

WOMEN 'DRYS' HERE INJECT CANDIDATES

Mrs. Louis St. Clair Burr is Proposed for Selectman; Other Coups Planned But Fail to Materialize — Hohenthal for Assessor.

Women asserted themselves politically today in Manchester when the name of Mrs. Ella F. Burr was proposed for the Republican nomination to the Board of Selectmen. Mrs. Burr, who is the wife of Louis St. Clair Burr, of West Center street, has been injected into the Republican primaries by a group of women "drys." Her candidacy is but one of the strokes the women's group had planned as a political coup but the others have so far fallen through. It had been planned to oppose James M. Burke for the Republican nomination to the Board of School Visitors with a woman candidate but the group suddenly discovered that Mr. Burke was a Democrat and the present Republican incumbent is Russell B. Hathaway whom they do not wish to oppose.

Would Cut Miss Cheney The It has also been learned by the Herald that this group of women have planned to oppose Miss Marjory Cheney's candidacy for Republican representative if Miss Cheney decides later today to be a candidate. Their reason for opposing Miss Cheney, it is learned, is that they believe Miss Cheney to be a "wet" sympathizer. As part of their coup to nominate strictly "dry" candidates the women intend to urge that George E. Keane be elected to cut both Miss Cheney and Judge Raymond A. Johnson. However, neither Miss Cheney nor Judge Johnson had been proposed for the Republican nomination as yet. Representative as the Herald's went to press.

Makes Contest Mrs. Burr's proposal creates a contest in the Republican primary for the nomination as Selectman. The present Board is standing for re-election. Mrs. Burr told The Herald today that she has absolutely no animosity in seeking the Selectman nomination. She does not want to oppose any one member of the present Board and has several personal friends in the group. The women feel that they should be represented on the town's governing board and believe this is the year it should be started. Mrs. Burr said she was asked to accept the proposal and felt that she would like it to run. If she loses she will take it as a good sport, she said.

Hohenthal Proposed The name of E. L. C. Hohenthal, Jr., was today proposed for the Republican nomination to the Board of Assessors. Mr. Hohenthal's proposal was not filed by the women's group, leading members of the Republican town committee naming him for the candidacy. Mr. Hohenthal has been a member of the Board of Relief and his term expires this year. He has had considerable experience with the assessor's books and is a logical candidate. Another candidate for this nomination is L. C. Clifford, Jr.

Democratic proposals will be filed with Town Clerk Turkington later today. Other proposals filed today were: George L. Graziedio for constable, filling that slate on the Republican ticket; Harold J. Symington for Justice of the Peace, also filling that slate on the Republican ticket and Russell B. Hathaway for Board of School Visitors.

EWALD TRIAL DELAYED

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The trial of George F. Ewald, resigned city magistrate, on mail fraud charges out of which has grown indirectly a state inquiry into the alleged bartering of minor judgeships in New York City, was postponed today in Federal Court until September 2.

The charges are based on alleged irregularities in the sale of Cotter Butte mine stocks. While Judge Simon Adler was granting a delay in the mail fraud case because of the maze of inquiries involving Ewald which have come out of his Federal indictment in U. S. District Attorney Tuttle was launching before a Federal Grand Jury a fresh investigation of the affairs of Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader.

Healy was the recipient of a $100,000 loan, without interest from Mrs. Ewald, the magistrate's wife, at about the time of Ewald's appointment in 1927. Healy's involvement in this episode led to his resignation as deputy city commissioner of plants and structures.

BANDIT KILLS U. S. OFFICERS; HIMSELF SLAIN

Two Government Inspectors Shot Down in Cold Blood on Train in Canada—Bandit Trapped and Killed.

Fort Francis, Ont., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Two United States government inspectors were killed yesterday on a Canadian passenger train near Emo, Ontario, by a 21-year-old bandit who later was trapped in a farmhouse and mortally wounded.

The victims were Inspector Lawrence Jones, inspector for Warroad, Ont. The bandit was Emerick Frenette of Fort Francis. He died last night in an Emo hospital.

The shooting of the officers was described by Conductor George Ireland of the train. He met the bandit in the vestibule between two coaches.

"I've just killed one man and if you don't do as I say, you'll be the second," the bandit told him, "trying to conceal the handouts which dangled from an arm."

Shoots Inspector "He told me" continued Ireland "that he wanted to go to Winnipeg and ordered me into the day coach where there quite a few passengers sleeping. After getting me to roll a cigarette for him he made me sit a few seats away from him and facing him."

"Bates was sitting opposite as the train neared a siding. He got up and stretched and was shot down. The gunman then took me to the vestibule of another coach. At this point Inspector Jones appeared at the entrance of the coach and asked where Bates was. I couldn't speak, then the bandit shot him."

Goes to Engineer Frenette then forced Ireland to take him to the engineer's cab where he ordered Engineer J. R. Russell to move the train which had stopped. The airbrakes had been set from the rear by trainmen after passengers had given the alarm.

Frenette fled, pursued by police and citizen posse. He was surrounded in a farmhouse at Barwick, Ontario, whose owners he had evicted. Shots were exchanged. Finally the house was set on fire and Frenette was shot as he ran out. A handout still was on his wrist.

In the hospital he told police he had "lost his job and his girl" and was "desperate."

He expressed regret for the killings but said he had heard "American officers were quick to shoot."

SCIENTISTS FIND OLD INDIAN GRAVE

Estimated at From 500 to 1,000 Years of Age Before White Men in U. S.

La Cloche Island, Georgian Bay, Ontario, Aug. 25.—(By radio to the Associated Press)—An Indian chief buried with all his treasures 500 to 1,000 years ago has been found by archeologists of the McDonald-Warren Foundation Expedition.

Dr. George R. Fox, archeologist, who headed the party of scientists unearthed the skeleton after days of labor, aided by a crew of excavators.

That the Indian was of an era of civilization unknown to the white man is the belief of Dr. Fox, and Dr. Alvin Lorfage, Chicago, because of the bear tooth necklace, a shell necklace, stone beads and arrow and spear heads which did not bear any markings except those of the Indian tribes which inhabited this section prior to the coming of the French and English explorers, and later the Indian colonies.

FOG HALTS FLIERS NEAR HALIFAX, N. S.

Von Gronau and Three Companions to Proceed to New York After Successfully Crossing North Atlantic.

Halifax, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The German seaplane D-1422 carrying Captain Wolfgang von Gronau, German aviator and his crew of three, from Germany to New York arrived at Halifax today after a one-stop flight from Queensport, N. S.

The fliers who landed at the fishing village of Marie Joseph this morning to make sure of some 75 miles east of Halifax before continuing on a deuce fog, took off from the village at 12:15 p. m., guided by a Moth pilot plane of the Halifax Flying Club and reached Halifax a few minutes before 1:30.

Fuels and supplies awaited the German crew here and it is planned to come on to New York probably tomorrow.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Captain Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions, who have flown by easy stages in their Dornier-Wahl flying boat D-1422 from Germany by way of Iceland, Greenland and Labrador, paused at the little fishing village of Marie Joseph today and waiting for clear weather before continuing on to Halifax, 80 miles westward.

Fog along the coast interrupted this morning's flight. The fliers reached Queensport, N. S. yesterday afternoon and continued their flight to Halifax, starting at 6:50 a. m. (EST), for Halifax where a supply of oil and gasoline awaits the vessel. Captain von Gronau had started in the face of foggy weather, but at 8:30 a. m. the flying boat was set down at Marie Joseph. It had kept a true course through the fog, but the captain decided against an attempt to proceed to New York today. A note, signed by Dillner and found yesterday on the farm, said: "I have planned to do this thing for a year, but never had enough money until now. I'm in love with this girl and am taking her with me. They have been trying to keep us apart, but now I've got her. I will kill her if the police are notified, but she will not be harmed otherwise."

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Nomination of Ross B. Sterling of Houston for governor in Saturday's Democratic run off primary indicated by unofficial returns, was hailed by Texas newspapers today as meaning political oblivion for his opponent, Mrs. M. Ferguson.

Hungarian Nobleman to Marry and Settle Down in Brazil With Countrymen.

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Archduke Albecht intends to renounce all titles and privileges as member of the Hapsburg family, it became known today and emigrate to Brazil. The archduke recently acquired 150,000 acres of land in Brazil and intends to settle about 400 of his nation.

Archduke Albecht, candidate of the Anti-Legitimist Party for Hungarian throne, settled his opposition to Prince Otto last May when he swore allegiance to the legitimist heir apparent. This ended a long and bitter series of intrigues conducted by his supporters and ending Otto's chances for regaining the Hapsburg throne.

Albecht is 42 years old. He recently spent four months in South America and held many conversations with Hungarian immigrants in Brazil.

Length of Women's Skirts Depends On Her Height

By ADELAIDE KERR New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Women's winter wardrobes are crystallizing into clearer curves than last year's mode ever knew.

Style surveyors and fashion designers have labored successfully over perplexing problems of line and length which worried wives last winter.

The hemline, so uneven in 1929, has found its place—a place that gives but scant concern to its distance from the floor. It measures itself instead by millia's leg.

LORD IRWIN WORRIED OVER AFFAIRS IN INDIA

Are Many Obstacles in Path of Peace Settlement; Fears It Will Take Time.

By James P. Howe Simla, India, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Indian leader who has engaged in talks with Mahatma Gandhi and other imprisoned Nationalist chiefs with a view to abandonment of the civil disobedience campaign, arrived today in response to an urgent call from his colleague, Mr. Jayakar.

Upon the shoulders of the Viceroy, Lord Irwin and of Mr. Jayakar, and now of Sir Tej, has been the burden of negotiations built around Mahatma Gandhi's terms for settlement of the Satyagraha movement, and to judge from the worried mien of each the burden has not rested there well.

Many Obstacles "There are many obstacles to be overcome before both sides are satisfied," Mr. Jayakar told the Associated Press today. "The negotiations have been proceeding exactly a month and five days and some say how much longer they will continue."

"I came here from seeing Mr. Gandhi at Yeroda prison, Poona, expecting a yes or no, but there is no telling whether I shall have either. But I well realized when Sir Tej and I agreed to undertake the mission that it would not be a task of a day and of course I am going to see it through."

Viceroy Worried The Viceroy, although in splendid health, all too plainly feels the responsibility which is his. His features show his anxiety and his conversation indicates his eagerness to have matters restored to a normal basis. He is most inquisitive and during a 40-minute talk with the Associated Press inquired the correspondent's views, what he had seen and thought of the Home rule campaign in Calcutta, Bombay and other parts of India.

He insisted upon the details of such incidents as police charges with lathis, or staves, and requested the correspondent's summary of the political and economic situation. While the viceroy is never quoted it is no breach of confidence to say that he still holds virtually the same views as when he recently addressed the two Houses of the Indian Legislature and referred to the forthcoming round-table conference at London as an effort to discover once for all "the more excellent way in which India and Britain to benefit from each can talk together."

The interview The viceroy is tall, smooth shaven and slender, and at the time wore a dark slate colored business suit of clothes. He received the correspondent in his study, lined with photographs of Lord and Lady Curzon, and other previous viceroys and their wives.

There is much speculation as to just what the letter written by Gandhi to the viceroy is, but the general guess is, however, that the demands are impossible of acceptance and that Gandhi as well as Jawaharlal and Motilal Nehru determined to stick it out some time yet.

Mr. Jayakar said that he saw Gandhi day after day while he was at Poona, and he had no complaint to offer as to his imprisonment. Not once, he said, did Gandhi express an unkind word against any individual, or bemoan his predicament.

"He is a man in a million," Jayakar said, "although as is well known, I disagree with his civil disobedience campaign. He is one of the most patient, one of the most considerate souls I have ever met."

Another consideration likely to delay the peace negotiations is the illness of Pandit Motilal Nehru. Observers see weak signs of being ahead. One thing seems to be clear, Mr. Gandhi's letter is not an ultimatum, and the final terms reached may be considerably different from those held out now by the Mahatma.

PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 25.—More than 100 Latin-American delegates from 18 countries of Central and South America gathered in the state capitol today to open the first business session of the Pan-American reciprocal trade conference.

Lima, Peru, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Augusto B. Leguia, one of the "strong men" of South America whose career as president of Peru began with popular rejoicing following a coup d'etat in 1919, ended eleven years of power today and fled in obscurity toward Panama aboard the cruiser Grau.

The 67-year-old President resigned in consequence of a revolt begun in the Department of Arequipa last week under the leadership of Lieutenant Colonel Sanchez Cerro, and today the Peruvian government was under control of a military junta which already has named a Cabinet.

Nation Now Under Control of Military Junta Which Has Already Named a New Cabinet—Upset Comes as Great Surprise—Former Chief Executive Was Con- sidered One of Most Mod- ern of All South American Presidents.

Leguia made his last public appearance and heard his last ovation in Peru yesterday. He had luncheon at the home of a son and in mid-afternoon left for a horse race track. He entered the official stand, filled with prominent Peruvian figures and diplomats from Bolivia, Venezuela, Ecuador and Chile, and this group began an ovation.

Period of Glory Ends Hardly more than 50 persons were in this party, but they cheered loudly, the President reciprocating with smiles and handshakes.

At night his period of glory was over. A new government went in and the President went out. The Military Cabinet is headed by General Fernando Sarmiento as premier. Others are:

Colonel Roberto Lopez, Minister of Government.
Colonel Montagne, Justice.
Colonel German Yanez, Finance.
Rear Admiral Cesar Bielich, Marine.

Colonel Eulogio Castillo has been assigned a post in the ministry but his portfolio has not been established.

American Captured Washington, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The American ambassador to Lima, Peru, advised the State Department today that Captain Crow of the American Naval mission to Peru was captured by revolutionists at Camana on the morning of August 24.

Lieutenant Commander Harold B. Grow of the Naval Reserve, was the naval officer taken. He holds the title of captain in the Peruvian Navy.

Crow resigned from active status in the Navy two years ago to accept an appointment as director general of the Peruvian Air Forces. Although working with the United States Naval Mission to Peru, he was not attached to it because of his civilian status.

The Embassy is seeking assurance of his safety, communicating through informal channels with the revolutionists.

Another American Inquiries are also being made by the Embassy regarding the seizure of an airplane of the Faucett Aviation Company, Elmer J. Faucett, an American pilot, who heads the company, is believed to be in Arequipa.

Two out of the four Army divisions were reported in revolt. Anti-government demonstrations went on in the streets of Lima at 7 p. m. Sunday. The Embassy in a telegram dated today at 1 a. m., said the military situation was growing apparently more confused, with President Leguia still in the picture, the military Cabinet having refused to take office.

City Is Quiet Efforts by Leguia and officers to select a governing committee from the Army and Navy were reported to be under way. The American charge de Affaires, Ferdinand M. Meyer, reported in the same cablegram that he had just been around the city and had found it quiet, with police patrols stationed everywhere.

The Peruvian ambassador to Washington, Manuel Freyre de Santander, today had received no official communication concerning the revolt.

Embassy officials said they did not consider the present movement would affect the Embassy or Ambassador Freyre, as he had been a career man since his youth, and has always abstained from politics.

Augusto B. Leguia, Peruvian statesman and executive, is 67 years old and for many years has been one of the stormiest figures in Peruvian politics.

He received his early education in Chile and served in the Peruvian Army from 1879 to 1881. Later he

THE BOOK SURVEY
Birth Control provides the theme for Charles G. Norris in his latest novel, "Seed" and while Mr. Norris is both a serious thinker and a gifted novelist, one finishes "Seed" with the feeling that the book is not quite successful. Every so often the story ceases to be a novel and becomes something very like a tract...

It becomes this secretary's obsession, then, to find out just what sort of man his absent employer may be. He must do it by studying the way in which the man's friends have been affected by their contact with him—by studying that, and by deducing what he can from the until the end of the book does form a clear mental picture of Scrivener; and the reader is never definitely told whether this picture is or is not correct.

As a mere matter of expediency it would probably have been a better political bargain for Mr. Hoover to have offended or shocked two or three fussy, hide bound "practical" politicians than to have slapped the entire press of the country in the face with this quite unnecessary denial of an obvious possibility.

AN OLD FOLKS' STORY
It is probable that the intriguing story of the recovery of the body of Salomon-Auguste Andree, polar aeronaut, after its lying frozen for thirty-three years in the grip of the Arctic, will bear but a scant measure of interest to the younger generations as compared to the fascination it exercises over the minds of their elders.

THE BOOK SURVEY

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer
Birth Control provides the theme for Charles G. Norris in his latest novel, "Seed" and while Mr. Norris is both a serious thinker and a gifted novelist, one finishes "Seed" with the feeling that the book is not quite successful.

not in fact, see him until the last page of the book. He meets, however, a number of Jonathan Scrivener's friends; four of them, in fact, all utterly dissimilar and each one presenting a totally different impression of the mysterious, insect Scrivener.

It becomes this secretary's obsession, then, to find out just what sort of man his absent employer may be. He must do it by studying the way in which the man's friends have been affected by their contact with him—by studying that, and by deducing what he can from the until the end of the book does form a clear mental picture of Scrivener; and the reader is never definitely told whether this picture is or is not correct.

Now all of this may not sound like much, reduced to two paragraphs; but I can only assure you that I found it intensely interesting. The author, Claude Houghton, has handled his job with real skill and intelligence. If you enjoy coming into contact with adult ideas, and Schuster's new dollar books, it is very well worth the price.

FOUR-LEGGED DUCK
Cleveland.—Sam Siegel, fruit and poultry dealer here, recently received a shipment of ducks—and a surprise. In one of the crates the ducks was one which didn't look like its companions. Sam opened the crate and took out the duck for examination. He found that it had four legs in place of the conventional two. The duck was normal in every other respect.

GOOD HEAVENS!
Palm Beach, Fla.—A recent business transaction in Florida should have had a minister at the head of it. For C. F. Corrigan, for $2.80, received for unpaid taxes the "Celestial Line," a railroad operating over eight miles and connecting the Florida towns of Jupiter, Venus Mars and Juna.

"Southern Cameos" The Fulfillment of Jack Brinkley's Ambition "Southern Cameos" the series of sketches being broadcast each Monday night from Station WTIC, are the fulfillment of an ambition long cherished by Jack Brinkley, the author and featured player. When Brinkley left Virginia three years ago to seek fame and fortune in New York City, he nourished a desire to become author of and principal actor in a play based on life in the South. He had not been in the metropolis very long when a play opened on Broadway similar to the one he had in mind. It was "Sun-Up," featuring Lillie LaVerne. Jack saw it, then went back stage and told Miss LaVerne that he could portray the leading juvenile role better than the actor playing it. The actress handed him the script, for which he wrote the first of the radio plays entitled "Southern Cameos". When he transferred his activities to Station WTIC, he continued the series, one of which will be heard at 10 o'clock tonight.

ROCKVILLE

Accident Saturday An unusual accident occurred on East Main street on Saturday when a horse driven by Thomas Gessay, 12, of South street, became frightened near the American Mill and ran away down the street, turning into Market street where it slipped on the trolley tracks. Its head struck underneath the auto of W. C. Young of Willington, which was parked on the side of the street. The impact forced the Young car into an auto owned by Hyman Stone and this in turn crashed into the Colonial Bakery auto truck of South Manchester. Policeman Richard Shea had the horse removed to the barn of Howard West on Brooklyn street, where Dr. Morin treated it for bruises. The driver was uninjured.

AMMUNITION TRAIN BLOWN UP IN CHINA

Kwetch, Honan, Aug. 25.—(AP)—A government ammunition train, composed of nineteen cars, was blown up near here today. Loss of life, though undetermined, was believed small. While cause of the blaze which set off the explosion was unknown, it was rumored rebel spies were responsible for the conflagration. Explosion of the ammunition, which consisted of heavy calibre shells and aerial bombs, ripped out the railroad right-of-way, twisted steel cars, and hurled debris hundreds of feet. With the Nationalist government suffering a severe loss from burning of the train, it was reported fighting along the Hainchow-Tungkuwan railroad was at a low ebb as a result of the unprecedented heavy rains in northern Honan province. The rains have kept up for the past two weeks, resulting in damaging floods, which have covered many thousands of acres of grain. Lands on both sides of the railroad are submerged, transforming battle lines into mud walls. In many areas, the fields are waist-deep with water, resulting in virtual loss of the entire crops, which appeared in excellent condition when the rains began.

Those of the aging warriors, the youngest of whom is now 79, that were able to travel from over the WOMEN'S NATIONAL TITLE LEAVES U. S.

Popular Betty Nuthall Captures Moodyless Crown From Mrs. Harper.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Betty Nuthall, the 30 year old English girl with a smile famous on two continents and a blistering forehead drive, is the new tennis champion of the United States. Betty wasn't considered good enough to have a place this year on the British Wightman cup team and she was a disappointment at Wimbledon, but before an American gallery that had made her its darling, the blonde girl yesterday scored a double triumph in the finals of the National Women's championships on the rain drenched courts of the West Tennis Club. Succeeding to the title forfeited by Helen Wills Moody, just before the tournament started, Miss Nuthall captured the singles championship by decisively defeating Mrs. Anna Virginia McCune Harper, San Francisco lefthander and fifth ranking American, 6-1, 6-4. Returning to the courts after a heavy downpour and playing on slippery turf through intermittent showers, Miss Nuthall teamed with 17-year-old Sarah Palfrey of Boston to win the doubles honors. They came from behind to defeat Mrs. Harper and Edith Cross, also of San Francisco, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5 in a contest in doubt right up to the final point. For the first time in 43 years the American woman's singles championship goes abroad in Miss Nuthall's possession, but few if any, victories by homebred stars have been received with more applause than was Betty's triumph yesterday by a gallery of 3,000 spectators. The English girl has been a favorite with the crowd ever since she came over for the first time in 1927 and reached the finals, losing to Miss Wills. Her beaming smile, engaging personality as well as her swift striking power captivated American tennis fans.

LABORITES PROTEST ATTENTION PAID BABY

Glasgow, Scotland, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Attention paid the baby of the Duchess of York has excited sarcastic comment by Left-Wing Laborites. Comparisons are made between the lot of royal infants and that of poverty stricken infants and the annual Keir Hardie Memorial demonstration Saturday at Cumnock, Ayrshire, Miss Mary Shennon, Laborite, said that the royal baby would cost five, three or two shillings a week. "What I want to emphasize," Miss Shennon added, "is that the needs of the royal baby are the same as those of any other baby in the country—fresh air, proper food, and sunlight."

John McGovern, new Labor M. P. from Shettleston, said it was a "mockery and a shame to see the labor home secretary sitting for three weeks on the doorstep of royalty as a kind of labor mid-wife, while the working classes were enduring the long night of martyrdom and despair."

DENY WOMEN JUSTICE

Washington, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Asserting that under American law marriage "practically leases a wife out for her board and keep" the National Woman's Party today issued a booklet listing discriminations against the sex under the title of "The Denial of Justice to Women." While listing disadvantages accruing to married women under the laws of many states the booklet, edited by Burnita Shelton Matthews, a Washington attorney, condemned as "contrary to the law of nature" the legal attitude that an illegitimate child has no father. Miss Matthews cited a recent court decision under which the estate of a bachelor who died testate was taken over by a state on the ground he had "no lawful kin" although an illegitimate child had supported from birth sought to obtain it.

TAUNTS ROBBERS FOR NOT SHOOTING

In Fight That Follows Guest at Party is Killed—Police Shoot Bandits.

Cleveland, Aug. 25.—(AP)—A gay party of young folks from many of Cleveland's prominent families ended early today in a melee with holdup men and the fatal shooting of one guest. Miller Wilkinson, 23, a Princeton University senior, led a group of young men in resisting five robbers armed with rifles and pistols, and was shot in the head after police arrived and engaged in a gun duel with the intruders. Wilkinson was the son of Fred F. Wilkinson, dealer in investment securities. Forty Present The party was given at the home of Ray S. Dunham, one of the city's best known realtors, for friends of his son Donald. About 40 persons were present. The older Dunham said he was in the kitchen when his son ran in shouting, "Get the police, five men are trying to rob us." Dunham ran on out to the garage but was unable to get his car because of the profusion of guests' machines. He ran to the front of the home, where he saw the young men backing the holdups off the porch. "Taunted Robbers "You guys are afraid to shoot. Why don't you start something," Wilkinson was taunting the robbers, Dunham said. One man raised rifle as if to fire and Wilkinson grappled with him. At the same time the other guests attacked the remaining gunmen and a free for all fight started. Three patrolmen arrived while the scuffle was in progress. The police opened fire and as the robbers fired back Wilkinson was fatally wounded. He died a short time later. Two of the robbers were shot in the leg, and were taken to a hospital. A third was picked up soon afterward. The wounded men gave their names as Angelo Bell, 20, and Mike Bell, 25, brothers. Angelo carried a .32 calibre pistol and Mike a 47.50 rifle, police said.

A THOUGHT

Let not the sun go down upon your wrath.—Ephesians 4:26. Anger mingles everything badly.—Stadius.

PLAN NEW ARMS FOR DESTROYERS

Washington, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Naval limitation has led to another experiment in the Navy which may bring drastic changes in a secondary but highly important fighting vessel—the destroyer.

To answer the problem of what guns to place on the new destroyers which unquestionably will be built, the Glimmer is being equipped with a new type of gun which eventually may replace the armament on this kind of vessel. They are "double duty" 5-inch guns, bearing that name because they should be efficient against surface vessels and may be elevated enough to fire on aircraft. These new guns, however, will have a range of less than four miles, while the present 5-inch on the destroyer are effective at six miles. Although the naval officers have been reticent to discuss the question, some of them have said these 5-inch "double duty" guns eventually may be placed on all destroyers and certainly on the larger vessels of this type that can be built under the London naval treaty. The Navy's latest experiments are being conducted to increase the efficiency of the destroyers, which were limited for the first time under the London treaty. While the navy now has 190,000 tons of destroyers, more than a half of the total is 150,000 tons.

Prelate Defends Birth Control

Starting modern conclusions were contained in the report of the Archbishop of Canterbury (Cosmo Lang), above, explaining the resolutions adopted by the conference of Anglican bishops of the world held in England. The bishops voted to sanction birth control under certain closely stipulated conditions to preach against war, to deal firmly with the divorce evil and to give women greater authority in the church.

GREEK SOCIETY MEETS

Boston, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association, known as Ahepa, opened its annual national convention here today with approximately 5,000 members on hand for the opening sessions. A special train brought 2,000 delegates from Chicago and Detroit. State and local officials will welcome the convention delegates during a morning session in the afternoon. Pre-convention activities yesterday included a service at the Greek Cathedral church at which Rt. Rev. Theodosios N. head of the Greek churches in America, presided; and a dinner given the Supreme Lodge by George Demeter of Boston, former supreme head of the order. The organization has a membership of nearly 50,000 men of Greek extraction who have either become American citizens or who have taken out their first papers.

BIGGER TAX RECEIPTS

Washington, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Income taxes and other internal revenue receipts showed a substantial increase for the fiscal year just ended, despite the one per cent income tax rate reduction in effect the last six months. A preliminary statement by the Bureau of Internal Revenue set the total collections for 12 months ending June 30 at $3,040,145,733, an increase of $101,091,357 over the preceding year's receipts. Of the total $2,410,259,230 was in income taxes accounting for almost $79,600,000 of the increase. The report as seen, added support for the hopeful attitude expressed both by President Hoover and Secretary Mellon for continuation of the reduction of both personal and corporate income taxes.

The Hollywood Story

COPYRIGHT 1930 by NEA SERVICE Inc. by ERNEST LYNN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAN RORIMER, a scenario writer in Hollywood, is in love with ANNE WINTER, who, beginning as an extra, has progressed rapidly and has been offered a contract by Grand United, one of the largest of the studios.

Ann lives with two extra girls, MONA MORRISON and EVA HARLEY. Eva at times is very bitter. She works only rarely, and she is dependent over a tragic love experience.

PAUL COLLIER, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers, and JOHNNY RIDDLE, free lance movie press agent, both advise Anne not to sign the contract. Dan does likewise. They argue that it is not enough money, and it will tie her up for three years at a small salary.

Ann himself is under contract at Continental Pictures, but he has torn the contract up and invited the studio manager, with whom he can't get along, to fire him. It is rumored that Continental is to be taken over by Lawson Brown, who has been given the studio's affairs to handle. She also calls up her parents in Tulsa, Okla., to ask the advice of her father, who is an attorney.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV

Ann talked with her father and mother for 15 minutes. "There's a nice telephone bill," she said a little ruefully when she hung up. "Promise, Dan, that you'll not forget to tell me how much it is—or I'll call up the telephone company and write a check here and now."

"I promise," said Rorimer. "Well, what's the verdict?"

"Just what I thought it would be," Anne Winter laughed. "Father said to do what I thought best. Father always says that, in the long run. He was awfully proud, though, as he was rather. They'll probably call up the newspapers right away and tell them all about it."

"Did he offer any legal advice?" Johnny Riddle asked. He chuckled. "He was in a tough spot. I'd say, trying to be legal and fatherly at the same time was a good deal of a bargain."

"No. He told me if I needed a lawyer to get one out here and he'd pay for it."

Riddle said, "You might send him a bill for my services. I'm pretty reasonable," said Collier.

"How about me?" said Collier.

"Anne laughed. 'I wish,' she said, 'that I had more nerve. I'm going to have cold chills running up and down my spine tomorrow when I tell Mr. Johnson that I've decided the contract isn't satisfactory.'

But Dan said she shouldn't let that bother her. "Johnson is used to dealing with hard-boiled egos. Look him in the eye and tell him 'ix-nay, big boy, ix-nay!'"

It was something of an ordeal for her. Anne was afraid that Mr. Johnson might get out of patience with her, think her an ungrateful upstart, calculating and mercenary. But he heard her calmly. Behind his vast desk, a faint smile playing on his lips, he looked like a man who could play any good game of poker. He had one question: "Is that your father's advice, Miss Winter?" Cool, casual, one hand resting on the desk before him, his polished nails making little clicks on the hard wood surface.

Anne colored. "No, Mr. Johnson. He left the decision entirely to me."

A little nod from Mr. Johnson. "Very good judgment—on the part of your father." He paused. Then: "Perhaps you'd better think it over."

"But I have thought it over. Please don't think me ungrateful, but it's hardly as much as I made on the stage."

"But you didn't have a three-year contract on the stage if the contract were for one year."

"I should feel better if the contract were for one year."

Mr. Johnson's eyebrows rose ever so slightly.

"I really mean it," Anne said, and he considered this gravely and then got up.

He said, with his faint smile: "It looks as though we can't come to an agreement. I'm sorry."

"I am very sorry," Anne said, and he bowed her out.

When she had gone, Mr. Johnson called in his secretary, told her to see if Garry Sloan could have lunch with him.

Dan Rorimer, when she told him what had happened, said, "Don't worry. He knows now that you're smart." And Johnny Riddle, whom Dan informed, nodded sagely.

"They'll think a lot more of her now. A little independence doesn't hurt." And he predicted that Grand United would make her another offer.

"Maybe not right away, but they'll come around. She'd be crazy to tie herself up for that kind of money."

Two days later Anne again encountered Garry Sloan on the set, but this time the director did not stop to talk. Remarking his quizzical smile, she was hotly embarrassed. Sloan had done her a great favor and she had repaid him with what appeared to be ingratitude. Anne would have liked to explain to him that it was not, but he was not alone. She could not even thank him.

"I thought of the saying about the serpent's tooth," she told Dan, but Rorimer scoffed.

"Why should it make any difference to Sloan? I hope you won't lose any sleep over it. Besides—"

"Besides what?"

Dan grinned. "Oh, I guess his hide's plenty thick. Which was not exactly what he had started to say. He thought, feeling again that strange antagonism toward the man he had never met: "Who cares what Sloan thinks, anyhow?"

Dan was going to San Francisco for a vacation. "An enforced one," he explained to her with a careless laugh. "I think perhaps it's the beginning of the end."

Anne was deeply concerned. "Why what do you mean?... And he told her that several in his department had been given two-week layoffs.

"It's no longer a secret that Continental is selling out. I mean it's official now. And some big boys from Lawson Brown have been parading around and sitting in at mysterious conferences, and production is at a standstill."

He drew a deep breath. "Believe me, it will be a relief to get away from that mad house for two weeks. The morale of the place is simply shot—more guys moping around and whispering and worrying about their jobs! I'll be satisfied if I never see it again."

"But why do you say it's the beginning of the end? Do you mean that you think they are going to let you go?"

"Sure. Adamson thinks I'm a bolshevik, anyway."

"Perhaps Adamson will be let out himself," she hazarded, but Dan said he was beginning to think that was unlikely.

"He's a smooth article, and he can talk plenty fast. And if he stays I hope I do go."

Care perched lightly on Rorimer's shoulders, Anne thought, letting her eyes rest on him; and she gave silent consideration to the problems he might be compelled to face should his surmise concerning his status at Continental prove correct.

They were having Sunday supper at the Brown Derby, the place, she now remembered with a faint reminiscent smile, where she and Dan Rorimer had eaten their first meal together. Then, as now, he had been dissatisfied with things at Continental Pictures, Anne recalled, and she watched him gravely while he ordered for them.

The waiter gone, Rorimer turned to speak to her, encountered her lute gaze, stopped.

"Why the brown study?" he demanded.

"Oh, I was just thinking."

"About me?"

"Yes, she admitted.

"That's a break! I hope it was nice."

"I was thinking that, for a young man about to lose a very important position, you certainly were the embodiment of indifference."

Dan laughed. He said he was very disappointed. "You see, I was hoping it was something else you were thinking about."

"What, for instance?"

"Oh, I don't know; but it would be wonderful to get a pleasant surprise. Now, when I think about you—and I'm doing that practically all the time—"

"I'm sure you are."

"I always think how wonderful you are, and how beautiful, and—"

"I hope you have a good time in San Francisco, Dan. Have you ever been there before?" Her eyes danced with little lights of mischief.

"You see?" Dan complained. "Every time I start making love to you, you let me down with a great big thump."

"No, I've never been there, but I know a couple of boys on the News." And he demanded to know why she always steered him off of the subject whenever he got serious.

"Were you serious, Dan? I'm sorry. I thought you were just fooling again."

"You always think I'm fooling," Dan grumbled. "Some of these days you're going to be sorry for trifling with my affections the way you do. I'm going to make you pay and pay and pay."

"Horrors!" Anne shuddered.

"You'll see," he threatened darkly. And he was suddenly serious once more; he reached across the table, let his hand linger on hers for a moment or two; and Anne saw in his eyes that which caused her to drop her own.

"Happy, Anne?"

She nodded.

He said, "So am I. I'm always happy when we're together."

"So am I, Dan."

"Honest?" His eyes sought hers eagerly; he leaned closer.

"Of course, silly! Why shouldn't I be?"

Rorimer smiled and sighed. "Oh, I don't know. Only, I sort of hoped there might be some special reason why you should be."

"But there are reasons, Anne insisted. "For one thing, you know it is very nice, if you only knew it, Dan Rorimer," she paused. "And you think of such nice places to go, and things to do. And you've been very kind to me. Now, does that satisfy you?"

But Dan stubbornly shook his head.

"I'll tell you my reason, Anne. Would you like to hear it?"

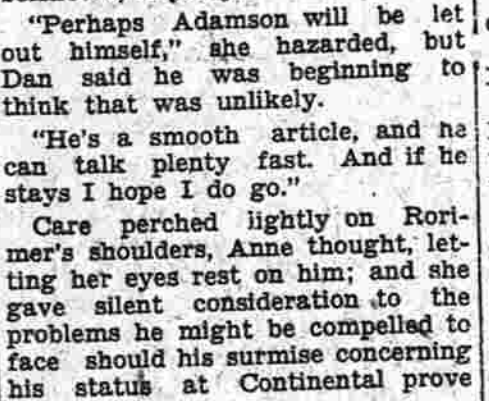

But Anne found laughing, bantering ways of evading him that were just as effective as a definitely spoken refusal. And though he met her smile with one of his own, that beneath her lightness and her gaiety there was a serious and determined unwillingness.

Anne's method of refusing to hear him, he reasoned, was her way of letting him know that she did not want to hurt him, and that she wanted their relationship to stand as it was, on the same easy, comradeship basis. Anne, he knew, preferred it that way, and the thought held no solace for him.

Here's jaunty Hat in the Fall Mode That Tilts to the Left Side Perky Bow Adds Chic.

The asymmetrical little hat of hunters' green felt, shown by the Societe des Modes de Paris, achieves unusual chic by its emphasis on the left side. Its draped brim tilts to that side and on the top a perky bow of matching grosgrain ribbon adds a jauntness. The ribbon faces the hat, too, which is worn high and slightly askant the forehead.

Hollywood Sights & Sounds

By ROBIN COONS

Hollywood.—Her air of commanding sophistication, combined with a striking smartness and brunet beauty, fore-ordained Kay Francis to a career in talkies as a "feminine menace."

Recently, however, she has proved her right to more sympathetic roles.

Opposite Ronald Colman in "Raffles" in fact, she is as sweet as she is strong and impressive, and more nearly a conventional "heart interest" than she perhaps has been on the screen to date.

But if talkie directors were misled as first in considering her only as a "feminine heavy," perhaps it was because Kay, at as tender an age as three, was laying a foundation for bisexuality.

Couldn't Fool Her.—At that time her mother, also an actress, was appearing in a drama wherein, in one sequence, she was shot.

In a little mid-western theater, Kay, who had seen the show before, occupied a box up front with an older friend.

The drama waxed high, the audience was tense. The shot—and the actress' fall to the floor. Again tense silence.

Into which the piping, complacent voice of Kay, reassuring her companion: "Don't be afraid. My mother's not really dead. She's only acting."

And that was the first time Kay Francis "brought down the house."

Complexion Guardians.—The lily-white skin still has a few devotees in Hollywood.

June Collyer, Beulah Love, Mary Brian, Fay Wray, Marjorie White, Jeanette MacDonald, Jean Arthur and Marlene Dietrich are among the few stars who refuse to acquire even the suspicion of a sun-tan.

Edwino Booth, who went to Africa for "Trader Horn," saw there, and agrees with them.

Nancy Carroll's screen charms frequently inspire amateur sportswriters among her fans to burst into lyrical adoration.

Autographed copies of privately printed tunes constantly are bobbing up in her fan mail—and they're usually, of course, very, very bad.

And Richard Arlen received unusual fan tribute in the form of an expensive silver service, sent by a young boy admirer.

Investigation revealed that the lad had appropriated his "gift" from the family dining room. It was returned.

Sixty per cent of all officers in the service have more than one rating, while 18 have no rating.

FOUNDING OF FIRST SUNDAY SCHOOL CELEBRATED BY RELIGIOUS GROUPS

New York. (AP)—Founding of the world's first Sunday School, among the dirty, rowdy ragamuffins of an English factory town by Robert Raikes, British editor, in 1780, is being celebrated this year by religious organizations everywhere.

In 150 years the Sunday School idea has grown from the handful of rebellious street gamblers gathered in a kitchen in Sooty Alley, Gloucester, Eng., until it embraces a world enrollment of 37,088,662.

The United States alone has 21,038,536 people in its Sunday Schools, of whom 2,167,848 are teachers and officers. Nearly half the American population under 19 years of age, or 44.1 per cent, attends Sunday School. Kansas leads with 68.4 per cent, while Arizona and Montana are tied for last place with 22.8.

Sunday Schools have improved in technique as they have grown in size.

Children now learn the Bible and its lessons through plays which they act themselves, stories, hand work, drawing, model-making and costume-making, explains Dr. Harrison S. Elliott, head of the department of religious education at Union Theological Seminary, New York.

The modern Sunday School recognizes its responsibility to the pupil's everyday experience, he points out.

It deals with such matters as choosing a life work, questions of conduct and character that crop up in the child's everyday life.

Raikes founded his first Sunday School for the children of the poor and criminal classes, because he had found it difficult to reform adult criminals.

At first his experiment was op-

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The latter part of August is a splendid time to watch for birds. During very hot weather, their families raised and nothing to keep them near civilization, many of the most common birds seek sanctuary and coolness in the deep shade of the woods.

Others go to Canada after a brief spring sojourn with us.

But in late August and September most of them appear again. Indeed many stop on their way south to make a visit, that do not stop for so much as a how-do-you-do in the spring months.

Children love birds and I think it is a good thing to instruct them in bird lore if possible. Incidentally, with a very little trouble and expense parents themselves can pick up a lot of interesting information. Like everything else in the world we enjoy things more if we know something about what we are looking at, in nature as well as in art.

And birds, to my mind, combine both.

Just to be able to tell the names of birds when we see them is something. It is really shocking how few people know the identity of a feathered neighbor that does not answer to the name of robin or sparrow.

Children Ignored.—I knew a man who was an ardent bird lover. He belonged to a club that went in for long hikes to observe the habits of unusual birds and to report the presence of winged strangers in the community.

But he never thought it worth while to take his children along, and I doubt if his boy to this day knows an oriole from a blue-jay.

Scanning New Books

New York.—"Shepherds in Sackcloth" is Sheila Kaye-Smith's new novel, and like its predecessors it deals with life in rural England.

To be specific, life in one of those tiny parishes where the family in the manor dictates the life of most of the inhabitants with the aid of the vicar.

In "Shepherds in Sackcloth" the vicar is one whose ideals and convictions force him into mental self-torture, and not a little trouble. His kindly efforts to bring solace to his parishioners lead him into complications with the manor and with his bishop.

When his wife dies and no longer stands at hand to ward off the buffeting of reality with comforting, the vicar takes up his cudgels and fumbles feebly alone for a time, and in the end also succumbs.

"Tiger, tiger..." Maurice DeKobra is a Frenchman, a newspaper man and a devoted fan of the sport of polo. He is featured in his engaging book on India, "The Perfumed Tigers."

DeKobra traveled 6,000 miles into the far corners of that great, turbulent peninsula, visited and watched, talked a little and heard a lot.

He makes no effort at deep political discussion, finds praise for both British and Indians, and manages to be both witty and informative.

One woman's record of the Russian revolution is set down in "Twice Born in Russia" under the pseudonym of Natalia Petrova. The author, once a noblewoman, now is the wife of a newspaper correspondent.

The author's family is of the old nobility, dates back to the first czars. Her early family life is a picture of the gulf between peasant and noble.

Then came the revolution and many times only her wit and courage saved her life. Months she went in rags, lived on crusts, sheltered in hovels.

But the American Relief Commission helped her with a job, she got to Moscow and all her sorrows months parted from her husband and married a foreigner, whose nationality she took at once.

TRUE ORIENTALS MUST HAVE ONE FLAW

By William H. Baldwin

"Only Allah is perfect," according to the devout Persians who make many of the finest Oriental rugs. Hence they see to it that there is at least one flaw in the perfect symmetry of their designs, and in this fact lies the particular charm of the rug.

But the market for rugs of this type has grown so large in America that Big Business has entered the Orient to speed up production.

Yarns dyed in Manchester, England, and designs worked out to the detail in America are sent to India to be worked up in mass production.

The result makes for excellent rugs so far as durability and color-fastness are concerned. Technically Orientals, these products differ from the true Orientals much as reproductions differ from the authentic articles in the American furniture market.

In a driving rainstorm and heavy wind which almost swept a batter off his feet, the rejuvenated Green team won from the Gold Sox team of the State Prison in Wethersfield, Saturday afternoon 15-12.

The Green got no more until the sixth inning but the Sox kept pecking away at the big Green lead on hefty hitting and Green errors until they went into the lead at 9-8 in the last of the fourth. The Green regained the lead in the sixth on doubles by Hunt, St. John and Bob Boyce's homer over the centerfield prison wall. St. John's double also sealed the high wall in short right.

emitting from the Pittsburgh stadium reported the event merely as the "two mile steeplechase." The Herald queried the Associated Press and received a wire back that McCluskey did not finish the race. This news came late Saturday morning just a short time before the Herald went to press.

In a telegram received by Director Lewis Lloyd of the Recreation Centers, McCluskey states that he also has hopes of being selected as one of six men to run in a special three mile event.

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—With the end of the Eastern League season almost in sight, Whitey Dreesen of Springfield still holds his lead in the batting race, but his rival, Fitzgerald of Bridgeport, has reduced his margin a trifle. Dreesen has an average of .368 in the list released today, which includes last Thursday's games.

Twelve Errors Committed In Loosely Played Game

Mantelli Hit Hard by Green Sluggers; Sturgeon Goes Well for Green; Large Crowd Sees West Sides Take Early Lead, Then Falter Badly; Play by Play Account.

The Manchester Green team awoke from its batting slump of last week with a vengeance yesterday afternoon on the West Side grounds and Mantelli, last week's winning West Side pitcher, with a barrage of 14 hits to win the second game of the play-off for the right to meet the Bon Ami team for the town series. The score was 10-3 in the Green's favor.

The game was a free hitting affair, the Green getting to the West Side hurler for extra base hits, which, coupled with errors on the part of the West Side infield, meant plenty of runs. A comedy game of hard hitting and loose fielding, the teams being charged with twelve errors. Every one of the West Side infield was charged with one or more errors, including the pitcher. Usually steady players like Foley and Wright were charged with two apiece.

The West Side tallied twice in the third on hits by Holland Locke aided by Hewitt's error, but the Green wrecking crew came back in times and scored four times on doubles by Wright, Hewitt, P. Burkhardt, Forgett, and Wallett's single assisted by Foley's error and St. John's pifer of second. Noel went in for Sturgeon at this stage and held the West Siders in check throughout the game, although in trouble often. The only run scored on Noel was in the ninth.

The Green tallied twice in the fifth; once in the seventh and twice more in the eighth on good luster hits, coupled with a sprinkling of errors. The West Siders threw a scare into the Green cohorts in the last inning when McCann and Foley cracked out singles and Mantelli walked, crumpling the sacks with some out. Noel got out of the hole by fanning Raynor and forcing Holland and Stratton to fly out to the Green outfield. The deciding game of the town playoff series will be played next Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. on the West Side grounds, without admitting.

Inning by inning play follows: First Inning West Sides: Raynor, the first man up for the West Sides singled to center. Holland beat out a punt to the pitcher, Stratton sacrificed Sturgeon to Wallett. On the squeeze play, Raynor was out at the plate, Hewitt to Forgett. Locke stole second. Statisticky out, Hewitt to Wallett. No runs, two hits, no errors. Green: Dowd grounded out, Mantelli to Stavnitsky. Wright walked, Boggini struck out. Wright stole second. St. John out on a fly a mile high to Holland in center. No runs, no hits, no errors. Second Inning West Sides: Lamprecht walked, McCann beat out a punt to the Green bench. The old-timer made a fine catch of a hard fly ball. Forgett reached first on Foley's miscue, Hewitt going to second. Sturgeon hit a line drive into Stavnitsky's hands for the last out. No runs, no hits, one error. Third Inning West Sides: Holland drove one down the third base line for one base. On a sacrifice play, Stratton was out on his ground hit, Wallett to Boggini, who covered the bag. Locke singled to right, scoring "T" all the way from second. Stavnitsky fled out to Lefty St. John in center. Lamprecht hit to short and Wright, pulled out of position, recovered his ground and made a great one-handed stop but threw wild to first. McCann hit to Hewitt who threw wild over first. Locke scoring. Foley grounded out, Sturgeon to Wallett. Two runs, two hits, two errors. Green: Dowd out on a slow roll. McCann to Stavnitsky. Wright scored a long hit into the crowd on right, circling the bases, but was sent back to second on ground rules. Boggini sacrificed, Wright going to third. St. John reached first on Foley's second error of the game. Wright scoring. Wallett singled to left. St. John stole third. Hewitt doubled to left, scoring St. John. P. Burkhardt doubled to right, scoring Hewitt. Forgett doubled to left, scoring P. Burkhardt. Noel, batting for Sturgeon, fanned. Five runs, five hits, one error.

through second, Foley making a nice attempt on the play. Boggini fled out to Foley. Wright stole second. St. John struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors. Fifth Inning West Sides: Locke out, Wright to Wallett. Statisticky fanned. Lamprecht reached first on Hewitt's error. McCann out, Wright to Boggini at second. No runs, no hits, one error. Green: Wallett poled two long foul flies to the Rec and then doubled to the fence in right. Hewitt got a base on a high fly to left that Raynor could not quite reach. P. Burkhardt sacrificed, forcing runners along. Forgett hit a high fly to short center, which Holland failed to reach, scoring Wallett. Hewitt scored on Lamprecht's error on a low throw to third. Noel fled out to Holland and Dowd fled out to Raynor in left. Two runs, three hits, one error.

Sixth Inning West Side: Foley drew a walk. Mantelli was out on a bunted third strike, also getting credit for a sacrifice hit. Raynor reached first on Burkhardt's error on his fly. Holland spoiled a dozen good ones and then fanned. Stratton grounded out, Noel to Wallett. No runs, no hits, one error. Green: Wright singled to right field. Boggini out on an infield fly to Mantelli. St. John walked. Woody Wallett hit into a double, Foley to Stratton to Stavnitsky. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning West Sides: Locke grounded out, Wright to Wallett. Stavnitsky fled out to St. John in center. Lamprecht fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors. Green: Hewitt fanned. P. Burkhardt doubled to the Chaney school in left. Forgett out, McCann to Stavnitsky. Noel reached first on McCann's error, Burkhardt going to third on the play. Dowd beat out an infield roller, Burkhardt scoring him. Noel, advancing to third, was nipped on a throw, Stavnitsky to McCann. One run, two hits, one error.

Eighth Inning West Sides: McCann and Foley both singled and Mantelli, filling the bases with none out. Raynor, up in the pinch, struck out for the third time of the game. Forgett got a foul tip on the ear off Holland's bat. Fly batted out to Boggini back of first and Stratton fled out to St. John in center. The Green pitcher pitched himself out of a bad hole. No runs, two hits, no errors. Green: Wright reached first on Stratton's error. Each West Side infielder had made one or more errors at this point. Boggini singled to center. St. John fled out to Locke in right but on the throw in to first base Wright made a clean steal of third. Stavnitsky holding the ball. Wallett fled out to Holland, Wright scoring when Holland in an unsuccessful attempt threw to first to double Boggini. Hewitt attempted a sacrifice, Mantelli leaving the ball over Stavnitsky's head. Boggini scoring. Burkhardt singled to left. Forgett fled out to Holland. Two runs, two hits, two errors.

Ninth Inning West Sides: Locke fled out to the catcher. Stavnitsky singled over third. Jones, batting for Lamprecht, fanned. McCann reached first on Wright's error. Wright bobbled again on Foley's ground hit, Stavnitsky scoring. Mantelli was hit by a pitched ball. Lovett, batting for Raynor, fled out to St. John. One run, one hit, two errors. SENSE AND NONSENSE

The auto sheik drives with one arm because he can't afford a chauffeur.

She was parked in front of a fire hydrant for two hours. A cop was waiting for her. Cop—I've waited for you for hours. What's your name? She—It wouldn't do you any good if I told you. You look like a nice boy—but my husband is about twice your size and very jealous.

The old-fashioned girl may have been green, but she didn't fall for a stranger just because he rode in a four-wheeled vehicle.

A man has named his old Model T "The Serpent" because it always rattles before it strikes.

Maize—Is your boy friend a one-arm driver? Mamee—Not him. He takes a taxi and uses both arms.

Four wheel brakes may be what's the matter with the automobile industry.

The outside loop in a plane doesn't seem very thrilling if you have sat in a rumble seat while a flapper took corners.

There are a lot of necking pairs We'd put upon the grille: They do not park beside the road But drive right down the middle.

Our idea of a fine job is that of a judge in a traffic court.

Finish It With Flowers He held her to his manly breast And murmured, "How I love thee!" He had not time to tell the rest—His roadster climbed an elm tree.

Why did you shed such copious tears at the funeral? Friend—I was thinking of the dear woman who was still a passenger but no longer able to drive from the back seat.

Vending machines now say "Thank you". Why not an auto to say: "Gangway for your betters, darn you."

Census Taker—What is your job? Man—Floor-walker in an angel factory, as he lowered the safety gates over the grade crossing.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

One advantage of telling the truth is that you don't have to remember what you said.

Mr. Wiggs—Well, if you saw this radiator was boiling, why didn't you stop at the next farmhouse and have it filled?

Mrs. Wiggers—Why, John, you know your doctor warned us that most of the country well water was filled with typhoid germs.

Bachelor—I'll bet if I was married I'd be boss and tell my wife where to head in.

Married Man—Yes, and I suppose when you get to a railroad crossing you honk your horn to warn the oncoming express to get out of your way, don't you?

Here's a New Theme For the benefit of pedestrians who trudge the highways: Walk on the left side of the highway.

Walk on the left side of the highway—

Walk on the left side of the highway—

For the benefit of motorists who burn up the highways: Drive on your half of the highway.

Drive on your half of the highway—

For the benefit of the traffic cop on the highways: If you must pinch, why pinch. We do not need any lectures.

No matter how wide you make a road, there will always be drivers who want to saunter over and go to sleep right in the middle of it.

THE PARTING Visitor: So your excellent cook left you. Did she part the best of friends? Mrs. Smythe: Yes—Mr. Smythe and myself.—The Humorist.

FED-UP After Dinner Speaker: After partaking of such an excellent meal, I feel that if I had eaten any more I would have been unable to speak.

"Bring him another sandwich," came a drowsy voice from the rear of the hall.—Answers.

DEEPER DIVING London.—A new diving bell in use here is said to permit divers to ascend to depths never before reached.

It is merely a station lowered in the water from which divers can descend and come up from the bottom faster. Because divers have to stop at various levels on their way up or down because of nitrogen bubbles forming in their blood, deep diving has been dangerous in the past.

THE TINYMITES

The basket man was very kind. He told the bunch he didn't mind if they looked over his baskets. "My, they're dandies," Clowzy cried. "I'll bet you sell a lot each day as you are traveling on your way. And that must make the donkey glad, to get them off his hide." "Well, boys, I make them all myself and pile them high upon a shelf, and then I load the donkey down-and on our way we go. Folks buy the baskets that I bring, and they are used for everything. It seems I lost along because the donkey walks so slow." And then the man went on his way and left the Tynymites to play. They found a restaurant nearby and had a bite to eat. When it was dessert time they got some tasty cake and ate a lot. The Travel Man said, "Say, don't stuff. That cake is pretty sweet." Out on the highway once again the Tynymites all listened when they heard a real loud tooting.

(Clowzy has his picture taken in the next story.)

WIRES TORN DOWN IN BIG WINDSTORM

Saturday's Storm Gives Trolley and Electric Company Plenty of Trouble.

The windstorm that broke in the Manchester area just after noon Saturday did much damage and especially to the property of the Connecticut Company. The first trouble came when a large limb on the old tree in the roadway opposite the Community Club on North Main street, fell across the high tension wires resulting in a blow-out of Rockville power station leaving but little power on the wires to drag the cars on both the South Manchester and Rockville lines. Buses from Hartford were sent to transfer the passengers as the Buckland substation also went down when a limb fell across the wires and blocked the road in Buckland.

Buses were in service 1 o'clock and as it was only possible to keep one car going between South Manchester and Hartford, buses were also put into use on the South Manchester line taking the passengers from the Laurel Park station to South Manchester and back. It was four hours before the South Manchester line was cleared and cars were running through.

In addition to this a tree was blown down on the Rockville line that made more trouble on that line and it was some time later before the regular service was continued. A large tree on Charter Oak street blew over and blocked the roadway. It was endangering electric wires and the crew from the Manchester Electric company cleared it up. On Maple street, near the Lewis garage another limb broke and this, too, was removed by the same crew.

Yesterday a limb fell across wires opposite Teachers' Hall and was in danger of falling onto the sidewalk, when it was discovered. It was removed by Electric company workmen.

WOMAN JAILED FOR LIQUOR SALE

Mrs. Lena Alsacovich Gets 30 Days Sentence—Takes An Appeal.

Mrs. Lena Alsacovich of 146 South Main street was given a jail sentence of 30 days, ar. fined $200 and costs by Judge Raymond A. Johnson in the Manchester Police Court this morning for keeping liquor with intent to sell, and actual sale. The woman was represented in court by Attorney Raymond J. Radin of Hartford. Mrs. Alsacovich pleaded guilty to both charges. No evidence other than the woman's record was introduced. When the officers arrived at the house last Monday night they found a quantity of beer, some mash, alcohol and all the implements for making "hooh."

Attorney Radin pleaded for leniency because the woman had seven children. He claimed she sold the liquor in exchange for potatoes and sweet corn. It was the third time Mrs. Alsacovich had been in court for the same offense. Her husband has been convicted three times for selling liquor. Judge Johnson believed it was time that the woman be taught a lesson. Heretofore she had been shown leniency because of her large family and she has persisted in breaking the law.

When Mrs. Alsacovich heard the sentence she set up an uproar. She maintained she would go to jail and allow the town to take care of her family. After quiet had been restored an appeal was taken to the September term of the Superior Court.

Judge Johnson suspended judgment in the case of Albert Gardner of 21 Ridge street who was arrested Saturday night for intoxication. Alme Roy of 188 Lawrence street, Hartford, had his case continued until tomorrow morning so that his attorney could be in court. He was charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and was arrested last night.

Miss Dorothy Clegg, chemist at the Oxford Soap factory, and Miss Rose Longpre of the same company are touring to Canada in Miss Clegg's car and will visit at Miss Longpre's home in Montreal.

AUTO ACCIDENTS FEW IN WEEK-END HERE

Two Minor Bumps and One Drunken Driver Only Police Investigations Made.

Saturday and Sunday were much more free from accidents than has been the case in several months. Saturday night at 5 o'clock, automobiles owned by James Holden of 248 Whitney street, Hartford, and Ernest E. Bartley of 65 Hemlock street, came together on Center street. Both cars were going west. Bartley put out his arm to make a turn into Church street. Holden thought he was going to stop and started to pass with the result that both cars were lightly bumped. The case was investigated by Officer Raymond Griffin and no arrests were made.

At 8:45 Saturday night Archie M. Shaw of South Coventry was driving north on Main street followed by B. L. Knight of 145 Pine street. Shaw put out his hand, indicating that he was going to slow up and Knight who thought he was going to stop tried to pass him, just as Shaw turned and was struck by Knight's car. The damages to the cars were not such as to prevent them from proceeding and after the accident had been investigated by Officer Seymour they agreed to a settlement between themselves and there were no arrests.

Alme Roy of 188 Lawrence street, Hartford, was picked up at 10:20 on East Center street by Officer Griffin who brought him to the police station where he was booked under the charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. There was a man and Roy's wife in the car. The case was continued in court today.

Miss Grace Adams has returned to her apartment in the Johnson block after a three weeks' visit with her father at Gardiner Lake, Colchester.

LOCAL MAN REVIVES UNDER-TOW VICTIM

Herbert L. Carlson's Knowledge of Resuscitation Saves Life.

The knowledge of artificial resuscitation methods enabled Herbert L. Carlson, Manchester physical education director at a Schenectady, N. Y., junior high school, to help save the lives of two persons rescued from drowning at Narragansett Beach yesterday afternoon. Carlson, in company with friends from Manchester and Worcester, Mass., was spending the day at the shore resort when the demand for his services occurred when a woman and her son were victims of a strong under-tow current running with the heavy surf.

Mr. and Mrs. George Peckham and their son, also of Worcester, were the bathers who got into difficulty. Mr. Peckham succeeded in bringing his wife and son to shore after they had been dragged beneath the waves. Both were unconscious, and a girl on shore rushed for assistance.

Carlson, a summer playground director here, happened to be the only person in the vicinity familiar with resuscitation methods and the Manchester man hurried to the assistance of the stricken couple. After considerable work the woman regained consciousness, the boy having recovered in the meantime.
