CHANGSHA REDS DISPENSE LOOT TO THE RABBLE

Give Away Pillaged Goods As Propaganda—Demand City's Ransom; Reports on Missionaries Conflicting.

Shanghai, July 30.—(AP)—An account of the methodical burning and looting of Changsha was gleaned from information sent today by reliable sources in the Communist ridden area.

Due to the rapidly falling river level, foreign gunboats were unable to approach nearer than within five miles of Changsha. One American, one British and one Japanese ship anchored to observe developments, which were reported by Chinese runners.

The reports indicated about 8,000 armed Reds had established a camp just east of the city, whence they were conducting their systematic campaign of looting and burning foreign properties.

Divided Up the City
Raider divisions were divided into forty or fifty wards and placed each under the direction of a Communist leader who supervised the destruction in his district.

Each leader had a large group of riflemen and each rifeman in turn had a squad of unarmed men. The rifemen and their squads carried out the business of looting and burning and at the same time conducted propaganda work.

Advices said a rifeman and his squad would approach a foreign property destined for destruction and with the unarmed men carried movable effects into the street the armed leader would address onlookers on the alleged non-militaristic aims of the Communists and suggest his hearers become active workers in the Red cause.

Gave Away Loot
When the house furnishings were piled into the street the bystanders were allowed to help themselves while the rifemen pointed out such a promise was a part of Communist principle, enabling coolies and peasants to obtain their "rightful" shares of property "wrongfully" in the possession of the upper classes.

By these methods the Reds were believed to be swelling their ranks rapidly.

The city water and electric systems apparently had not been molested. The number of foreign buildings destroyed was not known. One report said the Italian mission had not been destroyed because the priests had paid the Reds large sums of money. The Japanese hospital was razed.

Jap Consulate Burned
A Japanese dispatch from Hankow stated the Japanese consulate in the northern part of Changsha had been looted and burned and said a majority of Japanese residents of Changsha, numbering about 100, were en route to Hankow aboard a small Japanese steamer accompanied by a Japanese gunboat.

Yale-in-China Destroyed

MUCH GAME SET FREE BY WOODS FIRE THREAT

Hancock, Md., July 30.—(AP)—Released when flames of a woods fire threatened their breeding pens, about 400 wild deer and hundreds of wild turkey and other game birds today roamed the preserve of the Woodmont Rod and Gun club, near here.

The fire was brought under control last night after causing loss estimated at $75,000.

The club boasts of having entertained more Presidents than any other.

MACHIE CLOSE TO CAPTURE IN FOREST CHASE

Manchester Convict Gets Away When Fellow Jail Breaker Is Captured At Northville.

Northville, July 30.—(AP)—Anthony Carella, one of the two convicts escaped from the Litchfield county jail Monday afternoon, was captured here at 4 o'clock this morning.

Milford Machie, of Manchester, the other convict, is still at large but his capture is expected as a large posse of State Police, constables and citizens are scouring the woods in the vicinity where Machie was last seen.

Caught After Shots
Officer Henry Palau, of the State Police at Ridgefield, came upon the two men and pursued them. They separated and the policemen kept after one of them, firing two shots before the man disappeared in the woods, only to be captured a short distance farther on by Constable Anderson of Washington.

In Washington the men stole an old touring car but abandoned it in Northville, a few miles north of New Milford.

OWNER AGREED TO FACTORY BOMBING

Says He Was Bullied Into Plot by Man Who Was Killed in Explosion.

South River, N. J., July 30.—(AP)—Leo Wladky has admitted, police declared today, that he consented to the bombing of his home and his embroidery factory when a stranger proposed the destruction to collect $15,000 in insurance.

The home and factory were razed yesterday by a time bomb and in the ruins was found the body of Peter Barone, itinerant laborer.

Says He Was Coerced
Barone, Wladky was quoted as saying, suggested the bombing, offered to accomplish it for a share of the insurance, and threatened to kill Wladky, his wife and children unless he consented. Wladky agreed, he said, because of the threats against his family.

Wladky was held for further questioning. Police said that Barone, caught within the building, had apparently miscalculated the time of the explosion.

Paris, July 30.—(AP)—Troops and Republican guards were concentrated today in Paris and other centers of Communist outbreaks to prevent disorder Friday, the sixteenth anniversary of general mobilization for the World War and proclaimed by the Communist party as "international anti-war day."

The Communists in France have planned not only to protest against "preparation for war" but to agitate resistance to the new French social insurance law. Many workers, including 25,000 at Lille, are now on strike against the deduction of 4 per cent of their wages for this insurance, and the Communist organ "this united class front" against the Bourgeoisie.

Premier Tardieu has forbidden any parades, meetings or interference with work Friday.

NEGRO POLITICIAN OF GEORGIA BADLY BEATEN

Body Victim of Assault by Masked, Robed Band, He Says.

Mount Vernon, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—The fatal shooting of S. S. Minney, 70-year-old Negro chairman of the Montgomery County Republican organization, was under investigation here today. Minney, suffering from a fracture of the skull which he said resulted from a blow on the head with a rifle butt, told officers he was taken from his home in the nearby town of Ailey by a masked, robed band Monday night, carried into another county and beaten. His head and face were bruised, his back bore marks of a severe lashing and there were wounds on other parts of his body.

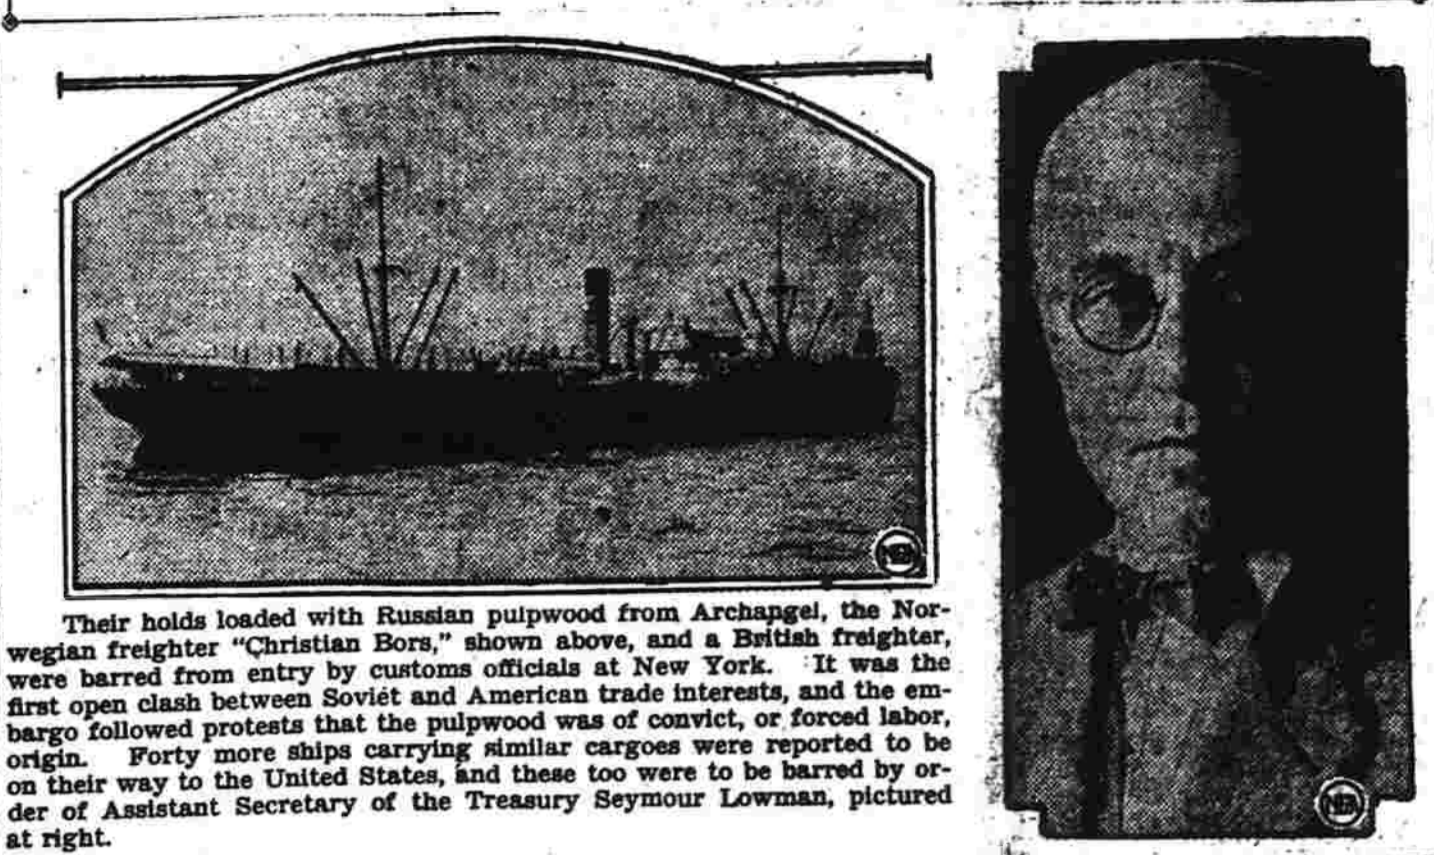

He was unable to name his assailants.

SAYS LABORITES CUT NAVY COST $60,000,000

London, July 30.—(AP)—A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, announced in the House of Commons today that the labor government reduced the cost of the British naval building program for 1928-29 by an estimated $12,000,000.

Alexander made the announcement in reply to a question about how much naval costs had been reduced since the present government took office.

Soviet Cargo Ship Barred by U. S. Treasury Official

Their holds loaded with Russian pulpwood from Archangel, the Norwegian freighter "Christian Bors," shown above, and a British freighter, were barred from entry by customs officials at New York. It was the first open clash between Soviet and American trade interests, and the embargo followed protests that the pulpwood was of convict, or forced labor, origin. Forty more ships carrying similar cargoes were reported to be on their way to the United States, and these too were to be barred by order of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, pictured at right.

12 DRY ENFORCERS HOLD A POW-WOW

Take Counsel With Wood- cock on Ways and Means of Making Laws Work.

Washington, July 30.—(AP)—Through an exchange of expert opinion the men directly responsible for enforcing the nation's dry laws today sought to solve its problems and settle delicate questions of policy.

The twelve experienced administrators appointed to take charge in the field were called into a two day conference with their chief, Amos W. W. Woodcock, newly appointed director of prohibition. It was their first meeting since the reorganization of the enforcement unit which followed its transfer on July 1 from the Treasury to the Department of Justice.

Outlines Policies
Woodcock was ready with an informal talk, outlining the policies already approved and detailing the questions still to be settled. At the conclusion of his speech a general discussion was arranged for a conference with Attorney General Mitchell at noon and later in the day had planned to issue a statement summarizing the progress of the conference.

EDISON DODGES QUIZ BY BOY CANDIDATES

Leaves Dinner Before His Young Guests Get Chance To Question Him On Boy- hood Lore.

East Orange, N. J., July 30.—(AP)—Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone arrived today to help entertain the 49 boys assembled to take a competitive examination for the Edison scholarship.

Mr. Edison was to attend his formal welcome to the boys at a reception in the Edison Laboratories today.

The examinations are to be conducted tomorrow. The winner will be awarded the Thomas A. Edison scholarship, founded last year to provide technical scientific education for boys of outstanding fitness for such a career.

The boys arrived yesterday and were installed in a hotel. They had planned to subject the noted inventor to a questionnaire on boyhood lore, but he forestalled them by leaving the dinner which had been arranged in their honor before they could ask him questions.

Wilbur B. Huston of Seattle, winner of last year's scholarship, is a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was present.

SHAMROCK'S TENDER COALS IN THE AZORES

Horta, Azores Islands, July 30.—(AP)—The Shamrock V steam yacht, which is escorting the Shamrock V across the Atlantic for the America's cup races, arrived at Horta today to take on coal. The Shamrock V was reported off the north of Fayal.

The Shamrock, which lost contact with her convoy, the Erin, in a mist and rain five days ago, rounded the point of Pico Island under full sail late this afternoon. She was making good way with a strong steady south wind and was expected to reach Horta shortly.

The Shamrock, arrived in Horta harbor late today.

MRS. HOOVER TO NAME SHIP

Washington, July 30.—(AP)—Mrs. J. Edgar Hoover will go to Camden, N. J., next Tuesday to christen the new steamship Encalibur of the American Export Steamship Company. She will be accompanied by Captain Russell Train, chief naval aide to the President.

HURLEY AND BODENHAMER GET NEW SIOUX NAMES

Bismarck, N. D., July 30.—(AP)—Another name for Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, is "Wingsyap."

The name, meaning "faithful," was conferred on the war secretary yesterday by Sioux Indians at a ceremony in connection with the state convention of the American Legion.

O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the legion, was named "Marpiyd Kinyanyapi," which means "Flying Cloud."

SHOTS OF 2 RUM CHASERS SCARE ONEY BATHERS

Pursuit Comes Within a Few Feet of Pier—New York City Street Dept Barge Seized As Smuggler.

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Thousands of bathers at Coney Island watched a Coast Guard cutter pursue two rum speedboats last night and many of the bathers left the water when shots fired at the fugitives dropped nearby.

Police were attracted by the bark of one-pounders which emptied their guns at the speedboats when they came within 20 feet of Steeplechase pier. Windows of the cabins on the boats were broken and police believe some of the rum runners were wounded. The vessels veered away when the policemen appeared and vanished in the dusk.

Later Coast Guardsmen found an abandoned speedboat which was towed to Staten Island.

Rum runners reported to have nets submerged in deep water near the Rockaways into which their cargoes are dropped when chase is intense. It was believed one of the speedboats made for such a net.

Booze On City Barge
New York, July 30.—(AP)—A municipal dumping barge and two trucks containing liquor valued at $60,000 were seized by customs agents at the foot of Roosevelt street in the East River today.

The agents arrested two men, two men of whom they said were barges of the City Street Cleaning Department. The site of the seizure is an ash dump.

About 100 men were on the dump pier at 3 o'clock this morning when the Customs patrol boat glided up. The crew of five attempted a surrounding maneuver, but scarcely had taken up positions when one of the trucks started off. A Customs man fired a shot in the air and the driver stopped, jumped off and ran.

Thirteen men were rounded up on the pier after a fight. Seven were captured on the barge. Two were found hiding under packing cases. The others escaped.

Customs officers believe the barge had made contact with a liquor runner when it was twelve miles out, dumping refuse. The barge was towed to the United States barge office.

Almost a hundred men were engaged in the unloading operation, when an alarm went up and one of the trucks started away from the pier.

Shots were fired, knives flashed and fists flew. Many of the men on the pier ran, and others leaped into the river. Customs men arrested 23 of them.

When two of the men arrested were found to wear street cleaning department badges a check was made and seven were found to be city employees. They were suspended. Among them was a department inspector, a dump inspector and his assistant.

McDONALD STICKS TO PERJURY TALE

Insists He Is Telling the Truth Now, That Testi- mony Was Bunch of Lies.

San Francisco, July 30.—(AP)—The testimony of John MacDonald, Baltimore waiter, that he perjured himself at the Mooney-Billings Preparedness Day parade bombing trials, was before the California Supreme Court today as the seven-justice panel prepared to deliver further into the matter.

MacDonald testified yesterday that his identification of Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings as the two men he saw place a bomb at Steuart and Market streets, July 22, 1916, was false.

He gave a troubled conscience as his reason for appearing before the justices to testify he had been "coerced" to identify Mooney and Billings as the bombers. Both are serving life terms in prison.

Charges of "Railroading"
Frequent charges have been made for years that the two men were "railroaded" to prison because of their activities in behalf of organized labor. A street railway strike was in progress at the time of the bombing.

The justices are considering Billings' application for a recommendation of pardon. Mooney, meanwhile has applied to Governor C. C. Young for pardon.

MacDonald was questioned for four hours and insisted he was telling the truth and branded his testimony in the Mooney-Billings case as "a bunch of lies" which former District Attorney Charles M. Fickerton and Captain (then sergeant) Charles Goff of the San Francisco police influenced him to tell.

BLAST OF LEAKING GAS KILLS THREE

Ten Others Injured When Fumes Freed by Workmen Wrecks a House.

Fairport, N. Y., July 30.—(AP)—Three dead and ten injured was the toll today of a gas blast followed by fire which yesterday demolished a four family home here.

Three investigations were under way and others pending of the explosion, which police said was caused by escaping gas from pipes disturbed by workmen working in an excavation in front of the house.

The dead were Mrs. Ethel Cramer, 23, instantly killed; Betty Lou Hens, 2, crushed under wreckage; Edna Hess, 17, her sister, died two hours later in a hospital.

Lighted Match Fatal
The injured were suffering mostly from cuts, burns and bruises.

According to investigators the pipe was broken at the meter connection, filling the house with the fumes. It is believed Mrs. Cramer lit a match to relight the gas when it went out, causing the explosion.

R-100 APPROACHING CANADIAN WATERS

Favored by Winds on Steam- er Lane, British Dirigible May Reach Montreal Hours Ahead of Schedle; Likely to Sight Land About 3 O'clock Tomorrow; Was 700 Miles East of Belle Isle This Morning.

St. Hubert, Quebec, July 30.—(AP)—The British dirigible R-100 is expected to arrive at the airport here tomorrow between 4 p. m. and 6 p. m.

A message received from Squadron Leader E. S. Booth, commander of the dirigible, at 12:30 p. m. E. S. T. said that she was approaching the Straits of Belle Isle. She was making splendid progress and was getting the benefit of following winds.

London, July 30.—(AP)—Speeding along at more than 70 miles an hour, the giant British dirigible R-100 was more than two-thirds across the Atlantic Ocean today. It was expected that she would sight land by 9 a. m. tomorrow, Greenwich meridian time (about 3 a. m. E.S.T.).

So much speed had the ship picked up because of favorable wind conditions that she seemed likely to cut down even this margin of time and to reach the coast of Newfoundland a little earlier than she had anticipated.

At noon Greenwich meridian time (7 a. m. E.S.T.) the dirigible gave her position about 700 miles from the coast of Labrador and across the St. Lawrence river and then southwards to Montreal.

Reported by Ships
The dirigible has been reported by numerous liners, most of which were unaware of her. At 7:15 o'clock this morning, Greenwich time (3:15 a. m. E. S. T.) the steamship Ausonia sighted the R-100 which was steaming over this time the air liner was approximately half-way between the Irish coast and Cape Race, Newfoundland.

"Signals and greetings exchanged. Apparently all well," said the message received from the Ausonia by the Associated Press.

For some undetermined reason the R-100 did not communicate with Cardington at 6 o'clock this morning as had been expected. However, no attempt was felt the airship had exchanged greetings with several ships at about this time. Atmospheric condition, it was thought, may have prevented her from getting into touch with her air base.

Heard R-100's Motors
According to the north Atlantic weather charts most favorable weather conditions were prevailing in the mid-Atlantic over which the R-100 now is proceeding.

Among the liners which was in touch with the airship during the night was the steamship Westonia. The passengers and officers on the Megantic could hear the motors on the dirigible but were unable to sight her because of fog.

The air ministry this morning requested the Associated Press to place at its disposal Associated Press messages regarding the R-100 from ships at sea. The ministry wished the messages to supplement its own information regarding the progress of the dirigible.

May Return Tomorrow
London, July 30.—(AP)—Great Britain's mightiest dirigible, the R-100, today is flying over the north Atlantic well on her way toward Montreal, where she expects to arrive some time tomorrow night or early Friday morning.

Since leaving her base, Cardington, England, at 2:45 a. m. yesterday the airship has made splendid progress.

Advises from towns passed, from the R-100's own wireless and from ships at sea, told of the journey.

The ship made 60 miles an hour when not bucking too strong winds and the six powerful Rolls Royce motors hummed evenly as they drove the giant craft toward its western goal.

The crew and passengers settled down to a normal life, eating, sleeping and chattering gum in lieu of smoking. No one smokes because of the danger of lighting the gas which fills the big envelope.

The airship's route in general is the great circle followed by steamships, although at the start it had been planned to follow a much more northerly course, past the Hebrides Islands and the northern coast of Scotland—and up toward Cape Farewell, Greenland.

Wind veered at the start but became adverse, however, and the R-100 cut over the Irish sea in Liverpool passing the Isle of Man and through the Straits of Belle Isle in a narrow channel separating northern Ireland and Scotland. Thereafter she passed over British Island, over Malin Head, (Ireland, and

FAMOUS VOLUME STAYS IN BRITAIN

Last Minute Appeal Raises Funds to Buy the Bedford Book.

London, July 30.—(AP)—A dramatic last minute appeal for funds, it was announced today, has saved the Bedford Book of Hours, one of the greatest sources of Medieval English art and history, from leaving the British Museum for the United States.

The time limit of one year which J. P. Morgan put on a loan of $58,000 he made to the Museum to buy the book, expires tomorrow. The museum still owed $19,000 on the account. For a fortnight the authorities had been making a plea to the public to complete the payment.

Tonight the trustees said the money was in and it was assured the book would remain in England.

The Luttrell Psalter, also put on sale a year ago, was financed the same way. The British Museum finished its collection for that fund some time ago.

Had the money not been forthcoming Mr. Morgan planned to give the books to the Metropolitan Museum in New York. The trustees today made a public expression of gratitude for the American financier's generosity.

TURKEY AND PERSIA IN WARLIKE DISPUTE

Istanbul, July 30.—(AP)—Relations between Turkey and Persia have been disturbed by the Turkish campaign against the Kurds in the region of Mount Ararat because of allegations that Turkish troops crossed the Persian frontier in pursuit of the Kurds.

An authoritative Ankara source today disclosed a new sharp angle in the frontier dispute, stating that Persia had demanded that Turkey pay an indemnity for the alleged penetration of Persian territory by Turkish forces.

That the Turkish government is disturbed over the highly strained frontier situation was evinced today in an editorial published by the official newspaper Kilidit, saying:

"Turkey is determined to defend at the price of its blood the revolution and the republic which she created at the same price. No political or individual consideration can deviate us from this supreme determination. Those who commit hostile acts against us had better learn this truth without delay."

POLITICAL ASSASSIN SAYS HE WAS HIRED

Columbia, S. C., July 30.—(AP)—Governor Richards said this morning that W. L. Thornley, of Moncks Corner, had confessed he shot State Senator N. J. Dennis last Tuesday and that he was hired by a Berkeley county citizen to do it.

Following the confession officers of six counties swooped down on Berkeley county and arrested three men. A fourth, Glen D. McKnight, former prohibition officer, was being sought.

U. S. Dressmakers Pass Sentence on Long Skirts

New York, July 30.—(AP)—The associated dress industries of America have decreed that hem lines in this country in the fall shall remain where they are. The Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, Inc., has announced that it intends to resist the move of French designers to lengthen skirts.

David N. Mossecohn, executive chairman of the Associated Dress Industries, said:

"There is much misapprehension in the minds of American women as to the importance of Parisian style dictatorship.

"Retailers here who are style-conscious recognize to the full that they are already completely aware that the newer dresses and gowns on display in authentic showrooms conform to, practically, the same lengths as those of the past season."

CHAMBER, NORTH GROUPS CONFERENCE

Officials of Former Tell Later Good Organization Will Solve Ills.

A conference was held in the Chamber of Commerce office at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon on the North End situation when a committee of the Chamber and the North End group which consisted of Edward Murphy, Thomas Conroy and Harold Willis called on Secretary, E. J. McCabe, of the Chamber of Commerce. The Secretary called in R. K. Anderson, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, not being able to locate E. L. G. Hohenthal, Jr., president.

Mr. Murphy was spokesman for the delegation and outlined the North End merchants' feeling in regard to the need for some sort of organization and it was generally agreed by both the Chamber and the North End merchants that the Chamber of Commerce should be organized. Secretary McCabe in talking to the delegation from the north business section said he considered the publicity which seems to have originated from the group, very unfair. "As a matter of fact," McCabe said, "the North business men are now beginning to realize that they need just what the Chamber of Commerce tried to give them six or eight months ago."

Secretary McCabe went on to say he sensed the situation of your North End merchants soon after I took office last November and a great deal of time and effort was spent by the Chamber in trying to get the north merchants organized for their own good and for the good of their section of the town. "McCabe continued by saying, "What I am about to say now is simply a repetition of my statement to representatives of the North business group last winter when the Chamber of Commerce is non-sectional. This Chamber does not exist any more in the interest of the south, east or west sections of the town. It is the Chamber of Commerce of this town, ready to cooperate and work with any individual or group of citizens or businessmen in the interest of bettering our town. To accomplish results we must have organized effort," and addressing Mr. Murphy, McCabe said, "You certainly realize and appreciate the situation this Chamber of Commerce is in attempting to carry on any program of much interest to the north businessmen while they remain unorganized." The Secretary had the names of twenty-eight merchants in the North section of the town which he said would make a splendid organization and which would mean considerable in the interest of that part of the town if properly organized. But even after the effort was made by the Chamber to sell this thought to them last spring only eight of that group now are identified as members of the Chamber, leaving a great majority who have by their failure to join the Chamber of Commerce at the time of the proposed North Merchants Division being organized, evidenced their indifference to the plan.

Vice-President R. K. Anderson in his remarks at the meeting in commenting on the publicity which he

TWO LOCAL GOLD STAR MOTHERS GO TO FRANCE AUG. 18

Mrs. Joseph McCann and Mrs. Albina Chaput to Sail On the George Washington for Pilgrimage.

Two Gold Star mothers from Manchester, Mrs. Joseph McCann of 9 Cross street and Mrs. Albina Chaput of 93 Foster street will leave for New York August 18 on pilgrimage to the graves of their sons in France. Both mothers will board the S. S. George Washington sailing on the 19th for France.

Mr. Anderson said that it was in view of these facts that the Chamber did not take any part in the hearing given by the Public Utility Commission on the discontinuance of that street car service. The Chamber representatives advise the north representatives that they need not have fear of loss of transportation as the Connecticut Company are now duty bound by the Public Utility Commission and their bus must run through Depot Square on the Rockville route but should the time come when there would be any attempt to change this service the Chamber of Commerce would not work in the interest of the North residents. The Chamber would be as greatly concerned in a matter of this kind as they would if the Connecticut Company would attempt to discontinue their service from Hartford to the center. Mr. Anderson assured the delegation. Mr. Anderson also reminded the representatives of the north and business section that the Chamber had worked and been successful in securing proper road markers and signs which were recently placed by the State Highway Department and the Chamber has within the last few days received a letter from the State Highway Department stating that their request will be granted in regard to Worcester signs being placed at Depot Square.

In closing his remarks, Mr. Anderson also recalled the Christmas program of last winter when the Chamber of Commerce went to some expense and trouble which they were glad to do to give the Depot Square business section the same attention as the South End business section with regard to the Christmas parade which was the first of its kind attempted in this town and it seemed to be generally agreed at that time that the North merchants were well pleased with this attention that the Chamber gave, although in recent articles Mr. Anderson accused of negligence toward the Depot Square section.

The meeting resulted in a general agreement that the north merchants should be organized and the plan of the Chamber of Commerce which would allow them to form their own organization to be known as the North Merchants Division of the Chamber and they would have the privilege of electing their own chairman who through the permission of the Chamber would be a member of the Board of Control and therefore would give them proper representation in the superior governing body of the Chamber. This is the same arrangement that the South Merchants Division has and the Automotive Division of the Chamber. They would also elect their own treasurer and executive committee. This seemed to be agreeable to the delegation and it was decided that a meeting of the North merchants would be called by their own temporary committee for Thursday night of this week at 9:15 in the Balch and Brown hall and the Secretary will be invited to outline what the Chamber has to offer the north group.

PROBE BURNING OF OLD MASTERS IN HUB SHOW

Collector Says Paintings Were Worth $800,000, Insured for $174,000; Blaze Suspicious.

Boston, July 30.—(AP)—Paintings valued by their collector, John T. Bartlett, at $800,000 were destroyed late last night by a fire of suspicious origin in a Back Bay building.

The fire damaged the first and second floors of the four-story structure to an extent of $50,000. Inspectors went to work on Monday as the Lincoln Galleries and a group of 51 paintings was on display.

Fire officials said the blaze appeared to have started in the rear of a couch on the first floor and an inspector of the state fire marshal's office was summoned to investigate. A report of incendiary was made after a fire in the Barton gallery two years ago.

Bartlett went to his Swampscott summer home in the afternoon but returned after the fire last night. He said the paintings were insured for $174,000. A Rembrandt valued at $1,000,000, on display in the galleries, had been returned to New York before the fire, he said.

The galleries were advertised as an "exhibition of paintings by old and modern masters, including the transfiguration attributed to Raphael."

VATICAN CITY'S FIRST LAWSUIT CALLED OFF

Vatican City, July 30.—(AP)—What had promised to be the first civil suit in the history of the Vatican City state's tribunal of the first instance was called off today when the plaintiff withdrew his claim.

Professor Guido Gall, vice-director general of Pontifical museums, had sued for permission to live within the Vatican City, or, failing that, for adequate housing allowance.

Pope Pius ended the civil procedure by advising the Vatican City governor to avoid the discussion and counselling the plaintiff to proceed through administrative channels instead of litigation. Officials believe the claim would be settled out of court.

N. Y. BARBERS TO STRIKE

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Three thousand barbers in New York's upper west side, are expected to be on strike by tonight in support of demands for reduced hours, strike leaders said today.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Joseph Hoell, age 64, died this morning at his home just over the Manchester line in Glastonbury after a year's illness with a complication of disease. He leaves his wife, Marie, and eight step-children. They are: Mrs. Helen Deniville and Mrs. A. J. Sarrell of California; Edward J. Sarrell of Springfield, Mass.; and Paul, Harold, Felix, and Donald J. Sarrell of Glastonbury.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home. Rev. M. Anderson of the Buckingham church will officiate. Burial will be in the Buckingham cemetery.

COP NAMES FOSTER AS LINGLE'S SLAYER

Patrolman Who Chased Killer Identifies Suspect As Murderer of Reporter.

Chicago, July 30.—(AP)—Frank Foster, Chicago gunman indicted for the slaying June 9 of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, today was identified as the slayer of the newspaperman by Patrolman Anthony Ruthy who pursued Lingle's assailant across Michigan Boulevard from the pedestrian tunnel, scene of the slaying.

Lingle was slain as he was about to board a suburban train for the race track by a man who fired a pistol into the reporter's head, then fled through the tunnel to Michigan Boulevard. Patrolman Ruthy, on duty at Michigan Boulevard and Randolph street, gave chase to the killer but he was eluded in the crowd.

TRUCK DRIVER BEATEN, ROBBED ON HIGHWAY

Hartford Man Victim of Black-Jack Trio on Road North of Wallingford Near Dawn.

Wallingford, July 30.—(AP)—Dwight Gray of 126 Main street, Hartford, a truck driver, was black-jacked and robbed of $58 when he parked his vehicle for a short time on the state highway just north of Wallingford between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning. A trio of youths took part in the holdup, according to the victim.

A report of the holdup was made to the Wallingford police at 4 o'clock by two Meriden men. The Meriden men told of finding Gray in a semi-conscious condition by the side of his truck on the highway near the Barnes Bros., peach orchards. When found Gray was suffering from a wound on the side of his head, evidently caused by a blunt weapon. He was minus two of his front teeth.

FRANCES SMITH RUMOR COMES FROM CINCI COPS

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Police today received a letter from M. J. Kane, assistant chief of police in Cincinnati, in which he suggested that a young woman in a Cincinnati hospital might be Frances St. John Smith, who disappeared in 1928 from Smith College at Northampton, Mass.

New York police said they would inform him that a girl's body was found in a mass grave in the collection after Mrs. Smith's disappearance had been identified from clothing, jewelry and the teeth as that of the missing girl.

Kane said the girl in the Cincinnati hospital was 22, apparently well educated, five feet, five inches tall, with light blue eyes and golden brown hair. He said she gave both the names of Mary Wilson and Jane Smith but refused other information.

U. S. WILL NOT PLACE BAN ON SOVIET GOODS

Word Goes Out That Pulpwood Order Is Not To Be Followed By Wholesale Embargo.

Washington, July 30.—(AP)—The troubled aspect of Russian imports again engaged the Treasury officials today as Assistant Secretary Lowman considered the latest appeals against the order barring importation of pulp wood from the Soviet Republic.

While agitation continued for wholesale prohibition of imports from Russia, authoritative word came that the American government would not take such action and would not let the question of its diplomatic non-recognition of Russia affect the trade relations of the two countries.

The order barring shipments of Russian pulp wood on the ground it was partially produced by convict labor, met with determined protests yesterday from the American Trading Corporation which handles Russian trade in this country as well as an organization of stevedores.

WARRANTS DEED

Wallace M. Hutchinson to Edward J. and Annie R. Atkinson of Manchester, house and land on Bigelow street.

Marriage Intentions

An application for a marriage permit was filed with the town clerk today by August Ringhoffer and Lena Rose Gasper, both of Manchester.

DOCTORS LICENSED

Hartford, July 30.—(AP)—Twenty-five licenses to practice in Connecticut have been issued by the Connecticut Medical Examining Board, according to an announcement made today.

The following receiving licenses who live in this vicinity are: Norman J. Baker, Joseph J. Connor, George A. Crawley and Daniel Abramson, Hartford; Alexander Bothwell of Bristol and John E. Deegan of West Hartford.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Emma Bleber and son, Frederick, of Birch street, are in Maine for a week.

Rain last night gave an opportunity for the two teams that were scheduled to play in the twilight games in the North End Community an opportunity to get rested up. For Friday the game scheduled in the Playgrounds and the Community teams.

The monthly drill of Hose and Ladder Company No. 4 of the South Manchester fire department, was scheduled to be held last night. It rained so the drams postponed the meeting until this evening to try and select a dry night.

A well child conference will be held at the Memorial hospital annex tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock.

Harold A. Knoles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Knoles of East-Middle Turnpike, who graduated last month from the Bentley School of Architecture and Planning in Boston, has entered the employ of the J. T. Robertson Company of Syracuse, N. Y.

ODD CONTRACTIONS IN VEHICLE SHOW

"Amos 'n Andy" Get-Up Wins Prize As Funniest; 21 Entered.

Another crowd estimated at five hundred women and children turned out to witness the second event of the summer social season Wednesday afternoon activities at the West side playgrounds today, the feature being the vehicle show. There were 21 entries.

The winners were as follows: Best dressed doll—Dorothy Snow, 67 Wadsworth street, with a doll dressed as a bride. Incidentally, the prize winning doll is a relic, and has served faithfully for 19 years.

Furthest doll carriage—Charlotte Monte, 146 West Center street. The carriage was decorated in May basket fashion, pink, blue and white crepe paper being used.

Best decorated bicycle—Norman Stevenson, 32 Walnut street. He had a tricycle decorated with gold Christmas treeinsel.

Furthest vehicle—Bessie Cotton, 12 Short street and Everett Salmonson, 97 Pleasant street. They had an "Amos 'n Andy" contraption that was easily outstanding in its class. Bessie acted the role of Madame Queen very cleverly and Everett portrayed the part of Amos. The pair fashioned an open air taxi of a wagon.

The other entries included: Rose Apple, 48 Maple, doll and carriage; Louise Coleman, 48 Maple street, doll and carriage the latter decorated with the colors of the American flag; Robert Wilson, 98 Pine street, tricycle; Richard Turkington, 51 Walnut street, tricycle; Francis Stuffy, 87 Summer, tricycle; Helen Adanson, 60 Cooper Hill street, doll; George Philman, 48 Maple street, fresh air taxi; Herbert Phelan, 122 Cooper, tricycle; Doris Kennedy, 103 Cooper, Hill; Shirley Stevenson, 150 West Center, doll and carriage; Barbara Stevenson, 150 West Center, doll and carriage; Edmondson, 154 West Center, tricycle; Merwin Thrasher, 27 Adams street; Roy and Carl; Alice Rice, 50 Essex street, doll and carriage; Charles Morrison, 41 Cedar street, bicycle; Virginia Hallot, 38 High street, doll and cart.

The judges were Miss Frances Tibbets, Mrs. Gladys Wilkinson and Mrs. Maude Leggett. Miss Peck comes the season's biggest attraction, the Baby Show.

Patrolman Who Chased Killer Identifies Suspect As Murderer of Reporter.

Chicago, July 30.—(AP)—Frank Foster, Chicago gunman indicted for the slaying June 9 of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, today was identified as the slayer of the newspaperman by Patrolman Anthony Ruthy who pursued Lingle's assailant across Michigan Boulevard from the pedestrian tunnel, scene of the slaying.

Lingle was slain as he was about to board a suburban train for the race track by a man who fired a pistol into the reporter's head, then fled through the tunnel to Michigan Boulevard. Patrolman Ruthy, on duty at Michigan Boulevard and Randolph street, gave chase to the killer but he was eluded in the crowd.

Identification Dramatic

Ruthy's identification of Foster broke with dramatic suddenness in court today as attorneys for Foster sought to obtain his release on bail. The witness, Foster, would divulge the state believes he has in exchange for his freedom.

Never Directly Accused

The police, while seeking Foster and even after his arrest, have never charged Foster with the killing, but sought him in an effort to trace possession of the gun with which the reporter was slain.

With the development in the Lingle case, a new gangland rumormongering that Foster was a hoodlum, shot and hacked to death. He was on a visit from Racine, Wis. His relatives could assign no motive for his murder.

IN CONTACT WITH MONTREAL

Montreal, July 30.—(AP)—Past the half-way mark on the flight to Montreal, the British dirigible R-100 today had broken contact with Cardington, England, her home port, and has established radio communication via Louisville, N. S., radio station with St. Hubert airport, her destination.

From this point till the giant dirigible settles to rest at the St. Hubert airport, Lieut.-Commander A. R. Prassey, R. C. N., will receive progressive bulletins on the journey. Dominion meteorological experts at St. Hubert will turn down frequent weather reports to the navigators of the R-100.

Winches in Readiness

The winches, electrically operated, that will draw the nose of the dirigible to the socket at the top of the specially built mooring tower, are in readiness with a trained ground crew of 30 to moor the airship. As the R-100 drops low over the airport her engines throttled down, a cable will be dropped from the control car. This will be spliced to a cable on the ground and attached to the winches, which will pull the nose down to the univerted joint at the top of the 110-foot mooring tower.

Ottawa, July 30.—(AP)—The Department of Marine estimated that at 9 a. m. (E. S. T.) today, the dirigible R-100 was approximately 500 miles from Belle Isle. The airship at that hour was in communication with the wireless station at Belle Isle and also with the steamship Empress of France.

ROSENDAHL AT WELCOME

Montreal, July 30.—(AP)—Charles Rosen Dahl, U. S. N., former commander of the Los Angeles, arrived today to witness the arrival of the British dirigible R-100. He expressed keen interest in the new ship, which is larger than either the Zeppelin or the Italian Graf Zeppelin, in both of which he has crossed the Atlantic.

REGISTRARS' NOTICE WARMS UP POLITICS

Pot Starts to Boil Here as First Signs of Campaign Are Noted.

The approach of fall and the coming state elections were today signalled by the announcement of the registrars that they will be in session the first two Fridays in August for the purpose of enrolling voters for the caucuses.

First Caucus The first caucus of the Republicans will take place during the last week of August.

One Contest About the only contest that appears on the political horizon at the present time is that for representative.

Miss Cheney A Miss Mary Cheney who has represented the town in the legislature three terms, has said that she would be a candidate, if the people of the town wanted her to be.

See Few Contests As far as can be learned there will be very few changes in the make-up of the town's present board of officers.

RED LAWYER ADMITS PARTY INTENDS FORCE

Argues for Use of Mails, However, Because Revolt Is Not To Be Right Away.

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for the Revolutionary Age and the Communist party U. S. A. (Majority group) today said in Federal court that the aim of the party is to overthrow the government of the United States "eventually" and that the leaders were not "foolish enough to believe that the overthrow could be brought about except by force."

Mr. Hays made his statement in arguing for an order restraining Postmaster Kiehl from interfering with the transmission by mail of the revolutionary organ. He said, however, that at present overthrow was out of the question, and upon that fact based his contention that the postoffice authorities should not interfere with the dissemination of Communist views by mail.

ASSAILANT OF RUBIO FAILS IN ESCAPE TRY

Mexico City, July 30.—(AP)—The government announced today that Daniel Flores, who attempted to assassinate President Ortiz Rubio at his inauguration last February 5, had made an attempt to escape.

Flores was taken to Chapultepec castle for a talk with the President and made a break for liberty on the way back to the penitentiary yesterday. He was struck on the head with a rifle and subdued. He suffered various minor injuries which are not considered serious.

FLEES, FEARING SHORTAGE; GETS BANK JOB BACK Millbury, Mass., July 30.—(AP)—Miss Svea Hagstrom, former chief clerk of Millbury Savings Bank who disappeared June 10 following the visit of bank examiners at the bank returned to her home Saturday, it was learned today. She has returned to the Millbury Savings Bank to resume her post at the bank.

WHOLE NATION IS CRYING FOR RAIN

Worst Drought In Years Is Shriveling Corn Crop And Doing Enormous Damage.

Washington, July 30.—(AP)—Cooler weather did not bring with it rain to break the worst drought the country as a whole has known in years.

The Agriculture Department in its weekly weather and crop bulletin today said local showers brought only temporary relief to a few sections.

The corn, over wide areas, stands sick and shriveled in the fields and the report said the larger part of the crop in Missouri "will not even make silage." From Ohio came word of stalks tasseling at half their usual height with "irreparable injury" reported in most of the state.

Too Late for Help Showers in parts of Indiana helped the corn but the extreme southwest of the state is beyond recovery.

Cotton Suffers Too It is too dry over much of the South for the cotton. The crop is deteriorating in the northern two-thirds of Texas and in Oklahoma.

PRESIDENT MAKES NEW PLEA FOR ECONOMIES

Makes It Clear He Is Disappointed In Speed Shown In Expenditures Revision.

Washington, July 30.—(AP)—President Hoover again has urged government departments and agencies to expedite plans to economize on expenditures during the present fiscal year with a view to meeting a possible reduction in revenues because of business conditions.

At the White House it was said the revision suggested recently by the chief executive had not progressed with the speed desired by Mr. Hoover.

BAD WEATHER ONCE MORE DELAYS ICELAND FLIGHT

Kirkwall, Orkney Islands, July 30.—(AP)—Bad weather today again delayed Wolfram Hirth and Oscar Weller, German aviators, in their flight to Iceland, the next step in an air voyage from Germany to the United States.

While the fliers were in bed here last night they received reports that they had arrived in Iceland, denial was hardly necessary.

REGISTRARS' NOTICE

Manchester Caucus Registration The Registrars of Electors will be in Session at the Municipal Building in Manchester Friday, August 1 and Friday, August 8, 1930 From 12 M. to 9 O'clock P. M. Standard Time

ABOUT TOWN

The Young People's band of the Salvation Army under the direction of Bandmaster William Hanna, will give a concert tonight at 7:30 for the benefit of all those at present living at the Town Farm on East Main Street.

Dennis P. Coleman of 170 Cedar street, former automobile salesman here, was arrested at his home last night by Sergeant John McGinn and a Hartford detective to answer the charge of forgery.

There appeared to have been more lightning at the north end than at the south end during last night's storm. There were several sharp cracks, one bolt just missing the chimney on the tip of the tobacco warehouse and striking a large limb on an oak tree on the property known as the C. W. Cowles place, coming down the limb and tearing away the bark, leaving a deep impression. It did not damage the other sections of the tree or the tobacco shed.

Morris D. Sullivan of Wapping is spending his vacation at Sound View.

Thomas Sipples of Park street is playing with O'Hara's Semi Professional baseball team in Hartford. In Sunday's games he hit a two-base hit and a single in the three times that he went to bat in the first and a single in the second game.

Members of Dilworth-Cornell Post, American Legion Auxiliary, are asked to assemble at the home of Mrs. Minnie Saul, chairman of the Gold Star Mothers Pilgrimage, at 32 Foster street, Friday afternoon at 2:30.

Assistant Postmaster Franey of the Manchester post office is back at his work after his summer vacation.

Arthur St. John of the Oakland Nurseries will leave Thursday night for Boston where he will attend a three-day convention and also attend to business connected with the nursery.

Miss Barbara Lawrence of Woodland street has left for a few days at Guilford with Doctor and Mrs. E. Victor Gordon, formerly of this town.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Irwin, formerly of Hempstead, L. I., are now living at 73 Summer street. Mr. Irwin being another employee of the Chance Vought company who has chosen to establish his home in Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. White and Mr. and Mrs. William Aspinwall of Walnut street, will leave Saturday for the Rangley Lakes, Maine, where they will spend the next two weeks.

Rain again caused postponement of the third band concert by the Salvation Army Band in Center Park last night. The program which has now been cancelled twice will be presented next week—if it doesn't rain. Although clear weather had returned at 8 o'clock last night, the wet condition of the grass made postponement advisable.

Three supernumerary policemen who were named by the police commissioners at their meeting Sunday were ordered by Chief Samuel Gordon today to secure supplies and wearing apparel and to be ready for duty as soon as they are called.

The return of Officer Winfield Martin from a two weeks vacation has again made a shift in beats. Officer Joseph Prentiss, who has been driving the automobile nights and Martin finishes out the month with the automobile.

Frank Mahoney of Spruce street is enjoying his annual vacation of two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James Egan, who have been on a motor trip to Canada, have returned to their home on West Center street. While in Canada they visited the birthplace of Mr. Egan.

Samuel Herron, who is employed as salesman for the James J. Smith Company, now developing Lake Hayward, promises a large Manchester settlement as many Manchester people have purchased property there.

CHANGSHA REDS DISPENSE LOOT TO THE RABBLE

(Continued from Page 1) post office had been burned. This was taken to mean the Communists had destroyed that portion of the institution devoted to education.

Communist posted notices offering $200 reward for the capture of each foreigner, Chinese official or foreign employed Chinese in Changsha. The Communists want such persons primarily for ransom as they are considered able to raise large sums of money for their release.

Local headquarters of the Southern Baptist Mission received a message saying four missionaries stranded at Fochow, Anhwei province, when rebels took over the city, had been succored when Nationalists recaptured the place July 22. The message said the missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Strowther, Dr. Mary King and Miss Olive Eldred had received sufficient food while the city was beleaguered and had not been molested.

Demand $1,000,000 Ransom. The Communists today continued their destruction of foreign property in Changsha as they awaited a reply to a demand for $1,000,000 Mexican (about $420,000) at current exchange rates, to refrain from burning the entire city.

They ceased their indiscriminate burning of all property on forwarding their demands to bankers and merchants, but they kept up the carnival of looting and burning buildings after distributing to the street rabble the loot from the houses of "foreign devils."

AMERICANS IN CHANGSHA Washington, July 30.—(AP)—Concern was expressed in Washington today over disquieting reports from war torn sections of China in which Americans still remained.

Official sources have disclosed that two American missionaries remain in the burning city of Changsha, left behind by American, British and Japanese gunboats. The missionaries, both men, were unharmed in the meagre reports. But refused to leave when the gunboats were compelled to withdraw because of the overwhelming number of Communists and the rapid fall of the water mark.

The only other foreigner known to have been left behind was an Italian missionary, Father Beiman, reported captured by bandits when he made a last minute effort to get away after refusing to abandon his post.

REPORT ALL SAFE New York, July 30.—(AP)—The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions today received a cablegram from Shanghai saying all missionaries had left Changsha which was burned and looted by Communists. This was taken to mean that Dr. W. H. Lingie, veteran Presbyterian missionary, had reconsidered his decision to stay in Changsha and had left with the other Americans and British on gunboats.

Hospital Safety Verified New Haven, July 30.—(AP)—The home office of Yale-in-China today announced that it had been informed by Dr. Louise Farnam that the Yale hospital at Changsha had escaped damage during the rioting of Communists.

Dr. Farnam, daughter of Professor Emeritus Henry W. Farnam of Yale University and a member of the hospital staff at Changsha, informed the home office that she was the only American member of the Yale-in-China staff in Changsha when the Communists entered the city. At present the home office announced, she is on the American gunboat Palos in the Siang River below Changsha.

Dr. Farnam notified home office officials she had no information concerning the other property of the mission college, which is valued at about half a million dollars. The property is in charge of Dr. Hwang Pu, principal of the Yale Middle school and Dr. C. C. Lao former acting principal.

SEVENTY BRITISH PLANES USED FIGHTING TRIBESMEN... Peshawar, July 30—(AP)—More than 70 airplanes of the Royal Air Force have operated in the numerous aerial actions that have worried the hard-fighting tribesmen of the northwestern frontier for some months.

Several times the planes have bombed groups of recalcitrant hill men from their caves, inaccessible in any way except from the air, and it is considered that they have played a notable part in subduing the trouble.

The Paris police force now numbers 17,696 men, as compared with 13,368 in 1919 and 13,120 in 1914.

Queer Twists In Day's News.

New York—The Marquis Henri de la Falaise de la Coudraye is back from France, slim, relatively. The recipe, he explained, is simple: "We've given up smoking and drinking; haven't had either for a year and a half."

Southampton, England—When a young lady waits Charles Kingsford-Smith knows how to get home quickly. He announced on arrival from the United States that he would make a solo flight to Australia because that would be speedier and cheaper than by boat.

New York—As Mrs. Ruth Elder Camp has found things, it is entirely too hot below the surface of the sea and not nearly so thrilling as soaring above it. In a diver's suit she went down fourteen feet.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Now the serial dead beat, George W. Godfrey has been held by the police, accused of failing to pay $100 for a special flight to New York, as agreed.

White Plains, N. Y.—As the county Grand Jury views things the theft of a small car of 1926 serial dead beat, George W. Godfrey is not grand larceny; the grand jury voted to indict William Murphy on that charge, as desired by Port Chester authorities, but offered to indict for petty larceny.

Dublin—The first night club in the capital of the Irish Free State serves only soft drinks; it forbids patrons to bring liquor. It has a limited membership of 500 and has been well patronized. Breakfast for all-night dancers is a feature.

London—Some youngsters have discovered the identity of the man with a gold chain on his left wrist who had knocked out of bounds recently in Hyde Park. He was King Alfonso of Spain. The chain was given to him by Queen Ena when they became engaged. He has worn it ever since.

Pisa, Italy—Princess Giovanna, the King's 22-year-old daughter, has been trained well by the Red Cross as Dantes Morani, an artilleryman, can testify. Thrown from his horse, he was lying bleeding in the road when the princess came upon him in her motor car. She bound up his wounds and had her chauffeur exceed the speed limit to reach a hospital.

Rome—It is possible to buy one cigarette instead of a pack at any tobacco store in Italy. It is a government regulation.

New York—Another Fifth avenue mansion is giving way to an apartment house. The home of the late Henry O. Havemeyer, sugar magnate, at 66th street, is to be razed as there are houses of Vanderbilt, Goelats, Astors and others.

WESTERLY FIRE CHIEF KILLED BY BARN FALL... Westerly, R. I., July 29—(AP)—Chief George E. JANET AND CHARLES HIT IN LATEST PICTURE

Have Been Sought by Their Public to Play in Another Picture Like "Sunnyside Up"

Ever since Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell swept the country off its feet in "Sunny Side Up," there has been an insistent demand for another picture with these lovable stars in the leading roles. The demand has been met in the nature of the production "High Society Blues," which heads the program at the State today and Thursday.

"High Society Blues" presents America's most popular pair of sweethearts in a fast moving story loaded with romance and comedy. It is a perfect vehicle for the two stars, and they extract every last ounce of entertainment out of it. Each is heard in several songs, and how their voices have improved over their work in "Sunny Side Up!" It is certain that many long hours of study have been used in this direction by both principals. An unusual supporting cast has been assembled for the stars, including William Collier, Sr., Hedda Hopper, Lucien Littlefield, Louise Fazenda and Joyce Compton.

This evening another of the popular Merchants Gift Nights will be observed. Bigger and better prizes than ever await the holders of the lucky numbers that will be presented to each patron as they enter the theater this evening. Arrange now to be present tonight. Mary has already done so, much to their extreme joy.

SAILORS OF U. S. NAVY TO HAVE TALKIES SOON

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Sailors will get their "talkies" afloat as well as on shore by the time the next winter cruise begins. Difficult problems encountered on ships have caused the long delay in adopting the modern form of moving picture entertainment by the navy. New equipment had to be devised and work on it has been speeded up so the navy expects to let contracts in August. Approximately $500,000 will be spent for the new machinery.

Before the "talkies" became so popular the 600 silent pictures produced annually were ample for the navy to make its selection. Now the silent production has fallen so only 60 will be available this year. The sound picture equipment will go on 200 ships.

START REBUILDING ROAD IN WATSON

Work of rebuilding the start out route to Springfield, starting at Wapping, is under way. Two paving rollers are scuffing the old road beginning at Wapping and working towards East Windsor. A gasoline tractor scraper is widening the old road in many places.

Large concrete drainage pipes are being laid in many places and two box culverts will have to be built, bridging two different brooks.

Judging by the survey stakes placed by the engineers, many curves will be eliminated and several people will lose parts of their present lawns in the process of straightening the road.

Science has determined that on an average it takes two hours for a person to dig a road.

THE CHALLENGE IS ANSWERED FOR A POPULAR-PRICE GASOLINE IN MANCHESTER

New Socony... the Banner Gasoline... answers the challenge of quick starting... pick-up... power... mileage... anti-knock... freedom from gum

- 1. It's here... Banner Gasoline... 4 New Socony Gasoline as far ahead in the popular-price class as Socony Special plus Ethyl is in the premium field. Here are six reasons why new Socony Banner Gasoline improves the performance of your car... six reasons why, once you have tried Banner, you will stick to it. 1. It's made to start quickly. The proper amount of low boiling points in this new Socony Gasoline gives quickest starting. 2. It's made for instant pick-up. The intermediate range of boiling points in this Banner Gasoline gives you the quickest pick-up. 3. It's built for power. The proper percentage of power-producing boiling points in this new Socony Gasoline gives additional power which you are sure to feel the first time you try Banner. 4. It gives maximum mileage and economy. The exacting range of boiling points in this Banner Gasoline gives you more mileage at less cost because it burns clean with a minimum of carbon and dilution. 5. It has high anti-knock value. Banner Gasoline comes by its high anti-knock rating naturally, because it is made from only those crude oils in which this characteristic is inborn. 6. It is free from gum. The annoyance and expense resulting from gum-sticking valves and other parts are entirely absent. These are facts based on actual road tests made in New London, Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport and Waterbury, June 30th, July 1st, 2d, 3d and 28th. Prove them for yourself... buy and try Banner today.

SEES ITALY HEADED BACK TO NORMALCY

Leoni Reports Housing and Food Problem Solved and Region Showing Faith.

Rome, July 30.—(AP)—Foundations are being dug for the thousands of new houses which soon are to take the place of the ruins in the quake-ravaged section of Italy.

Under-Secretary of Public Works Leoni reported to Premier Mussolini today that operations already have been begun at Villanova, Montecavallo, Accadia, Lacedonia, Aquilone, Accadia, Hanzano, Scampitelli and San Nicolò de Baronia.

At Meli and Canosa work began yesterday.

The under-secretary also reported that since the township headquarters are decreasing, the provisioning base has been moved back to Naples.

Tents Supply Shelter When the minister of War's last assignment of urgently needed tents was dispatched the problem of temporary housing had been solved.

Three bodies were found at Accadia, and two at Montecavallo. Orphans and scattered children are being rounded up and will be sent to the chief cities, to be put in institutions.

"We have therefore, a definite sensation of gradual return to normalcy," Under-Secretary Leoni concluded, "with the population acquiring always more faith in the action of the government."

Hope is Renewed Potenza, Italy, July 30.—(AP)—Today, a week from the fateful morning when well over 2,000 slumbering citizens met a frightful death from an earthquake that devastated southern Italy, sees the smitten area looking to the future with renewed hope.

The government's promised 100,000,000 lire (about $5,280,000) for restoration of buildings, the resumption of normal food provisioning, the evacuation of the last remaining injured and the practical completion of burying the dead are all elements warranting this optimism.

In addition, the government already has begun the construction of houses which will be earthquake-proof, as far as possible. They will be finished before winter.

Relief work in general has advanced so far that the government yesterday was able to turn to what may be called the luxury side thereof—an inventory of the damages done to the artistic treasures of the region.

Richtschical Damage Commendatore Galli, superintendent of antiquities and arts for the Abruzzi and Lucania districts, reported that the Meli Cathedral was badly damaged both as to the cupola and facade, but believes that a harmonious restoration can be effected.

The beautiful Cathedral of Rapolla, an early fifteenth century structure, rebuilt after the earthquake of 1851, will need much repairing, however, the Norman church of Santa Lucia in the same town, dating from the thirteenth century, is intact and can be used as a Cathedral for some years.

Galli was delighted to find intact the grotto of Sannicola, in Nonticchio. It contains priceless byzantine frescoes.

Overnight A. P. News Madison, Wis.—Charles E. Anderson, Los Angeles broker, brought to the police court this morning on the charge of intoxication.

His wife was the chief complainant. Mrs. Ruff is a large, well-built woman while her husband is somewhat smaller in stature and if he entered the ring as a prize-fighter it would be as a lightweight.

According to those who are in position to know, Mr. Ruff is a hard working man. The surroundings at the home are not such as to give him encouragement, however.

Last night, according to his own story, he did have a glass of beer but made no disturbance. His wife, he said, was the source of trouble.

It was the eternal triangle that figured in the row. The reputation that Ruff gave his wife on the witness stand was not at all flattering. He said she had been arrested by Officer Kroopneck in Hartford a couple of times.

This was when Mrs. Ruff lived in the city and when the Hartford officials were making an effort to clean up the town. She has a police court record here.

After the judge had listened to the man's recital about his wife, he suspended judgment on the intoxication charge.

Thrusts and Counters of Interest to Local Soldiers

The meetings of both companies at the armory this week are extended somewhat beyond the usual length because of the unusual amount of work to be done, rolls to sign for camp pay, and the packing of squad boxes for camp.

Members of Company G and the Howitzer company are getting all steamed up over the prospects for athletics at Camp Devens. There will be an eight-team league organized from each of the large units in camp playing a round robin elimination series of games.

In addition to baseball, boxing, wrestling, swimming and field and track events will be on tap for those of the boys who feel themselves proficient enough to cop a prize.

Company G will conduct their uniform and pack inspection tomorrow evening.

All Melton uniforms will be cleaned and pressed before going to camp, according to an order on the bulletin board of G Co. The men are responding to the order promptly, almost half of the uniforms are already pressed, and within a few days it is expected that every uniform will have received the tailor's attention.

Private Oliver Clarke visited G Company Monday night. Private Clarke has been on the sick list for some months, and while he looks very well at the present time, the doctor will not allow him to work or attend drill for some months to come.

The boys of G Co. are pleased to have Sergeant DeHan back in the company. Sergeant DeHan is one of G Co.'s best men. He is very prompt, a bayonet instructor, and is equally as good as a combat instructor.

Private Arthur Ferrell has been appointed bugler of Co. G. Arthur is there when it comes to wind instruments and had no trouble making the grade when examined for his assignment.

There are four sets of brothers in G company; George and Edward McKeever, William and Edward DeHan, Tude and Patsy Vince and William and Walter Crockett. It is possible that G company leads the regiment in this respect. Anyway, we're here to be shown.

Police Court A row at the home of Frank Ruff of 125 North School street brought Frank to the police court this morning on the charge of intoxication.

His wife was the chief complainant. Mrs. Ruff is a large, well-built woman while her husband is somewhat smaller in stature and if he entered the ring as a prize-fighter it would be as a lightweight.

Exemption for Vets NEW Britain, July 30.—(AP)—A proposal to extend personal tax exemption, already granted those who served in the American forces, to men who fought in the other allied armies in the World War, will be presented at the next meeting of the common council, it was learned today.

This action, which is believed to set a precedent, would affect several hundred local veterans of the Polish legion and the American and British armies.

Lighted Golf Course Kansas City, July 30.—(AP)—Eastwood Hills golf course here will be lighted for night playing, one of the first, if not the first, golf clubs in the country to try the nocturnal game.

SMART ALECK FLIER GROUNDED FOR MONTH

Los Angeles, July 30.—(AP)—

Wilford Deming, Jr., whose antics in an airplane over the fashionable film colony at Malibu Beach Sunday put to rout Director Ernest Lubitsch and the children of Gloria Swanson, has been given thirty days in which to mend his aerial manners.

The aviator was grounded for a month when he appeared before R. L. Hazen, of the Department of Commerce Aeronautics Bureau. The complaint said Deming stunted within eighteen inches of the beach.

ITALIAN DEMOCRATS

New Haven, July 30.—(AP)—Pietro Diana, who was a representative from New Haven to the last General Assembly, has called a meeting of representatives of Italian groups of Democratic faith in cities and towns of the state for next Tuesday afternoon at the Hotel Garde here. The guests of honor will be Democratic National Committeeman Archibald McNeil, State Chairman James J. Walsh of Meriden and David Fitzgerald of New Haven. In the future, the fellow who says, "Let's get this one out," may be asked to produce credentials on his two-sitting record.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 30, 1930.

THAT $1,000,000 SALARY The slightly worried American who lies awake at night wondering how he can boost his $60-a-week salary to $65 can be pardoned, probably, if he takes a keen, envious interest in the salary enjoyed by Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel.

Grace, according to published figures, draws $12,000 a year. That alone is not a great deal, as industrialists' pay checks go, although it would look like riches to 90 per cent of his fellow citizens.

Indeed, it is so much money that some prominent people have been wondering, in print, if any executive can possibly be worth it. It has been suggested that no man's services, under any circumstances, can deserve such pay; that Grace, in short, is getting too much money.

No one except a stockholder in Bethlehem Steel need worry very greatly about it; and in a general way it may be said that American corporations are not in the habit of paying out money without getting full value for it. If Bethlehem's directors feel that their president earns such a salary, that would seem to settle it.

However, those who fear that wealth is tending to concentrate in the hands of a few people will probably find an ominous portent in this Grace salary. Grace may be worth a million a year to Bethlehem Steel; but is it to the best interest of the country to have such enormous salaries paid to single individuals?

If you set out to answer that question you probably would be discussing socialism before you got through. Without going into that phase of it, it seems safe to say that under our present economic system million-dollar salaries are not at all out of place.

A clever stock manipulator, for instance, can make more than a million dollars a year—and can do it without producing anything of value to anyone, simply by juggling trading accounts; by gambling, in plain English.

A heavily press-ganged movie star can make very close to that sum—and be an empty-headed, shallow-souled moron into the bargain.

A heavyweight prize fighter, if conditions are right, can do it. An unscrupulous racketeer in a big city can get his million a year—and remove a number of his fellow citizens from circulation while he is doing it.

The industrialist, like Grace, is at least giving his country something. He is producing things—turning out a definite product in return for his salary and providing employment for thousands and adding, presumably, to the general prosperity of the country.

Obviously, this million-a-year that Eugene Grace is getting is not as disturbing as it might be. Not as things are going in some other directions.

OUT-OF-STATE DRIVERS Connecticut police have found themselves somewhat puzzled to know what to do about the licenses of out-of-state drivers who are arrested for motoring offenses falling under the category set up by Commissioner Stoeckel as calling for immediate seizure of permits to drive. They have been trying to find out whether they are expected to seize such licenses as well as those of Connecticut residents similarly placed.

take away licenses issued by other states in any circumstances. There is more than a little doubt about their having any right to do so. What has been done is the revocation of the out-of-state offender's right to drive his car in this state— which is as far as Connecticut's power extends. But this does not, and cannot very well, include the seizure of a document which primarily has nothing to do with this state.

It has been the custom of the Motor Vehicle Department, in cases where an outsider has been debarred from driving in this state, to notify the licensing authorities of his own state and leave it to them to determine whether the license shall be revoked or not.

This being the case it is manifestly outside the power of the police official, under Mr. Stoeckel's new order, to take away the license of an out-of-state driver. However, a report to the Motor Vehicle Department will probably result in the visitor being treated, so far as his right to drive in Connecticut is concerned, precisely as if he lived here. So that a New York or Massachusetts driver, arrested for reckless driving and showing signs of drink, even though not convicted of drunk driving, will probably be unable to legally drive in this state again for a considerable time.

NEW BONE OF CONTENTION Irrespective of the merits of the embargo on Soviet pulpwood by the Treasury Department, the promptness with which a number of persons of widely differing circumstances appeared in protest against the order is intriguing.

Apparently it makes little or no difference to a good many people in the United States whether the Siberian pulpwood is gotten out and laden by prisoners, compelled slaves or free laborers working happily for wages. The big point is that the pulpwood represents business and, irrespective of anything and everything, business must be permitted to go on.

The International Paper Company, the Longshoremen's Union, the ship owners and charterers—all alike protest loudly that the enforcement of the law against the importation of convict-labor commodities would be a hardship and occasion serious losses.

This whole business of Soviet business relations with the United States is calculated to create a sudden and drastic conflict between those whose self interest causes them to see no harm in dealing with the Bolsheviks and those whose fear of communism is not tempered by personal advantage.

It may yet develop into a row comparable with the angry disputations over prohibition. Even now "Amorg" is becoming almost as frequently heard a term as "wet" or "dry."

NOT AFRAID OF REDS The Chicago Evening Post quotes the general manager of the Ford Motor Company as remarking that if the Russian communist agitators can do what they boast in America, "then there is something wrong with our system"; and it is hard to find very much fault with that statement.

This Ford official, incidentally, added that his company has deliberately admitted active reds to the Ford shops and finds that it has no trouble with them at all—simply because a Ford automobile factory is not hospitable ground for the seed sown from Moscow.

If we could realize the truth of all of this, it would save us from a good deal of useless worry. As long as this country can maintain anything like the prosperity of the last half dozen years, all the reds in Russia cannot hurt us. Their doctrines will become alarming only if our economic system develops such faults that a radical change is imperative.

ALASKA'S MILD WINTERS Boosters of Alaska have always insisted that one of the great obstacles to the proper development of that potentially rich territory is the current misconception of its winter weather.

A western magazine points out that the lowest temperature recorded in Sitka, Alaska, in the past 100 years is four degrees below zero. In the year 1927 the lowest temperature recorded was 12 above—while on 10 days during that winter the mercury actually rose above the freezing point.

There is a record that a great many towns in the states can envy. If Alaskan winters can be that mild, the booster's complaint that we over-estimate the unpleasantness of Alaska's climate would seem to be justified.

TOM AND THE CUP When gallant old Tom Lipton stands on the deck of his Fifth Shamrock as if she crosses the line in the deciding race a winner, next fall, he will have completed in behalf of British yachtsmen a struggle that has lasted almost as long as his already well extended life. Sir Thomas was just a year old when in 1881 the schooner yacht America led a fleet of British yachts around the Isle of Wight so emphatically that there was "no second, Your Majesty." And during the entire 70 years since the trophy won on that historic day has remained in this country.

Lipton has grown from a hearty middle aged sportsman to a very old one since he first tackled the job of "lifting the blooming mug." It is beyond all reason to anticipate that there will ever be a Shamrock VI. So that when his gay little ship with her 150 foot stick sallies forth to the Newport course, it will be a pretty poor sport who won't have at least a sneaking half hope that the old boy captures the mug.

IN NEW YORK

Southampton, N. Y., July 30.—(AP)—Here, upon another weekend, I find myself with a ringside seat at the very human spectacle of millionaires and multi-millionaires, whose castles stud the flowing dunes and hillsides. Here they seem to cast off their urban restraints and forget their barber and banks.

Take, for instance, Henry Coe, the white-haired, veteran banker with plenty of millions. His hobby is a picturesque, old-fashioned "coach and four." He can afford—and does—the highest priced European cars. But in his off-business moments here, he loves to perch in the high seat of his tally-hoish conveyance, and with a gray topper perched on his head, and the reins in his hands, to go driving leisurely through the hill-dotted countryside, his wife at his side and his friends jogging along with him and a couple of footmen.

Colonel Vanderbilt is another who retains this colorful association with another era. Here are old-timers who, when Fifth avenue was Fifth avenue, went sailing down the street, while gay crowds pointed and waved kerchiefs. The wind-up, then, was generally the old Waldorf's Peacock Alley.

Today the Vanderbilt tallyho is seen on infrequent occasions, rattling through the lanes of Central Park or bobbing over country roads of some summer resort of sweldom, such as this.

There remains, too, one good old-fashioned Concord coach of the type that ran passengers and freight through the west in the days of the 49 gold rush. This is owned by Captain Banning, himself a stage driver in the old banana days of California. He appears in it at various intervals in and about Los Angeles. The only other real Concord cars are to be found in museums.

But here, where the old-timers have placarded their houses with the signs denoting antiquity—to differentiate them from the dwellings of the rich summer brigade; where the roads wear such quaint old names as Halsey's Neck Lane and Water Mill Lane and Gin Lane, Banker Henry Coe takes his reins in hand and drives through the thoroughfares, sitting rigidly secure upon his high perch playing a grand game of "them were the days."

And they tell you hereabouts of a charming old lady who has enough money to afford to be eccentric—at least, eccentric in the eyes of those who dictate conventions. She thinks nothing of appearing at swanky affairs wearing a pun-bonnet and admitting that she finds it infinitely more comfortable than the stylish hats that others wear.

On several occasions, so go the town's stories, she has appeared at costume balls in costumes fastened to take the starch out of the collars of many a tony one.

They tell of one occasion upon which she appeared as a circus "wild man" and took great delight in whinnying her mock tom-tom stick against the glistening shield

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH By Dr. FRANK MCCOY AUTHOR OF THE FIRST LAW TO HEALTH

HEALTHFUL COOKING Broiling, grilling and roasting are much alike, and consist in cooking food by direct radiation in an unconfined atmosphere so that the steam is allowed to escape.

When grilling the cuts are cooked quickly and it is necessary to use more tender and expensive meats. Fish, small steaks, chops and bacon is put under the hot flame or over the hot coals and seared on both sides. It is frequently turned to insure even cooking, and a chop may be cooked in nine minutes in this way, while a steak takes no more than ten to fifteen minutes. This process of broiling or grilling is used for meat which is cut flat and not too thick.

Steaming is one of the most valuable methods of cooking that may be used for vegetables, for it retains their full flavor. The use of the heavy aluminum cooking vessels for this purpose is very satisfactory, as they distribute the heat evenly over the interior to prevent scorching. There are also regular steamer vessels which may be used to prepare vegetables. This method preserves all of the flavors and juices as well as the mineral elements which may be partially destroyed by prolonged intensive heat.

Pressure cooking is a very fine method of preparing food which is not used as extensively as it might be. It is a process of very slow cooking at a moderate temperature and can be used for either meats or vegetables. Often very tough meat or chicken can be made very tender if it spends six or eight hours in the pressure cooker.

Cooks can avoid monotony in the preparation of their foods if they will learn to use these different methods. The same foods when prepared by boiling, stewing, baking, frying or steaming may assume an entirely different flavor and appearance with each method. I am sure that of a dowager who had come all swanked up. Somehow she seems like a much-needed offstage Greek chorus, projecting a sense of humor into affairs that are inclined to take themselves pretty seriously.

Of course, you have to have enough money to afford this. Then there are the imitation Pompeian pools, of which much is heard—veritable masterpieces of artistic elegance. One is upon the vast estate of Colonel Rogers, of Standard Oil fame; the other is to be found upon the laborer's grounds of the Donabue place—(created by the Woolworth millions).

A definite note of old-fashioned aristocracy, however, is kept alive by those who knew Fifth avenue before it was over-run with shops and shoppers.

GILBERT SWAN. By using a vaporizer invented in England, army engineers have been successful in running a motor truck with confiscated liquor as the fuel without making any motor changes.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Somehow the U. S. Marine corps always did get more than what the Army and Navy consider a fair share of publicity, so it is not surprising that the excitement over the question of who is going to be the next commander of these 18,000 men is considerably greater around the capital than that attending selection of the Army's chief of staff or a chief of naval operations.

In picking a secretary of the navy or a secretary of war the President is as likely as not to appoint a middle-aged hardware merchant from Minnesota, or a dyspeptic ex-physician from Arizona. But the next commandant of the marines has to be a marine, and the field was observed to be narrowed down, though rich in quality, following the recent death of Maj.-Gen. W. C. Neville.

The Four Possibilities: There are four possibilities: Maj.-Gen. Russell Butler, Maj.-Gen. Logan Feland, Brig.-Gen. John H. Smedley and Brig.-Gen. Ben H. Fuller. There are four other brigadier generals, but they haven't been talked about.

The question of which one gets the job is of interest not only through marine headquarters here but also in the State and Navy Departments, at the White House and on Capitol Hill, where congressional delegations are always found backing favorite sons when such a post is vacant. Elsewhere the interest is more academic, but generally existent.

General Butler outranks the other three candidates, just barely ahead of Feland, in point of seniority. That's why a minor factor in his favor, however, is that he is now in command at the Quantico, Va., marine base.

He has been the most conspicuous of the four. His turbulent service as Philadelphia's director of public safety, when he tried to enforce the law in the Quaker City, is one of the high spots of his career. He hit the front pages again when he reported a fellow officer for drinking on the west coast, after considerable provocation. Recently he has undertaken to "clean up" Quantico.

Not "Close-Mouthed" Butler has twice won the Congressional Medal of Honor, once at Vera Cruz and once in Haiti. His first real service was in the Spanish-American War and he has served everywhere American marines go—Mexico, Haiti, Nicaragua, China and elsewhere. He is only 49 years old, younger than Feland, Russell or Fuller.

SAYS CURLEY SECRETLY BACKS G. O. P. GOVERNOR. Boston, July 30.—(AP)—Nomination papers were on file today entering John J. Cummings, Boston, in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor. In a statement the new entry assailed the older party leaders and declared that Mayor James M. Curley, Democrat, desired the re-election of Governor Frank G. Allen, Republican.

HENRY FORD'S BIRTH. On July 30, 1863, Henry Ford, American manufacturer, was born at Greenfield, Mich., the son of a farmer. He began early to develop an interest in mechanics but when he finished his education at the district schools his father put him to work on the farm. After three years on this Henry went to Detroit to work for $2.50 a week in a machine shop. Constantly working with engines, Ford later was made an engineer and machinist with the Detroit Edison company. After hours he worked on the building of a gasoline motor car. When it was developed he left the electric company and went into business for himself.

Still Active. On one occasion he went to President Cleveland and bared a particularly "raw" deal that one Indian had been given. So impressed was Cleveland that he jumped from behind his desk, and striking one hand into the other in emphatic indignation, he exclaimed: "I will not permit it. I will see justice done to those Indians as long as I am in power."

Although the general has been in retirement from the army for several years now, he still spends a part of every year in the Indian country. Among all tribes he is welcome.

He has averted many outbreaks and sometimes has been the cause of the peace between the Indian and white man.

This summer he will have to drop his duties as chairman of the New Jersey highway commission to accompany the base commander's aid out for him.

WASHINGTON LETTER. Russell has been high commissioner to Haiti, working for the State Department as a virtual dictator there. His friends say he did a fine job in organizing the country and that his unpopularity with the Haitians would have been experienced by anyone in his position.

World War Veterans. Feland has a brilliant World War record and it was he who went down to Nicaragua two years ago and successfully cleaned out the guerrillas operating there. He went to France with Pershing, took part in the battles around Chateau-Thierry and commanded the marines in the Aisne-Marne offensive, the Meuse Argonne battles and other engagements. Both in France and Nicaragua he proved himself an exceptional strategist and tactician.

Fuller has been acting commandant here since Neville's death. He, too, has fought in most places where marines are sent. He served as military governor of San Domingo during the occupation there and commanded the marines in Haiti in 1924 and 1926. His son, Captain Ted Fuller of the marine corps, was killed at Belleau Wood in the World War.

Butler was born in Pennsylvania, Feland in Kentucky, Russell in California and Fuller in Michigan.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK BY HERBERT FLUMMER. Washington.—The "grand old man" of the army—Maj. Gen. Hugh Lenox Scott—is going to hit the trail again this summer.

Congress has given him $5,000 to spend on a job out in the west among his beloved Indians. In the plains, where he has spent more than 50 years of his life, General Scott is to make a permanent record of the Indian sign language in talking pictures.

Now 76 years old, his hair white as snow, this doughty old Indian fighter is as delighted as a child at the task which lies before him.

One of the world's leading authorities on Indian sign language, which he picked up while campaigning in the west, he is about to do a work which has been hailed by scholars as exceedingly important.

Knows Indians. General Scott is one of the few survivors of the old army.

Not outstanding scholar, (he was graduated from West Point twelfth from the bottom); he came up through the ranks to the position of chief of staff under Wilson's administration, and for a while, was acting secretary of war attending cabinet meetings at the request of the President.

The late General Wood always said that Scott had only to be told to a thing, and however difficult it was, the order was executed. He never seems to have failed.

Perhaps the greatest tribute to the man lies in the fact that the Indians, with whom he has spent so much of his life, revere and trust him.

Often has he interceded for them when they had made substantial grievance. He has made an intensive study of every phase of the Indian and his customs.

The Hollywood Story

COPYRIGHT 1930 by NEA SERVICE Inc. by ERNEST LYNN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DAN RORIMER had been in Hollywood two weeks when he got a letter from an old newspaper friend in New York, ZIGGY YOUNG, telling him to look up a young girl named ANNE WINTER, who had come to Hollywood from Tulsa, Okla., to "crash the movie."

"Stick close to me in the lobby or you'll get run over by a song writer."

He complains to PAUL COLLIER, who is present when he gets the letter. Collier, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers, is unfeeling in the matter and tells him his duty to Ziggy is clear. So Dan gets in touch with Anne Winter—and is literally taken off his feet by her charm.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

Since coming to Hollywood Anne Winter had worked one day as an extra.

Rorimer had said, as they left the Brown Derby: "Tell me now about yourself. I've been very good, I think, to wait all through dinner."

"What did Ziggy Young tell you about me?" she asked.
"He said you had come out here to work in pictures. . . . You've had stage experience, haven't you?"

"Did Ziggy Young tell you that?"
Rorimer said no. "It's in your voice; Ziggy didn't have to tell me." But her voice, he told himself, was not all there. There was a definite poise about her, an assured ease of movement, and certain little mannerisms, like her trick of listening and the eloquent use of her hands, bespoke her training.

They turned into the parking lot beside the restaurant and Rorimer, giving the attendant his ticket, asked her if she would like a little ride before dancing.

"Then I can hear your life story without the competition of George Olsen's band." It was decidedly pleasant, he thought, with Anne Winter's low, vibrant voice in his ear.
They swung east on Sunset Boulevard. The cool breeze that had come with the evening sang against the windshield and rushed past them into the night. Dan pointed toward the sky. "Hollywood stars," he said with a smile.

"Do you really think so?"
"Stage experience helps tremendously, now that the pictures talk."
But her practical stage experience, she informed him, had been limited to stock company engagements in Tulsa and Kansas City. "I'm not from Broadway."
"That isn't necessary."
"I've begun to think it is quite important."

"Of course, a reputation means a great deal. But not quite all. I was talking with the casting director at Continental the other day," he said warmly, "and he told me that stock company experience was just about the best preparation a girl could have for work in pictures. And believe me, Dick Charles knows—he was an extra himself a few years ago. He says that about the best advice he could offer a person looking for extra work and an eventual career in pictures is to work a year or two in stock and then come out to Hollywood with enough money to pay living expenses for a year or two more."

"They'll tell you the same thing," he added, "at Central Casting Bureau. Have you been there?"
"I am registered there," she told him.

"Well, that's something in your favor—they're not registering everybody that's looking for extra work."
"They told me there that I should have enough money to last me, without work of any sort, for at least one year and preferably three."
Rorimer nodded. "I know. If you're just looking for a job, it sounds pretty tough; but if you're looking for a career it's different. You sort of expect to have to make sacrifices, I suppose."
"You know something about that yourself, don't you?" Anne Winter said, smiling.
Rorimer looked puzzled.
"Don't you remember the time you gave up eating lunch?" she asked.
He chuckled. "Oh, yes, I did lay something 'on the altar of Art, didn't I?' . . . Gone far enough?"
"Just as you say. I do feel like dancing, though."
Rorimer swung the car to the left at the next street. "All right, we'll go back on Hollywood Boulevard. Meanwhile how about the story of your life? The life and loves," he added, "of Anne Winter."

Anne shook her head. "Life only," she said positively; "and that's so uneventful I'll have finished before we reach the Boulevard."
He deliberately slowed down. Anne Winter laughed joyously. "Born in Tulsa," she said, mimicking the manner of his own recital, "raised in Tulsa, went to school in Tulsa. . . ."

There had been, she added, a course in a dramatic school. . . . "And then the stock companies. . . . I did well enough to raise my hopes, and to persuade my father against his better judgment to let me come to Hollywood to see if I was good enough for pictures."

She went on to say, with a swift rush of enthusiasm, that her father was "perfectly adorable" and that she was crazy about him.

"Mother's a dear, too—only, Father seems to understand me better. He's more tolerant of my whims and enthusiasms."

Rorimer nodded and made a left turn, reminding her as the car swung under brighter light that Hollywood Boulevard had been reached and she had not yet finished.

Well, it was about finished, Anne Winter said. About all that remained to be told was that she was on probation for one year. "At the end of that time my parents are coming out to see me, and if I'm making a real progress I'm to be allowed to stay. If not—she made an expressive gesture with her hands, palms upturned—"I had to go home. . . . That's fair, isn't it?"

It certainly was, Dan agreed, and he found it a pleasant thought that her stay in Hollywood was to be guaranteed for a minimum of a year.

Her father, she informed him, was a lawyer. "He used to be a judge, but he went back to private practice some years ago."
"His decision," Rorimer said solemnly, "does him credit as a jurist. Solomon couldn't have done better." He said, "You're bound to go a long way with a father like that behind you."

"You're nice to say that. . . . Well, that's the end of my story," Rorimer said, smiling at her. "I'm sure it's just the beginning."
"You're so kind, I'm sure what you are really thinking is that I'm a movie-mad, rattle-brained girl and that I've no business out here. . . . What else did Ziggy Young say about me in his letter?"

Dan, remembering that letter and the things he had said to Paul Collier, laughed. "Ziggy's a rotten reporter," he said. "He told me you were freckle-faced and stubborn."
"Well, I can be stubborn—and I used to have freckles. That's not bad, coming from Ziggy."
"He's not exactly what you'd call complimentary," Rorimer admitted. "He said you were built headed."

"He did! Wait till I lay my eyes on him again."
"There's danger in them eyes," said Dan.
"Do you know what Ziggy Young's first name is?" Anne Winter, asked, ignoring his remark.
"He never would admit that he had any besides Ziggy."
"Well, it's Clement. Whenever he makes me mad I tell on him."
"You must be perfectly furious," said Dan.

"But he's a dear," said Anne, "and it was awfully nice of him to ask you to look me up."
"I thought of that a long time ago. He's an ornery red-headed runt, but he's a swell guy. Do you know what I thought when I met you tonight?"
She had no idea.
"Well, I told myself I'd send

SEND AVIATOR'S BONES BUT WIFE IS KEPTICAL
London, July 30.—(AP)—Advice from Rangoon says that the body of Eric Hook, English aviator, has been found in the Burmese wilds by an expedition of the London Daily Mail. His young wife, however, refuses to believe he is dead. Her hope is based on an unconfirmed report of July 19 that Hook was alive and being cared for by villagers.
Hook and James Matthews were attempting a flight from England to Australia when forced to land in the wilderness. Matthews sought to find the way out while Hook was unable to travel. Matthews eventually reached safety.

Courthouse Where Dred Scott Case Started Abandoned For $4,500,000 St. Louis Structure

By E. K. BUTLER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

St. Louis. — (AP) — A gray old building where the course of a nation started to swerve, has fallen victim of a swift-paced age.

A new, more stately temple of justice has pushed aside St. Louis's historic court house, mellowed by its century of service in the law.

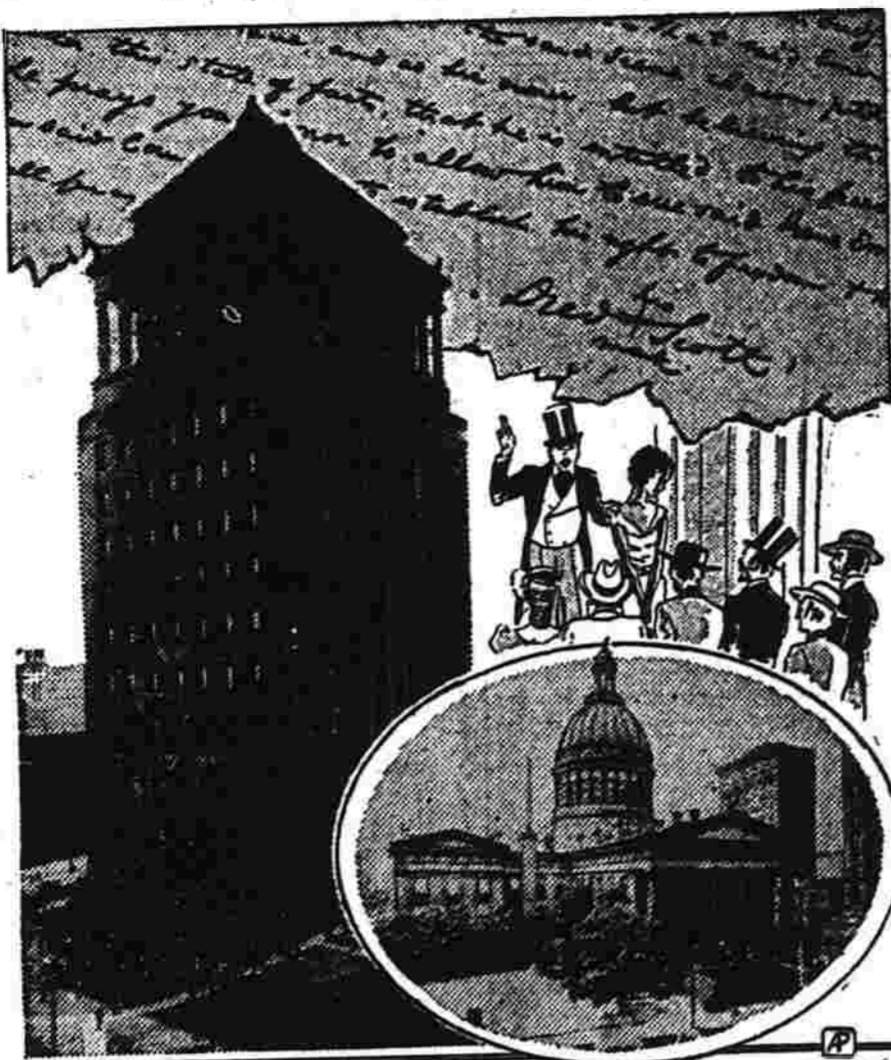

There the history-making Dred Scott case was initiated. There once slaves were auctioned on the steps.

Among the 600,000 files moved to the new Civil Court building, none was given as much attention as the file of the Dred Scott case. Historians see it as one of the direct causes of the Civil War.

Yellowed by age, 58 long-hand documents were carried by the circuit clerk, John Schmolli, to the vault of the new building.

The Dred Scott case file, prized possession of the court, consists of pleas, subpoenas, depositions, motion for a new trial and bills of exceptions which had a part in the original case.

The first petition in the now noted

St. Louis's historic courthouse (lower right) has been abandoned for a new $4,500,000 structure (left). Slaves once were auctioned on the steps of the old building and the famous Dred Scott case heard there, where Scott's mark (top, right) is still on record.

slavery case was filed in the St. Louis Circuit Court, April 6, 1846. The paper set forth that Dred Scott was claimed as a slave by Irene Emerson, widow of Dr. John Emerson, an army surgeon. It stated that since the negro had lived with the Emersons in free territory for more than seven years, he should be allowed to sue for his freedom.

After long litigation, Scott was given his freedom by the Circuit Court only to have the decision reversed by the Missouri State Supreme Court.

Meantime the negro became the property of an absentee master living in New York. Anti-slavery lawyers continued their interest. The case finally reached the United States Supreme Court. In the final decision, the Missouri compromise was voided, and "masters" were given the right to hold slaves anywhere in the Federal domain.

The old courthouse dates from 1833. The new Civil Courts building rises 13 stories and cost $4,500,000.

The future of the old courthouse is uncertain. It may become a museum.

Man Called "Real Ruler of England" Refuses to Reveal Secrets He Knows

BY MILTON BRONNER

London.—The man that big sums of money can't tempt and that promised literary fame won't tempt—that's the way Sir Maurice Hankey is known in the offices of the clever gentlemen whose job it is to get best sellers written.

By dangling fat check books in front of their eyes, the book publishers of America, Germany, England and France have been able to get the World War story and the peace story of nearly every famous soldier and statesman. All except Hankey. He is adamant. He will probably never write his story. And if he ever does, he will probably stipulate that it shall not be published until a hundred years after his death.

For Hankey knows more big secrets than any living man. This little military chap, who looks so unimpressive, has packed away in his diaries and note books and documents, and also in his clever brain, more inside stuff than any dozen men who have given their memoirs to the world. He has been custodian of the "low-down stuff" of cabinets and conferences and commissions for so long that people forget that he ever did anything else.

He was born in 1877, educated at Rugby, and went into the Royal Marine Artillery in 1899 when he was only 18. At 22 he was a Captain and when he finally and definitely retired from that body in 1908 it was with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

WAS SECRETARY OF THE BRITISH WAR CABINETS

HANKEY WAS HIGHLY RESPECTED BY THE 'BIG THREE'

Quick Rise to Fame

In the meantime the government had already found he was an ideal man for all kinds of jobs and so all kinds of jobs were given him. From 1899 to 1901 he served on the Staff, flagship of the fleet. The former artilleryman showed so quick a grasp of naval matters that from 1902 to 1906 he was attached to the Naval Intelligence Department. In 1907 he was made Naval Intelligence Officer with the Mediterranean fleet. In 1908 he was given a tremendous boost, being made assistant secretary of the Committee on Imperial Defense, the body charged with organizing all the war defenses of the British empire. In four years time he made himself so indispensable that he was made secretary of that body.

When the World War broke out and England faced the greatest crisis of its history, a special War Cabinet inside the regular cabinet was formed. It was necessary to have a secretary and the whole government turned with one accord to Hankey. In the following year, when the Imperial War Cabinet was formed, Hankey was once more secretary. He knew so much about the defenses of the empire, he was so quickly receptive of new ideas and he originated so many of his own that nobody else was thought of for the job. When the inventors of the tank were fighting army and red tape to get the machine adopted, it was Hankey who largely won their battle for them.

When the cabinet had any special little job to do they called in Hankey. They all remembered what Lord Fisher, the famous First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, had once said of him:

"He is a little fellow with a bulging forehead crammed with brains created by God for the discomfiture of the German Kaiser."

Called "British Colonel House" After a while other people gave him other appellations. Some called him the British Colonel House because of the implicit faith the "big three" placed in him. Others said he was the real ruler of the country. One of his jobs was to tell the country what the war cabinet had decided. So nobody was surprised when he was knighted in 1918. The only surprise was that he did not get a higher honor.

When the statesmen and generals met at Versailles to draft the peace treaty, Sir Maurice was right there in charge of the British secretariat and right-hand man of Lloyd George. The English old French Premier, Georges Clemenceau conceived tremendous admiration for him. When the Big Three—President Wilson, Lloyd George and Sir Maurice Hankey, right, a quiet, unobtrusive little Englishman, is said to be the possessor of more secrets than any other living man.

Clemenceau—were discussing some important point and wanted some particular document to refer to, the Tiger would turn to Sir Maurice and say:

"Come along! Pull it out of that bag of yours."

When the peace conference was over a grateful Parliament gave him a grant of $125,000. He has been the chief of the British secretariat at every international conference held since the war, winding up with the recent Naval Conference. In the closing hours of the latter, when a continental delegate made a speech paying high compliments to Sir Maurice, none applauded louder than the American delegates, headed by Secretary of State Stimson.

As soon as the Naval meetings were over, Sir Maurice went back to his regular jobs. All he does is to be clerk to the Privy Council, at

Youth Of 23 Is Director Of Nearly 50 Companies

New York. — (AP) — Director in nearly 50 industrial concerns at the age of 23—such is the responsibility on the shoulders of James C. Brady, Jr.

Slightly more than a year ago "Jim" Brady was graduating from Yale, proud of his major "Y" won as a member of the hockey team and of his membership in Scroll and Key, senior honorary society.

In college he had forecast his own future as that of a banker. Now he has plunged into the financial world that brought vast fortunes to his uncle, Nicholas F. Brady, and his father, James C. Brady, both now dead.

Taking up the reins of the family fortune, he is about to succeed his uncle on the boards of directors of a list of companies that makes up much of the "blue book" of American industry. Already he is a director of the New York Edison company and the Electric Storage Battery company.

Soon he will be helping direct the fortunes of such concerns as Union Carbide and Carbon company, Ans-

MEXICANS DETAIN AMERICAN AS RED

Charge U. S. Citizen Is in Employ of Communists To Spread Propaganda.

Mexico City, July 30.—(AP)—Charges of being a Communist propagandist working in Mexico were said today to be in the process of preparation against Mark Lutinsky, an American citizen who was detained here two weeks ago.

It was said that the documents seized with Lutinsky contained matter showing him to be in the employ of Moscow with authorization to spend $900,000 annually for propaganda in Mexico.

It was understood that several Mexicans were implicated by the evidence which has since been translated from English and Russian into Spanish.

It was learned that Lutinsky was detained as the outgrowth of an anonymous letter sent from New York June 12 saying that he was coming to Mexico on a secret mission for Moscow.

The Mexican government was understood to consider his case of the greatest importance inasmuch as it is claimed the evidence has indicated he was carrying on work dropped by the Soviet envoy who was forced to leave Mexico last February.

Lutinsky claimed that he came to Mexico as a representative of Amtorg, the Soviet trading organization in the United States, in order to clean up commercial and trade affairs between Russian and Mexican companies. He also said that he was not a Communist and that high are said to stand security.

C. O. Leppert, Mexican police judge, said that Lutinsky was arrested and detained against a second offense.

The funeral of Hiram E. Hodge, age 79, was held at his late home Saturday afternoon. The deceased was a native of Glastonbury, but came here when a young man and held many town offices.

He leaves, besides his wife, Lavina, two daughters, Mrs. Harry Burnham, of East Hampton, and Mrs. Charles H. Isleib, of this place, and two sons, Leslie Hodge, of Comstock Bridge, and Harold Hodge, of Newfield; twenty-one grandchildren and fourteen great grandchildren.

Burial took place in Hillside cemetery and Rev. E. T. Thienes officiated.

A very large crowd from this place and surrounding towns attended the bathing in Lake Terramugus the first of the week.

Miss Jessie Weir was operated on for appendicitis at the Hartford hospital last week.

Miss Marie Joyner of Worcester, Mass., is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. S. Bolles.

Leon L. Buell and Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Lord and son, Bobby, were callers in Burnside, Monday.

Mrs. J. L. Pagan and Ralph C. Tibbitts of East Greenwich, R. I., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Lord the first of the week.

The Dorcas society realized more than fifty dollars from the entertainment which they gave Friday night.

Miss Lois E. Lord is spending some time in Litchfield, Maine, with Miss Loraine Rogers, who was a teacher at the Center school here last year.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Buell, Miss Hattie Buell and Mrs. E. E. Hall were callers in Middletown, Thursday.

RED PLANE STILL UP

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 30.—(AP)—The Red monoplane attempting to break the 64-hour refueling endurance record of the Hunters, approached its two hundred and fortieth hour aloft today.

It is said that it will reach that mark at 8:34 p. m. (E. S. T.). Last night's severe storm made it necessary to put extra gas and oil aboard the plane at its regular refueling this morning.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT, 1930, BY CHELSEA HOUSE

CHAPTER XLII

"I simply cannot stand it any longer," said Judy. "I shall have to go to the police!"

She sat in the Cafe Turc, with a dozen or so of her men friends about her. It was a little less than a week after Bruce Gideon's visit. Every day she was growing stronger, though she put on no flesh and still had to use two sticks.

She looked around the table, took up her coffee spoon, and beat it on her saucer. Dan, the Italian waiter, came running up, as he did to her lightest word.

"No, Dan," she said. "I don't want anything. The coffee's lovely, but I can't drink any more, or I shan't sleep. I was talking about Miss Morley and Mr. Dumont." She looked around the table again. "Is it possible that nobody has heard from Bastien?"

"Not a line—not a word—not a breath!" came in a chorus from the assembled artists.

"I hear that both of their places are locked up," cried Judy. "I'm frightened. There has been such a lot of queer stories lately in the papers."

"Do you mean to say Steyne hasn't heard from Chummy?" Michael Stone asked.

"No—not a word."

Judy just said that, and no more. Her mouth closed like a little trap. Steyne had not been seen at the Cafe Turc for some time.

"It must be some coincidence," volunteered some one. "They must have each gone away for some personal reason."

"But not to send a word to anybody!"

"They couldn't have been kidnapped!"

"I believe they have been," Judy said forcefully. "Tomorrow morning I'm going to the police!"

She did not do so, because she had a violent headache the next day. It was one of the results of the physical suffering and mental strain she had been through.

The doctor came to see her, and she had a long talk with him. He was not the great surgeon who had treated her feet, but the practitioner who was looking after her general health. He was quite a young man and fully alive to all that meant, not only to men as individuals, but to the world of men.

"You've come to a standstill," he told her. "I'm not satisfied with you. You must go away. You must get into the sun, and get some rest."

"All right—I'll go," she said a little ungraciously. "I'll go before the end of this month."

"The sooner the better," he replied with decision.

Her head was very bad. When the landlady's daughter came up to ask if she would see Mr. Steyne for a few minutes, she could not resist.

"Forgive me for coming," Alan said, "but I thought perhaps you had heard from Chummy."

"Not a word," she answered. "I'm worried ill."

Steyne came and stood near her. "Your head aches, Judy?"

"Yes, it does," she said.

"His voice said that he wished his head could be in his hands. He had heard that note in many voices; but only in his did it rouse an answering thrill."

"It's nothing," she said. She looked up at him and smiled. As on the first night when he had seen him, she was struck by his physical fitness, by the look which said that he got what he wanted. "The doctor says I must go away," she went on.

"Judy, you are going away?"

"He says I must. You know there is just a chance that some day I may dance again. I must get well."

"Of course, you must get well."

"It won't do me any good to go now, because I'm so worried about Chummy."

"Yes, I know."

"Alan! Her voice was sharp with the exasperation of continued anxiety. "Why hasn't she written to you?"

"I don't know. I can't think."

"It'll drive me crazy!"

Her mouth puckered. She looked for a moment like a child about to cry.

"Judy!" Steyne said quickly. "Don't! Don't!"

She could see he was aching to take her in his arms.

"You mustn't mind anything I say today, Alan," she said wistfully. "I have a terrible headache."

"Judy, I can't stand it!"

"Nor can I. You mustn't say anything to me. It wouldn't be fair."

"Judy, I love you!"

"No, no—it isn't fair! I can't—she managed to laugh ever so jerkily—"I can't fight today."

Then she closed her eyes, and an attack of pain sent her head helplessly back against the cushions of her chair. Steyne left her, realizing that words were useless between them, and that he could not bear her pain.

The next day Judy was much better. There was a nip in the air, and it whipped up the boundless energy in her little frame. She went for a walk in the morning. She could get along quite well now on her two sticks.

Her urging heart took her to the street where Chummy and Bastien had both lived. There on the sidewalk, heading out a doorman, was the housekeeper of Chummy's building—a vacant-faced, dark-eyed woman, thin as a rake, with very few teeth.

"Miss Morley's back," she said, smiling sadly.

"What?" gasped Judy.

"Yes—and such news! Go up and see!"

Judy padded up the stairs breathlessly, both feet on each stair at the same time. Chummy was in a cloud of dust, and the furniture was all over the place.

"Chummy!" called Judy faintly.

Out came Chummy, with very brown cheeks, and took Judy in her arms.

"Judy! Little, little Judy! How did you know I was back?"

"I just came by, said Judy, when her friend had done hugging her. "And have you been mad?"

"Perhaps, a little," said Chummy, and she laughed. "You're going to scold me, but you mustn't. I'll explain."

"Explain! I should like to know how you got in, Miss Morley! And I must have a chair to sit down on."

Chummy took her into the studio and turned a chair right side up.

"But you can walk, Judy! How marvelous, marvelous!"

"And was about you?" For once Judy's voice was really cold with anger. "Do you know that you've frightened me terribly—that you've nearly killed me?"

"Judy, little Judy!" said Chummy, the new bronzed Chummy with the gay voice and the look of bounding health. "I do so abjectly apologize. I've been abominably selfish, but perhaps you'll forgive me, because I—well, somehow, we felt silly and didn't like to tell."

"That we got married and went off on our honeymoon?"

"Who—got—married?" gasped Judy.

"Bastien and I!"

It took more than Chummy's wedding ring to convince Judy that her friend was not mad. It took quite a lot of explanation and reputation and assurance that Mrs. Dumont knew what she was talking about.

"You and Bastien!" Judy kept saying in a bewildered voice. "Bastien and you?"

"We knew you'd all wonder a lot," Chummy said. "I've felt silly—especially I, Judy, having been engaged to Alan—and finding out that it was a mistake."

"Was that why you didn't write?"

"Of course it was—and why we stayed away so long. We determined not to come back until we'd quite got used to it ourselves. You see, it did seem rather an idiotic thing to do."

"But, Chummy," said Judy suddenly, "did you really want to do it?"

Her eyes were fixed on her friend. They were filled with a great eager question, while the seat of her face looked almost vacant. It was as if everything had come to an end, as if the mainspring of her life and suddenly run down. It was the reversal of all that she had believed to be the matter. Bastien and Judy had married Chummy Dumont!

Chummy gave a ringing laugh. "But, of course, I wanted to do it, little Judy!" she cried. "What on earth would I have done it for, otherwise?"

The question was unanswerable. Why should she have done it? It convinced Judy. She believed blindly in her friend's truth. She looked into Clarissa's eyes, and was convinced that she had married Bastien Dumont because she wanted him for her husband, and wanted no one else.

"What a good thing you found it out in time, Chummy!" she exclaimed.

She opened her arms, and the two slung together.

Judy spent the day with Chummy. In the afternoon Bastien came in, also very bronzed, and as picturesque and lively as ever. They had been to the West Indies for their honeymoon. He had found a small studio with rooms where they could live, but they wouldn't be vacant until March; so they had decided to rub along as they were until then.

Judy sat between them, brimming with gladness.

"You're a perfect couple!" she cried. "I declare, you're made for each other, and why did we never think of it? You seem—you seem such tremendous friends!"

They lunched at Ghiorri's and afterwards went to the Cafe Turc, where the news was announced, and there was much toasting and good will and laughter. Steyne was not there.

In the late afternoon, Judy went back to her rooms. She was tired. It had been a tiring day, but the Dumonts were going to take her out to dinner.

About seven o'clock Steyne burst into Judy's sitting room.

"Judy! Judy!" He was pale, and his hands that closed over hers were cold. "You've heard! Clarissa has married Dumont—and I'm free! I don't know what I'm saying or doing. Judy, I'm free!"

He was like a young whirlwind. She nodded.

"I've been with them all day, Alan. It doesn't seem like a real world at all."

"I've seen them just now, Judy, and they're as brown as berries and jolly as sandboys!"

"I know. They're very happy."

"Judy, you can't say no any more now! You can't send me away any more!"

She gave him a little helpless smile.

"I suppose not."

"Judy, say you love me," he pleaded.

But she was still in the grip of what now appeared to have been a great illusion.

"I'm so muddled, Alan—I can't think straight. It seems as if it couldn't be true!"

"But it is; and now you're going to tell me that you love me, and that you'll marry me ever so soon—just as soon as it can be done."

He was on his knees by her chair, and the going to take you out to dinner—she was in a cloud of dust, and the furniture was all over the place.

"Judy, you can't say no any more now! You can't send me away any more!"

She put her little hands on his shoulders. It was as if her happiness was too much, as if she must struggle against it.

"Alan, supposing I wanted to dance again?"

"Of course you will dance again! Who could imagine you not dancing?"

"You wouldn't mind, Alan?"

"Mind! You wonderful Judy! I shall be ever so proud!"

She smiled dreamily.

"I mightn't want to," she murmured, "even if I could."

"You know I love me!"

"You know it, silly!" she looked at him through streaming tears. "I think I want to die," she whispered, as she slipped into his arms. Then she gave a long sigh, which ended up in a rapurous smile, as she added: "Except that I want to live—with you!"

On Judy's wedding day the sun shone, and then it rained and Alan was so nervous that he dropped the ring, and Frank Hylton, his best man, was so nervous that he had to chase it halfway down the aisle.

The guests laughed and cried, and the crowd outside the church cried and laughed and threw flowers. When it was all over, everybody was worn out and felt like a rag, and yet somehow they knew that it was one of the greatest days of their lives.

The flower woman at the street corner, who was one of the honored guests at the reception and one of Judy's oldest friends, summed it all up.

"We had plenty to eat and plenty to drink," she said, "and I cried myself sick in church, and I was never quite so 'appy in all my life!"

And when you go to the bottom of it, what could have been more fitting on the wedding day of little Judy Grant?"

Sarawak's Ruler Only White Man To Hold Title Of Rajah

BY MILTON BRONNER

London.—Wars in Borneo, Dyak head-hunters, Malay pirates, Chinese opium smugglers and all the romance of empire were recalled to the British mind the other day when it was announced by Lord Colclough, British Secretary for the Colonies, that the government had just received a gift of a half million dollars from the Rajah of Sarawak. The money is to be used for the education of children of British civil servants.

Now Rajah usually means some Oriental in gorgeous eastern costume, but this particular Rajah happens to be an Englishman, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke who is the third of his line to hold the title—the only white family of Rajahs in the world.

An English Rajah

There is no more romantic or film-scenario-like in all the history of the expansion of Britain's grip on this terrestrial globe. Back in 1808 there was born to an Anglo-Indian merchant, residing in the European section of Benares, a son, James Brooke. The youngster was sent to England to be educated, became an officer in the Indian army, served in the Burmese war of 1824, was severely wounded and sent home. That seemed to end his career at its very beginning.

But James Brooke was not satisfied to sit quietly in a commonplace England. He had felt the call of the East and it would not down. He got out his atlas and the one spot on earth that seemed desirable was the Malay archipelago. Here there were constant tribal wars, conflicts with savage pirates, adventure galore. Having inherited £150,000 from his father, Brooke bought a 120-ton yacht, the Royalist, which he manned with a band of young Englishmen, friends of his, as adventurous as himself and intent on some "fun."

They found it in Borneo. Some of the wild tribes were in rebellion against the then Sultan of that big island. Brooke took the Sultan's side and helped give the rebels an everlasting licking. In return, the Sultan presented him with the territory of Sarawak and made him Ruler of the inheritance secured to his family.

Ruled Over Great Territory.

At 36 he found himself supreme ruler of a territory on the northwest coast of Borneo, with an area of 40,000 square miles, about the size of Kentucky—with 400 miles of sea coast, several big rivers, some mountainous regions whose peaks reach 10,000 feet in height, and a population of 600,000, comprising everything from peaceful Chinese coast traders to head-hunting Dyaks in the mountain fastnesses.

The new Rajah simply reveled in his job. He reformed the laws, put down the Dyaks and fought the Malay pirates to a standstill. Charles Johnson Brooke, and by some warships the British government sent out. Sarawak thus became a British protectorate, although Rajah Brooke ruled it as an absolute sovereign. When he died in 1868, his nephew succeeded him and like his uncle, was knighted by the British sovereign.

The new Rajah had a son, Charles Vyner Brooke, who was educated at Cambridge University and then went back to Sarawak, where he led a number of expeditions, which finally put an end to all head-hunting proclivities on the part of the Dyaks. He succeeded his father as Rajah in 1897 and was duly knighted. He was considered a great catch in British society, because of his position, his good looks and his wealth, and was married to the Hon. Sylvia Brett, daughter of Lord Esher. The revenues of the family and of the state still come from romantic-sounding products—sago, pepper, gold, gutta, perch, edible bird's nests, jelutong, and cutch—whatever that may be. The Rajah mainly stays in Sarawak, but the Ranees returns to England every many talents—a new play about Eurastian, or a novel about Sarawak life, or an exhibition of pastels of Sarawak types.

Make Trip "Home."

Upon one of her trips "home," George Arliss was showing London the play in which he made such a success in America, "The Green Goddess." Somebody suggested that the country of the play—Ruhk—might have been based upon Sarawak. The Ranees laughingly denied the suggestion. She said Sarawak had no luxuries such as the stage country. Instead of marble fittings, they had a stone-floored room where they threw cold water over themselves from plain buckets, while they kept a keen eye for stray scorpions. In her bedroom there was a table whose legs had almost been eaten through by white ants. So the rooms were simple and bare, and she could see the spiders on the walls and the beetles on the floors. But they did have the luxury of electric light and outside they had a golf course, a tennis court and a native band, which even played the latest jazz.

HOW TO SHOP

CONSIDER SLEEVE LENGTH TOO IN BUYING SHIRTS

By William H. Baldwin

Men's shirts are made mostly of cotton fabrics such as batiste, woven madras, poplin or broadcloth, percale and oxford. The pure linen shirt is seldom seen nowadays; for one thing it wouldn't survive the cleaning chemicals used in some of the big laundries nearly so well as cotton. The flannel shirt, too, is not nearly so much in evidence as formerly, most men preferring light-weight garments that will stand wear, as witness the popularity of the poplin or broadcloth shirt.

Too many men's shirts are bought by size of the neckband with no thought that the sleeves as well should be a good fit. Sleeves now come in lengths of 33, 34 and 35 inches, in all sizes of shirts, with the extremely short 32-inch sleeves and the extremely long 38-inch sleeves in some makes.

The stitching on a shirt should not be too fine because the closeness of the sewing cuts the material or leaves too little of it to give the thread a good grip. In the better-grade shirts the important seams are lapped and stitched on both edges of the lap or double-stitched, the neck-bands are of double material to give them stiffness and are carefully, neatly and strongly sewn.

Circular Fullness Below Hipline

Gives Graceful Movement to Chic Sports Frock

By ANNETTE

A dashing frock of sports character that meets many daytime needs is this patterned wool crepe in sapphire blue coloring.

The front scalloped buttoned closing is accented by navy blue binding. The white faille crepe silk collar and cuffs repeat the binding as does the seaming of the scalloped hipline.

A blue leather belt nips the normal waistline.

Style No. 815 can be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

It's sportive too in yellow flat washable crepe silk made sleeveless with capelet collar as seen in miniature view.

Nile green linen with white dots, pale blue silk pique and pink shantung are interesting suggestions with capelet collar.

Striped men's silk shirting, wool jersey, cotton pique and linen are attractive ideas.

Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 39-inch with 3/4 yard 35-inch contrasting.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

An editorial in a recent magazine comment, cautiously on our examination system in schools. Rather than put my "Amen" at the end, I'll put it here, for I have been taking cracks at that same system, futilely so far, for several years. Now here's a big gun trained at the same mark. Perhaps if we could get a few of our guns together we could do something.

The article concerned a small eastern city that refused to let its junior high school have commencement exercises because two-thirds of the senior class failed the examinations.

"Rather a tough break for a bunch of youngsters," remarks the writer, "for of course they didn't deserve it. It is not conceivable that there should be in a single school so high a percentage of students incapable of passing examinations which the majority in other schools did pass."

System is Wrong

"The blame lies elsewhere," he goes on to say. "First and least on the school that failed to prepare them properly. Second and more heavily on the evil system which sets the same examination for every child in the same grade in every school throughout the country, when which—blind to the differences in individuals, prevents personal instruction, stultifies the teacher, and terrorizes the pupil. Finally and most of all the blame belongs to an ignorant public which still believes that there should be a system of rote learning, recitations and all the outworn paraphernalia of pedagogy."

"When we get our schools right no child will ever fail because a tests will be applied. It will be enough to know that he has spent his term in the school, where he will have been happily engaged in finding out things, not because he has to, but because he wants to. And nobody will deny that every normal child has a vast curiosity, an insatiable desire to know and an infinite capacity to absorb."

Perhaps this bit-from-the-shoulder comment leaves some of its readers dubiously shaking their heads. Thinking people at that, who don't class themselves with the "ignorant public" he refers to. It's difficult, for instance, to reconcile his last observation about children's desire to know and their vast curiosity with progressive participation, subjective cases, and object somnolence. Or with least common denominators or finding the cubical contents of a pyramid. There are things in the world that children not only have no curiosity about, but frankly detest. And these things they must know—good English and grammar at least.

It is a bit idealistic to trust altogether to a child's interest to educate him. And yet I believe that radical as it may seem this writer has struck the true note. There can be no adjustments with the "musk" but I am here to say that until we do get away from our archaic methods of nerve-breaking tests and our unattractive system of presenting knowledge to children we are uncivilized and even barbarian.

Children lose the highest derivative of education, pleasure in knowledge and learning, by constantly associating it with mental torture, drive and humiliation. The psychology of it is wrong. When will no child will ever fail because a tests will be applied. It will be enough to know that he has spent his term in the school, where he

HEALTH

FAMILY DOCTOR CAN STILL CARE FOR 90 PER CENT OF CASES

Editor's Note: This is the second of a new series of articles by Dr. Morris Fishbein on "Frontiers of Medicine," which will describe important advances in the history of medicine and problems that face doctors today.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

In modern practice the general practitioner still attempts to diagnose and treat the vast majority of conditions which come to him. Today at least 60 per cent of men in practice in this country are still general practitioners. An investigation made by the Committee on Medical Education revealed that 90 per cent of the diseases which come to the physician can be diagnosed and treated by a general practitioner.

This 90 per cent, however, includes all of the common digestive disorders, the coughs and colds, and the minor injuries which make up the majority of human complaints. It includes also the care of the acute infectious diseases which are easily recognized, such as diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and pneumonia. It includes certain forms of surgery in various portions of the body for which the technic has long been established. Unless complications ensue, the general practitioner can handle these quite satisfactorily.

The general practitioner has been trained in the care of mothers before childbirth and in the care of the not too complicated cases during childbirth. He can take care of a fracture, a dislocation, is not so unusual as to challenge his experience and his knowledge.

There are, however, many purely medical conditions which demand the special knowledge of one who is equipped for finer examinations. The specialist in internal medicine concerns himself with disturbances affecting the heart and lungs, the abdomen, digestive disorders, the generative disorders, and other complications of human physiology, which are puzzling to the general practitioner. In the diagnosis of these conditions it is possible for any

DIES IN AUTO TEST

Naugatuck, July 29.—(AP)—Death claimed the answer which Herman Manies, 49, was about to give as the final one in his test for an automobile driver's license, this morning. Manies had just undergone his examination for a license when he was asked by State Officer Maurice Puteil which was the right side of the road. Manies raised his hand and fell back and died from a driver's license from the northern to the southern end of Beacon Falls, and had answered questions put to him by the officer.

Medical Examiner Harold Johnson said death was due to heart trouble.

"SAFE, SANE" FLIER KILLED

Youngstown, O., July 29.—(AP)—William D. Smith, known through 18 years of flying as "Safe and Sane" Smith, was killed here last night. An airplane in which he was a passenger with a student at the controls stalled and dived from a height of 30 feet. The student flyer, Robert Shugart, 25, is in a serious condition with fractured legs.

ONLY TWO SMALL BASS ARE LISTED TO DATE Few Entries in Club Must Mean That the Big Ones Are Getting Away.

The Manchester Fish and Game Bass club has but two smallmouth bass listed to date, one 2 1/2 pound fish by Robert McKinney and a 3 1/2 pounder by Harry McCormick, both fishermen from Manchester.

The Bass club chair is posted in the office of the Center Auto Supply company on Center street, and contains the names of about two dozen members.

Whether these members were unable to get away for a fling at their favorite sport of pond fishing is not known. Anyways, it is so reflected in the few entries listed to date. Good bass fishing has been found in local ponds, several good strings being reported taken in the past few weeks at Coventry.

It is barely possible that the local fishermen have been waiting for the "big un" that perhaps will not come to get this season, in case you don't know where to take that next big bass-provided you are a member-remember the Center Auto Supply on Center street where you can list the catch and can weigh the monster with plenty of witnesses.

MIDDY WHO SUICIDED GETS SAILOR'S BURIAL Worthington, Annapolis Student, Buried at Sea With Ceremony by U. S. Squadron

Cherbourg, France, July 30-(AP)-The body of Midshipman Francis H. Worthington, who committed suicide during a visit of Annapolis students to Paris July 1, was taken aboard the U. S. S. Utah today, after a brief ceremony at the docks.

Worthington, who was 19 years old and a resident of Grover, Col., was to be buried at sea today just off the French coast, his farewell request being for a sailor's grave.

The three American training squadrons, the Utah, the Florida and the Arkansas, steamed to Cherbourg from Edinburgh today, being scheduled to reach Norfolk, Va., August 14.

While the others anchored outside today, the Utah started the funeral service, with an armed squad, came to the dock in a ship's boat and was met by a file of French sailors.

The French sailors stood on one side of the flag-draped casket and the Americans on the other. After a brief ceremony the seamen presented arms and the body was put on the small boat.

Some one of these days a tennis star is going to be embarrassed by being photographed holding only one tennis racket.

150 SQUARE MILES IN INDIA ONE VAST LAKE Hundred Villages in the Sind Submerged by Flood; Thousands Are Homeless.

Karachi, India, July 30-(AP)-Thousands of inhabitants of the Sind region were homeless today as more than 100 villages were submerged by flood waters now closing in on Shikarpur from the west and north, an area of 150 square miles from the Sind river to Shikarpur is one vast sheet of water.

About 30,000 refugees have been evacuated to Sukkur. Crop damage, loss of cattle and destruction to houses and agricultural land has been enormous.

Advices from Shikarpur said that a band of 500, taking advantage of the distressed situation, plundered a number of houses vacated by wealthy merchants and looted property and cash.

In an affray near Shikarpur yesterday several persons were injured, two seriously. Quetta has been cut off because of serious breaks on the railway, refugees were arriving in Karachi throughout the day and the commission of works has issued a special appeal for funds.

LEADERS NEARLY TIED IN OKLAHOMA RACE Democratic Primary Contest for Senator Is Remarkably Close-Pine Wins in G. O. P.

Oklahoma City, July 30-(AP)-T. P. Gore, blind former senator who dropped out of the political world four years only to stage a spectacular comeback, and Charles J. Wrightman, millionaire oil man of Tulsa, today were neck and neck for the lead in the contest for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Oklahoma.

As returns came in from yesterday's primary, it appeared that Gore and Wrightman would be forced to battle it out for the nomination in the run-off primary August 12.

A veteran of early Oklahoma politics, W. H. Altafia, Bill Murray, who came back from Bolivia only recently after an unsuccessful attempt to establish a colony, was running so far ahead of his nearest opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor that his friends claimed a run-off would not be necessary.

Murray has nearly a 2 to 1 vote over his nearest opponent, Frank Buttram, Oklahoma City oil millionaire who entered politics this year. E. H. Howard, former congressman of Tulsa, who had sat out throughout the night for third place with M. E. Trapp, former governor, was in third place again today.

With 1,555 precincts of 3,338 in the state reported in the senatorial race, Wrightman held the lead with 32,899 votes, Gore had 32,813, Henry S. Johnston, former governor, 24,687, Lee Cruise, former governor, 18,085 and J. B. A. Robertson, former governor, 7,100.

Indications that Senator W. B. Pine, Republican incumbent, would not face a run-off primary was shown by the vote he received with 510 precincts reported. He had then polled 12,235.

Republican opponents had a total vote of 4,285. Returns from 1,766 of the state's 3,338 precincts for the Democratic nomination for governor gave Murray 70,758, Buttram 38,033; Howard 70,758, M. E. Trapp, former governor, 21,773, Frank Bailey 7,805.

WITCH HAZEL KING DEAD Essex, July 30-(AP)-Edward E. Dickinson, whose distillery of witch hazel here has been reputed to be the largest in the world, died in Boston today after an illness of three months, in his 71st year. Mr. Dickinson had been under surgical care in a private hospital. A native of this town, Mr. Dickinson followed his father, Rev. Thomas Dickinson, a Baptist minister, in the profession of witch hazel extract. He employed fifty men at the plant here. Mr. Dickinson also was a director in banks and active in many local enterprises and institutions. His widow, and one daughter and son survive.

TRADE SCHOOL NOTES The textile classes in the Trade school this year are the largest ever enrolled in the history of the school. The increase is due, in a large measure, to the advantages offered by the short unit courses. These courses are so arranged that any one desiring may take up any single phase of the textile industry.

A new universal drafting table, similar to those used in the most up to date engineering establishments, has been installed in the drafting room. It will add greatly to the efficiency of this department.

The carpentry department has just finished stringing two houses on Spruce street, also finished remodeling a house on Summit street. These jobs, together with a great variety of other work this summer, have given the apprentices some very practical experience. The cabinet makers just finished making a large dogpile for the Recreation Center to be used at Glee Hollow swimming pool. Bookcases and bookshelves are being made for the South Manchester library, and although it is coming close to the end of the vacation period, the boys have been grouped into working units and will have the job completed in a short time. Upon completion the public will do well to inspect the quality of workmanship by a close examination of these cabinets at the library.

New electrical equipment is being installed in the electrical department for the exceptionally large classes enrolled for the fall opening. The machine department is doing a large amount of practical work. This department is one of the largest in the entire school.

Mr. Alex McBride of the carpentry department is on the sick list at his home, 9 Orchard street. Students and faculty miss Mr. McBride and hope for his speedy recovery. The inter-departmental baseball league is booming. The Electric team is offering a very interesting contest this week, 6 to 8. Babe! and Metcalf were the battery for the Electric, and Jolly and Haberdorn for the Textiles. Babe! is a new student in school and has shown great form in his games to date. Great form in Electric team got at least one hit apiece. Borello, Metcalf and Sendorowski being the outstanding sluggers. Textiles were in the lead, Babe! and Metcalf were able to connect with the Electric team. Whippert and Rossi played their usual fine game in the infield. Textiles missed the services of W. Vince who was graduated last week.

The game between the Machinists and Carpenters resulted in a win for the Lathmen, 15 to 2. The Mechanics were on a batting rampage, pounding out as many hits as they scored runs, 15. Six doubles and a triple helped to pile up the runs. Julian and Sanchez were the outstanding stars for the Machinists, while Viot and Turin were the standbys for the Carpenters. The standing of the teams to date:

TINY REVOLT STAGED IN THE FAROE ISLANDS Thorshavn's Lone Cop Can't Prevent Hauling Down of Danish Flag But Restores It.

Copenhagen, July 30-(AP)-The one policeman in Thorshavn, Faroe islands, lying in the North Atlantic north of Scotland and belonging to Denmark, was unable to halt a flag demonstration yesterday which resulted in postponement of the opening of the Lathing or parliament. The demonstration, accompanied by agitators against Denmark, came on the name day of St. Olaf, patron saint of the islands. A large crowd was in the capital attending the festivities.

Foul Patterson, son of the Faroe member of the Danish Senate, led a crowd to the Lathing building and set down the Danish flag, replacing it with a large Faroe banner. Later the Danish flag was replaced but the lone policeman was unable to arrest young Patterson because enthusiastic supporters carried him away on their shoulders. The Faroes have the status of a Danish county and the local flag has no official recognition. Premier Stauning said today that no responsible Faroe representative ever claimed the right to a special flag in the islands.

HOOPER SEES BALL GAME Washington, July 30-(AP)-President Hoover will attend the Washington-Philadelphia baseball game here today. It also will be the first game the President has witnessed since the opening game of the season when he tossed out the first ball.

PHONE GIRLS LEARN FIRST AID METHODS Southern New England Company Extends Its Training To Include Operators.

Approved Red Cross first aid methods are being taught to telephone operators in New Haven and the instruction may be extended to include operators in other sections of the state where proper facilities may be provided. Edward H. Dejon, a qualified Red Cross instructor and supervisor of Health and Safety for the telephone company is in charge of the instruction at New Haven where the telephone operators have leased a cottage as a recreation center.

Mr. Dejon has formed classes of the operators and during their periods away from business they are given instruction in how to approach a drowning person in the water, the holds to secure so that such a person may not pull the rescuer under the water but may be carried to the shore in safety. The instruction also includes the application of artificial respiration, which means that the operator are some times revived after being under water several minutes or longer.

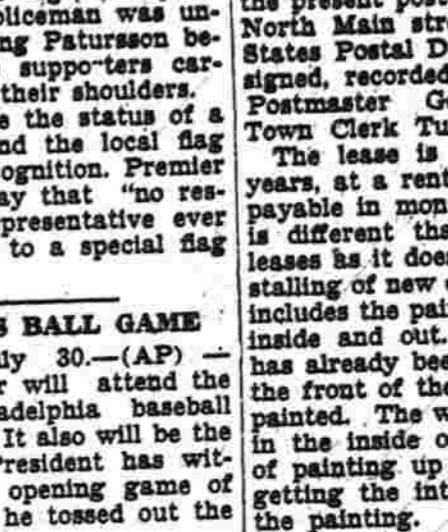

This instruction has long been given to the men of the company and during the past year four telephone men were given Vail Memorial Medals for the successful application of artificial respiration. Included in the season's award of Vail medals were two given to telephone operators for rescuing from drowning a companion operator, an act which proved that the young ladies of the switchboard are not lacking in the courage required to undertake the rescue of a drowning person.

In the belief that this instruction to operators will prove helpful in the way of public service, as it has among the men in the business, Mr. Dejon is carrying on his work at the New Beach and the cottage at New Haven will have many more potential candidates for Vail medals when this instruction is completed. Those who complete the course and qualify under the requirements imposed by the Red Cross will receive recognition from that national organization.

NORTH END POST OFFICE LEASE RUNS 5 YEARS The lease between Michael Coughlin, owner of the building in which the present post office is located on North Main street and the United States Postal Department has been signed, recorded and returned to Postmaster General Brown by Town Clerk Turington.

The lease is for a term of five years, at a rental of $1,500 a year, payable in monthly installments. It is different than most post office leases in that it does not require the installation of new office equipment, but includes the painting of the building inside and out. The outside work has already been started and today the front of the building was being painted. The work that is going on in painting up the sidewalks and getting the interior cleared up for the painting.

DEAR HEM... I HAVE JUST SOLD MY HOTEL... YOU REALIZE THIS CANCELS MY INVITATION TO YOU AND YOUR WIFE TO BE HOUSE GUESTS FOR A MONTH... FREE OF CHARGE...

HANG THE COST... ON YOU BIG GENEROUS BUY...

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below and unscramble it by switching the letters around. Give yourself 20 seconds for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it.

CORRECTIONS (1) For safety's sake it is customary for pedestrians to keep to the left, facing oncoming cars. (2) The sign at the left is reminiscent of the "noisy" and "cold in the head" have the same meaning. (3) The road sign at the right is wrong, as the road just opened is not a cross-road, but a branch road. (4) One red is missing from the bridge in the distance. (5) The scrambled word is SCRAMBLED.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Remembrances of Vacation
The girl you could never forget.
The night the canoe tipped in front of a crowd on the beach.

Summer Love
Believe, dear, that in trying
Love that is new,
I hold all love dearer
For thinking of you.

Old summer evenings
Make this summer sweet.
And tonight's lover strolls
On last year's feet.

You make love greater
Whatever I do—
All dreams are lovelier
For remembering you.

Our idea of
A fellow who Has a drag
With the girls
Is the one
Who kisses
Them and then
Pushes them away and says, "No, you can't have any more."

And yet you never see a statue of a man who attended to his own business.

A lukewarm Christian who minds his own business is to be preferred to the red hot one who minds everybody else's.

RIGHT FIRST TIME

"What did your father say when you told him of our engagement," the young man asked his girl friend.

"Guess," she replied.
"Give it up, dear."
"Why, that's exactly what he said," she burst out. "How did you ever know?" —Tit-Bits.

NEARLY THE SAME

"How dare you speak to me?"
she flared up. "I don't know you

"Well," the young man replied.

"Hurry! I'm thirsty as can be," cried Copsy. "That sounds good to me. How much is your fine lemonade and is it good and sweet?" "You bet it is," replied the man. "And you all can drink all you can. I will not charge a single cent. Oh, no! This is my treat."
The jug he held had quite a spout and loudly he cried, "Now, look out! I'm going to pour my lemonade. Don't get it on your clothes." Each Tiny drank all that he could and they pronounced it very good. Said Copsy, "You sure know just how to make it, goodness knows."
The man replied, "I'm glad you think it makes a cooling, tasty drink. Now who will have another mug? There's plenty still to now. I like to treat wee lads like you." Then Clowzy said, "I guess we're through. We thank you very, very much and now we'll have to go."
And so they sauntered down the street as Copsy said, "I like to meet such very friendly people.

He was very nice, I think." His lemonade was also good! And, gee, I drank all that I could.
When you are hot and thirsty it's a real refreshing drink."
They then came to a small,
queer street and Copsy said, "Say, this is neat. The narrowness sat down for a while. The passing people made them smile. "How strange they look," said Copsy, "in the funny clothes they're dressed."
Small balconies hung over head.
"Ob, look up there," one Tiny said. The others looked and saw that they were strangers in her land. Then she began to wave her hand. Then Clowzy tipped his hat and all the others laughed. "Ho, Ho!"

ABOUT TOWN

The women of the Nazareth church will hold their regular Thursday afternoon prayer meeting tomorrow at 2 o'clock at the church.

Mrs. Ernestine French, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Marvin S. Stocking of North Main street who has been spending several weeks with her parents will return to her home in Topeka, Kansas, on Friday.

Lorraine and Irene, ten-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harold House of South Main street left last evening for West Springfield, where they will spend their vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Alec Simpson, formerly of this town. This is the first time the girls have been away from home without their parents, and they are thrilled at the prospect of a trip over the Mohawk Trail and visits to places of interest in that part of Massachusetts.

Dr. and Mrs. N. A. Burr and family of Park street returned last night from two weeks' vacationing in the White Mountains and the Berkshires. Their son, Horace K. Burr, has returned home from Camp Woodstock where he has been a counsellor for four weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cockerhan and daughters, Florence and Marjory, are at Robinson's cottage, the Locust Oak, Black Point, for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Goslee of Huntington street left Monday morning for a two weeks' trip by automobile to Maine.

Mrs. John Breen who has been spending a few days with Mrs. John Humphries of Lilley street, has returned to her home in Fairfield. Her daughter, Miss Betty Breen, will remain with friends here for another week or two.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wright of Locust street left early this morning for Philadelphia, N. Y., on receipt of a telegram announcing the death of their son-in-law, Fred Taylor. Besides his wife, who was Miss Alice Wright, he leaves two daughters, Muriel and Eleanor.

Mrs. John Ritchie and daughter Janet of Clark street, and Miss Alice Wilson of Spruce street, have returned after a visit with Mrs. L. T. Wood and children who are spending the summer at their cottage at Point O Woods Beach.

A Herald newsgatherer was amused yesterday at the sight of a black and white tabby in a passing automobile. The cat was apparently enjoying the ride fully as much as the dogs we are accustomed to see every day in cars.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hedstrom are occupying the house at 470 Main street near the Center, and have moved to Manchester from St. Albans, L. I. Mr. Hedstrom is with the Chance Vought Corporation at East Hartford.

Rev. H. O. Weber of the Lutheran Concordia church on Winter street and Mrs. Weber, plan to leave tomorrow for their vacation, a portion of which they will spend in Huntington, N. H. They will visit with friends in Freehold, N. J., Asbury Park and other places.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Appleby and daughter, Miss Doris Appleby, have moved to town from West Englewood, N. J. Miss Appleby is a teacher in Engelwood High school and Mr. Appleby is with the Chance-Vought Corporation.

Frank Reig is recovering from his automobile accident injuries at his home on East Middle Turnpike. X-ray pictures disclose no fractured ribs as was first feared.

There will be no services at the Concordia Lutheran church during the next three Sundays, while Rev. H. O. Weber is away on his vacation.

SCHOOLS EXPENSES TO INCREASE $9,000

Joint Board Meets to Thresh Out Budget - Registration Jumps.

At a meeting of the Joint School Board held in the Municipal building yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the sum of $428,922.00 was agreed upon as the estimate for school expenses for the year 1934-35. This is an increase of approximately $9,000 over last year's budget. Credits for the past year of $29,005.00 reduce the amount to be raised by taxation to $399,917. An anticipated increase in pupils in the High School, necessitating added text books and supplies, is the principal reason for the increase above last year's estimate.

The figures as approved and voted by the apportionment board are as follows: Districts 1 to 8, $138,077; Ninth District, $164,991; High School, $110,354; Evening School, $4,000; Trade School, $4,500; Maintenance of buildings and heating plant in the Recreation center, $7,000.

Item of credit for the past year are listed as follows: Tuition refund for out of town High School pupils, $10,000; tuition from outside Ninth District pupils, $6,000 town rental from the Ninth District, $7,000; State aid for evening school, $500; State School enumeration grant for districts 1 to 8 $5,200; Library fund, $105.00 and interest from town deposit fund, $200.00.

Estimates of costs above the preliminary budget allowances of the June 17 meeting of the Joint Board are charged to the Ninth District of $1,200 were made for fuel, light and power which overran the budget allowance for 1929-30, and for insurance, totaling $100, required on the school buses. Increases above the budget allowance of June 17 for the High School were $1,500 for text books and supplies and $500, for fuel, light and power costs.

Superintendent of Schools, Fred A. Verplanck explained that the reason for the increased cost estimate for the High School for the coming year, is due to anticipated increased registration. For the season of 1929-30 there were 134 seniors, 192 juniors, 228 sophomores and 303 freshmen in the High School making a total of 857 pupils. For this year Mr. Verplanck estimates an increase of 185 new pupils in the four grades, 79 of which will be added in February by incoming pupils from other districts. Based on the mean cost estimate of $685 for the year, the cost for the text books for last year's 857 pupils will be $5,870. Supplies for the 185 new pupils will cost $10 each or $1,850 but the latter figure is pared to $1,500 on the budget.

It was brought out in the meeting that Manchester's cost, per pupil was $123, whereas the average cost in the State was $150. It is of interest to note that if Superintendent Verplanck's estimate of increased registration in the High School is correct, it will be the first time in the history of the town that over 1,000 pupils have been enrolled. The Philadelphia club held its final meeting of the season yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Charles B. Warren of Center street. More than forty attended. The first prize in whist was won by Mrs. Annie Smith of Talcottville; second, Mrs. William Hunniford; third, Mrs. Ruth Howell, and consolation, Miss Josie Keating. Mrs. Clarence Risley won the attendance prize. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Joseph Behrend, Mrs. Florence Treadwell, Mrs. Nelson L'Heureaux and Mrs. Inez Batson. It was announced that at least ten members of Stary Bushnell Cheney Auxiliary, U. S. W. V., of which the Philadelphia club is made up, will attend the national convention in Philadelphia, August 17 to 20.

ANOTHER U-TURN CAUSE OF CRASH 9:45 last night, causing a couple of bent fenders, but resulting in no personal injuries. One car, owned by Edward Chalm of 107 Bridge street, Monson, Mass., was driving down the hill and was about to be driven into the east curb in front of the Johnson block making a U-turn as the other car, driven south by Leo Senatro, of 128 Capen street, Hartford, not noticing that a turn was to be made continued on. They were both driving slowly and when the compact came only the fenders of the cars were damaged. The drivers agreed to settle the matter between them and there was no arrest. There are now about 130 women police in Great Britain.

GEN. THIRD MAN WANTED Bridgeport, July 26.—(AP)—Antonio ("Butts") Lucia, 26, sought by police since last November, today was held without bonds in connection with the robbery of a safe containing $1,600 from the office of the National Transportation Co. He was arrested in White Plains, N. Y., by police who were patrolling the city when a charge of breaking and entering at night was lodged against him. Lucia, police charge, with two companions drove off with the safe and tried to open it in the woods. George Catone, who police say confessed to participating in the robbery, is now serving a 10-year prison term for a similar robbery in New York and a 5-year term for a robbery in New York. Lucia was arrested last May for the safe robbery.
