

SENATOR DILL JOINS ATTACK ON HUGHES

Washington Democrat Says Nominee Represents Big Business; His Economic Views Caused His Defeat.

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Opponents of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States undertook a determined drive against his confirmation in the Senate today. Leaders were apprehensive of getting a vote before night.

Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, picked up the attack at the outset today. Speaking for more than an hour against the economic views of the nominee which he assailed as dangerous to the "common people," Dill's conclusion was awaited by several other anxious to speak against Hughes.

Senators Norris, Nebraska, and Borah, of Idaho, of the western Republican Independents, who launched the surprise offensive against the former secretary of state and Supreme Court justice, were encouraged by the movement against Hughes but they maintained they would make no effort to forestall a final vote.

Will Be Confirmed
Despite the criticism of Hughes voiced yesterday by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, the Democratic leaders indicated there would be a majority on their side for confirmation. Republican leaders were busy sizing up their votes and announcing a "decisive majority" was in prospect whenever a vote could be obtained.

Senator Dill directed his attack upon the views of Hughes as expressed in his appeals before the Supreme Court. He also contended that the American people had rejected Hughes in 1916 for the presidency because of his economic views.

As the discussion on the nomination continued the spectators' galleries filled almost to capacity.

Appealing to those who he said believe in the superiority of human rights over property rights, Dill said:

"It seems to me that those who claim to fight on the side of the common people cannot justify voting to add to this great tribunal a man who is the embodiment of those who have great wealth and want more."

During a passage with Senator Shortridge, Republican, Calif., the Washington Senator observed that "the people who voted to seat Shortridge voted against Mr. Hughes." "That has no bearing whatever on the qualification of Mr. Hughes," replied the Californian.

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, joined in the attack against the confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as Chief Justice of the United States today as debate on the nomination was resumed in the Senate.

Senator Dill called attention to the birthday of Abraham Lincoln and added "what a coincidence that the Senate should spend the birthday of the greatest champion of human rights since Jesus Christ to lay aside in consideration of the greatest champion of property rights as a nominee for chief justice of the United States."

"Masses of our people are finding it difficult to earn a livelihood and to lay aside a little for old age," continued the Washington Senator. "The views of Mr. Hughes on economic questions are just as important as his legal ability. The court is building up a body of law, not enacted by Congress, going into the life of the people and permitting the corporations to pick the pockets of the man on the street."

Living Costs
"The increase in the cost of living is traceable to the economic theories that have been adopted as the law of the land. Street car fares, gas rates, the cost of telephone service all are affected by the valuations fixed by the court and never intended by Congress."

Dill said he meant no attack on the honesty of the court "but on the economic theories of the judges which force the common people to pay millions of dollars of tribute that could not be obtained otherwise than by these decisions on valuations."

"Here is a man who is decisively defeated by the American people for President because of his economic views," he continued. "Is the will of the people not to be considered at all?"

Begging the Issue.
Dill argued that declarations in behalf of Hughes that he was honest and able were "begging the issue."

"The only chance that the people have to pass a judge of the United States is here in the Senate and we are asked to pass him because he is a Christian and a fine man."

"Defeated by the people at the polls we are now told Mr. Hughes must go back on the bench as chief justice."

The Washington Senator expressed the opinion that the Supreme Court has become "the first department of the government."

Refers To Age
He referred to the fact that Mr. Hughes is almost 70 years old, "one

EXTRA SCHOOL COST MAY ADD 1-4 MILL TO TAX

Selectmen Try to Keep Rate Down But Educational Board's Action May Off- set Budget Plan.

Additional expenditures of $6,446.00 approved by the Joint school board here after a town meeting had authorized a school budget of $390,000 may necessitate increasing the local tax rate a quarter of a mill when that rate is set by the annual town meeting on March 3. The Board of Selectmen is not inclined to sanction the additional expense in the schools, although by law those finances are outside the selectmen's jurisdiction. It is possible that the question may be argued on the floor of the coming town meeting.

Selectmen's Act
Last fall the Selectmen received notification from the Joint school board that a budget of $405,000 would be necessary for school expenses this year. The Selectmen, who are represented on the joint board, did not believe that this request for funds was justified. Accordingly the Selectmen recommended an appropriation for schools of $390,000. This was voted at the annual meeting of the voters in October.

Overdraw Budget
After the annual meeting the joint board met to further discuss school expenses and approved of expenditures $8,446.00 over the $390,000 allotted by the voters. This drew the plans of the Selectmen to keep down the tax rate and may finally be the factor that will force an increase from 15 3/4 mills, the present rate, to 16 mills. A complete statement of the town's appropriations standing is printed today on Page Four with an explanation by Town Treasurer George H. Waddell.

VOTERS MUST ACT ON WHITON WILLS

Library Fund to Be Put Before Special Town Meeting Here March 3.

Disposition of moneys willed the Town of Manchester from the estate of the late Dr. Francis H. Whiton and his widow the late Mary Elizabeth Whiton will probably be discussed in the special town meeting here on Monday evening March 3, following discussion of the legacies last night by the Board of Selectmen. A special committee of Selectmen consisting of Chairman Thomas J. Rogers, W. W. Robertson and Wells A. Strickland was named to confer with Town Council William S. Hyde with regard to the proper procedure to receive the fund and to draft a resolution to be put before the town meeting.

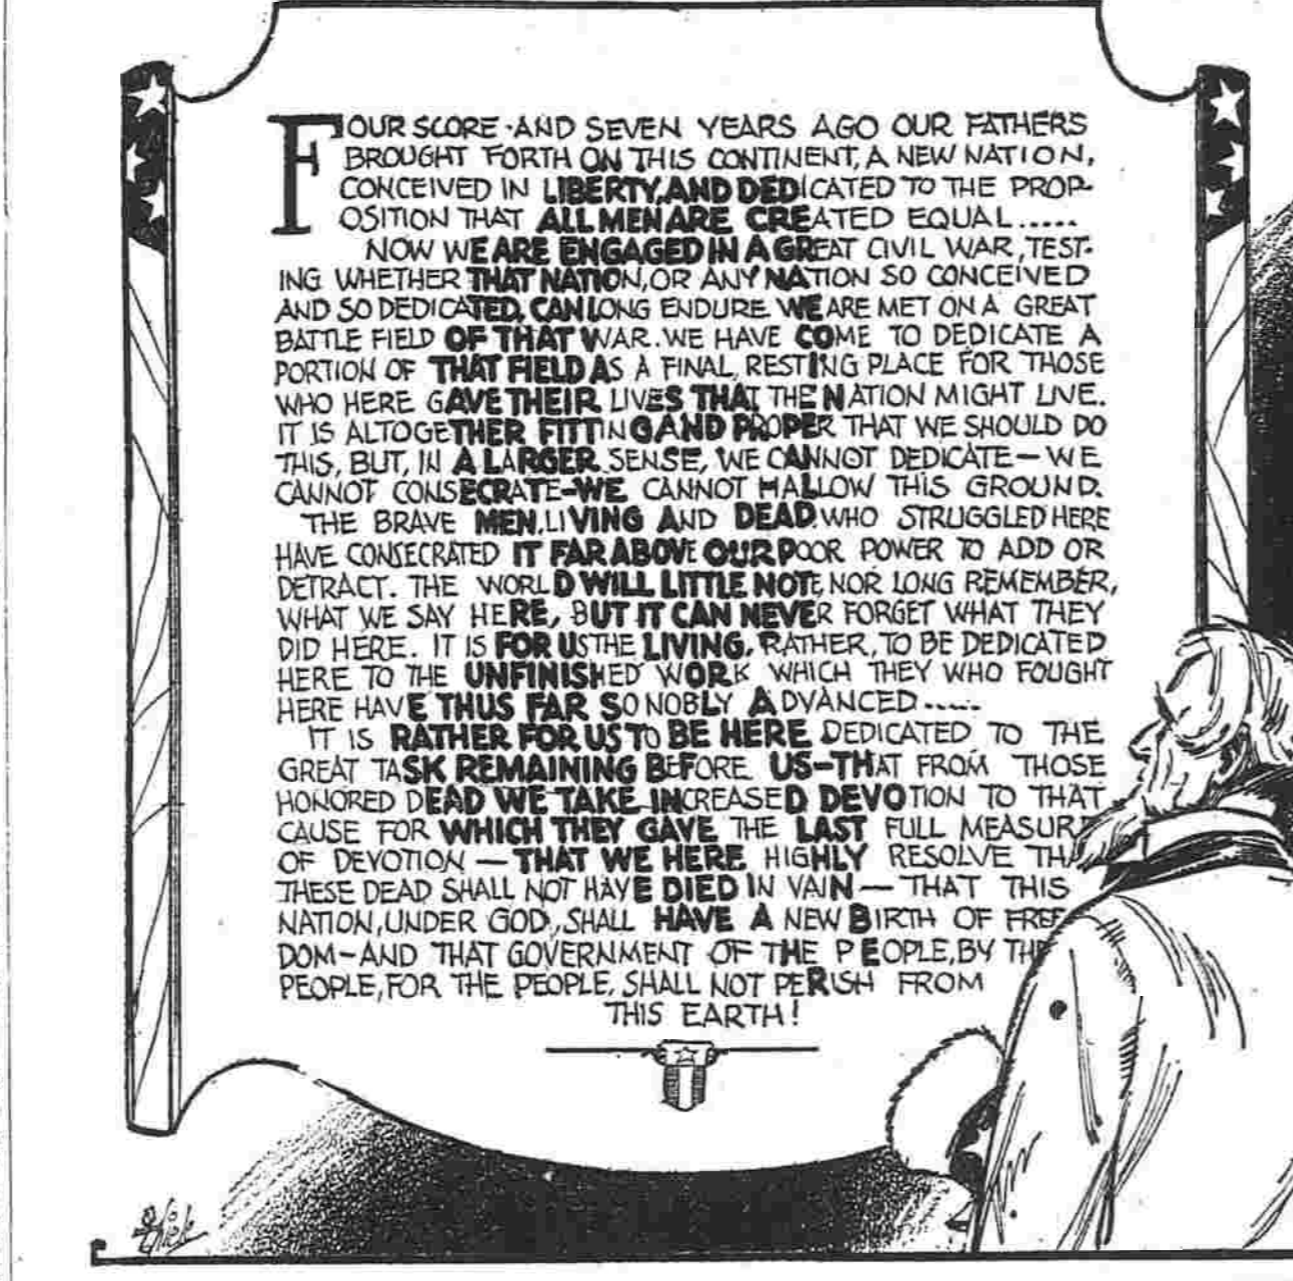

Must Vote Authority
The Whiton estates willed the town sums aggregating $157,000 to be used for the development of the present Manchester library or the erection of a library building in the Eighth school district. Town Treasurer George H. Waddell does not feel that he has a right to accept the legacies until given authorization by the voters of the town. Accordingly the question will be submitted at the special meeting to follow the adjourned annual meeting March 3.

$39,000 Cash
A letter to the Selectmen from Allen I. Balch trust officer of the City Bank and Trust Company, executors of the Whiton wills, listed the items that make up the estates and disclosed the fact that $39,000 of the moneys represented is in cash. The executors are ready to turn over the legacies to the town as soon as proper application is made.

ELEVATOR JOY RIDE.
Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 12.—(AP)—As a result of stealing a joy ride yesterday afternoon on an automatic apartment house elevator four men were arraigned in City Court today charged with damaging private property. The men were Mortimer Kran, George Groat, James Corkius and Frank Diorio, all of Waterbury. All were granted noles.

Operating the elevator by pushing buttons, the men are said to have frustrated attempts of the janitor of the building to halt them until the latter went into the cellar, shut off the power and held the men prisoners between two floors until he could summon a policeman.

The Nation Observes Lincoln's Anniversary

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Today they observe the 121st anniversary of his birth.

Particularly here, where he sleeps, and in Chicago where he was nominated to the Presidency, but also everywhere in America, in banquet halls, auditoriums, churches and from the rostra of little country schools.

Banks close, honoring his memory—the who never had much money to worry about. Trade drags. The air fills with the oratory both of the gibbering and of the stammering school child.

CHICAGO'S PROBLEM IS NEAR SOLUTION.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—(AP)—E. H. Collier, writing from Battle Creek, Mich., offers a solution to the Chicago crime problem. "I read every day," writes Dr. Collier, "that some suspect or known criminal has escaped up or down an alley. Why not padlock the alleys?" "That," said Alderman John J. Coughlin, admiringly, "is a great idea."

JURY IS PROBING TRAFFIC IN DOPE

Expert Says Only Way Drugs Can Be Controlled Is at the Source.

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Representative Stephen G. Porter, of Pittsburgh, Pa., chairman of the House foreign affairs committee and sponsor of two bills for control of narcotic sales and treatment of addicts, testifies as an expert today before the Federal Grand Jury investigating the narcotic traffic in New York.

Mr. Porter appeared at the invitation of United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle. Before going into the Grand Jury room he told newspapermen that "all our domestic laws for suppression and rehabilitation of addicts are palliated because every student of the subject reaches the same conclusion: That the drug must be controlled at the source."

Hard To Detect
"When once the drugs are produced," he said, "they ultimately reach the consumer, the bulk is so small, rendering detection very difficult, and the profit so enormous that traffic once started, works efficiently."

The Congressman, outlining the bills he is sponsoring, said one provides for removal of narcotic control from the Prohibition Bureau and placing it in the hands of a separate board or bureau under the Treasury Department, with offices at all ports of entry. The other, he explained, provides for the establishment of farms for the treatment of addicts, the site for one of these, he added, has been located tentatively near Lexington, Ky.

"We are getting to look upon victims not as addicts but as patients," he said. "That is as it should be."

TO RESTRICT USE OF SUBS IN WAR TIME

Stimson Says This Has Been Agreed Upon and Is Alone Worth Trip to Parley, He Declares.

London, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Both the American and British delegations to the London naval conference regard the position taken at yesterday's plenary session regarding submarines as representing a definite decision to restrict the use of submarines against merchant ships.

The statement of Secretary Stimson last night that he regarded yesterday's work as a significant achievement for the conference, attracted widespread interest in view of the fact that submarine problems were referred to a committee for study without the plenary session expressing a formal view by vote.

Stimson Speaks
During a conference with newspapermen last night the secretary said in part:
"Concerning the plenary meeting this morning, I want to call your attention to the fact that there has been a definite decision by the naval conference today. Not a tentative one—a definite one."
"The five powers agreed to restrict the use of the submarine against merchant ships to the same rules which are applied to surface vessels."

Worth the Trip
"I want to say about that, that I regard that single incident as the vital part of the American delegation here in London. That marks a step forward in a matter that our country once went to war about."

The secretary also said that impetus had been given for the movement for the eventual abolition of submarines.

Newspaper men this morning fired a volley of questions at the secretary Stimson's pronouncement, and were informed that the British delegation gave unequivocal adherence to the secretary's interpretation of yesterday's events.

The American delegation met this morning to work out the details of American submarine policy for presentation before the conference committee of the whole when the question arises in that body. The delegation expected to have everything in concrete form by tomorrow.

HENRY MORGAN DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Cheney Mills Superintendent and Get Together Club Organizer, Passes.

Henry Morgan, for a number of years superintendent of oxidation dyeing and the Old Mill repair departments of Cheney Brothers, died this morning at his home, 42 Bigelow street. He had been ill for several months. Mr. Morgan was 70 years old.

He was born in Devonshire, England, and came to Manchester 30 years ago. He had perfected a means of dyeing textiles by an oxidation process and instituted a department for such work at Cheney Brothers. In addition to this he took over the superintendency of the repair gang in the Dyeing and Finishing department.

Silk Dyeing Process
Mr. Morgan's process of dyeing silks was an unusual one, but a most saving one in that it allowed for the marketing of yards of silk that might otherwise have gone into spoils. The oxidation of the dye bath caused the material to take on a flat black. Silks that had been spoiled in dyeing or printing were often retrieved through the oxidation process.

Cheney Brothers' Get Together club, composed of several hundred men employees of the silk firm, was organized by Henry Morgan and he was its first president. He always took an active interest in the affairs of the club and attended every meeting as long as his health permitted. Today it is a thriving organization for the entertainment and social delight of the men of the mills, an everlasting memorial to his efforts to create good will among men.

His Family
Mr. Morgan's wife survives him as do two sons and one daughter. They are Edgar T. Morgan, George Clinton Morgan and Mrs. Ernest T. (Adele) Bantly. There are six grandchildren. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Morgan home on Bigelow street. Rev. Watson Woodruff of the Center Congregational church, will officiate and burial will be in the East cemetery.

Over 100 Indictments Under the Jones Law

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—(AP)—More than 100 indictments under the Jones law, naming more than 200 alleged liquor law violators, were returned today by a Grand Jury in United States District Court here.

It was the first wholesale application in St. Louis of the Jones law, designed for use against those regularly engaged in the illicit liquor business, and providing maximum penalties of five years imprisonment or $10,000 fines, or both.

WETS HOLD FORTH AT OPEN MEETING BEFORE CONGRESS

Judges, Police Officials and Even Governor of Michi- gan is Assailed by Wit- ness Telling of His Inves- tigations of Various Cities; Says There is More Hard Liquor Drunk in Na- tion Than Ever Before.

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The first Congressional hearing in the decade of prohibition on the merits of the dry statute itself opened at the Capitol today with a denunciation of the law by Chairman Graham of the House judiciary committee and a series of sensational charges concerning enforcement conditions in half a dozen big American cities.

Judges, police officials and even the governor of Michigan, were assailed by Walter Liggett, a magazine writer, and the first witness before the committee. Without mentioning names he told of a party in Detroit on the night of Nov. 5, 1929, at which he said the governor and the chief of police of Detroit and four judges were present.

In Other Cities
But this was only a part of Liggett's general indictment. Going down the line he denounced conditions in Boston, Washington, Topeka, in the state of Minnesota and in Wichita, Kansas, where he said there was one of the "classiest" roadhouses to be found, comparing favorably with those in New York City.

Finally he was asked by Representative Michener, Republican, Michigan, a member of the judiciary committee, if he stood ready to furnish proof of his assertions.

Has the Proof
Liggett answered yes, but at the same time expressed doubt that he would ever be called upon to confirm his story because he had had the facts.

Liggett recently engaged in an expose of Washington liquor conditions and appeared before a District of Columbia Grand Jury. The jury which investigated the conditions generally returned only a few indictments.

Chairman Graham at the outset of the session, which was one punctuated frequently by applause from spectators at the witness on the stand engaged in exchanges of debate with committee members, said the Eighteenth amendment and the enforcement law had been tested for ten years "without satisfactory results."

Today's hearing was given over entirely to those attacking present conditions under the prohibition act. The Drys yet have their story to tell.

Liggett told the committee that as "men of sense and sophistication you must have seen these things and must have known about them."

"Throughout the length and breadth of the land today," he continued, "in cities and on the farms there is more hard liquor being drunk and under worse conditions than before prohibition."

Swinging his attack to the state of Minnesota where he said prohibition administration is under the direct supervision of Andrew Volstead, author of the dry law, he declared there was not a "decent speakeasy" in the city of Minneapolis.

"Beer Farms."
Liggett then spoke of what he described as "beer farms." He said one was about 50 miles from Minneapolis which had been raided while he was in the city. He added high school boys and girls of Minneapolis had driven down there for "debauches."

"All of this is taking place right under the nose of Andrew Volstead" he asserted.

Representative Michener, in questioning the witness said Detroit had a new administration. He asked Liggett if the mayor he referred to was former Mayor John Smith, defeated in the recent election by about 8,000 votes. The Michigan representative then said that Chief of Police Rutledge had been removed by the new administration.

Leggett then said "In all fairness" the Detroit police force is not as corrupt as in some other cities. He asserted, however, that there were 300 murders there last year and 170 bombings by racketeers in the last three years.

The committee recessed at 12:30 p. m., until tomorrow.

DRYS' STATEMENT

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—While wet advocates presented pleas for the modification of the liquor laws before the House judiciary committee today, dry organizations issued a statement which said no one "should be deceived by the present flood of publicity and propaganda put forth by the wets and carried by the press."

The statement, issued by executive group was directly responsible for the outbreak.

PRESIDENT IS RESTING UP FROM STRENUOUS SPORT

Reads First Batch of Mail Since Saturday But Thinks He Will Tackle Sail Fish Later in the Day.

Long Key, Fla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Refreshed and rested by two days of excellent fishing in the waters of the Atlantic off the Florida Keys, President Hoover exercised the presidential prerogative of changing his mind and didn't go fishing this morning as he had planned.

Instead he stayed aboard the houseboat Saunterer and devoted his attention to the first batch of Washington Saturday night. The mail was brought to him in a special pouch from Miami, having arrived at the latter point yesterday morning by air mail.

Others in Party Fish
Other members of the president's party, however, put out in small boats to continue their sport. Word was brought from the Saunterer by Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries, that Mr. Hoover also planned to anchor off Long Key in the Atlantic ocean shortly after noon and renew his efforts to land another sail fish such as he caught an hour after he began fishing on Monday morning.

The President has been keeping in close touch with the naval arms conference, it was indicated yesterday and today by the activity of Captain Allen Buchanan, his naval aide, who was in telephone communication with the Navy Department in Washington at least twice yesterday. No information concerning the problems he was discussing could be obtained.

Sail Fish Biting
One of the reasons Mr. Hoover decided to remain aboard the Saunterer during the forepart of the day was that the sail fish seemed to be biting with more frequency and regularly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The President also had observed that sharks seemed to be bothering

Jobless Battle
WITH CITY POLICE
Nine Arrests and Scores
Hurt in Cleveland Riot;
Over 1,000 Involved.

Cleveland, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A mass "protest" meeting was called for late today by leaders of the 1200 unemployed men and women who pitted fists and knives against police night sticks in a "work or food" riot before the City Hall yesterday.

Women and children were urged to join a public rally against "police brutality" by orators who re-treated waving strips of policemen's coat tails as banners after the unemployed had been beaten away from the City Hall.

Nine alleged rioters were under arrest today, two more of the unemployed and three policemen were suffering from injuries and more than a score of others nursed bruises from kicks and blows.

March on City Hall
Culminating a three months offensive against the City Council since unemployment became acute, the so-called council of the unemployed recruited some 1200 persons and marched on the City Hall to demand work or food. A council committee was subjected to hear their representatives about unemployment.

A wild melee followed when police refused to admit the entire gathering and attempted to clear cross walks. Three officers went down and a furious scramble raged for half an hour with police swinging nightsticks. The rioters lost heart when two fire trucks arrived and made ready to throw a water barrage.

Although organizations claiming Communist affiliations have frequently stormed council meetings, officials said they believed no Communist group was directly responsible for the outbreak.

REMOVE CULVERTS, SELECTMEN'S PLAN

Type That Caused Lawsuit Investigated; Routine Business Transacted.

Investigation of highway culverts in Manchester that may cause lawsuits such as the recent one the town lost to three Hartford men following an accident on Oak street was left to the highway committee when the matter came before the Selectmen in regular meeting last night. Whether the town will appeal the decision of the court awarding damages to the Hartford complainants depends somewhat on the highway committee's investigation.

42 Others. Town Engineer J. Frank Bowen told the Selectmen that there are 42 such culverts in Manchester. Their removal awaits investigation by the Selectmen's committee. That the court decision was of wide importance is noted by the fact that the state highway department has started the removal of all such "gutter bridges" in the state. It is possible the town will remove the culverts that have been located along highways here.

Last night's meeting voted to endorse a petition to Congress seeking additional compensation for Spanish War Veterans. At the same time the Selectmen voted not to contribute a sum of town money towards a Spanish War memorial here. The board believes that voting such a sum would be setting a dangerous precedent and not good judgment.

Routine Business. The board received and voted to accept the deed of a strip of land on Edgerton street purchased from E. J. Holl. A claim for damages filed by Miss Margaret Wartley following a fall on the upper end of Bissell street during an icy spell was referred to the public safety committee. The report of Building Inspector Edward C. Elliott, Jr., accepted last night, and town bills ordered paid will be found on another page of today's Herald.

The claim of an Addison man by the name of Erlich for damages said to have been sustained when his truck hit a loose curbstone on Hartford road was referred to the public safety committee. Mr. Erlich is represented by Attorney W. J. Shea. A change in ownership of the gasoline filling station at 555 Middle Turnpike East, formerly known as Erickson's, was approved. The new owner is Louis Cherone.

Traffic Lights. The lighting committee recommended an additional street light on Essex street. It was voted. Discussions of traffic control lights at the Center and at Park streets proposed by the police commission disclosed a majority of the Selectmen opposed to any type of lights. This matter, however, rests with the police board under the present law, but any propositions to pay for their installation will have to be made by a town meeting.

Since this is a property reevaluation year under the Linder system of assessments, Selectman Jarie Johnson was instructed to confer with his father, Chairman of Assessors S. Emil Johnson, to ascertain the needs of the assessors to carry out the work. Mr. Johnson will report back at the next meeting.

WOULD PLEDGE STOCK

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Permission to pledge 177,000 shares of Lehigh Valley railroad stock as collateral against loan obligations, was sought from the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the Washab railroad. The Washab company, which has an excess of $17,000,000 invested in Lehigh Valley stock, expressly disclaimed any intent to sell the securities.

"This company having purchased the said common stock of the Lehigh Valley railroad for the purpose of protecting itself in the present trunk line situation," the Washab application said, "it is proposed to hold such stock for such purpose and has no intention of selling."

The Lehigh Valley holdings were formerly in possession of the Pennsylvania company, but were transferred to the Washab two years ago.

DEATH TOLL NOW FOUR

Brockton, Mass., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The death of Susan Saxton, 68, at the Brockton hospital last night brought to four the toll of deaths caused by the fire which swept the City Farm early yesterday. Another inmate, Fred Stone, 60, was still in a semi-conscious condition from smoke inhalation.

Three persons, Mrs. Luella Bacon, 55, George Brown, 61, and Minot Copeland, 60, lost their lives in the fire and damage of $100,000.

UNVEIL LINCOLN BUST

London, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A bust of Abraham Lincoln, the work of Andrew O'Connor, Irish-American sculptor who presented it to the City of London as a token of Anglo-American friendship, was unveiled at the Royal Exchange today by the lord mayor, Sir William Waterloo. It was formally presented to the city by the Marquis of Crewe who acted for the Marquis of Reading, chairman of the Lincoln committee.

The bust is carved from a block of American limestone quarried near Lincoln's birthplace and portrayed the President in middle age before the Civil War.

MARRIES LOCAL GIRL, HAS WIFE IN NEW YORK

Charles Pagoreke Alias Jacobek to Be Arrested in Hicksville on Local Warrant

A warrant was filed today by local police with the district attorney of Nassau County, Long Island, New York, for the arrest in Hicksville, L. I., of Charles Pagoreke, alias Jacobek, charged with bigamy. Jacobek as the man was known in Manchester, married Annie Diep-tale of 13 Hilliard street, this town, while still married to a woman in Hicksville.

Jacobek, after marrying the local girl, returned to Hicksville where he was arrested charged with forgery. Investigation of the man's record here on the bigamy charge. As soon as the Hicksville authorities have prosecuted the man the local police warrant will be served upon him.

Captain Herman Schenkel made the investigation for the local police visiting the man in jail at Hicksville last week. His wife was in town to make identification certain.

INJUNCTION IS SERVED IN SLOT MACHINE CASE

Police Are Restrained from Raiding Them—Matter Referred to Asst. Attorney General Johnson.

Hartford, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Attorney Benjamin Alling Tuesday afternoon received from State Police Commissioner Robert T. Hurley, the injunction served on the commissioner restraining the state police from raiding slot machines operated by the Eastern Mint Vending Company. The injunction was issued on order of United States District Judge Edwin S. Thomas at New Haven.

The matter has been referred to Assistant Attorney General Raymond A. Johnson who is considering whether an appeal should be taken to the United States Circuit Court. It is understood the injunction, besides being served on the head of the state police department, has also been served on the heads of municipal police departments.

Chief of Police Gordon said today that he had received a copy of the injunction. He did not indicate what his course would be in case it should be upheld under the protection of the federal writ, were being used for gambling.

Some months ago, when a raid was made on the vending machines, the vending machine company obtained the release of the seized devices by promising that they would not again be installed in this town.

It is the general opinion of police authorities that the present extension of the injunction extends only to machines innocent of employment as gambling devices and that the moment they are used for gaming they will cease to come within the provisions of the writ.

MULE PACK TRAINS TO TRANSPORT BOOZE

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Twenty-five persons were under indictment here today in what the government alleged was a conspiracy to transport liquor from Canada to northwest cities of the United States by mule pack trains.

The conspiracy the government charged, had resulted in thousands of dollars worth of liquor being smuggled into the United States in the form of rings, accused of using pack trains, were said to have resorted to camouflage the long lines of plodding, liquor laden animals, and at times to have driven the mules over United States forestry trails.

So systematized were the widespread operations that a "traffic manager" was employed to route the many pack trains from Canada to secluded places opposite the sparsely settled and mountainous Okanogan country in north central Washington.

Government agents said the traffic manager also watched the weather and when it snowed, sent white mules along the trails, the animals blending with the whiteness of the landscape. When the ground was bare bay animals carried the liquor.

Clerks were busily engaged in opening mail applications which are now pouring into the office at the rate of approximately 6,000 a day.

HONOLULU, FEB. 12.—(AP)— An autopsy on the body of Mrs. Marion Sevier, formerly of Irvington, N. Y., will be held today to determine the cause of her death.

Mrs. Sevier, wife of Col. Granville Sevier, of the 64th Coast Artillery, died in an Army hospital here in August, 1928.

Mrs. Sevier left her husband, to whom she was married in Baltimore, Md., in 1926. $700,000.

Ralph Shainwald, brother of Mrs. Sevier, asked that an autopsy be held after her death, asserting his sister died of unnatural causes.

Major W. C. Whitmore, who attended the woman, at the time of her death, said he was convinced she died of natural causes. Four other physicians at the autopsy, held last April, agreed with Major Whitmore. One physician, however, held the causes to be doubtful, and Shainwald later asked for a second autopsy.

NO CHAMBER SANCTION FOR WORLD WAR BOOKS

Out of Town Concern Selling 'Books Through Telephone Campaign from A & N Club.

Every person listed as a telephone subscriber is being solicited by phone today by representatives of the National Publishing Company, working at the Army and Navy club, to buy a copy of "Illustrated Memories of the World War" at one dollar each. The plan is part of the local Army and Navy club's drive for funds. However, it has not the sanction of the Chamber of Commerce.

The volume put on sale contains 40 pictures and reproductions of scenes in the World War. Each picture measures nine by fifteen inches. The volume is copyrighted by the National Publishing Company of New Haven.

Mr. J. M. Hanger, of the sales campaign here, yesterday explained his plan to E. J. McCabe, executive secretary of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce. A letter outlining it went out to Chamber members today.

The plan is to solicit everyone by telephone to sell the war volume. The campaign manager estimates that 30 per cent of those solicited will purchase. The telephone subscriber is urged to purchase the book because it will help the Army and Navy boys.

Estimating a sales success of 30 per cent $1,500 will be collected by the campaign. Manager Tefft told the Chamber of Commerce that the profits made amounting to $700, one half goes to the Army and Navy club.

The reason the Chamber of Commerce does not sanction the plan is that the townspeople must pay out money in order to contribute $350 to the Army and Navy club. A great proportion of the rest of the money goes out of town. Several inquiries have come to The Herald today to learn if the plan and the officials in charge and this news story is in explanation.

of the oldest men ever appointed to the Supreme Court" and said "I wonder if it is because the President just wants to get rid of the present views of the court on valuations will be undisturbed."

Referring to the attack on Hughes made yesterday by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, Senator Dill said "I don't think how much the Senator from Idaho helped to bring about this appointment when he marched up and down the land calling for the election of the man who appointed Mr. Hughes."

"Did you want to help any man get a seat on the court?" he asked "there will be a revolution—not of bullets but of ballots."

"I intend by this vote to do what I can to put a stop to what I believe is one of the greatest dangers to the country—in putting men on the Supreme Court who will permit the picking of pockets of the common people."

Attleboro, Mass., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Violet Michael, 18 year old jewelry worker, who started to cry Sunday night and couldn't stop, was reported considerably better today.

The girl's case has puzzled both physicians. Her first tears had been occasioned by the departure of her mother to New Bedford for a brief visit. The family became alarmed when the girl was unable to control herself and her sobbing brought on spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm.

ABOUT TOWN

The attendance prize—a package of Giant Nymph and Sweet Lavender gladioli bulbs donated by President Charles M. Murphy—was won by Miss Madeline Smith.

At the close of her talk, Miss Hunt was given a rousing vote of thanks.

The investigation into the kidnapping of Max Price, 62 year old real estate operator would be dropped tomorrow as authorities admitted they faced a blank wall.

Assistant City Attorney N. Durant saw a small hope that something tangible might develop tomorrow at the hearing in New York of two Detroit gangsters, Samuel Hendel and Harry Fleisch arrested in connection with the case. It is believed here however, these two men had no part in the actual abduction of the man who was held a captive for eight days and released upon promise to pay $25,000 ransom.

Price is now recovering from his experience in a Fairfield county sanitarium.

BOAT BULLET SCARRED COAST GUARDS' CLAIM

New London, Conn., Feb. 12.—While no official statement was available today, it is believed that when the hearing on charges against the fishing boat Gander of Bridgeport is held the Coast Guard will claim evidence of the effect of machine gun fire was uncovered aboard the boat.

An exhaustive investigation for evidence that the Gander was struck by bullets was conducted today by Coast Guard warrant officers. They believed the Gander was damaged by Coast Guard patrol boats which participated in skirmishes with a fugitive craft in Long Island Sound early in the morning of Feb. 7. The Coast Guard claims that the Gander is the boat which was chased by the service vessels.

The examination of the Gander today was a continuation of a search begun yesterday afternoon at the lighthouse wharf here, where the Gander is moored, pending the hearing, which will be held before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran at an unannounced date.

GARDEN CLUB TOLD OF EUROPEAN TRIP

Miss Lucy Hunt Gives Interesting Illustrated Talk at the North End.

Miss Lucy O. Hunt's illustrated lecture before the Manchester Garden club at the Community Club on Monday evening was enjoyed by a large audience. With two companions she made an extended tour last summer of Scotland, England, Switzerland and other European countries. Her subject was "Out of Doors in England."

Miss Hunt prefaced her talk with Kipling's poem "The Glory of the Garden." She is president of the Hartford Bird Study Club and is a cordially interested in gardens. She obtained a great many marvelous colored pictures of gardens, English lanes, picturesque thatched cottages over which roses clambered.

Of these she selected last night those in which she thought the gardeners would be most interested, beginning with a description of Scottish scenes.

Thomas Maxwell operated the projector. A number of colored views were shown of the country of the Trossachs, Ben Nevis, Loch Lomond, Loch Katrine, the diminutive Ellen's Isle and other places immortalized by Sir Walter Scott. Several colored landscapes showing the Scotch heather that covered the moors, and closeups gave a good idea of this beloved pinkish heliotrope flower.

The famous beds and formal gardens in Princess street, Edinburgh, were shown upon the screen and many views of Fallowden, Viscount Grey's beautiful country estate near Alnwick.

The Hartford women were accorded special privileges at Fallowden through a letter of introduction from a mutual friend, Earl Gray who was in London when the visitors arrived. The pictures showed the stately home, the bird sanctuary, gardens, beautiful lawns and trees at Fallowden.

Miss Hunt described and showed pictures of Stratford-on-Avon, the lovely formal garden there and Ann Hathaway's cottage and garden where they spent many happy hours, as well as scenes at Oxford and Cambridge showing the marvelous lawns, Addison's Walk and kept drives. The speaker emphasized the way in which the English care for their gardens and lawns and the interest they take in beautifying every available portion of ground around their homes.

The party motored through England for several weeks and were able to see much of interest that is missed by the average tourist. They were particularly charmed with Devon, the "Rose Garden of England" and obtained many fine views of the hills and interesting country.

Miss Hunt then transported her hearers swiftly to Switzerland. She remarked that the French people were not nearly so much interested in flowers as either the English or the Swiss, and many places such as public grounds which would be greatly enhanced by verdant lawns, are surrounded by gravel courts.

The pictures of Alpine flowers in their native environment was especially beautiful against background of snowy mountains. Edelweiss which grows high up among the crags and peaks is the national flower of Switzerland and is very beautiful and difficult to obtain.

Cyclamen, bluebells and anemones of many varieties, deep yellow mountain azalea and Alpine roses just as they are growing were the subject of a choice collection of pictures.

At the close of her talk, Miss Hunt was given a rousing vote of thanks.

The attendance prize—a package of Giant Nymph and Sweet Lavender gladioli bulbs donated by President Charles M. Murphy—was won by Miss Madeline Smith.

POLICE MAY DROP KIDNAPING CASE

New Haven, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The possibility that investigation into the kidnapping of Max Price, 62 year old real estate operator would be dropped tomorrow as authorities admitted they faced a blank wall.

SPAIN AGAIN RESTLESS

Madrid, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Popular unrest which quieted somewhat after the retirement of Premier Primo De Rivera and the accession of the new Berenguer government, has shown some signs of reawakening.

Both in Madrid and the provincial cities disturbance of an increasingly serious character have been noted.

The Berenguer government has re-established a censorship on foreign press dispatches from Spain. A strict domestic censorship was in effect from the end of the Primo De Rivera dictatorship but Primo De Rivera himself, some months before his fall removed the censorship on foreign dispatches.

The announcement of the establishment of the short lived Spanish Republic of 1873 was celebrated at a dinner last night sanctioned by the Berenguer Cabinet.

Although speeches had been forbidden, Alejandro Lerroux, answering the call of some 400 assembled Republicans attacked the monarchy and the present government, which he termed a continuation of the Primo De Rivera dictatorship. Lerroux declared himself in favor of the republic.

C. L. C. CARD PARTY FILLS 40 TABLES

Gibbons Assembly Catholic Ladies of Columbus gave a successful card party last evening in St. Bridget's hall for the benefit of St. Bridget's church. Forty tables were in play. The decorations were in keeping with St. Valentine's day and at the close of the games, Mrs. Lillian Mahoney and the ladies of her committee served sandwiches, cake and coffee.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Henry Ahern. Both bridge and straight whist were played with six prizes in each section. Winners of first prizes in bridge were Mrs. Joseph Leary and Andrew Healey, second, Mrs. Felix McEvitt and Joseph Nevers; consolation, Mrs. Joseph Gorman and Henry Ahern. In whist the first prizes were won by Mrs. John McEliff and Dennis Sullivan; Miss Anna Waichowski and John Gill, second and Miss Dorothy Hanna and Patrick Griffin, consolation.

LIGGETT EXPLAINS "DRY" CONDITIONS Magazine Writer Tells Congress Bootleggers Are Rampant in Nation.

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The long awaited hearing on resolutions proposing outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and various forms of modification of that amendment opened today before the House judiciary committee with Chairman Graham announcing at the outset that this amendment and the prohibition enforcement law "have been tested for ten years without satisfactory results."

Graham prefaced his statement by saying he desired to explain his own position on prohibition, one of the most important issues of the day. The more than 200 men and women gathered in the House caucus room listened intently to the Pennsylvania. Nearly half of the audience was composed of women.

W. Liggett, a Capitol Hill magazine writer, testified that "Not less than 700 speakies running day and night in the District of Columbia, and not less than 4,000 bootleggers."

Liggett said he had been assigned by his magazine to make a study of prohibition conditions throughout the country and that he had been working on his assignment for the past eight months. During a six week investigation of Washington and the District of Columbia, he said he had conferred with members of the prohibition enforcement unit and members of the city vice squad and dry leaders as well as checking on speakies and bootleggers.

In opening his statement to the committee, Liggett said he not only had voted for the dry law but also supported the dry law at the time of its adoption with considerable expense in his own paper. He said he felt that state wide prohibitory laws would "measurably improve conditions."

"However," he added, "I believed then and still believe in local option." In his work during the last eight months Liggett said he had studied the District of Columbia, Boston, Mass., the State of Michigan and particularly Detroit, Kansas, and also his native state of Minnesota.

In Minnesota he asserted he had exceptional opportunity to compare conditions as they are now with the conditions at the time of the enactment of the dry law. He explained he had worked in different activities in the three largest Minnesota cities and that his work had taken him on trips through the state at that time.

"With all respect for Mr. Volstead," he said, "I know conditions in Minnesota better than he does." Not for Saloon. Liggett asserted he held no brief for the saloon and did not wish its return. He insisted, however, that before prohibition, taking the District of Columbia as an example, there were 300 legally licensed saloons and their proprietors obeyed the regulatory laws. At that time he said, the minor violations were difficult if not impossible to obtain liquor in a saloon and young girls, he said could not get it.

EIGHTH DISTRICT HAS DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY

Dr. Sweet 20 Years, William McGuire 25 Years District Officials—Dinner Marks Occasion.

The February meeting of the directors of the Eighth School and Utilities District held last night marked the completion of two decades as an officer of the district by Dr. F. A. Sweet, district president, and the twenty-fifth anniversary as an officer of the district by Director William McGuire, who was present last night for the first time in seven months, his long absence having been due to illness.

The members were on time and J. Henry Olmstead, of East Hartford, the district's engineer, was also present. It was then that Dr. Sweet reminded the gathering of the double anniversary.

At the business session that followed it was voted to send the Ford truck owned by the district that has had four years' service and to purchase a new one.

L. T. Wood, Bissell street ice dealer has completed filling the ice house at Globe Hollow pond and this morning moved his markers and ploughs to Lake Colebrook, Bolton Notch. With excellent weather for ice harvesting during the past ten days he has stored 12,000 tons of good quality ice in four ice houses located at Lydiaville, Polly Brook and Globe Hollow. The Bolton crop will considerably increase the total harvest for the season with several thousand tons of 9 1/2 inch ice in prospect for the next few days.

A record in uninterrupted storage of ice was made yesterday at the Globe Hollow reservoir, the Wood employes with 10,000 cakes of ice slipping into the big house during the day.

A total of sixty-odd men have been employed during the harvesting season by this concern at the several storage points in Manchester and vicinity.

In addition to the ice cut by L. T. Wood, George Buck of Highland Park has already cut one freezing of the pond at his ice house and is today cutting the second crop, which will fill his house. The house is too large to be filled in one cutting from the pond and it is necessary to await a second freeze over.

HAS HORSE-CAR DRIVER'S TICKET

Manchester Man Retains License Under Which He Drove Boston Rattler in the Famous Blizzard of '88.

Harrison M. Sisco of 329 1-2 Center street, an old time licensed horse car driver, is in possession of his first license to drive, issued by the city police board, July 7, 1887. The old permit, signed by the police commissioners, A. T. Whiting, William H. Lee and W. M. Osborne, has been well preserved.

Mr. Sisco, now approaching fourscore milestone, is one of the few living employees of the Cambridge Horse Railroad, which having worked on several of the old horse-drawn street railway lines in Boston and the suburban cities, and has driven two, four and six-horse hitched over Boston's streets during many heavy storms.

During the blizzard of March 11-13, 1888, Mr. Sisco drove steadily for 72 hours without a relief. Later he turned switches for the first electric car to be tried out in Boston.

Miss Hutt Pleases in Piano Recital. In her first public appearance in Manchester, Miss Lylian Hutt, 16-year-old pupil of Archibald Sessions, captivated an audience of 70 persons in another of the series of recitals and concerts given by Watkins Brothers last night. Miss Hutt displayed a promising technique as a pianist and her numbers, played from memory, were most pleasing.

Assisting on the program was the well-known baritone, Robert Von Deck, whose fine, natural voice was at its best last night. He sang several well chosen numbers.

Tuesday evening, February 25, Harry N. Roth will speak at Watkins Brothers on "Hints for Making and Hanging Draperies." His daily work at Watkins ranges from the hanging of a simple cottage curtain to the installing of elaborate drapes such as those in the Bushnell Memorial and County Court House, Hartford.

Memorial Temple Pythian Sisters held a successful whist social in Odd Fellows hall last evening, followed by a dance with music by Miss Robinson, pianist and Gustave Ulrich playing on the accordion. Oscar Strong was announcer for the old-fashioned dances. Winners at cards were, first Miss Alice Wilson and Wilmer Keeney; second, Mrs. Robert Swanson and M. S. Young and consolation, Mrs. Clara Lincoln and Robert Swanson. Mr. Swanson also won the door prize. The social committee for the quarter served sandwiches, home made cake and coffee.

DRY LAW REPEAL BILLS DISCUSSED to be capable of being enforced without such a train of consequences, must not be inconsistent with the mind of the people of the country as being right, and must not be destructive of individual liberty.

Seven Resolutions. Chairman Graham prefaced this statement by saying that seven resolutions, each containing a proposition to amend the Constitution, were introduced into the House by seven different members and referred to the judiciary committee by the House for consideration.

The purpose also, he said, was for the committee, if it deemed them meritorious, to have them reported back to the House. Their adoption would necessitate a two thirds vote in each branch of the Congress.

After that, he explained, three fourths of the states must concur in the action of Congress. Should Congress reject a resolution proposing revision of the Constitution, Graham added, it then would not be submitted to the states. In the event an amendment to the Constitution should be submitted to the states, he said, it would be approved by the state legislatures or by a convention convened in each state if so directed by Congress.

"The convention methods, which would require delegates to be elected on the issue of amendment, would furnish the opportunity for a referendum, so much desired and asked for," he said. "That method of ratification would furnish the only way a referendum can ever be had under the law."

Widespread Requests. "There was widespread requests for hearings on proponents and the friends of the resolutions; hence a hearing has been ordered in the existing state of the public mind a hearing upon the matters could not be denied without infringing the rights of American citizens to petition and be heard by the Congress upon redressing a wrong or bettering a condition."

"This hearing will not interfere with his plurality over Griggs, mission, but rather be an aid there of."

"The Eighteenth Amendment and the enforcement law has been tested for ten years, without satisfactory results. Enforcement has left a train of consequences most deplorable and depressing to every patriot. 'No one wants the restoration of the old conditions or the saloon,' Graham continued. 'We may as well ask, cannot control and regulations of liquor traffic supply the place of prohibition? What use of more laws, drastic and partaking of the spirit of vengeance, rather than justice? Natural liberty of the individual has never been totally surrendered to society, but only so much as is needed to preserve the organized entity.'

TO RESTRICT USE OF SUBS IN WAR TIME

American headquarters was that the delegation decided to stand firm on its position that the unlimited categories, namely cruisers, destroyers and submarines, must be settled before the battleship problem finally is attacked.

Figures Presented. It was confirmed that the French had presented tentative figures for the fleet tonnage desired by France and it was said these figures furnished a sufficient basis, so that practical progress could be made by the committee which is drawing up a formula for combining global and category methods of measuring navies.

This committee has reached unanimous agreement on some points, but is still struggling with others. A report of its progress was expected this afternoon.

This was a busy day for Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald. He had a Cabinet meeting at eleven o'clock and entertained some of the advisers to the various delegations with their wives at a luncheon at No. 10 Downing street, at 2:45 p. m. He plans to attend a session of the House of Commons; at 4:30 there was a meeting of the conference as a whole and at six o'clock there was a conference with the British Empire delegations at which it is likely the submarine question will come up.

It was understood that this discussion was precipitated by the statement of Charles Te Water, representing the Union of South Africa, at the plenary session yesterday. There was some difference of opinion as to the exact interpretation of Mr. Te Water's remarks, in that they seemed to indicate dissonance on the part of South Africa regarding the abolition of submarines. This evening the prime minister will attend a reception at the Royal Academy by Lady Austen Chamberlain.

Springfield Dist. Elects Democrat. (Continued from Page 1.) same amount the other way was astonishing to political observers. The successful Democratic candidate carried all three cities in the district—Northampton, Northampton and Chicopee, and won in nine of the 16 towns, his opponent winning only in Amherst, East Longmeadow, Granby, Hampden, Longmeadow, Wilbraham and South Hadley.

City's Majority. Springfield gave Grandfield more than half its plurality over Griggs, the Democratic candidate receiving 17,410 votes to his Republican opponent's 13,704, a margin of 3706. In the last municipal election, Mayor Dwight R. Winter defeated Carlos B. Ellis, the Republican nominee, by 2102 in a contest in which 32,806 ballots were cast. Yesterday's vote showed that interest in the congressional election was about the same as that taken in the city contest and that Grandfield was about even with Winter in most of the Democratic wards and pulled slightly less support in the Republican districts.

REACTION AT CAPITAL. Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Election of William J. Granfield, Democrat, as representative of the Second Massachusetts District yesterday, was said today by Representative Garner, of Texas, the House minority leader, to be an indication "of what is going to happen in the rest of the country."

BRIDGEPORT RESIDENT SENTENCED TO DEATH

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Frank Tawza, 45, who shot and killed Thomas Krokoski, assistant chief of police in Luzerne, borough on September 29, last, was sentenced to death today by the extreme penalty, death in the electric chair. Tawza was known as "The Shoeless Burglar." He came to this city from Bridgeport, Conn., two years ago and committed several burglaries. In entering a house, Tawza took off his shoes and it was during one of these robberies that he was discovered by a milkman who reported him to the police official. The latter gave chase and in a revolver duel Tawza fatally shot Krokoski. Tawza was struck by one of the bullets fired by the policeman and while he was having his wounds dressed in Scranton, he was arrested. He was tried and convicted by a jury before Judge Jones and was found guilty of first degree murder with the death penalty. Tawza's wife and an eight year old son were in court when Judge Jones imposed sentence. They live in Bridgeport.

The show will consist of about 20 acts for the main entertainment with plenty of side shows for diversion. Gambling games of all kinds will be prohibited, one of the rules of the fraternity. Arrangements for the Circus are practically complete, with an unusual advance sale of tickets reported. WILL CLEMSON REPEAT? IS LOCAL BIG QUESTION

The popular saying is "If you don't succeed, try, try again." But with Harold (Punk) Clemson it's "If you succeed the first time keep on succeeding." Five years ago he won first prize for the most comical costume at the Masquerade Ball, given annually at Cheney Hall, by the St. Mary's Young Men's Club, and has walked off with it ever since. For the two weeks preceding the ball he goes about with a bland and mysterious smile that clearly proclaims that "you ain't seen nothing yet." Last year it was freely predicted that Clemson was riding for a fall; some one else was bound to win. But Clemson appeared with a portable dentist chair that couldn't be beaten for originality. As Friday evening and the Masquerade Ball approach the big question on everyone's tongue is "Will Clemson repeat?" Clemson's ability to cop the first prize has discouraged many from entering the contest because they are of the mind that they haven't a Mongolian chance. The opposite is true. A committee of five have consented to act as judge, showing no favoritism or partiality. They are: Mrs. William C. Cheney, Mrs. George H. Wilcox, Mrs. J. C. Robinson, F. J. Hutchinson, and Ronald H. Ferguson. Will Harold (Punk) Clemson repeat?

Aviator's Bravery Wins Two Medals In 4 Months

Hampton, Va.—(AP)—Less than four months after he went on active duty with the air corps, a young officer set the pace for gallantry.

Lieut. William A. Matheny, for heroism in rescuing Lieut. Dwight Canfield from the burning wreck of an airplane, has been granted the Cheney award for outstanding self-sacrifice, and the Soldiers medal for bravery in time of peace.

The awards honor risks he took August 30 when a bombing plane being flown by the officers to Panama caught fire over a Nicaragua jungle and crashed in a forced landing.

Thrown clear and unhurt, but drenched with gasoline, Matheny rushed to the flaming plane where Canfield sat in a daze. His clothing in flames, Canfield ran for the open, to be tackled by his companion, who himself caught on fire.

Canfield, after smothering the fire on his own body, found him with the flames extinguished, sitting at the side of a r. ad. Canfield died that night from burns, while Matheny was confined to a hospital for three weeks.

Matheny is 26 years old, a graduate of Marquette university. He is stationed at Langley field.

The Cheney award was established in memory of Lieut. William H. Cheney, killed in 1918 in an air collision at Foglia, Italy.

Donors are Mrs. Mary L. C. Scofield, Peterboro, N. H., and Mrs. Ruth Cheney Streeter, Morristown, N. J., mother and sister of the officer. The award includes a bronze Plaque and $500.

The Soldiers medal was recently established as an award for heroism in time of peace.

Bravery brought two medals in four months to Lieut. William A. Matheny, young flyer. He is shown with the Cheney award which he won.

MOOSE CHARITY BALL FOR DOUBLE PURPOSE

Big Social Event and at the Same Time Will Aid Boy's Village at Mooseheart.

All persons who attend the Charity Ball to be given by Manchester Lodge, No. 1477, Loyall Order of Moose at the Masonic Temple on Friday evening, February 28, will be serving two purposes, that of giving themselves a most pleasant evening and aiding in the establishment of the new $300,000 Boys' Village planned at Mooseheart, Illinois—the Child City of the Moose.

For the entire proceeds of the Ball will be used to meet the quota subscribed to the "Boys' Village Building Fund," after a plea for support made by James J. Davis, supreme dictator of the Moose. Mr. Davis will broadcast over station WJJD several days before the ball, acquainting the radio audience with the child city.

The mission of the Moose Fraternity is a practical one. Orphans or dependent children of deceased members, totaling 2,500 are being cared for, educated and taught a trade, over 500 mothers and 600 old folks are given a home, care, and a new lease of life through the Moose service. Nearly 7,500,000 men, women and children hold membership in the Moose.

Bill Waddell's popular singing orchestra will play for dancing and refreshments will be served under the direction of Fred Behrend, chairman of the refreshment committee.

AFFINITY EARLE'S SUIT BEFORE JURY TOMORROW

Los Angeles, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Dolores Salazar's suit against Ferdinand Finney "Affinity" Earle, artist, for $80,000 damages for alleged breach of a pre-nuptial contract will go to the jury tomorrow. Counsel for both sides yesterday presented their closing arguments to the jury, after which court adjourned until Thursday due to today's legal holiday.

Roger Marchetti, attorney for Miss Salazar, in his closing argument branded Earle as "a monster love-maker—an artist in the art of making love as well as of painting—who used all his wiles to betray this little inexperienced girl from another country, and blast her happiness."

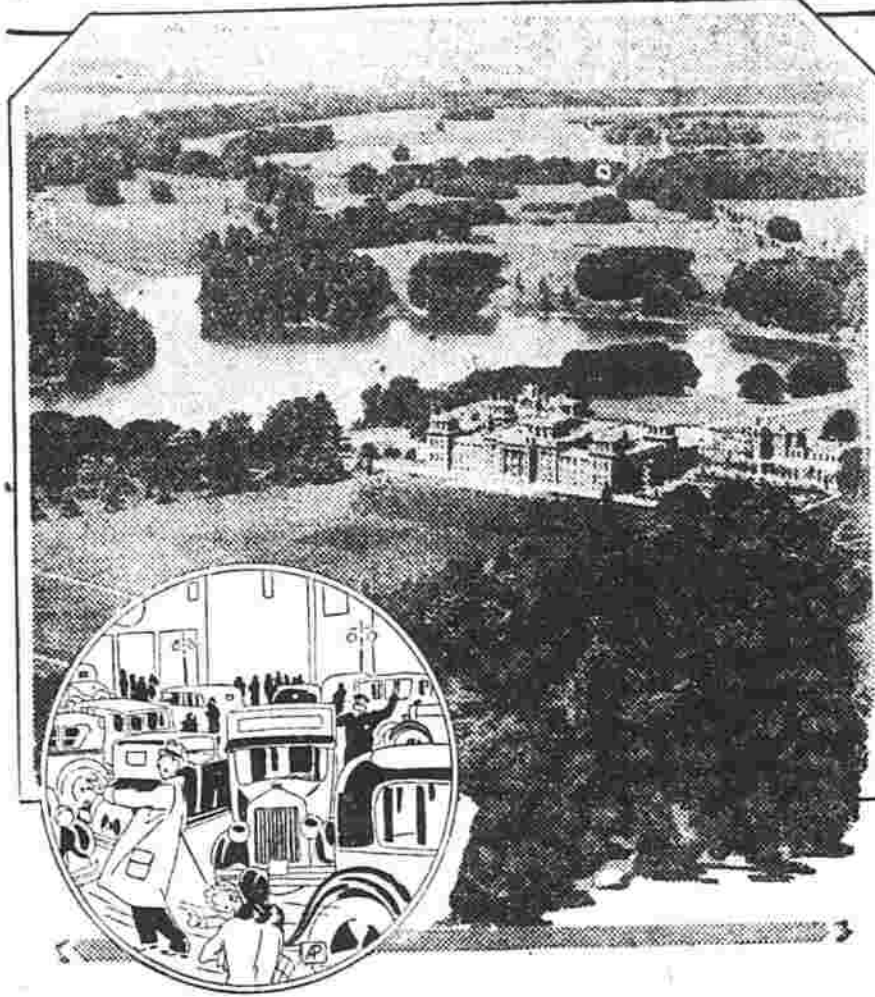

"Any man who likens a woman's virtue to a ripe peach which he said 'fell into his lap' is a supreme egotist," Marchetti said. "He has deceived other girls. Wasn't he married four, or was it five, times?"

William S. Ogden, Earle's attorney, declared the Spanish dancer had withdrawn from any contract she had with Earle when of her own accord she left the hotel where they were staying in Paris, France.

Miss Salazar had testified Earle ejected her from the Paris hotel, and turned her out penniless into a strange country.

The regular staff of the League of Nations at Geneva consists of about 1000 persons.

England's Autoless Park Gives Pedestrian A Break

Blenheim park, shown surrounding the palace, has been made a sanctuary for English pedestrians.

Oxford, England.—(AP)—Somebody thinks kindly of pedestrians, at least, and this time it's the Duke of Marlborough.

No pedestrians will ever be chased by motorists in historic Blenheim park, the 2,700-acre estate near here commemorating one of Britain's victories in the war of the Spanish succession.

The estate was the nation's gift to the Duke of Marlborough in 1705, in recognition of his crushing defeat of the French and Bavarians in the battle of Blenheim, Bavaria, in which 10,000 men were killed. Trees adorning the park are said to have been planted in the form of a map of the battle.

"I shall never allow cars or carriages to enter Blenheim," the present Duke of Marlborough has announced. "I am determined to preserve it as an open space, where the public can walk without fear of being destroyed."

The Duchess of Marlborough, it will be recalled, is the former Gladys Deacon of Boston, Mass. The Duke's first wife also was an American girl, Consuelo Vanderbilt, and the annulment of her marriage was a journalistic sensation in America some years ago.

SOIL AND BACKWOODS PERMEATE NEW BOOKS

"Pure Gold" and "Down in the Valley" Good Examples of Trend of Late Novels.

BY RICHARD MASSOCK.

New York.—Novels of the soil and the backwoods continue undiminished.

Extending chronicles of his countrymen in the northwest, O. E. Rolvaag, author of "Giants in the Earth" and "Peder Victorious," gets farther away from the motherland in his new novel, "Pure Gold."

Here Rolvaag has a vividly tragic tale of misadventure. From the meeting of Louis Houglum and Lizzie Oien at threshold through their marriage, to their sordid deaths, the couple's whole life together was changed by the idolatry of money, not for what it buys in comfort and richness of life, but for money for its own sake.

In tracing the growth of their addiction to hoarding money, which finally is burned without benefiting anybody, Rolvaag says he observes "what might happen and what, in many cases, actually does happen to an individual who has no tradition and no cultural background."

"We have," he adds, "plenty of them in America." Suffolk and Tennessee.

H. W. Freeman's passion for the soil shows itself again in "Down in the Valley" as it did in his widely read "Joseph and His Brethren."

The Suffolk countryside tugs at the heart of a city man until it brings him down into a valley farm to measure human relations. There his life is enriched and broadened, his instincts are given a more natural play and he develops a new gauge by which to measure human relations. Returning to America, T. S. Stripling, best known for his stories of the Tennessee backwoods, returns to that locale in "Backwater."

It is a tale of Old Bill Jack Murdoch, the local bootlegger, his son Jim and Mary Sue Meredith, daughter of aristocratic neighbors. Jim is banned from the social circles of his home community, although college bred and personally acceptable, because of his father's outlawed occupation. He falls in love with Mary Sue. Old Bill Jack Murdoch dislikes the idea of a match between the families as much as the banker father of Mary Sue.

Liberty. Away from these various settings of rural civilization, Blair Niles goes for her novel of exile on the French penal islands.

In the exotic jungles that surrounded the prison camp in her "Condemned to Devil's Island," she has placed the hero of "Free."

Stephen Latour was a liberator, a youthful "thrill murderer" who had served his sentence on Devil's Island, but was to remain in exile among others of his kind,eking out a hopeless existence.

With escape as his motivating aim, he had to decide between seizing the first opportunity or giving up his hopes to remain with the lovely Celeste. He seized the opportunity.

LINCOLN'S BIRTH

On Feb. 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln, 16th president of the United States, was born in a log cabin in Hardin County, Kentucky.

As a boy, Lincoln knew the hardships and privations of frontier life. All his schooling combined would probably not have made up more than one year.

After serving as a captain in the Black Hawk War, Lincoln ran for the legislature. Following his defeat and the failure of an attempt a little later to run a general store, he began the study of law.

In 1834 he was finally elected to the legislature and was re-elected two years later. About two years before his election to Congress he married Mary Todd.

As a representative in Congress, Lincoln found in the Senate a great rival in Stephen A. Douglas, with whom he engaged in several historic public debates on slavery. Nominated at Chicago in 1860 for president, Lincoln won the election. He was in office but six weeks when the Civil War broke out. Shortly after the battle of Antietam, in which the Union forces had the upper hand, the president issued his famous Emancipation Proclamation declaring he would, on Jan. 1, 1863, free the slaves of all the states then or thereafter in rebellion. Lincoln was re-elected, but his second term was cut short when he was mortally wounded by an assassin's bullet while he sat at Ford's Theater watching a play.

Chicago's Private Air Fleet Sweeps Southward to Dodge Winter's Blasts

Chicago — (AP) — Winter is pounding at some empty homes here this year.

Southward on the wings of a privately owned air fleet swept more than 200 Chicagoans when blasts began.

Office telephones ring in vain for the boss who may be found fluttering along the kindly coasts of Florida or over the sunny Caribbean.

In summer planes provide commutation between Chicago and the sunny loop and summer homes in northern Illinois and Wisconsin.

is equipped with two-way telephonic and telegraphic radio.

Mrs. James B. Simpson, the former Alicia Patterson of New York, daughter of the publisher, Joseph Medill Patterson, spends part of her winters piloting her father's land and water plane through the Antilles. Patterson also is a pilot and accompanies her.

William C. Grunow cruises with his amphibian along the Gulf shore near Biloxi, Miss. In the summer he uses the ship to commute to his summer home at Lake Geneva, a half-hour flight from Lake Michigan.

Charles R. Walgreen, drug store magnate, is spending the winter in Florida with his ship. In the summer he commutes in it to his warm-weather home in Dixon, Ill.

Many of the 200 Chicagoans who own their own planes, fly the ships themselves.

HINDENBURG RECEIVES NEW AMERICAN ENVOY

Berlin, Feb. 12.—(AP)—President von Hindenburg today received Frederick M. Sackett, new American ambassador to Germany, who presented his credentials at the presidential palace.

The new ambassador, after explaining that his mission was to create the best feeling possible between the United States and Germany, said:

"I have come to Your Excellency with a high esteem for your distinguished person, which typifies the high patriotism that is the embodiment of the German character. I bring with me a profound admiration for the achievements of the German people in the laborious tasks which have confronted them. At the same time I have a sincere conviction that German fortitude and industry will solve problems of the present and future and will constitute the guarantee of full faith and future success."

Employees of an East Hampton company are engaged in cutting witch hazel sprouts in the woods hereabouts. Many tons of these sprouts are being carried away to use in the manufacture of witch hazel extract. They go in truck loads, the land owners receiving a nominal price per ton for the privilege of cutting. In spots here and there the witch hazel undergrowth is said to be very abundant in the woods. The cutting and removal is said to benefit the woodland rather than the reverse, as it gives the young trees a better chance to develop when the undergrowth is thinned out. The witch hazel never grows to be a large tree.

LINCOLN

This is the one hundred and twenty-first anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. All over the country it is the annual custom of newspapers, on the 12th of February, to print editorials appropriate to the event. Each year it is becoming more difficult to write them. Each year this country seems to be a little farther than the year before from Lincolnism, to have less understanding of government and politics as Lincoln understood them.

For the Great Emancipator was the most tolerant and kindly of men and nobody is kindly or tolerant any more. It was Lincoln's greatest strength that he was never unalterably sure of his own rightness, that he was acutely conscious of his own liability to error. Now everybody is sure that he can't possibly be mistaken.

If Lincoln had been like almost all of us are nowadays he would never have saved the Union, he would never have achieved the end of slavery. Because Lincoln for a long time was convinced that because slavery was in the Constitution slavery must always be in the Constitution. "The right of property in slaves is sacred to the slave holding states under the Federal Constitution," he said. "The institution of slavery is founded on both justice and bad policy, but the promulgation of abolition doctrines tends rather to increase than abate its evils," he said again. "The Congress of the United States has no power under the Constitution to interfere with the institution of slavery in the different states"—these also are his words.

But the time was to come when Lincoln changed his mind—when he was to sweep it clear of these inhibitions and strike the shackles from the limbs of millions of human chattels.

There are not many Lincolns; there are not many Lincoln followers any more. Everybody, once he has committed himself to a social or political dogma shuts his eyes and grits his teeth and hangs on to it with the desperation of the drowning, reviling and hating those of opposite belief.

PERFECTIONISTS

A typical dry, writing in the Hartford Courant, says: "Let me emphasize once again the underlying truth; there is no solution of the liquor problem with liquor. The only solution—whether it take another generation or another hundred years of agitation, and millions and billions and quintillions of money—all this is unnecessary if responsible leaders of public opinion will but come to their senses and be loyal to their obligations—the only solution of the liquor problem is without liquor."

Now this utterance of this typical dry is important. It is as good a demonstration as we are likely to encounter of the philosophy of the thick-and-thin prohibitionist. It has the merit of being true. It is, indeed, highly improbable that there will never be a liquor problem so long as there is liquor.

Unfortunately, it is also true that there will never be a solution of the problem of life so long as there is death; that there will never be a solution of the problem of sin so long as humanity falls short of godship; that there will never be a solution of the problem of illness so long as there is poverty and un-wisdom in the world; that there will never be a solution of the problem of unhappiness so long as there are human passions.

This dry—and all those like him—are followers of the doctrine of perfection, and the perfectionist who labors under the delusion that he can achieve his goal by the sheer force of statute law and his own desperate desire is but one of a long procession of dreamers whose tossings and mutterings in their sleep have disturbed the serenity of the world through the ages but have had no effect whatever on the course of major human events.

Doubtless there can never be a complete solution of the liquor problem so long as there is liquor. And perhaps some day the human race will grow away from liquor as it has grown away from its second stomach and as the horse has grown away from its second and third toes. But the evolution from the second stomach did not come from the passionate determination of a group of tree-men to write it out of existence, nor did a single hoof come into being through an amendment to the political constitution of the equine race.

The willingness of this dry to spend quintillions of money to put over prohibition is not more fantastic than the rest of his propositions—even though, in his complete unrealism, he has named a sum infinitely in excess of all the money ever coined or earned or spent since the world began and greater than will be earned and spent and saved though it last as long again.

Shall we proceed to the spending of the quintillion—and shall we agitate for another hundred years? To what end?

ONE OF THE PROBLEMS

The decade of the 20's, only lately closed, was primarily one of enormous expansion. It wound up with a bang in the collapse of the stock market in October and November. There is a very general belief that the new decade will be marked by consolidation of America's industrial and financial gains, rather than a continuation of what might be termed the offensive of expansion.

We seem to be in for a period of readjustment, of bringing together and fitting into a smoothly running machine many parts of our economic system that have flown off at tangents and have gotten out of gear with the rest of our civilization. Stock prices were one part. Overproduction in certain luxury lines was another. Increase in the cost of state and municipal governments was, and is, another. These increases have been out of all proportion to the bona fide increase in state and municipal wealth. Taxes are one of the things that will have to be readjusted in the new decade. That means that state and municipal expenditures will have to be re-adjusted, brought into some relationship to what the people can bear. In turn that will mean, eventually, that the most prolific source of expenditure, the school system, will come under a new sort of scrutiny.

The American ideal of universal education has become hypertrophied. It has grown swollen and distorted. It is over-size and out of health. Sooner or later it will have to be operated on and a lot of wild tissue removed. Otherwise it will choke itself to death—and society with it.

Four boys, students of a junior high school in Bridgeport, broke into the building on Sunday, smashed windows, drilled holes in doors and desks, wrecked furniture, did $500 damage and, surprised by the janitor, hit him over the head with milk bottles and left him lying unconscious.

It is our belief that all money spent on the public education of that sort of pupils is utterly wasted. And the schools of every town in the country are loaded with no better cultural material, even though it is rather unusual for ingratitude and lack of appreciation to express themselves in just this way.

Our high schools are crammed with human material that cannot be benefited by a high school education. Our colleges are crammed with the product of the high schools. The professions are crammed with the product of the colleges—and so are our business institutions—in a tremendous number of instances with complete misfits. Meantime the average of intelligence, the average of real education itself, in this country, isn't a whit higher than it was half a century ago.

One of the readjustments of the new decade, if we are not fooling ourselves, is going to be in the notion that the country owes to every boy and girl a practically unlimited amount of schooling for which it is entitled to nothing, not even good citizenship, in return.

A STUNNING LESSON

The fanatic dries will learn nothing from the result of the Second Massachusetts district Congressional election where the bone dry Republican candidate polled 1,081 votes against 24,749 for the regular candidate, who had declared for the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, and where the district was lost to a wringing wet Democratic candidate who received 31,150. But if the Republican party doesn't learn something from this tremendous demonstration—following as does immediately on the heels of Representative Beck's historic warning speech in the House the other day—it will be because its leaders have lost their senses.

When the entire political strength of the dry extremists in a district that includes the hilly-white city of Springfield is about 1,100 votes out of a total of some 55,000, the folly of longer submitting to the dictation of this element if the party becomes little short of lunacy.

A BOUQUET

Let us gather our laurels while we may; even though, woven for our brow, they be handed to someone else to convince him of his undeservingness. The following letter written to the Springfield Union by John Shea of Holyoke caught our eye. Read it and crow while the crowing is good:

Sir: It appears to me that it is time for something to be done about the very inefficient way in which some of the highways in Western Massachusetts are looked after in the winter.

I travel a territory mostly in Massachusetts and Connecticut and cannot help contrasting conditions road from Holyoke to Hartford, especially in Agawam, practically no attempt has been made to scrape the road, leaving an ice-covered surface, dangerous even with chains while on the Connecticut side of the line the road is as clear as in midsummer. Why not send a few of our men to take lessons in road plowing from the Connecticut authorities?

I pay a gas tax of $50 to $40 a year and also a personal property tax (automobile) of $45, which surely should entitle me to the same benefits as are enjoyed by Connecticut drivers. If conditions are not improved, those in a similar position to myself should buy all their gas in Connecticut.

Well, if Mr. Shea and his friends want to buy their gas in Connecticut we know plenty of dealers who will sell it to them and plenty of places where the gas tax can be used on Connecticut roads. Some of it could be used on some direction signs at the North End to keep Rockville-bound drivers from landing in East Hartford.

Washington—Nearly half of us are buying luxuries or necessities on the installment plan, as nearly as government statisticians can figure out.

Furniture and house furnishings come into the home on the installment plan four times as often as clothing, which is our next most popular installment purchase.

These conclusions are based on a relatively small but unique survey conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics among the families of 506 federal employees in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, New York and New Orleans. The study was made for 1928, applying to all installments paid during the year.

It was found that 219 families, or 41.5 per cent, had made installment payments in that year. Among the other families, of course, were many which had used the installment plan at one time or another. It was found that about 60 per cent of the Baltimore families canvassed were paying installments, about 50 per cent of the Chicago families, 35 per cent in New Orleans, 35 per cent in Boston and only 26 per cent in New York.

Nearly all the families questioned were operating on an income of less than $3600 a year, the majority on between $2000 and $3000. But there appeared to be no relationship between the size of income and the extent to which goods were bought on the installment plan. Families with incomes of from $1500 to $1800 used it as often as those in the $2700 to $3000 group.

In a larger survey of which the one described was a part it was found that most of the federal employe families canvassed operated at a deficit, although some had surpluses at the end of the year. Subsequently it appeared that there were larger deficits among the families buying on installment than among the others, though some of the articles bought are "more or less of a permanent character and add to the family capital investment."

As indicating the relative importance of various commodities in the installment plan survey the bureau presents a table showing what and in the order of the frequency of the article. The number of families buying specified articles is as follows:

Furniture and house furnishings 137, clothing 28, radios 25, automobiles 21, musical instruments 20 (12 pianos, seven phonographs and one saxophone), stoves 16, washing machines 15, sewing machines 12, vacuum cleaners 12, coal 4. Among miscellaneous items one finds two installment purchases each for books, automobile tires, jewelry, electric refrigerators, awnings and furnaces and an investment in water spouting, a cemetery lot and a radio battery eliminator.

Paid $182 a Year
The average cost price of the articles paid on was $322 and the average amount of installment payment per family in the year was $132.74. The average installment-paying family still had $165 to pay on its article at the end of the year. The average price paid for automobiles was $584.14 and the average amount paid on the car in the year was $263.04. This applied to 21 families with an average income of $2885.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

OVERCOMING ACIDOSIS.

When a patient is told he is suffering from acidosis he usually makes a mistake of thinking that his blood is literally acid, but this is a mistake, for death occurs the minute that the fluids of the body become largely acid. If one is to go on living, the blood stream must remain slightly alkaline. When we speak of an acidosis, we simply mean that the alkalinity of the blood has been decreased. For some reason the equilibrium between the acid and alkalinity of the blood has temporarily been upset so that there is not the usual alkaline reaction in its full strength, but it has by no means been totally destroyed.

Acidosis is not a disease, but if the alkalinity of the blood is reduced, many diseases find it easier to gain a foothold. Among these are the infectious fevers, rheumatism, diabetes, mellitus, nephritis, arthritis, and the venereal diseases.

A simple measure for acidosis is to give a dose of sodium bicarbonate. The amount required to give an alkaline reaction of the urine in an ordinary person is from five to ten grams. However, when a person is suffering from acidosis he may have to be given several times this amount of sodium bicarbonate before there is any manifestation of alkalinity in the urine. As a usual thing, the body is well able to regulate the quantity of the blood stream so that the reaction is as stable as the body's temperature, but if through wrong living this control is not maintained, then the acid-alkaline balance is disturbed and a condition of acidosis exists. The body fortunately has several methods of eliminating an excess of acidosis, and it never stands passively by and allows the acids to gain control. One of the ways that the body defends itself from too much acid is what is known as the buffer action of the blood salts. Although an excessive amount of acid may be formed from eating acid forming foods, the phosphates and carbohydrates in the blood act as a check for the drastic change in the blood's reaction. In a healthy body they are able to keep the alkalinity up to par.

The body may also get rid of an over-supply of acid in two ways, either through the kidneys or through the lungs. The delicate brain center which tests the blood and controls the breathing is able to pick up the knowledge of an excess of the hydrogen ion in the blood long before a chemist is aware that any change has occurred. The slightest stimulation of the lungs so that they put forth an extra effort to take more air in and the carbon dioxide tension of the air in the alveolar sacs is decreased. This in turn brings about a reduction of the carbonic acid of the blood. If the acids are not in a form that can be oxygenated by the lungs, then it becomes the function of the kidneys and skin to come to the rescue and pick up the acid salts and eliminate them. This is the reason that the nephritic or in any disorder involving the excreting power of the kidneys we find that these acids are not eliminated from the body in a normal way. The acidity of the urine practically always increases when a condition of acidosis exists.

Another method that the body has of combating acidosis is the increase in alkaline substances which act as neutralizers of the acids. Normally the ammonia of the body is changed into urea, but in cases of acidosis this change is not consummated, instead, the excess of acid fixes the ammonia and prevents its change into urea and the ammonia is used to neutralize the acid. The increase of ammonia in the urine is a good indication that there is an increase of acid in the body.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Child Doesn't Talk.)

Question:—Mother writes: "I have a little girl 27 months old. She walked at 14 months, but hasn't started to talk yet. Would she be called a normal child? Is it unusual for a child of that age not to talk?"

Answer: It certainly is unusual for a child of 27 months to be unable to talk. You should have her case thoroughly studied by some physician who understands children's disorders.

Plastic Surgery.

Question:—R. B. A. writes: "In one of your answers you will say that operations in plastic surgery to reduce the size of the nose are dangerous. This is a surprise to me, as I was contemplating such an operation and had been given a very little danger involved. What are the dangerous features of an operation on the nose, as well as one to make the ears lie close to the head?"
Answer: There is always the danger of infections developing from any kind of surgery, so for this reason alone it is always wise to avoid any unnecessary surgery. The ears can be trained to lie close to the head through certain bandages which can be worn at night. These will be supplied you through beauty parlors or by a plastic surgeon.

(Insomnia.)

Question:—H. R. asks: "What do you think of the advisability of taking a little something to eat before going to bed to draw the blood away from the head and help overcome a tendency to insomnia?"
Answer: One way to temporarily overcome insomnia is to take a glass of milk or some other food just before retiring. This attracts the blood to the stomach and therefore away from the head and other extremities.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc.
55 YEARS AT SOUTH MANCHESTER

IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 12.—The biggest since then. Night resorts have come and gone. One of them introduced Ted Lewis and his band to the public. Another was headed by the stout Mr. Whiteman.

When a Chinese chop suey emporium moved in, it seemed certain that all the old Rectories would rise from their graves and lay it low. Now it's the Club Hollywood—one of the few night spots in the Broadway belt where they turn 'em away.

One of the large mid-town hotels has made a big hit with the out-of-town folks by leaving a copy of the home town paper at the room door each morning.

As soon as a guest registers, one of the clerks immediately sends a bellboy to a dealer who specializes in out-of-town papers. Upon leaving his room, the guest notices a publication which he assumes to be a New York paper. To his surprise he finds he has the home town news before him at breakfast.

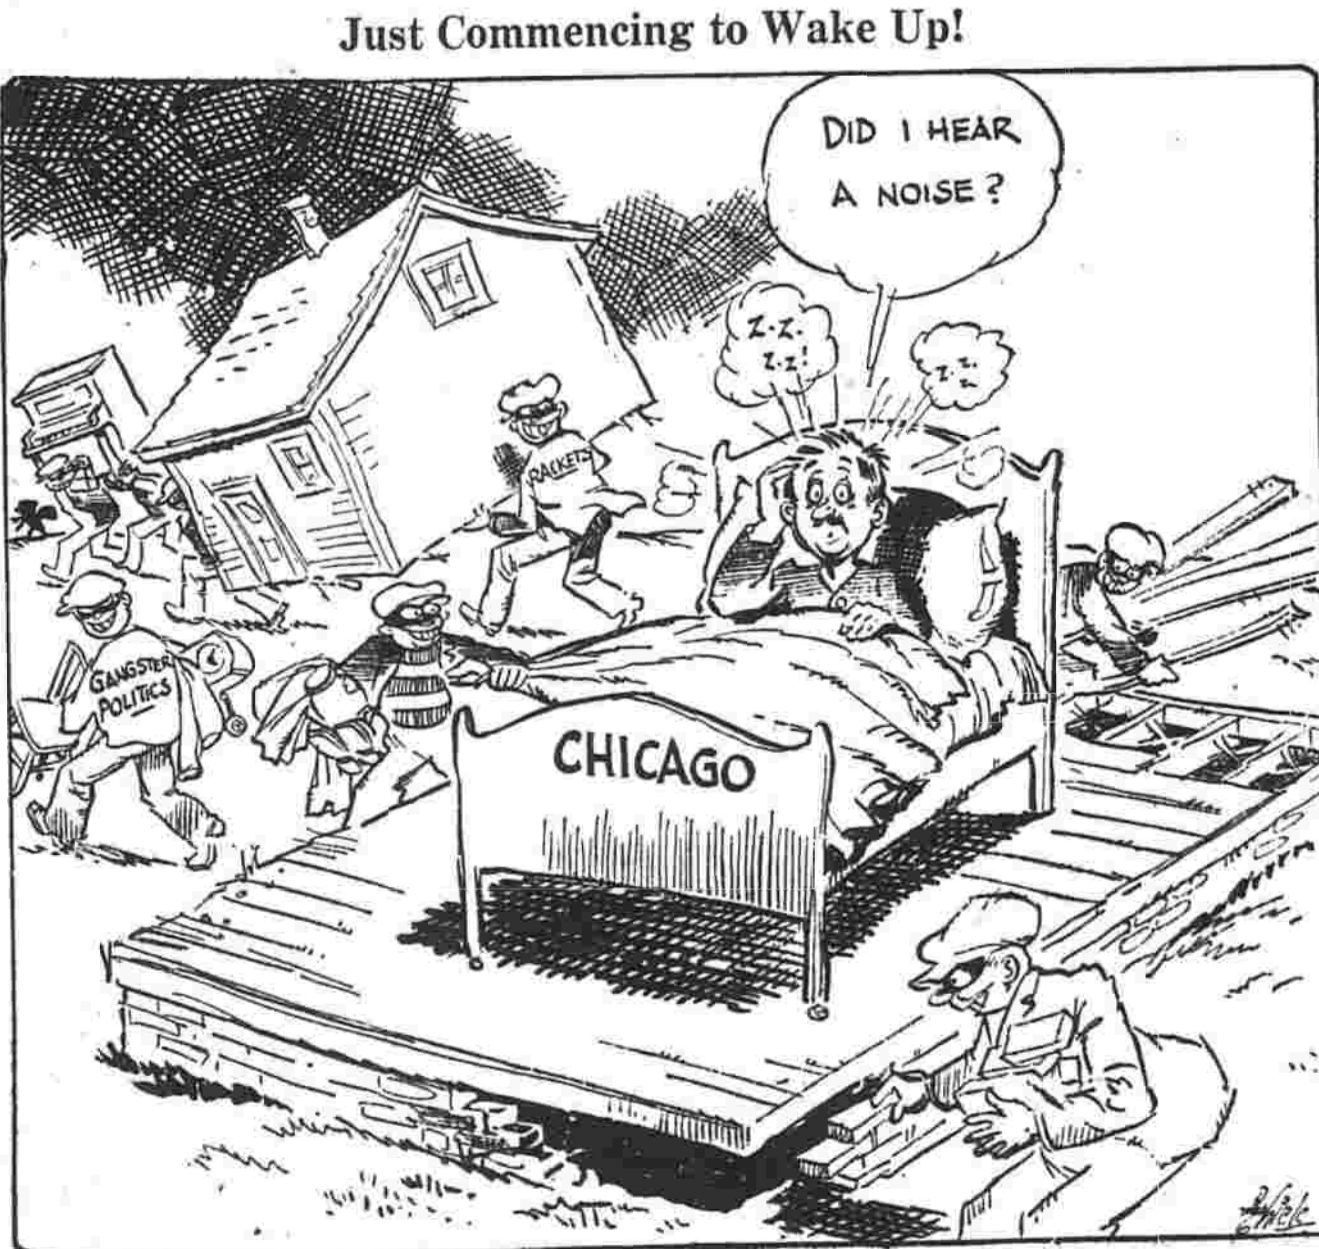

The other day, the army of wreckers which has been turning the old Waldorf Hotel into a bit of empty space, reached that subterranean cave where once had been stored the famous wines of the world, for which that hostelry was famous.

That pungent aroma which clings to wine cellars drifted up to the sidewalk and crowds soon gathered, standing at attention and sniffing the lost vintage perfumes of yesterday. Whereas, the wreckers themselves lingered long over their task, some all but forgetting the noon whistle.

Just Commencing to Wake Up!

Mother Sure Byrd Will Sail Safely Home

Winchester, Va.—(AP)—Admiral Richard E. Byrd will come safely out of the frozen south, his mother is sure—but when?

Freely confessing the eagerness of a devoted mother, Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, Sr., scanning news of the antarctic expedition with full confidence that "Dickie" can take care of himself should thick ice seal his ship there many months more.

Still "Dickie" he is to his mother, but a far-sighted, resourceful "Dickie" whose ability to win over danger doesn't worry her.

Her greatest anxiety is whether she will see her son this year. He has gone off on perilous expeditions before, but anxious moments have been fewer this time because constant radio communication with the expedition has been maintained.

Newspapers have been good to her, she says, in furnishing first hand news. On one occasion she spoke to "Dickie" over the radio and gave him her "tenderest love."

So Mrs. Byrd is optimistic over the return of her son this year. She feels confident that the unusual conditions which resulted in a thick ice pack will be overcome by the forces of nature and that "Dickie" will soon be at home with "Tom and Harry."

Thomas Byrd lives nearby in Winchester where he looks after the immense Byrd orchards and Harry, until a few weeks ago governor of Virginia, has come back to help Tom and to look after his two newspapers. "Dick" will be wearing a new suit this time, for he left a commander and returns an admiral.

While Mrs. Byrd looks forward to her admiral-son's return to Winchester, she doesn't expect him to stay home very long.

What new exploit he will undertake she can't predict—but there will be one, she's sure.

"Dickie" must always be doing something," she said. "But I don't let it worry me. He usually does it well."

"POINTED HEELS" HEADS STATE'S DOUBLE BILL

William Powell in Familiar Role—"The Aviator" Is Second Feature.

Helen Kane, William Powell and Fay Wray in "Pointed Heels," and Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller in the Warner Brothers Vitaphone production "The Aviator" are the feature attractions of the new program at the State today and Thursday.

After playing the lead in two murder mystery stories, William Powell returns to the type of role in "Pointed Heels" which brought him fame in the earlier films. In this production, he portrays a man of the world, a sort of urbane demigod who tries to break up a happy marriage of a show girl friend and her youthful coarser-husband. It is a perfect Powell role, and the suave William plays it to perfection. Helen Kane of radio and photograph record fame is co-starred with Powell. She plays the role of Dot Nixon, crooning singer of the song and dance team of Dot and Dash Nixon of which Skeets Gallagher is "Dash."

People who try to do heroic things with which they are entirely unfamiliar, are inevitably ludicrous, and in the uproarious farce-comedy, "The Aviator" there is one of those persons. The modest author of a non-inflammable eye-as author of a book of wartime flying experiences. This disturbing prominence is the start of a series of embarrassing, highly amusing situations, greatly enjoyed by an audience but terribly nerve-racking to Edward Everett Horton, who plays the lead in the picture. Patsy Ruth Miller has the leading feminine role, and the supporting cast boasts of such names as Johnny Arthur, Lee Moran, Edward Martindale and Kewpie Morgan.

QUIZ AT LECTURE ANGERS GENERAL

Speaker Offers to Fight Professor Who Debates on Our Foreign Policy.

Macon, Ga., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Addressing the Georgia conference on the cause and cure of war, Major General Frank R. McCoy, Fourth Corps Area commander, offered to fight a college professor last night because of the "tone" of questions which the educator propounded to him regarding the foreign policy of the United States.

After the meeting, however, the general was introduced to his questioner, Professor John D. Allen, instructor in journalism at Mercer University, and a conversation brought the incident to an amicable end.

The general delivered an address on "Certain Practical Peace Problems" dealing with the occupation of Cuba, the Nicaraguan intervention and the committee of inquiry and conciliation which adjusted the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute. He announced he would answer questions from the audience.

Questions Start
Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead of Boston, Mass., and Miss Jeannette Rankin, former member of Congress, asked several. Then Professor Allen arose.

"Does the Monroe Doctrine or the Constitution give the President the right to land marines when he wishes to do so?" he inquired.

"As Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy the President has the authority to land marines in any country," the general replied.

"Could the President, for example, land troops in Great Britain?" asked the professor.

"Yes, but he wouldn't," said the general.

To Protect Canal
"Does the United States wish to civilize the Latin American countries or does it wish to protect the Panama Canal, and if the first is true, does it intend to civilize them by occupying them with soldiers?" asked the professor.

"To answer your question I should have to make generalizations I do not care to make," the general said. "I don't like the tone of your questions, nor their insinuations, and I take it that you are insulting the government I represent and the uniform I wear."

"It happens that I wore the same uniform," said Professor Allen, "and I do not mean it as an insult."

"I consider it such," said the general. There are ladies here, but I would be glad to argue with you, or have a discussion with you, or have a fight with you."

The conference concludes its sessions with a meeting today.

SHE GOT HER UNDIES

Chicago, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Amidst many "qui, qui's," Miss Mary Louise Yorrese yesterday got back her silk underwear from M. August Satre.

Mademoiselle brought the things from Paris, and had them with her when she visited her sister, who is Satre's wife. Later she got a search warrant, found the articles and signed a warrant charging Satre with larceny by bailie.

The articles were held up for inspection of everybody in Judge Immenhausen's court.

"Are these yours?" inquired the court.

"Oui, oui," said Mademoiselle. "I think we may reasonably assume that they are," he told the young woman. "It hardly seems plausible that they are yours, Mr. Satre, and you are discharged."

"Merci, Monsieur," said M. Satre. "Mercy, nothing," the court replied. "It's simple justice."

Colored Barber Confidant Of Lincoln In Early Days

There are 100 heads of Abraham Lincoln in this picture. The collection was made by a life-long student of Lincoln and is now owned by J. H. Leitchy of Orrville, O., retired farmer.

By BRUCE CATTON, NEA Service Writer

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—Before Abraham Lincoln left Springfield to go to the White House, this home town of his held just two men who could claim to be his confidants.

One was his law partner, the famous William A. Herndon.

The other was a colored barber, William de Fleurville, known to the Springfield of that day as "Billy the Barber" or "Billy Rex."

A search of the yellowed old files of the Illinois State Journal and a series of talks with Springfield antiquarians established Billy the Barber's position as an unsung but picturesque character in the Lincoln drama.

Born in Haiti and raised in a Baltimore orphanage, Billy came to Illinois in the early '30's, tramping through the woods on a hunting trip one day he ran into Lincoln engaged in a similar errand.

Lincoln took him back to the Tavern at New Salem, where Lincoln then lived, gave him a dinner, and then, learning that Billy was a barber, put him to work cutting the hair of all the nearby males.

With the money thus gained Billy moved to Springfield, at Lincoln's suggestion, and opened a barber shop there—the first, it is said, in the state of Illinois.

When Lincoln moved to Springfield, Billy became his barber—and his confidant.

The ancient files of the Illinois State Journal contain Billy's ads. They were breezy and refreshing, like the following:

"Billy the Barber most respectfully begs leave to inform the public that he has recommended the old trade of reaping chins and clipping fore-tops."

In addition to his business as barber, Billy Fleurville carries on that of scouring coats and pantaloons, which he does in the best manner.

He also referred to himself as "Billy Rex," spoke of his shop as his "kingdom" and referred to one ward he came in to get shaved, and while he was in the chair my uncle said, "Say, Mr. Lincoln, I was surprised at that speech today. And Lincoln asked him what it was that surprised him, and my uncle told him, 'Why, you said if you were president and Congress passed a law declaring the black man the equal of the white, you'd be the last man on earth to sign it.'"

"Well sir, Lincoln just threw back his head and laughed, and he said, 'Spence, you're as big a fool as the Democrats are. And Spence asked him why, and Lincoln said: 'Suppose a law like that is passed. First the House passes it, and then the Senate, and then the cabinet deliberates over it, and last of all it goes to the president. Well, if I were president, I'd be the last man to sign it, wouldn't I? And he laughed and laughed and laughed."

Those old Illinois State Journal files make interesting reading. You find in them mention of Lincoln as a young man; his first announcement of candidacy for the legislature, a paragraph telling of his departure for the Blackhawk war, letters from him to the editor, accounts of his adventures.

One such letter, printed in 1832, sets forth Lincoln's platform in his campaign for the legislature. It was being proposed then to connect Springfield with some Illinois river port by railroad, at a cost of some $200,000.

Lincoln, remarking that there was "a heart-appalling shock accompanying the account of its cost which causes us to shrink from our pleasant anticipations," thought this too expensive, and proposed instead that the Sangamon river be widened, deepened and straightened instead so that steamboats could come to Springfield.

Lincoln was beaten in that campaign. A great many years later an engineer employed by the state of Illinois took the trouble to make a careful estimate of the cost of Lincoln's economy project. He found that the whole thing would have come to more than $10,000,000.

JOYCE WETHERED TO VACATE THRONE

British Women's Golf Champion Finished With Tournament Competition.

London, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Joyce Wethered, holder of the British women's golf championship, today stated that she would not defend her title at Forbury in May and furthermore she had finished with championship play altogether.

Miss Wethered who was seen at her home in Surrey, to which she has been confined with a chill, last May regained at St. Andrew's the title which she had let go by default four years previously. It was understood she had returned to the championship field then as a result of urging from the British golfing world that she protect the title against the formidable threat presented by the American star, Glenna Collett.

The retirement of this five-time holder of the British championship, comes at the comparatively early age of 28, but it is known that for some time she felt she was faced with too difficult a task in keeping up the standard of play expected of her by the golfing public.

In addition to Miss Wethered's retirement, it also was stated in authoritative golfing circles that Cecil Leitch, long one of England's leading women golfers, will not again be seen in premier championship play.

Wants No Idaho Spuds On Congressional Menu

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Representative Snow, of Maine, has started protesting and he says he'll keep right on protesting till he gets Idaho potatoes off the House of Representatives restaurant menu.

Not that Representative Snow objects to the serving of Idaho potatoes. Oh, no—it's potatoes propaganda, that he denounces in a loud voice.

"Several times lately," said Representative Snow, "I have found Idaho potatoes listed in red ink on our restaurant menu. I am not saying that Maine potatoes be listed in red ink. I am saying that the House menu is no place for propaganda in any form, and that no variety of potato should be printed in red ink."

Snow said he made his first protest "informally" to Representative Underhill, Massachusetts, chairman of the House accounts committee, which has charge of printing of the restaurant menus. If the offending red entry is not omitted, he said, he would carry the matter further.

You have a Doctor's Word for this Laxative

IN 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he treated many cases of constipation. He soon saw the harm in common purges and began to seek something better. Out of his experience was born a famous prescription now in wide use.

This prescription was written thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. Children like its pleasant taste. Older people like it because it doesn't gripe or cause discomfort. It is a mixture of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients; thoroughly effective for the most robust of men. Stimulates the normal muscular action of the bowels. So its use will not become a habit. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, biliousness, feverishness, or no energy, poor appetite, etc., are relieved by Dr. Caldwell's prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. All drug stores have the generous bottles. The product never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original formula. So you can take it with confidence or give it to the youngest child.

KATHERINE CORNELL'S NEW PLAY EMOTIONAL

Highly Dramatic Presentment
Pleasing Experience for Those Who Like That Kind.

BY DEMING SEYMOUR

New York—Ghosts of Ibsen's tragic presentments stalk through "Dishonored Lady," fashioned as a vehicle for Katharine Cornell by Margaret Ayer Barnes and Edward Sheldon.

It relates the white-hot story of a passionate heroine who poisoned one man so that she might marry another. For the suggestion of the plot, the authors acknowledge indebtedness to the notorious Madeleine Smith, the murderess of Glasgow.

Miss Cornell's role is that of Madeleine Cary, a fervid young woman to whose seductiveness Jose Moreno, an Argentinian cabaret singer of New York, succumbs. But when Madeleine meets a young English noble and falls headlong in love with him, Moreno threatens to reveal her past.

She goes again to his apartment, and when morning comes she powders his coffee with poison. He is put on trial for murder. Her cleverly concocted alibi falls to pieces, but an unimpressionable jury frees her.

The acquittal fails to wipe out her part. Madeleine, broken by knowledge of her guilt, sends away her fiance, and deserted by family and friends, stumbles on hopelessly.

The macabre tones of the play are fused by Miss Cornell into a compact whole as she casts her spell over it, and by such acting as only a few of our tragediennes are capable of, makes "Dishonored Lady" an emotional experience for any auditor willing to go along with the play.

Stewart's First Play

Donald Ogden Stewart has turned playwright with the specific purpose of giving Hope Williams something to shine in. His play is "Rebound," and Miss Williams shines in her own distinctive manner.

The most commendable qualities of "Rebound" are its humors, which are considerable, but he has underlaid his comedy with a thread of emotion—the emotion of a young woman who marries a young man on the rebound and faces the task of making him love her as she loves him.

Because the characters in the play belong to the upper stratum of society, humor and emotion are treated with base sophistication, and the play runs along with an evenness of dialog which becomes dull at times to those who like more obvious excitements in their plays.

But for Miss Williams, who came from Park avenue a couple of seasons ago to play a bit in "Paris Bound" and remained to distinguish herself last winter in "Holiday," it is a well-tailored garment in which she appears to advantage before her sizeable New York following. Mr. Stewart himself has a minor role.

Spite Fence

"The Boundary Line," by Dana Burnet, gets its title from the fence Dodo Fenway wants to build around the lawn and lives of herself and her husband. A cast headed by Otto Kruger and including Winifred Leonard tries valiantly to make the play soar, but never quite succeeds.

FIVE OFFICERS KILLED IN INDO-CHINA REVOLT

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Five French officers were killed and five wounded and five Annamite troopers were killed and six wounded in a mutiny of native riflemen at Yenbay, on Red River, 90 miles from here. Riflemen, aided by a number of civilian residents, tried to rush the camp, severe fighting occurred when the French loyal garrison attempted to repulse them.

The attack was made by 200 Tonkin riflemen accompanied by 60 native revolutionaries, all allegedly inspired by foreign revolutionary agitation. Airplanes are now trying to locate the mutineers, who have taken refuge in a forest between Yenbay and Phutho.

Another revolutionary movement occurred during the night of February 9 against the militia post in Hunghoa. Revolutionary organizations have been active in Indo-China for several months. Several leaders have been arrested and convicted. Firm measures will be taken to put down the present uprising.

Rash Romance

By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Judith Cameron, New York typist, marries Arthur Knight, secretary of the publishing house in which she is employed. Knight is a widower with a daughter, Tony, 18, in Paris, and a son, Junior, 16, at school. Their Bermuda honeymoon is interrupted by news that Tony is on his way back to America. Tony arrives and denounces Judith as a gold digger.

Tony is secretly continuing a flirtation with Mickey Mortimer, wealthy and married. When Junior comes home for the Christmas holidays he also meets Judith coldly.

Andy Craig, whom Knight has helped through college, takes a position with the publishing firm. He has been in love with Tony for a long while. In a fit of anger Tony tries to convince her father that Andy and Judith are carrying on an affair. Knight denies this but Tony tricks the pair into a compromising situation.

Tony's flirtation with Mortimer is revealed when they are arrested for reckless driving. Tony wins her father's forgiveness and promise of a trip to Miami. Preparations are interrupted when Knight comes home seriously ill. Dr. Shepard, the family physician, diagnoses the case as pneumonia. Two nurses are installed in the household, Junior is summoned from school. For several days none of the family is permitted to see the patient. The nervous strain begins to tell on Judith. At last Knight begins to recover.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII

Arthur Knight was going to get well.

Le March merged into early spring. Yellow sunlight, not yet warm enough to take the nip from chill air, showered its deceptive radiance over all out-doors. Sere brown shrubs became tufted with foliage.

Gradually since the tense strain of anxiety had lifted in the Knight household its members resumed their usual habits. The atmosphere of the dwelling changed. The home began to catch up with the world outside it.

Judith acquired the habit once more of walking for an hour or so each morning. On these expeditions Sandy always went along.

A faint tracery of color crept back into the girl's cheeks. The tragic, brooding look was gone from her eyes. She was still too thin but so improved in appearance that the doctor began to pay her compliments.

Each afternoon Judith spent several hours with Arthur. The two nurses, Miss Owens and Miss Malory, were still in charge. Their patient's convalescence was to be guarded against the least possible danger of a relapse.

There were flowers now in the sick man's room—a large bowl of tulips, usually, as well as fragrant topped hyacinths.

When Judith was there she sat in a low chair close to the bedside where Knight could see her without shifting on his pillow or raising his head. When he was tired of lying in one position the nurse lifted his shoulders and rearranged the pillows. Such effort was too much for the man's dwindled reserve of strength.

It was pathetic to see him lying so still and feeble, but after the anguished loneliness of the week past, to Judith this seemed a slight tax.

Knight's voice was barely above a whisper. He had been cautioned to spare himself even this exertion and most of the day he was silent. His brown eyes, though, remained on Judith whenever she was in the room. With her help over his grim opposition, so incapable of dealing with it! Now the boy—of his own will—had surrendered.

Was it too much to hope that Tony, who was his sister, would do the same?

Judith Knight pondered all this long after she had turned out the light in her room and slid beneath the covers. She drifted to sleep in a rosy glow of optimism.

Foolish Judith! One more she made the error of underestimating Tony Knight's endeavors. How little she dreamed that what in prospect appeared to be a peaceful future was to bring the bitterest blow.

At 3 o'clock next morning, after cardinal farquells had been exchanged, Arthur Junior departed for the railway station. Bert went with him, driving the large car.

Andy Craig came for Tony later in the day. Andy had proved himself a true friend throughout Arthur Knight's illness. He had called frequently for bulletins, always with an air of reassurance.

Judith had blessed him because he had occasionally been able to persuade Tony to stop moving about the house and go out with him of an evening.

This Sunday Andy and Tony went motoring in the girl's own roadster. Though the ban had not been lifted officially, Tony had taken to driving her car again.

Judith watched the pair disappear down the driveway. Then she mounted the stairs and entered Arthur's room.

He greeted her cheerfully.

"Miss Malory," said Judith im-impulsively, "it's a gorgeous day outside. Why don't you go out for a couple of hours? I'm sure I can get anything Arthur wants. He's had his medicine, hasn't he?"

The nurse smiled doubtfully.

"He doesn't really need me," she agreed, "if you're going to stay."

"Oh, I want to! Really, you might just as well be out enjoying yourself. You're willing to risk your fate in my hands, aren't you,

Arthur?"

Knight smiled and bowed his head slightly.

"Well, if you think it's all right—" Miss Malory countered.

"Of course I do."

"All right then, I would like to run into the city to see my sister

There's something—I mean I want to—I want to tell you something before I go back to school."

She looked at him, too surprised

swiftly:

"Christmas time I didn't want to come home when I knew you were here. I didn't even want to see you.

I wouldn't know—well, I guess

I can't explain the way I felt—but what I'm trying to say now is I'm sorry; I'm sorry I talked the way

I did and said what I did. I was—wrong!"

It was quite a long speech and an embarrassing one for the boy. Judith was thoroughly amazed by it.

There was no reply on the tip of her tongue. None came for a full second after Junior had finished speaking. Then she said eloquently:

"Oh—it's awfully generous of you to say that! Junior—do you mean we can be friends—?"

The boy appeared to be quite busy examining the strap of Sand'y's black leather collar. He nodded, ponding over the dog's name.

"O. K. with me," he said.

Judith's face was radiant. She longed to show by word or act how much—how terribly much—this truce meant. She wanted to slip an arm about Junior's shoulders and pray for just such news. She had wanted to tell the lad he could count on her, not to try to take a mother's place, but to offer him a home-like home, to listen to his confidences, to understand his problems.

Each of these impulses Judith suppressed. She was afraid of the way a 16-year-old youth would receive any show of emotion.

"It's O. K. with me, too," she said.

"Junior, when you're here Sandy'll be your dog just as much as he's mine."

"All right. Thanks."

Immediately she began to ask questions about the dog's care.

What Junior's opinion was on the merits of two different dog foods,

how to handle the weekly bath which to Sandy remained a terrific ordeal. The boy answered seriously. Suddenly, to Judith's great delight, she found that talking to Arthur's son was easy and stimulating. He really did not hate her.

He seemed actually friendly!

Judith was so overcome by this discovery that she could not keep from mentioning it.

She came over where the boy was sitting, knelt down beside him and put out her hand.

"Let's shake hands, Junior," she said. "I'm not going to forget what you've said tonight."

The boy gave her his hand awkwardly.

"That's all right," he told her.

"I really wasn't trying to be mean before. Seeing how bad you felt about Father being sick and all you've done for him sort of made me see things differently, I guess."

Judith smiled at him happily.

She did not spoil the moment by prolonging it.

"Why don't you go up and say goodnight to your father now?" she suggested. "I'm sure Miss Owens will be willing to break a rule since this is your last night at home."

just for a few minutes. I can be back I'm sure by four o'clock.

"Until four o'clock, then," said

Judith.

The nurse withdrew. Judith brought her chair a little nearer

Arthur's bed, sat down and reached out to clasp his hand. Knight's fingers twined about his wife's,

then lay still upon the counterpane.

"Tony's driving with Andy," she told him. "Isn't it nice—after so long—to have a little time all to ourselves, dear?"

She realized the minute she said it, that she ought not to be urging him to talk. Knight's strength was not equal to conversation.

He eyed her seriously.

"Yes," he said in a slow voice.

"Judith, there's something I want to talk to you about."

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

TREATING MILK WITH ULTRA-VIOLET RAYS RAISES VITAMIN D CONTENT

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

When it is discovered that irradiation of various food substances would result in increasing their content of vitamin D, experiments were at once begun in various places to test the effects of irradiation on all sorts of foods.

Because milk is one of the most important substances in the human diet and because milk is especially weak in vitamin D content, many investigators turned their attention to this substance. It was soon shown that irradiation, while benefiting the vitamin D content of milk, if continued for a lengthy period was likely to ruin the vitamin content of the milk.

Then it was discovered that a lengthy irradiation was not necessary to develop appreciable amounts of vitamin D in milk, particularly if the milk were exposed in a thin film to intensive ultra-violet rays from some powerful source, such as the mercury vapor quartz lamp or a powerful carbon arc.

It has been known for some time that exposure to ultra-violet rays will kill considerable numbers of bacteria and it was found that the bacteria in milk were reduced by this method although not completely destroyed, since of course the rays did not penetrate through the film of milk to all of the bacteria. It was also found that various types of milk differ in their capacity for activation, so that it was necessary to check the product after it has been treated with the rays to make sure that the rays have had their effect.

When the vitamin D potency of the untreated milk could be measured, the British investigators Nabarro and Hickman found that the power of the treated milk, after eight seconds, was nine times that of the untreated milk. Exposure for as long as thirty seconds did not appreciably influence the vitamin A potency of the milk. Tests of irradiated milk on rats show that it can be of value in preventing rickets in the rat and tests in the feeding of children weight indicated that they gained slightly somewhat more rapidly on the irradiated milk than on that not irradiated.

However, the whole question as to whether or not irradiated milk should be used as a regular part of the diet is one which scientists have not fully established. It is recognized that rickets represents a serious deficiency in development and that its control must be certain. By the use of cod liver oil, particularly that fortified with viosterol, one may be certain of the amount of vitamin D that the infant is getting. By the use of definite exposures to ultra-violet rays, one may be certain of the effects.

The whole subject of modification of food for health purposes is concerned in this question. When it comes to the prevention of a definite disease, such as rickets, it is better to be certain of the dose of the rickets-preventing substance than to rely on haphazard feeding with various irradiated foods.

For the child who has passed through the period of infancy without developing signs of rickets and for the adult who wants to be sure that he will secure the effects of irradiation and of vitamin D, the irradiated foods may offer a more simple and pleasant method.

SUCH A DIFFERENCE!

The WOMAN'S DAY

Peggy Joyce, of the diamonds and the sables, who has had four husbands and as many divorces, is the true optimist. She still believes there is to be found the ideal mate.

And when you read in her book, "Men Marriage and Me," just what she wants, and find out how reasonable her demands are, you wonder why every woman is wearing the golden wedding ring on her fourth finger, instead of the widow's orchids on her coat.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

Toasted sandwiches are in the culinary limelight just now and are not difficult to make. They are so versatile that they can fill almost any part and often will prove a boon to the unprepared hostess.

The club sandwich long has been popular and while it is made with toast, it is not properly a "toasted" sandwich. Another three-decker sandwich made with toast is the luncheonette sandwich which furnishes a meat course, a salad and a sweet. These are quite novel and are attractive for afternoon bridge refreshments served with coffee. Clever food combinations can be worked out—for instance, cold sliced leg of lamb dipped in mint jelly, fine-chopped celery and carrot with Russian dressing, grated coconut and shredded almonds in orange bavarian.

Left-overs can be used up attractively in toasted sandwiches. Each sandwich might be made of different combinations utilizing very small amounts of foods.

Technique Isn't Difficult The technique of the toasted sandwich is simple but rigorous. The outside must be crispy and hot, and the inside soft and cool. This necessitates intense heat to brown the bread without affecting the filling. If a broiler is used, heat the broiler chamber before beginning to toast the sandwiches. Place the closed sandwiches on the rack, close to the flame, and toast quickly to a golden brown, first on one side and then on the other.

Occasionally the filling is wanted hot, too, as in the case of toasted cheese sandwiches. A very hot oven or a lowered broiler flame accomplishes this satisfactorily.

Toasted rye bread and sardine sandwiches will appeal to persons fond of fish. Or chopped raw oysters seasoned with salt, pepper, lemon juice and a few drops of tabasco sauce may be liked.

The combinations are numerous since almost any filling liked in untoasted bread can be used for toasting.

How to Fry Sandwiches Fried sandwiches are closely related to the toasted sandwich. They can be made in the chafing dish or electric grill and provide a substantial snack for late evening.

Prepared in advance, they are fastened together with toothpicks and dipped in a thin batter of eggs and milk and browned quickly in butter or browned in butter without dipping in the batter.

The same rule for buttering applies to all sandwiches, hot or otherwise. Always butter the side of the bread next to the filling.

Sweet toasted sandwiches are delicious with tea. A particularly good filling that is quite unusual is made with cream cheese, strained sandwich may be of thinly sliced and buttered white bread and the other of whole wheat bread.

Honey Sandwich Filling One package cream cheese, 1 tablespoon softened butter, 1 tablespoon strained honey, 1 large tart apple, few drops lemon juice, few grains cinnamon.

Work cheese and butter together until smooth and creamy. Stir in honey, lemon juice and cinnamon. Add apple pulp and cut in very thin slices. Use to fill sandwiches.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The eccentricities of older people began to rare and tear about now are stop-look-and-listen signs regarding the children.

We don't notice our own faults or weakness but we have few friends who escape the fire of our observation when it comes to certain peculiarities. Just name them over. Hasn't every one of the persons we know something we don't quite approve of about him—a hasty temper, procrastination, a gossipy tongue, extravagance, over-sensitiveness, or something of the sort? When we think of it, some of them have two or three of them together.

These are the things that we want to train out of the children, or rather, that we want to keep out. I hardly think it necessary to repeat what we all know now, that about 75 per cent of child training is keeping out the weeds, and 25 per cent coaxing the flowers of character to grow.

Now the little lesson today was suggested by the story a man told. A certain firm decided to put its quota of money for the month's advertising into premiums.

It was one of the kind of ads where we clip out a coupon, fill in our name and address and ask for a sample of stove polish, cinnamon drops, black-eye remover or what have you? Only in this case there was an honest-to-goodness prize offered just for writing on the dotted line and mailing it in.

Now the prize was a nice handkerchief with your initial in colors. You could have any color you wanted. Moreover you could have either of two designs, a nice plain business-like Roman type R, M, or X, or whatever your initial might be, or you could have the same in impressive old English, just as you preferred.

Pay no money—merely take your choice. Either design in any color you wanted! There were the pictures right above the coupon, and all you had to do was to decide—blue Roman, green old-English, pink old-English or lavender Roman. Just make up your mind. That was all.

Surprising Result Well—a firm decision came in! The puzzled adsters at the end of a week pinched themselves to see if they were dreaming when the company offering the premiums

Philadelphia.—To prove that he was a good husband and to forestall his wife's petition to get $5 weekly out of him for the support of two children, James Savina got 31 husbands to sign their names to a document proving that he was a kind man. Regardless of this testimony, the judge ruled that Savina should pay.

Rec Team Victorious In Another Thrilling Finish

High School Hockey Team Beaten 5 to 2 In Overtime Battle

West Hartford Held on Even Terms During Regulation Periods But Tallies Thrice In Extra.

Manchester High was defeated 5 to 2 by West Hartford in an overtime hockey game at the Center Springs Pond rink yesterday afternoon. It was the second venture the locals have made in the popular outdoor sport, Meriden High having beaten the Silk City athletes 5 to 3 a couple of weeks ago.

Although hockey is a sport that is still in its infancy so far as adoption by state high schools is concerned, both schoolboy sets are giving a good account of themselves yesterday. It was a spirited battle in which the better team won only after a hard struggle.

Locals Score First

Manchester was first to score when Bill George took the puck out of a lively scrimmage about fifteen feet in front and to the side of the West Hartford goal and drove it into the cage. Bill Morrissey missed an excellent opportunity to equalize just before the period ended when he had the puck unattended in front of the Manchester goal. His shot was both wide and high—unusually wild for such close range.

West Hartford pressed hard in the second period but found Manchester's defense so stubborn that it resorted to long desperate shots. The twelve minutes had nearly elapsed before Morander slipped in a neat shot from a difficult angle unaided. A moment later the energetic "Buddy" Kerr put Manchester back into the lead with a swift drive that glanced into the cage off the goalie's skate.

Klein Saves Many

The visitors kept pounding away at the local goal in the third period but splendid work by goalkeeper Walter Klein stopped many would-be points. Halfway through the period, however, Klein allowed a long shot by Tommy Kane from mid-ice to slip out of his grasp just over the line.

In the first period of the two five minute overtime periods, Art Sullivan, left defense for the visitors, tallied with a long shot that bounced over Klein's gloved hand. In the second chapter, Bill Morrissey made the best shot of the game, a long, hard high drive that hit the top post and glided in.

More Experienced

Just before the time expired Captain Harold Morander gave West Hartford its final goal when he took the puck unaided through the Manchester defense and easily passed Klein. It was West Hartford's third game of the season and the visitors plainly showed that they were more experienced.

Loomis Institute defeated West Hartford 3 to 1 and Enfield High played them to a 1-1 tie. Manchester has no more definitely scheduled games but will play Meriden and West Hartford again and also meet the second team from Connecticut Agricultural College, the matches to be arranged at the last minute, so to speak, due to the impossibility of foretelling the ice condition.

MAJORS TO FETE OLD TIME STARS

Heroes of Gridiron Battles in Years Gone by to Be Guests at Banquet, Dance.

If social functions mean anything, the Majors are going to be very active on the football field next fall. Several such affairs have already been held, the main idea being to keep the ball-rolling in preparation for the 1930 gridiron season.

Today comes word that there will be another gathering at the firehouse at Main and Hilliard streets on the night of February 19. This will be for the members of the Majors, present and past—in other words for the oldtimers as well as the stars of today.

Everyone who has ever played football with former north end gridiron representations is cordially invited to be present. Chef Jim Dwyer, who used to be something of a football player himself in the good old days gone but not forgotten, will be on hand to provide one of his fine roast beef suppers and there will be the usual popular modern and old fashioned dancing afterward.

The last affair of this kind which the Majors held was in the form of a farewell to Dr. A. B. Moran, club president, who has departed for Baltimore to continue his medical study.

BATTLING NELSON CHALLENGES WHITE

Chicago, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Shades of Goldfield and Reno Battling Nelson is yearning for a ring comeback.

No sooner had the former world's lightweight champion read about Charlie White's comeback campaign than he thrust out his chest and challenged him.

"If White is good enough to come back so am I," the once durable Dane said. "There is many a good sock in these lists of mine and the fight promoters who are digging the cemeteries for good fighters can throw away their spades."

Nelson wants to meet White in the latter's comeback try at the Coliseum, Feb. 21.

HIS MOTHER'S LOVING SON

ART (THE GREAT) SHIRES might be a pain in the neck to some sports fans—but to Mrs. J. J. Shires of Italy, Tex., he's a loving son. Pictured above in the "front parlor" of the Shires home is the mother of the baseball and fistic hero, with her boy, C. Arthur Shires. The great one is basing his parents until time to report for spring training with the Chicago White Sox, with whom he functions as a commendable first baseman.

AN OLD TIMER'S SCRAPBOOK BY TIM McGRATH

Frank Klaus Was a Game Battler, But This Time He Was Frightened

Frank Klaus was as game a fighter as ever rubbed his shoes in the old resin box—but I saw him frightened nearly to death once. That was in 1912, when Frank Engle brought Klaus, then the leading contender for the middleweight title, out to the coast to fight Sailor Petrosky. I was signed on as a trainer, and before settling down to work, I took Klaus for a drive in my car.

We wound up in the Stockton Insane Asylum—wait a minute—just to have Klaus meet the superintendent, Dr. Clark. We were being shown through the institution. Klaus was walking at the rear of the party. Back of him walked a huge, muscular man, who started following us around the asylum.

After most of our party passed out of a padded room, the door suddenly shut, and a lock snapped. Klaus and that big guy were inside. I yelled to Dr. Clark; he frantically unlocked the door. Klaus was unhurt—but perspiring.

A little later, while we were lunching with Dr. Clark, Klaus suddenly looked up to see that same man looking at him through a window. This time Klaus let out a yell, and we made our farewells in a hurry, deciding to just get out of there.

Just as we had finished this second lunch, and were all calmed down and about to get in the car, Klaus felt a snap on the back and turned around to see the same huge man again. This time Klaus almost passed out.

"It's all right, Mr. Klaus," said the big guy. "I've been trying to get a chance to tell you you were in no danger when we were locked in that padded cell. You see, I'm a guard at the asylum."

Local Sport Chatter

Meriden High is banking heavily on trimming Manchester here Friday night and thus go into a tie with Bristol for the C. C. I. L. leadership, but it may get another surprise. Manchester beat Meriden down in the Silver City 17 to 12 and although Meriden has a good chance of again putting the skids under the Barkmowites.

The mere fact that Meriden beat Bristol doesn't necessarily mean that Manchester is going to lose to Meriden. The locals have a mighty good team—except when facing Bristol—and fans who travel to the State Armory to get a glimpse of the team good enough to beat Bristol, may get a neat surprise package in the form of a Silk City victory.

Time was when Clyde used to be one of the strictest basketball officials in the state outside of Dick Dillon, but judging from last night's exhibition, he is slipping. It is true many fans like plenty of personal contact, but that element surely got its money's worth last night when Boggans' work the week before was much better.

Billy Halstead and Junior Prentice, youthful members of the junior boxing class at the Rec, furnished the fans at the basketball game last night with a real treat when they boxed three one minute rounds between the two games. Many were amazed at the progress the two Dillon but judging from last night's exhibition, he is slipping. It is true many fans like plenty of personal contact, but that element surely got its money's worth last night when Boggans' work the week before was much better.

The practice sessions for the Rec swimming teams—both men's and women's—will be held this evening at the East Side building.

Captain Sher Bissell of Trinity who was held scoreless while his opponent scored six times in the defeat by Wesleyan, last night tallied taken into camp by Mass. Aggies at Amherst 25 to 19.

Robins Strengthen The New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins have made the first important move toward strengthening their team by buying two star infielders, Gordon Slade and Neal Finn, from the Missions Club of the Pacific Coast League. The Robins paid $85,000 in cash and a player to be named later to the youngsters, it was learned yesterday.

Ruth in Condition Chicago, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Take it from President Ernest S. Bernard of the American League, Babe Ruth is going to worry a lot of pitchers next season if he comes to terms with the Yanks.

Babe is in such trim that he is a certainty to have another banner year and a big crop of home runs' and glory here tonight at the fifteenth annual indoor track and field meet of the Meadow Brook Club.

CARNERA WINNER ON KAYO AGAIN

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italy's man of magnitude for the fourth time has shown his punching ability to an American ring audience. He sent a swift right to the jaw of Buster Martin, Tulsa, home policeman last night and ended what was to have been a ten round contest after 56 seconds of the second stanza had elapsed. Martin was on his feet during the two rounds but minutes of the next four he was carried out after Carnera made an effective contact.

HACK WILSON WINS SUIT FROM MILKMAN

Chicago, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Lewis "Hack" Wilson, fighting cock of the Chicago Cubs, is free at last from all the trouble his swinging fists have stirred up on and off the baseball field. The final case against him was decided in his favor yesterday by Superior Court judge who acquitted him of charges of assaulting Edmond Young, a Chicago milkman, and rejected Young's suit for $20,000 damages.

Flanked by seven witnesses, Wilson won his case in short order. The milkman charged that the Cub out-fighter beat him severely during the Cub-St. Louis Cardinal game June 21, 1928. The jury deliberated only 25 minutes.

BRUINS WIN 27TH OVERCOMING LEAD

Boston, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins, world's hockey champions, had their 27th victory out of 32 games today after a thrilling 5-2 overtime win from the Toronto Maple Leafs last night in the Boston Garden.

Coming from behind in the last three minutes of play, the Bruins counted twice on tallies by Clapper and Shore unassisted and also scored on win. Clapper also scored unassisted, raising his total of 29 and remaining top scorer of the league.

TELLS MERCHANTS SUCCESS IS DUTY

Doing Business at a Loss Unfair to Community, Says Elmer Weedon.

Elmer Weedon, comptroller of the J. W. Hale Company, introduced the fresh viewpoint of a comparative newcomer into the counsel of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce last evening, when he was the principal speaker at the monthly meeting and dinner of the Division held at the Hotel Sheridan. His address was very attentively listened to. Afterward, at the business session of the Division, a decision was reached to establish a date of Thrift Day from Tuesday, Feb. 18, to Saturday, Feb. 22.

The subject of parking was discussed after a tentative recommendation had been made by Chairman Herbert House as emanating from the executive committee. The nature of the plan was not made public as it was not agreed on and the executive committee was finally empowered to discuss the matter with the Police Commissioners and bring in recommendations for action at the next meeting.

Mr. Weedon's address was as follows: "When I was asked by Mr. Herbert House to address the merchants here tonight, and I agreed to the job, I did not fully realize the task that I had committed myself to. It is one thing to jump into a town, give a talk and then jump out, but when you have to give a talk to people with whom you come in contact 365 days a year it is an entirely different job. However I will try to give you a message based on my experience with over 500 departments and specialty stores in all parts of the country.

"As a merchant naturally in business for the profit that can be derived from it. We are however too often concerned with today's profit and let tomorrow's take care of itself. We should realize that we are in business not only for today and base our plans accordingly. The merchant of today is just as much a public service corporation as any of the concerns which we ordinarily include in that classification. Without him the community can never grow, he is the backbone of any town and his loss is a loss to the community as a whole.

Operating at a Loss "Conducting a business at a loss is an offense against your community. Your community is entitled to permanency from those who ask its patronage. Without net profit there is no permanency. It is an offense of the first degree against your competition. How can he conduct a legitimate business with a feeling of security toward the future if you continue to rock the boat. It is an injustice to those associated with you. There is but one future for a constantly losing business and your associates deserve a better future. It is an admission of weakness on the part of management itself. In a highly competitive industry there is always room for the strong. It is only the weak that play a losing game.

To Serve and Gain "If this is true, and it certainly has been found to be the truth, how can we best serve the community and at the same time make a legitimate profit for ourselves. We are all familiar with the golden rule of merchandising which is to have the right merchandise at the right time and at the price people want to pay for it. If this is the goal of every merchant, what is the best way to arrive at this goal?

"There is only one way for the progressive merchant to get this information and that is through reports and statistics. Today, the up-to-date merchant would no more think of carrying on his business without merchandising statistics of his own and there past experience than would the captains of sailing vessels set sail on an ocean voyage without charts and compass.

Retail Inventory System "Some fifteen years ago there was introduced into retailing a simplified accounting procedure which became known as the Retail Inventory System. Many of you today have adopted this system in your stores and realize its worth. You who have not used this system will do well to study it and apply it to your own business. When this new method was first introduced, it was frowned upon by many merchants who felt that it was entirely too costly and that it emphasized too much the bookkeeping side of the business, and that they were in business primarily to sell goods and not to keep books. They soon found, however that the information which it disclosed, saved them considerable in losses and more than paid for itself in the information that it revealed. The retail inventory system gives the merchant at all times the amount of stock at retail broken into as fine a classification as he desires.

Knows Gross Profits "With this system he knows at all times what his gross profit is, not only for the whole store or by classes of merchandise. This enables him to discontinue those lines which are not profitable and to endeavor to increase those departments which are the most profitable.

"The addition to the retail system the up-to-date merchant should have not been right. I could tell numerous examples of what the retail inventory system has accomplished towards making many stores go from red to black.

"Measured by the standards of industry demands, where do we stand today? Where do you, each of you individually, stand today? Where will you stand in 1935? Let us examine the records and determine not only our present position, but also the general directions of our trends.

The Customers' Dollar "In 1923, the average operating costs of the large department store was 28.4 per cent, and the net profit was 3.6 per cent. In the past five years, the trend of the cost of doing business has been upward and we find that the increase of 3 per cent brings the operating costs up to 31.4 per cent. Looking at the 1923 picture from the viewpoint of retailers, we find that the consumer's dollar was divided as follows: "68 cents went to pay for the merchandise. "28.4 cents represented operating costs. "3.6 cents represented net profit to the retailer.

"Now let us compare this picture with operating conditions in 1927. "The customer has been induced to exchange her dollar for 66.9 cents worth of merchandise, rather than the 68 cents worth she got in 1923.

"Operating costs have so increased that this now absorbs 31.4 cents of the consumer's dollar rather than the 28.4 cents of 1923. "While the retailer of 1923 retained 3.6 per cent of the consumer's dollar, he now must be satisfied with 1.7 cents; at least he accepts it. I will leave it to you as to whether or not he is satisfied.

The Future "Now what does the future promise if we are to be guided by the trends? In 1923 a retailer dollar's worth of merchandise cost 68 cents; 1924, 67.9 cents; 1925, 67.8 cents; 1926, 67.4 cents; 1927, 66.9 cents. What does the future hold in this respect? In five years, this figure has dropped 1.1 per cent. These have been the years of merchandise men, hand-to-mouth buying, group buying, mergers, chains, price lines, unit stock control, etc. If, by perfecting our merchandising mechanism, this trend can be continued for the next few years, we would find that approximately 65 cents of the consumer's dollar of 1935 would go to purchase the merchandise.

"In 1923, 28.4 cents of the consumer's dollar was devoted to operating the business; 1924, 30.1 cents; 1925, 30.3 cents, and 1927, 31.4 cents. If this trend is extended to 1935, we would find that operating costs will absorb approximately 37.5 cents of the consumer dollar."

SEEK BEST GOLF GRASS Yorkshire, England—Golfers will benefit by an experiment being carried on by a group of business men here. They are seeking the best kind of grass for golf greens that can be obtained, and as a result of their search, grass from Oregon, Rhode Island, New Zealand, France, and other countries are being tested here.

ANIMAL "NIGHTMARE" London—In the "Aye-Ayes," the London Zoo has a pair of the weirdest animals in the world. They have been referred to as the animal "nightmares." They are about the size of a cat, have large bushy tails and a head resembling that of a bat. The body is covered with long streaked fur. Its middle finger resembles that of a human. They are great egg eaters.

MOWING THE SEA Los Angeles—Modern harbor floors have to be kept clear of kelp and other seaweed and this is done by a sea "lawn-mover." The "mower" is hauled by a boat, and dropped to the ocean bed by chain and rope. The blades, revolving on an endless chain, work similar to an ordinary lawn-mover. The growth is
