

CHENEY POWER PLANT CHANGES CUT FUEL COST

Two Major Alterations Re- duce Smoke Nuisance, Improve Boilers, Make Steam Cheaper.

Cheney Brothers are now engaged in carrying out two major power plant alterations which will reduce smoke and cinder nuisance in their plant and in the town, which will permit higher efficiencies from present boiler equipment, and which will produce cheaper steam and power, for Cheney Brothers' mills.

The first project has to do with the substitution of oil burning in the two larger of its power plants, for coal burning. The two boiler plants involved in this are what are locally known as the Spinning Mill boiler plant and the Old Mill boiler plant. The other project is the installation of a high pressure steam line between the Spinning Mill boiler room and the Yarn Dyehouse boiler room, which will permit the discontinuance of use of the latter.

Timely Change
The going from coal to oil has been made possible and advisable at this time through the comparatively recent improved method of producing, refining and transporting fuel oil, and through the considerable amount of scientific handling and burning of the heavy fuel oil which will be burned at Cheney Brothers' plant. Power plants on seaboard have successfully gone from coal to oil as long ago as ten or twelve years. The methods of handling fuel oil and of transporting same at that time, however, were such that the cost of oil for inland power plants made the conversion from coal generally uneconomical.

The conversion to oil involves nine boilers with a total boiler horse power capacity of approximately 2,800. About 70,000 barrels of oil will be used per year. This amount of oil is not properly compared with the 22,000 tons of coal formerly used at Cheney Brothers' plant on account of the fact that a considerable amount of power was generated from this coal operated plant which is now being supplied in the form of electrical energy by the Manchester Electric Company. The initial oil used in starting up the plant will be furnished by the Yarn Dyehouse, which has a storage at Wethersfield of 135,000 barrels, from which they deliver by truck. After the initial period, oil for these plants will be furnished by a Hartford company, which receives and stores it in Hartford. They have a 28,000 barrel capacity storage, which is exclusively devoted to the use of Cheney Brothers. This capacity will be ample to take care of the season when the Connecticut river is closed to navigation.

The Equipment
The oil burning equipment, including furnace alterations, is being installed by the Hammel Oil Burning Company, of Providence, on contract. All piping, trench work, oil storage and other work outside of the boiler room walls is being taken care of by Cheney Brothers' forces.

The oil used is what is known as Bunker "C" 14-16 Baume. This is really the residue from crude oil after the gasoline and lighter oils have been removed. At ordinary temperatures it is thick, of high consistency and its burning is accomplished through full automatic equipment. It is forced into the furnaces at approximately 140 degrees temperature and 75 lbs. pressure, and atomized by high pressure steam, the boiler dampers and feed-water level being also automatically controlled.

The local storage is made up of 10 steel tanks of 20,000 gallon capacity each, which are installed to receive oil both from automobile tank trucks and from railroad tank cars. Cheney Brothers will have one tank car of their own to take care of emergency transportation of oil between the two main storage locations.

Eliminate One Plant
The Yarn Dyehouse boiler plant, consisting of four vertical boilers of a combined rated capacity of 1,000 boiler horse power, will be eliminated upon completion of the steam line being installed between this plant and the Spinning Mill boiler plant. This economy measure is made possible through the higher efficiencies at which the boilers in the Spinning Mill plant will be operated under oil, and on account of the recent shutting down of the two large steam engines. The power formerly generated by them is now being supplied by the Manchester Electric Company from Hartford. The Yarn Dyehouse plant having outlived its usefulness to a large extent, represented a relatively high maintenance cost, which will be eliminated there, without greatly increasing such cost at the Spinning Mill plant.

Under the new arrangement there will be required less help in Cheney Brothers' boiler plants. This, of course, has been known for some time and in most cases where jobs will be eliminated adjustments have already been made or have been planned so that these men will be

Engineer Killed By Radio Volts

Dean Goddard Was Preparing to Broadcast When He Is Electrocuted—Was Widely Known

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Victim of a product of his own mind and hands, Dean R. W. Goddard, of the Engineering School of New Mexico Agricultural and Mechanical College was killed last night by a charge of 12,000 volts of electricity received while he was preparing equipment for a radio station on K O B for a New Year's eve broadcast.

Dean Goddard, widely known radio engineer, designed and built the station, operated by the college, which is 35 miles west of El Paso.

C. P. TAFT IS DEAD NOTED PUBLISHER

Brother of Ex-President Was 86 Years Old—Patron of the Fine Arts.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Reposing, in death at the end of a long career as one of America's distinguished patrons of the fine arts, Charles Phelps Taft was recipient today of tributes for his many benefactions. He died last night at the age of 86 after being subject to lingering infirmities of advanced age which became serious three days ago, and caused a lapse into coma from which he never recovered.

While arrangements for the funeral were being made today, Taft's half brother, William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States Supreme Court and former president of the United States, planned to leave Washington with his wife to attend the services.

Charles Phelps Taft had published the Cincinnati Times-Star for fifty years and during that time had distinguished himself in the patronage of not only art, but education and the development of modern journalism.

Near him at the time of death, were members of his family, including his daughters and three nephews.

The distinguished Cincinnati had an important hand in the development of practically every major project for the civic and cultural betterment of his city.

Among the Cincinnati Institute of Fine Arts, Taft and his wife in 1927 gave their art collection, worth several millions of dollars, and an endowment of $1,000,000.

He spent almost all his life in Cincinnati, his native city, except to navigation.

FISHER PREDICTS PROSPEROUS YEAR

Yale Professor Says Future Is Bright Despite Recent Crash in Stock Market.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Prosperity for 1930, despite the lingering memories of the Stock Market crash, is forecast by Prof. Fisher of Yale.

Prohibition, the application of science and invention to industry, and scientific management in mass production were cited as contributing factors for a better business outlook. He spoke last night before Iowa bankers.

"Prohibition is a highly controversial subject," Prof. Fisher said, "but not on the economic side. Whatever else we may think of prohibition there is no gainsaying its economic value."

Future Earnings
"Future earnings may also be expected to be greater because we are now applying science and invention to industry as we never applied them before. Inventing is now a profession."

"Scientific management and mass production are contributing to increased dividend earnings. Labor unions are increasingly sympathetic with scientific management and have largely renounced the policy of limitation of output." The stock market was said to be "unsound financing of sound prospects."

"The real trouble," he said, "was not so much the high prices of securities as that there were too many people in debt and too deeply in debt. The outlook was so very bright as to dole the public and lure them into debt to get rich quick."

CABINET QUILTS IN SPAIN, SAYS A NEW REPORT

Madrid Also Hears That Dictator Has Also Handed in His Resignation—No Official Confirmation.

Paris, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Lieut-General Primo De Rivera, Marquis de Estella, and Dictator of Spain was said today in a report from Hendaye, Spanish frontier to have tendered resignations of the Cabinet to King Alfonso.

The King was said to have reserved decision, but to have promised to communicate his answer to the dictator within three days. General Primo De Rivera has been premier and dictator since his military coup de etat in 1923.

The report added that the finance minister presented his own resignation to the premier on Monday night and declared that even if other ministers retained office he would maintain his resignation. The joint resignation followed, being handed the king Tuesday morning.

It was not taken to mean necessarily that General Rivera would relinquish his leadership in the government but merely might seek a modified form of dictatorship.

MANY RUMORS
Madrid, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Political circles today seethed with rumors of various imports, chief among them that General Primo De Rivera Spanish dictator, had presented his own and his Cabinet's resignation to King Alfonso.

It was said he would permit the King to name a man to form a new government. Persons close to the premier however, denied that any such plan had been formulated. It was not taken to mean necessarily that General Rivera would relinquish his leadership in the government but merely might seek a modified form of dictatorship.

King Alfonso himself presided over a Cabinet meeting yesterday at the Royal Palace. The ministers would not say what took place.

Refraining from comments on the reported crisis in the government, the newspapers today confined themselves to publication of long statements made by Primo de Rivera on the last day of the year.

One of the prevailing versions is that at a cabinet meeting presided over by the King, Primo de Rivera presented a program which has often been announced, whereby the Assembly would modify the electoral law permitting municipal, provincial and national elections to be held. The King, this version adds, told Primo de Rivera that his opinion was not favorable to this plan.

Primo de Rivera then left the hall, the subject in the hands of the sovereign, asking him to decide whatever he considered better for the country.

Political Custom
According to political custom this has always been called in Spain "to submit to the King a question of confidence."

While some believe that the decision of the King will be favorable to Primo de Rivera, because no adequate organization exists to replace his government, others minority believe that the monarch may find a formula contrary to Primo de Rivera, forcing him to resign.

It is also being said that Primo de Rivera is absolutely calm, being satisfied that he has fulfilled his duty during the years he has held power, and that he is disposed

CALLED TO DOOR, SHERIFF IS SHOT

Three Men Hold Him While Fourth Fires Shots—Revenge is Thought Motive.

Lumberton, N. C., Jan. 1.—(AP) Four unidentified men last night called Hoke B. Smith, Columbus county deputy sheriff from his home here, and while three of them held his body, the fourth fired four shots into his chest.

The officer is in the hospital here and physicians say his slight chance to recover.

Revenge the Motive
The deputy conducted a raid yesterday on a liquor distillery, seizing 500 gallon still and several hundred gallons of whiskey and destroying several thousand gallons of mash. Columbus county officers expressed belief the attack was in retaliation for Smith's prohibition enforcement activities.

Smith said the men called at his home and told him they were seeking a stolen car and asked his aid. He said he suspected a plot and refused to accompany them and that the three then grabbed him and held him while the fourth emptied a pistol at him.

Two bullets went through Smith's chest, striking his spinal column. A third struck him in the hip and a fourth wounded his arm.

Unworried by Dancer's Threat

The wedded life of recently married Gilbert Colgate, Jr., heir to toothpaste and soap millions, shown above with his bride, isn't apt to be disturbed by threats of Thais Le Pe, Russian dancer, to file a $1,000,000 breach of promise suit against him. For the erratic dancer now is serving a 90-day jail sentence in Washington on charges of beating hotel bills, and New York police have announced they will arrest her on a charge of violating parole on another conviction. All of her accusations against young Colgate have been denied.

PAPERS OF GEN. GAGE GIVEN TO UNIVERSITY

Documents Cover History of North American Continent from the Years 1763 to 1765—Just Discovered.

Durham, N. C., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The papers of General Sir Thomas Gage, British commander-in-chief in America from 1763 to 1775, have just been obtained by the University of Michigan, through the gift of William L. Clements, its director of the American Historical Association today by Randolph G. Adams, director of the University of Michigan library. Mr. Adams is attending the annual meeting of the association.

The documents naturally cover the whole of the North American continent, Mr. Adams said, "from the West Indies on the east, to the Mississippi on the west and from New Foundland on the north, to Pensacola, on the south."

"Involved in the documents is the correspondence between General Gage as the King's principal representative in America and all of the colonial governors; all of the British commanders, both on the eastern seaboard and on the frontier posts; and thousands of letters with the disgruntled merchants and business men, whose irritation caused the American revolution."

Other Documents.
"The University of Michigan library already contains the headquarters papers of the British army in North America throughout the New Year. There wasn't even a fire and only one arrest, while the number of broken bottles scattered along the sides of the streets was conspicuously smaller than a year ago this morning."

Only ordinary sized crowds witnessed the early performances at the State theater, but the midnight show was largely attended by a crowd that seemed to be far more interested in the screen offerings than in trying to put over any sort of synthetic celebration.

Dances Here
Without a doubt the one biggest party in Manchester was that conducted by the Tall Cedars of Lebanon at the Masonic Temple. Three hundred dancers attended and enjoyed a gay time. A chicken patie dinner was served during the night, Walter Waddell catering. Fred Finigan and his committee were the recipients of many congratulations because of the party they executed.

There was a well attended private dance at the Manchester Country club and the Rainbow Inn and Dance Palace on Bolton Hill attracted a large crowd.

One Called Off
That Manchester doesn't go in very strongly for the conventional public-dinner sort of New Year's eve celebration is demonstrated by the fate of the enterprise of a local shop keeper who had planned such an affair at Tinker hall and had

Nearly All Town Officials Violated the Liquor Law

Mullan, Idaho, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Officers on Federal liquor charges apparently had a potent sobering effect in itself.

Seven of the officials, who were among the 24 persons found guilty of participating in the operation of a "wide open" town, appeared in Federal Court yesterday, declared they believed appeals would be useless and asked to be committed to prison at once.

Sheriff R. E. Weniger, who received the heaviest sentence, two years, in Federal prison and $1,000 fine, decided to appeal however, and was released under $5,000 bond.

SUPPOSED GIFT EXPLODES; ONE KILLED, 7 HURT

Woman Opens Package in Home and Blast Wrecks
House—Youth Loses His Left Hand.

Washington, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Explosion of a package, thought to have been a belated Christmas gift, today killed one woman and injured seven other persons, at Seat Pleasant, Md., and set Federal, state and county officers to work seeking the source of the bomb.

The dead woman was Mrs. Leona Hall Brady to whom the package was addressed. Six of the injured also were members of the family of John S. Hall, including his wife, Mrs. Nora Hall. Two of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Hall were so badly hurt their recovery is doubtful.

Their grand-mother, Mrs. Margaret Bromley, also was in a serious condition from shock and Leslie Hall, 16-years old, lost his left hand.

Kitchen Demolished
The Hall family only recently moved to Seat Pleasant from Woodmore, Md. The kitchen of the frame house was virtually demolished by the blast and neighbors attracted by the explosion sent the injured to hospitals. Mr. Hall was at work at the time.

A part of the inquiry centered on whether the package was sent through the mails. One report was that it had been left for Mrs. Brady at a neighborhood store.

Xmas Wrapping
The package which dealt destruction to the Hall family was done up brightly in Christmas wrapping. It exploded as the family gathered around joyously to open it. Police said an automatic detonator apparently was thrown as the wrappings were torn.

The father who was working at a cemetery several miles away trailed his family to the various hospitals trying to learn something of their condition.

Police found small new nails scattered about the room and after an investigation said it was believed the bomb contained black powder, dynamite, nails and stags.

It was developed after the explosion that the deadly gift was delivered several days ago, by error, at the home of John Buckley, another resident of Seat Pleasant, and the package reposed in their home undisturbed until they learned that the Hall family had moved into the neighborhood. Then it was delivered to the correct address.

TO BURY CHILDREN IN ONE BIG GRAVE

Seventy-two Victims of Panic in Scottish Theater; Pathetic Scenes Today.

Paisley, Scotland, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Arrangements proceeded today for a mass funeral for the 72 youthful victims of the blind panic which followed a small fire yesterday afternoon in the Glen motion picture theater here. The City Council, recognizing that most if not all represented either impoverished or humble circumstances expected to provide for interment in a single grave. Meanwhile weeping parents continued identification of the bodies of their children, most of whom were between the ages of 5 and 14.

Parents entered the death chamber presided over by nurses who led them between the long rows of little bodies. One woman found three of her brood lying side by side.

There were some cases in which the seekers failed to identify the death changed faces and left declaring "my child is not there."

Others made mistaken identifications and in at least three cases where identification was thought to have been made the sorrowful parents returned home to find their youngsters awaiting them there, safe and well.

Doctors who spent hours inspecting the theater and tending the 80 or more who were injured in the panic believed that if the children had stayed quietly in their places when the fire alarm was given not a single life would have been lost. They said none of the deaths was due to gas poisoning.

STUDENT MISSING

Woodbury, Jan. 1.—(AP)—At a late hour this morning, no word had been received of the whereabouts of Charles Robert Abbott, 14, High school freshman, who has been missing from his home here since yesterday when he drew his slender savings from the bank and disappeared, saying that he intended to walk to the center of the town.

The youth is believed to have headed for New York or possibly New Jersey, where a married sister and brother reside.

HOOVER'S RECEIVE GUESTS AT CAPITAL

White House Thrown Open to Public at President's First New Year's Reception—
Long Lines of Diplomats Pass Chief Executive

Washington, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The great white mansion in which the President and Mrs. Hoover live was thrown open to the public today in Mr. and Mrs. Hoover's first annual New Year's reception.

Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Gann and members of the President's Cabinet joined the Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover on an upper floor of the White House before the reception started and together they marched to the Blue room where Mr. and Mrs. Hoover took their place in the line for the shaking of hands.

Envoy First Visitor
The first person to greet the President was Sir Ennys Howard, ambassador from Great Britain, who today attended his last New Year's reception at the White House as an ambassador. He retires in February.

Moving rapidly, the line of diplomats, resplendent in gold braid and decorations, passed by the Chief Executive. Following the diplomatic corps was the Supreme Court personnel.

For the first time in many years President Taft did not attend the reception. He was en route to Cincinnati to attend the funeral of his brother, Charles P. Taft.

Long Line of Visitors
The long line of senators and Congressmen and their families formed in the East room and paraded past the Marine band in the main corridor to the State dining room from where they entered the Blue room where Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were stationed.

The Army and Navy officers formed at the north entrance long before the jam of officials ahead of them had been cleared away. At the gates of the White House grounds hundreds of persons gathered for the reception to the general public during the afternoon. Some of the people in the general line had been at the gates since 8 o'clock in the morning.

BACON DENOUNCES BAY STATE LOBBY

President of Senate Also Warns Against Putting
More Laws in the Books.

Boston, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Emphatic denunciation of the practices of legislative agents who try, in secret, to influence legislation today marked the address of Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the Massachusetts Senate at the opening of the 1930 session of that body.

President Bacon also criticized what he termed "the all too prevalent tendency to legislate on every conceivable pretext." He said that the substantial citizens of the Commonwealth would call a halt to indiscriminate law-making because "we are surfeited with statutes."

He pointed out that the statutes recognize and define two classes of lobbyists—legislative counsel and legislative agents, both of which are required to register but that there is an important distinction between the two.

Works In Open
"A legislative counsel works in the open," he said. "He presents his information and his argument at public hearings before committees where all have a right to be heard. His function is a useful one and the Legislature benefits by his advice."

"But a legislative agent seeks by other methods not in the open to influence legislation. As far as the threshold of our legislative process, they should be stopped."

President Bacon also voiced severe criticism of a "third class of citizens, who, because they claim to be acting gratuitously, are not required to register with the sergeant-at-arms, but who do not hesitate to solicit admission even to the Chamber floors."

"They are interested in legislation, some of them actively, yet they cannot technically be excluded as lobbyists," he said.

He outlined his program for changes in the general laws which would apply to specific persons, localities and interests.

To Raise Standards
"It is my earnest ambition to perfect our legislative procedure, to period of unrest and agitation in the Colonies that led to the Revolutionary War.

Whether he was an able commander, facing unusual conditions with which he was wholly unfamiliar and unable to cope with, or whether he was so undiplomatic and inefficient as to have bungled his job, long has been disputed.

Historians have said it was Gage's action in sending 800 soldiers to capture the colonial stores at Concord which really precipitated the war of independence.

SESSIONS ENTERTAINS CHOIR IN HOUSE PARTY

Members of South Methodist Group and Their Wives and Husbands Celebrate.

Choir members of the South Methodist church, with their husbands or wives to the number of fifty, gathered at the home of the choir director, Archibald Sessions, for a New Year party last night.

Mr. Sessions' home is charmingly situated in the Highlands. The lighting device at the entrance door and the living room seemed to extend a warm welcome.

During the evening a message of greetings was received from Mrs. Crowell who was unavoidably absent, conveying her best wishes and kind regards, all of which were heartily reciprocated and Mr. Crowell was appointed to assure her of this fact.

Robert Von Deck, just before midnight and from a distance sounded taps on the bugle and on the stroke of 12 sounded reveille. This was followed by chorus singing, while outside the younger element at Highland Park serenaded the chorists with much bell-ringing and noise-making.

ALL GO CALLING AT THE CAPITAL

Diplomats and Society Folks Spend the Day Visiting Friends.

Washington, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The ticker tape showers with which Wall street greets celebrities, were rivaled today by the paper and pasteboard deluge with which Washington welcomed a distinguished visitor—the New Year.

Calling cards mounting into many thousands figuratively eddied and swirled and sifted about doorsteps like snow flakes. Everybody went calling.

One leather goods house was completely sold out of card cases yesterday owing to the unprecedented demand. Antique Roman seemed to be the favored lettering used on the cards. Most of them were of plain white while a few were of the most expensive parchment.

A possible recruit for the choir was discovered in the beautiful collie dog which accompanied Mr. Crowell to the party. He persisted in joining in the choruses with his profound bass in a manner to excite the jealousy of that section of the choir.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Wednesday, January 1.

Not all New Year's celebrations are held on shore, and a typical deep sea greeting to 1930 will be broadcast from the trawler "Spray" over WABC and the Columbia stations at 8:30 Wednesday night. Songs and music by the fishermen, together with a set of unpeppable resolutions are to be heard, following which a thrilling story of the coast guard will be told. The tale tells of a captain called from the bedside of his sick daughter to rescue a ship driven on a lee shore. Never falling in its attention to duty, the call of the service is paramount in the guardman's mind, but when at last the rescue is made and he can return to the sick room he finds his child is past the crisis, and all ends happily. The half hour later the same network of stations will present an interesting program of light ballads interpreted by the Columbia male quartet. This is a sustaining feature of the Columbia network.

Wave lengths in meters on left of station title, kilocycles on the right. Times are all Eastern Standard. Black face type indicates best features.

THE DAY IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 1 (AP)—Resolving themselves into a gigantic committee for the reception of distinguished visitors, New York's millions extended a noisy but orderly welcome to the New Year. Raids on 17 night clubs and speakeasies, by 150 Federal prohibition agents failed to dampen the festivities. The raids were made on information previously obtained and no patrons were arrested. The places were closed and the patrons asked to leave. Broadway was jammed with celebrating crowds and hotels were packed to capacity. Cover charges in hotels ranged from $8 to $15. In the night clubs seats at tables cost as high as $25.

"DREAM JOURNEYS," 11:35 P.M. Designed as a quiet, restful finale to the night-time broadcasts of Station WTIC, "Dream Journeys" seems to have justified the contentions that led to its origination. Members of the WTIC staff had long entertained the notion that such a program would be received favorably. The response from the audience indicates that they were right. The feature consists of a series of poetic word pictures, which, combined with appropriate musical selections, are intended to recall fond memories to the minds of listeners. Jack Brinkley, WTIC announcer, has been serving in the role of interlocutor, while Cliff Strong presides over the organ console, with various WTIC entertainers and musicians assisting. "Dream Journeys" is heard at 11:35 o'clock

BAY STATE CUTS ITS TAX RATES

Boston, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The new year greeted Massachusetts residents today with the possibility of a substantial reduction in their state income taxes. Whether the babe fulfills its early promise depends upon the convening legislature. Reductions of one-third in the present tax rate on income from wages, salaries, trades and occupations, and of one-half on income from investment were recommended by the special commission on taxation, which filed its report with the clerk of the House of Representatives yesterday. The commission also recommended increased exemptions for married persons. Under the present law a benefit is allowed an exemption of $2500 on earned income and $250 additional for each child up to 18 years old. Under the proposed law the exemption would be increased to $3000 with $250 additional for each child up to 21 years of age. The proposed legislation would also permit exemptions of $250 for all other dependent persons. Single Men. Single men under the proposal would have their exemption reduced from $2000 to $1500, except in the case of single men who are heads of families, when they would be allowed equal exemptions with married men. The 50 per cent reduction in the tax on investment income would not be an unmixed blessing, however, for the commission proposed to include in the taxable lists a large amount of investment income which now escapes taxation entirely.

FIREWORKS ON PEAK

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—For the second year in succession residents of Colorado Springs and surrounding territory were unable to see the pyrotechnic display of the Adaman (Capa's) club, at the summit of Pike's Peak last night. Yearly, club members scale the famous mountain to celebrate the advent of the new year. After two days of climbing, fourteen members of the club completed the ascent of the mountain cap. They were discerned late in the day through powerful field glasses placing structures for the fireworks. Yawning after a meal may mean that you have eaten too much, says a physician. Unless you are at a banquet where the after-dinner speaking isn't so hot.

SELECT AZORES ISLE AS AVIATION HAVEN

Terceira Island, Azores (AP)—This green island of the Azores, which a Portuguese government commission of aviation experts has selected for the site of a modern airport, covers an area of roughly 225 square miles. Unlike the other eight small and rocky sister-islands which make up the Azores, Terceira is flat. It was singled out because its wide open spaces lend themselves ideally to the taking off or landing of modern aircraft. Pressure of public opinion and the many airmen who lost their lives in attempts to span the Atlantic from west to east is responsible for the government action. Aviators who in the future make of Terceira a port of call will find comfortable country inns, excellent

CHICAGO'S WHOOPEE

Chicago, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Chicago salaamed to 1930 unwonted flourish and unprecedented whoopee. Plenty of noise, plenty of people, plenty of traffic remained as a sober sun cast its first inquiring glance from the east today. The weather had much to do with it, for it has been many years since Chicago has celebrated such an occasion under as perfect weather conditions. Not a single arrest for liquor law violation was made by Federal agents, who were scattered throughout to cafes and night life centers. Police however made numerous arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct and there were several shootings.

CAPITAL'S NEW YEAR

Washington, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Washington greeted 1930 with an outburst of informal gaiety last night and took up today a ceremonious round of official new year functions. At the head of the list of the day's events stood the traditional White House reception, omitted last year because President and Mrs. Hoover were out of the city. The Chief Executive and the First Lady of the Land, who last night spent a quiet homelike New Year's eve, made ready to receive thousands of guests, and a busy period of handshaking extending from 11 o'clock well into the afternoon. Following the customary routine of official precedence, the Cabinet

THE DAY IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Resolving themselves into a gigantic committee for the reception of distinguished visitors, New York's millions extended a noisy but orderly welcome to the New Year. Raids on 17 night clubs and speakeasies, by 150 Federal prohibition agents failed to dampen the festivities. The raids were made on information previously obtained and no patrons were arrested. The places were closed and the patrons asked to leave. Broadway was jammed with celebrating crowds and hotels were packed to capacity. Cover charges in hotels ranged from $8 to $15. In the night clubs seats at tables cost as high as $25.

Will you receive part of the $600,000,000 or more which will be distributed to them in cash about December 1st? In other words, do you belong to the Christmas Club. Christmas Club members are thrifty people who know that a dollar is worth its weight in happiness at the Yuletide Season. The public spirited cooperation of more than 8,000 banks and financial institutions operating Christmas Clubs has enabled the public to set aside small sums each week to meet their Christmas needs. Simply tell us how much money you want for next Christmas, and we will enter you in the proper class. It is very simple and practical. Why not join now for 1930? Then you will be sure of a full purse and a good time next Christmas." Includes a table of weekly payments and the Manchester Trust Co. logo.

TODAY marks another great forward step in the history of the Ford car. For today the new Ford bodies will be officially introduced and a new beauty brought within reach of every one.

Take a little while today, therefore, to visit the showrooms of the nearest Ford dealer and see these beautiful new Ford bodies. Note the new roomy interiors, the new deeper radiator, the new hood and cowl, the new fenders, the new streamlines, the new wheels and tires, the Rustless Steel used for exposed metal parts—everything that contributes to this new beauty for the new Ford.

To outstanding mechanical performance, the new Ford now adds a new grace of line and contour. To motorists everywhere these new bodies are a further reflection of the Ford policy of constantly improving the car and of giving value far above the price . . . $435 up—f. o. b. Detroit.

A BUSINESS EXPERT LOOKS INTO 1930

Conditions to Improve After Slow Start and Continue to Get Better at Quickening Pace as Year Goes on, Forecasts Colonel Ayres

Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company of Cleveland, Ohio, is one of the nation's most noted business statisticians and economic experts. In the following article, written for this newspaper and NEA Service, he forecasts business conditions that may be expected in 1930.

By LEONARD P. AYRES
Vice President, The Cleveland Trust Company

Four sets of conditions appear to be of leading importance as factors helping to indicate the kind of business which we may expect in 1930. The first is that industry has been slowing down, and notably so in the production of automobiles and iron and steel and in building construction. The second is that there has been a great fall in stock prices. The third is that interest rates have suddenly become low, instead of being high; and the fourth is that the administration at Washington has organized country-wide efforts to sustain business activity, and to avoid unemployment.

COLONEL AYRES' FORECASTS FOR 1930

1. Short-term interest rates will probably have a downward trend as we enter the early months of 1930, changing to a rising one before the close of the year.
2. Production of cars and trucks will probably fall below that of 1929.
3. Building construction will probably not differ from that of 1929 by more than 5 per cent.
4. Stock prices in the closing months of 1929, but still below the recent high levels.
5. The total output of iron and steel in 1930 will probably be distinctly less than in 1929.
6. It seems unlikely that the cost of living will change much in 1930.
7. Average wholesale prices of non-agricultural commodities in 1930 will probably be less than in 1929, but not by more than 5 per cent.
8. It is likely that there will be more unemployment in the early months of 1930 than in the corresponding months of 1929, but with conditions improving as the year advances.
9. Average industrial wage rates will probably not differ by more than 3 per cent from 1929.
10. The net profits of industrial corporations in 1930 will probably be distinctly less than in 1929.

does not seem probable that the bear market of 1929 will be followed by any slowing down of business at all comparable with the old-time business depressions. The one previous bear market for stocks which was not followed by a depression came in the war period in 1918 and 1917, when speculative, instead of being over-speculative, was unable to keep up with the extraordinary demands of the war. It was not a typical period, but it does at least furnish one example of a bear market not followed by business depression.

closing years of the last century, and the early ones of this, the speculator did not worry because the ticker tape was late. He worried because his broker was likely to close its doors, as many of them did. He worried because if his bank did not fail, it did refuse to lend him any money, and he declined to let him withdraw even his own funds that he had on deposit.

Finally he worried because the companies in which he had stock were likely to go into insolvency. The speculator of today has only to worry about prices and margins, but in the old days, when the speculator was in business as well as in the stock market, he had some real multiple worrying to do.

The trend of security prices in 1930 promises to be a rising one, and if this turns out to be the case the bad effects of the recent crash of stock prices will be progressively decreased. Moreover, an important stimulating effect on general business.

Business is Strong Despite Stock Crash
The fact is that business and banking in 1929 are almost invincibly strong. Their conditions do not in the least resemble those that existed in the pre-war days. In the bear markets of the

Schwab Gives New Year Message To Young Men

New Orleans, Jan. 1.—To the ambitious young men of today who are building their castles in the air and dreaming of days when fame and fortune will be theirs, Charles M. Schwab sends this encouraging New Year's message:
"America today has thousands of more great, wide-open opportunities for her youth than ever had when I was young. If I could have the one wish that it is in my heart it would be to be young again, and have the fun of fighting upward."
"I wouldn't want to start rich. I'd want to start poor. Whatever you get in this world isn't half as much fun as was the fun fighting for it."
From $1 a Day to $1,000,000 a Year
Of course, you've heard of Charles M. Schwab. He's head of the Bethlehem Steel Company, the second largest in the world, and one of the nation's most outstanding self-made men. After driving a stage and clerking in a grocery in his boyhood in Pennsylvania, he went to work—at 19—for a steel company at $1 a day, dragging chains for an engineering crew. Quickly he won one promotion after another; and today, as head of the company, he is reputed to receive $1,000,000 a year and is one of the richest men in the world.
Schwab was interviewed while visiting New Orleans in his private car, Loretto. This palace-on-wheels had an interior of elaborately carved mahogany and wall panels with beautiful landscapes of silver and gold. There is a dining room, a kitchen, private baths and a complete and luxurious office.
"I hear men talk about America's situation today as though we had reached some summit," Schwab continued. "Compared to what this country will be 50 years from now, we haven't even reached the foothills. If it is fortune that Americans are seeking, the fortunes today will look as tiny and as funny 50 years from now as the fortunes of George Washington's time look to us now."
A Pictures of 50 Years Hence
"Lord, the fun these youngsters of today are going to have in their next 50 years! And I'll be out of it! Like a Civil War veteran while they were fighting in the Argonne."
"We are going to see great leaders come up in aviation as we saw leaders come up in railroading, in steel, in textiles, in automobiles, in farming machinery."
"If you're young today, look around you. Use your head and use your courage. Don't be afraid to take a chance on anything fundamentally honest and constructive. Anything this world can offer is yours if you're big enough to take hold of it and keep hold of it after you have taken hold."
"Your only limit is death. That's got to come. Nothing ought to be able to stop you until it does come. When Emil Ludwig, the great biographer, asked me, 'Mr. Schwab, what is the objective of a great American business man and how

IMPORTANT TASKS BEGUN IN HOOVER'S FIRST YEAR

Naval Conference, Tax Cut and Business Parleys Stand Out Among Administration Achievements.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer.

HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—For the new Hoover administration 1929 was a year of big things begun. It was the year of hard work. The president took no summer vacation and Congress, with its special session, its special session and lately its regular long session, has been on the job much more than in any ordinary year.
Last New Year's Day found Herbert Hoover sailing home from South America, concluding in his mind the first important phase of a strong but friendly foreign policy which he has since carried with general approval. Even before taking office he had begun what was hailed as a new era of more amicable relations between the American republics and his subsequent policy has been designed to foster the improved atmosphere. Among other things he has undertaken to strengthen the caliber of our diplomats in those countries.
Although not a great deal has been definitely accomplished, the administration has established a foundation for reduction of military and naval expenditures in Hoover's preliminary work done for the important London naval limitation conference which will soon begin, including the unprecedented personal conferences of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and President Hoover in Washington.

Naval Conference Next Big Step.
Everywhere foreign or domestic affairs, one observes the beginnings of efforts which, if successful will result in substantial achievements. Only a few of the more important ones are summarized in this space.
After inauguration, Hoover lost no time in calling the special session of Congress to deal with the farm relief problem and a revision of the tariff. The administration bill providing a Federal Farm Board with the promise that the government would join in the general movement. The effect of Hoover's emergency measures cannot be judged with exactitude, but he believes that confidence was re-established and that a large amount of unemployment and suffering was prevented.

Thanks largely to Hoover, there has also appeared the National Business Survey Conference under the chairmanship of Julius H. Barnes, which recently appointed an executive committee including a score of America's most important men in business. Here, too, one finds significant beginnings.
These have been the year's most important developments from the Hoover standpoint, although one might mention various other Hoover beginnings in the tackling of problems such as the appointment of his commissions to study the public lands and child welfare problems. Business Recovery Being Hastened.
But the test of the administration has hardly begun. In most cases the executive must act in conjunction with Congress and inasmuch as Congress has been tied up and tangled up mostly with the tariff there has been no chance to get going.

During the summer the administration's firm intention that it would stand for no more dallying obtained ratification in Paris of the Franco-American debt agreement. France had to pay $400,000,000 at once in case of the drastic revision of the Hawley-Smoot measure which has been made on the Senate floor. But tariff legislation has been begun and is rather sure to be completed, in one fashion or another.

Meanwhile, however, Congress has done some things on its own. That is, the Senate has, for the House is content to take orders from the administration. The Caraway committee began a rather thorough-going exposure of lobbying here which even caught Senator Bingham of Connecticut in its toils and another Senate committee began but never completed an investigation of William H. Shearer's activities at the Geneva naval conference. The Shearer investigation probably prevented any repetition at London.
The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, with Couzens of Michigan as chairman, began and is continuing its investigation of the "power trust" and the "radio trust." The investigation is supposed to contain considerable "dynamite" which may or may not be allowed to explode.

After three years the Senate last month disposed of the famous Vane case by refusing to allow the senator-elect from Pennsylvania to take his seat.

"HOLLYWOOD REVUE" AT STATE TWO DAYS

Big Musical Spectacle Offers Today and Tomorrow; Many Stars Shown.

"The Hollywood Revue," the huge musical spectacle staged and screened by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with new songs and new dances by stars of the stage and screen, lot of "gags" and abundant happy melodious and sparkling dialogue, will be seen at the State today and Thursday.
It is a radical departure from the motion pictures to which we have become accustomed, even in the talkie epoch. It is a revue, a huge vaudeville show for young and old alike, staged with gorgeous settings, twenty musical numbers, a huge dancing chorus and a galaxy of stars in the greatest cast ever assembled for one motion picture. Marion Davies appears as a singer and dancer in a highly amusing "Tommy Atkins on Parade," supported by a male chorus of six-footers. John Gilbert and Norma Shearer are also on the bill. They do a romantic bit from Shakespeare and then jazz it up in modern tempo. Beasts Love appears in her own dancing and singing act. It could not be anything but a hit with Beasts at her best. Conrad Nagel makes his screen debut as a singer and is the interlocutor of a minstrel number. William Haines throws you into convulsions of laughter with those wise-cracks which have made him famous. Buster Keaton does an Egyptian snake dance that is immense. Karl Dane and George F. Arthur are there in a highly amusing bit. Joan Crawford croons a song in a heart-tugging manner. Polly Moran and Marie Dressler are teamed as funny women for the first time, and many other star acts, too numerous to mention keep the fun moving at a fast and furious pace for two full hours. It is one of the real treats of the new movie season, and to miss it will be to miss seeing one of the screen's choice morsels of enjoyable entertainment.

torist declares that the case will be taken to a higher court through application for a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Bonee, it is reported, considers that the law passed by the Legislature, making mandatory the imposition of six months jail sentences for second offenses of drunken driving, is too severe.

Whatever may be the technical merits of the case very few persons, save those who labor under the delusion that they themselves can drive an automobile competently with a load of liquor under their belts, will sympathize with the proposition that six months in jail is an excessive penalty for drunk-driving by an individual who has already been convicted of that offense. There are any number of motorists who will heartily agree that a driver who does not learn his lesson after a single arrest for this offense should not only get a long jail term but should be set adrift for a considerable period of years and never again receive a driving license unless he can convince a competent court that he has completely weaned himself of the drink habit.

Also, if this case is carried up through the courts it will be of interest to the public to learn just what special conditions in this case influenced the Hartford judge to attempt to reduce a jail sentence of 26 weeks to one of ten weeks. There is very little satisfaction in being told that the prisoner had been found "deserving of consideration." Every jail prisoner is deserving of consideration.

RETALIATION

If Ambassador Edge goes to all permissible lengths in attempting to convince the French government that that country should not impose the proposed extremely high duties on automobile parts and greatly increased rates on assembled automobiles he will be doing no more than the French diplomatic force at Washington tried to do with relation to various schedules in the tariff bill pending in Congress, which schedules affect French products just as the proposed French tariff affects American automobile industry.

It will seem, however, that Mr. Edge will be in a less advantageous position in making remonstrances against the proposed tariffs than were the French diplomats, for these proposed French duties against American automobiles and parts are plainly retaliatory in threat and the Frenchmen's answer to any protests almost writes itself—a shrug of the shoulders and, "You started it."

There is no question of abstract rights involved. We have the complete right to impose such high duties that all foreign manufactured goods would be barred. So has France. No such proceeding could be regarded as an unfriendly act. It is as fair for one as for the other.

But carried to its logical conclusion such tariff procedure would spell the end of substantially all international trade save in a very few absolutely needed raw materials. On such a basis America could survive but it would require a terrific readjustment.

That is precisely why President Hoover strove against the adoption of a general tariff bill. He could see what would result from a carnival of rate raising. Perhaps the position of the French government may shed some illumination on the situation even among the members of Congress.

DIALECTS

Professor George Pierce Baker of Yale hopes that the radio and the talking movies will prove to be of great assistance in standardizing the speech of Americans, eliminating the slurred drawl of the Southerner, the nasal intonations of the New Englander, the burring R's of the Midwest, and so on. He would have us all speak the same variety of English; which, it is not unfair to assume, though he doesn't say so in so many correctly formed words, is the kind spoken by Yale professors who were born in Rhode Island and graduated from Harvard University.

Perhaps it is desirable that the people of Connecticut and the people of California and the people of Georgia shall undergo some process of oral leveling so that it will no longer be possible for the place of one's origin to be spotted by the stranger the moment one opens his mouth; but we'll suggest that this is a matter of more importance to fugitives from justice and birds of such feather than to good citizen of any locality whatsoever. And what's more, we confess to a preference for hearing a man or a woman speak convincingly in Kansas, Vermont or even the slushiest of roller coaster South Carolina than to listen to the oily unconviction of a radio announcer whose voice is filled with those funny little marks out of the dictionary that tell us the correct values of vowel sounds.

We shall be more impressed by arguments in favor of standardizing local American accents when we hear them advanced by some bird who doesn't hold the conviction that his own speech should be the pattern for the standardization.

PAISLEY HORROR

The dreadful theatre tragedy at Paisley, Scotland, while an almost exact repetition of other theatre horrors that have occurred at widely separated points in the last twenty years, is one of those grisly episodes which seem to be inseparable from existence if the members of the human family are to allow themselves any leeway at all from constant guarding of their personal safety.

There is inherent danger in the assemblage together of large numbers of persons within four walls. That kind of danger is increased when the gatherings consist largely of children. But what is to be done, beyond the establishment of such safeguards as are almost universally adopted?

We cannot forbid the gathering together of children for recreative purposes. We cannot provide 100 per cent measures of safety for such gatherings. There is a certain element of risk which, it would seem, must at all times be run. All that we can do is to make sure that the risk is brought down to an irreducible minimum.

There is a terrible amount of tragedy in the sum of human experiences anyhow. Perhaps, save for the shock and peculiarity of it, such a harrowing affair as that at Paisley is no worse than a diphtheria epidemic. But each such affair should serve as an incentive to the closest possible supervision of theatres and other public gathering places.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 1.—Seers and Prophets, Unlimited, was an unlisted, stock hard hit by the late Wall Street debacle.

Since that unpleasant cleanup, the gazers of Manhattan have had to give a bit more heed to the earth. They've had to take a hitch in their belts, for a vast percentage of the horoscopic business came from staged a leading horoscope in what the Wall Street feds held for them. This was particularly true of the swankier clairvoyants, crystal ball readers and sky carters. Two such rose to fabulous wealth and the offices of a leading horoscope writer at a minor subway jam daily. There were many otherwise solid business men who made weekly visits, drawn by the magnet of superstition.

But when the crash came, alas and alack, the skies had showed no revealing lightning bolt. Many a man have found to date who was warned by the prophets. And what happens to be a bit more ironic—a woman whose name was at the head of the psychic list failed to get personal warning, and "closed" for something like half a million.

All of which has cast quite a shadow over the "big money" prophecy business. The dozen and one minor prophets of Manhattan, however, never fail to thrive. In a city where confusion reigns, as it does in New York, the army of the uncertain goes constantly forth in search of solace and mystical advice. Hence, no city—with the possible exception of Los Angeles—contains quite so many cults devoted to the occult.

In the mid-town section, "tea readers" flourish in half a dozen tea rooms. They wander from table to table, peering into the cups of the thousands of women attracted by the "fortune telling" feature. While this is presumed to be an entertainment feature for the crowds, the "readers" are given fat tips to "tell more—and more." Generally some arrangement for more private tea readings can be arranged.

Each winter, an army of gypsies wanders in from the road and moves into any 3 by 5 stall that happens to be vacant. The better known of the palm-crossing or pitch camp over near the North river and make the curious ladies come to them by limousine or taxi. The prices are high, and a $10 fee is not at all uncommon. The funds thus laid up in the winter, frequently take an entire gypsy band across the land when the spring sun appears.

Some of the prettier gypsy girls hang out their palmistry signs in the west Forties—sections frequented by sailors and male loungers who are likely to be attracted by dark gypsy eyes. The possibility of a flirtation generally interests the sailor boys more than the promised fortune, and the tips are usually large.

The so-called "closed" dance halls of Manhattan, that are generally under the eye of the police or of welfare bureaus, now allow their "hostesses" to accept paid invitations from young men who come up to dance. If one of these young dance partners strikes the fancy of a lonely visitor, who wants to go places and see things, she can be hired as a guest for $3 an hour, plus the cost of dinner and cover charges.

HEALTH & DIET ADVICE. Dr. Frank McCoy. "Keep the Best Way to Health". QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY RETURN OF THIS ADVERTISING CARD. ENCLOSE STAMPED ADDRESS ENVELOPE FOR REPLY. DR. FRANK MCCOY, 1000 N. WASHINGTON ST., WASHINGTON, D. C.

WASHINGTON LETTER. By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

THE NEWNESS OF THE NOW

Perhaps New Year's Day is picked out as the one day you reform because of the fact that so many on this day are dejected and melancholy after their night's hilarious celebration of the evening before. New Year's Eve seems to be the one holiday celebration in the year where all restraint is thrown aside and so many seem to think it is absolutely necessary to celebrate dangerously.

Those of my readers who awaken sleepy-eyed this morning may have good reason for having thoughts of reform, but would it not be better for all of us today to stop meditating upon the bad habits of yesterday, and determine to do some positive thinking in creating new habits which will make for health and happiness? The eternal NOW is the only time really worth considering. The only time we are ever really conscious of is the ever-present now. If there is any time ever best for starting a good habit, it is now. The one who can expect no future of happiness or health is the one who always thinks of the future as tomorrow, and does not consider the all importance of the present moment.

As you lay your paper down after reading this article, think of the first good thing you can do for yourself, and do it immediately. It may be that you are just about to sit down to the table. If that is so, you will never have a better time in your life for starting the good habit of eating a sensible meal for your health's sake. There will be enough things on the table that you can use which you know to be healthful foods. Refuse those other foods in front of you about which there can be the slightest suspicion.

Perhaps you have not been out for a long walk today. If not, now is a good time to start. Go out and walk as far as today's strength permits, and each day try to increase the distance, and correspondingly increase your strength and endurance.

Perhaps you have been careless in your choice of companions. If so, do not let the day go by without seeing either an old friend or a new table to table, peering into the cups of the thousands of women attracted by the "fortune telling" feature. While this is presumed to be an entertainment feature for the crowds, the "readers" are given fat tips to "tell more—and more." Generally some arrangement for more private tea readings can be arranged.

Perhaps you have been drawn into bad habits of living, thoughtlessly staying out late too many nights, going to too many parties, and eating and drinking too much. If you are ever going to make any serious change for the better, you must not put off making this change until tomorrow or any other time, but do it at once, even though your habits of living undergo a very radical change even this very day—the first day of the year 1930!

Lay out a plan for yourself today, and follow it today. At the same time, it is also wise to make plans for each succeeding day. Determine how many hours you should spend at your work, how many hours for sleep, and how many for recreation and study. Most people can do well with eight hours for work and eight hours for sleep. Most of the harm from bad habits comes from those which are practiced the other eight hours of the day. Determine how you can use those eight hours to the best advantage. There will be plenty of time for outdoor exercises or indoor calisthenics, plenty of time for going occasionally to the theater, and many hours when you can study, either with private teachers or from the thousands of wonderful books which record the thoughts and deeds of the greatest minds in history. Try spending an hour or more each day with such thinkers as Shakespeare and Emerson.

Create your new constructive habits for health and efficiency so that each day of this year you will be full of increasing happiness and satisfaction.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. (Red Nose). Question:— Mrs. E. S. writes:

"My case has been diagnosed as ulcer of the stomach. My nose, which has been red for a long time, has become more so, and sore to the touch within the last two weeks. Might this indicate cancer of the stomach?"

Answer: Red nose would not be an indication of cancer of the stomach. You may have some local infection of the skin, such as erysipelas, but a red nose is usually a sign of extreme intestinal poisoning from auto-intoxication and constipation.

(Silicon). K. D. G. writes: "Kindly tell me, is there any difference in silica and silicon? Also, do whole rye products contain a worthwhile amount of silicon?"

Answer: Silica is the English word for silicon dioxide. Whole rye does not contain a very large amount of silicon.

DOCTORS TO HELP CRUSADE AGAINST NOISES IN HAVANA

Havana.—(AP) Havana has an official noise clinic. Its staff is composed of otolaryngologists with ears especially attuned to strident sounds. They will study the effects of loud discords upon public health.

The commission is to aid the anti-noise campaign of Mayor Mariano Gomez who last September started a crusade which he hoped would destroy the city's reputation as the world's noisiest metropolis. It is safe to say, however, that the mayor cut out a big job for himself for the city is basically noisy. Sidewalk selling of talking machines and radio loud speakers, the ever present hurdy-gurdy and screeching taxi horns, all had become part of the very life of the Cuban metropolis.

Thus far the anti-noise crusade has not effected any startling change. It has brought added revenue to the city through fines imposed on many who have been found guilty of violating anti-noise rules, but noise continues.

Many Habaneros do not want a silent city. They rather enjoy the cacophony which to them means activity. Furthermore, they feel that the noise is an added attraction to the American tourist.

"Who would deprive the American of his pleasure in comparing New York and Havana noises?" they smilingly ask.

FASCIST FEUDS BOTHER SOUTH FRANCE POLICE

Cannes, France.—(AP)—A bitter secret war between Fascists and anti-Fascists on the Riviera is presenting the police with a difficult situation.

Besides many unexplained disappearances the casualties for the past year include six killed by bombs and seven other murders. Not one murderer has been caught, nor one murderer arrested.

Secret societies within secret societies, the disposition of the Italian workman to shift from town to town, and the extremely high percentage of foreigners in the Alpes-Maritimes district, coupled with the fact that the killers probably are brought from other regions or countries, combine to baffle the sleuths.

Scatter Rugs in the Semi-Annual SALE. REDUCTIONS for the Semi-Annual Sale, opening tomorrow, have been made throughout the Rug Department... large rugs for every room in the home, including the sunporch, and carpets as well. One of the outstanding events is the clearance of scatter rugs at HALF PRICE. Here are grouped hundreds of rugs of every weave, in discontinued patterns, samples and odd lines. Included are rugs from 18x36 to 36x72 inches, and a few larger in the following weaves: Oriental Reproductions, Wiltons, Velvets, Axminsters, Reversible Chenilles; Cotton Chenilles and Ret-Rac Chenilles; Rag Rugs and Mohair Rugs. Every rug is marked just half of its original price, and many can be matched in different sizes. Make your selection early tomorrow morning!

NICARAGUAN WRITES ABOUT INTERVENTION. Mexico City.—(AP)—Adding to the title the explanation "this is not a book of hate," Herman Hobbes, under-secretary of education in the Saca government at Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, in 1926, and now in newspaper work here, has written a volume purporting to give the true Nicaraguan reaction to American intervention.

Root's Tribute. Elihu Root, when he was secretary of state, gave, perhaps, the best description of Gillett yet heard. Gillett had been to see Root in the interest of one of his constituents. As he left, the secretary turned to a friend and remarked: "It is interesting to see in Mr. Gillett the necessities of politics struggling with the instincts of a gentleman."

ELECTROCUTION HELD NOT ALWAYS DEADLY. Berlin.—(AP)—Proof that electrocution does not kill is claimed by Dr. Hartmann, a Silesian. He reports successful resuscitation of several seemingly dead persons by massage and artificial respiration, after hearts had apparently ceased beating for hours.

Pointed Speaker. Election as speaker of the House meant much to Gillett. He had regarded it as the goal of his ambition, for he was the first Massachusetts man to win that honor since the Civil War.

CONVICT RECAPTURED

Hamilton, Mass., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Frank Currie, 27, of Gloucester, one of three inmates of the Essex county jail at Salem who escaped last Thursday, was captured in a series of arrests in which six men were taken last night and early today in the woods here on a charge of stealing an automobile. The two other men are still at large.

The men were arrested after police became suspicious when seeing them change automobiles. They were: William Regan, 25, Joseph Banville, 24, Wilfred Banville, 27, Louis Abbruzzese, 21, all of Lynn, Arthur Arribare, 26, of Swampscott, and Currie.

No reports of the whereabouts of Joseph P. McGuinnis, 24, of Salem, or James Mullen, 37, of Arlington, have been received since their escape with Currie while other prisoners were eating breakfast last Thursday.

SEN. BROOKHART AGAIN ASKS MELLON TO QUIT

Washington, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The second demand for the resignation of Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury during the current prohibition controversy came today from Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, a Republican dry, who said he wanted not only Mellon removed, but others in the Treasury Department identified with enforcement.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, Republican Independent, had previously said that Mellon quit his place as the chief prohibition enforcement officer.

Brookhart's assertion that Mellon should lose his official head, was the second time within recent months that he has attacked the secretary of the treasury. In a speech on the Senate floor made on the famous "Wall street booze party" he said that Mellon should be removed.

The Iowa Senator indicated today that he would carry the prohibition controversy to the Senate floor next week.

SEMI-ANNUAL SALE

WATKINS FINE FURNITURE WILL BE SALE-PRICED TOMORROW

EVERY piece of Watkins Furniture is handpicked by our own buyers. Utmost care is used in selecting the choicest bits of all the great furniture markets. Each is carefully weighed, so to speak, in comparison with similar pieces. Is it the best in design and construction at its price? Does it meet the needs of our customers?

At the end of each six months we check our stock. Here and there are groups and individual pieces which have remained after the majority have found new homes. Here also are pieces left from larger groups . . . perhaps a wing chair from a living room suit or a bed and dresser from a bedroom ensemble. Too, there are pieces in upholsterings which cannot be matched, and other groups and pieces which the manufacturers will not make again.

All these fine things are included in our Semi-Annual Sales. Tomorrow opens the winter sale. The largest assortments and, of course, the choicest things, will be ready for those who shop early. So we urge you to visit us tomorrow, if possible.

During November 1929, deliveries from this store were made to 58 cities in eight states of the country. Every month the list grows longer!

The first antique department to be included in a furniture store in New England, outside of Boston, was at Watkins Brothers. No matter whether it is modern furniture, reproductions of the old, or the antique, you'll find it in our various shops.

M. H. S. Meets Test At Bristol Friday

Both Hold Victories in C. C. I. L., No Defeats—Hot Tussle Expected; May Decide Championship.

Manchester High's basketball squad will meet its acid test Friday night at Bristol when they mingle with the three-time state champs, who are out to make the list of championships four. Both teams boast formidable records, Bristol with wins over Torrington and West Hartford, Manchester over East Hartford and Rockville. It will be a league game.

Two veterans, Captain White and Allaire, form part of the latest Bristol machine with Gurski, Hall, F. and L. Laporte, Lincoln, Palau and Albertelli making up the remainder of the squad.

Coach Wilfred Clarke will in all probability use his entire squad of ten players to repulse the Bristol advance to another state title, which Manchester victory might bring home to the locals. The squad is O'Leary, M. Moriarty, Smith, Courtney, Dowd, Tierney, Nicola, Squatrito, Turkington and McCormick.

BOWLING

Fireman's League

Ed Wisotzke rolled a new high single in the Fireman's League the other night with 134 in the match between Team 1 and 4. At the same time Captain Bill Montie of No. 1 rolled a new high three string of 357. Team 1 took all three games from its opponent. The league standing follows:

1 MINUTE INTERVIEW

WITH MAJ. CAVANAUGH

"Why get excited about something that everybody knows." That was the characteristic reply of Major Frank Cavanaugh, former Dartmouth and Boston College coach, World War hero, now in charge of football at Fordham University, when I asked him what he thought of the Foundation report that was "that way," is now a traffic policeman in Indianapolis. . . . Charley White, the old Chicago lightweight, is studying law at De Paul University, Chicago. . . . And Willie Ritchie is proprietor of an ice rink in San Francisco. . . . Ed Stevenson, Otto von Porat's manager, used to be a middle-weight wrestler before he took up plumbing.

FUMBLE RULE HERE TO STAY, DECIDES RULES COMMITTEE

Believes It Accomplished Main Purpose; Contemplate No Major Change; Summary of Report.

By ALAN GOULD

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The new and much discussed fumble rule, applied for the first time in 1929, has come to stay in the gridiron code. This was made clear and emphatic today by Edward K. Hall of New York, chairman of the National Football Rules Committee, in his annual report to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The rules committee, as a matter of fact, contemplates no changes for 1930, beyond such technical revisions and clarifications as may result from the completion of the rewording of the whole rules book. The attitude of the committee, as expressed by Mr. Hall, thus coincides with the views of football coaches who want no record on interceptions or forward passes, also to prevent an attacking side from advancing its own fumble.

Mr. Hall's report, in summing up the case for the new regulation, emphasizes that it accomplished the main purpose of broadening and strengthening the strategy of the attack by inviting freer use of the backward or lateral pass, that it simplified the rules, and, finally, reduced to a minimum the number of games won by a fluke and the neutralizing of an earned touchdown by one that is unearned.

"The two principal criticisms of the fumble rule were that it would tend to promote fumbling and that it would take away some of the thrill of the game," said Mr. Hall. "The first of these is absurd, for the loss of possession of the ball is in itself a serious enough penalty to prevent carelessness. As to the second, the rule deprives the spectator of one of the great thrills of the game it might be appropriate to again state the fact that the rules committee has always proceeded on the theory that the game is primarily to provide wholesome sport for the hundreds of thousands of boys who play rather than to provide thrills for the tens of millions of those who watch them play.

"Whatever thrills may have been removed from the game by the fumble rule will in the next few years be replaced many times over by the more legitimate thrills that will be replaced many times over by the inevitable come with the gradual development of more daring handling and passing of the ball."

Mr. Hall's report declares that the other two important changes in the 1929 rules, aimed at the screening pass and the so-called "bootleg" ball, convincingly accomplished their object.

"The bootleg ball has disappeared," says the report. "The officials and coaches have cooperated in making effective the revised wording of the rule prohibiting the screening of the forward pass and the delayed pass, we trust, has gone permanently into the discard."

An increase in the number of goals from the field, even with the "goal" posts moved back ten yards from the goal line, and all-around improvement in the kicking department, was noted by the rules chairman. He indicated there is no disposition on the part of the rule-makers to consider restoring the posts to the goal-line.

OUT WEST IN THE BOWL OF ROSES

SPORT SLANTS

John McEwan won't be back at Oregon next Fall as head football coach but he believes he has bequeathed his successor a fine football team and a prospective all-America quarterback in John Kitzmiller, "Dutchman," from Harrisburg, Pa.

"There are at least six main things a back should be able to do well," said McEwan. "He must pass and receive, kick, block, tackle and run. Kitzmiller can do all of them superlatively and in addition supply the quarterback brains."

"I learned to develop a deceptive hip-shift for broken field running by watching the Hula dancers in Honolulu when we were out there to play a couple of games in 1928. Johnny was just a good straight-away runner before that but he can wriggle his way through an opening better than anyone I've seen in a long time. He should be one of the best backs in the country next season."

McEwan pays tribute to Herb Fleishacker, powerful Stanford back, as the hardest runner and tackler he has ever seen.

"I would not look for a better All-American fullback than Fleishacker," said McEwan. "He was handicapped this year by injuries but when he is right he is a terror on offense as well as defense. High-strung and tremendously powerful, weighing about 230 pounds, he hits a line with pile-driving force. And when he tackles 'em they stay tackled."

The American League's Roster of Recruits is a gold mine of information for the Hot Stove League addict. For instance it can be noted that Smead Jolley, big outfielder and slugger obtained by the White Sox from San Francisco, has batted around .395 for five consecutive seasons on the coast; that Irvine Jeffries, infielder purchased from Detroit by the White Sox, was an All-Southern halfback at the University of Kentucky; that "Hi" Bonura, infielder secured from New Orleans by Cleveland, once batted the American record for javelin throwing while in high school with a toss of 213 feet, 10 1/2 inches; that Millburn Shoffner, southpaw obtained from Jersey City by Cleveland, pitched a no-hit, no-run game in high school at Sherman, Texas; that John Gill, outfielder, recalled from Albany by Cleveland, hit three home runs and a triple the day he was scouted; that Cleveland has six former college football stars in Bonura of St. Stanislaus, Alex Hooks of Southern Methodist, John Burnett of Florida, Jonah Goldman of Syracuse, George Detore of Col. and Bruce Caldwell of Yale; that Whitlow Wyatt, pitcher obtained from Evansville by Detroit, once struck out 22 men in a semi-pro game; that Ivy Paul Andrews, pitcher purchased by the Yankees from Mobile, did not lose a game in (Ala.) High school; that Roy Mahaffey, star right-hander bought from Portland (Ore.) by the Athletics, once hit three home runs in a single game; that Glenn Liebhardt, Jr., another right-hander obtained by the Athletics from Des Moines, pitched three no-hit games in school and college ranks, where he also starred as a basketball and football player.

Rec Five Must Step High To Win Game Friday Night

Friday night will see the Rec Five on the basketball court against one of the finest quintets in New England, the product of 11 years of organization. The team is the Holyoke Mohawks who defeated the Connecticut State Champs, the Bristol Red Sox and was beaten on the latter's home floor 25-18 only after a terrific struggle with the score tied at 16 all with four minutes to play.

For the past two weeks the Rec Five have given the fans a hair-raising exhibition by pulling both games out of the fire with seconds remaining to play, first against the Branford Tanks, then the New Britain National Guard. It will take everything that Coach Jerry Fay's team has got to pull off a win over the crack Mohawks.

The visitors will have in their lineup Goepfert or Healy at left forward, Graeber, right forward, to, Edees 26-25 and was beaten on the latter's home floor 25-18 only after a terrific struggle with the score tied at 16 all with four minutes to play.

"Fourth, that no compensation of any kind whatsoever be given to college players who participate in stadium games."

"Fifth, that all our athletic dealings be open and above-board, and in the full light of day and that our ideal be to give every student in college a chance to participate in athletics."

Speaking on "the challenge of the Carnegie report" Dr. Day announced himself "glad to negotiate with nearby colleges with good academic standing and similar athletic strength for the formation of such a league." He mentioned as a candidate for the proposed association of New York state and New England institutions, Williams, Amherst, Wesleyan, Hamilton, Reseller, and Union.

"I have been hoping for some years," said Dr. Day "that the big and well established universities in the east, like Harvard, Yale and Princeton, would lead the way out of this athletic maze in which we are now wandering."

"There seems to be no sign of this, however, and it was with a sinking heart that I recently read in the paper that the great university of Columbia, had engaged an $18,000 coach to train her squad of football players."

WEST IS FAVORED IN BOTH CONTESTS

Over 70,000 to Watch Rose Bowl Classic as Warm Weather Prevails on the Coast; All-American Teams in Fifth Battle; The Line-ups.

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1.—(AP)—On the historic greenward on the Rose Bowl, where annually is unfolded one of New Year's Day the dramatics of an international contest for gridiron supremacy, the Golden Panthers of Pittsburgh and the University of Southern California Trojans today assembled their forces for 15th annual tournament of roses football classic.

Prized to the minute, these select eleven will pit their skill and cunning against each other before a capacity seaboard. Predictions from official sources were that a clear warm day, which would see the mercury mount to 65 or 70 degrees, would be on the program.

EAST VS. WEST. San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Two all-star eleven, featuring all-American performers from both sides of the Rockies, will meet today in the fifth annual New Year's Day football battle between the east and west. The game begins at 2 p. m. Pacific standard time.

The east was out to make it two straight today, but football observers handed the west the pre-game edge.

HUSKY OARSMEN TRAINING HARD FOR 1930 RACES

Seattle, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The University of Washington is counting on its veteran crew to bring the school back into the world sport spotlight after a disastrous football season.

With the return of all eight oarsmen from last year's combination which finished second to Columbia in the national regatta at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., much is expected of Coach Al Ulbricksen and his sweepsters this season.

Every weekday afternoon the veteran oarsmen churn Lake Washington in search of the rhythm that carried them to surprising speed on the Hudson river.

The only man lost from the 1929 varsity shell was "Shorty" Orr, coxswain. Orr was graduated last summer but his understudy, Dick "Curley" Harris who handled the tiller ropes in the junior varsity boat, has nicely filled the vacant aft seat.

Washington crew followers blamed the Huskies' poor showing against California to lack of practice. The oarsmen were forced to work in severe weather right up until the month of the Bear-Husky race and were not considered in the best of shape.

This year, however, the weather has been exceptionally good enabling the sweepsters to gain long practice sessions.

TILDEN DEFEATED PLAYING DOUBLES

Paris, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Chilean brothers Toralva furnished the big surprise of the second round of the French indoor hard court doubles tennis championship play today by eliminating Big Bill Tilden, American champion who was paired with Charles Kingsley, of England. The scores were 6-4, 6-4.

CARDINAL'S CONDITION

Vatican City, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Cardinal Gasparri's condition continues improving. He had a slight rise in temperature during the night, but no fever today. He is still in bed under his doctor's orders, but is able to receive his co-workers as usual.

SASILA OF NIGHT HAWKS STILL LEADS BOWLING AVERAGES

Conran Is Second In Individual Score; League Standing and Games Next Week

"Yasko" Sasila still leads the individual averages of the bowlers in the Herald League for the week ending December 28, according to the list released by Secretary Joe Canade. Tommy Conran still lingers a little more than two points behind while Canade and A. Anderson, in third and fourth place respectively have been replaced by Wilkie and Kebart.

PIGCAU TO MANAGE MURPHY'S ALLEYS

Joe Picaut, who is remembered as the left fielder on the Manchester Green team last year, has entered the employ of Bronke and Gamble, the present owners of the so-called Murphy's bowling alleys. He is to have charge of the bowling alleys and yesterday, closed the pool room on the second floor, which will not be reopened for some time. In the meantime Picaut is devoting his entire attention to the bowling department. This is being resurfaced and polished and the necessary improvements made.

Boston.—(AP)—Well up among the aces of big league hockey is Cooney Weland, young center of the Boston Bruins. In his second year in the major circuit, Weland has established himself as a high scorer with few equals. It is his work, both on defense and attack, that has helped the Champion Bruins to stay out in front in the current campaign.

ANOTHER BALL PLAYER WANTS TO BOX SHIRES

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Art (The Great) Shires has a new challenger at the art of fist-cuffs. Andy Rush, member of the Bridgeport Club of the Eastern League, is the latest to ask for a bout with White Sox first sacker. This challenge was relayed to Dave Kaufman, Kansas City promoter, four years on at center of G. Ellert, left guard, and Torno or Goldberg, right guard. The latter is the well known Syracuse University football and basketball star. Marchink 'is a former Fordham flash and Goepfert is regarded as one of the fastest and cleverest of ball handlers. The Rec Five is in for a tussle and a half and the fans for a worthwhile game.

BASKETBALL TOURNNEY AT YALE, JANUARY 11

New Haven, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The annual Christmas recess basket ball tournament will be played at Yale, January 11. Four college teams, N. Y. U., Georgetown, Holy Cross and Yale will compete.

The drawings were made today. In the first game New Year's night, N. Y. U. will meet Georgetown, winner of last year's contest, and Yale will play Holy Cross. The second game will be matched in the first game on the following night with the winners meeting an hour later. Coach Ripley has announced that Albie Booth, Yale's football star would start the Holy Cross tilt at forward.

GOVERNOR URGES DRY ENFORCEMENT

Allen, of Massachusetts, Says Law Must Be Obeyed Even If Unpopular.

Boston, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and opposition to repeal of the state enforcement act were voiced by Governor Frank G. Allen in an address convening the 1930 session of the General Court today.

Discussing the prohibition issue, which has been active since a referendum at the national 1928 election indicated the state to be wet, the governor said, "the repeal of the state enforcement act would be an open invitation and incentive to violate the law."

"So long as the Eighteenth Amendment to the constitution is law," he continued, "our duty is clear-cut and well defined. Whether a person believes in the wisdom of the amendment or not, he ought to stand squarely for the enforcement of the supreme law of the land."

Building Program.

The governor pointed to the state's 1929 building program as the most extensive in the history of the commonwealth. During the same period he said, the net direct debt of the state was reduced $1,660,000. The debt at the close of the last fiscal year was $11,180,000.

Declaring that the public works program during 1930 will exceed $110,000,000, the governor added that the industries of the state had given encouraging answers to an inquiry whether or not present salary levels would be maintained.

State's Tercentenary.

The people of the state were asked to join wholeheartedly in celebration of the tercentenary of the Massachusetts Bay Colony next summer. "No more important event has occurred in our history than the foundation of free civil government on this continent," he said.

The governor was encouraged by data which showed that the number of motor vehicle fatalities increased in 1929 in less proportion than the number of motor vehicles registered. The governor's committee on street and highway safety and local safety committees in each of the 355 cities and towns of the state were commended.

The governor recommended the passage of legislation creating in the division of insurance a board of referees to hear and determine cases arising under the compulsory motor vehicle insurance law.

Provision of increased facilities for training personnel for mental hygiene was asked by the governor, after commenting that the department of mental diseases expends about 18 per cent of the total state expenditures for the year.

BARON WASHINGTON IS DEAD IN EUROPE

Vienna, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The death of Baron George Washington, aged 73, a landed proprietor and said to be a descendant of the same family as the first president of the United States, was reported in advices from Gratz, Czechoslovakia, today.

It is asserted that the Graz branch migrated to Steiermark from England at the same time that the Washingtons crossed the Atlantic to the American colonies. Baron Washington was highly respected in the region of Gratz.

Other branches of the Washington family were said to have settled in Switzerland and Germany.

TUDOR FORD SEDAN SHOWS MOST CHANGES

Body Designs Undergo Several New Treatments; Models On Exhibition Here.

"The most notable changes in body designs of the Model A Ford, shown here today have been made in the Tudor Sedan, the coupes and the open cars," said Thomas Donahue, local Ford dealer, today.

"The Tudor Sedan has been the most popular of the five passenger models," he continued. "The new body design will bring to it additional beauty and the new choice of colors is certain to make it more popular than ever, particularly with women drivers."

"More room will be provided for occupants of the rear compartment. Access will be easier around the folding seats in front. In exterior appearance, the car will be much improved."

"It still will retain the crown roof effect with rounded corners on the rear quarter, the beauty of which will be accentuated by an entirely new design body belt and moulding treatment."

Coupe Is Changed

"The coupe, too, will be entirely new in design. It will have a lower roof line. French roof quarters will emphasize the low effect and the long lines of the new moulding treatment. A panel effect carried out by the moulding on the rear deck will add much to the smart appearance of the car."

"Lowering of the roof line will not bring any loss of head room inside, and driving will be made more comfortable by an adjustable seat, which may be moved forward or backward to suit the driver's convenience."

"The Sport Coupe, which will have a rumble seat as standard equipment will have all the lower body lines of the coupe. The sport treatment will be carried out above the belt line, as heretofore. The roof line will be lower, also, and in this car, too, driving comfort will be improved by the installation of an adjustable seat. The same feature will be extended to the Convertible Cabriolet."

Open Cars Are New

"The two open cars, the phaeton

CANADIAN FLYERS OFF ON HUNT FOR EIELSON

Fairbanks, Alaska, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Two Canadian aviators, Pat Reid and Clifford Swartman, planned to take off for Nome today, provided weather conditions would permit, on their way to Siberia to search for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland, missing somewhere between Teller, Alaska, and North Cape, Siberia, since early in November.

The Canadians will fly two of the three cabin planes brought here recently from Seattle. The third plane, piloted by Matt Niemenen, Alaskan flyer, is scheduled to leave a day after Reid and Swartman take off. Niemenen was substituted for Bill Broatch, another Canadian pilot, who came north with the planes, because of his knowledge of flying conditions in the north.

The weather, which has governed all rescue operations since Eielson and Borland were lost while flying to the fur trading ship Nanuk, locked in the ice at North Cape, greatly hampered the assembling and testing of the planes here. Temperatures as low as 50 degrees were experienced here, accompanied by murky atmosphere, affording little visibility.

A Christmas Carol

By Charles Dickens

BEGIN HERE TODAY

A cold-hearted, grasping miser was EBENEZER SCROOGE. And his partner, JACOB MARLEY, had been like him. But Marley had been dead seven years.

On Christmas Eve Scrooge has a visitor. It was Marley's Ghost. Wrapped in clanking chains and raising dreadful cries, it repented a wasted life and told Scrooge he was wrong to shut mankind out of his heart.

"You shall be haunted by three Spirits," Marley's Ghost said. "The first will call when the clock strikes One."

And it did. It called itself the Ghost of Christmas Past. On the wings of the wind it bore Scrooge back through the years and allowed the old miser to see himself as a boy again, when the love of his fellow men had not yet left his heart.

The Spirit then departed, and the second one appeared, this one calling itself the Ghost of Christmas Present. Scrooge was taken to the home of BOB CRATCHIT, his poverty-stricken clerk, and he saw happiness and true Christmas spirit in this family circle, which included a cripple child, TINY TIM.

Scrooge then was taken to the home of his nephew, following which the spirit vanished and the third spirit appeared.

"Well," said the first, "old Scratch has got his own at last, hey?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

THE LAST OF THE SPIRITS

The Phantom slowly, gravely, silently approached. When it came near him, Scrooge bent down upon his knee; for in the very air through which this Spirit moved it seemed to scatter gloom and mystery.

It was shrouded in a deep black garment, which concealed its head, its face, its form, and left nothing of it visible, save one outstretched hand. But for this, it would have been difficult to detach its figure from the darkness by which it was surrounded.

He felt that it was tall and stately when it came beside him, and that its mysterious presence filled him with a solemn dread. He knew no more, for the Spirit neither spoke nor moved.

"I am in the presence of the Ghost of Christmas Yet to Come?" said Scrooge.

The Spirit answered not, but pointed onward with its hand.

"You are about to show me shadows of things that have not happened, but will happen in the time before us," Scrooge pursued. "Is that so, Spirit?"

The upper portion of the garment was contracted for an instant in its folds, as if the Spirit had inclined its head. That was the only answer he received.

Although well used to ghostly company by this time, Scrooge feared the silent shapes so much that his legs trembled beneath him, and he found that he could hardly stand when he prepared to follow it. The Spirit paused a moment, as observing his condition, and giving him time to recover.

But Scrooge was all the worse for this. He thrilled with a vague, uncertain horror to know that, behind the dusky shroud, there were ghostly eyes intently fixed upon him, while he, though he stretched his own to the utmost, could see nothing but a spectral hand and one great heap of black.

"Ghost of the Future!" he exclaimed, "I fear you more than any spectre I have seen. But as I know your purpose is to give me good, and as I hope to live to be another man from what I was, I am prepared to bear your company, and do it with a thankful heart. Will you not speak to me?"

It gave him no reply. The hand was pointed straight before them.

"Lead on," said Scrooge. "Lead on," the Spirit said, "and it is precious time to me, I know. Lead on, Spirit!"

The Phantom moved away as it had come towards him. Scrooge followed in the shadow of its dress, which bore him up, he thought, and carried him along.

They scarcely seemed to enter the City; for the City rather seemed to spring up about them, and encompass them of its own act. But there they were in the heart of it, on "Change, amongst the merchants, who hurried up and down, and clinked the money in their pockets, and conversed in groups, and looked at their watches, and tried thoughtfully with their great gold seals, and so forth, as Scrooge had seen them often.

The Spirit stopped beside one little knot of business men. Observing that the hand was pointed to them, Scrooge advanced to listen to their talk.

"No," said a great fat man with a monstrous chin, "I don't know much about it either way. I only know he's dead."

"When did he die?" inquired another.

"Last night, I believe."

"Why, what was the matter with him?" asked a third, taking a vast quantity of snuff out of a very large snuff-box. "I thought he'd never die."

"God knows," said the first, with a yawn.

"What has he done with his money?" asked a red-faced gentleman with a pendulous excrescence on the end of his nose, that shook like the gills of a turkey-cock.

"I haven't heard," said the man with the large chin, yawning again. "Left it to his company, perhaps. He hasn't left it to me. That's all I know."

This pleasantry was received with a general laugh.

"It's likely to be a very cheap funeral," said the same speaker; "for, upon my life, I don't know of anybody to go to it. Suppose we make up a party and volunteer?"

"I don't mind going if a lunch is provided," observed the gentleman with the excrescence on his nose. "But I must be fed if I make one."

Another laugh.

"Well, I am the most disinterested among you, after all," said the first speaker, "for I never wear black gloves, and I never eat lunch. But I'll offer to go if anybody else will. When I come to think of it, I'm not at all sure that I wasn't his most particular friend; for we used to stop and speak whenever we met. Bye, bye!"

Speakers and listeners strolled away, and mixed with other groups. Scrooge knew the men, and looked towards the spirit for an explanation.

He knew these men, also, perfectly. They were men of business; very wealthy, and of great importance. He had made a point always of standing well in their esteem in a business point of view, and strictly in a business point of view.

"How are you?" said one.

"How are you?" returned the other.

"Well!" said the first, "old Scratch has got his own at last, hey?"

"So I am told," returned the second. "Cold, isn't it?"

"Seasonable for Christmas-time. You are not a skater, I suppose?"

"No, no. Something else to think of. Good-morning!"

Not another word. That was their meeting, their conversation, and their parting.

Scrooge was at first inclined to be surprised that the Spirit should attach importance to conversations so trivial; but feeling assured that they must have some hidden purpose, he set himself to consider what it was likely to be. They could scarcely be supposed to have any bearing on the death of Jacob, his old partner, for that was dead, and this Ghost's province was the Future. Nor could he think of any one immediately connected with himself to whom he could apply them. But nothing doubting that to whomsoever they applied, they had some latent moral for his own improvement, he resolved to treasure up every word he heard, and everything he saw; and especially to observe the shadow of himself when it appeared. For he had an expectation that the conduct of his future self would give him the clue he missed, and would render the solution of these riddles easy.

He looked about in that very place for his own image, but another man stood in his accustomed corner; and though the clock pointed to his usual time of day for being there, he saw no likeness of himself among the multitudes that poured in through the porch. It gave him little surprise, however, for it had been revolving in his mind a change of life, and thought and hoped he saw his new-born resolutions carried out in this. Quiet and dark, beside him stood the Phantom, with its outstretched hand. When he roused himself from his thoughtful quest, he fancied, from the turn of the hand, and its situation in reference to himself, that the Unseen Eyes were looking at him keenly. It made him shudder, and feel very cold.

They left the busy scene, and went into an obscure part of the town, where Scrooge had never penetrated before, although he recognized its situation and its bad repute. The ways were foul and narrow; the shops and houses wretched; the people half-naked, drunken, slipshod, ugly. Alleys and passages, like so many cesspools, disgorged their offences of smell and dirt, and life upon the straggling streets; and the whole quarter reeked with crime, and filth, and misery.

Far in this den of infamous resort, there was a low-browed, beetle-shaped, below a panthous roof, where iron, old rags, bottles, boxes, and greasy offal were bought, upon the floor within were piled up heaps of rusty keys, nails, chains, hinges, files, scales, weights, and refuse iron of all kinds. Secrets that few would like to scrutinize were bred and hidden in mountains of unseemly rags, masses of corrupted fat, and sepulchres of bones. Sitting in among the wares he dealt in, by a charcoal maid of old bricks, was a grey-haired rascal, nearly seventy years of age, who had severed himself from the cold air without by a frizzy curtain of miscellaneous tatters hung upon a line, and smoked his pipe in all the luxury of calm retirement.

Scrooge and the Phantom came into the presence of this man, just as a woman with a heavy bundle slunk into the shop. But she had scarcely entered, when another woman, similarly laden, came in too; and she was closely followed by a man in faded black, who was no less startled by the sight of them than they had been upon the recognition of each other. After a short period of blank astonishment in which the old man with the pipe had joined them, they all three burst into a laugh.

"Let the charwoman alone to be the first!" cried she who had entered first. "Let the laundress be the second; and let the undertaker's man alone to be the third. Look here, old Joe, here's a chance! If we haven't all three met here without meaning it!"

"You couldn't have met in a better place," said old Joe, removing his pipe from his mouth. "Come into the parlor. You were made free of it long ago, you know; and the other two ain't strangers. Stop till I shut the door of the shop. Ah! how it squeaks! There ain't such a rusty bit of metal in the place as its own hinges, I believe; and I'm sure there's no such old bones here as mine. Ha! ha! we're well matched. Come into the parlor. Come into the parlor."

MRS. DRAKE BETTER

Derby, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The bullet discharged into the body of Mrs. Ethel Drake on Sunday by Joseph Delintri of Ansonia, who later took his own life, was today removed at the Griffin hospital. It had passed through her body just over the heart, puncturing the lung, and lodged under the skin at her back. At the hospital today it was said that her condition was improved and that, barring complications, she would probably recover.

The WOMAN'S DAY

We were trying to analyze the charm of a certain woman who appeared at a dinner party.

It wasn't her looks, because while she was distinguished in her rather foreign way, and had fairly good features, she had decided lines in her face, and you could not, have called her handsome, or pretty, without exaggeration.

It was not her clothes, for except that she was dressed in black, no one would remember what she had on.

It was not her slightly foreign accent, though her meticulous choice of words was pleasing in this age of careless speech when a patter of smart slang and a vocabulary of a few hundred words will see most of us through a day.

It wasn't any one quality you could put your fingers on—but we decided, after thrashing the matter out rather carefully, that it was her quality of giving absolutely and undivided attention when you talked to her.

She gave you the impression, subtly, that nothing else mattered but what you were saying, and that until you finished nothing else would. She made you feel there was nothing she was burning to say, because you were all-satisfying.

It's a Rare Delight

This quality of attention usually is strangely lacking. Rarely enough do you meet a "typical American" who is not anticipating and filling in your words or thoughts, as soon as you offer a loophole hesitation.

Often you see in the face of the person you are addressing, the slight suggestion of impatience, of an idea waiting to be expressed, that only needs a pause for breath on your part, to start to unfold itself. In fact, quite often, there is no wait for that pause—your fellow conversationalist simply interrupts, and goes on for until you, with an idea or so yourself, break in on him.

"I don't seem to have finished a sentence in weeks," a woman told me at a literary tea, where everyone talks at once, where every woman, similarly laden, a good talker, meaning I'm not easily downed, and that I contribute generously to the sum total of words offered at any given social function. If people don't hear them, it is not my fault.

This Noisy World

Doubtless our inattention to the conversation that goes on about us is due to the distraction of noise. In many homes, one must talk above a radio, or a mechanical musical instrument, and in restaurants, above a jazz band. There is the constant hum of traffic and mechanical contrivances. Concentration is practically impossible, three quarters of the talking time, alone to be the second; and let the undertaker's man alone to be the third. Look here, old Joe, here's a chance! If we haven't all three met here without meaning it!"

"You couldn't have met in a better place," said old Joe, removing his pipe from his mouth. "Come into the parlor. You were made free of it long ago, you know; and the other two ain't strangers. Stop till I shut the door of the shop. Ah! how it squeaks! There ain't such a rusty bit of metal in the place as its own hinges, I believe; and I'm sure there's no such old bones here as mine. Ha! ha! we're well matched. Come into the parlor. Come into the parlor."

QUOTATIONS

"The materialist philosophy, so strong when I was a student, has broken down." The leaders of thought are far more inclined than ever to look to an interpretation of reality in terms of spiritual.

—Cannon Raven of England.

"Any woman accustomed to mopping and dusting a modern house, getting together a dinner, and associating with men who regard her as a weak vessel, must begin to twitch nervously in the presence of people who predict equal work."

"A man who has nothing to boast of but his illustrious ancestors is like a potato—the only good belonging to him is under ground."

—City Councilman Alexander De Maloribus, Cleveland.

It seems a little strange that none of the statisticians has gone in seriously for tabulations on the number of married men who were endurance flyers.

An Apron That Has Gone Princess; That Turns Kitchen Chores Into Play

By ANNEITE

It's alluringly smart in gaily patterned chintz in red tones. Plain binding in the deepest tone of print trims the open round neckline, deep open armholes and attractively shaped pockets.

Shirring at either underarm seam indicates normal waistline and holds the garment closely to the figure so as to retain its moulded waist and hips. The skirt starts to widen below the pockets into a delightful circular flaring fullness at hem.

It has matching cuffs too that are so essentially smart to carry out ensemble theme.

Style No. 159 comes in small, medium and large size. In the medium size, it is made with 3 yards of 32-inch material with 1/2 yard of 27-inch contrasting.

As it covers the frock almost entirely both front and back, it can be worn over one's best afternoon gown, and especially with the deep cuffs that will protect the sleeves so well.

It is particularly nice for the women with children of school age to slip on while preparing luncheon for the kiddies.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
As told by NEA SERVICE

I think children can be killed with sympathy—but I also think they can't go very far without it.

Sympathy doesn't mean just kissing the sore place and calling Johnny a "poor" little boy. It doesn't mean coddling and humoring and crying-over and all that—but it does mean love. And I don't say that certain hard-headed practices such as some people advocate for the best bringing-up of children are either humane or successful.

All this preamble is to introduce a certain family I know that possesses a small and very sensitive daughter.

Her mother knows the little girl is high-strung, intensely nervous and physically and temperamentally super-sensitive.

She is trying to counteract the extremely emotional habits of the child by a rather stiff, matter-of-fact attitude that makes light of all the unhappy little tragedies—tragedies to her, at least—that daily upset her.

Her husband, who is tremendously fond of the little girl and a big, warm-hearted, impulsive sort of fellow, can't bear to see the child unhappy. He humors her in every conceivable way, to his wife's disapproval.

A Strange Nightmare

Ten mother told some friends the other day that Retta, the little girl, had an idiosyncrasy for a certain sort of nightmare: "She imagines that the world goes 'soft,' as she calls it. She awakens up and can't feel or touch anything. Her body goes through the bed and she has no sensation of solidity. She is simply terrified and rushes into our room screaming. I just decided it was better to try to scold her out of it. It's only imagination and in that case sympathy is always bad. But Ed won't have it. He gets up and turns on the light and talks to her and tells her stories and I think it's nonsense. She'll keep it up forever if he's going to do that."

I think "Ed" is right in this case and Retta's mother is wrong. Evidently the little girl's nervous make-up is responsible for her super-sensitiveness. I don't believe in coddling, but I do believe that such children need and should have all the sympathy we tolerance and understanding we can give them.

HEALTH

SCIENCE REMOVES OLD HAZARDS FROM REFRIGERATION DEVICES

Throughout the world this problem is being studied more than any other. All of the highly intricate techniques of modern chemistry, physics and biology are being applied to these investigations. The results have been of great interest in showing the background of the growth of cancer, but the specific cause has not yet been established, neither has there been developed any specific method of treatment that is of value.

The one certain method of control continues to be early diagnosis and surgical removal of the cancer.

One of the great discoveries announced in the current year has been an electrical device which permits the sealing of blood vessels during operation and therefore safer and more rapid operations on the brain. For this discovery, Prof. W. T. Bovie received the medal of the Radiological Society of North America and recognition throughout the world.

Previous to his discovery, brain operations were very slow because it was necessary to tie off so many blood vessels and to seal them up with wax.

Also during this year, Dr. Harry J. Corper of Denver received the medal of award for discovering a new method of staining the germ of tuberculosis, which permits an earlier and more certain diagnosis of this disease.

MODERN LONDON SPRINGS UP AS LANDMARKS GO

London—(AP)—London is changing more rapidly than at any time since the rebuilding that followed the Great Fire in 1666. Everywhere the old landmarks are disappearing and new buildings are springing up, to the great disgust of some who declare that London is losing all her old charm; but to the delight of others who see in the new construction a promise of the most magnificent city on earth. Throughout 1929 Londoners have followed with keen interest the progress of Bush House which now, thanks to American enterprise, occupies the Aldwych site that was for so long derelict. The central portion of the building, which is London's nearest approach to a skyscraper, was completed some years ago; but work was delayed on the two great blocks that form the wings. Now the main east wing is also completed, and on other parts of the new construction is springing up with almost American rapidity. The other most spectacular development in 1929 has taken place in aristocratic Park Lane, of which the outward appearance has been completely changed by the fine hotel and apartment block that stands on the site of Devonshire House. Many Londoners warmly regretted the disappearance of the old ducal mansion; and they had a further shock when demolition started of the most famous of all the Park Lane palaces—Dorchester House, which formed the American embassy in the days of Whitelaw Reid. But the changes have not taken significant place in the great office buildings, hotels and theaters. They have come, rather, in the residential districts, where row after row of quiet Victorian dwellings have been converted, usually somewhat unsatisfactorily, into blocks of apartments. These developments in the residential areas have reflected to a large extent a change in the psychology of the Englishman who is rapidly becoming discontented with dirt and inconvenience and—helped to that end by the increasing seriousness of the services—demands of American life as central heating plants and restaurants in great apartment blocks. The speculative builder has sensed this change of heart and has taken advantage of it. Indeed he has, in many cases, gone ahead a little too rapidly with the result that many "luxury flats" with rentals of $5,000 to $10,000 a year, which were expected to bring their owners a handsome profit, stand half empty.

LICENSES SUSPENDED

A list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the State Motor Vehicle Department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of these drivers operating motor vehicles. Bethel, Chas. N. MUST PAY TAXES ON GROSS RECEIPTS

3,500 Unincorporated Manufacturing and Mercantile Businesses in State to Be Reminded Tomorrow.

Hartford, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The state tax department will tomorrow mail to 3,500 unincorporated manufacturing and mercantile businesses in Connecticut, whether conducted by partners or by individuals, communications reminding them of the necessity of paying a tax on gross receipts for the year. The state tax commissioner says regarding this class of taxpayers that for the year ended December 31, 1929, there were 26,975 taxpayers with total tax assessed of $442,191.70, and for the year ended December 31, 1928, there were 31,427 taxpayers with total assessed tax of $562,373.61, the average number of taxpayers during the eight-year period being 30,350. The average annual receipts were $537,194.21. The largest amount assessed against a New York taxpayer was $4,247.75 and the smallest amount, $5. The total cost of administration of this law during the year ended December 31, 1928, was $29,328.44, the average overhead cost per taxpayer being 71 cents.

GERMAN TARS PLEDGE AID TO COMMUNISM

Odessa—(AP)—"Socialistic Content" between Soviet factories, state institutions and trade unions, which are aimed to increase output, lower cost of production, strengthen discipline and reduce waste, are being applied to international groups. The object is to propagate the Russian brand of socialism. Recently in Odessa the crew of the Soviet steamer "Plekhanoff" signed an agreement with the crew of the German steamer "Milos." The Soviet sailors vowed to do their utmost in fulfilling their share of Russia's five year economic plan. They pledged themselves to wage war against loafing in the crew, to economize on fuel, to develop cultural work among their shipmates and to support the revolutionary opposition in the German Seamen's Union. Their German comrades promised to propagate among their kinsmen the achievements of the Soviet government, to refuse to transport arms and ammunition destined for enemies of the Soviet, to carry on revolutionary agitation among other foreign sailors and to give their exclusive support to the Communist Party.

CASTLE ON WAY

San Francisco, Jan. 1.—(AP)—William R. Castle, Jr., President Hoover's special ambassador to Japan during the coming London disarmament conference, today was on his way across the Pacific. He sailed yesterday for Honolulu, where he will visit three days with his father before resuming his voyage to Japan, January 9. "The world wants peace," Castle said just before sailing yesterday, "and the world knows naval reduction will help peace. The conference, although there may be some disputes, will, nevertheless, be successful. Japan is really as anxious, all along the line, as the United States in regard to naval reduction."

SLAYINGS DECREASE

Chicago, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Chicago slaying during 1929 decreased 21 per cent and auto fatalities 13 per cent compared with 1928 statistics, the annual report of Commissioner of Police William F. Russell showed today. There were, however, 42,976 more arrests in 1929 than in the year preceding, the report stated, bringing this year's total to 186,774.

MEN O'WAR

The U. S. S. Jason, last of the navy's colliers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the nineteenth of a series of articles on the strength of the U. S. navy, especially in comparison with that of Great Britain. The articles are of especial interest in view of the approaching arms limitation conference in London.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and virtually all other naval vessels are burning oil today instead of coal, so there is little or no use for colliers as such. Colliers were designed and fitted up for carrying coal and had special appliances to handle it. The use of colliers enabled battleships to coal at sea. Now, however, the U. S. Navy has only one collier, the Jason, which is being used as an aircraft tender with the Asiatic fleet. She has a carrying capacity for 11,500 tons of coal. Armed with four 4-inch guns, she is 20,000 tons in displacement, 536 feet long, 65 feet at the beam and 28 feet in draft. The Jason has a complement of 185 officers and men and costs about $400,000 a year to operate. She is the last of a fleet of colliers once considered essential but now replaced by a fleet of oil tankers.

HOLD PLOTTERS

Paris, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Three Italians described as newspapermen were in cells here today suspected by the Surete General which is the French Scotland Yard, with anti-Fascist plotting against the Italian Fascist government. The police alleged the three had maintained relations with Camillo Berneri who a week ago confessed in Brussels to a dual plot against the lives of the Belgian Royal family as they journeyed to Italy for the wedding of Princess Marie Jose to the Prince of Piedmont, January 8. All were known to have frequented the home of Cianca, where bombs and a quantity of high explosives and other bomb materials were found and confiscated.

BUFFALO, SCENE OF HUGE RAIDS

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Dry agents under the direction of Administrator Edwin M. Ross ushered the Old Year out and the New Year in with a startling series of raids that cleaned night clubs, speakeasies and breweries and two large distributing agencies where the seizures were estimated at $250,000.

In the first of these, a private house netted twelve thousand quart bottles, apparently filled with a concoction made in huge vats found in the cellar, agents said. Alcohol, water and coloring matter into which chips from old whiskey barrels were steeped were the principal ingredients.

The second big raid of the night, on Stein's Hotel, East Aurora, brought real quality. In the haul were 2,000 quarts of barrel whiskey, 186 quarts of alcohol, 80 quarts of unlabelled wines and 1,274 quarts of Canadian ale.

The administrator steadfastly refused to disclose any names contained in a book but admitted they included, besides those of Buffalo's socially prominent, some of well known personages in Erie, Cleveland, Rochester, Syracuse, and a few from New York and Washington, D. C.

The Friendly Indians will meet with their leader, Rev. Harry B. Miner at the Y. M. C. A. club rooms Thursday afternoon.

The students of grades seven and eight of Union and Wapping schools have entered the Current Events contest. The awards for this contest are medals to be distributed to the winners at the close of the school year.

VALUABLE GEMS STOLEN

Los Angeles, Jan. 1. (AP) — Mrs. William Douglas Burden, society matron, announced that a reward of $1,000 has been posted for the recovery of jewelry valued at more than $25,000, which were stolen from the Burden Beverly Hills home on the night of Dec. 8. The theft had been kept secret pending a police search for the missing gems.

Mrs. Burden said that among the jewels stolen were a bracelet with 200 diamonds totaling six carats, a necklace with 244 matched pearls, a fifty carat sapphire pendant and an antique ruby necklace.

Mrs. Burden is the daughter of Ernest I. White, of Syracuse, N. Y., and a niece of former Governor Horace White of New York. She recently moved to Beverly Hills and Montecito, Calif. Mr. Burden is a technical sound expert with Paramount studios.

ROCKVILLE

Mayor Foster Gives Reason for Opposing Raise.

At a meeting of the Common Council held last evening in the Council rooms, Memorial building, Mayor George Foster gave his reason for not being in favor of the ordinance increasing the firemen's salaries. He stated that he believed the firemen should receive an increase, but he was not in favor of the first part of the ordinance, which would raise the pay of the fire chief, assistant chief and superintendent of fire alarms.

As there were two aldermen present, the ordinance was turned back to the fire committee to do as they see fit. The resignations of A. E. Waite and Ernest M. Ide, alderman and councilman of the second ward were accepted.

It was voted at the meeting to pay all bills for the past year, and the meeting adjourned after a short session.

Men's Union Banquet.

The annual banquet of the Men's Union will be held at the Union Congregational church on Wednesday evening, January 15. Rev. Harold Clemens pastor of the South Park Methodist church of Hartford will be the speaker of the evening. He is a speaker with a statewide reputation, whose services are in constant demand. Mr. Clemens was the speaker at the graduation exercises of the Rockville High school last June.

The toastmaster has not been secured as yet, but will be a well known Rockville after dinner speaker. The dinner will be served by the Ladies Aid Society of Union church and will be of the best. In addition to the unusual fine repast, and excellent after dinner program, it is probable there will be an entertainment program, followed by a short business session and election of officers.

Children Given Party.

On Sunday afternoon the Polish-American Citizens Club held a party in Pulaski Hall, Village street, for children of the members and orphans. There was a brief informal program, with music and singing; President Frank Wagner gave a hearty address of welcome. There were more than 250 children present and everyone was remembered with a gift.

Fourth District Meeting.

A joint meeting of the American Legion Post and Auxiliaries of the Fourth District, which includes Toland and Windham counties, will be held in G. A. R. Hall on Sunday afternoon, January 5, at 3 o'clock. Department Commander William S. Alexander of Meriden will be present and address the gathering. District Commander Charles Baiz will conduct the Post meeting and District Vice President Mrs. Helen McFarlane of Coventry will conduct the auxiliary meeting. Following the meeting there will be refreshments and a social hour.

Eldred Doyle Heads Pythians.

Damon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, held its annual meeting in Castle Hall on Monday night and the following officers were elected: Chancellor commander, R. Eldred Doyle; vice chancellor, Frank Mehr; prelate, Edward Lehmitt; master of work, Hector Blair; inner guard, Henry Gakeler; master at arms, Dr. A. R. Pillsbury; George Schaefer, master of finance; Oscar Schubert; master of exchange, Ernest Reutgen; keeper of records and seal, Arthur Friedrich; trustee for three years, Paul Weber; auditors, Bert Schuey and William Felden.

The past year has been a most successful one, the membership at the present time being 321. The installation of newly elected officers will be held on Wednesday evening, January 8, and will be in charge of staff officers from Thompsonville.

Lions Meeting Postponed.

There will be no meeting of the Lion's Club this evening because of the announcement made by the president, Phillip M. Howe. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday night, January 8. The meeting will be held at "The Rockville," opening with the usual supper at 6:15 o'clock. There will be a business meeting and a prominent speaker will address the members.

Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it.

CORRECTIONS

(1) Furthermore, in the conversation of the father, is spelled incorrectly. (2) The word "leave," in the same man's talk, should be leaf. (3) There are two buttons on one of the coat sleeves of the father and three on the other. One corner is missing from the blotter on the desk. (4) The scrambled word is CALENDAR.

COPS FLUNK EXAM; SCHOOL GIRL PASSES

Wolstanton, Eng.—(AP)—A 13-year-old girl here knows what every policeman ought to know. As an experiment she was given a general knowledge police examination, passed it perfectly and said it was easy.

"I wish I could get a job by answering a list of questions like the policemen have to," she said.

But the would-be policemen didn't think it was so easy, for only 25 per cent of those who took the examination passed it. Among the questions were:

Who was the tinker who wrote a famous book?

Who was the emperor who fiddled while Rome burned?

Can you name any great religious leader who lived at the same time?

Write a short note on Amanullah, his troubles, and their cause.

Explain the presence of rust on nails, soot in chimneys, sand on the seashore, deltas at the mouth of rivers.

FREE RED PRISONERS

Harbin, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Chinese officials today released 800 Soviet prisoners in a military internment camp here.

Thirty-seven Communist soldiers were arrested in a Chinese raid on the Russian consulate last May also were freed.

Mo Tes-Kui, newly appointed Chinese director general of the Chinese Eastern Railway, has been named chief delegate for China at the Sino-Russian conference to be held in Moscow, January 25. A final settlement of the dispute between China and Russia over the railway will be attempted at that conference.

Julius Rudy, new Russian manager of the railway, and his assistant, Denisov, arrived here and took up their duties today.

BOSTON'S NEW YEAR'S

Boston, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Staid old Boston gave itself over to a noisy celebration of the advent of the New Year last night. Hotels and night clubs were crowded with merry-makers and downtown streets and Beacon Hill, which was visited on Christmas eve by strolling carolers, were filled with jubilant noisemakers.

Police reported few arrests and the doubled forces of dry squads said that much of the drinking, if done, was under cover.

Long before midnight, theaters were hanging out "S. R. O." signs and extra elevated and trolley service were provided for the revellers.

GAS BUGGIES—The Sacrifice

NELLIE, FOLKS HAS BEEN A-TALKIN' LATELY, AND I'VE OVER-HEERED WHAT THEY'RE SAYIN' 'T' ABOUT YOU AND DICK—WHETHER OR NO YOU'LL BE A-MARRVIN' HIM NOW THAT HE CAN'T WALK. I S'PECT YOU'VE BEEN A-THINKIN' 'BOUT IT, TOO.

OH, FATHER, IN THE MEANTIME WILL YOU LET ME HAVE TWENTY?

WAL, DAUGHTER, I GUESS YOU'RE WONDERIN' WHAT I THINK? 'TAIN'T NO USE A-DOGIN' THINGS—MARRVIN' DICK MEANS I'LL HAVE TO KEEP HIM. IF I WAS A RICH MAN 'TWOULDN'T BE NOTHIN', BUT MY PURSE IS SLENDER. IT'S BOUND TO GO HARD WITH ME, BUT YOUR HAPPINESS IS ALL I CARE ABOUT.

I GUESS BY SCRAPIN' AND SCRIMPIN' WE COULD MANAGE ON THE LITTLE I'VE LAID BY FOR MY OLD AGE. I'LL HAVE TO KEEP ON WORKIN', BUT IF YOU'RE WILLIN' TO SACRIFICE YOUR FUTURE TO TENDIN' HIM I WON'T COMPLAIN. OF COURSE, AFTER I'M GONE YOU'LL HAVE TO TAKE ALONE THE BEAR THAT IN MIND; BUT DO JUST AS YE WISH.

SENSE and NONSENSE

A NEW YEAR'S GREETING That each of you have—Health enough to make work a pleasure. Wealth—enough to support your needs. Strength—enough to overcome difficulties. Hope—enough to be confident of the future. Faith—enough to make real the things of God. Love—enough to see some good in your neighbor.

1930 HAS ARRIVED! Another year has just begun. It brings new hopes new work, new fun. Whether its wishes all come true is largely a matter that's up to you.

A HOSIERY NIGHTMARE Legs to the front of us. Legs to the back of us. Legs to the right of us. Legs to the left of us. How they display them! On they go trippingly. Dainty and skippingly. Frost that bites nipplingly. Does not dismay them. Straight legs and bandy ones. Bum legs and dandy ones. Flirt with the breezes. Round legs and fatte ones. Especially the latter ones. Showing the knees. Knock-kneed and bony ones. Real legs and phony ones. Silk covered tony ones. Second to none. Straight and distorted ones. Males and ill-sorted ones. Home and imported ones. Ain't We Got Fun?

New Year's Consolation: It is better to have resolved and failed than never to have resolved at all.

In the oil game the fellow who plays for "All or Nothing" usually gets—nothing.

Just today we came across an advertisement in a newspaper which read: "For Sale—a dozen hens laying eggs, fence posts and chicken netting."

Daughter: "Can we play at keeping store in here, mamma?" Mother: "Yes, but I have a headache, so if you do you must be very, very quiet." Daughter: "Oh, all right, mamma. We'll pretend we don't advertise."

It doesn't seem that a young woman could be interested in nothing else in this wonderful world but her looks, BUT SHE IS.

No, 1930 is not leap year. But we expect the mortality among bachelors.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS.

When you say you haven't any bad habits, you're too good to be true.

ors to be just as heavy as it was in 1928—Leap year. If love won't find a way, the girls will.

A crook can't talk fifteen minutes without using the word "Honestly" at least five times.

Helen: "Did you take your cold shower this morning?" Janie: "Naw. There wasn't any hot water."

And the 19th used to be a hole; not an amendment.

The secret of feeling well is in light eating, a trial of which will convince the most skeptical.

Some people aren't as mean as they look.

"Pay cash and pay less." No less than some who have it charged.

In order to hold your own sometimes it's advisable to hold your tongue.

It is not the trial marriage that worries most people, it's the verdict.

LEADER FORFEITS HIS $10,000 BOND

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The $10,000 bail bond given by Daniel P. O'Connell, Albany political leader, to assure his appearance before a Federal Grand Jury in its investigation of the Albany baseball pool, was ordered forfeited today by Federal Henry W. Goddard.

Has Disappeared. United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who made the forfeiture motion, said it was his opinion that O'Connell "had hopped into an automobile and departed for places unknown to us." A Federal warrant was issued for him several days ago.

"We have done our best to have O'Connell here," Mr. Tuttle said. "Seven Grand Jury subpoenas have been issued against him in three months and all these have been placed in the hands of different marshals. In addition on Dec. 23, Daniel P. O'Connell was indicted for perjury."

THE TINYMITES

"We're rather clever," Clowny cried. "We stumped the Wind Man when he tried to blow us out into the air. And now we're safe and sound. He sure looked funny when he broke to pieces. After all, the joke was just on him. We Tinymites are not so dumb, he found." "Oh, you deserve the credit, lad. To all the rest things looked real bad," said Scouty. "Then you had the hunch to break the old Wind Man. That only proves what I have said. When'er you stop and use your head and try to do things right, it always turns out that you can."

CUT LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE RATES

New Haven, Jan. 1—Announcement was made today by the Southern New England Telephone Company of another reduction in toll telephone rates on calls to points that are from 60 to 300 miles distant. This is the fourth such rate reduction in about three years and applies to all points in the Bell System. The reduction, it is officially stated, affects station-to-station day rates principally, or that is, calls in which the calling party will speak with anyone who answers. In most cases the reduction is 10 cents and in the few remaining cases 5 cents. The improvements in service features made a little more than a year ago, including

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Anne Strickland of Highland Park left yesterday to resume her studies at Boston University School of Religious Education.

The Italian-American Ladies Aid society has set the date of Sunday, January 12, for its seventh annual banquet and anniversary celebration. Mrs. Nettie Aceto heads the committee working out the details of the dinner which will take place at noon, and the afternoon and evening program. Tinker hall is the place decided upon. The lodge was instituted in Manchester on January 21, 1923.

Scott Simon, president and general manager of the Carlyle-Johnson Machine company and in its behalf, yesterday presented each one of the factory employees with a New Year's gift of an additional week's wages and made them a personal gift of cigars. The company has enjoyed a good year's business and looks forward to a more prosperous year in 1930. The factory was closed today on account of New Year's.
