DROP "DOLLAR DAY" MERCHANTISING PLAN

Merchants Division of Chamber Votes to Substitute Thrift Day for All Stores.

"Dollar Day," an institution in Manchester since the World War ended, will be abandoned temporarily at least, by local merchants through decision of the executive committee of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce in meeting yesterday afternoon for the first time since its organization at the annual meeting.

Instead a "Thrift Day" will be substituted to be held on Tuesday, February 18, believed by the committee to be a much better affair than the "Dollar Day," in that it gives the larger merchant a chance to cater to the public by a sale of his line, not possible on "Dollar Day."

WATKINS EXPERT TELLS OF COLOR USE IN HOME

Miss Helen B. Strong Outlines Factors That Must Be Considered in Decoration.

Miss Helen B. Strong of Watkins Brothers decorating department, in a lecture at the local store last evening, gave the principles governing the use of color in the home.

Each one of the points, Miss Strong explained, must be considered carefully in order that the color scheme may be as near perfect as it is possible to make it.

Color plays an important part in rooms when one considers the exposure and the amount of light that passes through windows.

A number of striking color schemes which were demonstrated in this way were taken from actual rooms which Miss Strong has decorated for the local concern.

MURDER SUSPECTS INDICTED BY JURY

Charged With Slaying of Dominick Zito Who Was "Taken for Ride."

New Haven, Jan. 22—(AP)—Three men today were under indictment for the murder of Dominick Zito, 19 year old member of a ring of bootleggers and passers of counterfeit money.

They were Arthur Brown and Orazio Maltese, of West Haven and Vincenzo Pero of this city. Brown who now is serving a sentence in a New Jersey workhouse is accused of the actual slaying which occurred on a Derby road last November 12. The indictment of Pero was an expected action of the Grand Jury which heard evidence and witnesses yesterday. Before it came to a verdict, the jury asked Judge Carl Foster whether a person who had knowledge of a murder and concealed it may not be indicted. Judge Foster answered in the affirmative and the jury promptly indicted Pero, who had appeared as a material witness.

Maltese the Leader

Maltese who police say was the leader of the gang which Zito and Brown were members and directed the killing of the former because he "squaled" and Pero were immediately presented to the court and held without bond. They will enter a plea later in the week.

Steps will be taken soon to extradite Brown from New Jersey. He was sentenced to a year's term for the theft of an automobile after he fled New Haven.

The solution of the murder came six weeks after Zito's body was found November 30 in a field in Orange Brown, police say, confessed that he "took him for a ride" and was paid $15 by Maltese.

PLAN A MEMORIAL FOR FAMOUS POET

Wellesley, Mass., Jan. 22—(AP)—A permanent memorial to Katharine Lee Bates, poet, who gave the hymn "America the Beautiful" to the nation, was proposed today by a committee of which Gamaliel Bradford, author, is chairman.

Miss Bates, who was born in a fishing village on Cape Cod in 1859 and who served Wellesley college for 40 years, rising to be professor of English, died in March last year. The nation's libraries bear ample evidence of her activity as writer, poet, novelist and literary critic. High honorary degrees were bestowed on her by three colleges. But to the rank and file of American citizenry she is best remembered by her hymn.

Millions of school children have sung the sonorous lines which end:

"O beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea."

The Katharine Lee Bates Memorial committee includes Curtis Hidden Page, president of the Poetry Society of America; Mrs. Fiske Warren, president of the New England Poetry Society; Prof. Charles Grandgent, president, Boston Authors Club.

The committee hopes to erect in some place in Boston, possibly with duplicates elsewhere, a bronze tablet commemorating Miss Bates as the author of the hymn. Miss Lila Weed of the Wellesley college library, Wellesley, Mass., is secretary of the committee and is acting as treasurer.

CHEVROLET SHOWROOM READY IN FEW DAYS

The Mackley Chevrolet Company is making arrangements for the transfer of its equipment from the present location on Main street to the new headquarters in the Odd Fellows building. The reconstruction of the offices and the parts and accessories department was completed today, by Holger Bach and his workmen. The re-painting of the walls, ceiling and floor and the installation of the lighting fixtures are now all that remains before the transfer of the stock takes place. Several days will be required for the finishing of the job, and it is thought that the company will be established in their new home even sooner than was expected.

Mr. McNally, president of the company, stated today that the showroom will conveniently hold seven cars with ample room for several more if necessary. There are approximately two thousand square feet of space being taken over. This compares with about 700 square feet at the Main street location. It can readily be seen that the showroom will be about three times the size of the present one.

POISON IN BOOZE IS NOT DANGEROUS

Dr. Doran Says Small Amount in Denatured Alcohol Not Cause of Deaths

Washington, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Prohibition officials today disagreed with statements by members of Congress that denaturants used in industrial alcohol were the cause of deaths among persons drinking it. Officials asserted the majority of deaths from drinking beverages made from diverted alcohol had as their cause alcoholic poisoning due to over-drinking, rather than any specific poison placed in the liquor. They said also that the Federal government has no control over wood alcohol plants which are supervised by state officials and say that in cases where deaths have occurred it generally is due to this concoction. More than a year ago, James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, himself an expert chemist, ordered all poisons save wood alcohol used in denaturing industrial alcohol out of the formulas. He said today that only a small percentage of wood alcohol was now retained. Out of 47 denaturants used in the formulas wood alcohol is employed in only seven preparations, he added. In alcohol removed from bond in the fiscal year 1929, 9,000,000 gallons, he said, had ten per cent of wood alcohol and 42,000,000 had 4 per cent of wood alcohol. "The small percentage of wood alcohol used in denaturing formulas for industrial alcohol," Doran said, "is sufficient to cause the death of a person who tries to convert the industrial alcohol into a beverage. Before a person would die from the toxic effects he would have to consume enough of the beverage to kill him through alcohol poisoning."

CRASH BLAMED ON WEATHER

Los Angeles, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A local weather condition of "unpredicted and unforeseen characteristics" was blamed today by a technical board of inquiry of the Transcontinental Air Transport Maddux Line for the crash of its big passenger plane south of here last Sunday with a loss of 18 lives.

Findings of the board were made public after two days of investigation and constituted the first formal report on various investigations into the aerial disaster. The coroner's inquest to officially fix responsibility for the accident will be held tomorrow. Aviation experts and witnesses have been summoned to give their testimony.

DELEGATES' WIVES DRESS SIMILARLY

Clothes Worn at London Make Women of the Whole World Kin.

London, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Clothes make women of the whole world kin, though they may be far apart as to race, blood and national ideals. There was not enough difference in gowns of the wives of the naval delegates at the MacDonald reception at Lancaster House but what any one woman, broadly speaking, might have worn that of any other. London women particularly were interested in what their American sisters wore. Mrs. Stimson appeared in a long white gown; Mrs. Dawes wore red lace, and while Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the secretary of the navy, had on a peach colored close-fitting satin affair.

Mrs. Wakatsuki and Lady Takarabe, the petite wives of the Japanese delegates, both adopted occidental dress and made a charming diminutive picture as they mounted the broad staircase together.

Miss Isabel MacDonald, daughter of Britain's prime minister, appeared for the first time in her role of chief hostess at the naval conference and was very earnest at her job of shaking hands. She clasped each hand firmly and smiled very seriously on each person. Her frock of green moire, finished with a tremendous bustle bow, gave her a youthful and piquant air which was very attractive.

Miss Margaret Bondfield, "Our Maggie," England's only woman Cabinet member made her first public appearance without sticks which she had been forced to use since she broke her angle a few months ago. She was the center of a constant group of friends who congratulated her on her recovery and wished her well at the beginning of the new session of parliament.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 22, 1930
CHICAGO
The warning sounded by Silas H. Strawn, one of Chicago's most responsible citizens, that that city faces complete and immediate collapse of its municipal government is startling enough, it would seem, to arouse even the complacent residents of the Windy City to a realization that they are confronted by a situation without parallel in the history of this country.

Chicagoans are given to laughing at outsiders who think of their city as given over to gunmen and racketeers. "Nonsense!" they say; "All that sort of thing is confined to a tiny little group and to an insignificantly small part of Chicago. This is as orderly and as prosperous a town as there is anywhere—and about as well governed. If you don't believe it look at our beautiful parks, our splendid streets and boulevards, our great buildings, our general prosperity." They have a wonderful city and they are proud of it and they don't particularly care a rap if the politicians who run it do feather their own nests a bit, nor if a few bootleggers knock each other off.

So Chicagoans let things political slide.
But they did object to the tax rate a while ago and raised such a ruckus about it that there was a revaluation. They didn't like the revaluation and there was a dispute about it which got into the courts. As a result there hasn't been a cent of taxes collected in Cook county for going on two years. The city has borrowed so much money that it can't borrow any more. It owes over $290,000,000 and is obligating itself for interest at the rate of $50,000 a day. A short time ago some 2,300 city employees were dropped because there was no money in the treasury to pay them. The police force has been cut to the extent of 473 men; 224 firemen have been dropped. This week the city defaulted on its payroll.

Nothing has been done about all this except that Big Bill Thompson, who is still mayor of Chicago, has ordered the restoration of these employees—and hasn't a nickel to pay them with.
Uncollected garbage, unremoved snow, empty fire houses and the city, unpoliced, given over to sack by the vagabonds and outthroats of the entire country—these are something more than a nightmare dream in the immediate future of the second city of the American continent if Chicago continues for many more days to palter with the desperate situation in which she has become involved.

And that is what comes of leaving the running of a community to a lot of self appointed political leaders who have no civic conscience—the kind of thing which in less degree is liable to happen to any community whose people are too indifferent or too lazy to assume their citizens' share in government.

CAPITAL SHIPS
All friends of armament reduction will agree with Secretary Stimson's statement at the opening of the London conference that "naval limitation is a continuous process" and disarmament "a goal to be reached by successive steps."
It is for that reason that the elimination of battleships and, it is to be hoped, battle cruisers is likely to be the outstanding achievement of the present meeting of the maritime powers.

There is one aspect of the capital ship factor which is very seldom mentioned but which may prove to be a contributing cause in the apparent willingness of the conferring nations to get rid of the enormous costly "ships of the line," aside from the excessive cost of building and maintaining them.
The modern battleship had its beginnings about 1876 with the building of the British Devastation, Ajax and Agamemnon, but it was a dozen years later before such vessels took on anything like the character of the huge floating fortresses of today. Nevertheless the number of these great ships built and commissioned throughout the world runs into many scores. Yet they have never proven their value even from the strictly military point of view. Probably not over eight or ten of them, all put together, ever fired an effective shot in battle. At Santiago our own battleships made a great deal of noise but it was the lighter guns of the lighter vessels that drove the Spanish fleet ashore. In the World war they distinguished themselves principally by running onto mines and being sunk by submarines and destroyers. They are tremendously impressive looking but they are clumsy and ineffectual. They have cluttered up the seas for fifty years, they have consumed enormous amounts of the sweat of the industrial world, they have kept nations poor and tax ridden. And it is beginning to be suspected that their fighting value is and always has been and always will be nil.

The London conference has two distinct purposes in view, but these two purposes, at a more or less distant point, converge and become one. One purpose is the preservation of peace. The other is the lightening of the tax burden of armaments. But if we lighten the tax burden of armaments we are indirectly but inevitably aiding in the preservation of peace. So that the elimination of the most costly branch of naval armament becomes the most important department of navy reduction.

If the London conference gets no further than an agreement which will result in ridding the world of the incubus of its capital ships, it will have been extremely successful. Cruiser, submarine, auxiliary ship questions can be disposed of in good time.

UNDUE PRESSURE
That part of the Law Enforcement Commission's report which dealt with the simplification of court processes so as to prevent much of the congestion arising from prohibition prosecutions has already resulted in a mass of disputation, in Congress and out of it, which leaves the lay mind in a daze.
Constitutional lawyers are squabbling over the Wickesham proposals and the whole matter has, almost at once, gotten clean away from the understanding of ordinary folk. There is, however, one point that seems to us to stand out from the rest with considerable distinctness. That is the proposal, as we understand it, to try "slight and casual" offenders before United States commissioners, with the very important reservation that if they shall appeal to the regular federal courts the prosecutions may be converted into actions under the Jones law and the misdemeanors become, after appeal, felonies.
This seems to be the general acceptance of the effect of this particular provision in the proposed changes. Later on it may appear to be good law and good sense, but in its present aspect it looks like neither. If an alleged offender surrenders his right to jury trial in order to facilitate the processes of justice, as he is expected and required to do in our police courts, there seems to be no fairness in automatically penalizing him for that surrender when he appeals from the verdict in the belief that it is unjustly arrived at. The proposed change seems to us to be much the same as if a man were convicted in the Manchester town court of speeding, appealed to the Hartford County Superior Court and then found the charge changed to manslaughter.

GOOD NEWS
One of the best pieces of news that has come over the wires in a good while is President Hoover's announcement that the Department of Labor's information shows that a marked improvement in the employment situation took place last week, and that the country as a whole is headed in the right direction in this respect.
This is a tremendously big industrial enterprise, this country of ours, and the diversification of its activities is enormous. We are perhaps given to seeing and thinking along too narrow lines when we try to figure out industrial trends. We think of the steel business, the automotive lines, the textile industry, as more completely basic than they really are; and if there is a slackening in any or all of these we are liable to acquire a needless fit of the blues.
There are still hundreds of other highly important lines of industrial activity, and of these so many are quite independent of reliance on the temporarily slowed down ones that there is still remaining a sound basis for general business; and active general business, in turn, is certain to restore to rea-

SONAIBLE ACTIVITY not only the textile industries but those depending on automobile production.

ENFORCED PUBLICITY
The extraordinary situation developed in the statement of Warden Reed, made public yesterday, from which it appears that Deputy Warden Patterson had ample warning to escape from the State Prison at Wethersfield but kept the knowledge to himself and took no preventive steps, makes President Osborne of the Prison Board look rather foolish. If the resignation of the deputy warden, under these circumstances, was a "routine and administrative matter," it might be suggested that the routine of the Wethersfield institution needs very drastic revision.
It is entirely possible that conditions in the prison itself are excellent, that it is quite as well run as other similar institutions and better than many. But it is very much to be hoped that this affair may bring realization to the responsible head of the Prison Board that events of unusual character transpiring at Wethersfield are property of interest to the people of the state and not to be kept secret.

IN NEW YORK
New York, Jan. 22.—When it comes to "tin horn" methods of survival, no one on earth can equal those bandoliered Broadway leeches. The tribe is conglomerate. It consists of hoofers out of work and actors out of work; fobishly dressed lads pretending to be actors or trying to be actors; drug store cowboy types, who play the cheap dance halls; carnival hangers-on waiting for spring; racetrack tipsters and "two-bit Johnnies" who make insignificant bets on the ponies.
But whatever may be their calling—or lack of it—the type can be easily identified. Practically all their clothes have that flashy and cheap Broadway touch; the patterns fairly roar and the cut is extreme. Soiled spats generally peep out from frayed trouser legs, and the thumb-in-the-vest pose is affected against a building front alongside some movie or burlesque house.
They "talk big" and hum dimco. They refer to Belasco as "Dave" and to Ziegfeld as "Fio" and to Cohan as "George"—and so on. They recite tales of how they "told the Shuberts where to get off."
However, most of them haven't even a mailing address. They're so transient that landlords barely have time to see what they look like.
This winter they have been causing no end of trouble to the quick-and-hasty basement cafes along the main stem. One of these eateries, located under a big picture palace, had been used as a post office. Having no regular address, the "boys" would use the number of the eating emporium and would refer to it as "the office."
A cigar stand in the early Forties had to throw them all out for a similar reason. Not only would they bum cigarets from spending customers, but they would refer to the address as "the office." Actual business appointments would be made. And the "four flushers" would remark—"Oh, yes, just drop me a line at my office."
It was found that several actually had the nerve to have cards printed containing cafe addresses. On cold days they would gather over a nickel's worth of coffee and spend the afternoon.
One of the pet "cake-down" stunts of the brigade is to enter a Broadway coffee resort when it is particularly busy. The racket is to order one cup of coffee and a sandwich.
When the coffee is half gone and the sandwich practically eaten the "tin horn" leaves his seat and walks toward the ice water tank. The chances are ten to one that a bus boy or a waitress, thinking the chap has hurried off, will clean up his place. He comes back to find his table cleared. He flies up in anger. He complained to the management, and to avoid a rumpus a new cup of coffee and another sandwich are produced. Thus he gets practically double for his money. And there are so many hundreds of busy coffee emporiums in this belt that the gag can be worked all over the district, and then in a new district.

There are certain others who figure that in a rainy day rush a certain percentage of absent-minded ones will leave umbrellas behind—and do. Two or three, working together, can generally get an umbrella apiece. A few moments later they appear on a street corner several blocks away, chanting—"Buy an umbrella." Thus they pick up 50 cents, or a dollar—depending on the quality of the Parasol.
Walking sticks are also their "meat," but they generally keep these for personal use to "add swank" to their sporty appearance.
GILBERT SWAN.

WASHINGTON LETTER
By RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington, Jan. 22.—The exact effects of President Hoover's "prosperity conference" following the stock market crash of last autumn will come in for critical review here shortly when the executive committee of the president's national business survey conference meets here to find out just how well the nation has succeeded in surmounting the effects of the downfall of speculation.
As the committee prepares to meet, the Department of Commerce comes to bat with figures showing that 1929 was a banner year for U. S. exports, which rose to a higher figure than ever before, except for the abnormal war years.
In 1929, it is revealed, exports amounted to $5,248,488,000—more than $100,000,000 greater than for 1928. Nearly 47 per cent of this total was made up of finished manufactures. Similarly, the nation's imports last year amounted to $4,400,634,000, a gain of more than $300,000,000 over 1928.
The Future Program
Julius K. Barnes, chairman of the conference, indicates that its activity will continue unabated.
"Concerted efforts to carry into execution the general purpose of the conference by trade groups and local organizations," he says, "already have been appreciably effective, particularly in allaying groundless apprehensions and sustaining confidence; and this is reflected in a noticeable improvement in business activity."
"The executive committee will consider what further steps may be taken and what direction this concerted effort should take to achieve most effectively the aims of the conference."
The old question of Philippine independence seems certain to get more extended consideration this winter than it has had for years.
The Senate committee on territories and insular affairs, headed by Connecticut's Republican senator, Hiram Bingham, has opened hearings on the subject, and has before it three resolutions bearing on the matter. These include the resolution for outright independence, the Bingham resolution for a conference at Manila next fall on independence and the Vandenberg resolution asking the committee to take tariff autonomy for the islands into account.
Prospects for independence are brighter than they have been in a long time, due to the fact that agricultural and other interests are beginning to demand that the Philippines be made subject to tariff restrictions.
Manuel Roxas, speaker of the Filipino House of Representatives, is here to speak his mind before the committee.
"No matter what the outcome of the deliberations may be," he says, "while striving for our freedom we will continue to feel that America's heart is with us, and her flag waving gloriously over the Philippines will, as in the old days, mean to every man, woman and child in our country the unchallenged symbol of liberty and democracy which it is America's sacred mission to spread over the world."
Delay Hurts Prosperity
Roxas points out that the present state of uncertainty is not at all conducive to business prosperity in the islands.
The indefiniteness and uncertainty of the status of the islands is preventing the investment of capital, hindering the development of the country and greatly paralyzing progress," he says.
"Under the present relations between the United States and the Philippines, Congress, reserving the power to regulate trade between the two countries, has established the present free trade reciprocity. To every investor in the Philippines it is important to know how long such relations will continue. Briefly, the Philippines is bound to suffer economic paralysis until its status is finally determined."
In the United States the honey crop amounts to more than 55,000,000 pounds annually.

JAUNDICE.
Jaundice can often be recognized at first glance because of the peculiar livid yellow color of the patient's skin, especially of the face and hands where it is first noticed. The patient usually perspires freely, especially the hands, abdomen and chest. The whites of the eyes often become yellowish.
Jaundice cannot, itself be considered a disease, but it is a symptom that the flow of bile from the liver or gall bladder has become obstructed and the bile is therefore being absorbed by the blood rather than discharged into the intestines as it should be. The treatment of jaundice, therefore, must deal with the bile flow, and when this is corrected the yellow skin discoloration will disappear in the course of time of its own accord.
Even after the bile flow has been child to be seriously injured through holding the breath too long, and the mother should always give the child attention at this time and use any method which will stop a bad practice by the child. Usually, such an unpleasant treatment as snipping the baby with a cold towel will finally stop the habit.

(Dyspepsia and Acidosis.)
Question.—L. M. Raskas: "Are dyspepsia and acidosis caused by the same conditions. May both be banished by the same diet?"
Answer.—Dyspepsia really means indigestion because of a lack of pepsin which is one of the digestive enzyme. Acidosis is due to a lowered alkalinity of the blood. Usually there is over acidity of the gastric juice. Both dyspepsia and acidosis might be cured by the same diet if one will live for a long enough time on a carefully balanced diet suited to meet all the bodily needs, being especially careful to select good food combinations.
(Strychnin.)
Question.—Mrs. H. K. asks:—"Should one take medicine containing strychnin if the heart is fast, painful and jumpy? Or is it for slow hearts?"
Answer.—Strychnin is a drug usually given to stimulate the circulation through making the heart beat faster and, of course, is contraindicated when the heart already beats fast. In any case, it is a dangerous drug to use. It is far better to make a gradual but permanent change of the heart's action through constitutional treatment with diet and exercise.

Rev. Julius G. Appleton, pastor of the Buckingham Congregational Church, resigned Sunday, Jan. 19, to take effect April 1. Mr. Appleton asked the members of the church to be seated at the close of the morning service and his resignation was presented at that time. A church meeting will be called soon to take action on the resignation. Mr. Appleton began his pastorate Oct. 17, 1926.

BUCKINGHAM

SPICED RADIO WIRES WITH HIS OWN BODY

New York, Jan. 22—(AP)—His arms twitching with shocks from electric current, Harold Vivian, a young radio engineer, literally spiced with his body a broken link in the vast hookup and made it possible for listeners-in on 59 North American radio stations to hear King George's speech today. Just a few minutes before the King began his address which opened the naval conference in London somebody in the control room of the Columbia Broadcasting Company tripped over the wires to the generator which energizes the entire network. Vivian, chief control operator, grasped the wires together in his hands to restore the circuit. Leakage of the current through his body to the floor shook his arms with spasms, but he held on without a break for 20 minutes until new wires could be connected.

Among gypsies, children born on Christmas Day are said to have the power of divination and ability to avert the "evil eye."

On Jan. 22, 1821, Mexico agreed to permit Americans to colonize Texas. The right to establish a Texas colony was obtained by Moses Austin. He died soon after, but his son, Stephen, took up the work. Being free to choose the location for his colony, Austin selected the lower Brazos and Trinity valleys. Before long many claims covered the region from the Sabine to the Nueces. Discontent with the Mexican rule was not long in appearing, and a state of warfare existed between the Mexicans and American colonists for several years. In 1836, the Mexican leader Santa Anna, was taken captive and was glad to sign a treaty in which he engaged to do what he could for the independence of Texas. Thus the Republic of Texas was launched and a Constitution ratified in September of the same year, with Sam Houston as president. Texas was admitted to the Union in 1846. ROB BLIND MAN Norwalk, Jan. 22—(AP)—The meanest man in this case is a whole family. They robbed a blind man of his stock in trade. Thomas Duane, a sightless salesman of brooms, reported to the police today that while he was in a local home, trying to make a sale, a dozen brooms were stolen from him. The tubes inside the boiler of an express passenger engine measure nearly a mile.

VALUABLE CATCH

Boston, Jan. 22—(AP)—Eight members of the crew of the New Bedford fishing schooner Vandal were each $342 richer today as the result of a week's fishing on George's Banks. The Vandal came in yesterday with a catch of 74,000 pounds of haddock, cod and lemon sole, an exceptional catch although said not to be a record. With a good market and a scarcity of lemon sole the cargo was disposed of today for $5,100 with a net return to each man of $342. The Vandal is owned and skippered by Captain William Westerbeke.

Rash Romance

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH CAMERON marries ARTHUR KNIGHT, executive of New York publishing house in which she is employed. They sail for a six-weeks' honeymoon in Bermuda. Knight is a widower with an 18-year-old daughter, TONY, who is in Europe, and a son, JUNIOR, 16, at school. In his infatuation he overlooks the fact that Judith is not communicative about her past life.

After the first week in Bermuda a cablegram arrives announcing that Tony Knight is coming home. Arthur tells Judith they must return at once to meet her. Since neither the girl nor boy knows of the father's intentions, Judith is skeptical of her welcome.

Arthur and Judith reach the Long Island home just one day before Tony's boat docks. Next morning Knight meets his daughter but when they arrive at the house Tony ignores Judith and rushes to her own room. Late that afternoon Tony confronts her stepmother and exclaims: "You're going to get out!"

Knight, entering the house to overhear this, comes so suddenly, after dinner MICKEY MORTIMER calls and takes her on a round of night clubs. Mortimer is a blasé amusement-seeker whom Tony met in Paris and who is separated from his wife and deep in a flirtation with the girl.

As the days pass a state of armed neutrality exists between Tony and her stepmother. Arthur meanwhile makes plans for a festive Christmas and Junior arrives home for the holidays.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

Each day as Christmas drew nearer Judith Knight's uneasiness grew.

Evenings when Arthur was at home she felt strengthened by his confidence and devotion. She was learning to manage his household in the smooth, frictionless way in which Arthur liked to have things go. Of course, Mrs. Wheeler was responsible for most of this, but Judith added touches of her own.

The menus she planned were not only balanced as food rations but also balanced as to the degree of discriminating. Judith had a found some means of inspiring her cook to reach culinary heights. Cora had never attained before. Harriet's service was correct.

The Knight home looked exactly the same as it had last year. At least no furniture had been moved or any changes made in its appointments. In the evening across mellow candle light or before the flickering grate fire Arthur Knight thought his bride had imbued the home with her own delightful personality. He felt this particularly when his children were not present.

It was the children, of course, who made Christmas so difficult. The shock of Tony's denunciation had not yet entirely lifted. The cool, aloof courtesy of Arthur Junior was nearly as hard to bear as the boy's manner of courtship. She was prepared to face a united front by brother and sister. This did not occur.

After the first greeting Junior spent little time with school. He had friends home from the field farther out on Long Island where Junior went nearly every morning. He knew some of the men there who were willing to let him stand around and watch while they worked. He came back smelling of gasoline and rather grimy.

Christmas eve finally came. Judith loved carols and all the season's time-honored ceremonies. She was downstairs early that evening, waiting for the rest of the household to assemble. There must be Christmas music—lots of it—on the air. She turned the dials of the home radio cabinet. Would the music sing its way into resentful hearts or would it prove a mockery?

"It came upon a midnight clear, one glorious night of old—"

The majestic rhythms of the old hymn filled her mind. A church choir somewhere was singing. Judith stood before a window, looking out upon the dark street.

"Peace on earth! Good will toward men—"

Suddenly Judith forgot Arthur Knight and forgot his children. She stared out at the darkness, lost in her own thoughts. Peace on earth. Good will toward men. Somewhere two hearts were calling to her.

"Good Lord!—can't you find anything better to tune in on than that dirge?"

Judith whirled. It was Tony who had spoken. She stood beside the reading table, holding an automatic lighter to ignite the cigaret between her lips.

"Why, I— I like Christmas songs," Judith said.

Tony smiled superciliously. She threw her head back, removed the cigaret from her lips and blew a long, curling wreath of smoke skyward.

"Oh, you do," she said with cutting emphasis. "Well, it seems our tastes differ. I crave something snappy. Now it's my turn!"

The strutting little figure sauntered to the radio and twisted the dials.

Raucous syncopation burst upon the air. It filled the room and screamed beyond. Tony's shoulders began to vibrate in rhythm with the music.

"What's that?" she asked with a broken note. "I don't know. It sounds like 'em end.'"

"That's nothing," the girl told him. "That's only the song of a little bird."

Junior appeared and the four went into the dining room. Knight reminded the group that tomorrow would be Christmas day. He was the only one at the table who

PLAY DAY IS PLANNED FOR WOMEN'S MEETING

Denver—(AP)—Sky-line trails and "blue sky" open air receptions will entertain the 10,000 club women expected to attend the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Denver June 5-14.

A play day on June 11 will be one of the high spots of the convention. Club women will out loose from weighty papers and debates to be whisked in autos over high mountain passes.

A memorial service in Red Rock bowl will be held Sunday, June 11. Denver's civic center will be the scene of the "blue sky" reception on the opening night.

The $2,000,000 foundation fund, community service and furthering cordial relations with Latin American countries will be the chief subjects on the program.

COVENTRY

The latest demonstration of the three square meals will be given at the home of Mrs. Walter S. Haven on Thursday starting at 10:30. Mrs. Walter S. Haven and Mrs. Arthur Reed will demonstrate. The other two meetings of this series have been interesting and instructive. Women attending are asked to bring a sandwich and a little fruit.

The younger children are being cared for at the chapel during the morning services of the Second Congregational church each Sunday by one of the Older Girls. Bible stories, songs, etc., are used to hold the children's interest. Parents are invited to attend church and bring the children. Rev. J. N. Atwood allows time after the second hymn for the little folks to pass out and go down to the chapel with their leader.

The Junior Sunshine Scissors club will meet Saturday at 2 p. m. at the home of their leader, Miss Cora Kingsbury.

pride. Judith was touched by his devotion to the boy and girl.

"If I weren't here," she thought a little bitterly, "how happy the children would be!"

But Christmas morning, when the great moment had come to throw back the doors and reveal the tree overflowing with gifts, only Judith stood beside Arthur Knight.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

There is an interesting angle to the scolding problem little suspected by most parents.

I believe we are all well aware by this time that scolding falls as a means of persuasion because it causes resentment and irritation and eventually, though sheer familiarity, breeds contempt.

What we are less likely to know is the actual physical effect caused by raising the voice when we shout "Don't!" or the actual fear inspired, not by the torrent of words we let loose, but by the violence of the tone with which we hurl them.

We are told that babies have only two natural fears—that is, what we may call reactive fears to certain outside conditions. One is a loud noise; the other is a sudden taking away his support.

How Fear Is Bred

A baby may not be afraid of a dog, or the dark, or his bath, or a stranger, or a frog, or even snakes; but suddenly make a violent noise near him, while in proximity to any of these things, and he will be terrified at any or all of them thereafter unless intelligently led back from his fear complex by certain specific treatment.

It is through his "noise fear," therefore, that he largely learns other fears. Experts have a theory that it is almost entirely through these "noise" and "balance" inhibitions that other fears are born. Pain, of course, is a "fear" source. This instinct of preservation is probably back of both "noise" and "balance" sensitiveness to begin with.

Is it then unreasonable to suppose that these complicated natures of ours are attuned in a thousand and one ways to sound, and that most of our unhappy habits and emotions are a direct result of unpleasant sound experiences?

If that is true, then does it not follow that the loudness of an angry voice, the unpleasant rasp of commands or opinions, must arouse a complicated mass of fears in a child that live to confuse and trouble him long after the immediate cause of the scolding has passed into history?

Peril in Scoldings

Take any child that has been repeatedly scolded. What lives? The scoldings have left their mark. The child, unnamed fear not only of the scolder, but of everything else around him. The child becomes in time careful, cunning, silent, suppressed, and of course, unhappy. He may be more obedient—outwardly—but trouble has been laid up without question. For we know now without dispute that what is suppressed does not go away, but it will come out tomorrow, or next week, or next year, in some sort of complex that is never a good complex, but some carried, perverted view of life that causes misery and unhappiness. We're all a mass of fear complexes caused directly by scoldings when we were little. One behaviorist says he has little to see one perfectly happy human being. He blames mishandling in babyhood and youth.

If we have to do a little rephrasing—at least let us do it without raising our voices. And if we say "Don't," we needn't put the word in a rifle to discharge it. Unquestionably our protests will have more weight and things will be happier all around.

MEDICINE BALL IS MEDICINE ENOUGH, BELIEVES JAC AUER

Carol Cotton . . . Illustrates Today's Medicine Ball Exercise.

BY JAC AUER

Gentle exercise alone will not enable women to round the 1930 curves, if they have accumulated fat.

It is necessary to start with gentle exercises until the muscles are limbered up, the body toned up and the fat somewhat loosened. At this juncture, the best and most efficacious way of reducing is to inject a little hard exercise that works out the body.

I often have made the statement that for health reasons, everyone should do enough hard work to perspire freely at least twice a week. Perspiring cleanses the pores and sends the blood coursing through the body in a stimulating way. "Sweating out" in an electrical bath cannot possibly do the same good that hard work does.

Throwing the medicine ball is the first form of strenuous exercise I suggest for reducing. Once you get used to it, you will enjoy it tremendously. The first work with the medicine ball should be done in the following way:

1. Sit on the floor with a pillow behind you, when you start. Place your feet apart so that you can sit firmly.
2. Have someone throw the medicine ball to you so that you can catch it above your head.
3. Catch it and go on over backwards with it until you are flat on the floor.
4. Without changing the position of your arms (straight out over your head, holding the ball), sit up, keeping your leg position, and as you rise, throw the ball just before coming to upright position.

This exercise is a marvelous abdomen reducer. It also takes the fat off arms and across the shoulders and strengthens all of the muscles through the neck and back. It is one of the most zestful exercises one can do and one that you will thoroughly enjoy when you get used to it.

Do not overdo at first. For this is strenuous. But, beginning with a couple or three times daily, work until you can repeat 10 or 12 times until you can repeat the ball just as you come back to upright position.

1. Sit on the floor with a pillow

British Women's Year Hailed For Achievements

London—(AP)—The year 1929 was a record one for British women.

In May last for the first time in the history of the country, women of 21 years old and over voted on the same terms as men in a general election; and this landmark in British history was appropriately celebrated by the nomination of no fewer than 68 women candidates for election to the house of commons.

Fourteen were elected, and among them was Miss Margaret Bondfield who, by her appointment as minister of labor, became Britain's first woman cabinet minister.

The duchess of Bedford accomplished a women's air record by flying from London to Karachi and back—a distance of 9,900 miles—in seven and a half days.

The Hon. Mrs. Victor Bruce broke the 24-hour record for cars up to five litres capacity by keeping up

SCHURMAN SAILS

Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The steamship George Washington sailed today for New York with Jacob Gould Schurman, retiring American ambassador to Germany aboard.

The ambassador telegraphed to President van Hinderburg a final farewell, expressing his grateful appreciation of the latter's confidence and friendliness, and wishing the German people, "whom I've known and admired for five decades" all happiness and prosperity.

The WOMAN'S DAY

The male gold digger or gigolo is necessary to the present state of society, according to Gilbert Frankau, the English author, who has chosen such a type to be the hero of his new novel, "Dance, Little Gentlemen."

He maintains that this type of man exists because women with money will buy male companionship when they want it, if they can't get it any other way. He asks: "Since women no longer ask chivalry of men, but demand equality, why should he be disgusted at the male gold digger, and rather pleased about the female?"

"Most people tell me that this profession of male gold digger is a disgusting one, and I thoroughly agree with them, but there is no sense in trying to hide the fact that it does exist. Gigolos flourish in Paris, on the Riviera, in the West End of London and in New York."

Gigolos in History

He points out that the profession of male gold digger is not a new one. Men who danced attendance upon women—for a price—are not only products of our modern life, but were known in ancient Rome, and doubtless in Alexandria and Assyria. The history of smart English society of the eighteenth century shows this type was prevalent then.

There are no new types. A certain social condition produces its particular people wherever that condition prevails.

Among the pioneers, there were probably a negligible number of gigolos—and not many gold diggers.

They do not fit in with that life. It takes leisure and a moneyed class to produce social parasites.

Where There's Gold—

When we have so many millionaires and spenders as we have today, we are bound to have gold diggers. The butter and egg man comes to New York or Paris, and he wants to see some gay life. He is willing to pay the bills, to buy everybody drinks, and be a good fellow. Being a spender is lots of fun.

The woman who travels in Europe, who has plenty of money, but no man to dance with or to take her around, has two alternatives. She can pass up the gay life, or she can pay some young man to be her escort at the various cafes and night clubs where women cannot go alone.

Money does not necessarily buy one's friends, but it will buy companionship and dancing and dinner parties, and it will buy the appearance of a gay and good times, whether it actually provides them or not.

Nor should it be overlooked that many an American traveling in Europe, who is bored by dancing and hates taking his wife to places of entertainment, is often quite willing to provide her with a paid escort if he can be excused from the obligations he hates.

There is certainly nothing glamorous or admirable in the male gold digger's career, but he does seem to have a place in our life, or he would not exist—not if the principles of social evolution can be relied upon.

"PARROT DISEASE" ISN'T COMMON ENOUGH TO CAUSE ALARM

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, The Health Magazine

In 1904, three cases of psittacosis or "Parrot Disease" were reported in Boston. Last year a break of this disease was reported in Buenos Aires and more outbreaks have recently been reported in the United States.

In Hamburg, Germany, 23 cases with five deaths occurred last fall. In the epidemic of psittacosis which occurred in Paris in 1892, there were 49 cases and 16 deaths and it was reported that the infection had been caused by parrots brought from South America.

When psittacosis occurs, it begins with chill and fever with a good deal of weakness and depression and usually some inflammation of the lungs. The extent of the inflammation of the lungs determines whether or not the patient lives.

When the records of a considerable number of cases are assembled, it is found that from 30 to 40 per cent of the patients die. When the disease was first described in Paris, a germ was isolated from the parrots and it was found to be of the type of the same family as the typhoid germ. This germ is now called bacillus psittacosis.

"Parrot disease" is essentially a medical curiosity and need occasion little alarm among the people of the United States. The symptoms resemble those of other infectious diseases and one should be certain that the disease is

Alex Simpson Selected From List of 135 Pros For Job In Springfield

Veteran Golf Instructor Decides to Leave Local Country Club for Much More Attractive Position.

Selected from a field of 135 applicants, Alex Simpson, well known Manchester golfer and professional instructor at the Manchester Country Club, has been named for a similar position at the much larger and more widely known Springfield Country Club, it became known yesterday.

Simpson's new position is regarded as a tremendous advance both from a financial and social standpoint. He succeeds Walter Denning who had held the Springfield berth for three years. No successor has been appointed to fill the big gap Simpson leaves here.

The Manchester pro submitted his resignation only yesterday to C. Read Richardson secretary of the local club. A meeting of the governing board has been called for 4:30 Friday afternoon to be held at the Manchester Trust Company at which time action will be taken on Simpson's resignation. However, there is no alternative but to accept with regret.

It will be officially announced at that time that the position of professional instructor at the Manchester Country Club is open for applications. It is a foregone conclusion that many pros will apply for the job. The governing board will meet later to make its selection. So at present, there isn't the least inkling as to Simpson's successor.

Simpson has been pro at the Country Club here for the past eight years. He has won himself many friends. His ability to play golf extends well beyond the confines of New England. He has often finished in the money in New England P. G. tournaments and on one occasion shot a brand of golf that qualified him for the national open.

Many of Manchester's golfing family owe whatever ability they possess to Simpson's untiring efforts. They regret his decision to leave Manchester but at the same time fully realize the splendid opportunity for advancement which has come into his grasp and join in offering congratulations.

John P. Cheney, Sr., one of Manchester's leading golfers, contributed a word to the occasion by stating that Alex Simpson was the best instructor with whom he had ever come into contact. "And, I've seen a lot of 'em in my day," he concluded.

The Rec missed enough shots in the first quarter of its game with dozen close contests.

The Rec's game with the Knights of Lithuania in Hartford tomorrow night has been postponed.

West Hartford High beat East Hartford High at basketball last night by a score of 36 to 40. It was the tenth straight setback for the losers.

After last night's debacle, wonder what the Endees would have done to the Rec had they brought along Richman, Collins and Rychmeyer. An adding machine would have been necessary for the scorer, no doubt.

Bat Battalino's fight with Al Singer for the Garden on January 31 has been called off because of his infected hand. Bat is still at the University hospital where he went after losing to Lew Massey the other night.

Manchester fans saw two old time favorites of the shakedown court last night when Jimmy Malcolm and "Dutch" Leonard came here with the state champions.

The Hartford Y. M. C. A. will send a basketball team to the Harting gym tonight to oppose the Y. M. C. A. of this town and in the preliminary the Y. M. C. A. seconds will tackle the Green school at 7 o'clock.

It seems to run in the family. His three children, David, 10, Mary 8 and Catherine 6, already swing a wicked club. The former stepped in to the limelight last year when he annexed the junior caddy championship at the Country Club. Simpson came to Manchester from the Thunder Bay Club between Port Arthur and Port William in Ontario where he enrolled his services shortly after being discharged from a Canadian regiment which served in the World War.

During his many long years of strolling the fairways, Alex broke many course records. Among others he holds the course record at the Manchester Country Club. His resignation is one of several which has struck this section of the state the past few months. L. S. Chiappetta resigned from Sequin last fall shortly after Jack Stolt gave up his post at the Hartford Golf Club to return to England.

DUTRA NOW LEADS IN MEXICAN GOLF RACE BY STROKE

Horton Smith In Second Place With 36 Holes to Go for $250,000 Prize Money.

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN

Auga Caliente, Lower Calif., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Olin Putra, the Santa Monica, Calif., pro, entered the third round of the Auga Caliente $250,000 golf tournament today as leader of the 58 remaining entrants. He was one stroke ahead of his two nearest competitors, Missouri's youthful great, Horton Smith and Charles Guest, Los Angeles.

Dutra looked to the third 18 holes today with 146 score. Yesterday he shot 72, the nearest approach of the day to the 71 which represents par. He was not alone, for with him came his brother Morrie, of Tacoma, Washington, whose 72 placed him in a six cornered tie for third place.

The stern task of continuing this superb brand of golf in order to retain the leadership burdened Olin's shoulders for there were ten other links experts within three strokes of the top, with 36 holes remaining to be played. Tied with Morrie and his 145 card were MacDonald Smith, Ed Dudley and Al Watrous. Treading on the heels of these came John Farrell and one of the Nation's ironfrank amateurs, George Von Elm.

The nerve racking contest loomed even more intense today with all of the money players within ten strokes of the leader or better. Leo Diegel was bracketed with Joe Kirkwood and Harold Long, Denver, all with cards of 150. Six more including Denny Shute and Bobby Cruickshank were clustered at the 151 mark, three had 152 and five including Walter Hagen, British open champ 153.

Harry Cooper whose game was interrupted by a jaunt to Los Angeles where he was married yesterday, had 27 holes of golf before him today to catch up with the field. Cooper was a potential leader, for he shot a 74 the opening day and added a 36 for the first nine holes of the second round.

BRUINS WINNERS OVER BLACKHAWKS

Boston, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins, world's Hockey champions, and the Chicago Blackhawks each had won two of their four games of the season today after the home team's decisive victory last night, 5-1.

Cooney Weiland counted twice for the Bruins, regaining the top of the National League scoring list, and Scores were also made by Dit Clappier, Hitchman and Barry. Martel, tallied to the Blackhawks in the second period.

TENNESSEE FOOTBALL STARS MAINSTAYS OF CAGE QUINTET

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 22.—Four outstanding members of Tennessee's undefeated football eleven have joined the ranks of the basketball squad and are likely to fill regular berths on the Volunteer quintet this season.

The "Touchdown Twins," Hack and Mack of grid deeds, are almost certain to find themselves paired at the forward positions. Gene McEber (Mack), the nation's greatest individual scorer in football, and Buddy Hackman (Hack), were members of the quintet last season.

Bobby Dodd as captain of the team is back at his old guard position where he established himself as one of the best defense men in the south last winter. He played quarterback on the football team.

Paul Hug, Volunteer end in football, plays center and forward on the basketball court. He was a sensational performer last season and is expected to fill a regular berth again this year.

Each of the four gridlers was mentioned prominently on various All-Southern honor selections, while McEber was named on many All-America teams.

Boxers Cannot Play Baseball on the Side

Chicago, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The first fight with former manager Rusecase of organized baseball, the White Sox particular, against Arthur (The Great) Shires near conclusion today.

The punch throwing White Sox base man has already acceded to Commissioner Landis' demands that he quit the professional ring and get into shape for baseball, conferred secretly with Donnie Bush, new White Sox manager, yesterday and from the smiles that wreathed their faces it looked like both had come to an agreement.

Shires is expected to have his suspension, levied because of his fight with former manager Rusecase, lifted and receive his 1930 contract this week.

And now boxers have turned up their noses on professional baseball. No little pleased by Baseball Commissioner Landis' edict that no baseball player can compete in the prize ring, the benevolent association of boxers has countered with an order that none of its boxers can play baseball.

"Fight all you want to, but you've got to stay away from baseball playing," the Boxers' Association said.

Tim McGrath Thought Sailors Were Boos Until He Met Tom Sharkey

Tom Sharkey and this writer met up to make ring history just because I thought sailors were a lot of boobs.

Word reached San Francisco that the crew of the old cruiser Philadelphia were ready to bet $10 a man that their master-at-arms, Sharkey, would lick any heavyweight on the Pacific coast. There were 700 in the crew. Feeling I ought to cut in, I got busy around Vallejo, site of the Mare Island navy yard.

I had a fair heavyweight, whom I sent up to "work" in the yard. Then I began talking of a fight. A boatswain from the Philadelphia who managed Sharkey, met me, with a terrific wad of dough to bet. That set me to thinking.

"Let's see this sailor," I said, after articles were signed. The door opened, and in walked the huskiest sailor I've ever seen. When he was introduced, I stepped back and got a eyeful. Then I tore the fight to pieces.

"If you don't make a champion, I don't know a natural fighter," I told Sharkey.

"Well, then," said Tom in his rich brogue, "if that's the way you feel about it, go get me some fights."

And there started our ten-year partnership and lifetime friendship. I came back raving about Sharkey. The fight fans laughed.

Some nights later, I contrived to get him introduced in the ring at a Colma fight. The Philadelphia's hand came along—all A. W. O. L. I turned out later. But this didn't impress. The crowd laughed. Sailors were boobs!

The late W. W. Naughton was at the fight. I presented Sharkey. Naughton was impressed. He wrote an article on him which was widely copied. Sharkey beat three tough opponents. And we were over, for a career that brought Sharkey a permanent place in pugilism's Hall of Fame.

PAYING FOR BABE

Colonel Jacob Rupert, owner of the Yankees, sat down with a pencil the other day and had a little heart-to-heart talk with himself. At the end of his interview, he had scattered a wide assortment of figures over several reams of white paper—and made the discovery that Babe Ruth is making more money out of baseball than Colonel Rupert.

This is an unheard of condition in baseball—that a magnate should be working for one of his players, but if you judge from the colonel's deductions as to his investment in the Yankees, that's the way it looks. If you should ask Babe Routh, the perennial holdout, about it, he would say this represented an ideal condition and something that he has been working vainly for years to bring about.

You're just a damned old philanthropist," said Colonel Jake to himself. "Here you are with de highest paid star in de game off baseball and whud iss id geddung you?"

"Nudding," replied himself to Colonel Jake. "That I mean almost nudding. Woudn't you be sully to pay de Babe $85,000 a year just to swell de attendance for de odder fellers in dis American League?"

"Sure ting," himself replied to Colonel Jake. "But whud are you goin to do about dat?"

"You know what I ought to do?" said Colonel Jake with some heat. "Well, I should charge dose odder guys someting to bring de odds deir ball park. De Babe makes as much money for dem as he makes for me. And when dey come to New York dey get more money dan dey do anywhere else. Vy it's de Babe, of course! Vy doud you write to dose odder fellers and ask dem to pay part of de Babe's salary?"

"I might do dat," said Colonel Jake, "and I did t'ink once of doing dat very ting. But do you know vot dose fellers would tell me? Dey'd tell me dat I shouldn't be so dumd as to pay de Babe to hit home runs for me in de nint inning wid de bases full and beat their ball clubs!"

BOY BANDIT COULD TELL HIM The colonel, of course, should have sought better counsel than himself. He should have gone and had his heart-to-heart talk with the Boy Bandit, Jimmy Johnston, who manages the fight managers whose coat of arms is nothing more than a chisel rampant in a patch of Mr. Mellon's spinach.

Jimmy Johnston would tell him to go and have the Babe hit as extra nickel for every game in which the Babe hits a home run. The fans would pay their nickel on the way in, and if the Babe hit no homers that day, they could detach the separate nickel and return it to the box office and get their jitney back.

Jimmy Johnston would know a way.

Bristol Endees' Defense Permits Only Four Goals

Bell City's Jinx Over Manchester in Basketball Continues; Local Score Only One Field Goal in Second Half.

The story of last night's game is easily told. The Rec Five simply stepped far out of its class and took a 36 to 16 lacing as a result. The Bristol Endees looked much smarter and superior at all times although the locals kept on close terms during the first part of the contest.

Bristol has long been a jinx to Manchester in basketball, especially in high school circles, and now it appears that the professional ranks are not immune from the dreaded disease. It's getting to a point where if Manchester ever does beat Bristol, regular local center was unable to play because of an injured foot.

The Bristol Endees had two big points in their favor in addition to a world of experience. The state champions were much taller, man for man, and also had a decided break in their favor when Roy Norris, regular local center was unable to play because of an injured foot.

Ding Farr, who took his place, went to the showers via the personal four route early in the first half.

For a time the teams kept on even basis. In fact the score was 10 to 9 with only a few minutes to go in the first half but the Endees staged a spurt which netted four baskets and an 18 to 10 lead at intermission. The Rec had played a splendid game the first half but it folded up like a tent in the second half when Gustafson's fling was the only field goal scored by Manchester.

Bristol Defense Impregnable. The Bristol defense was too much for the locals who could make little or no headway. Three field goals the first half and one the second was the limit of Manchester's offensive tactics. Bristol flipped in eight buckets each half. Charlie Petrieno kept on top of the play at all times and made a fast, clean game out of what might have developed into a roughhouse.

Jimmy Picken, former Dartmouth captain, (No. 3), was the star for the Endees with six hoops. Jimmy Malcolm also demonstrated that he still maintains much of his speed and shooting skill that first brought him New England wide praise when he paired up with "Kinky" Fieldman at Holyoke High school. "Wardy" Waterman, the chunky guard, amazed the fans with his nimbleness afoot. He is one of the trickiest guards in the state and is hard to score against.

In the preliminary tussle the Variety Five, composed chiefly of the Taftys, nosed out the strong Wapping Y. M. C. A. quintet 30 to 27 in a red hot struggle. Wapping led 5 to 2 at the end of the first period, 18 to 12 at halftime and 21 to 20 at third quarter. They faltered down the home stretch. The summary of both games follows:

Wee Scouty, to the rubber man said, "Well, it seems as if you can do mighty fine repair work on a tire that is flat. We feared that we had spoiled our fun, but now just see what you have done. You've helped us out and we are very thankful, sir, for that."
The rubber man laughed. "Ho, ho, ho! I want you Tynymiles to know that I am glad to lend a hand to such lads as you. As long as rubber is my name, it seemed that it would be a shame if I just let your tire go. 'Twill soon be just like new."
"Please, just be patient for a while and I will fix things up in style. The leak is plugged with rubber. Now I'll fill the tire. Gee, I wish I had a bike like this. Think of the good times that I miss. Whenever you get tired of this bike, just send it back to me."
"You bet we will," one Tiny said.
