PEACE PARLEY WITH MAHATMA BEING STAGED

Prominent Leaders of Civil Disobedience Movement in India Meet Gandhi in Jail—Hope for Conclusion

Poona, India, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The most prominent leaders in the civil disobedience movement in India met in Veroda jail today and discussed with Mahatma Gandhi the possibilities of ending their activities pending the forthcoming round-table conference in London.

Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, foremost woman leader in the Congress movement, was called in today to participate in the deliberations.

With the Mahatmas and Mrs. Naidu were Pandit Motilal and Jawaharlal Nehru. Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar.

Sir Tej and his companions, classified as Moderates, joined the Pandits and Gandhi and later Vallabhai Patel, also a prisoner in Veroda jail, came into the conference.

Call Mrs. Naidu

Mrs. Naidu, who was arrested May 21, when she was in command of the salt raiders, known as "Gandhi No. 3," was summoned to the meeting only half an hour before the conclusion of today's session. Her advent in the deliberations was regarded as extremely significant.

Vital Conference

Today's session was considered vital by the government as well as by Indian leaders throughout the country although no definite announcement was expected at the close of this session as the Mahatma and his colleagues will re-emerge again tomorrow.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar originated the negotiations for a pacific ending of the civil disobedience campaign nearly a month ago when they obtained permission of the viceroy for preliminary conferences with the Mahatma in his prison quarters.

Not discouraged by their first interview with the "Holy One," the two emissaries left Poona for Allahabad, there conferring with the Pandit Motilal and Jawaharlal Nehru and recently obtaining from Viceroy Lord Irwin a transfer of the Nehrus from their prison to quarters in the same jail with the Mahatmas so that a general conference could be held.

While there has been a decided lessening of activity by the volunteers during these conferences, enough energy has been displayed to indicate that neither a truce nor an entire cessation of activities has yet resulted.

DRUGHT RAISING VEGETABLE PRICES

La Guardia Hints at Profitteering in Talk With Hoover—Today's Situation.

Washington, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A complaint of an "undue increase" in prices of fresh vegetables in New York City as a result of the drought was laid before President Hoover today by Representative La Guardia of New York.

La Guardia, a Republican, said the President requested him to take up the matter with the Department of Agriculture. The Representative made an appointment with Secretary Hyde for later in the day.

He said unless some immediate action were taken to prevent unnecessary price increases, "very drastic steps will be taken by consumers."

Secretary Hyde said before La Guardia's protest that no specific instances of profiteering in foodstuffs had been called to his attention but the Agriculture Department was on the alert. He asserted there was no cause for alarm among housewives.

Only Shortages

The only crop shortage, Hyde said, was in corn, hay and pastures for cattle. Out of a normal production of 2,800,000 bushels of corn only about 75,000,000 are used for human consumption.

While there was a slight decline in garden crops, this could be made up, he said, in many places outside the drought area.

Hyde was an early caller at the White House. He went over with President Hoover last minute details preparatory to the conference at which machinery for a co-operative federal-state relief program will be set up.

Weather Improves

The weather showed signs of cooperating with the Hoover drought conference, good rains in the last 24 hours being reported from Missouri with showers forecast in the

HAWKS FLYING EASTWARD TO BREAK RECORD

Expects to Complete Trip From Coast to Coast in Twelve Hours; Plane Can Travel 250 Miles An Hour

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 13.—(AP)—As Gilbert wins the gold lined grouse. It was one of three he shot while hunting on the upper Boise river. In its gizzard was a gold nugget the size of a lima bean.

Wichita, Kas., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Captain Frank Hawks, attempting to recapture the west-east transcontinental flight record wrested from him Easter by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, started off on the last half of his journey today with success in sight.

The flier arrived here from Glendale, Cal., at 10:22:38 a. m., clipping 52 minutes from the time required by the Lindberghs to reach Wichita, the only stop they made on their dash to New York.

Hawks remained here 15 minutes while his plane was refueled and departed at 10:35:52 a. m., with Indianapolis as his next stop. His time to Wichita was 6 hours, 4 minutes and 21 seconds.

Tail winds favored the flier and he expressed confidence that he would lower the transcontinental mark of 14 hours and 45 minutes established by the Lindberghs.

Hawks made one landing en route to Wichita, pausing 15 minutes at Albuquerque, N. M., for fuel.

START OF FLIGHT

Glendale, Calif., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Frank Hawks, holder of the East-West transcontinental speed mark of the viceroy for preliminary conferences with the Mahatma in his prison quarters.

Not discouraged by their first interview with the "Holy One," the two emissaries left Poona for Allahabad, there conferring with the Pandit Motilal and Jawaharlal Nehru and recently obtaining from Viceroy Lord Irwin a transfer of the Nehrus from their prison to quarters in the same jail with the Mahatmas so that a general conference could be held.

While there has been a decided lessening of activity by the volunteers during these conferences, enough energy has been displayed to indicate that neither a truce nor an entire cessation of activities has yet resulted.

Splendid Weather

Weather reports indicated good flying conditions for Hawks. Light cross winds prevailed from here to Albuquerque, but tail winds from four to 25 miles an hour were reported to aid him east of the New Mexico City.

Last week Hawks made a five-stop flight from Curtiss Field, New York, to the Los Angeles Municipal Airport in 14 hours, 50 minutes, 45 seconds, setting a new record under poor flying conditions.

Hawks said he planned to stop this trip for fuel at Albuquerque, Wichita, Kas., and Indianapolis, allowing 15 minutes at each place.

Difficulties between Hawks and his former wife, Mrs. Nellie Vaughn, over a judgment for $10,000 obtained by the latter, threatened to hold up the record attempt but attorneys affected a temporary settlement.

HOODOO NUMBERS

New York, Aug. 13.—(AP)—If Frank Hawks wants a hoodoo to keep him company on his transcontinental flight today he needn't hunt for one.

Today is the Thirteenth, Hawks' plane is "The Texaco 13" and Hawks' Department of Commerce license is Number 13-13.

LORENZ'S BROTHER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Four Hours After Heinrich Was Hanged, Sigurd Shoots Himself in Canada.

Hartford, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Four hours after the hanging of his brother, Heinrich, on the gallows at the Connecticut state prison for murder, Sigurd Lorenz, 21, was brought to Grace hospital in Windsor, Ont., with a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head. It was learned here today, his condition today was pronounced good.

Sigurd, a sailor who worked on the Great Lakes steamer Keeley, and lived at Keeley Island, near Windsor, was with the murderer when he was apprehended in Windsor by police on April 4, after a chase from Hartford to the residence of Nils Anderson in Wethersfield.

Several relatives of Lorenz had been in Hartford and had attempted suicide, according to the defense in a petition for a retrial here one week before the hanging.

BOGUS HERO WENT TOO FAR

Bought a Lot of War Medals to Win a Wife But the Real Heroes Found Him Out.

Detroit, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Benjamin Lee couldn't win his girl's love with his resplendent theater usher's uniform, so he bought some medals, won the girl, and today is in jail as a bogus hero.

Dined and honored by Detroit veterans' organizations as one of Michigan's war heroes, Benjamin, a theater usher, appeared wearing the Croix de Guerre, the Victoria Cross, the Distinguished Service Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor. He told vivid stories of his part in the war.

In other states, the names of the veterans became suspicious. They figured out that Benjamin was about 12 years old when the war started.

Department of Justice agents questioned Benjamin and he confessed that his tales of heroism were designed to win the love of the girl who now is his wife. He said he purchased the medals from veterans who were "short of cash" and that after his marriage his wife carried on the tales of heroism until the affair got out of his control.

Nebraska Republicans Nomi- nate Insurgent—Demo- cratic Leader Wins in Arkansas Primary—Ala- bama Picks Bankhead;

Buckley, of Ohio, a Wet Leads by 40,000.

By Associated Press

Nebraska Republicans gave Senator George W. Norris, veteran insurgent and outstanding foe of Herbert Hoover, the Senatorial nomination in Tuesday's primary.

Norris, who left his party to campaign two years ago for Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, was gaining steadily over William M. Stebbins, "regular" candidate, in the stiffest contest he has had in his 18 years of Senate service.

Returns from 1,387 of the state's 2,030 precincts gave Norris a lead of more than 20,000. The vote was Norris, 74,370; Stebbins, 53,393.

Results of the four other state primaries yesterday showed a mixture of reactions on such national issues as prohibition and the Hoover administration.

In Ohio the Democrats chose a wet for governor. The Republican incumbents in these offices in Ohio are both dries and were without party opposition.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader in the Senate, who drew opposition after running as a vice-presidential candidate with Smith two years ago, won by almost three to one margin for the Democratic Senatorial nomination in Arkansas. Robinson championed national prohibition.

In Alabama apparently selected John H. Bankhead, Jasper attorney and son of a former Senator, to run for the Senate against Senator Hefflin, the incumbent who has been forced to race as an independent because of his failure to support Smith in 1928. Bankhead was maintaining almost a two to one advantage over Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher.

In Ohio Robert J. Buckley of Cleveland, who advocated repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, had a lead of more than 40,000 votes over his closest competitor, W. W. Durbin, in the five-cornered contest for the Democratic Senatorial nomination with almost all of the returns tabulated.

But the Ohio Democrats chose George W. White, a dry, for the gubernatorial nomination over Stephen M. Young, an advocate of prohibition repeal. In 8,735 of the 8,956 precincts White had 128,021 and Young, 75,433.

BISHOP REPORTED IN GRAVE DANGER

Rev. J. A. O'Shea, Native of Connecticut, Now in Chi- na's War Danger Zone.

Washington, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Red forces surrounding Kanchow, China, recently abandoned by Nationalist troops, were believed today to have placed in grave danger Bishop J. A. O'Shea, of the Catholic Mission there. He is said to be the only American remaining in the city.

The bishop who is from St. Vincent Seminary, Germantown, Pa., was reported in cables to the State Department from the Canton consul today in a serious plight, together with a few other foreigners still there. Some twenty or thirty Americans who had been in the city when the threat of invasion developed were reported safe. Efforts were being made by Douglas Jenkins, American consul at Canton to secure protection for the prelate.

Sisters Safe

Through Father Daniel McGillcuddy of the Vincentian order, Jesuit, Conn., was informed of the safe arrival at Shio Chow, northern Kwangtung of eight Sisters of Charity and three priests from Kanchow. The sisters were unnamed while the priests were identified as Father J. J. Corbett, 32 Calder street, Boston; Father William Joseph McMillont, of St. Vincent's and Bishop Dumont, address not given.

Bishop O'Shea, a native of Deep River, Conn., was consecrated bishop about two years ago and placed in charge of the Vincentian Mission in China. He has two brothers; both priests, in Waterbury, Conn., who were said last night to have had no word from him in several months.

$1,000 Store Bills Follow Pickfords on Honeymoon

Del Monte, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Two store bills were filed in the Los Angeles Municipal Court.

The setting of the marriage rivalled the motion picture conception of a little country church wedding.

James Kirkwood, motion picture director, a few villagers and a group of curious children were the only witnesses. An old fashioned stove and chromes on the walls added to the picture.

The Rev. T. J. Barkel read the marriage service over the roof of the surf which came through broken windows.

Olive Thomas, who died in Paris several years ago, was Pickford's first wife. He later married Marilyn Miller, musical comedy star. They were divorced.

A third summons shortly Pickford in Los Angeles. The three were filed to collect about $1,000 which the merchants claim the actor owes them on year old bills. All actions

JACKSON AND O'BRIEN PASS HUNTERS' MARK

'Under the Influence' Greatest Auto Hazard

Hartford, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Commissioner Robert T. Hurley of the State police department in discussing the effect of alcoholic liquors on individuals, today defined drunkenness, intoxication, and "under the influence," and held that motorists in the latter class constituted the greatest traffic hazard. The commissioner holds that a drunken man plays no part in the traffic hazards of today, the intoxicated man but a slight part, while the individual who is "under the influence" is a distinct hazard and should be eliminated from the highways of the state.

Mr. Hurley defines the three classifications, in part, as follows: "Drunkenness: In this class the person has become inebriated or saturated by the stimulating influence of alcohol, to the extent that the equilibrium forces of the body and mind can no longer function. Intoxication: In this class the person's equilibrium forces of both mind and body, have sufficient stimulating influence of alcohol to deprive him of his even poise and balance to the extent that he is navigating in an unconscious manner, and as a rule, acts in accordance with his cave-man instincts. Under the influence of liquor: This state, in my opinion, covers the period between the taking of the first drink and that stage where the equilibrium has become effected to the extent of reasonably interfering with navigation.

St. Louis Veterans Have Now Been Aloft More Than 23 Days—Equal Hunters' Record This Morning; Crowd Gives Them Great Ovation While Standing in Rain—Fliers Say They Will Stay Up for Six Weeks.

Lambert-St. Louis Field, St. Louis, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The veteran endurance team, Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien, flew through rain and the threat of a storm today to a new world's record for sustained flight. They officially regained the record at 8:52 a. m. (C. S. T.) when they had been up 554 hours and 41 minutes, slightly more than 23 days.

Hunter's Record

The new mark exceeded by one full hour the record established last July 4 at Chicago by Kenneth and John Hunter, Illinois farm boys, who after several attempts had wrested the flight championship from Jackson and O'Brien. The latter pair set a 420 hour record July 31, 1929.

With the record regained, Jackson and O'Brien had no thought of landing but drove on toward a goal which they now have set at 1,000 hours, or about six weeks, in the air.

Wives Present

The wives of the fliers were among those who stood in the rain to watch the record broken. They were showered with congratulations. With a downpour of rain that soaked the small crowd and a burst of aerial bombs and auto horns, Jackson and O'Brien came down low over the field. They came to within a few hundred feet of the crowd and waved.

A crowd of about 50 airplane factory workers paraded across the field carrying a banner reading: "Again Red and Obie." Factory whistles, heralded the return of the flight record to St. Louis with a chorus of shouts.

Trying To Speak

It appeared that Jackson and O'Brien were attempting to speak to the crowd over their short wave length transmitter, but apparently the rain storm interfered, as they were not heard.

Jackson said yesterday, however, they would stay up one thousand hours if the motor did not quit. The fliers this time were their own managers and masters of their own destiny.

Last year's flight ended at 420 hours, short of the aviators' 500 goal, when they were called down by the flight sponsors, an airplane manufacturing company.

The greater St. Louis is equipped with a Challenger motor of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Company, the same type of motor used last year. It is 170 horse-power. The plane's gasoline capacity is less than 25 gallons. The St. Louis Robin, but it is so built as to give the fliers more room, but it is more room to give the fliers more room. The large fuselage tank holds 107 gallons and the two wing tanks 25 gallons each. Today the endurance ship had made a total of 125 contacts with the refueler, had used about 5,955 gallons of gasoline and 226 gallons of oil. The first six months against net income of $164,686 in the first half of 1929.

First National Stores, Inc. had net profit of $1,179,297 in the half ended June 30, equal to $1.33 a common share, compared with $1,188,497 or $1.42 a share in the same period last year.

JAPAN'S NAVAL DEMANDS DEBATED AT INSTITUTE

British and American Ex- perts Have Opposite Opin- ions On Far Eastern Situa- tion—Castle's Views.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Views of Japan's demands for a 10-7 naval ratio were at variance in the general conference on the "Far Eastern Situation" at the Institute of Politics today.

William R. Castle, assistant secretary of state, in a paper read at the conference in his absence, stated that in his stay in Japan as American ambassador during the London naval conference he was told that the 10-7 ratio gave Japan "a fighting chance" against the American fleet in the western Pacific, while the United States believed a 10-6 ratio to be fair.

He pointed out that Japan the United States alone was blamed for refusal to agree to the Japanese terms "although it was perfectly clear that Great Britain would not agree to the 10-7 ratio in large cruisers whatever we might do."

Exceptions Taken

Exception to these statements was taken by Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond, former president of the British Imperial Defense College. Concerning Japan's demands for a 10-7 ratio he called attention to Japan's vulnerability in its need to maintain food lines with the mainland. With reference to Mr. Castle's statement that a 10-6 ratio would be fair and give Japan adequate security, Admiral Richmond suggested that "Japan is as good a judge as Mr. Castle in this matter," "does he or we know whether she is safe, if she is secure in her home waters."

Mr. Castle's observation that even if the United States had agreed to a 10-7 ratio Great Britain would have objected, Admiral Richmond would express no opinion. He doubted he said whether one can rightly introduce "such hypothetical issues into a discussion of this kind."

Mr. Castle said that he had been sent to Japan by the President "primarily that I might keep London and Washington currently informed on Japanese opinion." He

R-100 WILL START FOR HOME TONIGHT

Lacking Use of One Motor, Big Dirigible Will Hop at 9 O'clock.

St. Hubert, Que., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Thirteen has no terrors for the R-100. The British dirigible, which will set out for England at 9 o'clock (EST) tonight homeward bound after her first ocean-crossing, was ready today for her trip, her gas bags bulging with a new supply of hydrogen and everything on board spick and span.

The passenger list had not been announced but it was known that one passenger will be Jacques N. Cartier, a descendant of Canada's pioneer navigator, who will make the air trip his ancestor made along the St. Lawrence and across the Atlantic in 1534.

The R-100 will go back without the services of its starboard forward motor. The engine developed a defect on the trip over Ontario and it was decided not to repair it here. As the dirigible will have a good tail wind behind her, officers of the ship thought the motor would not be needed. It was believed she could make the home airport at Cardington in fifty hours, which would be a record for crossing the Atlantic in a lighter-than-air craft.

FARMHAND ADMITS HE KILLED COUPLE

Breaks Down During Grill- ing and Gives Details of the Double Murder.

Concord, Mass., August 13.—(AP)—Joseph Grobowski, alias Joe Stefanovsky self-confessed killer of William Stefanovsky, Stow farmer, and his wife Stacia, awaiting arraignment in the District Court here today on charges of first degree murder. Warren Bishop, assistant district attorney of Middlesex county, will conduct the prosecution.

Grobowski was brought here from Cambridge late last night after hours of grilling in Mr. Bishop's office at the Middlesex County Court-House.

For some time after his arrest in yesterday, he maintained he had driven the elderly couple to the station and they had gone to Chicago. Then he named a fellow farmhand as the actual murderer.

Finally Breaks Down

And finally, "all right—I'll tell the truth."

His story of the murder as announced by Mr. Bishop was that he struck Stefanovsky, his employer, from behind with the piece of birch wood as they walked through a pasture at the rear of the farm on Sunday, June 1.

Mrs. Stefanovsky hearing her husband's outcry, ran from the house, brandishing a club at her as she sought to aid her husband. Later he said he killed Stefanovsky's dog for fear he might lead searchers to the brush he had buried his victims' bodies in.

The bodies were recovered last Sunday. The search for Grobowski was launched a week ago after he had disappeared from Stow with money he had collected from auctioning of cattle and collecting rents due Stefanovsky.

PREHISTORIC RACE

Evidence Indicating a Prehistoric Race of People, Living Almost En- tirely on a Diet of Snails and Having no Contact with the mainland, 60 miles away, once roamed San Nic- olas Island off Ventura, has been found by an expedition from the San Diego Museum.

Heaps of small shells, regarded by the scientists as proof of human life on the island much earlier than previously believed, were found. Evidence of the crudest kind of hearths was unearthed but no implements were found.

"A race too primitive to have tools of any kind certainly would not have had boats," Malcolm Rogers, head of the expedition, said.

Futnam, Conn., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Joseph Hodges Gilpatric, mother of the late G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer was found dead in a gas filled room of her home on Seward street here today morning under circumstances which indicated suicide. She was 74 years old.

She was born in Worcester in 1856. She married George Kilpatric in 1876.

FEW CONTESTS LOOM AS PRIMARIES NEAR

Will Be Held September 9—Proposals Must Be In 15 Days Previous.

Party primaries in Manchester will be held September 9, the second Tuesday in the month. Proposals of nominations should be filed with the Town Clerk 15 days previous to the primaries. At present but one proposal for nomination is being circulated. That is for Clarence H. Anderson as justice of the peace.

Political interest here has been waiting for the past few weeks, but with the rapid approach of the primaries it is expected there will be several proposals for office. The only contest now that seems certain to face the voters is that for representative in the General Assembly. The Republicans must elect one of their primaries. At present but one proposal for nomination is being circulated. That is for Clarence H. Anderson as justice of the peace.

It is expected that the present Board of Selectmen, consisting of Chairman Thomas J. Rogers, Secretary Wells A. Strickland, Ervid Gustafson, Albert T. Jackson, Jarle E. Johnson, George E. Keith and W. W. Robertson will again stand for re-election. However, some of this group are not particularly anxious to serve again and it is possible that new candidates will be in the field before long.

OUR EXPORT TRADE ON THE DECREASE

Decline Greatest for South America—Imports From Asia Dropping Off.

Washington, Aug. 13.—(AP)—White contraction of foreign trade of the United States during June in absolute totals was most evident in the exchange between this country and Europe, the relative decline in exports was greatest in South America trade.

Figures today from the Commerce Department showed both imports and exports to Europe were approximately $30,000,000 less in June this year than in the same month of 1929.

Similarly, United States imports from Asia dropped off between the same two periods by about $34,000,000, a part of the decline being attributed to low prices for rubber as much as to decrease in quantity of goods moved.

An unusual outdoor overnight trip is being planned by Troop 3, Boy Scouts of the Center Congregational church. Scouts will travel by Hartford, embarking on the New York steamer at 5:30 o'clock for East Haddam, a three hour trip. Scouts must bring their equipment to the Center at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

From East Haddam the Scouts will hike three or four miles to their camping place. It is planned, if possible, to have swimming in the Connecticut River, which is nearby. The boys will cook their own breakfast and dinner Sunday. During the morning it is planned to explore the noted Moodus Noises Cave known for the peculiar and mysterious noises which issue from its depths. The Scouts will leave for home late Sunday afternoon by private cars. If the trip turns out successfully it will become an annual excursion.

STOP CONCERTS FOR TWO WEEKS

Bandmen Away From Town Make It Necessary To Suspend For Time.

With a large percentage of its members leaving Manchester on vacation, the Salvation Army Band will suspend presentation of the weekly Tuesday night band concerts for the next two weeks, it was announced last night, following the fifth program at Center Park. A possibility exists that when the concerts are resumed September 2 they will be given at the North End although this is not yet a certainty.

Last night's concert was given before another huge audience despite the unusually cold weather. It consisted of 12 numbers, including a cornet duet, "Sweet Genevieve," by Hudson Lyons and Harold Turkington and a cornet solo by Bandmaster David Addy, "Blue Bells of Scotland." The first is a pleasing old song known the world over and as a cornet duet made a very appropriate number, as the harmony was particularly interesting. The latter is an old favorite Scotch tune, used frequently as a solo of this kind.

"I Survey the Wondrous Cross" by Coles, was an arrangement of the old favorite hymn tune "Wareham." The arrangement included two sections scored for the full band, one section as a solo for Euphonium, and one section scored in Eb minor. Broughton's "Songs of the Evangelist, No. 2," an arrangement of a number of songs composed by Commander Evangeline Booth was quite spirited in parts with a number of the songs arranged for solo instruments.

Warsaw, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Polish Telegraph Agency says the press of Poland has reacted strongly against an address of last Sunday delivered by Gottfried Treviranus, Reich minister of occupied regions on the subject of Germany's eastern frontiers.

The Polish newspaper added that Europe must be told whether the Brüning Cabinet aligns itself behind one of its members. It adds that Poland's German policies are thoroughly pacific, aiming at economic collaboration, which Germany is working against, and concludes that "Poland is not ready to defend her frontiers to the last drop of blood."

The Cracow Daily Courier declares that Poland is perfectly aware of the dangers threatening her and "clozes her ranks and fortifies all political differences to protect the country."

La Guardia said "second-grade" fresh vegetables were selling from 25 to 30 per cent higher in the metropolis, since drought reports began to come in.

He did not blame the retailers, saying the commission merchant, jobber, or wholesaler, or all three together, were responsible.

He said milk, eggs and butter prices also were up, but held that might be justified because of the drought's effect on cattle feed.

"There is a tendency to take an undue advantage of the drought to jack up prices," he said.

He added he would ask the Agriculture Department for a report on fresh vegetables moving into New York City during the past 30 days and the wholesale prices being paid farmers in order that a careful check may be had on consumer charges.

JAPAN'S NAVAL DEMANDS DEBATED AT INSTITUTE

refuted the idea that Japan would attack the United States because of trade rivalry or because of the alleged Japanese desire to own the Philippines. "It is obvious, therefore, that Japan was not thinking in terms of aggression but as a defender against possible attack by us," he explained. "I think that Japan at last realized that the aim of the nations concerned, a security resulting from the fact that no nation could be challenged by any other in its territorial waters."

Admiral Richmond declared that Mr. Castle incompletely expressed the aim of the conference. The aim, he said, was to achieve a reduction compatible with security. He dissented from Mr. Castle's definition of security, pointing out that Great Britain might be triumphant in her own waters and starved if trade with her colonies were cut off.

Yusuke Tsurumi, former member of the Japanese Imperial Diet, stated that the balance of power in the western Pacific will only be maintained by far-seeing policy of the two leading powers, Great Britain and America, by recognizing the aspirations and needs of the eastern peoples and taking a liberal attitude toward those nations in the matter of economic opportunity.

Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, chief of staff of the United States fleet, said that Japanese fear of America had not been based on America's policy in China while fear of Japan in America had been based on Japan's policy toward the Philippines. In each country he said, the people had picked a "bogey."

G. DeLisle Burns, professor of the University of Glasgow and lecturer of the University of London, at the round table discussion on "Analysis of Western Civilization," said: "Peace will not be secure until the preparation for war ceases to dominate the foreign policy of states."

CORN BORER UNLIKELY IN THE SWEET VARIETY

New Haven, Aug. 13.—Connecticut housewives who find insects crawling about their sweet corn, need not always be alarmed for fear of the European corn borer.

"Two other insects also attack corn, the corn ear worm and the common stalk borer," Dr. Britton said today, "but neither inflicts such economic damage as the corn borer. None of them is poisonous. If a housewife uncovers something nibbling at the ear she is preparing for dinner, it is probably the corn ear worm, although in a heavily infested area, the corn borer may get into the ears.

Borer is Smallest "The European corn borer, Pyrausta nubilalis Hubn., is the smallest of the three worms, an inch or less in length. It is white, gray, or pink, marked with small black dots. It burrows lengthwise or crosswise in the stalks, leaf veins including the cob, though primarily a pest of corn, where the infestation becomes severe, the borers enter the stalks of celery, rhubarb, beets, beans, gladioli, dahlia, asters, zinnias, chrysanthemums and some of the larger grasses and weeds."

Ear Worm Travels North "Every summer the corn ear worm is carried into Connecticut on early sweet corn plants. Almost all some years the moths fly in September, but they do not live through the winter. The corn ear worm is common in the West and in the South, where it is called the 'cotton boll worm' and the 'tomato boll worm.'"

GARBO'S "ROMANCE" AT THE STATE TODAY

Glamorous Type of Drama for Which She Is Famous Returns Popular Artist to Screen. Greta Garbo in her second talking picture appearance, will be seen and heard at the State today and Thursday in "Romance."

In providing the Swedish actress with the Edward Sheldon play "Romance" for her second dialogue picture, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer did so advisedly since it serves as an abrupt about-face from the drabness of "Anna Christie" and restores Miss Garbo to the glamorous type of role for which she is famous. Now that there is no longer a novelty to hear the star's voice, her proficiency as an actress becomes all the more marked, particularly in the intensely dramatic scenes in which she sends her diergyman lover back to his church in the knowledge that she would be an obstacle in the path of his career.

MAINE MEN HOLD SPOT FOR A DAY

Entire Personnel of Pine Tree State's Troops in Review at Devens.

Special to The Herald. By ARCHIE KILPATRICK

Camp Devens, Aug. 13.—Maine Day was officially observed at camp yesterday when the two Maine units, the 103rd Infantry and the 152nd Field Artillery paraded as a separate unit for the third time since the division came to camp.

Not All Perfect. The day was not perfect for the Maine troops, however, for the 102nd Regiment baseball team of Connecticut won from the Maine team by the score 4-3 after the game had been tied up several times.

Although the 43rd Division seems to spread out a large area to the first buildings built for the nucleus of the Yankee Division showed that in reality the 43rd does not extend to the outer limits of the camp.

Reds Retreat. The first phase of the divisional field problem ended tonight at having the government to fall back across the Nashua river under cover of darkness.

Hot Shots. Cpl. Papan has been promoted to acting sergeant during the remainder of camp.

Notes. Mrs. James McVeigh stopped off on her way to Hampton Beach to visit her husband, Capt. James McVeigh of G Company yesterday.

Privates Hampe and Topping, regimental color guards, borrowed a couple of mounds and went for a ride yesterday afternoon.

RAPHAEL PICTURE FOUND IN SCHOOL GALLERY IN SICILY

Palermo, Sicily.—(AP)—Sicilian art experts believe they have discovered a Raphael masterpiece in a Madonna which hangs in the university here. The painting was given to the local university by the Teatino family many years ago and was hung indiscriminately with a number of others, since no one seemed to be able to trace its authorship.

Prof. Messina Vitrono and Prof. Longo "discovered" it and had it restored. The restoration revealed at once its great value. Now it hangs in the rector's hall of the university in a position of honor, and artists are seeking further proof of its attribution to Raphael.

SHAMROCK DUE THIS AFTERNOON

Steam Yacht Erin, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The Erin, conveying Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V, expects to reach New London, Conn., at 5 p. m. today.

The message from the Erin giving the hour of 5 p. m. for arrival at New London did not specify the type of time, but presumably it is eastern daylight saving or 4 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Sir Thomas Lipton is extremely proud of his new Shamrock V and expects her to take the America's Cup in the Newport contest. Sir Thomas himself is aboard the Leviathan, bound for New York.

The weather was fine today and the two boats which are bound for the international yacht races off Newport next month had better time than they had expected, as they first believed they would not reach New London until tomorrow.

The Hollywood Story

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAN BORIMER, Hollywood scenario writer and former New York newspaper man, meets ANNE WINTER, who has come from Tulsa, Okla., to seek extra work. He takes a deep interest in her. Dan is with Continental Pictures, and is not very satisfied with what he is doing.

Anne gets extra work at Grand United Studios. She goes to live with two other extras, MONA MORRISON and EVA HURLEY. The latter is a bitter individual, possibly because of her failure to get much work, and from her Dan learns a lot about the problems of the vast army of extras.

GARRY SLOAN, famous director, has noticed Anne Winter. He gives her a "bit" in a picture. Dan, not liking Sloan, although he has not actually met him, is a bit apprehensive. The casting director at Grand United calls Anne up and tells her there may be a chance for her in a musical comedy picture. He and Director FRED HURLEY get her to dance for them, and Hurley promises her a screen test. Anne elatedly tells this to Borimer, who is more discontented than ever at Continental. Borimer, who is living with PAUL COLLIER, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers, tells Collier that he has torn up his contract with Continental.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV

Paul Collier's fingers fell away from the typewriter keys. He swung around, rested one arm on the back of his chair, planted the other elbow on his little desk, braced his cheek with his fist.

"You mean you'd rather starve," Collier snorted, and Borimer smiled and quietly said that he knew something about that, too.

"What for?"

"Because I'm sick of Adamson and I'm sick of Continental. They want my ideas; they want my pen and office politicians."

"You're a funny guy," he said. "What did Adamson do?"

"He admitted that Adamson had surprised him by not throwing him out."

"I invited him to fire me, and tore up my copy of the contract to show him I wasn't fooling; but Adamson's so damn suspicious of everybody that he probably had me trying to put a fast one over on him. In fact, I'm sure of it by the way he acted."

"What did he say?" Collier asked, and Borimer shrugged. He said, "Oh, he told me that as long as he held Continental's copy of the contract, I might as well be difficult to leave to make other connections."

"He lighted a cigaret and added that that was Adamson for you. 'He's such a colossal bluff himself that he thought I was bluffing. And a bluff scares him silly; I learned that.'"

"And suppose he hadn't been bluffing," Collier said. "I suppose you would have waited right over to Paramount or M-G-M or some place and told them that their new scenario writer was ready to take off his coat and go to work—huh?"

Dan laughed. "Not exactly. But I'd rather free lance than work for Continental."

"You mean you'd rather starve," Collier snorted, and Borimer smiled and quietly said that he knew something about that, too.

Paul was silent for a moment, and then he abruptly announced that he was going to mix a night-cap. He departed for the kitchen, and Borimer could hear him at the refrigerator.

Collier's voice called presently from the kitchen to ask Dan what had been the immediate cause of the row with Adamson, and Borimer strolled over to him with his hands in his pockets and said there would never be a chance of doing anything original as long as Adamson was in authority. "His idea of heavy brain work is to change a good title like 'Grim Holiday' to 'Passion's Price.'"

"He does everything left-handed. He wants a story, say, for Olga Johnson, or Atwood. No suggestions; just write something. When you write it he says, 'Don't make me read it; tell it to me.'"

Dan swore explosively. "And you try to tell it to him—and before you've fairly started he stops you and says it won't do. It's not his type of story for Johnson at all. And you say, 'But this is not for Johnson; it's for Atwood,' and Adamson leans back in that big chair of his and looks out the window and says, 'Well, we'll have to let Johnson or for Esther Crane. We've got a story for Atwood.'"

Rorimer stopped, and he took the glass that Collier offered him and drank from it. He was not exaggerating. "That's straight. That's just the kind of stuff Adamson pulls. Today I blew up. The other day they handed me a Saturday Evening Post story that they'd bought the rights to, and wanted me to adapt it. Adamson was in a great big hurry. He's always in a hurry. . . . And after sweating over it and getting the script in shape. I learn today that he has passed the same story out to two other men on the staff."

"Can you imagine the big stiff? Just imagine! Instead of letting a couple of us collaborate on it and get the benefit of each other's ideas, he passes it around as if it was a contest or something! That's his idea of economy. They can't buy me a new typewriter to replace that old coffee mill I have to work on, but they can waste the time of three men making fairly important money, in duplicated effort. I'd like nothing better than to have Adamson tell me to get out and stay out."

Paul Collier nodded in sympathy. He put an arm on Rorimer's shoulder and steered him back to the living room, and he said, falling ungracefully into a chair, that he could understand, of course, but wasn't it a little unwise to throw away a secretary such as Continental was paying Rorimer, just because of inability to get along with a bum of an executive?"

Dan, his eyes glinting wrathfully, demanded of Collier what he would do under the same circumstances. "I suppose you'd smile and like it, eh? You would like so much—"

"Say," Collier interrupted, "if I ever landed one of those fancy scenario-writing jobs, I'd take out an accident policy on it. That's just how nice I'd treat it." Rorimer, he added, didn't know when he was well off. "I could put up with an awful lot, Dan, my boy, just as long as the old dough was there on my pay day."

"I have a life-size picture of you," Dan retorted, his eyes taking in the other's lanky, powerful frame in significant appraisal. "You'd be planting your fist in the middle of Adamson's nose."

Collier grinned. He clasped his hands in back of his sleek black head and, leaning back indolently in his chair, observed that Adamson's nose was a big enough target. "I suppose you'd like to see Dan," he said. "That crazy southern temper of yours will get you in trouble yet. What will you do—no foolin'—if Adamson decides to take you up?"

Rorimer replied that he hadn't given the matter much thought. "I'm not worried. Martin Collins is a friend of mine. He told me that if I ever thought I'd like to make a connection at Amalgamated, to let him know and he'd see what he could do for me."

"Why, you old razor blade, you; you're too blamed stiff-necked to ask Collins or anybody else to do anything for you," Paul accused him, and there was affection in his tone and in his smiling gaze.

Dan made no answer. He smoked in silence, his mind dwelling on more pleasant thoughts. Collier leaned back to his typewriter and wrote steadily for 10 or 15 minutes, after which he leaned back with heavy finality and announced that he wanted another nightcap. "It's your turn now," he said, and Dan went out to the kitchen.

Collier turned on the radio, stood before the open window, softly humming, hands thrust in his pockets, staring absently at the night sky. The room behind him was spacious and comfortable in the soft light of well-chosen lamps. Open book shelves ranged the wall at one end. There was a baby grand piano. And roomy chairs that a man could sprawl and rest in.

Dan returned presently with his glasses, and Collier, taking his, held it up and looked through it toward the light. He said, "I forgot to tell you; I saw a friend of yours today. Along Poverty Row. I forget which one." He smiled. "Mona's a great little kid, isn't she? And she's certainly keen about Anne Winter."

Dan said, "Anne Winter's getting a screen test."

"Yeah? That's a break, all right. Where's all this?"

"Grand United," Dan told him, and Collier said he certainly hoped she landed something. "I'd like to write a piece about her in my column; it's been a long time since I've run into a good old-fashioned human interest story about an extra girl coming through. How did it happen?"

Dan related what Anne had told that evening, and when he had finished Paul Collier said, "Harvey Bell and Hurley, eh? Hurley's a great scout. So's Bell, for that matter; only, Harvey's a little hard-boiled. He has to be, or he couldn't be a casting editor. How did Anne happen to get under his skin?"

"Oh! . . . Well, here's luck to her—and lots of it."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

Vacationers in strange fields must be particularly careful of the water they drink. In cities the water is carefully guarded for purity, but in country districts and villages there sometimes is inadequate supervision of the water supply. The "natives" all may know that a certain well or spring has been condemned and abandoned, but the tourist has no means of knowing this and, being thirsty, stops for a drink.

Contaminated water is an even greater disease carrier than milk, and clearness and palatableness do not guarantee purity. Much discomfort, if not actual illness, may follow drinking impure water. Water which has been boiled for twenty minutes is sterilized and safe for drinking. But the intense heat of boiling drives out air and until air is again mixed with the water it will taste flat. Water is so necessary to health, however, that it must be provided distilled or sterilized if there is question about its natural purity.

Importance of Water Although nearly all foodstuffs, no matter how dry they may seem, contain some water, only about half the water required by the body is furnished in this manner. From four to six glasses a day in addition to what is obtained from food is the average requirement.

Water regulates the temperature of the body assists circulation, helps in elimination, aids in digestion and thins the blood. These factors are all essential for health and do their share toward keeping one cool on hot days.

Water with meals is a good practice, for the digestive juices work more efficiently when diluted. It should not be taken in large amounts, but drunk slowly after food has been completely chewed and swallowed. Water served with meals should not be too cold. Sudden chilling of the stomach retards digestion.

Campers should be sure that the water used for dish washing is pure. If, after washing, all dishes and cooking utensils are thoroughly rinsed in scalding water, the danger of contamination from this source is lessened.

Heavy storms and rains may wash surface water into otherwise safe well or reservoirs, making the water unsafe for the time being. A precaution to boil the drinking water for a few days.

Digestive disturbances can do much to mar the pleasures of a vacation, and pure drinking water is an important means toward maintaining normal well-being.

When painting your unpainted book shelves, save one section for time it's a simple but worthwhile precaution to paint the back either silver or gold and your ornaments will take on new beauty against it.

FRESHENING BEANS If your string beans or other green vegetables seem a bit wilted, soak them for an hour or so in cold water to which a couple of table-spoons of vinegar have been added.

Lone White Women Visits "Land of Never Worry"

THE SAVAGES WERE FLATTERED THAT SHE HAD COME TO STUDY THEIR LIFE

AVOING MAN IN LOVE HAS A MAGICIAN THROU A SPELL ON HIS PROSPECTIVE BRIDE

Dr. Hortense Powdermaker, anthropologist, who recently returned from an expedition to study the lives of the cannibalistically inclined natives of New Ireland.

By PAUL HARRISON

New York.—When the complexity of modern civilization palls, and money becomes a worry, and nerves are jumpy from the eternal strain and rush of living, you should, according to one who knows, grab an extra shirt and a few pounds of tobacco and go down to New Ireland for a visit.

It is a long, narrow island off the coast of Australia, part of the Bismarck Archipelago and an unexplored, almost unknown part of the mandated territory of New Guinea. New Ireland also is the "Land of Never Worry," a haven of happiness, a natural health sanatorium, a lawless place because there is no crime, a primeval province of prohibition, because nobody there ever heard of liquor.

Adopted By Tribesmen At the village, 80 miles inland, you'd be welcomed with whoops of joy. The Melanesians would need only a glance to determine that you're from the same tribe of white angels as the young woman who left them about a month ago. With the tobacco, you could buy a brand new two-room house and food enough to last a long time. After that you'd probably be adopted by a rich tribesman and wouldn't have to worry about sustenance.

All this according to Dr. Hortense Powdermaker, vivacious little anthropologist who just has returned from the isolated island. With true scientific men she'll ascribe to the first, there is little difficulty in winning the hearts of cannibalistically inclined savages, and that there was nothing very remarkable in the fact that she, the first white woman they ever had seen, lived alone and unprotected among them for nearly a year.

Baltimore is her home, she says, but Dr. Powdermaker has lived almost everywhere else in five years of traveling. A graduate of Goucher College, with a Ph. D. from the University of London, she led the first expedition to study the natives of New Ireland. The work was done under the auspices of the Australian National Research Council and her detailed reports will be completed under a fellowship of the American Research Council.

Unwilling to talk about herself, and frankly astonished that anyone should be interested, the black-eyed little scientist was all enthusiasm regarding her brown-skinned friends on the distant island.

Courtship Conducted by Magic There is a simple civilization where divorces are granted merely by refunding the dowry, where women already have gained equality, and almost everything else is accomplished by magic, and where there is no religion in the sense of worship of a deity.

"It is a world virtually without time, as you may be counted for a few months, but years mean nothing, and age is only comparative. Everything is accepted with perfect equanimity. The people are brave and do not fear death, although to them it means eternal oblivion."

After careful study to determine where in the world was the least-known tribe of savages, Dr. Powdermaker selected New Ireland, an island 200 miles in length and about 20 miles wide, with a mountain range through the center. Landed alone with her luggage at the seldom-used wharf, she made her way, with hired natives, to a village 80 miles in the interior.

There, when she made known her intention of living among them, she was the object of constant curiosity and not a little mistrust. First she won the confidence of the women by fondling their babies; then, with the aid of an interpreter, frankly told the old men of the tribe that she was there to learn of their life and customs, to observe their rites and dances and to learn all their secrets that could be divulged.

"It was a bold move, but it worked. 'The savages were more flattered than anything else,' said Miss Powdermaker. 'They built me a thatched-roofed two-room house, with a raised floor—an almost unheard-of Melanesian luxury. I went in with $50 worth of tobacco, and for the ten months I lived there I was the most important person in all the country.'

"Even from the first, I seemed to be perfectly safe. Apparently they regarded me not as a woman, but only as a white person. I was allowed at masculine feasts and rites where native women were taboo."

No Longer Cannibals Cannibalism has died out among the island inhabitants, she found, as a result of the orders against warfare issued by white officials. They never ate anyone except their enemies, but even the younger adults can remember the days when "long pig" was a great delicacy. At feasts and festivals the story-tellers still smack their lips and sigh for the "good old days."

Pestige came immediately to the American woman when she donned a simple wash dress of bright red and white material. She had a recording machine for the native music which accompanies the two and three-day ceremonies of dancing and feasting. Several times officials begged her to show them the folk dances of her own tribe.

"It was difficult to refuse," she said, "but after all, anthropologists are not supposed to introduce new elements of 'culture.' Besides, they might have been shocked."

The Melanesians' strange moral standards are rigidly upheld, Miss Powdermaker said. No man is allowed, for instance, to speak to his mother-in-law, mention her name, or even enter the same room with her. Both polygamy and polyandry are practiced in the villages and tribes, but not in the same families. The old men have supreme control in political affairs, but the women boss social life and love. A young man asks the mother of his sweetheart for her daughter's hand, and pays the mother with five strings of shells, which are the native currency. The girl may obtain a divorce at any time by repaying this purchase price.

Crimes of Fashion Unknown The tribe is divided into two totems, or groups, representative of the hawk and the eagle. A man of one society must choose a wife from the other or he faces life-long disgrace. Dishonesty is practically unknown among the savages, and crimes of passion almost always are atoned by the suicides of the guilty parties.

"There is special magic for everything," said Dr. Powdermaker, "and the magicians are the richest men on the island. They aid in everything from the hunting of wild pigs to the deaths of enemies, but they're especially helpful in courtships."

"When a young man, generally about 12 years old, decides on a prospective wife, he goes to a magician and has him throw a spell in the direction of his love. The men of magic are considered infallible. If their spells do not work they always explain that another magician was busy at the same time with a trick that counteracted their own."

Both sexes garb themselves only in loin clothes, she reported, and the tribes generally are very healthy. With unnumbered miles of jungle to be had for the clearing, there is no private ownership of land. The savages' only evidences of culture are their melodious music, elaborate carving and weaving. They offer up no prayers to sun, moon or fire, but believe in ghosts and the magic of their medicine men.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Summer colds puzzle everyone. How do we get them when we're so hot we can't breathe? How do children get them when we watch day and night for drafts and weather changes? Only this summer there haven't been any weather changes, it's been one long hot drag until the recent sudden drop.

Now, of course there are summer colds, many genuine ones, and hay fever, scourge of many older people, has already begun its annual frolic. But if the truth be known, many cases of seeming head-colds, watering eyes and nose and sometimes inflammation of the mucus membrane of the mouth and throat, are not colds at all, but a condition arising from indigestion or failure of the organs to take up excess elements in the food.

What Hot Weather Does Hot weather emphasizes all sorts of symptoms just as it reduces the efficiency of the organs not only to work but to throw off waste. The kidneys are greatly hampered by heat and sometimes seriously affected. Profuse perspiration takes part of the burden of the kidneys, of course, and it is a good thing it does. Bowels are apt to get clogged and fermentation is quick and almost sure when the thermometer is up.

But one thing that few people suspect is the acid condition that follows wrong diet, and it is this very thing that frequently shows itself in symptoms that resemble head colds. The body cannot use the amount of carbohydrates it consumes in winter. Children eat more sweet stuff in hot weather than in cold, and it is these carbohydrates used in excess (starches and sugars) that cause the acid reaction.

Too many eggs will cause it also—especially the white of the egg. And sometimes too much meat.

Summer Health Via Diet Perhaps if we watch the children's diet more closely, keep them from overeating on candy and cake and away from too many sodas and sodas, at least until a little cooler weather, they will not be so vulnerable to these summer sniffles. Starchy vegetables such as too many potatoes and a steady diet of corn can be guilty too, or too much wheat bread. Cooked fruits should not be too generously helped out with sugar. Vegetables, fruit, milk, a little meat but not too much, plenty of water and ripe fruit both cooked and uncooked should keep them in fairly good condition.

And with it all I should see that they had quiet rest periods every afternoon. It rests their nerves and nerves have a lot to do with digestion.

LIVER PLAYS IMPORTANT PART IN REMOVING POISONS FROM BODY

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

If the liver of an animal is removed it will remain normal from three to five hours. Shortly after, it becomes seriously ill, develops convulsions, the blood pressure drops tremendously, the heart beat increases, the breathing becomes disturbed, and the animal dies in two hours, unless it is given some treatment to prolong its life.

The same symptoms occur when there is a great fall in the amount of sugar in the blood, such as may occur, for instance, with a great overdose of insulin.

Thus a general deficiency of the liver may be associated with death or with serious disease.

In their studies of the liver scientists have developed methods for determining whether or not the liver is functioning properly. These involve injection into the body of a dye substance which the liver picks up and excretes. If the liver is functioning capably in the destruction of toxic substance, a larger amount of the dye will be gotten rid of than when it fails to function so efficiently.

Since the number of toxic substances which may attack the human body is considerable, including germs, poisons, foreign proteins, and similar products, the functioning of the liver in removing poisons is one of the most important for life and health.

So far as the gallbladder is concerned, extensive experimentation has already shown that it is quite possible for a person to get along fairly well without his gallbladder. Many animals do not have a gallbladder, just as many animals do not have an appendix. On the other hand, in some animals the appendix is a very large sac, developed far beyond the insignificant little tube that remains in the human being.

The amount of bile that comes to the gallbladder is much beyond that needed by the human body, and indeed much beyond the capacity of the gallbladder itself to take care of it. The gallbladder apparently concentrates the bile by removing water from it. Before the bile is emptied into the intestine it is diluted and by the contraction of the gallbladder is moved along.

Anyone, whether he is a student of physiology or not, can see that this entire mechanism is extremely complicated, that it contains many factors of safety as well as factors of danger for the human body, and that a vast amount of knowledge remains to be learned before it is fully understood.

Flower's Two Errors Enable Cubs To Win From Robins 3 To 2

Vance and Blake Pitch Splendid Ball But Chicago Triumphs in Eleventh Inning; McCarthy Happy As a Lark.

Almost obscured in the struggles of the mighty around the top positions in the major league standing, the Detroit Tigers have been putting on a sport that has carried them almost into the first division of the American League. The Tigers are only one and one-half games behind the fourth place Cleveland Indians today despite their inability to cope with the heroic gestures of Babe Ruth yesterday.

The Tigers record for the past month has been of first division calibre, 18 victories and 12 defeats for an average of .600. The Yanks stopped the Detroit climb for a while yesterday but only after Ruth had put on a great performance to win a 6 to 5 decision in a close battle. The Babe clouted his 45rd homer in the third inning with his mascot, Jimmy Rease on base to climax a big Yankee rally, then drove in the winning run in the ninth at the highly crucial moment when there were two out and two strikes on him.

With Grove and Shores pitching a pair of good games the Athletics twice beat the Cleveland Indians, 9 to 1 and 7 to 0. Washington held second place a game ahead of the Yanks by scoring four runs off Ted Lyons in the third inning to take a speedy game from the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 4. The contest lasted only an hour and 22 minutes.

The opening of the "crucial" National League series between the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Robins fulfilled all advance notices in thrill. A pitching duel between Fred Blake and Dazzy Vance, highly productive of hits but not of runs, lasted eleven innings before Chicago gained a 3 to 2 victory and increased its lead to a full game.

Two first inning errors by Jake Flowers gave the Cubs two runs. With New York and Cincinnati idle, the Pirates registered the big gain in the lower part of the National League. They downed the Phillies in a doubleheader. They had to go 14 innings to win the first game 8 to 7, but the second contest produced an easy 8 to 3 victory as Spencer allowed Philadelphia only five hits.

St. Louis although out 10 to 8 defeated the Boston Braves, 4 to 2. Another Boston St. Louis clash went the other way as the Red Sox gained a 5 to 4 decision over the Browns.

CUBS ARE HAPPY
Chicago, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Broad smiles wreathed the faces of Manager Joe McCarthy and his bristling Cubs today as they faced the staggered Brooklyn Robins in the second battle of the four game series for the whip seat in the National League pennant drive.

"Well, I think we've started at a chuck," Manager McCarthy said with a laugh. "We've thrashed the Robins right out of first place and supplanted them ourselves, then our pitching has returned to its effectiveness of 1929."

The Metz brothers—John, Paul and Cecil—just about won municipal tennis in Memphis, Tenn., to themselves. All three reached the semi-finals of the city tournament.

Jack Sheehan, former Brooklyn infielder, with Atlanta of the Southern association recently went 34 days at second base without an error, handling 216 chances perfectly.

Score of Pitchers Eligible For Series

If numbers mean anything then there should be some pretty nifty pitching performances in the town baseball series which gets underway next Sunday when the Green and West Sides clash. The eligibility lists of the three teams published in the Herald yesterday reveal a total of more than 20 pitchers, an average of seven per team which is about enough to keep a big league team well supplied.

The Green submitted a list of eight pitchers, the West Sides six and the Bon Ami five with two others on the latter list which are also claimed by the Green or West Sides. The two pitchers just referred to are Elmo Mantell and Bobby Sturgeon but the West Sides and Green respectively claim their services. It is understood that Mantell will pitch for the West Sides and Sturgeon for the Green but if there should be any question, then they will automatically become a member of the team they first play for.

Mostly Waste
The probability is that none of the three teams will use more than three pitchers in the two series. The Green's best hope may prove to be none other than "Big Jack" Burkhardt, although two out of town men, Metcalf and Boisseau are also topnotchers. Eddie Boyce is out of the question as he does not play Sunday baseball. Joe Prantley has been out of the lineup for considerable time with a sore arm and Noel lives in Lowell. This leaves only Woodbridge and Sturgeon both of whom have hardly had sufficient experience to be given a starting assignment although they may see service in a reserve capacity.

The West Sides' list includes Jones, Locke, Mantell, Holland, McConkey and Kearns. Mantell is without question the ace of the squad and probably the best pitcher on any of the three teams. His services are in demand not only in Manchester but with out of town teams as well. Recently he pitched six games with the exception of ten days. Mantell insists that he is not acting unwisely, that he keeps his arm in good condition by warming up each night. Elmo starred for the Holy Cross Freshman last year. He will return to college in the fall.

Mantell to Pitch
Mantell seems certain to be nominated by Coach Bill Brennan to face the Green in the opening game. Franks Locke, former New London second best bet and he is also a fine hitter, so good in fact, that it would be no surprise to see his name in the West Side outfield lineup if Mantell works the opening game. Ray Holland is another good man and he possesses more speed than any of the score or more pitchers whose names appear in the three team rosters. Ray's biggest fault is inability to control his delivery at times. Jones, an out of town man, did not look impressive in the game he pitched for the West Sides a few weeks ago and is hardly the man to see service in the series. McConkey and Kearns are also unlikely to toe the rubber.

Now let's look over the Bon Ami list of pitchers. Jack Godek appears to be the ace of the champion's staff unless they succeed in smuggling Mantell back from the West Side. You know Elmo pitched with the Bon Ami at the start of the season before the West Sides were organized. Jimmie Wilson, former Glastonbury star, or Charlie Varrick appear to be the next best in line. Varrick pitched some excellent games last season but hasn't seen much service this year for some reason or other. Adams is the former Trade School star. He lives in Stafford Springs and has turned in some neat performances this season. Fiddler is a newcomer to the pitching art and will probably not see any service in the series.

LYONS IS WINNER OVER NICKERSON

The first matches in the town tennis title tournaments were played last night and several more are on the docket for this evening.

The feature last night so far as mild surprise is concerned came when the youthful Hudson Lyons eliminated John Nickerson in straight sets at the East Side playgrounds.

Lyons won at 8-6, 6-1. The first set was very keenly contested with first one and then the other winning on his service until the games were six all. Then Lyons took his own service and broke through Nickerson's to capture the set. His opponent seemed to tire in the second which Lyons won quite handily.

The other match last night saw Don Jesanis trim Carl Johnson 6-2, 6-0. Johnson made some pretty shots at times but was no match for the must more experienced Jesanis. Jesanis' next opponent will be Freddie Mack, Johnny Sturgeon or Phil Mahoney. Lyons meets Earl Bissett, Eugene Rossi or Herman Bassett.

Tonight at least three matches are scheduled. Freddie Mack and Johnny Sturgeon, Freddie Marks and Tom Stowe, Jimmy Gorman and Tony Urbanetti, all meet at the high school courts. The first two matches are from 6 to 7, the latter from 7 to 8. Bobby Smith and Sher Anderson meet tomorrow night.

In the women's tournament Miss Ruth Behrend, defending champion, and Miss Muriel Tomlinson play Friday night. Miss Marjorie Leibold and Miss Eleanor Heubner play Friday morning for the right to oppose Miss Elizabeth Washkewich.

Sueras Wins Again As Brother Murders His Sister's Husband

South American Tragedy Enacted About Time Country's Boxing Idol Was Whipping Herman Perlick in New York.

Buenos Aires, Aug. 13.—(AP)—While the fistic fortunes of their brother were at stake last night in far away New York, the brother and sister of Justo Suarez, Argentine boxing idol, engaged in domestic quarreling which ended in death of the sister's husband, and serious wounds for the brother.

Gregorio Ramon Suarez, the boxer's brother, returning home yesterday, heard his sister, Elvira, complain of maltreatment by her husband, Jose Lopez. He accompanied her to a police station where a complaint was entered against Lopez.

The two men met shortly afterward, and quarreled about Lopez's treatment of his wife. Lopez is said to have drawn a revolver and fired three shots at Suarez, who although wounded, wrested the gun from him, Suarez fired the remaining three shots at his adversary and killed him instantly. At the hospital it was said Suarez was in a critical condition today. The shooting happened at about the time of Justo Suarez's fight in New York with Herman Perlick.

DECISIVE VICTORY
New York, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Justo Suarez, a hard hitting lightweight from Argentina, in his second appearance in the United States, gave the fight fans something to talk about.

Stacking up against Herman Perlick of Kalamazoo, Michigan, one of twin brothers, the South American won a ten-round decision last night at the Queensboro Stadium. Suarez turned back the Michigan youth even more decisively than did Jackie Kid Berg.

ENTHUSIASM HIGH
New York, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Enthusiasm in South America over Justo Suarez, reached such heights that newspapers made more arrangements for adequate coverage than they did even for the short but sensational career of Luis Angel Firpo.

ACMES WIN TITLE IN JUVENILE LOOP

The Acmes defeated the Ponies 5 to 4 yesterday afternoon to win the championship of the Juvenile League at the West Side. The two teams were previously tied for the league leadership but yesterday's contest settled the issue. Pongratz, E. Duffy and Eloy Salmonson composed the Acme battery while the Ponies' line, Varrick pitched some excellent games last season but hasn't seen much service this year for some reason or other. Adams is the former Trade School star. He lives in Stafford Springs and has turned in some neat performances this season. Fiddler is a newcomer to the pitching art and will probably not see any service in the series.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Into the Sunset.
Let me die, working.
Still tackling unfinished, tasks
undone.
Clean to its end, swift may me race
be run.
No laggard steps, no faltering, no
shrinking;
Let me die, working!
Let me fare forth, still with an open mind,
Fresh secrets to unfold, new truths
to find,
My soul undimmed, alert, no question blinking;
Let me die, thinking!
Let me die, laughing,
No signat'g o'er past sins, they are forgiven.
Spilled on this earth are all the joys of heaven;
Let me die, laughing!

TRANSACT EIGHTH'S BUSINESS QUICKLY

Only 16 Voters at Special Meeting Which Grants Additional Appropriations.

The special meeting of the Eighth School and Utilities District held at the North School street Hall last evening drew but 16 voters. The business of the meeting was disposed of in short order, less than fifteen minutes being required to call the meeting, read the call and dispose of the matters before the meeting.

The call contained but two questions. The first related to the necessity of an added appropriation to that of the annual meeting. The sum of $2,200 was voted which makes the total $4,200 that will be spent on the remodeling of the sanitary conditions in the Union School. It has been found necessary to use two of the rooms in the lower back section of the Union school, which were never really finished. The appropriation made last night makes it possible to provide what is required. New floors will be laid in both rooms and the entrance will be through a corridor, with the necessary doors opening off to the east and west. The extra money that was voted will, it is expected, take care of all the work. The contract has not as yet been let but figures have been received that indicate this can be done. With work starting at once it will be shortly after the school opens that it will be completed and the rooms ready for use. The appropriation of $1,400 made at the annual meeting for the improvement by building new steps at the Union School was insufficient and requires $600 more to complete the job. This was voted.

The meeting was called to order by A. L. Brown of the district school board. The call was read and W. S. Hyde presented the motions after they had been explained by Mr. Brown. There was no voice in opposition. Some voters arrived just in time to turn around and go out.

THE DROUGHT.

Market reports show great jumps in the wholesale prices of many farm products in the last day or two, attributable to the drought. We suspect that a part of the advance in prices is being taken by speculative manipulators, accounting for part of such increases. Part, with relation to some products, is no doubt justifiable.

Pinehurst wishes its patrons to know that it will take no part in any artificial boosting of prices on the score of the drought. It will fight any such scheme to the limit of its power. If prices go up at this store it will be solely because we cannot protect ourselves against wholesale price increases—and they will go up as little as we can possibly manage.

Profiteering on national distress is something we will not do.

STUNT FLYER HERE NOT YET REPORTED Bureau of Aeronautics Says But Few Complaints Have Been Made This Year. Although complaints have been reported to have been made against stunt flying at low altitudes over Manchester by airplanes said to be operated by Manchester pilots, it was stated at the bureau of aeronautics in Hartford today that no complaints have been received since early in the summer and then only one or two. A member of the Board of Selectmen said last night that two or three persons had spoken to him about the matter recently. The affair, however, is beyond the jurisdiction of the selectmen or even local police officials. Captain Harry Generous of the airplane department said today that if there were any complaints he would be glad to receive them.

The Herald Hears — That a big white dog owned on Pitkin street is bound to get a load of buckshot or perhaps something more deadly if complaints of women in that vicinity are true. That money being so carefully preserved as it is these days the old fashioned train excursion is rapidly returning to its former popularity. The New York and Boston Sunday trips and even the Atlantic City weekend excursions are drawing large numbers from this town. That a local wisecracker says the reason they call it miniature golf is because it is "minutes your" through. That many a gasoline station gets an order for one gallon of gas these rather dry days. Formerly nobody ever thought of ordering less than five gallons at a time. That the number of automobiles given equipment inspections here was far less than the percentage estimated by the Motor Vehicle department's newspaper propagandist.
