MODERNIZE THE HOUSE WITH A STUCCO SIDING

One method of freshening up the exterior of the old home is to entirely change the siding of the house. A common method is to place shingles over the older clapboard siding or to use a brick veneer. The use of stucco for the modernized home is also effective. That stucco can easily be applied to the side walls of the existing house is conceded by all builders. This method can be done economically by simply applying to the old siding a mesh to which the stucco is applied. Some builders advise removing the old siding.

If stucco is applied to the old siding, the surface will be about one and one-half inches further from the wall than was the face of the old siding. Under these conditions the builder will have to watch window and door openings to see that they are either extended to take care of this or else the stucco is brought into the opening with a return.

Before applying stucco to any frame constructed house make certain that the house is structurally sound and will support the weight of the stucco. Examine the sills and have a carpenter replace any that are defective.

After the trim has been prepared, the work of applying the stucco proceeds. Waterproofing paper is applied directly to the exterior, then furring strips are attached and this covered with metal lath or woven wire cloth over which the stucco is placed.

Stucco can also be applied with success to masonry buildings, this is to buildings constructed of stone, clay brick, tile, concrete block or poured concrete.

The window and door openings in masonry almost invariably are built so that the trim does not project beyond the surface of the walls so that no change is usually necessary when stucco is used.

The walls in every case must be prepared to receive the stucco. This means that they must be properly cleaned. A poured concrete surface is roughened so that all smooth surface left by the forms is removed. Old clay brick or concrete block must be scrubbed to remove any dirt, or chipped to leave a clean surface. If they have been painted, the entire surface must be chipped off to at least one-quarter of an inch or beyond the depth to which the paint and oil have penetrated. Otherwise the stucco will not bond properly.

Stucco siding has many advantages which make it desirable. It is a good insulation and engineers claim that its application will reduce fuel bills about 15 per cent.

A CHARMING ONE STORY HOME

Many people prefer a house having all the rooms on one floor, with no stairs to climb. This plan embodies many good features of that type of home. The living rooms are well arranged in relation to each other and nicely separated from the bedrooms, bath and kitchen. The bedrooms are placed in an ell with a hall connecting with the living room and bath room. The kitchen is conveniently located in a corner of the plan. It has a dining alcove, good light and cross ventilation and connects with the dining room and bath. There are plenty of large closets, a feature that should not be overlooked.

The exterior presents a pleasing combination of brick, stone and stucco. The roof is of various colored slate. The stone entrance gable lends a note of dignity to the design.

A cellar extends under part of the house and provides space for the heating plant, laundry and storage, and a good air space is extended under all other rooms. The house contains 25,800 cubic feet and would cost approximately $11,500 to build.

Complete working plans and specifications of this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to House A-228.

MODES TRACED TO SOCIAL NEED AND CLIMATES

BY FRANK C. FARLEY

With almost every variety of soil and climate from semi-tropical to nearly polar, the United States offers to its dwellers an almost limitless field in the choice of style for the construction of houses. Each region, however, just as other parts of the world, has evolved or is evolving modes of building in tune with its climatic, structural and social needs.

The climatic needs will always be more or less constant. The structural and social needs, however, will always be variable. The long, severe winters of the North, whatever the financial means of the builder may be, will inevitably demand a house more capable of resisting the inclemencies of the weather than the house built for the equable climate of southern California.

Northern House Compact

In the regions midway between the North and the Far South, while the extremes of temperature may be comparatively few days of severe cold and the long hot spells will tend to be shorter. These facts will help explain why in the past the Northern house has often been built more compactly than the Southern house. For the smaller the outer surface the easier it is to prevent radiation.

Similar climates will tend to produce similar building types, hence in its broad lines the house of our Eastern seaboard has been the direct descendant of the houses of England, northern France, the low countries and Germany, from which countries has come until fairly recent years the great bulk of our population.

Thus the New England houses have tended to follow more or less contemporary English models. Dutch influences mingled with English are found throughout the Hudson valley and its environs, and in parts of Pennsylvania a certain German feeling is clear. Farther south in Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and in the Carolinas and Georgia the English style again prevails in far more ample manner than in the North.

As one goes South more and more is the long summer season recognized by the greater prominence given to porticos and verandas and other features devoted to out-of-door living. Finally, when Florida is reached, the change of season becomes so much less marked that the house of the Mediterranean type becomes usual, introduced by its original settlers from Europe, the Spanish, and now revived by the new settlers from the North and West of our country.

English Types in Northwest

The middle West region has tended to follow the Northeast, and the Gulf coast the south Atlantic coast. The Pacific Coast, Washington, Oregon and northern California, with an abundance of rainfall, especially in Washington, have a distinctly northern type of climate almost like that of England, hence there most of the dwellings have tended toward English and north European types.

South of San Francisco, however, the climate, the topography and the relatively scant rainfall are like southern France, Italy or Spain. So with original settlements made by people of Spanish extraction what could be more expected than that the main feeling of the dwellings of the region should be Spanish or Italian?

Of the social forces constantly at work, the economic factor has always played a major part, at no time more than at present. The cost of the average house built has always been a large item in the family budget. The house was intended to accommodate the family of usual size, hence with the gradual diminution in the size of the family has come a corresponding reduction in the size of the house.

Modern Architecture Marks Belgium's Fair

Liege, Belgium—(AP)—Modernistic architecture with straight lines and broad sweeping curves affording striking contrasts, mark the World's Fair here.

The exposition is part of Belgium's celebration of a century of independence and tourists from all parts of the world are visiting it. It was opened in May by King Albert and will continue through the summer.

The Liege exhibit is supplemented by an exposition at Antwerp devoted to the colonial and maritime activities of Belgium. Science, industry, agriculture and art, as practiced in forty nations, are illustrated here.

Some of the contributing nations erected their own buildings but most of them have taken part in joint displays with other countries in the large halls devoted to electricity, mechanics, radio, medical sciences and similar subjects. This system has grouped the various branches so that persons interested in them may see the whole subject without visiting a number of buildings.

One of the striking architectural achievements of the exposition is the Palace of Electricity. It emphasizes the perpendicular with a suggestion of the conventional zig-zag of lightning in the terraced outline of its entrance facade. It is brilliantly illuminated at night and houses the latest electrical achievements of forty countries.

In contrast are the Palace of Mechanics, Metallurgy and Mines and the Italian government building. The circle is the chief motif of the former while the latter is characterized by a towering circular bay at its entrance that reminds irreverent Yankee visitors of the gas houses of American cities.

The Palace of Arms, containing modern weapons exhibited by two-score governments, and a bungalow-like structure erected to house the display sent by the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, are also built on modernistic lines. The city of Paris, on the contrary, put up a domed building suggestive of the French renaissance in which to show the artistic, scientific and political history of the French capital.

MAKING A LILY POOL IS A SIMPLE MATTER

The silver glitter of a lily pool in the moonlight or its sparkling movement on a clear windy morning bring the enchantment of rustic dell and glade to the city garden or suburban half-acre. And any home gardener, with a penchant for experimenting and a disposition to muscular activity, can make a simple but satisfactory lily pool by following these practical suggestions.

First decide upon a spot for your pool where there is a natural rustic background of ferns and rocks or where an artificial one may be readily developed. The shape of the pool will depend largely upon the location which you have selected, but a kidney shape is advisable because a very charming composition may be made by planting rhododendrons in the earthy indentation.

Dig a hole a foot or two feet deep. Then mix cement, stones and water or cement and water alone, depending upon whether you prefer a rough or smooth texture, and coat the sides and bottom of the excavation liberally with the mixture. Allow it to dry thoroughly.

Some of the most romantic artificial pools of the Old World depended upon color as well as water and plants for their beauty. You may borrow this aesthetic idea for your own lily pool. The blue-green of lovely old tiles gleaming underneath the water of some pool in an Italian or Spanish garden may be simulated by painting concrete.

After it has dried, it should be treated with a zinc or copper sulphate solution (about eight ounces of crystals to a gallon of water) and allow to dry again. The surface may then be painted with a brick stucco and cement coating or a concrete floor paint. These are especially prepared to sink into the pores of materials like cement and are waterproof. A bright blue-green is the most charming color because of its authentic foreground and because it is so perfect a background for gold fish.

Yes, you may have gold fish in your lily pond by syphoning the water out occasionally and running fresh water in. And a little earth in the bottom of the pond will afford nourishment and anchorage for water lilies.

ings were the rule and logically windows had to be high to protect the interior of the building. But today the style in window has changed. The windows are so high and several are often placed in an opening. These windows are equipped with weights so that they slide easily and often the lighter upper sash are divided by a row muntin bars which add texture to the window mass and give sense of protection.

The new treatment gives a sense of natural light and fresh air to the interior of the building. The modern home is a bright, cheery one and the windows play an important part in accomplishing this effect.

NEW WINDOW TREATMENT IN THE MODERN HOUSE

High narrow windows, usually one to an opening are the sign of an old style house. Back in the days of the World's Fair, high ceilings

How to Shop. GOOD SOAP IS SAFEST CLEANSER. By William H. Baldwin.

In the problem of cleansing, "elbow grease" still remains the most important factor; but for almost every type of surface some cleaning agent has been marketed as a ready help.

Cleaning agents are divided roughly into the abrasives, such as steel wool, where the action is the simple one of scraping, and the solvents which induce some type of chemical reaction.

In addition there are the waxes for hardwood floors. It is in the solvents and floor waxes that the greatest danger lies.

The shopper has reassurance in the knowledge that a good soap is about as good as, and is safer than many patented preparations for quick laundering, and that benzene, the basis of commercial dry cleaning, can be obtained easily for home use.

NUMBER OF YOUR HOUSE SHOULD BE EASILY SEEN. Do the numbers on your house show up plainly? When your friends call on you and have only the address do they find your house easily?

The average house number is hard to find and strangers in the neighborhood often have difficulty in locating the address they are seeking. Place the numbers of your house where they will be easily seen. At night a light should be placed on them, for there is the most difficult preparation for quick laundering, and that benzene, the basis of commercial dry cleaning, can be obtained easily for home use.

Feeding the baby is a matter not to be trifled with. The one rule to remember is that it should always be done under the doctor's supervision...

Rules Aid In Care. However, a few standard rules on the subject of time may be of help. But these vary with the individual baby and all that a mother can do with this schedule is to check in a general way what she is already doing.

These rules are directly quoted from an accepted authority on baby feeding: "During second day: four-hour intervals; five feedings in 24 hours (6 a. m., 10 a. m., 2 p. m., 6 p. m., 10 p. m.)."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

With rock-gardens and perennial borders flourishing as never before, one can spare a corner for the old-time sweet herbs. Because of their aromatic "bouquet," these add much to the flavor of all foods...

Tarragon vinegar should be made in August when the leaves are at their best, although the dried leaves always can be purchased. Four cups of hot vinegar are poured over one cup of fresh leaves and allowed to stand three weeks, stirring each day.

Basil vinegar is made by steeping the leaves in vinegar. For two weeks the vinegar is heated each day and poured over the leaves. The vinegar is strained and more basil added until the desired strength is obtained.

Grate nutmeg, squeeze juice from lemons. Heat vinegar to the boiling point. Combine all ingredients and bring again to the boiling point. Bottle and let stand three weeks. Strain, bottle and seal.

Science Acts To Make Home Safe For Mother, Children And Even Pa. Washington—(AP)—To prevent mishaps such as happened to Mrs. Herbert Hoover when she suffered a strain back from slipping on a waxed floor of the White House, the U. S. Bureau of Standards is investigating the 24,000 accidents which occur yearly in American homes.

Forty per cent of such accidents, according to Dr. M. A. Lloyd, head of the "Safety of the Household" department which is making the investigation, are caused by falls.

The Bureau of Standards has asked the club women of North Carolina to assist in the preliminary survey by making reports of all accidents occurring in their homes during the last year.

From the findings of these reports the bureau will make recommendations for prevention which will be presented to the General Federation of Women's Clubs at its biennial convention in Denver.

Dr. Lloyd will suggest the attaching of small rugs to the floors to prevent falls. Rails to cellar steps will be another precautionary measure advocated as will hand holds on bath tubs. Many falls are due to slippery tubs.

FRENCH AUDIENCES DISLIKE REALISM

Paris—(AP)—Eating real food and using wet raincoats on the stage make the Frenchmen think American audiences lack imagination. "French prefer what Americans consider artificial and 'play acting.'"

France's finest theater, the Pigalle, called by experts the best equipped playhouse in the world, is convinced that it was raining the audience had to see and hear the rain as well as see the actors come in drenched from the shower.

The implication was that French actors could make an audience believe it was raining merely by telling them so, because French audiences had sufficient imagination.

Meanwhile, giving emphasis to the difference in the American and the French view of the theater, the Baltimore producer, explained somewhat the Pigalle's failure, not then generally known, by describing the psychology of French audiences.

Could a French play be a success in the United States? "A typical American theatergoer," said Sax, "prefers a naturalistic play but even when he goes to see 'modern' drama he wishes to believe in the reality of what he sees. He wants it to be convincing and he would like to forget he is in a theater watching actors perform."

French are Different. "Not so with the French. To them the theater is the theater. They love truly artistic theatricality. To the French scenery is scenery and they make not the slightest demand that they be deceived into thinking it is anything else. And all acting is acting and they glory in it as such."

In discussing the differences in technique, Comedians, the principal theatrical paper, remarks of the American players in "The Barker" that "in order to make the audience believe the tent was pitched out doors, they had to cover the stage with real sod and in order to be convinced that it was raining the audience had to see and hear the rain as well as see the actors come in drenched from the shower."

CHERRY CUBES

You can add inspiration to your ice cubes if you color them with fruit coloring and add a red cherry to each one. Frozen, the cherry looks most attractive bobbing around in its iceberg.

SPEAKING OF TALKING

"DAD, MY DEAR, I'M GOING TO TALK TO YOU ABOUT YOUR MISPRONUNCIATION AND INCORRECT GRAMMAR AND HOW YOU CAN'T HELP IT."

"PUT WHEN SHE GETS ME ALONE."

"DID HER HURT HER TITS FINNER? MUMMER KISS IT - NOW HER'S BETTER - MUMMER'S TITTLE GULL LAMB."

ORGANDIE SUIT. The ultimate in femininity and summer coolness is expressed in the organdie suit, a brand new vanity women are putting their stamp of approval on. A navy blue one, made with sailing skirt and fitted and sailing jacket, has a white organdie gilet with hand-drawn vestee, collar and four-inch sleeves.

SEA-TUNG ENSEMBLE. Quite the shiftest entire costume Paris has sent us for sports is an aqua-blue shantung ensemble of pleated skirt, tuck-in, square-neck gilet, sleepless cardigan and stitched hat, opera pumps and bag, all matching.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

When they had finished with their bread and started off wee Scouty said, "Let's take some bread along with us and eat it after while. When we are hungry 'twill taste good." The Travel Man then said he could, and Scouty, loaded down with bread, made everybody smile. When he had gone a block or two a breeze came up. Next thing he knew the bread was blown to pieces and it scattered o'er the ground. Then Scouty, through a silly grin, said, "Aw, that bread is much too thin. When we want more, we'll buy it fresh. I'm sure it can be found." All of a sudden someone said, "Where's Clowny? Look! He's far ahead. I wonder what he's up to now. We'd better run and see." And then when up to him they ran, they found him with an old fruit man. The fruit he had made all of them as hungry as could be. "I want a bunch of grapes," cried

one. "Come on, we'll have a heap of fun just sitting here and eating the fruit and ah, while we're waiting they promptly bought a great big bunch. "That surely was a real good bunch," the Travel Man exclaimed, "but don't eat more grapes than you should." They all enjoyed the fresh fruit treat and ate, while walking down the street. Soon Carpy said, "What is that woman doing, over there?" The Tynmites turned around and saw a woman on the ground. "She's spinning yarn. Let's watch her," shouted Scouty. "She won't care." The spinning spindle, made of wood, spun round as quickly as it could. The woman's feet were holding it, just so it wouldn't slide. The yarn rolled round it very neat. To watch her work was quite a treat. The woman merely smiled, as they all gathered by her side. (More surprises come in the next story.)

GIRL HERE WINS FIRST PRIZE IN ART CONTEST

Miss Esther Welles of Oakland Gets $25 Award—Miss Piesick Does Hale's Work.

Miss Esther Welles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin G. Welles of Oakland has been awarded first prize of $25 in the poster contest conducted by the Connecticut Horticultural society for its September show to be held at the State Armory in Hartford. The contest was open to students of the Hartford Art school, and the colors were limited to three, including that of the poster. Miss Welles chose a conventionalized nasturtium design in orange with green leaves on a field of green. The lettering is artistically executed in the color of flowers and leaves. It is probable the winning posters will be exhibited later in one of the Hartford department stores.

Miss Josephine Piesick of School street, this town, another student at the Hartford Art school, was the artist who drew the panel pictures used extensively this week by the J. W. Hale company in advertising their thirty-third anniversary. Miss Piesick's drawings, depicting styles in women's dress from 1897 to the present day are very well done and true to the periods represented.

Both young women are graduates of the Manchester High school and studied under Miss Harriet Condon, art teacher at the High school. Miss Welles has completed her three-year course at the Hartford Art school and Miss Piesick has another year in prospect.

COURT RECEIPTS HERE INCREASED
Total Number of Cases Reaches 770 — Big Increase in Drunk Drivers.

The fiscal year of the Manchester Town Court ends with the 30th day of June. From the report of Thomas Ferguson, the clerk of the court, some interesting facts are disclosed. The number of cases before the court for the year just closed was decidedly increased because of the large number of motor vehicle violations. The total number of cases was 770, a record breaker. Of this number 293 were for violations of the state motor vehicle laws such as speeding, driving without a license, reckless driving, driving without proper brakes and without lights.

Drugs Broadcasts TWICE A WEEK NOW
The popularity of the Wednesday night organ broadcasts by Collins Driggs, pianist, from station WTIC has resulted in a Saturday morning broadcast which began this morning at 10 o'clock. The type of concert played by the Manchester organist has been well received during the winter and early spring, and the demand of his unseen audience has been granted.

More Drunk Drivers
Just 43 persons were convicted in Manchester for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor during the year just closed. This is a big increase over that of last year. Fifteen persons paid fines for selling liquor. Apparently the liquor sellers are more careful for the reason that the police keep a watchful eye on such people.

Receipts Increase
The number of convictions for intoxication in the local court was 457. Of course, liquor had to do with many more cases brought before the court such as non-support, assault, and breach of the peace. The receipts of the court for the year amounted to $15,528.70. Of this amount $3,429.91 went to the town and $7,088.79 went to the state. The state gets all the fines imposed for motor vehicle viola-

A house became a home last night when nearly 40 friends and relatives of Mrs. Tansia Lindstrom gathered in a surprise house warming party at her recently completed residence on Autumn street, a four-room single house. Mrs. Lindstrom was presented with a kitchen set, consisting of a breakfast table and four chairs to match, and a wicker rocker. The presentation being made by Mrs. Selma Erickson of Laurel street.

The evening was spent in an inspection of the new home and playing bridge and setback. John Soderburg of Haynes street entertained with violin selections. Sandwiches, cake, cookies, and coffee, were served later in the evening, the party breaking up at a late hour with memories of a pleasant evening.

DRIGGS BROADCASTS TWICE A WEEK NOW

The popularity of the Wednesday night organ broadcasts by Collins Driggs, pianist, from station WTIC has resulted in a Saturday morning broadcast which began this morning at 10 o'clock. The type of concert played by the Manchester organist has been well received during the winter and early spring, and the demand of his unseen audience has been granted.

The Wednesday night concerts will be continued over WTIC and the Saturday morning feature will give those who have been unable to listen in on the late broadcast, the pleasure of enjoying the light, tuneful popular music which Driggs has so ably employed in his theater programs.

SWIMMING CARNIVAL AT GLOBE TUESDAY
Duck Chase Always Proves Feature — Starts Promptly At 6:30.

The third annual swimming carnival will be held at Globe Hollow on next Tuesday evening, it was announced today by Director Lewis Lloyd, who added that the program would start promptly at 6:30 and be completed in time for those attending to match, and a wicker rocker.

These water carnival's always attract large crowds and the one next week is not expected to be an exception to the rule. The fun is enjoyed equally by those participating in the events and those safe and dry on shore who get many a chuckle watching festivities from the shore.

One of the most spectacular events in carnivals at Globe Hollow is always the duck chase. Three or four ducks are turned loose from a boat in the middle of the pond and a posse of swimmers starts in pursuit. It usually requires considerable time and effort on the part of the contestants before the elusive birds are captured.

There will be all sorts of other events both of a comic and a serious nature. Boys and girls desiring to enter should leave their names with Frank Busch, lifeguard at the pond.

GANGSTER MURDERED
Detroit, July 12 — (AP) — Gang warfare claimed another victim here early today. Sam Glufu, who police say was a veteran bootlegger and racketeer, was killed in a gun battle on East Jefferson avenue about 12:30 a. m. Clufu and a companion were riding in a small coupe. Another car followed and its occupants opened fire. Their bullets pierced the tires Clufu's automobile forcing him to stop. His companion leaped out and escaped on foot. Clufu gave battle but several bullets entered his body.
