

SENTENCE LORENZ; DIES ON GALLOWS ON AUGUST 12th.

Hartford Youth Who Killed His Friend Found Guilty of Murder in First Degree; His Statement at the Trial

Hartford, April 24.—(AP)—Henry O. Lorenz who killed Nils E. Anderson in Wethersfield on March 31 and who had pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree before a court of three judges was convicted this afternoon as indicted. He was sentenced to be hanged at the State Prison on August 12.

Lorenz and Anderson were close friends but on the night of March 31 they went out in a car to discuss some matter which was not clearly explained during the trial.

Anderson's body was found in a field. Lorenz fled in his car and was arrested at Windsor, Ont., and brought back. He claimed it was slaying Anderson but claimed it was done during a quarrel.

After indictment, Lorenz elected to be tried by three judges. Yesterday when called to the bar he pleaded guilty.

Anderson had lent money to Lorenz and the motive for the homicide was presumed by state police to be resentment at Anderson's demanding payment.

Yesterday however, County Detective Hickey in his testimony said Lorenz told him while at state prison that Anderson had threatened to tell the father of his, Lorenz's, sweetheart, "something."

Today Lorenz, in his own behalf said that the loan was not the cause of the killing. He said Anderson had threatened to tell his sweetheart "something" and in the scuffle which followed he, Lorenz, pulled out a gun and shot his friend.

Lorenz when asked by Presiding Judge Newell Jennings if he had anything to say he testified for a few minutes and then said: "I did not have intent to kill him."

Sentence pronounced. The sentence of death by hanging at the state prison on August 12 was then pronounced.

Lorenz walked calmly to his seat in the cage but Mrs. Benson, half-sister of Anderson, and mother of the girl with whom Lorenz had been keeping company, collapsed and became unconscious.

BIG BREMEN HITS A BRITISH TANKER

German Liner and Smaller Vessel Collide in English Channel; Latter Damaged.

Dover, England, April 24.—(AP)—The German steamship Bremen, one of the two fastest liners on the seas, collided with the tanker, British Grenadier, off Dungeness Light in the English channel at 9:26 a. m., G. M. T. today. The tanker was badly damaged.

The Bremen, which was due at Southampton at noon from Bremen, was not believed to be badly damaged, and was thought to have continued on her way after seeking the tanker to render assistance. The tanker radiated that she did not require assistance but that she was proceeding for Deal with a super-numerary crew requiring immediate medical attention.

First Message. Lloyd's Northforeland wireless station received the following message from the British Grenadier: "Don't require assistance. Steamer Bremen collided with us at 9:26 a. m. badly damaging No. 4 and tanks and was thought to have continued on her way after seeking the tanker to render assistance. The tanker radiated that she did not require assistance but that she was proceeding for Deal with a super-numerary crew requiring immediate medical attention."

The British Grenadier is a steel tanker of 6,888 tons belonging to the British Tanker Company. The Bremen at 10:30 a. m. G. M. T. wireless Lloyd's as follows: "The German liner Bremen is searching for a British tanker, name unknown, which may need assistance. Have no radio communication with tanker. Position, Latitude 50:55 North Longitude 1:07 off Dungeness. Please advise any information. (Signed) Captain."

On way to N. Y. The Bremen left Bremen, Germany, yesterday afternoon on its usual trip to New York, intending to dock at Southampton at noon today to pick up passengers there. It was sighted from Deal outside the Goodwin at about 9 a. m.

The collision occurred in a dense fog which made navigation in the channel perilous. A Dover tug went out to investigate when the first reports of the mishap reached here.

DAUGHTER OF DUCE IS MARRIED TODAY

Miss Edda Mussolini Be- comes Wife of Count Ci- ano—Simple Ceremony.

Rome, April 24.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini, premier and dictator of Italy, this morning gave his daughter Edda in marriage to Count Galeazzo Ciano, secretary of the Italian embassy at the Holy See and son of the Italian minister of communication.

The church of St. Joseph which is the Duce's parish church was crowded with dignitaries. It was decorated with beautiful tapestries from the Capitoline palaces and with palms and flowers.

The wedding party drove from the Duce's home, Villa Torlonia, to the church, where Signorina Edda led the procession on the arm of her father-in-law Count Ciano. The groom followed escorted by Donna Rachele Mussolini. Then came the bride and groom with Countess Ciano.

The bride and groom proceeded to the altar to the music of Enrico Bossi's wedding march played by the organ and an instrument by the quartet. They knelt before the altar and received the initial blessing of Monsignor Giovalone Pasquelli the parish priest.

Marriage Ceremony. After he had read the brief ceremony uniting them in marriage a low mass was said and the nuptial contract signed in accordance with the terms of the Lateran treaty which gives the ecclesiastical marriage civil effect.

Witnesses for the bride were the Duce's brothers, Benito and Arnaldo, and Prince Don Giovanni Torlonia, for the groom Dino Grandi, minister of foreign affairs and Count Devecchi, Italian ambassador to the Holy See.

The brilliant assembly crowded to the Duce's home, Villa Torlonia, walked from the church, all bowing and smiling. The bride and groom entered an automobile and drove to St. Peter where they worshipped at the Tomb of St. Peter before beginning their honeymoon, details of which have been kept secret.

Little Show. The wedding and attendant ceremonies were without show or ostentation in keeping with premier Mussolini's policy of holding his private life and that of his family as much in the background as possible.

Guests included United States Ambassador John W. Garrett, Mrs. Garrett, other ambassadors and ministers in the Duce's cabinet and fascist party leaders. Mrs. Henrietta Wilson of Philadelphia also was present. Virginia Mussolini, sister of the Duce, was among the rela-

R-100 IS DAMAGED; TEST IS DELAYED

Its Fin Strikes Side of Shed As Big Balloon Is Being Brought Out.

London, April 24.—(AP)—It was reported from Cardington that the huge British dirigible R-100 was damaged while being brought out of her shed today, one of her starboard fins catching against the side of the shed and buckling slightly.

The R-100, which is scheduled to make a flight to Canada next month was taken from her shed this morning at 1:30 p. m. Before the ship was thoroughly clear, a cross wind one of the always present dangers to such airships when being taken out of a hangar, sprang up and caused the outside edge of the starboard elevator to scrape against the side of the shed.

Subsequent examination showed that the damage was slight but the airship will be housed again in order to carry out repairs as quickly as possible.

It was stated that there was no reason to think that plans for the flight to Canada next month would be interfered with.

FAMOUS COACH SAYS DRY LAW IS A FAILURE

Bill Roper Declares Secret Drinking Makes Parents Fearful of Send- ing Children to College.

Washington, April 24.—(AP)—Testimony that prohibition has failed to prohibit in American colleges and neighborhood settlements, and that Ontario province across the border in Canada abolished its bone dry regime because it didn't work, was given the House judiciary committee today as its long prohibition hearings neared an end.

W. W. Roper, head football coach at Princeton, describing himself as a teetotaler and a worker for temperance, said secret drinking had thrown bad influences about the young men and women in colleges, and had made parents fearful of the result.

Speaking for the Rills Neighborhood Settlement in New York, Mrs. Jacob A. Rills declared in a letter put into the record that "the impossibility of enforcing an impossible law" was having a demoralizing effect among the poor of the great city.

Canada's Experience. Sir Henry Drayton, head of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario province, told the committee that the province had gone from prohibition to government control after an inundation of illicit liquor had convinced the people that they needed some more effective method of supervision.

Roper appeared as one of the rebuttal witnesses for the wets, and his letter from Mrs. Rills was presented by the wet managers. Sir Henry, who still was on the stand at the noon recess, said he appeared for neither side but by invitation of Chairman Graham.

WET ORGANIZATION
ACTIVE IN 5 STATES

Curran Admits Working for Repeal of the Dry Law in Various Places.

Washington, April 24.—(AP)—Driving ahead with its investigation of wet and dry organizations, the Senate lobby committee today received testimony from Henry H. Curran, president of the Association for the Prohibition Amendment, that his organization had "lobbied" against the dry laws in Illinois last year.

Correspondence also was read which showed that the association had been active before the New York Legislature at the same time. Curran testified that Walter G. Hooke, his assistant, had spent considerable time in Illinois and New York working against prohibition and had spent a "day or two" in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and New Jersey.

It also was brought out through a letter from Benedict Crowell, of Cleveland, Ohio, to Curran, that Secretary Lamont had resigned from the Association's board of directors when he became secretary of commerce.

Denies Lobbying. At the outset of the hearing, Curran denied that letters written by Thomas W. Phillips, candidate for governor of Pennsylvania, to Justice Stone, of the United States Supreme Court and the late Justice Sanford had constituted "lobbying" in the least sense of the word.

Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, who yesterday charged the association with "lobbying" directly with the United States Supreme Court, said today the action was "indefensible."

Praised by Raskob. During the hearing a letter from John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National committee, to Curran was read which congratulated the latter upon the "splendid progress that the association is making."

The letter was written in June, 1929. Raskob, a director of the association, has testified before the committee that he had contributed $55,000 over a period of five years to the organization.

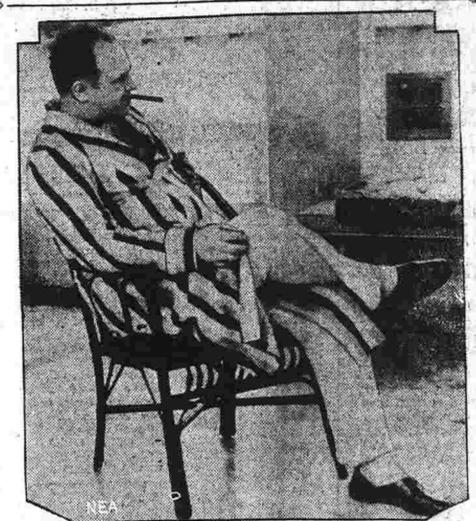

This was Curran's sixth day on the witness stand and he was directed to return tomorrow for further questioning.

"I think you ought to make me a member of the committee," he commented smugly, when directed to return again tomorrow.

WASHINGTON BALANCE

Washington, April 24.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for April 22 were $5,067,911.35; expenditures $3,129,929.97; balance $218,981,766.30.

Florida's Unwelcome Guest—Capone

PLANET X IS DESCRIBED SIMPLY FOR FIRST TIME

Astronomer Tells About It in Layman's Language; Will Be Visible for the Next Hundred Years.

Tucson, Ariz., April 24.—(AP)—A description of Planet "X" heralded as the ninth planetary member of the solar system, in which the recently discovered astronomical body was said to be about the size of the earth and to require 3,200 years to complete a circuit of its orbit, today was available to the public for the first time.

Dr. E. C. Sillpher, Lowell Observatory astronomer, one of those directly connected with the recent discovery of the trans-Neptunian body, explained the secrets of the planet in layman's language after describing it to delegates of the eleventh annual convention of the southwestern branch of the American Association for Advancement of Science.

Dr. Sillpher is the brother of Dr. V. M. Sillpher, director of Lowell Observatory, where, under provisions in the will of the late Dr. Percival Lowell, its founder, specialized study of the long suspected trans-Neptunian object has been carried on. Dr. Lowell sixteen years ago predicted the presence of an extra-Neptune planet three degrees from the point at which the planet was located.

Here are the chief known facts concerning the astronomical body, as presented by Dr. Sillpher:

Distance from Earth. 41 astronomical units or one million three hundred thirty-five million miles.

Mass—Known to be smaller than at first believed, but not computed. Tentatively believed about the same as the earth.

Orbit—Elliptical, its plane inclined to that of the other major planets at about 31 degrees, 21 minutes.

Size of Orbit—Long diameter roughly 438 astronomical units or 438 times thirty-three million miles. Time required for complete circuit of orbit—3,200 years.

Length of time to remain in view of earth—probably a century more. Time it will then remain hidden—Roughly three thousand years.

Photographic characteristics—Sharp definition under all circumstances. "In our minds," said Dr. Sillpher.

To Photo Shadow of Moon From Height of 20,000 Feet

San Diego, Calif., April 24.—(AP)—An oxygen equipped plane in which Captain A. W. Stevens of the Army Air Corps will attempt to photograph the moon's 3,000 foot shadow as it sweeps across the Sierras next Monday during the solar eclipse, was being carefully groomed at Rockwell Field today.

The plane will be taken on Honey Lake, California, where the attempt to photograph the shadow will take place.

Lieut. John D. Corkillo, who, like Captain Stevens, is from Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, will pilot the plane. They will be accompanied by a civilian scientist from the Bell Telephone Company's laboratory.

The moon's shadow, moving at a speed of 1,800 miles an hour, will be only 3,000 feet in diameter, and the period of totality will be only a second and a half. The path of totality starts about 300 miles out at sea, and sweeps eastward just north of San Francisco.

OHIO CONVICTS START REVOLT; CALL MILITIA

Threaten to Kill Score of Guards If Not Released from Cage; Trouble Final- ly Averted.

Columbus, Ohio, April 24.—(AP)—Attorney General Gilbert Gettman left Ohio Penitentiary hastily this afternoon to confer with Governor Cooper on a proposal to suspend Preston Thomas temporarily as warden. The action was taken when several thousand prisoners announced they would revolt against Thomas' rule. They charged the warden with "cruelty" and held him responsible in part for the 318 fatalities in the prison fire disaster.

Columbus, Ohio, April 24.—(AP)—As investigators of the Ohio Penitentiary fire today continued their probe into the disaster which took a life toll of 318 convicts, the general spirit of unrest in the prison flamed into open revolt against discipline. After a night of disquieting reports, some 2,000 convicts in the idle house threatened open warfare if they were not released immediately. They said they would kill the score of guards in the cell block if they were not turned loose from the cage into the yard.

In the yard itself another disorder occurred. Some 100 convicts confined temporarily in the chapel, were inflamed by incendiary speeches made by leaders. These men were from the cell block where a majority of the victims died. National Guard officers and prison officials attempted to quiet them.

Suspension of one penitentiary guard, and a recommendation that another be suspended, was announced today by Warden Thomas. He said he had suspended Guard Edward C. Kerr, for intoxication last night.

Guard Captain Harry T. Lankhart recommended that Guard Roy C. Minshall be suspended. He charged the guard had failed to properly patrol his beat last night.

Immediate employment of 25 additional guards at Ohio penitentiary was authorized by Hal H. Griswold, state director of welfare. A spirit of unrest in the prison since the tragic fire of Monday night was thought to have caused the director to order that more guards be placed on duty.

Of the many prisoners who were injured and taken to the hospital, all but 14 had been released today and had returned to their companies.

ATTEMPT IS MADE ON LEGUIA'S LIFE

News Just Leaks Out About Plot Against the President Of Peru.

Lima, Peru, April 24.—(AP)—The fact that an attempt against the life of President Leguia was made within the last few weeks has been revealed by the adoption of a resolution of protest by the Chamber of Deputies, against the attempted assassination.

The authorities had kept the strictest silence, although rumors of the plot had been in circulation for the past two weeks. It was believed that strict silence had been kept to aid in the investigation by the police.

The government has decreed a state of siege in the departments of Lima, Junin and Lambayeque and the province of Callao under a law modifying the constitutional provisions dealing with personal liberties. However, the law will not be fully enforced in Lima and Callao as the police authorities have been empowered to use it at their discretion.

According to the decree the reasons for the action were the "necessity of taking exceptional steps to prevent a repetition" of the failed attempt against the president "and to assure punishment for this kind of action."

President Leguia took the presidency by a coup d'etat in July, 1919. This was legalized by Congress and he took the oath of office in October of that year for the full term of five years. He was re-elected in 1924 and again in 1929 for his third term.

Further questioning of the pair revealed to the police that they robbed and stole cars in four states. When they left Lewiston in a stolen car, they went to Bradford, Vermont, where they secured two suitcases of jewelry and three revolvers and $20 in cash in a break there, they said.

From Bradford they went to New York City where part of the jewelry store loot was disposed of. Next they went to Southington, Conn. and broke into a garage, securing $8. While in the garage a policeman disabled their machine but they got away in another stolen car. One of the suitcases of jewelry was left behind in the disabled automobile.

Continuing their confession they said they went from Southington to Meriden where the automobile taken in Southington was abandoned when it broke down. They stole another car in Meriden and later abandoned this car and broke into the Hentz garage to secure the automobile in which they were caught.

PRESIDENT ADVISES DIRECT HOUSE VOTE ON TARIFF DISPUTE

WARSHIP CAPTAIN COMMITTS SUICIDE

Chief Executive Takes Hand In Controversy at White House Breakfast; Sides With Senator Watson That Lower Branch Should Act First—To Take Up Mat- ter Within a Week.

Washington, April 24.—(AP)—Taking a hand in the tariff controversy, President Hoover at a conference with Republican Congressional leaders today sided with Senate chiefs and approved a direct vote by the House on the controverted export debenture provision put in the bill by the Senate over his objection.

The Congressional pilots attended a breakfast conference with the President after the Senate and House leaders had quarreled over which branch should act first on the tariff bill difference between them which was left unsettled by their conferees.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the majority leader, insisted that the House act first. House spokesmen were reluctant to submit to this procedure.

Sides With Watson. Mr. Hoover listened to the discussion and sided with Watson. Accepting the decision, the House will take up the conference report a week from today. Separate votes will be in order on the Senate's proposal for the export debenture farm relief principle and on the Senate's modification of existing flexible tariff provisions.

Both propositions were voted into the bill by the coalition of Senate Democrats and western Republican Independents over the expressed opposition of the President.

Rates Ignored. "Attendants" at the White House breakfast, parley reported that only the procedure came up for discussion and that none of the rates was talked of.

Shortly after the White House conference, House members from 15 sugar producing states began plans to insist on a high protection as possible for the sugar growers and refiners.

At an informal meeting they discussed the attitude they would take, but reserved final decision.

Representative Cranston, Republican, Michigan, one of the leading advocates of a higher sugar tariff, said, "We decided to take steps to protect the sugar interests, both cash and beet."

The House bill increases the existing duty of Cuban raw sugar from 1.76 to 2.40 cents a pound. The Senate measure provides a 2 cent rate.

They freely admitted a number of burglaries were reported that only Tuesday night they were police that they both had police records.

The sedan they were driving was taken from the garage of Jacob Hentz of 543 Liberty street, Meriden, last night after they had broken into the garage and the car, they told the Dartmouth authorities.

Wednesday morning they entered a grocery store between Meriden and Hartford and appropriated cash. Tuesday night they stopped in a cottage near Berlin and ransacked the place; Monday, they had robbed a Shell gas station ten miles east of Meriden and took a wrist watch and $5 in money.

The two guns found in their possession were stolen in Philadelphia when they burglarized a house in that city, they declared. They had left Philadelphia and had traveled back to Hartford when they turned over to their journey Monday, the young men stated.

The pair are being held without bonds, pending an investigation of their confessions.

In Other States. Further questioning of the pair revealed to the police that they robbed and stole cars in four states. When they left Lewiston in a stolen car, they went to Bradford, Vermont, where they secured two suitcases of jewelry and three revolvers and $20 in cash in a break there, they said.

From Bradford they went to New York City where part of the jewelry store loot was disposed of. Next they went to Southington, Conn. and broke into a garage, securing $8. GOVERNOR SILENT ON CHESHIRE NOTE

Real Estate Agent Writes That Conditions at Refor- matory Need a Probe.

Hartford, April 24.—(AP)—Governor John H. Trumbull up till noon today had not made known the contents of the letter which was sent to him by Edgar White, real estate agent of Cheshire, in which, according to the latter's own statement, charges had been made as to conditions in the Connecticut Reformatory under Supt. George Erskine.

Governor Trumbull was at the reformatory recently, but according to Mr. Erskine, the call had nothing to do with reformatory business and was merely an official visit. He went into the institution for a short time but made no comment on what he saw. At that time no complaint had been raised about administration such as Mr. White says he put into his letter.

WHITE IS SILENT. Cheshire, April 24.—(AP)—Edgar White who wrote a letter to Governor Trumbull asking that an inquiry be made into the administration of the Connecticut Reformatory today would not discuss the matter. He had previously given expression of his opinions in which he claimed some things went on there which would not have been tolerated had supervision been more strict.

Supt. Erskine says White's complaints are groundless. Employees are often changed and the fact that four have just been dismissed was not unusual. He said employees who are not fitted for the work, or less than kept appreciation of their duties are BOONVILLE, N. Y., April 24.—(AP)—Four persons were burned to death and a fifth was missing in a fire which destroyed the large Colonial home of Bert Cronk, Coal Dealer, here early today. Mr. and Mrs. Cronk and Mrs. Paul Ann and her grandchild were said by firemen to have died in the flames. Ann was missing.

Clifford, young son of the Cronks, leaped from a window to safety. He was suffering from effects of the smoke.

Cronk was found in the dining room and his wife in a doorway leading from that room. Mrs. Ann and her grandchild, were burned to death in their beds. The house was a flaming furnace when firemen arrived.

The 14 continued in critical condition, 11 being victims of pneumonia. Clearing up wreckage. Work was started to clear up wreckage and debris in the ill-fated cell blocks, 25 prisoners doing the labor.

Prisoners, most of them in their cells, continued to grumble about nothing in particular. Most of the cell door locks had been stuffed with paper and could not be locked. The men walked about in the cages outside the cells. When the "to bed" signal was flashed last night, more than 2,000 convicts were in the yard and no attention to it. At midnight they demanded something to eat. Seven hundred gallons of piping hot coffee was served, and many of the men quieted down after the treat.

Finger print experts today continued to complete their list of the dead. It was expected that this list would be complete later in the day. A triple check was being made to insure proper identification.

The bulletin of the population, has not been changed since Monday when it listed 3,451 whites, 1,516 negroes and three Chinese. The latter escaped the fire. The latter not represented in the list. Despite appeals from ministers to be quiet, the men in the idle house continued the disturbance. None of these were locked in cells because the locks had been stuffed with chewing gum and paper. The only lock between them and the yard was a steel door leading out of the cage, behind which are the cells.

The 100 men from the chapel finally came out into the prison yard and milled about, shouting and screaming. They attacked George Richmond, a convict editor of the penitentiary paper. He was rescued by guards before he was injured seriously. Soldiers Outside. Prison officials and guards were doing all in their power to quiet the truly men. Only regular prison guards were being used inside the walls, but on the outside more than 1,000 fully armed Ohio National Guardsmen, regular Army soldiers from Fort Hays, and Naval Reservists, were prepared for any emergency.

As the disorders in the idle house and the yard continued, investigators of the disastrous fire of Monday night reopened their hearing in the prison record office, within 100 feet of the gate leading into the prison proper. Edward M. Sass, Lucas county, one of the prisoners who aided in rescue work, was the first witness called before the investigating board today. He told the board it was about twenty minutes from the time he first learned of the fire until he was released from his cell by convicts.

IMPROVE OUR PRISON. Wethersfield, April 24.—(AP)—Replacement of the wooden floor in the state prison here with reinforced concrete and installation of up-to-date plumbing conveniences will be carried through by the prison management under Warden J. S. Reed, under authority granted by the State Board of Finance and Control.

Colonel Osborne of New Haven, Conn., said today that work now to be carried through had been contemplated for a long time but there had been many obstacles to pushing it through. Now Governor Trumbull and the finance board have given full approval of the plans and the work will be completed.

relieved from time to time. The superintendent said that White as a teacher was discharged merely because he had lost complete contact with his charges and developed a tendency to have friction with others.

Was Good Teacher. The superintendent said that White's teaching ability was good but a staff had to work in harmony at all times. Frederick M. Adelle, chairman of the directors said that he personally had the greatest confidence in Mr. Erskine and that the directors statement issued on Tuesday gave their view of the situation which was that discharged were a part of the overturn of labor and none of the four was let go because of complaint that any inmate had not been well treated.

INDIAN RIOTS. Freshawar, India, April 23.—(Wednesday, delay)—(AP)—British troops raked a riotous angry mob of Indians today with rifle fire and succeeded in restoring order after several hours filled with serious disturbances.

An official announcement said one British soldier and about 12 native rioters were killed. With so many men available for service, what ever has become of the famed "General" Conroy?

REDUCE IMMIGRATION TO 80,000 ANNUALLY

Washington, April 24.—(AP)—The Senate today voted to cut down immigration from Europe to this country from 150,000 annually to 80,000.

The vote was 41 to 31. Senator Harris, Democrat, Georgia, proposed to cut in half the European immigration allotments as an amendment to his bill placing quota restrictions upon Central and South American countries.

The measure itself remained to be acted upon. Harris' amendment modified the amendment by Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, to the bill regarding the national origins basis of restriction.

Under the original Norbeck amendment, immigration would be allowed to European countries on the basis of one and one-half per cent of their citizens residing in this country in 1890.

This would have reduced annual European immigration from 150,000 to 120,000.

Senator Harris today succeeded in making the basis one per cent of the foreign population resident here in 1890.

One of the delivery trucks of Mohr's bakery had a lucky break about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon when the right rear wheel fell off just as the truck was turning into the driveway leading to the bakery, opposite Bissell street. Installation of the Western Union clocks in nearly a dozen local business houses have subscribed for, was started this afternoon.

The officers of the different companies will be present as will also the district officers. There will be other invited guests present.

Hose Company No. 4 of the South Manchester fire department was called yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock for a woods fire off Charter Oak street.

BATTLE OVER PATENTS

Washington, April 24.—(AP)—The Department of Justice announced today that it was filing suits in the United States District Courts in New York City and the District of Columbia, to compel conveyance to the United States of patents covering an apparatus through which the operation of Radio receiving sets on the ordinary house current was made possible.

The Department said the patents had been obtained by Percival D. Lowell and Francis W. Dunmore, research workers employed in the Bureau of Standards at the time the invention was patented. It said the validity of the patents had been recently sustained in actions brought in Federal Court by Lowell and Dunmore against the Radio Corporation of America.

NEW ENGLAND WEATHER

Boston, April 24.—(AP)—For the second successive day midwinter temperatures prevailed today in Boston and New England generally. After equalling the all-time record for April 23 by dropping to 31 degrees above zero, the mercury continued to slide downward today until it reached 28 degrees at which point it made the day the coldest since the record was set in 1882. Snow squalls were reported from a number of points in the metropolitan district. A sharp wind, reminiscent of mid-winter, whipped the city from the north and west.

DANCING TO FOLLOW HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE

Wesleyan Frosh Team to Battle Local Team—College Orchestra to Play.

A dance will be run in conjunction with the debate between Manchester High school and Wesleyan University freshmen at the assembly hall of the local school tomorrow night. Music will be furnished by the Wesleyan symphonians, an eight piece orchestra of considerable repute. It is expected that the "bar-gain-bill" of a dance and debate for the price of one will add considerably to the attendance. Debates serve in the opinion of school officials and it is their hope that the addition of a dance to the evening's program will prove a magnet in attracting a large crowd.

The dancing will start promptly at 8 o'clock and will be concluded in an hour. Dancing will follow from 9 until 12 o'clock. All of the latest song hits will be offered to the dance by a talented chorus soloist who sings several chorus numbers of the favorites. The debate will be on the question, "Resolved: That United States intervention in Nicaragua is to be condemned. The speaker will take the negative side of the question."

Carl Cubberly, a senior, and Austin Johnson, a junior, will speak for Manchester. It will be a two-man affair. Two of Manchester's strongest points in the debate will be that Nicaragua has never been able to maintain a stable and dependable government and that the country has benefited in many ways by United States control.

Columbus, Ohio, April 24.—(AP)—John H. Hall, 72 year old captain of guards at Ohio prison, issued a statement today denying the charge made by a guard that he had refused to issue keys so that prisoners might be released from their cells in the fire which took 318 lives at the prison Monday night.

It did not have any keys," the veteran guard said. "I am an old man, 72 years old and have long been in this prison business. I think my accusers are just passing the buck."

"I saw smoke and the next thing I knew a brand of fire was falling. Then I told the guards to release the men."

"I have been called 'hardboiled' but I don't think any person will say I haven't been a fair man."

LATEST STOCKS

New York, April 24.—(AP)—The Stock Market displayed another reversal of form today, selling off in the morning when pressure was resumed against the copper and a wide assortment of specialties, and then rallying briskly under the leadership of the amusements, public utilities and rubbers. By early afternoon, many of the early declines had been substantially reduced or converted into gains, and a long list of issues was selling 1 to 1 1/2 points above yesterday's final quotations.

The day's business news failed to provide much stimulus to bullish enthusiasm. Another flock of quarterly earnings reports made their appearance, and most of them made unfavorable comparison with the first quarter of last year, but there were a few conspicuous exceptions, notably Yellow Truck and Air Reduction. Settlement of the gas-line price cutting war in the Dutch West Indies between the Standard Oil of New York and Royal Dutch-Shell interests, coupled with predictions of an early increase in California crude prices and a probable segregation of the natural gas properties of Standard Oil of New Jersey, brought fresh buying into the oil shares.

Widespread predictions of a further cut in the price of copper to 12 cents a pound, although lacking of official verification, caused heavy liquidation of the copper shares. American Smelting, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco Inspiration, Phelps Dodge and Amis all dipped to new low levels for the year, most of the losses being held to a point or less. Early reduction in dividends by some of the high cost producers is looked for.

J. I. Case, which recently recorded a spectacular advance into new high ground, broke 15 points to 840 on realizing, but quickly snapped back to 357. Allied Chemical sold down 6 1/2 points and United Aircraft dropped 6 in response to the new agreement for the acquisition of National Air Transport stock on basis of three shares of National for one of United. Gulf States Steel fell 5 points and Columbian Carbon, Checker Cab, Brooklyn Union Gas, Pittsburgh Coal Preferred, Great Lakes Hosiery, Continental Baking A, Hudson Motors and several others sold down 2 to 4 points.

Radio was heavily bought in the early afternoon, crossing to a new 1930 high for a gain of more than 3 points. Shubert Theaters ran up over 7 points to a new top above 31. Keith-Albee Preferred, Pathe A, and Radio-Keith-Orpheum advanced 1 3/4 to 3 points higher to new peak prices.

International Telephone crossed 77 to a new peak for the year and Louisville Gas & Electric touched a new high around 50. Peoples Gas jumped 4 1/2 points and Electric Power & Light, Goodyear Rubber, Goodrich Rubber, U. S. Rubber, First Preferred, Ingersoll Rand, Worthington Pump, Air Reduction and United Carbon all advanced 2 points, or more.

BIG CROWD SEES GYM SHOW HERE

Long Program Shows Fine Training Gives Rec Centers.

The largest crowd in several years turned out to witness the annual gymnastic exhibition of the Recreation Centers last night in the School street building. The program, although a bit too long, was most interesting. The various classes performed very satisfactorily and their work in itself bespoke of their fine training. The exhibition served to impress upon the public the value of the Recreation Centers to the town of Manchester and showed the progress being made in recreational activities, both of an athletic and social nature. It was evident, though, that the townspeople as a whole either do not realize or appreciate the many splendid facilities afforded by such an institution.

The three hour program included exhibitions of calisthenics, athletic stunts on the parallel and horizontal bars, drills and adult women as well; tumbling, capers, artwheels, pyramid building and other stunts by members of the women's class garbed as clowns; boxing and freestyle drills by members of the junior boxing class; and lastly, but not least, the exhibition of handcraft work made by the women members of the Recreation Centers. This exhibition came in for much favorable comment.

The various classes were conducted by Director Lewis Lloyd, Miss Gertrude E. Fenerty and Frank C. Busch and all came in for praise in the manner they contributed to the evening's program. Mrs. Dorothy Keeney and Miss Elizabeth Lithwinski accompanied at the piano for the dance, march and exercise numbers. As is always the case in such work, the performances of the children's classes drew the most applause.

A flower dance by six little tots in cute costumes opened the program. Taking part were Florence Johnson, Lois Gustafson, Lucille Conran, Jean Clarke, Patricia Demock and Jean French. Five other young girls also danced a much skill in the two costume dance numbers. They were Ursula Segerdahl, Phyllis Carney, Ruth Roscoe, Lillian Weir and Virginia Ryan. The young women's gym class was the best drilled group on the floor from a standpoint of unison. The skill and grace of the group showed much and provoked many a hearty laugh by their acrobatic stunts. Miss Fenerty took personal charge.

The audience seemed to vastly enjoy the work of the junior boxing class of 22 members under the direction of Mr. Busch. The little tots did surprisingly well considering their tender age and functioned as a unit nearly all of the time. The spectators took an especial liking to four year old Eddie Pagan who led this group. This chubby-faced little chap strutted about with all the confidence of a veteran and seemed very proud in his post of honor. A group of friends later presented him with a bouquet of flowers to which he managed to say, "I thank you." He was given a hearty applause. The boys also displayed remarkable skill in the art of self-defense. They stood toe to toe and slugged away with a reckless abandon that kept the house in an uproar. The cleverest stunts of the evening were enacted by the members of the men's classes. They executed numerous difficult and breathtaking stunts on the parallel and horizontal bars which brought bursts of applause. Terrance Shannon displayed especial agility. Many parents did not realize the difficulty of some of the harder stunts which, when performed correctly, appeared to the laymen as quite easy. On the contrary, however, they are anything but. The men's dumb-bell drill was impressive.

PLAN TO RELIEVE OVERCROWDED JAIL

Prisoners at Columbus to Be Transferred to Other State Institutions.

Columbus, Ohio, April 24—(AP)—While additional bodies were being released to sorrowing relatives of prisoners who died in the Ohio Prison fire state officials joined today in a determination to leave nothing undone to prevent a recurrence of the disaster which claimed 318 lives.

Without waiting to find the cause of the fire—and thus fix blame, if any—state officials led by Gov. Myer Y. Cooper, started consideration of plans to relieve crowded conditions at the old prison. One step toward this end the Governor indicated will be the transfer of short term convicts to the London prison farm.

The program also calls for speedy completion of two new cell blocks at the prison as well as rebuilding of the fire swept G and H houses in which last Monday's fire had its origin.

While the state's investigation has brought forth various individual opinions, it has failed thus far to reveal how the fire started. Most of the witnesses before the board of inquiry devoted their testimony to suggestions as to how more of the prisoners might have been rescued from their locked cells.

Following testimony by Warden Thomas that no fire protection was provided at the cell blocks, State Welfare Director H. H. Griswold announced that extinguishers had been ordered placed in the cell houses. As an extra precaution he said, guards would be placed in the top tiers.

Y. M. C. A. IS CALLED A FOREIGN MISSION

Nanking, April 24—(AP)—The national education conference today defeated a proposal that the Nationalist government take over all Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. organizations in China and undertake a sweeping reorganization of these bodies in accordance with the principles of the Kuomintang or Government Party.

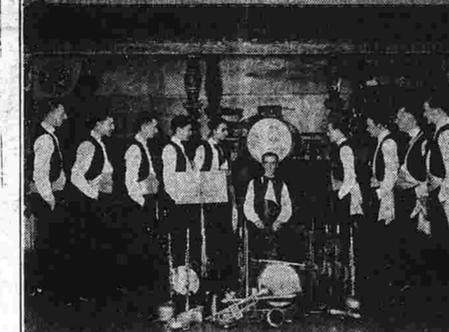

The proposal was based on the ground that the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., "supposedly founded for the advancement of health, virtue and knowledge, and in a spirit of co-operation, are in reality foreign missions and are being used to preach Christianity and induce the young people of China to accept their religion."

The proposal was considered at great length before it finally was defeated. However, its supporters, among whom are numerous prominent Chinese educators, are planning to renew their campaign to force the government to regulate these institutions.

WOMAN IS SUSPECTED IN THREE POISONINGS

Long Beach, Cal., April 24—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Hartman, whose husband, son and daughter died under circumstances which police described as mysterious, was held in technical custody today pending an investigation.

Mrs. Hartman's detention followed discovery by autopsy surgeons yesterday of a poison in vital organs of Ruth Hartman, 14, who died April 14.

Coroner Frank Nance, of Los Angeles county, ordered the bodies of O. B. Hartman, 47, the woman's husband, who died two years ago after a mysterious attack in which his head was injured, and Henry A. Hartman, 22, her son, who died last year apparently of ptomaine poisoning, exhumed for further examination.

The husband's death was accredited to the attack, but attending physicians reported he was on the road to recovery when he had a sudden relapse and died.

Police said the three dead members of the family carried life insurance policies, totaling $4,700 in which Mrs. Hartman was named beneficiary.

NEGRESS IS LYNCHED. Wabasha, S. C., April 24—(AP)—Allan Green, fifty year old negro, was lynched early today by a masked mob that dragged him from the Oconee county jail, tied him to a tree and riddled his body with bullets.

Sheriff John Thomas was struck a heavy blow on the head when he resisted the mob. Green was charged with attacking an eighteen year old white woman.

AMATEUR DECORATORS IN KEITH'S CONTEST

Perhaps no living room will be quite so popular here as the one originated by the winner-to-be in Keith's prize story contest "How Should I furnish My Living Room." That there are many many amateur decorators is quite evident by the interest shown in the contest conducted by Keith as a part of their National Better Homes Week program. No one knows what the result may be for amateurs reveal many surprises. Several contestants have already submitted their stories and if the number that visited Keith's store during the past week can at all be more relied upon there are many more to follow. There is still time left to enter this contest. Nine days, in fact, for it does not close until May 3. Here is an opportunity to display home furnishing knowledge and decorative ability.

NOMINATE MRS. SETON

Washington, April 24—(AP)—Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, wife of the naturalist was nominated today as the only candidate for the presidency of the National League of American Pen Women.

Kathlee Norris, novelist, withdrew her name yesterday in Mrs. Seton's favor.

Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, who had been talked of as an opponent of Mrs. Norris, refused to allow her name to be used.

Mrs. Norris withdrew after an anonymous attack on her views on peace. Mrs. Brosseau, a past president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and an ardent advocate of national defense, had been mentioned as her logical opponent on that issue.

THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1930

LITTLEST TOWN

The town of Union, as was inevitable, pops up again, in the light of the census returns, as Connecticut's outstanding exhibit in the never-ending controversy over our system of legislative representation.

In 1920 Union had a population of 257 souls, from among whom two persons were chosen as representatives in the General Assembly. New Haven, with 187,900 in the same year, had the same number of representatives. It took seven hundred and twenty times as many votes to elect a representative in New Haven as in Union, but the Union member's vote was just as potent in the making of Connecticut's laws as the New Haven member's.

The enumerator for the town of Union in the present census has found the number of inhabitants there to be 196 in 1930. Union has therefore lost close to one-fourth of its population. It will continue to have two representatives in the Legislature. New Haven will probably show an increase to at least 200,000. It also will continue to have two representatives. It will, therefore, take a thousand times as many votes in New Haven to elect a representative next fall as it will in Union. And if New Haven eventually grows to the point where it has half a million people its representation in the House will, in all human probability, still be limited to two members, while the town of Union will keep on sending its pair of representatives to Hartford so long as there are two adult citizens left in its environs to take the jobs.

Any time there isn't anything else to quarrel about, this situation provides a never failing bone of contention in this state. It is a good durable bone, too; and bids fair to stand the wear and tear of time and of much gnawing for the next century or two. Because the country towns are never going to give up their hold on the lower house of the Assembly and the big towns and cities are never going to stop atomizing the condition.

THE CONNECTICUT CANAL

Those Massachusetts manufacturers and business men who have recently become converts to the idea of water borne freightage, and so bring the enthusiasm of youth to the support of the plan for canalizing the Connecticut river from Hartford to Holyoke, are doing the usual thing for proselytes; they are exceeding the old timers in their ardor.

So largely has the idea of water freights taken possession of them that they are willing to do almost anything to get them—even to subscribe to the policy of the War Department engineers, who insist that whatever freight craft shall navigate the Connecticut above Hartford shall do so in all the majesty of tall smokestacks, signal spars and such other marine deadweights as stick up in the air far enough to compel the elevation of bridges or the construction of draws.

It would seem to persons less excited over the novelty of river transportation that it would be much more sensible for the waterways advocates of Springfield, Holyoke and vicinity to stand pat on their position that the Connecticut's upper reaches are obviously a low clearance proposition—and await opportunity to get a report from the War Department favorable to federal sponsorship of such a waterway.

Or, if they don't want to spend their time in mere idle waiting, it would take only a trifling percentage of the millions that bridge reconstruction would cost if they were to pay for a practical survey of the situation by maritime engineers not associated with the War Department—which, it is extremely probable, would give the Bay State folks some excellent material to use before Congress.

If they permit themselves to be bullied into the wholesale extravagance of bridge scrapping in order to accommodate smokestacks and signal masts they will not be overly wise.

BLAMING THE WARDEN

Deep indignation is surging about Warden Thomas of the Ohio penitentiary as evidence grows that most if not all of the more than three hundred convicts who died in the fire of Monday night have been saved if they had been promptly liberated. The contumely heaped on him is shared by some of the minor officials of the prison, but of course the warden is being held primarily responsible by a considerable body of public opinion.

Warden Thomas had been in his position for many years. It is a fair presumption that he was at least ordinarily intelligent and at least ordinarily human. He could not have been indifferent to the fate of the men who died. Nor could he have known that they were going to die in the flames and smoke. All he or anybody else knew or could know was that there was a fire in the prison—and that there were more than four thousand prisoners within those walls, whose retention there, and under control, it was his everlasting and paramount duty to maintain.

A fire in a prison is a serious matter at any time, of course; but there have been numberless fires in prisons and infrequently have they proven tragic. On the other hand the turning loose of many hundreds of criminals, all of them abnormal and a great many of them desperately dangerous, under the stresses of such an occasion, is invariably and inevitably a highly risky proceeding—one at which any one in Warden Thomas' situation might well hesitate.

It is easy to condemn the prison officials for the awful loss of life—when one has the advantage of after-knowledge. Warden Thomas and his assistants, however, did not have the benefit of that after-knowledge.

If they had opened the cells and turned that mob of convicts loose, and if the fire had proven to be insignificant, and if there had been, in consequence, an enormous jail delivery liberating on the surrounding country a swarm of felons, the very persons who are now so unqualifiedly condemning the officials would probably have been just as ruthless in denouncing them for setting the convicts free.

WET FRELINGHUYSEN

Former Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey has made up his mind at last. He is going to be wet. He voted for the Volstead law in the first instance and voted for it again when President Wilson's veto was overridden. He has always been a political dry. Now, however, when he is seeking the senatorial nomination against Dwight Morrow, he has become wet. He says he has become convinced that pure prohibition won't work, that the people must be allowed somehow to purchase liquor legally without buying it in saloons, and that he is, in consequence, for modification.

Nobody at all familiar with the political history of Senator Frelinghuysen will suspect that his personal opinions on the liquor question have the least thing in the world to do with this declaration. He, like a great many other members of Congress in both houses, voted for the Volstead act out of political expediency. It would have been a dangerous thing, in those days, for him to vote against it. The dry forces were politically organized. The wets had no cohesion and no influence. So Frelinghuysen voted dry.

The significance of the ex-senator's present attitude lies entirely in the fact that he now finds it as expedient to be wet as in 1920 he found it expedient to be dry. He has taken a good long time to look into the matter. He has learned that, in New Jersey at least, the political advantage of wetness now unquestionably outweighs that of dryness. Hence this first complete and open flop on the part of one of the Old Guard of prohibition in Congress.

Frelinghuysen is not among the most brilliant Americans who have served in the United States Senate. But he has an able group of lieutenants that his money commands. And between their brains and his own he has been enabled to read the handwriting on the wall.

GROWING TOLERANCE

Dr. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, and Henry H. Curran, head of the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, met in the Washington committee room where the lobby hearings are being held. McBride introduced himself to Curran. Curran smiled and said, "We might get together and talk this over some time." "Yes," said Mc-

Bride, "we might settle it in less time and with less trouble."

And there's more to that than just a little.

Twenty men and women, carefully selected from among the ablest and most widely recognized leaders, wet, dry and moist, meeting together in the same spirit in which the conferees at the London naval parley met, could, we are firmly convinced, reach an agreement on some workable and highly beneficial plan of liquor control superior to anything heretofore evolved, and do it in a quarter of the time that it has taken to bring about the London pact on ships. Moreover, it is just as firmly our belief that, once an agreement of this sort were reached and endorsed by the conferees, it would be accepted and loyally supported by seven-eighths of the people of the country and, naturally, by the legislators who represent them in both state and nation.

The little incident of the friendly meeting of the two men most conspicuous in leadership on opposite sides of this question seems to us to be peculiarly significant. A year ago it would have been scarcely possible. A year hence it may be merely illustrative of a spirit of tolerance grown to the point where all the decent people of this country are ready to work together for the termination of a disastrous and menacing condition.

JIMMY AND GROVER

Mayor Jimmy Walker vetoes an ordinance aimed to prevent cheaper taxis in New York. Police Commissioner Grover Whalen still refuses to issue licenses to the low priced taxis, despite a court ruling that he has no right to deny the licenses. It begins to look as if the taxis might do for Grover what his failure to solve the Rothstein murder didn't do—cause him and his sartorial magnificence to pass out of the picture before long.

With the mayor determined to permit the cheap taxis and the commissioner determined to prevent them, an issue is becoming too tightly drawn for comfort—and Grover isn't as big a guy in New York as Jimmy.

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 24.—You're not even sure of "freair" in New York any more.

In fact, the value of air seems rapidly to be going up. To be sure, you can have plenty of the carbon monoxide mixture encountered on the highways. But they're beginning to pay good coin of the realm for the air encountered up in the skyscrapers. The latest quotation to reach me shows the value to be 89 cents per cubic foot.

If this seems slightly incredible, please remember that the gentlemen who build the steel giants today are showing more than a little concern over the matter of light and air. If their buildings are to be shut off by some adjoining cloud racer, as many a building is, then what price sunshine and ozone?

Wherefore, the more thoughtful owners are now buying nearby space in an effort to protect their $20 bit of air against invasion.

Thus, according to a few statistics I have just received from one Julius Nelson, he had to buy 2,800,000 cubic feet of air for his new 45-story "Nelson tower," which happens to be the tallest building in the cloak-and-suit mid-town section. It cost him back something like two and a half millions of dollars.

It seems that he has set aside 5000 square feet, of a 20,000-foot property, "to insure a future circulation of light and air." And since the building rises some 560 feet into the atmosphere—well, figure it out for yourself.

This is, however, nothing unusual in this day and age, since future builders will be giving cool consideration to such problems, as many have in the past. And the cost of air will probably continue to rise as the skylinc grows.

Tom Hoey, New York's one and only farmer, is preparing his sheep for the "spring shearing."

This, if you please, is the most incongruous event in the entire program of the Manhattan year.

Incredible though it may seem, there is a good old-fashioned barnyard sheep-shearing once a year, within the very shadows of the Fifth avenue mansions and within traffic congestion reaches something approximating a madhouse.

For Tom, whom I have introduced before at one time or another, is the gent who takes care of Central Park's flocks—this city's one and only sheep-herder. This flock, by the way, is generally kept down to a hundred head or so. A "farm" sale is held every year, when the older sheep are disposed of and the lambs are retained. After the shearing the city holds a "wool" sale, which invariably attracts a curious crowd.

The shearing itself draws crowds of peepseye natives who haven't the slightest idea whether this is done with a lawnmower or a pair of manure scissors. Crowds of youngsters who never saw a farm are taken out to gaze upon this spectacle, just as country lads are brought forth to scan some new fangled dingus brought from the big town.

By heck, we go rural in this town every now and then!

Which reminds me that one of the piglets in "Mrs. Murphy's farm"—also in Central Park—hasn't been doing so well, much to the concern of the Fifth avenue Fauntleroy's, whose nurse maids let them gaze at pigs, cows, geese and such through the iron bars of a cage.

GILBERT SWAN.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two stories in which Rodney Dutcher, Washington correspondent for this newspaper and NEA Service, discusses the unemployment situation.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington—Four main proposals are heard as those most interested seek for methods to meet periods of severe unemployment. None of them is new but all have received increased attention as a result of the employment slump of the last few months. They are:

1. Expansion of the fact-finding agencies in the Department of Labor so that a continual, accurate check may be kept on the amount of unemployment.
2. The timing of public construction work in accordance with the employment situation.
3. A national system of state aid employment offices co-ordinated and partly supported by the federal government.
4. Extension of the five-day working week and the six-hour day.

What Wagner Proposes

The first three proposals were introduced in bills introduced in the Senate by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York. The first two were given preferred position on the Senate calendar. Consideration of the third was blocked by Senator Ewington of Connecticut, who has close relations with manufacturers. This measure also had strenuous opposition from the National Association of Manufacturers.

The five-day week and six-hour day are urged with increasing vehemence by leaders of organized labor faced with increasing technological unemployment, recurrent industrial depressions and the practice of laying off workers at low age limits.

Many workers already have the normal five-day week. The National Industrial Conference Board recently located 270 manufacturing establishments which had adopted it, including Henry Ford's plants. Many building trades workers have a regular five-day week and the practice is increasing, though slowly.

The Conference Board—an employers' organization—reported that its evidence "removes the five-day week from the status of a radical or impracticable administrative experiment and places it among the plans which have demonstrated both practicality and usefulness under certain given circumstances."

The six-hour day is finding more and more favor among labor leaders. Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor says that if the world's work can be done in 30 or 35 hours a week then industry must come to the 30-hour or the 35-hour week in order to avoid "catastrophic" unemployment. President A. F. Whitney of the International Brotherhood of Trainmen says we must have the six-hour day or get ready to continual doles and bread lines. He points out that more than 50 industries now operate with the six-hour day.

The Wagner bill to set up a national system of employment offices would provide an initial appropriation of $4,000,000. The supervising bureau would co-ordinate the work of the offices by furnishing and publishing information as to opportunities for employment in various sections, maintaining a system for clearing labor between the several states and "aiding in the transportation of workers to such places as may be necessary." The federal government and the states would contribute equal amounts for maintaining the offices except in states refusing to cooperate, where the bureau would be authorized to operate its own agencies.

Wagner's public works bill is designed to advance the planning and regulated construction of public works, stabilize industry and reduce unemployment during slump periods. It would create a federal employment stabilization board which would follow business trends and watch out for prospective unemployment, reporting to the president so that he might at strategic times recommend to Congress emergency action on public works. Congress would adopt as a definite policy the construction of public works in a manner designed to aid stabilization of industry and employment through proper timing.

Seeks Exact Figures

The other Wagner bill would direct the Bureau of Labor Statistics to obtain complete figures on employment and determine the extent of part-time employment. It would give the bureau enough money to do this work, which it has never had before.

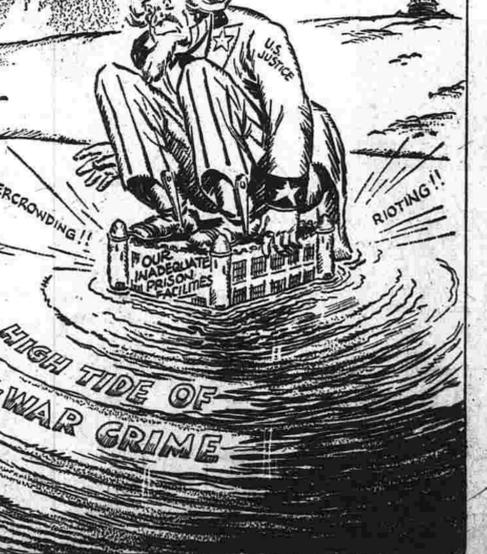

Congressmen Mead of New York, Cable of Ohio and McLeod of Michigan have introduced unemployment bills in the House, but although leaders of that body were complaining that they had nothing to do because of the Senate's tariff delay none were given any hearing before committees. They were referred to the Judiciary Committee, which gave wets and drays weeks for prohibition hearings—perhaps on the theory that there were more millions who wanted a drink than were out of work who wanted a job.

PRISON "FAMILY" IN CENSUS

Washington. — (AP) — A landlady with 100 boarders or a prison with 1000 convicts constitutes one family in the language of the 1930 census takers. The word "family" for census purposes means "a group of persons living together in the same dwelling place or premises."

HAVE COURAGE TO BE HEALTHY

Courage is a mighty fine companion. Like happiness and enthusiasm, it increases the strength of the body. On the other hand and his spouse, worry, and two sapping leeches, tearing down the strength and vitality.

Courage or fear, happiness or misery, are largely matters of habits and beliefs. Your environment may seem to you to be the cause of all your troubles, but this is not strictly true. Most of one's misery is caused by the way one reacts to circumstances. Instead of moaning or cursing at blind fate, how much better it is to try to improve yourself regardless of conditions.

Some of the most inspiring thoughts have been uttered by men while they were listening to the rustle of death's wings. Some of the most beautiful literature has been written by men who were pallid with prison shadows, but whose spirits traveled far and wide. Many of the most tremendous achievements have been made in spite of almost unsurmountable barriers. Others, with a different attitude of mind, would have allowed their thoughts to become as cramped, warped and unhealthy as their bodies.

Strong men develop their bodies by lifting heavy weights and doing hard work. The same may be true in the mental realm. Your troubles should be considered as weights to be lifted to strengthen your mental muscles.

Psychologists have come to believe that fear is the most destructive force in the lives of most people. Let us look into this business of being afraid. Science has shown that we are just born afraid of only three things. They are these: The loss of support or of being dropped, the fear of a loud noise, and physical pain. All of our other fears, such as the fear of losing a job, the fear of going blind, the fear of saying a wrong thing, the fear of being left out of things and being forgotten, the fear of not having enough when one is old, and any of the other hundreds of fears with which you may be possessed, are all fears which you have acquired. You began with the first three and picked up the others as you went along. They are all needless. In fact, if you

The Husband Hunter

BEGIN HERE TODAY
NATALIE CONVERSE tries to conquer her jealousy when women admire her handsome husband, ALAN. When he receives a call to the home of BERNADINE LAMONT, a popular night club hostess, she demands that he refuse to go and that he give up the business of "that Lamont woman." Alan explains that Bernadine is the widow of a war buddy who had saved his life, but Natalie is scornful. After a quarrel in which he taunts her for refusing to bear him children, Alan leaves and Natalie spends a miserable evening—never dreaming that he is listening to a doctor tell him that Bernadine's recovery is doubtful.

The actress surprises Alan by requesting that he take her son, BOBBY, in the event of her death. He promises and tries to tell Natalie but her rebuffs silence him. Later he confides in his secretary, PHILLIPA WEST, who has always been soothingly sympathetic. This gives Phillipa the opportunity she has been secretly waiting for. During the next few weeks, the girl develops her plan—to further the misunderstanding between Alan and his wife.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VI
 Phillipa looked at Natalie with envious eyes when she came to the office. She watched with a queer mixture of feelings at her heart, the other workers greet their employer's wife with extreme deference—which, Phillipa failed to realize, was partly due to Natalie's aristocratic appearance.

She resented it—and yet she was glad of it, too, for she fancied herself receiving the same attention some day.

On this occasion she did not seek to keep Natalie from noticing her. On the contrary—she deliberately interrupted her secretary as she entered Alan's private office, with word that he was in conference. A very important conference, she added.

Natalie hesitated. Usually she went directly to the inner office, and if she found Alan busy, went out again, to wait. She accepted Phillipa's present interference with good grace on this occasion, being in excellent humor, and took a chair beside the secretary's desk.

She might have gone back to the reception room, which was separated from the space where Phillipa's desk was placed, by a low partition, but she chose to wait nearer Alan's office. She did not expect to be long in being admitted to the private office.

This couldn't have suited Phillipa better. They were out of earshot of the other employees, if they spoke in low tones, and Phillipa did not raise her voice as she asked Natalie how little Bobby Lamont was doing.

She saw Natalie start, though she appeared to be busily engaged with some papers on her desk.

"I've so much enjoyed helping Mr. Converse choose toys for him, she chattered on airily, still not openly glancing up at Natalie, who was now sitting quite erect in her chair.

"We've just had a letter from his mother," Phillipa went on gushingly. "They're in Atlantic City—but of course you know that." She looked up, smiling an apology for her stupidity.

"It's too bad you and Mr. Converse can't have him with you, isn't it?" she rattled on, wanting to get it all in before Natalie spoke. "Of course, I haven't seen him, but I know he's a darling because Mr. Converse is so fond of him." She paused now and waited—expecting anything.

But nothing happened. A sharp line replaced the soft curves that a moment before had formed Natalie's lips, but no word issued from it.

"Perhaps you'd like to read the letter," Phillipa suggested, reaching into a drawer for it. She seemed not at all aware of the strangeness of her conduct. Natalie would think her a simpton, of course, but let her.

The letter contained a slight reference to business. That fact, Phillipa believed, would make it possible for Natalie to assume that she saw nothing unusual in its being sent to Alan's office, instead of his home. And thus not attach suspicion to her showing of it.

Natalie took the letter, with fingers that were beginning to tremble. In silence Phillipa watched her read it. But no sooner had Natalie leaned over and laid it on the desk, hastily, and with a touch of fierceness, than she began again her devilish interference.

But Natalie was not given time to listen. The door to Alan's private office opened, and she saw him there, showing out a client. A woman client, chic and animated.

For an instant Natalie was bewildered. Conference? Indeed? She glanced quickly at Phillipa, but the latter was as innocent-looking as a pat of butter.

Inwardly Phillipa was congratulating herself upon the lucky circumstance that had brought Natalie to the office when Alan was engaged with the attractive Mrs. Lowell.

"Oh, hello, Natalie," Alan said, as his client turned away and he saw his wife standing beside Phillipa's desk. "Come in."

His tones were not weighted with welcome, though he did smile. He was busy. He wished Natalie had come a little later.

Natalie's head lifted haughtily. Color flamed high in her cheeks, but her voice was cool as she answered. "Sorry, I haven't time. I've been waiting."

Alan knew at once that she was angry. "Hell," he said to himself. "To Natalie: 'That's too bad, dear.' She moved away, and not even for Phillipa's sake, could she summon a word of gracious farewell.

"We've just had a letter from his mother," Phillipa went on gushingly. "They're in Atlantic City—of course you know that."

Her eyes were smarting with unshed tears, and she wanted to run from the place blindly, impotent in the grasp of her obsessing passion.

Alan sheepishly avoided Phillipa's glance, and closed the door upon his embarrassment. Phillipa smiled.

A little later she went in to him, and was so silently sympathetic in her demeanor, that he found himself conscious of a feeling of gratitude toward her.

She sat very still at the end of his desk, taking dictation. In her quietness, and in the way she kept her head bent, as though she did not want to look upon his discomfiture, there was meaning.

One thing of beauty she had—lovely curling eyelashes. Now they veiled her downcast eyes, and lent her an air of demureness that Alan found vastly refreshing after a display of Natalie's temper, and a quarter hour of Mrs. Lowell's vivacious company.

True, her hair was only a commonplace brown, rather dark, but it was smooth and gleaming. Alan took his mind off a letter long enough to tell himself that Phillipa should let her hair grow. There ought to be little silky tendrils about her forehead—serene forehead that—and at her neck. Er...

where was he? Oh yes, "regarding Western Consolidated..." Long hair would suit her womanliness.

"That will be all, Miss West. Thank you." He was a bit abrupt.

Phillipa got up, appeared to hesitate. Her gray eyes slanted at him appealingly. A half smile turned upward the corners of her mouth, as one smiles in pity.

How could Natalie humiliate him before his secretary, he thought angrily.

"You were going to Frondell's to look at their cars today," Phillipa said softly.

"Cars?"

"For Bobby," Phillipa reminded him.

"Oh, yes, yes, of course. I thought you meant real cars. Shall we go as soon as you get those letters off?"

Phillipa had not expected to accompany him, but she said nothing about that, and slipped out of the room to settle herself at her typewriter, and make her fingers fly over the keys.

She was tempted to have one of the typists finish the letters, but thought better of it. Her work for Alan was perfect. She wanted him to find no flaws, either in it or in her.

She'd once cautioned herself that a man in love overlooks the very faults he would seek to find in a woman if he did not care for her. That is, if that woman were deliberately trying to interest him in an amorous way. And she knew that Alan was not in love with her.

Her work must continue to be too good to draw a complaint from him. But in spite of her satisfaction when it was finished, she did not enjoy the shopping trip. Alan took no particular notice of her. Had she but known it, this was a straw in her favor. He was dwelling bitterly upon his life with Natalie, too unhappy over it to think of anything else.

That Natalie, cultured, charming, beautiful, could be guilty of such an exhibition of temper as she had

New York—Modern presidential letters in longhand are the most valuable, says Thomas F. Madigan's book, "Word Shadows of the Great" (Frederick A. This is principally due to the typewriter." Harding is the rarest of the presidents in full autograph letters.

Newark, N. J.—Dwight W. Morrow was telephoning to Mrs. Morrow at Englewood from London. He asked how she was and the children and Dwight, Jr., and then: "How is Anne after that terrible flight?" Mrs. Morrow gave the conversation verbatim in a campaign address. Colonel Lindbergh's father-in-law is

OFFICER AND BANDIT ARE KILLED IN DUEL

St. Louis, April 24—(AP)—A deputy sheriff and a would-be robber were slain in a pistol duel in St. Louis county shortly before midnight when two men approached the officer, who with a companion, was parked along the highway to trap bandits who recently have perpetrated a number of holdups of motorists.

William Goericke, 28, the deputy sheriff, was fatally wounded, and the bandit, about 35 unidentified, was found dead when other deputies went to the scene.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Arnold Willmann, who was with Goericke, said two men approached them and ordered them to throw up their hands. Willmann said they told the pair they were officers and one of the highwaymen immediately opened fire, the bullet striking Goericke. Willmann returned the fire and the pair fled. Willmann immediately took his companion to a hospital where he died early today.

The chief deputy said he was certain he wounded the other bandit and a check of hospitals and physicians was started.

She Lost 19 Pounds Of Fat In 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit makes that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system. At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts is carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figures.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from Packard's Pharmacy or any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.—Adv.

AIRPLANE ATTACK GOES ON THE AIR

Radio Fans Given Opportunity to Hear What Battle in Air is Like.

Sacramento, Cal., April 24.—(AP)—Radio fans of the nation today were given opportunity to hear descriptions of a mock attack of more than 100 Army airplanes on a mythical enemy fleet represented as attempting to capture San Francisco.

Sixty-one pursuit planes, 26 bombers, 28 attack and several starfighter planes were ordered from their bases here to "sink" the imaginary "Red" Navy contingent of destroyers, battleships, airplane carriers and auxiliary vessels as they attempt to pass the Golden Gate to attack. The airplanes are part of a concentration of ships which are engaged in maneuvers in the Columbia Sound.

Both the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting chain have arranged to describe the spectacle to millions of listeners throughout the country.

Herbert Hoover, Jr., son of the President, acting for the Columbia System, and Jack Kough, announcer for the N. B. C., each were furnished with a radio-equipped plane to broadcast from the air. Surface connections were also made to supplement the aerial descriptions of the attack.

Broadcasting started shortly after 12 o'clock noon, Pacific Standard Time.

WOMEN ARE BLAMED FOR WILD RUMORS

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti.—(AP)—In this land, where politics is the chief work of many and principal recreation of many more, the foreigner is astounded with a huge mass of wild rumors which float about unceasingly.

When the Hoover investigating commission was here, its members were amazed with the virtual torrent of baseless reports which crept into headquarters daily. Careful study shows they originate in the meeting places of the illiterate market woman. It works this way:

A woman—and women carry Haiti's goods to market and sell them—carries a basket of something on her head into the city for sale. On the way she trades news with similar women bound on similar missions. Arriving here, these women cram themselves into the public market houses, and exchange their news for that of customers.

Start Wild Rumors

By the time the women from the mountains are ready to start home they have caused many wild rumors to circulate throughout the city and are carrying home fantastic and often highly sensational reports, chiefly about the work of the "ins" at the presidential palace and what the "outs" are going to do about it.

The most absurd reports imaginable were broadcast over the land about the activities and results of the Hoover commission. With no newspapers of general circulation, the people were unable to receive the real news, except from prominent men who happened to be in the capital. So often the reports the market women brought back were taken at their face value.

Haitians of education and standing admit the situation, but see it a futile task now to rectify it. As long as there are market women, there will be the endless waves of rumors rolling in and out of Port-Au-Prince.

BELGIAN WETS CLAIM LIQUOR LAW VICTORY

Brussels.—(AP)—Revision of the Belgian liquor laws has been commended by a special investigating committee and wets of the country are claiming a victory.

They base this upon the fact that initial drastic prohibition suggestions entertained by the investigators were abandoned under pressure of public opinion, rather than upon any great concessions in the recommendations themselves.

The law now allows free traffic in light wines and beer but limits the sale of spirits to licensed merchants and forbids the sale of less than two quarts to an individual customer. Moreover owners of cafes and restaurants are not permitted to keep spirits on their premises even though their homes are in the same buildings as their establishments.

The committee suggested that restaurateurs have the same privilege of private consumption of spirits as other citizens. It also recommends that the minimum sale be reduced to one quart, that licenses should be issued only to wine dealers and be limited in number and that private clubs should be barred from selling spirits to members.

HONOR ENGINEER FOR SAVING CITY

His Plan Brought Water to Parched Inhabitants in Nick of Time.

Rio de Janeiro.—(AP)—Forty-one years ago, when Dom Pedro ruled the Brazilian empire and Rio was scourged by yellow fever and lacked drinking water, an eighteen-year-old engineer miraculously brought thousands of gallons of water into the parched city in six days.

Recently scientific men in Brazil did honor to that engineer, Paulo de Frontin, whose name is a household word, on the anniversary of his feat.

With yellow fever raging and water lacking, Dom Pedro called his ministers for a plan. The wise men talked in millions for cost and eight months as the last time possible. The city would die of thirst before that.

Then came the student engineer.

In his annual report to the board he termed this situation "one of the scandals of American Protestantism." However, he said he was encouraged by an advance in developing home mission policies and substantial gains in the foreign fields accompanied by the setting up of autonomous churches in Korea, Mexico and Brazil.

"TIME TO CHANGE YER OIL"

Refill with SOCONY today

YOUR oil has been weakened by driving in winter. Every time you used the "choke," raw gasoline seeped down into the crankcase—diluting the oil. Thinned oil is an actual menace to your motor. It breaks down under the high temperatures in the cylinders. It cannot form that film so essential to sealing the piston rings and preventing the escape of power. It will not keep metal parts from grinding together.

Change your oil today and drive with smooth comfort this spring. Have the Socony man drain off the old oil and flush out the crankcase with Socony Flushing Oil. Road dirt and grit are bound to accumulate in the crankcase. Flushing is the only way—without taking down the motor—to remove this harmful gritty substance. Don't hesitate another day. Have your oil changed today. And be sure it is a Socony lubricant that is put in.

More motorists in New York and New England use Socony than use any other brand—simply because Socony lubricants are of the very highest quality.

If you've been driving during the cold weather, ask your Socony dealer or Service Station man to drain off the anti-freeze mixture from your radiator. This service is free.

KEITH CLUB ENJOYS ELABORATE SOCIAL

Orchestra and Entertainment Following Monthly Meeting Give Aspect of Night Club.

The regular monthly business meeting of Keith's Better Homes Club proved to be a brilliant affair. The committee in charge of last evening's entertainment when appointed at a previous meeting, was instructed to prepare something a bit unusual. They did it to perfection.

A large portion of the third floor of the store was cleared and elaborately decorated giving the appearance of a night club. The center of interest proved to be the large banquet table suggestive of the delicious banquet soon to follow. The guests, which included all members of the firm, their wives, husbands, and friends, were greeted by the chairman of the committee, Everett T. Keith, who announced that the dinner would be served promptly, and to their surprise, his words were followed by lively music of a six piece orchestra. Here was one feature just a bit out of the ordinary at these meetings.

The dinner was heartily enjoyed by the largest number ever attending a Better Homes Club banquet. The menu consisted of chicken fricasse, mashed potatoes, salad, peas, hot rolls, cake and whipped cream, and coffee. Immediately following the dinner, the hall was cleared and modern and old fashioned dancing was enjoyed by everyone.

Then came another surprise. Simon Murphy announced that a complete vaudeville program had been prepared. He first introduced the "Dancing Marley's" of Rockville, tap dancing specialists. The troupe included James Marley and his three young sisters with Mrs. Marley, the mother, accompanying at the piano. This act was so heartily enjoyed by everyone that several encores were necessary. The Marleys are well known in this vicinity having developed their tap dancing act to the highest degree of proficiency. Mr. Marley included several eccentric dance numbers and the children both singing and dancing, with a grand finale that included the entire troupe. Following this, were several novelty solos by various members of the "Sparrows" orchestra which included a piano solo by Harry Gould.

The program of dancing was then renewed and at ten o'clock a bridge tournament was introduced and very late hour was the winner announced. Much credit is due the committee who arranged last night's enjoyable entertainment. It consisted of Everett T. Keith, Chairman, Simon Murphy, and Mose Linnell. They were assisted by Mrs. Keith and Mrs. Murphy.

LATEST BULLETINS ON INDIAN REVOLT

By The Associated Press. With another Indian insurgent killed today at Chittagong, anxiety of authorities regarding unrest throughout India increased.

Events of violence have multiplied in the last 24 hours. At Peshawar yesterday one British soldier and 12 natives were killed after a clash in which troops turned machine gun fire on the rioters.

Calcutta also had a riot yesterday after reports spread through the city that a political prisoner, Mayor J. M. Sen Gupta, had died following a hunger strike protesting jail treatment.

V. J. Patel, speaker of the Legislative Assembly, was understood to have offered his resignation to the viceroy today, protesting the treatment of political prisoners.

The ranks of political prisoners gained a recruit today with sentencing of Ramnik Lal, first volunteer arrested for making a contract with Dandi, to one year's rigorous imprisonment.

MOTHERS DECORATING ROOMS AT WATKINS

Committee from Local Club Prepares Group for Better Homes-Week Exhibition.

For the past month a committee of the local Mothers Club in conjunction with the Better Homes-Week committee have been preparing the interior decorations for two rooms at Watkins Brothers. Those who compose the Mothers Club committee are Mrs. C. Ely Rogers, past president, Mrs. Chas. E. Fairley, Mrs. Richard C. Altman, Mrs. John H. Sadler and Mrs. Bert F. Andrews.

The first of the month the committee selected their wall papers, draperies and upholstery covers, and since have been planning the smaller pieces and the general arrangement of the room. Monday, in conjunction with Better Homes-Week which is being held throughout the country, these two rooms will be open for inspection.

The committee was given two budgets on which to work; one room to be furnished for $400.00 and the other for $1200.00. These two sums show a wide difference but nevertheless the committee has been able to create two rooms that are distinctively different and both very livable.

For the low priced room the committee chose an almost plain paper having delicate yellow pencil stripes running both horizontally and vertically. An Axminster rug in an excellent geometric hooked pattern has been used on the floor.

Having tones of deep red, blues and greens and a dozen or more shades of tan. A quaint glazed chintz, "The Antique Shop," has been hung at the window, over ruffled glass curtains, repeating the colorings of the rug. A wing chair in the room is also slip-covered in this same smart fabric. The davenport, of the Lawson type, in a figured brown denim, is placed against the high windows, with the wing chair already mentioned, and a smaller occasional chair covered in a plain green fabric, in opposite corners of the room.

A desk of maple with a desk chair of the same wood solve the correspondence question and a reproduction of a Colonial tavern table in maple serves as the major table in the room. Lamps were chosen to harmonize with the other furnishings and include a large pottery lamp with parchment shade, a whole-oil type bridge lamp in pewter finish with a print decorated shade, and a pewter whale oil table lamp with parchment shade. Accessories such as pictures, desk sets, waste baskets, ash trays and the like were not included in the price of either room for it is generally conceded that these small items are usually picked up from time to time and over a period of years by the average family. The well chosen furnishings in this room create a quaint and cozy atmosphere where comfort has not been neglected.

In the higher priced room, the committee selected a soft latched paper having a touch of modern feeling, yet perfectly adaptable to the style of the room. A large Oriental rug, a reproduction of a rare Persian Garden prayer rug in tones of rose, gold and blue-green has been placed on the floor. Draperies of plain rose taffeta against straight hung curtains tend to warm up this room which is exposed only to the north light. A davenport of the low English type, and a low lounging chair have been upholstered in the same tan-colored tulle, although the designs of the two pieces do not match.

A small barrel chair picks up the rose tones of the rug and draperies with its damask covering, while a Marthas Washington chair is upholstered in a blue tawesty having small floral sprays in rose and green. A fine Colonial secretary has been used in this room together with a desk chair of Colonial design and a Hepplewhite side chair. Tables and other occasional pieces have been carefully selected with the period of the room in mind, and the lamps as well, for these are of the popular brass candlestick, and vase shaped type with rich silk shades, and of the more formal type of metal bridge lamps having parchment shades.

This room clearly shows that a considerable amount was allowed for the furnishings but nevertheless it is not overdone nor does it lack the comfortable and homelike touches that are so important to the modern living room.

The committee in charge of the decorations are certainly due much credit for the excellent taste and good judgment shown in the furnishing and decorating of these two rooms, and it is hoped that this good example will be continued and that other groups will have the opportunity to do similar rooms.

But as for me—I'll doff my hat To the kids that tell us just where we are at. But while they were at it, why didn't they speak Of the new dumping ground on Union street?

Editor, The Herald. The above just came to me, when one of the property owners called my attention to the rubbish that has been carted down and dumped on the old mill property, in plain sight of every passing car, pedestrian, and those living on the street. It does look badly.

"Two marvels we were to the village women," she says, speaking of herself and her Chinese woman associate, "a foreigner with big feet and woolly hair and a Chinese woman wore glasses and could read." Rev. Frank Edmonds Henry, "the man from Montana," and Dr. Charles C. Merrill, Secretary of Promotion of the Congregational Mission Boards. Miss Amy O. Weicher, President of the Council will preside. Dr. John Milton Phillips, Minister of Center Church will lead the Service of Worship and Rev. Warren S. Archibald, Minister of the South Church will close the meeting. Luncheon for 500 will be served in the Central Baptist Church and the South Park Methodist church. Parking facilities will be provided.
