CAP. HATFIELD, FEUDIST, DIES AT AGE OF 67

Shot at Over 300 Times in Mountain Warfare and Only Wounded Once; Was Most Picturesque Figure.

Baltimore, Aug. 22.—(AP)—William Anderson "Cap" Hatfield, known as the last of the Hatfield-McCoy feudists of West Virginia and Kentucky, died today in a hospital here at the age of 67.

He was brought here a few days ago from his Logan, W. Va., home suffering from a brain ailment that had no connection with a wound sustained in the long feud war of a half century ago which took several score lives. His father Anderson Hatfield, known as "Devil" Anderson in 1821, died in 1870.

With the younger Hatfield when he died were his wife, a son and a daughter.

Picturesque Type
"Cap" Hatfield was a large, powerful man of a picturesque type. He once confided to friends that many of his old time foes believed he had a charmed life, saying he "guessed" he was shot at about 300 times during the mountain warfare and was wounded but once.

Credited with a remarkable memory, Hatfield was an entertaining conversationalist but refused in later years when the facts of the most notorious of mountain feuds became obscured by time to outline an authentic account of the events that made a colorful page in American history.

How It Started
One account of participants credited the feud with having started with a quarrel over the ownership of some hogs. The Hatfields lived on the West Virginia side of the Tug river, the McCoy's on the Kentucky side. A number of years later in 1850 the warfare started with the slaying of Bill Stuyton, a member of the Hatfield clan.

"Cap" Hatfield was born February 6, 1864, in Logan county. He was taught to read by his wife, who was Mrs. Nancy Smith Ginn, and in his later years became an extensive reader especially of historical books. He encouraged his children to obtain the formal education denied him.

Many of the feud figures lived to come peace officers. "Cap" Hatfield was a deputy sheriff for a number of years, serving under two brothers, one J. D. Hatfield, being present Logan county sheriff. "Cap" Hatfield was a cousin of United States Senator Henry D. Hatfield of West Virginia.

During the days the feud raged, when he lived for weeks along the mountain ridges between the Tug and Guyandotte rivers, "Cap" Hatfield would carry a book or two along with him to occupy his hours. So eager was he for knowledge that he pursued a correspondence course in law after reaching middle age.

GERMAN IS FLYING TO UNITED STATES

Starts From Iceland on Way to Greenland and Thence to America.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The German aviator Captain Gronau took off from Reykjavik harbor at 6:35 o'clock this morning (2:35 a. m. E. S. T.) and his course indicated he was heading for the United States.

When he reached Reykjavik early this week it was reported that he intended flying to America. Later, however, both he and the German government denied this, saying the flier would head back toward the Faroe islands and then go to Scotland or Norway.

An hour and thirty-five minutes after he took off this morning, Captain Gronau radioed Reykjavik that his position was 65.50 North and 26.20 West. That placed him as traveling west, about midway between Iceland and Greenland.

Captain Gronau is a student of the German government aviation school at Warnemunde, and early this week left the island of Sylt, on the German North Sea coast, in a training flight to Iceland.

After the aviator had landed at Reykjavik on Wednesday he was quoted as saying he was going to America by way of Frederikstad, Greenland, where a supply of fuel swelled them.

Government officials in Berlin said they were aware of Gronau's intentions to fly to America and they expected him to return to Germany soon. Shortly afterward the aviator himself said he would turn back in the direction of the Faroes today, after the German gunboat Meteor had returned to the fatherland.

TIPS HIS HAT TO LADY SO WIFE GETS DIVORCE

Reno, Nevada, Aug. 22.—(AP)—This little wife went to market—and when she got there her husband's head was bare because he was tipping his hat to a lady. She promptly slapped his face.

That was Arthur Wesley Coates' version of the marketing act in a complaint which won him a divorce from Laura Lucille Coates yesterday. The couple, who lived at Torrington, Conn., were married in 1919 at Wheeling, W. Va.

NEED IMPROVEMENT IN CRIMINAL LAW

Chief Justice Hughes Says Nation's Lawyers Should Work To Bring It About.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The nation's greatest need, in the opinion of its chief justice, is improvement in the administration of justice, especially of the criminal law.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, addressing the 56th annual meeting of the American Bar Association, last night warned that country's lawyers they could not escape "special responsibility" in bringing about this improvement.

"A quickened bar, alert to its power and responsibility, can secure honest and fearless prosecuting officers and magistrates. Our government is one of laws through man, and most of our problems in the administration of the criminal law could be solved by the selection of competent men, free from the corrupting influences of fear and favor."

The chief justice's address which was a welcome to the foreign guests of the Bar Association, was heard by a nation-wide radio audience as well as by the thousands who packed the civic opera house.

Defends States' Rights
"Paradoxical as it may seem," said the chief justice, "not only the security, but the efficiency of the Union depends upon the appropriate maintenance of the authority of the states within the proper spheres of local government and local policy. Despite all the economic changes and the intricacies of close relations, the states are the basis of our activities, notwithstanding the vast."

CROSSED IN LOVE COMMITS SUICIDE

New Haven Man Goes to Meet Sweetheart and Finds Her Married.

Middletown, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The body of a man found hanging from a beam in an abandoned rendering plant, today had been identified as that of John J. English, 25, of 27 Middletown avenue, New Haven, a patient at the State hospital here who disappeared August 11.

English, hospital authorities said, had been admitted to the hospital several months ago for treatment of a depressed condition. He gradually showed improvement and was given a parole card, a privilege which enabled him to walk about the institution grounds during the day time. On August 11 he failed to return for dinner.

Cause of Worry
Coroner L. A. Smith was expected to issue a finding in the case shortly.

Hospital officials said that stock market losses and the loss of a girl whom he had expected to marry were responsible for English's depression. Before being admitted to the hospital the youth went to South America to meet his fiancee. When he arrived there he found that she had already been married.

MOTHER OF A DAUGHTER

Fourth grandchild of King George of England is born to the Duchess of York (above). The little princess was born during a severe storm. She is fourth in succession to the throne.

LITTLE DAUGHTER BORN TO DUCHESS OF YORK

All Britain Rejoicing Today Over Arrival of Fourth Grandchild of King and Queen; Both Doing Well.

Glasgow, Scotland, Aug. 22.—(AP)—This was a day of great festivity for the good people of Glasgow and of great rejoicing for all Britons, honoring the new daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York, fourth in line of the British royal family, born last night.

A bedside bulletin issued this forenoon by the attending physicians, Sir Henry Simon, F. Neom Reynolds and David Miles, said mother and child were "doing fine," which the Scots know is the best possible news.

King George and Queen Mary were planning an early visit to see the new grandchild. Their fourth, thus, and the highest in the empire to the lowliest villagers attention centered upon the great gray heap of ancient stone which is the seat of the Strathmores, wherein a Brit royal birth had not occurred in 300 years.

Sees Baby Sister
Tiny Princess Elizabeth, recovering from the surprise of her life, was taken this forenoon into the Duchess's quarters in the castle, allowed to see her baby sister, Elizabeth, who has a big red Chinese chow, canary and a pony named Jessie which the King gave her for a birthday present, put them all definitely out of her mind in favor of this new niece which had come to her new playmate. Elizabeth is past four.

There will be a double birthday to celebrate in the royal family hereafter. While the new daughter was being greeted in Glasgow castle, the second son of Princess Mary, the Honorable Gerald David Lascelles, celebrated his sixth birthday. Both he and his brother, the Viscount Lascelles, a year older, have been entered on the waiting list for Eton.

The elder brother will begin his studies there in 1936 and the younger a year later.

Tonight's Celebration
Hunters Hill, a mighty crag near Glasgow, will be the focal point of tonight's climax of the joyful demonstration of this village when the great pile of faggots, kept dry by tarpaulins for a fortnight of expectation, will be uncovered and lighted. This would have been done

THREE MEN DIE IN EXPLOSION UNDER GROUND

Eleven Injured, Three Seriously When Drill Strikes Dynamite 640 Feet Beneath Surface in Yonkers.

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—With three workmen dead and three more in a serious condition from injuries in an explosion 640 feet under ground in the Yonkers-Long Island aqueduct, the district attorney of Bronx county began an inquiry today in the accident.

The official said he would ask a Grand Jury to look into a series of accidents which have occurred in construction of the aqueduct, and would seek to determine whether there was a criminal or other liability in the explosion early today—the worst of the series.

Those Killed
The three men killed were Earl Quick, 18; Willis Case, and Dennis Harley, 44, all of New York.

In Fordham hospital today lay Hackman Handsman, 28, of Yonkers, and Thomas Timoney, 28, of Yonkers, both of whom were injured in the explosion which physicians said might be fatal. Hackman's skull was fractured and his scalp and abdomen badly lacerated.

The explosion was indicated by an early investigation to have been caused by the boring of an air drill, operated by one of the workmen, into an unexploded charge of dynamite which remained after blasting operations had been finished several hours earlier.

8 Others Hurt
Eight workmen injured only slightly in the blast were treated for their contusions and cut by ambulance surgeons and taken to their homes.

The new aqueduct, still some months from completion, runs through Yonkers and beneath the East river to South Brooklyn, to which it is designed primarily to supply water from the vast reservoirs upstate.

FIND BODY OF ANDREE LOST SINCE YEAR 1897; WAS ARCTIC EXPLORER

New London May Get Coast Guard Airport

New London, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Coast Guard officials are conducting a survey of several places where there is a possibility of locating a base. If the base is located in this city it would be available for the use of Coast Guard cadets at the new academy, construction of which is expected to be begun soon.

Commander Stone, who is among the board conducting the survey, was a pilot on the NCA, which crossed the Atlantic in 1919. He was recently decorated by President Hoover for his part in the flight.

UNCLE SAM LOSES MONEY BUT IS GOOD LANDLORD

Is 50 Million in the Red on Government Houses But He Helps Poor Tenants When They Cannot Pay.

Washington, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Uncle Sam may not be a financial success as a landlord, but he seems soft hearted, and his tenants all swear by him.

Figures just compiled by the United States Housing Corporation show there are 4,785 homes scattered over the country as a result of Uncle Sam's wartime building program, but it is estimated that the government is about $50,000,000 in the red side of the ledger as a result.

Of the 4,000 homes for government workers which it was decided to finish at the time of the Armistice, and sell, preferably to the workers, there is a balance yet to pay of $1,826,273. There are 1215 homes still to be liquidated.

Although it may stand a financial loss, the venture will go down in history as a great success from an altruistic point of view.

Long Time to Pay
Twenty-five thousand workers were provided during the war with comfortable, home-like living quarters, three thousand modern frame homes costing from $3,000 to $5,000 and designed by the best architects have been bought or are in process of being bought from the government. From 10 to 15 years are allowed for payment.

Uncle Sam has been a lenient landlord. He has not ousted tenants who have fallen behind in their payments because of illness or other circumstances warranting clemency.

Mrs. Lulah T. Andrews, director of the United States Bureau of Housing and Transportation, often makes trips herself to see tenants on the verge of losing their homes. Plans are sometimes worked out by which they are enabled to pull through and keep their homes.

The government home-building program was a war-time measure launched in 1918 under President Wilson. Congress appropriated $100,000,000 to provide proper housing for people who came from all parts of the country to work in the munitions and armament centers. Building projects were carried on in 27 different states.

The six government hotels, which housed 2,000 women workers in the capital were only recently turned down.

JEWELS, CLOTHING, FILL TINY ROOM

Newark Police Think They Have Discovered Headquarters of Beggar.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Discovery that a tiny furnished room in a boarding house held a large quantity of jewelry, clothing and money has led police to believe the room has been the headquarters for fifteen years of a "master beggar."

The room was rented in 1915 by Mrs. Henrietta Schofield to a man who gave his name as James Wilson. He insisted that she never allow anyone in the room and keep out herself. Since then Wilson has returned to the house about every six weeks, to remain in the room for two days.

Room Opened
Last night the room was opened. Within its six-by-eight foot space were discovered about 35 watches, nine bracelets, 100 rings, wrist watches, 21 coin containers holding $265, and five locked suit cases and five trunks.

On lines strung across the room were 50 suits of clothes and many overcoats, trousers and vests. Seventy-five pairs of shoes and 60 hats were scattered over the floor.

Detectives started search for a panhandler, pointing out the arms and legs of some of the suits were sewed up, as if worn by crippled mendicants.

ASKS RECEIVERSHIP FOR WARNER BROS.

Boston Business Man Files Petition in Delaware; Mismanagement Charge.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 22.—(AP)—A petition asking for the appointment of a receiver for Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., and an accounting, was filed today with the clerk of the Court of Chancery here.

R. I. Nelson, a Boston business man, who said he is a stockholder in the corporation, is the plaintiff in the suit, which is also directed against Rehar, Inc., a holding company of Warner Brothers Pictures. The officers and directors are named as defendants, although no names are specified.

The petition charges mismanagement on the part of the officers, and alleges that "excessive prices have been paid for theaters and real estate."

Rehar, Inc., the petition cites, bought up the theaters and theater seats and sold them to Warner Brothers.

Eugene Savery, of this city, is local attorney for the petitioners. He is associated with Nathan Fink, Boston lawyer. The Court of Chancery is not scheduled to convene until December.

CHARGE UNFOUNDED
New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., said today that charges contained in the suit for a receivership filed in Wilmington, Del., by R. I. Nelson of Boston were unfounded and that proper answer and adequate proof disproving them would be made at the earliest possible moment.

FIND BODY OF ANDREE LOST SINCE YEAR 1897; WAS ARCTIC EXPLORER

Thirty-three Year Old Mystery of What Became of Swedish Balloonist - Explorer is Solved - Body Discovered by Norwegian Scientific Expedition; Companion Also Found, Both Bodies Fully Dressed and Well Preserved.

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 22.—(AP)—A thirty-three year mystery has been solved by the finding on White Island, Fridtjof Nansenland, of the body of the Swedish balloonist, explorer, August Andree, by a Norwegian scientific expedition.

The explorer, born in Grenna, Oct. 18, 1884, is believed to have perished within a very short time after the take-off for the north. His companions, K. Frankel and N. Strindberg, and Andree's wife, with him but today's dispatches, coming from the expedition aboard the steamer Brattvaag did not say which was found with him.

For years there have been periodic rumors that this balloon had been found in Siberia or for the bodies which the expedition is bringing back were found in the remains of a camp which the aeronauts had made on White Island.

Andree took off in a balloon from Danes Island, Spitzbergen, in July, 1897, intending to fly to the North Pole.

He and his two companions never had been seen or heard of again. The expedition which found Andree's body reported also the finding of the body of one of his companions. Both were fully dressed and well preserved.

Salomon August Andree, a Swedish engineer, was the leader of the expedition crossing the North Polar region in a balloon in which some degree resembled a dirigible.

After an unsuccessful effort in 1898 when he was driven back by contrary winds, Andree and his two companions took off from Danes Island, July 11, 1897, and were swallowed up in the north country.

Heard Cries
Of several expeditions sent in search of them, the first started in November, 1897, when a report was received of cries of distress heard by shipwrecked sailors at Spitzbergen. In 1898 and 1899, coast searches of the north Asiatic coast, near Siberia, failed, and in May, 1899, Dr. Nathorst headed an expedition to Eastern Greenland. None of these was successful and only scant information was obtained through the discovery of a few buoys on the west of Spitzbergen, northern Norway, Iceland and elsewhere, which the balloonists had dropped, and through a message taken from a carrier pigeon dispatched from the balloon two days after the start. There also were messages in two of the buoys, but they dated only from the day of the takeoff. The others were empty.

Andree's companions were K. Frankel and N. Strindberg. Formerly Franz Josephant, an Arctic archipelago lying east of Spitzbergen, many of the islands being promontories rising from 400 to 700 feet.

Most of the islands have caps of ice or sheer ice faces to the sea. Vegetation is sparse, consisting of only a few flowering plants and some mosses and lichens. Occasionally Norwegian trappers have wintered there but pack-ice renders advance to the only land animals.

Many explorers have ventured into the large group of islands but there is still much to learn of their nature.

Franklin's Discovery
The Northeast Passage was discovered by Sir John Franklin's party in 1847-8. They lost their lives in the adventure.

Lieutenant Peary, later Commander, led expeditions there and nearly gave the lives in the quest of 1896. The expedition of Alfred Hearnshaw, afterward Lord Northcliffe, in the ship "windward" explored that region in 1884, reaching Cape Richardson and there being convinced by an expense of open water to the north which they named Queen Victoria Sea.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen wintered near Cape Norway, Jackson Island, and brought to light form much original information regarding the vast collection of islands.

WALCOTT TO MAKE KEYNOTE SPEECH

Junior Senator From State Accepts Invitation From Chairman Roraback.

Hartford, Aug. 22.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Frederic C. Walcott, junior Senator from Connecticut, today accepted the invitation extended to him by State Chairman J. Henry Roraback to serve as temporary chairman of the Republican state convention next month.

The Republican state convention will be held in Foot Guard Armory on September 15 and 16. At that time the Democratic convention will have been held and the keynote of the Democratic campaign by Homer S. Cummings.

Senator Walcott will officiate as temporary chairman of a party in state convention. His own personal relations with President Hoover, present and past, will probably draw attention to his keynote speech. In World War days he was intimately active with Mr. Hoover in relief work. He gave a description of this during his campaigning for the Senatorship in 1928.

Twice a Senator
Senator Walcott has been twice a member of the State Senate, both times as chairman of the joint committee on finance and is well in

MISS ROSALIE MAY CRIED BY THE WAY

Cause Her Sweetie in Chicago Would Not Marry - And Now the Poor Dear—

Chicago, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Miss Rosalie May, from down Dixie way, came north with a view to a marriage; but she cried and cried of the man who had her in a carriage (Railroad carriage—Editor's Note).

"I came here to wed," Miss Rosalie said, "a man who had married me his photo. John Smith was the name, and he's not to blame if his face failed to equal the photo." (Unable to find good rhyme for photo—Writer's Note).

"I expected to find the handsomest kind of a fellow to whom I might marry. But now that we've met, I think I will get a train right back home, and not tarry."

"He writes odds of love like a dove from above. He took me, I guess for a Zeely. I thought him my hero, but he's just a zero—a sort of a kind of Lon Chaney."

"I left my dear Mamma in Phil Campbell, Alabama, and got into town yesterday. I was met, (it's no myth) by Mr. John Smith, so that's why I'm leaving today."

She was low in finances, which hampered her chances of getting back home right away. But that was arranged, her money changed, and 'twas 'goodby, Miss Rosalie May.

The moral, if any, is that many times girls like Miss Rosalie May, make love by letter. They ought to know better. (And regret it the rest of their days).

MULTIMILLIONAIRE IS DEAD LIVED SAME AS POOR MAN

Manistee, Mich., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Death came last night to Charles F. Ruggles, the last of the Michigan lumber barons and found him in a plain little room where he had lived for years, preparing his own meals, scrubbing the floors and spending hours over kettles in which he made candy for distribution to children at Christmas time.

Ruggles at 84, died a multi-millionaire but there was little difference in his mode of life during his last days from that of his youth when he saw and seized the opportunities in northern Michigan virgin forests. When his friends in the industry, went into the cities, years ago and built fine homes, he remained behind living as he always had lived.

When lumbering passed out in Michigan Ruggles turned to saw manufacturing and until last Saturday when he was stricken ill, was active every work day. He never married, but the place of wife and children appeared to have been filled for him by friendships.

The strange life he led did not prevent Ruggles from taking an interest in the affairs of the world at large. Two years ago it was revealed through a letter from the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft that Ruggles in 1913 provided funds to organize and support the American Judiciary Society in an effort to help "prevent delays of the law."

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The latest bear drive against stocks petered out in today's market, as it found itself up against a stone wall of speculative supply.

During the morning, however, bears depressed some of the coppers, rails and specialties to new low levels. Pivotal industrials were generally firm.

BAD WEATHER HALTS AMERICA'S CUP TRIALS

Yankee Sets New Racing Record for 30 Mile Course Yesterday.

Newport, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Trials for the selection of the yacht to defend the America's cup were temporarily halted today because of heavy winds and sea. The selection committee felt that enough was known about the four racing ships, Yankee, Whirlwind, Westamoe and Enterprise, in boisterous weather and planned to await tests conducted in lighter breezes.

Wind and sea conditions today were identical with those of yesterday when rugged going gave the craft a severe test under adverse conditions. Sailed by Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the Navy, Yankee set a new yacht racing record for a 30-mile triangular course yesterday and it was believed she could go out today and repeat her victories over Whirlwind, the Thorne-Hammond contender.

Apparently the selection committee also felt that Enterprise, sailed by Harold S. Vanderbilt could continue to lead Westamoe, the Morgan-Nichols candidate. The reason for the committee's failure to match Enterprise and Yankee in today's breeze was not explained.

The lull in the defense camp came on the first day of Sir Thomas Lipton to meet with his fifth challenger, Shamrock V. The British ship swung gently at anchor in Brenton's Cove, close beside the four prospective defenders.

TOO COLD FOR BIG SWIM; POSTPONED

Annual Town Championship Meet at Hollow is Put Off Two Weeks.

Continued cold weather at Globe Hollow has caused a two week's postponement of the annual town championship swimming championship scheduled for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, it was announced by Director Lewis Lloyd of the Recreation Centers this afternoon. The meet will be held Saturday afternoon, September 6, unless unlooked for difficulties arise.

No Swimmers Out
The week at Globe Hollow has been one of particularly unfavorable weather. Wednesday afternoon, the annual Kiddies Day was postponed for a similar reason and attended at the pool this week has been practically nil, according to Director Lloyd.

Because of the fact that next week will afford a three day holiday over Labor Day it was felt that the meet should be continued yet another week, so that a representative number of the town's natural athletes will participate for the championship of Manchester.

HIS AUTOMOBILE RUINED, DRIVER IS ARRESTED

William Douglas Gets the Worst of Crash He Caused by Traffic Violation.

An intersection crash that injured two persons slightly and completely wrecked a Ford coupe brought about the arrest of William Douglas of 109 Holt street, on a charge of reckless driving last night at 9:30 o'clock. Douglas, in the Ford, failed to heed a stop sign at Spruce and Bissell streets and collided with a Buick sedan driven by John Shea of 531 East Center street.

The Ford struck the left front fender of the Buick, "changed ends," then turned over on its side against the north curb. Mrs. Marie Douglas, wife of the driver, sustained cuts about the knees and bruises, and her 14-month-old son suffered a cut on the back of his head. Dr. Thomas Sloan attended to the wounds, after which the injured were taken to their home.

The Buick was damaged to the extent of a bent left front fender and two broken windows while the Ford was just so much wreckage. Sergeant John McGilgan investigated and arrested Douglas on a charge of reckless driving.

OLD MEN ARRIVE FOR AIR MEETING

Aviation Not a Young Man's Game as Shown by Officials Present.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The common belief that aviation was a young man's field was laughed at today by 64-year-old Godfrey L. Cabot of Boston, multi-millionaire and member of the distinguished Cabot family. He learned to pilot an airplane at the age of 64 years, and does not yet drive an automobile.

Cabot was among the first arrivals to attend the annual convention of the National Aeronautic Association of U.S.A., an organization he headed a few years back. The noted manufacturer did not stop at getting his pilot's license. He began experimenting and was the first aviator to pick up a burden in full flight. He practiced this by swooping down in a seaplane on the bay off Boston and picking up supplies.

He said he had been interested in aviation for many years "away back when — well, I won't say," he smiled.

When the World War came Cabot decided to go into aviation seriously. He was commissioned a lieutenant in the Navy Reserve Flying Corps. During 1917 he was in charge of the Marblehead Aviation Camp. In his seaplane "The Lark" he patrolled Boston harbor.

A glance over the opening session tended to substantiate his contention that aviation was not just a young man's sport. Gray heads predominated. Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, who presided as president, has gray hair.

In fact from Porter Adams of Boston, past president, it was learned the average age of members was between 40 to 45 years, "and the majority of them know how to pilot a plane themselves," he said.

ZUTA PAID CHECKS TO HIGH OFFICIALS

Chicago Gangster's Rule Even Reached Florida His Private Papers Disclose.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The lids of Jack Zuta's strong boxes were torn from their hinges today and hitherto unknown contents scattered far and wide.

Reams of additional papers and records were made public by the investigators, some relating to public officials, some to gangland activities.

Attorney Laube of Gary, Ind., said today he was the writer of a letter mailed to Frank Gross of Gary, from Orlando, Fla., and signed "Ben"—found in the possessions of Zuta, who was slain at a Wisconsin lake resort three weeks ago.

"How the letter got there I don't know," he said. "I never heard of Jack Zuta until the newspapers told of his death."

Laube said he had been retained by Gross, a Gary real estate man to negotiate the purchase of some hotel property in Florida.

Tried To See Governor

The letter to Gross mentioned that "my son made several attempts to reach Governor or Doyle Carlton, attorney general Fred H. Davis and Senator John Watson by telephoning tonight but they were unavailable." Mr. Laube said his son was a newspaperman in Florida.

Another document described by the investigators as a police confession told of the attempts of "Mope" Volpa and Joe Genaro, notorious Chicago gangster to kidnap and hold for $50,000 ransom a man named "Jack".

Helen Delmar, a New York night club hostess made the confession. She said Genaro brought her from New York to serve as a lure. A tip off to the police caused the arrest of the girl and the ransom plot was thwarted, the investigator disclosed. However, it was not disclosed how the confession came into Zuta's possession.

Zuta's Power

Another batch of correspondence from Louie La Cava, one time Zuta ally, and later a Capone gunman, was described by Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state attorney, as showing Zuta's power in Chicago.

La Cava was sought as a suspect in the sensational murder of Asst. State Attorney William McSwiggin, several years ago. One letter from La Cava, Roche disclosed, asked Zuta to "fix it" for him.

Police records show that La Cava was arrested in June 1926 and that he was discharged as a suspect by Municipal Judge Joseph W. Schulman, who has previously been named in the Zuta inquiry as the recipient of a check from the slain gangster.

Friend of Yale

Zuta was a friend of Frankie Yale, slain New York-Brooklyn gang chief, according to the investigators. A carefully preserved business card, found in one of the boxes, bore the imprint: Frank Yale, Yale Cigar Mfg. Company, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A $500 check, drawn in 1922 and signed by "Jack Zuta" was made payable to F. W. Rothenberg, formerly a deputy coroner and now a Republican ward committeeman. Another check for $2,000 was issued by Zuta in 1927 to Simon Herr, law partner of former Judge Emmanuel Eller, who also was given a check by the slain vice conger.

A picture of Alderman George M. Maypole, taken with his wife, and daughter, at Hot Springs, Ark., in 1928 was found in Zuta's possessions. On it was inscribed: "With regards from the Maypoles, Hot Springs, Ark."

AIMEE KEEPS SILENT ON TILT WITH MOTHER

Los Angeles, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The controversy which has raged between Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist and her mother Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, involving officials of Angelus Temple, continued today with Mrs. Kennedy announcing through a nurse at her sanitarium that she was not connected in any official capacity with Temple affairs.

Plans of a "committee of four" from the Temple to confer with Mrs. Kennedy and present her an ultimatum to cease discussing Temple affairs publicly, met with failure when Mrs. Kennedy refused the committee entrance.

The nurse informed the committee she had been instructed to say Mrs. Kennedy "is not in any way connected with the Temple; she is not a member of the board; she is not an official, and is not even a member of the congregation."

Mrs. Kennedy also sent word she would see no one "but the head of the Temple," her daughter.

Out at Malibu Beach, Mrs. McPherson remained in seclusion, permitting only a brief visit by newspapermen. She has disclaimed any desire to see her mother.

Glider Fliers Find Use For Freak Valley Winds

Ellensburg, Wash. (AP)—Glider enthusiasts have found a use for the almost perpetual winds of Kittitas valley near here, formerly in ill repute.

The peculiar air currents and contour of the valley are ideal for gliding, it was discovered, and an attempt is planned to set an endurance gliding record there.

Night flights in an illuminated glider, believed to be the first ever tried, are planned by Glenn W. Snook, prominent pilot during the Ellensburg rodeo, September 4, 5 and 6.

CAMPERS LISTEN TO DRY DIRECTOR

Administrator Robert L. Sengle is Guest at Willimantic Yesterday Afternoon.

Special to The Herald.

Willimantic Campground, Aug. 22.—Prohibition was the most important subject brought before the campers yesterday. At 2 p. m. a God-sized congregation assembled in the tabernacle. The district superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Genter, called on Rev. J. Manly Shaw, of Baltic to pray. Justin Lawrie sang, "The Lord is My Light and My Salvation." Rev. R. J. Chrystie, of Mystic, read the Scripture.

After announcements were made, an offering was taken during which Miss Roberta Bitgood of New London rendered a fine solo on the piano. "Onward Christian Soldiers" was heartily sung by the congregation. Mr. Genter prefaced his introduction of the speaker by stating this was the age of chivalry. The speaker introduced was Robert L. Sengle, deputy administrator of Hartford. He provoked applause at the start by stating the self-evident truth that the world would be infinitely better off if every drop of alcohol were at the bottom of the sea. He used all sorts of arguments and nowadays even poses as a "temperance man." They cry out that their "personal liberty is being infringed upon, yet today in Connecticut are better than ever before. Evidently the personal liberty of the dry people have been for better for the country the last ten years, than that known in the United States previously. The wet press magnify the evils of lax enforcement, and minify the good done, to mention one thing, in the comparative safety of automobile riding, to what it would be were light wines and beer to be legalized. Out of 684 in the Connecticut state prison, the largest ever, but four were there for violating the state enforcement law. Some folks seem to think no other laws are manifested. We know, of course, that the prohibition law is being violated, but so are all other laws. A woman the other day said, 'speakeasies were worse than saloons. Guess she never tried to dig into coal piles, old chimneys and other inaccessible places for the speakeasy pint or quart that is doing its bit of damage. Mr. Sengle is an officer in the employ of the U. S. government and declares from observation that Hartford is the cleanest city in the east. He flayed newspaper owners for emphasizing the sensational and hiding the real truth.

Some men speak loosely with no authority nor argument whatever. The Coast Guard, for example, kills a run-runner. That is "news," and has big headlines. A run-runner kills a Coast Guard seeking to enforce U. S. law. That's not news, save for a mere mention in an obscure column. Decent citizens will back up the law by their personal habits. They will be outspoken against law-breaking, and seek to put men in power who will be honest in their duty of enforcing the law. Mr. Sengle closed by urging every effort to prevent the doing away with the state law for enforcement, which some men, otherwise fine citizens, are seeking to nullify.

Last evening occurred an interesting debate on the question: "Can the Prohibition Law Be Enforced?" The debaters were Superintendent Prettyman, of the Connecticut Anti-Saloon League and Connecticut Temperance Society, and W. D. Pardee, of New Haven. The evening's exercises began with singing of the battle hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers" by the audience, with Mr. Pierce at the piano, Miss Bitgood with her violin, and Chester Shields playing his trumpet. Prayer was offered by Rev. George Smith Brown, of Mapleville, R. I. Justin Lawrie sang, "Mother of Mine," Mrs. Lawrie at the piano.

Miss Pauline Mayo read a selection in costumes, four poses in a photographers.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington.—The little son of a high official in the Latin-American diplomatic corps in Washington was bitten severely by a dog while at play recently.

In a serious condition, he was carried to a hospital in an ambulance. He could not speak English, but a tonsil operation a few weeks previous had made him extremely conscious of hospitals and operating tables.

When hospital attendants sought to place him on the operating table that they might bind his wounds, the little fellow grew quite voluble in his native tongue, clutched his throat and made a rumpus generally.

Nurses and doctors, unable to understand him, tried in vain to make him understand that he must submit. But it was not until one of his parents assured him in the only language he knew that he would not have to go through a second tonsil operation that he agreed to mount the table.

This is typical of Washington—the city where the blend of personalities is probably the most unusual of any in this country.

Flavor Unique

The school life in the capital, for instance, has a flavor that is distinctly unique. In a single classroom, one finds the sons and daughters of Iowa, of Pennsylvania, of France, of Great Britain, of China, and many other countries, learning the same lessons and playing the same games.

Their parents are cabinet officers, ambassadors, senators and congressmen. Some are sons and daughters of army and navy officers who have

DEHEY'S MERRY MAKERS AT RAU'S SATURDAY

During the present summer quite a few real good dance orchestras have been heard at Raue's Pavilion, Crystal Lake. Probably the most popular band is that of Bill Dehey and his Merry Makers, which will be heard again Saturday, Aug. 23. A number of Crystal Lake dancers, followers have been attending the Tuesday night dances at Riverside Park to listen and dance to the Merry Makers in the Riverside Ballroom.

Just recently the Merry Makers played for the dance in connection with the American Legion Convention for the state of Vermont, and they will go to Boston next month to play for the state convention of the Massachusetts American Legion.

Bill Dehey offers you the very best in dance music. Music is the life of the dance, the pulsing rhythm, the soul of the saxophone, the strength of the brass, the strum of the banjo, a symphony of life in its gayer aspects.

Saturday, August 30, the biggest event ever to take place at Crystal Lake will be the Fifteenth Anniversary of Raue's Pavilion. Plans are nearly complete for the most spectacular celebration possible, one that will long be remembered by all those who attend.

Paris.—(AP)—"The biggest in the world" so often has been a label on American achievements that the French have rather smarted under it. Yet of late, some of their inquiring minds have dug up records that make them feel less of an inferior complex.

When Dieudonne Coste and other French aces in past months brought back half the world's air records to France, patriotic statisticians added to those achievements these other "biggest" things:

The Eiffel tower, highest structure in the world.

The biggest reinforced concrete bridge, at Saint-Pierre-Du-Vauray.

The biggest metal viaduct, at Viaur, in the Cevennes mountains.

The fastest steam railroad train, running from Paris to Belgium, 135 miles at 60 miles an hour.

The biggest aviation hangars at Orly.

The biggest airport at LeBourget.

The biggest underground tunnel, on the Rhone just outside Marseilles.

The most powerful searchlight, that at Mount Valerieu, just west of Paris, developing a billion candlepower and throwing a beam of light over a hundred miles.

The world's fastest warship, the cruiser Tourville.

The biggest wireless station, at Saint-Assise.

North Carolinians purchased $46,866 life insurance policies in 1929, the state insurance commissioner's records show.

MACCABEES GREAT GREAT COMMANDER

High Official of the Order,
Now Resident of Manchester, is Welcomed.

W. K. Blewett, new great commander of The Maccabees for Connecticut, was heartily welcomed by the members of Manchester Tent No. 2 at last night's meeting when he was introduced by Alvin L. Brown, veteran record keeper of the Manchester unit for the past forty-two years.

(Mr. Blewett, prior to his appointment to Connecticut, was state manager of Minnesota and, with his family, resided in Minneapolis. His duties in organization work for the Order began in his home state of Virginia nine years ago and he has since filled assignments in North Carolina, District of Columbia, Delaware, New Jersey and Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Blewett and their two sons are residing at 116 Oxford street and like Manchester very much.

At the meeting of the local Tent of The Maccabees last night Mr. Blewett outlined the Great Camp plans for Connecticut, which will include the organization of a state-wide field force and the institution of inter-city visitations and joint initiation rally programs throughout the state.

The field organization will be composed of both ladies and men who will devote their entire time to promoting the growth of the Order. They will assist the present lodges in the state and also organize new units for men, women and children. The inter-city visitations and initiation program for the Hartford Division will probably include the following lodges; Hartford Tent No. 1, Manchester Tent No. 2, New Britain Tent No. 15, Middletown Tent No. 17, Meriden Tent No. 21, Thread City (Willimantic) Tent No. 23 and Loom City (Rockville) Tent No. 25. The Tents in this division will participate in all monthly rallies, candidates from all Tents being grouped for joint initiation classes monthly, each Tent acting as host in its turn under the schedule adopted and the trips being made preferably in decorated auto caravan form. Manchester Tent has already adopted the program and appointed the following committee: William J. Burke, George M. Bidwell and Walter B. Coolidge.

The Maccabees is one of the largest fraternal beneficiary associations in the world, its jurisdiction embracing the United States and Canada. Its non-sectarian and non-political, operated for the benefit of its members and the protection of their homes, its protective features including all modern forms of legal reserve insurance. The local lodge was instituted March 8, 1888 with a charter membership of 17 and now has a membership of nearly 100.

GET GANDHI NOTE
Simla, India, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Viceroy Lord Irwin today received a letter from Mahatma Gandhi, carried by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar from Poona jail. The viceroy indicated he would see Mr. Jayakar soon.

The letter was understood to contain the Mahatma's terms for cessation of the civil resistance campaign in connection with which many hundreds of Congress volunteers now are in prisons throughout India.

The communication was written after conference among the Congress leaders including Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, the Pandits motilal and Jawarhalal Nehru and two moderates who instituted the parleys for peace.

It was made known today that the result of the Poona conference would be considered by the All-India working committee at Delhi next Saturday.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

FIRST YACHT VICTORY

On Aug. 22, 1851, the United States won the first international yacht cup races when the "America" defeated 15 entrants in a race from Cowes, England, around the Isle of Wight and return. This gave the United States the famous "America's Cup," which it held ever since.

The history of the cup dates back to the days of John C. Stevens, who was chiefly responsible for the whole series of races. Convinced that American-built sailing vessels were the fastest in the world, he formed a syndicate of yachting enthusiasts to build a boat to justify this contention. George Steers, a veteran builder, was therefore engaged by them to build the "America."

When the America sailed for England she carried a crew of only eight men and increased it to 15 when she raced. Although the craft was a 170-ton yacht, it competed against yachts having a tonnage as high as 392 tons. When the race got under way there was little doubt, however, as to who would be the ultimate victor. The most persistent challenger for the cup in recent years has been Sir Thomas Lipton of England. Each time he has brought his "Shamrock" to this country he has met with defeat. In September he will make another attempt to wrest the "America" cup at the races off Newport, R. I. If he "lifts" the trophy before he dies, Lipton declares he will have achieved a lifetime ambition.

AGAINST EMIGRATION

Viano Do Castello, Portugal, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Premier Oliveira, with the ministers of interior and justice, today continued his propaganda tour against emigration with the slogan "Stay at Home—keep the Home Fires Burning."

The premier said that if the exodus to Brazil and other countries continued the population would drop below 5,000,000 in twenty years, the total inhabitants of continental Portugal numbered 5,977,882 in 1927, whereas the number of emigrants in 1928 totaled 34,287.

Mr. Douglas is a field auditor for the Aetna Insurance Co. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Douglas have returned home after spending a week in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. John Monaghan spent the week-end in New York City. Sunday, August 17, the name of Robert Joseph King was placed on the Cradle Roll of the Talcottville church.

THE ROME OF ASIA NOW A DYING CITY

Ancient Samarkand Is No More After Russian Reds Close Up The Mosques.

Samarkand Uzbekistan, Soviet Republic.—(AP)—Once called "The Rome of Asia" for its ecclesiastical learning and piety, and "The Athens of the World" for its art and culture, ancient Samarkand today is a dying city.

It has been a dying metropolis for five hundred years, but the recent closing by the Soviet government of the many mosques and schools of divinity of Tamerlane's once proud city, together with the Bolsheviks' destruction of private trading, seem to have hastened its death agony.

Today, with the exception of a few scattering bazaars and a few privately-owned tea shops, Samarkand is only a giant tombstone over the ruins of its great past, when it was one of the most flourishing cities of the East.

Old Traditions A city imbued with thousand-year-old traditions of the Orient and measuring time only by the slow plod of the camel, the infantry of the desert and the familiarity of the burning sands, found it could not hold out against the modernizing influences of a Communist government eager to sweep away the retrogression and lethargy of the East for the progress and materialism of the West.

Everywhere the red flag of Communism is replacing the emblems of Mohammedanism. Those who do not join the red procession must inevitably perish.

"If you want to see riches, go to India," says an old Eastern proverb; "if you want to see piety, go to Mecca; if you want to see both, then go to Samarkand." But today neither riches nor piety can be seen in the city of the ancient called "The Garden of God's Chosen."

The old capitol's riches have crumbled along with its monuments and shrines. Its 105 mosques, 14 medresses, 6 Jewish synagogues and 91 mektebs are all in ruins. Communism and materialism are displacing the old religion and spiritual fervor.

Little Trading Trading in the old city seems to be confined to the street hawking of bread, vegetables and small wares by impoverished-looking natives.

The only other places where the visitor finds any life are the "Bakchisarai" (tea shops) where the native Uzbekians, Sarts, Turcomen, Kirgiz, Kazaks and Tadzhiks sit in their haunches, Chinese fashion, day and night, sipping green sugary tea, puffing bubble-bubble pipes, carousing and retelling the little-tattle of the town.

Located in the center of a great caravan route connecting China, India, Afghanistan, Persia and Russia, and lying in a well-irrigated and fertile area, Samarkand possesses vast commercial possibilities which the existing Soviet regime has been quick to seize.

But the government is confining its activities and improvements to the new city of Samarkand, which is about three miles from the old capitol, and which was founded by the Czarist regime in 1871.

In strong contrast to the Medievalism, the narrow dusty streets, the squat windowless mud-houses and the Oriental squalor of the old town, the new city is distinguished by broad well paved avenues, long rows of superb trees, a splendid drainage and water supply system, excellent retail shops, cinema theaters, public parks, etc.

A new modern hotel, which is a great novelty for Turkestan, has just been completed.

CATHERINE BOOTH ADDS BRAMWELL TO HER NAME London.—(AP)—Commissioner Catherine Booth, daughter of the late General Bramwell Booth, was by deed poll assumed the surname of Bramwell in addition to the surname of Booth, thus adopting the name by which her father was known to members of the Salvation Army throughout the world.

"In the first place," Miss Catherine Bramwell Booth explained, "I have taken this step to keep fresh the name of my father, as a mark of respect to his memory. Another reason is that it will prevent people from confusing my name with that of my grandmother who was also Catherine Booth.

"She, of course, was the wife of General William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army."

Miss Catherine Bramwell Booth is engaged in writing the life story of her father.

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

RUNS BETTER STRAIGHT—Automobiles may have no reason to be virtuous but the fact remains that they perform better when they are running straight.

Where mechanical brakes are used, for instance, a car will stop better if the driver does not turn off to the right or left. Many four-wheel braking systems are designed so that the outer front wheel brake releases when the car goes around a curve.

The situation is the same if the driver cuts the wheels to the right or left when stopping, only three brakes being on the job under such conditions.

Going uphill a car will not perform as well if it is required to take curves, provided the grade is not reduced on such curves. If a turn is taken at the start of a climb the engine will have to do extra work.

In tests many repairmen always start a curving climb at higher speed than if they approach the hill straight.

CARE IN COMPRESSION TEST Making an occasional test of the engine's compression is good business for the car owner provided he does no jump at conclusions.

The test is demonstrated in the case of an owner who decided that the rings of one of the cylinders needed replacement because it had no compression.

That his conclusion was wrong was simply a matter of noting that the respective piston wasn't pumping oil. The compression leakage was due to a valve not seating properly.

He could have discovered this had he removed the valve cover plate. The excess clearance at the tappets would have revealed the fact that the valves did not fully close.

Under such conditions it isn't always necessary to rush the car to the shop for a valve grinding job because the compression test is made while the engine is cranked by hand.

At higher speed the troublesome valves often seat.

GETTING OFF THE TAR One of the oldest remedies for removing oil spots from a car is to rub with a soft cloth slightly dampened with alcohol, but the owner of a modern lacquer car should modify the rule because alcohol is an enemy of lacquer.

It is better to use a little kerosene on the body, rubbing it gently over the spots with the fingers. This is also useful in removing tar, especially from fenders and bumper ends.

Alcohol may be used on the fenders, splash pans, aprons and other such parts—if they are enamelled. Many cars still carry baked enamel fenders, but others are lacquered.

Sometimes it is necessary to make a paste of some very mild abrasive in order to remove tar from the bumper ends, but the water and kerosene should be used before other things are resorted to. Chromium plating is very thin and should be treated carefully.

FEW KNOW SPRING SADDLES Two parts of an automobile seldom considered by owners in their daily care are the two saddles which ride on the rear axle housing and which, in turn, hold the centers of the rear springs.

Where cars receive rough usage these become loosened so that there is a decided thumping noise in the rear.

In order to tighten the saddles satisfactorily it is not enough to draw up on the nuts for the main spring clips. The saddles have to be scraped just like bearings in order to assure a proper fit.

Many owners who have this work done at service stations upon recommendations from the dealer cannot understand the situation at all because they confuse the saddles with the shackles. Some owners who do not travel rough roads never need to have the saddles attended to.

REBORING VS. SPECIAL RINGS Should the engine be rebored or is it sufficient to install special rings that claim to hold compression and stop loss of oil?

Roughly, the answer is this: the special rings do hold compression and stop oil waste, but they do this at the expense of making the pistons drag. This means that the engine will be peppish though it may pull enough at slow speed uphill. If the cylinder block is rebored and the work is properly done the engine should operate as good as new, though it will be a little stiff at first.

While the engine, in either case, must be handled carefully following the work there is more chance of the rebored job going wrong. But it will be the most satisfactory if it turns out right.

Duke Of Connaugh Last Of Victorians

The Duke of Connaugh, 80-year-old soldier and statesman, and one of the last of the Victorians, is shown at the left in his most recent photo. In an earlier picture, at the right, you see him in the uniform of a Commander-in-Chief.

London.—The British royal family is concerned about the health of one of its oldest and most celebrated members—the Duke of Connaugh, son of a queen, brother of a king, uncle of a king, and father-in-law of a king. He is among the last of the Victorians, one-time Inspector-General of all the empire's armed forces, and a former Governor-General of Canada.

But Connaugh has passed his 80th birthday with little of the vigor that has sustained him through an unusually active life.

He not only is one of the last of the Victorians; he might be called the Victorian par excellence, for he is the son of the late Queen Victoria. He was born in the thirteenth year of her reign and saw her on the throne for 50 years more. He saw his brother, King Edward VII, rule for nine years. And he has watched his nephew, King George V, reign for twenty years.

Always a Soldier The Duke always has been first and foremost a soldier. He seemed predestined to it. For when he was christened, his godfather was the first Duke of Wellington, one of England's greatest captains and the man who settled Napoleon's fate at Waterloo. Having such a godfather seemed to have colored the boy's thoughts.

His grandmother, the Duchess of Teck, wrote of being present at "Arthur's drumming lesson." At 6 he chose to be painted in the uniform of the famous Grenadier Guards.

When he got to be old enough to consider seriously what he should do in life, he still wanted to be a soldier. His oldest brother, Edward, was destined for the throne. His next brother, the late Duke of Edinburgh, had chosen the navy. So the youngest just naturally turned to the army.

At 16 he entered the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich. Two years later he passed out into the Royal Engineers. But shortly thereafter he transferred as a second lieutenant into the Royal Artillery and from that into the Rifle Brigade, a celebrated Corps with which he has maintained close relations down to this very hour.

He was made a captain in 1871 at the age of 21. He became a major in 1875 and in 1876 took command as a lieutenant colonel. He became Colonel-in-chief in 1880.

Saw Active Service He did more than step up. He saw active service and smelted gunpowder. In 1870 he was in Canada under General Wolseley in the Red River expedition against the Fenians. In 1882 Arabi Pasha's revolt in Egypt took him there in command of the Guards' Brigade. He was in action at Mahmuta and Tel-el-Kebir and was thrice mentioned in dispatches. Lord Wolseley privately wrote the Queen that her son had borne himself gallantly under fire. He afterwards received the thanks of Parliament for his services in the field.

He undoubtedly owed a lot of his rapid advancement to the fact that he was a royal prince. But once having reached a certain high position, his royal blood and connections then became a handicap. He had held army commands at Bombay, India, in the southern English district and at Aldershot. When the South African war broke out, he strongly desired to see his independent command in the field. But his very royalty barred him.

His mother, the Queen, fearing for his safety, vetoed his aspirations and he had to be content with being Commander-in-Chief of the forces in Ireland. It was generally thought he was destined to succeed his grandfather, the Duke of Cambridge, as Commander-in-chief of the British army. The great statesman, Disraeli, in fact, advised the Queen to retain the supreme army command in the royal family. But the times were becoming more democratic and it was deemed wiser policy to name Lord Wolseley as more representative of the British people.

Made a Field Marshal Connaugh was given consolation in the shape of a Field Marshalship in 1902. When the post of Commander-in-chief was abolished and an Army Council established in its place, the Duke was made Inspector-General of all the armed forces. As such he traveled widely, seeing the troops in Egypt, South Africa, Hong Kong and Malaysia. Then he was made Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean forces. After that he left the army, convinced there was no further career there for him.

But soon a new call was made upon him. In 1911, he was appointed Governor-General of Canada and the Canadian regiment which won glory for itself on many a field in France and Flanders. Owing to the outbreak of the war, the Duke served as Governor General for an unusually long period, only relinquishing the task in 1916.

A Statesman Too He also performed two other jobs as representative of the royal family. He went to South Africa to open the Union Parliament and he went to India to inaugurate the Council of State and the Imperial Legislative Assembly. Since then he has almost withdrawn from public life, spending most of his winters in the French Riviera, where he is well known for his soldierly bearing and democratic ways.

Singularly few anecdotes are told about him, but one thing he did in 1900 won him the regard of the British people. By the death of the then ruler of the Duchy of Saxe-Coburg in Germany, the Duke of Connaugh found himself heir to the vacant throne. Without a moment's hesitation, he declined it. He was born a Briton, and a Briton he would die.

GOOD TIMES BACK SOON, BANKERS PREDICT, 2 TO 1

"Good times," measured on the standard of reasonable returns to both labor and capital, will come back in October, American bank directors have predicted by a vote of 2 to 1, according to an analysis of the poll of bankers by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce.

The remaining third of the bankers polled, says Dr. Klein in The American Magazine, placed the return of "good times" at January 1, in any case, he declares, which "is to come out of it." The climb will be a healthier, more normal one than that after any previous depression. He believes that it may be two years before the country is back to the 1929 level, which he describes as "systematic" and as a "speculative" prosperity rather than an "earned" one. "We will arrive at a brass tacks rather than a brass band era," he says.

"We have had eleven more or less drastic depressions in business in the last forty years," continues Dr. Klein, "and the period of scraping along at the bottom has varied from about eight months in 1917 to 25 months after the bump in 1912. The average duration has been thirteen months and the average depression varied only a month or two one way or the other from that figure. In no case, even through the crash of last October and November, have the dark spots on the business 'weather map' covered areas even remotely comparable with those of previous crashes such as those of 1907 and 1921.

Dr. Klein sees in country-wide statistics, even benefits from the stock crash. At the time of the debacle in 1929, there were but 940,000 stockholders in six major corporations of the country, while today there are 1,110,000 bona fide owners of the same securities, which, he says, indicates purchase of, rather than speculation in standard securities. Investors, therefore, have been seeking earnings rather than profits.

Improved transportation, and the closer knitting of investors to capital through radio, telephone, airplane and other means of communication, will, upon the upturn, permit it to proceed much faster than in former periods of depression.

Modern devices, always changing, says Klein, had a depressing influence upon the automobile, but the automobile boosted the wearing apparel industry. Piano and organ manufacturers, suffered, but radio

GERARD'S LIST
 James W. Gerard, one-time ambassador to Germany, will need all his well known poise and suavity, now that he has made a list of "fifty-nine men who rule America," and has calmly omitted therefrom every office holder but Andrew W. Mellon and every politician save James W. Raskob and Samuel Insull. He may have tickled the vanity of fifty-nine individuals but he has courted the resentment of at least fifty-nine thousand others who deem themselves quite considerable toads in the ruling puddle.

It was rather silly of Mr. Gerard to tell the people of England that if they would just turn over the management of their business affairs to "the forty men who rule America" those wizards would soon make the British Commonwealth the richest per capita in the world. It is little wonder that the statement has elicited rather acrimonious comment on the other side.

It is quite as silly for Mr. Gerard or anyone else to pretend that fifty-nine persons run the United States, particularly when some of those mentioned are the veriest of opportunists who have stumbled into vast wealth and some are merely the sons of big men who are themselves persons of no force though they have inherited forceful names.

Probably anybody could pick a list of fifty-nine "rulers" of America quite as authentic as Mr. Gerard's by sticking a pin, while blindfolded, fifty-nine times into a roster of the five thousand largest income tax payers in the country.

But who, aside from a James W. Gerard or a George W. Babbitt, would want to do it?

"BLESSINGS"
 A synopsis of newspaper comment on the drought situation printed in the Literary Digest shows a surprising extent of the belief that the great damage to the corn crop is a "blessing in disguise," in that it is expected to result in a general rise in the prices of grain and to dispose of the harassing wheat surplus.

To our way of thinking the situation is exactly analogous to the "disguised blessing" of the World War. The destruction of ten or twelve millions of human lives reduced the number of laborers in the world and so made it easier for the rest to get jobs and certainly must have brought up the level of wages. According to this same method of figuring it would have been a fine thing if ten times as many American soldiers had been killed, because then the problem of re-establishing the returned service men would have been very much easier, the competition for employment just so much less.

By the same process of thought the World War was a splendid thing because it created an enormous demand in this country for goods and materials and stimulated business at a time when it was headed for a serious period of depression.

PAROLES FOR LIFE
 Senator Baumes, chairman of the New York State Crime Commission, whose name is associated, in the public mind, with the law making it mandatory upon judges to sentence fourth-offender criminals to life imprisonment, is now advocating modification of the parole laws so as to make it possible for second, third and even fourth offenders to obtain release from prison when there is sufficient proof of their reform to make it reasonably certain that they will go straight. He proposes, however, that the state's supervision over every paroled prisoner who has been convicted more than once shall be perpetual.

While Baumes is known throughout the country almost exclusively in connection with life sentences for habitual criminals that law is far from being the only one of his authorship having to do with crime and criminals. He is a big enough figure in criminology so that he can afford to admit that experience with the life term measure has not been altogether satisfactory and to be prompt to advocate changes in it.

It is probable that New York state is about to survey the question of prison paroles in a more thorough and less emotional way than it has ever been approached in this country. Probably Senator Baumes and his associates out of their wide experience will be able to evolve some plan whereby paroles may be employed at once for the improvement of the criminal and for the benefit of society. Which is another way of saying that perhaps they will succeed in devising some system that will be merciful and reformatory without being turned into a burlesque and an injury to society through the operation of political influence.

SETTLE IT
 We learn from the Waterbury Republican, whose owner, William J. Pape, is supporting the anti-organization campaign of Prof. Albert Levitt for control of the Republican party in this state and who is a Levitt candidate for controller, that there is a whispering campaign going on against the professor. It is whispered, says the Republican, that Mr. Levitt is a Jew; and, when the whispers are intended for Israelitic ears, that he is an apostate Jew.

We had never heard the whippers. The very first intimation that ever reached this office that Professor Levitt was a Jew came from Mr. Pape's newspaper. It is our firm belief that the first intimation of that kind to reach nine hundred and ninety-nine out of a thousand Connecticut voters came from Mr. Pape's newspapers.

What earthly bearing the fact that Mr. Levitt is a Jew or that he is not a Jew has on the merits of his campaign we cannot for the life of us see. He is an American, and a native American at that. He may be as Jewish as Rabbi Wise or as Unitarian as Emerson for all anybody cares—his religion and his descent have absolutely nothing to do with his political activities—why lug them in?

Still, having raised this question, why do not Mr. Pape's newspapers answer it. They tell us, after saying it is whispered that Mr. Levitt is a Jew, that he is a Unitarian—a Unitarian minister before he became a lawyer. That answers the question as to religion. It still leaves unanswered the question of race. Having stirred up this matter gratuitously the Pape newspapers, in the interest of good journalism, would do well to settle it again.

HEFLIN'S CHANCE
 An Alabamian, a member of the same religious denomination as Senator Tom Hefflin but not an admirer of that gentleman, writes to the New York Times on the subject of Hefflin's independent candidacy for the re-election.

This man says that Hefflin has just about as much chance of being elected as one would have of lighting a cigar with a paper match in the midst of a Kansas cyclone. In support of his belief he cites an interesting fact. Alabama, he points out, has fewer than 250,000 total voting strength while in the Democratic primary there were polled, for senatorial candidates, about 164,000 votes. Of these Hefflin, running not as a Democrat, but as an independent, will get exactly none. If he should get all the remaining of the total vote—which there is not the remotest chance—he would still receive only 86,000 votes.

Unfortunately for Thomas the occasional admirer he has created for himself in other states will not be able to come to his rescue. So it would seem, as this Alabamian says, that his chance is somewhat slim.

SOUND POLLUTION
 That there is a considerable degree of pollution of the waters of Long Island sound by the dumping of sewage into the harbors and rivers is unquestionably true; but there seems to be some confusion as to its extent and even as to whether conditions are growing better or worse. Certain communities have taken at least part way measures toward scientific sewage disposal, but several times recently there have been reports from various investigating bodies which would lead to the conclusion that such measures were not even keeping up with the growth of population, let alone producing a betterment in comparison with the recent past.

Now comes along the Federal Bureau of Fisheries, with the information that the oyster set along the Connecticut coast is the best in 15 years, and the fact is attributed in part to the "very apparent improvement in the quality of the water as a result of a decrease in trade-waste pollution."

It is to be suspected that the Bureau of Fisheries may actually have more exact knowledge of the condition of Long Island Sound waters than some of the other groups which tell us that those waters are rapidly becoming dirtier and dirtier. At all events it is more encouraging to communities which are spending money by the million in eliminating their shares in the pollution, to be told that their work is of some effect, than when their efforts are ignored altogether.

ROBBING THE CORPSE
 It will puzzle some entirely worthy people to decide whether food racketeers who frighten dealers into paying excessive prices for certain commodities by threatening them with personal violence or by assault and sabotage are any worse citizens than the heads of highly respectable concerns in the same line of merchandising who promptly take advantage of the extortionate prices established by their racketeer neighbors.

In New York the price of "loose" milk—that's what they call bulk milk in the big city—dealers was $2.40 for a 44-quart can previous to August 11. Then the racketeers, taking advantage of the drought, talk, put up the price to $4.40, and when certain independent companies undertook to continue selling at $2.40 their customers were visited by gorillas and thugs who tore up their price signs and hung up new ones based on the four-forty per-can charge.

CUMMINGS KEYNOTER
 Stamford, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the Democratic National committee, credits the Republican party with at least one achievement.

Speaking last night at a testimonial dinner given in honor of Judge John A. Walsh, chairman of the Democratic Town committee, Cummings facetiously remarked that the heavy rainfall which came while members of the Hoover drought conference were assembling was the Republican party's outstanding achievement.

Cummings, who has been selected as the keynote speaker and temporary chairman of the Democratic State convention which will be held in New London next month, said the Republicans believe they have a patent on prosperity. Hard times will continue, he added, until the rights of human beings are recognized.

American breakfast foods, a news item says, are becoming popular in Switzerland. And that's a cereal story we all like to read.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The program for curtailment of oil production, sponsored first by the government as a conservation measure and begun later by the oil industry with cooperation of various states, is showing some results.

Instead of increasing as in previous years, oil production has been cut down. There was an increase from 901,000,000 barrels in 1928 to 1,006,000 barrels in 1929, but production for the first six months of 1930 was only 465,000,000 as compared with 488,000,000 in the first half of 1929.

Imports of crude oil fell off from 44,000,000 barrels to 31,000,000 barrels in the same period, but there was a corresponding increase in importation of refined products—mostly gasoline—so all that means is that the biggest American oil companies are doing more of their refining in the countries where they get their oil.

The significant point seems to be that while new resources have been discovered and the amount of "shut-in" oil has been at a new high peak, the amount of oil taken from the ground has nevertheless been diminished. The most generous estimates have undertaken, with considerable success, to keep their output within the limit of actual demands. Competition in drilling as well as in production has been considerably cut down.

Sag Harbor, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Notes from the log book of a roving vacationer:

There's a certain story-book-land quality about old Sag Harbor, where spent their lives in towns saturated by romance and tradition. A certain sparkle attaches to the most doting of the ancients, and I invariably am possessed with a small boy desire to squat on a couple of pears and read, "Grandma, tell me another one."

Perhaps if you ever visit this pioneer whaling town, it will be your good fortune to come across Miss French, 84, the assistant librarian. Or Ann Sleight, 86, whose family has been here year upon year. Or, if you see a huge old fellow lounging in front of the American House, he may turn out to be Frank Wade, who will soon be whisking you over the earth in ancient windjammers, putting in at far-away isles where a white man had never before been seen.

Browsing along the main street, you might drop up to the second floor of the old town hall and fall into conversation with the county clerk, who doubles as chief information purveyor.

In which case you'll come away with a miscellaneous assortment of information something like this:

That Andrew Carnegie, arrived in Sag Harbor on the old whaler Wisconsin.

That James Fenimore Cooper began his first novel in "Duke" Fordham's ancient tavern.

That the first missionaries to the Sandwich Isles set sail from this port in the whaler "Thames" and the rotting bones of this old craft sometimes may be sighted at low tide from Conkling's point.

That the first American ship to enter the then forbidden-ports of Japan was the Manhattan, from this their bustling town.

That this was quite a promising village long before the American Revolution.

That the British held the village in 1777 and that one Colonel Meigs, making an expedition of reprisal, defeated the Redcoats, burning 12 brigs and sloops.

That Captain Kidd slipped into the shalting bays heresabouts with his treasure and used Gardner's Island, off the coast, as a cache.

That the first Arctic whaling venture set sail from here under Captain Thomas Foyce and returned in 30 days with a rich cargo of sperm.

That the town was shelled by British ships in the War of 1812 and the first torpedo constructed to attack a British frigate lying in the harbor.

And, wandering over the gentle hills and about the winding lanes, one comes upon the various historical markers.

Or, listening to the tales of the old-timers as handed from grand-parents to children, you'll hear tales of the gray ahindigs staged in the historic Fordham inns.

You'll hear of the revels that followed the news of Cornwallis' surrender and Burgoyne's defeat.

Of how the Paul Jones found in the town whalers the backbone of his marine force in 1812. Of Deatur and Porter and Hull and Lawrence—all of whalerman stock.

Of the adventurous lads who came from every part of the nation to seek their fortunes as whaling men, and of the time when the California gold rush sent most of them scurrying westward.

MANUFACTURERS FIGHT HIGH TARIFF ON SHOES

Boston, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Massachusetts Industrial Commission today called a conference of shoe manufacturers for the purpose of making plans for combating any move toward reducing the present tariff of 20 per cent on shoes. The conference will be held at the State House September 3.

Governor Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts and Mayor James M. Curley of Boston have been invited to attend. The commission said in announcing the conference that it was hoped that a committee, composed of representatives of shoe manufacturing associations, might be formed to arrange further conference with the tariff commission or its representatives.

The meeting was called, the commission said, as a result of a recent survey of the Massachusetts shoe situation by representatives of the tariff commission. Leaders in the industry feared, the industrial commission said, that those conducting the survey may not have gained a correct impression of actual costs here as compared with those in foreign countries exporting shoes to the United States.

AVERAGE AUTO TAX

C. M. Babcock, state commissioner of Minnesota highways, has figured out that the average automobile tax paid by motorists in all states in 1929 was $39.37. North Dakota had the lowest average figure, with $20.16; Nevada had the highest, with $82.02.

TOURIST CAMERAS BARRED

Domodossola, Italy.—(AP)—Tourists having movie cameras or ordinary "clicks" with them should not try to enter when crossing even this peaceful Swiss-Italian frontier. An American who tried to "shoot" the countryside of this fortified zone had his machine confiscated, and had to wait in Rome two weeks before he regained possession of it.

OKRA OR GUMBO
 Okra is a hairy plant of the mallow family which also includes the cottonplant. Only the seed pods of the plant are eaten, and when green they make an appetizing dish if stewed in plain water. The pod is 90 per cent water and contains goodly amounts of both sodium and lime, making it an alkaline-forming food. It is a very wholesome, non-starchy vegetable, and once a person becomes accustomed to the slippery mucilaginous property he enjoys the taste and finds it a most agreeable vegetable. This quality is the basis of the success of okra in the southern states.

Okra is largely used in soup, in chicken gumbo, rice gumbo and other equally famous dishes. If you cannot obtain the okra fresh in your district, you can probably obtain it in cans and it is good either way. Here are some recipes which you should try:

- Okra Soup
 5 small carrots,
 3 tomatoes,
 1 large bunch of parsley,
 1/2 pound of okra,
 Celery salt and water.
 Boil until vegetables are tender, and serve.
- Okra and Corn
 Okra may be combined with corn, using equal quantities of both, and using either fresh okra and green corn cut from the cob, or using the canned variety of both. Place in a baking dish and cook until the okra is soft.
- Okra, Celery and Tomatoes
 A good vegetable stew can be made by cooking equal parts of chopped okra, chopped celery and chopped tomatoes together.
- Stewed Okra
 Cut off the stems of the okra pods and boil in slightly salted water until soft, then remove the lid and allow the water to evaporate, and stir in a lump of butter. Prepared in this way okra may be used either hot as a fresh vegetable, or cold as a garnish for rice or fish.
- Scalloped Okra
 In the bottom of a baking dish arrange a thin layer of Melba toast. Over this place a layer of cooked okra, then a layer of Melba toast crumbs and last of all a layer of raw sliced tomatoes. Sprinkle with cheese and celery salt and bake until the tomatoes are soft.

Chicken Gumbo Soup
 Chop up into small parts pieces of chicken. Add about equal amounts of okra, cover with water and cook until tender, then add a small amount of cream, chopped parsley and celery salt to taste.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Gland Functioning)
 Question: Mrs. F. P. asks: "What is the function of the pituitary gland, and in what way does it affect a person? What are the symptoms of a disturbed pituitary gland? Can a normal or abnormal one be determined by the test?"
 Answer: The pituitary gland is divided into two distinct lobes, each of which seems to have different functions. The exact difference of the anterior and posterior secretions have not been definitely determined. An under-functioning of the pituitary gland may produce a very obese individual resembling a fat boy. An excess of the secretion may produce enlargement of the hands, feet, lower jaw, and an increase in height, producing gigantism. It is generally admitted that the front lobe exerts most of the influences upon the bodily growth, and the posterior lobe upon the metabolism. The normality or abnormality of the gland could not be determined by the x-ray.

(Yellow Teeth)
 Question: Mrs. J. C. L. writes: "I had white, clean-looking teeth until about a year ago, when they began turning yellow. I wash them after each meal, but within a few hours a yellow substance collects on them which I can remove with a nail file. I would appreciate your advice about this."
 Answer: Yellowish teeth are the natural condition with some people. However, it is possible some other condition is responsible in your case and I would advise you to consult a good dentist. Do not use a nail file to scrape your teeth because by doing so you are apt to injure them and make them subject to decay.

Darkhorse Battles Way To Women's Semi-Finals

Sheer Grit Earns Baroness Levi of Italy Chance at U. S. Tennis Title.

By LORENA A. HICKOK
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Baroness Giorgio Giacomo Levi of Italy, who never took a tennis lesson in her life until this summer, was today just two matches away from the Women's championship of the United States.

By sheer grit and some of the most unorthodox, but colorful, tennis seen at Forest Hills in many a season, she battled her way yesterday into the semi-finals of the Women's National championship tournament, defeating Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., one of America's most experienced tournament players, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Today she was to meet Mrs. L. A. Harper of San Francisco, fifth ranking woman player in the United States, the winner to play Miss Betty Nuthall of England or Miss Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., for the championship tomorrow.

"Mrs. Harper will beat me—she's too smart for me," the Baroness said cheerfully. But the tennis experts were giving her an even chance, even though they did think she had no business getting this far in the tournament.

The Baroness does just about everything wrong, the tennis experts say. She simply has, in the tennis sense, no style at all. They grin every time they watch her serve—and then gasp. She places her feet wrong, she swings her arm incorrectly, and sometimes it almost looks as though she hit the ball with the frame of her racket.

With incredible speed the ball goes sailing low across the net. And right after it, with a sort of kangaroo leap, goes the Baroness to whack it coming back before it has had a chance to bounce. The Baroness never lets a ball bounce if she can help it.

All over the court is the Baroness—leaping, racing, gesticulating, her white teeth flashing in her bronzed face. Her courage is magnificent. One of her favorite dishes is a three-set match. At the end of the second set she will appear completely exhausted—finished. A short rest, and back she comes to the third set, as fresh and lively as a brand new ball. That's what happened yesterday.

Slim and brown, with shining black hair, the Baroness does not go in for eye-shades, colored baudeaux, or gay sweaters. Those things bother her, she says, interfere with her game. She wears spiked shoes because, she explained today, she had never played on a grass court until she almost won the Eastern Turf Court championship at Rye, N. Y., last week.

When she comes to the court she wears a brown tweed coat with a fur collar, and out of the pocket she hauls a little tin box filled with gold-tipped, foreign cigars. Puffing contentedly, she saunters back to the inn. The thought that it might be unusual for an athlete, presumably in training, to smoke cigars apparently never has crossed her mind.

Before her marriage, Baroness Levi was Miss Marie Rosenbaum of Chicago. Her father, E. F. Rosenbaum, is a retired grain broker, and the family now lives at Rye, N. Y. When the Baroness was 15 years old she spent a summer at Highland Park Ill., and there she started playing tennis.

"There was a man there who liked to play, but who had no one to play with," she said today. "So he used to practice serving and get me to return the ball as he wouldn't have to chase around after them himself."

She liked the game and kept on playing. After her marriage she began playing tournament tennis, in Rome. She has won Women's champion of Rome four times and now is now the second ranking woman player in Italy.

"But outside of Italy I've never gone so well," she said today. "Once about five years ago I played a season on the Riviera, but never anywhere at all. Once at the Paris Internationals I did manage to

MOONAN NAMED MAJORS' COACH

Bill Quish Elected President of North End Football Team.

George Moonan was elected coach of the Majors for the 1930 season at a special meeting of the members of the football team held last night at the fire headquarters, Main and Hilliard streets.

Manager William Griffin called the meeting to order and asked for nominations for a chairman. Jack Benny was chosen to serve in that capacity.

The election of officers for the coming year was held with the following result: President, William Quish; vice president, Dr. A. B. Moran. While the latter is not now in town, the honor was conferred upon him in recognition of his past efforts in behalf of the team. William Griffin was re-elected manager and Jack Copeland, assistant manager.

A committee of five consisting of Teddy McCarthy, chairman, William Griffin, Francis Hart, Paul Dilworth and James Spillane, was appointed to arrange for a card party to be held in the near future.

The meeting which was well attended and enthusiastic closed with a speech by Coach Moonan who outlined his plans for the coming season. He called for a practice to take place Sunday morning at 10 o'clock sharp at Hickey's Grove.

TRACK STARS GATHER TODAY AT PITTSBURGH

McCluskey One of Athletes Competing; Entered in Two Mile Steeplechase.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Trim, rugged youths from every section of the country gathered in the picturesque stadium overlooking the University of Pittsburgh to begin the annual bombardment of track and field records—the National Amateur Athletic Union championships, which opens today. Officials estimated upwards of 1,000 athletes were on hand with others due to arrive before initial events go into action this afternoon.

SWIM MARATHON BEGINS

Toronto, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Thirty-six of the best feminine swimmers in the U. S. and Canada were prepared today for their ten-mile battle with the icy waters of Lake Ontario in the opening event of the Canadian National exhibition.

Heavy favorites to fight it out for first place were Ruth Tower Corsan of Toronto and Ethel Hertie McGowan of New York.

Indications were that the temperature of the water would be in excess of 60 degrees, well above the minimum of 58 degrees specified for the race. In the event of a temperature lower than 58 degrees the race was to be postponed.

stay through until the semi-finals in the doubles, but we got licked then.

"I don't play much any more, and I've never taken it very seriously. I get to play only about three months out of every year now, and I've never had any lessons until this summer. I've learned a lot these last few weeks, but I know my game still is funny."

The Baron doesn't play tennis. Polo is his game. But he has a 2-year-old daughter named Nina, at present visiting her grandparents in Rye, whose favorite toy is a miniature tennis racquet.

SPORTS HARMFUL TO WOMEN WHEN IN COMPETITION

By JOHN R. TUNIS
Written for The Herald and NEA Service

Should girls play games? Yes, of course. On every chance, at every opportunity.

But if you value your daughter's happiness, keep her out of competitive sport. Let her read about the great ones of the earth in the daily press if it amuses her, let her go to see them play if she enjoys it, let her copy their strokes and their style. Yes, and even their clothes if she happens to insist.

But don't allow her to get mixed up in the competitive sport maelstrom. That is, if you happen to care about her future at an age when sport has faded out of the picture and left her stranded upon the shores of life, a girl of games without a game to play.

Strictly in the line of business I am frequently obliged for my sins to attend the opening of a new playground while one of the city fathers dilates upon the moral virtues of competitive sport, or sits about a gaming board and listens to the mouthings of the good that comes from outdoor games by some member of the class of '09 while he hands around gold footballs to the winning eleven; or hear the president of the Association expound the sterling qualities of the victor as he presents the Cup emblematic of the championships to the boy or girl whose popper and mamma sit proudly perching up in the stands.

Competitive Sports Called Harmful Competitive sport, so we are told, will do just about everything in this wicked world, which Mr. Hoover, the League of Nations and the new tariff law may have failed to do.

This cliché about the moral, mental and physical values of competitive sport has been bandied about so much that it has become a part of our folklore. No one has ever stopped to question it, to ask whether it was all really true. It was a lovely fairy tale, it sounded well, and so it went across like one of those ideas we nourish in this country to the effect that all Frenchmen are immortal, all Englishmen are stupid and can't see a joke, and that all Americans are smart business men. In a word, it isn't so. Competitive sport as I've seen it in some twenty years following the ball around different lands in several hemispheres, both as an actor and an observer of the scene, does immensely more harm than good.

Notice, please, that I'm talking of competitive sport. The sport that's played before huge crowds, with Cups, Championships and the fate of nations in the balance. Sport, real sport, sport in your own backyard, a game of golf on a pony golf course, a couple of sets of tennis, a spin up the harbor in an outboard motorboat; that's sport. Furthermore, it's the best of sport, fun, relaxation, exercise in the open air.

But the championship racket, the competitive thing, isn't sport. It's punishment, and the champion who is honest will admit it. In private, anyhow, no matter what he says in public.

No, competitive sport is not good for men, and it has even less value for women. Why? Because competitive sport brings to the surface our worst instincts, our animal passions. At times brutal, it is often debasing, and in the long run does more to undermine character than drugs, bootleg liquor and wild women.

It teaches us to think of ourselves only to forget the other person. This is not pretty, it is not the sort of thing which is generally said about competitive sport. It is, in a word, fact and not fiction.

For it's like this. . . I need that game, that set, I must have that hole in four to win, that point after that point to tie the score. You are in the way. All right, move out of the way, or get run over. That set, that point is mine, mine, not yours. . . Notice how the average competitor must inevitably pay his tribute to selfishness. Of necessity, he desires, as he always does, to win. He cannot afford to be anything but cold, selfish, calculating; he is obliged to concentrate upon himself, his wants, his needs, his feelings every moment. That's competitive sport.

Here's a Bouquet for Women In this connection it is perhaps worth noting that women in competition are infinitely better sports, infinitely better mannered, infinitely more courteous, more generous hearted and more considerate than their brothers.

Possibly this is one reason why they are always at a disadvantage in competing with the masculine sex in any outdoor game. But the fact remains that such fine sports-women as Miss Gienna Collett, Mrs. Helen Willis Moody, Miss Mary Brown and Miss Betty Nuthall put the antics of some male stars to shame.

I would like to believe that this is because women are by nature finer, more sensitive and better balanced than men. But alas, truth compels me to admit that this is only one-half the reason. The real reason is that women are newer at sport than men, they have not as yet plunged so deeply into the whirlpool of competitive sports as their brothers. And therefore they suffer less from its devastating effects.

Give women 25 years more in the Olympic Games and I think you will not only see a few more records broken in the 120-yard hurdles, but also a surprising change in the attitude of women in competitive sport.

CHAMPIONS OF "PUNISHMENT?"

Here are some of the women who have achieved fame in competitive sports, which are decreed in the accompanying article by John R. Tunis, upper right, a "at times brutal and often debasing." Helen Willis Moody, upper left, is the champion woman tennis player of the world, and comely Elinor Smith, upper center, has set an altitude record for aviators. Miss Jean Lacoata, left center, of France, has shattered most speed records for women automobile race drivers, and Mabel Strickland, center, has ridden to fame on bucking horses. Mrs. John Francis Amherst, lower left, is a pioneer woman polo player; Gienna Collett, lower center, is America's premier feminine golfer, and Georgia Coleman, lower right, has garnered many diving records.

BRITAIN ALARMED AS WOMEN EXCEL MALES IN SPORTS

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Writer

London, Aug. 22.—In the light of recent events, Englishmen are seriously asking themselves two questions:

Has the modern breed of British men gone rabby? And is the modern breed of British women going to take their place?

It's no joke in this hitherto man-ridden kingdom, where now the women are far in excess of the men and where the female voters are now greatly outnumbering the mere males. Everywhere in the new after-war order of things the women are advancing and the men are receding. There are ten women labor members, three Conservatives, one Liberal and one Independent in the House of Commons.

Woman in Cabinet Post, Too There is a woman member of the Labor cabinet. There are a considerable number of parliamentary under-secretaries and private secretaries and private secretaries. A woman is the personal private secretary of the Prime Minister. Women, who are peresses in their own right, are persistently hammering at the doors of the House of Lords and demanding the right to sit there and legislate like the mere male wearers of the historic ermine.

And now in sports they have invaded that hitherto closed field for men, pitted their brains and their skill against the males—and licked them!

The first big astounding success of this kind happened a few weeks ago when the crack flyers of Britain competed for the King's Cup in a bruising airplane race all around England. The best male pilots of Britain entered this and coolly and calmly wondered which of their number would, as usual, bear off the trophy. But when the contest was over no mere male had won it. The winner was Miss Winifred Brown—the first of her sex to achieve this triumph.

Marksman Achieves Triumph The ardent suffragists and feminists had hardly gotten through cheering over this than they had another opportunity to strain their hoarse throats. Every year at Bisley the best rifle shots in the British empire get together and shoot for the King's Prize. This year there were several women who had entered; one of them, Miss Marjorie Foster.

Lieut. W. Eccles was thought to be winning. He had fired his last shot. He dropped to an "outer." Miss Foster still had her last shot in the breach. With it anything and everything was possible. An "outer" or a "magpie" spelled defeat. An "inner" meant a tie. A bull's eye meant victory. It was enough to test the nerve of anybody. Very calmly Miss Foster forced the bolt home, brought the rifle but to her shoulder and sought the alignment of foresight and target center a thousand yards away. Click went the trigger, ping went the shot, and then the crowd held its breath until the signal of the result came back.

"Bull's eye?" Miss Foster, a mere woman, had beaten a mere man by 280 to 278—also for the first time in English history. And the women present were especially joyous when the King telegraphed: "Most heartily congratulate Miss Foster on winning my prize. That she should have done so is a wonderful achievement in the history of rifle shooting, and as such will be universally acclaimed."

The crowd agreed. She had beaten nearly a thousand crack shots. And after it was all over she went casually back to the chicken farm which she runs.

But British feminists win fame Girl Flyers and Motorists Win Fame But British feminists win fame two women are only part of a long roll of honor. They point to the fact that the little stenographer, Amy Johnson, casually hopped off and made one of the greatest solo flights to Australia on record.

Then there is the Hon. Mrs. Victor Bruce, who drove in a motor car for a longer time than anybody else when she kept going for 24 hours at Monthery in France, and Miss Violet Cordery, who last year drove a car for 30,000 miles in 30,000 minutes.

The same Mrs. Bruce also proved her prowess in motor boating when last September she beat the 24-hour record at Southampton by steering her boat for 691 nautical miles at an average speed of 28.79 miles per hour. Miss Katherine Trevelyan, daughter of a Labor cabinet minister, who is President of the Board of Education, was the first to ascend the 11,000-foot Mount Edith in Alberta, Canada, this season. Then there are Miss E. Foley, Miss M. Cottle and Mrs. H. McLean, who beat the men and were chosen as the British team in the international six-day motorcycle races.

Finally, the women say that not only is their sex beating the men at home, but that the men in international events have had to lower their colors to foreigners in golf, tennis and polo, seeing the championships carried off by French and American men.

Finally, the women say that not only is their sex beating the men at home, but that the men in international events have had to lower their colors to foreigners in golf, tennis and polo, seeing the championships carried off by French and American men.

Giants Trounce Cubs In March to Pennant

Local Sport Chatter

Well, life is short and T.W.S.'s vacation is fleeting and in a couple of days our title will be taken from us. Anyway we can look back at this week with pride and view several worthy accomplishments.

Monday the acting sports editor threw away six broken putters and a pair of loaded dice found underneath the desk. Tuesday the clean-up campaign extended to the desk drawers and soon a package of letters, tied with a pink ribbon and perfumed, were in the waste basket, resting beside a large box of type filled with capital "Ts." Wednesday was a hard day spent in throwing away rule books on football, baseball, tennis, basketball, golf, etc., all of them dated "18—." Thursday was a memorable day, marking the first time that the glue pot received a thorough washing since first grading the dust of this department. We have done nothing as yet for Friday but our imagination is unlimited.

Today's sport page could rightly be called "The Women's Page," in that several of the articles dealt with women in sports. The men folk would do well to read the article by Milton Bronner and the women the one by John Tunis, or better still, read both.

Another of our many accomplishments comes to mind at this moment, namely, bringing the desk calendar up to date. April having been with us for the past four months, according to Stowe.

It's gonna be quite a week-end. Tonight the Pirates and the Athletics of the West Side League tangle for the League championship at the Four Acres at 6 o'clock. Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the annual town swimming championship will be run off with a gala crowd expected. Sunday the West Sides and Manchester Green will meet at Woodbridge Field in the second of a series of three games to decide the opponent for the Bon Ami in the town series.

Within Two Games of Lead by 13-6 Victory; Athletics Continue to Advance in American League.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.

The New York Giants who have been assuming a threatening attitude toward all national league rivals for some time, have served official notice they intend to win the pennant. That notice was given in a most convincing manner for the Giants opened the series with the Chicago Cubs which brings them a chance to take first place by trouncing the 1929 champions and 1930 leaders by a 13 to 6 score to put themselves only two games behind first place.

The Giants not only have played better baseball in general than the Cubs have for the past month but they were considerably better in every respect as they met their rivals yesterday. They started hitting in the first inning and at the same time the Cubs began to make errors and the result was that New York got off to the almost unbeatable lead of six runs.

The third place Robins were gaining on Chicago and losing to New York as rain kept them idle in Cincinnati. The Boston-Pittsburgh game also was postponed while the St. Louis Cards proceeded to show up the Cubs by slapping a 16 to 6 defeat on the Phillies who gave Chicago a tough battle recently.

The Phila. Athletics moved a step nearer the certainty of victory in the American League pennant race by coming from far behind to defeat the Detroit Tigers 8 to 7.

Washington kept pace with the leaders by taking a quick five to two decision over the St. Louis Browns, as Sad Sam Jones allowed only six hits in a duel with Collins. But the New York Yanks lost one more of their faint hopes as the Cleveland Indians pulled a 6 to 5 triumph out of a twelve inning struggle.

The humble Boston Red Sox staged a three run uprising in the eighth inning of a mount-duel between Al Thomas and Hod Lisenbee to defeat Chicago 4 to 2.

The Hollywood Story

COPYRIGHT 1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. ERNEST LYNN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAN RORIMER, temperamental young man of Hollywood, can't get along with a studio executive at Continental Pictures and tears up his contract as scenario writer and asks to be freed. But he isn't. Dan is interested in ANNE WINTER, a girl from Tulsa, Okla., who has shown enough ability to warrant a screen test and a decent part in a picture.

Dan lives with PAUL COLLIER, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers. Anne lives with two extra girls, EVA HARLEY and MONA MORRISON.

A famous director named GARY SLOAN has shown some interest in Anne, hardly enough, however, to warrant any high hopes. Louise WATKINS, writer for movie "fan" magazines, informs Dan that she has heard rumors of the sale of Continental Pictures to Lawson Brothers.

Meanwhile, Anne is making good at Grand United. Sloan sees her on the set one day and when he says no, he says something must be done about that.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXII
Sloan had said nothing more. A smile, a glance at his wrist watch, and Anne moved on, and the director allowed her progress toward the dressing room before he turned away to stride through the litter of the vast interior toward the exit.

Throughout luncheon, words kept forming themselves in Anne Winter's brain, words that Garry Sloan had spoken: "Something ought to be done about that." They were words to repeat over and over again, to ponder on delicately, to experiment with using different inflections in quest of different significances.

She ate lunch with a couple of girls from the chorus—New York girls, both of them, from Broadway music shows. Their laughing wisecracking chatter was a noisy accompaniment to the meal, but Anne made absent-minded replies, fooled around with her fruit salad and glass of milk.

"One of them said, 'I see you made a hit with Garry Sloan. Tell me how it's done, will you?'"
Anne forced a smile. "I wouldn't say a hit, exactly."

"Didn't I see him giving you a lot of time? And he was using his eyes on that costume of yours, too."

Anne shrugged and made no reply. A light wrap now covered her bare legs and arms, beneath she had been conscious of Garry Sloan's cool scrutiny.

The other girl said something about giving her right arm to Garry Sloan, the "biggest shot" at Grand United. Anne took it, Anne but you're in luck."

Anne said, "You're being silly. He only said a few words to me. I've talked with him before."

But he had said something ought to be done about a contract! I've bore the exciting news to Eva and Mona that evening. Mona had worked that day—her first job in more than a week. Eva had not. Eva hadn't seen the inside of a studio for nearly a month, and she was rather more discouraged than usual these days.

Anne worried about her. Eva could be very bitter—bitter toward herself. Even Mona's unfeeling cheerfulness could not about these days that hard look from the blond-haired Eva's eyes and force her unwilling lips to smile.

But Eva tonight tried to be as unselfishly enthusiastic as Mona, and for a while she succeeded. Later on, though, she brought up an unpleasant topic. She was thinking, Anne stated, of leaving Hollywood—"But why, Eva?"
"Because," Eva shrugged—"oh, because."

"Quit singing the blues," Mona advised.
But Eva said she was not singing any blues. "I'm just talking sense. I'm not getting by out here—I'll never get by. What's the use of staying?"

think of that? I was talking to an assistant director today and he said—"I know all about that, too," Eva cut in, not raising her eyes. "He probably wanted to make a date, didn't he?"
"There you go!" Mona complained.

"I know, but these assistant directors and fourth assistant camera men and office boys give me a laugh. Always promising to do something for you! What can they do—even if they did mean what they said? You'd think some of them, to hear them talk, were as important as—Garry Sloan!"

"Oh, well," Mona got up and turned on the radio. "Let's change the subject." And she turned the dial. "See what KFI has to offer."

KFI offered a jazz orchestra. Mona snapped her fingers and hummed, tried a few tap-dance steps. She fumbled, began over again. "How do you do this, Anne, anyway?"

Anne got up and showed her. Mona looked dubiously. "It looks like enough, but—" She tried it again, but half way through the step her feet got tangled up again and she sat down.

"Too deep for little Mona."
"Why, you were doing fine, Mona," Anne said. "Keep it up; it's not so hard."
"Maybe not for you," Mona began to whistle.

Eva watched her, and Anne saw the blond girl's eyes soften and a half-smile curve her set lips. Presently Mona sat down beside her, put her arm around her again and began to talk. She chattered on about inconsequential things, trying to get Eva out of her black mood.

And later on Eva complained of a headache and said she was going to bed, and the others let her go. Mona told Anne that evening that she was afraid Eva was serious about leaving Hollywood. "I've tried to talk her out of it. This is the first time I've heard her mention it to you."

"I wish she wouldn't feel that way," Anne said. "I don't know how I'd get along without Eva and you."
Mona smiled thoughtfully. "You'd get along all right. The only thing Eva thinks you might get along better without is—me, I mean."

She hastened to explain at Anne's look of astonishment, "that Eva thinks she's a burden, or something like that, because she hasn't been able to pay her share of the rent, for one thing."

"I hope," Anne said, "she doesn't think I mind paying a few extra dollars. Besides, Eva does nearly all the cooking."
"But you can't make her see it that way. Gee, I've been hard up myself," Mona laughed. "I still am, for that matter. I mean, I've had to pay the rent myself."

"I'm sure you will," said Anne. Mona laughed. "Life's too short to spend your time worrying. I wish I could make Eva see that."
Mona moved over to the radio and turned it on again. She came back and sat close to Anne on the sofa.

"I want to tell you something else about Eva," she said. "It might help you to understand a few things." She glanced toward Eva's closed door, continued in a lower voice:
"Remember the day after the party that Martin Collins gave?"

"Well, remember my asking you who was at the party, and when you mentioned Frank Maury I told you not to say anything to Eva about him, because she couldn't stand him?"
"Anne remembered, and smiled. "I can understand that. I can't stand him myself."
"Well, believe me, I can't either. The swell-headed chump! But Eva can't stand about him."
"About Frank Maury?" Anne frowned.

"Yes. He and Eva were extras together, and Eva was crazy about him. I think she still is, although she says she hates him. Any way, he played her the lowest trick a man can pull on a girl. They were engaged to be married, and when Maury began to get a few breaks, and commenced to mingle with some of the high-hats, he dropped Eva like that."
Mona snapped her fingers.
She said, "Eva's a funny girl, Anne. She doesn't have much to say, but she thinks a good deal."
Her eyes sought Anne's and Anne silently assented. "And I know she still thinks a lot about Frank Maury," Mona continued. "People say Eva Harley is bitter and disillusioned and all that, but there's a reason for it. There usually is. Maury dropped her without saying a word, and she'll never get over it. . . . Somebody ought to break his no-good neck, she finished savagely."

A Cinderella of the Talkies

by Dan Thomas
© 1930 NEA SERVICE, INC.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second of three stories about the Cinderella-like success of Frances Dee in the talkies. Less than a year ago she was an "extra girl" during college vacation. Now she is a star.

BY DAN THOMAS
(NEA Service Writer)

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 19.—Ten or 12 years ago Frances Dee sat at her desk with a geography book opened in front of her.

But she wasn't studying. The plain and green and gold places on the map were all blurred into a colored electric mist and the letters of her own name swung out of it.

Some day, so she had decided, she was going to be an actress. Her name was going to shine in front of theaters. Then somebody spoke that name and Frances realized that she had missed her lesson again.

But she went right back to her dream when the school bell rang. Even then she knew she would have to work and work to make the grade. All actresses did.

And that is why Frances was more surprised than anyone when Maurice Wheeler, the most popular star in moviedom, looked at her and asked her to please be his leading lady in his picture.

To suddenly be chosen for a position that every girl in and out of Hollywood would call herself blessed at if she could get it, and to be chosen when you had less than one year as a Hollywood extra behind you . . . no wonder Frances caught her breath and said her prayers!

The stage world isn't new to Frances, though. After school, when that geography book was safe in her desk, she used to go with her mother to the theater. That was in Chicago.

Sometimes her mother mentioned the movie world back in California. Frances had been born in Los Angeles on Nov. 26, 1908, but had lived there a very short time. She didn't want to be a movie actress, though. She wanted to go on the stage and act behind the footlights instead of being in front of a camera.

Frances had just completed the third grade in school when the United States entered the World War and her father enlisted in the army. He was sent to Cincinnati and took his family with him. After the war he was transferred to Washington, and Frances and her mother went along.

The sound of marching men, the challenge of bugles and drums, the lure of parades touched something in Frances. . . . That dramatic something that wanted to be an actress. But she didn't change her mind about the stage.

She came back to Chicago and entered school. In a little while there were high school plays in which she excelled. She wanted to play the lead in the senior class play so badly she wasn't surprised when she got it.

In her academic classes Frances was just an average student—not excelling nor failing in any of her studies. But in dramatics she easily was a shining light. And she was a leading figure in all her class activities, including her part in being elected vice president of the class during her senior year.

That was one of her ambitions throughout her school life, since it is the highest position a girl can hold—the president always is a boy.

Frances Dee

After graduating from Hyde Park High school in Chicago, she entered the University of Chicago. She still carried the belief that any girl can do what she sets out to do.

Frances decided that life was lots of fun and she would enjoy it. She went in for dramatics and social life. Regular college studies didn't appeal to her. She was a member of the Sigma club, one of the four leading women's clubs at the University about which she tells an interesting story. At the middle of the first term in Chicago she was dunking in all subjects and it is a university rule that club and fraternity pledges must attain certain grades before they can be initiated.

Frances wanted to be initiated so she settled down to some real studying and made her grades.

Towards the end of her second year Frances' parents moved to Los Angeles. She remembered that she had enjoyed visiting there once and went along quite cheerfully.

"But I'll be back to graduate," she told her friends. She couldn't give up the university shows.

But out in California the Fox company was staging a college play and Frances knew all about co-ed life. She dropped into the casting director's office one day.

Police headquarters and other habitual sources of the day's gossip. Nowadays commerce and industry have moved farther uptown and the telephone have made the reporter's lot less arduous. He calls in his stories to the rewrite man from wherever he happens to find them.

Most of the newspaper offices, therefore, have migrated northward to the midtown zone crossed by Forty-second street, one group established a few paces off Times square, another over by Grand Central terminal.

Thus they again are in the thick of things and convenient to the burrows out of which and into which hundreds of thousands of potential readers scramble to and from work every day.

YOUR CHILDREN
by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1926 by NEA SERVICE, INC.
"Wilbur, how many times have I told you to fold your towel in the bathroom. You've tried and tried picking it up off the floor."
Wilbur looked out of the corner of his eyes. Evidently this was one of Mom's "days" when she picked on every little thing. He knew when not to answer.

"I wish you'd go out and make Stumpy stop barking. That dog's driving me mad. If he doesn't shut up I'm going to sell him."
Wilbur went out pronto at this and Stumpy spent most of the day thereafter silently wondering why all the things he liked best to eat were thrust under his nose the instant he stirred.

The little boy was scolded for everything. His neck was dirty, he alarmed the doors, he was slow coming home from the store, he was a nuisance, a no-account, a bore.

"But as it was one of Mom's 'days' he took up his cue, stepped softly and quickly, and didn't take things too much to heart. Being a wise child he knew something had gone wrong. And he knew too that just as likely as not something pleasant would happen to swing things the other way.

"Tomorrow maybe she'd be kissing him and calling him her lamb and handing him a quarter to buy what he wanted with it. That day last week when Grandpa had sent her $25 for her birthday she'd been as sweet as an angel for several days, and he'd been happier than he'd been all summer.

Maybe a Buddy-Act
Bh Rogers—that's how you spell it and you can pronounce it any way you please—will be Bruce Rogers from now on.

There is a possibility that he will be introduced to the screen in a "buddy-act" picture with Buddy, which should please the flappers who in their letters have suggested just that idea.

Pneumonia to Pictures
Buddy insisted Bh postpone a try at pictures until he had completed college.

Bh complied, but soon contracted pneumonia and had to join his family in Hollywood to recuperate. He stayed.

He sings, and plays an instrument or two, but not nearly so many as Buddy. Bruce's ambition is centered in athletic roles, in football and baseball pictures and such.

The origin of that name Bh is rather interesting. Bert Hadley Rogers, the father, had the idea that the new son should choose his own name, so he was registered simply with the initials, B. H. Later, a lad enrolling in a military school, B. H. gave his initials as his name. The registrar insisted on a full name, and Rogers, rather exasperated because they wouldn't believe he had none, seized a pen and wrote "Bh." It stuck.

QUOTATIONS
"The spiritual realities and not the tarnished things are the best part of life."
—John D. Rockefeller, Jr.
"If the federal government would stop the distillation and importation of liquor there would be no local prohibition problem."
—Mayor James J. Walker.
"Subject all products to a more rigid test than the purchaser requires, for a reputation for producing the best is a sure foundation upon which to build."
—Andrew Carnegie.
"There is no such thing as over-production."
—Henry Ford.
"Work is the grand cure of all the maladies and miseries that ever beset mankind—honest work, which you intend getting done."

LAST CALL!
If you haven't tended to your fur coat by now, be sure to take it out into the sunlight and brush it thoroughly during August. It will can be saved from moths!
CUTTING VELVET
If you are making a velvet dress for fall, be sure to use sharp scissors to cut it as dull ones are apt to mangle the nap.
BATHING SUIT CARE
Before putting your bathing suit away, after a day or week at the beach wash it, as you would any frock, in soap and water, rinse thoroughly and dry carefully.

BLEASE OPPOSED FOR SENATE IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Columbia, S. C. (AP)—South Carolina has a heat wave of its own in the campaign of three candidates for the Democratic nomination to the United States Senate. The state's primary will be August 26. The fiery Senator Cole Blease of Newberry, seeking reelection, is opposed by James F. Byrnes, who served 14 years in Congress from the Second South Carolina district and Leon W. Harris, state solicitor, of Anderson.

Together the trio is making speeches at county seats throughout the state—a unique South Carolina custom. Senator Blease, who successively has been mayor of his home town, speaker of the South Carolina house, state senator, president of the state senate, governor and United States senator, injected the issue of lynchings into the campaign in a speech at Union, scene of a recent demonstration of mob rule.

ONE DYING, THREE HURT IN CRASH AT DARIEN

Darien, Aug. 22.—(AP)—One man is at the point of death at the Stamford hospital and three others are cut and bruised following an accident here today when the driver of the car fell asleep after a ten hour drive from Boston and crashed into a telephone pole, throwing the car across the Boston post road to the other side of the street. The most seriously injured is Giles R. Ranney, thought to be of East Hartford, who is lying in the hospital hovering between life and death with a multitude of serious cuts and abrasions about the face and body and a possible fractured skull caused when he was thrown against the side windows of the car. The driver of the car, Christian Busch of 27 12th street, College Point, N. Y., received abrasions about the body and is being held without bonds by police on a technical charge of reckless driving. The other two occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Harold McQueen of 26 Valley street, Providence, R. I., also received cuts and bruises.

DOOMED MEN ESCAPE

Atlanta, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Fred D. Fairm, condemned slayer of a policeman and Sam F. Aiken, under sentence of death for the killing of his wife and her alleged paramour, saved their way to freedom last night from a Fulton tower cell in which they had spent the greater part of recent months together reading aloud and discussing the bible. The escape which was discovered at 11 p. m., by a jailer on a regular tour of inspection, evidently was made by the pair who sawed out two cell bars, slipped down a 15 foot rope made of blankets, crossed a court yard and climbed a 25 foot outer wall with a ladder. Nine hacksaw blades were found in the cell. Nearby prisoners professed to have no knowledge of the escape.

GERARD ADDS FIVE MEN TO LIST OF OUR RULERS

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, has added five names to his list of fifty-nine "men who rule the United States." The additions telephoned to the New York Times from Newport, R. I., where Mr. Gerard is the guest of General Cornelius Vanderbilt, are: Sidney Z. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the Electric Bond and Share company, and a large owner of public utilities. Walter Edwin Frew, chairman of the board of the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company. Amadeo P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of Italy and of the Trans-American Corporation, the world's largest holding company of bank securities. William Green and Matthew Well, president and vice president respectively of the American Federation of Labor.

In a pamphlet endorsing the crusade of Lord Beaverbrook and Viscount Rothermere for emptying the board of President Hoover, today published in London several days ago, Mr. Gerard wrote of "forty men who rule the United States," and suggested such men aided by a high British tariff could mend England's fortunes in ten years. Asked by the New York Times to name the forty men, Mr. Gerard gave out a list of fifty-nine.

FRIEND OF PRESIDENT ENDORSES E. S. DRAPER

Boston, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Christian A. Herter, of Boston, intimate friend of President Hoover, today announced his endorsement of Eben S. Draper for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in the coming primary. Draper's opponent is former Senator William M. Butler.

In a letter to Draper, Herter, who is a candidate for the State Legislature from the Back Bay district, said: "I will not stand by and hear without protest Mr. Butler's insinuations that Republicans who favor the repeal of the 18th Amendment are disloyal either to their party platform or to the President. They are obviously neither one nor the other, as best illustrated by President Hoover's strong endorsement of Dwight W. Morrow and the Republican organization of New Jersey, both elected on record as opposed to the 18th Amendment." Herter said he had hesitated to take a public position in the Senatorial fight because, due to his past association with President, "some persons have seen fit to ascribe such views as I expressed to the administration at Washington. Such reasoning," he said, "was absurd. The views expressed today 'are strictly my own,'" Herter said.

"NIAGARA" SAILS AGAIN

Put-In-Bay, O., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The frigate "Niagara," veteran of 118 years on Lake Erie, may sail back to the scene of her triumph with Commodore Perry's fleet over the British in the war of 1812. The Perry Victory Memorial Commission here, decided to raise a fund of $75,000 to recondition and bring the weather-worn old warship back to Put-In-Bay in honor of Perry's victory. The ship has been on exhibition at Erie, Pa., since 1913, when it was raised from the waters where she sank in battle. The commission, which already has erected a $1,000,000 monument here to Perry, will ask the funds from patriotic organizations and possibly the State Legislature.

Scanning New Books

New York—Life is breathed into stormy days of a kind America has forgotten in John K. Winkler's biography of J. Pierpont Morgan— "Morgan the Magnificent."

Days when one man almost alone ruled America, when personal hatreds levied tribute on railroad empires, days when a president and a great banker stood glowering face to face. From the days when he wanted to "run away to sea, through his financial apprenticeship, his tragic romance, his far-seeing support of the Union in Civil war days, to the era of syndicate banking, railroad building, trust forming and busting strides Morgan. "The great of the earth frowned before him. It seemed nothing could stop him. But something did."

Roosevelt was that something. When the young president first opened fire on the trust Morgan had so carefully built of the North-western Pacific, the banker could hardly believe it. He charged down to Washington and confronted Roosevelt, storming: "If we have done anything wrong, send your man to my man and they can fix it up."

The two, thinks Winkler, were much alike save in their phisologies. Morgan ruled Wall street alone for years and twice when panic struck, became a dictator. Only one man—Harriman—ever seriously disputed his reign.

Rome Morgan learned to love and there he died. But before he sailed on his last voyage in 1913 he left another facet of his character gleaming: "When you see Mr. Wilson (he told George Harvey) tell him for me that if there should ever come a time when he thinks any influence or resources that I have can be used for the country, they are wholly at his disposal." One may wish the book more fully annotated.

Mourner Strongly as Morgan resented curtailment of his "rights," he felt no more keenly on the matter of "rights" than does Ernest Sutherland Bates in "This Land of Liberty."

None of the blessings intended to be made secure by the fathers when they framed the constitution are with us in this day, Bates asserts. Personal liberty, political liberty, freedom of speech, press, assembly, freedom from arbitrary search—none remains within his view.

Only a great sweep back to the "ideal" of liberty can save the nation from the spiritual suicide toward which it is patently headed, the author argues.

Caught In Beauty Refreshing by sheer simplicity of style is Delfino Cinelli's novel, "The Trap."

Cinelli, an Italian author of note, picks his characters from the countryside and leads them into an artificial, but beautifully put, situation. A nobleman's gamekeeper, in revenge upon a poacher, leads his master into an affair with the poacher's lovely young wife. His revenge is complete, for the poacher, eaten by rage and later remorse, ends up witless.

DAWES ON TRIP London, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Charles G. Dawes, the American ambassador, departed today on an archaeological expedition to Spain. In the Rio Tinto mines, in Andalusia, the American diplomat and former vice president hopes to find evidence that Neolithic man lived under some sort of government or "concentrated authority."

CALL FOR STRIKE

Jerusalem, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The government today confiscated proclamations issued by the Arab executive calling a strike for tomorrow, the anniversary of the outbreak of last year's rioting. The strike was to be a protest against commutation of the death sentence of the Jew Orfall in connection with the riots.

ARREST RED SPY

Nanking, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Government authorities announced today the arrest of 20 Communist leaders within the walls of this capital and the frustration of a plot to overthrow the Nationalist government, which included the dynamiting of various government buildings here.

BON AMI SHIPMENTS REQUIRE MORE CARS

Unusual Activity at Plant Necessitates Fifty Extra Freight Cars This Month.

A period of unusual activity at the Bon Ami plant is planned according to the recent increases in cars being supplied each month for the delivery of the products of the Orford Soap company to all parts of the country. In addition to the usual number of cars required for the daily shipments for the next thirty days, additional cars will be provided by the New Haven railroad to make a total of fifty cars for the month. This will include a considerable increase each day over the average shipments.

In addition to the increase in production now being enjoyed by the company, the increased amounts of raw materials which are now being shipped in, are likely to continue for some time to come.

TWO DIE ON SHIP

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Two men were taken dead from the sea and four others were rescued in a dying condition from an unidentified ship whose hull burned to the water's edge, lies eight miles off the village of Mimmisgast in the Gulf of St. Lawrence today.

Residents of Mimmisgast went to the rescue in launches when the ship in flames was sighted.

RIOTS IN INDIA

Karachi, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Several persons were injured yesterday when police wielded their stocks to disperse crowds on three occasions in a picketing campaign.

In one instance the Indians threw stones and mud at a liquor shop which was under picket and then molested the manager. He was rescued by the president of the Municipal Council.

Later, another crowd attempted to raid the shop but was repulsed by the police. The third outbreak occurred when the proprietor returned to his place and the sticks of the constabulary again scattered the rioters.

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL AT STATE TWO DAYS

"Sins of the Children" and "Pardon My Gun" to Play Here Today and Tomorrow.

Another gala double feature bill has been prepared for State patrons today and Saturday. Louis Mann, Elliott Nugent, Robert Montgomery and Lella Hyams will be seen and heard in "Sins of the Children," and Sally Starr and George Duryea provide an hour of hearty laughter in the merry western opus, "Pardon My Gun."

"Sins of the Children" marks the first screen appearance of Louis Mann, long known as one of the American stage's greatest actors. "Sins of the Children" is one of the most human pictures seen on the screen for a long time. The reasons for the life-like qualities of this picture lie in the simplicity of the story of an old German barber who has difficulties in raising a large brood of children, and the effective performance upon the part of Louis Mann in the central role and Elliott Nugent, Robert Montgomery, Lella Hyams, Mary Moran and Jeanne Wood as the youthful members of the cast.

"Pardon My Gun" is a somewhat different than the usual run of western pictures, but it is every bit as effective. A complete rodeo, from bucking horses to trick roping was used in its making. Not a single feature of this type of outdoor entertainment was overlooked and many of the greatest rodeo stars in the country participated. In addition to rodeo stars, the cast boasts some of the screen's best known players, including Robert Edwards, Mary Moran, Sally Starr, George Duryea and Harry Woods.

Tonight, as is every Friday night, is "Cabaret Night." This special added feature every Friday night is proving very popular. Four acts of snappy, peppy professional vaudeville acts will be presented in a new and fast moving manner. Tonight's bill includes the Carpenter Sisters in a beautiful dance routine; Bert and Betty Ross in the laughable sketch, "A Man About Town"; Baby Brooks, a tiny eight-year-old songbird who has already acquired a wide reputation; and Paul Brady, a master of ceremonies with plenty of pep and wit.

PROF. EINSTEIN OPENS GERMAN RADIO EXHIBIT

Berlin, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Albert Einstein, noted scientist, today formally opened the combined German Radio and Gramophone Exposition.

"Radio has the unique function of reconciling nations. Until now what nations knew of each other had been almost invariably derived from the distorting mirrors of their respective press organs."

"The radio shows the way people really live and in most cases their best sides. The radio thus helps in removing mutual misunderstandings which so often turn into active distrust and hostility," he said.

The exposition authorities cabled their greetings to Thomas Alva Edison, proclaiming him the foremost pioneer of science. The message said:

"May your great achievements continue to be a blessing to all nations and help imbue the world with faith in the invincible powers of the human mind."

BRIGANDS KILL 500

Shanghai, Aug. 22.—(AP)—A carnival of looting and killing in Hanchengchen, western Honan province, was reported in press dispatches today saying brigands had slain 500 persons, looted 300 shops and abducted 800 persons whom they were holding for ransom.

The dispatches said the brigands, numbering more than 2,000 fell upon the virtually defenseless city two weeks ago, and as a result of their occupation, the town was practically in ruins.

Yesterday, the reports said, the marauders left Hanchengchen, taking with them their captives. The brigands were said to be making their way toward the west, and seeking their hide-a-ways in the mountains of eastern Shensi province.

With the bandit army went practically everything of value in the town, it was said.

Little Dog Rates Salute—He's 'Lieutenant Bobby'

"Lieutenant" Bobby Harris is "just a little brown dog," but his second lieutenant's commission is genuine and signed by a major general.

Camp Foster, Jacksonville, Fla.—(AP)—He's just "a little brown dog," of uncertain lineage, but he is an officer in the army of the United States, and a "gentleman by act of Congress."

WHAT DOES YOUR MIRROR SAY?

To MANY WOMEN the mounting birthdays bring a little less beauty, a few more wrinkles, a complexion that has lost its youth and charm. Yet for others, Time seems to stand still.

The difference is often a matter of diet. So many foods lack sufficient roughage or bulk. Without it, constipation is inevitable. Its poisons spread over the whole system, causing ill health and loss of youth.

Today, you can prevent it easily by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoons daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In stubborn cases, eat ALL-BRAN with each meal. This is so much better than taking pills and drugs that may be harmful.

Advanced processes have improved Kellogg's ALL-BRAN both in texture and in the delicious, nut-like taste. Delightful with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Use it for making fluffy bran muffins, breads, etc. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also brings iron, which paints cheeks and lips with the natural tint of health. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

master, Captain D. C. Harris, of Mecon, Ga., commanding officer of Company C, 121st Infantry, says it is none the less genuine. So "Lieutenant" Bobby Harris, is recognized for his rank and his seven years in the National Guard. He goes to dances, funerals, formal army formations, or in fact anywhere his master goes. "He's just a little brown dog," Captain Harris smiles when asked about the pup's pedigree. Bobby got to be a real, honest to goodness second lieutenant when Captain Harris was at Ft. Benning, Ga., in 1927. Someone made out a commission for one "Lieutenant Bobby Harris," and slipped it into a pile of others to be signed by the major general commanding.

The general affixed his signature to all the commissions in the pile. So Bobby became what is believed to be the only canine with a commission in any of the armed forces of the United States.

YACHT AT AZORES

Ponta Delgada, Azores, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The American sailing yacht Evala, which 41 days ago started from Boston with its owner, Henry Blanco, and his wife and daughter as the only passengers, has arrived here. Blanco, who navigated the craft all the way, said storms were encountered which delayed him. The Evala will depart soon for Madeira, Spain.

GREEN NINE TO PLAY STATE PRISON TOMORROW

Go to Wethersfield Each Year to Oppose Team There—Sunday Game Over West.

The Manchester Green team will motor to Wethersfield Prison tomorrow where they will play the Prison Gold Sox, a hard hitting and fielding team with whom the Green has played each season for the past several years. The Green has come off victor in past years, but reports from the prison state that the 1930 team is fast and a fine game is in prospect. The battery for the prison game will be Boyce and Forget for the Green.

Due to the condition of the Manchester Green diamond, Sunday's game has been transferred to the West Side diamond according to a notice from Manager Practice this morning. The heavy rain last Saturday washed away a considerable part of the diamond and it was decided after a consultation that in justice to the players a better playing field should be used for the hard fought game of the present series. The players will do some work on the Green diamond in an effort to get it into condition for the Bon Ami games.

When the young bloods of the village used to lay in wait for the postman at the barber shop for the latest edition of the Police Gazette.

When a girl said "no" and meant it.

When a newsboy could sell his whole stock of papers on one visit to the village bar-room on Saturday nights.

The radio should learn from the magazine. The volume of advertising doesn't matter if its more interesting than the other stuff.

Willie—On our radio set.

We heard of a baby born whose ears were so big that his parents waited until he was ten before they could tell whether he would walk or fly.

Pottstown, Pa.—Generally when a girl gets married, she hurries to tell all her friends. But Edna Mayer didn't when she married Paul S. Focht six years ago. The marriage was a companionate affair, and was performed on Sept. 6, 1924. It is reported that the couple will soon share a home together.

The long canal trip soon was over. Once more the bunch were back on shore and, hopping in a big machine they took a long, long drive. "We're going back to Athens now. This car will get us there somehow," explained the Travel Man. "In just a few hours we'll arrive."
They drove through open country and the Tynmites thought it was grand. "I've never seen such pretty trees," said Scouty. "Just look there! The leaves are green as they can be. A sight like that appeals to me. Gee, if this ride took several days, I'm sure I wouldn't care."
"I'd rather hurry back to town," said Clowzy, "where I could lie down. I know a nap would do me good. For hours I wouldn't peep." The others only smiled at him. Said one, "You never seem to trim. I guess you must be lazy, 'cause you always want to sleep."

Easy leaves instructions with his officers, and he and Wash separate—each take a platoon of men, and begin their climb up the side of the mountain.

Easy's Ruse

AN HOUR LATER THEY ARE ON OPPOSITE CLIFFS, HIGH ABOVE THE SURPRISED AMBUSHERS IN THE CANYON BELOW. THEN THE SIGNAL FROM EASY—AND BOTH BEGIN TUMBLING HUGE ROCKS OVER THE SIDES.

YELLS-SCREAMS-CONFUSION!

TONS AND TONS OF BOULDERS RAIN UPON THE LUCKLESS AMBUSHERS. THEY TRY TO RUN—TRY TO SHOOT—ARE CRUSHED, ROUTED.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE PICTURE, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The long canal trip soon was over. Once more the bunch were back on shore and, hopping in a big machine they took a long, long drive. "We're going back to Athens now. This car will get us there somehow," explained the Travel Man. "In just a few hours we'll arrive."
They drove through open country and the Tynmites thought it was grand. "I've never seen such pretty trees," said Scouty. "Just look there! The leaves are green as they can be. A sight like that appeals to me. Gee, if this ride took several days, I'm sure I wouldn't care."
"I'd rather hurry back to town," said Clowzy, "where I could lie down. I know a nap would do me good. For hours I wouldn't peep." The others only smiled at him. Said one, "You never seem to trim. I guess you must be lazy, 'cause you always want to sleep."
And then they passed a farm land

Arthur J. Straw has been obliged to tie the roof of his residence on Woodbridge street since the terrific hailstorm of Saturday. Mr. Straw's house which is one of the largest on the street has a flat roof and a considerable quantity of tin is required for the body of the house and two lower sections in the rear.

Miss Eleanor Dwyer of Strickland street has as her guest for several days, Miss Margaret Roberts of Holyoke, Mass., a classmate of Miss Dwyer's at the College of New Rochelle.

Miss Myrtle Davis will conduct the Saturday morning posture class for pre-school children tomorrow at 10 o'clock at the Manchester Community clubhouse. Mothers may bring their little ones whether or not they are to enter school next month.

Rev. Dorrance B. Lethrop, pastor of the People's Baptist church of Providence, will be the preacher at the Sunday morning union service of Center Congregational and South Methodist churches, to be held at the Masonic Temple at 10:45. The following Sunday, Rev. Laurence L. Barber of the Pilgrim Congregational church, Nashua, N. H., will preach. September 7, Center church parishioners hope to welcome their pastor, Rev. Watson Woodruff, who has spent much of the summer at Silver Lake, Madison, N. H., recuperating after a major operation. September 14 is the Sunday set for the return to the remodeled and re-decorated Center church building after a year's absence.

Albert Sanders of Roslyn, L. I., and Fred Sanders of Wappingers Falls, N. Y., visited their sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Bradley, of South street, Thursday.

The West Side tree-sitters were obliged to descend after nearly thirty-five hours in their leafy perch. The mothers refused to continue to supply them with food, and people who were amused or living in the neighborhood, were disturbed by the crowds around the trees and made a protest against the boys continuing their stunt.

Walter Hibbard has arrived for a short vacation at his home on North Main street, before resuming his work as teacher at the Providence Technical High school. He has been teaching at the Y. M. C. A. in Providence during the summer.

LOCAL GIRL TO TEACH IN HARTFORD SCHOOL

Miss Leora Hibbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hibbard, of North Main street, has been engaged as teacher of the special home-making course at the Holcomb street school in the West section of Hartford.

The position is newly created. While they have had cooking and sewing teachers at the school, they have branched out into a number of courses which Miss Hibbard is well qualified to handle after completing four years of training in household economics at the state college at Storrs, and four weeks of actual experience in teaching training at the Glastonbury High school.

Miss Hibbard was graduated from the Eighth District grammar and the local High schools.
