

RUSSIA PLANS TO UNITE ALL ITS RESOURCES

To Make Nation Independent of Other Countries — To Translate Technical Books Into Soviet Languages.

Moscow, July 14.—(AP.)—All the resources of Soviet Russia will be mobilized to increase the industrial, agricultural, mining and chemical productivity of the country and to decrease the cost of production, if the resolutions passed by the Sixteenth Congress of the Russian Communist Party at its closing session are carried out. These resolutions direct all party organs and the government institutions to co-operate for the nation's "real."

The iron and steel output, according to these resolutions, is to be so increased that by 1932 it will reach 17,000,000 tons annually.

Machine Building

The development of machine building is to be greatly expanded in order to make the country less dependent upon imported machinery. Russia's dearth of fuel is to be remedied by expanding the coal industry and enforcing the utmost economy in fuel consumption. An increase in the output of tractors and other agricultural machinery is to quicken the pace of agricultural development.

The Congress further favors an increasing use of foreign technical methods in Soviet industries, and urged that the practice of sending Soviet engineers abroad to study modern technique and of inviting foreign engineers into the Soviet Union be widely extended.

Technical Books

In order further to aid the industrialization of Russia, the Communist Congress urged the translation of the latest technical books and articles published in Europe or America into the languages of the Soviet Union, so as to prepare wide masses of the working people for carrying out mechanical tasks.

Details of the agricultural program as devised by the Congress include the development of animal husbandry on a large scale. Collective and state cattle farms are to be established.

In the course of the next year, 4,500,000 hectares of land are to be sowed with grain and provision made that in 1931 there shall be 100 million hectares on the farms of the state grain

YOUTH KILLS GIRL; BODY IN FURNACE

Confesses to Police After Girl Is Reported Missing With Company Payroll.

Portland, Me., July 14.—(AP.)—A 22-year-old youth, alleged by police to have confessed the brutal slaying of a 20-year-old girl who worked in the same store when she repulsed his advances, today pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder. He waived hearing and reading of the warrant and was remanded to jail without bail for the September term of Superior Court. James M. Mitchell, the youth, was arrested yesterday a few hours after the charred body of Miss Lillian MacDonald was found in the basement of a Congress street stationery store.

Miss MacDonald was last seen Saturday morning when she went to the basement of the establishment to pay off some employees, according to police officials.

Killed in Basement

According to police Mitchell made advances toward the girl and when she slapped his face, picked up the grate shaker of the furnace, struck her over the head and then delivered another blow as she fell to the floor.

He then pushed her body into the furnace using an iron pipe to prod it back and burned it along with rubbish and waste paper.

Go to Movies

While fellow employees and police searched the entire store for a trace of the girl when she was reported missing shortly before noon Saturday, Mitchell went about his regular duties in the basement, keeping a close watch on the furnace to make sure the body was destroyed. Officers who questioned Mitchell at that time were told that Miss MacDonald had paid him off and then walked towards the rear of the basement. Although many of the officials believed at that time that the young woman had left the place with the payroll, the girl's relatives insisted she had

Atlanta Has Holiday When Bobby Returns

Atlanta, July 14.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones came home today from his triumphant golfing wars to find his home folks had prepared the greatest of all receptions since he began winning National golf titles eight years ago.

A number of close friends met the train which brought Bobby from Minneapolis eight miles from Atlanta and took him to an undisclosed destination until the hour for the start of the formal reception set for 12 o'clock (C. S. T.).

Mayor Ragsdale had declared a holiday and citizens of Atlanta, young and old, prepared to join in welcoming their hero. Business houses had announced they would close for two hours so their employees could take part in the exercises which were to start with a parade down Peachtree street.

HOOVER HOLDS UP HIS NOMINATIONS

Tariff Commission Will Not Be Reorganized Until the Senate Adjourns.

Washington, July 14.—(AP.)—The prospect that the tariff commission will not be re-organized until after adjournment of the Senate treaty session was seen today at the Capital with word from the White House that no nominations would be made pending approval of a date to vote on the treaty. Under the new tariff act, President Hoover has until September 17 to appoint a new commission. Any of the six incumbent commissioners who are not reappointed and confirmed by that date automatically go out of office.

Should the President wait until the last few days of the special session to send in any nominations to the commission, the chances of confirmation before adjournment would be impaired by the controversies which often attend such appointments.

Mr. Hoover has had many names under consideration for the commission. He also has been reported as ready to reappoint some of the present commissioners.

Pending the reorganization, the present commission has been reluctant to start actively upon any new investigations ordered by the Senate since enactment of the new law June 17.

ESCAPED PRISONER ATTEMPTS HOLD-UP

Woman's Screams Bring Po- lice and Long Sought for Youth Finally Arrested.

New Britain, July 14.—(AP.)—James (Cowboy) Caplocki, 18, for two years a fugitive from the Bridgeport police, and John Salomon, 19, of New York, formerly of this city, were taken to jail today in default of bonds of $10,000 after they had been bound over to Superior Court on a charge of robbery while armed in a store here Saturday night. Caplocki slipped his handcuffs and escaped from the Bridgeport police two years ago while being transferred to jail from Superior Court after a trial for stealing an automobile. Caplocki, Salomon, and a youth who has not been apprehended entered the meat market conducted by Klemens Kukuk at 974 Clinton street late Saturday night. Caplocki is said to have flourished a long knife and ordered the proprietor, his wife and a boy clerk to go into the refrigerator.

BYRD COMPLETES BANQUET ROUNDS

Starts On Vacation Today; To Write Books and Lec- ture This Winter.

New York, July 14.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd sat down today to the last luncheon of his current career as an Antarctic hero.

Before the end of the week, after clearing up some business details of the expedition from which he came home on June 19, he will quit the scenes of crowds and tumults and parades for his retreat in Dublin, N. H., to join his wife and children and to remain until late in September.

Today's luncheon, given by the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, the fifteenth since his return from Antarctica almost a month ago.

Nineteen Banquets

There have been nineteen public dinners and a scattering of afternoon teas. He has been received formally by President Hoover, the cities of New York, Washington, Richmond, Albany, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis, most of the states he has visited and half a dozen countries.

He has been feted by the National Geographic Society, Chambers of Commerce, Advertising and Press clubs, motion picture companies and personal friends.

Between functions he has held conferences, answered correspondence, and found a little time to visit with friends. He has survived the round of festivities in fine shape, according to intimates, and looks and feels as well as when he landed in New York last month.

As soon as a few business affairs in New York are cleared up he will go to his U. S. bin summer home to write up his scientific notes, write a book, prepare lectures and re-acquaint himself with his family.

On September 30, at Indiana, Pa., he will start a lecture tour which will carry him across the northern part of the country to Oregon, down the Pacific coast and back east through the southwest and south, visiting most of the 48 states. The tour will take all winter.

After that he hasn't any plans. Another expedition to the ends of the earth?

The admiral smiles and says he doesn't know.

"Maybe."

The admiral has abandoned, except for state occasions, the distinguishing naval uniform. Today, when he arrived from St. Louis, he went unadorned through the crowd of returning week-end vacationists in the Pennsylvania station.

RUTH M'CORMICK SPENT $252,500 AT PRIMARIES

Says Nye's Statement That Her Expenses Were $300,000 Is Inaccurate; Gives Details of Spendings

Chicago, July 14.—(AP.)—Appearing before the Senate inquiry into the Illinois Republican Senatorial campaign Ruth Hanna McCormick today defended her personal expenditure of $252,500 and said an additional $67,214 was used in her behalf by volunteer organizations which supported her campaign.

Mrs. McCormick presented a 7,000 word statement in which she criticized Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the special campaign funds committee, for asserting that his investigation had found she had spent approximately $325,000 instead of the $252,500 she had reported.

False Statement

The Republican Senatorial nominee Senator Nye's statement was inaccurate and misleading, based on the fact that she voluntarily had submitted a supplemental report setting forth the spending of the $67,214 before the investigators had inquired into these expenditures.

The $67,214 was used by three organizations and was obtained by contributions from friends and relatives, Mrs. McCormick said.

The Voters Progress League used $44,000; the Illinois Young Peoples Republican Club $10,000; and the Ruth Hanna McCormick Volunteers $8,214.

Expense Account

Mrs. McCormick said her report of expenses was "a document which should be scrutinized by all citizens interested in the problem of campaign expenditures. The report for the first time tells the whole story without any confusing complications either as to source of money, the nature of the disbursements, the exact total expended or as to who spent it. I hope my effort this will be a contribution to the public's right to understand our primary election system and offer a basis for remedial legislation."

Mrs. McCormick reiterated that she had conducted her campaign solely as an independent Republican candidate without any alliance with any faction or group. She washed her hands of Chicago "city hall" group organizations but acknowledged that she undoubtedly had been more or less benefited by the opposition of various factions to the candidacy of Senator Charles S. Deneen, her opponent.

She called attention to the fact that her campaign cost her only $42.63 for each 1,000 votes as compared with the $105.00 for each 1,000 expended in the presidential Party Leaves in Tiny Boat; One Man Found Clinging to Wreckage.

Boston, July 14.—(AP.)—The probability that six out of seven members of a yachting party which put out of Scituate yesterday, were lost in a squall which overjured their craft loomed today when they were fishing trawler St. Rita put in here with Barden Garceau, 25, who was found clinging to the wreckage.

THOSE IN PARTY

Scituate, Mass., July 14.—(AP.)—Three Coast Guard destroyers and two seaplanes today were searching the waters of the south shore for an 18-foot yawl containing six young men and a girl, missing since yesterday when they put out from the yacht club here.

Those aboard the tiny craft were: Charles Hall, 28, Scituate, the skipper.

Walter Ceaser, 28, Youngstown, Ohio; John Brewer, 26, Pittsburgh, Pa.; David Garache, 27, Concord, Mass.

Barden Garceau, 23, Boston; William Earl, 25, Kansas City; Betty Mumell, Watertown, Mass. All were visitors at an exclusive summer colony.

When the party failed to return at midnight, E. S. Hall, father of Charles, notified the Coast Guard at North Scituate and a patrol boat was sent in search. Today, the elder Hall charted a seaplane at the East Boston Airport and joined in the search. A heavy downpour was prevalent along shore and police along the coast were asked to be on the lookout for the missing party.

FRANCE IS CELEBRATING FALL OF THE BASTILLE

Elaborate Pageant Visual- izes 151st Anniversary of Historic Event — Foreign Diplomats Sit in Stand.

Paris, July 14.—(AP.)—France's past military glory and strength today were visualized for the world in an imposing review and parade through the streets of the capital on the 151st anniversary of the fall of the Bastille.

Troops wearing the costumes of the days when the French conquered Algeria, 100 years ago, and in all the uniforms of the many campaigns since, marched past President Doumergue, the Bey of Tunis, minister of war, the Navy and Air Department and military attaches of all countries of the world including the United States.

Most of the ambassadors were in the presidential stand also. Among them sat the Japanese Imperial Prince Takamatu.

Airplanes Overhead

Overhead six squadrons of pursuit planes dived in arrowhead formation while brilliantly-uniformed envoys and military figures in automobiles, escorted by Republican guards, moved in panoramas before main units representing the present day arms of France in the great open space before the Invalides which Napoleon erected.

In the reviewing stand near the Champs Elysees the presidential party watched the greatest parade of troops of all arms since France, soon after the World War, abandoned the famous military review at Longchamps.

NATIVES SEARCHING FOR DYING FLIER

Companion, Less Seriously Injured, Leaves Him In Jungle To Seek Aid.

Rangoon, Burma, July 14.—(AP.)—Searching parties penetrating the southern Burmes jungle today hoped to find Eric Hook, British airman, left dying last week by a buddy, Jimmie Matthews, who stumbled on, he said, to find help for both of them.

Little hope was held for the success of the quest. Matthews himself, bruised from the crash of their England to Australia airplane ten days ago, was worn out by his subsequent march to civilization, discouraged any hope. The jungle where he left Hook is known for its predatory wild beasts.

Matthews Saturday reached Prome, 180 miles north of Rangoon, with the story that he and Hook cracked up their plane on a mountain side July 8 while flying between Akyab, Burma and Rangoon, in an attempt to lower the fifteen day flight record from England to Australia.

Both were injured in the crash but Hook the much more injured. Matthews said Hook was in a dying condition when finally he left him.

After wandering for some time Matthews found by a group of village hunters

ROBINSON SCORES MARKETING LAWS

Says That Shadow of Gloom Falls All Over United States At Present.

Washington, July 14.—(AP.)—Saying "the shadow of gloom still falls all over the United States," Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, expressed doubt today that the tariff and farm marketing laws would relieve the situation.

The Arkansas Senator, speaking over the National broadcasting system, said a study of the Smoot-Hawley tariff showed it would fall in its "primary purpose" of resuscitating agriculture.

"There exists a widespread conviction," he said, "that the changes in the tariff law alleged to have been made for the benefit of agriculture, will, on the whole, work quite as much injury as it will bring benefit to the farmers."

Is An Experiment

He said the Farm Marketing Act was still in the nature of an experiment but added there was nothing to cause hope that it "will prove beneficial to the degree which its champions contemplated."

The minority leader noted the Marketing Act and met opposition from private agencies "fearing the competition from co-operative and stabilization corporations," and said this "obstruction" had gravely hampered the board.

The flexible provision of the tariff law, Robinson said, "is a delusion and a snare."

"Less than forty years have been increased or diminished by the President through power conferred upon him by the Senate provision," he said. "In all 'important' cases his hands are tied."

"Less than forty years have been increased or diminished by the President through power conferred upon him by the Senate provision," he said. "In all 'important' cases his hands are tied."

Democratic Senator Makes Earnest Plea for Ratifica- tion After Conference With the President—Cites His Reason for Favoring Pact — Republican Lead- ers Act to Induce Absen- tees to Return to Capital.

Washington, July 14.—(AP.)—Senator Robinson of Arkansas, who helped to write the London naval treaty, today gave the Senate the reasons he believes it should be ratified while others of its friends worked on plans to speed action by assuring the constant presence of a quorum.

The second week of debate found 52 Senators answering the opening roll call. President Hoover had consulted Senator Watson, the Republican leader, and Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, on the question of inducing absentee Senators to return.

Two Senators hitherto absent, Kean of New Jersey and Gould of Maine, were present today.

Robinson, who leads the Democrats, was freshly acquainted with the President's views. He and Senator Swanson, also a Democrat, were at the White House last night.

Robinson's Argument

Addressing his colleagues, Robinson expressed hope that the treaty debate would not develop personal or partisan hostility or antagonism. He cited his reasons for favoring the pact as follows:

"1.—The instrument limits all classes of war ships for the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

"2.—The treaty accomplishes substantial reduction in capital ships by accelerating the scrapping of Great Britain of five; by the United States of three and by Japan of one of these very costly vessels.

"3.—Japanese submarines will be very greatly reduced and the use of these outlaws of the seas will be restricted by the treaty so that their effectiveness when attacking will be comparable to that of surface craft.

Better Position

"4.—It is indubitable that the treaty gives the Navy of the United States a better relative position with respect to the navies of Great Britain and Japan than it occupied at the time of the conference.

"5.—The treaty tends to allay the fears and rivalries which prior to its negotiations threatened to involve the three countries in intense competition respecting sea power and commerce.

"The refusal of advice and consent by the Senate to ratification would threaten serious consequences."

Opening Roll Call

The opening roll call, showing three more than the 49 majority present, found the following answering their names:

Republicans: Aton, Bingham, Borah, Capper, Couzens, Deneen, Fess, Gillett, Glenn, Goldsborough, Gould, Hale, Hastings, Hebert, Johnson, Jones, Kean, Keyes, LaFollette, McClellan, McNary, McCall, Moses, Norris, Odell, Patterson, Phelps, Reed, Robinson of Indiana, Robinson of Ohio, Shriver, Smith, Steiwer, Sullivan, Thomas of Idaho, Townsend, Vandenberg and Watson.—Total 38.

Democrats: Black, Fletcher, George, Harris, Harrison, Kendrick, McKellar, Overman, Robinson of Arkansas, Sheppard, Swanson, Thomas of Oklahoma, Trammell, Walsh of Montana.—Total 14.

Grand Total—52

"The quorum is the issue," said Senator Borah after the White House visit. "The Senate will ratify the treaty but it will not if the membership isn't there to do business."

Assurance that a quorum could be kept on hand this week was felt in the Senate with the appearance of three members who had not answered the first call, Dale of Vermont, Hatfield of West Virginia and Pina of Oklahoma. The last had not previously been present for the special session.

Those Fact Papers

Senate attention was diverted for a while to the controversy between the President and the Senate over the secret correspondence lead up to the treaty negotiations. Answering the refusal to deliver the papers, Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, an opponent of the pact, said:

"The President speaks of breach of trust. There has been no breach of trust. The President has committed a breach of trust against the Senate, his co-equal and co-party in treaty making.

"Under the wording of my resolution, the President could have seen them."

SHOOTING FOR KNOWLEDGE

Daniel Guggenheim, whose contributions to aviation have made possible much of the progress that has been made in far less time than otherwise would have been the case, has taken active interest in the scientific experiments of Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark University, Worcester, Mass.

Mr. Guggenheim announces that Dr. Goddard's experiments have progressed to such a point that scientific data is likely to result. Prominent scientists and technicians have consented to join with him in the furtherance of a plan that for years has been the basis of ridicule on the part of many.

His plan has been described as shooting a rocket to the moon and scores of articles appeared during the past few years, much of them purely imaginative. Neither Professor Goddard nor anyone else knows exactly what the results will be.

THE NAVAL TREATY. The Senate did not get the secret documents concerning the London Naval Pact. The Senate had no right to them.

THE POSTAL DEFICIT. No private business would long be conducted with one important branch of it showing annually a heavy deficit. Yet the government conducts our postal business that continually of late years shows "in the red."

business it does, the greater the loss. There is not the slightest reason why users of the mails should not pay the cost. But we cannot agree with the suggestion of the postal authority that the rate on first class mail be increased one-half cent.

SOME FIGURES

Dry agents made a total of 68,186 arrests during the past year which is an increase of 2,000 over the preceding twelve months. Of the 24,373 stills captured during the same period the large majority were taken in the southern tier of states.

Admitting that Representative Clancy's figures are reasonably near the truth it does seem to be rather an unfair distribution of expenses in proportion to the results. Now what we would like to know is: if we captured 24,373 stills during the past year and we still are manufacturing nine-nine and one-half per cent. within the borders of this free country, how many stills are now in operation?

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER. NEA Service Writer. Washington, July 14.—Maj.-Gen. Ewing E. Booth, who has become assistant chief of staff in the U. S. army without ever graduating from West Point, used to be driving a laundry wagon around the streets of Pueblo, Colo.

He always knew his horses. At the age of 5 he rode horseback from Texas to Kansas with his father, who was in the horse and cattle business and frequently drove herds to Kansas and Missouri. Stopped Playing Polo. Now he umpires most of the army's polo games in Washington. He used to play polo himself, but once he saw an elderly general still trying to play and heard another officer yell: "Get out of the way and let the general hit it!"

Wagon driving was very good pay, the general recalls. He made $20 a week plus certain commissions which tended to keep the horses galloping. Not only was it very fine, outdoor work, says General Booth, but he got to know nearly everyone in town who sent their laundry out, including most of the very best people.

He became a member of the Colorado National Guard and the popular young man who had driven everybody's laundry around town was popular enough to be elected successively a lieutenant and the captain of his company. He served against striking miners at Cripple Creek and Leadville in the middle of the country and embarked for home. Had Varied Service. He served as deputy high commissioner to Armenia for a few months in 1920 and then went back to a colonelcy as assistant commander at Fort Leavenworth.

General Booth never signs for his old laundry wagon. All he sees now is laundry trucks, say-way for laundries have motorized their transport service along with the army.

24 KIDDIES START FOR KIWANIS CAMP

Boys to Occupy Hebron Resort Two Weeks — Pearson in Charge.

They're off! Early this morning the 24 kiddies composing the first Kiwanis Kiddie Camp contingent at the Hebron fresh air camp for 1936 met at their designated points and were conveyed to Hebron in cars belonging to the members of the Manchester Kiwanis Club. Happy in spite of the rain, the two dozen youngsters looked forward to many hours together in the first two weeks detachment among the hills of Hebron.

Accommodation for two extra boys was made at camp through the decision of two junior camp instructors to take along their tent and camp out. Helge E. Pearson is camp director. This season assisted by three Junior Boy Scout leaders, Gunnar Anderson, Roy Johnson and Harry McIntosh.

Twenty-two girls will enjoy the privileges of the Hebron camp following the completion of the present two-weeks vacation period and the leaders in charge of the girls will be: Miss Lillian Hart and Mrs. Helge E. Pearson who will be at camp as assistant to her husband through the entire camp period.

The Kiwanis Kiddies Camp is one of the major welfare projects sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club for the benefit of under-privileged children. Funds to support the camp are derived each season by staging a minstrel show which has come to be an institution in town. The camp was first opened in 1928 and about 75 boys and girls are annually given a healthful and enjoyable vacation period in an ideal spot in Hebron surrounded by the woods and fields, and the wild life that is always popular with youth.

The boys that made the initial trip to camp this morning came from both the North and South sections, the North ends meeting at Depot Square and the South Manchester boys gathering at the High school. The names of the boys follow: Edward Anderson, Raymond Bidwell, James Dalley, George Palmer, Robert Fitzpatrick, Raymond Harrington, Henry Grik, Wesley Grik, Thomas Moore, Earl Moore, Robert Hagenow, Thomas Hagenow, Alfred Crane, Jerold Worsaa, Edward Worsaa, Walter Miller, John Bonino, Edward Cassinari, Orazio Alessi, Daniel Sheehan, Michael Schuetz, Sherwood McCann, Albert Vincek and Alexander Rogowski.

MAGNETS' SALARIES

Youngstown, O., July 14.—(AP)—The salaries of steel magnets were under scrutiny today as trial of the suit to enjoin merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation went into its eighth day in Mahoning county Common Pleas Court.

Effort of attorneys for the Cyrus S. Eaton interests, opposed to the merger, to learn how much of the profits of both companies went to their officers, was brought out in a deposition from John Tod, vice-president of the Youngstown company, who now is in Europe.

Tod testified that, although he had been a director of the Youngstown company for seven years, he never learned the salaries paid to other officers. He also testified he did not know that President Eugene G. Grace of Bethlehem "received $1,600,000 a year."

A report of Price, Waterhouse Company, accountants, on the condition of the two steel firms, was not seen by Tod prior to the casting of his vote for the merger, he said.

New York, July 14.—(AP)—Stocks opened irregularly higher as trading was resumed in today's market. U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Vanadium, and National Cash Register mounted about 1/2 point, stone and Webster 3/4, and Allied Chemical and Coca Cola, a point. Radio sagged 1/4, Standard Gas and U. S. Rubber 1/4.

Stocks crept higher during the first half hour, although trading was comparatively light. Gains of a point or more were soon numerous. The ability of the market to rally on Saturday and close at the top appeared to have encouraged speculators for the rise.

News over the week-end merely confirmed expectations based on normal seasonal trends, and the market was undisturbed by reports of industrial and trade quiet. An optimistic analysis was issued by the national conference of business paper editors and the associated business papers, pointing to record low inventories of merchandise as promising a quick upturn in activity.

There was a substantial accumulation of buying orders over the week-end, in contrast to the selling orders which piled up over the previous week-end. U. S. Steel extended its gain to a point. Operations for the advance were resumed in Radio Keith, which mounted more than a point in a fairly large turnover.

Other stocks mounting 1 to 1 1/2 points included American Can, years, Gillette, Western Food, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Atchafalaya. A spot was Atlantic Coast Line, which dropped 5.

Storing cables opened steady at 1.39 1/2.

Tacoma, Wash., July 14.—All look for the fourth time toward Harold Bromley's plane as it attempts a non-stop Tacoma-Tyngo flight.

Three of his planes destroyed by accidents, the fourth proved to slow for the 4,750 mile flight.

Wark and Brown have announced a plan for a non-stop flight to the Japanese capital which includes refueling in the air above Juseu and Nome, Alaska, and possibly over the Kamchatka peninsula.

Bromley's first plane crashed a year ago when he tried to take off here. Lieutenant Herbert Fahy, test pilot, was seriously injured when the second plane crashed.

Fahy later was killed in another air accident. H. W. Catling was fatally burned in the crash of the third craft when it was being tested.

HARD HIT BASEBALL FELL LOCAL PLAYER

Nick Angelo Struck Over Heart—Recovery After Hospital Takes X-Rays.

Nick Angelo of Pine street had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday afternoon at the West Side playgrounds just prior to the baseball game between the Hartford Red Sox and the local West Siders.

While the visiting players were engaged in batting practice, Angelo went out on the field with Wilbur Hadden and Thomas Wood to install a new set of bases. Just as he was standing up, a line drive from the bat of one of the Hartford players struck him over the heart.

The blow knocked Angelo off his feet and it was several minutes before he regained consciousness. He had not seen the ball coming and no one, for some unexplained reason, had sounded the warning usual in such cases.

The injured man was taken to the Memorial hospital in an automobile by William Russell and John Waddell. Four different X-ray pictures were taken of Angelo's chest to determine whether or not any ribs had been broken.

Although the extent of the injury will not be known until the X-ray pictures have been developed, it is not believed that Angelo was badly injured. After the pictures were taken, he left the hospital and instead of going home, returned to the West Side playgrounds and watched the balance of the ball game which his team, the West Siders, won with ease by a 16 to 2 score.

DANCING JUDITH

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH GRANT, artist's model, lives ALAN STEYNE, painter, who is also loved by CHUMMY WHELELY, Judith's roommate and best friend. Chummy had loved Steyne years ago, and had suffered a loss of memory when he went away; so although Steyne loves Judith, Judith insists that it is his duty to marry Chummy, whose memory is restored when she sees him again. Steyne and Chummy, therefore, are engaged. Judith is studying dancing, and rich BRUCE GIDEON wants to star her in a musical show, although Steyne warns her that Gideon's intentions are not honorable. Steyne and Judith meet by chance in the apartment, and Chummy, unobserved, sees them in each other's arms; so Chummy, on the eve of her wedding, tells Steyne that she cannot marry him as she wants to follow her career as painter. Judith gets a letter from one RICHARD WYON, who asks her to call at his office and discuss her dancing with him. She goes, as Wyon, whom she does not know, writes that he was an associate of her former teacher, GUARVENIUS, recently killed in an auto accident.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

A small, slenderly built man of about 60 rose from a huge desk and came toward her. Judith's general impression was that he was good-looking in a rather effeminate way, and exceedingly well dressed.

He had small hands and feet, sleek gray hair, and a thin, well-shaped mouth which when opened, revealed a particularly white and flawless set of teeth. He wore a certain amount of very discreet jewelry, such as platinum cuff links set with small pearls.

He had a very kind smile, Judith noticed, as he held out his hand.

"This is indeed charming," said Miss Grant, who had hardly expected you to come so promptly."

"I'd go anywhere to see a friend of M. Guarvenius," Judy said. "Did you really know him very well?"

"This was the only subject that interested her.

"I did not know him very intimately," Mr. Wyon replied. He had a very pleasant, refined voice, and spoke with great emphasis and something of a dramatic effect.

Later on Judy noticed that he used his hands in a very peculiar and foreigner. There was altogether something of the stage about the little man.

"But," he went on, "I had a great admiration for Vladimir Guarvenius, and the most complete confidence in his character. That is why I asked you to come here, my dear young lady. I wanted to talk to you about your future."

Judy started. Somehow this was the last thing she had expected. She had had no idea that her former teacher's heart of talking about her late master with a friend of his, and then going away again. She would have poured out her soul to the veriest stranger about Guarvenius.

"Oh," she said, "I don't think I can think there's much to talk about; but how did you hear about me? Was it from M. Guarvenius?"

"He did mention you, of course," answered Mr. Wyon; "but I have heard more about you from a friend of mine, who is also a friend of mine."

"Oh, she's been awfully kind!" exclaimed the girl, understanding now that this funny, rather dried-up little man was the kind of person who likes to mix with the artistic world.

"She thinks very highly of you, Miss Grant," he said emphatically. "And now let me come to the point. I understand that you have no private means, and that your father was going to arrange for your debut. His sad death must have made a difference to you."

"Of course it did—all the difference in the world!"

"Though I am convinced that your own prospects were the last thing you thought of, Miss Grant. Now, I am a business man, and this is a business proposition."

"Stop a moment!" she interrupted. "Who gave you my address? Your letter was addressed from my old address, where I used to live."

"A Miss Graham procured your address for me," Mr. Wyon explained. "She was also a pupil of Guarvenius, and she got it, I think, from a lady named Miss Jenks."

"Judy was on her guard to a certain extent, although the man inspired her with confidence.

"As I say, it is purely a business proposition," said Mr. Wyon, regarding her with his ingratiating smile. "I have a theater, Miss Grant—the Monopole. I do not exactly own it, but I have a large interest in it—a controlling interest, I may say. Now, I am prepared to undertake what my friend Guarvenius was going to do—to arrange for your debut at my theater, and to provide you with everything that is necessary, exactly as he would have done."

"But you don't know anything about me!" she cried.

"I have perfect confidence in Guarvenius' judgment."

"Are you very rich? And what is your business?"

Mr. Wyon smiled his delicate smile.

"I am interested in several things," he answered. "Diamonds, for one, and oil and coal. I don't call myself rich, exactly; but you can trust me to carry out what I propose."

"I suppose I'm rude," Judy said. "But this is a surprise. I don't know you from Adam. Why should you want to do this for me?"

"I have told you, my dear young lady," he said. "The conditions will be exactly the same. When you are well launched, you can adjust our business relations. I shall be amply repaid. There is plenty of room for a dancer of genius. I will engage as your manager a man of the highest reputation—Gaston North. You can trust me to advertise adequately. My theater is a suitable setting for such art as yours, and we shall have a good orchestra. When I do a thing, I believe in doing it well."

"I don't know what to say," Judy said.

"Think it over, Miss Grant. Take a few days. When had poor Guarvenius planned your debut?"

"In October."

"Well, we could manage it by then. You could start rehearsing at once. The theater is empty, as it happens. I will get the electricians and the scene painters at work at once. But take your time to think it over, Miss Grant."

"It's not time I want," she said, with a laugh that sounded a little free for the delirium of ambition was creeping into her blood again. "I suppose we should have a contract. I should probably have to sign something."

"Not at all necessary, Miss Grant. I am not afraid that you'll cheat me. When you are well established, you will give me back the money I have spent. That's all I want."

"But—I might fail."

"Then I'll bear the loss, just as Guarvenius would have done."

"You must have thought a lot of him," she said with a deep sigh.

"Mr. Wyon repeated what he had said before.

"I have the most complete faith in his judgment. Then you accept?"

"Yes, rather! And I'm greatly obliged to you, Mr. Wyon. But for this I'd have had to take whatever I could get."

"It would have been a shame," he said emphatically. "I'm very glad you have consented to my proposal. You must meet Gaston North at once, and arrange with him about the music, and your costumes, and all that you need. We must have the most expert advice. Perhaps you will give me the pleasure of luncheon with me tomorrow—at the theater. I have a little room there, and we can have some food sent in from a restaurant near by. I shall expect you, then—at half-past one."

Judy shook hands with the little man like a person in a dream. When she was alone, Mr. Wyon stood, gazing at the door, with a look of enlightenment on his face.

"The description suits her down to the ground," he told himself. "A thorny little person! A very thorny little person indeed!"

Judy spent the following 10 days in a whirl, and met more people than she had ever met in her life before. She was what she called "completely dotty"—that is to say, confused and wildly excited, keeping only a clear grip on the essentials of her work. In that respect, she was like all true artists. Little Judy Grant was eminently, almost savagely, practical. At any rate, other people sometimes found her savage when they tried to interfere with her work.

She received a post card and a letter from Chummy, who was still at the seacoast. She answered neither of the communications. She heard nothing from Alan Steyne. She would not allow herself to think about him at all.

One evening, crossing the Avenue on her way to her lodgings, she met Bastien Dumont. She gave him a brilliant smile.

"Why, Bastien, I suppose you thought I was dead!" she cried.

"Nothing of the sort," he answered roughly. "Don't I hear you talked about every minute of the day? I can't open a newspaper without seeing your name. You're in for a boom, Judy—and a real one this time! Who is it that's taken you up—that Gideon fellow?"

Judy looked at him with supreme scorn.

"Thank you, Bastien—I'm not taking any insults," she said. "I have not seen Mr. Gideon for weeks. I don't know where he is. "Then who's backing you?"

"A friend of M. Guarvenius. It is purely a business proposition," she added with immense dignity.

"The Monopole—that's where you're coming out. But who's doing it all?"

"Mr. Wyon—the gentleman who owns the theater."

"Oh, that crank!" cried Dumont, in evident relief.

"Why do you call Mr. Wyon a crank?" she asked.

"Oh, everybody knows he is! Always up to some extraordinary game!"

"Thank you, Bastien!"

"Judy, don't be cross! I know you're going to make a terrible hit. Nobody knows it better than I do. I say, you never come to the cafe now."

"I never have time."

"Come along now."

"I'll come and have some food at Gideon's, if you like," she answered. "I'm ravenous."

He assented eagerly.

Judy was shabbier even than usual, and there was an unnatural light in her eyes. She ate silently and voraciously. Dumont had had his dinner, and watched her drinking Chianti diluted with mineral water and lemon juice. It was sufficiently hot in the restaurant.

When Judy began to talk, she told him everything with perfect frankness. He was still her best friend, the one person on whom she could always rely. She made that quite clear. She had made no new friends among the people she was now associated with. Mr. Wyon was very kind, but old. He was just a business man. He believed in her because Guarvenius had believed in her. She had only seen him three times in all.

Her manager, Gaston North, was a very selfish individual. He was very ugly, red-haired and freckled, with a ginger moustache and horrid teeth. She thought he must go to bed with his pipe in his mouth.

He was wonderful at his job, however. He knew everything about stage painting and almost everything about music. The conductor of the orchestra was a young Hungarian, blind in one eye. He made his men play the most heavenly music.

"Not that it really any better than yours, Bastien," she added generously. "I did enjoy dancing to your fiddle that night at Mr. Steyne's."

This brought Bastien back to personal matters. While he watched her animated face, all the old misgivings throbbed in his heart and hammered in his brain.

"Judy, is everybody mad?" he asked. "Of course you know that Chummy didn't marry Steyne?"

"Of course I do."

"What did you make of it? Where is he now?"

"He went to Paris—so Chummy told me. She is at the seacoast."

"Yes, I knew that."

"Darling Chummy, she's written to me and I've never answered her. What a pig I am! I must write to-night."

"What do you make of it, Judy?"

"Oh, Bastien, I don't know. Chummy always tells the truth—you know that. She said she found out that she liked her work better than she did Mr. Steyne."

"Well, I don't believe it, Judy. There must have been something else."

BEACH PAJAMAS

OUR MARY FINDS A PLEASANT WAY TO RAISE FUNDS FOR NEEDY ACTORS

BY DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif. — Whenever Mary Pickford hasn't anything else to do she starts thinking of new ways to secure funds for the Motion Picture Relief Fund, which is used to care for needy screen players.

Of course, Mary could have herself a lot of time and trouble by simply writing a check for the amount she is responsible for raising money either. But it wouldn't be nearly so much fun.

Miss Pickford's latest idea took form recently in the opening of the Screen State Shop, where everything from clothes to autographed books formerly owned by various stars can be purchased. The purpose is to raise money for the relief fund and also to enable players whose finances are low to buy really good clothes at a very reasonable price.

There's nothing members of the film colony won't do for the sake of a little publicity. The other day Howard Hughes and Sid Grauman sent a tiny gold life pass to any showing of "Hell's Angels" to young Charles Morrow and Lederberg. Of course the picture's run will have been completed long before "Baby" Lindy is able to see a show—which might be the reason the pass was handed out so readily.

Jean Arthur told us the other day that she doesn't give a whoop about the present high price of living—and the reason isn't because she is making such an enormous salary either. As a matter of fact Jean never leaves home any more. She just turns from more than a month's location trip, during which she received all of her living expenses in addition to her salary. And now she is heading for Alaska to make "The Silver Horde." That means it will be several more weeks before she has to pay rent or food bills.

Imagine having 51 millionaires working in a single motion picture! It doesn't seem possible—but it is. However, the millionaires all are studio members of the Osage tribe of Ponca City, Okla. They have been engaged by RKO to work in Richard Dix's next production, "Cimarron."

After being absent from the screen for so long that she almost has been forgotten, Marguerite De La Motte is coming back again. She has been signed for the feminine lead opposite Buck Jones in "Shadow Ranch." Wonder if Marguerite starts a new career for Marguerite is just doing it to break the monotony of staying home all the time?

Film producers never seem to be satisfied unless they are making over some new actress. Sally Stone, one of our newer actresses, learned this when she stepped in front of a camera for the first time. The script called for a girl with bobbed hair. There being only a few thousand such girls in the film colony, they had to pick on Sally and make her cut off 16 inches of beautiful brown tresses.

It looks as though D. W. Griffith has a busy year ahead of him. Having just put the finishing touches on "Abraham Lincoln" it is reported that he will now move over to the Columbia lot to direct the talking version of "Tobacco David," the picture which brought Richard Barthelmess to fame some years ago.

Nancy Carroll is showing you her new backless beach costume of printed silk. . . . It doesn't mean much of anything, but isn't it pretty?

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

The vegetable-plate dinner always is popular and, if carefully planned, makes a well-balanced and attractive meal.

The woman who has her own garden can serve a vegetable-plate for almost no expenditure of money, and even the one who must buy her vegetables will find this type of meal economical.

Milk, eggs or cheese usually are the main source of protein and may appear in an infinite variety of ways. The milk can be used in a cream soup, in a sauce for one of the vegetables or in a dessert, or a glass of milk may be drunk as a beverage. Eggs can be used in combination with a vegetable, in an omelet, in a salad, or in a dessert. Cheese can be grated into the soup, grated over a vegetable, grated over toast, grated over a salad, or if pie is the dessert, served with it.

The following menu can be varied in any of the ways suggested.

Vegetable Plate Menu

Poached eggs, with spinach on toast, potato marbles in parsley butter, creamed carrots, stuffed tomato salad, berries, drop cookies, iced tea or coffee.

Cut bread in slices about one-half inch thick and toast on both sides. Butter one side, cover this side with a thick layer of well-seasoned finely chopped cooked spinach, making a depression in the center. Place a poached egg in the depression, dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika.

Cut potatoes in marbles with a vegetable cutter. Or they can be cut in neat dice of uniform size. Parboil ten minutes in boiling salted water. Drain and dip in melted butter. Spread in dripping pan and bake in a hot oven until tender and delicately brown. Sprinkle with finely minced parsley and serve.

Fill the tomatoes with a mixture of celery and cucumber made moist with mayonnaise and serve in a lettuce cup or a nest of shredded leaf lettuce.

ORGANDIE SLEEVES

A pink handkerchief linen dress cut princess, with very full, flaring skirt and pointed V neck, has tiny puff sleeves of white organdie, tied half way to the elbow with narrow bands of pink linen.

STOP LEAKS

As a precaution against losing some of your valuable perfume or other lotions during travel, try inserting tight fitting corks in every bottle, keeping the silver screw caps to put on upon arrival.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Fricky heat! Most of us have had it, and ask ourselves at the time: "Do babies suffer like this? Poor little souls—no wonder they cry—it's just about the worst thing a human being can endure."

You can't always see prickly heat when it is beginning. The skin looks a bit rough, but doesn't turn red at first. Mothers are not likely to notice it until the rash appears.

It is caused by irritation or rubbing and the acids of perspiration. Of course it is indigestion to hot weather. Fat babies are more susceptible, but all babies are likely to have it.

Cleanliness is of the greatest importance in preventing it, but sometimes, in spite of the greatest care, it will come. However, that is the great thing to keep in mind in the care of the baby. Instant changing and thorough sponging and drying are necessary.

Often Affects Back

A baby's back is fertile ground for the pest. This is because he lies on his back too much. Perspiration has no chance to evaporate, and even if he is propped up, the heat of his body is retained on his stomach. Sometimes when you put him down for his nap. He doesn't need a pillow and he'll turn his head to one side for air. Keep an eye on him when he is in this position and see that he has cool air. This is a good position for babies occasionally, anyway.

Newly you'll want to do something for him besides keeping him sweet and clean and cool—if the prickly heat already has appeared. The use of boracic acid powder may relieve it and dry it up. If the skin is broken and chafed, watch how you handle the baby. See that your hands are scrubbed clean, and never let anything but white cloths, absolutely clean and sterile touch him.

If the outbreak is severe, try making a paste of cooked starch. Let it cool and use it generously on the chafed skin. Allow it to stay on, and cover it with pieces of very soft old linen. Some doctors will suggest stearate of zinc—a fine white oily-feeling powder that is healing and that spreads over the skin, preventing perspiration and friction. But perhaps this isn't always the best thing, especially for large surfaces. If the baby's parts are to be kept open, it should be kept away from the baby's mouth very carefully.

Talcum is a good preventative—baby talcum—but it serves its own purpose and a stiff case of prickly heat needs more strenuous treatment.

Bathe With Starch

The starch also may be used in the bath form. Take a cupful of the cooked starch (laundry starch) and add it to a gallon of warm water. Bathe the baby in this.

Starch is also helpful. Two tablespoons of baking soda to a gallon of water is the proportion. It is better to dissolve the soda first in a little hot water.

Sometimes, in very hot weather, bran baths are substituted for the regular soap and water bath. Put a handful or so of bran in a little bag of cheesecloth. Don't pack it. Put it in the bath water and squeeze out frequently until the water is cloudy. The bran bath is good for the regular soap and water bath. In other cases of chafing or inflammation of the skin. Never rub skin. Pat it softly.

HEALTH

QUICK MEDICAL ATTENTION VITAL FOR VICTIM OF SUNSTROKE

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBURN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Sunstroke, as the term is popularly used, is not a real disease. It is the result of the light of the sun, but the infra-red or heat rays. The same symptoms may occur as the result of exposure to heat and humidity in a laundry, a steel mill, a fire-room, a deep metal mine, or any other industry. As a result of these severe manifestations are symptoms of complete exhaustion and the occurrence of heat cramps.

When heat stroke occurs the temperature regulating mechanism of the human body is thrown out of order. Usually there are no real laboratory symptoms such as headache, dizziness, and nausea, but sometimes the worker goes on without paying much attention to the minor symptoms, to be stricken as by a flash of lightning, and to the sudden onset of a severe condition which can be done to save his life.

Among the symptoms of exhaustion are physical weakness, profuse perspiration, a moderate amount of fever, although sometimes the temperature may be lower than normal, and sometimes severe cramping pains in the abdomen or in the arms and legs. In the more severe cases the patient promptly becomes unconscious, his pulse gets very rapid, his breathing gets deep, and the pupils of the eye dilate.

In the case of the person afflicted lives through the second day of his attack he gets better, so that the most important measures are those taken promptly to meet the emergency and to permit the patient to survive the first shock.

The first thing to do is to get the person into a cool place and absolutely at rest, flat on his back. If the temperature is high, sponging with cool water will help to control it. It may be necessary to give stimulants such as coffee had from stronger drugs or from coffee in order to help the patient over the acute stage of the condition.

In the case of heat stroke with the more severe symptoms prompt action is even more necessary than in heat exhaustion. In such cases the body may be washed in ice water; cold sprays and injections of cold water may be used to bring the fever down rapidly.

The effects of the stroke on the heart should be watched by a physician who may remain constantly in attendance, and whose treatment is satisfactory. He can give supportive drugs that will control the heart and this may make the difference between life and death. Sometimes congestion may be great and it may be necessary for the doctor to permit some blood to flow for other veins in order to relieve the congestion.

HOW TO SHOP

FIRM'S STANDING BEST GUARANTEE OF WATCH VALUE

By William H. Baldwin

When you buy a watch your only safeguard is in the character of the house from which you buy.

The mere appearance of a watch is no guide to its quality, because thin plated cases may be made to look like solid gold. Nor is the name on a watch all the information a buyer needs to know. The name designates the make of a movement, not its quality; and the same-named movement may be priced anywhere from $8 to $175.

Of course, any reputable manufacturer will stand behind his $8 watch as well as his $175 product, but the buyer does not want to pay $175 for the $8 grade.

The responsibility for selling watches at higher prices can be laid to the retailer, for he knows exactly the quality of the watches he has purchased, where he might not be able to discriminate so nicely in buying such merchandise as hosiery or gloves.

Therefore, the shopper's main reliance must be in choosing a retailer whose merchandising integrity is unquestioned.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Blow that horn! Blow that horn! Jump upon the gas! Oh what red hot fun it is Another car to pass. Roaring down the concrete road, The surface sure and fine— Give her all that's coming, kid, We're touching eighty-nine. Ninety-five the meter says— The speed laws are all hash. Holy sweet potatoes, but We're headed for a crash! Toll or bells, toll on bells, Keep tolling all the day, Another sorry dumbbell Is being laid away.

Tip to Motorists So drive that 'gainst the traffic cop You'll never hold a grudge. Or in courtrooms have to explain— "You see 'twas this way, Judge."

Stop Signals Danger—Railroad Crossing. Pull over to the side. Red lights. No.

After witnessing an auto wreck you drive carefully for several blocks.

Of course the pedestrian has the right of way but he has a hard time enforcing it from under an automobile.

One nice thing about the garage mechanic is that he never charges anything for the grease he leaves on the cushions.

The Regulation of Traffic on the Roads and Streets is Still in Its Infancy.

Even a Go-getter will sit out in front and honk for 'er.

What is love? Love is when a girl wearing a long white dress will ride in a fellow's rattle-trap, moth-eaten, dust-laden, topless automobile.

It may be a wicked gamble, but what else can you do when the driver in front holds out his hand.

A strict driver's law for automobile drivers might decrease accidents.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

It takes a lot of back-bone to wear a low-cut evening dress.

Who's going to take care of you when you are old? Well, if we are to have any choice in the matter we would select Joe Grundy or Harry Sinclair.

Judge—You admit you drove over this man with a loaded truck? Driver—Yes, your honor. Judge—And what have you to say in your defense? Driver—I didn't know it was loaded.

One of the poorest ways to get out of an automobile says Sally is through the windshield.

The next big invention probably will be a machine where you drop in a dime and a parking space drops out.

The other fellow: An automobile driver who is expected to slow down at street crossings.

Somehow the auto shik can always find a place to park.

No matter how much art they expend on the manufacture of motor car horns, we doubt if they'll ever get one that sounds sweet to a pedestrian.

COMPLIMENTARY

Young Lawyer (who has, up to now, only defended burglars and tramps): Next week I am to defend a murderer. Friend: Ah, you are beginning to get better clients now.—Answers.

PLENTY OF BUSINESS

"I hear that your cousin Ted has settled in Chicago and is making a lot of money. What is he, a stockbroker?" "No, dear, he's a florist."—Tit-Bits.

LOVELY DEATH

Intense Young Thing: In my family we are all very romantic. My sister died of love. He: Of love? Intense Young Thing: Yes, her fiancé shot her.—Passing Show.

BLASTED EGO

"I'm a self-made man." "That relieves someone of an unpleasant responsibility."—Hummel, Hamburg.

ONCE UPON A TIME

Senior Thomas J. Walsh of Montana obtained a job lighting the oil street-lamps of Two Rivers, Wis. Later, he became principal of schools in several Wisconsin towns, and a lawyer.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) Said Clowny, "Gee, I'll bet that I could spin that yarn. I'll gladly try, if I'm allowed to do it." Then the spinning woman smiled and answered, "You would have much fun, but likely you'd spoil all I've done. I hate to disappoint you, but it's no job for a child." "She's right," the Travel Man broke in. "You wouldn't know where to begin. The best to stand and watch her. She's been trained to do it right." So, 'bout an hour they made their stay and then they went upon their way. The Tinies waved good-bye just ere they traveled out of sight. The Travel Man then said, "Right now I think I'll get some rest somewhere. I see a place where we can sit out in the cooling breeze." Then Scouty answered, "I'm tired, too. I'll gladly do the same as you. I know that I'll appreciate just loafing 'round at ease." Not very far away they found a big flat stone upon the ground.
