

PARENTS START PANIC SEEKING BLAST VICTIMS

Sixty Children Injured, 10 In Hospital, When Explosion Wrecks House Opposite Brooklyn School.

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Ten school children were rushed to hospitals suffering from cuts and bruises and some 40 or 50 others suffered slight injuries today from an explosion which wrecked a nearby one-story brick building and shattered windows in Public School 83, at Bergen street and Schenectady avenue in Brooklyn.

At one of the hospitals it was said the condition of two of the children was critical.

Wild Rumors.
The blast, heard over a wide area, caused rumors to spread that a bomb had exploded at the school and a crowd of parents, estimated by police at 5,000, swarmed to the school to seek their children.

Some of the excited parents managed to slip past police reserves and into the building frantically shouting the names of their children, but by that time all of the children had been led from the school rooms.

The explosion occurred in a one-story brick building directly across the street from a new wing of the school building. The force of the blast demolished the one-story building and shattered all the glass and ripped out the woodwork of the windows on the Dean street side of the school.

2,000 in School.
About 2,000 children were in the school and about 900 of them were on the Dean street side of the building. Approximately half of the 900 were in the assembly hall, the remainder having gone to their classrooms.

Maurice Garfinkel, principal of the school, was in the basement at the time of the explosion and attempted to turn in a fire alarm, but found the alarm device had been put out of order, presumably by the explosion. He then hurried to the building and the pupils were quickly assembled and led in orderly procession to the street.

Some of the injured children, however, were unable to march out with their companions, and were carried, attracted by their cries, soon carried them out.

Five ambulances were summoned from nearby hospitals and two police emergency squads were called.

COUPLE MURDERED ON BRONX STREET

Four Gunmen Shoot Woman and Her Escort; Man Had Long Police Record.

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A woman identified as a dance hall hostess and her escort were killed early today by four gunmen who alighted from an automobile, chased them when they fled in opposite directions and shot them down.

The killers escaped in their automobile.

Several hours after the shooting the body of the woman was identified as that of May Smith, 24, who came to New York more than a year ago from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and had been employed as a dance hall hostess. Her escort was Carl H. Barell, 30, of the Bronx, who police said was known in the Bronx as a gambler, and had a criminal record dating back to 1919.

Start to Flee.
Barell and Miss Smith had just left Barell's car at a garage and were walking along Broadway avenue in the Bronx when an automobile drew up to the curb beside them. Four men alighted and Barell's companion turned her head, screamed and ran north. Barell fled in the opposite direction.

Two men chased each of them from behind along running a few feet and, standing over her, the slayers fired four shots, one of which pierced the back of her neck and the other lodged between her shoulders blades.

Man Killed.
Meanwhile other two men chased Barell to a ramp leading into a service garage and fired five shots at him. One struck his chin and another entered his chest.

A negro washer at the garage where Barell left his car placed the woman in a taxicab and started for Morrisania hospital, but she died enroute. Barell was dead when an ambulance surgeon arrived.

The woman was fashionably dressed and wore two expensive diamond rings. Her body was identified by Betty Leu, also a dancing instructor, who told police she believed the woman was a divorcee and the name Smith was that of the woman's step-father. Miss Leu said she knew the dead man merely as "Mino."

WOMEN SCORE DRY LAWS AT THE OPEN HEARING

Mrs. Mary Norton Says Voters Should Be Given Chance to Present Views On a Dry Referendum.

Washington, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A group of calm but determined women today raised their voices on Capitol Hill in protest against prohibition and as soon as they had presented their views, William Cabell Bruce of Maryland, a former Senator and a caustic critic of the dry law, spoke out for an immediate change in the prohibition statute.

Appearing at the second day of hearing by the House judiciary committee on resolutions proposing either repeal or a referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment, the women argued that the time had come when the electorate should pass by ballot upon the dry law. Bruce had just started his testimony when the committee recessed over the noon hour.

All Wet Arguments.
Today's session, like that of yesterday, was given over entirely to those opposed to prohibition. Its friends will have an opportunity later to present their side of the case.

Frequently testimony today was interrupted by applause and time after time Chairman Graham of the committee had to admonish spectators to restrain their emotions.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, a Democratic representative from New Jersey, was the first witness. She has pending a resolution to authorize a referendum on prohibition and ar-

SAYS HUGHES DREW SHOALS CONTRACT

Witness Before Lobby Protesters Tells of Efforts to Sell Big Power Plant.

Washington, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Testimony that Charles Evans Hughes whose confirmation as chief justice of the United States is before the Senate, drew up the proposed contract whereby Muscle Shoals would be turned over to the American Cyanamid Company, was presented today to the Senate Lobby Committee.

Legislation is now before Congress to accept the Cyanamid company's bid for the Shoals power and nitrate plant.

W. G. Waldo, consulting engineer of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, was on the stand today and a memorandum written by him read before the committee said he had been informed by J. O. Hainna, vice president of the Cyanamid company, that Hughes had drawn up the contract.

JAPS WILLING TO DECLARE A SHIP HOLIDAY

Would Quit Building Warships Until 1936 and Cut Down on Tonnage and Calibre of Big Guns.

London, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Japanese delegation in a statement given out this afternoon, declared that Japan was ready to accept a holiday in battleship construction until 1936, to reduce the tonnage of battleships to 25,000 tons and to reduce the maximum calibre of guns to 14 inches.

The statement, which has been eagerly awaited in view of the British and American announcements of naval aims, said that Japan also was ready to agree to the prolongation of the life of battleships from twenty years to twenty-six years.

Japan attaches special importance to cruisers armed with 8-inch guns and wishes to maintain "the minimum force sufficient for the needs of national defense, taking into consideration the forces possessed by other powers."

Maximum Tonnage.
The maximum tonnage of 6-inch gun cruisers should be from 7,000 to 7,500 tons and that of flotilla leaders and destroyers should be equally limited, the statement said.

The age limit of cruisers was suggested at twenty years and that of destroyers at sixteen years.

Some necessary adjustments to Japanese proposals, the statement said, that because of the geographical location of her country the submarine is necessary as a means of defense. At the same time Japan will cooperate with the other powers in strictly regulating the employment of submarines against merchant marine.

Japan proposed to limit its submarine tonnage to its present force. The dimensions of submarines should be fixed at thirteen years.

Another suggestion was that the treaty with regard to airplane carriers should be extended to vessels of this class of less than 10,000 tons.

The memorandum further suggested that the age limit of airplane carriers of more than 10,000 tons should be prolonged to twenty-six years but should be fixed at twenty years for other types.

With regard to vessels of special classes Japan said it felt that she must have a force proportional to that of other powers but that she was willing to reduce her power "in so far as the forces of other powers were reduced."

London, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Great Britain bases her hope for world peace on the Briand-Kellogg pact, and "looks forward to a period in which armed conflicts need not be expected" and on these grounds can limit her cruiser fleet to fifty instead of seventy. Prime Minister MacDonald told the House of Commons today.

The MacDonald statement was drawn by Stanley Baldwin who, as opposition leader asked why Great Britain's cruiser standards had been changed by the Laborite administration.

Mr. Baldwin also inquired what

NEW BRISTOL BANK CLOSES ITS DOORS

City Deposit and Discount Co. Suffers Loss Through Its Investments.

Bristol, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The City Deposit and Discount Company, opened a little more than a year ago, failed to open its doors today. Losses suffered through allegedly poor investments, are believed to be responsible for the bank's failure.

State Banking Commissioner Lester E. Shippee assigned the bank's business to the Bristol Trust Company for the purpose of liquidation.

According to a statement issued by Shippee, a recent examination conducted by examiners of his department disclosed losses which apparently impaired its capital and surplus. Securities immediately saleable, however, the statement said, are sufficient to pay depositors. The loss, therefore, it was said, should be borne by stockholders.

The Bristol Trust Company said it would continue business in the City Deposit and Discount Company's new $50,000 building for the present, and that would transfer the work of liquidation to its institution.

Dwight H. Hall is president of the defunct bank. Dr. Diago Reale, recently named Italian consul at Hartford, is treasurer and cashier and Vincenzo Nesci is secretary.

STATE COURTS LAX IN BOOZE CASES--WHITE

Official of Fact Finding Committee Also Says Our Citizens Refuse to Help Enforce Dry Laws.

New Haven, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The New Haven Register today printed an interview with Rev. Ralph H. White, research secretary of the Fact Finding Committee for law enforcement in Connecticut in which the latter made these assertions:

"That by no means do any of the Connecticut courts use their full powers to enforce the liquor laws. That as a rule Connecticut citizens refuse to cooperate willingly in the enforcement of law. That to be willing to serve on a jury is considered as a confession that one's time is not worth much."

Must Be Forced.
That disinterested citizens of the State will not testify except when forced to appear by a subpoena. Rev. Mr. White, the Register said, based his conclusions on a report still in its preliminary stages, which is the result of more than a year of research in city and superior courts, with special attention to the courts of Common Pleas, in 16 cities of the state. He was formerly connected with the Anti-Saloon League in Connecticut.

The Register quoted the minister as charging that the judges of the Court of Common Pleas in New Haven do not approve of severe sentences for liquor violators. During 1929, he charged, there were seventy convictions appealed from lower courts which resulted in 57 reduced sentences especially in all sentences, or in noled cases. Eight received the same sentences imposed by the lower court, five received higher sentences and 14 insisted on trials.

Not Unusual.
This method of dealing with appeals, Rev. Mr. White was quoted as saying, is not peculiar to New Haven county alone. "There are other county courts," he said "that offer even more generous terms to criminals trying to avoid them, while there are several such courts of appeal which do not insist on appeal and impose discouraging penalties."

"Those who present appeals to the courts of Common Pleas and Court of Appeal, the minister asserted, are in a large majority those who

FISHERMAN'S LUCK FOLLOWS HOOVER

Nary a Fish Yesterday But Today He Goes Out to Try Once More.

Long Key, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—President Hoover invaded the Gulf stream today, determined to land the ranks of fisherman and inhabitants in southern Florida's most prolific fishing grounds.

The chief executive was a victim of old time "fisherman's luck" yesterday. He returned empty-handed from a long afternoon's effort. Others in his party, no bait on the presidential hook attracted any attention from the fish.

Accompanied by companions of his vacation trip, Mr. Hoover set sail early for a spot about ten miles off Long Key in the Atlantic. He took lunch with him and planned to remain for at least eight hours.

Is Enjoying Trip.
That the President is enjoying his trip was reported again today by members of the party. He remained in the fishing grounds until long after dark last night to allow Mrs. Harlan F. Stone, wife of Associate Justice Stone, to land her 65-pound sailfish and it was indicated that he might remain out until a similarly late hour today, unless his hook finds ready response from his fish beforehand.

The sun was shining brightly as the Chief Executive and his friends left for the fishing banks, but weather reports and an offshore wave gave promise of cloudy weather before the day is gone. His reputation as a good sailor, however, gave promise he would change in weather would not alter his angling plans.

The President had made it a practice not to handle his mail or matters pertaining to the London conference until after he had returned to the houseboat Saunterer fishing trip. Mail is not taken to the Saunterer from the Long Key dock until nightfall.

The chief executive has kept in close touch with the London conference receiving each night a report of developments from his Naval aid, Capt. Allen Buchanan. Captain Buchanan however has not conferred with the President since their arrival here.

His reports are received over the direct White House telephone at the dock here, and are sent out to the Saunterer on an express boat.

HUGHES CONFIRMATION NOW SEEMS DOUBTFUL

To Hold a Test Case On Buying of Liquor

Washington, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Assistant Secretary Lowman said today that whether the government would prosecute buyers of illicit liquor on charges of violating the National prohibition law, probably depend upon the outcome of the trial of Joseph Patrick Carley arrested here last night on a charge of "buying a half pint of gin."

The assistant secretary of the Treasury, who has charge of prohibition matters, said if the charge is upheld by the court the government would proceed with future prosecutions according to the intimation placed upon the Volstead Act in that decision.

A Violation.
After Carley was arrested here last night David A. Hart, assistant United States attorney, asserted he believed the purchase was a violation of the section of the Volstead Act which says "no one shall manufacture, sell, purchase, transport or prescribe any liquor without first obtaining a permit from the commission."

Lowman said the government had never obtained a high court interpretation of this section of the law.

"This particular section of the National prohibition law," he said, "has never been interpreted by a higher court. The action of the people in arresting Carley will be a test of this particular section. If the courts uphold his arrest and he is convicted the government will enforce the Volstead Act within the interpretation of the court in this case."

SUBJECT OF EXPERIMENT CAN SEE HIMSELF THINK

Scientist Demonstrates Novel Apparatus for Measuring Electricity—Details Of Latest Experiments.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—(AP)—It would take two million people, hooked together in mental reaction to the same idea, to generate enough voltage to light an ordinary incandescent light.

Credit this to the string galvanometer, an instrument so sensitive that it will detect one one-millionth of a volt of electricity, used by Dr. Edmund Jacobson, of the University of Chicago, in experiments disclosed today tending to prove that mental activity and imagination are functions involving the whole body rather than brain action alone.

Two years of experimentation have proved to Dr. Jacobson that in the merest of ideas there is a neuromuscular action capable of being measured in the amount of voltage produced.

Subjects Used.
The subjects used by Dr. Jacobson were schooled in the technique of perfect relaxation; it was necessary virtually to eliminate all muscular tensions except those of vital processes.

Electrodes capable of detecting the slightest change in the electrical potential accompanying a muscular tension were sealed to the subject's right biceps, forming the connection with the galvanometer. On the galvanometer is a quartz string, one one-hundred-thousandth of an inch thick.

The Experiment.
Each subject agreed to imagine, at a prearranged signal, that he was flexing his arm; two fifths of a second later, a motion picture camera recorded the vibration of the quartz string's silhouette.

The subject was given the signal to stop imagining; a fraction of the second later, the shadow of the quartz string lapsed to the straight line of quiescence.

Hears Self Think.
Dr. Jacobson said that one of his subjects was even able to see and hear himself think by watching the shadow of the string and listening through an amplifier. The subject, a woman, became so excited, however, that she lost the required relaxation.

Dr. Jacobson is now furthering his study to include visual imagery and in his experiments, connects the galvanometer with an electrocup, fitted over the subject's eye.

"This work has been an attempt to bridge the gap between physics and psychology," Dr. Jacobson said. "Previous investigators have measured such reactions as emotion following sensation, but attempts to measure mental activity at the moment it occurs are new."

He said the theory that "we think with our bodies" is not new science, but that it lacked experimental proof.

"Nothing in these experiments, of course, gives the slightest grounds for a statement that there is any relation between clear, vivid imagination and heavy or efficient muscular development. The obvious evidence of our whole civilization denies such a conclusion. Nor has the work here been to measure ideas in any sense whatever, but only to answer the basic question as to whether there is any bodily concomitant to thinking."

TREASURY BALANCE.
Washington, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for February 11 were $4,419,494.08; expenditures $6,522,036.68; balance $39,963,857.34.

But Republican Leader Declares There is Margin of At Least 15 Votes for Chief Justice Nominee; Foes Redouble Their Attacks—Friends Press for a Vote Today.

Washington, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Chairman Norris of the Senate judiciary committee gave notice to the Senate today he would move to recommit the nomination of Charles Evans Hughes to be Chief Justice of the United States to the judiciary committee.

Encouraged by gains in strength since an attack centering on the economic views of Mr. Hughes, the opposition believed today that if the nomination could be returned to committee for further study confirmation might be blocked.

Washington, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Encouraged by gain in strength, opposition in the Senate to confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as Chief Justice of the United States today carried forward its attack with new intensity.

Some friends of Hughes conceded that the outcome of the vote was becoming doubtful but Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, predicted a margin for him of at least 15 votes.

As Senators Nye, North Dakota, and LaFollette, Wisconsin, both Republicans, and Glass, Democrat, Virginia, resumed the offensive against Hughes on the floor, testimony that Mr. Hughes had drawn the bid of the American Cyanamid Company for Muscle Shoals was heard before the Senate lobby committee. Attacks on the nominee have been made on the ground that he had served as attorney for corporate interests, and that he favored them at the expense of the people.

Produce Memorandum.
A memorandum written by W. G. Waldo, consulting engineer of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, said Mr. Hughes drafted the contract for the Cyanamid Company which was incorporated in the Wright bill proposing to lease the gigantic shoals project to the concern.

Chairman Caraway of the committee asked if Mr. Hughes did not receive $65,000 from his legal services to the company but Waldo said he did not know.

Republican leaders were pressing for a vote today. The opposition was seriously considering a move to recommit the nomination to the judiciary committee. However, there was a division on the wisdom of this step.

Despite rainy weather, crowds gathered early and quickly filled all available seats in her galleries as the fourth day of debate resumed. The floor was the scene of innumerable conferences as leaders of both sides talked to doubtful members. Friends of Hughes conceded "big roads" in their strength by the opposition overnight.

Washington, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as Chief Justice of the United States by the Senate went into the doubtful stage today as his friends conceded "big inroads" by the opposition over night.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader predicted a margin of 17 votes for the nominee as the fourth day of debate was resumed with Senators Glass, Democrat, Virginia and Nye, Republican, South Dakota, carrying on the attack against Hughes.

Checking Situation.
Others who were busy checking the situation early today agreed there was beginning to be doubt on the outcome with decision depending on the final attitude of the Democrats.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, who opened the attack on Hughes on Monday, said today "he will be confirmed" but he smiled broadly when asked by how many votes.

Senator Glass was of the opinion that the result was in doubt. All Senators in the doubtful class were the center of attention on the floor and in the cloak rooms as leaders anxiously sought to determine the battle lines today.

It was conceded also that a vote might not be reached today. This was based on the presumption that those Democratic Senators who have decided to vote against Hughes wished to make speeches.

Leaders Surprised
Leaders of all factions were obviously surprised by the turn of events in the Senate. On Monday when the judiciary committee reported the nomination favorably by a vote of 10 to 2 no fight was expected.

Democrats of the judiciary committee led by Senator Walsh of Montana the acting Democratic

DOG GIVES ALARM THEN DIES IN FIRE

Valuable Setter Suffocates After Warning Dilworth Family of Cellar Blaze.

Tragedy stalked uncomfortably near at hand this morning in a fire at the home of John Dilworth, 101 Middle Turnpike West. Six members of the Dilworth household including the Dilworth children, aged 7 and 8 years escaped with difficulty from the smoke filled rooms, and a valuable dog, a pedigreed setter, awaiting maternity today, was suffocated in her kennel in the cellar where the fire originated.

The smoke-strengthened house, called "Venus" in distress in the cellar was given by the nearly suffocated family as the salvation of the household. Two other dogs in the upper part of the house were not disturbed by the smoke and were saved but the expectant mother dog expired at the foot of the stairs.

House Smoke Filled
Shortly after 3 o'clock Mrs. Dilworth awakened. Her husband and the upstairs bedroom rapidly filled with smoke. Mr. Dilworth, thinking that he had closed the furnace drafts too closely hurried downstairs to find the entire house filled with smoke. The fire originated in the cellar and the door underneath the bed was found to be closed.

After a laborious tour of the rooms conducted by feeling his way around the walls and searching the floors, the children were found in the front part of the house almost overcome by smoke and hysteria. Another member of the family was awakened and when it was assured that all were out of the house he turned on a alarm by phone to Mrs. Dilworth in the vicinity of the electric meter board had short-circuited the phone. The phone of a neighbor, William J. Shields was tried and that was also found out of order.

Seeks Policeman
With the fire gaining headway beneath the floors, Dilworth paced his car to Depot Square where Patrolman Prentice was found and a message relayed from that point to Sergeant John Crockett on duty at the police station. Sergeant Crockett, turned in an emergency alarm calling out Companies 2, 3 and 4 of the South Manchester department and later Box 491 was turned in by Officer Prentice when he arrived at Armory and Main streets from Depot Square.

Fireman Peter Happenny, on duty at Hose Co. No. 3 was awake at the time the emergency alarm was sent in by Sergeant Crockett as he was making preparations to start early for South Norwalk after receipt of a telegram notifying him that his brother Thomas H. Happenny was to undergo an emergency operation for appendicitis. He notified Sergeant Crockett that he would respond to the alarm and arrived at the Dilworth house quickly. After emptying the chemical tank he dragged 400 feet of hose with the help of a single arrival until Chief Albert Foy arrived.

Confined to Cellar
The fire, of a smoldering nature, had fortunately been confined to the cellar. The origin is undetermined but appeared to come from electrical trouble in the vicinity of the meter board or spontaneous

The following troops were in line: Troop 1, Troop 2, Troop 3, Troop 4, Troop 5, Troop 6, Troop 7, Troop 8, Troop 9, in the best of uniform and showed wonderful work of the Scoutmaster and troop committees in preparation.

At the close of the contest Commissioner St. C. Burr presented the large silver loving cup with a tribute to all troops of Manchester on the progress made.

Scouts F. Simon and R. Smith of Troop 1 surprised all by being first and in fire by friction, 20 seconds time.

Troop 4 won the pacing, going thirty-five feet one-half inch when called to 35 feet.

The evening closed with Scout prayer and talk by the buglers. Scout Erwin of Troop 3 did fine work in Rescue race.

John L. Reinartz presented the silver cup to Troop 3, Scoutmaster David McComb. The cup has now been won by Troop 6, 1928; Troop 1, 1929; Troop 3, 1930.

Washington, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A group of outspoken women demanded of Congress today that prohibition be placed squarely before the voters of the nation and that the count of the ballot boxes decide whether America shall continue dry.

One after another they appeared before the House judiciary committee and urged that the Norton resolution to authorize a referendum on the question be approved. They backed up this appeal with a denunciation of conditions as they exist today and argued that a decision of the dry status had production on the question.

It was the second day's session of the hearing started by the committee on a batch of measures asking either outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or a referendum on the question.

Dressed in a trimly tailored suit of black crepe de chine, she said a "normal American citizen, regardless of beliefs on the Eighteenth Amendment, would readily concur in the principle that the amendment should not remain in the constitution without majority approval of the people of the United States."

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin followed her to the witness chair. She also was dressed in black. She is a former Republican national committee woman from New York and represented women's organization for National prohibition reforms.

At first, the women of the land, she said, thought that prohibition would strengthen a weak character. They are now realizing "with heartburnings and heart aching," she asserted, "that if the spirit is not within, legislation can be of no avail."

Next to testify was Mrs. David Holmes Morton of Brooklyn. She is secretary of the Women's Committee for Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"We demand outright, unequivocal repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, free from modification, compromise or substitute," she declared, adding that it was up to Congress to work out the details of how this should be done.

"National prohibition has failed in its purpose," she said, "young people are drinking liquor obtained in speakeasies, at roadhouses and from bootleggers who cannot be regulated. The youth of our country is being destroyed by those unregulated and illegitimate purveyors of liquor."

FRANCE PREPARES FIGURES ON NAVY

Tardieu Calls on Stimson to Discuss Subject—Wants More Ships.

London, Feb. 13.—(AP)—France's youthful premier, Andre Tardieu, was again under the naval conference spotlight today as the delegates eagerly awaited publication of France's tonnage figures.

There was frankly a certain amount of concern over what the French figures will bring forth. It seemed inevitable that there would be conflict between Premier Tardieu and Italy's young foreign minister, Dino Grandi, who speaks for Premier Mussolini.

France wants a bigger navy than Italy and the latter wants the right to have parity if she sees fit to build her fleet up to that extent.

Technical suggestions were made by the American representatives, who made it clear that the United States would not press them if an agreement could be reached on the 1927 basis.

The suggestions put forward by the United States were for the lowering of the previously proposed speed limit of eighteen knots on exempt classes, and the raising of the tonnage limit slightly above 2,000 tons.

SHIP SHOWS SIGNS OF BULLET MARKS

New London, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Bullets imbedded in the sheathing of the pilot house on the fishing boat Gander of Bridgeport and other marks evidently made by machine gun fire were seen by a reporter for the Evening Day in an inspection of the vessel today.

The Gander, said at Coast Guard headquarters to be the boat which escaped capture by Coast Guard patrol boats in Long Island Sound the morning of February 7 despite bursts of machine gun fire directed at her, is at the lighthouse wharf here, where she was surrendered to the collector of customs Tuesday afternoon by her master, Captain Arthur Roland.

Only Idle Talk The rumor, characterized as unfounded at the customs house and Coast Guard headquarters, was found to be idle talk. The vessel at the lighthouse wharf in the main beam below deck at the entrance to the forecabin the number 228-954 is carved. This record shows is the number listed in the Coast House records as that of the Gander.

Optimism has been tempered, however, by the knowledge that Mr. Taft is more than seventy years of age and that he was suffering from a complication of seripus ailments. His physicians are directing all efforts toward preventing a relapse until the one time president is definitely out of danger.

IN SELF PROTECTION

The situation precipitated by the cool refusal of the Joint School Board to be limited in its expenditures by the amount of money appropriated by the town's voters in open town meeting, with the practical certainty of the addition of another quarter mill to the next tax levy, is one which the citizens of Manchester will either have to clear up through their own energetic action or else take lying down; for there appears to be no relief in the law and no recourse save in one solution—refusal to continue in office a school board which spends the public's money in defiance of the public's budgeting.

If the Joint School Board can contract obligations five or ten or twenty thousand dollars a year in excess of the amount authorized by the annual town meeting, and do it legally, it can contract obligations a hundred or two hundred thousand dollars beyond either the willingness or the ability of the town to pay. Unfortunately there is the sanction of an unwise state law for this condition and the town is left, as to its prospects of solvency or bankruptcy, absolutely at the mercy of its school authorities.

In this extremity there appears to be but one road to safety—the choice of members of the school board who can be depended on not to take advantage of the peculiar and unfair powers with which they are vested, but who on the other hand will keep school expenditures down to the amounts voted to them by the town.

The defiance of the limitations of the town's budget by the present school board constitutes a challenge to the taxpayers of this community. Regardless of the many excellent qualities of the members themselves it is evidently time for the people of Manchester to demand—and see that they get—a change in the personnel. We must have a school board which does not consider itself bigger than the entire body of Manchester taxpayers.

"LABOR" RIOTS

The so-called labor riot in Cleveland was, in all probability, a long way from being a starvation riot but, rather, an outburst of discontent following disillusionment. If we have more of that sort of thing in this country it need occasion no surprise, nor should it be accepted as indicative of serious economic bad health.

Cleveland is one of the numerous American cities which have gathered within their borders since the war great numbers of unassimilated, and perhaps largely unassimilable, workers of foreign birth. About all that many of these people have ever learned about America, or possibly have had any opportunity to learn, they have gotten from the ridiculous, injurious and economically idiotic ballyhoo, all pervading and persistent for nearly a decade, about the magical "prosperity" of this country; about a brand new development or discovery that all a nation had to do was to spend with both hands and buy on credit in order to make itself fabulously rich. Any number of these folks have been told over and over again that joblessness and insecurity were impossible in America—that there was some mysterious sort of an Aladdin's lamp at work to keep them forever employed at fat wages.

All of a sudden they have discoverered that even in America certain old and immutable economic laws continue to operate—that even here there transpire periods of less than miracle prosperity. It makes them sore. They feel as though they had been tricked—though they haven't been, intentionally. It is very doubtful if any of them, or many of them, at all events, are stone broke. But with no jobs they are compelled to eat into their bankrolls instead of adding to them, and that makes them angry and ugly.

Mentally undisciplined and disappointed by the collapse of the fairy tale of economic joyriding on which they had been fed—many of them from the moment of their arrival in the country—their reaction is to smash something, throw rocks as somebody and raise rim generally. Just the same it is a good shrewd bet that not one out of a dozen of those Cleveland rioters, who demand that from somewhere or other and somehow or other jobs or the pay for jobs be handed to them, hasn't a considerable amount of cash tucked away and is in any more danger of immediate destitution than the cops at home they throw their stones.

THE HUGHES RUMPUS

The attack in the Senate upon Charles Evans Hughes, with the probability that something like one-fourth of the senators may vote against his confirmation as chief justice of the United States Supreme Court, is not, after all surprising, though it was unexpected. Mr. Hughes is being represented, by opponents of his appointment, as a double-dyed, copper-fastened, hard and fast reactionary who believes first, last and all the time in the inalienable rights of property and in the righteousness of vested interests. It is being said of him that he would not be honest with his own conviction if he ever allowed himself to be influenced by facts or conditions in the direction of the rights of human beings as opposed to those of capital.

This merely reflects the color of the glass through which a liberal or a radical invariably looks at a conservative. Mr. Hughes is, of course, a conservative. But so is William Howard Taft. We doubt very much whether there is any evidence anywhere that Mr. Hughes is more conservative than his predecessor. And it is very certain that not one of his critics in the Senate is capable of forecasting with any accuracy what Mr. Hughes' position will be on any vital question likely to come before the Supreme Court.

As a matter of fact Charles Evans Hughes is primarily a great lawyer. A really great lawyer, when clothed with the judicial power, is governed not by his predispositions but by his deep and comprehensive understanding of the Law in its broadest conception as contrasted to the knowledge of mere laws possessed by the narrow legalist and the shyster.

There is a certain austerity and aloofness about Mr. Hughes that naturally breeds suspicion in the minds of the radical and the emotional humanist. But there is nothing whatever to indicate that he is just not as austere and aloof toward the purposes of the reactionary and the Bourbon as toward the aspirations of the liberal and the populist.

Besides all of which, all this shooting in the Senate may be due to the fact that the fusiliers have forgotten the fact that the chief justice has only one vote in the Supreme Court.

SUBS

If the naval arms conference at London were to do no more than insure the world against the horrors of submarine assassination of merchant and passenger ships in any possible future war, the London parley could never honestly be called a failure. There is no likelihood that this will be the sole fruit of the conference, but it is a valuable one.

Those who are quick to condemn France for her definite refusal to entertain the proposal to abandon submarines altogether would do better to reflect on the attitude toward those craft in this country seven or eight years ago, when the navy experts were agreed that if there was just one branch of the naval service that we could never by any possibility dispense with it was the submarine fleet. At that time, had the conditions of the present conference been otherwise duplicated, it would have been the United States which would have been found in unalterable opposition to giving up the undersea ships.

Since then the submarine service has become less fascinating to naval officers. The novelty of the thing has worn off. There isn't as much glamor to it as there used to be. A good many officers and men have died very dreadful deaths in sunken subs. The grind and discomfort and nerve strain of submarine service have had their effect. The submarine is no longer popular. Life is more enjoyable on the surface; it is more interesting in the air. The Navy isn't as keen about the subs as it once was. Not many sailors would be sorry to see them scrapped.

But France, whose military ideas, be they normal or exaggerated, are uniformly defensive, is deeply interested in having an effective defensive navy at the lowest possible cost. The submarine is exactly her pie. And if she is willing to use it as a defense and to agree to employ it with some slight regard to humanity, it is hardly fair to try to make her out the bad child at the party.

LIGGETT'S PICTURE

The picture of prohibition drawn by Walter W. Liggett, magazine writer who has been specializing on the question, when he testified before the House Judiciary Committee at Washington yesterday, is not an alluring one. It is becoming interesting, however, when a sworn witness declares that a former governor of Massachusetts and a commissioner of public safety are selling seized booze to bootleggers; when he names the present governor of Michigan as having been present at a drinking party attended by judges, racketeers and crooks and where the liquor was the gift of a gambler; when he asserts that in Minneapolis there isn't a "beer flat" run by girls; and when he says he has the proof of all these things and dares the committee to ask him to show it.

To the hard-boiled consciousness or the close observer of general conditions in this country there is, in all this, no shock; merely a straw's weight of added depression. To the shut-eyed dry, however, it will of course be unbelievable—all lies and part of a wicked conspiracy to destroy the earthly paradise created by prohibition. Perhaps the dries are right. Perhaps Liggett is a liar and a perjurer, a direct agent of his Satanic Majesty the Devil. But if he is right, or half or quarter right, it would seem to us that just possibly there might be some better way of making this a sober and well behaved nation.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 13.—The world's champion long distance greeting card poet of the U. S. A. is, at the moment, a dapper young fellow named normally Ellis.

From his perch in the mid-Porties, where he indites variations on "When this you see, remember me," there is nothing to suggest the sugary sentiment which goes into the making of Valentines, Christmas greetings—and all such.

At the moment, he is faced with the none-too-easy task of figuring out 500 different ways of saying "Merry Christmas"—for this is the season when Yule rhymes are being penned for next winter. He had finished the Valentine greetings for the current year by last Christmas.

His capacity is, seemingly, unlimited, involving several thousand trick twists by means of which he is able to say much the same thing over and over again.

Until recently, J. P. McAvoey, the playwright and author and Hollywood scenarist, ranked as one of the outstanding greeting card versifiers of the land. He generally returned to Chicago, from whence he migrated, in time to turn out a batch of whatever was needed.

While it is a profitable occupation for those jinglers who are on the payroll, let me hasten to add that there is practically no demand for contributions.

Thousands of them come from every section of the country, pouring from the pens of the love-lorn, the love-struck and the soul-wary. In most instances they find an immediate resting place in the wastebasket.

Which reminds me— (Notice to half a dozen persons who may wonder why their letters to this department have not been answered—we are in no position to help anyone market anything, whether it be verses, songs or books, unless they are a fairly busy time. But not only have we not the time, but we cannot afford to become indebted to anyone through the request of favors. We are constantly being requested to help someone get connected with a theater or a publisher—something that, sadly enough, we have never been able to do for ourselves. Any information concerning New York and its attractions will always be at the disposal of our readers. But we cannot supply them with trick post card machines, moving picture patents or theater tickets.)

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington, Feb. 13.—President Hoover, whose interest in child welfare is a matter of common knowledge and who wants appropriations for child health work to be continued under the Sheppard-Towner Maternity act, has temporarily held up resumption of federal cooperation with the states through his desire to rejigger the administration of the act.

The president apparently failed to foresee the difficulties likely to arise in carrying out his recommendations. Under the Maternity act Congress appropriated $1,240,000 a year to be distributed among the states which agreed to match their share with an equal appropriation of their own, and all the states except Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut eventually came to cooperate with the Children's Bureau here in child health conferences and educational work. But the last appropriation ran out June 30, 1929, and Congress had neglected to make an appropriation.

Made Bigger Appropriations. The work among mothers and prospective mothers was brought to a standstill in several states, but about 15 states appropriated larger sums than ever from their own treasuries that the work might not suffer. These included Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont and Wisconsin, according to the Children's Bureau.

Time was when the super-patriots stationed here used to attack the Children's Bureau and the Maternity act as instruments of bolshevism which were undermining American institutions, thus placing them in a class with child labor laws, free speech, public utility regulation, old age pensions and various regulations.

But there have been no yelps of that sort since Mr. Hoover, who has been a sore disappointment to the most radical super-patriots, recommended bigger appropriations for the bureau and the continuance of the purpose of the Sheppard-Towner act. The super-patriots have not yet collected enough courage to brand Mr. Hoover as a Red, although some of them say that what Secretary of State Stimson is, the president is, however, said in his last message that Congress should consider the advisability of confining the use of federal funds by states to the building up of county and local public health units (which the outlet should go).

The president, however, said in his last message that Congress should consider the advisability of confining the use of federal funds by states to the building up of county and local public health units (which the outlet should go). Congressman John G. Cooper of Ohio, who, along with Senator Jones of Washington in the upper house, had introduced a bill to revive the Sheppard-Towner appropriations, went to see Hoover and found out that that was what he meant. The president also wants the states to contribute twice the amount of the federal appropriation and the counties an equal sum, according to Cooper.

Hoover is said to have been greatly impressed with the efficient operation of some of the county health units which he saw in the south during his food relief work. He has asserted that a highly developed health unit consists of at least a physician, sanitary engineer and nurse, plus, in some cases, a nurse handling problems of maternity and children.

Health Units Lacking. But as Hoover has pointed out, only about 400 counties of 3000 have these health units. That is, in five-sixths of the counties there would seem to be no one to work through. That is what has stumped Congressmen and Senators. Mr. Jones, who says that it seems impossible to work the thing out by the Hoover method and have delayed bringing their bills up in committee until they can work the thing out.

Meanwhile, no one knows how long it will take to get county units organized the way the president wants them and the year is passing without any appropriation. Everyone concerned hopes that the impasse can be ended soon so that Congress can make an appropriation for next year during its present session.

OVERCOMING ACIDOSIS (Continued) A competent doctor can keep track of the acid-alkaline adjustment of the blood by observing the amount of effort that the body is using to neutralize the acid products. He tests the amount of carbon dioxide exhaled by the patient, breath, and he may give the sodium bicarbonate test and he may examine the blood, itself.

It is possible to easily overcome acidosis by eating foods which have an alkaline reaction on the body. Orange grapefruit and lemons are really valuable in overcoming acidosis. One can make the blood satisfactorily alkaline by living on these fruits exclusively for a time. The vegetables are also alkaline-forming. If you suspect acidosis of the body, you should immediately make a correction in your diet as the body's first line of defense against infectious and deficiency diseases is the alkalinity of its blood. Acidosis can only occur in a healthy normal body under one condition and that is starvation. Acidosis is also noted in cases of diarrhea, during pregnancy, in kidney disorders, tuberculosis, asthma, diabetes and after anesthesia.

Below are listed the alkaline-forming foods: The fruits and vegetables are all alkaline-forming, with the exception of rhubarb, plums and cranberries which contain an organic acid that is not readily oxidized by people suffering from acidosis. Cereals, meats, cheese, fish and eggs, while they contain valuable elements for the body, are acid-forming, but since they contain elements which are valuable, their acidity should be counteracted by using quantities of alkaline-forming foods, being careful, however, not to combine the acid fruits with the starchy foods.

Stops That Tough Hang-On Cough That Racks Your Whole Body

In the long view there is nothing particularly discouraging in the failure of the Anglo-American proposal to abolish submarines altogether, considering the stress which both France and Japan have placed upon their importance to them as defensive weapons. The whole tone of the proposals signified the necessity of moving slowly toward this much desired goal. For the present the nations are content to circumscribe the uses of submarines to more humane and more legitimate channels. This agreement in itself is a long step in the desired direction. There is no reason to believe that in subsequent international conferences their use, size and numbers may not be considerably restricted.

Some of the most tragic chapters of the World War relate to the abuses to which these "terrors of the deep" were put, particularly against merchant ships. Their complete abolition would not only eliminate an expensive and inhuman device, but, if universally agreed upon, would not be discarded to the particular advantage or disadvantage of any one nation.

France has never ratified that part of the Washington agreement which sought to humanize merchant ships. That France is now agreeable to the proposal to do so is a forward step toward more humane warfare, and it is conceivable that out of a study of the resolution will come a common agreement to limit the number and the size of submarines, looking to the future for their complete abolition.

OFFICIALS DENY LIGGETT'S STORY

Michigan Judge Says "Wild Party" Served Ice Cream and Heard Boys' Band.

Detroit, Feb. 13.—Detroit officials came forward today with their version of the party held here last November for state and local officials, accounts of which figured in testimony before the House judiciary committee at Washington yesterday.

Walter Liggett, a writer who appeared before the committee, described the affair as one at which liquor was served and dancers performed for the education of Governor Fred W. Green.

From Lansing came word that Gov. Green would be glad to appear before the Congressional committee should that body care to question him about prohibition conditions in his state.

Judge's Statement Judge Homer Ferguson of the Circuit Court said Liggett's story was an attempt to discredit Governor Green.

Settlement of illegal parking cases for a minimum fine without the formality of having the matter aired in police court nevertheless constitutes "an appearance in court" and must be so designated by motorists seeking automobile driving licenses.

Although the defendant has been saved from the bother of saying "Good Morning, Judge," such motorists are to be considered as technically having been in court even though they pay the fine.

This decision will automatically bring more than 200 Manchester men into the "appeared in court" category, it was said today by officials of the local police court.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Judith Cameron, New York typist, marries Aaron Knight, executive of the publishing house in which she is employed. Knight is a widower with a daughter, Tony, 18, in Paris, and a son, Junior, 16, at school. When Tony returns home she denounces Judith as a gold digger.

Tony is secretly continuing a flirtation with Mickey Mortimer, wealthy and married. When Junior comes home for the Christmas holidays he also treats Judith coldly.

Andy Craig, whom Knight has helped through college, takes a position with the publishing firm. He has been in love with Tony for a long while. In a fit of anger Tony tries to convince her father that Andy and Judith are carrying on an affair. Knight denies this but Tony tricks the pair into a compromising situation.

Tony's flirtation with Mortimer is revealed when they are arrested for reckless driving. Tony wins her father's forgiveness and promise of a trip to Miami. Preparations are interrupted when Knight comes home seriously ill with pneumonia. Two nurses are installed in the household and Junior is summoned home. At last the patient begins to recover. Before Junior leaves he admits to Judith that he has misjudged her. Knight's recuperation is slow. Judith is alone with her husband when he says he has something to tell her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV
With an effort which cost him much, Arthur Knight raised himself on one elbow. His dark eyes looked bright and too intense. They bespoke the weakened condition in which weeks of illness had left him. "You do this too often, Judith," he said. "I don't want you giving up all your pleasures just because I've got to stay here in bed. You're not going to sacrifice—"

Judith interrupted. She would have spoken sooner but his words had come with startling abruptness. "Why, Arthur! How ridiculous! Here—you must try to sit up like that. It isn't good for you. Dr. Shepherd would be perfectly furious to hear of such a thing. Please! Lie down again and let me read to you, won't you?"

Stubbornly Knight shook his head. Nevertheless he did drop back against the pillow. "No, I don't want you sending the others away—I'm giving up all your time to take care of me right through to a child."

"But, darling, I WANT to be with you! I thought we'd both enjoy a little while together."

"It isn't that," the man went on rather pettishly. "It isn't that at all. I want you to have good times, Judith."

She was able to hush him into acquiescence, laughing at his protests and finally accusing him of being tired of her. It was all just a joke, of course. After the sick man was reasonably comfortable once more Judith picked up the magazine she had brought to read. She turned to a piece of fiction by an author whose work he admired and began the story.

Judith read well for her voice was low, distinct and decidedly pleasing. Ever since the early days of Knight's recuperation it had been one of her chief pleasures to read to him. Entertainment of any form in which the patient could participate was so patiently cultivated. Good and small talk of household affairs were never very interesting to Arthur Knight. He had lost connections with the outer world and this fretted him. Judith turned to fiction as the logical hypodermic.

It did not come to her notice that the listener was restless that afternoon until at the end of a column she came to the words, "Continued on page 165."

This meant turning a number of pages. As Judith did so, hunting for the right one, she glanced toward the bed.

Arthur Knight was staring toward the window. He did not appear even to be aware that the narrative had been interrupted.

His preoccupation was so marked that Judith put down the book. "Arthur—" she asked uncertainly, "don't you care for the story? Does the reading bother you?"

The man shook his head. "Go ahead and finish it," he said. "There was such lack of interest in his tone, however, that the girl was disturbed. She was glad when the climax of the tale had been reached and the last paragraph finished."

"I think you'd better rest now a while," she told Knight. "I'll read to myself. Is there anything I can get for you?"

"There was not, her husband said. He turned his head on the pillow and closed his eyes. Judith was not able to tell whether he fell asleep.

At 4:20 Miss Mallory returned and the rest of the day was as its predecessors had been.

Dr. Shepherd continued to make his daily calls. On Wednesday he told Judith there was no further need of continuing the services of the night nurse. Miss Owens departed that afternoon.

the city. Will you want anything else before I go?"

"No. Nothing else."

Miss Mallory departed amid the rustling of stiff starched linens.

When Judith entered the room 10 minutes later she looked a picture. Impulse had inspired her to dress for the occasion in a rose chiffon dinner gown. The custom of dressing for dinner had been dropped in the Knight household ever since meals had become brief, unimportant intervals with only one or two members appearing at the table.

To-night Judith wore Arthur's pearls about her throat. She had rouged her cheeks and powdered as carefully as if she had been going to the theater. The warm color of her frock reflected upon her face and in the subdued light of the bedroom her slender figure stood out as graceful as a flame.

She came in laughing. "Good evening, Mr. Knight. I hope you like your new nurse?"

"Very much indeed. Looking beautiful, my dear."

"I wanted you to think so."

He smiled at her. "Very beautiful," Knight repeated. "And married to an old man who keeps you busy away from all the good times in the world. Oh, you needn't contradict me. I know it's true."

Judith had thrown herself into the chair beside the bed. "Arthur, why will you insist on saying these absurd things?"

"Second childhood."

"Oh—but I don't want you to joke about it! Please, won't you understand that I don't want to go anywhere without you? Just a little while and you'll be yourself again. Then we'll go everywhere and make up for what we've missed. Besides—I don't think I'm missing anything."

He shook his head.

"You're married to an old man, Judith. Put back on the sheet!"

She was unable to shake him from his half-melancholy, half-bantering mood all through the evening. It distressed Judith to see long days spent in the sick room have such an effect upon her husband. Nothing she could say seemed able quite to make him feel that he was an invalid, weak and demanding services from others.

Something was bothering Arthur Knight and Judith could not help feeling that this something concerned herself.

She did not take his mood seriously. That was to be reserved for next day.

The awakening came at luncheon. Judith and Tony were having the mid-day meal together when the younger girl spoke up unexpectedly.

"Going into town this afternoon?" she asked.

"Why—no?"

"Oh, sorry. I thought possibly you'd take my watch to get repaired. I can't make the thing work and I'm afraid to wear it. I'd go in myself only I have to read to Father."

Something was bothering Arthur Knight and Judith could not help feeling that this something concerned herself.

She asked, "What are you going to read?"

"Don't know. Some book he's got around that he says he's interested in. Horrible, I suppose. I think it's something about Henry VIII or one of those old bores—"

Judith looked at her stepdaughter through narrowed lashes. The girl seemed completely innocent and unaware of the effect of her words. And Judith had only the evening before begun reading to her husband a recent biography of that famed monarch.

Was this idea something new of Tony's or had it come from Arthur Knight? The way to find out was quite simple.

Since meals had become such unimportant affairs the luncheon was soon over. Judith immediately went upstairs. She invented an errand which sent the nurse from Knight's room. Then she said:

"Tony tells me she's going to read to you this afternoon."

"Yes."

No explanation or qualifying phrases. Just the bare affirmative. Judith hesitated.

"But I thought you wanted me to read to you?"

"But I thought you wanted me to read to you?"

A furrow appeared in Arthur Knight's forehead. He glanced away before answering.

"Oh, you can find some other way to amuse yourself. You see I asked Tony to stay with me while Miss Mallory was out, and reading is about the only way to pass the time. Why don't you have Bert drive you in for a matinee?"

Judith's face had flushed hotly but now it was quite pale. "It's a good idea," she said. "Perhaps I'll do it."

"Fine. Have a good time."

Why, he was positively eager to get her out of the house! Judith took one more quick glance at her husband. Perhaps she would have spoken but Miss Mallory appeared again in the doorway. Miss Mallory, who was so efficient and competent-mannered, smiled as though the whole world were bathed in sunshine.

how heavy her heart had suddenly become.

"I'll look in again before I leave," she said brightly and went out of the room.

Across the hall she knocked at Tony's door but there was no response.

Slowly Judith made her way downstairs. Throughout those grim days when Arthur had been fighting for life, when the nurses moved on tiptoe and only they and the doctor were permitted within the sick room, Judith had prayed for the future. A thousand times as she reassured herself that her husband must get well, Judith had envisioned his convalescence. She could be near him then, could care for him and wait on him tenderly. Surely that was a wife's part!

She had not dreamed that Arthur would not want her.

Vividly she recalled other occasions when Knight had urged her to find entertainment for herself and leave him alone. He didn't want her!

"Oh, Tony!" Judith called to the other girl. "I've changed my mind about going into town. I'll be glad to take your watch."

"Going soon?"

"Just as soon as I can dress."

Thirty minutes later Judith left the house. She did not ask Bert to drive her in the car. Moreover, as she stepped into the train she gave it a quick, careful search to be sure no one was aboard who knew her.

"Shoulder Roll" Isn't Easy But It's Benefits Are Many Carol Cotton... illustrates the "shoulder roll"

BY JAC AUER

"Rolling off the fat" is a term used frequently to illustrate the efficiency of reducing exercises.

But certain exercises literally do roll off the fat, because the body is rolled on the floor.

With practice almost anyone can do the "shoulder roll." But the "shoulder roll" which I suggest today is harder and should be done gradually.

This exercise is excellent for four reasons. It massages the spine, relaxing the body. It takes the fat off the shoulders. It reduces the abdomen. It rolls the superfluous fat off the back of the thighs.

Do not roll as if you were entered in a race. Take it slowly, first day. Once the trick is learned and you do not get too exhausted from it, do the shoulder roll from 10 to 20 times each morning. You will be delighted with its reducing value and with the way it limbers you up.

2. Sit erect. With easy motion, roll backward, carrying the legs over your head and out straight until the toes touch the floor over your head. Your knees should be straight or the most good does not come from this exercise.

3. Holding onto the toes, and keeping the feet crossed, roll back again and up to the same sitting position. Repeat. Be careful not to lose your balance and go over on your side. Do this once and rest. Then repeat. Continue, with rest periods, to roll five times the first day. Once the trick is learned and you do not get too exhausted from it, do the shoulder roll from 10 to 20 times each morning. You will be delighted with its reducing value and with the way it limbers you up.

There is a very fine thing called moral responsibility that should be planted in the hothed of a child's nature in the earliest spring of his life.

Without this sense, I doubt if any of us ever quite measure up to all that is noble.

I don't believe that, like greatness, we are either born to it, achieve it, or have it thrust upon us. I do believe that it must be put into us by early suggestion.

The best way, to my mind, to plant the seed of moral responsibility in little children is to begin on the story of the home, and make it clearly understood to little Mary or John that they have to obey their parents and do things that will make everybody else in the house happy.

I call it the story of the home because tiny children are imitative and they will do what other children do. Give them other names and put them into a story. Thus: "Once upon a time there was a little girl called Blue Eyes. She wanted to make Mother happy so she always put her blocks away and everybody said, 'My, what a nice house Blue Eyes keeps. We'd like to live with Blue Eyes because everything's so neat.'"

Lesson Upon Lesson
Perhaps tiny Mary needs even a more primitive lesson than that; direct rather than indirect imitation. Her mother can pick up two blocks for her and say, "Now Mary, bring some." After a while Mary will help without suggestion very likely. And still later she won't help, merely, but do it herself.

Now the lesson behind these little pantomimes is not orderliness. It is the feeling that must lie behind it, the little sprout of responsibility to others, and a desire to keep things nice because other people in the house like it. Orderliness makes a good beginning.

The next lesson might very well be service. We can suggest this in the same manner we did the other, either by direct example or by a story. There are Daddy's slippers to get, or Grandma's glasses. Spot's drink of water, or a clean towel for the bath room.

Other responsibilities follow naturally, the next great step being observation. If these little lessons are kept up until the habit is formed a very small child learns to look for opportunity without telling. When he sees his toys scattered about and he is through playing, it will occur to him that the place looks better if they are put away. He'll pick them up and put them where they belong.

Or he'll see that his father has his shoes on. When he goes off himself to get the slippers or to bring Grandma's glasses, without asking, or Spot's drink, that day I think we can congratulate ourselves that our work is well begun.

The big thing now is not to let him forget it. As he grows older, we can work in the negative lessons—for instance, our responsibility to other people includes not doing things that will make them unhappy.

Still later on come life's more serious lessons—good citizenship, and home and school problems. The child can't keep on developing this great thing in himself, once he has begun, and I think he will. Good husbands and good wives are usually those who have had this sense of duty to others developed in them in childhood.

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

EARLY TREATMENT IS NECESSARY FOR RELIEF FROM CANCER

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, The Health Magazine

Hardly a week passes but what someone promulgates the announcement of a new treatment for cancer.

The most recent has to do with the injection of an "extract" made from a part of the suprarenal glands of sleep by physicians in California who have tested its use on a few cases of malignant tumors.

They have been exceedingly mild in their claims, pointing out that the extract was used only in patients who were considered too far advanced for operation and that only a short time has elapsed since the first patient was injected with the remedy.

Apparently when the substance is injected into a patient with cancer, the tumor mass softens and portions of it come away. Most of the patients have died, so that the treatment is that it is interesting in regard to what it reveals concerning the nature of cancer, but that it is far from anything resembling a specific method of treating cancer leading to cure or even to alleviation.

Obviously before the medical profession can control cancer, it must know a great deal about the life of the cancer cell from its beginning to the death of the patient. Throughout the world in numerous laboratories experiments are being carried on to find out these facts. In the meantime, because more people are living longer than they used to and because of advanced age, more people are dying of cancer and the search for a cancer cure becomes frantic.

The announcement of a cancer cure that falls brings to the physician who is concerned the opprobrium associated with unethical practice in modern medicine. Hence the men who are attempting to study cancer, if they would be ethical, are compelled to surround their laboratories with all of the guards that are usually associated with diplomatic service. Obviously this does much to impede progress and to hinder research.

The most that can be promised today to anyone with cancer is some relief and a longer life if he will seek medical attention early and if he will avail himself of what can be accomplished by early diagnosis, adequate surgery, and proper use of radium and the X-ray. Cancer pastes, internal remedies and all sorts of injections must still be considered as highly experimental and not offering thus far nearly such a high percentage of relief and cure as the methods that have been mentioned.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Have you the American woman's; give. They want to be asked for something worth while.

Compensation
If money caught taste and distinction, all rich women would look lovely and decorative. They don't. If it helped them keep their husbands, none of them would need to appear in the divorce courts. But they do.

One thing money will do: save you from making an effort. It will bring you material things without your having to slave for them. But it is quite true that it is only effort that develops great talent, great ability, and great soul.

Money does not need to keep one from contacts, from efforts, and from development, but it is not the driving force toward expansion that stern necessity is.

And while one is struggling, achieving and spending oneself, chasing a living, it is a consolation to know that one is also avoiding the money mouth, isn't it?

Athletic Scandal Hits Transylvania College

Basketball and Football Coaches Resign and Twenty Grid Players May Not Return.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Athletic affairs at Transylvania, oldest college west of the Alleghenies, were in a muddled condition today, with the announcement that the present football and basketball coaches, will not be back next year and a number of students so disgruntled that several, including athletes have staged a walkout.

Dr. Elmer G. Campbell, president, last night confirmed a report that James A. Elam, athletic director and head football coach and C. A. Webb, head basketball coach and assistant football mentor, would not be offered new contracts.

"Internal friction" and "inability of coaches to work together" were given as the cause of the decision. At the same time it was learned that most of 20 leading football players who are out on what has been termed a strike, have lost jobs because of their college expenses, and maybe unable to continue their studies. Transylvania had one of its most successful football seasons last year.

Transylvania is controlled by the disciples of Christ denomination.

In Hospital

Tommy Happenny, star guard on the town champion Cub's football team, lies ill at the South Norwalk hospital where he was removed last night for an acute appendicitis operation. Tom's prowess on the gridiron has earned him countless admirers and news of his illness will naturally be received with regret. The 22 year old grid luminary is employed as an inspector for the A. T. & T. which accounts for his presence in South Norwalk. Tommy went here Sunday visiting at his home on Knighton street but was feeling fine at that time, little dreaming what the future held in store for him. Happenny was picked as the most valuable player on the Cub's last season. A bulletin from the hospital this morning said: "Happenny resting comfortably after emergency appendix operation last night by Dr. Wm. H. McMahon."

PLENTY OF GAME IN GLASTONBURY

At Least Local Basketball Hunters Bring Back Bag Full of Fouls.

Manchester basketball teams went on hunting trip down into the wilds of Glastonbury last night and plucked two birds with one stone.

The Rec Girls defeated the Royal Typewriter Girls of Hartford in a return game. The score was 24 to 13. Elizabeth Washkewich and Miriam Welles featured. A Roma was best for the losers. The winners displayed good teamwork and won without the presence of Anne Scranon who was given leave of absence to watch the Aetna's best of the Parkades 25 to 15.

With Joe Pentland and Charlie Bycholski tossing in baskets apiece, Company G took the Memorial Five into camp in the main game of the evening by the narrow margin of 33 to 29. Benoit was best for the losers. Both games were played in Memorial Hall.

BRUINS WIN

Fort Erie, Ont., Feb. 13.—(AP)—A new winning streak was in the making by the Boston Bruins today after last night's National Hockey League victory 4-3, over the Pittsburgh Pirates. They have dropped four and tied one of 33 games.

Unassisted scores were made by Barry and Shore, and Barry and Owen also tallied on passes for the Boston scoring. Owen received a major penalty in the final period. Milks and Darragh scored unassisted for Pittsburgh and Fraser counted on a pass.

LUTHER LEAGUE TEAM DEFEATED BY 30-27 SCORE

Exciting Game Played at Harding Gym Last Night; Swedes Lose.

Possessed of a winning combination in the second quarter that outscored the visitors 10 to 2, the Manchester Luther League five came back at half-time with a drastically changed line-up and was forced to bow to the Swedish Lutheran five of Hartford, 30 to 27 at the final whistle.

An uncommonly slippery floor made the game exceedingly rough. Referee Al Boggini calling no less than 32 personals, 19 on Hartford and 13 on the locals. The restricted area of the floor also added to the football-like aspect but Referee Boggini had the game under control at all times.

With the exception of a lone point by Dahlquist Manchester was held scoreless in the first quarter while Hartford accounted for ten markers. Shifting its line-up the locals began functioning like a well oiled machine and at half time were trailing by only one point. Another shift was made in the five in the second half that augured no good and Hartford outscored the team, 14 to 6 enough to win the game, despite a rousing rally by the locals in the closing minutes.

"Gyp" Gustafson was high scorer for Manchester but the all around work of "Barney" Johnson was a feature. William and Arnold Anderson were best for Hartford.

Tied at 13 all with four minutes to play, the Hartford junior team staged a brilliant comeback that netted a 19 to 13 victory.

WRESTLING BOUTS ON CARD TONIGHT

Hartford Card Tonight

Star bout: Joe Malcewicz, Utica, vs Joe Rogaski, Chicago, best two out of three falls.

Semi-final: "Rough House" Harry Mamas, Springfield, vs Stan Pintaw, Chicago, forty-five minutes.

Other bouts: Fred Bruno, Hartford, vs Al Morris, Springfield; Joe Dillon, Bristol, vs Battling Brooks, Hartford.

Wrestling makes its re-entry into the Hartford sports picture tonight when Joe Malcewicz of Utica, N. Y., takes on Joe Rogaski of Chicago in the star bout at Foot Guard hall. Malcewicz, known as the "Panther of the Mat", is rated one of the four best heavyweight wrestlers. Rogaski is a rugged and aggressive matman with a long string of wins. They are slated to go on the best two out of three basis.

In the semi-final, "Rough House" Harry Mamas of Springfield, noted for his slambag tactics, takes on Stan Pintaw of Chicago, another of the whirlwind type of matmen; this is apt to furnish the best action of the entire card. It is a forty-five minute card. There will be two other bouts. In one Fred Bruno of Hartford, state light heavyweight champion and winner of his last thirteen bouts, tries conclusions with Al Morris of Springfield and the show will open with Joe Dillon of Bristol and formerly of the U. S. Navy, wrestles Battling Brooks, former Hartford boxer.

STUDENTS CAUSE DISTURBANCE

Cambridge, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Two hundred Harvard students who noisily celebrated a hockey victory on a subway train returning from Boston near midnight last night by tearing down signs, breaking several windows and light bulbs and pulling down bell cords, have had their names taken by police.

Police said they would take no action but would turn the names over to the elevated company.

MANCHESTER WATCHES RIVAL RUT WEAVER HIGH, 30 TO 19

Manchester isn't the only school boy basketball team in the state that finds Bristol a complete enigma. Weaver High, one of Hartford's proud contributors to the chafed court ranks, was given a beating yesterday which was almost as severe as the one the local team took last Friday. Bristol won 30 to 19 but it wasn't Weaver's fault the final score wasn't nearer 60 to 13.

Outside of fighting spirit and some spectacular long range basket picking, Weaver showed nothing but its green and white uniforms. Bristol was vastly superior and worked its famous pivot play to such a state of perfection that Weaver's defense was plainly bewildered. Time and time again a Bristol man would feint one way, turn and dart under the basket in the opposite direction taking the ball on the fly from their brilliant leader, Captain Eddie White.

Most of Bristol's baskets were made in this manner but the state champions made only one third of its shots, a fact which saved Weaver from a bad shelling. The Monahans took 49 pops at the hoop for their 13 baskets. Weaver made 8 buckets in 28 flings but all but one of Weaver's shots were of the spectacular variety. Only one was under the basket. Hence the low percentage of successful shots.

Tommy Keams tossed in four sensational mid-floor shots that made the score seem respectable. Weaver, like Manchester, used a man to man defense. The entire Manchester High team watched the game, the regular afternoon practice session being postponed from 7 to 9 last evening.

However, Weaver proved a poor instructor and anything the Clarkites learned from the contest had to be shown by Bristol.

BETTING ON HORSE RACES SEEN AS NEW FLORIDA LAW

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Horse racing, sponsored by "the right people" has come to stay in Florida, despite the existence of a sharp and statewide conflict on the subject over a period of years. This is the opinion of those well informed on the political as well as commercial aspects of the situation.

As a direct result, the passage is forecast of state legislation to legalize the pari-mutual system of betting at the Florida tracks, perhaps in time for the 1931 season, certainly by 1932.

Several factors in addition to a belief that this will be "better business" for Florida, appears to have brought about some change in sentiment, at least along the East Coast. Chief among these factors has been the successful operation of Hialeah Track at Miami under the direction of a group of wealthy New York and Philadelphia sportsmen headed by Joseph E. Widener.

Political leaders in Duval county of which Jacksonville is the center, regard Mr. Widener and his associates as "the right people." Further they are interested in the proposal for the purchase of Keeney Park located some 20 miles from Jacksonville and operation of a 15 day meeting there, starting March 10, to fill the gap between the close of Hialeah and the opening of the Maryland spring season at Bowie. Today, Jacksonville business men were to confer with representatives of William V. Dwyer, New York sportsman, who heads interests holding an option for the purchase of Keeney Park for a price understood to be around $150,000.

Hialeah has been operating under the so-called "envelope" or "oral" system of wagering, the same as that employed on the New York tracks. This has been done apparently by common consent, in spite of the anti-gambling statutes now in existence. The feeling, as a result, has grown that Florida may as well reap some of the financial harvest by establishing the pari-mutuals as operated in Maryland and Kentucky.

MALONEY IS WINNER WHEN FRIEDMAN FALLS

Boston, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Jimmy Maloney, heavyweight boxer, had a victory over Al Friedman of Rosindale today through a technical knockout in the fourth round of their scheduled ten round bout.

Friedman plunged through the ropes on a wild rush and swing in their bout here last night after one minute and 55 seconds of fighting. He struck his head on the edge of the ring and was unconscious for several minutes. The battle was a furious slugfest with Maloney having a slight edge over his lighter opponent.

LEAD BIKE RACE

Chicago, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Gerald Debaets, of Belgium, and Tony Beckman, of Secaucus, N. J., held the lead in the six day bicycle race early today.

Going into first place last night, the pair not only outrode the attempts of other teams to grab the lead but gained a lap on the two teams now in a tie for second place.

O'BRIEN DEFEATS BERTHOLD 40 PINS

Hartford Bowler Wins First Half of Match Here Last Night.

"Fido" O'Brien, well known bowling artist from Hartford, came here last night and took Arthur Berthold of Rockville into camp by 40 pins in the first half of a home and home match at Gamba's alleys. The final ten games will be played at the Charter Oak alleys in Hartford at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

O'Brien averaged 114.7 against 110.7 for Berthold. The winner had 31 spares with 194 pins for fillers and three strikes with 21 pins compared to 29 spares and 170 filling and three strikes and 17 pins on strikes as made by the Rockville lad. O'Brien had the high single, 140. Here are the scores:

COLUMBIA LEADS COLLEGE TOURNEY

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A dark horse in the Eastern Intercollegiate basketball league race, Columbia, today had become the leader and was the only undefeated team in the circuit. Two sophomores played the leading roles last night when Columbia took the league leadership from Penna with a surprising 32 to 18 victory. One of them Lou Bender, scored five field goals and three fouls. Sam Schoenfeld, the other, tallied eight points.

The defeat dropped Penna to second place ahead of Dartmouth and Princeton which are tied for third with two victories and two defeats each.

Columbia gets one more test this week meeting Yale, the last place team of the circuit at New Haven on Friday. Dartmouth plays Cornell at Ithaca Saturday in the only other league contest of the week.

CONNIE MACK GETS $10,000 BOK PRIZE

Philadelphia, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Connie Mack, veteran manager of the World Champion Athletics was preparing to return to Florida today, the proud possessor of the 1929 Edward W. Bok award presented annually to the man or woman who during the preceding twelve months "rendered the most outstanding service to Philadelphia."

The gift of a $10,000 check enclosed in an ivory case, a gold medal and a scroll was presented last night at a private dinner at which Mack and fifty prominent citizens were guests of the board of trustees of the award. In view of Mr. Bok's recent death the customary public exercises were omitted.

Mack made a hurried trip from Florida to receive the honor, bestowed upon artists, scientists and educators.

MERIDEN CAN TIE BRISTOL FOR 1st PLACE BY BEATING MANCHESTER HIGH QUINTET

Clarkites Trimmed Meriden 17 to 12 Down In Silver City Few Weeks Ago and May Repeat.

One of the only two schoolboy basketball teams in Connecticut which boasts a victory over the powerful Bristol High quintet, state champions for the past three years, plays in Manchester tomorrow evening when Meriden comes here for a C. C. I. L. battle.

Meriden tacked a 27 to 26 defeat on Bristol a few weeks ago showing that it is possible, believe it or not, to meet one of Coach Monahan's well drilled outfits and come out on the long end of the score. The other team which took Bristol's measure this season was Torrington and the score was 30 to 28. Bristol had beaten Torrington by the same margin previously. Incidentally, both of Bristol's defeats were suffered on the opposing team's home court.

Meriden is in the thick of the fight for the league championship and if it can defeat Manchester tomorrow evening, a tie will exist for first place between Bristol and Meriden. Such a turn of affairs would bring Manchester its fourth defeat and practically eliminate whatever thread of hope still exists of being selected for the Yale tournament. Yesterday Bristol wallowed in defeat, losing to Torrington, 30 to 19 in Hartford. The Bell City outfit has no game scheduled for tomorrow night.

The funny part of the complicated situation lies in the fact that Meriden, conqueror of Bristol which was in turn twice mauler of Manchester, received its only defeat from Coach W. J. Clarke's warriors down in Meriden on their own floor to boot. The score was 17 to 12 and the locals outplayed their opponents to an extent fully deserving of the final margin if not more. Since that time Meriden has lost one of its star forwards, the chap with the alphabetical name—Orenlicherman.

Still smarting under the stigma of the Bristol debacle last week, Manchester is determined to take it out on Meriden at all costs thus showing that only one team in the league is superior to Manchester. Meriden is equally determined to win and thus go into a tie for first place with Bristol. Hence a victory means more to Meriden than Manchester so far as the C. C. I. L. pennant is concerned. It should be a battle well worth watching.

LOCAL SPORT CHATTER

There was as much difference as day and night between the style of a game Clyde Waters refereed here Tuesday night and in Hartford yesterday afternoon all of which tends to prove that he tries to give the fans the type of a game he believes they want. In professional games many fans, perhaps the majority, are against too much of a whistle concert but in the schoolboy games a strict interpretation of the rules is a vital necessity. And that policy seems to be the one Waters aims to carry out.

Coaches of several other High school teams about the state were notified at the Weaver-Bristol battle yesterday, all eventually trying to get some "inside dope" as to how Tommy Monahan continues to manufacture such successful teams at Bristol. Weaver was a weak test, however, and flaws are not usually brought out by inferior opposition—if they exist at all.

The final half of the Conran-Pontillo bowling match set for last night has been put off until next Tuesday at 9:20 when it will be held at Conran's.

POLISH STAR WINS MILE IN 4:28 TIME

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Stanislav Petkiewicz of Poland and Dr. Paul Martin of Switzerland who constitute the chief international threats of the current indoor track season here took a romp in winning the mile event, but his flat footed stride brought him across the finish line in four minutes and 28 seconds, fairly fast time for an unbanked track with sharp curves.

Martin, who wears the colors of the N. Y. A. C. during his visit to the United States ran the odd distance of 800 yards in 1:45.4-5. Since the 800 yards distance had never been contested indoors before, Martin's mark established a record.

LEWIS WINS

Portland, Ore., Feb. 13.—(AP.) Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former world heavyweight champion defeated Dr. Carl Sarpolis, Cleveland, two out of three falls in a wrestling match here last night.

"MAY I TEACH YOU TO SWIM MY PRETTY ONE?" CHIRPED GILDSEY VARNENSBIDGE.

"So it was you trying to attract my attention with your presumptuous suggestions!" exclaimed Mollie Graycastle. "I thought I was being barked at by a sea lion . . . Why not try OLD GOLD, the cigarette made from heart-leaf tobacco? . . . They work wonders with the throat."

EDISONS VISIT FAIR

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Edisons and the Firestones went to the Lee County fair last night.

The inventor had "great fun" carrying a huge stuffed yellow rabbit which his wife won at one of the booths.

Both Mr. Edison and his crony, Harvey Firestone, staked 35 cents each at a booth but were unsuccessful. They played number 11 each time.

"Let's go, I'm broke," the aged inventor said to Mr. Firestone.

Mrs. Edison and Mrs. Firestone fared better. Mrs. Firestone matching Mrs. Edison's rabbit with a baby doll.

Leaving the grounds almost reluctantly Mr. Edison smiled to a questioner.

"These fairs are great fun for us all. We'll be back again tomorrow."

BAR GAMES OF CHANCE FROM SHRINE'S CIRCUS

All Types of Gambling Out at Order of Potentate Penfield; To Be at Hartford Armory.

All types of gambling will be forbidden at the Sphinx Shrine Circus to be held at the State Armory for one week, from Monday, February 17 to Saturday, February 22, inclusive. This order, issued by Potentate Walter H. Penfield, includes gambling concessions, red and black wheels, and all games of chance.

In his order Potentate Penfield said: "While I fully appreciate that there are many different kinds and types of gambling games, devices and tests of skill, with many of them harmless from the viewpoint of the possible loss to the player, I believe it is better that the Sphinx Shrine Circus establish a standard for entertainments of this type and bar all varieties of concession which operate with the element of chance involved for the patron. In adopting this stand we are following absolutely the ruling of the last council of the Shrine, when official disapproval was expressed of any games of chance in connection with any Shrine affair."

The entire details of the administration of the Circus are in the hands of the membership of Sphinx Temple with no professional assistance outside of the circus acts which have been signed to appear on the program.

CENTER CHURCH TROOP WINS SCOUT CONTEST

No. 3 Captures Two First and Get Excellence Award Over All Others.

The members of Boy Scout Troop No. 3 of the Center Congregational church are in a jubilant mood today because of their worthy feat in winning two first prizes at the annual Boy Scout rally held in the high school assembly hall. More than 200 scouts assembled.

Troop 3 took first place by a 16 point margin over Troop 1 which was the winner last year. Troop 6 finished third with 25, one less than Troop 1. The winners captured the silver loving cup offered by the Manchester Electric Company for first aid work, thanks to the efforts of Eagle Scout Harvey Gould and Star Scout Kenneth Leslie.

The victory which was the most cherished was that over the other competing seven troops for general excellence. This was accomplished by the services of Harold Burr, a contracted German measles at a most inopportune moment. This was considered a big handicap but Stuart Joslin who took his place, did a mighty fine job.

STATE BANK CLOSES; CASHIER IS MISSING

Chicago, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The people's State Bank of Maywood remained closed today as search was intensified for Miss Laverne D. Lindgren, 25 year old cashier.

A warrant for her arrest was issued, but bank officials said they could not say what the state of her accounts are, bank auditors having reported the books in such condition they could not interpret them.

Elmer Languth, 35, president of the bank, was released yesterday under $10,000 bond. The charge against him is embezzlement. It was Languth, bank officials said, who sponsored Miss Lindgren in her three year rise from switchboard operator to bank cashier.

Miss Lindgren was reported suffering a nervous breakdown at the home of relatives, but police had been unable to find her early today. A $35,000 home which officers said Miss Lindgren recently built in Riverside was financed, according to Languth, by money the young woman received from the estate of her grandmother. Languth said that "not one cent of the bank's money went into that house."

Bank officials were unable to state how much money was missing.

BANDITS IN CHINA CONTINUE LOOTING

Search American Vessels Posing As Officials; Travel Becoming Dangerous.

Shanghai, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Activities of bandits and lawless soldiery throughout China were described today in advances from various areas as having become a grave danger threatening the authority of the Nationalist government and making travel in the interior unsafe for foreigners.

The reports indicated that the broadening scale of bandit operations was becoming more and more apparent.

In Hunan province along the Hankow-Changsha railway marauders posing as members of the provincial military, in addition to besieging and looting towns, have begun holding up cargo ships belonging to the Standard Oil Company of New York.

Search Vessels.

These ships, plying between Hankow and Changsha, have been subjected to search by the marauders under the pretext that the vessels were suspected of carrying "contraband goods."

From these developments, American naval authorities ordered a gunboat at Hankow to accompany oil ships and prevent searches. Meanwhile, consular officials at Hankow forwarded details of these occurrences to the American Legation at Peiping. It is understood the legation filed a protest with the Nationalist government foreign office at Nanking.

WIRKULA CASE OPENS

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The State of Minnesota went into military in addition to besieging and looting towns, have begun holding up cargo ships belonging to the Standard Oil Company of New York.

The government itself is defense attorney, for it has contended that the defendant, Emmett J. White, acted within his rights when he shot and killed Henry Wirkkula of Big Falls, Minn., last June 8. A Minnesota county attorney is the prosecutor. The case was transferred to Federal court at the request of the Federal authorities.

One woman is on the jury, which was completed yesterday.

An early witness for the state was to be Mrs. Wirkkula who was with her husband and two daughters when White and another Custom patrolman ordered the Wirkkula automobile to halt and submit to a search for liquor. The government contends that Wirkkula disobeyed the stop order, and that it was only then that White opened fire.

1901's Scrambled
GEEERD
The third is the worst.

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it.

CORRECTIONS

(1) Weasel is spelled incorrectly. (2) The cuffs, on the coat of the girl at the left, do not match. (3) The collar on the coat at the right is black, while genuine ermine is white. (4) The mirror posts do not match. (5) The scrambled word is DEGREER.

GAS BUGGIES—Confidentially

WELL, DICK, MY FRIEND, HOW EVERYTHING GOING ALONG FINE?

NO, NOT SO WELL, MR. KELLY, I'M WORRIED ABOUT NELLIE CHERRY. SHE IS ANXIOUS FOR US TO MARRY, BUT ON ACCOUNT OF MY BROKEN BACK I'M NOT SURE IT WOULD BE FAIR TO HER. WHAT DO YOU THINK?

IT'S TICKLISH BUSINESS GIVING ADVICE IN AFFAIRS OF THE HEART. IN YOUR CASE YOU'D BE DEPENDENT ON NELLIE FOR SUPPORT, BUT I MIGHT BE ANTICIPATED THAT OBJECTION BY SUGGESTING YOU COULD HELP OUT—SAY FOR INSTANCE, BY KEEPING THE STORE BOOKS.

GOSH! THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT SHE SAID!

I SUSPECTED AS MUCH, BUT OF COURSE, IT'S MERELY SALVE FOR YOUR CONSCIENCE. ANY DECENT MAN HAS TO MUCH SELF-RESPECT TO LET HIS SUPPORT HIM, BUT THERE—DON'T LET ME INFLUENCE YOU—THINK IT OVER—BUT THINK CAREFULLY BEFORE YOU DECIDE.

SENSE and NONSENSE

In the Midst of the Crime Wave. The man with an ax drew near. His family all shrank with fear. He found himself misunderstood—He merely wished to cut wood.

Sufficient Reason. "You shouldn't question your wife's judgment." "Why?" "Look what she married."

The "radio expert" like most other experts, doesn't know a darn thing about it.

A Boston, Mass., man arrested for stealing two radios was found to have three wives. The only mystery is what in the world he wanted with even one radio.

Our radio is of the railroad type—it whistles at every station.

The trouble with a lot of radio programs, is that they are mostly talkies.

Don't overlook the Scotchman who does his daily dozen by his neighbor's radio.

When a woman buys a dog she takes a week to examine his pedigree. But when she takes a husband, half the time she don't even ask his middle name.

Manchester teacher: "Use 'de-spair' in a sentence." Grade Five: "If a tire blows out put on de spare."

We can remember when a woman kept her gray hairs until she died—and not until she died.

In a gentlemanly way: But they marry brunettes. That's why they prefer blondes.

Boss—"No, I'm afraid you won't do." Steno—"Did I say I wouldn't?"

The old-timers may have lacked some modern advantages, but when they kissed a girl the only flavor they got was girl.

Members of a tribe in Kalbari desert are said to bury their sick people alive, and we'll bet that is one place where people don't go around all the time complaining of being sick.

To be popular at home is a great achievement. The man who is loved by the house cat, by the dog, by the neighbor's children, and by his own wife is a great man, even if he never had his name in "Who's Who."

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Then, again, having two cars saves many a quarrel about who made the new dent in the fender.

My wife writes me that she is all unstrung. "What shall I do?" "Send her a wire."

"I guess that's digesting the facts," snickered the goat, as he finished his last periodical.

CRAVED CAVE MAN

Los Angeles—Mrs. Grace Miller expected rough treatment from her husband. In fact she wanted it. She didn't get it so she sued for divorce. Telling the judge that: "He won't fight. He just up and quits. If only he'd fight back we might get along together." The husband replied: "Aw, what's the use of fighting with a woman?" A divorce was given Mrs. Miller.

ALOHA?

Honolulu—Hawaii is a land where one word goes a long way. That word is "Aloha," which is used to mean "hello" or "good-bye." It is used to say: "How are you?"; "Thank you"; "Merry Christmas," and "I love you." In addition the word has been used to name the popular song of the Islands, and it graces Honolulu's landmark—Aloha Tower. It will also be used to name the big spring festival of the Island, April 8—12.

MOURNS OLD DAYS

Cleveland—A taxidriver who yearns for the old days of the horse and carriage is Charley Bebout, who guides a taxi through Cleveland traffic day after day. "I could make more money in the old days with my cab and horse than now with this taxi," he says. He used to drive president McKinley when he was in office.

QUEER FISH

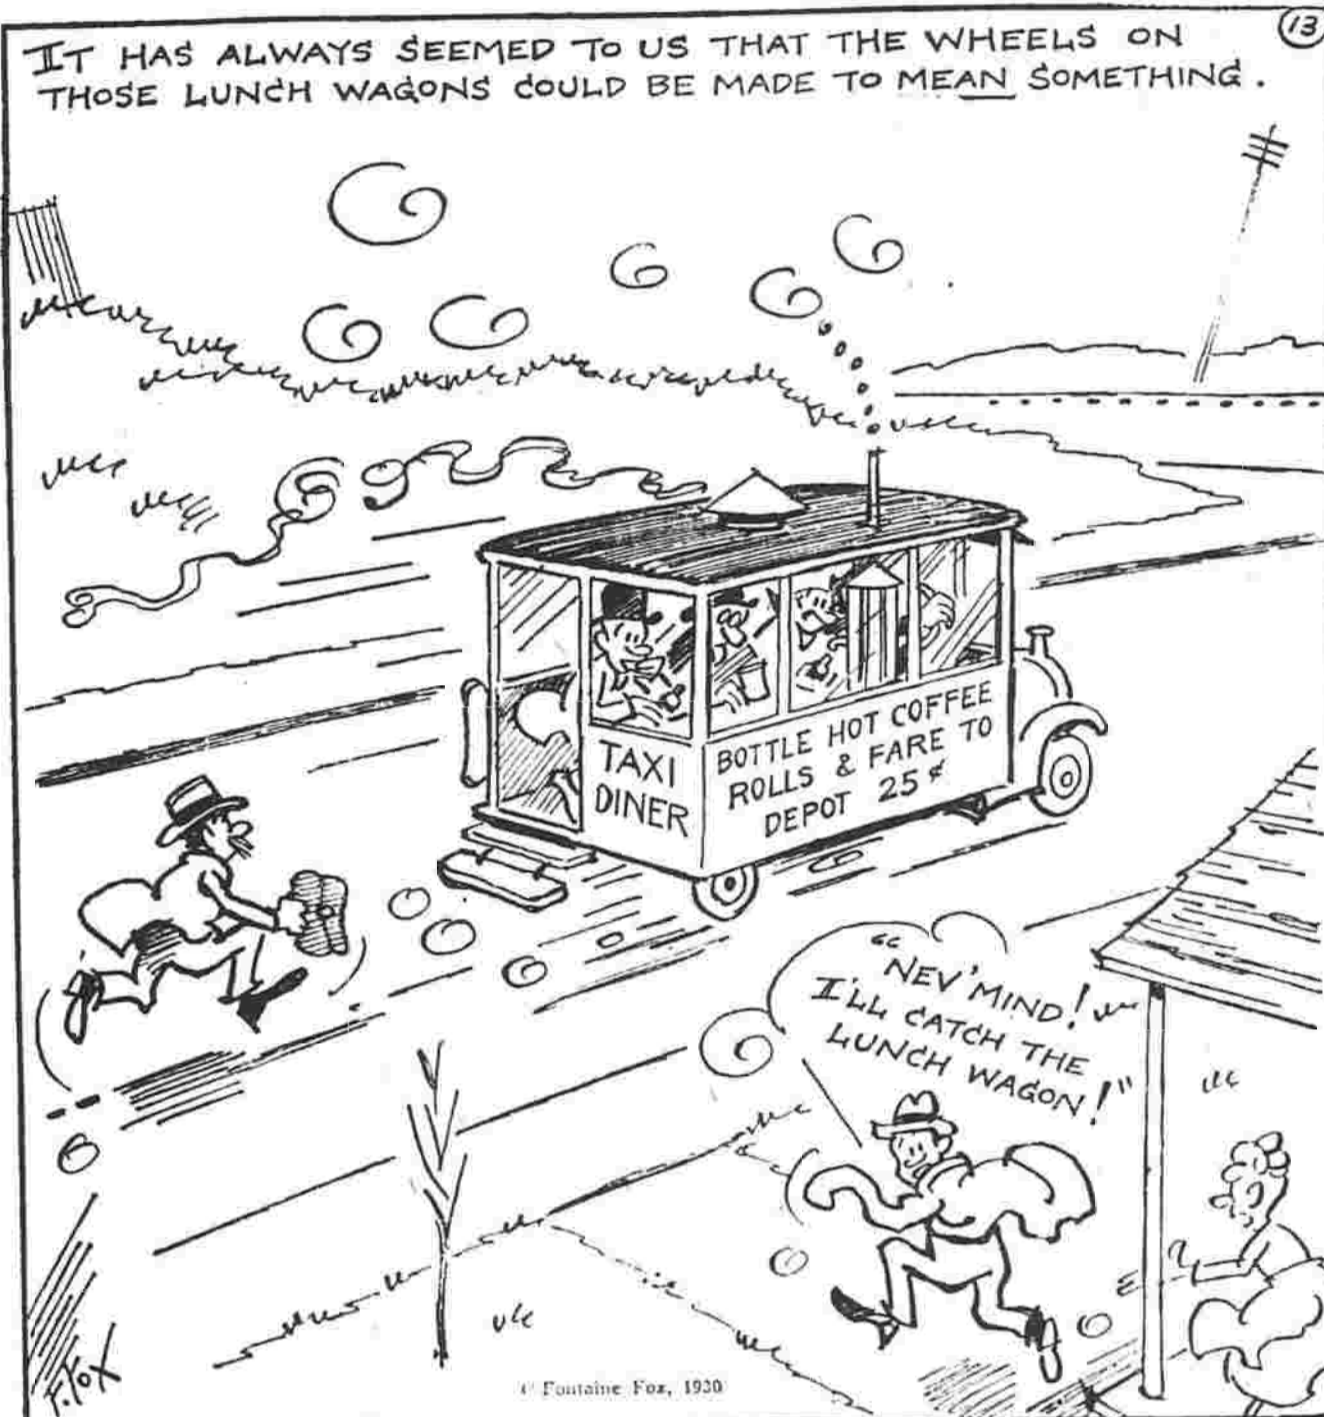

London—An expedition recently returned from off the coast of Bermuda, brought back the following samples of queer fish: A fish that has eyes on its "wrists"; fish with light bulbs on their stomachs; fish with periscopes on which they hook their dinners; and a squid that has eyes on the ends of its tentacles.

LITTLE JOE

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinymites felt very bad to think the little toadstools had run out of sight and spoiled their dance, which had been very good. The man who tried to catch the bunch, perhaps to eat them for his lunch, said, "Well, they got away. I'd surely catch them if I could." "But they can all run much too fast. And, at such speed, I cannot last. Perhaps you little fellows know where I can find some food. Now don't think I am indiscreet. You see, I wanted food to eat. The way you stand and stare at me is really rather rude." "To be real mad we have a right. You chased the toadstools out of sight," exclaimed one little Tiny. "Do you know just what you've done?" By chasing all our friends away you've simply spoiled a heap of play. Oh, why did you turn up and ruin everybody's fun?" The man exclaimed, while looking sad, "Why, I thought those were mushrooms, lad. I'm glad I didn't catch the little toadstools. Mercy me! They looked like such a lovely treat, but goodness, they're good to eat. Don't ever eat a toadstool 'cause it's poison as can be." And then the man walked out of sight, repeating, "I missed quite a plight." The Tinies all were glad to see him wander on his way. Said Scouty, "Well, what shall we do. Can't we find something that's brand new? It's no fun standing still like this. Let's all join in and play." Then Clowny shouted, "Look who's here! Some new friends come, to bring us cheer." And, sure enough, a funny band of people came in sight. Some held the cutest little frames. Do you suppose they are for games? We only hope the folks are nice and everything's all right.
