventions in the field of wireless communication of inestimable benefit to the country during the World War, died today at his home in Hyattsville, Md., near Washington, after a heart attack.

Devices that he perfected enabled the government to carry on uninterrupted communication with the allied governments in war time, and an underwater radio communications method he developed was used by submerged submarines in transmitting messages to battleships, airplanes and shore stations. Using an underground loop aerial installed in a wall, he was able to listen in on German official reports of battle and submarine operations.

In 1919 the General Assembly of Maryland gave him a vote of thanks for his service to the country and contributions to science during the war. He received a number of honorary degrees for research work and contributions to science. He was 79 years of age, and a native of Franklin, Tennessee. He had never married.

MILLIONS IN GOLD GOING TO ENGLAND

ment of gold profitable. It was a flow of gold from England to New York which resulted in increases in the British bank's rate last February, and again in September, taking it up to a peak of 6 1/2 per cent. The total inflow of gold from England this year has amounted to approximately $60,000,000.

The reversal of the inflowing gold movement, which brought about $210,000,000 in metal to this country in the first ten months of the year, came during November, when $25,000,000 was lost, primarily to France, Switzerland and Poland.

The flow of gold to this country was largely attributed to the high loans and high call money rates, and the movement was reversed with the recent crash in the securities markets, which brought a reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate from 6 to 4 1/2 per cent, and corresponding reductions in interest rates generally.

C. OF C. SECRETARY NORTH END'S GUEST

E. J. McCabe Tells Manchester Club Sectionalism Should Stop.

Speaking at the regular monthly meeting of the Manchester Club, formerly known as the North End Business Men's Association, at the Community Club last night, E. J. McCabe, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, extended on behalf of his organization an invitation to the club to become affiliated with the Chamber.

"The Manchester Chamber of Commerce in the future does not propose to be a sectional affair," said Secretary McCabe. "We recognize one town and the Chamber of Commerce is as deeply concerned in the interest of the north portion of the town as we are in the south, west or east portions. Therefore, I am more than pleased to be with you this evening in the interest of the merchants of the north section."

"Evidently your businessmen have felt the need of a closer business relationship in the form of an organization, which if properly carried out, should be very helpful and valuable to you."

"We are willing to assist you, and I do not think there is any doubt you recognize that the Chamber of Commerce is, or can be an institution qualified to render the finest kind of assistance to an organization or association of businessmen such as yours."

"We have the equipment in our headquarters office enabling us to render the finest cooperation possible."

"We have the time and it is our business to render such aid as is needed and desired."

"We have the contacts through our membership in the State Chamber of Commerce, the United States Chamber of Commerce, and through the Secretary's membership in the various associations such as the Connecticut Secretaries Association, New England Secretaries Association and the National Association. These groups frequently and discuss the problems that confront the merchants and it is most likely that the assistance of one devoting his entire time to problems you have to deal with and making a study through these channels, can be of very great service to you."

"You need assistance. It is exceedingly difficult for a merchant or any member of your organization serving as your secretary and who has his own business interests to attend to, to devote the proper amount of time to carry out his duties as they should be carried out for the good of your businessmen's organization."

"The Manchester Chamber of Commerce extends to your organization, an invitation to become affiliated with our Chamber. It seems to me that this is an opportunity which should be given serious consideration and the advantages that you will have in becoming identified with the Manchester Chamber of Commerce seem to be numerous enough to make anyone feel that in the interest of better business you should accept such an invitation."

Name of the organization and government are two matters that I am not prepared to say much about until I know your intentions. It may be considered advisable to have it known as the North Merchants Division, locally governed, having your own chairman, etc. If this were so, it should be arranged that the present Merchants Division, which would be known as the South Merchants Division, and your together on all business programs and as the Chamber Secretary, I feel safe in promising that this will be encouraged to the fullest degree from our office. On the other hand, it may be possible to eliminate the South and North part of the name and have it all on Merchants Division, for after all, if there should be a Dollar Day or any other sales promotion program inaugurated in the Merchants Division, there is no reason why this should not include the north merchants as well as the south merchants. However, this is something that can be discussed more in detail later if you agree to accept our invitation in becoming affiliated with the Manchester Chamber of Commerce. In doing so you are making a move in the direction of progress and such unity will mean a bigger and better Manchester and greater things can be accomplished through such unity than can ever be expected by division which would seemingly be the case if your merchants organization which is now coming into existence continues separate from the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants Division of the Chamber."

"In the interest of the future good of the town of Manchester and business, I urge that you give this invitation your most serious thought."

"Today it is safer to work in a dynamite plant than it is to lay brick," he said.

"Group insured annuities furnished by life insurance companies were recommended as a solution to the superannuated worker problem by Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York. He said 'paternalistic provisions' by the states 'should be a last resort here in America.'"

Group Insurance.

"In this respect the plan of group insured annuities, already in operation in many industrial organizations and increasing its field year by year, points the way. It places the burden of cost where it belongs."

John R. Hardin, president of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, Newark, N. J., said that despite the recent Stock Market crash, the American people would purchase $19,800,000 in new life insurance this year, setting a record for the seventh consecutive year.

"Even more striking," he said, "is the fact that this year's new purchases will be double the aggregate amount of insurance in force on all lives at the beginning of the century. May we not regard this as a true index to this century's thrift progress?"

George I. Cochran, president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company of California, Los Angeles, was the final speaker before the noon recess.

Radio Station H A L E Broadcasts Xmas Game

Graname Mack announcing: "Yes, folks—it's a great game, and crowds, say, there never was such a mob of people jammed into the famous old Hale's Bowl. After a good loosening up these two fine teams—the Bulldogs and Tigers—are now out on the field. One guess is just as good as another, folks—they are certainly fine teams ready for the crucial battle of the year."

"Well, folks, the first quarter is over and I'll try to give you a resume of the play. No, better still, I'll turn the mike over to Mr. Weedon, Graduate manager of Athletics at Hale's and he'll give you the low down on the first quarter."

"Hello, folks... well, after the kickoff both teams resorted to line plays with very little ground gained by either team. Midway of the quarter Mrs. Debby Wilson Bulldog half of the domestic department, skirted the Tiger's left end for a touchdown behind good interference by Mrs. Kellum. Miss Powers, the ever reliable punter of the Bulldogs kicked the extra point.

"Late in the quarter, Helen Kravewski, of the toilet goods department, brilliant Tiger fullback, working through splendid interference furnished by Miss Sargent of the garment department and Mrs. Abel in the stationery, broke through the strong Bulldog line, time after time, and crashed over the line, making the touchdown with a minute left to play. On the try for the extra point the Tiger kick was blocked. It has been a good game this far folks, with both teams showing no flagrant weakness in the line or individual play. The teams are lining up to resume play. There goes the whistle. This is station X. M. A. S. broadcasting the annual game between the Bulldogs and Tigers in Hale's Bowl. First quarter... score: Bulldogs 7, Tigers, 6."

POPE PIUS TO ISSUE NEW ENCYCLICAL SOON

Rome, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Vatican City correspondent of 'Tevere' today said Pope Pius would issue an encyclical on New Year's Day, the first since signing of the Lateran treaties establishing peace between the Holy See and the Quirinal.

The encyclical, it was said, will give thanks for worldwide participation in the celebration of the Pontiff's sacerdotal jubilee and will explain the motives prolonging the "holy year" for celebrating the jubilee another six months so as to allow more of the faithful to gain indulgences.

The correspondent said the encyclical would not be controversial but would be "a document of benevolence, and heartfelt thanksgiving."

The Pontiff has spent part of this week correcting proofs of the encyclical. He has passed each day in prayer and meditation after the fashion of St. Ignatius of Loyola, and has granted no audiences.

MEN OF WAR

A typical American destroyer of the "flush deck" type.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of articles by Rodney Dutcher describing the strength of the U. S. navy, especially as it compares with the British navy. These articles are especially timely in view of the approaching naval arms reduction conference in London.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington Correspondent for the Herald and NEA Service.
The destroyer is a navy's most efficient vessel against submarines and is also a serious menace to capital ships.

It has quick maneuverability, high speed, rapid-fire guns, torpedoes and depth bombs. The depth bombs are the terror of submarines and torped broadsides, especially at night, are the destroyer's method of attack on battleships.

This type of ship carries from eight to 12 torpedoes. Most American destroyers are equipped with four sets of triple tubes which can fire three torpedoes at once. The destroyers run about 315 feet in length and most of them reach a maximum tonnage of 1215. England, however, has been building destroyers up to 1700 and 1800 tons and has 17 of more than 1600 tons. The average calibre of a destroyer's guns is four inches. Speed is from 32 to 35 knots.

The personnel ordinarily includes about 90 officers and men. American destroyers have cost from $776,000 to $2,250,000, with an average investment of $1,500,000. It costs from $200,000 to $325,000 annually to keep a destroyer in commission, depending on repairs.

The United States has 284 destroyers, totaling 290,000 tons. England has 153 aggregating 159,000 tons, is building 20 more of 27,000 tons and has authorized another nine of 12,000 tons.

Destroyers are the one type of ship in which American strength greatly exceeds Great Britain's. But their effective age limit is only 16 years and most of the U. S. destroyers are 10 years old, none having been completed since 1921. They were built in large numbers to meet German submarine warfare. At this time 167 are out of commission because of lack of personnel to man them.

The planet Venus moves around the sun at an average speed of 22 miles an hour.

On Dec. 12, 1831, Henry Clay, then a United States senator, was unanimously nominated for the presidency by the Whigs.

Clay was overwhelmingly defeated by Jackson, largely on account of his tariff theories, and his unwise choice, as a party issue, of the defense of the National Bank.

The defeated candidate lost few opportunities of opposing the administration of Jackson in subsequent controversies. Throughout the period of his career, Clay shared the honors of the Senate in its time of meridian glory with Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun, and Thomas H. Benton.

Today also is the anniversary of the birth of Mary Todd Lincoln, wife of Abraham Lincoln, on Dec. 12, 1818.

And on Dec. 12, 1803, Congress submitted the original amendments to the Constitution to the states.

On Dec. 12, 1831, Henry Clay, then a United States senator, was unanimously nominated for the presidency by the Whigs.

Clay was overwhelmingly defeated by Jackson, largely on account of his tariff theories, and his unwise choice, as a party issue, of the defense of the National Bank.

The defeated candidate lost few opportunities of opposing the administration of Jackson in subsequent controversies. Throughout the period of his career, Clay shared the honors of the Senate in its time of meridian glory with Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun, and Thomas H. Benton.

Today also is the anniversary of the birth of Mary Todd Lincoln, wife of Abraham Lincoln, on Dec. 12, 1818.

TESTING DRUNKS

According to the testimony of Dr. Jacob Kahn, Hartford police surgeon, in a criminal court drunk-driving case, the physician subjected the suspect to an examination reported as follows: "Winarski was required to stand with his feet close together and his eyes closed, to walk across the room in a straight line, turn quickly and walk back, walk three times around a chair and then twice around in a half stooped position, and to extend his arm full length with his eyes closed and touch the tip of his nose with his finger."

Now this sort of test might, we fancy, be effective in proving very conclusively that a man was sober if he passed it successfully, but if being unsuccessful in it proves a person to be drunk then we suspect that there is an amazing number of drunks people going about all the time, doing business, serving humanity, enjoying the respect of their fellows, who likely never took a drink in their lives.

There are all sorts of arbitrary standards for the testing of drunkness—Rudyard Kipling once asserted that a man couldn't be rightly termed drunk so long as he knew enough to sit up on the pavement or Piccadilly and shout to the cabmen to drive around him. But, to our notion, about the fairest way to judge whether one be drunk or not is by the fact of his being drunk or not.

AL'S SONG AGAIN

Strows show which way the wind blows. This might be true at a time when the weather vane had been arbitrarily pegged to indicate a desired direction. In Chicago Governor Roosevelt opened at a Democratic luncheon what is described as a campaign for the capture of many Congressional seats in the West by his party next year. The Democratic vane would seem to just possibly be pegged in the Roosevelt direction. But at the luncheon the band perpetually played "The Sidewalks of New York." Perhaps the band's music was merely noise—perhaps it was a straw.

THE CURE OF DEAFNESS (Third article of series)

Besides its use for hearing, the ear is also a direction guide. The ear canals serve as a kind of compass. They are made in the form of tubes so arranged that they report on any conceivable position that the body may be tilted in. The tubes are filled with a fluid which contains a very fine gravel. When the body is turned very rapidly so that the fluid is put into motion, one may receive mistaken reports and you undoubtedly have noticed that after you are whirled until you are dizzy and open your eyes, the world will seem to be revolving around you in the opposite direction.

It is on account of their exceedingly sensitive ear canals that carrier pigeons can find their way for long distances, but should one ear canal be temporarily blocked off the pigeon can no longer fly in a straight line but will fly in circles.

The ear also registers to some extent the internal pressure, and in high blood pressure it is very likely to report the fact to you by buzzing or ringing. The popular idea that anyone who is deaf has only to go up in an aeroplane and take a nose dive to have the hearing restored is not a sound one, although it has worked in a few cases, usually temporarily, when the eustachian tube was blocked.

It is said that Thomas Edison prefers to be deaf, as doctors have told him that an operation would likely restore his hearing. He would rather the distracting sound of the world be blocked from his attention, thus leaving his mind free from distracting sound so it can do its best and most efficient thinking. Although he hears to a limited extent, and enjoys popular music, it is true that the man who gave to the world one of the most popular musical instruments, the phonograph, cannot, himself, hear the records in their full volume.

The catarrhal inflammation of the middle ear which is the most common cause of deafness can be readily cured in its early stages, but if it continues for a long time, a condition of hardening of the tissues results known as otosclerosis, which can only with difficulty be corrected. Often one short fast is all that is needed for a cure at the beginning of catarrh. If it persists after the condition has existed for years, it may be necessary to use short fasts about a month apart for at least a year. In addition to the fasting regime, severe cases of catarrhal deafness require treatments to drain the lymph glands below the ear and to clear out the Eustachian tubes. Sometimes pneumatic vibration of the ear drum is helpful in restoring the elasticity of the tissues and of course, if there is ear-wax this should be syringed out.

Manipulative treatment of the neck seems to be of especial benefit in many cases of deafness which would not otherwise respond, and I would advise every one who is troubled with deafness to try these methods before giving up hope of having the hearing restored.

After the catarrhal deafness has been overcome, it must be remembered that there still exists for a time a tendency toward a return of the trouble, and for this reason the sugars and starches should be avoided in the after-diet.

Defective Hearing—Earsache and Mastoiditis—Ear Noises—Colds and Catarrh—

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Sleeps with Eyes Open)

Question:—A. G. asks: "What causes a young man to sleep with his eyes open? He is in good health, possibly a little under weight."

Answer: I suppose you mean that the young man sleeps with eyes partially open. This is considered due to over-nutrition, and I am sure the young man cannot be in perfect health. There must be some weakness or lack of muscular control. (Iron Tonic.)

Question:—R. S. writes: "Please advise if iron as a tonic is really injurious to the teeth, and if so, kindly advise what way same is best prepared to take."

Answer: There can be no question but that any iron tonic, at least when taken by mouth, is injurious to the teeth. The reason is that all iron remedies are always more or less of a delusion as the temporary effect cannot make up for the bad after effects of the use of iron or any other metals as medicine. The iron needed in the body is that secured from such vegetables as spinach and celery which contain iron in an organic form, the only way is stored for assimilation and to be taken up by the blood. (Tubercular Spleen.)

Question:—Constant Reader asks: "Is there such a thing as a tubercular spleen, and if so, what would be the symptoms?"

Answer: Tuberculosis of the spleen is a very serious disorder. Some of the symptoms are the same as in tuberculosis of the lungs as, for instance, the hectic fever, increasing emaciation and night sweats. Anemia is usually more pronounced than in tuberculosis of any other part of the body.

PRISON REFORM

We are now reaping the fruits of two decades of soft-hearted and equally soft-headed slab-dub, preached by maudling sentimentalists, to the effect that criminalism is mere disease and that the felon must be coddled into moral health. Not only is there now, after this era of softness, more crime in America than any other civilized nation has known in two hundred years, but we have reached a point where our prison system threatens to fall to pieces, destroying what slight protection decent people have against assassins and crooks.

After the last previous Auburn riot Governor Roosevelt, giving evidence of a quality of weakness of which few had suspected him, instead of demanding sterner measures threw a great mushy sop to the criminal population by demanding the construction of more commodious and comfortable quarters for the state's penal guests. Yesterday's horror was the answer to that solution of the problem—the kind of answer that might well have been anticipated.

The American prison system, it is terribly clear, will indeed have to be reformed. But the manner of the reform will have to be something very different from that advocated by goosy sentimentalists of both sexes and of every condition but one of qualified understanding.

Instead of greater liberty and ease there will have to be a great deal less. Instead of more coddling there will have to be more and sterner discipline. Instead of idiotically trying to rule hordes of human wild beasts by pattings and pampering the iron hand must be invoked. And in one point, first and foremost and at all costs; there must be quick and drastic action—the practice of admitting visitors must be tremendously curtailed, in a great many cases eliminated. An end must be put to the smuggling of arms and dope, first of all things.

TRAVEL "ADS."

There are more ways of killing a cat besides choking it to death with butter and there are more ways of getting from New York to California or Florida or Chicago than paying railroad fare, hitch-hiking or driving one's own car.

At least one New York newspaper carries in its "Public Notices" column every day a number of advertisements inserted by persons who plan making long trips by motor and who invite one or two or three other persons to go along on an expense sharing basis. Also now and then somebody who wants to make the trip advertises his willingness to share the trip with a car owner—"Gentleman will drive car for gentleman, St. Louis; Christmas; share expenses."

Evidently such arrangements arrived at through advertisements have been a regular institution in the metropolis for some time.

Here in Manchester, where the system would be equally applicable to much shorter trips, say to New York or Boston, motorists take tiresome and lonely drives when they might just as well have somebody go along and help pay for the gas and oil. Compared with the price of advertising in a New York paper such an ad in the Herald would be inexpensive. Occasionally Manchester motorists have arranged companionship for Southern or Western trips through the classified columns of this newspaper, but the opportunity is not, ordinarily, taken advantage of.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 12.—Another year being just around the corner, the usual cry goes up for the ten best books, the best films, the best dramas—and all the rest.

Why the number ten was chosen in the first place, I have no idea. My own box score for the year has been something as follows: books read or glimpsed, 165; movies attended—53.

Sad as I am to admit it, I have seen little thus far in the talking pictures which caused me to become convinced that this is a "great new art"—and all the rest of the hoop-de-doo I have heard. "Hallelujah," which was King Vidor's fine audible film, is the one "talkie" which seemed to take anything like advantage of the new medium. Vidor did not forget that, after all, the camera was there before sound arrived. I also like "Bull Dog Drummond" and "Alibi."

As a whole, however, it has seemed to me that in the couple of brief years of their existence the talkies appear to have come to an impasse. Their musical productions have been little more than paraphrases of what the stage already offered. Their operettas have been nothing more than adaptations from the stage. Their realistic productions of stage plays were mere processes of lifting something from the footlights and superimposing it upon the screen.

In the world of books, I would place at the head of the list for holiday selection, Elinor Wylie's last poems, "Angels and Earthly Creatures," a book which contains some of the loveliest sonnets in the language, and Sylvia Townsend Warner's "The True Heart," a most charmingly written tale.

Richard Hughes' "Innocent Voyage" seemed to me the surprise of the year and Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms," the most stirring of novels. Robert Nathan's "There is Another Heaven" seemed the lightest of the satires. Bolitho's "Twelve Against the Gods" is my favorite essay—biography. Elinor Wylie's "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Case of Sergeant Grisha" have seemed to me the best of the war books. "Problems of Insect Intelligence" by Prof. Hingston leads the naturalist class. Ring Lardner's "Round-up" is the best book of short stories. Jim Thurber's "Is Sex Necessary?" amused me a bit more than most of the travesties. And "The Love of the Foolish Angel" struck me as the best fantasy.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Dec. 12.—While the five principal naval powers prepare to quibble at London over a few cruisers more or less, other minds who have no political penalties to fear if they speak frankly are continuing to suggest programs of a more fundamental nature for the elimination of war.

It almost seems as if there were a growing disposition to disbelieve the often-heard theory that war is inevitable and that as long as there is human nature there will be war.

Edward N. Hurley, secretary of the shipping board, a manufacturer and an outstanding authority on international business, is attracting world-wide attention by his proposal to abolish war through control of industrial raw materials.

More Radical Than Russell

At the same time Hurley was making his proposal, public Mr. Bertrand Russell, the brilliant English philosopher and author, was addressing the National Forum of the Jewish Community Center here.

And Russell was saying, among other things, that to prevent war we must have an international authority to ration out raw materials.

Russell had the same fundamental idea as Hurley. Like Hurley he pointed out that war couldn't be waged without raw materials and that if belligerent nations didn't have raw materials they couldn't wage war.

Strangely enough, the Hurley idea of bringing about such a system of controls is infinitely more radical than the Russell idea. "Russell," like Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, is a Socialist. He had radical ideas on a great many things. But his proposal is to educate popular opinion to the point where it will elect these steps necessary to establish permanent peace and he admits that it may take quite a little time.

On the other hand, Hurley is a capitalist, a conservative millionaire Democrat, and very far politically from the Socialist point of view.

But he hasn't Russell's patience. He sees an opportunity for attaining the same end which he believes can be realized immediately. What could be more simple, he asks, than for the industrial leaders of the world who control most of the raw supply and allotment of 10 per cent of the necessary basic raw materials of industry to get together and exert their control so that no belligerent nation might be able to wage war effectively.

Russell, in his address here, proposed something similar. He said that the international financiers could abolish war by withholding credit from belligerents. But he indicated a belief that his was rather a utopian dream and that first there would have to be another war after which the participating nations would all repudiate their debts.

Hurley, however, advanced his suggestion as a concrete proposal and presented it to President Taft's Committee on the International Chamber of Commerce.

It is interesting to note that neither this hard-headed business man or this philosopher were content to repose faith in the efficacy of the Kellogg peace treaties or in any of the other international peace agreements.

The most impressive thought brought out by Hurley was that such a small group of men here and in Europe has such a potential influence on the future of the world.

The Rulers of the World

Here are those he mentioned as having virtual veto power against war if they should be in control:

Oil: Walter S. Teagle and Sir Henry Deterding; Copper: John D. Ryan and E. Franque of Belgium; Rubber: Harvey Firestone and H. Eric Miller of England; Steel: James A. Farrell, Charles M. Schwab, Willis A. King, James A. Campbell—all Americans; Sir Hugh Bell, Sir Arthur J. Dorman and Sir Robert A. Haddfield of England; Eugene Schneider, Francois de Wendel and Alexandre Drexel of France; Dr. Albert Voelger and Dr. Fritz Thyssen of Germany and Jacques Von Hoegaarden of Belgium. Chemicals: Pierre S. Dupont of America; Earl Bess and Dr. August Dorn of Germany; Lord Melchett and Sir William Alexander Barta of England and M. Donat-Agache of France. Electric and automotive industries: Owen D. Young, General Swope, A. W. Robinson and Charles F. Ketterlin, all Americans.

Now, if these men do not act on Hurley's suggestion, apparently all that remains is to put them together in a cage and keep them there until they agree to do their stuff.

ZAIMIS TO BE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF GREECE

Athens, Greece, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Alexander Zaimis, former premier and president of the Senate, was believed in political circles today to have the best chance of succeeding Admiral Kondouriotis, who resigned the presidency of the Grecian republic. There are two other candidates, M. Sophoulas, minister of war, and M. Kaphandaris, former premier.

Party leaders met today to reconsider the situation. Premier Venizelos absolutely refuses to accept the presidency but will support M. Zaimis if necessary.

General Gonatas, whose inclusion in the Cabinet last June as minister of communications, caused the Royalists to abstain resigned today to placate that group, who now probably will participate in the ministry in the post of governor general of Macedonia.

A turtle's heart will beat for three or four days after the rest of the body has been made into soup.

HOW COME?

"In these days of intense specialization in medicine," says the New York Times, "the old time country physician is seldom met with."

There, if ever, speaks the utter cockney; and the cockney, at that, who knows only part of his city. Grant that there is, particularly in the great towns, a marked increase in the number and variety of the specialists, the general practitioner in medicine is every bit as much of an institution in this country as he ever was. We don't know the figures, but we'll hazard a guess that for every specialist actually practicing there are a hundred physicians who pursue their profession in just as broad a field as did the preceding generation of doctors.

The country doctor is as ubiquitous and more numerous than he was thirty or forty years ago. He is, in most cases, better trained than his predecessor, but aside from covering his territory by automobile instead of having to keep from three to half a dozen horses between his job and that of the old-timer whom the Times so erroneously assumes to have departed.

And even in a big town like New York, he'd be willing to bet that within half a mile of the Times plant any copy boy of that newspaper could find the offices of at least a hundred physicians who would undertake, as a matter of course, the treatment of any sort of case from a broken neck to measles.

Why, as a matter of fact, the "old country doctor," as you come to think of it, is about the

FATAL FIRE RISKS

Apparently no official remissness is to be blamed for the existence of the film studio fire trap that took the lives of a number of persons in New York on Tuesday. The Fire Prevention Bureau of the city had long had its eye on the studio and had even gone so far as to order a sprinkling system installed, though without authority under the law to give the order the force of a decree. Seemingly the owners of the building were determined to go no further in safety provisions than they could by law be compelled to.

The activities of the fire authorities appear to have been sufficient to impress the owners with a lively sense of the fire risk that was being run. If they were defeated it was not their fault.

When a property owner cares nothing or very little for the safety of the occupants of his building it is exceedingly difficult to compel the making of that building safe, even under such forceful prevention laws as they have in New York. A good deal of the value of such laws must always depend on their expression of public opinion. Those who care nothing about the spirit of the law or the public opinion supporting it will generally disregard the spirit even if they comply with the letter.

TOUGH WINTER

There is something reminiscent of the winter of 1919-20 in this long streak of freezing weather in late November and early December, with sub-zero temperature arriving before Christmas. And if there is any comfort in the fact, or otherwise, that was a pretty terrific winter when all is measured and weighed up.

However, in these latitudes good stiff winter weather, while it may cause blue noses and more furnace work than most citizens care about

ROCKVILLE

Welfare Organization Formed.

At a meeting of representatives from several fraternal and patriotic organizations and churches of this city, held in the Superior Court room last evening, the Rockville Welfare Organization was formed. The meeting was called to order at 8:15 by First Selectman Francis J. Prichard, who sent out letters the past week to societies and churches about town asking for cooperation in organizing and centralizing charity work in Rockville, as it is found in the past that some families receive two or more baskets at Christmas time, while other needy families receive none.

Mr. Prichard stated to the gathering of about twenty-five, just what the meeting was called for, and then called on Miss Katherine McCarthy, head of the visiting nurse staff to give her opinion on the situation. Miss McCarthy told of her work among the needy and said that an organization of this kind would be a good thing for Rockville, as more people would be benefited by such a plan and there would be no duplication.

It was decided that each organization carry on its own particular work, but a list of names be given the committee appointed from the Welfare Organization, so as each family would receive but one basket. The committee consists of First Selectman Francis Prichard, chairman; Miss Katherine McCarthy, Dr. T. F. O'Loughlin, David Law and Mrs. D. J. McCarthy. This committee will check up on all names handed in, all to be kept strictly confidential.

The headquarters of the organization will be the selectmen's office in the Memorial building, meetings to be called by the chairman. Work will be carried on throughout the entire year by this organization and it is expected after the Christmas season, other plans can be made to extend the good work in the community.

Churches and organizations represented were: First Lutheran, Methodist, St. Bernard's and St. John's Episcopal churches; Tankersoon Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men; Rockville Lodge of Elks Emblem Club; Loyalty of Moose; Kiwanis Council, D. of P.; Lions Club; Stanley Dobosz Post, American Legion and its Auxiliary, and Every Mother's Club.

Auto Accident Last Night.
A Chevrolet car owned by William Suchecki of 59 Spring street and a Ford owned and driven by Omni Kajaria of 4 Tolland avenue, collided at the corner of Union and Ward streets last evening, when Suchecki's car skidded as he was about to turn the corner at this intersection. The other car was going east on Union street.

Both cars were damaged, one having the mud guard dented in and running board smashed, while the front of the other was damaged and a wheel broke. Pippin of Union street, who was driving in the Suchecki auto, was badly shaken up and narrowly escaped more serious injuries.

Both drivers were summoned to appear at the police headquarters for a hearing.

Recreational Association Planned.
About twenty-five representatives of patriotic and fraternal organizations were present at a meeting sponsored by the Rockville High School Alumni held at the Rockville High school on Tuesday night, to discuss the advisability of uniting on a project toward securing a recreation building for Rockville.

Waldo Tinninghast, chairman of the association, presided at the meeting, which brought out much discussion, some favoring a building and others a recreation field. The chairman will appoint a committee in the near future to organize a recreational association, which will be interested in such a project.

It is expected a mass meeting will be held some time in January, at which time a speaker from the Recreation and Playground Association of America will be present.

Tankersoon Tribe Notes.
Tankersoon Tribe, I. O. R. M. held its regular meeting in Red Men's hall on Tuesday night. Several matters of importance were discussed. A committee was appointed to plan for a play, which will be presented before a public audience in the near future. The committee consists of Thomas Ryan, Emil Mazella, Henry Parker, Henry Lube and Henry Gakeler. Officers were also nominated.

The next regular meeting will be held on Monday evening, December 23, instead of Tuesday night. At this time officers will be elected, and plans will be made to re-organize a degree team.

Fayette Lodge Elects.
At a meeting of Fayette Lodge, A. F. and A. M., held in Masonic Hall on Tuesday night, the following officers were elected: Worshipful Master, Alfred Guidotti; senior warden, William Schaffer; junior warden, Walter Ditzel; treasurer, John P. Cameron; secretary, Herbert A. Porter; chaplain, Ernest Backofen; senior deacon, John Kynoch; junior deacon, Kenneth L. Smith; senior steward, Everett Bell. The appointed officers were not announced at this writing.

Worshipful Master, Ernest Backofen presided at the meeting, at which time important business was transacted.

and the people in the community. Her husband, who died several years ago was in the ice business for many years.

She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Etta L. Woodruff of Lunenburg, Mass.

The funeral will be held from her late home at 1 Pleasant street on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. George S. Brookes, pastor of Union Congregational church will officiate. Burial will be in Grove Hill cemetery.

Mayflower Rebekah Lodge Meeting.
Mayflower Rebekah Lodge held a meeting in I. O. O. F. hall on Tuesday night, with Mrs. James R. Quinn presiding. Nomination of officers took place and plans were made to hold a Christmas party on Tuesday evening, December 24, to which all members are invited. Election of officers will also take place. Mrs. Emmeline Ludwig is chairman of the social.

Following the meeting on Tuesday evening, whist was played and prizes awarded Mrs. Helen Freidrich, Mrs. Elsie Miller and Miss Charlotte Drescher.

Notes.

DEATHS

HEMORRHAGE IS FATAL TO WAPPING FARMER

Frederick Blythe Stricken Yesterday—Was a Native of Marlborough.

Stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage just before dinner yesterday, Frederick Blythe, 76, well known Wapping farmhand, died before medical aid could reach him. Mr. Blythe has been working and living at the home of H. A. Frink on the old Collins place in Wapping and he complained of a headache when he came in for the noon-day meal yesterday. A doctor was summoned when it was evident that his case was more than an ordinary headache.

The man was dead, however, before the physician arrived by automobile. Mr. Blythe was born in Marlborough and had lived in Wapping most of his life. He had been married twice. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Fred Newcomb of Tolland Turnpike, two stepsons, Edward L. Gates of North Elm street and Olin Gates of Highland Park. He leaves also three brothers, Walter and Elmer Blythe of Turnpike; three sisters, the Misses Annie, Rose and Ethel Blythe of Winsted, and eight grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the funeral parlors of Mark Olmes Rev. Truman H. Woodward is expected to officiate. Burial will be in the Wapping cemetery. The funeral parlor will be open for friends from 7 to 10 o'clock this evening.

ARMY'S XMAS SALE ATTRACTS BIG CROWD

The annual sale of the Women's Home League which opened last night, at the Salvation Army canteen, was well patronized. Hot chocolate which was served at the refreshment booth was in great demand owing to the sudden drop in the temperature outside. The home made apple pie, cake, candy, popcorn and other good things at this booth were all sold out, but the ladies will have a fresh supply for this evening when the sale opens again at 7 o'clock. The overall aprons and a large number of the handsome scarfs with handwork were sold in addition to gifts donated by friends. The supply was generous, and there is a wide choice of acceptable gift items yet to be disposed of.

HOSPITAL NOTES
A daughter was born last night at the Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson of 38 William street.

The census today is 59 patients which is nearly the capacity of the hospital.

HOLD COUPLE.
Stamford, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Wilmford Robichaud, 16, and Mrs. Diamantina Almeida, 18, both of Willcox street, Fall River, are held by the Danbury police for Fall River authorities. They were arrested here early today, driving to New York in car which Robichaud admitted stealing in Fall River. He also claimed to have forced the girl to leave her home with him, in the absence of her husband who works nights.

Trinity Past Grands Meet.
A meeting of the Trinity Past Grands association, was held in I. O. O. F. hall on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with a goodly attendance of members from several nearby towns. Following the meeting whist was played and at 5:30 a supper was served.

Mrs. Mary (Dart) Willis.
Mrs. Mary A. (Dart) Willis, 73, widow of the late Frank E. Willis, died at her home at 1 Pleasant street on Tuesday night, following a short illness. She was born in Manchester, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram W. Dart, later moving to Vernon, coming to Rockville fifty-five years ago.

Mrs. Willis was loved by all who knew her and she will be greatly missed by members of the family.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Hanford, Calif.—William F. Liggett is dead of injuries received when kicked by a cow. He had insurance against being kicked by a horse or goaded by a bull.

New York—The time when transoceanic airships will land passengers on skyscrapers is foreseen by Alfred E. Smith. The 85-story building to be erected on the site of Waldorf Astoria hotel by a company of which he is president will be surmounted by a 200-foot mooring mast for dirigibles. The former governor expects that passengers will be on fifth avenue seven minutes after a ship is connected with the mast. Transoceanic airship traffic, he believes is a matter of a comparatively short time.

Atlanta—A divorce granted to Edgar F. Ross, who complained that his wife's nagging caused him to live in a rear room of his house for two years, doing his own cooking and making his own bed, has been upheld by the State Supreme Court. The decision quoted from the pro-verbs: "It is better to dwell in the corner of the housetop than with a brawling woman and in a wide house."

New York—The Riverside church, of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is a trustee and the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick pastor has dropped the word "Baptist" from its name.

Rome—Italian families of seven or more children are figured by the government statistical institute, at 1,532,206.

Carlisle, Pa.—It will be worth $10,000 to Mrs. Samuel Temple of Boston to take an oath to stop smoking cigarettes. The will of her aunt, Miss Esther M. Groome, makes a conditional bequest. Miss Groome was an instructor in art in state schools. Mrs. Temple is an artist under her maiden name of Ruth Anderson.

New York—Winifred Sackville Stoner, once a child prodigy, is seeking annulment of her marriage to Count Philippe Clinto de Bruche, who she thought dead until she ran into him in a hotel lobby in New York recently. When 17 she eloped with the count in 1921. In 1922 she was advised he had been killed in an accident. In 1925 she eloped with Louis Hyman. They were divorced in 1927.

Los Angeles—Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Netcher are that and not Mr. and Mrs. Constance Talmadge. That's what the bride indicated on her return from a honeymoon, adding "I am not going to make any more pictures. I am through with Hollywood."

New York—One thing seems quite essential for a bar. John Rossi was in Brooklyn Federal Court. The prosecutor said his establishment was a speakeasy, since it had a bar, merely a counter. Judge Byers inquired if there was a brass rail. There wasn't. "Then we'll call it a counter," he ruled. Rossi was fined $150 for possession of liquor.

SCOTLAND HOLDS VOTE ON LIQUOR SELLING

Edinburgh, Scotland, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Sale of liquor was restored to several areas in Scotland today as a result of local option elections held yesterday.

In Pollockshaw's ward, Glasgow, the liquor adherents won by a majority of forty-four in the poll of 7,358. There are fourteen licenses in the district and the magistrates may, at their discretion, reissue them for sale of alcoholic beverages.

Four other wards on the banks of the Clyde also voted for sale of liquor. The village of Cullie, in northern Scotland voted for continuation of "no license."

A headline in a Chicago newspaper says, "Film Star Here; Heads for Balmey Hollywood." Maybe a better word than "balmey" could have been used there. What is it?

OFFICIALS BLAMED FOR FIRE DEATHS

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Two executives of the Pathe studios were arrested today on charges of manslaughter in connection with the death of 10 persons in the fire which destroyed the Manhattan film studio Tuesday.

They are John C. Flynn, 40 years old of Yonkers a vice-president, and Henry F. Lalley, 40 years old, manager. They were arrested after police seized 180 containers, estimated to hold between 50,000 and 100,000 feet of film. The manslaughter charge is based on negligence growing out of alleged violation of a city ordinance prohibiting the storage of more than five reels of film in certain types of buildings.

The Manhattan studio was classified as coming under this ordinance by the fire marshal's department.

10 Die In Fire
Four chorus girls and six male members of a company of 100 were burned to death when fire broke out in the studio during the filming of a talking picture.

Officials of the Fire Prevention

Bureau said a sprinkler system had been ordered installed in the studio but the order could not be enforced because not more than five reels of film were stored in the building at one time.

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUM CALLED "NUMBER 39."
St. Paul.—(AP)—A new chrysanthemum, christened "Number 39," has been produced by botanists at the Minnesota college of agriculture.

The plant is being watched closely in the hope it will be possible to make of it the parents of a new breed.

It has large pink-knitted clusters in a setting of heavy, dark green foliage.

HARVARD PROFESSOR DIES.
Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Professor William R. Arnold of the Department of Hebrew and Oriental languages of Harvard university, died suddenly at his home late yesterday. He had been at Harvard seven years and from 1896-1898 was curator of the Department of Antiquities of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. He was 57 years old.

10 SAILORS DROWNED
Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Caught in an impenetrable fog a fishing vessel struck the rocks off Cape Rica today and sank. Of the crew of twenty men ten are missing. At Aboufira on the Atlantic seaboard a fishing vessel collided with a freighter in the fog and sank. Two men were drowned and five rescued. Shipping on the Tagus has been tied up completely with navigation.

Local Sport Chatter

Walter "Butch" Kittel, former Manchester High school player, has made the center berth on the Arnold college quintet at New Haven. The opening game is with Holy Cross at Worcester next Saturday night.

"Skeek" Watson, popular outfielder on the Hartford Baseball club, who has been with the Rec Five for the past few games last night decided not to play any more this season. He found it too hard to get in proper physical condition to withstand such a strenuous sport, it is understood.

The five members of the Majors who were honored by places on the All-Manchester football team will be presented with their gold footballs at the banquet at the Rainbow Inn, Saturday night. They are the gifts of William Savitt, well known Hartford jeweler.

Manager George W. C. Hunt of the Rec Five is busy completing the arrangement of the schedule for the season. Branford comes here for a return game next Tuesday evening.

Grove City will play its first game at Pittsburgh, December 21. George Stantvitsky and "Hank" McCann, local boys, are expected to see service.

Another large crowd enjoyed skating at Center Springs pond last night notwithstanding the cold weather.

Now that football is over, basketball and bowling will be in the foreground before the annual tournament championship pocket billiards tournament will be started.

How about a few bowling matches between Conran and Murphy or some of the other good bowlers in town, namely, Sasila, Saidella, Canade, Kebart and Berthold?

Jack Saidella is hitting wood in grand style just at present, and would be a hard man for anyone in town to beat.

East Hartford High dedicates its new gymnasium tomorrow night with Manchester High as its basketball guest.

COLLEGE COLUMN

CAGLE'S WEARINESS

For the last two seasons of Chris Cagle's sensational gridiron career it has been the popular belief that the flaming red-head was a football player without enough, all promised to keep the red-head's jaw a secret until his final campaign had ended, and apparently they've done it well. Cagle propelled footballs with unerring precision as he scampered to his left, Captain Wells declares. But when he went in the opposite direction his passes never clicked. Naturally, Chris has done his most effective work in runs to his left.

In his favor, however, was the flying cadet's ability to start to the left, then reverse and go to his right like a streak.

The Manchester aggregation got away to a commanding lead of 43 pins in the first game only to drop the second by 38 and the third by 20. "Kaiser" Berthold and Harold Burnham were tied with 373 for the best bowling of the match. Berthold's 145 was high single and Burnham's 140 second.

Here are the scores:

| Wooster (2)    | Total |
|----------------|-------|
| Harold Burnham | 140   |
| E. Burnham     | 110   |
| Theodore       | 92    |

TIGER PROSPECTS GOOD

Princeton swimmers are expected to create a little splash in Eastern Intercollegiate tanks this season, judging from the wealth of material that reported to Coach Stepp. Included in the group that has been working out in the Tiger tank are 29 veterans of last year's varsity squad and 18 stars from the freshman team. With such splendid prospects, spirits of Coach Stepp are anything but dampened.

INTEREST IN HOCKEY.

I was glad to see you are giving hockey some good write-ups in the paper and am sure hockey fans in this town appreciate it as Hartford papers carry very little about it. Keep up the good work.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Carnera says he did not hear the bell ending the round after which he socked Young Stribling on the whiskers. His stock slumped considerably after losing to Strib on a foul, as the representatives made an important statement to the newspaper men. It was "I have nothing to say." If this department were offered their choice of any player in the Big Ten it would take Nagurski. Among the $155,020 worth of scholarships voted by the Harvard Corporation the other day are listed recipients Barry Wood, Jr., Victor M. Harding, Jr., William H. McEale, Foster S. Davis and Ira E. Hardy—all athletes. Though Harding's injury is believed to have ended his gridiron career.

Pasadena, Cal. 12.—(AP)—When football replaced chariot racing as the feature athletic attraction of the Tournament of Roses here back in 1916, the question of national gridiron supremacy was in some degree put on a tangible basis for computation. The clash between Southern California and Pittsburgh New Year's day in the fifteen annual renewal of the classic may result in a two fold answer to the question. Two fold, because the outcome may break the existing tie with five victories each for the east and west competitors, as well as establish something of a comparison between the two sections.

Three of the other 14 games ended in deadlock, while the fourth, a coast affair between Camp Lewis at Seattle, Wash., and The Mare Island Marines from San Francisco.

By confining the survey to college competition in the Tournament of the Roses, the west claims the edge, for one of the eastern victories was a service team conflict during the World War in which the Great Lakes training camp bested the Marines from Mare Island.

Two of the five victories credited to aggregations east of the Mississippi belong to southern elevens, thanks to Alabama and Georgia Tech. The other was scored by Harvard.

Likewise, a pair of the Pacific coast triumphs were turned in by northwestern teams; Washington State and Oregon getting the credit. California's big three, Stanford, California and Southern California, are responsible for the other wins.

Results of past contests:

1 MINUTE INTERVIEW

WITH TY COBB

Ty Cobb, back from a four-month visit abroad, is ready to resume an active interest in big league baseball. Cobb admitted as much at the world series, which he attended as a newspaper expert. Cobb is willing to again take a whirl at managing if the salary is right, but would prefer buying an interest in a big league club and directing its policy as general manager, rather than bench leader.

Of the foreign countries Cobb visited he liked Italy best. Being of the Mussolini temperament himself, he is keen for the leader of Italy and the great progress the country has made under him.

"Everyone is working in Italy," says Cobb, "because Mussolini doesn't tolerate loafers and the country is making great strides industrially. I got a great kick out of walking on the Apennian Way and recalling that the famous highway was used in the days of Caesar. I liked Rome and Venice better than any cities I visited while abroad. St. Mark's Square in Venice, about eight in the evening, is all too wonderful to describe. It was the big thrill of my trip.

"London is a beautiful city and England a great country but industrial unrest appears everywhere in Great Britain. I never saw so many unemployed people like Italy, everything is all business in Germany.

"France was the big disappointment to me. The French look on the Americans as a lot of 'hicks' and if you can't speak French, he is prepared to be taken for a rough ride.

"Japan is making the greatest strides in taking up baseball and England is showing considerable interest. In Italy and Germany they hardly know such a game as baseball exists.

Cobb, prior to the series, picked the Athletics as the winner and said Connie Mack's strategy would be the dominating factor.

The summary of both games follows:

NEW BRITAIN GUARDS MUCH MORE SPEEDIER

LUKE, HOLST AND SHEEHAN LEAD WAY FOR WINNERS; SHORT SNAPPY PASSWORK FATAL TO LOCALS; MIRIAM WELLES SCORES 10 POINTS.

By TOM STOWE

Flashing a world of speed and pep not to mention basketball ability, the New Britain National Guard quintet opened its home season in the State Armory at the Hardware City last night with an impressive victory over Manchester's Rec Five contingent. The score was 42 to 29 and the 13 points difference just about tells the true story although the count was closer at times.

Manchester got an even break when the Rec Girls turned in their first victory in four starts this season by defeating the North & Judd Girls of New Britain 11 to 6 in the preliminary encounter. The defeat of the Rec Five was the second loss in five games. Sunday afternoon the Rec Five will swing into action again, this time in Red Men's Hall at Bridgeport where they will be entertained by the Chrysler Red Heads of Bridgeport in a professional rule contest.

Youth and Speed The team representing the National Guards in New Britain is composed of players who are not considered quite good enough to make the grade on the professional team which the city sports. However, with a little more opportunity to play together, the Guards might be able to surprise their more experienced opponents in a city title series. The Guard aggregation is composed of youths imbued with the determination to win first and think of money and individual glory later.

One could not help but be impressed with the flashy passwork they exhibited, nor with their fighting spirit. At times they literally played the Rec Five off its feet with a short dazzling attack that often ended with a twin pointer. The Guard seemed to have more stamina than their opponents and they dashed here and there about the armory court with much more pep and enthusiasm. The Rec boys seemed tired late at times, they struck upon which all but carried them on an even basis with their worthy opponents.

Following The Score New Britain hopped away to a big lead. The score after something like 8 to 6 before Manchester scored. The quarter ended 10 to 4 and at halftime, New Britain was safely perched on top of a 26 to 14 lead. The defense of both teams tightened in the third quarter which yielded only a total of six points and the Guards still clung to a 30 to 16 lead. In the final period, the Rec scored one more point as both teams resumed offensive attitudes.

The winners at the time they needed no introduction to Manchester basketball fans because of his work in the building in which this newspaper is now being published, Mike Luke and Ray Holst led the respective squads for the winners at the respective expense of Tommy Faulkner "Madden", and Roy Norris. Madden, Faulkner and Farr tied for high scoring honors for Manchester with three buckets each. Holst and "Hank" Arburr had a very interesting duel in which honors were even at four points apiece, neither scoring until the last few minutes. They stuck to each other like a pair of Siamese twins.

All But 1 Point It was Miriam Welles as usual who played the feature role for the Rec Girls. She tallied four field goals and two from the free throw line to make every point but one for Manchester. In addition she missed several easy shots which would have made the margin of victory much greater. New Britain fans were much impressed with Miriam's work. The New Britain lassies were helpless before the strong defense which the Rec Girls spread across the armory court.

The summary of both games follows:

BASEBALL CONFAD WILL END TODAY

Action on Broadcasting Games and Curtailing Season to Be Taken.

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The baseball confab will end today with a combined meeting of National and American League forces at the Hotel Biltmore. It will climax the calmest meeting in baseball ever held. Even at this far-reaching confab today, the most important item to the fans—the question of an earlier closing next year—cannot be officially decided as it was found that the two constitutions placed this matter entirely in the hands of the league presidents.

NAMES GRUNDY TO FILL VARE'S SENATE CHAIR

Gov. Fisher Appoints Rich Manufacturer and Protective Tariff Exponent; G. O. P. Leaders Disappointed.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Joseph R. Grundy, wealthy Bristol manufacturer and protective tariff exponent has been appointed to the seat in the U. S. Senate denied W. S. Vare and has announced he will be a candidate in the primary next May for the remainder of the unexpired term for which the Philadelphia leader was elected in 1926.

Grundy's commission was signed yesterday by Gov. John S. Fisher. He is in Washington today prepared to present his credentials to the Senate.

The reaction of Republican leaders in the state, and particularly in Philadelphia, to his appointment indicates in the opinion of political observers, a bitter contest between Grundy and Vare at the coming primary election.

WORD PICTURE OF MAN
Washington, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Joseph R. Grundy, Senator designate from Philadelphia and one of the most talked of men in or out of the Senate, comes to his first national office wearing easily and with pride his sixty-six years.

Slightly above medium height, the long-time state and national political figure is stockily built, with broad shoulders, a deep chest, but with a waistline that might incite the envy of many a man years his junior.

Snow White Hair
He has a shock of snowy white hair, carefully parted on the left side, a full face with ruddy complexion and a pair of blue eyes that twinkle behind white metal-rimmed glasses.

Mr. Grundy is fastidious in his dress, wearing mostly dark suits, with striped shirts and collars to match.

He has two oddities of attire—old fashioned high topped button shoes and a leather band with a large buckle doing duty as a watch chain, extending from a vest buttonhole across to the lower pocket on the left side of the vest.

The Senator designate is a good story teller.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Appointment of Joseph R. Grundy of Bristol, as Junior Senator from Pennsylvania, places one of Boies Penrose's most trusted followers and confidantes in the seat once held by Penrose in the United States Senate.

Grundy enters the Senate eight years after the death of Penrose who held the Senate seat from 1897 to 1921. Five of the eight year period since Penrose's death the seat was held by George Wharton Pepper, whose term expired in January, 1927.

William S. Vare, who has been refused a Senatorial seat has already issued a statement that he would be a candidate to the finish for Senator—a stand making possible a three corner primary fight in May.

"Uncle Joe" Grundy, as he is familiarly known to his followers and friends, began his political career as a 21-year old who was not content with the ordinary existence of a business life. He was a student at Swarthmore college and entered his father's worsted spinning mills at Bristol in 1880.

Took Up Politics.
Attracted to politics, Grundy as a young man confined his activities at first to his home county of Bucks. He entered state politics at the time imposition of a tax on manufacturers was first proposed, a quarter of a century ago.

He was instrumental in forming the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association at about that time, of which he has been president ever since. The Association was organized for one purpose—that of fighting the levying of the proposed tax.

Years ago he turned his attention to national affairs with a high tariff as his main object. He was first thrust into national prominence during the 1920 national Republican convention at Chicago when he was credited with swinging the Pennsylvania elections from the late Governor William C. S. Sprout to Warren G. Harding.

His activities in Washington in behalf of a high tariff culminated in his being called before the Senate lobby investigation committee during the special session of Congress this year. On three days he appeared before the committee, told of his activities as a lobbyist, Republican campaign fund raiser and his views of those states he termed "backward." He held the tariff question, he said, next to his religion.

Helped Pinchot.
It was his support that won in the last minute for Gifford Pinchot the Republican nomination for governor in 1922. He had originally sponsored John S. Fisher, then state banking commissioner, for the gubernatorial nomination but threw his strength to Pinchot when Fisher withdrew.

Fisher became a candidate four years later in that memorable 1926 primary and Grundy again backed the present executive. Fisher aligned himself with George Wharton Pepper, running for reelection as Senator against the Vare-Biedeman ticket and Gifford Pinchot, running alone for the Senatorship.

Fisher won the gubernatorial nomination; both Pepper and Pinchot were defeated for Senator and last Friday the Senate after three years refused to seat Vare, claiming his campaign expenditures in that primary were excessive.

Grundy's most important public office thus far was a member of the borough council of Bristol. He is 67 years old next month. He is a bachelor and lives with his sister at Bristol.

WAPPING

Wapping Grange held its twenty-third regular meeting at the Center school hall Tuesday evening with over seventy-five Patrons present. It was the initiation in the third and fourth degrees with a harvest supper. There was a class of ten new members. The officers of Wapping Grange worked the degrees. Visitors present from Ellington, Manchester, Enfield, East Windsor and East Hartford Granges. After the supper, the young people danced.

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association scheduled for last Monday afternoon, has been omitted for the month. The next meeting will be held the second Monday afternoon in January. The Friendly Indians will meet on Thursday afternoon.

The Christian Endeavor Society will hold a public meeting at 6:30 next Sunday evening for the showing of the six reel anti-saloon film, "Deliverance."

POEM PREDICTED SUICIDE PACT

Henry Grew Crosby Wrote It Before He Shot Sweetheart and Himself.

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—His death which came apparently by his own hand in a friend's apartment Tuesday night, where his body was found with that of Mrs. Josephine Rotch Bigelow of Boston, their arms clasped in a death embrace, was foretold by Henry Grew Crosby in an exotic poem he wrote some time ago.

"But I shall die within my lady's arms," he wrote. The bodies of the Paris poet and the young Boston matron were claimed by Mrs. Crosby and Albert Bigelow, Harvard graduate student and former star hockey player, both of whom apparently were unaware of any attachment between Crosby and Mrs. Bigelow.

"I don't understand it. It is a terrible nightmare," Bigelow said. "I loved her and thought and believed she loved me."

The funerals will be private, attended only by relatives and close friends.

The Poem
The poem in which was written the prophetic line was entitled "In the Green Bed." It said in part:

"I shall not die within a madman's cell,
Or in the city of unconquered pain,
Nor on the ocean in a cockle shell,
When mad March winds are blowing hurricanes.

I shall not die among the multitude,
Or as a martyr tortured at the stake,
I shall not die in servitude,
Nor as a soldier for my country's sake.

But I shall die within my lady's arms."

The poem was dedicated to his wife.

Crosby was 32, the son of a New York banker and a nephew of the late Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan. Mrs. Bigelow was the former Josephine Rotch of Boston. She was married last June.

A medical examiner listed their deaths as the result of a suicide pact, the cause—gunshot wounds in the head.

SERVICE for the MOTORIST

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

Test For Broken Piston

The way a motorist whose engine developed a broken piston made sure of the trouble may suggest an idea to others who find themselves in a similar predicament or who would like to be sure the trouble that bothers them is not so serious.

He ran the engine until it was well warmed up and then removed one of the spark plugs. Into the opening he inserted a stick about a foot long and, running the engine with the starter motor, noted whether the stick went up and down in time with the piston. Trying the stick for each cylinder in turn he came upon one which left the stick stationary.

This proved that the upper part of the respective piston was sticking in the upper part of its cylinder. It is necessary to have the engine hot before starting the test, otherwise the broken part of the piston will follow the part joined to its connecting rod.

What Exhaust Smoke Means
Aside from its value in warning of the approach of a motorcycle cop the rear view mirror is useful in checking the efficiency of the engine. The appearance of smoke at the exhaust, and the color of this smoke, tell much about what is going on under the hood.

Bluish white smoke is the sign of burning oil. Either there is too much oil in the engine, too light an oil or the rings are leaking.

The more undesirable kind of exhaust smoke is the black variety. It indicates much too rich a carburetor mixture and can be stopped by generous leaning out. Black smoke follows excessive speed with some cars, as many observing motorists have noticed.

When an engine starts to tie up under excessive speed, and the throttle still is wide open, naturally the mixture for the cylinders is too rich.

Saves Smoothing Cylinders

While it protects a new engine to use oil in the gasoline the process carbonizes the cylinders and is apt to gum up the valves. If the driver is careful not to drive fast for the first thousand miles the better plan is to use oil in the gas only for the start.

Few owners realize it, but an engine in starting is apt to be damaged because the oil does not reach the cylinders fast enough. Some cars are equipped with special oil cans or cylinders which supply shots of oil whenever the starter motor is used.

This plan can be imitated with any car, if the owner will take the trouble to unscrew the cap from the top of the carburetor float chamber and squirt in a few drops of engine oil. The gas that is used for the start, therefore, will be oil laden. Oil can be put into the vacuum tank through the main gas line connection at the top, if the engine has to be used rather hard at the start.

Where Right is Wrong
Though it is about the simplest unit of an automobile the water pump continues to be the most car owners fail to master. If the pump leaks the average owner soon finds that he's licked. Invariably he is obliged to go to his favorite mechanic to have the matter attended to.

This is simply because he does not keep in mind the fact that the packing nut of a water pump has a left hand thread. It tightens by turning to the left instead of to the right.

Thus when the pump leaks and the owner gets out the pump wrench he usually makes matters worse. If he turned the nut a few times he would see that he is doing it the wrong way but he is just very enough in the art of car care to know that he should turn a packing nut as little as possible to stop a leak. Turning it too much may start a new and more serious leak.

Calming Energetic Starters
Starters that go off with a bang strain the teeth of the flywheel gear. The condition usually is due to the battery being too energetic and the obvious solution is to cut down the charging rate, if the trouble is chronic.

One way to spare the flywheel gear and to counteract the excess power of the battery is to waste current when stepping on the starter pedal or button. This is easily accomplished through switching on the headlights and sounding the horn. Using the cigar lighter will help. In fact, anything that consumes current will cut down the amount available for the starter.

Never place the gears in low in order to stop the starter from being too energetic. If the starter is made to pull the car it will be calmed down considerably but this will not help the flywheel gear. Rather the process will strain it more.

Graduate Important as Brand
One of the best things for owners of new cars to learn is the importance of specifying the right grade of oil for the engine, and of being certain that they get what they ask for. The grade of oil is getting to be just as important a factor as the brand.

Too heavy an oil will cause an engine to overheat. In addition to causing overheating too light an oil will encourage bearing troubles. Generally speaking, with the high speed engines of today it is more dangerous to risk using too light an oil than one that is too heavy.

Oil must be heavy enough to stand the higher connecting rod pressure caused by higher compression. If the oil breaks down under the load the situation is just as bad as if the oil was of an inferior brand or as if the quantity failed to take care of all needs.

How to Save the Hints of the Lubricator

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

As an old aid to proper cooling through cold weather, a radiator shutter is found highly useful and economical. The radiator at this time of the year has so high a cooling efficiency that it is difficult to bring the temperature of the engine up to its best operating point. The shutter helps this.

By keeping the shutter closed until the temperature of the engine has risen to its most effective mark, much gasoline will be saved and dilution of the crankcase oil will be prevented. Choking of the carburetor feed will be limited and all the fuel going into the combustion chambers will have a good chance of burning rather than flowing down the cylinder walls.

Once the engine is warm enough, the shutter may be opened just enough to keep the solution in the cooling system from cooling down too quickly.

If you have a radiator shutter that is thermostatically controlled, the thermostat will take care of that. But in case of a mechanically or hand-controlled shutter, it is up to the driver to watch a thermometer or judge the point at which the temperature of the engine can be kept at its proper operating level.

With the shutter keeping the engine up to the right heat and the anti-freeze mixture preventing trouble from cold weather, motoring in the winter should be a pleasure.

But the combination of shutter and anti-freeze is sometimes a difficult one to handle. It is sometimes misleading. If glycerine or ethylene glycol is used, waiting for the red line in the thermometer to rise to the "operating temperature" mark would be waiting too long and the engine would be overheated at that point. If alcohol is used, the red reaches the operating temperature line much too soon.

The reason for this difference in operation lies in the fact that the thermometer registers the temperature of the air above the solution in the radiator, which is colder than the liquid when glycerine is the anti-freeze, but which is heated up sooner by the use of alcohol.

If the shutter is thermostatically-controlled, the thermostat itself will cause it to open when the proper operating temperature of the cooling solution is reached.

Motors are designed to work most efficiently when the water jacket temperature is between 160 and 180 degrees Fahrenheit. When the outside temperature is just above the freezing point, and there's glycerine in the cooling system, the water jacket heat will reach the point of best efficiency with the red in the thermometer showing only one-third of the way up. The shutter should then be opened wide.

At zero temperature, the red will barely show when the cooling solution temperature is just right.

If alcohol is the anti-freeze, it will cause the cooling solution to reach a high temperature more quickly than glycerine will. Therefore it will cause the thermometer to reach the operating point even before the motor has reached it.

Despite this however, the motorist should not permit the thermometer to go beyond the operating level, or the alcohol in the solution will boil out, destroy the lacquer finish of the hood at the filler cap and reduce the amount of anti-freeze in the solution.

Once glycerine is added to the cooling system, there is no need to replenish it—provided, of course, there is no leak. Water might have to be added to the system from time to time, but not glycerine.

Alcohol, however, requires replenishing, since it boils away easily. Service station attendants can tell you whether you need more alcohol, by testing the solution with special hydrometers. Such a test should be made frequently.

Dundee goes for Cora and finds her dead, strangled with her hair braids. Inquest into the death of the woman is held. Magnus admits the love between him and Cora and her fear that Sevier would return to seek revenge for what she had told police about him. Sevier is brought up with the STORY

CHAPTER XL

The creaking of chairs, the gusty sound of sharply indrawn breaths, awed exclamations, marked the entrance of Emil Sevier, suspect slayer of two women. The hand-slendered, but not unattractive, young man who was as yet booked only as a material witness. He had not yet retained a lawyer, and as he slumped wearily into the witness chair his eyes glared about an audience containing not one friendly face.

The hours of grilling — and Dundee now knew that that was not merely a sensational newspaper term — and the witness, Emil Sevier, aristocratic violinist for the Little Queen theater, to a cowering, quivering wreck. Dundee knew he had neither slept nor eaten since he had been arrested at two o'clock in the morning. Nearly 15 hours of torture! The young detective felt a sharp twinge of pity, then, remembering the kids with which Cora Barker's lips had been gagged as her own hands were drawn away from her throat, his heart hardened. His eyes were as hostile as any that gazed upon Emil Sevier.

Norma Paige covered her lovely, pale little face with her trembling hands and Dundee envied the slipping a comforting arm about her shoulders.

"What is your name?" asked Dr. Price briskly.

"Emil Sevier — Emil Sylvester Sevier," the prisoner answered dully, without raising his eyes.

"You were acquainted with Mrs. Emma Hogarth and Miss Cora Barker?"

"Yes."

The examination was on. Dundee, suddenly almost as weary as the prisoner himself, leaned back in his uncomfortable chair and closed his eyes. Question and answer — all nauseatingly familiar to him now — followed each other in swift succession, until Dr. Price demanded:

"I will ask you, Sevier, if it is not true that you planned to rob Mrs. Hogarth of the money she was reputed to have hidden in her room?"

Sevier, who had too frankly admitted as much to Dundee early that morning, now stirred and straightened in his chair. He frowned, closed his eyes a moment, then blared them defiantly at the coroner.

"I refuse to answer, on — on the grounds that it — it might tend to incriminate or degrade me," he jerked out.

"So Sevier has had time to think, during these 15 hours," Dundee reflected, "and he is not the fool I thought him."

"Give an account of your movements on Saturday evening, June 29, from approximately 11 o'clock on," Dr. Price directed sternly.

Haltingly, conscious that every word he said would wind a loop of the hangman's rope about his neck, Sevier told the story which he knew Dundee could prove against him. Again he told of going to the Rhodes House grounds, of waiting in the greenhouse until Cora Barker returned home, of climbing up the rose trellis to the upstairs porch, of looking into Mrs. Hogarth's room from her window, of seeing the dead woman in her chair and Cora Barker searching for something at the desk; of scuttling away down the rose trellis, of sprinting to the alley, of his crushed straw hat in his hand.

But as before, Sevier refused to tell anything else after that moment when Dr. Weeks had seen him, raising his hat to shield his face from the glare of the headlights of the car which had turned at the entrance to the alley.

"I ask you again, Sevier, where you kept yourself from that night until this morning at two o'clock," Dr. Price reiterated sternly.

"I refuse to answer," Sevier retorted wearily, for the third time.

"Is it not true, Sevier, that you returned to Hamilton last night and climbed to the upstairs porch of the Rhodes House called Cora Barker to the window, and strangled her?"

"No, no! That's a lie!" Sevier screamed. "I tell you, I never laid eyes on Cora Barker after I

IF START IS MADE SOON ENOUGH IT IS EASY TO TRAIN A CHILD

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The normal child can usually be easily trained to proper home habits. If it is placed regularly in the chair and kept there long enough, it will develop a sense of habit and time in a brief period. The training should be started not later than six months of age and at first a regular two-hour schedule should be adopted. The child should be placed on the chair every two hours and remain there no more than ten minutes. If the child succeeds, it should be praised and perhaps rewarded. If the child wets or soils the clothes, it should be scolded or otherwise informed that it has not done the proper act or what should reasonably be expected. This schedule usually causes children to respond successfully.

It does not, of course, have the same effect on a child who is mentally backward, nor is it quite so simple to train the child to nighttime dryness. For this purpose, it is probably best to see to it that the child has relatively little fluid before going to bed. It should be taken up when the parents go to bed and probably again at two or three o'clock in the morning, until it learns proper habits.

As is emphasized by Florence Mateer, mentally backward children and those who suffer from various abnormalities and lack of development of the tissues and organs will not respond promptly to such training. These children should have a physical and mental examination and the training will require for them a much longer time, indeed anywhere from two months to several years.

It is difficult for parents to determine for themselves whether or not their child is fully up to the normal activity. The parents watch the child day by day and they are likely to delay attention much longer than is desirable. So much may be done with the backward child if proper training is given early and consistently followed, that parents should never delay if there seems to be the slightest doubt but should demand competent advice early.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

I'd like to know what Sir James and settled down definitely and finally to draw reality. I'm sorry.

Oh yes, there are tons of marvelous things — and the toy departments are the most exciting places in the world, but there is a trend to matter-of-factness, to workadayness, that I rather hoped the children could be spared. Every year it's just a little more so. Last year I'm sure there wasn't a concrete mixer, and the year before, very likely, there was no army truck.

The smell of pine brings back the memory of distant years when tarlatan and tinsel fairies hid in the tree branches, and Palmer Cox's Brownies grinned up roguishly from the book covers. The dolls didn't play on typewriters and there were no concrete mixers. But I suppose times must change.

The WOMAN'S DAY

A young girl who is spending Christmas a thousand miles away from her mother, conceived a practical way to bridge the geographical gap with the human voice. She went to a shop where you can record on a black record, and "jazzed off" a whole disc of loving messages and Christmas greetings to her mother and her various friends in the old home town.

"I can be played on any regular phonograph and while it may be less of an artistic triumph than one of Kreisler's violin solos, it is probably the selection her mother would most love to hear on Christmas morning."

"I can just see mother's face when she hears it," she said. "She'll laugh and the tears will come in her eyes, and then she'll play it for everyone that comes in all day — and they'll think I've gone crazy."

"For it is amazing how quickly you run out of things to say about your own children — when you have to use such an artificial medium. You'll get positively stage struck, and after you have talked a minute or so, and the disc is about half full, you suddenly can't think of a word to say."

"Then you stall, stumble, and the finish is terrible — but naturally, the worse it is, the funnier it is."

"After I finished mother's, I thought what a good idea it would be to do one for the boy friends."

"I didn't take any chances on that. I wrote out a nice little speech, and thought of all the things I wanted to say, and I read it like a good radio speaker. It sounded almost too good to be natural — but I'm quite sure he will be pleased."

Talks To Parents

LIMITATIONS.

By Alice Judson Peale.

By the time Amy was 15 it was apparent to everyone that hers was not the quality of intelligence that could cope successfully with her higher academic learning.

Even her parents had to admit that she was not only incapable of going to college, in accordance with the family tradition, but that she was not even endowed with sufficient intelligence to get along in any situation in which she would be pitted against those possessed of average mental equipment.

Already in school, Amy was beginning to show signs of the strain in an increasing irritability and in a resentful, vindictive attitude towards certain of her classmates.

Amy's parents swallowed their pride and faced the facts. They cut short the struggle to acquire book learning, and allowed her to remain at home.

Gradually she has taken over the responsibilities of the household. This she has learned to do very well indeed, and her pride in doing work which makes her really important in the home circle, and which therefore meets with genuine appreciation, has done much to enable her to use to the best advantage such ability as she has.

She has learned to cook and to market and to keep accurately the simple household accounts. She takes care of the linens and each spring plants a charming garden which calls forth the admiring comment of the neighbors.

Because her parents were wise, Amy, who might have become one of the most difficult and unhappy of mortals, is a well adjusted young woman, able to play a happy and useful part in life, and to live pleasantly among those who are fond of her.

The acceptance of our children's limitations is always difficult. Few of us, luckily, are called upon to

Gifted Needle

Another woman of limited means, but who is what they call "handy" with the needle, has solved the Christmas problem by specializing on just two types of gifts.

All her relatives and friends are going to receive an apron, or something for the clothes closet. For both she uses figured and plain chintz, attractively matched or contrasted as to color.

The aprons are of the decorative type, which no woman minds being caught in — in fact, the sort you make it a point to appear in before company. Yet they are practical and they are ideal gifts, particularly for women who keep house rather sketchily, and who make a feature of the occasional company dinner.

Going through a city store, she was fascinated by the attention the closest is receiving from interior decorators and the manner in which it is being embellished. She copied the attractive bags for dresses, covers for hats, the fancy hat and shoe boxes. Every item developed in chintz.

Her shopping was easy, since it required only the purchase of ma-

"THE GREAT DIVIDE" AT STATE FRIDAY

Famous Western Drama Makes an Unusually Fine Talking Picture.

Greta Garbo in "The Kiss," and Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miles in "The Sap," the current attractions at the State, will be shown for the last times today. The west has rarely been the background for a more colorful and stirring romance than that depicted in "The Great Divide," an all-talking vitaphone production which will be seen at the State Friday and Saturday. Those who remember "The Great Divide" as a stage play will find this dramatic vehicle, which enjoyed popular favor in the United States and Europe, heightened in suspense and action in this all-talking picture version. A number of tuneful songs have been injected into the scenes, surprising those who never could have believed that the play would lend itself so admirably to music. The picture at some moments assumes the rhythm and harmony of an operetta, especially in a big fiesta that takes place in Mexico. Dorothy Mackall has the leading role, and the strong supporting cast headed by Ian Keith, Myrna Loy, Lucien Littlefield, Creighton Hale, Roy Stewart and Claude Dillingwater. The plot is strong and realistic, in keeping with the scenic grandeur of the locale. Miss Mackall's role is of a type in which she had such great success in recent pictures. It is a new theatrical experience to hear hard-boiled wise-cracks come from such a beautiful creature as Dorothy. SENSE and NONSENSE

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS.

WATCH DOG Christmas Night.
Seems to me the stars shine brighter, Christmas Night;
Seems to me the snow lies whiter, Christmas Night;
That the solemn trees stand straighter,
And the frosty moon sets later,
And the hush is stiller, greater, Christmas Night.
Seems to me sad things are fewer, Christmas night;
Seems to me glad things are truer, Christmas night.
"Seems to me the bells ring clearer"
From their steeples, louder, nearer—
Seems to me the whole world's dearer,
Christmas night!
Christmas night!

And when it ebbed it took my sand."

LONG DISTANCE
Johnny: "Father, are Generals brave men?"
Father: "Yes, my son, as a rule, I think they are."
Johnny: "Then why do artists always make pictures of them standing on a hill miles away, looking at the battle through opera glasses?"

I work with SAFETY on my mind,
It's so with ALL my kin,
And when but ONE day old—

Rejected Suitor: "So you are going to marry another?"
The Sweet Young Thing (coldly): "Yes."
Rejected Suitor (sarcastically): "Well, I'm willing to bet that within two years you both will be wishing you had married me."

The squad of recruits had been taken out to the rifle range for their first try at marksmanship. They knelt at 250 yards and fired.

Not a hit. They were moved up to 200 yards. They fired. Not a hit. They tried it at 100. Not a hit. "Tenshun!" the sergeant bawled. "Fix bayonets! Charge! It's your only chance."

The transatlantic flier heard a rattle, which indicated that some nuts and bolts were shaking loose. A few minutes later he crossed the border of Scotland and everything tightened up.

The latest Scotch story is about a man who is encouraging his family to stick to the no-stocking fad until after Christmas eve.

"My dear, I thought I'd tell you I had changed my mind," a lady told her hubby, who replied: "Well, I hope the new one works better."

Bahrain is the center of the famous pearl fishing industry of the Persian Gulf. Over 500 boats and 15,000 divers are engaged there in fishing during the summer months.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinymites were full of pep. Said Scooty, "Come, boys, let's all step right into work. I'm sure that we will have a lot of fun. We have all of the tools we need and if we all show heaps of speed, this task will be real simple and we'll shortly have it done."
"You're right," said Santa. "That's the way to make your work seem just like play. Remember, everything you make will make some youngster glad. I want no little tots forlorn when they wake up on Christmas morn. Each toy will reach some little girl or greet a happy lad."
"Now I must leave you for a spell. I'm sure you'll do your work up well." Then Santa left the little shop. "I'll soon come back," said he. "Then to some other shop we'll go. There still is heaps to see, you know. Before you all leave to-day, you'll be glad you called on me."
It wasn't long till Clowny said, "I'll paint a scooter brilliant red. Just watch me. I won't spill the paint, but do the job up right." He grabbed a paint pot from nearby and soon the paint began to fly. It wasn't long until the scooter was a brilliant red.
"That's all there is to paint right now," said Carpy. "I will show you how to put these things together. As a carpenter I'm smart. Use glue and nails and work real fast. Oh, my, how time goes sailing past. Be sure and make all of the toys so they won't come apart."
"Twas quite a thrilling sight to see them all as busy as could be. Wee little carts took shape real fast and rolled around the floor. The Tinies tested them when done and riding was a lot of fun. "I like this work," cried Coppy. "They can give me work galore."

In previous seasons, this service has been acclaimed the most beautiful of all the year. Following the processional, the choir will sing from the chancel a program of medieval and modern Christmas carols, while the candles burning on the communion table, illuminate the scene. The "Halleluia Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah" will terminate the service.

It Makes a Difference where you buy lumber

We haven't a corner on all the good lumber in the state, nor are we the only concern abiding by the square deal. But we do try to show our customers our appreciation for their patronage in every way that good business practice justifies. When you order a specified thing here you get it—promptly—and at a fair and reasonable price. Remember that when you need lumber!
