5 POWER TREATY BEING DRAFTED AT THE PARLEY

France and Italy Will Sign
But Controversial Matters
Between Them Will Be Left Out.

London, April 10.—(AP)—Naval conference experts were understood to have been put to work this afternoon drafting a five-power agreement which both Foreign Ministers Briand of France and Grandi of Italy have tentatively agreed to sign as an outgrowth of American intervention this morning.

This treaty, it was said, will in effect be a comprehensive three-power pact between Great Britain, France and Italy, but will include numerous points on which all the five powers are agreed and which France and Italy can sign.

The present plan is that controversial matters between France and Italy will be left out and the clauses which exclusively affect the other three powers will be so worded that the two Latin countries will not be involved.

The decision to adopt this procedure was reached this morning after Secretary Stimson had visited Foreign Minister Briand and Hugh S. Gibson had conferred with Foreign Minister Grandi.

London, April 10.—(AP)—Complete agreement was reached between the United States, Great Britain and Japan at the naval conference today and the way is now clear for a three-power pact.

Prime Minister MacDonald, Secretary Stimson and Reijiro Wakatsuki, met this morning and cleared the decks by settling the still outstanding, but minor point, concerning a definition for use in connection with training ships.

The last vestige of hope for a five-power agreement were said not to have been abandoned, but it should be known by tonight whether such a treaty is possible or whether American, British and Japanese delegates shall go ahead with a three power pact.

Shortly after the meeting of the big three delegates, Secretary Stimson rushed off to see Foreign Minister Briand and at the same time Hugh S. Gibson left to visit Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy.

In Complete Accord

It was understood that the chiefs of the two Latin powers were to be informed that the United States, Great Britain and Japan were in complete accord and to be invited to make their own position known quickly.

Observers gathered that the situation amounted to this: France and Italy were being invited diplomatically to come to a decision as to participation in a five-power pact.

Today's program provided for a whirlwind of meetings between the various delegations. The chiefs were concentrating on winding things up quickly and expected to know by tonight exactly where they stand.

Meetings at American headquarters, Dwight W. Morrow and George Rublee, American adviser, were going full steam ahead on the draft of a three-power pact.

Training Ship Clause

It was stated in well informed quarters that today's tripartite agreement on training ships was along the following lines: Each of the three powers have the right to retain for training purposes one capital ship which had been destined for scrapping. These ships are to be dismantled. This really was a concession to Japan and permits her to retain one battleship which otherwise she would have had to scrap.

The same terms at the United States will scrap only two instead of three.

QUIGLEY BETTER
DOCTORS REPORT
New Britain's Mayor-Elect
Has Normal Temperature; Is Improving.

New Britain, April 10.—(AP)—Reports from New Britain General hospital this morning indicated that the condition of Mayor-Elect George A. Quigley, who has been ill with bronchial pneumonia, is improving. His temperature, which has been fluctuating between 100 and 105 for the past few days, is nearly normal, hospital authorities state.

If Mayor-Elect Quigley has sufficiently recovered, he will take the inaugural oath next Wednesday while lying abed at the hospital. Plans for the inaugural are being deferred because of his illness.

He was elected mayor last Tuesday by the largest plurality ever given a candidate for the office here and while he was hovering between life and death.

GANDHI'S PLAN IS SPREADING AMONG WOMEN

Large Number Make Salt to Break British Law—Students Stage Parade; Fourteen Arrested.

Bombay, India, April 10.—(AP)—Two hundred civil disobedience volunteers, including six Mohammedans and three women, brought sea water to the steps of Congress House today for the manufacture of salt in violation of British law.

The band divided itself into 20 groups, each bringing a supply of the sea-water from different parts of the city. Thirty-two salt pans were installed at Congress for the manufacture of the contraband.

A large number of women figured in the salt-making today, many of them, mostly from Gujarat, bringing sea water to their homes where they violated the law. These violations of the salt law constitute the first step in the campaign of civil disobedience by which Indian Nationalists hope to win independence for their country.

There were two arrests of volunteers in Bombay's suburbs last night for selling salt, one of them offering the forbidden product to a magistrate at his residence.

Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader for Karadimatvad, was arrested for a violation of the law and at Aat collected salt without his guidance.

New Salt Bed

Gandhi's followers found a new salt bed near Dandi. The police, hearing of the discovery, preceded them there, and destroyed most of the mineral. The volunteers nevertheless managed to gather about 10 pounds which was sold to the villagers.

At Cuttack Orissa a prominent Indian National Congress leader, Gopal Bandu Chaudhury, was arrested today while marching to a meeting of volunteers for the purpose of breaking the law.

Arrest Students

The students, greatly excited, left the school and began parading the streets and picketing. Fourteen of them were arrested. A vigilance committee was formed with Assembliesman Dass as secretary to prevent excesses.

Gandhi, asked for explanation of his speech Monday at Aat, with regard to reports circulated that he had there advocated violence, said: "That is a mischievous distortion of what I said, on seeing a slight injury while four or five policemen snatched away the salt in his possession. I said the salt had been picked up by the volunteers as a token of India's honor, and the volunteers, were expected to defend India's honor with their lives."

NEW MORGAN YACHT IS LAUNCHED TODAY

Is 343 Feet Long, Has 42
1-2 Foot Beam and Costs
About $2,500,000.

Bath, Maine, April 10.—(AP)—The Corsair, new yacht of J. P. Morgan, New York financier was launched today at the Bath Iron Works, slipping gracefully into the water after the ways were taken away. The craft, said to be the largest privately owned vessel of its kind in the world took to the water at 10:17 a. m.

The Corsair, leviathan of the pleasure craft and second of her name, has an engine installation of 6,000 horsepower its two turbo-electric units having a driving capacity of 16 knots.

Displaces 3,080 Tons.

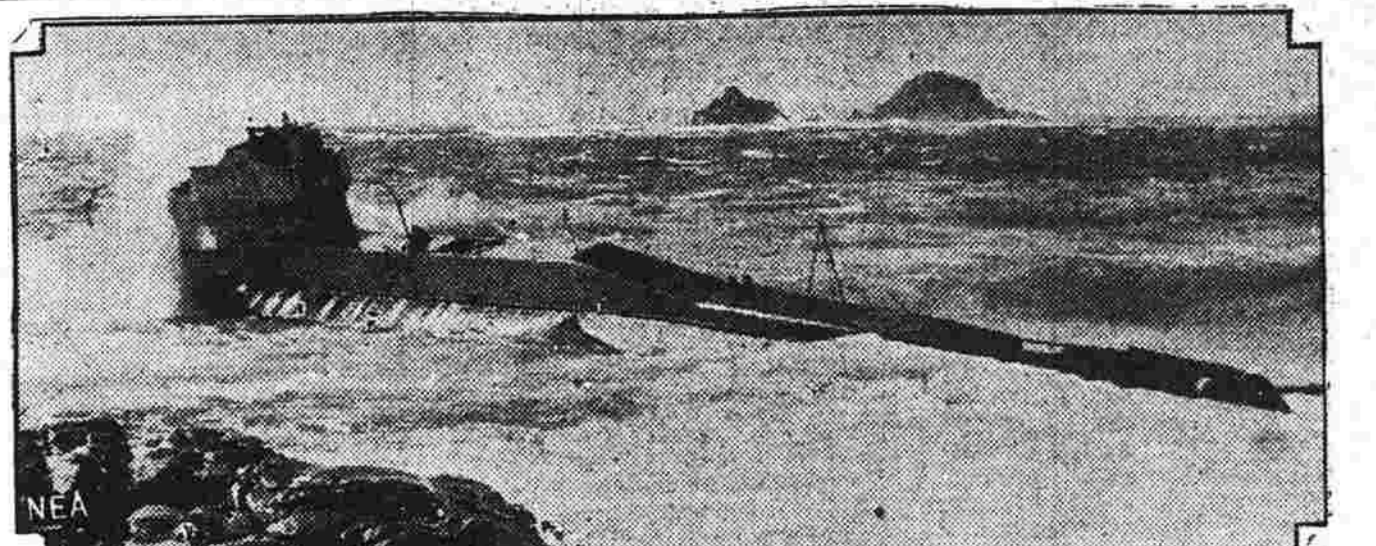

Designed by Henry J. Galloway, Inc., New York, the craft has a displacement of 3,080 tons; is 39 feet longer and has a larger beam by 8 1/2 feet than her 30 year old predecessor now known as the Oceanographer and used by the U. S. Geodetic survey in research work.

From her sharply lined clipper bow to graceful overhanging stern, the vessel has an overall length of 343 feet with a 220 foot waterline, beam of 42 1/2 feet, draft of 18 feet and an estimated cost of $2,500,000, the Corsair has a cruising range of 25,000 miles. The keel was laid in June 1929. Captain W. E. Porter, long in Morgan service, will skipper the craft.

SUBMARINE WRECKED ON ENGLISH COAST

A plaything of wind and waves, the British submarine, L.1 is shown in this unusual picture after she had been tossed upon the Carn Glouce rocks, near Cape Cornwall, England. During a fierce gale, the big undersea craft was parted from her tow. Here you see the L.1, badly holed, as it was being broken up by pounding breakers.

FIFTY FLEE FIRE; FIREMAN IS HURT

One Tenant Rushes Back to Save Two Children and Emerges Safely.

Norwalk, April 10.—(AP)—Fifty persons were driven to the street and several firemen were injured today when an early morning fire broke out in the heart of a crowded tenement district, doing $20,000 damage. One of the three units of destroyed and the other units were badly gutted.

The fire was discovered at 2 a. m., when the firemen arrived, flames were shooting from all sides of the building.

Saves His Children

Joseph Combes went back into the fire to rescue his two children aged 5 and 7 and as he was coming out with the children his arms, his foot went through the burning floor. His leg was severely lacerated, but he managed to extricate himself.

Fireman William Morrow was badly bruised and cut when a rear fire escape collapsed. Morrow was mounting the fire escape with a line of hose at that time.

The fire is thought to have started in the cellar.

FORCED TO PASS ON GARRETT'S REPORT

Hub Captain Had to O. K.
Them Whether He Believed
Them or Not.

Boston, April 10.—(AP)—Captain George W. Patterson, chief of the Boston police vice squad, was forced to "pass on" reports of Oliver B. Garrett, liquor trader, who had conducted a raid, whether he believed them or not, according to testimony given in the investigation of Garrett's pensioning today.

Patterson's position was described by Lieutenant William J. Carey, of the police department, under questioning by Damon E. Hall, special assistant to Attorney General Joseph E. Warner, who is conducting the probe under a legislative order.

Carey said that Patterson had told him of the situation when he informed the vice squad head of an altercation he had with Garrett. The clash, Carey said, occurred in Mattapan in 1927.

Trouble With Garrett.

Lieutenant Carey told of his trouble with Garrett, saying it started because of the tardy arrival of a patrol wagon from his station to a garage where Garrett and his squad had conducted a raid. Garrett threatened to report him to "someone else," Carey said.

Later, Carey testified, he took Patterson to task for having passed the report that Garrett returned on the incident. He asked Patterson if he believed the report, Carey said, and received a reply that he did not do to do it. "You don't know what I'm up against," Carey said.

Federal Man's Report.

Joseph S. Appelman, a former federal prohibition agent, described a visit to the Hotel Ritz, a report of which has figured in previous testimony. The report was investigated, and the police officers involved were exonerated of any wrongdoing on their own denials, according to testimony given by Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson.

Appelman said he saw two young men ejected from the Ritz, which was now padlocked, because "they brought their own liquor." He described the incident saying that he noticed a commotion around the two men's table. He asked a waiter what the trouble was and was told that the men had brought in their own liquor. The waiter told him, Appelman testified, that he guessed the head waiter would have to call

Columbia, S. C., April 10.—(AP)—Employees of the advertising department of the Columbia Record were astonished to get this ad copy:

"Ladies and gentlemen: Friends and checkers: Buy your corn whiskey from us. Pure charred corn whiskey. Delivered any time, day or night."

"Probably this looks too good to be true, but if you think so, give us a call and follow instructions, any one that wants it, officers and all. Prices are $1 per pint; $2 per quart. Nothing over half gallon delivered."

A telephone number was attached. A negro boy brought the ad, and had with it $6 in cash. The newspaper refused to print it.

COOLIDGE IS DONE WITH PUBLIC LIFE

Former President Writes
That He Will Never Again
Run for Office.

New York, April 10.—(AP)—Former President Coolidge in a copyright article in the May issue of Hearst's International and Cosmopolitan, writes that he has no intention of returning to public life. The former president gives his views on prohibition, the tariff, playing the market, the suggestion that he run for Senator, the talk of another term, and "minding one's own business."

"When I left Washington I left public office," Mr. Coolidge says. "It is incomprehensible relief and I have no intention of returning to it."

"If I were in the Senate," he adds, "it would not be agreeable to many of my colleagues, and with all my desires to be helpful it would probably often times be an embarrassment to the administration. To have a former president in Washington exercising political power would result in all kinds of complications. Only the necessity of serving in some national crisis, so great as to subordinate all other considerations, would warrant it."

Discusses Prohibition.

"Nor," he says further, "do I have any sympathy with those who are discussing again making me president. The service that I could give to the people in that office I feel is done."

Mr. Coolidge discusses prohibition at some length and in connection therewith the editor of the Cosmopolitan has singled out for prominent presentation this sentence: "Considering that people have differed most radically on the best method of regulating the sale of liquor for generations, it is not likely to be settled for a long time to come."

SAYS FILIPINOS HURT EMPLOYMENT

House Bill Would Keep Them
Out Same as the Chinese and Japanese.

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—Representative Welch, Republican, California, told the House immigration committee today that the people of his state were equally in favor of restricting Mexican and Philippine immigration. He was the first witness at a hearing on his bill to restrict Philippine immigration.

Welch characterized the Philippine question as the third Oriental problem faced by his state and referred to relief afforded by Congress in the Chinese and Japanese exclusion acts.

He said deplorable unemployment conditions had resulted from the number of Filipinos in California and that white workers could not compete with the low wages for which the Filipinos worked.

Unassimilable Race

Welch asked that Congress exclude "this unassimilable race" which was driving the people to desperate unemployment conditions.

He asserted there was no racial prejudice and that the Filipinos were given the same protection in California as other law abiding residents.

The Welch bill would place the Filipinos under the same immigration laws that apply to the Japanese and Chinese.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for April 8 were $4,102,468.88; expenditures $7,370,153.28; balance $325,900,876.07.

CONNECT WICKERSHAM WITH CHURCH COUNCIL

Peak Prices Feature Stock Market Trading

New York, April 10.—(AP)—The Stock Market started off on a wild bull rampage today as blocks of 5,000 to 35,000 shares changed hands at rising prices. Initial gains in the leaders ranged from a few cents to $3 a share. Total sales in the first half hour crossed the 1,000,000-share mark for the first time this year.

So great was the volume of trading that the ticker was running 22 minutes behind the market at the end of the first hour.

New peak prices for the year were registered by Standard Oil of Kansas, Public Service of N. J., Manhattan Electrical Supply, Best and Co., Sparks-Withington, Shubert Theaters, Oliver Farm Equipment, Worthington Pump, Corn Products, Briggs Big, Borden Co., Universal Pipe, Chicago and Alton Preferred, Krueger and Toll, and Timken Roller Bearing.

There was nothing in the overnight news to explain the sudden revival in bullish enthusiasm. It has been apparent for several days, however, that bear traders were having difficulty in hammering stocks down with the result that several issues have developed an over-extended short interest, which was quickly covered on the appearance of large buying orders.

$150,000 IN BOOZE SEIZED BY POLICE

Four Men Arrested But Boat
That Carried the Liquor Makes Its Escape.

Ipswich, Mass., April 10.—(AP)—Four men were arrested and two trucks loaded with liquor valued at $150,000, freshly landed from the sea, were seized today when a state police investigation of several months duration bore fruit.

The men arrested said they were Robert Marshall of Lynn, Dominic De Bonis of Everett, and Armand Gauthier and Alfred Durgon, both of Salem. They were to be brought before Federal officers at Boston later in the day.

As a detail of state police, aided by local officers, swam down to the landing place on a creek near Ipswich, a man aboard the rum running craft started both motors. The craft was seen to be aground and for a moment its capture seemed assured. Then the powerful motors roared, water and mud were churned into the air and the boat pulled off the mud flat to speed away.

NOT A SUSPECT.

Watertown, Conn., April 10.—(AP)—Charles Klein, Edward Fucius and Charles Zenkauskas were held here today after confessing that he and two companions robbed the Watertown, Conn., Trust company on March 28 of $20,000. Smeden told police $5,000 of the loot is in a safe deposit box of a Pittston bank and also gave them the key for the box.

Detroit, Mich., April 10.—(AP)—John Smeden, 22, of Pittston, Pa., was held here today after confessing that he and two companions robbed the Watertown, Conn., Trust company on March 28 of $20,000. Smeden told police $5,000 of the loot is in a safe deposit box of a Pittston bank and also gave them the key for the box.

PERSONAL LIBERTY A CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Lewis, a Wet, to Use Prohibition Against Mrs. McCormick Who Is a Dry.

Chicago, April 10.—(AP)—Prohibition, the hot potato of politics has been tossed by James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, to Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick as the major issue of their campaign for campaign for election next November to the United States Senate.

Lewis, a colonel in the Spanish American War and Senate whip in President Wilson's administration cast off 12 years retirement and gained the Democratic Senatorial nomination without a single campaign effort. Mrs. McCormick, Mark Hanna's daughter and widow of the late Senator Medill McCormick, thrust aside Senator Charles S. Deen and wrecked his Chicago-Cook county organization to head the Republican ticket this fall.

Hartford, April 10.—(AP)—Harry White, 27 of 5 Kennedy street, bludgeoned in police court today for alleged attack upon an eight year old girl in the freight yards here yesterday, will be questioned by County Detective Edward J. Hickey in connection with the mysterious murder of Mrs. Frances Sylvester, 50, of 15 Darlin street, East Hartford, on March 9.

Mrs. Sylvester mother of 12 children, was found fatally beaten and assaulted in a lonely stretch of Government street, East Hartford by her crime was the work of a fiend, for the woman bore marks of four blows on the head by a sharp instrument and of assault.

White was captured in the freight yards of the New Haven railroad on Pleasant street last night by a brakeman, Daniel H. Deely, who heard the child's screams and seized the man as he jumped out of a freight car.

White has served a term at the Cheshire Reformatory and has a police record for misconduct, theft, breach of the peace and drunkenness.

REASON FOR VICTORY

Mrs. McCormick, before returning to Washington yesterday, declared it was her opposition to the World Court that swamped Deen under a 200,000 plurality. Deen's defeat in the nation, accepted Mrs. McCormick's issue and lost. But Lewis, to, is opposed to the World Court, and in the Senate he voted against Wilson's League of Nations.

PERSONAL LIBERTY

Lewis, shot the question of "personal liberty" to the fore soon after Deen's congressional defeat. Mrs. McCormick on her victory. "It is an issue from which I shall not allow any candidate—man or woman—to escape," the former Senator said.

In contrast, the politically minded recalled Mrs. McCormick's campaign statement that "I am both personally and politically dry."

Her late husband was known as wet.

To Lewis, the issue is: "Is the American a free man to use his will subject to just law; is governing his life, or is he a servant to be directed to obey, under the penalty of imprisonment and dishonor."

Senator Caraway Calls It an Indefensible Position; Has Since Quit Position, Tink- ham Says as He Continues His Attacks on Religious Lobbyists; Also Raps the Anti-Saloon League.

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—The connection of George W. Wickersham, chairman of the Hoover law enforcement commission, with international banking affairs while head of the foreign policy committee of the Federal Council of Churches was termed an "indefensible position" today by Chairman Caraway of the Senate lobby committee.

Tinkham Charges

Wickersham's name came before the committee through testimony by Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, in amplifying charges against the Federal Council of Churches. After asserting that the council was attempting to substitute a theocracy for the present form of government, Tinkham added that Wickersham had until recently served as chairman of the council's foreign policy committee. He continued that the former attorney general had been active in international business.

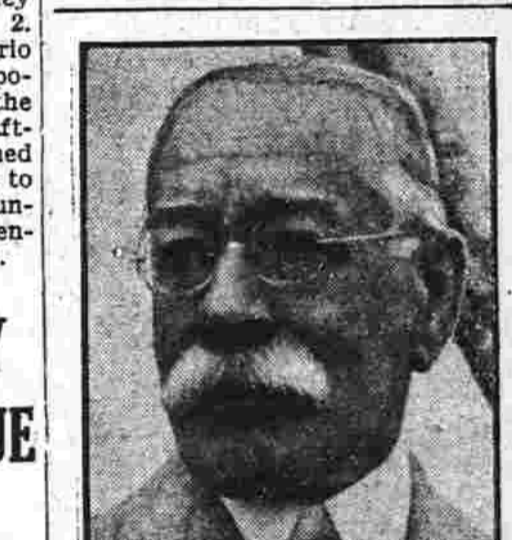

A letter from Wickersham was then read which said that his law firm had represented at times international bankers and we probably at the present time do represent a number of such interests."

Senator Elaine, Republican, Wisconsin, after Caraway's sharp comment on the law enforcement chairman, asked how Wickersham qualified as an officer of the Council of Churches.

"I suppose because he is active in answer.

Had Quit Post

He added that he understood Wickersham had quit his post with the council some months ago. The Massachusetts representative Bedford Tinkham left the stand he had also attacked the Anti-Saloon League. An ardent wet, the witness said the late Wayne B. Wheeler, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was largely responsible for the 18th Amendment. He read from a book written by Justice Stewart, former secretary to Wheeler, which described the dry leader as a maker of presidents and Congresses.

"What respect," the witness asked, "should be given to a law shown to be a composition of a highly paid and powerful lobbyist?"

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, will be heard by the committee next Tuesday.

BISHOP'S REPLY

New York, April 10.—(AP)—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, today made public a telegram he sent to Senator Caraway, chairman of the Senate lobby committee, requesting an opportunity for a representative of the council to be heard by the committee in answer to charges made by Representative Tinkham, Republican of Massachusetts.

Representative Tinkham before the committee yesterday charged that the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals and the Federal Council of Churches have "set aside entirely" the principle of separation of church and state. He also voiced an appeal that the committee "unmask

U. S. NAVY FLIER WILL PILOT DO-X

Lt. Schildrauer Accepts Offer to Fly World's Largest Plane Across Ocean.

New York, April 10.—(AP)—The New York Sun says it has learned from authoritative sources that Lieut. Clarence H. Schildrauer, Navy flier, will pilot the Dornier Do-X, giant passenger flying boat, on her projected trans-Atlantic flight this summer.

Lieut. Schildrauer was offered the opportunity of piloting the plane, the Sun says, in a cable and cabled back the following answer: "Think I am capable of making flight. Accept offer if Dr. Dornier accepts."

The flight will be made some time in late July or early August, it is learned from an experienced aviator.

Lieut. Schildrauer, a graduate from Annapolis in June, 1918, was the first flier to lay down a smoke screen from an airplane. He has done much of the best heavier-than-air flight men in the service.

The Do-X, which has carried more than 150 passengers in test flight from Lake Constance, on the German-Swiss frontier, will take off from there and fly via Seattle, the Azores and Bermuda to New York City. Plans are for her to carry 50 passengers and a crew of twelve on the ocean flight.

The Do-X is powered with 12 motors, mounted in tandem formation on an auxiliary wing above the main wing. They generate 7,200 horsepower.

DECISION ON 'OWLS' OF INTEREST LOCALLY

Order Started Branch Here But It Didn't Last Long; Regalia in Armistice Parade.

The decision reached by the United States Supreme Court upholding the injunction asked against the use of the title "The Fraternal Order of Owls" in a Philadelphia outlaw group interests many Manchester people who once belonged to the order. The Owls, organized in 1904, elected a Hartford branch in the City for this division. There was an enrollment of about 100 in Manchester at $10 each. There was an extra charge for the regalia, which cost about $10 and consisted of a uniform such as is now supposed to represent the Ku Klux Klan.

All money turned in went to the supreme organizers and the local members put up a kick. They refused to accept the packages, which not only consisted of the gowns, but also masks and spears and from 1904 until 1918 or thereabouts they remained in a large packing box in what was known as Fore Hall in the Oxford Hotel building. When the property passed into the hands of E. J. Holl and he started a general cleaning up the box was left outside early in the morning of November 11, 1918, when word that the Armistice was signed by some of the boys who turned out and used them in one division of the many parades that took place that day.

MERCHANTS TO OMIT THE APRIL MEETING

Because the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held Wednesday evening, April 30, falls in proximity to the scheduled meeting of the Merchants Division, it has been decided by the Executive Committee to omit the April meeting of the division and plan for one in the early part of May instead.

At this meeting it is planned to secure a nationally known speaker, and the Executive Committee recommends to the members that they invite their department heads and salespeople to attend this meeting.

A request made by Edward Stearns, manager of the Montgomery Ward Company's local store, to remain open on Friday evening of this week, was granted, as it is known as "Ward Week" throughout the United States and Mr. Stearns has been asked by his headquarters to carry on this special program.

up somebody. Pressing the waiter for information, he related, he learned that the call would be to police.

"Nothing to Fear."

About 10 minutes later, Appleman said, two men came in. They ordered a drink and brought in the liquor. Continuing his quest for information, the witness said, he learned from the waiter that the outsiders were Sergeants from Station 3. He called them "Sheehan and some French name," Appleman said.

Fearing that the officers would molest him for having liquor with him, Appleman said he put a bottle under the table. The waiter asked him why he did it, he said, and when told of the motive, replied "you don't need to fear the police. We are not paying those people for nothing."

Appleman also told of seeing Sergeant Arthur Timmins in the hotel. He said that when he asked Timmins what he was doing there the officer's hands trembled.

Reporter on Stand

William E. Brennan, a Boston newspaper reporter, brought repeated ripples of laughter with his description of the examination by Dr. Bailey of the Police Pension Board. The witness said Bailey admitted him without knowing he was a reporter. In the room, he said, he found Garrett, Dr. John Sears, Dr. McCormack, Garrett's personal physician, and a relative of Garrett known to him only as "Woodside."

"I said 'Hello Woodside, related Brennan, and he said, 'Whisper, I ask you why and he said: 'I am afraid Wilson has got a dictaphone on us.' I laughed, and he said: 'We are afraid he is trying to get evidence on O'Leary.' Well, I whispered with them as long as they wanted to."

Brennan said he asked Dr. McCormack who he was, but that the doctor handed him his card without replying. When the doctor learned Brennan's identity, the witness said, he wanted his card back. Brennan said the examination lasted 20 or 30 minutes after his arrival, in the course of which Garrett was asked to repeat the tongue twister "he sells sea shells on the sea shore."

IMPROVE STATE SCHOOL

Hartford, April 10.—(AP)—Much of the agitation relative to the reorganization of the Connecticut school for boys at Meriden has subsided in the quick move made by the trustees of the school to carry out the recommendations as made by Governor Trumbull's committee of investigation. A decided improvement is being made in the hospital conditions at the school, a dietitian from the state department of health is supervising the establishment of a new and scientifically balanced menu for the boys, and many changes in personnel, including a search now being made for a successor to Supt. Edward S. Boyd, are being made.

THREE HURT IN FALL

New Haven, April 10.—(AP)—Three workmen were plunged 20 feet to the ground and seriously injured today when a scaffolding on which they were working collapsed. The accident occurred at the Atlantic Refining Company.

The men, Stanley Pulaski, John Shivan and J. Reynolds, all of this city, were employed by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Company which is constructing ten 60 gallon tanks.

Pulaski, according to hospital reports was the most dangerously hurt, but the nature of his injuries was not immediately determined.

BANK EXAMINER TESTIFIES

Middletown, April 10.—(AP)—State Bank Examiner Richard Raymond was called to the stand today in the trial of Clark W. Burnham, former executive vice-president of the East Hampton Bank and Trust Company charged with embezzling $55,000. His testimony was of a technical nature to show transactions entered into by Burnham.

PRISONER SURRENDERS

Bridgeport, April 10.—(AP)—Acting on the advice of a friend whom he had asked to offer him refuge, Louis Timko, 20, of this city, who yesterday escaped as he was being brought into the Fairfield county jail, walked into the office early this forenoon and surrendered.

On Wednesday Judge William J. Buckley sentenced Timko and two other youths to six months in jail, each on statutory charges. They were being taken to the jail to start their term when Timko broke loose and escaped.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop 3

Troop 3 of the Center Congregational church held its regular meeting at the Franklin School on Friday evening. About 25 Scouts were present. The meeting opened with the reading of the Scout Oath and the salute to the flag. A patrol contest was held. It included sign-making and racing. As usual the Lions won, by winning both events. King trying was practiced and signaling ended with announcements by Scoutmaster McComb and repeating the Scout Oath.

Notes

The Vikings are leading in the patrol contest with 141 points. On Saturday the troop went on a hike to Lydallville. 19 Scouts and leaders were present. Capture the flag was played. Kabob was the official meal.

Troop 3 investiture team took part in the service at the High school hall on Tuesday night.

Troop 4

Troop 4 opened its meeting at seven o'clock by repeating the Oath and Laws. Scout Ulrich was in charge of the opening. Twenty-five Scouts and recruits were present. A test passing period and patrol corner followed. Tests passed were: Racing, knife and axe, first aid and signaling. The meeting closed at 9:30 with the Oath.

Notes

S. Brown will be made a first class Scout at the next Court of Honor. Ulrich, Lennox and Runkel will receive Star Scout badges. The Wolf Patrol is ahead in the inter-patrol contest with a score of 115 points.—Scribe Matchett.

Troop 6

Troop 6 had a contest with Troop 10 of Windsor instead of its regular meeting. The contest was close and exciting, but the out of town troop finally won by a score of 15 to 10. The local troop won the following events, scoutcraft, first aid, obstacle race and staff relay. Troop 14, friction fire maker had his bias in 10 seconds.

Notes

The troop will hold its meeting on Monday night instead of Tuesday night. There will be a hot dog roast and a marshmallow roast in place of a regular meeting.

There will be an overnight hike to the cabin over the woods. We will start from the South Methodist church at 1:30. The cost will be fifty cents. All meals will be furnished. Harry Howroyd, scribe.

Troop 6 was defeated for the second time Tuesday night by Troop 14 of South Windsor, score 15 to 10. The contest was exciting and close through and each event was close. In the friction fire event record time was made, the Windsor entry making fire in 15 seconds. Arthur Anderson of Troop 6 judged the contest.

Troop 6 Notes.

The troop will hold an overnight hike Saturday and Sunday, leaving the terminus at 1:30 a. m., Saturday. An interesting program has been lined out including games, bridge building and leaf-to building. The return trip will be made Sunday afternoon.

On Monday night the troop will hold a hot dog and marshmallow roast. Everyone will assemble at the church at 7 o'clock. There will be no meeting held on Tuesday.

Swimming Meeting

Tomorrow night at the Rec at 5 o'clock, Troops 1, 2, 3, and 4 will hold a swimming meet. This meet will be the first of two preliminaries which will be held before the town meet. The list of events are: 40 yard dash, back stroke, diving, 40 yard relay and a 20 yard dash for juniors under 100 pounds. There will be a first and second place, the winners allowed to enter the finals.

5 POWER TREATY BEING DRAFTED AT THE PARLEY

and Great Britain four instead of five.

It is understood Japan also will be allowed to retain as training ships, three light cruisers which otherwise would have been scrapped.

When asked again by newspapermen about the prospects of the conference being finished before Easter, Prime Minister MacDonald replied: "I suppose you want an Easter holiday? So do I, and you may be quite sure we shall take a very humane view of things."

It was understood at American headquarters that Secretary Stimson still hoped to catch the Levantine homeward bound April 22.

Today, which was one of the busiest of the conference has seen in its long life of three months, started with a meeting of Prime Minister MacDonald and Secretary Stimson at St. James's Palace at 10:00 a. m. A half hour later a three-power meeting was held including Mr. Watakasuki, at which the last obstacle to the three-power treaty was removed.

At 2:30 a. m. foreign Minister Briand and the British delegation met to see if there was any further light on the possibility of a five-man pact.

This afternoon the British prime minister, the Italian ambassador, Henderson and the Italian ambassador, planned to meet to discuss Italy's position. Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy has been ill and Ambassador Bordonaro has been acting for him.

At the same time the American, British and Japanese expert advisers were gathering to tabulate the points of the three-power pact. Later the British delegation will meet.

At six o'clock tonight will come what is expected to be a crucial conference when the French and British meet again for a review of the situation and definite action on final offers to salvage some sort of a five-power pact. Prior to that time, however, the expected Foreign Minister Briand would visit for what may be the final word between them regarding their parity dispute.

CALLS IT SUCCESSFUL

London, April 10.—(AP)—J. L. Ralston, Canadian Representative at the naval conference who is sailing for home tomorrow, today expressed the belief that the conference had proved a pronounced success because of the three-power pact to be signed here.

The principal characteristic of that success, he said, was "establishment of the best possible relations between Great Britain and the United States."

Discussing the conference, Mr. Ralston said:

"It recognizes the substitution of agreement for force in international relations. It has established a new policy of Canada since it was a Dominion. Its application is seen in the undefended frontier between Canada and the United States."

The Washington treaty of 1922 applied to capital ships. One of the great accomplishments of this conference was that it removed the possibility of competition on capital ships as between Great Britain and the United States. The present conference is substituting agreement for force in international relations. It recognizes the possibility of competition in other categories of warcraft."

Mr. Ralston expressed belief that a further great achievement of the present conference has been the establishment of the best possible relations between Britain and the United States. The failure of the tripartite conference at Geneva in 1927 had left some feeling behind it, he said, but the full and frank discussion of the present conference, with striking results, has retrieved the situation.

"It is a second and better chapter of Geneva," Mr. Ralston added. "The conference has shown a far better feeling between the nations than protracted negotiations might have indicated," he explained. "Indeed," he said, "the fact that all were willing to negotiate for so long, in light of the great demonstration of good will in the world."

WAR IN THE AIR

The Canadian delegation was particularly pleased with the decision of the first committee of the Church of the Churches of Christ in America I respectfully request opportunity for a representative of the Council to appear before the Senate investigating committee at your convenience to reply to Congressional testimony in connection with the Federal Council, as reported in the press today.

"I make this request in accordance with official action taken by the executive committee of the Federal Council at its meeting in Chicago last December, which instructed the officers of the Council to convey to any appropriate committee of Congress by such method as the committee may desire a complete statement of the Council's policies and procedures with reference to public questions.

The Telegram

Bishop McConnell's telegram, sent to Senator Caraway yesterday, said: "As president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America I respectfully request opportunity for a representative of the Council to appear before the Senate investigating committee at your convenience to reply to Congressional testimony in connection with the Federal Council, as reported in the press today."

"I make this request in accordance with official action taken by the executive committee of the Federal Council at its meeting in Chicago last December, which instructed the officers of the Council to convey to any appropriate committee of Congress by such method as the committee may desire a complete statement of the Council's policies and procedures with reference to public questions.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Mrs. Mary Miner, widow of Francis B. Miner, died last night at her home on Highland street after a long illness at the age of 66. She was a resident of Manchester for 60 years. Her husband died 39 years ago.

Mrs. Miner leaves three sons, Oliver, Frank and George; one brother, Edward Hayes of Boston, and one sister, Mrs. Sarah Hinckley of Hartford.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 8:30 from her late home and from St. James's church at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Bridget's cemetery.

STILL NO LUNCHEAS IN CENTRAL FALLS

Central Falls, R. I., April 10.—(AP)—The diners out in this city of 40,000, who have performed, become dined in service Monday when Police Chief James McCarthy clamped the lid on all of the 122 local eating places, saw a glimmer of hope to-day in the news that Mayor J. A. DeLoraine had issued a call for the Board of Aldermen to meet and renew the victuaries' licenses which expired March 31.

The mayor set the meeting for tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock after having been assured that Aldermen Joseph Girard and Edgar Phaneuf, members of the so-called Franco-Polish Bloc, would be on hand. It was the absence of Messrs. Girard and Phaneuf from all meetings of the aldermen, together with the illness of a third member for the past months which resulted in the failure of that body to renew the victuaries' licenses. There are five Aldermen and three are necessary to a quorum.

No Other Business

Girard and Phaneuf in agreeing to come, made it plain, however, they would act on no other business. In the meantime those who must eat elsewhere than in their own homes will have to continue to stroll over the nearby Pawtucket line or to the slightly longer walk or ride to Providence. Only about 35 of the eating houses closed here are really restaurants. The remainder are public boarding houses and stores which need occasional refreshments.

ABOUT TOWN

The Home Bank and Trust sidewalk clock, after a week's rest was again started at 1:30 this afternoon.

There will be a Polish speaking priest at St. Bridget's church this evening to hear confessions of those who speak Polish and English and a special mass will be celebrated in St. Bridget's church Friday morning at 6 o'clock for those who wish to receive communion. On Friday night a Lithuanian speaking priest will be present to hear the confessions of those who speak that tongue and there will also be an early mass on Saturday that will give them an opportunity to receive communion and in this way keep them within the Easter party. A long waiting which all Roman Catholics who retain their membership in the church are bound by church law to receive communion.

The Roman Catholic American Assurance society will hold a meeting in the basement of St. Bridget's church Friday evening, this being a change from meetings which have in the past been held on the fourth Sunday of the month.

That the fishing season is only a few days away is indicated by the number of people who are seen in establishments where fishing tackle is sold. The trout season opens next Tuesday and in preparation the fishermen are getting their tackle ready, according to one of the dealers in this line.

Easter Sunday, still two weeks away is being prepared for by people living in town getting their orders into the flower shops for early shipments by telegram to the different places where flowers can be delivered by members of the Flower Telegraph Order Association. Manchester has two such places, both on Main street. Until last year Rockville was included in the Manchester territory, but one of the florists in that city has become associated with the group and will take care of most of the Rockville business.

Mrs. Eric L. Anderson of 63 Pearl street has returned from the Hartford hospital where she recently gave birth to a son.

STAR ENTERTAINS GRAND OFFICERS

Many Chapters Represented in Gathering of 350 at Masonic Temple Last Night.

Temple Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, entertained its grand officers in the Masonic Temple last evening. In addition to the grand officers who came from different parts of the state, chapters in Hartford, Windsor Locks, New London, Moodus, Middletown, New Britain, Simsbury, Merrow, Willimantic, Warehouse Point and other places were represented.

About 350 gathered around the attractively set tables in the banquet hall for the supper served by Mrs. F. C. Tilden and her assistants. The color scheme was silver and white with touches of purple. The candlesticks were in the same colors and at each place were bouquets of orchid and purple sweet peas. The grand officers received favors of little candlesticks with bayberry candles, a pair for each of the ladies, and for the men small envelope openers were provided.

The meal consisted of fruit cup, scalloped oysters, cold meats, salads, pineapple pie with whipped cream and coffee. Mrs. Lula Bidwell, worthy matron of Temple Chapter, presided at the meeting which followed in the lodge hall. During the evening five candidates were initiated.

Associate Matron Mrs. Pauline Grant in behalf of the chapter presented Grand Matron, Mrs. Jennie Stevens of Greenwich with a Cheney silk dress pattern. Associate Patron Henry Thornton presented to Grand Patron F. A. Verplanck of this town a gift in behalf of the chapter, as did Mrs. Lucia Foster, speaking for the Past Matrons association. Mr. Verplanck made a fitting speech in response, thanking his friends for their thoughtful kindness.

RESTAURANT, ALLEYS TO UNDERGO CHANGES

Gamba's, Formerly Murphy's, to Be Remodeled and New Owner to Take Over Bowling Place.

Tonight there is to be a return bowling match between Waterville and Manchester at the Gamba alleys, which will probably be the last match bowled under the present management of the building as yesterday through an agreement with Mildred Greenwall, owner of the building, and Gamba Brothers a new lease was issued. By the document filed today the Gambas are given a lease of the front part of the building, it being understood, although not stated in the deed, that the bowling alley in the rear, consisting of nine alleys together with the pool room on the second floor and the clubrooms of the British-American club are to be divorced entirely from the restaurant business.

The deal has been pending for several weeks and to protect themselves Earl and John Gamba had had an option on a store in the Cheney block where they were to move unless the lease as presented to them for signature was changed. When the property including the bowling alleys, restaurant, pool room and clubrooms were sold by Howard Murphy to Mildred Greenwall of Hartford, it was agreed that Murphy was to lease the whole building, pay expenses such as taxes, insurance, heat and upkeep.

When Earl and John Gamba took possession they did not like the arrangement, as they wished to discontinue the bowling alley and pay a rental on their section that is used as a restaurant, confectionery and cigar business. The matter has been dormant because of the inability to sell the bowling alleys, which are held in their name as well as the pool tables.

A buyer has been secured for the pool tables and the nine bowling alleys. The restaurant and store front are to be remodeled. The plans call for the building of an "up-to-date" front, the changing over of the different cases with the installation of booths as well as chairs.

HAWLEY ACCOMPANIST AT BEETHOVEN CONCERT

Accomplished Pianist to Perform at Musical in H. S. Hall Monday, April 21.

The Beethoven Glee Club is very fortunate in having with them this year as accompanist L. Burdette Hawley, organist and choir director of the South Congregational church in Hartford. Mr. Hawley has been playing both piano and organ over thirty years and has been heard in recital several times in town as well as many other cities in Connecticut. Miss Eva M. Johnson, long a favorite of Manchester's musical audiences, will be heard with Mr. Hawley in a few of the numbers on the club's program this year, that call for two piano accompaniments.

Rehearsing twice a week the Beethoven Glee Club under the direction of Helge E. Pearson is fast rounding into shape a most varied and exceptional program to be given at the fifth annual concert in the High school hall Monday evening, April 21.

It is interesting to know that of the 45 active members of the club, 28 have been in since the Glee Club started in 1925.

As guest soloist this year the Beethoven Glee Club is bringing to South Manchester, Mme. Maria Kurenko, soprano, known as the Russian Nightingale. At one of her recent concerts she received the following comments:

"The irresistible Maria Kurenko gave a performance that will be remembered as one of the exceptional treats of season. Kurenko, the woman charms by her simplicity, the artist, carries all before her. Her singing was a disclosure of unfeigned vocal loveliness, of grace and simplicity of style, of impeccable artistry."

This is the last week to mail in your associate memberships at the regular ticket sale starting Monday, April 14, 1930.

SURPRISE SHOWER FOR MISS EMOND

A surprise miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dion of 2 Ridgewood street, last night, in honor of Miss Yvette Edmond, of the same address, who will be married shortly after Easter, to Leo Poulin, also of Manchester. Twenty-five girl friends of Miss Edmond were present and she received many useful gifts.

The home was tastefully decorated in Easter colors and during the evening a buffet lunch was served. The girls performed a hilarious mock wedding as part of the evening's amusements.

The latter struck Bobby over the head with a shovel and caused a contusion. His condition is not serious.

MOCK TRIAL FEATURE AT KIWANIS MINSTREL

Prominent Local Citizens to Play Part in Unusually Funny Play—Halsted in Charge.

One of the features of the annual Kiwanis Minstrel Show, which will be presented at the State theater, Monday evening, May 12, for the benefit of the Kiddles Camp at Hebron, will be a mock court trial, that is bound to be excruciatingly funny. All the typical aspects of the court will be present. The stern-faced judge and prosecuting attorney, the defendant's lawyer, the jury, the clerk of the court and the stenographer, and last but not most important of all, the prisoner. The parts will be taken by men prominent in the civic life of Manchester. The nature of the crime perpetrated by the prisoner has not been disclosed but it'll all come out when he "tells it to the judge," at the minstrel.

William Halstead, who is in charge of the production, has been working diligently, and the chorus as well as the many feature acts that go to make up a performance worth attending. The proceeds of the show will go to the support of the Kiwanis Kiddles Camp at Hebron, which gives the underprivileged children of Manchester two weeks of vacation during the summer.

EASTER FASHION SHOW AT STATE TOMORROW

Smart Shop to Display Latest Modes Using Local Girls as Mannequins.

The railroad in recent years has become more prosperous. On April 11 payment of dividends on its common stock was resumed after a lapse of 17 years. Dividends are now being paid on all classes of its securities. An extensive improvement program is under way.

Directors at yesterday's meeting also voted approval of the issue of $15,000 in five per cent. bonds recently sold to refinance bonds maturing and to provide for improvement expenses.

WAPPING

Mrs. Susie Waters was the guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Griswold of Standish street, Hartford, recently.

Wapping Grange held its forty-fifth anniversary meeting last Tuesday evening at the Wapping School hall with about fifty members present. After the business was completed the meeting was placed in the hands of the Worthy Lecturer Mrs. Hattie D. Lane, who presented the following program: Old songs by a group of ladies in costume, an original paper by Mrs. Walter N. Foster, a talk on the original Grange, by James M. Preston, a reading by Miss Kate M. Withrel with encore, instrumental solo by Mrs. Annie V. Collins, a story by Charles E. Lathrop, two sketches by Oscar D. Strong and Walden V. Collins, reading by Charles J. Dewey, reading by Susie S. Waters and two songs by the ladies group. At the close of the meeting, the brothers gave the sisters a surprise treat in the form of a strawberry shortcake banquet. The tables were beautifully decorated with the spring colors, green and yellow. The sisters were all seated at the maids and matrons table after the tiny candles were all lighted by the brothers, who served the coffee and waited on the tables, and also washed the dishes afterward. This treat was given by the brothers to pay their forfeit for having been beaten by the sisters in the competition program at the last Grange meeting. There were six proposed to join the Grange at the next regular meeting.

Mrs. Elliott Elmore of Pleasant Valley was taken to the Hartford hospital last Sunday, where an operation was performed Monday morning. She is doing as well as can be expected.

Mrs. Clarence W. Johnson attended the funeral of her aunt, at Norwich, on Thursday.

There is to be a meeting of the pastors' preparatory class of young people held at the parsonage, next Friday afternoon at 6:30 o'clock.

Albert Ellsworth met with a painful accident on Saturday, when he was thrown by a pair of horses. He was taken to St. Francis hospital, but is reported as gaining and will not have any lasting ill effects.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The weekly assembly was held on Wednesday afternoon during the seventh period. One of the features of the program was a one-act play presented by the Sock and Buskin dramatic club under the direction of Miss Geraldine McCaughan. The title of the play was "The Wedding Present," and the cast included three characters, Robert Gordon, played by Francis Sullivan; Mrs. Gordon, his wife, played by Elena Burr; and James Burton, played by Horace Burr, who was assisted by Francis Sullivan and Elena Burr. They have had past dramatic experience as they played important parts in "The Lucky Break."

"The Wedding Present" was a very enjoyable presentation. The plot concerned the fact that a young married couple had mislaid the names of those who had given them their many wedding gifts. They were expecting one of Mr. Gordon's friends to call on them and they were unable to know just what gift he had given them. They were presented with the problem of having to know just what his gift without knowing just what his gift had been. Many embarrassing incidents occurred when Robert's friend, Jim Dixon, finally arrived. After much trouble, it was found that Jim, himself, did not know what the present was as he had had his sister select it and send it for him.

All the cast took the parts extremely well, and the play was perhaps the most interesting one yet to be presented at an assembly yet this year.

The most important part of the assembly was the awarding of the prizes for the essay contest which the Lions Club of Manchester sponsored. Horace Burr, who was awarded the first prize, read his essay before the assembly. The subjects of the essays for this contest were to concern suggesting a means of bettering Manchester. Burr's essay told that although Manchester has many "credits" in its Town Hall and sanitary conditions, it has many "debts" in its unattractive railroad station, its unsatisfactory post-office headquarters, its rather small library, the poor condition of the schools, the lack of its smaller districts, its lack of a clean summer swimming pond, and the poor paving in a few of its important streets.

He went on to explain the means by which these faults might be remedied and made out a calendar for the dates at which we should aim to have each poor condition altered. His essay was an excellent piece of work, being concise and having an excellent choice of words.

The essay which won second prize was also read by its author, Charlotte Rubinow. This essay suggested that a service club establish a public day nursery in Manchester. It told of the many cases where very small children are left at home all alone while their mothers work. This, it explained, enables the little children to get into mischief and prevents them from being fed properly. As these children are the Manchester citizens of tomorrow and as the manner in which they spend their earliest years will have a definite effect upon their characters as men and women, this is a very important problem. The best solution, according to the essay, is in the establishing of a public day nursery where the little children might enjoy the care of competent attendants and have their meals regularly.

George Williams, president of the Lions Club, gave a short but interesting speech and accepted, in behalf of the Lions Club, a banner which the art department of the school had made for the club. He thanked all those who had participated in the contest for the interest they had shown. Mr. Williams then awarded the prizes to the four winners of the contest, Horace Burr, Charlotte Rubinow, James Moriarty and Thomas Rollason.

A benefit movie, "Captain Black" will be held in the State Theater for the Washington Trip Fund. All those who wish to aid the fund by attending this performance must buy their tickets from some member of the Seneca Class, as these tickets are limited to 200 couples, and will not be turned over to the fund.

SEND OUT APPLICATIONS FOR CHAMBER BANQUET

Will Be Limited to 200 Couples—Fine Menu and Excellent Entertainment Planned.

Applications were received today by the 325 members of the Chamber of Commerce on which to make reservations for the 29th annual banquet to be held Wednesday evening, April 30, at the Masonic Temple. As members will be allowed to bring their wives or women friends this year, reservations have been limited to 200 couples, making it important for those who plan to attend, to send in reservation cards immediately.

A first class menu is offered, high grade entertainment, the best music possible to obtain, and good music throughout the dinner by an orchestra that will remain for the dance period from 11 to 12 and possibly later.

The seating committee has arranged for table parties of four couples and seven couples and members are asked to send in their party lists.

INCREASE AUTO DUTY
Paris, April 10.—(AP)—American automobile dealers in France today said that they had learned the French customs authorities had decided, pending passage of the new tariff, to change the manner of valuation of American cars for duty in such a way as to increase the amount payable thereon from 25 to 60 per cent.

By this measure also the existing 45 per cent ad valorem duty will be calculated on the selling price in France instead as heretofore on the production price in America.

BIRTH CONTROL

Declaration by the New York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in favor of legalized birth control is certain to stimulate a discussion that in some quarters is likely to become highly controversial. It also marks a reversal of opinion on the part of a portion at least of the Methodist church, since it is not long ago that that organization was solidly aligned in opposition to proposals of this nature. Even now it is probable that there will not be complete agreement within the church, nor even within the New York East Conference.

That countless individuals enter life handicapped from birth by physical and mental limitations is beyond question. There are very few who insist that every human being born is an asset to humanity or even to himself. Yet there is no conceivable field of opinion in which there is more room for honest differences than in the proposal to regulate the fact of birth.

It is a subject of almost endless ramification, of countless facets; yet perhaps no other sociological problem has received so little open minded study. People either believe in birth control or they are opposed to it—and in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, where they give the matter serious thought at all, they start from the point of complete conviction and seek only such facts as will support their snap judgments.

When the far less complicated subject of prohibition is disposed of perhaps the American people will find, in this one of birth control, a controversial topic that will keep them busy debating, campaigning and quarreling, for a hundred years.

BLIND BUT SNORTY

There is a theory, supported by the observations of any number of persons, that blindness of the eyes is accompanied, with almost unfailing certainty, by an uncommon degree of self control and serenity of disposition on the part of the afflicted. Some physicians have attributed this phenomenon to the blind person's freedom from the constant nervous irritation deriving from conscious or unconscious watchfulness, from the artificial strain upon the eyes and their associated nerve centers from reading, from delicate manual operations, from the innumerable minute shocks arising from rapid movement of surrounding objects—in short from a universal if slight state of eyestrain which is the common lot of practically all seeing persons.

At all events, blind people are almost invariably gentle, considerate, kindly and placid of temperament, philosophical and pacific. Which makes all the more striking the case of the Connecticut blind man who quarreled vigorously with a neighbor, stopped up a sewer to spite him, defied a court which ordered him to disist from his trespass and when fined refused to pay the fine and was locked up to serve it out, breathing a determination to stop up the sewer again as soon as he is free.

Does this case ruin the contention that most of our belligerency is the result of too much strain on the optic nerves? Or does it merely testify to the superstition that there must always be an exception to prove the rule?

THE JAKEEY PROBLEM

Apparently the "jakee" problem will have to be threshed out along some new lines, following the discovery by Police Court Judge Bones of Hartford that the sale of the fluid extract of Jamaica ginger is not penalized by the Volstead law though the sale of the ordinary commercial article of the same name is. Judge Bones' explanation that the framers of the law never contemplated the possibility of anybody using the fluid extract as a beverage is probably a valid one; but it would appear that if anyone is crazy enough to drink the highly concentrated fluid extract there is nothing in the federal laws to prevent some one else from selling it to him.

Perhaps, however, the state law might be invoked to protect ignorant or reckless citizens from this particular form of poisoning if the State Board of Pharmacy were to adopt a new and much more selective policy in the issuance of its permits for the sale of package drugs. The permits were intended to be issued to store-keepers in communities without regular pharmaceutical service, to enable people to obtain certain standard medicinal preparations in emergencies and without traveling long distances. The custom has grown up, however, of granting the permits to grocers, variety store-keepers and all sorts of small business people everywhere. Under a Board of Pharmacy permit the possession for sale of fluid extract of Jamaica ginger would not constitute an offense against the state law. Without such a permit it would.

It would appear as if the surest way to prevent the distribution of such concoctions as the fluid extract would be through a revision of its methods by the State Board of Pharmacy.

NOTABLE TAX SLACKERS

There is something peculiarly ironic in the fact that among the persons on whose properties the tax collector of Bridgeport has placed liens are two school principals, one a man, the other a woman. If these people were teaching school in Chicago, where there were many weeks when the "ghost" did not walk and city employees had no money for taxes or anything else, that would be one matter. But for a public servant whose salary comes directly out of the taxes, whose employment is permanent and his pay secure, to himself become a slacker in tax paying closely approaches the grotesque. Yet it is easy to imagine both these principals raising a fine rumpus if so many other property owners had followed their example that there were no funds in the treasury to cash their salary checks.

NEA Service Writer

Washington, April 10.—The idea used to be that the most flowery speakers, the best drum-beaters, the most powerful hallyhoo artists, the most effective heart-string pullers, the strongest flag wavers and the most piercing shriekers for the administration were all safely confined within the halls of Congress. That theory has just been proved utter nonsense by Mr. W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general.

Mr. Glover grasped all those laurels for himself in one comparatively brief statement mimeographed and issued by the Postoffice Department. Mr. Glover had decided that he would make a glowing foremerchant marine and it may be said that in hyperbole and unbounded enthusiasm his effort has not been equalled since the good old days when there was a busy bar on the House side of the Capitol.

Chapeaux means hats in French. And it isn't enough for Mr. Glover to get them off our heads. They must be replaced and doffed all over again as Mr. Glover pulls the star-spangled banner from up his sleeve and waves it frantically.

But slip them back quietly," he continues, "to be ready to take them off again to one of the giants of the new merchant marine of the United States which is fast coming into being and will soon wrest gently the 'blue pennant' from the present 'Queen of the North Atlantic' and place it where it properly belongs at the masthead of an American-built ship, built by the brains and brawn of American workmen in the shipyards of America, by materials of this country, under the terms of the Jones-White Act administered by Postmaster General Brown."

You might think that was Mr. Glover's supreme effort, but he was only getting started. He looked into the future, saw glorious visions and again burst into song.

According to him, the postmaster general (who has charge of the U. S. postoffice and mail system) was considering "establishment of several essential trade routes, all new in the trade routes of the world." Mr. Glover virtually settled the unemployment problem with the assurance that these routes would result in a new building program calling for "a still greater drain on the unemployed, if there are any to be found in this class by early summer" and added, "Who knows but what the Pacific coast will find itself, at last, well fortified by a great merchant fleet to meet all foreign competitors, new cargo and passenger ships with speed and accommodations of which any nation can be proud."

Lots and Lots of Ships
And the Gulf? Why, the Gulf will find its South and Central American trade routes "tightly secured" by a fleet "to command the attention of the merchant marine world." And on the North Atlantic "you will see the great Leviathans and other great ships, too, proudly flying Old Glory and that flag, at last, restored to the front rank in the merchant marine fleets of the world, which no one denies is its proper place."

Do not permit great ships of the Europe and Bremen types and other contemplated ships of this size being built or planned by a foreign nation to worry you too much," exhorts Mr. Glover. "Uncle Sam, the Sailor Boy," is watching this development carefully and shrewdly, he views across the pond. "Go ahead and build them, you boys across the waters; we will let you stretch yourself and after it is all done we will take your measure and show you how to build a real merchant marine."

After all of which, one understands, the fevered Mr. Glover ducked into an ice-cold shower bath and stood there for a long time.

The prize fighter who was fined for punching his wife is probably the sort of pugilist who gets the raz for his affectionate clinches in the ring.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

VENTILATING YOUR LUNGS

Although man's ancestors living in the well ventilated arboreal tenelements on the tops of trees did not have any problems of ventilation, when they moved down to earth and became cave dwellers or house dwellers, the problem of securing a supply of fresh air became of great importance. Even so, the idea that a house should have any special arrangements for obtaining fresh air is a modern one.

It was in 1660 that the first ventilation for the parliamentary buildings in London was installed. Even today in many buildings there is no special provision for obtaining fresh air during cold or rainy weather when the windows are kept closed.

The first open air school was opened in a suburb of Berlin, called Carottenburg, and the first school of this type to open in the United States was at Providence, Rhode Island. In testing the children in an open air school it was found that they gained in two and a half months an average of 3.6 pounds, while the children in ordinary school buildings gained but an average of 1 pound.

Many experiments made by physiologists have proven that lack of fresh air is one of the chief causes of malnutrition and undernourishment with many people. Doctors have found that if they can persuade a thin patient to secure a supply of fresh air, particularly with some form of stimulating exercise in the open, he is more easily able to gain weight by assimilating the extra nourishment from food.

About seven-eighths of the air in our lungs is stationary. The average adult will breathe in about thirty cubic inches of air, but in the ordinary shallow breathing, the inflow and outflow does not replace the main body of air in the lungs. Many people find that when they practice deep breathing they have a "stitch" in the side which shows they have not been using their lungs enough. This "stitch" feeling means that a part of the lung surface has become sort of stuck together through not being used.

When the air is forced into the lungs, the lung cells surrounding the air pockets may remonstrate with pain on the sudden stretching. But if one develops the habit of fully emptying and filling the lungs several times each day, all of these stitches disappear.

A few hours out in the air every day with stimulating exercises make an enormous difference. One begins to feel the blood speeding along the arteries and veins, and soon quits worrying about not being able to digest food.

One cannot feel truly hungry unless one has enough exercise to make use of the food which is eaten, and enough oxygen to speed up the body's metabolism so that the food materials may be incorporated into the system.

While you are practicing your deep breathing exercises, it is always well to precede the inhaling with deep exhaling to first empty out the impure air so that there will be room for the fresh vitalizing air.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
(Albumin and Water)
Question:—L. K. F. asks: "When albumin is present in the urine would it be injurious to drink much water? And have eggs any tendency to increase the albumin?"

Answer:—It is usually advantageous for one with albumin in the urine to drink large quantities of water in order to put the kidneys through a thorough cleansing treatment. A limited number of eggs in the diet does not tend to increase the albumin, which is caused more from a disease of the kidneys than from any kind of food which has just been eaten. A well regulated diet is of course the most important thing in bringing about a real cure, but this comes through getting the kidneys in a healthy condition and not because of any single article of food in the diet.

SOBBING AGAIN

Because the amount of the debt for which Henry Lorenz murdered Nils Anderson was only $300 the Waterbury Republican concludes that it is proved thereby that Lorenz had no sense of right and wrong and suffered from "a childish distortion of the implications of the situation." Ergo, Lorenz is not the kind of person to be held legally accountable for a crime.

Also, because this semi-idiot, as the Republican makes him out, was not deterred by the threat of the death penalty from committing the murder, the death penalty is no good and should be abandoned. "Two murderers have been executed recently in Connecticut and Lorenz could not but have been aware of that fact."

Quite on the other hand, the Republican should be aware of the still more recent circumstance that one of its fellow townsmen, a youth named Brophy, shot to death a Bristol policeman in the coldest of cold blood and the complete wantonness of his crime was used to successfully buttress the claim that Brophy, too, was of such inferior mentality that he should not be held accountable save in minor degree. Would the Republican assume that Lorenz did not also know about the Brophy case, with its second degree sentence and Brophy's quite inevitable expectation of escape or parole? How does the newspaper know that the benign and tender treatment extended to the poor, ridiculous Brophy didn't enter the calculations of the likewise unfortunate and ridiculous Lorenz in figuring his chances when he planned to kill Anderson?

There are many Brophys. There are not many executions. There are always plenty of sob-artists to urge the unaccountability of the killer—and to seize upon each new murder as proof that the death penalty does not deter. Far fairer to assert that each murder where the perpetrator escapes breeds another—or half a dozen. We can't prove that, but we can come as near to it as the Republican can to proving that the gallows or the chair is futile.

BANK DIRECTORS

The good people of Northampton, Mass., are agast at the temerity of the state bank commissioner in bringing, in behalf of the broken Hampshire County Trust Company, a series of suits against a number of present and past directors of that institution, the suits totaling half a million dollars. The suitor claims that the directors were grossly negligent in the performance of their duties in permitting it to be possible for a $40 a week teller to steal $285,000 from the bank.

As all these directors are persons of high repute, of whom the average citizen stands somewhat in awe, the Northamptonites can't quite see how the bank commissioner can muster up the nerve and the rudeness to charge them with responsibility for the loss of depositors' money.

It is highly probable that the bringing of these suits will exercise a beneficial influence on New England banking if it brings to a certain type of ornamental bank director the realization that there is something to that job besides honor and prestige. There are many of this type. In a good many instances they know substantially nothing about either the principles or the practice of banking. They are mere yes-men for whatever official or officials have the actual operation of the institution in hand.

If by any chance the Massachusetts bank commissioner should win these suits and the Northampton directors should have to pay through the nose for inattention and slovenliness, it is not unlikely that we should see, in many a town and city, a shoal of resignations of

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 10.—O. Henry, that wizard of Manhattan's highways and byways, once tried to explain "the voice of the great city." Was it an overwhelming roar or a strangely quiet murmur, scarcely heard because of the cacophony all about it?

The other day, a gentleman from one of the talking picture concerns approached me with the question of what was Gotham's most typical noise. It seemed that they were making a sound picture and wanted to have a couple of scenes, taken in New York, which would send to the average person "out in the open spaces" the particular sound most typical of this many-voiced metropolis.

The wise guys had all gone into conference; they had talked with this person and that.

And when they finally shot the picture, the sound they recorded was that of a turnstile clicking in the Times Square subway station.

To be sure, millions hear this click. And pay a nickel a piece for the privilege.

The fact is, so far as I know, there is no sound typical of New York. Most of the New York noises can be heard in almost any place; they are merely amplified here a hundred times.

You never can be sure whom you're talking to in Manhattan. The big Russian in front of the tea shop will turn out to be the czar's personal bandmaster; the chorus girl to whom you send back a note is none other than Miss Gertie Van Puyster, the sub-deb, who has tired of the "society life," the taxi-driver is a grand opera tyro making a few dishonest dimes; and the fellow who shines your shoes is—

Well, if you stop at Bryant Park, this fellow is very likely to be an ace aviator of no small reputation. And his name will turn out to be Klaus von Clauson-Kaas, a ranking lieutenant, if you please, who can show you photos of himself in the uniform of the Danish aviation service.

Garbed in a tough-looking sweater, with a baseball cap pulled over one eye, you'd never tell him from all the other "shine-em-up-mister" crew that you met in New York's more public places. Yet he has won high flying honors, came to America and "getting on his uppers" now blacks boots in the public parks.

One of these days, he says, he's going to find someone who will "atake him to a ship" and then he's going to try a solo flight back home.

What with the modernistic decorative idea permeating the city and new building fronts trying to look like something off the Rue de la Paix, the newest restaurant to open announces that the hair of its waitresses will match its color scheme. And the color scheme, being white, black, gold and red, the 55 wait-

Reviews of Books at the South Manchester Library

OUR REDEMPTIONS COST

God's wonderful plan of redemption shows His love for poor sinful man in bringing everlasting Salvation For all who accept of His plan.

No earthly price could redeem us. It must come from the realms above.

His blood was the price to be paid. None other could ever suffice.

So they crucified Him, our redeemer. Putting Him to ignominy and shame.

By faith we behold Him dying. As He was hanging upon the cross.

For the joy that was set before Him He went to His death on the cross.

It is finished, He cried, in the hearing of the mocking and jeering crowd.

His blood is the passport for heaven. And the only remedy for our sin.

He that climbeth some other way up. The same is a thief and a robber.

Let us lift up the standard higher. The standard of a crucified Lord.

His hands are stretched forth and reaches. In love to all nations of the world.

Millions today rejoice in the story of the glorious plan of redemption.

SEN. DILL PROPOSES DIRECTOR OF RADIO

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, has prepared for Congress a legislative proposal for placing non-contractual radio legislation in the hands of a director of radio.

The radio director, under Dill's plan, would receive a salary of $9,000 a year. He would make recommendations on licenses, supervise inspections provided for radio stations, and take over virtually all the radio regulations now exercised by the Department of Commerce, with some functions now under the Federal Radio Commission.

FORD CO. PROFITS

Boston, April 10.—(AP)—The balance sheet of the Ford Motor Co., as filed with the Massachusetts commissioner of corporation today, indicated profit of 1929 of $51,797,861, as contrasted with an indicated loss of $72,221,458 in 1928.

The indicated profit is equal to $473.79 a share on 172,845 shares of stock, all of which is held by Henry Ford and his son, Edsel E. Ford. The sharp upturn in earnings is understood to reflect the going into production of the new models, the cost of which was probably reflected in the 1928 balance sheet.

PACIFIC FLIER HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

San Antonio, Tex., April 10.—(AP)—First Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, who commanded the first airplane to fly from the Pacific coast to Hawaii, today was in an Army hospital here suffering from a crushed chest and cuts on the face, the result of an accident yesterday in which his automobile was struck by a bus.

The accident occurred a few hours after his wife, Mrs. Ruth Hurston Maitland, was granted a divorce at Las Vegas, Nevada. She charged nagging and other mental cruelties. The Maitlands have one child, five years old.

At the time of the accident Maitland was driving near Kelly Field, where the aviator has been stationed since December, 1929.

He gained fame in 1928 when he flew to Hawaii in an Army plane, accompanied by Lieut. Albert Hegener. Before the flight across the Pacific ocean the aviator was stationed at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio. He is 32 years old.

DAILY LENTEN THOUGHT

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist

The illustration may seem homely and inadequate for the idea and the ideal, but I have never found anything that quite so aptly illustrates the right attitude of the soul toward God as the story of a negro and his bride.

The negro asked the minister who married him how much he should give him, and the minister facetiously and rather foolishly replied, "How much do you think your bride is worth?" The negro was entirely equal to the occasion. "Pahson," he said, "you'd make me bankrupt for the rest of my life."

DYNAMITE STOLEN

Salem, Mass., April 10 (AP) — Police and fire departments of this city suffered anxiety today after it was discovered that between 45 and 50 pounds of dynamite, the property of the city, was stolen from a city outbuilding during the night, presumably by boys. A close watch was kept on railroad tracks and other places where it was believed boys might attempt to experiment with it.

SEES LITTLE INCREASE IN RUBBER PRODUCTION

Batavia, Java, April 10.—(AP)—The Department of Agriculture in a review of rubber production by natives in the Dutch East Indies, expresses the opinion that the present low prices give no reason to believe there will be any sharp increase in production in the near future.

These considerations, the department considers, prove that the only possible course for European estate owners to follow is to reduce production costs. Compared with 108,500 tons exported last year, the department estimates the potential production for the present year at 150,000 tons.

Murder Backstairs

by ANNE AUSTIN
AUTHOR OF
"THE AVEING PARROT"
"THE BLACK PIGEON," ETC.
©1960 by HEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Doris Matthews, lady's maid, is murdered in a summerhouse at Berkeley estate, by blow from heavy perfume flask given Mrs. George Berkeley by Seymour Crosby, who scart binds the rock-weighted body when it is taken from the lake by Detective Dundee.

Evidence involves Mrs. Berkeley, Clorinda, Dick Berkeley; Eugene Arnold, Doris's fiancé; Gigi Berkeley, 15, who unaccountably sprinkled everyone Friday evening with perfume from murder flask, later placed in Mrs. Berkeley's room by Wickett, butler.

An unfinished letter of Doris to her sister in London almost causes the arrest of Seymour Crosby, and links the maid's murder with the sudden death of Phyllis Crosby 14 months before in London. Dundee cables Scotland Yard, then grills Crosby, who denies charges of having bribed or killed the maid, and having caused his wife's death, officially pronounced suicide.

The discovery that Harvey Johnson, valet, has robbed Mrs. Berkeley and Crosby convinces Strawn the murder is solved. Johnson is sought and Dundee left in charge at the Berkeley estate, while Mrs. Berkeley, secret secretary to Mrs. Berkeley, requests an interview with Dundee, begs him not to accept any solution which reflects on Doris's splendid character; that Phyllis Crosby, close friend of Mrs. Lambert and Doris's former mistress. Dundee asks: "Did Doris ever confide to you her suspicions regarding the real cause for Phyllis's suicide?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

Mrs. Lambert's eyes flew wide, to stare at the detective incredulously. "Doris? Suspicions?" she repeated. "I don't know what you mean. I am sure Doris knew no more about Phyllis's suicide than I did, or than Seymour Crosby knew." "Probably no more, but as much, Mrs. Lambert," Dundee retorted significantly. "Don't mind him, Tish!" Gigi cried, stroking the pale cheek of her friend consolingly. "That Dundee she blamed. I don't blame her if she fits a little to protect Phyllis Crosby's memory from scandal?" "I have told nothing but the truth, Gigi," Mrs. Lambert said wearily. "You were at the inquest, of course," Dundee persisted. "You heard her father's testimony. He was on his way to see his daughter and to take her home when she died, I believe."

"Yes," Mrs. Lambert admitted, with sudden spirit. "But I believed then and I still believe that Cullen Benham was lying. He had consented to her marriage to Mr. Crosby, but he very mistakenly believed that Seymour was marrying Phyllis for her father's money. Mr. Benham said he had received a letter from Phyllis, asking him to cable her $25,000 and to let her come home. But he could not produce the letter," said she, had destroyed it. "I do not believe."

"Yes," Dundee interrupted. "Mr. Benham was on a ship hurrying to his daughter's side, when she was killed."

"When she committed suicide," Mrs. Lambert corrected him. "Pardon! And Mr. Benham had unquestionably cabled his daughter these words: 'Not another cent, come home.' He reminded her. "If she had asked his permission to come home, I fail to see why he did not wait for her in New York," Mrs. Lambert pointed out.

"Possibly he wanted to deal personally with the man who had made her so unhappy," Dundee suggested. "Then, as Mrs. Lambert expressed her scorn only with her blazing eyes: 'Will you tell me whether or your knowledge Mrs. Crosby was jealous, or had cause to be jealous of any other woman?'"

"No! I can swear that such a thought never entered Phyllis's head!"

would join me on the Mauretania. On shipboard I became acquainted with Mrs. Berkeley and her daughter, and introduced them to Mr. Crosby. Seymour and Clorinda were obviously congenial from the first, though I should not say that either was tempestuously in love. Mrs. Berkeley encouraged the attraction.

"I bet she did!" Gigi giggled. Again Mrs. Lambert smiled, an expression which made her look almost like a girl again, and very beautiful. "When it became fairly obvious that an engagement would result, Mrs. Berkeley begged me to accept the post of social secretary. I had never worked for money in my life, and the prospect dismayed me, but she insisted again and again until she had crowned her defiance. "The small remnant of my dead husband's estate was almost completely exhausted, and it was necessary for me to earn money in some way." "Why didn't you get married again, Cousin, Tish?" Gigi began eagerly. "You're so beautiful and such a lamb I should think every plutocrat that looked at you."

Mrs. Lambert's delicate cheeks flamed, and she stopped the rush of words by laying a hand over her child's mouth. "I accepted the position and Mrs. Berkeley asked me to begin my duties by engaging a butler and a thoroughly competent lady's maid for herself and Clorinda. While I had a letter from Wickett which he was returning to America, and saying that he wanted to see me, I had arranged to go to New York I located Wickett through an employment bureau and offered him this post, which he accepted. A day or so later he sent Doris to me. She was employed on a Long Island estate and wished to be with Wickett again."

"She simply adored you!" Gigi cut in. "And I—loved Doris," Mrs. Lambert said solemnly. "I think that during the interview, 'I think that is all I can tell you, Mr. Dundee. As you probably know, Clorinda and Mr. Crosby became engaged on the last day of the voyage.' Dundee was silent again for a long minute. Then he asked abruptly: "Mrs. Lambert, was it from you that Doris expected to borrow sufficient money to set up a beauty shop of her own?"

"From me?" Mrs. Lambert was obviously surprised. "That is absurd. Doris knew quite well that I have nothing now except my salary as Mrs. Berkeley's secretary."

"Do you know whom she had in mind as her benefactor?" Dundee pressed.

"Why no! I haven't the least idea."

"Mrs. Lambert, did Doris tell you last night that Mr. Berkeley had snatched her face?"

The effect of the question was startling. The woman's tired eyes blazed with anger, and her lips were shaking as she repeated, "Snatched Doris's . . . Oh!" Then, regaining control she answered: "No Doris did not tell me that."

"Don't mind so, Tish!" Gigi pleaded, stroking her friend's flushed cheeks with tender brown fingers. "Abbie has a rotten temper, you know, but she dies off the handle and goes banging around, but she really doesn't mean any harm. I got bit myself last night, remember, and I'm not harboring any bad feelings now against my peppery parent."

"I remember," Mrs. Lambert agreed quietly, but her arms tightened about the small body.

"Forgive what must seem like unwarranted prying, Mrs. Lambert," Dundee went on. "Very last night I happened to overhear Mrs. Berkeley say to you, 'All right, I promise. Will you tell me, please, what promise you extracted from Mrs. Berkeley?'"

"Really, Mr. Dundee, I must refuse to answer that question," Mrs. Lambert retorted icily. "It was a purely personal matter, having nothing at all to do with—with the tragedy you are investigating."

Dundee shrugged slightly, then smiled at her disarmingly as he took a rather crumpled package of cigarettes and a patent lighter from his coat pocket. He was snapping up successfully at the first when Gigi scrambled out of Mrs. Lambert's lap and snatched the lighter from his hands.

"Bet it needs filling," she told him. "Let me do it. See how the little fountain pen and she ran around the big desk to where an ornamental little keg with gleaming brass hands held a prominent position among writing accessories. "It's a filling station for staving lighters, but we feed 'em wood alcohol instead of gas. Watch!" and she jerked the lighter apart, then held the tiny reservoir directly under the miniature spigot whose tap she turned. "Now see if it will light."

Dundee accepted the refilled lighter with thanks, then remarked admiringly: "That's neat! I never saw one before."

"Say that to Dad and he'll make you a present of one," Gigi assured him. "He patented the thing himself and one of his factories turns them out by the thousand. He's sincerely proud of it, too. Designs a new type of body every week or so. The house is full of them. Abbie has gorgeous one for her sitting room—a modernistic urn, the darlings of writing about them. He's afraid some thirsty and inebriated member of his precious family will take a swig of the wood alcohol and fill an untimely grave. Therefore he delivers periodic lectures on the horrible effects."

"The ringing of the house telephone interrupted her torrent of words. Snatching up the receiver she cooed "Hello!" and winked at Dundee. "Abbie—on the rampage!" she whispered after a moment. Aloud: "Yes,

April Rally
The April rally will be held at the Hollister street school Friday evening, the 11th, from 7 to 8 o'clock, in charge of Troop 6. The contest will be in table-setting.

Council
The annual meeting of the Manchester Girl Scout Council will be held Monday afternoon, April 14, at the Old Talbot House Tea Room, Wettersfield. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock. All members who are planning to attend are asked to notify either Mrs. Stephen Hale, 4449, or Mrs. Louis Grant, 6370, and transportation will be provided.

Drum and Bugle Corps
The Drum and Bugle Corps will play for the monthly rally Friday evening at the Hollister street school. Every one interested in Girl Scouting is invited to attend these rallies. The corps meets every Thursday night for practice from 6:30 to 7:30 at the Franklin school. Council members, officers and parents of any member are asked to visit Mr. and Mrs. Harold Agard and Bobby Agard were visitors last week.

Brownies
Acorn Pack, No. 1 which meets at the Hollister street school held an enrollment ceremony April 3. Tweepies, Peggy Brosman and Phyllis Hollister were made Brownies.

Officers' Association
The April meeting of the Girl Scout Officers' Association was held on the second at the home of Mrs. Arthur Burch. A delicious buffet supper was served before the business meeting. After the repeating of the Scout promise and the reading of the secretary-treasurer's report, Mrs. Robert Hawley reported for the nominating committee the names of Irene Buckland for president and Lois Parker for secretary-treasurer. This report was accepted, and passed unanimously. Announcement was made that Miss Ferderber is the home nurse examiner. It was suggested that the May report take the form of a regular rally, but without a contest, and that Mrs. Perkins of Hartford be invited to present the badges and give a short address. It was announced that Girl Scout headquarters are open each Wednesday 5:30. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Harold Agard. A discussion of merit badges will take place at that time.

Troop 3
The meeting was opened by the singing of "Hello! We are a visited team." Mrs. Marjorie Brown, who intends to join our troop. Several girls passed the health test. Faith Gallinat, Florence Bierl and Christine Royce passed signalling. A class in First Aid was held. We played a game and learned a new song. The meeting closed with taps.—Scribe, Eleanor Patten.

Troop 6
The meeting on March 31 was opened with the pledge of allegiance and the repeating of the Girl Scout promise. Tenderfoot Scouts practiced first aid and signalling. Minnie Kaiser passed thrift; Barbara Smith, Marie Moonan and Doris Gibson table setting; Doris Gibson, health. The meeting was closed with the goodwill circle and "taps." The meeting of April 7 was opened with the hollow square formation, pledge of allegiance and singing of the Girl Scouts of U. S. A. The motto, slogan, promise and laws were repeated. Patrol corners were then held and games were played. Barbara Stoltenfeldt passed first aid. We have a new member, Betty Baldwin. The meeting closed with the goodwill circle.—Scribe, Barbara Stoltenfeldt.

Troop 7
The April 7 meeting opened with the singing of different songs followed by a game. Nellie Jura, Virginia Armstrong, Marjorie Kuster and Virginia Burnham passed table setting; Eleanor Thresher, sewing; Marguerite Annis, Anna Daley,

HEALTH

INHERITANCE IS CHIEF FACTOR IN DETERMINING COMPLEXION

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Everybody knows that skin color is likely to be inherited. Human races are classified into white, black, yellow, brown and red—an inaccurate classification, since the skin color of any race is the result of black, yellow and red pigments brought to the skin by the blood.

The skin color is also susceptible to such influences as exposure to the sun. Observers feel that the color of the skin is determined by the depositing of pigments of the blood, controlled through the glands of internal secretion and that these are in turn controlled by the heredity mechanism.

Because of frequent mixtures of races there are now all grades of color visible in various populations. The experts in the study of heredity have attempted to work out the rules which govern the inheritance of skin color, but the insufficient amounts of study have been made to establish these laws as certain, although it is generally recognized that the first cross between white and black brings a brown mulatto or yellow mulatto, and that thereafter there are variations without, however, any appearance of a perfect black or white descendant.

Mary Marowski, Jane Grant and Suzanne Batson passed the Hottest Badge. The meeting closed with the singing of "taps."—Scribe, Suzanne Batson.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN
By SISTER MARY

The custom of selling fruits and vegetables by the pound is growing. For some time the western states have found this method of marketing to be most practical.

The weight of many fruits and vegetables is an aid in determining the quality of the commodity. Small heads of lettuce or cabbage are heavy if solid and firm through the center. Fresh produce are heavier than wilted ones. Fewer large apples or potatoes fit into a measure than small ones. This means a distinct saving in buying by weight.

"Bunches" and "baskets" are as variable as "pennies" and "nickel worths" of the past, and it is only when a common unit of measurement is applied to fruits and vegetables that prices and quality are easily comparable.

The following list will help the housekeeper in calculating the amount needed when purchasing by the pound:

One pound asparagus will serve three or four persons.
One pound of green beans (about one quart), four persons.
One pound of shelled lima beans (less than a quart), four persons.
One pound of beet tops about five (medium-sized beets), four persons.
A medium-sized head of solid cabbage weighs about three pounds and serves six or seven people.
One pound of brussels sprouts, six persons.
One pound broccoli, four persons.
One medium-sized, well-trimmed head of cauliflower weighs about one and one-half pounds and will serve four persons.
Four rather small tomatoes weigh a pound and will serve four persons.
One pound of rutabarb, after being stewed, will serve three persons. Two pounds are needed for the average pie.
One pound of fresh spinach, three persons.
One pound of peas in the pod (about one quart) yields about one cup, shelled. Allow two pounds for four persons.
One pound of mushrooms will serve six people if the mushrooms are served on toast.
Three or four potatoes weigh a pound.

ONE-MAN JAZZ BAND
Vienna—Francie Szeheres, Hungarian musician, is a whole jazz band himself. He has invented the "Breathophone," by which one man, operating keys, can produce every sound known to jazz players. He has received a letter from a "jazz" band threatening to bomb his home if he does not stop the manufacture of this musical instrument.

BARKERS WIN AND LOSE
Seattle, Wash.—The scene was in superior court. Judge Jones called off the divorce case of "Barker versus Barker." Two women shouted simultaneously. "Here!" "Here!" The judge inquired if the two women wanted a divorce from the same man. "I want a divorce from Clifford Barker," one said, "I want one from Clarence Barker," said the other. They both won.

ANOTHER LEGEND SHOT
Washington—Those pictures you see of Eskimos in snow houses are cases—according to the U. S. Bureau of American Ethnology. Of the 30,000 Eskimos in North America and Greenland, not half have ever seen a snow house. Igloos were once used extensively, but civilization has replaced these primitive huts with more modern abodes.

Of course, that golden cup presented the secretary of the treasury on his 75th birthday recently, mint a lot to him.

THE SKIN COLOR IS CHIEF FACTOR IN DETERMINING COMPLEXION

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER

The various grades of coloration vary so greatly that it is not infrequently difficult to ascertain the presence of various amounts of blood of different races. The same factors apply to the inheritance of hair. Human hair may be straight, wavy, kinky or curly. Because of the tremendous mixtures that have gone on for hundreds of years between people with hair of various types, it is not possible to postulate certainly any type of hair for a child in any given family.

However, the evidence thus far assembled seems to indicate that if a person with wavy hair marries another with wavy hair, the children are likely to have straight, wavy or curly hair in approximately equal proportions. In the same way, if a person with straight hair marries another with straight hair three types may occur, but the majority will have straight hair.

If a person with curly hair marries one with straight hair, most of the children will have straight hair, if the father's hair is straight; but most of the children will have curly hair, if the father's hair is curly.

The figures cited were based on the records of mixtures of Filipinos with children in which the Filipinos had curly hair and the Chinese straight hair. R. R. Bates is inclined to believe that these results for Filipinos are reversed in Americans.

ANY OLD RAGS?
Moscow.—The Soviet government is collecting all the trash throughout the country to convert into useful articles of export. At a recent concert of Anna Luboshitz, cellist, admission was "six pounds of rags or paper, old bottles, tin cans, news, or a single pair of old rubbers."

Why Few Are Fat

Excess fat has been disappearing fast in late years. So fast that excess fat is the exception now. You see that in every circle.

That change is largely due to the discovery that excess fat is largely the result of a gland weakness. A gland whose secretion helps turn food to fuel. So modern physicians, in treating obesity, seek to combat this cause.

Their method is embodied in Marmol's prescription tablets. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. Now almost everyone has slender friends to show them the results.

Go do what they did—try Marmol's. All druggists supply it at $1 a box, and a book in each box tells you how and why it sets.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

FIRST PATENT ACT

On April 10, 1790, Congress passed the first act providing for the granting of patents.

This action was taken primarily to encourage useful discoveries and inventions in the arts and industries, by securing to discoverers and inventors the exclusive benefits of the same.

The year 1836 really marks the beginning of a new era in the patent system of the United States. In that year all previous statutes were repealed and a comprehensive act passed which brought the system substantially into its present condition. Among other things, it created a patent office to be attached to the Department of State, at the head of which was to be a commissioner of patents. It provided also for a board to hear appeals from the decisions of the commissioner against the patentability of an invention.

The first for which a patent is asked must have three general characteristics: it must be an invention; it must be new, and it must be useful.

In Cook county, seat of Chicago, 1,900 persons filed for the April 8 primary.

Booth Proves Sensation On Yale Baseball Nine

Injured Left Leg Seems as Strong as Ever; Stars as Eli Loses 8 to 3 In Game With Columbia.

New York, April 10.—(AP)—Albie Booth, the quarterback, as a model college athlete has a rival. It is Albie Booth, the shortstop. Booth means as much to Yale as Quarterback Eli does to Columbia.

Certainly it seems that the might might has helped himself to another of those difficult Yale athletic jobs. He seems to thrive on this daring procedure though and the whacks he got on the gridiron and then on the basketball court where he experted at forward, has developed what looks like a bigger and better Booth.

"It wasn't Booth who said so, but it was learned from the bench that an X-ray taken the other day showed that Booth's left leg, where his muscle was torn last fall, is in normal condition. The way he pivoted on several slick double play maneuvers before the game indicated that his underpinnings are sound.

They must be, for Albie himself snapped a sort of half emphatic "yes" when the question was put to him. That was about the extent of his laudatory. Here is a complete text of the interview:

"Is your left leg in good shape, Albie?" "Yes." "How's your weight?" "The same." "Do you prefer to play shortstop?" "Uh Huh."

Some of his mates on the bench filled in the weight subject and said he was about five pounds heavier than he was last fall, when he came in at about 145. The Yale boys suggested Albie was a bit more reticent than usual because of the hazing he took on the southern training tour, which culminated in the game with Columbia.

THREE BOSTON MEN WIN BOXING TITLES

Amateur Tournament Comes To a Conclusion; Several Champs from Far Away.

Boston, April 10.—(AP)—Eight new amateur boxing champs, three from New England, two from New York and one each from Cleveland, Los Angeles and San Francisco began their reigns.

The new title holders are the survivors of a field of 94 youths from 14 states and the territory of Hawaii. They competed in three nights of battle in the National A. A. U. ending last night.

The new champions and their teams are: 112 pounds, George Ostrow, Boston; 118 pounds, Able Miller, Los Angeles; 126 pounds, Ray Meyers, New York.

The Boston team's other new title holder, Larsen, whose home is in Quincy, won decisions in both the semi-finals and final.

Footless Boy Star Schoolboy Pitcher

New York, April 10.—(AP)—A footless youth of 20 has become the baseball star of Brooklyn preparatory school.

With both legs off nine inches below the knees as a result of being crushed beneath the wheels of a train seven years ago, Johnny Dollard has pitched his team to victory in both its games this season and also has come through with some timely hitting.

He scored his second victory yesterday when he struck out five batsmen and hit a single that drove in two runs.

WATERBURY ALL-STARS BOWL HERE TONIGHT

What apparently will be the last big bowling match at Gamba's alleys this season will take place tonight. This match, the final half of a home and home contest with the Waterbury All Stars in which Manchester is leading by 30 pins gained in their first meeting at Waterbury a few weeks ago will furnish the thrills for the red hot bowling fans of this town and a large delegation from the Brass City.

Tota and Stone who made a sensational showing at Washington last week will be the big shots of the Waterbury aggregation. Roach, who the local fans will remember handed Behrold a sweet lacing some time ago is also scheduled to appear with the team.

The semi-finals in the 147-pound class found Kelley who comes from Newton, knocking out Ruben Edmunds of Grand Rapids in the third round.

The two losing members of the Boston team were Jackie Collins of Haverhill, 118 pounder, and Frank Mills of Worcester in the 175-pound class. Collins was defeated in the semi-finals by Able Miller of Los Angeles, who won the title.

GRIMES MAY BOOST BRAVES UP A BIT

New Hurler Should Prove Big Help to Lowly Hub Club; Cost Not Divulged.

Boston, April 10.—(AP)—Burling Grimes, righthanded ace of the Pirates pitching staff, the past two years, today was a member of the Boston Braves.

Grimes one of the few remaining spitters in the big leagues, came to terms with President E. Fuchs after he had been a Pirate holdout all the spring. His demands for a $20,000 salary and a two year contract were not met by the Pittsburgh club officials.

Fuchs said the payment was the second largest ever given by the Braves for a ball player in announcing the deal last night. Two years ago he declared he gave the New York Giants $100,000 for Rogers Hornsby whom he later traded to the Chicago Cubs.

Chicago, April 10.—(AP)—Chicago Cubs baseball fans are disappointed that Pittsburgh didn't trade or sell Burling Grimes to the Cubs instead of the Boston Braves but they are glad the spitballer is no longer with the Pirates.

The Cubs managed to get one decision over Grimes last season while he was working for their closest rivals.

Sees Baseball's Return To Its Former Standard

President Barnard Optimistic About Sports' Outlook for 1930 Campaign Which Starts Next Tuesday.

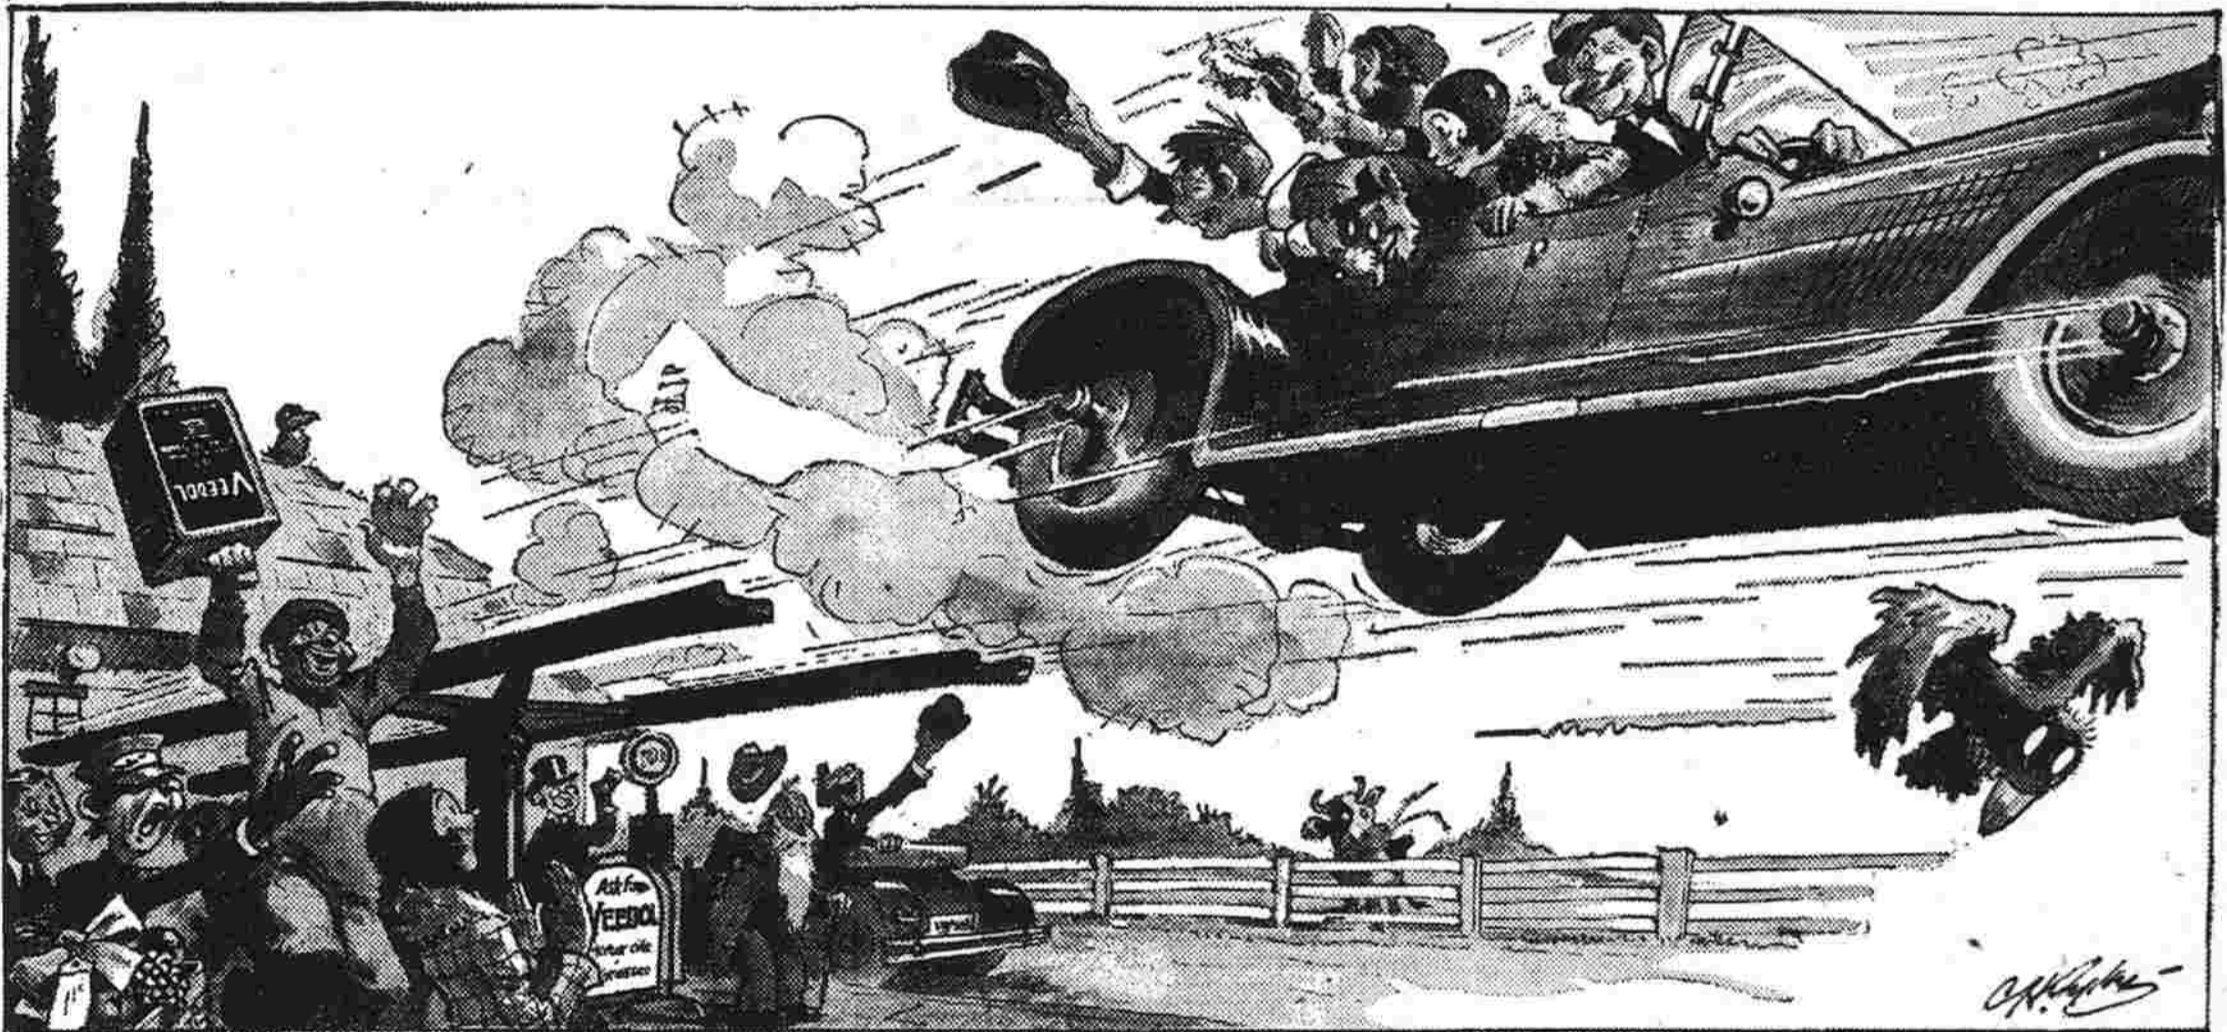

Chicago, April 10.—(AP)—Major League baseball, slightly groggy since the World War depleted its ranks and interrupted its annual supply of young talent, has recovered from its shock and will boom louder than ever during the next five years, President E. Barnard of the American League predicted today.

"I'll frankly admit that the class of major league baseball since the World War hasn't been equal to that as displayed in the years between 1905 and 1916," President Barnard said, "but we have caught up now and despite the attraction on the golf links and football fields, sport lovers again will realize that baseball is the great national game."

"So disastrous was the war and its after effects, that major or minor league clubs had difficulties in finding high class players. The game has been speeded up to its former class and we are destined to have tighter pennant races from now on. Baseball will come into its own once more."

Ninety-eight men were hurt during the razing of two buildings in New York.

The Sport Digest by Tom Stowe

WRESTLING SOUNDS ITS S. O. S. Attempts to bring the ancient sport of wrestling back to the pinacle it once held are not particularly successful and no one is more to blame than the promoters and contestants themselves.

Only yesterday the New York State Athletic Commission ruled that in the future professional wrestling events in that state cannot be billed and advertised as "matches" but must be referred to as "shows and exhibitions."

Mr. Salway takes strenuous objection to rabbit punching, throwing an opponent out of the ring and kicking a man with any part of the leg, and adds, "I have been attending the wrestling bouts here and find the sport is not conducted on a clean basis and, furthermore, will not tolerate its continuance in present form."

Fair play and sportsmanship should be the underlying principles in wrestling as much as they are in any sport, but apparently they are farthest from mind. Yet, wrestling is one of the most primitive and universal of all sports. It was highly developed at least 3,000 years before the Christian Era.

It is a shame that a sport which once had such a formidable foundation should have tumbled into its present state of decay. Unless radical steps are taken for the betterment of the sport, wrestling seems sure to pass into history like some prehistoric animal.

SENSE and NONSENSE

A gentleman of color was detected taking a bath in the drinking water tank on a Mississippi River boat. The captain came after him wrathfully, breathing fire.

Sam—How's Mandy dese days? Mose—Well, Sam, to tell y' roof, it 'pears lak Mandy's jes' about washed out.

Sambo—Say, Rastus, what kind of a dog is dat which you owns? Rastus—Why, dat dog used to be a dachshund, but he's a setter now.

Mandy—Goin' to de chiropractor? Huh! You ain't got no backbone!

Sam—How much is yo' light bill dis month, Bill? Bill—Dunno, I can't figure them things an' I don't think dey can either, 'cause all over the card they asks, "watt, watt, watt?"

Mrs. Brown's Maid—Dat faceliftin' sho' he's Mrs. Smith's looks. Mrs. Smith's Maid—Yes, but it sho' made Mr. Smith's face fall when he got the bill.

Uncle Mose, in spite of his illiteracy, had built up quite a competency from his whitewashing and calculating trade.

During the course of some business with a notary, the latter produced a document saying, "Please sign this here."

Uncle Mose (with offended dignity)—Look heah, suh, I doesn't ever sign my name, suh. It's a business man, suh, wid no time for sich trifles. I always dictates my name, suh!

A Gentleman of Color from South of the Mason and Dixon line went to New York. He met a "sporty high yaller Gal" who took him to an ice skating rink. She had boasted of her expert ability on skates and Mr. Booker Washington Brown was very anxious to see her "do her stuff."

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

There are times when general information is of a very private nature.

Miss Violet Opal Johnson donned the ice skates, cut a few figure eights on the ice. She suddenly lost her balance and fell heavily. She arose quickly, turned to her "boy friend" and said:

Miss Johnson—Did you see how quickly I recovered my equilibrium? Mr. Washington—Yo' sho' musta' 'cause Ah didn't get to see it before yo' covered it.

Negro—I wants to get a plastah. Clerk—Do you want one of our porous plasters?

Negro—No, suh, I wants one of de best ones.

Parson—Do you Liza, take Rastus for bettah or for wuss?

Bride—Well, if Ah got to tell the truth, pahson, Ah'm takin' him 'cause he's de fust man what evah axed me.

Old Uncle Mose says: Bein' Po' May Not Be Eny Disgrace, But It Sho' Ain't Much T' Brab About.

Mistress—Oh, dear! I've broken my hand mirror, that means seven years hard luck. Mandy—Don't yo' worry, Missus. Ah's jes' de full length mirror in yo' bed room.

The employee who watches the clock passes his employers time away.

Small Boy—Mister, mister, the bull has broken his chain and attacked your wife. Mr. Henpeck—Is the Bull still alive?

In the old days, they tell us that cavemen settled disputes with their girl friends by reaching for their club. The modern way is to move to it.

Marriage License Clerk—But, lady, the law requires that I record all previous marriages before issuing a new license.

Movie Actress—Good Heavens! and I've a taxi waiting outside!

IN GOD WE TRUST.

"I suppose you have meats to suit every purse?" the customer inquired.

"Yes," replied the butcher. "I cater for everybody."

"What do you have for an empty purse?" asked the customer.

"In that case I generally give the cold shoulder," the butcher answered.—Ans.—ers.

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Well, now that we have looked around outside, let's see what can be found inside this wondrous palace," said the kindly Travel Man. "In case you do not know what's what about this place, as like as not, I know enough to explain things. At least I think I can. "This Palace of Versailles, you know, was built, oh, years and years ago. At one time kings and queens lived here. This was their royal home. You'll find their statues everywhere. They have been kept for years, with care. You all can look them over as around the place we roam." "Oh, are we going to go inside this wondrous place?" was Clowzy cried. "I know that I would love that. If we're going, come, let's go! I see a guide there by the gate. He's beckoning. Why should we wait? I'm anxious now to see whatever he may have to show." So everyone went right inside and promptly every Tiny tried to listen
