HOUSTON TELLS G.O.P. LEADERS HE'LL NOT QUIT

Chairman of National Com- mittee Says He Will Not Consider Resigning His Post Under Fire.

Washington, April 28.—(AP.)—Claudius Houston, chairman of the Republican National Committee, informed party leaders at conferences here over the week-end that he would not consider resigning his post under the fire of the Senate lobby committee.

Those Present

A group of the Republican chiefs including Joseph R. Nutt, party treasurer; Secretary Hyde, Postmaster General Brown, Senator Watson of Indiana, the Senate leader, Charles D. Hillis, New York National committeeman; David Mulvane, Kansas National committeeman, and Jeremiah Milbank of New Jersey, talked with Houston.

Frankly Discussed

The party's situation as it relates to Houston was reported by some of those at the sessions to have been "frankly discussed."

Some division of opinion as to the course which should be followed in the understood at the Capitol to have been revealed. The Republican chairman left no doubt that he would remain in his post.

His Testimony

Houston disclosed in testimony to the Senate lobby committee that he solicited $36,100 from the Union Carbide Company as president of the Tennessee River Improvement Association at a time when both organizations were interested in a private lease of the Muscle Shoals power property.

He also divulged that he used this contribution as part of his brokerage account before turning it over to the Tennessee River Improvement Association.

It was reported at the Capitol that complaints were voiced at the Republican conference that as a result of Houston's lobby committee testimony, there have been some difficulties in raising funds for party expenses.

"None of those present would discuss the situation and there have been no indications of any immediate move on the part of the Republican leaders in an attempt to oust Houston."

Eclipse Shadow Brushes Earth At More Than 1000 Miles An Hour

Somewhat surprised at the comparative lack of usual light being produced by the sun through a cloudless skyward late this afternoon to learn the cause. Only those who were armed with smoked glasses or those who had read the newspapers beforehand, were aware that the phenomena was due to a partial eclipse of the sun by the moon.

The moon first began to pass between the outer rim of the sun thus casting its shadow on the earth shortly before 3:15 and it was not due to pass until a little after 5:30.

Along this strip were stationed most of the astronomers of the country, according to Associated Press dispatches. One of these, Dr. H. M. Jeffers, of Lick Observatory, made records from an army airplane flying 10,000 feet high and tried to photograph the moon's shadow as it rushed across the earth's surface at thirty miles a minute.

Persons all over the country, however, were able to see something of the eclipse. Even at Juneau, Alaska, half of the sun's disk was covered, and at Tallahassee, Fla., one-fourth of it.

WAGNER LAUNCHES JOBLESS PROGRAM

New York Senator Makes Plea for Action to Help Nation's Unemployed.

Washington, April 28.—(AP.)—Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, today launched his three-fold unemployment relief program on the floor of the Senate with an urgent plea for action on all three measures—"the first three steps," he declared, "on the road to stabilized prosperity."

Laying squarely on the shoulders of the Federal government the responsibility for dealing with unemployment, the New Yorker asserted that "only this morning" the Labor Department announced that March brought down the further increase in the number unable to find work.

Favored by President.

"Since the introduction of these bills, President Hoover has made his position unmistakably clear," he added, calling attention to several public declarations of the chief executive which he said were "in favor of the principle of the legislation."

Only two of Wagner's unemployment measures were taken up by the Senate, but he had served notice that if necessary he would move consideration of the third, which would set up a Federal employment system to cooperate with state agencies.

The other Wagner bills would provide machinery for collecting complete unemployment information, and create a stabilization board to plan public construction on a long-range basis, the latter with a view toward synchronizing government work with general employment conditions.

Wagner said the enactment of the measures was a necessity.

"We must have available information. We must build the machinery of stabilization, and we must create the channels for the free flow of labor from the place of surplus to the place of need."

Economic and political ills from unemployment were cited by the New Yorker, but he said "the waste of human life which is the price of demoralizing unemployment was even more important."

Government Problem

"Unemployment today is a government problem," he continued, "because it has economic, social, political aspects of such an overwhelming importance that the government must take a hand in its eradication in order to insure its own stability."

On the basis of "meagre figures," Wagner said he computed that during the month of January wage earners in manufacturing plants alone lost $200,000,000 in wages.

"Idle men invade the mean idle machines, closed factories, overhead accumulating unproductively, savings used up, and capital assets consumed," he added. "On the social side, he said, it means child labor."

NEED LITTLE FOOD FOR MENTAL WORK

Doctor Tells Results of Ex- periments—Half a Pea- nut Sufficient.

Washington, April 28.—(AP.)—One oyster cracker, or one half of a salted peanut has been found enough to provide the extra calories needed for an hour of intense mental effort.

That is what Dr. Francis G. Benedict, director of the nutrition laboratory of the Carnegie Institute of Washington at the opening of their annual meeting here today.

The professor absorbed in intense mental effort for one hour, he said, has no greater extra demand for food during the entire time than the maid to dust off his desk for five minutes.

"From the standpoint of dynamics," he said, "it is perhaps surprising that the extra caloric demands of mental efforts are so small."

Discussing the results of experiments jointly conducted by him and his wife, as to the energy requirements of intense mental efforts, Dr. Benedict explained that five men and one woman were measured under three different conditions.

The first measurement was taken during complete muscular and digestive repose, and nearly as possible in a state of mental vacuity. The second was made during "attention" or response to an electric signal, but with no active brain processes of a complex nature. The third measurement came during intense, sustained mental activity, "as in the elaboration of arithmetic problems for an hour when each subject admitted that he was mentally exhausted."

General Effects.

The general picture of the effect of mental effort was the same with all subjects, Dr. Benedict said. There were distinct heart increase rate, pronounced alteration in the general character of respiration, a smaller increase in carbonic acid exhalation, and a slightly smaller increase in the oxygen consumption. In the periods of repose following the mental work, the speaker pointed out that all these factors immediately resumed their former level and nature.

Chicago Astronomer Says New Astral Body Will Dis- appear in Few Years.

Chicago, April 28.—(AP.)—The astral body ferreted out of the skies by the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., is not a planet, in the opinion of Dr. William D. MacMillan, professor of mathematical astronomy at the University of Chicago, but a comet that countless eons ago may have been part of another solar system.

The heralded ninth planet, Dr. MacMillan believes, will disappear within a few years and will not be visible again until the year 5000 A. D.

SUSPECT LYNCHED BY FLORIDA MOB

Take Prisoner from Sheriff and Riddle Him With Bul- lets and Hang Him.

Tampa, Fla., April 28.—(AP.)—The bullet riddled body of John Hodaz, suspected of bombing a Plant City home, was found swinging from a tree ten miles northwest of Plant City today by N. M. Davis, a wood chopper, according to Sheriff Joughin.

Hodaz was believed to have been lynched by a group of eight men who, according to Deputy Sheriff Robinson, snatched the prisoner away last night, while he was taking him to Bartow, for safekeeping. Robinson said he arrested Hodaz here late yesterday.

Body Discovered

Davis, who lives about a mile from the scene of the lynching, discovered the body as he entered the woods to cut railroad ties. It was suspended about five feet from the ground, the sheriff quoted him as saying.

The wood chopper said he ran to a nearby telephone and notified the sheriff, who, accompanied by State Attorney C. E. Parkhill, hurried to the place. A coroner's jury was impelled by A. F. Watkins, justice of the peace. After viewing the body it adjourned to meet at Plant City this afternoon.

Dr. B. C. Melghan examined the body and reported it had been pierced many times with revolver bullets and three times with shotgun charges. One shot had entered the man's heart.

LINDY COMPLETES TRIP TO PANAMA

Arrives Ahead of His Sched- ule to Inaugurate New Air Mail Route.

Cristobal, Canal Zone, April 28.—(AP.)—Colonel Charles Lindbergh reached here today after having written in a ten-hour and thirty-minute flight from Havana yesterday, another chapter in man's conquest of the air.

Leaving Havana at 5:33 a. m., Col. Lindbergh set his big plane down at Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, 11:37 a. m., and 35 minutes later took off for France Field, here, arriving 4:04 p. m., several minutes ahead of the schedule he had set for himself. The distance flown was 1,033 miles.

His route was directly across the Caribbean Sea to a point on the Nicaraguan Coast instead of to Yucatan and then down the coast to the refueling point. The saving thus effected in distance is only the short cuts enabling the seven day airmail between New York and Buenos Aires inauguration in which the flight was made.

215 Pounds of Mail

Col. Lindbergh carried with him 215 pounds of mail, which transferred from another plane will be carried on today by L. R. Moore toward Talara, Peru, from which point various planes will spread it to points in the South American Republics. It is planned that the mail, which left New York Friday, will be in Buenos Aires next Friday.

The famous trans-Atlantic aviator himself will not complete the inaugural project, but will remain here for a few days and return home the latter part of the week.

ENVOYS NEAR HOME

S. S. Leviathan, April 28.—(AP.)—The Leviathan, carrying the American delegates to the London naval conference homeward was just off Nantucket at 11:20 a. m. (E.S.T.) today and continued at full speed, although it has speed maintained she will arrive at quarters shortly after midnight tonight.

Plans for the reception at New York contemplate arrival at 7 a. m. tomorrow however, which may necessitate that speed at sea be cut.

The three naval destroyers which will escort the Leviathan into New York harbor are expected alongside late this afternoon.

ATTEMPTS TO LEAP FROM 7TH FLOOR

School Teacher Tries to Kill Herself While Awaiting to Be Questioned.

New York, April 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. Marguerite F. Lawler attempted to jump from the seventh floor of the district attorney's office building today while waiting to be questioned about accusations that she was on the payroll of the probation bureau of the Court of General Sessions here while employed as a school teacher in Buffalo, N. Y.

She was restrained by her mother, Mrs. Anna T. Leary, two clerks and two stenographers.

Mrs. Lawler had complained of being ill and at the suggestion of her mother, she was escorted to an office adjoining that of Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, who was to question her.

Caught in Time

The window facing on White Street was opened for her, and as she stood near the opening, apparently eager for air, she suddenly stepped forward. She had reached the casement when her mother, the stenographers and clerks restrained her.

"What have I got to live for," she cried as she was pulled back from the window.

OHIO CONVICTS RENEW REVOLT; MOVE LEADERS

Chaplain, on Return from Yard, Says Situation is Worse Than Ever—Fears That Blood Will Be Shed.

Columbus, O., April 28.—(AP.)—Believed to have been pacified after their leaders had been removed, unruly convicts in the idle house at Ohio penitentiary, renewed their revolt against this afternoon, after 100 Columbus reserves had been taken from the prison yards.

The convicts refused to obey orders of guards and refused to listen to Deputy Warden J. C. Woodard, who heretofore had held their confidence.

Hold Conference.

When it became evident that the convicts in the White City idle house had decided to resume their passive resistance campaign against Warden Preston Thomas, whose removal they demand, Colonel R. S. Haubrich of the Ohio National Guard, went into conference with other officials to map out plans to cope with the situation.

The Rev. Father Albert O'Brien, Catholic chaplain, who came from the idle house after the revolt was renewed, said "the situation now is worse than it has been. The convicts are very excited, and I fear that we will have bloodshed before this thing is settled."

CONNECTICUT MEN ARE MURDERED IN OKLAHOMA HOTEL

Too Much Help ON FEDERAL JOBS Congressman Says One Fourth of Number Could Be Dropped.

Louisville, Ky., April 28.—(AP.)—A Federal government grown haphazardly "like Topsy" with so many overlapping bureaus that "at least one-fourth of its personnel could be dropped with no detriment to services rendered" was pictured to the League of Women Voters today by Rep. William Williamson, Rep., South Dakota, chairman of the House committee on expenditures in executive departments.

Williamson claimed for his committee, created two years ago to deal with over-lapping, "two scalps of major importance," transfer of prohibition enforcement from Treasury to Justice, Departments, and consolidation of all veterans' agencies under a single administration.

However, he told the "efficiency in government conference of women voters here in tenth anniversary convention that duplication and overlapping of functions continue to create "a state of chronic dyspepsia." The Federal payroll, he said, number 590,000 employees, "a staggering total for peace time operation," and with little effort toward economy.

Wrong Grouping.

As "unscientific grouping" he cited: eight government departments engaged in construction and engineering activities; seven concerned with activities related to shipping; a half dozen dealing with welfare problems; three with conservation of natural resources; two with prohibition enforcement and two with national defense.

"Irrigation and reclamation, Williamson said, belong not in the Department of the Interior, but in the Department of Agriculture. He named the hydrographic office and the coast and geodetic survey as a "classic illustration" of duplication. He remarked the "curious incongruities" of public health service, prohibition enforcement, and Federal building construction in the Treasury Department.

No Reorganization.

Both House and Senate, Williamson recalled, pledged themselves to reorganize government departments, but the expenditures chairman dryly added, "reorganization languishes. The bureaucrats still dominate the situation. Political dynamite is hidden in every crevice and cranny."

Two courses, he said, remain open to Congress—either to deal with the situation themselves, "piecemeal," or to delegate to the executive authority to transfer, consolidate, eliminate and to redistribute."

WOMEN ASSEMBLE TO DISCUSS ISSUES

National League to Endorse World Court and to Back Muscle Shoals Bill.

Louisville, Ky., April 28.—(AP.)—One thousand members of the National League of Women Voters, assembling here today, plunged into a week's convention of national and international issues and a tenth anniversary celebration of women's suffrage.

They were planning to endorse the World Court and work of the London disarmament conference, and came prepared to urge passage of the Norris bill for government operation of Muscle Shoals and the pending legislation for maternity and infancy welfare.

In this year that sees a woman campaigning for the first time for a seat in the Senate, they were proposing, too, to add to their program a statement that the League believes women contribute "a needed point of view" nationally and internationally, and that therefore they should be placed in state, local and national offices, and on international commissions.

Memorial Honor Roll

The organization also was mobilized to pay sweeping homage to the past, to the women crusaders of the suffrage period, in a mass meeting tomorrow night, a memorial honor roll announcement Tuesday morning, and a tenth anniversary birthday party, with Carrie Chapman Catt speaking on "Building the Birthday Cake" Friday night.

Incoming trains today and tomorrow were expected to bring at least twenty of the thirty or more living ex-suffragists of the "honor roll."

THE WET PLAN

The dry leaders have the advantage of a complaisant following. They have only to select the argument most promising at the moment, formulate it, and their adherents with great unanimity will pound away at that particular aspect of the prohibition question for the time being.

A while ago there was no such telling argument as prosperity. The amazingly happy economic status of the American people was attributable solely to the blessing of prohibition. The tremendous sums saved from booze were reflected in the colossal savings bank record. Unhappily the prosperity balloon blew up in their faces and it has developed that in the period of prohibition the savings increase has been about 14 per cent less than it was in the similar period preceding the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment. So the argument has shifted.

It is now the well touted complaint of the dry leaders that the wets have no constructive program; that they do not propose some definite scheme to substitute for Volsteadism.

Most people, in these days, are familiar with the phenomenon of the wrong road. At a forking intersection the motorist takes the way which seems to him the more likely to lead to his destination. After he has traversed it for some distance it begins to peter out. Finally it leads into a swamp. He has passed no cross road. What does he do? Does he sit there in his car, sullenly refusing to retrace his route until some one has supplied him with a chart of the proper road to follow? Or does he turn around and drive back to the fork, deferring till his arrival there the determination of his future course?

He backtracks, of course. He knows he can get nowhere until he has undone his error. And he has every confidence that, once he is back at that forked intersection, he can pick the right way even if he did miss it once.

We were on the right road in the matter of liquor up to the time when we took this prohibition dead end byroad. Decades of temperance work, of physiological education, of intense economic development, of advance in general culture had changed Americans from a hard drinking nation into one in which the hard drinker was decidedly in the minority, where the great majority of the people were either very moderate drinkers or else total abstainers, with the proportion of the latter steadily increasing.

We arrived at the forking roads—one leading by further and gradual pressure of government control over the liquor traffic to real temperance and the complete subordination of the brewery and distillery and the saloon in the social, cultural and political life of the nation; the other the delusive, futile route on which our wheels are now set.

Is it better to keep on as we are or go back and begin over again? It is not true that the opponents of prohibition have no plan. They have a dozen plans—and any of them would be infinitely better than the morass in which we are now wallowing. But they are not selecting one of those plans and proclaiming it as the only way to national salvation. They have had a stern lesson in that sort of business in the fate of prohibition itself.

They do not hope or desire to take the theory of a single group and force it down the throats of the whole nation. They want to get back to the fork of the roads. And then sit down in conference, with Dr. McBride and Clarence True Wilson and the W. C. T. U. as well as with Mr. Curran and Dr. Butler, the Women's Association for Prohibition Reform and the Crusaders and choose a new road to the goal of sobriety and good order which nine out of ten Americans are desperately anxious to reach.

MOVIE CENSORSHIP

Rev. Duncan Dodd of Windsor thinks we should have movie censorship. Since there is already a considerable degree of movie censorship, some of it by agreement, some of it statutory as in certain states, it is to be presumed that what Rev. Mr. Dodd wants is not merely censorship but a sterner censorship.

It is to be gathered from Mr. Dodd's strictures on the movies that he objects to their portrayal of anything but the virtues and the benignities of existence. If so be it were the determination of the American people to have Rev. Mr. Dodd prescribe the quality and temper of the movies served up to them it is conceivable that the films would be lovely—but we doubt whether they would be, as portrayal of the drama of existence in this Land of the Free in the twentieth century, anything more than a glorified lie.

Mr. Dodd seems to be particularly affected by the fear that foreigners must get a horrid idea of the United States, with all these incidents of "obscenity, indecency, vice, crime, murder, insobriety." Then perhaps the highly moral thing to do is to pretend that we don't have any of these things in America—that all we have is a sweet and brooding gentleness, a serene and beautiful unselfishness and a closely followed program of good conduct that would make a Shaker village look like a rampaging precinct of the Pit itself.

We somewhat doubt, however, whether a censorship operating to such an end would be entirely successful, even with Mr. Dodd running it with plenary powers. Because there would then be no movies at all. There are not many people who could sustain an appetite for screen entertainment consisting entirely of cambric tea and pap.

However, if Rev. Mr. Dodd sincerely believes, as he seems to do, that the movies are terrible, there is one thing he can do which comes within the scope of the shepherd of a churchly flock. He can admonish his own parishioners to stay away from them. We should really think that any pastor who succeeded in protecting from the destructive influence of the movies those several hundred souls in his immediate care would have done all that could reasonably be expected of one man.

COFS AND REDS

The Waterbury police are being roundly scolded by the city's newspapers for adopting illegal and ridiculous methods in their attempts to keep Communists from holding meetings.

Waterbury had a street meeting ordinance aimed at the suppression of gatherings of radicals, but it was flagrantly unconstitutional and the first time the police acted under it the judge of the police court promptly swept the ordinance into oblivion. Now, it appears, the police have adopted the fox plan of letting the Communists speak in the open air but have refused to permit audiences to gather.

This is, of course, nonsensical. And yet, speaking not especially of Waterbury, it is not surprising if the police generally are becoming a bit bewildered in this business of dealing with Communists. Whatever they do, they seem to be in for a roasting. And yet they know these Reds well enough to know that they can't possibly be permitted to go unwatched and uncontrolled, for it given an ell they will take a yard and their attitude is a constant challenge to the police power.

It seems to us that much of the trouble is due to the lack of support given to the police on those occasions when, with the choice forced upon them of using force or letting the Communists override them, they put their night sticks to work.

Several such occasions have arisen in the last few months and the police have been bitterly criticized. They know that the criticism is unjust, and they are very likely to get the impression that the critics think better of the Reds than they do of the cops. Under such an impression they are hardly to be blamed if they fight shy of all advice in dealing with Communism and if, in consequence, they do some foolish things.

RISKY INVESTIGATION?

The strange story of the two Smith brothers of Litchfield county, murdered in an Oklahoma hotel while on a trip to investigate the status of a lot of farm mortgages sold to themselves and their neighbors, is not the first tale of tragedy in which Easterners, inquiring at too close range into the validity of Western investments, have figured as the victims.

It is perhaps jumping at a conclusion to assume that the killing of the Smiths had a direct connection with the purpose of their pilgrimage but scarcely any other conceivable explanation of the crime has any plausibility whatever.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

SPRAINS

The joints of the body have degrees of movement varying from the non-movable joints of the skull to the freely moving ball and socket joint of the shoulder. If you twist your arm and shoulders around, you will find that it moves in several different directions. The elbow is a little different, being a hinge joint, and in your jaw you not only have a hinge joint which allows you to open and shut your mouth, but you have a gliding joint which enables you to push your teeth from side to side or in front of the upper teeth.

Movable joints are reinforced and joined together by strong ligaments. A sprain means that some of these ligaments have been torn or stretched by a movement which is not in the normal range of the joint. The lubricating membranes between the joints are also usually damaged, and sometimes the blood vessels of that region may become ruptured and fill the joint cavity with fluid.

A sprain makes itself known by a sharp and severe pain, rapid swelling of the part, local heat, and sometimes a shiny appearance of the skin. These symptoms occur in the immediate area of the joint. The patient avoids movement of weight upon the part.

Immediately following a sprain care should be taken to avoid movement. If the foot or knee is hurt the limb should be raised to relieve the congestion of blood. No walking should be done with a sprained ankle. The part should be bandaged tightly and cold applications used. Some prefer adhesive tape and others a tight bandage. The use of cold packs or running water tends to prevent an excessive congestion of blood.

While rest is important in the beginning, at least for a few days, it should not be continued for too long a time, or the prolonged inaction may allow the joint to heal up locked in one position. If you wish to keep the power of movement in the joints you should begin to move them as soon as the acute period of inflammation and swelling has subsided. Stiff joints may result from resting too long a time.

During the inflammation, lymph will be exuded and the joint may become bound around with material of a fibrous nature leading to adhesions. Skilled manipulation will in most cases cause the joint to return to a condition of free movement.

Where one has once sprained an ankle or dislocated a joint there is a weakness remaining for some time and the part may be very easily injured again. If there is any distortion of the part the doctor should be called immediately, as the sprain might be accompanied by a dislocation or even a fracture. Sometimes the vertebrae in the back are injured by sprains or slight displacements. These can usually be corrected by treatments from an osteopath or chiropractor who should be able to restore the part to its normal position. In people who have a rheumatic tendency sprains are sometimes the beginning of chronic synovitis or arthritis as the rheumatic toxins tend to settle in the injured area. In these cases one should immediately begin an orange or grapefruit fast to be continued until all the pain has subsided.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Elderberry Jelly)

Question:—T. Y. writes: "This morning I had a fried egg for breakfast. There was some elderberry jelly on my plate and it touched the egg and instantly turned the egg purple green. Is there any danger of poisoning, as I have several glasses more of the jelly, and I know many people who have this same kind of jelly?"

Answer: There is no poison produced by the combination of elderberry or grape jelly with eggs. The green coloring you observed is simply due to chemical changes which are not injurious.

(Laxatives)

Question:—L. L. asks: "I would like to know if an injection of a laxative into the lower bowels through the rectum would be as beneficial to a person subject to constipation as taking it through the mouth? If not, why not?"

Answer: Purgatives and laxatives produce their best effect through being taken by mouth. They produce a more copious flow of digestive and lubricating juice and therefore produce a liquefying effect upon the intestines. When injected through an enema their effect is only upon a small portion of the intestines. An enema with plain water will usually accomplish as good results.

(Skin Wets)

Question:—G. T. writes: "I have a skin condition which I believe due to either my nerves or my blood. At times, usually in the morning or when I become warm or excited small warts appear on my hands and small irritations on my arms, and my hands and feet take spells of burning and itching. What can I do to remedy this?"

Answer: Your trouble is caused from a lowered blood alkalinity and will disappear if you will live on a well balanced diet. Be sure to include plenty of both cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables; also, eliminate starches and sweets for a few weeks.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc. 55 YEARS AT SOUTH MANCHESTER

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 28.—Now that Paix styles through beautiful man it's all over with for another year. I have it from a couple of social turtlers began to use the "pastic" Fifth Avenue "ain't what it used to be."

Nor is it likely to be ever, ever again. It has surrendered to the crowd, according to the "lofty nosed" set, and "the gentility" has given it the go-by. The society photographers have to be quick on the trigger these days to catch the blue book folk as they dash in and out of the churches.

For few indeed of the very distinguished ones by strolling along the "avenue" before and after the services. Instead, they dodge into their waiting limousines, cry "Home, James"—and are off.

In other days, say the oldtimers, they swung a leisurely stick along the pavements, preening their spring feathers and parading in that distinguished fashion which made the Easter parade what it was.

Today there is more of subdued Sunday carnivals in the air. The Bronx and Queens lads and lassies; the Harlem and Brooklyn and the East Side "seas and belles, the Greenwich Villagers and the Jersey lites are all rubbing elbows, hoping to encounter one of the very upper set.

As a matter of fact, those swank looking young men in the striped pants and the silk toppers are most likely to be a group of shipping clerks or necktie salesmen who have rented their tall hats for the day. These flashpurses, taking a seasonal fling at "being swell," generally band together and hire a fifty looking car. Split four or five ways, the splendor of a ritzy limousine can be achieved for a few dollars per head.

Sartorially they can easily be mistaken for one of the "upper ten." And do they glory in those moments when the passing stenographers mistake them for one of the "upper ten"? ... And do they use this moment to try crushing the gate of some lovely social register lady? Easter "Puffery" But it wasn't the "show-off" complex which erased the basic luster from the historic parade. Modern publicity and advertising values entered upon the scene. Just as the Longchamps race track in Paris took advantage of the Sunday crowds to display the Rue de la

FAVOR ENGLISH IN VASA RITUAL

Past Masters in Session Here Urge Change from Swedish—Elect Officers.

That the continued existence and advancement of the Order of Vasa of America was contingent on the adoption and standard usage of the English language in lodges throughout the country in place of the now prevalent Swedish was the consensus at the annual meeting of the Past Master's Club of the Vasa Order, held at the Hotel Sheridan yesterday afternoon and early evening.

Officers Elected This opinion was advanced at a general discussion of the subject following the election of officers for the coming year. The election resulted in Alfred W. Cedarholm of Waterbury being elected president, succeeding Carl E. Thoren of this town, who has held office for a year and a half since the organization of the club.

Grand Lodge Represented All expressed their gratification at being present and spoke of conditions in the lodges which they represented. Several of the officers of the Grand Lodge were present and in the course of the afternoon figures were read showing the local lodge, Scandia, was the second largest in the state with 458 members, Hartford being first with 553.

Honor Founders It was unanimously voted to admit Nils Pearson of New Britain, founder of the Order of Vasa, who recently celebrated his 80th birthday, into honorary membership. Honorary membership was also conferred temporarily on John R. Wengren, past district master of Massachusetts, now living in Manchester. A. T. Johnson of Anderson of this town, treasurer of the Grand Lodge for the past 15 years; John C. Bengston of Middletown, and Mrs. Augusta Purinton, of Hartford, present district master, were admitted to active membership in the club.

Police Court Dennis J. Harrington of Mill street was before the town court this morning on the charge of neglect of support, to which he pleaded guilty. The complaint was made on information given by his wife. The police have been on the lookout for him since last December. Harrington came to town Saturday and was placed under arrest. It was his sixth appearance in the local court. Judge R. A. Johnson found him guilty and gave him a jail sentence of 30 days. He suspended the jail sentence on condition that he pay his wife $15 a week. A bond of $250 was required as a guarantee of payment.

Opera Season Opens London, April 28.—(AP)—Enthusiastic British opera-goers have been standing in line since 11 a. m. today awaiting the opening of the Covent Garden season tonight with Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." The line grew constantly throughout the day, and at noon there were enough people standing or sitting on the sidewalk outside the gallery entrance to fill more than half the five hundred unreserved seats in the top of the huge auditorium. One of the devotees was a stenographer who took her annual holiday at this time in order to have time enough to get a first night seat. The dean among the first nighters led the line on the sidewalk and has been in the same position every year for the last sixteen seasons. The London social season opens officially with start of the opera and tonight's performance will usher in what promises to be one of the most brilliant and regal seasons of recent years. Complete recovery of King George and return of the Prince of Wales from his African trip will enliven proceedings considerably.

PSYCHIATRIC CLINICS FOR OUR DELINQUENTS

Louisville, Ky., April 28.—(AP)—Psychiatric clinics for diagnosing juvenile delinquents in juvenile court cases were urged today as a public charge, and to be supported by public funds, by Dr. James S. Plant, director of the Essex county, New Jersey, juvenile clinic, in an address before the Child Welfare Conference, National League of Women Voters. Judge Lindsay's "concept of sympathy" with delinquent children had "tremendous humanitarian implications," Dr. Plant said, but the newer juvenile court technique, he added, takes cognizance of "life trends" with physical, psychological and psychiatric examinations. The psychiatrist, Dr. Plant said, never start with "Well, what's the trouble now?" "The present trouble is precisely the last thing the psychiatrist is interested in," he added, prescribing the slow study of "strengths and weaknesses, drives and hangars" of the child and all about him "in the effort to discover not what the delinquency is but who the delinquent is—of what strength and weakness, what power and plasticity."

TROUBLE BREAKS OUT ANEW AT OHIO PEN

AMERICAN HOUSE OPENED IN PARIS

Paris, April 28.—(AP)—President Doumergue, Ambassador Walter E. Edge and other notables today dedicated "American House," the $400,000 student dormitory in the "Vite Universitaire."

This dormitory, on the model campus of University City, will provide housing for 275 American boys and girls for from $2 to $5 a week.

Members of the cabinet, American and foreign diplomats, Dr. and Mrs. Homer Gage, and many members of the American colony attended the dedication.

Ambassador Edge formally declared the house open and said it seemed particularly fitting that the American democracy, which based its force on education, should have an intellectual embassy at the very crest of Mount St. Genevieve, which for more than six centuries has been one of the highest peaks of world culture.

He emphasized that the house is a monument to intellectual exchange between nations. "The student city of which this house is a part will contribute to the fellowship of nations," he said. "I am convinced that the student city will contribute profoundly to the peace of generations to come."

The model campus of the University of Paris represents the first attempt at the Sorbonne and Allied colleges to provide campus facilities and centralized student dormitories. It covers a large acreage just outside the gates of Paris where eventually dormitories for students from Canada, Belgium, England, Japan and the Argentine will stand, with eight French buildings nearby. Some of the foreign buildings are already erected.

Dr. Gage, head of the dormitory committee in America, raised $75,000 the United States toward the total cost of $400,000. John R. Bacher, an instructor in the department of history at the University of Pennsylvania, has been chosen director of the dormitory. He is a Rhodes scholar.

Duesseldorf, Germany, April 28.—(AP)—An aerial acrobat's mishap while stunting in mid-air above the heads of thousands of spectators led to his death yesterday after a 45 minute effort to save himself. Standing on the lower plane he grasped the rope ladder thrown from an upper one, but in some manner his hand was caught and he was unable to extricate it.

PROMOTE MCGLINN TO BE A SERGEANT

John Crockett Returned to Patrolman Rank—Seek Opinions on Parade Route

John McGlinn, for nine years a member of the Manchester police department, was promoted from Class A Patrolman to Sergeant at a meeting of the Police Commission Saturday afternoon. He succeeds John Crockett who was returned to the ranks of Class A Patrolman. The change in ranks followed an altercation in which Crockett and Patrolman Joseph Prentice took part on April 10. Prentice has been suspended, the suspension to take effect tomorrow.

Charges The Police commission charged that Crockett and Prentice fought over personalities and that although Patrolman Prentice made a report to headquarters of the affair, Crockett failed to make any mention of the matter until 13 days afterward. Then he dismissed it as a matter of minor importance. The commission also charged Crockett had failed to report an accident he had investigated and in which an out of town man had died.

Memorial Parade Saturday's meeting of the commissioners also discussed the Memorial Day parade route. It was reported that 12 leading citizens had been canvassed for their opinions by letter. The letter addressed to these citizens is published below. The opinions of but a few of those addressed have been received to date. The letter:

"Good Morning: "As time is about the only asset busy folks have today, the Board of Police Commissioners does not feel justified in inviting a number of men to a hearing and yet we are most desirous of getting a cross-section expression from representative men of Manchester upon an important issue which has been raised again, namely, the line of march of the parade on Memorial Day.

"Last year, you will recall the Board of Police Commissioners ruled that the parade should not be allowed to march and counter-march on East Center street and enter Memorial Park off Center street because through traffic is held up for more than an hour, and in the opinion of Chief Gordon, this route greatly adds to the danger.

"Before making this decision last year, the Board of Police Commissioners consulted such men as F. A. Verplanck who felt that ending the parade at the east entrance of the park and keeping off East Center street would be much preferable because it was shorter for both Grand Army men and the school children. He also concurred in the view that it is unfair to hold up through traffic to such an extent as is necessary when the parade is allowed on East Center and Center streets.

"I was told, too, that George M. Berber in behalf of the Grand Army men, in whose honor the parade is held, favored the shorter line of march because he said the longer program overtaxed the waning vitality of the veterans, but a very estimable citizen, Captain Albert T. Dewey, who this year is Chief of Staff for the parade, took the position that no one should object to being held up by a Memorial Day parade and that those sponsoring

FIND BIBLICAL CITIES, SODOM AND GOMORRAH

Jerusalem, April 28.—(AP)—The correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency said today that an expedition from the Rome Pontifical and Biblical Institute, believed it had discovered the biblical cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. The expedition, supervised by Father Mellon, has been excavating the oriental city of Ghor, near the Dead Sea. The work uncovered a large city destroyed by fire at the close of the first bronze age and never rebuilt. Human skeletons, the foundations of several houses, the oven of a granary mill, ceramics, silver instruments and various minerals were unearthed. Later digging turned up the foundations of stone walls between which straight streets ran in all directions, and couches of ashes. It is believed the city was destroyed about twenty centuries before Christ, the date and character of the ruins induced Father Mellon to believe that the expedition had discovered the ancient cities destroyed by fire and brimstone.

FIRST AIRPLANE SUIT

New York, April 28.—(AP)—A $75,000 damage suit involving the responsibility of an aviation company to its passengers was begun today in Supreme Court before a jury. The estate of Carl C. Stoll, Jr., of Louisville, Ky., is the plaintiff and Curtis Flying Service the defendant. Stoll and Mrs. Mary Seaman of Greenport, Long Island, were passengers in a Curtis Flying Service plane which fell at Mineola, Long Island, April 14, 1927, killing them and the pilot, John Parks Andrews. The company contends that the pilot was a competent man, the plane in excellent condition, that the usual precautions against accident had been taken and that it therefore is not liable. Lawyers for the plaintiff argue that an airplane company owes its passengers more than ordinary care.

BURGLARS ENTER FOUR EAST HARTFORD HOMES

Use Skeleton Keys to Gain Entrance—Take Money and Valuable Jewels; Overlook Big Sum.

Gaining entrance through rear doors by the expedient use of skeleton keys, thieves have entered a series of four burglarized homes in East Hartford, during the latter part of last week. It was learned today. All four homes entered were badly wrecked due to the hurried search of the culprits in quest of valuables in bureau drawers, bedding, closets, etc. East Hartford police have no clues as yet. Several robberies of the same type occurred in the city some weeks ago.

The four places entered were the grocery store of Jacob Klein on South Main street where cigars, cigarettes, and confectionary were stolen; the home of Merritt Smart of 41 Tower Road on Wednesday evening. A pearl necklace, gold watch and chain, a small amount of money, and a new suit were reported missing; the same evening the home of Leonard F. Baker of 7 Ensign street was entered between 7 and 9 o'clock while Mr. Baker and family were away. A sum of money and jewelry were taken. The thieves overlooked a large amount of money Mr. Baker had laid aside for taxes; Saturday night between 7:30 and 9 o'clock the home of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Hall of 179 South Main street was entered and an expensive pearl necklace and valuable camera were reported stolen.

"May I have your reply at an early date? "Cordially yours, Board of Police Commissioners, "Willard B. Rogers, President."

The Husband Hunter

© 1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

NATALIE CONVERSE tries to conquer her jealousy over her husband's some husband, ALAN. But when he receives a call to the home of BERNADINE LAMONT, a popular night club hostess, she demands that he refuse to go. He explains that Bernadine is the widow of a war buddy who had saved his life, but Natalie is furious when he says he must go.

The actress surprises Alan by telling him that her doctor has given her only a short time to live and requesting that he take care of her son, BOBBY. He promises and tries to tell Natalie but her rebuffs silence him. He confides in his secretary PHILIPPA WEST, who has been waiting for an opportunity to further her own schemes.

When Natalie next comes to the office, Philippa engages her in conversation and talks about helping pick out toys for "darling Bobby" and shows a letter from Bernadine in which Alan visits to Bobby as mentioned. Natalie leaves in a rage without explaining and Alan follows her home hoping for a reconciliation, but her accusations drive him back to his office to work. He is surprised to find Philippa there working. After working together several hours Alan took her to dinner and then home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

"I'm sorry not to let you get your breath before rushing you out again," Philippa said to Alan, when she turned up the lights; "but now that you know I'm safely home, I'll have to say good night to you."

"Curfew," "No—just something I always do when I come in, if it isn't too late." "And it isn't too late?" "Not yet, but it will be in a few minutes."

Alan smiled. "I'm not only being rushed before I'm being practically thrown out."

Philippa started to laugh, broke it off. "I'll give you a choice," she said, quite as though she had thought of what was in her mind, while, as she talked, she had been planning it all the way home.

"You may stay if you like, but it means you'll have to pay a visit with me to the family up to know more about the family upstairs, before consenting to visit them. Why do you have to go there?" he asked.

Philippa spread her hands in a gesture that meant there was no answer. "Will you come and see?" she said, and turned toward the door.

"It's on the top floor," Philippa revealed, smiling over her shoulder. "Four flights."

"They were dark, steep stairs, up which she went so gayly. Alan had had his admiration for her lightness, which he likened to that of a gazelle. The comparison flattered Philippa, but her devotion to the goddess of fashion deserved to be complimented."

"I led him to the door of the apartment, where she rapped softly on the scarred panel and waited, with her hand on one side, in a listening attitude."

"I wouldn't want to disturb him if he were asleep," she explained to Alan.

The sound of a sewing machine came to their ears. Philippa rapped again louder. The sound ceased abruptly, and a colorless female voice bade them come in.

With no further hesitation, Philippa turned the handle and entered the room. Alan held back a bit. He did not see the expression of surprise that came over the features of the woman seated at the sewing machine.

"Good evening, Mrs. Switzer," Philippa said pleasantly. "I'm very late. I know, but I thought Mr. Switzer might still be awake."

Mrs. Switzer dragged herself to her feet, and smiled a welcome. She was puzzled. Philippa rarely came to see them. On the other occasions Mrs. Switzer had asked for help. She'd been certain Philippa's mother had made her come up then.

The Switzers and the Wests were that needle in a haystack in New York—neighbors that are old friends. Mammie Switzer and Martha West had worked together before they were married, and dwelt near-by each other ever since.

Neither had prospered much. Martha had had only one child, Mammie five. And then Frank Switzer's legs were crushed in an accident. Mammie held the family together through the aid of a brother. Last year the brother died. But now Mammie had the help of her third child—the first two having died in infancy. She needed to keep on sewing just the same.

"Why, yes, I think Frank's still awake," she said to Philippa. "Did you want to see him?"

Philippa was in no wise abashed by the doubt in the woman's voice. "Oh, Mrs. Switzer, of course I want to see him," she answered respectfully. Then: "I've brought Mr. Converse with me; my employer, you know. Hope you don't mind."

Mrs. Switzer stared uncertainly at Alan, as he stepped forth and quietly acknowledged the introduction that Philippa made with a little stir of excitement.

"May we go in to see Uncle Frank?" Philippa asked in the sweetly ingratiating tones she had assumed for the moment.

A look of bewilderment took possession of Mammie Switzer's countenance as Philippa turned hurriedly toward the alcove that had been for so many years.

Dull anger replaced the bewilderment as she heard Philippa cooing to the crippled man. Uncle Frank indeed! The tussy hadn't called him that in ages; not since she'd grown up and got fine ideas.

Natalie was still awake, wide-eyed, tormented anything before." Mammie muttered to herself. "But I guess I know what you're up to, young lady. Try to make some kind of a play with your boss; that's what you're doing."

If that were Philippa's intention, she was succeeding rather well. Alan felt immensely approving toward her.

And when she sent him away with a pleasant good night at her door, he wondered if she had read his mind.

He was a little afraid of himself. He'd never felt quite so unfaithful to Natalie before. He'd been angry, furious, rebellious. But he'd never wanted to take another woman in his arms and kiss her.

And that was precisely what he had wanted to do with Philippa West. He didn't like it, thinking it over on his way home. Philippa was a sweet girl. She deserved something better than a man's left-handed affection.

"But, hang it all, I'm not in love with her," Alan argued with himself.

Alan remembered for hours the touch of her hands, as they lay for a moment in his before she took them suddenly away. He remembered the shy retreat of her gaze from his, the soft breath that left her lips before she said: "Now you must go."

He had believed, when he married Natalie, that he never could love another woman. His tenderness toward Philippa filled him with disappointment in himself, made him before he reached home, wish to make up to Natalie in some way, though he still held her to be at fault.

Outside her closed door he halted for a moment and listened. There was no sound. He half lifted his hand to rap, dropped it back again and went on to his own room. Philippa was in his thoughts when he fell asleep.

Natalie was still awake, wide-eyed, tormented. Alan thought, at breakfast, that she looked rocky. He asked himself why she shouldn't look that way with no sweetness whatsoever in her nature. Now he had forgotten the days before her jealousy had so cruelly changed her. The past would not hold him now.

More significant, the shock of finding himself thinking unfaithfully had passed. Already he was getting used to it. He was rather in a hurry to get downtown, to be with Philippa again. His manner with Natalie was distant, abrupt.

She saw that he had lost something from his former attitude on these occasions, these mornings after unmade-up quarrels; his dread of a scene it seemed to her. With the thought, terror struck deep at her heart.

Wordless, she let him go. Alan's spirits mounted higher and higher as he neared the office. What a relief to get into a world that wasn't all cluttered up with sentiment and emotional upheavals—with jealousy, for instance. No dark looks and growing brows. Competition, strife, yes, but it had to do with business. A fellow could use his head and let his heart do its proper work.

His step was lighter than it had been for months, when he got into the elevator and dumfounded the operator with his cheerful smile and breezy "Good morning."

Alan was actually on the verge of whistling when he got off on his tower floor and walked briskly down the hall. The cloud that had hung over him—his dread of Natalie's jealousy even when their skies were blue—had gone to where all dark clouds should go. He was almost lappy.

And then he opened the door. His eyes sought Philippa's desk at once and his whistle died aborning.

PIONEER DIES.
Chicago, April 23.—(AP)—Seventy-five years ago William Verity in New York, being told he only had a few months to live, asked Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune for advice.

Greeley gave him his famous advice: "Go west, young man." Verity did, and lived to be 97 years old. He was one of Chicago's pioneer business men. His funeral was today.

There are poor people in the Tennessee mountains who live in such dilapidated shacks that every time it rains, they have to go out and get in the sedan.

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

USE OF INSTRUMENTS CUTS DOWN CHILDBIRTH MORTALITY RATES

EDITORS NOTE: This is the third of a series of four articles in which Dr. Morris Fishbein discusses modern medical practices in connection with childbirth.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

People who believe that mother nature knows best and that the physician or midwife should not interfere in childbirth, but permit nature to carry out the responsibility as far as possible, do not take into account the scientific records that compare conditions as they were 50 years ago with what they are today.

Recently Dr. J. F. Gibberd has compared the death rates of mothers in childbirth in 20,000 cases, the first series covering the period from 1863 to 1875, and the second period 1918 to 1928. In the period from 1863 to 1875, forceps were used in 0.51 per cent of the cases, the infant was turned in 0.45 per cent, the Caesarean operation was not used at all and instruments were not used in any instance to cause childbirth to begin.

In the second period, forceps were used eight times as often, that is in 4.5 per cent of the cases; the child was turned in approximately the same number of instances; the Caesarean operation was performed in 1.3 per cent of the cases, and instruments were used to begin childbirth in 2.4 per cent of the cases.

Thus what might be called interference by the obstetrician was carried out in 1.35 per cent of the cases from 1863 to 1875, and in 8.86 per cent of the cases from 1918 to 1928. The striking fact is that the death rate fell from 4.4 per thousand cases in the first series to 1.03 per thousand in the second series. Hence it is obvious that the modern obstetrician interferes more often but also to the advantage of the patient.

The modern obstetrician has a more humane standard—when pain seems to be intolerable, when exhaustion is great, or when for any other reason interference seems advisable, he does not hesitate to employ modern methods for the aid of his patient.

FORD PROJECT IS CALLED CIVILIZING AGENT ON AMAZON

Rio Janeiro.—(AP)—From the fact that the Indians inhabiting the country around the Ford rubber concession on the Tapajos river have given their confidence to the American enterprise to such an extent that they bring their sick to be treated there, the possible influence of the project is in the opinion of Major Lester Baker, American military attaché, who recently visited the Amazon valley.

Major Baker was particularly impressed with the work done by Captain E. O. Baker, manager of the concession, and his staff in providing sanitary living quarters for the 1,800 employes, something rare in that part of Brazil. There are only nine foreigners employed at Fordlandia.

"After traveling through hundreds of miles of jungle to come into Fordlandia is like a dream," Major Baker said. "Here is a little corner of the United States and four forests of staff houses and four forests of growing things. All are equipped with modern plumbing, electric lights, telephones, electric refrigerators, washing machines, screens, pianos and violas."

"The finding of such homes in a country where the ordinary dwelling is a mud hut with one door and window is wonderful."

Wharves 240 feet long have been constructed and there are five power boats in the river. More than 100 miles of roads have been constructed.

There is a hospital of 100 beds in charge of Dr. C. Beaton and a trained nurse makes daily visits to the native village.

A radio station communicates with the branch office at Para, a farm for growing vegetables is in operation and a range of 500 acres grazes the cattle used for beef.

Planting is going on rapidly, an average cleared area a week being cleared of tropical growth and placed under cultivation.

By ROSETTE PELLETIER

Paris.—Suzanne Lenglen, pioneer short-skirt wearer when she started both Europe and America a few years ago by appearing on the courts in knee-length frocks, now about-faces and, as a designer, advocates longer skirts for sports wear.

Retired from the limelight of international tournaments and the attending glory as "the most brilliant woman tennis player of all time," the great Suzanne now co-operates with a Paris couturier and has turned her marvelous technique to creating sports clothes that have both chic and comfort.

"Women have never been seen to their advantage in such games as tennis," Mlle. Suzanne asserted. "Longer skirts that will not hamper freedom of action will be much more graceful."

"In designing my sports clothes, I study first of all the essential of movement," she explained. "Our celebrated couturiers know how to design sports clothes that look beautiful on a mannequin in a salon, but will go all awry with a volley or a backhand drive. I think sports clothes can be harmonious as well as practical. There is a field here for an entirely new technique in sportswear for women."

A Style Dictator
Although Mlle. Lenglen vows she never will play tennis in public again, she is particularly well qualified for her new work, having in her days of glory set the fashion for sportswomen the world over.

It was Suzanne who first dared to appear on the courts in abbreviated frock with both her neck and arms bare. She further was a revolutionary in her introduction of the "Lenglen bandeau," replacing the cumbersome and ugly hat that women then wore. The Helen Wills eyeshade followed the Lenglen bandeau. Anyone who ever saw Lenglen play will never forget her spectacular entrances on the courts, in her colored jackets and coats which she would throw aside with a dramatic gesture.

She was the first to introduce a style note into the game. "When I first went to Wimbledon as a young girl, women players still wore long, tight-sleeved waists, ankle-length skirts over seemingly endless petticoats, stiff collars and large hats," Suzanne recalled. "The most astonishing thing was that they could play at all in such an absurd costume. Those days are gone forever, but out of the extreme that we have known recently, we must endeavor to achieve a balanced mode."

"To do this skirts must be longer. And costumes must be cut to allow the vigorous movements of the body. These are bound to disarrange costumes unless taken into account," Mlle. Lenglen, as sports directress of the house of Yvonne May, is still as slim and vivacious as ever. She drives to work in a small sports car, painted pale blue, her favorite color. She is always accompanied by "Whisky," her shaggy-haired dog.

On the subject of her playing again, she said, emphatically: "I am dead sick of tennis. I started too young. I shall never play again except for pleasure, and that in private. No, I never miss the excitement and cheering crowds; I am glad to be away from it all. I never even go to tennis matches now, because I never cared to watch tennis matches except when played by brilliant men stars."

Mlle. Lenglen declared that she never felt as well as she does now. "I was over-strained and muscled tired when I finished my American tour," she explained. "I am even slimmer now than when I was in training. You see, when you play you eat a lot because the vigorous exercise requires more food. Now I live normally, exercise a little daily, as every woman should, and my muscles are more supple."

Dresses of Silk

The new tennis dresses that Suzanne has designed, are all of practical washing silks, with normal waistline and full, pleated skirts reaching about eight inches below the knees. Each dress has its bandeau and its short jacket. She gives white the preference, but some of the models have short, reversible jackets in pale blue, yellow and green and other colors, with white linings.

Her sports department is a very complete one, with tennis rackets, scarves, handkerchiefs and other accessories and two novel tennis cases designed by Suzanne which hold two or three tennis frocks and a complete set of toilet accessories so a tennis player can face the inadequacy of most of the dressing rooms placed at their disposal.

Suzanne plans to build a tennis court in the garden behind her maison de couture where she can study the movements on mannerisms at play. The house is a lovely old mansion, dating back to the time of Louis XVI. In the old days it was the scene of many magnificent fetes and ranked as one of the great estates in Paris.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

One time after an afternoon concert in a hotel an important old lady overheard a little girl say to her mother, "That was the loveliest singing I ever heard."

"Now the singing had been amateurish and bad. The mother made a face and was about to reply when the old lady touched the little girl's shoulder and said: "Lovely, my dear, lovely!" And always remember that every day of your life, whatever anyone says of you, if honestly is lovely; I'm glad you enjoyed the music."

Since she was an important old lady, the little girl's mother changed her expression and her mind. "Mrs. Smith is right, Sarah; it was nice music," she said.

Now there is a whole world of philosophy in this little episode. Children are not critical.

Often, of course, we do hear small children make mean remarks about the way people do things, but as a rule it does not originate with them. They are merely echoing what they hear at home, or what an older friend or what a group of friends have said.

When Observation is Keen. Children under 13 usually observe things without first-hand criticism; moreover, their bump of appreciation has not begun to shrink. They are very keen observers, have excellent memories, and on the whole are kind and acceptant of other people's attempts.

It would be hard to include in this list the things that react on them personally; that is somewhat different, for here we meet up with the emotional impulses. Outraged emotions, as we know cause criticism in even very young children. Mr. Brown repairing the roof of his garage lets a hammer fall on Johnny's dog. Johnny will criticize his father's workmanship but from a purely personal point of view.

What we should try to encourage in children before they enter the adolescent stage, in which time they are likely to become first-hand scoffers, is what Mrs. Smith applauded in her young friend.

Making of a Knocker. The little girl had a whole-hearted, if impersonal, appreciation for what someone else had done to entertain her. What was to be gained if her mother had had the opportunity to ridicule her mother? What was to be gained if her mother had had the opportunity to ridicule the performer? Just this—she was teaching her child the A. B. C.'s of being a first-class knocker.

There is so much naive sweetness in children of this age, an eagerness to give the devil his due. I've listened to young ideas give glowing descriptions of school performance, or an amateur show-admission tax pins—scarcely able to believe my ears, or that such enthusiasm could be genuine. But there is no doubting the sincerity of youth on this score. We dare not call them glibbie, inexperienced, nor simple. No, it is nothing in the world but faith, love, and charity—and appreciation of effort.

We must not teach them to be doubting Thomases, scoffing Timothys, or sneering Scrooges. Let them alone and prop these little wildflowers of staunchness with our own.

Costly Paper Symbols Mark Chinese Rites

Paper mache horse and carriage and saddle horses in a Chinese funeral procession to give the impression that the deceased had these luxuries in life. These and other symbols of wealth and positions are burned at the grave.

Peiping. (AP)—Chinese of the north, always indifferent to the reform measures of the nationalist government at Nanking, have made the costly paper figures carried in funeral processions symbolic not only of their beliefs about the life hereafter, but also of their political intrinsigence.

last rites for a relative, believing the departed are in position to protect the living and therefore must be kept in good humor. The funeral ceremony of the north as carried out by the Manchus exceeds in extent and expense even their elaborate weddings.

custom for relatives of the departed to try to deceive the gods of the next world by providing their departed with equipages of a sort far superior to those which were his in life. So a full sized paper mache automobile with life-sized figures of chauffeur and footmen will be carried as well as paper mache carriages, harness and saddle horses, coachmen and groomers.

Sultan Palaces On Bosphorus Are Problem To Turkish Republic

When Mustapha Kemal began his creation of a new Turkey he solved the problem of the sultans by the shadowy occupant of the Ottoman throne. But after eight years he has not solved the problem of what to do with the sultan's dwellings.

LA GUARDIA MAKES CHARGES OF GRAFT

Boston, April 28.—(AP)—Wets and dries alike were doing some talk thinking today over the graft charge of Congressman F. H. La Guardia of New York, "wet" leader in Congress. "A million dollars daily in graft to local, county and state officials," he charged in a speech at the annual meeting of the New York Congressmen to the 400 or 500 people who gathered at Symphony hall last night to hear him speak on the "Failure of Prohibition."

TWO CHILDREN KILLED IN PLANE ACCIDENT

Portsmouth, N. H., April 28.—An investigation by state authorities was under way today in an airplane accident that yesterday cost the lives of two children. The crash occurred on the morning of April 27, when a biplane, piloted by a man named H. H. Hessler, was flying over the town of Portsmouth. The plane crashed into a field, and the two children, a boy and a girl, were killed. The pilot was also injured but escaped with his life.

ASHES REMOVED

Although a business slump may account for John D. Rockefeller giving away nickels instead of dimes, a more likely reason is that the five-cent pieces are coming shiffler now. The South Windsor school pupils met in a speaking and spelling contest at the Warehouse Point School on Wednesday evening. The contestants from the Wapping School in the speaking contest were: Mabel Dewey, Grade 5; Eunice Skinner, Grade 6; Edna Hyson, Grade 7; Ruby Marshall, Grade 8. The spelling contestants were: Annie Zinsner, Grade 5; John Gudzman, Grade 6; James Mikels, Grade 7; Edwin Pudim, Grade 8. Ruby Marshall won second prize in the speaking contest. James Mikels won second prize in spelling, a banner for the town which carried the greater number of honors was to have been awarded, but the event was postponed because of a fire at the Warehouse Point School.

Naval Parley Ends—Trouble Flares Up in India; Other Events in Europe.

The naval conference ended Tuesday with signing of the treaty amid ceremony. Shortly afterward the delegates were off for home, the Americans sailing on the Leviathan. Briefly, the treaty contains a five-power agreement for a battleship holiday and fixes new limits, until 1936, for the fleets of the three greatest sea powers. The five powers—the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy—agree on the battleship holiday until 1936, except that France and Italy may build 70,000 tons of capital ships; on humanization of submarine warfare against merchant ships; on a definition of aircraft carriers; on holding submarines to 2,800 tons, except that each power will be permitted three of not more than 2,800 tons; on a pledge to hold a new conference in 1935 unless another disarmament agreement is reached earlier, and on several other minor points.

THREE FLIERS KILLED

Alvord, Tex., April 28.—(AP)—A storm was blamed today for the death of James H. Kelly, 25, of endurance flight fame, and two companions, C. W. Memmis, 37, 50, an oil operator, of Fort Worth, Tex., and C. F. Williams, 49, of Tonkawa, Okla., in an airplane accident. G. C. Ross, Oklahoma City oil operator, the fourth occupant of the plane, escaped with a broken right shoulder, and lacerations about the head. With R. L. "Reg" Robbins, Kelly set a world's endurance flight record at Fort Worth in May 1929, by keeping their monoplane the "For: Worth" aloft more than 172 hours. Their mark has been bettered. Kelly and his three companions were en route from Oklahoma City to Fort Worth when the plane ran into the storm and crashed from a low altitude.

Other outbreaks occurred at Neela, near Calcutta, where 16 policemen and three demonstrators were wounded, with one native killed at Peni, where the police chief, two constables and two railway employees were injured when they attempted to arrest four insurgents, and at Calcutta, where thousands of natives surrounded the Alipore jail on hearing rumors that Mayor J. # Giants and Washington Top the Major Leagues

McGrath's Clan Is Only Undefeated Team in Either Circuit; A's Beaten.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

The New York Giants once more are starting out to upset the league. They stepped to the front by winning seven games and now are the only undefeated team in either league.

Brooklyn Robins became the seventh victims of the Giants yesterday as the New Yorkers hit the deliveries of Bill Clark and Johnny Morrison for 14 solid blows, which produced a 10 to 4 score.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, chief threat to Giant supremacy in the National League, continued their brilliant progress by defeating the champion Chicago Cubs 9 to 5 for their seventh straight victory.

The Boston Braves likewise broke out as heavy hitters when Burling Grimes made his debut as a Hub pitcher and made 17 blows good for a 13 to 4 win over Philadelphia.

The St. Louis Cards used their blows effectively combining them with seven walks to beat Cincinnati 6 to 5.

Washington's surprising Senators continued to strengthen their hold on the top rung of the American League ladder by defeating the Athletics for the time in succession.

The Chi-Sox and St. Louis produced some surprising results in a hard fought battle that went to Chicago by a 2 to 1 score. A record which had stood for 39 years without being seriously threatened was equalled in this game when Clancy, White Sox first baseman went through nine innings without a putout or an assist.

The Detroit Tigers broke a losing streak of seven games during by hammering Ferrell of Cleveland five runs in the first inning and taking the last game of the series 7 to 1.

Nineteen hits by the Boston Red Sox proved better than Babe Ruth's second homer of the year, although the homer came with two on base in the ninth inning and the Sox gained an 8 to 7 victory over the Yankees.

Yesterday's Stars

Andy Reese, Giants—Hit home run with bases filled as Giants trounce Dodgers, 10 to 4.
Vic Sorrell, Tigers—Gave up only six hits to beat Indians, 6 to 1.
Adam Comorosky, Pirates—Pounded out two singles and a double to aid Pirates whip Cubs, 9 to 5.
Burling Grimes, Braves—Making first start of the year kept Phillies' nine hits scattered, pounded out double that scored two runs and won, 13 to 4.
Goose Goslin, Senators—Hit homer, double and single as Washington beats Athletics, 11 to 6.
Babe Ruth hits second homer of year.

FIVE COLLEGE CREWS IN RACES SATURDAY

Yale, Penn. Columbia, Princeton and Mass. Tech in Action in Two Regattas.

New York, April 28—(AP)—Five of the east's nine college crews will take to the water next Saturday in search of victory in one of the two major regattas.

On the Housatonic at Derby, Conn., Columbia's intercollegiate champions will defend the Blackwell Cup against the challenge of Yale and Penn. On Lake Carnegie at Princeton, Chuck Logg's tigers will make their first start of the season against the Engineers of Mass. Tech.

The Blackwell Cup regatta may see the Columbia varsity's first defeat since 1928. The Lions were hard pressed to nose out the Navy at Annapolis and Ed Leader's Yale crew is even more of a hand-out. Penn's boatload is more or less of an unknown quality but there appears to be little likelihood that the Philadelphians can beat either Columbia or Yale.

The varsity race will be at two miles as will be the junior varsity and freshman events. The race for the 150 pound crews will be rowed over a course a mile and five six-tenths.

McGrath Makes 1st 1930 Hole-In-One

The honor of making the first hole-in-one at the Manchester Country Club this year goes to Douglas G. McGrath, an investment broker in Hartford who lives at 593 East Center street.
McGrath registered his ace on the last hole of the course—the 191 yard 18th—yesterday afternoon. He used a number three iron. The ball sailed straight down the fairway, and rolled straight to the cup.
McGrath was playing with P. Ainsworth of Rockville and R. L. Keeney of Hartford. He took an 86 in Hartford who lives at 593 East Center street.

COURAGE, CUSTOMERS!

Phil Scott is safely tucked away in Merrie England. Primo Carnera continues on his happy way, pushing over obscure gladiators in this part of the country and that Jack Sharkey is matched to meet Max Schmeling June 12 in New York. Jack Dempsey gets off a train here and there and throws dark hints to inquiring reporters that he may be back in there with the old sock some day not too far distant.
It is a time for the customers to have courage. After Messers. Duffy and See, handlers of the oversized beef from abroad, have squeezed the last crying nickel obtainable from the patrons with exhibition shows, the time will come for Carnera to do some fighting. Until then, it is most unlikely that any of his adversaries ever will smack him on the chin and see if he's real.
K. O. Spells Success
It will be interesting to watch just how carefully Carnera is brought up to his first fight. Jack Kearns brought Dempsey along by careful stages, piling up a great number of knockouts before going after the real spinach. The repetition of "K. O." after a fighter's name means quite a lot to the customers, even if the name in front of the magic words is Mumpus Grampus or Joe Skovar.
When it is finally deemed necessary for Carnera to fight, his opponent will be carefully chosen. In the background for the final shoveful of kopecks lurks Jack Dempsey. Sharkey, by beating Schmeling June 12, probably would be cut in on the big shot. Dempsey may yet return to meet Schmeling, however, as Max has a chin the Old Mauler would love to touch. The steam has gone from Dempsey's legs, but he still would be able to give one a fairly rough nudge on the jaw.
Events are slowly shaping themselves for some major brawls. It is a time for the customers to have courage.
Stuff on the Ball
Red Faber stood Mr. McGrath's Giants on their ears the other day, allowing two great big hits in seven innings. That's what a spitball will do for an old man trying to get along.
Urban Charles Faber will be 42 years old when September comes. The other spitball pitcher in the American League, Jack Quinn, was pitching in a small way the year that Brutus put Julius Caesar on the spot.
Urban himself will tell you that the spitball is the easiest delivery there is to fling.
"I was pitching for Minneapolis in 1911," said Urban the other day, "and it was because I had a sore arm that I took up the spitball. It's because I am a spitball pitcher that I am able to keep going today."
Faber says Ed Walsh was overworked and did not have to quit because the spitball was hard on his arm.
The health commissioner in Chicago says that whistles used by Chicago policemen are nerve racking and suggests some kind of "musical tooting." What those boys need is a sort of snare drum.

BREAKS GO AGAINST CHICAGO CHAMPIONS

National League Champs Have One Handicap After Another at Start.

Chicago, April 28—(AP)—The first two weeks hardly can be taken seriously in a major baseball campaign, but this year they have definitely established the fact that Joe McCarthy's Cubs will have to re-constitute if they are to repeat their National League championship.
Injuries have jinxed the team from the start and the end is still far from sight. Rogers Hornsby still is lame from the spur growth on his right heel and some batting punch may be missing from the team for a month, and possibly for the rest of the season, despite the cheerful reports of examining physicians.
Lester Bell, a big Cub investment in the attempt to plug up the weak third base post, still is suffering from a lame arm and he, too, may not get in any more games than the "Rajah." Added to that the pitching staff is far from ready and the big flock of promising rookies, obtained over winter to bolster the pitching staff, is not so promising now.

Added to all these "bearish" developments has been the break in the weather. Of all the teams in the National League, the Cubs need stalling time. Yet they are the only ones in the circuit to be denied. They have played every day since the season opened and today rest on the red side of the ledger with six won and seven lost.
Peculiarly enough, the world series skirmish with the Athletics seems to have left its impression on the team. All last season, the Cubs were dead against southpaw pitching. "Lefty" Grove of the A's stopped that habit and now the Cubs do not appear able to win from left-handers.
But Manager McCarthy and his team are fighting and take the start philosophically.
"It looks like we are getting all the bad breaks now," said Joe.

Several Games on Tap for the Week; Princeton Plays At Dartmouth Today; How They Stand.

New York, April 28—(AP)—Teams in the Eastern intercollegiate baseball league today open their busiest and most important work of the season with Princeton arrayed against Dartmouth at Princeton. With Gunnar Hollstrom available for pitching duty, Dartmouth is favored, but Princeton will have the incentive of a clear claim to the lead to urge itself on. Jeff Tesreau's team fought its way back into the thick of the pennant fight and at the same time dimmed Columbia's hopes considerably by defeating the light blue and white, 10 to 3, in New York Saturday. Laurie Mylykangas hit a home run with the bases full and pitched great ball.
The rest of the week's schedule in the league will give Pennsylvania and Cornell a chance to advance their standing. Penn will take on Columbia at Franklin Field on Wednesday and Yale on Saturday. Cornell will play Columbia in New York on Friday and Princeton in Princeton on Saturday.
As a result of its 8 to 3 victory over Pennsylvania in New Haven last Saturday, Yale is leading the league with a record of two games won and one lost. Penn, Dartmouth and Cornell each has won and lost two.
Columbia has won one and lost two. Princeton begins its season today against Dartmouth.

If Handmade Remember! Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

... the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency ... join it. Smoke GERTIFIED CREMO!

Thousands of men who would gladly trounce a spitter caught in the act continue, nevertheless, to accept cigars rolled by dirty fingers and tipped with spit! And remember more than half of all cigars made in this country are made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!
Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!
Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.
Crush-proof... immaculate... foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

"THIRICE NO!"

Called PANSY WAFFLEIRON

"None such as you can deceive me with your city tricks."
"I am growing impatient," said Silas Weaseltassle. "Take what I offer you."
"My daddy sent me for OLD GOLDS and I will take no other."
Old Silas saw his error for he knew that Pansy's father was running for mayor and needed OLD GOLDS to give him the voice to win. Not a defeat in an electionload.

RUNNER BEATS AUTOMOBILE

In gear with its motor running, an auto started from scratch with George Simpson, fastest human, and was beaten in a speed test of 100 yards at Pittsburgh after Simpson had led his Ohio State track to victory over the Pittsburgh Panthers in a dual meet. The auto used first and second speeds but the early lead Simpson was able to take proved too much handicap for the machine, which was rapidly overhauling the fastest human near the finish line. The novel test of speed was conducted by the Pittsburgh Press recently.

MONROE'S BIRTH

On April 28, 1758, James Monroe, fifth president of the United States, was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia.

He was sent to William and Mary College, but left it at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War to join Virginia troops in New York. Sent back to Virginia to raise a new regiment, Monroe made the acquaintance of Thomas Jefferson, then the governor of Virginia.

This contact had a decisive influence on Monroe's career, for at the age of 25 he entered Congress as a delegate from his native state. After serving three successive terms, he was sent to France as minister. He was recalled after two years for making an address which accentuated the strained relations between France and the United States.

In 1816, after he had served as governor of Virginia, Monroe was elected president of the United States by the Republican, now the Democratic, party. His most noteworthy acts included the recognition of the independence of Mexico and of the South American republics and the promulgation of what was called the "Monroe Doctrine." The period of his administration is known as the "era of good feeling" because of the general prosperity and absence of party strife.

Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, worked on a farm until he was nearly of age, and then taught country school to earn the money which sent him through college as honor student of his class.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinymites fished the live long day and it was quite a heap of play. At first wee Scouty had the luck and pulled the fish in fast. Said he, 'I am the best of all, I guess. I'm catching such a dandy mess. It seems that my luck is so good, it simply cannot last. "Oh, look! Another's on my line. I'm glad we came here. "This is fine." He jerked his line in quickly, as his pole began to sag. And when he found it was no use. He jerked too quick! The fish dropped loose, and Clowny shouted loudly, "That will teach you not to brag." Right soon the others had some luck. It seemed that everyone had struck right in a school of little fish and my, what fun they had. Each time they'd pull a nice fish in, the Travel Man would broadly grin. To see the bunch enjoy themselves of course made him feel glad. The water soon grew rather rough and Copy said, "We've had enough. Let's call the fishing off now and find something else to do. It would be fun if we could find a cafe where they wouldn't mind cooking this mess of fish for us. What say the rest of you?" They all agreed to this fine plan. "Well, we will do the best we can," replied one of the Tinymites. And they soon found a cafe where everything was worked out great. The Tinymites could hardly wait. And when the fish was served to them they all cried out, "Hurrah!" Soon they all walked about a block and once again were at the dock. "We'll take a sailboat now and cross the pretty Zuider Zee," exclaimed the friendly Travel Man. And to the sailboat they all ran. The trip across the water was as nice as it could be. (The Tinymites visit a famous cheese market in the next story.)
