

THREE PRIMARY CONTESTS FACE REPUBLICANS

Voters to Pick Candidates for Selectmen, Assessor and Representative in Tomor- row's Polling.

Manchester voters will go into their party primaries tomorrow to nominate candidates for town offices. The polls at the Municipal building will be open from 10 in the morning until 9 in the evening, daylight saving time. The Republican party faces three contests, the Democrats none. Judge Alexander Arnott will be moderator.

Assembly Contest
Leading interest in the Republican contests is that for Representative in the General Assembly. The present incumbents Miss Marjorie Cheney and Judge Raymond A. Johnson seek re-election. A third contestant is Selectman George E. Keith. Leading politicians here say that the keenest contest is between Miss Cheney and Mr. Keith. Judge Johnson is a most valuable representative for Manchester and it is believed the great majority of voters here recognize that fact and will return him to the Legislature.

Selectmen Fight
The present Board of Selectmen faces a contest with Mrs. Ella F. Burr seeking the honor of being the first woman selectman here. Mrs. Burr has sought place on the board with no particular issues. She has simply stated that she believes the women should be represented on the board. On the other hand her candidacy seeks to break up one of the most efficient boards by which Manchester has been served. The present Selectmen are Arvid Gustafson, Albert T. Jackson, Jarle Johnson, George E. Keith, W. W. Robertson, Thomas J. Rogers, Wells A. Strickland.

Assessor Candidates
The third Republican contest is for a place on the Board of Assessors. The candidates are Loren C. Clifford, Jr., and Emil L. G. Hohenthal, Jr. Both have made active campaigns in their own behalf. Mr. Hohenthal has the support of practically every member of the Republican town committee and Mr. Clifford who is a former manager of the Telephone exchange here holds wide circle of friends. Mr. Hohenthal has just completed a term of years as a member of the Board of Relief and is, therefore, thoroughly acquainted with the Assessors' books. He is also a property owner and a building contractor and thoroughly acquainted with property values.

To Get Out Vote
The Republican town committee will have workers at the Municipal building all day tomorrow to get out a big vote. Each of the contestants is also making plans for getting out a big vote in the Primary. Since there are no contests in the Democratic party no attempt to get out a big vote in that party will be made.

CABINET MEMBERS QUIT IN PANAMA

Three Resign—People Gather in Public Square to Excitedly Discuss Situation.

Panama, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The political atmosphere here was cleared somewhat in the forenoon today by announcement of the resignation of three members of the Cabinet. Interior Secretary Robles, Finance Secretary Duque and the Foreign Affairs Minister Arosemena.

Officials said the resignations grew out of differences between Secretary of Education Duncan and the Assembly in which the assembly recently repudiated Duncan and asked the President to refrain from using him as his official representative in the Chamber concerning educational matters.

Tells Reporters.
Secretary Clement conferred with President Arosemena for an hour before luncheon, studying the resignations of the three members. At the presidential offices receipt of the resignations was not admitted although Secretary Quijano said they had been rumored.

SURE TO GET THEM SOONER OR LATER

Groveton, Tex., Sept. 8.—The night was dark and, as Robert Berry passed a clump of bushes in his sedan, a figure started up out of it. He stepped on the gas and a bullet tore after him, plowing through his windshield. Behind him Howard Lott sped in a car and received a load of buckshot in his car's gas tank.

The two drivers stealthily stole back and found the men who had fired upon them. They were two policemen of this city. When asked the reason for the shooting, they replied: "A couple of kids are supposed to be eloping, and we gotta stop 'em."

PERU'S PRESIDENT IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Lima, Peru, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The government today ordered two physicians to see the deposed president, Augusto B. Leguia daily at San Lorenzo Isle, the penal institution where he is confined, seriously ill with a nervous breakdown.

The physicians were ordered to observe his needs "free from any political prestige considering him as any other patient who owing to his responsibility before the nation, is detained in that place."

The doctor will issue daily bulletins of Leguia's condition. The latest bulletin said that owing to

URGES VOTERS HERE TO NAME JOHNSON

Says He Should Be Returned to Assembly Regardless of Running Mate.

The following letter in connection with tomorrow's Republican primary contest for representative was received today by The Herald:

Editor of The Herald:
It has been most gratifying to me to learn from various contacts that the friends of both George E. Keith and Marjorie Cheney were openly advocating the re-election of Raymond A. Johnson as representative from Manchester. Every thinking voter who goes to the primaries Tuesday will vote for Judge Johnson in addition to voting for either Mr. Keith or Miss Cheney because Judge Johnson will be the most important member of the incoming legislature.

Because many folks do not keep posted upon the legislative set-up in this state it might be well to explain here that Judge Johnson has been a member of the all-important judiciary committee in the last three sessions of the house and in the last session was the house leader. Being familiar with every piece of legislation under consideration and in most cases carries the authority to either pass or reject a bill.

Earthquakes in Italy Terrorize Residents

Candela, Foggia, Italy, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A strong earthquake of six seconds duration was felt a few minutes before midnight. It was preceded by loud rumblings which terrorized the people. No damage was caused but houses weakened by the July quake were endangered anew.

SANTO DOMINGO'S DEAD NOW MORE THAN 4,000

Santo Domingo, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Santo Domingo razed by a hurricane last Wednesday, which took more than 4,000 lives today was fearful of another scourge—pestilence. Insufficient medical supplies, the filth of the uncleaned streets and the lack of food and other nourishment, all contributed to a condition which greatly worried physicians and created a situation of bodies of persons killed by the hurricane continues.

1,000 Have gangrene
The attitude of the physicians probably was best indicated in that all persons are taking every prophylactic injection possible. With the hospital survey unfinished it is known there already are more than one thousand storm victims here who have gangrene, or other infections, some of which are beyond hope of ultimate relief.

At one camp yesterday, more than 1,300 persons took antitoxin inoculations for typhoid. The medical supplies are those sent here from San Juan, Porto Rico and from Havana, Cuba, and are serving the island republic wonderfully.

Must Clean Streets
As a sanitary measure the physicians here feel that the city's streets should be cleaned of all their debris. But the task is proving an impossible one, because there is not an automobile or truck or wagon in the country which was not damaged in the hurricane.

The German ship Medea signalled from off shore during the night that it had fifty tons of provisions from Porto Rico aboard as well as electricians who would help restore the city's power plant. The ship said that additional medical supplies had to be sent both by ship and by plane. These are expected tomorrow.

Dr. Barrios, medical inspector from Porto Rico, yesterday afternoon began the construction of a tent hospital near the presidential mansion. It is designed to take care of 1,000 patients, the first of whom probably will be admitted today.

ROADS IMPASSABLE

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Heavy rains lasting more than 24 hours had seriously swollen the Ozama river today, and made travel through the hurricane zone in the interior of Santo Domingo all but impossible. The Ozama's flow has increased to 15 miles an hour, preventing boats from entering its mouth.

Airplanes today formed virtually the only mode of travel into the area where last week about 4,000 persons lost their lives and far more than that number received injuries. Relief work went forward today as expeditiously as possible under such circumstances.

Planes Arriving
The population watched the arrival of the planes.

FIND THIRD BODY ON WHITE ISLAND

Stockholm, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The frozen northern wastes of White Island have given up another body, presumably that of the third member of the Andree North Pole balloon expedition in 1897.

A party of journalists aboard the sealing vessel Isbjorn, managed to land Saturday and make a search for relics of the ill-fated expedition which Dr. Gunnar Horn and his associates had left behind.

BRIAND'S PLAN IS KILLED AT LEAGUE MEET

French Minister's Scheme for United States of Europe Dies a Gentle Death; Studying Other Projects.

Geneva, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand's scheme for a "United States of Europe" as outlined in his memorandum of May 17, died a gentle death at the hands of the 26 nations invited to participate with France when their representatives discussed the project in the Council of the League of Nations today.

That the memorandum of May 17 is dead and that from the replies already published and the free discussion of them at this session and in the assembly to come will arise a new conception of organized European action was the general opinion of the outstanding diplomats concerned with the subject.

Consider Other Plans
Several plans are under consideration for such a federation as might emerge from the coordinated opinions of the various powers which have put forward ideas opposed to or strengthening M. Briand's proposals.

The appointment of a plenary committee, to study such organization, was the idea of the League or to the political committee. To be joint discussion by both, were indicated as possible new developments.

If the latter course should be adopted, reasonably early action might be expected but if a special committee is created the whole matter may hang fire for months or not come up at all again until the next assembly meets.

STATE'S DEMOCRATS SET FOR BUSINESS

To Open Headquarters in New Haven Right After Convention on Wednesday

New Haven, Sept. 8.—(AP)—State Democratic headquarters in the Lincoln building in court street, were almost in readiness for occupancy today but "business" will be started at this new stand right after the convention which will be held Wednesday night and Thursday at Eastern Point.

Philip Troup of this city, will present the name of Professor Wilbur L. Cross to the delegates for the governorship, in behalf of the New Haven delegation. It is expected there will be several seconding speeches.

Colonel Norris G. Osborn veteran editor, and intimate friend of Professor Cross had hoped to go to the convention and if physically able, make the nomination speech. But the Colonel is quite ill for the second time in a month, and he will not be at the convention.

CONFESSES MURDER

Chicago, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Without a clew to work on when Mrs. Marie Pelletier, 49, was slain over three months ago, the police of Berkeley fell back on diligence and for a reward today had a confession from Rudolph Hegovic, 21.

Police Chief James Mikes was convinced from the fact that a woman's purse was missing that a nervous kidnap man was responsible. For weeks his men questioned every purse-snatcher arrested in Chicago. They had no luck until Hegovic was caught after stealing a purse last week from a woman on the north side. Under questioning early today, Hegovic admitted the slaying last May 22.

STATE'S HEALTH

Hartford, Sept. 8.—(AP)—No cases of measles in Connecticut were reported to the state department of health for the week ended today, and other communicable diseases reported were very light in number of cases.

ARGENTINA NOW QUIET FOLLOWING THE UPSET

The first official act of Dr. Enrique Martinez, right, acting chief executive of Argentina, was to place Buenos Aires, the capital city, under martial law when disorders broke out after the resignation of President Hipolito Irigoyen left. Martinez was later also forced to resign when Army and Navy takes over government.

FOUR ARE KILLED OVER THE WEEKEND

Death in various guises claimed four lives by violence over the weekend in Connecticut, the list including an airplane fatality, an automobile accident, a drowning and a fatal shooting.

E. R. Booth, of New York city, flying to his summer home at Bradford, N. H., with Pilot John A. Cooke, also of New York, was fatally burned in a plane accident at Washington. The flyers were trying to get their bearings after becoming lost in a fog when their plane burst into flames. Cooke nosed the craft sharply toward a small clearing but missed his mark and crashed into a tree.

The pilot, who suffered a broken jaw and numerous minor cuts, leaped from the burning wreckage and pulled Booth to safety. The latter was yesterday at New Milford hospital where the pilot, who is expected to recover, is also confined.

Trick shooting by Stephen Kubrosky, 20, attached to the submarine base at Groton, resulted in the death of Marie R. Woods, 46, in Norwich. The sailor, a friend of the Woods family was shooting at a target in the backyard of the Woods home. The girl was reading on a porch nearby.

Playfully pointing his 22 calibre rifle at her, Kubrosky cried "Look out Marie, I'll shoot you."

As he pulled the trigger he whirled the gun away from the girl the bullet going wild. Amused at the girl's fright, Kubrosky tried a hit trick a second time. The third time the sailor proved less dexterous with the gun and the bullet struck the girl in the eye and penetrated her brain.

Kubrosky who fled after the shooting was being sought today by police.

Stolen Markers
William Tomasko, 47, was fatally injured in Bridgeport when a small cart which he and his son Frank, 8, were pushing was struck by a hit fractured skull and his name was placed on the danger list at Bridgeport hospital.

The hit and run automobile police later learned was equipped with markers which had been stolen from another machine.

John Castaldo, 9, drowned in New Haven while swimming with three companions in West river. He was brought to the surface after being immersed for about a half hour and temporarily revived with an inhalator.

KILLED ON HIS LAWN

Falmouth, Mass., Sept. 8.—(AP)—State detectives and the police of a dozen Cape Cod towns armed with the most meager of descriptions, were searching today for the murderer of Clarence A. Parker, local chain store manager. Parker was shot and killed on the front lawn of his home yesterday while returning from his store.

Both Thrown Out of Office

Nationwide Holiday Declared Today — Military Junta Now in Power — Leaders of Former Regime Flee Country — Some Under Arrest With President Irigoyen—New Ministers to be Sworn In.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Argentina today welcomed the revolution by which President Hipolito Irigoyen and his regime were ousted from office, and shared a nationwide holiday declared for the purpose of swearing in the new ministers at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Most of the people of Buenos Aires started out for their accustomed work this forenoon, not knowing the holiday was in force. They gladly joined the enormous crowd gathered before the government house or took part in parades, enthusiastically shouting for the revolution.

The military junta headed by General Josevaristo Uriburu, declared the inauguration of the new ministers should be one of "solemnity befitting the moment."

The new government continued to designate officials throughout the country issuing widespread orders for the arrests of certain ministers and officials whose part in the rebellion appeared doubtful.

Gen. Uriburu and the provisional government he established now enjoy unquestioned authority throughout the republic.

Business Resumed
Fervent activity went on today around the government palace where the new Cabinet attempted to pick up the business of the state without delay and carry it forward.

Leaders of the Irigoyen regime have been scattered. Some fled to Montevideo; Uruguay, others are in hiding in Argentina, while some have been arrested.

President Irigoyen spent the morning at the Seventh Infantry barracks in La Plata, where he was virtually interned after fleeing from the capital.

The fallen president will probably remain two or three days on his sick-bed at the barracks, in view of the delicate state of his health.

REVOLUTION SPREADS

Buenos Aires, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The revolution which during a sanguinary week-end in Buenos Aires overthrew the government of President Hipolito Irigoyen and established a new regime headed by General Josevaristo Uriburu spread to every corner of the republic.

Province after province telegraphed its adhesion to the new government order. It was recognized today from the River Plate to Cape Horn, and from the entrance of Andes to the Atlantic ocean. In most cases the overturn was accomplished almost without disorder, the people greeting advances of Buenos Aires happenings with cries of "Viva Republica. Viva Nevu Gobierno."

New provincial government heads designated by the junta, or provisional government installed by General Uriburu at Buenos Aires, took charge. From every provincial capital came the same words: "Complete calm prevails."

Back to Work
In Buenos Aires citizens returned to work today after an eventful Saturday and Sunday, which saw the political uncertainty of weeks ended in a succession of events which began, developed and culminated rapidly in the triumph of Vice-President Martinez, mutiny of the army and navy, actual resignation of President Irigoyen and his internment, practically a prisoner in a military barracks and the establishment of a new government headed by General Uriburu, 44-year-old opposition leader.

Martial Law
While martial law still prevails and the atmosphere still is charged with the tenseness growing out of hopes of the utmost enthusiasm is shown for the new order of things. Cadets and troops returning to their barracks from the fighting in front of government house and the newspaper La Epoca building, passed through cheering lines on the sides of the streets.

JOHNSON-SMITH

A number of Manchester friends attended the marriage in New London Saturday of Miss Eunice Rogers Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arvin M. Smith of this city and Elton Alfred Johnson, son of Mrs. J. A. Johnson of Ridge street.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white chiffon trimmed with shadow lace. Her tulle veil fell from a lace cap and was caught with orange blossoms.

Miss Marjorie Frances Smith, who attended her sister as bridesmaid, wore a quaint pink net dress with puffed sleeves, flesh colored mitts and lace hat to match. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of colored flowers.

Janet Knowlton Smith, four-year-old niece of the bride, who was flower girl, wore a pale blue organdie frock in old-time style and carried a basket of pink rosebuds.

Ernest R. Johnson, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The Smith home was artistically decorated with palms, pink asters and candelabra with pink candles, which were lighted during the ceremony. A reception followed for about 75 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left later by automobile for an automobile trip and will be at home to their friends after October 1 in their newly furnished flat at 25 Marble street.

The bride is a graduate of Williams Memorial Institute and New Bedford Normal School. For the past four years she has been teaching in the Nathan Hale school in this town. Mr. Johnson is a graduate of the Manchester High school and is a buyer for the J. W. Hale company's store.

ZELENAKS-AMBROSE

Miss Abbie Ambrose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ambrose of 16 Columbus street was married this morning to John Zelenakas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Zelenakas of Brattleboro, Vermont. The ceremony was performed at St. Bridget's church this morning at 9 o'clock by Rev. C. T. McCann.

The bridal attendants were Miss Anna Katakavek, cousin of the bridegroom as maid of honor, Miss Isabel O'Brien and Miss Mary Filkins were bridesmaids. John Ambrose, brother of the bride was best man and the ushers, William Katakavek, cousin of the bridegroom and George Zelenakas of Brattleboro, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride who was given in marriage by her brother-wore a gown of white bridal satin with necklace of pearls. Her tulle veil fell from a cap of lace and was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white Killarney roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Katakavek, the maid of honor wore orchid georgette with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of Tallman roses. The bridesmaids were now in attire of frocks of green georgette, with large horse hair hats and arm bouquets of Madame Butterfly roses.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast for 100 guests, including relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The bride and groom were at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose, 16 Columbus street, where the reception with cut flowers of the season and palms.

Mr. and Mrs. Zelenakas left later on an unannounced wedding trip, the bride wearing a black and white ensemble. In the afternoon the bride and groom will leave for the present make their home with the bride's parents. The bride has been employed in Cheney Brothers' cravat department and the bridegroom is assistant manager and shipper for Morris & Company at Depot Square.

ORLOWSKI-KRAJEWSKI

The marriage of Miss Helen Krajewski to John Orlofski of Rockville took place this morning at St. Joseph's Church, Rockville, at 9 o'clock. The bride wore a gown of white satin with veil of tulle and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister who was maid of honor wore green georgette, and the four other young women attendants all dressed similarly in pink. The bridal party motored down to Manchester to have their pictures taken at the Fallot studio. The bride has been employed by the J. W. Hale company.

MACHIE IS CAPTURED AT WESTBROOK PLACE

Was At Walter Green's Kelsey Point Home When Apprehended By State Policemen. Milton E. Machie of this town, who escaped from the Litchfield County jail at Litchfield on June 26 and who was the object of an exciting manhunt that lasted for several days after his companion in the escape was captured, was apprehended on Saturday at a summer cottage in Westbrook after having lived for some time in Wapping under an assumed name.

Machie had been employed on the farm of Walter Green in the latter place, using the alias of James Jackson. State police officers had received a tip that Machie was in Wapping, that he had been visited there by relatives and that he had been seen on at least one occasion in Manchester. On Saturday Sergeant Henry Heinholt of the Centerbrook barracks with another state trooper came to Wapping to arrest Machie but was told he had gone to Westbrook to do some work on a cottage owned by his employer Green, accompanied by the latter.

Proceeding to Westbrook the State Police officers found Machie at Green's cottage and placed him under arrest in a struggle. Green is the son of Mrs. Mina Blissett who, in 1922, disappeared at the age of 82 and has never been heard from since.

DRY HEAD ANSWERS CAMPBELL'S CHARGES Washington, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Charges made by Maurice Campbell, former prohibition administrator for the Eastern New York District, in the first of a series of articles concerning dry enforcement, provoked a rejoinder today from Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the Treasury.

Lowman said Lowman had ordered him to relax brewery supervision in New York City during the 1928 campaign. "I have read Chapter One," said Lowman's formal statement. "I would judge that the story is the greatest romance of the century." "Major Campbell was a horse doctor in the Army. The horses died. He was a moving picture magnate. The company went bankrupt. As prohibition administrator he failed to dry up New York. He had a free hand. As an author, his imagination beats that of Dante. I have nothing further to say now."

CURTIS TO BROADCAST New York, Sept. 8.—(AP)—An address by Vice-President Charles Curtis in welcome to the French trans-Atlantic fliers, Coste and Bellonte, at a Washington Board of Trade dinner at 8 o'clock tonight (EST) will be broadcast by the Columbia chain. Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker will speak.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT FAILS

New London, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Edward Padock, 18, 159 Congress avenue, New Haven, one of five youths under arrest for theft, attempted to hang himself in his cell at the local police station early this morning. Tying one end of his necktie to the steel lattice work at the top of the cell and fastening the other end about his neck, he broke and he fell to the floor.

Queer Twists In Day's News

New York.—The healthiest men in prison are forgers and bootleggers. The National prison emergency committee surveyed conditions in the New Jersey state prison for three years. It found that in physical fitness forgers led with 88.8 per cent; bootleggers came next with 85.7.

Baltimore.—For his health, Robert C. McCurdy has paddled from Toronto to Baltimore. He made the canoe trip of 1,225 miles in 67 days via inland waters.

New York.—James B. Harges and Charles Creighton have backed a small auto from New York to Los Angeles and back. In 44 days they did 7,810 miles, the greatest speed being 11 miles an hour.

North Pelham, N. Y.—A small automobile is utterly unsuited for Michael J. Fitzpatrick, chief of police, who is a big fellow. He told the village trustees so, exhibiting a buttonless coat, a damaged watch and other evidence of being cramped. The trustees gave him a vacation and authorized him to designate a little cop as his chauffeur.

Montgomery, N. Y.—Has a motor, called 1,500 miles by locomotive, George Halsteln, New York Central engineer, has retired on pension at 70.

New York.—St. James Lutheran church, 103 years old, has abolished name plates on pews. The purpose is to make strangers feel more at home.

Newport, R. I.—Polo appeals to society more than yachting. The coming international races are the sufficient attraction to prolong the season. Many summer residences were closed before Saturday's polo game on Long Island and others will close this week.

OLD SLAVE DIES IN GLASTONBURY

Glastonbury, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Slave soldier in both the Confederate and Union armies, William Thomas, 86, negro, today sleeps his last long sleep.

In poor health since August 9, he died here last night where he was being nursed by the wife of the Civil War. When members of the Leon Goodale Post, American Legion, learned of his death, a deputation was sent to the home with an American flag to cover his body.

Members of the post will attend the funeral Wednesday.

Thomas, who was born into slavery on a Virginia plantation was ordered to fight with the Confederate forces when he was 18. Later, he enlisted with the 34th North as a teamster on an ammunition train.

He was employed by the J. B. Williams company here for forty years and was granted a pension in 1925.

The widow and seven of their twenty children survive.

FARRELL SHOOT'S 72 IN P. G. A. TOURNAMENT

Seems Sure to Qualify After Fine Morning Round; Guest's 68 Best Score.

Flushing, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Charlie Guest, Pontiac, Mich., with a score of 71 for the first 18 holes of the 86 hole qualifying round of the P. G. A. championship assumed a temporary lead in the field of 68. Bill Melhorn, Pensacola, Fla., was in second place with 76 when Guest finished.

Johnny Farrell, former open champion and runner-up in the P. G. A. championship played brilliantly on his second nine and finished with a good 72. Harold Fry, the Californian, after a great 55 for the first nine was steady coming home and posted a score of 72. He missed a short putt at the 18th for 71, which would have tied him for the lead at that time.

OPEN FORUM DEMOCRAT BOOSTS KEITH CANDIDACY

Says Herald Sits on the Fence in Representative Fight in Tomorrow's Primary.

Editor, The Herald: As an unbiased observer, since I am a registered Democrat, and the present three-cornered race for legislative nominations in the Republican primaries is purely a party contest, let me say that your editorial of September 5th, headed "Keith Candidacy" appears to be a masterpiece—of mugwumpian strategy.

Possibly you recall the well known humorist, Dr. Scott, who spoke at several banquets of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce since 1914. He defined a "Mugwump" as "one who sat on a fence, with his mug on one side and his wump on the other."

I think this describes your editorial attitude toward Mr. Keith and his candidacy perfectly. There is just a little too much damning Mr. Keith with faint praise, please the nostrils of those who feel that Manchester's legislative representation could be considerably enhanced.

Your editorial would have been absolutely fair had you deleted three of its entire six paragraphs. I refer to the third, fourth and fifth paragraphs. One line of the fifth paragraph, however, might have been allowed to stand, as follows: "As a citizen, he stands, of course in the front ranks."

Mr. Keith is absolutely right when he states that the views of a Connecticut legislator on the prohibition question are of no importance during the coming election. He knows, and you know, that the repeal of the state enforcement act would be a lot of eye-wash with the federal amendment remaining the law of the land.

And by the same token, any candidate for the state legislature, who goes before his constituency seeking election on the grounds that he believes in the repeal of the state enforcement act to bolster up his candidacy is just one of two things.

He is either an utter fool himself or a sublime believer in the utter foolishness and idocy of the prohibition law. The odds favor his being the latter, since most politicians are not fools but surely have laughed at times at the gullibility of those who elected them.

It is about time that Manchester voters get down to brass tacks on the sort of representation they want.

It is much better to have an "insistently inquiring mind and one not to be confused by a fallacy no matter how skillfully camouflaged" than a "yes-man" who can hand-shake with every member from Cornwall to Saybrook, yet be unable or unwilling to become confused by a fallacy camouflaged under any party label.

Respectfully, WILLIAM P. QUISH, Manchester, Conn. Sept. 8, 1930.

DISTRICT 1-8 TEACHERS MEET WEDNESDAY

To Hear Papers on Summer Vacation Work—Session in Hollister Street School.

The first teachers meeting for the school year will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3:15 in the Hollister street school, which the teachers in Districts 1 to 8 will attend. The program will consist of four items. During the past year about fifteen of the teachers in these districts have attended summer courses in different places. Mrs. Agnes Dwyer, who was a student at the Springfield Summer school will read a paper on "History at Springfield Summer School." Geography at Clark University, Summer School will be the subject by Miss Whitney. Both Miss Sporer and Miss Barnes took trips abroad this past summer and they will both talk on "European Trips", but will touch on different subjects as they did not travel together.

SANTO DOMINGO DEAD NOW MORE THAN 4,000

rival of each plane at the Santo Domingo field, hailing them as angels of mercy alighting from the sky amid a scene of general misery. Aviation assistance has shown that the hurricane after razing Santo Domingo city traveled northwest, destroying everything in its path in an area 25 to 40 miles wide for a distance of about 50 miles.

When the hurricane hit the side of the mountains, rising almost perpendicularly in its path, the storm actually skinned the south slope of the mountain range there and hurled into the air, touching only the high points in the succeeding ranges upon its course to the sea.

The area of the Santiago, Vega and Boca valleys, which are the productive parts of the country, were spared. The people of Santiago with whom observers talked, related that they could hear the storming election on the grounds that he believes in the repeal of the state enforcement act to bolster up his candidacy is just one of two things.

Plantations east of Santiago within the area of the storm were wiped out for a distance of 15 to 20 miles. Relief work organized in Santiago, the metropolis of northern Santo Domingo, today was greatly hampered by the condition of roads and rivers. The forwarding of food to the stricken areas was almost tied up.

Relief work at Santo Domingo City, according to Colonel R. M. Cuts, senior American officer at Haiti, in charge of the air transport service, was progressing as fast as adverse conditions would allow. Yesterday's rain destroyed all hope that the flood would subside within a week or ten days and it was admitted frankly today that the situation was grave. Boats in order to enter the harbor, had to develop a speed of more than 15 miles an hour in order to combat the current.

Small boats were seen attempting to land provisions at the foot of a 50-foot cliff which lies the bulk of the old United States ship Memphis, thrown ashore by a tidal wave in August, 1916.

NO DECISION MADE ON RAILROAD MERGER

Boston, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A preliminary report of the New England committee to the New England governors today said that the burden of proof rests upon those who favor consolidation affecting the New England railroads.

The committee, headed by former Governor Roland H. Spaulding of New Hampshire, gave no final opinion, however, on the several consolidation plans which have been proposed regarding the New England carriers. Its final report will be made before the end of the year.

The report said, because of the importance of the railroad question, "that consolidation may well be given to the possibility of creating an all-New England traffic organization; to the support of which all the New England states might contribute by direct appropriation, and which should be a permanent organization with the widest personnel that can be obtained." The organization would devote itself especially to matters affecting the New England roads before the interstate commerce commission.

The committee said it intends to make further study of the purchase of Boston and Maine and New Haven stock of the Pennrod Corporation, an affiliate of the Pennsylvania railroad and also to further investigate recent changes in ownership of the Maine Central and the Bangor and Aroostook, "as to which the committee has as yet no authentic information."

NOTED BANKER DIES

New York, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Simon William Straus, chairman of the board of S. W. Straus and Company and financier of some of the nation's greatest skyscrapers, died in his suite at the Hotel Ambassador yesterday. He was 63 years old. His death was caused by myeloid leucemia, a form of anemia. He had been ill for a year.

POLICE COURT

The only case before the local police court this morning was that of Fred Lussier of 372 Main street, Hartford, charged with non-support of a 7-year-old girl, Theresa Hall, child of his wife by a former marriage. The little girl has been cared for by Manchester and the town has been forced to support her and action was brought against Lussier. Prosecuting Attorney Hathaway was not ready to go on with the case and it was continued until tomorrow morning.

To the Editor Manchester Evening Herald.

I see by the paper here Friday night where you write a colyume 'bout the boss runnin' fer the legislatur. An' you're doggone right when you blow your horn fer him. It's jest like you say—Geo. Keith seems t' me like a mighty appealin' candidate fer legislative timber. If y' want good four-square, straight-grained stock, free from warps, knots an' season cracks—he's it. An' he'll stand out like a pine tree in a huckle-berry patch compared to a lot of 'em that's in there. He don't need me t' grind his axe fer him, either.

But y' see, Ed, I knows timber, an' I does more'er less writin' on the side—an' th' boss bein' so busy an' all an' me bein' better on spellin', I jest thought I'd write a colyume myself an' set y' straight on one point where you're wrong. An' that's this here prohibition question. Now you drug that in, Ed—he didn't. You come out opposin' his "well known attitude as a dry" an' come right down to it there ain't no argyment between you an' th' boss on that, 'cause y' may know he's dry, but y' don't know his "well known attitude"—not yet. We bin talkin' things over Ed, an' I'm willing t' give y' th' dope if it'll help y' out with th' newspaper.

Accordin' to the boss, you wuz right enough on one thing. He don't agree that "the views of a Connecticut legislator on the question of prohibition are of any importance at present, since he is convinced that the liquor question cannot be an issue in the Legislature next year." An' that's just why he ain't hollerin' about it. What's more, he says they's too much noise on both sides anyways an' too little common sense.

But if a feller can't go to th' legislatur' without spendin' all his time fightin' anything that looks wet'er anything that sounds dry regardless of consequences, come hell or high water, why he can't see any sense to it. An' it's time us sensible folks got together. He ain't int'rested in th' argyment till they's something t' be int'rested in, an' then he'll use his judgement fer th' folks back home. An' between you an' me, Ed, he's a first rate jedg.

When you say he ain't the man "to be confused by a fallacy no matter how skillfully camouflaged," you sure proved it, includin' the fallacy of your argyment about prohibition next session. Course you got a right t' your opinion, but you're all wet, Ed. An' th' boss is willin' t' bet you, in th' first place, that th' liquor question won't cut no figger in th' Legislatur' next year, an' in the second place there won't ever be no substitute laws come up serious unless th' Naytional laws is changed first.

An' furthermore jest t' see who's right or wrong he says he'll bet you a drink on it, an' y' know what his'll be but you kin name your own.

Happy Holmes

CANADIAN PARLIAMENT STUDIES UNEMPLOYMENT

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—(By Canadian Press.)—The doors of Parliament swung open today for a special session convened specifically to deal with unemployment.

Premier R. B. Bennett's plans to alleviate the situation were eagerly awaited not only in Canada but in countries with whom Canada trades, because it was believed tariff modification would be suggested as the most effective remedy. The premier's proposals will be enunciated in the speech from the throne.

While the subject matter of the message was guarded with customary secrecy, the report was credited in political circles that tariff increases on a fairly long list of articles will be suggested in accordance with the traditional policy of the Conservative Party.

The expectation was that early carrying out of public works would be provided for, it was also suggested that work may soon be started on further links of the St. Lawrence deep waterways project.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.

TRUMBULL LOOMS

There would seem to be considerable significance in the fact that at the recent Republican caucuses throughout Connecticut only one delegation to the state convention was pledged to the nomination of Lieutenant Governor Rogers for the office of governor—and that delegation the one from his home town, New London. There is no disguising the fact that this indicates a very open mind on the part of the Republican leaders throughout the state with relation to the gubernatorial candidacy and that there is no disposition to regard the nomination as foreclosed in favor of the lieutenant-governor.

As a matter of fact there is a growing feeling that the best interests of the state, to say nothing of the Republican party, would be served by the renomination of Governor Trumbull and that the governor would not refuse to run again, even though he did some time ago determine not to accept another term.

There are various reasons why the Republican party in Connecticut must put its best foot forward this fall. Unemployment and business slackness inevitably result in some measure of political discontent and in a tendency on the part of some voters to seek a "change." Then, too, the Democrats are practically sure to make a much better nomination for governor than they usually do and Dean Cross is likely to make a vigorous and able campaign.

At such a time it is essential that Connecticut Republicans choose the strongest possible candidate. That candidate is Governor Trumbull. He is unbeatable. It is no derogation of Mr. Rogers to express the belief that his qualities as a vote getter would be likely to prove inferior to those of Governor Trumbull whose record would insure his return to office.

THE PRIMARY

Participation in the Republican town primary tomorrow is more than a formal duty for voters of that political faith. Contests for three positions in the gift of the people of Manchester are, to all intents and purposes, determinable by that primary, since the strength of the Democratic party is traditionally insufficient to win a bout at the polls against Republican opposition. It is tomorrow, therefore, that Manchester must select two of three candidates for the position of representative in the Legislature; one of two candidates for the assessorship and seven of eight candidates for the Board of Selectmen. Because there is very little chance indeed that any of the winners in the Republican primary will be defeated on election day.

This being the case it is clear enough that the Republican voter who desires to give real effect to his or her ballot must vote in the primary.

The Herald can see no reason why the present Board of Selectmen should not be renominated by Manchester Republicans. It has been an excellent board. It has worked together harmoniously and consistently for the town's interest. We have heard no single reason advanced for a change in any of the memberships; we have never believed in making changes in the board without any reason. The effort of Mrs. Burr to displace one of these members—any member who happens to get hit by the flung stone of her aspiration—seems to us to lack any particular justification.

Had there been an impending vacancy, had there been any one member of the board who did not deserve re-nomination, The Herald would have seen no reason why Mrs. Burr should not have a place on the ticket if she desired it, any more than it now sees any reason why she should have one. There was no impending vacancy and no member who sought retirement or whose retirement there was reason to desire.

In the contest for the assessorship, the contest is between two excellent citizens of wide acquaintance, one of whom, Mr. Hohenthal, is by virtue of his experiences peculiarly fitted for the position while the other, Mr. Clifford, is an estimable gentleman whose equipment for the office is not comparable to that of his opponent. As The Herald believes that the assessorship is a highly technical service of very great responsibility it believes that Mr. Hohenthal should be the choice of the primary—much as it regrets that such a choice would necessarily involve political disappointment to a citizen whom we admire.

In the matter of the contest for representative it is this newspaper's opinion that the paramount duty of Manchester Republicans is to return Judge Johnson, whose leadership of the Republican party in the House and whose position at the head of the Judiciary Committee make him one of the most powerful legislative influences in Connecticut. Manchester cannot afford to lose a representative of that calibre. As between Miss Cheney and Mr. Keith the voters have the choice of two candidates of marked if varying merit. It is really too bad that they can't both win without displacing a representative who, to be completely frank, is more important to Manchester than either of them. But not both can be. It's up to the voters.

WICKED BUT O. K.

It is immoral, it is anti-social, it is in every way indefensible, but we confess to it—we are delighted that the crooks who grabbed Mrs. Whitney's $125,000 worth of gems got away with them and we hope they won't be caught. We are glad that we are wicked enough to feel that way about it. To be so holy as to sympathize with Mrs. Whitney instead of with the robbers must be a highly uncomfortable state to be in.

The Whitneys drove from their home in Evanston, Ill., a dozen miles from the Loop, into Chicago to go to the theatre—Mr. Whitney the cheese man, his bedizened wife and some guests. Mrs. Whitney wore the gems—one ring asserted to represent $50,000 in value, and half as much again in other glittering dewdrops. After the theatre, the party supped out.

Hardboiled Chi gangsters answered Mrs. Whitney's advertisement of new and crudely borne riches by later holding up the Whitney car and helping themselves to the rings, the dewdrops and incidentally the several thousand other dollars' worth of jewelry displayed by the rest of the party.

Ninety-nine law abiding, orderly citizens, reading of this affair, will say to themselves: "Served her right!"

Of course it served her right. Of course it would serve anybody right who vulgarly flaunted a great fortune in precious stones in the presence of a Chicago theatre or supper room. Then why not say so, frankly, openly and honestly?

Why not go further and act on the hypothesis that such losses serve such people right—legally relieve the police of the utterly unfair obligation to put in their time trying to catch the criminals and recover the property in such cases? Contributory negligence is a recognized defense in civil suits. Such outrageous contributory action as that of Mrs. Whitney ought to be a legal defense for the criminals—as, like it or not, it is a moral defense.

LATIN AMERICA STIRS

The sudden outbreak of political discontent in several South American countries almost simultaneously, with revolutionary strife and unsettlement of a serious nature looming in each case, is probably traceable to the same cause in every instance—economic disturbance.

The industrial depression which has been an inconvenience rather than a serious tragedy in this country is not local to the United States nor is Europe the only other sufferer. Times are none too good anywhere in Latin America.

The Latin American temperament is not patient. Nor are the people to the south of us any better able to understand all the causes of business and employment slumps than we are. Bewildered with them, however, is more likely to translate itself into action than with us. While Americans are more or less content to await improvement without any very clear idea how it is to come about our Southern neighbors are liable to make their governments the scapegoat for their ills—and to proceed to throw them out.

It is doubtful if in Argentina, Peru, Brazil or anywhere else in Latin America the people will be able to restore a full measure of

MIDGET GOLF PROBLEMS

The suddenness of the growth of the miniature golf business has occasioned considerable doubt in some quarters as to the status of the peculiar enterprise in relation to various legal applications. The golf courses have come into conflict with zoning laws, amusement park regulations, taxing schedules and a variety of other matters where precedent was lacking.

In Springfield residents in the neighborhood of one of the midget courses began injunction proceedings to have the owner restrained from operating. A compromise was reached in this case by the signing of stipulations under which the proprietor guaranteed to close up at 11 o'clock, provide parking space for the streets and do his utmost to keep his customers from using bad language.

Obviously residential neighborhoods cannot be permitted to be made untenable by amusement enterprises of any kind, and pee-wee golf, if it is to be conducted in such areas, will have to be polite and quiet. Some way is sure to be found to protect the residents—who were there first.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 8.—Those perambulating Manhattanites who have drifted out to Hollywood and then drifted back to Broadway invariably manage to bring back amusing tales of the strange ways of the movie colony.

For the veracity of these, I cannot vouch. I merely hold the opinion that Hollywood is a place where the incredible can happen—including some of their films.

My latest secret agent is Wolfe Gilbert, and if you don't recall the name just start humming "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee." That, with a hundred other hits, can be claimed by "Wolfe."

At any rate, he tells a tale of how he arrived in the most publicized town on the map under a contract to write songs for the singles, talkies or whatever they are when they make up their mind.

"They laid out a very lovely park on this lot," recites the song writer, "it had walks and gardens and fountains and lovely benches and all that sort of thing."

"One morning all of us in the so-called creative department were called upon to send in suggestions concerning this park. We could say what we liked about it, and what we disliked and all that. Well, fresh from New York and trying to be funny, I sent in a note saying that all the park lacked was a couple of bums on the benches."

"You'd expect that to get a large laugh, wouldn't you? To my amazement I received a note a few days later commending me on my suggestion. Someone thought it was elegantly atmospheric. Can you beat it?"

He brings another tale of a celebrated star who, whether he wanted it or not, found himself in possession of one of those fabulous dressing room bungalows with which Hollywood is cluttered.

The star happened to live but a few blocks away and saw no reason for this sumptuous and extravagant gesture in the direction of his ego.

"It was noticed that he went to this bungalow but seldom. Finally someone decided to discover what he used it for."

"Oh," remarked the star, "I hang my underwear upon the chandeliers."

BOMB WRECKS THEATER

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A bomb explosion wrecked the Queen's Theater today, shattered costly memorial windows in St. James's Anglican church and reverberated throughout the business section of Hamilton.

The bomb was believed to have been placed to destroy the theater. Only a few persons were on the street, and apparently none was injured. For some minutes it was believed the city had been shaken by an earthquake. A dozen residences nearby were damaged.

ANTISCORBUTIC LEMONS AND LIMES

When Europeans first began to explore the lands across the ocean it was not unusual for their boats to return to the home port with from 40 to 90 per cent of the crew disabled with scurvy. In many of these old vessels lemons or limes would have been worth their weight in gold, as these fruits are a positive preventive of this disease. When the fact became known, all of the British vessels were required to take lemon juice along on long voyages to prevent the sailors from contracting the dreadful scurvy. For this reason, many British seamen are still known as "limes."

Neither the early Greeks nor the Romans were acquainted with lemons, as they were not introduced into Europe until the 12th century, when the Arabs introduced lemons to Spain.

Lemon trees are very prolific. One tree has been known to produce as many as 3000 lemons in the year. Although about 7,500,000 boxes of lemons a year are used on the North American continent, it is quite likely that the lemon will continue to become more popular as its health value becomes better known.

The chemical composition of lemons and lemons closely resemble each other. Both of them contain large amounts of vitamin C, and are valuable for anyone who is deprived of fresh vegetables over a length of time. The fruits form the basis of many healthful summer drinks, but they should also be used during the winter months when fresh vegetables and other fresh fruits are not so plentiful. The best way to use them is mixed with water as a drink between meals. If you prefer the beverage sweetened you may add a little honey or brown sugar.

The principal minerals found in lemons are lime, iron, magnesium, potassium and phosphoric acid. For this reason, even though the fruits are acid to the taste, their final action on the blood stream is to make it more alkaline.

Those who are on a milk diet and find it a good plan to take a teaspoonful of lemon juice just before drinking the milk.

It is often a good plan to substitute lemonade or a citrus fruit for milk when you are not hungry. Many people find that a glassful of the ade taken the first thing in the morning after arising gives a pleasant taste makers who help run filmdom was faced with a heavy payroll of song writers, directors and what-not. Huge sums of money had been tied up and there seemed to be no outlet.

"Well," commented the domo, "we've had troubles in the picture business, but this is wine and women and now it's song."

There's one more from Wolfe about a conference concerning the music which was to accompany a certain picture.

All the musicians were consulted and, after hearing the film story, Wolfe suggested that Gounod's Funeral March be used in a certain section.

"O. K.," but don't write more than two verses and a chorus for it," the ex-cloak-and-suiter admonished.

German Resort Offers Instalment Plan Outing

Schwetzingen, Germany. (AP)—Vacations on the installment plan are this German summer resort's answer to the worldwide business depression which is keeping too many people at home.

Picturesquely situated between Heidelberg and the Rhine, and famous alike for its palace gardens and the unrivaled succulence of the asparagus, Schwetzingen has decided to issue coupon tickets good for a two weeks' visit, half to be paid down and the balance in monthly installments at $2.50.

The coupons are good not only for board and room, but also for side trips to Heidelberg and other points of interest.

NEW TOWN'S CAMPAIGN

Newtown, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A campaign was under way here today to raise funds in a community drive to pay for a portrait of the late Mary E. Hawley, to be hung in the Edmond town hall as a memorial.

Committees to supervise the drive were appointed last night at a meeting in the town hall, Miss Hawley's last gift to the town.

WASHINGTON LETTER
 BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington—A very few states provide for run-off primaries, but the large majority of them do not. Recent political news appears to demonstrate the frequent value of the run-off as a method of most accurately attaining the desires of the voters.

Texas, South Carolina and Oklahoma are going in for run-offs this year. Texas and Oklahoma have had theirs.

Other states find themselves with duly nominated candidates who probably could not have received the primary votes of the voters of their party in any straight-out two-man contest.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Falling Hair)

Question: H. P. writes: "I have been told that falling hair is caused by thyroid gland trouble. Is this correct?"

Answer: There is, no doubt, a close relationship between the growth of hair and the function of the thyroid gland. Those who have an insufficiency of the thyroid secretion usually become fat and have a poor growth of hair, while the thin person is usually of the hyperthyroid type and has plenty of strong hair.

(Colitis)

Question: Mrs. O. L. writes: "My son, 21 years old, is suffering from colitis. The doctor says it will take a long time to cure him, and that he must not eat meat. He is not living at home, but in a boarding house, so I cannot regulate his diet. How best can I help him?"

Answer: Tell your son to move from the boarding house, as it is the last place in the world where he can get a special diet such as he requires for the cure of colitis. The doctor was right when he said it would take a long time to bring a cure, but wrong when he said that meat produces colitis. "Colon-itis" simply means inflammation of the colon, which comes from dietetic errors of all kinds. I advise your son to eat in a restaurant or cafeteria where he can select the proper foods and thus follow the menu which appears in this paper every Friday.

(Condiments)

Question: Mrs. C. D. asks: "Is a moderate use of condiments very harmful? I find it hard to prepare meals without using a little spice, vinegar, etc."

Answer: Spices and condiments stimulate the flow of digestive juice, and if they are used as all they should be used at a meal, they do not do any harm. Those who already have more acid than they know what to do with, and anything which will excite an additional flow of hydrochloric acid is bad for them.

THE BOOK SURVEY

BY BRUCE CATTON
 NEA Service Writer

"The Santa Fe Trail" by R. L. Duffus, tells one of America's most romantic stories in a manner perfectly adapted to the subject—by an exasperated admirer. He can concoct a mystery story with more twists, turns and convolutions in it than any other writer I know of but he needs a collaborator as sorely as a broken arm needs a splint. His otherwise delightful stories are marred by hackneyed English, wooden characters and unbelievably stilted conversations.

"The Green Jade Hand" is his latest. It deals with theft, murder and general all-around chicanery in Chicago, and—barring the defects noted above—it is a grade-A mystery yarn. There are more complications, twists and subterranean turns to its plot than there are curves in a pretzel, and if you don't object to an amateurish style you ought to enjoy it. E. F. Dutton and Co. will let you have it for $2.

RUSSIAN EXILES GATHER IN PARIS

300,000 of Them Have Built a Little Make Believe State of Their Own.

Paris—(AP)—Two hundred thousand Russian exiles in the environs of Paris have built up a little make-believe state of their own for the preservation of pre-Soviet culture and ideals and the education of their children.

Schools, churches, military societies and social welfare groups have been organized.

Russia in Paris is a littlecross-section of Czarist Russian population including aristocrats, tradesmen, soldiers and workers displaced by the political upheaval.

There are kindergartens, primary schools, high schools and craft schools where exiled Russian children of all classes may learn their native language and culture.

Has No Status

Although he has no official status former Ambassador Basil Maklakov continues to function as legal counselor and advisor to the Russian colony with certain exceptions. The Embassy archives prior to 1916 are kept. An unofficial chancery preserves the records of the consular office and continues to function along the lines of a consular general's office with the former consul general in charge.

Have Churches
 Russians in Paris have three churches and a cathedral beside a theological school, something not to be found within Russia itself.

Most influential of all the colony's institutions, perhaps, is the Gallipoli Union formed of veterans of the Wrangel army, last White Russian Army unit. General Koutepoff, military leader who mysteriously disappeared several months ago, was acknowledged leader of the Gallipoli Union and supposed head of the Anti-Communist military organization in Paris.

Many Italians Seek Jobs in Other Lands

Rome—(AP)—Half the passports issued by Italy are for Italians who wish to go abroad to work. Of the 283,000 persons granted passports in the last fiscal year, 130,633 were looking for work and 152,367 traveling for other reasons.

Most of those who get passports permitting them to work abroad go to France. There is little unemployment there and jobs are easier to find.

All the passports require the holder to return to Italy within a certain time.

Yacht And Plane Save Swede From Irate Bull

Stockholm. (AP)—Driven into the sea by a maddened bull, Severin Johnson, a farmer on the Idholmen island near Stockholm, was dramatically rescued by the combined efforts of a steam yacht and an airplane. Johnson's agonized calls attracted attention aboard the yacht which lay at anchor nearby. A plane was lowered and when the bull was finally driven away by the sailors it was found that the farmer had suffered bad bruises.

An ambulance seaplane was therefore ordered by telephone from the Stockholm airport and the injured man was rushed to a hospital in the capital.

Opera singers in Stockholm became highly indignant when they were ordered to reduce. One would think it would aid their scale work.

The Life Story of LON CHANEY

by DAN THOMAS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth installment in the series of six articles revealing the unusual life story of the late Lon Chaney.

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

Hollywood, Sept. 8.—When Lon Chaney's biggest pictures were being filmed his dressing room at the studio often looked more like a carpenter shop or the dissecting room of a medical college than anything else. Long-haired wigs... strange braces and jackets, meant to deform the body... glass eyes, milky whiteness... lumps of putty for building up a nose or the cheek bones... human hair, to be clipped and glued to the face, in individual strands, perhaps for the scraggling beard of a Chinese... face powder—and goodness only knows what else. It was a simple dressing room, with all the lack of flourish that marked the great actor's private life. Just a long shelf with a mirror in the center, the brightest of electric lights converging at angles before it, a few drawers filled with odds and ends of his peculiar trade and all sorts of gaudy, clothing, medieval robes, nose-eye-brows and whatnot scattered around. Such was the workshop of the master character actor of the generation—the man who could change his face into a thousand others.

Some of Chaney's remarkable art in make-up was secret and will remain so, but a lot of it is known. Because of his unusual ability along this line, he was selected to write the article on character make-up in the Encyclopedia Britannica. Every member of the theatrical profession knows the basic essentials. But the directions Chaney gave will prove of keen interest to every layman who has watched this master of character impersonation on the screen and wondered how he achieved his grotesque and hideous make-ups. Use putty or plastic wax if you want to build up the nose, heighten the cheek bones or blot out the eyebrows. If you want to puff out the face—as he did in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—cotton wool should be inserted between the teeth or in the cheeks. To achieve that baggy appearance under the eyes—and who doesn't remember that hideous character in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—you should put a little putty, cut into a crescent shape, paint it and fix it tight with a few minutes. The nose may be broadened—as was his as the greasy-faced Sergi in "Mockery"—by inserting the clipped end of a rubber cigar holder in each nostril. False teeth—like the jagged ones he wore as the vampire in "London After Midnight"—can be made by fitting dental rubber over the natural teeth, carving the sort of teeth wanted on this dental rubber and painting the whole with tooth enamel to make it glisten. Seams are easy to simulate. You merely brush on collodion, which draws the skin. If you want a deeper scar, apply a second coat of collodion. To remove, just put on a little more collodion, which will soften the earlier coats and permit them to peel right off. A false beard? The best are made with crepe hair, a little lighter than the natural hair. Just take a hank of it, comb well, press between the leaves of a book, cut off straight at the edge, apply spirit gum to the face, attach the hairs and trim with scissors to get the desired effect. Gray hair? Starch or aluminum powder will do it. Aluminum powder is better, but much harder to wash out. To make a blond of a brunet, use "polished brass" bronze powder which is sold in paint stores. Such are the fundamentals of the art that Lon Chaney left behind. But no one will—or can—really succeed him, Hollywood believes, because the exquisite technique that was Chaney's died with him. The star whose reputation for facial make-up and character portrayal spanned the world has lots of imitators but probably no successors. Like all men who are really great he was in a class by himself.

NEXT: Chaney was one of a group of movie stars whose particular art died with them. Mrs. Albanes mother, Mrs. Clara Girardin of West Road. Miss Margaret Dowd, of Pinney street, Ellington, who was unable to secure her diploma in June, as a graduate of Rockville High school, because of the fact that she was short one half of one point, made up the required work during the summer, and has received her diploma.

COTTON MILL BURNS

Somersworth, N. H., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Number Two mill of the Dwight Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of cotton cloth and sheeting, was destroyed by fire early today. The cause of the fire was unknown and the loss could not be estimated, company officials said, until a complete check-up of the contents of the building had been finished. The mill was one of a group of four. It was 650 feet long and five stories high and was used principally as a storehouse. The building was well stocked with finished cotton sheeting, officials said. Aid was called from nearby cities and towns when it seemed that the fire would sweep the entire plant. The flames were brought under control, however, a few hours after the fire started without further damage. The home office of the Dwight Manufacturing Company is located at Chicopee, Mass.

LEAGUE SETTLES PALESTINE MIXUP

Break Between Britain and League Commission is Averted—Its Report.

Geneva, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The Council of the League of Nations announced today the amicable settlement of the delicate situation which had arisen as the result of the mandates commission's recent frank criticisms of British administration in Palestine. The situation was settled "with peace and honor for all," according to a statement made at the opening session of the council. The mandates commission, in making its recent report on Palestine, in which were incorporated criticisms of the British administration, was acting in its proper function, the League Council was told by its mandates reporter Procopce, of Finland.

N. Y. SCHOOLS OPEN

New York, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The biggest educational plant in the world—a four hundred million dollar investment, operated at a cost of a million dollars a day—resumed production today. It is the public school system of Greater New York, and into its 1,061 schools it gathered today 1,057,328 boys and girls, approximately one-sixth of the city's population. Thirty-six thousand teachers—a force twice as large as the police force—were on hand to take charge of them, and the subjects to be studied ran the gamut from art appreciation, now a compulsory two-year course in all New York City high schools, to how to oil a vacuum cleaner. Nineteen new school buildings, erected at a cost of $18,000,000 were opened today, providing 36,379 new seats to relieve the overcrowding that is forever the problem of the New York public schools.

PANDIT NEHRU FREED

Allahabad, India, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Pandit Motilal Nehru, a former president of the All India National Congress and a leader of the civil disobedience campaign, was released today from the Naini or Central Jail. An official announcement said although there was no immediate anxiety regarding Nehru's state of health, he was suffering from an illness, that, in view of his age and his general physical condition, was likely to be progressive. The government's medical board advised that his condition might take a serious turn unless opportunity was given for a full rest and special treatment. An official statement says that since this report was received the Pandit has suffered from high temperature and a return of the symptoms which led originally to the examination.

POLICE CHIEF SHOT

Cartersville, Ga., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Chief of Police Joe Ben Jenkins of Cartersville was shot to death today by a negro he attempted to arrest. Jenkins was awakened about one a. m. by two negroes in an automobile parked near his home. He became suspicious of them and attempted to arrest them. One of the men drew a pistol and fired, killing him instantly. Both negroes then fled.

DENIES KIDNAPING OVER THE RADIO

Texas Governor Works Mysterious Stunt at Hotel as Part of His Campaign.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Governor Huey P. Long last night dramatically walked into his hotel suite and placed before a radio microphone a man who claimed to be Sam Irby, missing after he announced a week ago his intention of filing a slander suit against Long, who is opposing Senator Joseph E. Ransdell in tomorrow's Democratic primary.

The man introduced to radio listeners by Governor Long, read a prepared statement in which he said he had not been kidnaped from a Shreveport hotel early Thursday but slipped away with a requested guard of state policemen after he found $2,500 under his pillow. He said he did not know why the money was placed there.

Hides His Face. Newspapersmen, called to the governor's hotel suite, were introduced to the man by the governor, but they said they did not know whether he was Irby, because he wore a slouch hat and bowed his head. They said the man was rushed out into a freight elevator and then sped from the hotel in an automobile waiting at a side entrance. One reporter said he attempted to follow the man and his escort into the elevator but was jerked out and his coat ripped. He said one of the escorts drew a pistol and ordered the elevator operator to descend, at the same time slamming the door shut himself. Mystery still surrounded the disappearance of James Terrell, divorced husband of the governor's private secretary, who was with Irby at Shreveport and dropped from sight the same night.

Mrs. Nellie Dunn Fay
Mrs. Nellie Dunn Fay, of 34 School street died suddenly at her home on Sunday evening, at 6:30. Mrs. Fay had been at the cemetery during the afternoon, when she visited the grave of her son Walter McNamara, who died just a year ago, having been buried on Labor Day of 1929. Returning home, she was preparing supper, when she became ill, and died in a few minutes. Mrs. Fay had attended mass in the morning, and her death was a sudden and sad shock to a host of her friends.

Elm Tree Removed
The large elm tree which has stood for many years on Park Place near the Henry building, has been cut down. The work was done by several men under the direction of John Lejen and it required about ten days labor before it could be removed. It was a splendid tree, and a landmark of many years standing, yet with the sidewalk narrower along Park Place, the appearance of the street has been very much improved. The Public Works Department are about to resurface Park Place beginning this week, and due to the fact that this thoroughfare was quite narrow, and the traffic proportionately heavy, the removal of the tree, and the subsequent improvement to that part of the city, is much to be admired.

125 At Clam bake
The Elks' Clam bake on Sunday afternoon was a big success, about 125 members were in attendance. Chief Osano served chowder, and a clam bake fit for a king, and the entire program left nothing to be desired. It was one of the red-letter days of the local lodge of Elks.

Drum and Bugle Band of Stanley Dobosz Post received honorable mention for their fine appearance at the 100th Anniversary of the Windsor Fire Department on Saturday.

Field Day
The All Rockville Baseball Club will hold its first annual field day at Henry Park on Sunday afternoon September 21st. It is planned that the affair will be an unusually gala one, and the athletic program which is nearly completed promises to be interesting. In the early part of the day, the sports program will take place, and later there is to be a baseball game between the All Rockville team and the K. of C. team from Stafford Springs.

Clerks Win
The Clerks won the second game of a three game series at Henry Park on Sunday afternoon with a score of 7-2 over the West Ends. This makes one each and the final game is sure to be an exciting one. The fans are looking forward with much interest to the next game, the date of which will be announced shortly.

Lodges and Churches
Fayette Lodge A F & A M will hold its regular communication Tuesday evening, September 9 at which time matters relative to the Masonic Charity Endowment Fund will be acted upon. Alfred A. Guidotti, Worshipful Master will preside at the meeting.

There will be a regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary on Wednesday evening in G. A. R. Hall. As this is the first meeting of the fall season, it is expected a large and enthusiastic number will be on hand.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS RENEWED IN HOME FURNISHING STYLES

Back-to-the-Home Movement Following War Period Activity to be Celebrated in National Exhibits.

Women are returning to the fire-side and family, government figures show, and the back-to-the-home movement will be celebrated throughout the United States by the National Home Furnishings Style Show to be held Sept. 26 to Oct. 4.

Renewed interest in the art of furnishing a home properly has been noticeable for some time, so much in fact that the furniture and allied industries decided to stage a national style show—the first in the history of their business. Dealers in South Manchester will join in the movement and all furnitures stores will have open houses for the public to view their exhibits. Latest designs in furnishings for the home will be arranged attractively in model room displays. Proper arrangement, style and color schemes designed to show the home furnisher how she can improve the looks of her home will feature the show.

That women are leaving offices and taking up the duties of home-making, duties they deserted during and after the World War, is strongly indicated at the U. S. Bureau of Census. More marriages and fewer divorces were recorded last year in figures of more than half of the states.

The average and combined marriage rate last year for 25 states and the District of Columbia was 12.34 to 1,000 population, the figures showed, compared with 11 in 1928, while the divorce rate for the same areas dropped from 2.88 to 2.85. The marriage rate gained in 20 states and the divorce rate decreased, while both the marriage and divorce rates increased in the District of Columbia.

The 1930 marriage rate for the 25 states and the District of Columbia was higher than any rate on record for the United States, a comparison of statistics showed. Several of the most populous states, including New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania, have not tabulated their figures and the urban centers may show some change in these statistics. The marriage rate is always higher in agricultural sections than in city districts, and the divorce rate is always higher in the industrial centers than elsewhere.

Los Angeles County, California, center of the motion picture industry, and Wayne County (Detroit), Michigan, the center of the automobile industry, reported the largest number of divorces in the figures tabulated. This is not a departure, however, from previous years, as these two counties and Cook County (Chicago), in Illinois usually report the largest number of divorces. Every state has what is unofficially known as a "Gretna Green," but in 26 of the states in 1928 there were counties that had a marriage rate of more than three times that of the states in which they are situated.

The states covered by the early census figures are: California, Arizona, Michigan, Wyoming, Nevada, Wisconsin, Washington, Virginia, Vermont, Utah, South Dakota, Rhode Island, Oregon, North Dakota, New Mexico, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Nebraska, Minnesota, Maryland, Iowa, Florida, Delaware, Connecticut, Arkansas and the District of Columbia.

ROOMS FOR GIRLS SHOULD BE SIMPLE

The keynote of the young girl's room is simplicity. It should be wholly unsophisticated and reflect her own daintiness and individuality.

She will want to bring her friends here, she will want a place to keep her school trophies, a place to study and to play.

The proper background for these activities can be arranged by the use of carefully selected furniture and decorations.

Her dressing table will be essentially feminine, but not too fussy. Perhaps it will be a "skirted" one and if it is the material in the "skirt" may be duplicated in the draperies.

Perhaps it will be one of the many charming tables now so reasonable in price, with a mirror of some unusual shape above it. A chest of drawers, to store away the quantities of feminine apparel needed for school wear, can be had in maple or some other equally attractive and appropriate wood.

RUG CUSHION GIVES FEELING OF SOFT MOSS
Everybody enjoys the rich, luxurious feeling of walking on soft moss. That is the effect produced by these rug cushions under the rug. A flat, ordinary looking, harsh feeling rug is softened and enriched by the use of a rug cushion.

Here's Model Dining Room

Against a background of scenic wallpaper in soft, soothing tones and antique ivory woodwork, beautiful Colonial furniture has been used in this delightful dining room. The Colonial lighting fixtures are in keeping with the room while growing plants, banded against the window lend a year-round touch of summer.

VARIOUS PERIOD TYPES EASY TO USE IN GROUPS

Combination May Be Put in Same Room if General Lines Harmonize.

To use period furniture in your home does not mean that you have to make a museum, or show room of it. Nor does it mean that in order to achieve an appearance of unity, every single piece of furniture must be an exact reproduction of some piece of the same period.

Various periods may be combined in the same house and even in the same room if care is taken to see that the general lines harmonize. Easy to Combine. Early American and Colonial designs are very easy to combine with furniture of other periods. The simplicity of the design of these styles makes them very adaptable.

The recent and marked popularity of these styles is evidently accounted for by the fact that we feel instantly that they will not clash with other furniture we may already have.

In the living room where the furniture is usually arranged in small groups, such as chair, table and lamp, or davenport, end table, lamps and ottoman, there is an excellent opportunity for this grouping of furniture from related periods.

CEDAR CHESTS IN MANY FINISHES

This Useful Piece May Now Be Placed in Any Room in the House.

Those who remember cedar chests as the box-like, unpleasantly striped things of a few years ago will be pleasantly surprised at the extremely attractive ones now to be seen.

Chests of oak, walnut and mahogany, with the required thickness of cedar lining, may now be used in the dining room, living room or bedroom, so beautiful in line and finish are they. There are even some in the early American design in hard maple for the room where this style of furniture is used.

Some of the chests are disguised as lowboys while others masquerade as benches. Where it was once necessary to keep the cedar chest in a dark corner, because of its unattractiveness, it is now possible to make it one of the central pieces in any room in the house.

In these days of small homes and apartments, when space is at such a premium, nothing is more convenient than extra storage space, such as is provided by an ample cedar chest.

"This is just another hot wave," said the jazz orchestra leader as he beckoned his musicians to begin to play.

COMMON SENSE, FURNISHING HINT

Selecting Useful Furniture Is Prime Essential in Equipping Your Home.

All that is necessary to achieve an attractively furnished home is to combine good taste and common sense in the selection of the things to go in it. Common sense will lead the home-maker, whether furnishing the home throughout or just adding a few pieces, to remember that the purpose of the home is to serve the needs of the members of the family.

It is the convenience of those who live in the home which should be considered first of all in the furnishing.

Children Make Difference
The family in which there are several small children will have needs in furniture very different from those of the family consisting of a mature couple. Not only the number of persons in the household will govern the choice of furniture for it, but their ages and their tastes and their occupations, will be important factors.

Good taste will direct the house keeper to bring into her home objects of furniture which will not only be useful and convenient for her particular family, but which will also be attractive enough to prove an inspiration and pleasure to them.

Beauty Causes Use
Often in the home the very fact that some piece of furniture or decoration is ugly or of an unpleasant color mars its usefulness. The

WALLS FOR KITCHEN SHOULD BE LIGHTER

Walls for the kitchen should be lighter-toned than floors, their tints increased as natural light necessities demand.

Oilcloth, gloss and semi-gloss paints, glazed papers and tile compositions are better for kitchen-tinted large kitchens.

Rough plaster typifies a pleasant interior. Color is added with paint to the finished "textured" wall or mixed into one of the prepared plastic paints. Either method—is applied with a brush to the wall and then patterned to simulate the slight inaccuracies of old-time hand plaster work.

In keeping with these rough plank floors, also linoleum plank and flagstone patterns.

Peasant pottery, iron T and H hinges for doors and cupboards, pewter and brass lighting fixtures, replicas of pre-electric days electrically fitted, all add picturesque notes.

CALL LINOLEUM VERY EFFICIENT FLOOR COVER

Linoleum is perhaps the most efficient floor covering for the kitchen.

It is attractive in color and design and easy to clean. The inlaid kind will last almost forever. Cementing to the floor is

TASTE IS CREATOR OF CHARMING HOME

The indulgence of personal taste is what is necessary to create a charming home. American homes have been criticized as being too standardized, too much alike.

The one way to avoid having all homes alike, having them give the appearance that they were all cut from one pattern, is for the owners to furnish them to suit their own tastes.

While there are a few absolute rules about arranging furniture in a room, and some underlying principles regarding the combining of colors, the remainder of the question of furnishing and decorating the home is entirely a matter of the personal wishes of the persons who are to live in it.

Exhibit Insignia

Leading stores throughout the country that are cooperating in the nation-wide Furniture Style Show, September 26 to October 4, can be identified by this insignia used in newspaper announcements, show windows and throughout their stores.

COLORS AFFECT SIZE OF ROOMS

Proper Toning Will Reduce or Enlarge Proportions to the Eye.

The woman who has had a great deal of trouble trying to use color in her home will be interested in the experiment which was conducted in two rooms of identical size and proportions.

One of the rooms had dark walls, and all-over carpet and red furniture. The walls of the other room were done in a lighter tone, several small rugs were used on the floor, and blue fibre furniture was employed.

Blue Seemed Larger
The persons who saw the two rooms, after they were decorated and furnished, were all of the opinion—without doing any measuring—that the room decorated in blue was the larger.

The woman who plans to use anything red, yellow, orange or brown, will do well to remember the experiment. These are warm colors, and are aggressive, making objects seem larger and more important than they are.

The cool colors, blue, green and lavender, are well suited to small rooms of southern or southwestern exposure. This may be especially helpful to the woman who is struggling with a very large or a very small room, and unable to work out a color scheme which overcomes its disadvantages.

PARCHMENT IS IN DEMAND TODAY

Parchment continues to be a material much in demand for lamp shades.

Silk shades, both stretched and pleated, are coming back into the extensive popularity they enjoyed a few years ago.

Silk shantung is one of the newest materials, indicating a Chinese influence.

Most of the silk shades are fairly tailored and untrimmed. Prints predominate as decoration for the parchment and mica composition shades.

PLANT RACKS ALL YEAR

Many of the decorative fern and plant racks made especially for use on the porch or in the sunroom, may be taken into the living room in the fall, and perhaps painted a less vivid hue, where they add a cheerful note during the winter months.

Brigham Young, Mormon leader, published the doctrine of "celestial" marriage in 1855.

YOUR HOME "talks" behind your back . . . .

Even your best friends won't tell you what your home tells them! But these impressions do register deeply. And never was there a time when the appearance of one's home mattered so much as it does today. You may have the manner of a sophisticate; but if your manor tells another tale, it becomes a heavy handicap. And a needless one!

For in this modern day your home can be . . . and should be . . . a help in business and social advancement. Nothing is more important than your home environment. First . . . furnish your home. It tells what you are! And to that end these Manchester firms . . . cooperating in the National Furniture Style Show . . . proffer friendly capable counsel.

You're Invited

It will only be a short while from now when these leading Manchester home furnishing institutions will be ready for the National Furniture Style Show. You're invited to join with them. All that's new for the home . . . furniture, rugs, drapery and upholstery fabrics . . . will be presented.

HOT WATER LOOP FOR CIRCULATION INSURES SUPPLY

Improved Piping Plan Gives Flow From and to Boiler and Any Fixture in House.

Not only does cold water extend to the various fixtures, but hot water must be provided for as well, requiring an independent system of piping. Sometimes a third pipe line is required when hard water and soft water are furnished to fixtures independently. When this is the case the soft water line should be valved in the basement so that hard water can be connected, if for some reason, soft water gives out.

A branch from the hot water supply extends to the hot water boiler in the basement or kitchen where the water is warmed, flowing to the several fixtures. One cannot think of an ideal plumbing system without hot water supplied plentifully to every fixture. Yet with all the modern apparatus on the market to warm and circulate hot water to every tap, many are inadequate. After the expenditure of a considerable sum, the owner sometimes finds that after all he hasn't a sufficient supply of hot water, or that the water arrives cold at the fixtures. The trouble lies largely in the manner of piping.

Circulation Loop Suggested

Hot water can be delivered almost instantly at any fixture, no matter how far away from the range boiler, if what is known as a "circulation system" is employed, consisting of a small pipe returned from the highest part of the hot-water riser back to the boiler. Thus a loop for circulation is established through which warm water circulates constantly from boiler back to boiler, regardless of whether water is drawn at the fixture or not. The circulating pipe maintains hot water right at the fixtures at all times, but when there is no circulating pipe, when the pipes quickly cool off, when none is being drawn from the fixtures.

Boilers can be connected so that water at the top is heated first. This is an advantage when hot water is wanted periodically, and gas is lighted to heat it only as wanted. When piped in this way a small body of water at the top (enough for one bath, in this way) can be warmed, and the boiler may be shut down. Thus a small amount of hot water can be obtained without warming the entire contents of the tank.

Basement Boiler Useful

There are many ways of heating water for bathing purposes. The boiler can be connected to the water in a coal or gas range in the kitchen, or it may be heated by a separate gas or coal heater installed in the basement—or (in winter) by a coil in the furnace boiler. One of the best methods is to install a range boiler in the basement, connected to the furnace as well as to a separate coal or gas heater.

Piping is arranged so that in the summer, by turning a valve, the furnace can be disconnected and the separate coal or gas heater used for warming water. In winter the operation is reversed, the water being warmed by a coil in the fire pot of the furnace. Thus independent means for warming water is necessary only in summer, though it should be borne in mind that a larger amount of coal will be burned in the furnace when it contains a water coil.

Coils in the furnace for heating are of several different styles, circular and horizontal. Sometimes they consist merely of a coil of two-inch or three-inch pipe extending around the fire pot, inside, just above the fuel. Others are hollow iron castings of various shapes, and these are best, as they last longest.

When water is to be warmed by a separate coal heater in the basement, there are many types to choose from. Heaters containing a small fire pot surrounded by hollow cast-iron sections through which the water flows, are practical, usually consuming not more than a hod of coal a day to maintain hot water constantly. Many of these have a "magazine feed" which is filled with fuel (usually pea coal) once a day, and that is sufficient for twenty-four hours. Some laundry stoves are made with cast-iron jackets for heating water so that irons may be heated by the same heater that furnishes the supply of warm water for the house.

Violet Rays in Winter Shun Industrial Towns

London.—(AP)—Answering the question whether there is ultra-violet light in winter in industrial towns, S. Morris Bower has measured that in Huddersfield, England. Enough ultra-violet to cause a moderate sunburn he rates as "one degree."

By this scale he finds from December to February there is about one-half a degree, while the maximum comes from June to August with about three and a half degrees.

ASK YOUR GROCER

London.—Perhaps you'll be asking your grocer for some "Monosodium glutamate" in the near future. It is a preparation being made from soy beans in China and Japan, and is used as a flavoring for foods. It can be used in soups and other dishes, and as a meat flavoring.

Rural America Fun For Urban Radio Fans

New York.—He-men from the mountains and backwoods, cowboys from the plains and "real folks" from the farms have come out of their seclusion and needed the call of radio. So today we have on the air a wide variety of programs, all in popular favor, portraying the humor, tragedy and reality of rural American life.

The demand for folk songs, songs of the backwoods and ranch life became popular five or six years ago when WSM, Nashville, brought some folks out of Tennessee mountains and put out on its "Grand Ol' Opry." WLS, Chicago, put on its famous barn dances about the same time, and then the demand for such entertainment started.

Today finds both major chains featuring programs of the backwoods and rural-life type, while major stations all over the country are playing up this sort of entertainment.

"Pie Supper" on Air

One of the most popular of this type of feature is that of the "Crockett Mountaineers," a Columbia chain program featuring a family of mountaineers from the vicinity of Sharpshurg, Ky. All of the characteristics of the mountaineers are put on the air by this group, from their folk songs to the festive "pie supper," which is a picnic to them.

Another popular program presented by a Kentucky family is that of the Pickard Family, an NBC feature originating in its Chicago studios.

This is conducted by Obed Pickard, who was one of the first to act in WSM's Grand Ol' Opry.

Another mountaineer feature carried by NBC is Moonshine and Honeysuckle, a serial drama originating in the New York studios, and still another is Eddie Younger and his Mountaineers.

"Brad" and His Guitar

Probably the best known Kentucky mountaineer in radio is Bradley Kincaid, the "Mountain Boy of WLS," Chicago. He brought a large collection of old-time songs to WLS and made an immediate hit singing and playing them on his "houn dawg" guitar.

Cowboys are invading the studios, too. WGY, Schenectady, has Otto Gray and his Oklahoma Cowboy on the air regularly. KNX, Hollywood, also has a cow-punchin' radio entertainin' aggregation. And KFO, San Francisco, features Clarence Tolman, the "Cowboy Tenor," who learned to sing while herding cattle in the Idaho hills.

"Real Folks" and "Seth Parkers" various programs are probably the best known rural features on the air. They're on the NBC network.

STREET CAR CONDUCTOR SHOWS SAVANTS SITE OF STONE AGE MADRID

By GEORGE M. JOHNSON (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Madrid.—(AP)—Jose Vitoria punches street car tickets as a means of livelihood, but in spare hours hunts curios.

Recently he made a Sunday excursion to Moncloa, the suburb where the new university is being built.

Poking around in huge piles of dirt thrown up by steam shovels on the site of the athletic stadium, he discovered some peculiar objects.

Vitoria informed university authorities and a special meeting of the directing board was called. King Alfonso presided and funds were granted for archaeological excavation.

Professor Hugo Obermaier of Central University and Perez de Barradas, head of prehistoric investigations for the city council, were named to supervise the project. Work has been rushed and approximately one-third of the territory has been investigated with rich findings as a reward.

Coins, wooden kitchen utensils, ceramics with geometric designs, mill skeletons of bulls, goats, birds and other animals are some of the uncovered objects.

"There can be no doubt that a settlement existed on this site," Perez de Barradas said. "It dates around the end of the copper age or the beginning of the bronze age, which would indicate the period from 2500-2000 B. C. We have discovered traces of no less than twenty small buildings used as homes and barns.

"From our work I have been able to piece together a picture of the life of these early Madrilenos. The village was surrounded by steep slopes and in the central square were natural fountains where the villagers filled earthen water jars. "Although women did much of the manual work and designed the fine examples of ceramics, I believe they enjoyed almost a political equality with men. Their civilization, in general, was fairly advanced. Domestic animals were bred and used. Agriculture was practiced. We have found a piece of hard rock fashioned into a crude razor."

A bread slicer which will cut bread into slices of uniform thickness not only saves time and energy but also prevents waste in bread. Slices are never too thin nor too thick for use.

The slicer may be regulated until you get the thickness which you want, after which you merely slice evenly. These slices are especially popular in making sandwiches. They are small enough to be used at the table also, if you prefer to cut bread as it is needed.

Amos 'n' Andy Hard Nuts To Crack For English

London.—Amos 'n' Andy, those popular American entertainers, are like other American humorists, a puzzle to the English. They just can't make out their bolly jokes, doncherknow!

Just how the British feel about this popular pair is brought out in an article in Radio Times by Hubert Foss, who has just returned from the United States. While Foss acknowledges that the team of Correl and Gosden are unbeatable in the United States, he doubts if they would register so well in jolly old England. Here is what he says of them:

"The United States, which seems to feel spiritual need to go 'crazy' over something, whether it be Mother's Day or Lindbergh, has now gone properly crazy over Amos 'n' Andy."

"The first names I heard on setting foot on American soil were those of Amos and Andy. An especial charm lies in the fact that the world of U. S. A. knows Amos better than it knows Rockefeller, and yet can never know him, because there is no Amos to know."

So Much—Yet So Little

"Their nightly 15 minutes is almost indescribable to an English reader, hardly to be understood by an English listener. There is so little in it to describe. It is not a joker's act, nor a mere jumble of wisecrack jokes. The listener laughs, he laughs with a fellow feeling, not as at a smart saying. Here, in fact, is a serial story, a continued drama in two simple lives.

"The regular continuity of it seems unbreakable. Nightly at the same hour comes this new engagement of infusing one's life with this extra friendly element. This is

BOY'S ROOM SHOULD LACK FANCY THINGS

A robust, substantial quality should characterize the boy's room. He will like it to be very much anything that looks the least bit "sleazy" or fancy.

A boy's room is a place for study, a place for his friends to gather, a place for him to study whatever indoor athletic endeavor he likes most.

His room should be planned to hold up under a great deal of hard age. A boy can not enjoy furniture that is frail or delicate.

Maple, oak or walnut are good woods in which to furnish a boy's room.

The simplicity of Colonial furniture is usually pleasing to a boy and a Colonial dresser or chest of drawers, or both, is sure to meet with his approval.

He will probably find a Cape Cod chair, covered with some substantial material of cheerful color, comfortable for lounging and studying.

He will want book shelves for his books and some of his trinkets and he will need a desk for writing and studying.

His bed should be covered with a spread which will not soil too easily and on the walls of his room he should be allowed to put up the pictures he treasures.

If your family can't agree on hot or cold beverages for an autumn picnic, buy a modern vacuum equipment and take along both. There is room, also, for hot or cold foods as well as liquids.

This set, which includes a cow-hide case, contains nickel food jars and colored vacuum bottles.

WEE MISS SINGS FOR RADIO LAND

San Francisco.—(AP)—"Bingo!" And that's the end of petite Marilyn Grace for another day.

Dainty little Marilyn is the Pacific Coast's Rose Marie.

She's four and half years old and, believes the announcers, she already understands the misunderstood male.

Affectionate and winsome she has won the heart of all KPO entertainers and is a prime favorite of listeners during the hour when Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego are getting ready for the day's work.

She recites "Mother Goose" rhymes and sings little girlish songs each day from KPO.

The Hollywood Story

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beginning as an extra, ANNE WINTER has progressed steadily and is now under contract to Grand United, one of the largest of the Hollywood studios. Anne has been living with two other girls, MONA MORRISON and EVA MORLEY. Mona and Eva are extras, but Mona works only occasionally and Eva rarely. Eva is bitter over this, and over a tragic love experience. She leaves Hollywood finally, leaving a heart-broken note for Anne and Mona.

DAN RORIMER, former New York newspaper man and now a scenario writer, is in love with Anne, but he has come to regard his feeling for her as a hopeless one. Every step upward that Anne takes seems to remove her all the farther from him, especially since his release from Centrally Pictures and his rather unsuccessful attempts to free her.

PAUL COLLIER, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers, shares Dan's apartment with him. He has great faith in Dan's ability, despite the latter's discouragement. While in New York Dan had written a play for the stage. His agent, unable to place it, finally sends it back to him, and Anne Winter and Collier, when they read it, are enthusiastic over it. They urge Dan to revise it for the movies.

Dan follows their advice, and the play is accepted by Grand United. Knowing that Anne would like to play a dramatic role, and having heard her express her wish to play the part of JENNY in his play, Rorimer suggests to studio executives that she be considered for the picture. Heretofore she has played roles in which her singing and dancing featured.

GABBY SLOAN is to direct the picture, and Dan is told that the suggestion will be made to Sloan that he give Anne a test. Dan tells her to see Sloan herself and ask him for a chance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV

As it turned out, Anne did not have to ask Garry Sloan. She saw him the next morning, sitting on a bench in the sun in the usual costume of white flannels and white shirt open at the throat, and he was reading a manuscript.

Anne was steeled herself to make the request that when Sloan glanced from his reading and saw her coming down the palm-shaded walk. He smiled and immediately said, "Come here, child," and beckoned to her.

He moved his bulk to make room for her on the bench. Anne did look rather like a child beside the huge Sloan.

"I want to look at you," he said, crossing one leg over the other, and resting on the back of the bench, and he gazed at her as though he expected to find something new in her.

"You look nice," he said finally, "but you look awfully innocent for Jenny."

Anne was bare-headed, and she always looked younger and less sophisticated without a hat. And she wore a thin polka-dot sweater of pale yellow, and a white shirt. "It may be your clothes," he admitted, following her glance, "but I rather think you'd manage to look demure no matter what you wore."

He fished a cigar out of his shirt pocket. "Mr. Johnson tells me that you have ambitions for a dramatic role. I didn't know our little prima donna felt that way."

Anne had recovered from her temporary awe. "But I do feel that I can't," she told him boldly.

"I'm nearly enough," he said, "I'll tell me something. Tell me what you came to Hollywood on the stage, I know, but... did you do?"

Anne drew his attention to the burning match between his fingers. "Please light your cigar first," she said with a little laugh. "You make me nervous."

And she tersely narrated her experience for him, explained what she had hoped to do in pictures and what she had done to prepare herself for Sloan's study of her intently as she talked. She was very earnest. "You've read this play of course?" He laid a hand on the manuscript in his lap.

"Oh, yes. You see, I know the man who wrote it. He's a very good friend of mine."

"Who is this Rorimer?"

"You've met him, Mr. Sloan. He was at the opening with me. Do you remember? Paul Collier introduced him to you."

"Oh, yes. Well, he's written something pretty good, hasn't he? Seems funny he couldn't sell it before this."

Anne wished that Dan Rorimer were there to hear Sloan say that. She replied that she thought it was a very fine thing. "Do you really like it?"

"I think," Sloan said thoughtfully, "it may make a wonderful picture," and Anne said that she was sure it would, with his direction. Nor did she intend any flattery. There was, after all, only one Garry Sloan.

The director prodigally tossed his cigar away and folded his arms. His shirt sleeves came down not quite to his elbows and the sun glinted on the thick blond hair of his arms, and Anne remarked the glint of the wrist around which he had strapped his watch.

He said presently, with a slight frown: "If you want a test I'll be glad to give you one. I've been trying to make up my mind who I wanted to play opposite Moore. You're sure you'd like to do it?"

She was assured him eagerly, and she thought the smile with which he greeted her fervency was a bit skeptical. She was respectful of that, and she said a little proudly, "It won't take you long to find out whether I'll do."

Sloan, she felt, persisted in thinking of her as just what he had called her—a child.

Garry Sloan grinned. When he asked, would she like to have the test? "What about this afternoon?"

Anne was thankful then for the study she had put in last night with Mona and Dan as her audience and critics.

"Any time will do for me," she told him, and Sloan said he would make the arrangements and let her know.

Sloan left him then, sitting on the bench where she had found him, with his gaze trailing after her and a humorous twinkle in his eyes.

At lunch the thought of what lay just ahead made her so apprehensive that her appetite disappeared with the first bite. Fred Hurley, the director, seeing her alone, came over to her table and told her he had learned that she was going to do.

"I was just talking with Garry. I wish you a lot of luck, Anne. Do you mind if I'm around?" He smiled at her. "Maybe I'll be an inspiration for you."

And Anne, remembering a day when Hurley had played the piano for her in her first tryout, and the courage it had inspired in her, smiled and was somewhat comforted. She knew that she would feel better if Hurley was there; it helped her so much better than having Sloan's skeptical eyes alone upon her.

So she told him that she welcomed him, and throughout their meal Fred Hurley chatted pleasantly and told her amusing stories, and they talked in taking her mind off the forthcoming trial while she ate.

"Just remember," he told her when they parted—Anne to put on her make-up—"that Garry Sloan's human like the rest of us. You needn't be afraid of him, Anne."

Mid-afternoon found her and Sloan on one of the stages. The director sat quietly while she read the manuscript he had placed in her hands and a crew made ready the sound-recording apparatus. He had let her choose one of the scenes that Rorimer had recommended the afternoon before, had even approved her choice of it by telling her what he would have had her do.

And he had looked at her with something like respect in his eyes, for the scene was a difficult one, and one lacking in courage, or in confidence, or both, would have hesitated to choose it.

Fred Hurley sauntered on the scene a short while later, and as he sat down Sloan and one of the crew exchanged looks and the director nodded. Presently the silence fell.

Garry Sloan looked at Anne. "Ready?" he asked, and she rose and handed the manuscript back to him and faintly smiled.

Anne nodded. "I know," she looked then at Hurley, who smiled and wagged his head encouragingly.

"All right," Sloan held up a hand. "Remember, Anne, you come on just as they're taking Michael away."

Sloan, consciously or not, had called her by her first name. Anne wondered if he was aware of it.

The scene was the one in which the unfortunate Michael, guilty of many crimes but charged now with one of which he was entirely innocent, accused Jenny, his "girl," of helping to "frame" him. Her first reaction was utter bewilderment at his cruel accusation; then protest; and finally, when Michael had gone, complete despair.

"Silence!" A quick nod from Sloan. Anne stepped into the brilliant light and Sloan leaned forward and watched her through eyes intently narrowed.

Anne cried, "Michael!"

She moved toward the camera and then she suddenly checked herself, and a look of incomprehension and of hurt came into her eyes. Then she shook her head quickly, vehemently. "No, Michael, no! How can you say that?"

A little distance in back of Sloan sat Hurley. Chin in hand, he listened as the girl voiced her dazed protest.

Michael had gone now. Toward the door through which he featfully had passed, Anne gazed with eyes bewildered and pained and frightened. She stood thus for some moments, then turned and moved dazedly a few steps and dropped into a chair.

Her lips were trembling; she plucked at them with her fingers. And then her hand moved uncertainly in front of her and she pressed its fingers into a cruel clasp on her arm just below the shoulder.

"What good is life, anyway?" she said.

Sloan stirred. He barked an order and Anne rose from her chair and came forward, wearing a timid little smile.

In front of him she paused, her eyes holding a question. Sloan rose and said, "Sit down here," and he pulled a chair close to his own.

"Anne, that was great," he told her softly. He glanced around toward Hurley. "Wasn't she?" he demanded.

Hurley grinned. "I guess the little girl surprised you, eh? Well, she surprised me too. You sure did. Anne, look me right off my feet."

Sloan said proudly, taking Anne's hand in his own and holding it. "Said she didn't want to rehearse. Just stepped up to the mike and let it go. Anne, you're all right. We'll have a playback now and see what sounds like."

Hurley scratched his nose. "This guy Michael," he said. "Isn't that a pretty tough name for a tough guy?"

But Sloan laughed and shook his head. "You haven't read the play," he said. "Mike wouldn't suit this guy at all. It's got to be Michael; he's that kind of a person."

He continued to hold Anne's hand as he waited for the playback that would bring to her the sound of her own voice.

Presently they heard a scratching in the loudspeaker overhead, and then came a word, low in pitch, vibrant, full of bewilderment and anguish—

Early Frock Assumes New Importance With Separate Bolero Jacket With Sleeves

By ANNETTE

It is designed along very simple smart lines which makes it so appropriate for all-day wear.

It is tweed printed silk with plain harmonizing trim.

The short sleeves of the dress with bows again are adorably smart when jacket is removed.

The long sleeves of the separate bolero jacket makes it a very charming ensemble.

Style No. C-839 may be had in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. For the 16-year size 3 1/4 yards of 39 inch material with 3/4 yard of 39-inch contrasting is sufficient.

Black canton crepe is very fashionable this season for day wear, and is fascinating in this model with white crepe collar and bow at neckline. Make the sleeve bows and belt of self-fabric.

Sheer tweed, crepe patterned or plain woolen and flat crepe silk are lovely for its development.

Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

Astor Would Give Women Seats in House of Lords

Lord Astor, left, American-born peer of England, appears to be determined that women shall sit in the English House of Lords. He has fought for years to secure for peers their right to the legal power vested in that famous body. Lord Astor's ablest assistants in the fight.

By MILTON BRONNER

London—Lord Astor, like a knight of old—but a knight in modern dress and with modern ideas of political chivalry—six times has jousted with the House of Lords for women's rights. Six times he has been defeated, but always comes back smiling and ready to fight again.

The American-born peer of England, whose Virginia-born wife, Lady Astor, was the first woman to sit in the House of Commons, has battled for years to secure for peeresses in their own right the legal power to sit in the House of Lords.

Just now the champion of titled feminism is smarting under a recent defeat, but already he is planning another assault upon the smug forces of fossilized conservatism.

Most Exclusive Club For the House of Lords is an old-fashioned body. Even more than the American Senate, it considers itself the most exclusive club in the world. You must be born into it or else be projected into it, or the recommendation of the Prime Minister and the O. K. of the King. Anyone, however, weak his mental qualifications, who is the eldest son of a Lord, becomes upon the death of his father a member of this hereditary legislative body. Among comparative outsiders are the commoners who were raised to peerages in the recent past because they brewed a lot of beer or distilled a lot of whiskey, or contributed very large amounts of money to the campaign chests of the old political parties.

Of course, there also are commoners who were made peers for other reasons. The distinguished generals or admirals, a few who rendered great services to the state in civilian fields, and some politicians who were kicked up-stairs.

Regardless of whether the Lords are of ancient or modern vintage, the majority of them seem to be against women sitting in their august midst. Three years ago they beat Lord Astor by only two

LEPROSY IS NOT TRANSMITTED AS EASILY AS PEOPLE SUPPOSE

BY DR. MORRIS FISHEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Strange rumors, fed by ignorance, circulate among the people. My 10-year-old daughter announced at dinner last evening that it was dangerous to bathe in the lake because two leopards had been found full of spots and removed from the water. It seemed that an epidemic of leopards was about to take place in Chicago.

The story of leprosy goes back many centuries. So great is the fear of the disease among the ignorant, and so abyssal is their lack of knowledge of its nature that anyone with a few rough spots on his skin may be accused of being a leper in times of panic.

There is, of course, not the slightest reason for believing that the disease among the ignorant, and so abyssal is their lack of knowledge of its nature that anyone with a few rough spots on his skin may be accused of being a leper in times of panic.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

When school starts there comes a decided reaction in family life. With the exception of the mother who yields her baby for the first time into the yawning maw of the big school door and into the arms of her rival, the first-grade teacher, nearly all mothers breathe a great sigh of relief.

Johnny and Betty are back on schedule, the summer's trials are over. They are "put" at last, and she is free to go about her own affairs once again!

The structure is natural. There is nobody blaming the tired, harassed mother for passing on her responsibility to the public school.

But a word to the wise is usually sufficient. And I think most mothers are wise, child-wise, at least, and open to suggestion.

This fall let-down acts as all let-downs usually do. We go to the other extreme and, for a while at least, shed responsibility. We let George do it.

During the summer with its problems, perplexities and general stir-up, with children released to a freedom in the various tests that their mind instinctively reaches for a buckler of defense.

About the middle of August she begins to see looming through the mist of summer to the forms of the big school building on the corner.

When school opens everything will be different, she figures. Her children will become civilized again. Their manners will come out of long-forgotten corners, they will learn to be punctual, they will get over their laziness, they will become more thoughtful! The nice little fiction built up through the August mist grows steadily into reality. That school building certainly spells relief.

By the time the children are back at denominative numbers and the French and Indian War, the slump is usually quite complete. She begins to think of preserves and housecleaning, and forgets about them. The children are back in the good hands of people who "know." They will become angels of good behavior. What blessings schools are to take such good care of our children and make them into fine men and women. What harm can there be in forgetting?

But is this sloughing off all responsibility on the school right? Yet the schools and the teachers very patiently accept the situation and do the best they can.

It is not in the province of the public schools to make over the manners, habits, or characters of our children, except where they may be affected by school work, custom and regular discipline. They are naturally great influences in character training, but only to a certain extent. I can't see why teachers need even be disciplinarians. In the school of the future it won't be so, I am sure.

We mothers must not put the onus of straightening out undesirable kinks in the children on the teacher. That should be done at home. We must not forget that a teacher has fifty pupils and a big day's work to do. I've taught and I know. It is one of the hardest jobs in the world.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

Do you ever bake your vegetables in place of always boiling or steaming them? Baking is really the ideal method of cooking the fall vegetables, for their flavor is preserved and none of the valuable mineral salts are lost in the water necessary for boiling.

A worth while economy of fuel often can be effected if the vegetables are baked, for while the oven is going for meat or some other baking the same meat can cook the vegetable.

Carrots, corn, cabbage, cauliflower, squash and lima beans—all the fall vegetables lend themselves to baking. Onions are delicious baked in their husks and served with butter, salt and pepper. Tomatoes are good baked without stuffing. Sweet potatoes are remarkably good baked and served just like baked Irish potatoes. There is an almost endless list of vegetables that can be baked as simply and satisfactorily as they are usually boiled.

Some vegetables, particularly those that are known as "strong juiced," should be parboiled before combining with the seasonings. Cabbage and cauliflower are more delicate if this is done.

Carrots, corn, squash and lima beans can be baked without any preliminary cooking with excellent results.

Baked corn is a substantial dish that might well be used as the main dish for luncheon.

Lima beans baked with tomatoes is another hearty dish for luncheon or with a light meat course.

Baked carrots are unusually good and add much to the menu when they are served in this fashion.

HOW TO SHOP

STURDINESS IS A PRIME FACTOR IN KITCHEN TABLES

By William H. Baldwin

Even in so small an item as a kitchen table, a bad purchase may bring sorrow and trouble to the shopper.

Kitchen tables should be sturdy. Therefore the joints should be well-constructed, even the joints in the drawer. The bottom of the drawer of the better kitchen tables will be grooved into the sides, rather than merely nailed down. All the edges will be smooth, which the shopper can quickly determine by running her finger across them.

If the top is of porcelain, it is well to remember that the whiter the top the better. A thin coating is most unsatisfactory.

There are many kinds of kitchen tables, although the factors of selection remain the same. A table has recently made its appearance which has wheels, so that it can be moved about, simplifying the problem of taking dishes to and from the sink. Another variety is the sliding leaf kitchen table with a stainless porcelain top, which is especially fitted for small apartments in which furniture must, so to speak, be telescoped.

It takes 15 days for the average human body to recover from the loss of two consecutive nights' sleep.

HAVE YOU HEARD?

You can avoid cold feet this winter by lengthening your blankets and comforters so that they will tuck in securely, since so few really come long enough.

Take a strip of unbleached muslin 12 inches wide and as long as your blanket or comforter is made. Attach it securely across the bottom of your blanket or comforter, having first had the other three sides hemstitched in the color of your bedding or else blind stitched or done in colored feather stitching.

There is no hope of convincing some of them before they die, but they will die in time. It is they who make Britain lag behind her progressive dominions. None of the latter excludes women from its upper legislative house. Sooner or later Britain will have to follow suit.

Besides Lady Rhonda, others who will have a seat in the House if it ever becomes a House of Lords and Ladies, are the Duchess of PINE, Countess Roberts, elder daughter of the late Field Marshal, Earl Roberts; Countess Cave, widow of an ex-Lord Chancellor; Viscountess Wolsley, a daughter of the late Field Marshal, Viscount Wolsley; and the Baronesses Beaumont, Berkeley, Burton, Clifton, Furnivall, Ravensdale, Wentworth and Zouches.

IN FOR IT

The teacher was putting questions to the class.
"What do we call a man," he asked, "who keeps on talking and talking when people are no longer interested?"
"Please, sir," replied a boy, "a teacher."—Hyde, England, Reporter.

"How many flowers, lad, do you sell?" asked Scouty. And the boy said, "Well, if I am really busy I can fill my basket high and empty it before it's night. You see, flowers are a pretty sight and they are gladly purchased by the average passer-by."
Then Carpy said, "What do you do with profits when the day is through?" "I save my money," said the boy. "I bank it every day. I have to go to school, you see, and buying books is up to me. The flowers that I sell folks nicely help me pay my way."
"Well, well! That's fine! I'm proud of you," exclaimed the Travel Man. "You do what every little lad should do. Put money in the bank. Now here's an extra coin, my lad. To give it to you I'm glad." The flower boy took the coin and smiled. And then he said, "Oh, thanks!"
The bunch then bid the boy good-bye and headed toward a hill near-
