

TAFT, BACK HOME A VERY SICK MAN

Former Chief Justice is Practically Helpless as He is Assisted from Train; Is at Once Put to Bed

BULLETIN:
Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—William Howard Taft, until yesterday Chief Justice of the United States, lay helpless in his home here today while physicians were on the verge of abandoning hope for his recovery. His condition is described as extremely serious.

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The condition of William Howard Taft was described by his physicians today as extremely serious.

After an hour's examination, Doctors Thomas A. Clayton and Francis R. Hagner said there was some doubt that the retired chief justice would recover.

Doctor's Bulletin.

In a formal bulletin the physicians said: "For some years Chief Justice Taft has had a very high blood pressure associated with general arteriosclerosis and myocarditis.

"Together with these conditions he has had a chronic cystitis. He has no fever and suffers no pain.

"His present serious condition is the result of general arteriosclerotic changes."

Dr. Hagner explained that this condition represented a general breakdown of the circulatory system.

After issuing the statement at 1:15 p. m., the physicians left the Taft household but planned to return early in the afternoon.

It was indicated by the physicians that Mr. Taft would not be moved to a hospital, as everything that could be done for him was available at his home.

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Rid of the robes of the chief justice of the United States, William Howard Taft returned to Washington today shattered in health and practically helpless.

Perceptibly worn, weak and indifferent to his surroundings, the former president, who relinquished his high judicial office yesterday to Charles Evans Hughes, came back to the capital from Asheville, N. C., as assisted from his car, placed in a Wyoming avenue home.

"A sick man" was the short description of Mr. Taft's physician, Dr. Francis Hagner, who accompanied him on his journey from North Carolina. But he added that "as far as we can tell he is in no immediate danger."

Ill as he was, the former chief justice was dressed when his train reached the Union station here at 7:05 a. m. but he remained in his drawing room while his car was being transferred to a level nearer the streets. Dr. Hagner then and again entered his state room to speak to the distinguished patient but he seemed to have difficulty in impressing upon Mr. Taft that the time had come to leave the Walk.

Gently, the doctor asked Mr. Taft to get to his feet, but it was necessary for several others to assist him. Step by step, Dr. Hagner and his aides guided the footsteps, once

AMERICANS FLOCK TO INAUGURATION

Rush to Mexico City to See New President Installed; All Hotels Crowded.

Mexico City, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The inauguration of Pascual Ortiz Rubio as president of Mexico tomorrow has brought the greatest influx of Americans to Mexico City in 20 years.

Hotel accommodations cannot be obtained and many visitors are returning to the United States.

The railroad yards were filled with long lines of Pullman cars being used as temporary hotels, and the yards were filling rapidly all day with others. The first of a half dozen of specials scheduled to arrive today pulled in shortly after sunrise from San Diego. Others are expected from St. Louis, San Antonio, New Orleans and elsewhere.

The first steps in the official program ushering Ortiz Rubio into power, which will culminate at noon tomorrow in a ceremony at the National Stadium, began at noon today. All the special ambassadors and foreign diplomats in full dress uniform were escorted to the foreign office by members of the presidential staff. Thence they went as a group to the National palace for farewell to the retiring provisional president, Fortes Gil.

HOOVER PICKS HUGHES FOR TAFT'S PLACE

Eminent Jurist to Be Next Chief Justice of the United States—His Son Is Obligated to Resign.

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Charles Evans Hughes, one of the foremost of the nation's jurists and statesmen is to be the next chief justice of the United States.

He will succeed William Howard Taft, who broken in health by arduous years in the public service has been forced to resign and devote his entire attention to the betterment of his physical condition.

In spite of Hughes' acknowledged talents, all Washington was surprised last night to learn of his appointment. His nomination was sent to the Senate by President Hoover just as dusk was falling. A few hours previously Mr. Taft's resignation had been announced and the interim had been filled with speculation as to his successor in the course unmentioned.

Hughes Accepts Post
But in the meanwhile the president had been very busy with the long distance telephone. He reached Mr. Hughes in New York and offered him the appointment and obtained immediate acceptance. With a radiant smile, the appointee later told newspapermen that he would accept the post as the greatest opportunity for service that ever had come his way.

The Hughes nomination was referred to the Senate on the judiciary which is expected to take it up at its first meeting, probably early next week. Chairman Norris sees no opposition to its confirmation.

Charles E. Hughes, Jr., plans to resign as solicitor general when his father becomes the chief justice. His duties carry him frequently before the Supreme Court and he feels it would be an impropriety to plead government cases before a tribunal of which his father is the presiding officer.

CONFIRMATION CERTAIN.
Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Charles Evans Hughes is expected to assume the office of Chief Justice of the United States as soon as his

LINDBERGH GLIDER BREAKS IN FLIGHT

But Colonel Lands Safely from Height of 500 Feet; To Try Again Today.

Lebec, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh observed his 28th birthday anniversary today by planning another flight in the glider which he piloted yesterday to a safe landing near here after it had lost an aileron in midair. Whether he would make the next flight today depended upon weather conditions.

Laughing like a schoolboy at the conclusion of a particularly successful prank, the flying colonel, having safely landed the frail, crippled craft in a mountain valley was highly pleased rather than dismayed at the incident, which had brought the hearts of his watchers into their throats.

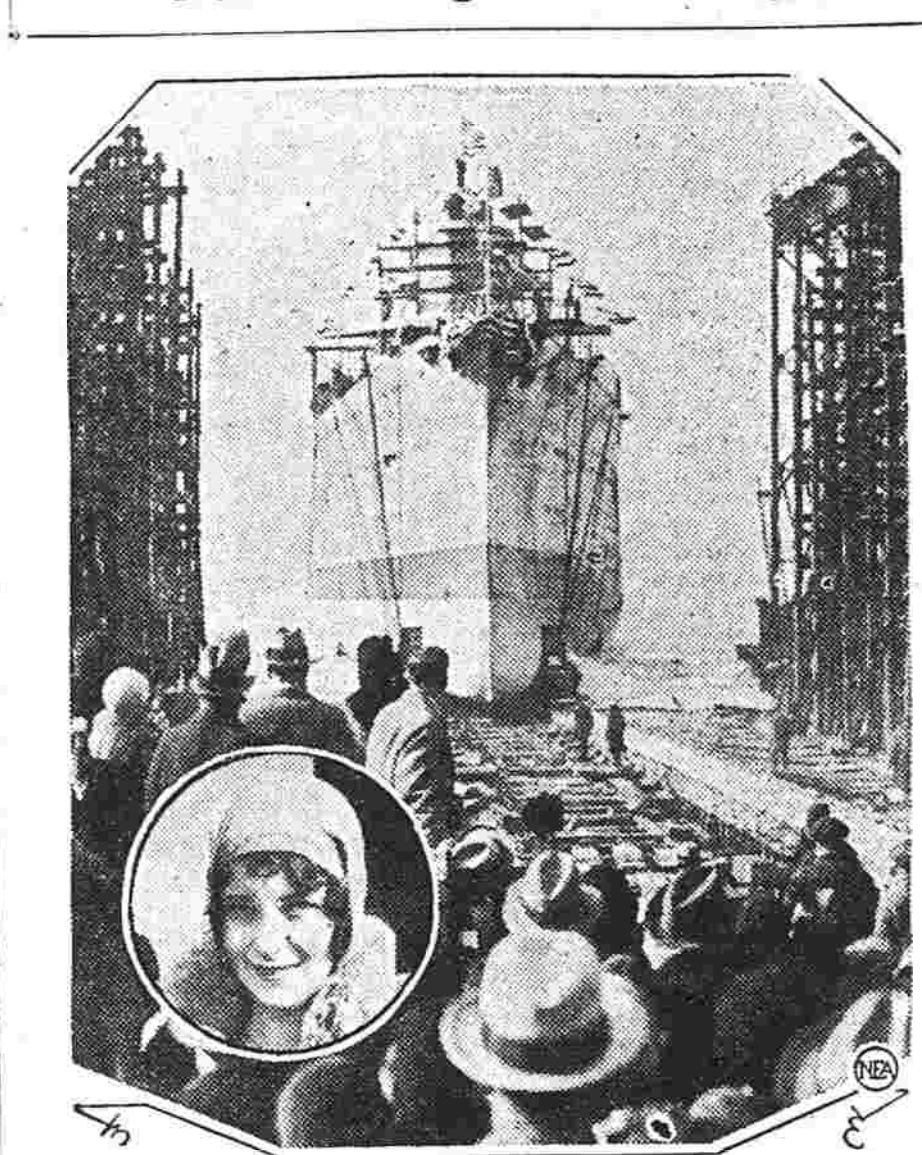

Aileron Breaks.
Lindbergh was launched into the air in a test flight preparatory to an attempt planned by Hawley Bowles, the sail plane's builder, to establish a new world gliding record, and had reached an altitude of 300 feet when the aileron broke loose and fluttered to the ground.

Knew His Danger.
The colonel's head jerked sharply to the side as the aileron, an essential part of the control apparatus, broke free, and hoarse shouts from mechanics and newspapermen were not necessary to warn him of his danger. He attempted no immediate landing, however, but sailed serenely on, dipping gracefully over the hills, finally to disappear into a valley. Whether he had fallen, or landed safely the anxious group of watchers could not tell.

When observers reached him after running frantically to the spot of his landing, the colonel was standing beside the undamaged craft on a little knoll, laughing heartily.

The colonel said he had "little difficulty in landing" and that "it was an uncomfortable feeling when I saw it fall." He added that he was not alarmed because he had confidence in the construction of the craft.

New "War Dog" for U. S. Navy

While world statesmen debated the limitation of navies at the London conference, this newly-built battle cruiser slipped down the ways at Newport News, Va. ROYAL JAP COUPLE USES CENTURIES OLD RITUAL

Brother of Emperor and Princess Tokugawa Exchange Marriage Vows; To Be Wed in April.

Tokio, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Using a ritual handed down from an age ante-dating Japanese written history, Prince Takamatsu, younger brother of the Emperor and Prince Chichibu, and Princess Kikuko Tokugawa, granddaughter of the last Shogun, exchanged marriage vows before the Kashikodoko, sanctuary of the sun goddess Amaterasu, in the Imperial Palace.

Dressed in the costumes of the ancient court of the Mikados, the young couple bowed before the sanctuary in which is enshrined the Sacred Mirror, symbol of the soul of the goddess, "Divine Ancestor of the imperial line and the Japanese nation." In token of their pledges of faithfulness they exchanged and drank cups of sake, or rice wine, previously sanctified.

Nation Celebrates.
The Japanese nation joined the imperial family in celebrating this marriage, which unites the ruling line with probably the most illustrious subject house in the empire. It joins a grandson of Emperor Meiji, to whom full reigning power was restored in 1926, to a granddaughter of the fourteenth and last of the Tokugawa Shoguns, whose removal by his ancestors since 1603 marked the end of the feudal age in Japan and the beginning of modern history for the empire.

After the ceremony at the palace, Prince and Princess Takamatsu, in a brilliantly caparisoned carriage, escorted by troops of the imperial bodyguards and cavalry, to the mansion in the southern section of the capital which will be their home.

Crowds lined the route in the soft winter sunshine of the cloudless morning.

To Travel Abroad.
In April the young "Prince of the Sea," 25 years old, and his 18-year-old bride leave for a wedding journey unprecedented in the annals of the ruling house. They will be the first couple of the immediate imperial family ever to travel abroad together and in a year's tour will circle the globe. They will not be seen in the United States until early in 1931, although they sail from Yokohama April 21 on the Kashima Maru, reaching Marseilles via Suez on June 1. First Takamatsu must perform an official mission for the emperor, his brother. Arriving in London June 10, he will be received by King George the following day and thus return the visit to Japan last May of Prince Henry, Duke of Gloucester, who invested Emperor Hirohito with the Order of the Garter.

This mission completed, Takamatsu and his bride will assume a semi-incognito status for a year's travel in Europe and America, although the status of imperial prince and princess may be resumed on the occasions of probable visits to President Hoover and the heads of European states.

Most of their travel year will be spent in France, with only a month in the United States on their way back to Japan.

WOULD RECALL OUR MARINES FROM ISLANDS

President Hoover to Appoint Board to Study Conditions in Haiti Leading to Withdrawal of Soldiers.

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—President Hoover said today he would immediately appoint a commission of five or seven to study the question of when and how the American government would withdraw from Haiti.

The President reiterated the statement that he had no desire for the U. S. to be represented abroad by Marines.

He said the question was when and how the U. S. might withdraw from the island republic.

"Now that the Senate and House have approved the appropriation for a thorough inquiry into our problems in Haiti," said President Hoover, "I shall appoint a commission at once to undertake it. I hope to be able to announce this personnel within a week."

Must Be Withdrawn
"The primary question which is to be investigated is when and how we are to withdraw from Haiti. The second question is what shall we do in the meantime. Certainly we shall withdraw our Marines and scuttle overnight. I am informed that every group in Haiti considers that such action would result in disaster to the Haitian people. On the other hand, our treaty of 1915, under which our forces are present in that country, in the main expires in 1936, or six years hence. We have no certainty of the future of the present relationship after that date."

Our Obligations
"We have an obligation to the people of Haiti and we need to plan how we will discharge that obligation. There is need to build up a certain degree of efficient and stable government, in order that life and property may be protected after we withdraw. We need to know, therefore, what subsequent steps should be taken to cooperate with the Haitian people to bring about such results."

The answer to these questions must be worked out in broad vision, after careful investigation of the entire subject by men of unbiased minds. It is for this reason that I have proposed to send a commission to Haiti to determine the facts, to study and survey the whole problem in the light of our experience in the past 15 years and the social and political background of the Haitian people, to confer with all sides, to recommend the steps which will lead to the liquidation of our responsibilities and at the same time assure stable government in Haiti."

As I have stated before, I have no desire for representation of the American government abroad through our military forces. We entered Haiti in 1915 for reasons arising from chaotic and distressing conditions, a consequence of a long period of civil war and disorganization.

Assisted Republic
"We assumed by treaty the obligation to assist the republic of Haiti in the restoration of order; the organization of an efficient police force; the rehabilitation of its finances, and the development of its natural resources. We have the implied obligation of assisting in building up a stable self-government."

"Peace and order have been restored, finances have been largely rehabilitated, a police force is functioning under the leadership of Marine officers. The economic development of Haitians shows extraordinary improvement under this regime. It is marked by highway systems, vocational schools, public health measures. General Russell (the present American commissioner to Haiti) deserves great credit for these accomplishments."

"We need now a new and definite policy looking forward to the expiration of our treaties."

Hudson, millionaire broker, against Mr. Durant and Samuel Ungerleider, as director of the Ungerleider Financial Corporation, asking an accounting. She charged she had lost $700,000 through her holdings in the corporation.

In a statement issued in connection with the filing of the suits, Mr. Durant said: "It is my firm intention to hold to strict accountability any person or corporation in any way responsible for the origin or spread of the baseless and slanderous report referring to stock transactions with Mrs. Percy Hudson, or alleged questionable transactions in connection with Samuel Ungerleider, president, Ungerleider Financial Corporation. I have never heard of Mrs. Hudson, do not know her, and know nothing of her affairs."

COURT DIRECTS ALLING TO START OUSTER SUIT

Prof. Levitt, of Redding, Wins Legal Point in His Move to Have State Officials Dismissed.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A mandamus directing Attorney General Benjamin W. Alling to bring Superior Court action for removal of the Public Utilities Commissioners from office, was issued by Judge Newell Jennings in Superior Court today. Application for the mandamus was made by Prof. Albert Levitt of Redding.

An appeal to the Supreme Court by the attorney general is expected.

In reviewing Section 3614 of the General Statutes, Judge Jennings points out that it provides for removal from office of commissioners of the Superior Court rendered upon written complaint of the attorney general.

He said that the state's complaint in his discretion and shall file such complaint if so requested in writing by 100 electors of this state.

The request in writing signed by 100 electors has been filed, it is based on facts which would hardly be called facts says Judge Jennings. STEAMER OVERDUE BECAUSE OF GALE

Captain Says Storm Was Worst He Ever Experienced on Atlantic.

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The United States liner George Washington was at her pier at Hoboken, N. J., today, having docked three days late after a stormy passage during which 15 passengers suffered cuts and bruises.

The voyage was described by Captain A. B. Randall, master, as one of the worst he had experienced on the Atlantic. He added that last Thursday and Friday the wind had blown at more than 100 miles velocity, accompanied by hail and snowsqualls.

Runs Into Gale.
Immediately out of Queenstown the ship ran into a gale, riding out this storm, the ship proceeded until last Thursday when she was struck by a heavy storm. Passengers said they saw two giant waves, one of which struck the ship on the bow and the second on the beam. The lurching of the vessel threw passengers out of their seats in the smoking room and settees and chairs were hurled across the deck.

Passengers Hurt.
Among the injured was J. S. Weisman, of Hoboken, N. J. He was thrown against a pillar of the smoking room and lost several teeth as well as suffering severe lacerations of the face.

The delayed arrival of the liner, which docked last night, caused the line to postpone its sailing one day. The ship now is scheduled to leave Thursday.

Get Together in First of a Series of Heart to Heart Conversations Regarding Naval Ratios—U. S. Con- cedes Ratio of 60 P. C. of American Tonnage and Japan Wants 70.

London, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The naval delegates of the United States and Japan, following this morning's general conference session, got together this afternoon for the first of a series of heart to heart conversations regarding naval ratios as effecting the two countries.

At the invitation of Henry L. Stimson, American secretary of state, Reijiro Wakatsuki, chief of the Japanese delegation, went to the secretary's hotel where they secluded themselves with the idea of talking over the problem of the number of 10,000-ton cruisers Japan shall have in relation to the totals of the United States.

As the two leaders faced each other in this problem, their positions were this: The United States conceded Japan a ratio of 60 per cent of American tonnage in these heavy cruisers, while Japan claimed 70 per cent.

America's Position.
The American position, in brief, was to stick by the famous 5-5-3 ratio evolved at the Washington conference for capital ships. This question, of course, is interlocked with that of what limitation Great Britain and the United States are to put on the number of heavy cruisers, with parity between them.

It was understood that Mr. Stimson was going to put this query in substance to Mr. Wakatsuki; if the United States has for example twenty-one 10,000-ton cruisers how many does Japan want? If the United States has eighteen how many does Japan want?

This afternoon's conversation was one of a group of three. Japan, the United States and Great Britain are now starting to settle their own differences. It was made clear that they proposed to get down to definite talk on these problems immediately.

These private meetings will run parallel with similar discussions between the Italians and French who are facing differences which lie mainly outside of those with which the other three powers are grappling.

London, Feb. 4.—(AP)—French and British plans for limiting naval tonnage were put under a microscope at a two-hour session of the national delegates of the five-power naval conference sitting as a committee of the whole at St. James's palace this forenoon.

The heads of the delegations did not participate in the meeting, but held a session of their own in another part of the palace. The general session took up the proposals of the two nations paragraph by paragraph, a spokesman for each nation contributing to the discussions. Examination of the proposals will be continued at a later date.

With First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander in the chair the conference took the French proposal as a basis for discussion. Alexander then submitted the British counter proposal. It was understood the discussion which followed was only on the broadest terms and largely of an explanatory nature.

Rene Massigli, speaking for the French, laid emphasis on the publicity feature of the French scheme, that is, the obligation to give notice of transfer from one category of warship to another one year before construction.

American Viewpoint.
Ambassador Hugh L. Gibson, voicing the American viewpoint, suggested that light cruisers and destroyers should not be lumped together as they would be under the French plan. The Italian delegate, Sariani, restated his country's position, favoring the general global system of limiting tonnage as categorized with limitation by categories, which is favored by America, Great Britain and Japan.

Admiral Takarabe, Japanese admiralty head, was an attentive listener as the experts dealt with the various points, but he had no suggestions of his own to offer.

Official Report.
The following official communique was issued after the meeting:

"The first committee (the conference as a committee of the whole) visited St. James's palace at 10 o'clock this morning.

"In addition to statements made at the previous meeting the committee had under consideration the French transactional proposal on the basis of draft resolutions outlined under five heads and the compromise proposed by the United Kingdom's delegation.

"As arranged at the previous meeting the discussion opened on the basis of the French transactional proposal. After discussion in which Admiral Sariani, for Italy, Admiral Takarabe for Japan, Mr.

rapidly climbing the heights as a contralto, was most warm and must have provided her with a happy experience. Lavis, too, was the applause that greeted the various 'cello numbers of Mrs. Katherine Halliday Howard...

When the laughs had died down Mr. Patton sang all these songs—as they have been sung in all probability, but few times anywhere. And after the splendid "Old Guard" he made Mr. Watkins arise in his place in the audience and after "Purple Twilight"—which was rendered with 'cello obligato and delightedly by the surmounted Mr. Bendall to his feet.

Miss Berggren Charms. Miss Berggren, beautifully groomed and of graceful bearing, opened her part of the program with her most ambitious number, "O Don d'Alte, from Verdi's opera "Don Carlo."

Simple and Brief. The program was notable for two things—its comparative simplicity and its comparative brevity. Mr. Patton had but the Green Eyed Dragon and Miss Berggren five, with a duet between them as a finale.

Of Mrs. Howard's 'cello numbers the one that seemed to most stir the audience was Hauser's "Gradie Song," though all were received with obvious pleasure.

One of the high spots of the evening was the duet by Patton and Miss Berggren in "I Was a Lover and His Lass," by Walthew, the harmony achieved being remarkable.

Delightful Operetta Star Pleases Her Fans in Revival Of "Sari." By DEMING SEYMOUR. New York.—At the same theater where Mitzi Hajos, "wonder child of Hungary," made her first miming bow to American playgoers in 1914 as the star of Emmerich Kalman's operetta "Sari," the Mitzi of 1930 is appearing again in the same piece. Save for the dropping of the Hajos and the adding of a little girth she is the same impish Mitzi—a little too preciously impish at times, perhaps, but an ingratiating rogue and quite an actress. MITZI

Even those who never have heard of "Sari" are familiar with some of its tunes. Three or four of them are abiding numbers in the semi-classic repertoire of every good orchestra—notably "Love's Own Sweet Song" and "Ha-Za-Za." As to the operetta itself, it is not so much of a show by the standards of 1930, in spite of the Albertina Rasch ballet and the Willy Pogany settings with which the revival is endowed. For those who love the old tunes and who like Mitzi's coy rascalities the evening passes, for the most part, delightfully enough.

Shaw and Strauss. On the other hand "The Chocolate Soldier," the current revival in the operetta repertory season at the Jolson theater, seems to have suffered little with the passing of the years. That is doubtless because of its intelligent libretto, composed by Shaw's "Arms and the Man."

The plot serves amply as a framework for the hauntingly lovely music of Oscar Strauss, and such old favorites as "My Hero" and "The Letter Song" are sung in the current rendition, as well as it is likely they were sung in the productions of 1909 or 1915.

Charles Purcell as the nought-loving warrior, Alice MacKenzie as his sweetheart, Roy Copper as the pompous hero and Vivian Hart as Mascha bring to the present revival four competent voices and ability to act their parts at just the right operetta pitch.

Of the nine revivals of old operettas seen this season at the Jolson it is the most engaging. No playwright has the knack these days, it seems, of writing two acts in succession, and Preston Sturges, the newest of the comedy writers, is no exception to the rule. The author of the immensely amusing "Strictly Dishonorable" proceeds uncertainly to a some-what vague destination in his new play "Recapture," and as a play it falls somewhat short.

But as an amusing evening it has its considerable merits as it tells with an unusual mixture of comedy, tragedy and sheer mad humor the story of a husband and wife who try—and fail—to rediscover the rapture of their early married days. If it is not a smashing hit, at least it is nothing for a rising young playwright to apologize for.

where Johnny Genero, another recent gang victim, lies in a critical condition from bullet wounds. It was the same hospital too that treated Healy five years ago when he was brought in suffering from two knife wounds, also in the back. As was the case five years ago Healy today refused to name his assailants. Detectives reported no progress in their investigation of four gang murders in the past week—slaying of Barney Mitchell, cab executive; and Glen Jackson, cab driver, the murder of Julius Rosenheim, the "police spy" in the gang world; and the shooting to death early Sunday of Joseph Canada, "The Dude."

The letter is one of a number involved in litigation which the magazine Plan magazine contemplates against Shaw. The presses were stopped when Shaw forbade publication. Then the magazine decided it was within its rights in printing the correspondence. Washington—In his 86th year, Theodore F. SCHOOL ON WHEELS PLAN IN VIRGINIA

Richmond, Va.—(AP)—Schools on wheels, equipped with blackboards, desks and other necessities, are being considered by the Virginia department of education. They would be used in isolated sections, especially the sparsely settled mountain regions. Morris Hart, state superintendent, says the teacher could easily learn to drive the bus. In this way it could serve one community in the morning and another in the afternoon.

GREATEST BOOKKEEPER

London.—When H. F. Sharp turned over his job to his successor recently, he gave up the distinction of being keeper of the largest collection of books in the world. He was keeper of Printed Books at the British Museum for 42 years, during which time he handled more than 3,000,000 volumes. A special gang of 40 men are kept busy dusting the books daily. Hockey players are said to be injured more than players of any other game. They're always skating on thin ice.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour-belching, frequent vomiting, fussiness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract. When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting. Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., N. Y. It will be sent FREE. In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.—Adv.

The gang boss, who is writing with lead their answer to the statements of police and state attorney that the new outbreak of crime "must be stopped." Healy, probably fatally wounded, was taken to the People's hospital.

Centers Rout Majors In Three Skirmishes

Great Race Now Exists In Bowling League With Five Teams In Running for Title.

The Centers proved the sensations of the evening in the Herald Bowling League last night by trimming the Majors three out of four points thus paving the way for the Night Hawks to go back into a tie for first place again. The Majors took a three point lead by trouncing the Night Hawks the week previous but they were not allowed to rest in peace. The Centers hit 577 and only lost the first game by 95 pins and only lost the second by five. They took the third by fourteen. Sam Nelson was in fine form as his three string of 359 attests. His scores were 121, 115 and 123. Anderson and Thomson each pinned 538. Charlie Kebart was high for the match and the evening with 387.

AFTER THE PLUNGE

Among those prominent sportsmen and sportswomen who were in the Florida surf and sunshine is Helen Meany, above, who takes her daily dip in Breakers Beach at Palm Beach. Miss Meany, you know, is widely acclaimed as the greatest woman diver. She won Olympic honors in the low springboard diving event and last year was champion diver in both indoor and outdoor competition for women.

Local Sport Chatter

Somewhat of a mystery exists as to the inside dope on the dissolution of the Night Hawk's bowling camp. It is understood that Sasela, leading bowler in the league, and Orenstein quit because of an argument with "Sparky" Saidella. Orenstein was down in the pit setting up pins for his team's match last night.

Young Sasela, town champion, would give no reason for the trouble, simply stating that he was all done bowling, both in the league and for the town title as well. However, such a revolting statement is considered to be "fried on only one side" and no doubt a week or two more will find the storm clouds far away.

Sasela and Berthold of Rockville are scheduled to complete their home and home match with Kebart and Werlowsky over at Conran's tonight and no doubt Sasela will be on hand. The north end paid lead by 95 pins.

Bat Battalino, the new featherweight champion, has frail hands—or is it "the fine Italian hand."

A new record book lists the names of 22 Italian fighters. Among them is Eddie Shea. Another is Bushy Graham who fights in Hartford Thursday night. Well! Well!

The Chicago boxing fathers decided a couple of weeks ago that Leo Lomsky had beaten Jimmy Braddock and that the bout was not to draw as previously ruled. Maybe we'd better check up on the Revolution; we may all be British subjects!

Dave Miller, referee in the Lomski-Braddock fight, didn't add his points correctly, but he is not to be confused with Dave Barry another Chicago arbiter who was much too good at adding in the Dempsey-Tunney shindig. It begins to appear you can reliably depend upon either a long or a short count in Chicago.

MATCH HERE THURSDAY
With a nine pin lead the north end bowling team will tackle New Britain in a return match at Conran's alley Thursday night. The scores of the first half of the home and home match for total pinfall rolled at New Britain follow:

FOOTBALL TOO PROFESSIONAL DECLARES FORMER YALE STAR

Students Losing Interest and Remedy May Be Some New Game; Old Fight It Out Spirit Gone.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.
A. P. Sports Writer.
New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The fine "old" man of Yale football, super-hero of the days when Frank Hinkey, "Pudge" Heffelfinger, "Kid" Wallace and a host of other legendary figures roamed the playing fields, looks down from the hills of Connecticut and isn't at all pleased with what has happened to football. He is Frank B. Butterworth, "old" only in that he captained Yale Varsity of 1894.

He played some ragging years of football with Hinkey, fashioned for himself a place among the all-time fullbacks, and could kick with any man who ever laced on a football shoe. Today he roams his estate in the hills of Mt. Carmel, Conn., a country gentleman with a riding horse, polo ponies, donkey and dog, close enough to Yale to be the friend and confidant of another generation of pikin warriors, yet far enough away to be able to live in the rural surroundings he loves.

Despite the gray lines that trace through his straight black hair, he looks as though he still could play plenty of football for Yale or run the fast half mile as he used to. He is tall, broad-shouldered, very little above the 162 pounds he toted in those bygone Eli backfields. Two of his sons, Ben and Frank, followed in his cleat marks at Yale and Frank was a whale of a heavyweight fighting prospect.

"Football may have been roughing," he said, "but it was a game of players and not of plays in the old days. Professional spirit and direction dominates the game today. Students are losing interest in the game, some have to go to some new game, some blood brother of present day football, to rebuild the old sporting contests of the past.

"Those really interested in football used to come out to the big contests to see Heffelfinger battle his old friend from Princeton. Now it is the struggle of Zummke's underground pass against Dootoddy's wing system. It is a highly commercialized pastime with the individual view of the university competition for 'good dates' and big receipts to pay for expensive programs. This is the day of specialists and squads so big that there is not the need of developing all around ability in individuals. Coaches are too busy working out tactics. We had to be able to do everything in the old days because there was no one to rush in for one single play or bit of strategy. The old fight it out spirit is gone.

AMERICAN FIGHTERS DEFEAT FOREIGNERS

Win Three Out of Four Bout from German and Italian Boxers at Boston.

Boston, Feb. 4.—(AP)—American boxers captured three out of four of the final bouts from German and Italian teams in the International Amateur tournament at the Boston Garden.

With a recent trans-Atlantic trip behind them, the foreign visitors did not offer strong opposition in their first appearance in the United States last night. A crowd of 15,000 saw the bouts, which were three rounds each.

The foreign winner was Werther Arcelli of Italy, 147 pounds, who defeated Leonard Kugler of Germany by timely left jabbing. Herbert Becher, German lightweight champion, the outstanding foreigner, injured his hand in decisively outpointed Vic Lotli of Boston in his opening bout. He defaulted to Eddie Sullivan of Boston, who had won from Amilcare De Horatis of Italy in his semi-final.

The other two American victories were in the 160 pound and heavyweight divisions. Ring Larsen of Quincy, Massachusetts, middleweight champion, won from Oddone Piazza of Italy in a furious battle and Al Dean of Medford used superior height and reach to beat Severina Brugio, Italian heavyweight.

The American team, made up mostly of greater Boston men, had eight men and the foreign teams four apiece. The two Americans in each class fought a foreigner.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Emile Godard, youthful musher from The Pas, Man., held a ten minute lead as the seven entrants in the Ottawa International Dog Derby prepared for the second lap today.

A thirty mile lap was to be run today and again tomorrow the winner to be decided on the basis of total elapsed time. The race carries a gold cup to the winner.

The third and deciding game of a basketball series between two clubs that have grown to be real rivals is the treat to be scooped onto the plates of Manchester fans and fanettes this evening at the School Street Recreation Center. The Rec Girls will tackle the Royal Typewriter Girls of Hartford in the preliminary and dancing will follow the main encounter.

Branford and the Rec Five started their rivalry last season and it didn't help matters one iota when the Tanks blasted the Rec hoopers to smithereens down in the seashore city last December. To be sure the Rec did manage to even accounts with a 33 to 31 victory but this did not set their revenge. They craved a more convincing margin as proof of their superiority.

Whether or not this is attainable will be seen tonight in the old Rec gym. It can be taken for granted that a red hot battle will ensue unless half of the team catches pittaicosis or some other queer malady similar to that which crept into the New Haven St. Michael's camp on the eve of their game here resulting in a fave.

Branford has a good team, make no mistake about that. The Montellus twins, Carl and Alex, are a thorn in the side of any outfit and with Holmes and Clapp manipulating the guns the Tanks has found few obstacles over which they were unable to ride this season. It comes near being a miracle that the Rec team which was annihilated 48-10 by the Tanks in Branford was able to imbue itself with sufficient morale to conquer the Tanks in a return game.

Ray Marchnek, the Holyoke basketballer, will be on hand once more to play center in the place of Roy Norris who is on the injured list. Ray made a most favorable impression last week in his debut with the Manchesterites but the opposition wasn't so hot and some of the skeptics are desirous of watching him in action in a more acid test before passing final judgment. That he is a good player, they readily admit. The question is how good.

This country uses 3,000,000,000 pounds of soap a year. That isn't even counting the soft variety you hear.

RUTH'S DECLARATION NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—National League clubowners had a few chores to perform today before allowing the players to take over the baseball reigns for 1930. The league's spring meeting generally is devoted to adoption of the schedule for the coming season.

There was a possibility, that efforts would be made to settle one and for all the international dissension that has torn the Brooklyn club for several years. Suggestions were made that K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, might act as mediator in the long battle Wilbert Robinson, manager and S. W. McKeever a heavy stockholder. Robinson's contract as manager has expired and strictly speaking the Dodgers are without any pilot to guide them from the bench.

The eastern league met to adopt the subject but found itself unable to agree on some of the dates award. The schedule committee will meet in Springfield, Mass., on Thursday in an effort to iron out the difficulties.

Babe Ruth's threat to quit baseball unless he is given a three year contract at $85,000 annually gave baseball men something to talk about, but there was no disposition on the part of anyone to take the slugger's statement too seriously.

"PAPA BARKED AT ME!" SCREAMED LITTLE GLADYS

"See, Esmond, your hacking cough has frightened our little pledge of love. I warned you to keep to OLD GOLDS, the honey-smooth, queen-leaf cigarette."

"And right you are as always, my sweet. Come, Gladys, you shall have an ice cream soda water whilst I purchase a whole carton of OLD GOLDS from the tobacconist. Smoother and better, the treasure of them all, Papa shall never frighten you again... there's not a cough in a carload."

FASTEST GROWING CIGARETTE IN HISTORY...NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

THE BOOK SURVEY.

By BRUCE CATTON.

NEA Service Writer.

The romance of the old sailing ship has been hymned by writers innumerable. In all of these romances it is the tramp steamer that plays the villain; the tramp steamer that plugs along over the ocean lanes, unloved and unloved, driving the beautiful square-rigger to the ship's graveyard and banishing the old-time sailor, whose traditions and customs go back to the ancient Phoenicians, to the limbo of forgotten and outworn things.

"A Landlubber's Log" attacks the sea from a new angle. In this highly interesting and well-written book, Arthur Warner sings the praises of this villainous tramp steamer, ignoring the square-rigger of song and story; and he discloses that the tramp steamer is slowly but surely following a slipper to obscurity—killed, in its turn, by the modern conditions that it helped to bring about.

"A Landlubber's Log" is Mr. Warner's story of the experiences that befell him when he shipped from New York to Australia as seaman on a steamer. But it is rather more than a tale of the sea; for Mr. Warner jumped ship in New Zealand, tramped all across that country, worked on ranches and in mines, went to Australia and lived a hand-to-mouth existence there in a Salvation Army home and saw the view-land down under from the viewpoint of a homeless, penniless wanderer.

His book is intensely interesting; the more so for his revelation that the tramp steamer is going out of fashion. Regular steamship routes are inexorably killing it. A general opinion hence this free-lance cargo-carrier will seem a romantic and picturesque affair, and Mr. Warner proposes to call out attention to it while there is yet time.

"A Landlubber's Log" is published by Little, Brown and Co., and sells at $3 a copy.

Brutal and Shocking, but Always Interesting.

Jim Tully is a strange and compelling writer. He writes brutally about brutal things, compelling us to gaze down into the unlovely depths of society, parading grotesque and misshapen, that he has found there. His work may delight you; or it may shock and disgust you; but it will never, never bore you.

"Shadows of Men" is his latest. It is a more or less connected series of sketches of tramps and safe-crackers, dope-fiends, murderers, pick-pockets, jailers, detectives and others. It is written in Tully's usual style—short, biting sentences that sock you in the face, that leave you dazed and sometimes incredulous, but that hold your attention to the very end.

Tully has been over-rated as a writer. His blood-and-iron stuff seems, at times, rather spurious. There is more red blood in him than in a dozen run-of-mine novels. I suggest that you make it a point to read "Shadows of Men." You may like and you may not; either way, it will be good for you.

Doubleday-Doran will be glad to sell it to you for $2.50.

A Godsend to the Tribe of Amateur Radio Bugs.

The amateur radio bug—the chap

whose idea of heaven is a place where he can tinker endlessly with home-made radio set—ought to fall on "The A-B-C of Television" with shouts of glee.

This book, written by Raymond Francis Yates, should fill a long-felt want. It explains how you can build your own television set, to receive the television broadcasts that are now available. It contains innumerable diagrams to keep you from going wrong, together with a wealth of photographs, and it is written with a wealth of detail that makes the job as simple as a complicated affair of this kind can be made.

If you are one of the great tribe of radio amateurs, and if you have ever had a curiosity about this television business, I believe this book will be just what you have been looking for. It is published by the Norman W. Henley Co., and costs $3 a copy.

At Last! A New Method of Murdering People.

"The Room With The Iron Shutters," by Anthony Wynne, is that rarities among mystery stories—a New York with an entirely new twist to its plot.

Mr. Wynne has found a brand-new method of committing murder, a method so ingenious and baffling that you will take it to your heart at once—provided, of course, that you are one of those queer people like myself, a lover of murder mysteries.

When I was half way through with this book I feared the worst. The plot had reached a situation where the only possible solution seemed so utterly banal and unjustified bit of trickery. And then, suddenly, I found that Mr. Wynne had something up his sleeve. The last few chapters, which show just how a man who was seated alone in a locked room, with doors and windows securely fastened, was done to his death, have a kick that almost knocked me out of my chair. Hop on to this one, you mystery-lovers. It's a lulu.

The book is published by the J. B. Lippincott Co., and sells at $2.

A Practical Handbook on Newspaper Work.

The ordinary book on the technique of newspaper work tends to be long on theory and short on practice, as a teacher of journalism recently complained. It attempts to apply academic rules to the one business that makes its own rules as it goes along, and as a result is generally of no practical value.

"The Working Press," however, written by John H. Sorrells, editor of the Fort Worth Press, is something else again. This book was written in a newspaper office, punctuated by the clattering of linotype machines, the buzzing of telephones and the rumble of presses; and it is just about the best thing of its kind I have ever seen.

It consists of a series of memoranda which Mr. Sorrells, at one time and another, wrote for the guidance of his staff. For that very reason it is extremely valuable. You have no theories here; you have an editor telling his staff how to do their jobs. And since this editor is a good one, and knows how to express himself, you have a textbook that could hardly be improved on.

The book is published by the Ronald Press Co., and costs $2.

NEW CHURCH HOUSE NEARS COMPLETION

General Layout and Interior Plan Can Now Be Visualized—Fills Great Need.

A visit to the new Center Church House now in course of construction at the rear of the present edifice impresses one far more than can plans or sketches with the great need that the building will fulfill. Not until the casual investigator goes through the rooms now being plastered can he realize how sorely was this annex a necessity.

Work has progressed rapidly—much more so than it was believed possible during the winter months—and it will be but a matter of a few months and the church house will be ready for occupancy. It is not planned to put the building to full use, however, until September.

Harmonizing Exterior

A walk around the annex gives an idea of its size better than can be gained by a view from either the front or the side. Its exterior has shaped up so that the type of architecture stands out. It is of the early Colonial, somewhat of the Bulfinch design, and harmonizes exactly with the general appearance of the adjacent Municipal building.

Most of the Ninth district schools and the Memorial hospital bear the Bulfinch influence so that this most prominent of local churches harmonizes with the majority of the town's public buildings.

The main entrance to the church house is gained through either of three doors grouped together on the south facade just west of the present church building. An interior lobby opens upon a staircase leading to the second floor, and to the basement. To the left are cloak-rooms and children's class rooms. The lobby is so constructed that an entrance may be opened to a section contemplated as an addition in the future. To the right is a corridor leading to the general purpose rooms and the ladies parlors. A room and a ladies' parlor and the general purpose room which the Men's League will occupy.

Looking Ahead

The pastor's study is also located in this section to the rear of the proposed annex in the new church when that construction is attempted. Toilets and dressing rooms are also located nearby. The section being left to provide for the construction of the new church in future years will be walled in and used temporarily as a playground. An organ loft is also provided for so that a minimum of reconstruction will be necessary when further building is planned.

To the left of the main floor corridor are located more children's rooms and church school offices. All these rooms are provided with plenty of closet and storage space and all are extremely well lighted. Blackboards and cork boards for the general school work will be built in to each room.

Second Floor

The second floor is given over to intermediate and junior classes of the church school. Here also are rooms large enough to care for a rapidly increasing Sunday school group. The Junior room on the second floor, located about in the middle of the annex can easily seat 175. It can also be used for church meetings of various kinds. There are three different stairways to the second floor so that the children are well protected in case of fire or large crowds. These intermediate and junior class rooms are provided with separate studies for individual class instruction. The separate studies are walled in with glazed windows so that all the light possible reaches all corners. Clothes racks and dressing rooms are handy and roomy. A room for the use of the church choir is located on the second floor to the rear of the proposed organ loft.

Basement Rooms

The basement is given over largely to a banquet and entertainment hall and to the furnace rooms and toilets. The banquet hall is well planned and can easily take care of 500 diners. At the west end of the hall is a small stage so arranged that amiable local productions can be given. The banquet hall is a large kitchen with a minimum of interference of vision towards the stage results. Directly to the rear of the banquet hall is a large kitchen with a minimum of interference with the entrance to the hall. Here practically all of the church social functions will take place. It is large enough to accommodate all kinds of activities and yet small enough to be cozy.

The boiler room is well located to distribute heat to all sections of the new building and is low enough in the ground to assure pressure. The toilets and the men's and women's dressing rooms are handy to the main staircase.

The Grounds

Outside the building plenty of room is available for either lawn or automobile parking purposes. The annex is so constructed that though located in the center of the town the church's outdoor affairs can be conducted with a considerable amount of privacy.

No plans have yet been evolved for furnishing the annex. The women of the church have guaranteed to equip their rooms and it is expected that some of the interior will be furnished through private subscription. A committee will be named within a few weeks to plan for the furnishings. Aside from the matter of furnishings the cost of the new church house is guaranteed through pledges.

REC SWIMMING TEAM FOR GIRLS PLANNED

The Recreation Center is organizing a girls' swimming team for both the juniors and seniors. The first meet is expected to be with the Hartford Y. W. C. A. within a short time and other meets will also be arranged for both here and away.

The senior girls who are expected to compete are: Arleen McHale, Anne Scranton, Viola Shearer, Marion Crawshaw, Etta Cluelow, Martha Blatter, Eugene Bycholsky, Mary Arson and Stella Arson who won the town championship last season. All members of the Rec who are good swimmers and divers are eligible for this team and the first practice will be held on Wednesday evening from 9 to 10 p. m. The junior girls also will have a practice at the Rec pool. This will be later and all those expected to compete will be notified as to the time and date. At the first practice the turns racing dives and regular dives will be shown and taught by Coaches Gertrude E. Fenerty and Frank C. Busch.

AVIATOR RISKS LIFE TO SAVE HIS PLANE

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Major General Wendell C. Neville, commandant of the Marine corps, today sent a letter of commendation to First Lieutenant Clayton C. Jerome, who risked his life to land a plane with a broken control stick.

While practicing aerial acrobatics at the naval air station, San Diego, California, the control stick of Lieutenant Jerome's plane broke off at the socket. Rather than abandon the plane in a parachute, Jerome repaired the broken stick with his belt, necktie and handkerchief, landing the plane without damage.

Jerome, who is 29 years old, was born at Hutchinson, Kansas. Following graduation from the Naval Academy, he was appointed second lieutenant in the Marine corps, June 3, 1922. He received air instruction at the naval air station, Pensacola, Florida. He served with Marine corps forces in China for more than a year before being sent to duty in San Diego. He was appointed first lieutenant April 8, 1927. His home is at Burrton, Kansas.

POLICE COURT

The case of Rocco Muscillo, 17 years old, charged with vagrancy was again continued by Judge Raymond A. Johnson in the Manchester police court this morning, this time for a period of three months. The boy was placed in the charge of the probation officer, Muscillo, for some reason is not on the best of terms with his father and the younger man claims that his father drove him from home. He claims that he is unable to get work. Both the father and the mother work. Prosecuting Attorney Charles R. Hathaway blamed the parents and maintained that they should be compelled to support their son.

After the hearing a week ago Probation Officer Edward C. Elliott, Jr., fitted the boy out with suitable clothing and shoes and took him to the town farm where he was cared for until yesterday when the boy was taken home. Judge Johnson gave the father, Antonio Muscillo, to understand that he must support the son until he is able to secure work.

CLOSE BROKER'S OFFICE

Winsted, Conn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The brokerage firm of John J. Cody was closed today under an injunction issued by the Superior Court. The complaint alleges that Cody, who was injured in an auto accident yesterday, is insolvent.

The State Banking Department has been conducting an examination of his books since last week. The injunction was granted last Friday and served yesterday.

The amount of the shortage is not known. A permanent injunction will be sought in court in April restraining the firm from again doing business. It is understood that the state banking department began its investigation upon the complaint of a foreigner who carried a small account with Cody.

Cody was returning from New York yesterday when his car ran off the road in the town of Canton. He was taken to the Litchfield county hospital.

YOU NEVER CAN TELL

New York—The death of Pauline Fopplitz, 80-year-old Brooklynite, brings up the controversy—"What good did she get out of it?" and "It gave her old age independence." She lived in an old broken-down house, and did all of her own work. After she died more than $500,000 was found in her rooms in bonds, mortgages, and bank accounts.

Lucky Mother

"My success with Jean isn't just luck," says Mrs. V. L. Lund, 286 Lo-retto St., Totterville, L. I. "It is due to a plan."

"She has escaped the ill-effects of colds and upsets because, at the first sign of a cold, of bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness, I open her bowels with California Fig Syrup. She loves its taste and I like its gentle, thorough action."

Mothers by thousands praise California Fig Syrup. For fifty years physicians have endorsed this pure vegetable product. It tones and strengthens stomach and bowels; stimulates appetite; encourages digestion and assimilation. Its use helps make sallow, listless children rosy and energetic.

Look for the name California when buying. That marks the genuine; safe for infants, effective for children in their teens.—Adv.

OPENING STOCKS

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Stock Market, which turned heavy yesterday afternoon with their prices, ran into further selling at the opening of today's market.

A. M. Byers dropped 1 1/2 points and initial declines of a point or so were registered by U. S. Steel, Common, International Telephone, Sears Roebuck and American Sugar Refining, American Type Founders opened 2 points higher.

Strong buying support came into the market after the first flurry of selling had subsided. U. S. Steel, Common, International Telephone and A. M. Byers and several other issues made up their initial declines, and before the end of the first half hour a rather long list of stocks were selling to 2 points higher.

A few soft spots were scattered throughout the list. Union Pacific, National Biscuit (Old) and Johns Manville all selling 2 points below yesterday's finishing quotations. American Telephone falling back 1-2, before it met effective buying support.

Overnight news was largely constructive in character. Stock Exchange member loans dropped $4,000,000 during January and the monthly bulletin of the New York Federal Reserve bank reported that member indebtedness was at the smallest total in two years. The weekly condition statement of reporting Federal Reserve member banks showed a drop of $47,000,000 in loans on securities collateral, but the total of $7,687,000,000 was still $221,000,000 above the total on the same date a year ago.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables unchanged at $4.86 3/8. Foreign cables indicated that there was a strong possibility of the German Reichsbank reducing its rediscount rate from 6 1/2 to 6 per cent today.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH CAMERON, typist in a New York publishing house, marries her employer, ARTHUR KNIGHT. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 18, in Paris, and a son, JUNIOR, 16, at school.

A honeymoon in Bermuda is interrupted by a cablegram that Tony is on her way to America. Later she tells Judith she must leave the house. Knight overhears and compels Tony to apologize.

ANDY CRAIG, a young man Knight has helped through college, calls on Tony. Craig is to be employed by the legal department of the publishing house. One evening when Tony refuses to accompany him to a dog show Judith goes, Tony, alone with her father, tells him spitefully it is Judith whom Craig comes to see. Knight does this angrily.

Tony surprises Judith by asking her to lunch in town with her next day. Judith keeps the appointment and is met by Andy Craig, who explains to Tony that he has gone to meet her. The two are together when Tony arrives half an hour late with her father. She is artful enough to make Judith's and Craig's protests sound incriminating. After Knight has gone Judith goes to his office to explain. She is told by his secretary he cannot see her.

There is a reconciliation after Knight arrives home. He tells Judith they are to entertain a group of his business associates next week at a theater party. Judith buys a beautiful gown for the occasion. Arthur sees her in it and praises her beauty. Tony overhears and next day Judith finds the dress riddled by his spiteful eyes.

The frock is duplicated and the theater party proves a success. When Judith and Arthur reach home after 3 a. m. a call comes that a New York police station charged with reckless driving. Knight brings his daughter home and Tony pours out her wrath upon Judith.

The girl is sullen and rebellious for two days. She and her father quarrel. Affairs reach such a state that Judith appeals to Andy Craig. Knight sees the pair together but later Judith denies to her husband that she spent the afternoon in town.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

The minute after she had spoken Judith felt uneasy. She thought (or was it imagination?) that Arthur's eyes, meeting hers in one swift instant, held reproach.

Silence came between them. Knight's gaze returned to his newspaper and Judith watched him covertly as she lay back among the divan's pillows.

"Arthur," she said presently, "tell me about today at the office. Did you get the Turner contract signed?"

"Not yet," came the answer. Arthur Knight was no longer the newspaper man she spoke of as a man engrossed in important matters. He continued reading. Throughout the rest of that evening Knight's part in the conversation was nothing more than terse answering of questions.

Judith was uncomfortable. An open magazine lay in her lap. She looked down at it from time to time but the rows of type might as well have been invisible. Arthur had always reserved the hours following dinner for carefree, relaxed discussion of the day's events. He liked to hear how his wife had been spending the day, details of the household affairs which she had a way of turning into amusing anecdotes. He had confided plans and details of many a business venture, and because she had spent those months in the office at the big firm, Judith, with an understanding audience.

These hours together had seemed the best part of the day to Judith ever since coming to her new home. Could Arthur be changed?

Judith darted another glance toward the newspaper. That was all she could see of her husband—just a bit of dark hair protruding above the top of the evening newspaper.

No, she didn't think he could know about her chat with Andrew and she didn't think he could object if he did know. Just the same Judith felt guilty. The pink in her cheeks (which she was sure was hers) was agitatedly showing this plainly.

"But it wasn't a lie—really!" she reassured herself. True, she had been at home all afternoon she returned from her luncheon engagement with Andy Craig. She tried repeatedly to convince herself that she had not been guilty of falsehood. Of course, after her plans worked out, she could tell Arthur the whole story. If she said anything now about Tony and Andy she was afraid Arthur would spoil it all.

She was very sure her plans were bound for success. Arthur's aloofness and his strange manner to-night were the first flush of excitement. Judith turned to the radio for entertainment, found that the merry quips of Broadway entertainers and mellow music of old songs were equally horrid. After nearly an hour of this she arose.

"I'm going upstairs, Arthur," she said. "Will you be coming soon?"

After while.

It was after a considerable while that Arthur Knight came beside the paper he had been reading. The fire in the grate was dying lower. Its soft blaze and the glow of the parchment-shaded lamp behind him were the room's only illumination.

For several minutes Knight watched the flames in the fireplace. Then he leaned back in his chair, closed his eyes and sat perfectly quiet. When his eyelids lifted the man's face was a perfect mask for his emotions.

He arose like a man thoroughly tired and went up the stairway. In the morning Judith's fears were all forgotten. She and Arthur breakfasted together. He seemed, if anything, a little more affectionate than usual as he kissed her goodby and departed for his day.

He hummed a half-remembered tune happily as she went about the morning's routine. Great things were expected to take place this day. Andy Craig had promised to use his influence to bring Tony to reason and Judith relied implicitly upon Andy.

As she had for the past three days, Tony Knight took her breakfast and luncheon in her own room. Harriet carried the tray of covered dishes and dainty china up the stairway and they came down empty.

"Miss Tony seems to be feeling better today, ma'am," the maid said. "Yes, I think she'll be much better soon," Judith said.

Even without Andy's connivance Judith was certain that Arthur Knight's rebellious young daughter would be tiring soon of her self-imposed seclusion and would seek companionship. Three days without her usual diversions must have been very trying to Tony.

At noon there came a telephone message for Judith.

"Hello," she answered eagerly. "This is Mrs. Knight."

"Judith? It's Andy. Well—I can't report much luck."

"What's happened?"

"Why, I telephoned half an hour ago. Tried to get Tony to promise to go somewhere with me tonight. Her answer wasn't exactly complimentary."

"But you know—"

"Yes, I know! Anyhow I told her I'd be around this evening about eight o'clock and expected her to change her mind."

"Yes? Guess you mean maybe she will. Anyhow I'll drop in for a little while this evening."

"I'm sure she'll see you," Judith told him. "Thanks a lot for calling, though."

"Oh, don't mention it! How's the housekeeping?"

"Fine," the girl laughed. "Good-by, Andy."

Without any real reason to explain the fact, Judith felt cheered. The world was brighter—yes, seven times brighter!—when at four o'clock Arthur Knight arrived home.

Judith, finding the big house quiet and lonely, had curled up on a leather footstool before the living room fireplace. Her back was toward the hallway entrance of the house. Sandy, who had become almost a constant companion, was before her, his shaggy little head resting in her lap, eyes lifted anxiously to the girl's.

Judith stroked the dog's head, thoughtfully. She did not hear her husband enter the room, and his voice startled her.

"Hello!"

"Oh—why, Arthur! You're early!"

Sandy was ignominiously disregarded. Judith sprang to her feet and met Knight in the middle of the room. He was smiling and holding toward her a large round ivory box tied with violet ribbons.

"Yes, I doctored out a little ahead of schedule this afternoon. Here, thought you might like some posies."

"Oh, Arthur!"

Flowers for her. Flowers from her husband! Sandy, the dog, came nosing up to his mistress, doubtless wondering what in the world made her so excited and her cheeks pink, and why her eyes were suddenly so glamorous and stary since this man had come.

The violet ribbons dropped from the box. The lid came off and Judith lifted away the folds of tissue paper. From their sheltered depths she drew a corsage of violets.

"Arthur, they're beautiful. Oh, it was dear of you to bring them!"

"Like them, do you?"

"I love them, Arthur. They're just like—do you remember that other bouquet?"

"He nodded."

Then suddenly, still holding her bouquet of fragrant blossoms, Judith Knight sought refuge in her husband's arms, and hid her head on his tweed shoulder.

"But, darling, you mustn't! Why—why—"

The girl raised her head. Tears still lingered in her eyes but she was smiling and she dabbed at the dewy lashes with a handkerchief.

"It's just because I'm happy, Arthur!"

"Knight's arm went around her again, tender but also strong and comforting. Then he kissed her and Judith laughed uncertainly and admitted she was acting like a silly child and went to put the violets in water to keep them fresh.

When she returned she found Arthur Knight standing with his back toward her, gazing out one of the large windows.

She went up to him and put both hands on his shoulders. Knight turned.

"Judith," he said, "I'm afraid we haven't given you very much pleasure in this house."

"Please don't say that!"

"No," he continued, shaking his head, "we might as well face the truth. I'm beginning to feel old. Judith, never realized it before."

She laughed at him.

"All right then, Mr. Knight. I'm not grateful."

He refused to be cajoled out of his mood.

"There's one thing I want you to promise me," he went on, eyeing her seriously. "You've got to promise, Judith."

"What is it?"

"I want you to promise that if there's ever anyone else—a younger man—you care about, you'll tell me."

The girl's face had paled. For an instant she hesitated. Then—

"I promise," she said solemnly. "I promise, but there'll never be anyone else."

The pause that followed seemed awkward. Sandy ended it. Evidently the dog concluded he had been ignored by these two persons quit long enough. He had jumped upon a chair beside Judith and now began to whimper pitiously.

"Look, Arthur," the girl said, smiling through misted eyes, "your rival is jealous!"

She tilted the dog's head and Sandy's walls subsided.

"Like the little beggar, don't you?" Knight asked, amused as he watched them.

"Sandy's a real friend."

Amiability and peace had descended upon the household. It remained for several hours. Arthur Knight chatted of the office and affairs in the city until it was time to dress. Judith reviewed her day, not neglecting to add that Tony had eaten heartily and appeared to be in improved spirits.

Very happily that evening Judith Knight dressed for dinner. She selected a printed chiffon of blue and lavender with bits of velvet ribbon as trimming. When the violets were pinned to her bodice their rich purple blended beautifully with the gown. She wore blue pumps, the shade of the ribbon, and a crystal necklace. When she surveyed herself in the mirror the costume was as it should be but the radiance of her face was even more striking.

She wanted to appear lovely this evening. Judith touched Arthur Knight's flowers with tender fingers.

All through dinner the air of reconciliation and harmony prevailed. The dinner was a good one. Arthur Knight did it justly right. It was shortly after eight o'clock when Knight and his attractive young wife were seated in the living room that Harriet appeared, announcing a visitor.

"Mr. Crane, ma'am," she said. (To Be Continued)

Wash prunes well through several waters. Let stand overnight in cold water to cover. Drain and plump but not broken. Drain and measure juice. There should be two cups. Add sugar and bring to boiling point. Remove from fire and stir in gelatin softened in 4 tablespoons cold water. Stir until dissolved. When cold, dip each prune with stone removed in gelatin and place around a ring mold in rows. When prunes are firm to the touch, add jelly and let stand in cold place until firm and chilled. Turn out on a large plate and fill center with cream whipped until firm, sweetened with powdered sugar and flavored with vanilla. Garnish with cherries and thin narrow strips of citron.

The WOMAN'S DAY

He was a dapper old gentleman, sprightly and alert, with a well-cared for skin that indicated frequent massage, and possibly indulgence in all the extras and the barber suggests.

His white hair was sparsely represented on his pink pate, but it showed meticulous arrangement to get as nearly as possible the effect of a general coverage.

Though his hands were lined and heavily veined, the finger tips bespoke a recent session with the manicurist. He appeared at a dancing school in the afternoon, and it occurred to me that he might be calling to take home a favorite grandchild—but no.

"He has," one of the dancing instructors told me, "just paid for $150 worth of dancing instruction for himself. He is over 80, and keeps himself agile by dancing every day."

"His wife has not dancing in 20 years—she is an old lady addicted to shawls and comfort—but he has been coming here for years. Naturally, he is not in demand with the youngsters, so he dances half an hour every day here with an instructor—and he always in a young, pretty one."

"You might not believe it," she said, "but he is a marvelous dancer, and it is no chore at all to fox-trot with him for 30 minutes. We all are very fond of him here, and the way he keeps limber and agile, is just an inspiration to us all."

There were, she told me, many men who dropped in regularly to dance with the youngsters, merely as a matter of exercise and keeping young, rather than perfecting their steps.

Watching the Mode

If we are going completely and utterly Victorian, I suppose we might just as well go all the way. So be prepared for this bit of fashion information: The newest watches are worn in the manner of our grandmothers, attached to a jeweled brooch, pinned to the shoulder.

The belle of the nineties wore her gold watch, which was half an inch thick and almost as big as a saucer, from a substantial gold pin, which was inevitably a fleur-de-lis motif.

But watches are one thing that do not grow bigger and better, so there is no danger that the revival of the fashion is going to be as terrible as memory paints the picture.

Some of the new watches measure only about a third of an inch across the dial, and the numerals are arranged so that they appear to be upside down, but they are much handier to read as you look down on them.

Naturally they are jeweled platinum affairs, delicately wrought so that they are really ornamental—and no woman is going to mind it at all if her best beau buys her one.

Dr. Olga Stastny urges the ladies to put their feet upon the desks, saying it's good for the ankles. Now, if some posture could only be devised for the heads.

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

EASY DIGESTIBILITY ESSENTIAL IN CHOOSING INVALID'S DIET

By DR. MORRIS FISEBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The invalid's diet is usually considered to be one which will place a minimum amount of burden on the organs of digestion and provide material for taking care of the wastage due to the ordinary physical activities as well as those due to disease.

Of peculiar importance to the invalid is the provision of all of the necessary food substances in rather concentrated form, since it is not possible for the invalid to handle a good deal of bulk of roughage. Hence, Doctor R. H. A. Plimmer suggests particularly a "white diet," consisting of white meat, white fish, served with white creamed sauces, white cereals in puddings and gruels.

In many cases of invalidism, fruit and vegetables must be limited because they are likely to cause too much activity in the bowel associated with flatulence and indigestion.

A "square meal" is one which supplies all of the vitamins and correct amounts of proteins, carbohydrates and fats. Vitamins A and D can be had particularly from cod liver oil, fish roe, egg yolk and butter; vitamin B from yeast, peas, beans and nuts, liver, heart and brain tissue; vitamin C from oranges, lemons, grapefruit, tangerine, ripened tomatoes, from the green vegetables and other fruits.

The best form of protein for satisfactory growth include lean meats, fish, cheese, milk and eggs. Dried beans and lentils contain much protein as lean beef. The carbohydrates are to be had from sugars and starches, and the fats are represented in the oils, butter and fats of meats.

The invalid diet must contain some of all of these things, selected particularly with a view to easy digestibility.

YOUR CHILDREN

Changed living conditions, crowded cities, high rents—resulting in smaller living quarters—are reacting on the children in a way to which we are not giving much attention. Namely, sleep.

The children are being decidedly interfered with in regard to their regular sleeping hours.

Now I don't mean the noise of an apartment house, exactly, nor the duplex, nor the half house, nor the house with a party-wall through which we can hear our neighbor's radios and phonographs and pianos.

Noise seems to be part of life today, or tonight, as you will. Most children can and do establish a sort of immunity to it in time that permits them to slumber on peacefully through six jazz orchestras at once.

Of course, there is the occasional child who never can overcome his sensitiveness to noise and who cannot go to sleep unless he has absolute quiet. Such a child certainly should be permitted to live in a quiet community. But for the most part, children after a certain age could sleep in a boiler factory after they got used to it.

Improvised Bedroom

The serious side of the question is really lack of room. Too many children have to sleep on the occasional left-down bed and cannot retire until the family has cleared out or the company has gone.

I know one pair of parents who put their children to sleep in the twin beds in their own bedroom, and later, when the company has gone (about every other evening there are people in to play bridge), the children are moved into their own bed that folds up in the wall in the living room—then they finish the night there.

As there is usually a certain amount of confusion after a party, clearing tables, cigaret trays, and sundry out of the way, turning off lamps and carrying out dishes, the children are usually too wide awake to go to sleep again for a long time. Often they eat up the little cakes that are left. The air is thick with smoke that can't be cleared away for an hour or two, even with all windows up.

Well—it's all wrong! The young parents of these two children could do better than that.

Sometimes a high-school girl is paid to take them to a movie to get them out of the way. Sometimes the children stay up with the company. The guests get tired of hearing the parents say, "You'd better go to bed, Buddy! Go on, Dick! Be good boys now and run along." The boys don't go until they feel like it. They get to sleep at ten or eleven instead of eight o'clock.

Regular Living Essential

All children must live regularly to keep well and grow up into sturdy, normally-well people. Not some days, but all days.

Regularity of sleeping, regularity of eating, regularity of personal habits, regularity of exercise—these are the secrets of health. And children have a right to them.

If living quarters must be crowded, give the children the private, quiet airy bedroom. Parents can stand the bit-and-miss comfort, or discomforts, of the versatile living room better than the children can. Another thing for which I will probably get myself disliked; I think during certain years when the children are getting their start, they don't need to go to nor give a party every night. Life is a serious business and little children are the most serious part of it all.

OVERCOMES HANDICAP.

London.—An instance of great courage is shown in the success of Earnshaw Greenwood, artist who has recently risen to fame. Once, before he was on the threshold of recognition, but was stricken with paralysis in the right arm and leg. Undaunted, he taught to use his left hand in painting. His pictures are prized highly in England.

BANS PUBLICITY.

Moscow.—Publicity agents for actors have slim pickings in Soviet Russia just now. The government, adding another to the list of things they are placing bans on, has decreed that no soviet paper will be permitted to refer to any person as "talented," "famous" or "the world's greatest."

HOW DO YOU RATE?

London.—If your handwriting is legible, you've been destined to be honest and agreeable. That's the assertion of Justice Eye, according to an English magazine. It follows that poor writers are destined to be disagreeable and dishonest, but Mr. Eye has not as yet made the latter assertion.

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use Lux Toilet Soap

"FEW PEOPLE can resist the spell of smooth lovely skin," says James Cruze, prominent Hollywood director—and sums up the experience of 45 leading directors.

"The close-up is the final test of a star's popularity," he goes on to say, "since practically no make-up is possible."

"Only a perfect skin, exquisitely smooth and fine, can stand the blazing lights."

Never was this more true than since the talkies, with their hundreds of close-ups, "arrived." Unless a girl has the smoothest, the most exquisite skin, she can scarcely hope to go far.

It is because lovely smooth skin is so vital to the screen stars that 511 of the 521 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, use Lux Toilet Soap. It was at their request that all the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms.

The stage stars, famous in Broadway successes, have also been using Lux Toilet Soap for a long time—and never were they so grateful to its gentle care of their skin as since so many of them have been playing in the talking and singing pictures. In the European capitals, too, the screen stars have adopted this soap—so velvet-smooth does it keep the skin!

And you can keep your skin lovely, too, by using this delicately fragrant white soap! Get several cakes today.

UNG GOK GIN FIGHTS ORDER BANNING HIM

Government Claims He's Here Illegally and Gin Says He Didn't Get Fair Trial.

Ung Gok Gin, who at one time was one-half of the Chinese population of Manchester and is at present, one-third—Willie Ong and Freddie Kwan being the other two-thirds—is fighting the deportation order made by United States Commissioner Charles J. McLaughlin at a hearing in the Federal building on December 2 of last year.

Ung Gok Gin, who was a helper for Willie Ong at his Birch street laundry, was arrested on April 26 last, by Federal Inspector John A. Carney of Boston. He was taken to Hartford and held as being in this country on illegal entry, in violation of the immigration laws. It was on this charge that he was ordered deported.

However, Ung Gok Gin's council, Attorney H. Wadsworth Sullivan of Boston and Attorney James A. Curry maintain that their client was victim of an unfair trial, that at that time the government should have set up proof of the man's illegal residence here, rather than require the defendant to prove his right to existence in this country.

Briefs were filed on the case and Judge Warren B. Burrows is expected to decide on the admission of Gin to bail, which he refused yesterday. Assistant United States District Attorney George S. Cohen is representing the government in the case.

NORTH END CHURCH HOST TO TEACHERS

The menu will include roast pork, baked potatoes, mashed turnips, cabbage salad, pickles, rolls, pie, cheese and coffee. The committee will be assisted by Mrs. John M. Williams, Miss Mary Palmer, Mrs. Alfred Hayes and Mrs. Alice Virginia.

The speaker of the evening will be Rev. L. H. Dorchester, pastor of the First Methodist church, Hartford, whose subject will be "Men and Women in the Making." Mr. Dorchester will largely repeat his message and charge to the faculty of his own church school given at the recent consecration service. There will be special musical numbers.

HOLD FIVE SUSPECTS

Stamford, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The robbery of the Woodway Gas Station here on Nov. 1 last, when Anthony Yace, proprietor, was relieved of $100 and taken for a ride of several miles before being dumped out on a lonely road and the robbery of $90 at the Miammus Greenwich, gas station on Nov. 8, last, when Harold Bush, attendant was taken to the outskirts of White Plains and thrown from the bandits' car, are cleared up, Stamford police allege, by the arrest in New York of five men. Four of the five are now awaiting sentence in New York, having been found guilty of ten holdups, there.

The five are: Frank Shaffer, 49, Robert Deichler, 37, Edward Laponi, 35, Oscar Johnson, alias Hank Larsen, 53 all of New York and Richard P. Williams, 39, formerly of Stamford. The latter was arrested in St. Louis, for the New York police. The first four are awaiting sentence in New York.

Williams was identified by Bush as the driver of the car which the bandits used in the Miammus holdup and Shaffer by Yace. In Laponi's effects a pocketbook belonging to Yace was found.

DOCTORS AND NURSES MUST BE REGISTERED

County Health Officer Will Order Prosecutions of All Who Fail to Comply.

Physicians, surgeons, registered nurses and others in Manchester who have neglected to register with the State Department of Health as required by law will be prosecuted by the Hartford County Health officer according to a statement issued Sunday night by Stanley H. Osborne, Health Commissioner.

Many of those who practice the healing arts who come under the provisions of the statute have already done so, but there are many who have failed to comply with the State requirements. The time limit for registration expired on Jan. 31 and the indications point to a few days of grace before the names will be given to the county officers for prosecution.

Chapter 120 of the Public Acts of 1919 as amended by Section 10 of Chapter 317 of the Public Acts of 1929 provides that all persons licensed to practice the healing arts shall, annually, during the month of January, register with the State Department of Health upon payment of a fee of $2.00 on blanks provided by the department, giving address and other information as the department may desire.

A fine is provided for any persons violating the provisions of these acts and the health officer of the county within which such violation occurs shall prosecute therefor.

LITTLE HAROLD BACH STILL UNCONSCIOUS

Today's Hospital Report is Optimistic, However—Asks for His Daddy This Morning.

The condition of Harold Bach, 11 years old coasting accident victim, still remains serious at the Memorial hospital but today's report was the most optimistic since the boy was admitted a week ago last Friday. Harold has partially regained consciousness and at times recognizes his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Holger Bach of 324 Center street. At times he lapses back to coma again. This morning he roused enough to ask for his daddy. Several X-ray pictures have been taken of the boy's scalp wound but there is no indication whatsoever of a fracture of the skull, yet the child's brain seems seriously injured.

REDS TO STANDARDIZE CLOTHING OF WOMEN

Moscow, Feb. 4.—(AP)—With an eye to establish complete equality among its citizenry and of hastening the dawn of pure Communism the Soviet government is now considering adoption of standardized m-w-priced dresses and shoes for the masses as well as a uniform type of houses, furniture, beds and broken standard forms of food.

Under this system all members of Russian society will be reduced to a common level and there will be no ground for anyone to complain that his neighbor is better clothed, housed or fed than himself.

Under the system there obviously will be no place for women who seek style and distinction in their clothes. Already there is a movement afoot to abolish feminine dress goods by the yard and to substitute simple standardized costumes for women.

NEW DIVING BELL TEST

Key West, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Submarine S-4 and salvage ship Falcon headed for a point near Smith's Shoals, 16 miles from here today to begin the second phase in a series of safety tests to determine the uses of diving bells in submarine rescue and salvage operations.

Lieut. Commander Palmer H. Dunbar said he expected the unit to reach Smith's Shoals in time to start experimental work late in the day.

The Falcon and the S-4 have been in port here since Friday night completing arrangements for work with a bell designed by a New London, Conn. boat company. This bell is of the enclosed type and members of the S-4 crew will attempt to draw it under the submarine, seat it over a hatch of the submarine and enter it. It is designed so that its own buoyancy will raise it to the surface of the water.

The first phase of the series of tests conducted last week with the O'Rourke bell was considerably successful.

Generally creates interest.

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history etic, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it.

CORRECTIONS

(1) The man at the left is holding the field glasses backwards; in order to bring the horses nearer, the larger end should be away from his eyes. (2) Five furlongs is five-eighths of a mile instead of a half mile. (3) The girl is missing from the saddle on the horse. (4) The figure 9, on the horse, is backwards. (5) The scrambled word is PRINCIPAL.

CATNIP LURES LIONS.

Calcutta.—Catnip is being used by hunters to lure lions, leopards and tigers to a position where they can be killed. This catnip, an extract of the original plant which so attracts cats, is placed in an advantageous position so that the hunters will be concealed when the animals being hunted approach. The beasts' scent leads them to the catnip odor and they are then shot by the hunters.

OPEN FORUM

"MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING"

Editor, The Herald: Although very much opposed to the airings of very private affairs, carried on through the medium of the press, I am forced, in justice to myself, to answer certain allegations made by Mr. Clough in this case of "Much ado about nothing."

First, I wish the public to know that the article published in your issue of January 30, did not emanate from me. If Mr. Clough doubts the veracity of my statement, he is at liberty to call the editor of The Herald.

True enough, Mr. Clough has been trying for the past six months to make a financial adjustment, but only under certain conditions set forth by him. Underneath all Mr. Clough's endeavors and attempts at settlements has been his desire to shield and protect "the other woman."

To quote from Mr. Clough's first letter, reference to which is made in Saturday's Herald, "I will make a fair estimate of what you think I owe you, so that I can come to some settlement." Upon receipt of the estimate sent him by me, which statement I received from the last place of employment, he made the following: "I offer you one in property, and then he goes on to say, providing that you take no legal action of any kind."

A letter of a later date says, "You imply that you may take legal action in regard to— We are both in the same boat, and if you sink the craft to get even with— I go down with her, unless I save myself at her expense, which is unthinkable. If according to the accepted conventions we have sinned together, it is only right we should suffer together. I intend to share the punishment with— as I have the pleasure." In another of a yet later date, answering my request for a settlement, he says, "You may have all when you get a divorce." The following coupon was affixed, "This offer is not good if you wait longer than six months before starting action."

When I notified him through my attorney that I did not have any intentions of giving him a divorce, he refused to make any adjustment, hence the serving of the writ of attachment.

The stand I have taken and the method I have been forced to use in order to get a square deal, would not perhaps have been necessary had there been no other woman in the case.

AUTOS CRASH, THEN ONE JUMPS INTO VERANDA

Come Together at Main and Henry Streets Damaging Each Other and Ferguson House.

A Pontiac coupe owned and driven by Anthony Kuzis of 405 North Main street and a Dodge sedan owned and driven by Albert Worden, Bon Ami employee, crashed at Main and Henry streets at seven o'clock last night. The impact drove Worden's car off the road into the veranda of Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson's home. The two automobiles had damaged bumpers and bent fenders but none of the occupants were injured. A hole, two feet square was broken through the veranda woodwork of the Ferguson home. The drivers agreed to settle their car damages among themselves and both guaranteed to pay for the repairs to the veranda and replacing of damaged shrubbery.
