POWERS READY TO GO AHEAD WITH PARLEY

Great Britain Willing to Discuss Security Pact With France and U. S. Awaits Word from Washington.

London, March 26.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald conferred at the House of Commons this afternoon and it was reported that the premier told Mr. Stimson Great Britain was prepared to go ahead with a security pact for France.

Secretary Stimson, after seeing Prime Minister MacDonald dictated a long report to President Hoover. It was said that he would depend on what concessions France was willing to make in her naval tonnage figures of 724,000 tons presented to the conference as the French program.

London, March 26.—(AP)—The political aspect of the naval conference came strongly to the fore today as conference talk again centered on the possibility of some form of pact being evolved to break the Franco-Italian parity deadlock and produce a five-power treaty.

During the day an abrupt and somewhat sensational change came over the face of naval conference affairs with the re-emergence of security pact talk as a means of working towards a solution of the Franco-Italian differences which had brought the conference, at least in its five-power aspect, to a practical standstill.

It was the most important development for some time in the conference activities and the subject of discussion in all conference circles to the practical exclusion of everything else.

Resurrection of the security pact talk at this time caused considerable surprise in American headquarters it having been assumed that this phase of the conference discussions was done with. Just how the matter was revived was still surrounded by considerable mystery but in many quarters the impression prevailed that Great Britain may have offered security assurances to France in some form or other.

It was thought that if such were the fact, it might account for Foreign Minister Briand's hurrying back to London from Paris, but this was purely a matter of speculation.

One thing was abundantly emphasized, however, and that was that the American attitude regarding a security pact even of consultative variety, had not undergone a change. It was stated in authoritative American quarters that while the Americans, as previously indicated, have no objections to entering a consultative pact as such, they Winter's Dying Gasp Echoes in Many Towns and Cities; Traffic Clogged.

Chicago, March 26.—(AP)—Winters' dying gasp today showed that most of the Midwest, but its dying gasp breathed sporadic news and continued cold. THINK 11 DEAD IN MINE BLAST CAUSED BY GAS

Two Bodies Recovered Burned Beyond Recognition; Little Hope Held Out for Nine Left in Shaft.

Armettsville, W. Va., March 26.—(AP)—Two miners were killed and nine others were entombed today in an explosion in a heading of the Yukon mine of the Crown Coal Company here. The fate of the nine entombed was not determined several hours after the blast.

The bodies of the two men known to be dead were not removed from the workings. Both were beyond recognition, rescue workers said.

Little Hope Left. Members of the rescue crews believed that there was little chance for life for the nine miners unaccounted for.

The explosion was believed to have been caused by gas. It occurred 4,000 feet from the mouth of the mine.

The entombed men included the night foreman, J. H. Livingston. The mine was opened in 1922 and is owned by Johnstown, Pa., interests. It is a slope mine. Two hundred men are employed in it during the day and 25 at night.

Early Morning Blast. The blast occurred shortly after 2 a. m. The eleven men entombed were working in the ninth right heading where the explosion happened. It is a slope mine. Two hundred men are employed in it during the day and 25 at night.

DRAPER CAMPAIGNS AS WET CANDIDATE

Seeks G. O. P. Senatorial Nomination in Bay State; Favors Repeal of Law.

Boston, March 26.—(AP)—Eben S. Draper of Hopedale, who has announced his candidacy for the Republican Senatorial nomination in the forthcoming primaries, today declared himself as unqualifiedly opposed to prohibition.

The only other candidate for the Republican nomination is former U. S. Senator William M. Butler, who has declared himself in favor of retention of both the 18th amendment.

The Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, a Congregationalist minister and State Representative, last night announced himself as a candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination on a platform that called for repeal of both the 18th amendment and the Volstead Act. In his declaration, Sawyer charged Draper with having been "evasive."

As Atlantic's New Speed Queen Reached New York

New speed queen of the seas, the huge steam-lined German liner Europa is shown here as she arrived in foggy New York harbor at the end of her maiden voyage after crossing the Atlantic in the record-breaking time of four days, seventeen hours and six minutes. By 35 minutes she beat the time of her sister ship, the Bremen, despite high winds, rough seas and fog encountered on her first crossing.

MARCONI LIGHTS LAMP 11,000 MILES DISTANT

Famous Inventor on Yacht Near Genoa, Italy, Opens the Electrical Exposition At Sydney, Australia.

Genoa, Italy, March 26.—(AP)—Short radio waves cutting across the Atlantic, America and the Pacific today carried the voice of Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless, from his yacht Electra here to Sidney to open the electrical exposition there.

Marconi's assistant, Matthew Beaman, tested the short wave apparatus at 8 a. m. Marconi then took the phone. He spoke across 11,000 miles to the director of the electrical association, Fisk, reading a message which outlined what he intended doing later in the day—transmitting a small unit of power to Sydney in order to close a circuit there and light the electric lamps of the exposition.

The inventor said: "It is not more than 30 years since I transmitted the first faint wireless signals across the Atlantic ocean. Today we demonstrate that it is possible by wireless to bring powerful currents into operation at other ends of the earth."

He then handed the phone to (Continued on Page Three.)

GIANT AIRPLANE TO FLY TO U. S.

German Machine That Carried 169 to Start Trip Latter Part of June.

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Plans are being formulated for a flight to America this summer of the world's largest heavier-than-air craft, the giant Dornier Do-X, it was announced today.

The big seaplane, which carried 169 persons safely in a test flight last fall over Lake Constance, will hop off from the German lake sometime during late June, or early July with a crew of twelve and fifty passengers, under present plans. The plane probably would make one or two refueling stops in Europe.

Powered with twelve 600 horsepower Curtiss Conqueror engines, which have been shipped from the Curtiss-Wright factory at Buffalo, N. Y., to Friedrichshafen, it is expected to make the ocean flight from Spain via the Azores in thirty hours. The twelve engines will give the plane a power plant of 7,200 horsepower, 1,200 more than the present engines.

Long Planned. Dr. Claude Dornier, designer of the giant craft, has been planning the ocean flight for some time, but it was only yesterday that he called permission to the Curtiss-Wright corporation for the plane to be announced. It is expected that it will fly to America in DO-X.

JURY MUM ON NEXT MOVE IN MAYOR'S CASE

To Meet Monday to Consider Rulings in Hartford Cases—State's Attorney Alcorn Also Keeps Silent.

Hartford, March 26.—(AP)—Undecided whether or not it will continue its probe into Hartford county bootlegging and official corruption, the special Grand Jury will meet to decide its future course next Monday, it was indicated in a statement by Foreman Ralph O. Wells this morning.

The possibility of criminal proceedings against Mayor Walter E. Batterson and former State Senator Edward N. Allen was still a matter of conjecture today, when State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn refused to add anything to a previous statement that "you may speculate all you like on that."

"I am not giving out any indication of my plans at present," he said. Mr. Alcorn's failure to deny that such a course will be taken is deemed significant.

Mayor's Position. Judge Newell Jennings in discharging Mayor Batterson and Allen yesterday afternoon on the subpoena which had brought them before him on a Grand Jury application to compel them to answer certain questions, considered each respondent's case separately. He said that the mayor would be in the worse position because of his official position if he was required to answer the questions put to him than Mr. Allen, but both were within their rights to refuse to answer.

Grand Jury's Report. From the evidence given to the court by the Grand Jury report it was shown that Mayor Batterson had told that body that he had bought two lots of liquor, one for $300 and the other $500, but he refused to answer a question as to the "friend" who had acted for him in making the purchase from a bootlegger. The court stated that if the decisions given on the two cases was going to hamper the Grand Jury in its work by limiting the scope of its questioning it could reach this fact, he would discharge it.

Mr. Wells' statement today had bearing upon this aspect of the situation for the Grand Jury had been following the bootlegger and others whom testimony showed have (Continued on Page Two.)

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE IS TEN YEARS OLD

Carrie Chapman Catt In Coast to Coast Broadcast Recites Its History.

Washington, March 26.—(AP)—With Carrie Chapman Catt, for forty years a suffrage campaigner as featured speaker, the National League of Women Voters today celebrated the tenth anniversary of votes for women.

Silvery-haired, 70-year-old Mrs. Catt consigned the "innumerable odds and ends of claims to equal rights" to the younger generation of women voters. Speaking from New York, over the National Broadcasting Company chain, she said that "there are social problems enough boiling and seething around every woman of us to keep an army of keen thinkers and doers busy for a generation or so in order to clear them all away."

Tells of Pioneers. She told of how the pioneer suffragists, "marching upward on the last lap of their century old campaign, spied old age coming along to meet them." But they did not sorrow, she said, for "glancing back they saw a younger army to whom they said 'come, take hold, and finish.'"

CANADIAN WARNS AMERICA AGAINST CONTROL SYSTEM

VANDEMBERG ASKS Says It Is Not the Solution of the Drink Problem—Insurance Official Says Mortality Has Decreased Under Prohibition; Other Witnesses at Dry Hearing

Washington, March 26.—(AP)—Canada's experience with government control of liquor was cited today at the House judiciary committee prohibition hearing as a warning to the United States not to embark upon such a plan.

E. C. Drury, a former premier of the Ontario provincial government, testifying as a witness for the group supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, asserted that "whatever the solution of the drink problem may be" it was not in government control.

He took the stand after John J. Lentz, president of the American Insurance Union with headquarters in Columbus, Ohio, had submitted insurance statistics which he argued showed that the dry statute had proved of wide-spread benefit.

Mortality Decreased. Lentz, a one time member of the House of Representatives from Ohio, said mortality had decreased under prohibition and that the abstainer from alcoholic beverages usually paid four more annual insurance premiums than the drinker.

Today's hearing was the first this week. The Drys had been expected to conclude presentation of their case but at the outset F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, announced they would like at least two more days. The committee did not pass upon the request at the time but Chairman Graham has said the committee would give both wet and dry views an opportunity to present their views.

Before either Lentz or Drury took the stand, Representative Hadley, Republican, Washington, read a telegram from J. J. Donovan, of Bellingham, Washington, asserting the Dollar ships did not permit the sale of liquors as has been charged at previous committee sessions.

McBride was the first witness at the afternoon session. Before taking the stand he had said the friends of prohibition would need two more days to finish presentation of the defense of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The League superintendent insisted arguments of the anti-prohibitionists had shown only inherent evils of the alcoholic liquor traffic and that as a solution of these problems had been adopted after years of experiment with other proposals.

The vast majority of people, he went on, wanted prohibition. He said the present administration had presented to Congress a program to aid dry law enforcement; that President Hoover in his first inaugural address had said more in the first ten minutes for prohibition enforcement and observance than had been spoken by any President within ten years, and that the wets realized that repeal was either now or never. He termed the beer and light wine movement "false and foolish" and said prohibition was here to stay.

HEARING OPENS. Washington, March 26.—(AP)—After a week's recess the prohibition hearings were resumed today by the House judiciary committee, with John J. Lentz of Columbus, Ohio, testifying that 77 insurance companies had found that the mortality rates had been lowered under the dry statute.

Before the hearings got under way, F. Scott McBride, General Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, announced that the drys would like to have at least two more days in which to complete their case.

He said however, it had not been decided how long Chairman Graham desired the hearings to continue.

At the outset Representative Hadley, Republican, Washington, read a telegram into the record from J. J. Donovan of Bellingham, Wash., defending the Dollar Steamship line from what he termed charges by Representative La Guardia, Republican, New York, that liquor had been dispensed on the line.

No Liquor Served. Donovan wrote he had traveled on the Dollar steamships in different parts of the world and had not seen liquor served or dispensed aboard them. The telegram also praised Captain Dollar, the 88 year old head of the line, as a valuable citizen of the country.

Representative La Guardia interposed he would place into the record a report of the fines imposed on the Dollar ships for violations of liquor and narcotic laws, at the appropriate time.

"I want to show that men aboard (Continued on Page Two.)"

BROTHERS NOW OWN LARGEST RAILROAD

Van Sweringens, of Cleveland Control 18,000 Miles Of Rails Almost to Coast.

New York, March 26.—(AP)—The New York Times said today that by recent deals O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringens of Cleveland have rounded out a railroad empire that is the largest privately owned one in the world.

Their $2,000,000,000 eighteen-thousand mile network is exceeded only in the western hemisphere by the 20,000 miles of Canadian National Railways and elsewhere only by the 30,000 miles of the German State Railways. It eclipses those of such systems associated with the names of Gould, Vanderbilt, Hill and Harriman.

The railroad influence of the Van Sweringens extends from New York to Salt Lake City and from Chicago and St. Louis to Omaha, El Paso, Galveston and New Orleans. A line controlled by a friendly interest connects the system to San Francisco.

The brothers entered the railroad world in 1916 when they purchased the broken-down Nickel Plate road from the New York Central for $2,000,000 in cash and $6,500,000 in notes.

Real Estate Men. They had been in the real estate business and became interested in transportation from the desire to obtain a street car line from Cleveland to a suburban real estate development.

Today they control directly the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Erie and the Nickel Plate. Through the Allegheny Corporation and by other means they control the Hocking Valley, the Pere Marquette, the Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Missouri Pacific and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois.

Amount of Capital. The 18,000 miles of road controlled by the Van Sweringens are capitalized at $98,000,000 and the investment in road and equipment valued at $2,084,000,000.

REPORT ON SCHOOL READ BY GOVERNOR

But Conditions in Meriden Will Not Be Made Public At the Present.

Hartford, March 26.—(AP)—Conditions which have existed in the Connecticut School for Boys at Meriden, as revealed by the several inquiries made by the school trustees, the State Department of Public Welfare through its executive secretary, the State Department of Health and more important than all, through a commission named by him, are known to Governor John H. Trumbull who this afternoon discussed them with the trustees. Yesterday afternoon the governor was handed the report of his own commission by the chairman, Judge George H. Day and met the commission in his office for a verbal review of the evidence which has been incorporated in the report.

The survey by the State Health Department had to do with sanitary and hygienic conditions of the institution and its report will be one on which legislation proposed at the next General Assembly may be based as the charge had been made, from time to time that state maintenance allowances have been too meagre for an institution of its size.

Reports Kept Secret. Governor Trumbull indicated today that none of the reports will be made public until he had thoroughly digested them to arrive at a clear (Continued on Page Two.)

INDIAN DESCRIBES MARCHAND MURDER

Squaw Calmly Tells How She Killed Woman She Thought Was Witch.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 26.—(AP)—Nancy Bowen, the withered old Cayuga, today told a jury she had killed the "White Witch of Buffalo," Henri Marchand, on instructions from Lila Jimerson, the Seneca woman on trial for the murder of the artist's wife.

In a high pitched, almost whining Indian tongue, the Cayuga told through an Indian interpreter the developments of the Marchand murder beginning on February 27 and carrying through the actual slaying. Without changing her tone and in a commonplace manner she described in detail how she battered the head of the little French woman with the blows of a ten cent hammer and then, to stifle Mrs. Marchand (Continued on Page Two.)

knowledge of conditions, and whether the commission and the school trustees had found evidence to prove charges of brutality and inhumanity in caring and handling of the lads in the school.

Although the inquiry into school conditions has been a prolonged one and probably wide in its scope very little information as to nature of the evidence has come out. The governor's commission made up of Judge Day, Judge Walter M. Pickett and William A. Hendrick of New Haven moved faster in probing conditions than the others, due, it was explained to the fact that the three members on it are trained in examination and cross examination. The judges being in their element and Mr. Hendrick having had experience as an inquisitor as a member of a commission on institutions which looked into conditions at the Soldiers' Home at Noroton.

Many Witnesses. The governor's commission in its session at the school called about 60 of the lads, as witnesses besides the school officers. The youngsters are understood to have proven willing witnesses and under questioning, put in kindly manner that they might be at ease, they told their stories quickly and clearly. It is understood that some aspects of the charges which had been made, received support. For this reason the commission's report is expected to prove interesting reading.

Nothing is known of the trustees' report which was developed in a much longer period of taking of testimony.

So far, the only compulsory action which has come out of the inquiries has been the dismissal of James S. Peck, the school farmer, who initiated the complaints against conditions by going to the welfare commission because he felt that his statements were not well received by the trustees. The dismissal order embraced Mrs. Peck as matron, although neither will leave the school until April 1. Other charges at the school have been voluntary ones and Supt. Edward S. Boyd last night said he expected no more resignations or dismissals at this present stage of the inquiry.

THUNDER AND LIGHTNING ACCOMPANY DOWNPOUR

Last Night's Storm Gave Nearly Everything the Elements Had—Hope for Good Weather Tonight.

Intermittent showers yesterday culminating in a thunder and lightning storm and torrential downpours at night, gave the town a storm reminder of the deluge of last August 1.

The sun shone brightly this morning and a stiff breeze was blowing. It may have been the dying kick of 'Ol' Man Winter, but there are still a few days left for the month of March to stir up trouble.

South Manchester merchants today are hoping for a bright future with the opening of the season.

There has been some criticism against the Town of Bolton for not spending money on the repair of roads in that town, especially because of its reported sound financial foundation.

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

It Didn't Go Flat
What would you do if you discovered a tack or nail embedded in a tire and were about to park the car for some length of time? Would you remove the obstruction and run the risk of letting the tire go flat or would you trust to luck and do nothing further until you returned to the car?

One car owner who was faced with this problem resorted to neither extreme. As a result he made a mark on the side of the tire on a line with the nail. Then he moved the car ahead until the mark showed that the affected part of the tire was in direct contact with the street.

He figured the weight of the car on the point of the tire where a leak might be expected would serve to seal it and prevent loss of air.

When You Adjust Valves
Motorism moves at such a pace that it is foolhardy to use any rule that applied to servicing a car a few years ago, unless that rule is brought down to date with improvements of its own. This applies to so simple a process as adjusting tappets.

Most owners know that a good job of this sort cannot be done unless the engine is warmed up. But every day brings its story of owners who have run into difficulties with this simple work.

It's all because they forget that the valve compartment of the newer engines is automatically lubricated. Often they remove the cover plates and then start to run the engine until it is warmed up. They may even drive the car with the plates removed.

Raising the hood reveals the engine splashed with oil that has escaped from the valve compartment.

Safety in Cold Brakes
With many of the newer cars the temperature has much to do with the effectiveness of the brakes. This probably will surprise a great many motorists, but the point can be demonstrated. And there is a reason for it.

Cold, internal expanding brakes, are subject to contraction of the brake drums. This naturally reduces brake clearances and results in greater braking power. The matter is well to keep in mind, both for the purpose of avoiding unnecessarily sudden stopping and of using this extra stopping ability in an emergency.

If you have just started out on a cold, or even cool, morning and are forced to stop quickly it may save you from getting panic-stricken when an emergency arises. Remember that the brakes will be at their best.

But don't let that fool you into thinking you can stop as effectively later on during the ride!

Keeping Gauges Accurate
Because the gasoline gauge has earned the reputation for never being accurate many car owners go ahead borrowing trouble by not giving this unit of the car even ordinary attention.

If a gauge is electric in its operation why not check over the connections now and again? If it works in conjunction with the vacuum system why shouldn't there be occasional tightening of the suction and fuel lines?

Gauges which use colored fluid should be checked over about twice a year. Usually it is necessary to add a little fluid to make up for loss from evaporation. This loss is too often mistaken for actual leakage.

If your gauge doesn't seem to be accurate at least be sure you haven't overlooked the occasional service it needs.

Ring Fitting an Art
Most automobile people agree that the big trouble with piston rings is their appearance of simplicity. The function of a piston ring is generally known and as a result too many car owners think they can install new rings without bothering to study the art in advance.

Different type rings are used in the several piston ring grooves. Some owners will replace the upper rings and imagine they can get results without replacing the lower, or compression, rings. Others install new rings with no regard for the wear on the cylinder walls. Many damage rings in installing them.

Even the experienced motorist is apt to forget that clearance between the rings and the grooves should be greater at the top of the pistons than at the bottom because of the greater expansion of the piston tops.

Helping Cars Wear Out
Apparently rough roads, steep hills, traffic and the elements are not sufficient to wear out the average car, so the owner inflicts punishment of his own invention.

Watch him slamming the doors when he is working around the car and could just as well leave them open. Note how he starts in low gear downhill when second would be more sensible. Observe his habit of always grabbing the outside—and the more conspicuous—doorhandle when he could reach through to the inside handle with very little extra effort.

The man who works around his car with the thought of being its best friend usually is the chief offender. He is the party who spills things on the running board and who mars the fenders in an effort to remove a little dust from the engine. Using the wrong size wrenches is about the nearest of his methods of helping to age the car.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL
Paris, March 26—(AP)—Establishment of a huge government reserve supply of grain to assure a proper amount for the population in times of emergency and to allow a certain government control of domestic prices was approved by the chamber of deputies today.

Under a government bill adopted by the Chamber as amended on the floor a credit of 200,000,000 francs (about $3,000,000) is created for this purpose. The stocks to be acquired gradually from each department under supervision of the ministry of agriculture.

THE BOOK SURVEY

By BRUCE CATTON

Once in a while there falls across the frothy current of modern literature a novel that is conceived and written in the old tradition—a novel that squeezes its subject absolutely dry, extracting from it every drop of substance, so that you finish it with the feeling that there is not one single thing about the characters or their actions that you do not know.

Such a book is "—And Co.," by Jean-Richard Bloch. This book, translated from the French by C. K. Scott-Moncrieff, gets off on the wrong foot by virtue of a jacket blurb comparing Bloch and Balzac.

As I say, it is prohibition has ever puzzled you, this book will help you understand the why and how of it. "Tiger! Tiger!" is published by William Morrow and Co. The price is $2.50.

Now there is not, on the surface, any reason why the rise of a few French capitalists should be so terribly interesting. But the story this book tells truly deserves the word "gripping." For, like all really good books, it is more than the story of the adventures of a few individuals.

It is the story of the rise of capitalism, the story of the struggles of a lonely racial group in a hostile environment, the story of the surrender of an artist's soul to the demands of the workaday world.

You may have gathered by this time that I think "—And Co.," is quite a book. I do. It is solid, meaty stuff, very much worth your while. Simon and Schuster are publishing it; the price is $3.

A Very Human Picture of England's Sovereign
His Britannic Majesty, who reigns but does not rule, is nearly as interesting a figure to Americans as to Britons. His position, by itself, makes him interesting; of course, yet George V is, in his own right, a man worthy of a good deal of study.

"The Story of King George V," by Richard C. Dent, presents a smooth-flowing biography of England's ruler and discloses him as a capable and—I hope it isn't lese-majeste to say it—likable human being.

It demonstrates that the job of reigning over a democratic empire is by no means the sinecure that one might suppose; and it shows, I think that King George V has done it with extreme skill during a period when less talented kings were losing their crowns.

I hope you won't rush to buy the book with the idea that it will give you any "inside stories" or forbidden gossip about England's royal family. It doesn't. It does tell an interesting story in an interesting way; and the numerous photographs and anecdotes that embellish it add considerably to its charm.

"The Story of King George V" is the Dutton prize book for March. It will cost you $1.90.

What it Means to be a Pacifist in War-Time
"Hey! Yellowbacks!" is the story of a pacifist.

Ernest L. Meyer, the author, was a conscientious objector during the war. He was drafted and sent to an army camp, where he demonstrated his pacifism by refusing to don the uniform. After varying vicissitudes he was sent to Leavenworth, and later to another military prison, to be kept in confinement until some time after the armistice. In "Hey! Yellowbacks!" he describes his experiences.

Now you are entitled to think what you please of pacifism; but, no matter what your opinion may be, I think you will find this book worth your while. Mr. Meyer is not one of these irritating, holier-than-thou pacifists. He is quite free to admit that very likely he and his comrades did not really accomplish anything by their actions. He even admits the possibility that they may have been mistaken. What he does say is that he could not have done anything else, holding the ideas that he held, without doing violence to his own soul; and I think he proves his point.

His book, incidentally, might disabuse you of the notion that it was cowardice that made men conscientious objectors. I think he shows pretty clearly that no coward would have stood what the conscientious objectors had to stand. It took a good deal of real, physical courage to do what Meyer did, and I see no reason why we shouldn't admit it.

He holds no grudge. He is frank to say that the United States treated its war-time pacifists more gently than any other nation. In fact, it is his fairness, his lack of a martyr-complex, that makes his book so readable.

It is published by the John Day Co. and sells at $2.

Getting the Background of U. S. Prohibition
"Tiger! Tiger!" the life story of John E. Gough, gives you the background of prohibition. In this book Honore W. Morrow gives the biography of one of America's earliest prohibitionists—and helps you, in case you need help, to understand why and how the nation finally came to vote dry.

Gough grew to manhood about a century ago, and for many years was a drunkard of the most sordid, hopeless type. He was one of those luckless souls to whom liquor was, in sober truth, the "demon rum." For him it was total abstinence or complete ruin. He fought, for years, until finally he conquered his craving! and then he became a temperance lecturer.

As a temperance lecturer John E. Gough had experiences—interesting ones. The value of the book, however, lies not so much in its recounting of these experiences as in the way it traces the slow, steady rise of the temperance movement to the great flood-tide that put the 18th amendment on the statute books.

LEAGUE RECORDS SHOW GROWTH OF PEACE MOVEMENT

Geneva—(AP)—League of Nations authorities point with satisfaction to increasing evidences of the growth of procedure for pacific settlement of international disputes.

All told there are 130 treaties of this nature registered with the league. Twenty-five countries were parties to 34 new treaties which were registered during 1929. In 1928 there were registered 15 such treaties, and in 1927 only six.

The United States was a party to 20 of the new treaties, which are regarded in Geneva as indicating a world disposition to turn away from war as a means of determining the issue of international controversies.

While the Washington government is easily leader in numbers of treaties of this kind registered during the past year, they are less comprehensive than most of those in which other countries are the parties. They reflect clearly the traditional American policy of avoiding European entanglements.

Nine of the American treaties are treaties of conciliation embracing no special features; eleven of them are treaties of arbitration of one standard type. These eleven provide for arbitration in disputes of a legal nature only, and include four kinds of reservations: disputes coming within the domestic jurisdiction of states, disputes affecting the interests of third powers, disputes affecting the Monroe Doctrine, and those affecting obligations under the covenant of the League of Nations.

In treaties concluded between other countries, the following tendencies are observed: to provide in the same treaty for conciliation, arbitration and judicial settlement; to submit all disputes to arbitration or judicial settlement; to avoid reservations; and to designate the Permanent Court of International Justice as the competent tribunal in legal disputes.

NOTED FLIER BURIED
Hatton, N. D., March 25—(AP)—North Dakota turned from its every day affairs today to pay high tribute to Carl B. Elleson, who had flown across the top of the world and amid Arctic wastes before he fell to his death last November in northern Siberia.

Officials of the state, the townsfolk who knew him before the lure of the air took him to far-off places and those who rescued his body from the relentless north mourned at the grave in a little cemetery where the flier was buried beside his mother.

All public business was suspended and schools were closed. The entire state observed a mourning period during the funeral.

NAVY ENLISTMENTS IN FEBRUARY HEAVY
The Navy Recruiting Headquarters, New Haven, announces that 7,750 young men throughout the United States made applications for enlistment in the U. S. Navy for the month of February 1930. Of these 703 were accepted for first enlistment, and 208 re-enlistments for the same month at Recruiting Stations. The total of first enlistments for the fiscal year from July 1, 1929, to March 1, 1930 numbered 9,220, while re-enlistments for the same period were 1,579.

For the month of February 1930, 127 applicants applied for enlistment from Connecticut, while only 15 were accepted for enlistment, while 39 were placed on the waiting list. Many were rejected for physical defects (and having police records which were causes for rejection in the U. S. Navy). During the fiscal year from July 1, 1929 to March 1, 1930, 227 young men were enlisted from Connecticut, and 2 re-enlisted after completing four or more years in the Naval Service.

REMAIN AT POSTS, VATICAN'S ORDER

Missionaries In China Are Told to Remain Despite the Threatened Danger.

Vatican City—(AP)—"Remain at your posts" is the order that continues to go out from her to 218 American Catholic missionaries and thousands of others of various nationalities in restless China, despite the ominous, thin-ice conditions there and the recent murder of two missionaries, including an Italian bishop.

The Vatican's attitude during the last seven years of increasing difficulty in China has been unwavering, although 24 priests, including the Americans, have lost their lives in their heroic struggle to convert the Chinese. Pope Pius four years ago issued a personal appeal to the missionaries to stand fast, and today he maintains the same position.

Figures of the Fides Service of the Propaganda Fide, which controls the enormous missionary territory of the Catholic church, show there are 1,415 foreign priests, 938 foreign religious sisters, and 201 foreign religious brothers working in China. Added to these are 1,132 native priests, 2,029 sisters and 176 brothers.

Chinese Catholics One of the reasons why there is to be no flinching in the ranks of the missionaries is, that already in China there are 2,373,677 Catholics, and the number is healthily growing. A Catholic hierarchy has grown up, consisting of 70 bishops, of whom 11 are native, and 23 apostolic prefects. The Pope has his personal representative there, Archbishop Celsi Costantini, apostolic delegate.

The movement to place as much missionary work as possible in the hands of the Chinese themselves has steadily grown. The native bishops are largely of this fact. About 35,000 Chinese are engaged in teaching. Schools as well as churches are strewn throughout the country. The American efforts are largely expended in Shenchow, where there are 28 American priests; in Krong-mo and adjacent territory, where the Maryknoll missionaries, Ossining, N. Y., have 55 fathers, and in Hupeh. The three Americans who were killed were attached to Shenchow.

Orders Represented Among the American orders represented are the Society of Divine Word, Techy, Ill.; Benedictines of Latrobe, Pa.; Passionists of Union City, N. J.; St. Columban's Mission, Omaha, Neb.; Franciscans of Cincinnati, O.; Dominicans of Washington, D. C.; Maryknoll Missionaries, Ossining, N. Y.

Murders Only Recently It is only in the last seven years that a list of slain missionaries has risen in China. The years from 1900 to 1923 were comparatively quiet, following the reaction of the boxer uprisings. American missionaries share honors with the French of being third in contributing to this list. The Belgians are first, with eight dead, the Italians second with four, the Americans and French tie with three each.

Reports that come to the Propaganda Fide from the missionaries live in serene tranquility, as safe, they say, as if they were in the United States. Others, in different parts of China, live in an atmosphere of momentary alarm. The Vatican's attitude that not an inch must be yielded, has met with ready response. Reports to the Propaganda Fide tell of ever farther-reaching efforts by the missionaries to bring China out of chaos by placing the individual citizen on a different basis, that of Christianity.

NEW BRITAIN COUPLE HELD IN WASHINGTON

New Britain, March 26.—(AP)—George Johnson, a grocery clerk, became enamored of Miss Anna Zoter, aged 20, daughter of one of the customers on his route. Their romance ended in an elopement on March 2. Police were notified today of their arrest in Washington yesterday, their detention having been requested because Johnson had a wife and three children. They will be brought back to this city. Since they disappeared early in the month, Johnson has visited his home once. He returned for a few hours last week and vanished again. Johnson is charged with enticing a minor female for purposes of seduction. The girl was arrested as a runaway.

SNOW IN THE SOUTH

Atlanta, March 26.—(AP)—Snow flurries, sharp winds and near freezing temperatures, have brought on seasonable weather in Dixie, which weather men said would extend through today. The mercury dropped to 28 in southwest Virginia and a light snow lay on the ground for several hours last night in Bristol and in Memphis, Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn. Thermometer readings last midnight gave 38, Birmingham 36, and Little Rock 32.

A quarter of a million deaths of children below the age of 15 in a single year is the gruesome toll for the United States.

ROCKVILLE

Fire Department Called Out.

The Rockville Fire Department was called to the Kojak home on Lewis street this morning, in answer to an alarm rung in from box 36 on Grove street at 6:40. The fire started when a member of the family poured kerosene on the kitchen fire. The blaze did considerable damage to the kitchen. Chief George B. Milne was in charge.

Forest Fire Monday.

One of the worst forest fires in the Rockville district in many years occurred on Monday afternoon in the heavy wooded section near the so-called old Bamforth farm, east of Vernon Center. The fire started from brush burning and in a short time, driven by the high winds, was raging.

The Rockville district fire warden, Gustave Berr of Ellington, in response to the alarm, took the situation in hand. He took a force of deputies and men to the scene. Two other fires were burning at the same time, one in the Talcottville section and one in the Crystal Lake section. The Rockville and Bolton districts fire wardens worked together with a large number of men finally got the fire under control late Monday evening.

About one hundred acres woodland and sprouts were burned, the exact amount of the damage could not be ascertained until a survey is made.

Waldo Marvin is scheduled to preside, but it is not likely he will be able to come here as he is at present suffering from a severe cold, according to information received from Hartford. His place will probably be taken by Judge Edward Yeobly. The docket for the term is considerable. There is considerable criminal business, including cases of much local interest.

WEARS MAN'S CLOTHES SO CLUB BARS HER

Paris, March 26.—(AP)—The Paris Tribunal held today that the French Feminine Sporting Federation has perfect right to bar from membership, women who habitually wear male attire.

The case was based on the Federation's expulsion of Violette Norris, former champion weight thrower, racing car driver and all-around athlete, because she had definitely abandoned skirts for trousers.

The court also threw out Mlle. Norris's suit for re-establishment in the federation and for damages of 100,000 francs.

Attorneys for the federation stressed the fact that a century old law prohibited women masquerading as men.

Pasadena, Cal., March 26.—(AP)—Alfred H. Joy, secretary of the Mount Wilson Observatory, announced today that N. U. Mayall, astronomer connected with the institution had obtained "satisfactory" photographs of Planet "X" as the recently discovered ninth planet of the Solar system temporarily is known.

The photographs, which revealed "Planet X" as a small dot of light among remote stars, none of which is visible to the naked eye, were taken with the aid of the sixty-inch telescope at the observatory.

The new planet, Joy said, "is living up to predictions as to its probable motion. We do not plan to make additional photographs but shall try to obtain its spectrum in order to prove that its light is reflected from the sun."

OPENING STOCKS

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Operations for the advance were vigorously resumed in selected stocks at the opening of today's market, although considerable liquidation was still in evidence.

J. I. Case was rushed up 6 3-4 points, Westinghouse Electric 3 1-4, Vanadium 2 3-4, U. S. Steel and American Can rose about a point each, and a block of 15,000 shares of Commercial Solvents was taken 3-4 higher.

On the other hand, Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Crucible Steel and Simms Petroleum each lost a point, and All Reduction, American and Foreign Power and Parapoint sagged 1-2.

The market continued to gather strength during the first half hour, although considerable selling poured in. Bullish sentiment appeared to have received little damage from the sharp setback late yesterday, and more favorable reports from the steel trade, continued success at curtailment of crude oil production, increasing building operations, and the prospect of a moderate business recovery during the spring months continued to help speculative confidence.

J. I. Case soon lost most of its sharp initial rise, but U. S. Steel extended its gain to more than 2 points, Canadian Pacific, American Machine and Foundry and Vanadium rose 4 to 5 and a. m. Byers sold up more than 2 to a new high for the year. Shares gaining a point or more included Allied Chemical, Columbian Carbon, American Telephone, Standard of N. J., Commercial Solvents, Worthington Pump, Stone and Webster, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred.

Foreign exchanges opened barely steady, with sterling cables at 4.86 15-16, of 1-32.

THE INDIA PUZZLE

India is a long way from the Middle Turnpike and Manchester folks can hardly be expected to do much worrying about what goes on over there so long as they have any perceptible troubles of their own—and who has not? Just the same, India seems likely to loom big in the news almost any time, now, and it is just as well to have some sort of an idea, even if a sketchy one, of the sort of mess that, it seems more or less likely, may develop there.

The history of India reaches enormously into antiquity and has its beginnings in mere legend. But when Warren Hastings, in the latter half of the eighteenth century, organized British control over the country, Great Britain took over the most complicated and involved civilization on earth. The whole region now known as India consisted of a vast huddle of states lacking in cohesion and even friendliness, populated by an immense number of people widely differing, of amazingly various racial stocks and admixtures, some of them wild men, some of them Aryans far advanced in the arts, all worshipping an endless horde of gods and forming altogether the most gigantic human stewpot on earth.

Probably if they had known what they were up against the British would never have undertaken to make anything like a nation out of such a lot of raw material. But in their customary self-confident way they went at it, got into terrific trouble—and muddled through it.

They have vastly improved the economic condition of the whole involved human aggregation. They have supplied transportation, the lack of which caused in India countless such famines as that now devastating parts of China. They have put an end to the continual fratricidal wars. They have brought order out of chaos.

Naturally, inevitably perhaps, they have at the same time frankly exploited the teeming millions of India. Britain has taken immense sums in profit out of the country. And the condition of the very great majority of the people is not a particularly happy one. They are poor and held to a hatred-breeding social inferiority.

It is perhaps no wonder that under the leadership of such men as Mahatma Gandhi the people of India are seeking to throw off the foreign yoke. And under such leadership and with the extraordinary methods that it is adopting, it is very hard to see how these countless swarms of people are to be kept in subjugation forever, and the rule of Britain in that part of the world to forever continue, in anything like its present form, at least.

Yet if the people of India were to succeed in their present ambition to cast off all foreign control it is impossible to see how the country could be reorganized from within.

There are three hundred millions of people in India and in Burma. These comprise seven distinct racial stocks and endless admixtures of those stocks. They speak no less than 147 languages. They are of an endless variety of religious beliefs. Major religions are Hindu—which is that of the majority of the people; Mohammedan, Buddhist, Jain, Christian, Parsee, Animist, and so many variations of each that it is impossible to count them. The Hindus themselves have almost as many sects as there are villages.

The social problems of such a mélange of humanity as lives in this area are immeasurably complicated by the caste system which rules the lives of many of the sects with an iron hand.

Here in America we have only three major religious sects. The number of our racial variations is only a tiny fraction of that in India. We have little more than a third as many individuals to bring into concord. And yet we are having a fairly tough time to prove the case of self government. If a Mahatma Gandhi or anybody else could lead the people of India—so diverse that they haven't even a name of their own for the country they occupy—into a compact nationalism or even into a workable federation, he would probably be entitled to the honor of being far and away the greatest statesman of all times.

POOR OLD DOHENY

Perhaps in such editorial utterances as the following from the New London Day is to be found part at least of the reason why the American people are so cynical about equality before the law. Speaking of the Doheny acquittal the Day says: "The federal case was not very strong. The fact that Doheny gave or lent Fall $100,000 about the time of the oil leases was the principal evidence. Doheny explained that by saying that it was merely a loan to an old friend. Certainly he and Fall were old friends. Doheny is a patriarchal old chap. * * * He has suffered a lot. * * * After all, one man's word is as good as another"—etc.

Yet on practically the same evidence and concerning the same crime Albert B. Fall was convicted. Concerning this very transaction of the hundred thousand dollar bribe—call it loan if you like—the United States Supreme Court said: "The contract and the leases and all that was done under them are so interwoven that they constitute a single transaction not authorized by law and consummated by conspiracy, corruption and fraud." It said: "The interest and influence of Fall were corruptly secured by Doheny." It said: "The interest and influence of Fall were corruptly secured by Doheny." It said: "The interest and influence of Fall were corruptly secured by Doheny."

In the face of this denunciation by the Supreme Court how our neighbor can talk about "one man's word being as good as another" we can't quite understand.

This poor old patriarch, this nice old man who broke down and cried on the stand, engaged in the most gigantic fraud upon the people of the United States that ever was attempted. He corrupted a high official to help him steal scores of millions of dollars worth of oil that was being held in the ground for the nation's defense.

When he was acquitted this newspaper made no comment. The whole thing is so utterly disheartening, it provides so much material for enemies of democratic government and for advocates of dictatorships and fascism, that it is one of those utterly unpleasant things with which it seems worse than useless to deal. But when attempts are made, so unnecessarily, to still further drug the public conscience and to find excuses, where silence strains the limits of kindness, we can't resist the impulse to protest.

Poor old man—who expected to steal a hundred million dollars from his fellow citizens?

THE BATTERSON CASE

Mayor Batterson of Hartford refused to tell the grand jury who helped him to buy some liquor. He would not take refuge in the claim that to answer might tend to incriminate and degrade him. Cited in contempt and presented to the superior court, he is relieved by the court of any obligation to either answer or take the indicated refuge. The court itself, as we understand it, assumes the task of explaining Mayor Batterson's action for him.

In effect, the court finds that Mr. Batterson could not, if he would, plead incrimination, because neither he nor anybody else knows whether it is unlawful to buy liquor, that question being now on its way to determination by the United States Supreme Court. At the same time he might, if he answered the question of the grand jury, be running the risk of incriminating himself by admitting an act which later may be ruled to have been criminal. In such circumstances the court finds that there was no contempt in his unqualified refusal to respond to the jury's quiz.

It is doubtful whether there has ever been a case precisely similar to this one. It is also doubtful whether grand jury practice in this state has been aided by the creation of such a situation. It will strike a good many persons that the powers of a grand jury were put to an unnecessary and not at all beneficial test by the bringing of the contempt proceedings against the mayor and Mr. Allen. Judge Jennings intimates that the grand jury may find itself hampered in its work by the issue of this case. But that is not his fault.

It looks very much as though State's Attorney Alcorn had laid down, with the odds against him, a bigger bet than he could afford, and lost. If he should now accept the rather remote implication that these defendants were guilty of a crime in buying liquor, or conspiring to buy liquor, and should initiate prosecutions on that basis, there will be a general impression that he would be sending good money after bad, so to speak.

SANDY HOOK

Evidently there is no such thing as a standard village opinion in New England on the subject of converting the peaceful, not to say somnolent, main streets of the old time settlements into roaring speedways for indifferent and cynical motorists. On the one hand we have the protests of many such communities against the modernization of their main streets and on the other hand we have Sandy Hook.

The State Highway Commission proposes to build a cut-off that would leave the tree embowered business section of old Sandy Hook off to one side of the new highway through Newton. Whereupon loud and angry are the shouts that go up from the village business people. They don't give a darn! They don't care if all the beautiful old trees have to be cut down, if dooryards have to be scrimped, if Sandy Hook main street has to be altered from a thing of beauty into a sordid concrete race track, they don't care a hoot whether kids get run over or not—they want to be on the main stem and in the middle of things. And they so inform Commissioner Macdonald.

It not only takes all kinds of people to make the world, it takes all kinds of communities to make up New England.

IN NEW YORK

New York, March 26.—The winds of March still carry a sting and a bite. But over on Avenue A, across the river in Jersey towns, and "down the island" the children of Romany are getting ready for the open road. So spring must be just around the corner.

The gypsy and the circus press agent are always three or four hops ahead of the first robin. And in New York, the bustle of preparation may always be noted in the latter days of March when gay skirts and gaudy sashes are freshened for the gypsy trail which knows no end this side of the grave.

The "chis" and the "chals" are beribboned and bejeweled. Along the intricate lanes of the lower East Side, their very snappy-looking autos wait at the curb to form the annual caravan, for the gypsy of today travels in style and in state. His first stop, generally, is a camp in Jersey. Then on he moves into Pennsylvania and way states, from camp to camp until the skies tell of snows. Then, oddly enough, he seeks out the most metropolitan centers, moves his colossal family into empty store-rooms and dingy tenements.

So long had it been since Mississippi was a regular daily attraction of Broadway that few knew he had died. It was a week or more after his demise that I noticed a paragraph about "Sippi" in a morning paper. They say that his greatest regret, when lying on his deathbed, was that his friend and benefactor, Al Jolson, was off somewhere on a concert tour and couldn't be called in for a last farewell.

Sippi—whose name was John Wall—was Broadway's favorite hack driver. An elderly negro, ambling down the street with his crumpled silk hat and his shiny swallow tails, Sippi was known the length and breadth of the street. About a year ago his horse died, and Sippi could be seen for a change on foot, stumbling along through the crowd, being greeted by the famous ones of the theater.

He complained of "ailing" then. And some time passed before he was seen again. Who was there to miss him? What is one person more or less in the Broadway millions? Still and all, something of the old flavor of the big street went when Sippi stopped driving his hack. He was part of a time that was.

They used to tell on Broadway, yes, Sippi used to tell himself, how "Mistah Al"—meaning Jolson—"jes couldn't get along without me."

The fact was that when Jolson was in his hey-day as a musical comedy performer, Sippi's hack always waited for him at the stage door. There was a legend that Jolson never left the theater without traveling at least a few blocks in the old negro's cab. It got to be quite the thing to have Sippi pick you up after a night club revel. Theater folk practically adopted him. They bought his horses when one died; they paid for the fixing of his cabs.

There aren't many of these Old Broadway characters left. But I assume, new ones will come along and live for their moment in its fantastic life.

One of our native wags, describing a certain theater goer, says: "He's a man whose word is as good as his blood."

HEALTH DIET ADVICE
 Dr. Frank McCoy
 "The Just Way to Health"
 SYNOVITIS AND BURBITIS

SYNOVITIS AND BURBITIS

The nerves which supply the synovial joints are peculiar in that they can be squeezed, cut and touched with but very little pain, yet they cause much distress whenever the joint is injured by a sprain (which dislocates it from its usual position) or, whenever the ligaments are stretched beyond their normal give. These nerves act like jealous watchdogs which raise an uproar whenever the joint is in danger of being dislocated, lying quietly at other times.

Synovitis causes an acute pain because the swelling may push the sac out until it looks something like a tumor, and the blood also becomes congested, causing a greater swelling so that these nerves and ligaments in this area are greatly stretched.

Since burbitis and synovitis greatly resemble each other they both respond to the same treatments. When there is a chronic inflammation of these tissues, you will generally find that the condition has been built up from a chronic poisoning due to retention of toxic wastes.

The quickest way to cleanse the blood stream of these toxic substances is to start on a fruit fast which should be continued from eight to fifteen days; and then a careful diet used for a month, and then another short fast of about five days. It is important to take an enema in the morning so that the bowels are kept free from toxins. No walking or exercising of the affected joint should be used as long as the inflammation is present, although other parts of the body may be exercised.

A very good electrical treatment over the affected joint is with the use of diathermy, since this form of treatment creates an internal heat and brings a greater supply of blood to the part to aid in absorption of poisons present. If diathermy is not available, hot applications or a deep therapy lamp may be used around the joint, although in either of these cases the heat is not as penetrating as with diathermy. Even after chronic synovitis is entirely cured, it is necessary that a careful diet be used for quite some time.

In acute synovitis the correct treatment is to rest the part, and instead of hot applications, it is usually better to use cold applications. A wet towel wrapped around the knee, for example, and covered

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Numb Arms)
 Question—K. L. J. asks: "What causes my arms to get numb up to the elbow every night. Also, what would overcome this?"
 Answer: The trouble you write of is either due to some heart derangement or to a pressure of the arm nerves as they issue from the upper spine. Have an examination by a doctor who understands how to examine the spine for nerve impingement. He should also examine you for any heart disorder, and should be able to tell you exactly the cause of your trouble.

(Chayotes)
 Question—J. L. asks: "Where can I get chayotes?"
 Answer: Chayotes are members of the non-starchy squash family and are a very delicious addition to the everyday diet. They are procurable only in the southwest, where they can be purchased in the market during the early fall season, and are often called "Mexican squash," as they are found growing naturally throughout Mexico.

(Red Patch Around Scratch)
 Question—V. B. writes: "I was scratched on the leg with a rusty wire, and now there is a red patch around it, with a continual burning pain. I have taken treatments from several doctors, but nothing seems to be doing it any good. What treatment would you advise? I am 48 years old."
 Answer: The scratch may have been deep enough to have injured a nerve which has not yet healed. This will no doubt heal in time and the pain disappear. Certain electrical treatments might be given, such as with the galvanic current. These treatments can often be given by the patient at home, using certain local spots so that these nerves are not so sensitive.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER
 By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, March 26.—While Mr. Hoover was secretary of commerce he doubtless had time to figure out how he could avoid the mistakes Mr. Coolidge was making. Now there are plenty of problems and difficulties annoying him which never seemed to bother Mr. Coolidge very much, although they include a pile of dirty dishes which the last administration left to be washed.

Thus far there is only one real outstanding cleanup job to the credit of Mr. Hoover, but it has been performed in a manner that invites criticism and recent developments have tended to accentuate a sincere determination to carry it to logical conclusions. One refers to the change in the method of using the United States flag in the much better feeling that has been engendered between the United States and the other republics of the hemisphere.

When Hoover was elected we were still pretty generally regarded as a great big imperialistic giant bent on gobbling up all the younger and smaller neighbors. After the president-elect came back from his amiable voyage to South America your correspondent pointed out that everything would be lovely if the spirit of the visit were introduced into our foreign policy. Otherwise the gesture would have been considerably worse than useless and disillusioned Latin-Americans would have disliked us more than ever. Hoover's foreign policy, however, has been consistently liberal and friendly toward Latin America; the recent work of his commission in Haiti and the State Department's semi-official reinterpretation of the Monroe Doctrine are excellent examples. South and Central America never helled over about the dictatorship of American marines in Haiti, but it was used by our critics as a fine example of the way we did business with weak little nations. The Haitians are black people and the fact kept the Latins from becoming as angry as they were when the State Department was in difficulties with Nicaragua and Mexico.

The new Haitian policy is a complete reversal. Instead of us in the past having a puppet president dominated by Brigadier General John H. Russell, the Haitians are going to elect their own Congress which will then proceed to elect a president of Haitian choice. Until Hoover's commission arrived it appeared that President Borno and Russell were about to pick their own man to succeed Borno and that American suppression of free elections, free press and other civil liberties would continue. A civilian American minister is expected to replace Russell and although the Haitians may make a mess of governing themselves, an existing treaty will maintain the marine occupation until 1936, by which time they will have had some practice at free and peaceful government.

Publication by the State Department of former Undersecretary J. Reuben Clark's lengthy memorandum on the Monroe Doctrine indicates an even more drastic reversal of policy and one of vast importance. Although Clark's views are set forth as personal opinions, their publication in such manner virtually amounts to a renunciation of the long series of military interventions in this hemisphere. For Clark holds that the Monroe Doctrine was meant to apply solely to relationships between European governments and American governments. It guaranteed to protect the latter from European aggression, but, says Clark, it "does not apply to purely inter-American relations" and "lays down no principles to govern the inter-relationship of the states of the western hemisphere as among ourselves." Under such an interpretation, of course, there is little place for any exercise of "police powers" over the Latin countries such as have often been claimed and exercised in the past.

BID FOR MAYOR'S JOB.
 Donsbach, Germany.—Rigid economy faced this town during the recent elections. Everything possible had been done to cut expenses. Someone conceived the idea of mayor to the lowest bidder. Finally, one member of the council, a patriot who with a courageous soul, bought the job for $35 a month.

MISSIONARIES SAFE

Rome, March 26.—(AP)—The Society for the Propagation of the Faith, missionary organization of the Roman Catholic church, today received a cablegram from Shanghai reporting that seven American priests at Kanchow, Kansu, for whose safety there had been fears, had been freed by lifting of a Communist siege there. All the priests were well.

Dispatches from Shanghai yesterday said the plight of the American missionaries at Kanchow was serious. It was feared the Nationalist garrison would be removed, leaving the city open for sacking by the Chinese Communists who surrounded it. Previously Shanghai dispatches had said there were ten priests and six nuns in the city.

AUTO DRIVER RESPONSIBLE

Washington, March 26.—(AP)—The operator of an automobile who drove on the tracks in front of a Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad near Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 23 was held today by the Interstate Commerce Commission's Bureau of Safety to have been responsible for the resulting collision with two trains, which caused the death of 14 persons and the injury of 131.

DAVIS ROSE FROM STEEL MILL TO BECOME NATIONAL FIGURE

James J. Davis (inset) who rose from a steel mill to the cabinet, may seek a place in the Senate. He is shown (top) with Mrs. Davis and Jean, Joan, Jewel Jane, James, Jr.

Washington—(AP)—James J. Davis may soon be writing another chapter in a life story that might well be titled "The Rise of a Pudding Boy."

If he seeks the Republican nomination for the Senate from Pennsylvania, Davis ends ten years as secretary of labor.

At the same time he will enter, perhaps, an interesting phase of his political career as at any time since it began when he was chosen city clerk of Woodland, Ind.

In the decade since President Harding gave him the labor portfolio, the one-time immigrant boy has become a national figure, widely known.

His voice and name became known to millions when he broke into hearty song during a radio address. Davis is now 57 years old. He broke off a budding political career a quarter of a century ago to take over direction of the Loyal Order of Moose, which he built up in membership from 300 to 600,000; and became a wealthy man in so doing.

Immigrant from Wales at four years of age; cow tender at $1.25 a month at six years of age; steel puddler at 11; competent to manage a furnace of his own at 16—these are the laborious steps of the beginning of Davis' career.

The Davis family, including the five little Davises, all in a row, has carved its place, too, in Washington life.

There are Jimmy, Jane, Jean, Joan and Jewel, beginning at 14 last year and going on down. The four girls dress alike, and they always help their mother entertain in the handsome Davis home.

The children were favorites of Mrs. Coolidge at the White House.

This is Paris

By HAZEL REAVIS

Paris — Notes on the progress of the so-called Americanization of France.

French people pronounce skyscraper "skescraper," and have tremendous interest in the subject.

The most blaze boulevardier likes to hear about the 43 high-speed elevators connecting the 70 stories of the new Manhattan company building in Wall street.

When a leading illustrated weekly recently used several pages of pictures of the American Women's association building in New York showing roof gardens 24 stories above ground, non-traveling Parisians got a new impression of "la ville de skyscrapers."

Another New York Recently two other things have happened to further stimulate French interest in New York.

Paul Morand, a popular author, has brought out a book on the biggest town on earth which presents it in its human anti-hill phase.

Heretofore New York has been held up to the Frenchman as a steel city inhabited by money-making robots, jazz bands and Broadway chorus girls.

Adriaan Lubber, a Dutch painter who has lived many years in New York, illustrated Morand's book with an exhibition of canvasses of New York.

Like Skyscrapers French art collectors are just as interested in new world skyscraper paintings as Americans are in old world crooked streets and quaint landscapes.

Despite Manhattan's "skescrapers," the Eiffel tower with its 986 feet claims the world's record for high edifices.

A small quantity of liquor was seized. The raid was made by 10 Federal agents led by Major Henry E. Goodenough and at their entry bottles, chairs and food were thrown at the agents. Several agents and a dozen or more guests were severely bruised.

Those arrested on charges of liquor law violation were Joseph Kelly, Nathaniel Clark and Andrew Clark, Edward Belts and Joseph Levine were arrested charged with interfering with officers. The first four were employees of the club and Levine was a guest.

CONVICT RECAPTURED

Garfield, N. J., March 26.—(AP)—Recaptured in the home of an aunt after his escape from the Morris county jail, Alphonse Mieriez, 19, a former Blair Academy student, wanted in New York for murder and robbery, was in a cell again today.

He escaped from the jail at Morristown, N. J. Sunday night after beating a guard and stealing his keys. He was arrested at Blair Academy March 22, as one of four youths under indictment for killing an unidentified negro, during a holdup.

DIES IN TURKEY

Istanbul, Turkey, March 26.—(AP)—The body of the late Dwight Filley of St. Louis, uncle of Dwight Davis, governor of the Philippines, was shipped home today aboard the steamship Exanthia, bound from here for New York.

Filley died Sunday of pneumonia at the age of 72 in the American hospital at Istanbul to which he was taken ill from the liner Empress of France.

His niece, Miss Helen Morton, arrived here from Paris to arrange transportation of the body.

VOLATILITY PRIME FACTOR IN GASOLINE

Volatility in gasoline is one of the prime factors in the efficient operation of the modern automobile. A local official of the Gulf Refining Company, large producer and refiner of gasolines and motor oils, says that volatility resulting in instant and complete vaporization is secured by the use of motor fuels possessing an end point of 400 degrees Fahrenheit or lower.

The Gulf Refining Company is marketing just the kinds of gasoline from which the best results are to be obtained—that Good Gulf gasoline with 400 degree F. end point and Gulf No-Nox motor fuel 374 degree F. end point. These gasolines vaporize instantly and completely to the last drop—giving quick starting, quick pickup, more power and greater mileage. Both of these fuels possess high anti-knock quality which is of vital importance for successful operation of the modern high compressor motor.

While carbon is not desirable, it is always found to a greater or less degree in all motors after a few thousand miles of running—carbon deposits increase the ratio of compression which is very satisfactorily overcome by these anti-knock fuels. Fuel knocks which are not to be feared on hills and during quick acceleration in traffic are not only annoying but detrimental to the motor. Retarding the spark will reduce the knock but likewise reduces power. The safe and sane way to get rid of them is to use fuels of known anti-knock quality.

PRIESTS MUST REGISTER

Mexico, City, March 26.—(AP)—Recommendations that all Roman Catholic priests in Mexico register with the government before the end of the month is contained in a circular letter sent out by Pascual Diaz, archbishop of Mexico.

Registration in compliance with government regulations and was agreed to in the settlement of the church-state controversy last June. The majority of the priests already have registered.

The archbishop also called on the priests to cooperate in the national census being taken under government direction.

IN New York Theaters

New York—The oldtrums of Lent are upon Broadway. Four new plays came in with the Ideas of March, but they were minor amusements, evoking no such hat-throwing as has been accorded in recent weeks to "Green Pastures," Shaw's "Apple Cart," or John Wexley's stark drama of prison revolt, "The Last Mile."

Alcey Brady, acting for A. H. Woods after a short sojourn with the Theater Guild, is the feminine figure about whom revolves the action of "Love, Honor and Betray," adapted from the French.

The curtain rises upon a grave-yard, and as dawn lights the scene a young French officer emerges from a grave. Presently from an adjacent tomb comes forth a portly and older gentleman.

Each, it develops, has been lover or husband of The Woman. This is launched a novelty which is often uneven in its tone, ranging from satire to farce. Miss Brady goes, during the course of the play and its flashbacks, from young womanhood to old age.

MURDER ON THE MIDWAY

A modicum of entertaining excitement was contained in "Penny Arcade," by Marie Baumer. Its scene is an amusement park, in which Mrs. Delano operates a penny arcade filled with all the usual devices. Mrs. Delano's weakling son and a daughter who loves "Angel" Harrigan, the lad who comes in to repair the fortune-telling machine.

The weakling son kills a ricketeer, and the mother plants his gun on "Angel." Mrs. Delano's daughter, who has seen the whole thing, gives her brother away to foil the framing of her sweetheart.

The plot is never too intricate, but Miss Baumer has a knack for writing dialog which has a good deal of humor and verity, and Valerie Bergere as Mrs. Delano, Eric Lester as "Angel," Joan Blondell as his sweetheart and James Cagney as the weakling son help make "Penny Arcade" a pleasant but unimportant play.

George Jessel, turning producer, offers "This Man's Town," which Willard Robinson wrote and acts in. The scene is a lunch wagon in a tough corner of town, and the characters are an uninviting crew. The most exciting moment is the one in which a diner catches a pick-pocket flinching his wallet. The diner puts the dip's wrist across the counter and breaks it deliberately with his revolver butt, while a policeman munches his supper unconcernedly in another corner of the lunch wagon.

NO girl can win admiration swiftly and surely unless she has a lovely skin," says Millard Webb, famous Hollywood director, expressing the conclusion reached by 45 famous Hollywood directors after long experience in choosing girls likely to win the adoring admiration of millions.

"To the motion picture star beautiful skin is an absolute necessity," he goes on. "The glaring lights magnify the slightest defect, and only the girl with exquisite skin can hope to win success."

How natural, then, that every girl in Hollywood, from the star down to the youngest "extra," should guard the beauty of her skin most jealously. And how significant that so many of them use Lux Toilet Soap!

U. S. DECLARATION
CLEARS THE WAY

France Believes Some Sort Of An Agreement Can Be Reached at Parley.

Paris, March 26.—(AP)—The American declaration issued shortly after midnight on the position of the United States regarding proposals for a so-called consultative pact, was regarded in French official circles today as tending to clear the atmosphere at London and to hasten a decision.

France, it was said, continues to hope that the naval conference will yield results and Foreign Minister Briand who left for London at noon, will explore all the avenues of a possible agreement.

No surprise was expressed here that the United States had reiterated her refusal to become involved in any pact that even implies aid, but the last paragraph suggesting that there may be other methods of guaranteeing French security again directed thought here toward a Mediterranean pact.

It was recognized that Great Britain is averse to being an active third party with France and Italy, but Foreign Minister Briand's speech in the Senate yesterday was taken as plainly indicating his optimism that something could be done in some directions.

Must Have Security.
He repeated, however, the French policy of insisting that any reduction must be based upon compensating terms in some form of a security pact, even if it should not be a strictly military one.

French officials, it was stated still regard the Mediterranean agreement as the obvious solution, but failing that, hope that the Briand-Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war may be strengthened or that the League of Nations may find a settlement.

Whatever the outcome of the present conference, France is represented as remaining firmly in favor of the idea of general security pacts. Foreign Minister Briand yesterday told the Senate that the old system of alliances was obsolete.

"Today," he said, "there is an altogether different conception of security, mutual solidarity for the benefit of one great community. Calling all nations to draw together and unite against a danger and to create guarantees against it in common."

Whims Of Fashion Effect
Methods Of Merchandising

Present Vogue for Ensemble Costuming Forces
Retailers to Adopt Co-ordination of All Buying.

Milady's whims for dress, her desire to be properly costumed are so changeable that whole systems of merchandising, shopping and stocking of retail stores must be changed to meet the demands they create. No better demonstration of this can be given than the great change in purchasing customs that have been inaugurated this Spring. The ensemble idea has made co-ordinated buying on the part of the retailer an absolute necessity.

Today everything Dame Fashion dictates follows the ensemble idea—the coat must be co-ordinated with the hat and the gloves with hosiery and so on. The stylist has come into her own, and every live, up-to-date department store must employ an expert in costume purchasers as to the correct combinations that go to make up the ensemble.

Farrish Clinic.

ly attended the famous Amos Parrish clinic in New York City where such points in new fashions were discussed by stylists and buyers from all over the country. Even Canada and South America were represented at the clinic. The idea of the clinic is to teach retailers and stylists the trend in fashions. At this recent clinic Mr. Parrish stressed the point that co-ordination in buying to create the correct ensemble was the most important factor in fashions today.

This idea of correct styling has spread along the highways and byways of the country until today Miss Manchester demands that her costuming be as modern and up-to-date as that of Miss New York. This puts a great burden upon the stores in the smaller cities. Stocks must be so purchased that when Miss Manchester purchases a coat in Hale's she can add to the ensemble effect by purchasing a hat in Hale's millinery department that co-ordinates with the coat. Thus Hale's entire stock must be based upon this co-ordination idea.

Fashion Show Tonight

Hale's fashion show in connection with Spring Opening tonight will depict the latest of modes so that those attending may get a most vivid idea of the correct vogue. This show will be conducted by Miss Florence M. Dinnen, an expert on styles, brought to Manchester from New York City especially for Spring Opening. Miss Dinnen is a representative and styles authority with the American Department Stores Corporation. She has made an extensive study of styling and her reputation is well established in New York and in the great many cities represented by stores of the American Department Stores Corporation.

Tonight's display of modes at Hale's will begin promptly at seven o'clock. Models will promenade on an especially constructed platform at the rear of Hale's garment shop, main floor. A big space has been provided for spectators. This pageant will be given twice this evening, being repeated at eight o'clock. This will give a great crowd of Spring Opening spectators an opportunity to see the unique show.

Models taking part in tonight's display at Hale's will be Miss Margaret Quinn, Miss Virginia Lowell, Miss Clara Jackmore, Miss Marion Crawshaw, and Miss Agnes Howard in the adult fashions; Miss Ursula Segardahl and Miss Jessie Little in the junior modes; and Little Nancy Bantly and Donald Barrett in infant's wear. Hale's doors will open at 6:45 this evening to allow spectators to gather for the style show.

Taking an unusually important part in preparation for Hale's fashion show is Miss Ethel T. Anderson, advertising manager and publicity director for the J. W. Hale Company. Miss Anderson who is studying styling and is rapidly becoming expert in the delineation of the correct modes is self educated in her special work of advertising.

She joined the Hale staff after graduating from the High school here in 1924. She studied advertising layouts in correspondence courses and never failed to read anything informative on advertising display. Many of the advertisements which Miss Anderson has prepared and which have appeared in The Herald have been cited by advertising institutes and trade magazines for their unique layouts. Miss Anderson is now studying fashion trends with a view to becoming an expert for the Hale Company in this new line of work. A great deal of credit for the fashion show to be given at

TALL CEDARS PLANNING
ANNUAL APRIL FROLIC

Dance in Masonic Temple Tuesday Night to Feature Springfield Orchestra.

The committee representing Nutmeg Forest, No. 116, Tall Cedars of Lebanon and the Social Club of Manchester Lodge, No. 78, are working diligently to make the second annual April Fool Frolic, which will be held at the Masonic Temple, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, a complete success.

The first Frolic was held April 1, 1929 and it was decided at that time to make it an annual affair owing to the good opinion of those attending. The music committee, Samuel Houston, chairman, has been fortunate in obtaining Leo Roy and his Spanish Cavaliers of Springfield, Mass. While this orchestra has not played in Manchester, they are well known by dance followers, having broadcast from station WBZ and WBZA at Springfield and Boston.

This orchestra plays three nights a week at the El Patio in the Hotel Clinton, Springfield, and are on the road the remainder of the time. They have played for several formal dances in this section including the East Hartford Masonic Ball.

The novelty committee under the leadership of Dick Puter have promised something new in the line of entertainment but refused to divulge its origin. It is however, said to be in the "April Fool spirit." Harold Maher, general chairman, reports a good advance sale of tickets and arrangements are being made to cater to a banner crowd.

Wall Street
Briefs

New York, March 26.—March earnings of the Union Pacific railroad are showing about the same decline from last year as was reported for February, Carl Gray, president, said today. Heavy decreases in grain loadings and in the movement of lumber, coal and automobiles have contributed largely to the recession.

The Central Vermont railway, subsidiary of the Canadian National system, has received the first of 1,000 new automobile cars ordered for use between the middle west and New England points over the Grand Trunk-Central Vermont route. Marketing of equipment trust certificates totaling about $1,900,000 in connection with the purchase of the cars is expected soon.

The Shell Eastern Petroleum Products has increased its price of U. S. motor gasoline in tank cars at local refineries 1 cent a gallon to 8.24 cents, meeting the advance recently made by competitors.

A new issue of $5,000,000 5 percent 100 year gold debentures has been authorized by the West Penn Electric Co., holding company for the electric properties of the American Water Works & Electric Co.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY

Medford, Mass., March 26.—(AP)—Boys playing on the banks of the Mystic river today found the body of a woman. They summoned police, and the body was removed to an undertaking establishment to await examination by a medical examiner.

The body was clad in a blue chinchilla coat with fur collar, blue and gray bathrobe and black shoes. All apparently of good quality. E. J. Gaffey, the undertaker, said the body had apparently been in the water eight or nine months and that there were indications of a fractured skull.

On one finger was a gold wedding ring and on the other a ring set with several stones.

CABINET CRISIS NEAR

Berlin, March 26.—(AP)—The Reichstag was buzzing with rumors this morning that the Cabinet might resign today because the government coalition parties cannot agree on the financial program of Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, finance minister.

The chief point of controversy is unemployment insurance, on which the Socialists, representing labor, and the People's Party representing the employers' viewpoint, differ radically. The Socialists desire to maintain the present scale of doles, while the Populists want the door left open for possible lowering.

Chancellor Mueller summoned the coalition party chiefs at 4 p. m., to demand a straight reply whether they intended to support the Cabinet's proposal. If the reply is negative, it is reported that he intends to urge resignation of the Cabinet at a session called for 6 p. m.

CITE GEN. PERSHING
AGAINST CANTEENS

Ohio Insurance Man Says
General Said Sober Soldiers Were the Best.

Washington, March 26.—(AP)—The testimony of General John J. Pershing before the House military committee years ago favoring abolition of the liquor dispensing Army canteen was injected into the prohibition hearings before the House judiciary committee today by John J. Lentz, of Columbus, president of the American Insurance Union and a former member of the House.

Lentz said that when he was a member of the military committee years ago, General Pershing, then a young officer, was asked to give his opinion of the canteen. The Ohioan said Pershing "stated at that time most emphatically and with clearness which only personal experience can give, that he was in favor of the abolition of the Army canteen; that sober men made the best soldiers; that it was not necessary to have an Army saloon to keep the soldiers out of the low dives in whatever territory they might be located."

With the abolition of the canteen, Lentz said, Pershing had demonstrated that "young men in the army are no more in need of a saloon than young men at home in the peaceful pursuits of life."

Asserting that since prohibition "something has happened to lengthen the lives of our people," the former house member said, that the lower death rate insurance companies had arrived at "means that the lives of liquor drinking, insured people, were lengthened as a result of the abolition of the saloon."

Figures which he presented to the committee, he said, show that the expectancy of life was plainly increased, and if human beings are worth while, it is certainly worth something to have them stay out of the cemeteries and remain with their families several years longer.

"In the years prior to the effect of the Eighteenth Amendment," he said, "1914 to 1919 inclusive, the death rate ranged from 61 to 63 per cent.—while the averages for the years 1921 to 1927, inclusive, ranged as low as 50, 52 and 53 per cent. and only once did it reach as high a point as 54 per cent."

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

is the most economical food

The wise housewife practices economy. She knows real values and uses MILK liberally. She understands the great amount of food, strength and health-giving value in every quart of milk. She knows that MILK saves food costs and at the same time promotes health... and builds strength. She spends 36c of her food-dollar for MILK and other dairy products.

No matter in what form MILK is taken it is a valuable food. Custards, creamed vegetables, junket and creamed soups, etc., all should be used liberally. And you need not waste a drop of it. Sweet or sour, it retains its healthfulness — its usefulness in the kitchen.

Families who must economize should use more MILK and therefore get the best possible food value for the dollar.

Drink a glass of MILK at 10.30 and 3.30 in addition to using it at other times.

Murder Backstairs

by ANNE AUSTIN
AUTHOR OF
"THE AVEGING PARROT"
"THE BLACK PIGEON," ETC.
©1930 by NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Doris Matthews, lady's maid, is murdered Friday night in a summerhouse on the Berkeley estate, by a blow with a heavy perfume flask, presented to Mrs. George Berkeley by Seymour Crosby. The body, rock-weighted and tied with Clorinda Berkeley's scarf, is taken from the lake Saturday morning by Detective Dundee, who summons Captain Strawn. Under suspicion are: Mr. and Mrs. George Berkeley, who have quarreled late Friday night over Clorinda's engagement to Crosby, close friend of the social secretary, Mrs. Lambert; Gigi Berkeley, who sprinkled everyone Friday night with perfume from a murder flask, later placed in Mrs. Berkeley's bathroom by Wickert, butler; Dick Berkeley, who, after having been missing turns up while his mother is accusing Eugene Arnold, chauffeur, of having murdered both Doris and Dick out of jealousy. Dick admits he wanted to marry Doris, but that she repelled his attentions. Mrs. Berkeley is forced to admit she stepped Doris while the maid was dressing her for dinner because Doris said she used too much perfume; admits also she instructed Doris to wait up for her, but says Doris was not there when she (Mrs. Berkeley) went up to bed at 11:40. Ruined print of Doris's mouth on bathroom mirror proves girl was there and that a struggle took place. Clorinda Berkeley admits seeing Doris just before 11; says Doris wore no rouge then; says Doris did not tell her she had appointed to meet Dick Berkeley; is finally forced to admit she did not go to bed but stole out of the house for a walk about the grounds about 11. Strawn asks if she was alone on the walk.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI
"Certainly I was alone!" Clorinda Berkeley answered emphatically.

Gigi's convulsive grip on Dundee's left hand loosened slightly. "You didn't take advantage of the opportunity to enjoy a lover's stroll with your future husband, Mr. Seymour Crosby?" Strawn suggested.

"I have told you I was alone, but allow me to correct you, Mr. Crosby is not my future husband!" "Whoops, dearie!" Gigi shouted gleefully. "I was betting you wouldn't go through with it—"

"When was the engagement broken, Miss Clorinda?" Strawn asked suavely.

"This morning, when Mr. Crosby and I were walking together to the lake. I told him that since my father was violently opposed to the marriage it could not take place."

"And why is your father opposed to the marriage?" "I don't know," Strawn retorted, and closed her eyes wearily. "Do you want to marry Crosby?"

"The answer was in Clorinda's frosty voice. She failed to see how that concerns you or the case you are working on, Captain Strawn!"

"Darling, you are so haughty!" Gigi laughed hysterically.

"So you went walking alone, Miss Clorinda," Strawn resumed urbanely. "How long were you out?"

"Oh, I don't know," irritably. "An hour, possibly."

"Did you see anyone—anyone at all on this walk?"

"No one."

"You say you walked around the lake. Just when was that part of the trip made?" Strawn pressed her.

"That was the conclusion of my walk. I crossed to the lake from the south part of the grounds, walked east to the first and then circled the lake on my way to the house."

"And stopped to rest in the summerhouse?" Strawn pounced.

"The black eyes flew wide. 'No! I didn't stop at the summerhouse at all!'"

"Then, Miss Clorinda, can you explain how your batik silk scarf came to be there?" the detective asked softly.

"My scarf! In the summerhouse! Why, that's ridiculous! It wasn't there at all!"

"Then perhaps you have another explanation of how it came to be tied around Doris Matthews' knees when her body was taken from the lake?" Strawn said with dreadful casualness.

"Around her knees?" Clorinda repeated blankly. Then she must have realized her danger for she sat bolt upright on the leather couch. "But that's impossible. Tell me! It must have been another scarf, somewhat similar to mine—"

"You admit, then, that you were carrying a silk scarf in your hands when you left the house?" Strawn caught her up triumphantly.

"No, because it is not true," Clorinda answered more calmly. "I was carrying a silk scarf until I reached the back hall, but I dropped it to the floor when I was slipping the chain and the bob of the outside door. I did not miss it until I stepped outside and a slight breeze lifted my hair. I did not return for it, however, as the night was warmer than I had thought, and I liked the feeling of the wind in my hair."

"Haven't you ever read any detective stories? They always accuse everybody, whether they think they're guilty or not."

"I should say," she answered coolly. "I walked across the grass almost to the back door, since that was a shorter route than to go clear to the summerhouse and strike the cement walk there."

"Did you see or hear anything happening in the summerhouse?"

"Nothing."

"You heard no scream, at any time during your walk?"

"No splash as of something being dumped into the water?" Strawn persisted.

"I tell you I heard nothing!" Clorinda retorted angrily.

"But did you—small something when you got near to the summerhouse?"

"I presume you mean the perfume," Clorinda said coldly. "You seem to know so much, I am sure you are already aware that my sister sprinkled Fleur d'Amour upon every person who was in the drawing room last night. Since my dress was reeking with the stuff, of course I smelled it. I did not notice a stronger odor near the summerhouse, if that is what you mean."

"Why did you splash that perfume around, young woman?" Captain Strawn turned to Gigi.

"You may call me Gigi. Everyone does," she grinned engagingly. "I don't like this 'young woman' stuff as much as I thought I would. . . . But you have asked me an embarrassing question. Guess you'll have to get out your old handcuffs, because I'm not going to tell you."

"Gigi did that foolish stunt for the same reason she does almost everything else," Clorinda enlightened them coldly. "She adores being noticed, and her chief sport is to annoy mother."

"And I thought I was making the plot so thick it would curdle," Gigi mourned, but Dundee saw the smile she had flashed at her sister, and he knew there was gratitude in it. . . .

"Is there any way you could fix the time you returned to the house, Miss Clorinda?" Strawn persisted.

"I don't think so. . . . No, wait! I remember winding my watch when I was undressing for bed. At that time it was 10 minutes after 12. I had then been in the house about five or six minutes, I think."

"Did you see your scarf when you left yourself in by the back door?"

"No, but I had forgotten all about it. There is always a dim light in the back hall, however, and I feel sure that I should have seen it if it had been there."

"Did you, on your way out or on your return, observe a letter or note lying on the back hall table?" Strawn asked suddenly.

"A note? . . . No, I don't think I even glanced toward the table."

"Now Miss Clorinda, when you returned to your room, which stairs did you take?"

"The back stairs. When I reached the second floor landing I listened, heard nothing, and tiptoed to my room."

"Why did you tiptoe?"

"I was afraid mother might have discovered my absence, and that she was listening for my return. On my way out, I heard her voice from the library, and knew she and father were having another session over my engagement to Mr. Crosby. That was one reason I took the walk. I was listening for her voice, and was in no mood for another scene. I stayed out till I felt fairly sure mother would be asleep, unless she had discovered my absence and was watching for me."

IF YOU ARE BALD DON'T GET FUSSY—YOU PROBABLY INHERITED IT

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In a study of baldness in many families, Osborne concluded that baldness is inherited as a dominant character from father to son. In women baldness is a recessive character, which explains the fact that very rarely indeed are women inclined to be bald.

It is now recognized that there are many factors in the human body which control the growth of hair, and that these factors are manifested through the secretions of the glands of internal secretions. Eunuchs do not become bald, which would also tend to justify the belief that baldness is a sex limited trait.

There are some races in which baldness practically never appears, including the Eskimo; whereas, there are other groups in which baldness may be fairly common. A family in the Transvaal was described in which all of the men in three generations became bald at 21 years of age or younger, whereas all of the women had abundant hair.

Premature whitening of the hair also seems to be inherited, one observer having described nine cases in five generations. It is also recognized that the method of growth of the hair, including particularly the whorl at the back of the head, may be an inherited characteristic.

Special studies were made by Danforth of superfluous hair on the face of women. Apparently this also tends to run in families and is inherited through the female side.

Hair on the back of the fingers in man is also an hereditary characteristic which tends to disappear in succeeding generations.

Hairlessness in animals is not uncommon, the hairless dog of northern Mexico being a conspicuous example. Apparently this trait is inherited to such an extent that mixtures of hairless dogs with normal dogs gives only half of each kind in the progeny.

PUFFED SLEEVES DATES ITS RECENT ARRIVAL

From Paris

There's more truth than poetry in the saying "that all styles originate in Paris." But not all the styles Paris send over "take."

One that has—thoroughly—is the little frock with the puffed sleeves. The one sketched is just as dainty as any little miss of 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years would ask for.

It is made of a printed cotton net, an entirely new fabric that promises to be very popular this Summer.

The simple bodice gives the effect of a basque with the crushed girdle encircling the natural waistline.

The soft all-around gathered fullness of the skirt is pretty idea for Summer.

Style No. 594 also makes up very smartly in pastel batiste, sprigged dimity, printed lawn, sheer linen in dot motifs, printed crepe de chine, flowered voile, sheer zephyr gingham and organdie.

Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

I feel certain you will be pleased with this popular model. And I wish to take this opportunity to call to your attention that there is a splendid selection of children's frocks in our new Spring Fashion Magazine.

It would be a good idea to send 10 cents additional when you order this pattern. Then I'll mail you a copy of the book.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

Professor Sherman, nationally recognized authority on the subject of nutrition stresses the importance of milk in the daily fare of every man, woman and child. He recommends "a quart of milk a day for every boy baby until he is full grown, and a quart of milk a day for every girl from birth until she has weaned her last child."

It is generally agreed a pint of milk a day for each child and a half pint for each adult is the minimum amount that should be supplied. No diet should be allowed to fall below this. A quart of milk a day for each child and a pint for each adult is much safer and every effort should be made to supply it.

Milk is one of the foods primarily designed by nature to nourish the young, and for that reason contains elements which, weight for weight, furnish more nourishment to the human body than almost any other foodstuff.

A Foe of Disease
The generous use of milk in the diet safeguards the body against many of the deficiency diseases. Its vitamin and mineral content is high.

The protein, carbohydrate and fat calories of milk are particularly well utilized by the body. The protein is "adequate"—of the very best quality for growth. The carbohydrate is very easily used by the body. The fat is in emulsified form—broken up into tiny globules—which makes it especially easy to digest.

Milk is so rich in vitamin A that if a child is given a full quart a day

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

One time I saw a little boy go up to a small strange girl who had sidled up to the group he was playing with, and cut her across the face with a whip.

She screamed and ran away home, and of course the boy was not only taboo thence forth in that household, but his fame as a cruel youngster spread rapidly throughout the entire neighborhood.

For the episode of the whip, I discovered, was only one of many of like kind. He was not only a bully, but a teaser. Few of the children had escaped his pranks in one form or another, and trouble followed in his wake.

Eventually he was left alone. None of the children on the street were allowed to play with him and he trundled his small wheel up and down the pavement in lonely solitude.

The Trouble Maker
One day his aunt said to me, "It's a shame about Freddy! He is the most affectionate child I ever saw, but everything the other children do is blamed on him. He always liked to tease, but then what child doesn't? He's always sorry when he does things."

That was several years ago. Freddy is still giving trouble. He isn't switching playmates over the face nor kicking them nor knocking them down, but he is calling them names, laughing at things they do, exasperating his teachers, and driving his parents to despair.

Why is it?
His aunt's endorsement showed that Freddy was not all wrong. He was affectionate and was always sorry for what he did.

A pretty good recommendation for any child—and undoubtedly wonderful material for correcting less desirable traits.

I believe that in the beginning that child was ruled by curiosity. Children begin at four to watch our reactions to their behavior very closely. Also there is a certain stage in the development of will that calls for experiment—sometimes rather violent experiment.

For Lack of Scolding
In Freddy's case, after such experiments at first, there was instant contrition. He was sorry for what he did!

Later, however, as he proceeded un molested with only a few kindly protesting words from his mother or aunt, he began to enjoy the screams and suffering of his playmates. Who can say when we cross the line from experiment to cruelty? There is a stage in all of us where we go elemental and savage.

In time Freddy began to discriminate. He hurt or teased people he didn't like or resented.
As he grew older, he changed the form of his atrocities. He found that words and acts hurt more than blows.

This is the point. When Freddy was very little and couldn't be talked out of abusing and pestering his friends, his mother should have started giving him doses of his own medicine.
When he was still in the early experimental stage he could have been cured by showing him exactly what other people suffered at his hands.

RUG CARE
Rugs should be cleaned with the vacuum on both the right and the wrong side. Then go over them with a damp cloth, wrung out of warm ammonia water.

THE LAND OF BROKEN HEARTS

The home town band played when Lester left. Winter's cold wind has not yet abated when the local boy took the train for the Southland, but spring's warm breezes were in his heart. His big chance had come. He was going to the big leagues. His friends were at the depot to wish him well. Jim and Tony and Paul, the city editor of the paper, came down to shake his hand. He would have to make good now, as he had his last chance. He'd just as soon go quietly, without the glare and fuss—but then, let them have their fun.

He got on the train at Kansas City that carried the rest of the players. They shook his hand and bid him good-bye. Lester was tall; he called him "Big Boy" during the rest of the trip, and he liked it. Lester made friends easily; he hadn't thought big leaguers would be such good fellows. There wasn't a high hatter in the whole crowd.

CARNERA TAKES ON TRAFTON TONIGHT

Kansas City, March 26.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, 270 pound Italian carpenter tonight will attempt to increase his string of knockouts for the first time in his professional career. Carnera, a former prizefighter and professional football star, who previously donned the padded gloves to defeat Art Shtres, Chicago White Sox first baseman.

Although fans are frankly skeptical of Carnera's chances against the foreign man mountain, the football player expressed confidence that he will stay the limit.

MAY PLAY SECOND ROUND OVER AGAIN

Southern Pines, N. C., March 26.—(AP)—Optional second round play today confronts the 54 women golfers in the second round of the state tournament here who were victims of a cold, driving rainstorm yesterday afternoon.

The cold, blustery downpour found about half the field including the American champion Miss Glenna Collett, on the links.

Tournament officials ruled that posting of yesterday's scores was optional and that players who wished might play over their second round today. This moved the final 38 holes of the tournament into Thursday.

Perhaps a third of the field, including Miss Maureen Orcutt, Monday's leader and low scorer again yesterday will stand by their respective scores. Miss Orcutt shot a snappy 78 which combined with her 78 of the first day gave her a 154 for the 36 holes. This was low score.

Miss Collett reported a 49 for the out nine yesterday but fell victim of the elements on the home nine for a 47. This 47 with her 50 of Monday gave her 167 for the two day play.

O'NEIL GETS RELEASE

Bradenton, Fla., March 25.—George "Mickey" O'Neil, national catcher, last night was given his unconditional release by the St. Louis Cardinals to allow the retention of Guy Manasco. O'Neil whose arm went bad on him, was being put into good shape this spring but Manasco will have to be carried by the Cards under Commissioner Landis' ruling.

NOTED SKI JUMPER FACES THE NOOSE

"Bing" Anderson Concealed Real Identity for Long Time.

Berlin, N. H., March 26.—(AP)—A young man awaiting death in a Canadian prison for murder today was identified by police as one of the greatest, perhaps the greatest, ski jumper the east has ever known.

He is Ingvald Anderson, better known as "Bing" or Carl Anderson, whose 190-foot jump at Brattleboro in 1925 has never been equaled in the east. Those who admire him in this region, may be surprised to know that he had a good work-out.

The scratching was timed at 2:01 P. M., Greenwich Time, so that the ladders at today's collier, an hour and a half earlier, when he again was made favorite, will lose their money in accordance with the rules of English racing.

There is still a good chance, however, that Mr. Whitney's colors will be first in Friday's race. Sir Lindsay, his second entry, showed good jumping ability and stamina at Cheltenham two years ago. Although he is being offered at 100 to 8, his odds are likely to shorten, now that "Easter Hero" is out of the running.

"I consider that Sir Lindsay has a great chance of winning," Trainer Anthony said over the week-end. Meanwhile, the betting odds are in favor of Gregalach, last year's winner, which is showing signs of a steady return to winning form.

The scratching of Easter Hero left only five American-owned teamsters in the Grand National. The American representation is composed of H. Gordon Seifridge's

ROPE CLIMBING AT REC TONIGHT

The fourth of a series of six athletic events run each Wednesday night will be started at the Rec tonight. It will be the rope climb for time and is expected to be one of the most interesting of the series. Persons familiar with this stunt know that it is one thing to climb a rope leisurely and another to scale to the top rapidly.

At present, Bernard Sheridan holds the top point lead over the field for the three events already conducted. He has six, Patsy Vince has five, and four being tied with Ed Johnson. The others are Carl Johnson, Chester Sendrowski, John Rayner, 3, Robert Sturgeon, 2, Stuart Wells, 1.

GUS SONNENBERG PUTS ANOTHER IN HOSPITAL

Worcester, Mass., March 26.—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, heavy-weight wrestler, today had won his second match within a week by contests in which his opponents were so severely injured they were unable to continue.

Count George Zaryoff of Russia was tossed from the ring here last night after an hour and 11 minutes of wrestling and had his arm shattered on an iron support. He was taken to the city hospital and the Russian had the better of the grappling.

Last Thursday night in Boston, Henri De Glane, French wrestler fell through the ropes with Sonnenberg on top of him and was taken to the hospital, unable to continue. He had won the first fall. Sonnenberg's next appearance will be in Hartford Friday.

BIG MATCH TONIGHT

Trailing by 30 pins as the result of the first leg of a home and home match, the Waterbury All Stars, comprising five of the best bowlers in that city will invade Manchester this evening full of confidence of overcoming the small margin they lost their own alleys and copping the large purse which is at stake.

They will have in their lineup stars as Talo, Stone, one time state champion, Roache who recently defeated Berthold of Rockville, Sena, and Thompson.

Last Night's Fights

New York—Joe Glick, New York, outpointed George Balduz, New York, 10.
Milwaukee—King Tut, Minneapolis, knocked out Lope Tenorio, New York, 4.
Indianapolis—Jackie Dugan, Louisville, outpointed Lew Perry, St. Louis, 10.
Greenville, Miss.—Eddie Goldberg, St. Louis, outpointed Louis Andrews, Memphis, 10.

Due to an error in Monday night's Herald the bowling match between the West Side girls and men and the East Side girls and men will take place Friday night.

Easter Hero, Hope of U. S., Out of the Grand National

London, March 26.—Easter Hero will not run in the Grand National Steeplechase on Friday.

John Hay Whitney's gelding—erstwhile favorite to win the great steeplechase at Aintree—has been scratched because of the recurrence of the lameness which troubled him last week. The veterinary surgeon looked the horse over in his stable at Wantage and made the following report: "Easter Hero's leg is pushed and the lameness has returned. It is impossible for Easter Hero to run at Liverpool and do himself justice."

Upon thousands of Easter Hero's followers the news fell with the suddenness of a thunderclap. Everyone thought the horse would be well and able to run in the Grand National, especially since last week, when, according to Jack Anthony, his trainer, he had a good workout.

The scratching was timed at 2:01 P. M., Greenwich Time, so that the ladders at today's collier, an hour and a half earlier, when he again was made favorite, will lose their money in accordance with the rules of English racing.

There is still a good chance, however, that Mr. Whitney's colors will be first in Friday's race. Sir Lindsay, his second entry, showed good jumping ability and stamina at Cheltenham two years ago. MAROONS DEFEAT BRUINS IN GAME 87 MINUTES LONG

Wilcox Scores Lone Goal; Boucher Suffers Broken Leg; 16,000 Persons See Battle.

Boston, March 26.—(AP)—The bruising Maroons of Montreal have successfully made a last stand against the onrushing Boston Bruins but they must win two more games on Boston ice to enter the finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

A former Providence player in the Canadian-American Hockey League, Archie Wilcox, scored the only goal in 87 minutes of embattled hockey here last night to give the game to the visitors. The Bruins won the first two contests of the playoffs of first place teams in the Canadian city. The next game will be played Thursday night and the first team taking three games was the series.

A broken leg was received by George Boucher, veteran Maroons defenseman, in checking Marty Barry on the center zone less than 10 minutes before the sudden finish. Wilcox a spare defenseman, took his place.

Three regular periods of scoreless hockey had been played, 60 minutes, and a 10 minute overtime session had produced no score. A sudden death session was begun and Wilcox made several aggressive rushes successfully. Finally, after Goalie Tiny Thompson had saved two harri shots, the puck was slashed over to the right wall and fired back into the melée before the Boston care by Jimmy Ward. Wilcox flipped the rubber into the net.

Strong defensive play by both teams and brilliant performances at the net prevented scoring. Goalie Flat Walsh of the Maroons made 51 saves to 39 stops by Thompson before Wilcox counted.

Although the Boston men, Captain Hitchman, Eddie Shore and George Owens played with headguards, only five penalties were called, three against the maroons. A crowd of 16,000 saw the game with thousands turned away outside.

The game was the first defeat on Boston ice for the Bruins since last November 26. The Maroons won at that time by a 6-1 score.

American And National Clubs Seem To Be On Par

Have Broken Even In Exhibition Games This Season; Robins, Braves, Tigers, White Sox Have Best Records.

New York, March 26.—(AP)—At this stage of the proceedings, inter-league conflict in spring baseball exhibitions has "proved" that the National and American Leagues are of exactly equal playing strength.

Of the 39 games involving teams from each league, the National has won 18, the American 19 and one tie. The New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox ended in a tie.

From a National League standpoint the Brooklyn Robins and Boston Braves have been most effective against clubs from the rival circuit. The Robins have won three of their four games with American League rivals, while the Braves have won seven of 12. In the American League the Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers can boast better than an even break with the National League.

The White Sox have won four out of six and Detroit four out of seven in the compilation of all spring training games, regardless of the character of the opposition, the Washington Senators head the list with four victories and no defeats. All of the Senators triumphs have been scored over minor league clubs.

The Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians also have perfect records each with two wins against minor league opposition.

TO ADMIT CHILDREN FREE TO BIG GAMES

Chicago, March 26.—(AP)—Good news for baseball "kids", as part of an organization campaign to reawaken interest in baseball among boys, all major league clubs may permit them to see free four or more games each week during the 1930 season.

Chicago's major league clubs, the Cubs and White Sox, already have agreed to have four "kids days" a week and may increase the bargain to every day except Sundays and holidays.

With other club owners and Commissioner Landis behind the movement other clubs, major and minor, are expected to follow suit.

DIXIE BOY STARS

Los Angeles, Calif., March 26.—(AP)—George Bell, a six foot two inch strapping just up from Dixie, today had an inside track in the race for one of the three or four pitching berths open on the championship Club teams.

Bell started and finished an exhibition game yesterday limiting the Los Angeles to six hits.

Earl Of Derby Will See Derby

London, March 26.—(AP)—The Earl of Derby, noted British sportsman who is planning to visit the United States in April to attend the Kentucky Derby as the guest of Joseph E. Widener, will spend some time in Washington where possibly he may meet Senator Borah whom he invited to visit England some time ago.

Lord Derby engaged in a rhetorical battle with Senator Borah in the spring of 1927. "There is one prominent politician," said Lord Derby at that time, "who always seems to think we are agreed. I refer to senator Borah. I invite him to come to this country. If he will do me the honor, and stay as long as he likes."

Senator Borah later denied that he had ever thought or said that the English people were agreed. "I would really like to visit England and I hope I may find an opportunity to do so," he was quoted as saying.

Lord Derby is now on the continent but his secretary said he was sailing at the end of April. During his visit to Washington, he hopes to renew his acquaintance with Hugh Wallace, former American ambassador to France.

Lord Derby last crossed the Atlantic 37 years ago when he accompanied his father, then governor-general of Canada, on a state visit to Winnipeg.

HEIMACH SOLD

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—The New York Yankees today announced the sale of Fred Heimach, southpaw, to the Toledo Club of the American Association. The pitcher came up to the Yankees two years ago from St. Paul after a famous big trial with the Athletics and Red Sox.

CHOOSERS BASEBALL OVER TRACK

Torn with the desire to hurl the javelin on the track team and to catch on the baseball team, Oscar Nelson, University of Iowa, finally cast his lot with the diamond candidates. His best javelin throw of 192 feet stands as a state inter-scholastic record.

CLAIMS NEW RECORD

Sydney, New South Wales, March 26.—(AP)—Bonnie Mealing, Australian girl swimmer, claimed a new world record today after swimming 150 yards backstroke in one minute and 55.1 seconds.

WILSON DELAYS TRIAL FOR PICTURES

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—A gradually leveling beach was in prospect today for Kaye Don, who is competing for the world's speed record, but the driver decided to await further improvement and postponed an appearance of his car for the benefit of photographers.

On instructions of Louis Costello, French designer of the Silver Bullet the nose and tail fins of the machine were painted red and new photographs were desired but Val Haresnape, director of the trials, said it would be necessary for Don to repaint the car to its original silver grey shade, in accordance with the entry forms.

A SWEET BLACKJACK

Hattiesburg, Miss.—A Fokakis isn't going to handle stick candy in his store any more. Recently when he was closing up his fruit store, a man came in and bought a five-cent stick of candy. GERMAN PROHIBITION

Berlin—Picture prohibition in the land of drinking songs and steins—Germany. Thorofare, N. J.—H. Clinton Leonard didn't like it when the neighbors' pigs strayed onto his farm. So he caught them and sold them for $80. THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The omnibus came to a stop. The Tynmites climbed up to the top and sat down, all excited. Then the bus was on its way. Their escort said, "Now, Tynmites, look around and see the sights. This is a dandy time to ride, 'cause it's a wondrous day." And he was right. The day was clear and not a bit of fog was near. This made wee Clowny wonder and he said, "Please tell me this. Where is the fog that they have here? I thought it came all through the year. I've heard so much about it, it's a sight I hate to miss." The Travel Man just smiled a bit and said, "Oh, we'll be seeing it before we leave old London town, but goodness, gracious me, we don't want fog to hinder us. I know you all would start to fuss 'cause when it's very foggy it is pretty hard to see." The bunch agreed that this was right and much preferred the broad daylight. They traveled many miles and then wee Scouty shouted, "Geel! Let's leave the bus and walk a bit. The exercise will make us fit. Then we can take our time and see whatever there's to see." They all soon found the Travel Man was much in favor of this plan. The next time that the big bus stopped, they clamored to the ground. "We'll see the Palace Buckingham," exclaimed the friendly Travel Man. "It is a very pretty sight, if you'll all look around." They shortly reached the palace gate and came upon a tall, sedate and military looking man. A royal guard was he. One Tiny promptly tipped his hat and said, "Oh, for a suit like that, I know 't would be becoming and just think how proud I'd be."
