Manchester Expert on Tariff Sends Letter to U. S. Senate on Recent Controversy—Silk Association Backs Local Man.

Just a week ago today, while the United States Senate, sitting as a committee of the whole, had under consideration the tariff bill, Senator Blaine of Wisconsin, during the discussion of the silk schedules, made a direct attack on Horace B. Cheney, vice-president of Cheney Brothers and chairman of the legislative committee of the Silk Association of America. The details of the debate were not carried on press associations wires and did not appear in this newspaper, but some reference to the attack was made in the special dispatches of a Hartford newspaper.

Blaine's Charges
In effect Senator Blaine charged Mr. Cheney with representing, in his appearances before the congressional committee in Washington, not the silk manufacturers as a whole nor even the silk association, but merely Cheney Brothers. The Wisconsin Senator undertook to show that some of the tariff suggestions made by Mr. Cheney did not have the support of the trade and were for the benefit of the Manchester industry. He also accused Mr. Cheney of having misrepresented the facts in relation to wage increases in the industry.

To these charges Mr. Cheney today makes answer in a letter addressed to the United States Senate. Coincident with Mr. Cheney's letter to the Senate is another to that body from the Silk Association of America. A copy of the letter Mr. Cheney has forwarded to the United States Senate for insertion in the "Congressional Record" follows:

South Manchester, Conn.
January 10, 1930.
"Certain statements made by Senator Blaine on January 7th, on the floor of the Senate in debating the Silk Tariff, have been brought to my attention. I regret that Senator Blaine should have been so erroneously informed. The Silk Association has on previous occasions, in answer to similar remarks, written to the Finance Committee and others giving my authority as chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Silk Association and authorities of the duly constituted authorities of the association to represent them in Washington in relation to all legislative matters.

Authorized
"The briefs submitted by me to the Ways and Means Committee and to the Finance Committee were sent out to the entire personnel of the Silk Association and in the form submitted to the two committees had not only my signature but that of every member of the Legislative Committee of the Silk Association, which comprises representatives of most manufacturing branches of the industry. Moreover, I have continuously occupied the same position with relation to the Silk Association and have acted as its spokesman for many years in previous hearings before Congress. According to records submitted by the Silk Association, I was first elected to the Legislative Committee in 1909 and became chairman in 1910, which position I have occupied since that time. The committee has consisted of from seven to nine members. All briefs and all accounts of the Legislative Committee have been submitted to the full committee and received their approval before being submitted in Washington. Moreover, during this session of both the Finance Committee and Ways and Means Committee, they specifically requested industries to send an individual wherever possible to represent the interests of as many persons as possible. It was my intention not only to create the impression before the House and Senate Committee that I was spokesman for the Silk Association of America, and not only that I was duly constituted and elected for that position, but also that the presentation made by me correctly represents the practically unanimous opinions of the various divisions of the Silk Association represented.

"According to the last census, there are 1,650 silk establishments of which 60 per cent are members of the Silk Association. A statement of the Silk Association in relation to the whole silk industry will be found under Exhibit F of the brief of the association.

"The silk defense committee referred to by Senator Blaine as his authority is not in any way authorized to speak for the Silk Association or for its membership. The silk defense committee for the most part is composed of an association of men closely related in business and of persons employed by one of the principal commission houses, whose interests are related to the importing business.

"The Silk Association has many activities and embraces in its membership persons related to the silk business, including importers and commission merchants. It has a great number of sections and divisions.

FIRST MOVES MADE IN NEW DRY PROGRAM

Bill Introduced in House to Transfer Enforcement to Justice Dept.; Leaders Discuss the Situation.

Washington, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Despite the far reaching scope of the proposed prohibition reorganization the administration is expected to carry it out along lines preventing any conflict with the power of the states in enforcement of their own laws.

This was indicated in well informed circles today as both the legislative and executive branches of the government moved to place in operation the program outlined by the Law Enforcement Commission and sponsored by President Hoover.

The first move was taken at the House side of the Capitol when the introduction at noon of a bill by Chairman Williamson of the committee on expenditures to provide for the transfer of the prohibition enforcement unit from the Treasury to the Justice Department.

At the same time Treasury officials took stock of the stupendous task proposed to be placed on their hands by the consolidation of all border patrol work under Coast Guard supervision.

Next Steps
Williamson's measure is expected to be followed shortly by bills designed to carry out other recommendations. Speaker Longworth said specific requests for such measures would be forwarded to the Capitol from various departments within a few days.

At the outset of both the House and Senate sessions today, general legislation held the attention of the legislators. In both chambers, however, members were discussing the prohibition question in private conversation and in the cloak rooms and lobbies, Senators and Representatives could be seen here and there reading with apparent interest press reports of the most sweeping plan to dry up America in the ten years since sale of intoxicants was prohibited by constitutional mandate.

STATE GRANGE WILL BACK UP OUR DRY LAWS

Master Tells Convention 18th Amendment Is Here to Stay—Has No Sympathy for Lawbreakers.

Hartford, Jan. 14.—(AP)—"The Grange has always stood for the enforcement of any and all laws, and without any doubt will continue to do so in the future," said State Master Minor Ives of Meriden, in his address this afternoon at the forty-fifth annual session of the Connecticut State Grange at Hotel Bond.

Especially is this true, he continued in regard to many drunken automobile drivers and bootleggers. "I cannot understand why so many good people seem to have so much sympathy for the law breaker and never seem to give the one who has suffered at their hands a thought."

Is Here to Stay.
"The Eighteenth Amendment has come to stay, and when those whose duty it is to enforce this law do so in an honest and conscientious way and the courts back them, there will be very little difficulty with this amendment."

The State master said that while large amounts were spent every year to straighten and grade main roads he wondered if it would not be better and fairer if some of the money were expended in putting some of the side roads in such shape as to make them passable at all seasons of the year.

Equitable Taxation.
The Grange should strive for more equitable taxation, and it would be a wise move, said the state master, to have a tax committee to study taxation and report to their Granges from time to time that their members may be informed of what is going on.

"The Patrons Mutual Fire Insurance Company has been gaining steadily in the past year in the volume of business and all patrons in Connecticut should be interested in place insurance with their own insurance company."

The state master also advised that Grange members place automobile insurance with the National Grange Mutual Liability company.

Increase in Grange dues was recommended by the state master. He said that many Granges were striving to meet expenses.

TRIED FOR CHILDREN'S DEATHS

Her poise unbroken by months in jail, Gladys Mae Parks, upper left, former night club hostess, went to trial for murder at Camden, N. J., still protesting her innocence of the killing of two little children entrusted to her care by their father, Allen B. Rogers, upper right, an insurance agent. While the prosecution asked the death penalty for Mrs. Parks, her chief counsel, Samuel P. Orlando, lower left, refused to plead her guilty to a charge of manslaughter. The defense will contend that the deaths of 4-year-old Dorothy Rogers, lower left, and her infant brother Timothy, whose dismembered bodies were found in crude graves in two widely-separated communities, were accidental.

HOOVER NOT INVOLVED IN SUGAR CONTROVERSY

Senate Lobby Probers Report That President Is Absolved of Any Impropriety Connected With Tariff.

Washington, Jan. 14.—(AP)—President Hoover was absolved today by the Senate lobby investigation committee of any impropriety in connection with negotiations with Cuban and American sugar interests, charged against the chief executive in testimony before that group.

Reporting to the Senate, the committee, asserted in addition that a "reprehensible" effort had been made to stir up Latin American antagonism against the United States by those opposing an increased tariff on sugar.

It listed the total expenditures of those for and against such an increase at more than $400,000, with $175,000, to $200,000, spent by the former and $200,000 to $225,000 disbursed by the latter.

No Impropriety.
With reference to testimony that President Hoover had sought to bring about an agreement among the sugar interests on a sliding scale of sugar duties for incorporation in the pending tariff bill, the committee said that "in all this, your committee finds no impropriety nor anything open to censure or criticism."

"It is quite likely," the report said, "that representatives of both the contending forces waited on the President to incline him favorably toward their views, respectively, and the sliding scale solution having been proposed, he suggested that they get together in an effort to work out some plan, and in that connection informed them that he would have inquiry made into the practicability of the idea by experts of the departments."

"In any event," the report says, "the President was not involved in the controversy."

TREASURY BALANCE
Washington, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for January 11 were $6,225,803.18; expenditures, $13,281,102.60; balance $122,783,908.56.

WEST POINT NEGRO FLUNKS HIS EXAMS

With 63 Others He Is Honorably Discharged from Military Academy.

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Sixty-four cadets, including A. J. Parham, negro, of Chicago, were honorably discharged from the United States Military Academy today, because of failure to pass mid-term academic examinations, Major General William R. Smith, superintendent, announced.

Examinations were held for 137 cadets who were deficient in one or more subjects, General Smith said. Forty-eight of those who failed to pass were members of the plebe or freshman class, and the remainder were sophomores.

FIND AVIATORS' BODIES NEAR LAKE AT AMSTON

GERMAN ENVOY CHANGES MIND ON WORLD BANK

Dr. Schacht First Said Germany Would Not Subscribe; Will Submit to Majority Rule He Declares.

The Hague, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht who has been balking at participation of the Reichsbank in the Bank for International Settlements, today agreed to a procedure which will oblige him, as a director of the Reichsbank to participate in the new international institution.

Yesterday Dr. Schacht stated that the Reichsbank could not subscribe to any of the capital of the new institution because of changes which he said had been made in the Young plan.

Changes Opinion
Today Dr. Schacht met several of the principal delegates and members of the bank committee and announced that he would bow to the will of the majority. Thereupon the German delegation decided to propose modifications of German law so as to make it obligatory for the Reichsbank to subscribe to the capital of the international institution, as well as to participate in every other way provided for in the Young plan.

Dr. Schacht decided that this would cover his responsibility in the matter and would remove his moral scruples as a patriotic German. The incident which had grown out of Dr. Schacht's non-participation announcement was felt to be closed and it was understood that Dr. Schacht would not go ahead with the other members of the bank committee to complete the details of organization of the International Bank.

At the time that the conversations were in progress this morning, the names of two German financial institutions were being discussed in dispatches from Berlin saying that these were the Prussian State bank and the State Credit Institute.

(Berlin dispatches received in New York today said there was no doubt that the German Cabinet at its meeting today would demand the complete restoration of the government's authority over the Reichsbank and would instruct the Hague delegation to this effect.)

GIRL BURNED TO DEATH IN AUTO WRECK

Her Brother on Way to Hospital Gets Fractured Skull When Ambulance Hits Truck—Three Injured.

New Haven, Jan. 14.—(AP)—While being transferred to St. Raphael's hospital from the Guilford Sanitarium where he was taken after an accident in Madison in which his sister Margaret was burned to death, Ray Leete, of Clinton, suffered a possible fractured skull here today when the ambulance collided with a gasoline truck.

Charles Di Meola, 18, of this city, driver of the truck received cuts about the head and is at Grace hospital.

Mrs. Kate Bradley of this city who was walking near the scene of the accident, was struck by a cushion which flew out of the truck when the vehicles collided. Her left hand was lacerated.

The First Accident.
Leete received a fractured leg, burns and other injuries in the Madison accident in which his sister met her death when the auto in which they were riding caught fire following a collision with a fish truck. Leete drove the machine.

Two others were riding in the car, Steve Yackob of Clinton receiving minor burns and injuries, while Katherine Jansak of Killingworth, escaped injury.

Driver Arrested
Ernest Coe of New London, driver of the truck which was enroute to the hospital, was arrested.

Fog Hampers Search.
Fog and rain had prevented planes taking the air to assist in the search but in the fields and woods many men and boys plodded slowly all forenoon seeking trace of the plane. The most substantial report given of a plane having flown over this section Friday had come from Mrs. W. A. Stevens of Greenwich who that afternoon was on her way from Hartford to Danielson and had seen a plane flying low over the state highway between Warrenville and Mansfield state training school just outside of Willimantic. She described the plane to Chief Inspector George Frazzetta of the state aviation department as a "single wing" plane. It was headed north. Because this information seemed to be definite the state police arranged to sweep throughout that immediate section of the state and only the very bad weather today prevented aerial assistance.

Mrs. George Rowley and Julius Reinhold who lives close by Amston Lake, afterward reported hearing a plane overhead about 11 o'clock Friday morning and other searchers found wood choppers and others who recalled having heard the plane. In this way the search was being gradually located about Lake Amston and Mrs. Rowley was the one searcher who proved to be the closest to the place of the crash.

W. K. on Watch.
Examination of the watch found on one body revealed initials "W. K." There seemed to be nothing else to afford a clue to identification. However the medical examiner noted the initials as those which would correspond to the name of one of the fliers, William Kirkpatrick.

Amston is located in the town of Hebron a distance of only about 12 air miles from Manchester. It was formerly known as Turnersville but the name was changed following the purchase of most of the property by William Ann, a wealthy New York resident. He built a witch hazel plant, railroad station, hotel and other public buildings.

Walter Gloett of Manchester is president of the Amston Lake Club on whose property the wrecked airplane and dead aviators were found this morning. Robert J. Smith, local real estate dealer, is another member of the organization. The lake, an artificial one, is considered to be about the best fishing in the state but can only be used by club members and their friends. It is a well known haven for a number of Manchester's fishermen.

STARTED ON FRIDAY.
New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Fairchild plane believed to be the one found today near Amston, Conn., took off from the company's field at Farmingdale, Long Island, Friday morning on an altitude test flight.

Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, Test Pilots, Lost Since Friday Morning—Started from Farmingdale, N. Y., to Try Out Big Cabin Plane—One Body Charred; Other Was Thrown Out of Machine.

Amston, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A plane answering that flown by Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, test pilots in their departure Friday morning from Farmingdale, N. Y., for an altitude test was found on the edge of a woodland patch close by Lake Amston in this village today.

Bodies of two men were also there, one having been partly burned and the other thrown clear when the plane crashed, after it had struck a small oak on the edge of the woodland. State police were hurried to the place and the bodies remained for the time being where they lay until the medical examiner of Hebron could view them.

Run Down Reports.
The search for the Fairchild cabin plane which was missing with the men had centered in this part of the state today because the reports made by persons who claimed to have heard a plane, seemed to have had a more substance than similar reports from other parts of the state.

Fred Rowley, game keeper at the Amston Lake Club found the plane and sent word to the state police at Hartford. Officers were immediately sent to the scene which is remote from the main state highways and about ten miles west of Willimantic.

sons of which Division D—Broad Silk Manufacturers, Division B—Throwsters, Division C—Sewing Silk and Twists, Division E—Ribbon Manufacturers, Division M—Woven Label Manufacturers, Division O—Spun Silk Manufacturers, Division P—Velvet Manufacturers are those divisions representing the manufacturing interests of the silk business. Among the membership of the Legislative Committee are representatives of Divisions B, D, E, O, P and the committee consulted with committees from Divisions B, C, M and the garment industry and dyeing industry.

"The commission merchants, the importers, and the raw silk dealers, while being members of the Silk Association and having standing as such, have never been recognized by the Silk Association as having the right to be represented in the presentation of their views to Congress in relation to the tariff on silk. The Silk Association being strictly limited to the manufacturing interests of the United States. Several persons representing themselves as members of the Silk Association but being importers or commission merchants, have from time to time appeared in Washington assuming to speak as members of the Silk Association and on behalf of its membership.

"The capitalization of business has practically no relation to the invested capital and profits of corporations should never be considered with relation to capitalization nor outstanding capital stock. The present situation of the silk business is not shown by the average results of a long period of years. The tariff of three years ago should be considered as indicative of the earning capacity of silk firms under present day conditions, which are most unsatisfactory. In fact, Senator Blaine made an error of a decimal point in his figures for the year 1928, and instead of 7 per cent it should be 7.1 per cent on the capital employed.

Wages Increased
"Senator Blaine has quoted Secretary Quinlan of the Associated Silk Workers as saying that, 'Mr. Cheney could be prosecuted for perjury for telling the Senate Finance Committee that silk mill workers wage had increased 228 per cent since the war.' An examination of my testimony will disclose that that was not what I said. The statement was made in connection with discussion of specific rates and their relative effectiveness at the present time and when they were enacted, which was in the year 1909. It is possible that a misunderstanding might be fostered by the sentence. We have been convinced by our experience before the Ways and Means Committee and elsewhere that the enactment today of specific rates, adequate to meet the changed conditions since the war, is not politically possible, which preceded the statement, 'Wages have increased in this industry 228 per cent; the price of raw silk has increased about 35 per cent; the price of merchandise over 100 per cent. In order to make differentials adequate to meet these new conditions it would be necessary to increase specific rates at least 100 per cent over those which ruled in previous schedules.' In 1909, schedules were enacted in 1908, making that year as a base year. The specific rates were enacted and the average wages paid by Cheney Brothers in the year 1928, all of these figures being prepared in the early part of the year 1929, shows an increase in the average rate of wages paid between those years of 231 per cent, according to a statement made to me this morning by the labor statistician of Cheney Brothers.

"Attached to the brief was a statement under Exhibit A, omitted by the government printer, together with some other data presented by us which gave index figures year by year for wages from the years 1913 to December of 1928, during which period of time average yearly earnings increased using the year 1913 as 100, to an index figure of 289.3 per cent.

"The writer is not accustomed, usually, to taking notice of statements in the press. In this case the facts have an important bearing on the legislation affecting this industry and on whatever action may be taken by the Conference Committee in relation to the silk schedule. I therefore trust that you will take careful note of these statements, and if there is any question on the part of anybody connected with any of the committees of Congress wishing to verify any facts presented by the Legislative Committee of the Silk Association, both the Silk Association and Cheney Brothers will very willingly submit to any inquiry designed to bring out the truth in relation to any facts affecting the tariff.

Very truly yours,
CHENEY BROTHERS,
HORACE B. CHENEY,
The letter forwarded to the Senate by the Silk Association follows:
"Honorable Charles Curtis,
President of the United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.
"Sir:

"The officers of The Silk Association of America, Inc., wish to place before you a request to have inserted on the records of the Senate this expression of their stand in respect to statements reported in the Congressional Record of January 7, 1930, as having been made by Senator Blaine, in respect to the proposed tariff rates on silk products.

"Senator Blaine is reported to have said: 'Mr. Cheney, I think, undertook deliberately to create the impression that he was the spokesman of the Silk Association. Any one reading the record would at once assume that he at least pretended that he was representing the Silk Association. My understanding is that he had no authority to represent the Silk Association. Moreover, the Silk Association has never ratified the recommendations made by Mr. Cheney before either committee.'

Is Authorized
"For the information of Senator Blaine and other members of the Senate, Mr. Horace B. Cheney is vested with authority to represent the Silk Association on legislative matters, particularly relating to tariff hearings, by virtue of his election by the Board of Managers of the association as Chairman of the Committee on Legislation.

"Mr. Cheney has been annually elected as Chairman of the Committee for twelve succeeding years, 1910-1929 inclusive, and was elected a member of that Committee for the two years preceding.

"As to informing the members of the association as to the work of the committee on Legislation through Mr. Cheney, permit us to submit to you the accompanying correspondence which speaks for itself.

"1. Letter of January 2, 1929, sent to each member of the association, asking for suggestions to incorporate in the Association's Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives. This gave each member the opportunity of taking part in the work of preparing the brief.

"2. Letter of February 8, 1929, sent to each member of the association enclosing a copy of the completed brief submitted to the Ways and Means Committee. Each member was thus made familiar with what was to be presented to the House in the name of the association. You will note that the brief is signed by the full committee on legislation.

"3. Letter of September 19, 1929 to individual members of the Committee on Ways and Means and the Finance Committee, correcting Senator Blaine on another occasion when he made a statement similar to the one here mentioned. A reading of this letter will answer several of the statements appearing in the Congressional Record.

Labor Still Primary
"The development of the silk industry in the United States has made it possible for every American woman to wear garments of silk, formerly only the privilege of the wealthy. That development in turn has been made possible only through the existence of adequate tariff rates on silk imports as otherwise the domestic industry could not compete with the cheap labor of foreign countries. Labor is still a primary consideration in the cost of silk production, and as a result of the demand made by American ingenuity in utilizing mechanical contrivances for quantity production of silk at a popular price, the human element is still most important. Lack of adequate protection would mean that this labor now employed would find themselves without occupation and they are mostly skilled workers especially trained by long experience in the weaving of silk.

"The personal attack on Mr. Cheney we feel, is particularly regrettable on the part of the officers and managers of our association. Mr. Cheney has sacrificed untold time and expense in presenting to Congress for many years the views of the Silk Association of America, and it is unfortunate that statements made before committee hearings in regard to individual views on sections of the silk schedule should be interpreted as meaning that Mr. Cheney represented them and that the tariff briefs submitted by our committee on legislation, through Mr. Cheney, and the testimony which he as chairman of the Committee on Legislation presented before the various committees of Congress were not the official action of the Silk Association of America.

"May we say again that the briefs filed by Mr. Cheney and the testimony given by him are his official expression of the position of The Silk Association of America, Inc., in respect to the proposed tariff rates on the silk schedule.

Respectfully,
RAMSAY PEUGNET,
Secretary.

Senate Debate
"In order that there may be a better understanding of the situation which Mr. Cheney and the Silk Association deal in the above letters—the matter having not been previously treated in these columns, there is presented herewith a reprint of certain paragraphs from the Congressional Record of January 7 which contain all that Mr. Blaine said on the subject at issue together with some of the utterances of other senators during the debate. Remarks not dealing directly with the subject are omitted:

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, the pending amendment is in paragraph 1205, page 181, and if agreed to would make that paragraph read as follows:

"Woven fabrics in the piece, wholly or in chief value of silk, not specially provided for, 60 per cent ad valorem; if Jacquard-figured, 65 per cent ad valorem."

largely. In fact, the broad silks are used in garments for both men and women—not only for tapestry and upholstery but largely and in the main for use in fabricating garments.

Mr. SMOOT. Yes; and I will say to the Senator that the production in the United States of goods under paragraph 1205 runs into hundreds of millions of dollars, covering, as I previously said, the broad silk and the silk upholstery fabrics as well as silk tapestries. All of those are covered by paragraph 1205.

Mr. President, the present rate of duty under the law of 1922 is 55 per cent ad valorem; the House rate is 55 per cent ad valorem, but if the goods are Jacquard-figured, the rate is 65 per cent ad valorem; in other words, there is a differential provided between the plain and the Jacquard-woven fabrics.

Of course, everybody who is familiar with the "textile" industry, whether it be woolen, cotton, or silk, knows that whenever a fabric is produced on a Jacquard loom it costs more because of the fact that the Jacquard looms are used for the purpose of putting in the patterns, making the wonderful designs, which can not be made on an ordinary loom, which weaves clothes for men or plain cloths of any kind. All sorts of figures can be woven by the Jacquard loom, and it is a most expert man or woman—mostly men are employed—to operate a Jacquard loom. The Jacquard loom can be operated only after long training. I suppose there are many operators who have never seen a Jacquard loom. As I have indicated, it is a very difficult piece of machinery to handle, and the process of weaving figures in the cloth by the Jacquard loom is a very difficult one.

The difference in rate has been provided between the plain and the Jacquard-woven fabrics.

(Follows considerable explanation by Mr. Smoot of the varieties of looms used in the silk industry and their purposes.)

Mr. Blaine. The Senator suggests that the increased rates have been made at the request of the silk manufacturers. Did any silk manufacturer appear before the committee other than Mr. Cheney?

Mr. Smoot. Yes; I think one or two others appeared. I forget the name of the gentleman who appeared in behalf of the manufacturers of gloria cloth. I do not think Mr. Cheney makes that character of cloth at all.

Mr. Blaine. But there was no considerable number of others who appeared. Mr. Cheney appeared generally for them.

Mr. Smoot. In the letters I received from silk manufacturers, I usually find them stated that Mr. Cheney was there to represent the silk industry of the United States.

Mr. Blaine. But it was claimed that the silk association authorized his appearance, and the statement that he represented to them was a misrepresentation, while, on the other hand, a very large group of silk manufacturers filed briefs and personally appeared and opposed any increase in the rates in the silk schedule.

Mr. Smoot. There were some, though they were very few, and none were making gloria cloth, so far as I remember. I do not say that the silk association stated that Mr. Cheney represented them. I said that I had received numerous letters from silk manufacturers stating that, if there was no objection on the part of the committee and it made no difference to the committee, they would like to have Mr. Cheney represent them and speak for them. I thought that by having him do so we would save time rather than have all of them come down here and testify.

Mr. Blaine. But there was no question about that.

(Senator Copeland of New York here diverting the discussion to the subject of rayon mixtures and necktie silks, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts participating, Senator Blaine again returned to the line of his previous remarks.)

Mr. Blaine. The Senator from Massachusetts repeats the statement, as I understand it, that was made by the Senator from New York, that the silk association made these representations.

Mr. Walsh of Massachusetts. Yes, Mr. Blaine. The silk association, as I understand the record, never made such representations.

Mr. Walsh of Massachusetts. They tried to get a specific duty on silk. Mr. Blaine. A single man went before the committee and represented that he represented the silk association, which representation was a pure fabrication.

Mr. Walsh of Massachusetts. I accept the Senator's correction. The record would show, from a reading of it, that he represented the silk association, but the Senator denies the fact and claims he only represented one of the larger silk manufacturers.

Mr. Smoot. He represented more than that.

Mr. Blaine. He substantially represented no one but himself. He had been before the Finance Committee from time immemorial endeavoring to write the silk schedule. He is Mr. Cheney, of Connecticut. We might as well be frank about it.

own initiative without any authority whatever from any association. Mr. Smoot. That is exactly the way I look what he said, because I had so many letters from silk manufacturers saying he would represent them; but it is true the American Silk Association never voted directly to appoint him as a representative of that association. Ever since 1909 he has been representing the association, however, to my certain knowledge.

Mr. Simmons. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The Presiding Officer (Mr. Jones in the chair). Does the Senator from New York yield to the Senator from North Carolina?

Mr. Copeland. I yield.

Mr. Simmons. I think the Senator is right in his statement that Mr. Cheney has generally appeared here whenever there was legislation pending affecting the silk industry. I think he has generally claimed to be the representative of the association. I was on the subcommittee of the committee on the seven-year extension that Mr. Cheney appeared before us and made this request for an increase. My recollection also is that there was some information before the committee—I do not state it positively, because it may have been a mere rumor or rumor—that the association did not demand the increase until Senator Blaine, in the course of an argument against any increase in the silk tariff, said:

Mr. Blaine. Now I want to direct my attention to another proposition, and that is that the silk manufacturers of the country are opposed to any increase of the rates under the silk schedule. It was in 1922 when the Fordyce-McCumber bill was enacted that Mr. Cheney, a large manufacturer of silks, made the statement that he considered a reasonable flow of imports essential and stimulating to the silk industry. At that time the ratio of imports ruled in the neighborhood of 10 per cent. Today the ratio has dropped to five per cent of the domestic production.

Also, Mr. Cheney, I think, undertook deliberately to create the impression that he was the spokesman of the silk association.

Anyone reading the record would at once assume that he at least pretended that he was representing the Silk Association; and he made numerous statements before the House committee and the Senate committee that in his opinion he represented 80 per cent of the silk manufacturers who were members of the Silk Association. My understanding is that he had no authority to represent the Silk Association; in fact he did not represent the Silk Association. Besides, Mr. President, there are a large number of domestic manufacturers who are not members of the Silk Association. Moreover, the Silk Association never has ratified the recommendations made by Mr. Cheney before either committee. The record does not say that the silk association stated that Mr. Cheney represented them. I said that I had received numerous letters from silk manufacturers stating that, if there was no objection on the part of the committee and it made no difference to the committee, they would like to have Mr. Cheney represent them and speak for them. I thought that by having him do so we would save time rather than have all of them come down here and testify.

Mr. Blaine. But there was no question about that.

Mr. Smoot. There was no request by the silk association of which I am aware, but Mr. Cheney came before the committee and represented the great bulk of the silk manufacturers of the United States.

Mr. Blaine. That is, he represented that he represented them.

Mr. Smoot. All I can say is that I have letters from the silk manufacturers stating that he was here to represent them.

Mr. Blaine. I have letters to the contrary.

Mr. Smoot. I do not think he represented them all; there can be no question about that.

(Senator Copeland of New York here diverting the discussion to the subject of rayon mixtures and necktie silks, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts participating, Senator Blaine again returned to the line of his previous remarks.)

Mr. Blaine. The Senator from Massachusetts repeats the statement, as I understand it, that was made by the Senator from New York, that the silk association made these representations.

Mr. Walsh of Massachusetts. Yes, Mr. Blaine. The silk association, as I understand the record, never made such representations.

capital stock, according to Moody's reports on industrials, as I remember, of $20,000,000. They increased their capital stock in 1925 from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, but the only outstanding stock in that company is $7,000,000, and according to the income tax returns of the company for the seven years mentioned they made a very splendid return on their actual investment, almost 7 per cent. That was after considerable sums were taken out of the income of the company to pay Mr. Cheney's family. That is practically the only company that is here asking for an increase in the silk schedule. Why, the audacity of the request! The unreasonableness of the request!

So, Mr. President, I propose at the appropriate time—because under the rule I can not do it now—to move to strike out all of paragraph 1205. When we have the opportunity to offer individual amendments I shall submit that motion. For that reason it seems unnecessary to make any special struggle at this time to overcome the demand of practically only one silk manufacturer.

I appreciate that there are some imports of umbrella or gloria silk and necktie silk that are to a degree competitive, yet the silk manufacturers, whose views I have here this afternoon indicated through their letters and statements are opposed to any rate increases. Some of them, however, have suggested the possibility of allying the fear of Mr. Cheney, who has been receiving 6 1/2 per cent upon his investment during the last few years, with the possibility of an additional tariff rate on the two classes of silks.

Mr. President, with that statement I yield the floor.

OUTLINES PARK PLAN FOR CLUB

Architect Thomas Desmond Speaker Before Garden Club Last Evening.

"Making a New Park" was the subject Thomas H. Desmond's lecture before the Manchester Garden Club at its January meeting last evening in the auditorium of the School Street Recreation Center. The speaker was introduced by Charles E. Murphy, who disclosed that he had no less than six different requests from members of the club to secure Mr. Desmond, since the proposed development of Center Springs Park and sketch of plans by him had appeared in The Herald.

Mr. Desmond is the well known landscape architect of Simsbury. He makes a specialty of park development and had prepared the sketch at the request of the Manchester Park Commission of which William C. Cheney is chairman.

Mr. Murphy reminded the gathering that the beautiful park at the Center was the gift of members of the Cheney family, and the land of the proposed park was largely given by the same family, and Mr. Cheney had given much time and thought to the prospective development of this naturally beautiful area in the heart of the town.

Mr. Desmond proved an entertaining speaker. He used a blackboard to illustrate his remarks and descriptions, and also displayed a large map of the Center Springs development toward the close of his lecture.

He described a park as a place set aside for recreation. There are all kinds of parks—national, state, county, municipal and private parks. The system of national parks has taken great strides in recent years, as well as state parks and forest lands which are used for similar ends, and many of which are donated to the state by organizations and individuals. There are no county parks in Connecticut. The most famous example perhaps of a county park is that of the Palisades park system and the Westchester County park system, which includes the Bear Mountain park in New York State.

The speaker referred to Bushnell Park, Hartford, as a striking example of the municipal park. Horace Bushnell, whom Hartford is just now honoring by the dedication of a beautiful memorial building, was responsible for Hartford's now having this beautiful park in the heart of the city. Mr. Bushnell, Mr. Desmond explained, was not a rich man, but through his efforts the city bought the park property and developed it and paid for it by direct taxation of the people. It is the first park in the United States, possibly in the world, so acquired, and this, too, directly after the Civil War, indicating that the people even in those trying days were willing to be persuaded to spend money for which there was no tangible return, other than for recreation.

Keney Park, also in Hartford, was a private park until within the past few years. It was developed and maintained by a board of trustees, and when the work was completed to their satisfaction, was deeded to the City of Hartford. Keney Park is the only park of the type of the rural park in this country.

Mr. Desmond paid tribute to Charles Eliot, son of the late President Emertus Eliot of Harvard, who against the sympathy of his family devoted his life to the profession of a landscape architect. He made parks a deep study and traveled abroad to deepen his knowledge of the subject. He had entire charge of the development of Keney Park but before those plans were carried out he died. Another of Hartford's beautiful recreation grounds, Mr. Desmond referred to as one of the most beautiful parks in this section of the country, and its rosegarden among the finest in the world. As for the Metropolitan Park idea, of which Mr. Eliot was the father according to Mr. Desmond, no better example can be found than the Metropolitan Park system of Massachusetts in which thirty different municipalities have co-operated, brought about largely through agitation of Charles Eliot's speeches and writings.

The lecturer illustrated on the blackboard the simplest form of park, the country cross-road where perhaps a few trees and shrubs are planted on the edge of the green-ward and settees are placed for the pedestrian to rest a while. Another simple form is the triangle or old New England common in the heart of many New England towns. Mr. Desmond gave several concrete examples of what had been done in such places, as Thomaston and Wethersfield.

He told of the development of Willow Brook park in New Britain and the criticism that so much money should be "sunk in a swamp" but the results have warranted all that was spent, and this would be true of the excavation necessary at Center Springs pond to deepen the river bed and do away with the unusable marsh. Here we have a beautiful park "in the raw." Nature un-restrained has had a lovely time there for years. One of the first steps in making a new park is to take an inventory of the land and see what its possibilities are. This has been done with the park in question. The next thing is to go about doing it. There won't be much land that won't need working over. It will be necessary to thin the trees and shrubbery here and there, clean the pond, lay out walks and build fireplaces, and otherwise develop it as proposed in the recent printed outline and sketch made by Mr. Desmond. It will cost $2000 an acre, but in the future it will return dividends that cannot be measured in terms of per cent or coupons, but dividends in better health for the citizens, better morale for the youngsters, better satisfaction with nature in general. It will be a place for the people of the town to enjoy their leisure time, a place they can use, not a "polished" park.

The speaker advised the purchasing of land in different parts of the town for park purposes even though nothing was done with the plots for the next fifty years. Manchester is growing rapidly and some of these breathing places will not be available as the years go by.

Mr. Desmond was accorded a rising vote of thanks at the close of his enlightening talk. W. E. Buckley of the Garden Club's Public Relations committee, presented a resolution which was unanimously adopted—that the Manchester Garden Club heartily endorses the Park Commission's proposed development and takes a keen interest in the plans submitted.

The Martins lived in a duplex apartment on the eighth and ninth floors of a large apartment house on Park avenue between 75th and 76th streets. The building is owned by Senator Royal S. Copeland who also occupies an apartment there.

OLD FASHIONED BROWN
 Postmaster-General Brown as one of those rather rare persons who have discovered that the aviation business is over-extended. We take it from what he said before the House Appropriations Committee yesterday that he is one of those old-fashioned souls, much scorned by the snappy up-to-daters, who are not markedly "air-minded." He actually has the notion, strange as it may seem, that there are certain limits within which the air-mail is worth what it costs and beyond which it costs a lot more than it is worth. He has even gone so far as to suggest that except as a feeder for the transcontinental mail routes there is very little justification for the New York-Boston line, and none whatever for the very high price paid for that service by the government.

But if Postmaster-General Brown is an old fogey in the matter of aviation he nevertheless has a sense of humor, as is indicated by his illustration of the discrepancy between what the government pays for the carrying of air mail and what the user of the service pays. Pointing out that a recent shipment of two tons of lithographs from Niagara Falls to California cost the shipper $6,000 in postage and that the government paid the contractor $25,000 for carrying it, the postmaster-general proceeds to an illustration:
 "Any air mail contractor," he says, "could make money by sending a cook stove to himself at the other end of the route and sending it back every day until it wore out. And we would have no redress provided he paid the air mail postage on it."
 There is no intimation in this that any air mail contractor was in any way associated with the shipper of the lithographs in the above instance. But when it is possible for such contracting companies, if they should happen to want to, to invite their friends to make expensive air mail shipments and to accompany the invitation with a present of the necessary stamps—all to the very great profit of the contracting concern, then there is a certain amount of grimness in the humor of the old-fashioned Mr. Brown.

It has been the impression of cautious people for a long time that the scrambling haste with which the aviation business in this country has been promoted—and not alone in this country, either—was a very different kind of procedure from the development of either railroads or the automobile. And not the least of that scramble has been in the post-office department, where the experiment of air mail carrying, properly conducted as a government measure of economic development, was prematurely shoveled with precipitate haste into the laps of private interests, obviously in frantic fear that the people might by and by insist on the post-office retaining the routes it had created if the dumping were not done while the opportunity was open.

THE INNER MEAT
 After opportunity for closer study of the preliminary report of the Law Enforcement Commission transmitted to Congress yesterday by President Hoover, we still believe that the major significance of the document rests in those few paragraphs of the report which deal with the "Scope and size of the problem," and particularly with the first of those paragraphs, which is well worth printing again:
 As to observance: It is impossible wholly to set off observance of the prohibition act from the large question of the views and habits of the American people with respect to private judgment as to statutes and regulations affecting their conduct. To reach conclusions of any value, we must go into deep questions of public opinion and the criminal law. We must look into the several factors in the attitude of the people, both generally and in particular localities, toward laws in general and toward specific regulations. We must note the attitude of the pioneer toward such things. We must bear in mind the Puritan's objection to administration, the Whig tradition of a "right of revolution," the conception of natural rights, classical in our policy, the democratic tradition of individual participation in sovereignty, the attitude of the business world toward local regulation of enterprise, the clash of organized interests and opinions in a diversified community, and the divergences of attitude in different sections of the country and as between different groups in the same locality. We must not forget the many historical examples of large-scale public disregard of laws in our past. To give proper weight to these things, in connection with the social and economic effects of the prohibition law, is not a matter of a few months.

There is not the slightest doubt that what the commission calls the "Puritan objection to administration"—revolt against the attempted government of conscience by the wooden formulas of a conventionalized code—is inherent in the old British stock which is still dominant in America. There is no doubt that the "Whig tradition of a right to revolution," expressed in powder smoke at Lexington and Concord and in a thunder of words in the Declaration of Independence, is a basic principle of American civilization—it stood at the back of four million embattled Yankees in 1918. "The conception of natural rights, classical in our policy," links to one of the "many historical examples of large scale public disregard of laws in our past" with irresistible significance in the matter of the fugitive Slave Law which was openly defied and nullified not only by the massed public opinion of the North but by formal action of many northern states.

In a broad but very real sense the Law Enforcement Commission presents, as a problem for the most serious examination, the question whether or not the Eighteenth Amendment and the statutes predicated on it are, as a matter of fact, an integral part of the basic law of the United States, drawn from the only recognizable source of authority, or whether they are mere formulae, opposed to natural rights, challenging the Puritan objection to mechanized administration of the public conscience and the Whig principle of right to defy unjust and morally invalid legislative enactment.

It seems to us that the commission at a stroke has lifted this great question out of the category of manners and mandates and into the atmosphere of primary principles. It proposes a study of the adjustment of fundamental balances—meanwhile advising the filing of a few visible burrs off the surfaces of a huge machine that may be all wrong or all right in principle but which, at all events, has never run.

SHENSI FAMINE
 It is impossible to get a mental picture of two million people out of a population of six million starving or freezing to death in eight months, and of two million more doomed to meet the same fate before the winter is over. And all within relatively a few hundred miles of sources of supply of sufficient food to keep them all alive. And perhaps it is just as well for our sanity that the dreadful conditions in Shensi, China, are beyond the limits of our imagination.

Crop failures—to what extent due to the fact that the man-power of the great northern province has been drafted, season after season, into the business of war making instead of the business of agriculture is not known—are of course primarily responsible for the famine. But this great area nearer to Peking than Chicago is to New York, might as well be on the moon for all the chance of transporting sufficient food is concerned. There are no roads of any consequence. The Wei river, single important avenue of communication, has been frozen for months in the most terrific winter in a long life time. The way is simply impassable.

There they are, these millions of men, women and children, individuals like the rest of us, with their individual hopes, aspirations, family ties, loves and passions, dying with scarcely more consideration from the rest of the world than if they were so many flies.
 There seems to be nothing to be done about it. And yet, one wonders. If the same energy, the same determination, the same limitless employment of men and money and materials were applied to this problem as we have seen applied by a union of nations to the conduct of a great war campaign, perhaps ways and means might be found for the salvaging of at least a few of the dying millions of Shensi.
 Men, money, heroic effort, however, are not applied to the saving of human life in any such degree as in the taking of it.

PARROT DISEASE
 The epidemic of psittacosis or parrot disease that has spread widely but not very thickly throughout the country as the result of the importation of a lot of diseased parrots from South America, is attracting widespread interest probably more because of the unusual character of the infecting agency than because of any special apprehension of a general spread of the disease.

The queer sounding name of the sickness is a direct derivative of "psittaci," the scientific name of the order of birds to which the parrot belongs. It is a broadly applied term and covers all parrots, macaws, cockatoos, love birds and the like. Incidentally it is pronounced "sittisee."
 There seems to be no reason why the family Polly should be regarded with suspicion, if she be an old timer, as the cases of parrot fever seem to be all traceable to this one lot of infected birds which came from Buenos Ayres to New York in December and were distributed through a single pet shop. There is probably no more danger of parrot disease from a naturalized parrot than from the family cat.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Jan. 14.—From over Hoboken way came an announcement recently, between the lines of which anyone who cared to might have read a wistful epilogue to a typical story of Broadway's depths. It is said that three of the "forgotten" clowns of the show world were going to get together to make the world laugh again.

There was to be, for instance, Bert Fitzgibbon, the "daffydill," who sent vaudeville audiences into convulsions not so many years ago. There was to be Billy Montgomery, whose story is as tragic as any clown the big street ever produced—a fellow who reached the heights and then "went the pace." There was to be, saddest of all, Frank Tinney—one of the highest priced comedians the white light ever trailed, and who wound up an invalid out on a farm of a relative.

Well, lots of people went over with that certain hope in their hearts; a desire that these performers would all be up to their old antics and that the laughs would ring to the rafters again.
 But Tinney didn't come. I guess he couldn't. Perhaps he wasn't ready yet; his precarious state of health wouldn't permit.
 Bert Fitzgibbon had met with an accident, but came limping on nevertheless with a broken leg. And Montgomery, somehow, didn't bring out the old chuckles.

So, within a very brief time, the whole idea folded up and the show closed—closed upon three of the clowns in line at the box offices just a few years ago.
 Funny how Manhattan fortunes are made. There's Mack Kanner, who was a dress goods man in the "suit and cloak" belt of New York. In the old days when women wore shirtwaists and skirts, he had the notion that they should wear dresses and he started a propaganda to achieve it. He gambled with woman's fancy—that most fickle of investments. But dresses did come into vogue and Kanner came into millions. Today he's credited with owning more than $50,000,000 worth of property in the "suit section"—just on a matter of shirtwaists and skirts.

Doc Rockwell, the vaudeville and music show comic, has a favorite gag which goes something like this—"What is the first thing to turn green in spring?" And the answer is, "Christmas jewelry."

When, just the other day, the Metropolitan announced that John Erskine, the author, and George Antheil, the composer, had been called upon to collaborate on an operatic version of Erskine's "Helen of Troy," few recalled that the eccentric music of Antheil was inspired in Trenton, N. J.
 For one reason or another Antheil has been looked upon as a European, but the idea for his mechanical ballet actually came out of the manufacturing towns in New Jersey where the composer spent his boyhood. To be sure, he received his musical education in Paris and became associated with the modernistic musicians of Europe.
 Incidentally, Erskine is a better pianist than he is a writer, though he writes well and amusingly. He has been president of the Juillard School of Music and frequently goes on concert tours about the country.

ART TREASURES STOLEN.
 Puebla, Mexico, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Puebla State college was looted early yesterday of fourteen valuable paintings dating back to the Seventeenth century.
 The robbers are believed to be the same ones who the night before stole valuable antiques from the famous old Rosario church in the same city.
 It is thought they are disposing of their loot to art collectors, possibly in the United States.

HONEY MOON FOR THREE
 London.—When Joseph Elliott took his bride on their honeymoon, he also took his brother, Mrs. Elliott charged in a summons for desertion. Then after the honeymoon the brother continued to live with her. He had little regard for women, the wife charged, and tried to dominate her. When a child was born it was given the brother's name, unknown to Mrs. Elliott. She won a decree of support from the court.

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE
 Dr. Frank McCoy
 "The Best Way to Health"
 QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH-DIET ADVICE WILL BE ANSWERED BY MAIL. ADDRESS: 100 N. W. COR. BROAD ST. NEW YORK, N. Y.

PRIMARY AND SECONDARY ANEMIA
 Secondary anemia usually occurs in any condition where pus is being absorbed by the body, such as chronic appendicitis, ulcers, abscesses, etc. As these pus pockets are cleared up, the secondary anemia disappears. Fevers such as rheumatic, typhoid, malaria and hookworm also often produce secondary anemia, as well as toxic diseases, as cancer. In all of these diseases there is undoubtedly a severe toxemia and I believe that it is this poison which causes the anemic state. The increase in the number of white cells or scavenger cells usually occurring in secondary anemia seems to be due to an effort to clean out the toxins which are present, and as the toxins become lessened, the need for them no longer being present, they are reduced to the normal amount.

Pernicious anemia is much rarer than secondary anemia. Contrary to prevailing opinion, the patients are not usually thin and pale, but are usually fat and flabby. The patient usually feels tired and listless, has a poor appetite, the muscles are weak, there may be swelling in the ankles and palpitation of the heart. As the disease progresses, a fatty degeneration of the heart often appears. The patient becomes emaciated with perhaps some fever.
 The principal change takes place in the bone marrow where the red blood cells are formed. In some cases, the number of red blood cells may be diminished to such a degree that they fall below 2,000,000 instead of the normal 5,000,000. The amount of hemoglobin may be comparatively high in pernicious anemia when compared to secondary anemia, and the number of white blood cells is lower, whereas in secondary anemia they are more numerous than normal.

In this disease the blood is lacking in important mineral elements, especially sodium and iron. The foods that have these two elements most abundantly are: Sodium—meats, spinach, oysters, radishes, strawberries, pumpkins, asparagus, carrots, dandelions and lettuce. Iron—Sorel, lettuce, leeks, nettles, spinach, truffles, strawberries, radishes, asparagus, swiss chard, spinach, artichoke and pumpkins.
 The orange juice fast seems to be the best possible preliminary treatment in pernicious anemia. While this disease is ordinarily considered rapidly fatal, the fact is that I have never seen a case that did not immediately begin to improve during the fasting regime. Enemas should be used daily with two sponge baths. Sunbaths will be found to increase the number of red cells temporarily, and this increase may be held if a careful follow up diet is used. All the fresh air possible should be absorbed by deep breathing exercises, and moderate exercise is also advisable. There is no other disease in which fasting, diet, sun and fresh air effect as marked an improvement in so short a time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Floating Kidney)
 Question:—K. J. asks: "Will you please tell me the cause, symptoms and cure of a floating or wandering kidney?"
 Answer: The kidneys are not definitely anchored in an exact position, but change their position slightly with the movements of the body. Those who have a general proptosis of the abdominal organs will find that the kidneys are always lower down than is considered normal. There are seldom any definite symptoms except those which go with the general proptosis. The backache and bearing-down feelings associated with proptosis are seldom caused by the floating kidneys alone, but come from the general weakness of abdominal and back muscles which allows the proptosis to exist. The only cure is to strengthen these organs through strengthening the abdominal and back muscles by taking suitable setting-up exercises.
 (Bacteria)
 Question:—Curious writes: "Will you please explain how bacteria can produce disease if the adult is really, as you say, caused by our bad habits of living?"
 Answer: Bacteria are microscopic fungus growths and are really of vegetable origin. They grow in enormous numbers in some of the mucous membranes, such as in the nose and throat. Bacteria grow rapidly and often produce poisons of their own, some being more violent than others. There are good bacteria and bad bacteria, but each must have suitable soil for growth. Bad habits cultivate the growth of the injurious bacteria, while good habits promote the growth of the friendly bacteria.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER
 By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer
 Washington, Jan. 14.—On Christmas Day Mr. F. Scott McBride, the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, proclaimed in mimeographed handouts to the press that prohibition was the great Santa Claus of the American people.
 But to President Hoover, prohibition much more resembles Macbeth, the gent who murdered sleep. Especially of late.
 The recent ballyhoo about enforcement has been singularly covered with aspects of ignorance, hypocrisy and cowardice, but that doesn't let Mr. Hoover out.
 The Great White Father is always the goat on this issue. He it is who is supposed to administer and enforce the laws. Agents and coast guardsmen have to do the talking and the shooting and above them there are administrators, commissioners and other officers to see that they do it, but in supreme command is the president.

He's Always a Target
 The sad state of prohibition enforcement makes him a shining mark. For anyone who wants to take a few shots at him it provides bricksbats always at hand. When he is charged with failing to achieve satisfactory enforcement the charge can't be denied. All a poor president can do is to assure everyone of his good intentions and promise to try like the dickens to do a better job.
 It doesn't make any difference whether a law can be enforced or not. As regards prohibition, there are two schools of thought on that. Mr. Hoover might believe it couldn't be enforced, but he wouldn't dare say so. He wouldn't have to carry on just as if he thought it could.
 The notion that the president needed Senator Borah to tell him that the law wasn't being enforced is tinged with absurdity. The incident was chiefly valuable as demonstrating the value of ballyhoo. After Borah's blast Mr. Hoover had to pretend a sudden excitement over such astonishing revelations and act as if the wool had just been pulled from his eyes. It is interesting to note that Senator Borah deliberately sought to embarrass the president, but it was obvious enough that he didn't mind if he did.
 The contrast in the attitudes of Harlow, Coolidge and Hoover toward prohibition enforcement seems to be that Hoover is more conscientious about it. One can also say for Hoover that he has not been in office very long and can hardly be expected to do in less than a year what his predecessors failed to do in eight.
 He is fortunate in retaining the support of the dry organizations, with their control of Congress. The organized after the honeymoon the brother continued to live with her. He had little regard for women, the wife charged, and tried to dominate her. When a child was born it was given the brother's name, unknown to Mrs. Elliott. She won a decree of support from the court.

BISHOP BABCOCK DYING AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT
 Boston, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Right Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Babcock, 79-year-old suffragan bishop of the Massachusetts Diocese of the Episcopal church, was in a critical condition today with injuries sustained last night when struck by an automobile. His name was on the danger list at the City hospital.
 Bishop Babcock was knocked down as he stepped into the street by a car driven by Harold S. Stone of Brookline. He was rushed to the hospital in the machine but failed to regain consciousness during the night. Physicians said his advanced years and injuries made recovery unlikely.
 He received a fractured skull, a compound fracture of the nose and possible internal injuries. He was on the way to attend a clerical club dinner at the University Club and was struck on a street in a business section of the city.

Big Wave Engulfs Tug Which Goes Down in a Minute—Five Saved.

Plymouth, England, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The H. M. S. Froisher, St. Cyrus, and Snap Dragon arrived here today with five survivors of the tug St. Genny, which sank near Ushant Light yesterday in the storm.

Portland, England, Jan. 14.—(AP)—According to accounts available aboard H. M. S. Nelson, flagship of the Atlantic fleet, today, the disaster which yesterday overtook the tug St. Genny, occurred with astonishing suddenness.

While the tug was hove to in the gale of 80 miles, with gusts exceeding 100 miles per hour, an immense wave swept over three tugs, stationed about half a mile apart.

When the wave had passed the crews of the two ships were unable to see the St. Genny's lights. They turned their own searchlights on the water and saw the crew of the tug struggling in the water.

It was assumed the giant wave which temporarily swamped the St. Cyrus and the Snap Dragon stove the plates of St. Genny, which probably filled and sank almost instantly.

HEBRON

Fourteen members were present at the meeting of the Local League of Women Voters, on Wednesday at the Congregational Church league room at Hebron Center.

Electric lights have been installed in the town clerk's office. The next crying need is a telephone.

Leroy Benzinger, jr., eight years old, came near being injured very seriously when he was running about with his brother, a year or two older, who was using an axe.

Those perfect in attendance for the Fall term in the primary room, Hebron Center School, were Lloyd Gray, Herbert Hills, Frank Kulynych, John Kulynych, Henry Pomproicz, Elizabeth Gonci, Elsie Hills, and Marie Smith.

Too much Young America on the high school transportation bus driven by Clarence Rathbun between Hebron and Willimantic caused friction between driver, pupils, and parents recently.

Meanwhile, an investigation begun today by the state's attorney's office of a ring that is alleged to have collected thousands of dollars from taxpayers on promises to cut their tax bills in the reassessment of Cook county property.

BELIEVE TWO KILLED IN ALTON, N. H., FIRE

Explosion Starts Blaze; That Destroys Shoe Factory; Man Hurled Through Window.

Alton, N. H., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Two employees of the Nor-All Shoe Company were believed to have perished today in a fire which destroyed the company's factory here and spread to three other buildings, one of which was destroyed.

The fire was caused by an explosion of ammonia dye, used in coloring leather. The force of the explosion threw Daniel Curtin, general manager of the plant, through the window of his office on the first floor.

Another Missing A roll call of employees showed that Frank Young, 50, also was missing and a similar fate was believed to have been his.

CHICAGO INVOLVED IN "ECONOMY" WAR

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson and the "economy faction" of the City Council were at loggerheads again today.

The majority forces in the council were unable to halt passage last night of a budget calling for approximately $55,000,000 in appropriations and substantially the same as the vetoed last week by Mayor Thompson.

The threat of the mayor's veto power dispelled any air of quietude that might have followed passage. While Mayor Thompson would give no intimation of what he would do, he said he would speak in a message at a recessed session of the council Saturday.

More Economy Frequently in the heated fight, the mayor's forces warned that if the new budget were passed, it would be necessary again to discharge firemen, policemen and employees of the health and other departments.

Meanwhile, an investigation begun today by the state's attorney's office of a ring that is alleged to have collected thousands of dollars from taxpayers on promises to cut their tax bills in the reassessment of Cook county property.

SIX PERSONS KILLED BY WESTERN STORMS

Heavy Snow in California for First Time in Many Years; Hundreds of Autoists Are Marooned.

San Francisco, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Winter swooped down upon the far west during the week-end, leaving in its wake today six persons dead, four critically hurt, several missing and hundreds marooned by snow.

Bitter cold accounted for three of the deaths—two in Arizona and one in Washington. Heavy snow fell in many places in California. Fresno received its first appreciable snow in 20 years and San Francisco its first measurable fall in eight years.

The hill country of Southern California received its heaviest snow in 25 years. Snow falls in the orange groves of the Orville district and that city received a two inch white blanket for the first time in 12 years.

Virtually the whole state of California was swept by snow, rain and hail. The storm played havoc with motorists, marooning hundreds in winter resorts.

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Advertisement for Vicks VapoRub. Text: "More and More COLDS treated externally". "A GENERATION ago when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, more and more colds are treated this modern way, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing." Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting delicate little stomachs. Of course it is equally good for adults. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages. To keep pace with the ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds, the famous Vicks slogan has again been changed, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

POLICEMAN KILLED BY NEGRO SUSPECT

Boston Officer Was Watching Rear of Building When Shot; Slayer is Arrested.

Boston, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Captured within an hour, James Threadgill, a negro, was held today on the charge of murder of Police Officer James J. Troy while attempting to escape arrest last night in a south end home.

Troy was shot and killed while watching the rear of the building after other officers entered to serve a warrant for the arrest of Threadgill on a larceny charge. Acting on a tip, police led by Superintendent Michael H. Crowley found the negro in an hour later in an apartment.

Threadgill denied being at home during the day. He was booked on a formal charge of murder at midnight. He had been identified earlier by a Taunton storekeeper as one of two men who had held up his store last Thursday.

GOVERNOR IS ASSIGNED TO CLEAN UP NEW YORK

Albany, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A Republican Legislature today had left on the doorstep of Governor Roosevelt an assignment to investigate "corruption in the various departments of the government of the city of New York."

The assignment came in the form of an announcement made last night by majority leader of the Senate McGinnis. They said a bill would be introduced in the Legislature to provide for a commission "named wholly by the governor" to investigate not only the administration of law by Magistrates Courts but the Arnold Rothstein case and its alleged connection with the New York City police department.

CLEVELAND OUSTS ITS CITY MANAGER

Cleveland, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The turbulent course of Cleveland's city manager system of government, instituted here first among the nation's larger cities had reached its bitter climax today with the summary removal of City Manager William R. Hopkins.

The City Council by a vote of 14 to 11 last night ousted Hopkins from the position he had held since the manager plan was adopted six years ago. Removal Order The immediate outcome of the Council's action is the suspension of Hopkins effective at once, with his final removal ordered January 22. Before that date he will be given a public hearing, which he demanded as provided for in the city charter. On January 27, former state Senator Daniel E. Morgan is scheduled to become the new city manager.

ROCKVILLE COUNCIL RECEIVES PAY PROPOSALS

Firemen's Increases Suggested in Resolution Presented Last Night.

At a special meeting of the Common Council, held in the council room, Memorial building, last evening, the fire committee, consisting of Alderman William Schaefer, Councilman Walter Draycott and William R. Dowling, presented the following resolution, recommending a raise in the salary of each officer and member of the Rockville Fire Department: Fire chief, $400; assistant fire chief, $300; captains of each company, $130; superintendent of fire alarms, $300; lieutenants of each company, $100; first drivers of pump, $175; second drivers of pump, $130.

First drivers of Fitton and Hook and Ladder Companies, $130. All other members of the fire department will receive $90. The resolution must be published twice in a local newspaper and will go into effect on February 1, 1930.

The fire committee has given the matter much consideration and it is expected the resolution adopted will meet with the approval of the entire department.

Mayor A. E. Waite presided at the meeting, which was called to order at 7:35, with Councilman McKenna and Draycott as the only absentees. The usual number of bills were ordered paid.

It will be remembered that the original resolution presented at a meeting of the Council before the new year, was voted by a majority of the officers of the fire department receiving the raise recommended in the resolution. At the last city meeting an appropriation of $5,400 was made for the salaries of the local fire department, which is $1,500 more than appropriated last year.

The salaries of the higher officers recommended in the resolution presented last night at the meeting of the council are not as large as recommended in the first resolution, but the other members of the department will receive more than at first anticipated.

Victory Assembly Installation.
Victory Assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, will hold its regular meeting and installation of officers on Thursday night in K. of C. Hall, Worthy Street.

President Miss Margaret M. Crane of Hartford will be the installing officer. There will be other guests present from Manchester, Hartford and Thompsonville.

The newly elected officers are: President, Mrs. Blanche Hartenstein; vice president, Mrs. Margaret McCartin; recording secretary, Mrs. Mary Smith; financial secretary, Mrs. Jeanette Cosgrove; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Meyers; mistress-at-arms, Miss Mary McCarthy; assistant mistress-at-arms, Miss Margaret Ronan; sentinel, Miss Flora Edmondo; trustees, Mrs. Esther Reardon, Mrs. Julia Bolger, Mrs. Catherine Cody; auditors, Mrs. Louise Johndrow, Mrs. Katherine Yost, Mrs. Josephine Devlin; pianist, Miss Louise Loehr.

A social hour will follow the meeting and refreshments will be served.

Girls Club Tea.
The Rockville Girls Club will hold a tea for members and friends in the Club rooms in the Prescott block on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It is expected there will be a large attendance.

Girls Club Elects.
At the last regular meeting of the Girls Club the following officers were re-elected: president, Miss Hattie Engleman; vice president, Miss Lillian Friedrich; treasurer, Miss Margaret Cratty; recording secretary, Miss Esther Ziegler; financial secretary, Miss Hulda Ostertag; assistant secretary, Miss Elizabeth Felden; assistants, financial secretary, Miss Gertrude Pfau.

Mother's Club Meeting.
At the meeting of the Mothers' Club of Union Congregational church to be held in the south parlor of the church on Wednesday evening, Miss Beatrice Cady will be the soloist. Mrs. Mary Regan will give a reading from one of Edgar Guest's poems.

As already announced, Mrs. Francis T. Maxwell, Representative from the Town of Vernon to the General Assembly, will be the speaker and will have as her subject, "Observations from the Legislature."

Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Edwin Worster, Mrs. Henry

THE TRESPASSER ENDS RUN AT STATE TODAY

Double Feature Program to Be Offered at Local Theater Tomorrow and Thursday.

Gloria Swanson in her first talking picture "The Trespasser," the current attraction at the State, has been received very favorably by local audiences, and the general consensus is that it is by far the best picture that Gloria has appeared in to date. Today affords the last opportunity to see this unusual picture.

A smashing double feature program will be shown Wednesday and Thursday. Irene Bordoni, the celebrated French musical comedy star, heads the program in the Vitaphone all talking, singing, dancing production "Paris." The production is a rainbow of melodies, with many of the scenes done in gorgeous technicolor. "Paris" is an exceptionally clever photoplay. It is saucy and spicy, with a well defined story and it is full of fun. Miss Bordoni, of course, has been a musical comedy star for years. Her leading man, Jack Buchanan, is a star in his own right and is famous on the New York and London stage. Jason Robards, another prominent member of the supporting cast, was a member of the original "Lightning" cast, and has been a favorite movie star for many years. Others in the cast are Zazu Pitts and Margaret Fielding, with a bevy of beautiful girls in the chorus.

The co-feature presents Evelyn Brent in her first starring production "Darkened Rooms." It is an adaptation of the famous story of the same name by Sir Philip Gibbs. The story is based on the evils of spiritualism. Miss Brent is a former girl who prevails upon Neil Hamilton to give up his fake after brings grief to Miss Hill, a daughter of wealth. Neil Hamilton, Doris Hill, David Newell, Wallace McDonald and Gale Henry are in support of the star.

Only a few days remain in which to clip votes for your favorite boy friend in the State's Boys' Week contest. Remember, an entire theater staff of boys will be chosen by popular vote, and these boys will have entire charge of the State Theater for the week of January 19. It is not too late to start an intensive campaign to win one of the executive positions. Clip the coupon in the State Adv. each day, prevail upon your friends to do the same, and then vote for your favorite friend. A ballot box has been placed in the lobby of the State and also at the Herald office to receive your votes.

HALE'S REDUCES COFFEE, BUTTER

Third Cut in These Commodities in Short Time Is Announced Today.

The J. W. Hale Company's Self-Serve Grocery department, through its manager, Thomas J. McCann, today announced through the advertising columns of the Manchester Evening Herald, a further reduction in the price of coffee and butter. This good news to the hundreds of patrons who trade at Hale's means the saving of many dollars. It is the plan of the J. W. Hale Company to keep a close lookout for weakened market conditions so that their customers may benefit accordingly. The present announcement is simply a continuation of that policy.

The price of the favorite Morning Luxury coffee, featured at Hale's since the store opened ten years ago, has been reduced four cents a pound. This is the third cut in the last two months. It is due, Manager McCann says, to existing conditions in Brazil where the market is overloaded.

The cut in the price of the fresh-made Meadow-Gold butter is the third in as many weeks. The present price, $39 1-2 a pound, is nearly twelve cents cheaper than it was a year ago at this time thus supporting the theory that all prices are soaring upward instead of down. Last week Hale's disposed of 1,397 pounds of butter!

Manager McCann is very pleased to announce the price reductions and feels that the news will be especially welcome to Manchester housewives.

MACKLEY CHEVROLET CO. TO MOVE ITS SHOWROOM

Space in Odd Fellows Block, Formerly Telephone Office, Being Remodeled Now.

A great deal of interest is evidenced, locally, in the remodeling of the new showroom of the Mackley Chevrolet company, which will be located in the Odd Fellows building, at the Center. The Southern New England Telephone company previously occupied the space now being taken over by the Mackley Chevrolet. Holger Bach, who has the contract for alterations, is changing the show window, and entrance, as well as the construction work of the office, and the parts and accessories department. The latter will be greatly enlarged, to take care of the increased volume, and will be very conveniently located on the main floor. The southern end of building will be partitioned, for office space. This move will enable the handling of a much more suitable display than any heretofore possible.

It is believed that the new showroom will be occupied at least by the first of February, but every effort is being exerted to enable earlier occupancy, if possible. A great deal of consideration was given by the firm to all points, before the new location was decided upon. It is the first move in the general plan for a more efficient sales and service organization. Existing handicaps are being materially reduced, and within two weeks, it is expected that an even more important announcement, with special regard to the service end will be made. Negotiations are now being completed with respect to this.

PAY CAR DYNAMITED, FOUR MEN KILLED

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Four men were dead today, victims of would-be robbers who yesterday dynamited a pay car of the Gier Alden Coal company. Two others were injured, one critically.

Approximately $32,000 of the $35,000 the bandits were seeking was saved by the heroism of one of the injured men.

The explosion occurred about a mile from Nanticoke in a wild mountain section near the coal company's Truesdale colliery, one of the largest in the anthracite region.

Miner Saves Cash.
The payroll was saved by John Sookil, 50, a miner of Plymouth who was only slightly injured by the blast. The lid of the chest had been ripped off by the explosion and currency was scattered about the floor.

Out of the bandits approached. Sookil warned the robber not to touch the money and the bandit fled without offering attack.

Poses of state, county and local police, civilians and coal and iron police searched the countryside throughout the night for the miscreants without success. The dynamiters were said to have escaped in a blue automobile bearing license tags. State police believed four men were in the car.

The Hartford-Tolland Counties Potato clubs will meet at the Bond Hotel, Friday, January 17 at 6:30 p. m., according to Chas. D. Lewis, Hartford County Farm Bureau. Dr. E. A. Perregraux of the Economics Department of the Connecticut Agricultural college will speak on "Market Supply and Local Prices."

Dr. Perregraux has compiled some very valuable data on the effect of total yields on local prices and attempted to explain the local situation as it exists at present so far as possible.

A. W. Manchester, Farm Management Specialist for the Connecticut Agricultural college who has made a study of the cost of operations in potato production, will present the result of this study in hopes of showing the growers of the county how they may reduce their cost of production. The 1929 winners will be announced by Mr. Lewis and probable reasons for the high yields of the winners will be given.

Farmers, farm supply dealers and wholesale produce dealers have been invited to attend this meeting in anticipation of a general improvement in the conditions under which potatoes are grown and sold in the Hartford county.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.—Adv.

TWO BOYS DEADLOCKED IN THE STATE CONTEST

Anthony Diana and Henry Simler Neck and Neck in Popularity Race.

Two boys are racing neck and neck for first place in the membership of the State Theater during Boys' Week as the Popularity Contest rounds the turn and comes pounding down the home stretch that marks the final days of the contest. Anthony Diana leads by the whiskers only with 82 votes and Henry Simler is right beside him with 81.

Not far to the rear come Raymond Della Fera with 75 votes and Edward Hansen with 68. And behind these two a long string stretches out. John Martina has 67 votes, Clarence Foley 64, Ralph Johnson and Danny Shea are running even with 62 apiece, Ed Senkbeil has 61, Joseph Eccelenti 59, Raymond Moszer 55, Francis Peckingham 55, Joseph Carabino 52. These are the leaders of the pack. Will a dark horse beat them home? Glance over the list and place your votes on your favorite. Or better still enter someone else, they still have a good chance to swing into the lead. Come on everybody, let's make it a bang-up finish that'll have the stands in an uproar. Clip the coupon from the State Theater ad in this issue, write the favorite's name on it and slip the coupon into the box in the State Theater lobby or the Herald office.

REALTY CO. REPORTS SHOW A GOOD YEAR

The annual meeting of the Manchester Realty Co. took place last night at the School Street Recreation Center and was attended by about 15 of the stockholders. The principal business of the meeting was the report of the treasurer. This showed that the organization had a good year and that the prospects for the coming year were encouraging.

The meeting elected the following board of directors: P. J. O'Leary, James H. Johnston, Charles F. Jacobson, Harold C. Alford, John H. Hyde, John Mahoney, Samuel G. Gordon, Christopher Glenney, William S. Hyde, Thomas Ferguson and F. A. Verplanck. The directors will meet at an early date to elect officers.

Why Folks Stay Fat

Not always because of over-eating, but because a gland is weak. That gland largely controls nutrition. When it is weak one may nearly starve, yet stay fat. Modern physicians the world over now combat this great cause of obesity. And excess fat, in later years, has been disappearing fast.

Marmola prescription tablets contain the chief factors which they use. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. And countless slender figures everywhere now show the amazing effects.

Rash Romance

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JUDITH CAMERON, typist in a New York publishing office, attracts the interest of ARTHUR KNIGHT, her employer. Knight is a reserved widower, lonely since his daughter, TONY, 18, and son, JUNIOR, 16, spend most of their time away from home. Judith fascinates Knight. He takes her to dinners and concerts. At the end of a whirlwind courtship, Knight asks Judith to marry him and she accepts. The next evening she is nervous and distracted and tells him she has something to confess.

He laughs and refuses to listen. They plan a six weeks' honeymoon in Bermuda.

The ocean voyage and arrival in Hamilton harbor are glamorous events for the young bride. She and Arthur swim and golf and enjoy all the island's outdoor sports. Arthur tells Judith he is going to make her care for him as he cares for her. One evening during the dancing Judith pleads a headache and goes to her room. Knight, stirred by a wave of jealousy, follows. He has just arrived when there is a knock at the door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

A bell-boy in blue uniform and brass buttons stood in the entrance way as Knight pulled the door back.

"A message for you, sir," he said. Knight frowned, took the yellow envelope which the youth held forward and handed him a coin.

Judith had arisen and came forward anxiously. She was looking very lovely in her rose and pink draperies. She did not speak but stood waiting, concern written plainly on her face, as her husband tore open the envelope and studied the telegram.

"He must have read it through twice," Judith said then, glancing up quickly. "I've got to get back to New York!" His words clicked with "Business?"

Knights shook his head.

"No—it's Tony. Read it."

He thrust the yellow sheet of paper toward her and Judith's fingers closed over something that had caught at her heart—it seemed as though the heart had stopped beating—at mention of Tony's name. The jumble of words was meaningless but finally they straightened out into sentences. Then Judith understood.

The message had been sent to Knight's business address in New York and there forwarded. It read: "Sailing tonight on Paris. Meet me in New York Tuesday. Helena's tried to boss me too much. Your loving daughter prefers you to Europe. Much, much love, TONY."

"Oh!" said Judith. It was the only thing she seemed able to say. Arthur crumpled the envelope and shot the ball of paper into a basket. He shook his head drearily. "Tony's been up to mischief!" he sighed. "Helena's my sister. She was supposed to be in charge of the party. Lord knows what they've raved about! Well, it would never do to leave Tony Knight to her own devices in a mood like this! Judith—much as I hate to give this all up—we've got to go back."

Judith came nearer, brushing her fingers softly through the hair above his temple.

"Yes, of course," she said simply. "I'll be glad to meet Tony."

"Oh, you'll love her. Everybody loves Tony. Never been able to refuse her anything in the world my self," he mused. "I know I've spoiled her—but I couldn't help it! Well—let's see, if we take the boat here Saturday we'll be home Monday morning. Guess that'll give us time to get scrubbed up and meet the Paris when it docks."

He was smiling brightly. Judith felt that not for the world could she let him know the trepidation and despair which had settled over her. She went back to the dressing table and sat with her back toward him. Five short days and she was to stand face to face with Tony Knight! Two days more, and they would turn their backs on this paradise, these islands of turquoise and gold. The honeymoon—their beautiful, utterly perfect honeymoon—would be ended. Ahead would be New York.

Judith closed her eyes and caught her hands together as though in agonized, silent prayer. A minute later she turned about gallily to say to her husband: "Aren't you going to send a reply?"

Knights shook his head negatively.

"No," he said. "Let her worry a bit. I'll be good for her. Don't you see I can't give in? Helena must have been right, of course. The only time in the world I can discipline Tony is when she's away from me. No—I won't answer her! Again apprehensions—chill and forbidding—swept over Judith. She crept closer to her husband. "Arthur," she said softly. "Say you love me."

Knights' arm slipped about his lovely young wife. Warm, lingering kisses touched her forehead, her golden hair and then swiftly, hotly, he found her lips. Each of them—in that long, long caress—forgot about Tony.

Morning brought the same bright sunshine, the same zesty breezes and beckoning sports of preceding days, but somehow everything seemed changed.

Judith and Arthur had breakfast in their rooms, Judith looking rather like a huge chrysanthemum in her dainty ruffled bed jacket. Arthur lolled indolently in a striped dressing gown.

Neither spoke of Tony's message. Both were thinking of it.

Finally Arthur suggested he should be dressing and getting over to Hamilton.

"Two or three little errands I want to take care of, dear. Anything I can do for you?"

She told him there was nothing. Judith was quite willing to remain inside while he was absent. She knew steamer arrangements for their return were the "two or three little errands."

After he had gone she dressed leisurely, taking particular care with every detail of her toilet. Judith had scorned the attentions of a personal maid. She had no intention of subjecting herself to such a servant's disdain. But she had found it was possible to stretch the process of dressing from half an hour (at the same time watching the coffee and coffee pot) to three times that long. Results easily justified the longer process.

When Knight returned he found her in a short white linen frock, white shoes and hose, a colorful scarf about her shoulders. He told her they would take the boat sailing next morning.

"It's our last day, Judith," he added, trying to be casually cheerful. "It ought to be the best yet! What the program?"

She decided on a long drive along one of the interior roads. It brought them back to the hotel late for lunch but with good appetites. After that they changed and went to the beach for their daily swim. In the evening instead of dancing sail boats and floated far down the harbor. Lights from the town and remote cottages played about like fireflies.

"Arthur," Judith spoke softly, "it's been heavenly!"

He brushed her hair with a kiss without replying.

The moon, high overhead, rode in clouds—a pale, still lady revealing only a portion of her charms. The water, lapping in constant monotony, seemed very deep and black.

It was good to feel Arthur's arm, so close and protecting, Judith thought.

When at last they decided to go to their rooms she told herself their day had been as perfect, certainly, as any last day can be.

There was bustle and stir next morning, getting the luggage off to the boat, saying farewells and closed over something that had caught at her heart—it seemed as though the heart had stopped beating—at mention of Tony's name. The jumble of words was meaningless but finally they straightened out into sentences. Then Judith understood.

The message had been sent to Knight's business address in New York and there forwarded. It read: "Sailing tonight on Paris. Meet me in New York Tuesday. Helena's tried to boss me too much. Your loving daughter prefers you to Europe. Much, much love, TONY."

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

EMOTIONAL TROUBLES CAN BE AS HARMFUL AS PHYSICAL ILLS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In our public schools today, as pointed out by Dr. James L. McCartney, there are about four hundred thousand children so handicapped mentally that they could not possibly follow the ordinary courses of study. Nevertheless we have not yet elaborated a system that would detect these cases before they begin school, so that both their time and that of the teachers and other pupils could be saved.

It is generally recognized that there are a half million feeble-minded people in this country dependent on the constant care and attention of those whose mental states approach more nearly what is called the normal. True, these defective constitute a great problem, but in many ways they are not so difficult of control as those with good mentality but with emotional instability.

Think of the hundreds of thousands of people who react too strenuously to simple little situations in everyday life. Think of the boy, tied to his mother's apron strings in youth, shoved out into a cold unfeeling world to make his own way. Again and again in great industries he is seen hanging like a parasite on the decisions of some motherly executive, male or female, whose pity has been aroused.

See the woman in industry who stays home every two or three weeks with headaches and dizzy spells because she has learned to avoid the difficulties of life by sickness.

Then there is the man who comes down to work disturbed by some domestic trial that is not known to those with whom he works. If he is an executive the workers under him suffer for the pettiness that has been made to feel at home. If he is a worker far down in the ranks he plods hopelessly and without inspiration at his work because he feels that he is getting nowhere.

The human being, as has been emphasized again and again in these columns, is a composite of a mind and a body. In his daily life the reactions of his mind are far more frequent and disturbing than the reactions of his body. How many people have been taught consciously to rationalize themselves out of their emotional conflicts? And yet in the great storms and stresses of life, such rationalization is probably just as important, if not more important, than the ability to relieve an obstructed intestinal tract by a suitable laxative, or to cure a crop of boils by the right antiseptics.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

One of the commonest causes of friction between parents is the matter of staying home from school. Now I realize that I am getting into hot water when I broach this subject—and the more so I realize it because I have been on both sides of the question. No, not on both of the parent's sides—that is trouble enough—but on the side of the mother and the side of the school teacher. I have been both and still am the one.

Indeed, we might call this a sort of three-concerned kettle of dissection, for there is by all means the school to reckon with also. To begin with, I am going to say quite frankly that, right or wrong, my sympathy now is with the mother in this matter. For whether she is right or wrong, she certainly is between the devil and the deep blue sea when it comes to deciding whether a certain weary, none-too-wild child of hers needs a day at home now and then.

These poor mothers! Certainly they get no credit for defying the world occasionally in defense of their young. Husbands who come home and demand to know why that "lazy little rascal" hasn't been to classes! Teachers who write notes home to inquire just why Emily or Johnny was not at school when the other children had seen the truancy at a window and "certainly when he—or she—was able to be out of bed it seemed that"

"Tired spells!" Explained. When one of my girls was quite small, and seemingly the strongest one, too—she took "tired" spells. I usually knew the symptoms in advance; a blinking of the eyes, nervous excitement that would change in a second from smiles to tears, loss of appetite, and then finally a steadily growing lassitude. When this weariness approached, she seemed to need sleep—hours of it—extra sleep.

It wasn't laziness. Perhaps it was an inactive thyroid gland, perhaps intestinal poison, perhaps a reaction from shock not suspected. For don't tell me that a child's world is not full of shocks over and over again, as real as our older world is! Perhaps it was just sheer nervous jangle from growing. We never knew.

We got her glasses, had her tonsils out—and yet those "tired" spells recurred every so often, for years in this matter. For I kept her home those days and let her sleep. There was war usually all around. Indeed, on account of it I often sent her to school on days when my heart ached for her. But I know that I did what I could and I have never regretted it.

Of course, we very often meet up with a dreamy mental lassitude in children that is likely to fool us. Also there is the old excuse of not "feeling well" on a cold winter's morning when bed feels simply too grand to leave. But that is different. I believe a mother honestly knows the child who needs the occasional day off. And I'm with her every time when it's a matter of a stitch in time. A forced child may likely spend a week or so in bed for want of a little rest at the right time.

However, school absence should be avoided as often as possible, and often putting a child to bed immediately upon coming home may accomplish the desired result.

Your number didn't answer, even when I put the chief operator on the case. . . . I got the busy signal on your wire four times, and I couldn't wait. . . . Didn't they give you the message? I certainly phoned you, just as I said I would."

A safe way is to cultivate the note habit. It really doesn't take any more time to dash off a short note, calling off an engagement or verifying one, than it does to go to a telephone call put through, and it only costs two cents to send it on its way. Many a misunderstanding is prevented by having it in writing.

I know a business woman who says that the note habit has been her greatest help, saved more of her time and temper than any other single habit. In fact, she goes so far as to say it is one of the reasons for her success, and for her reputation for efficiency and prompt service.

And in the interests of bigger and better success, I pass it on.

ROOT SUED FOR DIVORCE
Chicago, Jan. 14. — (AP)—John Root, prominent Chicago architect, was sued for divorce late yesterday by Mrs. Ellen Dudley Root, Chicago society beauty and a member of the Goodman theater repertoire cast. The charge was cruelty, and Mrs. Root asked custody of their 12-year-old daughter, Denyse.

They were married in Brookline, Mass., October 1, 1914, and separated four days ago.

Root is the son of John W. Root, chief architect for the Columbian Exposition. He was educated in Switzerland and Paris and has won numerous prizes in architectural competition.

STYLISH COUPLE
It is smarter now to have things arranged in pairs, when possible. Two pictures, framed identically, are very ornamental over a mantel, with candlesticks or vases at either end.

BUDGETING WORK
When trying to budget your time devoted to work, start with the daily necessities, such as meals. No two people will budget exactly alike, but an approximate schedule is more likely to insure leisure, than none.

Shirring Moulds the Hips of Black Crepe; That Paris Decrees So Smart All-Day Wear

A picturesque mode in dipping side hem achieves graceful length in black silk crepe, that is quite as popular with the debutantes as the dignified matron.

It moulds at bodice and hips, indicating waistline by shirring at either underarm seam and at center-front.

The collarless neckline is finished with applied self-fabric band that merges into side flares at either side of the skirt. The front and back of the skirt is also cut circular.

Style No. 157 comes in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. In the 36-inch size, 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material is sufficient to make it.

Midnight blue crepe de chine is very youthful choice, and especially lovely for early Spring.

For formal afternoons, select chiffon in black, dahlia purple or plum shade. Fishnet in black or purple also interesting.

Gypsy red silk crepe, bottle green crepe marocain, Havana brown crepe silk, and independent blue wool crepe fashionable combinations.

Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin, (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

We suggest that when you send for pattern, you enclose 10 cents additional for copy of large Fashion Magazine.

THIS AND THAT IN FEMININE LORE

Miss Christine Mason, director at the Manchester Community club, a short time since expressed to me her hope of having Miss Janette Kelley come here in January for a series of cooking lessons. Miss Kelley frequently appeared under the auspices of the Community club and Farm Bureau while she was in the employ of one of the big flour companies, and made many warm friends here. Since then she has been climbing the ladder of success and is in New York as a supervisor in the educational department of the General Foods company, a combine of many of the nationally known foodstuffs manufacturers.

Miss Mason saw Miss Kelley in Hartford recently and finds it will be impossible for her to come here in January as she is leaving for a trip to Wisconsin. She promised, however, to arrange with another very capable lecture-demonstrator, Mrs. Mona Van Dyke. Late yesterday afternoon Miss Mason received a letter from Mrs. Van Dyke, saying she would be available the week of the 27th. The date of the two afternoon cooking schools has not yet been arranged between the club and the expert, but in all probability it will be the 29th and 30th of this month. The exact date and the subject of Mrs. Van Dyke's cooking lectures will be announced later. Try to reserve one or both afternoons, it will be well worth while.

In reply to many inquiries as to whether the doll patterns are still available, I have reason to think they are. There has been a big demand for them, in which case the manufacturers cut a new supply. The patterns are all most reasonable and yet I regret to say many sent for them fail to send the right amount. Transfers are 15 cents and only ten cents will be enclosed or an insufficient number of stamps and it doesn't pay us to spend time and postage writing for the short-change or stamps.

Apricot Tapioca
3-4 pound dried apricots.
3 cups water.
3 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca.
1-8 teaspoon salt.
1-2 cup sugar.
Wash apricots. Soak in 3 cups water 1 hour and cook until tender. Drain. To juice, add enough water to make 2 cups liquid. Add Tapioca and salt, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Cool. Force apricots through sieve. Fold pulp (about 1 cup) into tapioca mixture. Chill and serve with whipped cream. Serves 6.

WINTER HANDS
There is no need to have coarse, red hands in winter. If you keep a slice of lemon and a bottle of good lotion on the sink and use freely every time you dry your hands, this will be prevented.

Herald Bowling League Leadership Unchanged

Night Hawks and Majors Each Win Three; Herald Surprises West Sides; Charter Oaks, Pirates Win.

A Different Scene But the Same Stage Hands

The leadership in the Herald Bowling League remains the same today—the Night Hawks still clinging desperately to a one-point lead over the Majors. Each won three out of a possible four points last night in the nocturnal prowl of the Centers and the gridiron gladiators wrecking the Contractors.

The Charter Oaks continued to creep up on the leaders of the pack by winning four more points from the British-Americans over at Conran's. It's reaching a stage where it is just too bad for any team that opposes Joe Farr's representatives. They didn't hit under 549 in the three games.

HERE'S THE SECRET OF BRUINS' SUCCESS

TINY THOMPSON Boston Bruins' Goalie

Boston Bruins are making a runaway race of it in the National hockey league principally because of the superb work of "Tiny" Thompson, the league's leading goalie.

STINGY WITH SCORES BECAUSE HE'S SCOTCH

Records Show Thompson Beat Goalie in Hockey League; Came from Alberta.

Boston, Jan. 14.—(AP)—"Tiny" Thompson, goalie supreme of the National hockey league, may have a new sobriquet one of these days and it probably will be "Stonewall."

"It isn't generally known that he is Scotch," chuckles Manager Art Ross. "And that is why he is unwilling to give away goals."

But all humor aside, Ross insists that Thompson is the greatest goalie he has ever seen. Records for the first 20 games played by the Bruins reveal Thompson's record as the league's best.

Thompson, who came originally from West Calgary, Alberta, played with Bellevue, Duluth and Minneapolis before he came to Boston. He was an instant success in the National hockey league.

The Bruins began the 1929-30 season by winning 18 games and losing but two, and including a winning streak of 13 straight.

Barking Yale Bulldogs Give Cornell 35-10 Flop

Coach Ripley Uses Three Teams Against Ithacians; Princeton In Action.

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Yale bulldogs may not be able to win the Eastern Intercollegiate basketball league championship but the suspicion grows that they will give all comers a run for their money.

Beaten by Pennsylvania's defending champs in their first league game ten days ago, the Bull Dogs gave Cornell a terrific beating at New Haven last night; 35 to 10, to move into third place in the standings.

SEASICKNESS CAUSED KIDNEY TROUBLE—GENE

Ex-Champ Undergoes Minor Operation Which Is Declared Big Success.

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, former world heavyweight champion, was recovering in Presbyterian hospital today from an operation performed by Dr. George Winfree yesterday.

Surgeons had feared it might be necessary to take out the kidney but the operation proved to be much simpler than had been anticipated and the obstruction, a stone about the size of a bean, was removed without difficulty.

FROM GRID TO TRACK IS COUGARS' SLOGAN.

Pullman, Wash.—(AP)—Whether it be track or football the coaches at Washington State College send virtually the same team onto the field.

ATHLETICS, BROWNS HAD BEST DEFENSE

Each Had Grand Average of .975 in Handling Nearly 6,000 During 1929 Season.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The world champion Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns had the tightest defenses of all American League clubs in 1929, official fielding averages disclosed today.

Only one player, Willie Kamm of the Chicago White Sox retained his fielding championship. Kamm defended his third base position at .978 clip.

Joe Judge, Washington veteran, led the first basemen with an average of .986. Lew Fonseca of Cleveland, new American League batting champ was second to Judge with .985.

Charles Gehring, Detroit's youthful second baseman was the best defensive player of the year around the keystone post with a .975 mark. Gehring also participated in 93 double plays.

YANKS SYMPATHETIC, SAYS BIKE CHAMPION

Milan, Italy (AP)—Alfred Binda, Italy's champion cyclist, has returned from America where he took part in the six-day bicycle race in New York.

Binda, who sprained a ligament when his cycle skidded during the race, said he was sorry he was unable to finish a race he began so well. He declared that the American public is much more sympathetic to bicycle racing than the European public.

Indiana Phi Delt's Barnstorming Country Stop Off at Manchester Seeking Another Victim; They Shall Not Pass—Fay.

HERE TONIGHT

WALLY WINSHIP Earlham College Center

With the spirit of adventure still tingling in their veins after having annexed the state of Missouri to their rich possessions, the Rec Five basketball team tonight reaches out to the romantic banks of the Wabash for another victim.

This means that Manchester basketball fans are in store for another big treat this evening. The Phi Delt's of Anderson, Indiana, have been barnstorming the country compiling an amazing string of victories and the Rec boys will have to look their best to avoid disaster.

The Phi Delt's are composed of college stars, most of whom have won all state positions on the teams with whom they have played.

In the lineup of the Phi Delt's will be Bob Youiler, All State center of Indiana who measures six foot four, Dick Ockman, All Western Guard; Curtis Hilligoss, Ex-Indiana Normal Forward; Joe Thurston, former Florida University Star; Bob Thompson, ex-Butler College guard; State Normal, Wally Winship, former center at Earlham college, and Charlie Rofis, former forward with Purdue.

UNDEFEATED SWIMMER DECLINES COMEBACK

Lisbon.—(AP)—Celeste Carvalho, Portugal's beautiful champion woman swimmer, has definitely given up swimming.

Since her marriage last year, the 23-year-old mermmaid has not only refused to compete in swimming events but also rejected an alluring offer to appear on the music-hall stage.

In a race across the treacherous waters of the Tagus, two years ago, she beat 25 contestants and reached the other side of the river three yards ahead of her next competitor. Her most notable achievement, however, was a swim from Xabregas to Alges, on the Tagus, a distance of 10 miles.

North and South Poles Linked by Radio Talk

Moscow, Jan. 14—(AP)—A wireless triumph over time and space was achieved on December 1 by Ivan Krenkel, chief Russian radio operator in Franz Josef Land, when he talked by radio for more than an hour with Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd at the South Pole.

Krenkel, the man at the top of the world, says he communicated with Rear-Admiral Byrd at the bottom of it, on a short wave length of 41 meters over a distance of nearly 15,000 miles. The wireless station in Franz Josef Land is the northernmost radio outpost in the world.

In a message today to the newspaper Izvestia, Krenkel said that Admiral Byrd asked news of the missing American flyer Eielson lost over northeastern Siberia, and talked about weather conditions in the Antarctic. Krenkel gave him the weather news from the Arctic and exchanged warm greetings with the members of the Byrd expedition.

BUCKLAND CLUB'S BIRTHDAY PARTY
Parent-Teacher Association Observes Seventh Anniversary Last Night.

Seven years of organization was fittingly celebrated by the Buckland Parent-Teacher association last evening at the Seventh District school. The program began with a delicious supper served by Mrs. E. S. Edgerton. The committee of ladies in charge, Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. A. P. Seymour, Mrs. Charles I. Balch, Miss Hilka Magnusen, Mrs. John Jackson and Mrs. Clayton Whales had given generously of their time in preparation for the anniversary.

The banquet hall was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of pink and white. The tables were arranged in the form of a hollow square and about 70 sat down, and were waited upon by young ladies of the district. The meal was well cooked and attractively served. It consisted of grape fruit cocktail, roast chicken with gravy and dressing, carrots and peas, celery, sweet watermelon pickles, salad, cranberry sauce, rolls, coffee, nuts, mints, ice cream and delicious home-made fancy cakes, some of them baked in the shape of rolls, containing a fortune or joke on some of the Buckland residents.

In the center of the square stood a small table on which was the birthday cake, baked and decorated in pink and white by Mrs. Sarah Robinson, with seven pink lighted tapers.

The Buckland Parent-Teacher association is one of the most active of its kind within the confines of Manchester. Interest is taken by old and young in all its affairs and the parents and teachers co-operate for the good of the children in the district.

Representatives of The Herald and of the Boy Scout organization were guests of the Parent-Teacher association last evening. President David Armstrong in behalf of the association extended a cordial welcome to the members, their friends and guests. Field Exray, Joseph Dean gave a short talk on the Boy Scout movement and expressed his pleasure that a troop is to be sponsored by the Buckland association, the council committee being Andrew Healey, Arthur Seymour, Louis Grant, Joseph Donahue and David Armstrong, and the scoutmaster, Roswell Oborn.

The remainder of the evening was occupied by card playing in the assembly hall and dancing to the music of Case's orchestra.

I've heard that crippled in some ways are at least you'll both be happy, and after all love is the only thing worth while in life.

CGNERIAH
Often puts you up on your toes.

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it.

CORRECTIONS
(1) Mason and Dixon's Line is misspelled. (2) The line does not run through Virginia. (3) The Civil War ended in 1865. (4) The door is opening the wrong way; according to the position of the hinges, it should swing inward. The scrambled word is REACHING.

EMERGENCY DOCTORS.

Dr. G. A. F. Lundberg and Dr. T. H. Weldon will be on call tomorrow afternoon.

Hose Company No. 4 responded to a still alarm at 12:15 today for fire in a barn on Gardner street owned by Alexander Arnott. The blaze was extinguished without damage.

Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, head of the local board of health department, said today that no cases of psittacosis, or parrot fever as the new disease has come to be commonly known, had been reported to him. A survey among the personnel of Manchester's doctors also failed to reveal any trace of the dreaded malady. The disease is only found in parrots recently imported.

EAST HARTFORD GREET'S OUR C. C. MEMBERS

Joint Meeting Cements Feeling of Good Will Between Two Organizations.

Nearly 125 men, members of the East Hartford and Manchester Chambers of Commerce, united in a joint meeting last night and in two hours had built a firm foundation of friendship between East Hartford and Manchester. A splendid supper of Virginia baked ham kindled the spirit of good will and jolly good fellowship and when all were puffing contentedly on their smokes, several speakers contributed rationally and bon mots galore to that pervaded the entire gathering.

President Benjamin B. Merrill of the East Hartford Chamber introduced the speakers humorously and all who were called on expressed themselves happy to be present and hoped for a continuation of such gatherings. Those who spoke were Edward Kipp, president of the East Hartford Council, George H. Waddell, treasurer of the town of Manchester, Robert J. Smith, former State Senator; E. L. G. Hohenbush, Jr., president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce; and E. J. McCabe, secretary of the local Chamber.

The principal speaker of the evening was Marshal Mott, manager of the Hartford Better Business Bureau, who spoke on the work of his organization and cited several cases of fraud and the methods in stopping the practice. He was given a rising vote of thanks by his greatly interested audience.

Over 40 members of the Manchester Chamber made the trip to East Hartford in private cars, the meeting being held in the Odd Fellows building there.

FLYING TEACHER BEETHOVENS GUEST

Tells Local Glee Club About His Experiences While Learning to Fly.

Chester Robinson, instructor in science, spoke on the experiences and requirements of a novice in aviation, before the Beethoven Glee Club at the Swedish Lutheran Church last night. Robinson, who is a licensed pilot in this State, injected much humor into his account of the trials and tribulations of learning to fly and his half hour talk was followed by an enthusiastic discussion in which he answered many questions.

The social committee headed by Herbert Johnson served a delicious cream beef on toast supper with coffee and ice cream for dessert. The regular rehearsal preceded the social with 45 members present.
