HITLER'S REMARKS EXCITE GERMANY

Talk of Having Him Tried for High Treason—Conservative Press Calls Him Boaster.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—(AP) Predicted exclusion of Adolf Hitler's Fascist followers from government offices, consideration of treason charges against him and refusal of the Conservative press to treat his threats of revolution and treaty scrapping at Leipzig yesterday as other than boastful utterances today characterized the reaction of Germany to its newest political sensation.

No Place For Them

Unofficially it was said that there would be no place for the National Socialist leader and his newly acquired 107 Reichstag members in the Bruening Cabinet. The presence there of avowed revolutionaries, who proposed to commit acts which would disturb the world's peace at some future date, political leaders held, would be injurious to Germany's credit and political prestige. At the same time it was made known that the attorney general was inquiring into the possibility of preferring charges of high treason against Hitler for his utterances in the trial of the Fascist officers.

GERMANY'S REACTION

Leipzig, Germany, Sept. 26.—(AP) Reverberations of Adolf Hitler's exposition of German Fascism were heard throughout the fatherland today, with the populace divided in its attitude toward the man and what he stands for.

Millions applauded and hailed the native Austrian whose own country does not claim him, as the savior who will deliver Germany from the chains of Socialist government and the Treaty of Versailles.

Other millions were nervous over his speech in the Supreme Court here yesterday, contemptuous of his governmental theories and fearful of the road he is traveling. Many berated the president of the court for allowing Hitler, the membership of whose party is limited to 12 to 107 seats in the Reichstag in the elections two weeks ago to propagandize his movement.

"Heads Rolling"

Attracting the greatest nationwide attention was his ascription that the treaty of Versailles would have to go, and that "if our movement succeeds we shall erect a people's tribunal before which the criminals of November 1918 shall expiate their crime. Then, I frankly predict, you shall see heads rolling in the land."

Despite Hitler's intimation of violence and bloodshed he denied that his party contemplated disorder in bringing about a revolution and political upheaval in Germany to sweep away the present governmental system.

Hitler predicted a Reichstag membership of 250 for the Fascists at the next general election and a majority within the next two or three years.

Hitler's testimony was offered when he took the stand to explain his party's principals with the hope he could aid in exoneration of three Reichswehr officers accused of high treason.

FRANCE NOT WORRIED

Paris, Sept. 26.—(AP) —Personal of the full text of Adolf Hitler's testimony in the Fascist officers' trial at Leipzig yesterday has convinced French officialdom that it was not so unfortunate as at first appeared that the Fascist generalissimo should have exposed the entire extremist program.

The extravagance of the Nationalist policy, is it thought here, may incite more extremists to action but, on the other hand, is likely to frighten even some of Hitler's own followers.

The immediate consequence of Hitler's remarks, according to the French viewpoint, is expected to be the complete isolation of the Nationalist party of their exercising influence on the government or upon legislation.

STRIKER IS KILLED

Lugo, Spain, Sept. 26.—(AP) —Workmen of Lugo had scarcely returned to their jobs this morning after a general strike that had paralyzed the city's industry and commerce for a week, when labor leaders threatened another walkout tonight as a protest against the killing of a striker at Santiago de Compostela.

In a clash between civil guards and a group of strikers at Santiago de Compostela, Angel Antel Soler was killed yesterday. Four other men were wounded. As a result labor union officials throughout the province of Galicia are protesting against what they term "the too stern measures" taken by the provincial governor in suppressing demonstrations of strikers.

PARLEY IN 1931 FOR ARMS CUT NOT IN SIGHT

League of Nations Refuses to Set a Date to Talk Disarmament — Germany Protests Against Delay.

Geneva, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The disarmament committee of the League of Nations Assembly today declined to direct that a general disarmament conference be called in 1931.

While defeating the German proposal to authorize the Council to call a general disarmament conference in the year 1931, the committee decided to say in its report that the Assembly "expressed the desire" that the conference be held before the end of the year.

Soon as Possible

The resolution finally adopted by the committee asked the Council to summon a general disarmament conference "as soon as possible."

Count von Bernstorff, the German representative, denounced what he called lack of progress in disarmament and declared that the phrase "as soon as possible" had been used with regard to a disarmament conference for four years and "meant nothing."

OLD SEA CAPTAIN TO QUIT HIS POST

Commodore of Morgan Line Spent Half Century on Ships—Saw Maine Sink.

Mystic, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Captain Charles Potter Maxson, of West Mystic, Conn., after weathering storms at sea for nearly a half-century, today had hopes of casting anchor in the peaceful haven of a Connecticut justice of the peace office.

Captain Maxson for ten years commodore of the fleet of the Morgan Line plying between New York and New Orleans has submitted his resignation effective October 1 and will stand for election as justice of the peace here. He has been nominated on the Republican ticket. He began his career on the high seas aboard a fishing ship operating out of New London. Then he joined the Morgan Line, working his way up to ship's master and finally commodore of the fleet. His proud boast is that he never has lost a ship.

Saw Maine Sink

Captain Maxson was an eye-witness to the sinking of the Maine in Havana Harbor in 1898 and volunteered his services in aiding any Americans who wished to leave Cuba at the time. The veteran seaman's aspects in his long career run all the way from battling storms to performing marriages and christening babies.

He plans to spend much of his time after his retirement in writing and amateur boat building.

25 HURT IN RIOT

Bombay, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Twenty-five persons were injured during the night in clashes between Mohammedans and members of the All-India National Congress.

The Nationalists held a meeting in the Moslem quarter in demonstration against participation in the round table conference and a crowd of hostile Moslems gathered and stoned them.

The assailants became increasingly aggressive as the demonstrators began to disperse. The police charged with their staves, but were said not to have inflicted any serious injuries.

CONGRESSMAN'S FUNERAL

Fayetteville, N. C., Sept. 26.—(AP)—The body of Major Charles Manley Stedman, for two decades Representative in Congress from the Fifth North Carolina District was buried here today with the military honors. He died in Washington on Tuesday at the age of 89. A platoon from the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry formed his guard of honor.

A teacher "on her own" this year is Miss Elizabeth Morrow, upper left, daughter of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow. Upper right you see the nine-room white-painted house at Englewood, N. J., which she has leased as a school for children under the age of 5. Forty pupils are enrolled for the first semester, which begins Sept. 30. Lower left is the desk from which Miss Morrow's sister-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will direct her school, and lower right are two of her assistant instructors, Miss Elizabeth Eddy (left) and Miss Constance Chilton.

NEW YORK REPUBLICANS FOR REPEAL OF DRY LAW

Vote 733 to 258 for Wet Plank — No Debate on Topic — Almost Certain Tuttle Will Be Candidate.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(AP)—By a vote of 733 to 258, the New York Republican state convention incorporated in its party platform today a plank calling for the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

There was no debate on the proposition. Members of the dry minority contended themselves with having their opposition placed on the convention record. The roll call on the repeal plank was taken under a special rule, which permitted the convention to adopt unanimously the rest of the platform before taking up the prohibition plank.

Tuttle for Governor

At today's session permanent organization of the convention was effected, the address of the permanent chair, Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies of the state assembly will be heard and the platform adopted. After disposition of the platform the convention recessed until afternoon, when nomination of candidates for state office was in order.

U. S. Attorney Charles H. Tuttle of New York was conceded the nomination for governor on the first ballot.

CHIEF NOW A FLY COP

Torrington, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Frank Buckley, Torrington's chief of police, who is doing special duty at the court in Litchfield during the Rusko murder trial, hurriedly left the court rooms during the session this morning. An inquiry disclosed that he had sat down on a piece of flypaper.

HOME STYLE SHOW, $1 DAY, STIR THINGS

North End Bargain Fete is Tomorrow, Furnishings Show Opens Tonight.

Two outstanding events will mark the week-end in Manchester. For the first time in the history of the North End, Dept. Square merchants to the number of thirty-eight are co-operating in a Dollar Day, and this event is scheduled for tomorrow. Then, too, there is the Home Furnishings Style Show which opens tonight with programs at Watkins Brothers and Keith's Furniture stores. Tomorrow afternoon, Cheney Brothers, who are also co-operating, will present a special display at Cheney Hall.

First At North End

Due to the fact that this will be the first Dollar Day at the North End, the merchants are extending themselves to offer excellent bargains in every line of merchandise. A special section of tonight's issue of The Herald is devoted to advertising matter listing these special values. A careful perusal of it will prove of benefit.

The merchants are offering over $100 in prizes, and these awards will be on exhibit in the Post Office building. Tickets will be given with each purchase and at 9 o'clock tomorrow night merchants will hold a drawing in their respective stores.

The Dollar Day was made possible through the formation of the North End Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce, with Thomas Conran as president. Soon after its organization a committee was appointed to handle the event. The committee consists of Carl Keller, chairman; Thomas Conran, Joseph Chittier, Edward Murphy, and Aldo Pagan.

MCCARTHY RESIGNS

Chicago, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy, deposed manager of the Cubs, resigned today, refusing to finish the season as leader of the National League pennant contenders. Rogers Hornsby was placed in immediate charge of the team as the Cubs prepared to battle Cincinnati.

Oldest Man in the World Is Hit by an Automobile

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Zaro Agha, Turk, who claims to be 156 years old, was in a critical condition in his hotel today as the result of injuries suffered when he was hit by an automobile on Broadway.

Agha, his great-great-grandson Ahmet Mussa, and his manager, Assim Ridvan, were standing on a traffic island at Broadway and 61st street last night waiting to cross to their hotel opposite.

A large car swung around the concrete platform, with its running board over the walk. The running board hit the aged Turk's legs and knocked him down. As he fell his head struck the edge of the running board. Although a postman and policeman yelled to the chauffeur that he had hit a man, the car did not stop.

Agha was taken into the hotel. Doctors found he was suffering from internal injuries and possible fracture of the skull and legs.

He came to this country last July and has submitted to an examination by scientists interested in longevity.

MISSOLINI PLANS WAR, SAYS BELGIAN SENATOR

Fake Telegram Upsets Grain Market Prices

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 26.—(AP)—The Winnipeg Grain Exchange today offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the identification of the person or persons who Tuesday wired spurious messages to principal grain markets in North America and Europe proclaiming financial disaster of the Canadian wheat pool.

The messages acted as a bearish influence and sent prices tumbling before they could be denied.

The messages, addressed to Chicago, New York, Liverpool and Montreal, were telephoned to the telegraph company and signed with the name of James Stewart, prominent grain broker. Mr. Stewart denied any knowledge of the notes.

SAVANTS MAPPING MOON WITH NOVEL APPARATUS

Now Able, After a Year's Preparation, to Give Accurate View of Our Heavenly Neighbor; the Details.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Mt. Wilson, Cal., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Mapping the moon by a new type of astronomical survey began today at Mt. Wilson Observatory.

An adaptation of airplane map-making photography gives views equivalent to swinging the astronomical cameras a few thousand miles out into space to get more directly above side areas of the moon's face, something impossible from earth.

The mapping is expected to clear up a century-old controversy whether the moon's face is changing and to help geologists discover more about nature and causes of the moon's scenic wonders.

The maps is the latest development in the work of the Carnegie Institution's committee on study of surface features of the moon. The committee members are Doctors W. S. Adams, F. G. Pease, and Edison Pett of Mt. Wilson Observatory; Doctors J. P. Burwada and Paul S. Epstein of California Institute of Technology; Dr. H. N. Russell of Princeton, and Doctors A. L. Day and F. E. Wright of the Geophysical Laboratory of Washington. Dr. Wright is chairman here in charge of the work.

Artificial Moon

A miniature "artificial" moon, a globe 1½ inches in diameter, is set up in a clearing in the pines on top of Wilson, alongside the great 100-inch telescope. The clearing resembles an open air theater.

At night moon photos are projected with a 1,000 candlepower beam upon the globe, which is a curved surface of ordinary flat glass. The globe glows realistically in the black shadows of the pines, but with a thousand times the detail seen by the eye looking at the real moon.

The astronomers can step off to one side and photograph this artificial moon just as if it were the real one. But it is no ordinary photography.

Much of the past year was spent perfecting the instruments that shoot light beams four times across the clearing, a distance of 135 feet, which is the "focal length" of the 100 inch telescope. Their accuracy appears from the fact that in the Carnegie Institute astrophysical laboratory in Pasadena where they were developed, the instruments could not be used because of traffic tremors in the ground.

No Distortion

The pictures from the side straighten out the distortion photographs of shapes of craters and peaks near the edge of the moon.

This rectification is useful to geologists in determining whether these topographical features were caused by volcanic action, meteors, or something else.

The real moon continually nods, with a motion called libration. The consequence is that no two ordinary photos are likely to be exactly the same. But with the artificial moon photos of the real moon can be projected section by section in their proper positions on the artificial moon, and then re-photographed to build up a complete map.

Old moon pictures also will be projected, showing the satellite as it appeared 50 and 75 years ago; comparison of these and recent photos is expected to settle the controversy about the moon's face lifting.

After being re-photographed from the same angle, the old and new pictures will be compared by the "blink" system which was used by the American Army in the World War to detect camouflage. The "blink" will show any slight changes which may have taken place on the moon's surface.

The corrected map gives scientists an accurate base for the studies they are making of the moon's surface a square mile at a time.

Envoy to League Parley Says He is Convinced Italy is Preparing for Conflict on Both Sides of Albanian Border as Well as Along Alps—Declares German Nationalists Would Not Be So Confident if They Did Not Think Themselves Supported by Fascists.

Brussels, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The Belgian Senator Louis de Brouckere, president of the Aviation commission at Geneva, created a sensation during the trial of the youth Fernando de Rosa, accused of attempted assassination of Prince Humbert of Piedmont, when he declared himself convinced that the Mussolini government in Italy is preparing for war on both sides of the Albanian border as well as along the Alps.

THOMAS A. HACKETT DIES AS HE SLEEPS

Well Known Tobacco Planter Succumbs to Long Illness; Lived Here 17 Years

Thomas A. Hackett, one of Manchester's best known tobacco growers, died at his home here today following a lingering illness with heart disease. He would have been 57 years old next month. Death came peacefully while he was asleep at his home on 788 North Main street.

Three years ago Mr. Hackett suffered a nervous breakdown and angina pectoris developed. Each year since he has gone west for six months in hopes of improving his health. Three years ago he went to Phoenix, Arizona, and the last two years to San Diego, Cal.

Very Ill for Five Weeks

Mr. Hackett had been confined to his bed for the past five weeks under constant medical attention. A trained nurse being continually at his bedside. He failed to regain his strength and gradually failed until it became obvious that there was little hope for his recovery.

Thomas Aloysius Hackett was born in Ellington, October 6, 1874. His family removed to South Windsor when he was less than a year old. Mr. Hackett made his home there until 17 years ago when he came to Manchester to go into the tobacco raising industry with his brother, Joseph H. They bought the colonial residence of Captain Charles Owen in Buckland, together with one of the largest tobacco farms in this section, over a mile of

CANNON CHARGES WILL BE PRESSED

Bishop Protests But Accusers Say That Action Will Be Taken Just the Same.

Washington, Sept. 26.—(AP)—In the face of a protest from Bishop James Cannon, Jr., over the manner in which new charges have been filed against him by four ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church south, two of his accusers last night maintained they had followed "the spirit and the letter" of their church law in bringing the complaints.

Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman of Baltimore and Rev. Costen J. Harrell, of Richmond, Va., expressed belief the bishop would be unsuccessful in having their investigation set aside. Bishop Cannon, now on his way to the United States from Brazil, would file a protest on the ground he had not been conferred with before the charges were filed.

The four ministers advised him of their action by cable and they said his reply constituted acknowledgment of the charges. These are ministers of the College of Bishops who may appoint a committee to pass on the advisability of holding a church trial.

Dr. Prettyman expressed the opinion that, on the basis of their investigation, "we have neither the moral nor the legal right to hold up the process until all the facts pertaining to this case are brought in to full review."

The two churchmen, here for a session of the Baltimore conference of the church refused to divulge their charges.

AMERICAN GUNNERS SILENCE ARTILLERY

Gunboats Go Through Heavy Barrage on Chinese River; Boats Not Damaged.

Shanghai, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Two American gunboats fought their way through barrages of artillery fire laid down by Chinese Reds at different places along the middle Yangtze river last night and today, silencing the heavy attacks and escaping undamaged.

As in previous cases, the American vessels were subjected to fire from shore as they patrolled that section of the river which has been infested with pirates and other marauders for months.

Artillery Duel

The U. S. S. Guam fought an artillery duel with a battery of Red field guns hidden along the shore 190 miles above Hankow. The Guam opened up with her three inch guns amid a shower of red cannon fire and then brought machine guns into play. The Red attack stopped and the Guam proceeded unscathed.

Proceeding down the river the U. S. S. Oahu ran into a battery of Red field guns a few miles above Kluktang. The marauders raked the river with heavy fire. Speeding up her engines and bringing her machine guns into action, the Oahu raced to safety. She peppered the shore-line with bullets, silencing the shore battery.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Sept. 24 were $3,285,278.73; expenditures $7,131,492.98; balance $337,346,843.01.

CONFER ON TERMINAL FOR BUSES AT SQUARE

Hope to Erect Waiting Station Near Tracks — Committee Approves Merchants' Plan.

The Chamber of Commerce committee on the North End bus terminal met this morning and inspected the existing conditions at Woodbridge street, after which the proposed plan of improvement requested by the North End Merchants' Division was approved. This plan calls for sidewalk and curbing on the north side of the street to eliminate the present situation, and also recommends that the Connecticut Company erect a creditable shelter for its patrons.

PHYSICIAN DIES

Torrington, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Dr. H. D. Moore, for 31 years a practicing physician here, died at his home today. He had been in poor health for four years.

OKLAHOMA COWBOYS COMING TO STATE

Famous Radio Entertainers to Broadcast Tomorrow Afternoon—Here Oct. 1 and 2.

State Theater patrons are in for a rare treat on Wednesday and Thursday, October 1 and 2, according to an announcement made this afternoon by Hugh J. Campbell to the effect that Otto Gray and his famous Oklahoma Cowboys of radio fame, will make their initial New England stage appearance in Manchester. This noted group of radio entertainers hails from Stillwater, Okla.

The programs of the Oklahoma Cowboys have been heard over the radio time and again by Manchester people. Last night they broadcast from Hartford and tomorrow will go on the air from WBEZ at Springfield from 10:35 to 11 in the morning and at WTIC at Hartford from 2 to 2:30 in the afternoon. Their radio schedule brings them back to Springfield at the same hour Monday morning and to Hartford from 4:30 to 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Their programs on the stage even surpass those over the air. They offer songs of the plains, crooning melodies, strummed on banjo, guitar and violin and stories of life on the Oklahoma prairies.

SECOND SITTING SETBACK TOURNAMENT

Tinker Hall TONIGHT AT 8:15 Turkey 1st Prize, Chicken, 2nd. Refreshments Served.

ABOUT TOWN

The Masonic Social Club will run a progressive bridge at the Masonic Temple tonight at 8:15. Six prizes will be given the winners and refreshments served. All players will be welcome.

The new high pressure gas transmission line connecting this town with Rockville has been completed and tested out. Gas will not be used until connections with the line are made in the villages en route, namely, Oakland, Talcottville, Dobsonville and Vernon. For the present the service will be used by the Rockville-Williamant Lighting company.

George Fisher of South Coventry was brought to the Manchester Memorial hospital this noon, following an accident this morning. He was working about his farm when he fell, breaking a leg. First aid was given him at his home after which he was brought to the hospital here.

LITHUANIAN ALLIANCE MEETS HERE ON SUNDAY

State Convention of Organization With 23 Connecticut Branches to be Held in Manchester.

The state convention of the Lithuanian Alliance of Connecticut will be held in Odd Fellows Hall here Sunday. It is expected that about 100 delegates and friends will attend. The convention will last from 10 o'clock until 1 o'clock when dinner will be served to the delegates and to the members of the local branch.

There are now 23,000 members of the order in the United States. In order to hold office in the state or national body one must be an American citizen. The Alliance is a welfare and insurance organization. The national headquarters are in New York and its officers report a surplus in the treasury of $1,300,000. Twenty-three branches are in Connecticut and will be represented at the convention to be held here Sunday.

There is a large number of members in Manchester, but not all are connected with the local branch, some being members of the Hartford branch or of branches in other places.

MANCHESTER HOST TO CIVIL ENGINEERS

State Society Meets at Country Club After Inspection Tour in This Section.

Manchester was host yesterday to the Connecticut Society of Civil Engineers, 125 of the membership attending the annual fall dinner and meeting at the Manchester Country Club last evening. The session here included a visit in the afternoon to the Griffith sewer disposal plant on Olcott street. Also on the schedule was a trip through the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company plant in East Hartford and an inspection of the new bridge construction at Silver Lane, East Hartford.

Outstanding on the program was the trip to the Pratt and Whitney plant and a talk later in the evening on airplane motor testing by A. J. McClain, of the Pratt and Whitney company. At two o'clock the engineers met at Silver Lane, East Hartford, to see the bridge construction.

Big Job

Passersby do not realize the huge job that is being done at Silver Lane in order to give a heavy substantial bridge over the Hockanum river. The base there is largely sand and much making it necessary to drive 85 feet piling into the river bed so that a footing for concrete can be obtained. The engineers naturally took great interest in the job.

At three o'clock the party came to the Griffith plant to see how the South Manchester Sanitary and Sewer district is handling its disposal problem. A complete description of the visit to the plant here was published in yesterday's Herald.

See Airplane Plant

At 4:45 the engineers party was taken through the Pratt and Whitney plant. The membership was divided into groups of 12 each and competent employees served as guides. The engineers marveled at the efficiency displayed in the plant and the absolute precision in manufacture insisted upon. A feature that attracted much attention in the plant is the wood block floor. The entire plant is covered with cross-rotated blocks set on end. It is dustless, noiseless and easy to walk upon. The dustless feature is required in machine shops where the closest of measurements are needed.

The engineers saw every operation from the raw metal through to the finish Hornet, Wasp or Vesp Junior engines. Fine steel, aluminum and magnesium are used in the manufacture and the parts are so highly finished that they give the appearance of the finest tableware. All fittings are shrunk together on single part being hammered into place. So fine are some of the fittings that they are measured by machine to two-thirtieths of one thousandth of an inch. That measurement seemed almost beyond comprehension but that's what the guide told the engineers and it must be so.

Huge Industry

Parts move from the west end of the 1000 foot building through to the east end where the testing laboratories are located. As the parts move on the gradual assembling of the engine can be seen. A great number of very costly and highly accurate machines are in the plant and some of them made by the Pratt and Whitney Machine Company in Hartford. The magnitude of the airplane industry has reached a point to be better illustrated than by a visit through the Pratt and Whitney factory.

The Pratt and Whitney plant is not now operating at maximum. It is now employing 640 men and the new plant can accommodate over 4,000 employees. The output at present is six engines a day.

Leaving the Pratt and Whitney plant the civil engineers started back for Manchester. The line of cars was met on Spencer street by Center street and down Main to the evening session was held.

After Dinner Talks

President Elmer Weldon, of the Connecticut Society of Civil Engineers opened the after dinner program. Mr. Weldon, who is deputy highway commissioner of the state, introduced the several guests and when Frank Cheney, Jr., was introduced a speech was called for. Mr. Cheney welcomed the engineers and told them that he hoped that the new Griffith sewer plant would clear up the water Manchester uses so that East Hartford won't have any cause for kicking.

George H. Waddell represented Manchester in extending felicitations to the guests and assured the engineers that every time Manchester had any dealing with them it cost the town plenty of money, but it usually got a square deal. Mr.

CAR CHANGES SPOTS ALL BY ITS OWN-SELF

Rudely Displaces Another in Stall It Wants—Owner Not Sure About That Brake.

A Chrysler sedan that changed parking places of its own volition on Main street shortly after 11 o'clock this morning was an object of great interest to a huge crowd and incidentally to Patrolman Rindolph Wirtalla of the Manchester Police force.

The car was parked in front of Montgomery Ward's when suddenly it backed across the street into a stall directly in front of the office of the Manchester Electric Company. It so happened that this stall was already occupied by a Chevrolet coupe, owned by Michael Lercia of 160 Birch street and the coupe was pushed over the curb to the sidewalk, without damage to either car.

Patrolman Wirtalla appeared on the scene and waited around the better part of an hour for the owner of the Chrysler to put in an appearance. He did so soon after 12 o'clock and gave his name as Arthur C. Stove of 251 Fountain street, New Haven. He said that it was the first mishap he had had in fifteen years, and that he really wasn't sure whether he had set the emergency brake or not. Officer Wirtalla made no arrest.

Mr. McClain explained the use of oxygen for breathing in high altitudes and said that if the supply starts to fail the pilot finds his brain getting sluggish and things begin to get dark. Invariably if the oxygen fails and the pilot becomes unconscious a good stable plane will glide safely back to god air without glide safely back to god air without regains consciousness and continues flying.

Flying gets to be monotonous just as do other occupations said McClain. Sometimes he wishes for something to happen to make life more exciting. This brought a hearty laugh from the engineers.

Hubbard Entertains

Following Mr. McClain's talk Clarence Hubbard well known after dinner speaker and entertainer unique was called upon. Mr. Hubbard proceeded to relieve business depression by telling the engineers that they should get more fun out of life. He wise-cracked for three-quarters of an hour and kept the gathering in the best of spirits. He concluded his talk with a fine assortment of magic. The session was concluded after ten o'clock.

PEE-WEE GOLF OWNERS ARE FOUND GUILTY

Hartford, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The owners of seven indoor and outdoor miniature golf links were found guilty of violating the State Sunday law after a long hearing in the police court today. Judge John L. Bonee imposed fines of $50 and costs in the cases of the five owners, two of whom claimed ownership in two courses each. Counsel for the accused appealed from the lower court's decision and the matter will be taken to the Superior Court for trial.

In the Superior Court this afternoon, civil side, the city corporation counsel will appear to ask for an injunction against a petition granted by the court a few days ago to restrain the police from carrying out their intention to prohibit the owners of the half pint golf courses from keeping their places open on Sunday.

JUBILEE CLOSES TONIGHT

Meriden, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The three day golden jubilee celebration of St. Laurent's parish will be brought to a close tonight with solemn benediction of the blessed sacrament.

Following the service, the Rev. Charles H. Paquette, pastor will bestow the Papal benediction upon the congregation through special dispensation from Pope Pius XI.

The Sisters of the Assumption will hold a reception in the basement of the church after the benediction service.

MIDDLEWEST HIT BY SEVERE STORM

the Mississippi. Miles of wires were down. Farm homes were destroyed. Crops suffered.

There were hail storms and heavy rains. In Gallisborough streets were flooded and a hail that broke many windows.

Summitville had the brunt of the storm. Roofs were blown off and trees uprooted. Several orchards, heavy with apples, were destroyed. In Keokuk the ominous funnel-shaped clouds were visible, yet scarcely a breeze was felt. One of the worst hail storms in years, however, occurred.

land on both sides of the railroad track in the Buckland district.

In Large Business

They engaged in the growing of broad leaved tobacco. He was there for several years and then entered the shade grow industry. This was a large undertaking. The tobacco was disposed of through the firm of Hackett, Hathaway & Stein. This put the Hacketts into a wider field, as they became not only growers but packers and buyers of tobacco.

Mr. Hackett was never active in politics, in town matters casting his vote as he felt to be for the best interests of the town, but in national affairs he was a Democrat. He was nominated this month as representative on the Democratic ticket.

In addition to his brother, Mr. Hackett leaves his wife, formerly Miss Margaret E. Kelleher of South Windsor and two sisters, Miss Nellie C. Hackett and Miss Sadie E. Hackett, both of whom live on Chapel street in East Hartford.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete this afternoon and will be held in St. Bridget's cemetery. Mr. Hackett was a member of St. Bridget's Roman Catholic church and of the Rockville Lodge of Elks.

UNUSUAL CONFERENCE

Hartford, Sept. 26.—(AP)—A state conference on character education, the first ever held in Connecticut, will bring state officials, educators and civic activists to this city on November 7, 8 and 9 to discuss plans for developing this type of training. Governor Trumbull has been requested to designate the last day of the conference as character education Sunday.

LT-Governor Ernest E. Rogers will preside at the first meeting, while an address of welcome will be given by Dr. Butterfield who was recently appointed state commissioner of education.

The three day program called for numerous addresses by prominent educators.

FIND BODY IN SOUND

New London, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The badly decomposed body of an unidentified man was recovered from Long Island Sound near Race Point Light today by the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-284, which brought it to this port.

The man had evidently been of advanced years. He was five feet nine inches tall and of stocky build. His clothing included brown working trousers, a white shirt with white shoes, a laundry mark D2065 was on the shirt and collar.

The posture class which is conducted on Saturday forenoons at the Manchester Community club by Miss Myrtle Davis, Child Welfare nurse, will be omitted tomorrow morning.

GETS BIG GIFT

Bridgport, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Massachusetts Institute of Technology will receive a fund of $40,000 for scholarships under the terms of the will of the late Horace T. Smith, Bridgport chemist. The will directs that preference be given to graduates of the East Bridgewater, Mass., high school in the award of scholarships and second consideration to graduates of local high schools.

JOHN HAY WHITNEY IS ON HONEYMOON

Millionaire New York Sportsman Weds Miss Mary Elizabeth Altemus.

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—(AP)—John Hay Whitney, millionaire New York sportsman, and his bride, the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Altemus, prominent horsewoman and member of an old Philadelphia family, were on their honeymoon today—just where, could not be learned. Accompanied only by a maid and a butler, they left this city in a special train for Washington, D. C., last night shortly after their marriage at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Bessie Dobson Altemus Eastman. It was believed likely that their destination was Upperville, Va., about 65 miles northwest of Washington, where they will occupy for the next fortnight the new home that is a gift of Mr. Whitney to his bride.

The fine, old manor house, situated in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains, has been equipped with swimming pools and a gymnasium and the young people spent some time recently in purchasing antique furniture for it. Enlarged stables, an aviation field and a polo field have been laid out, and the estate offers fine facilities for fox hunting. After their visit to Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney will divide their time, when in America, between their town house at 872 Fifth Ave., New York, and the Whitney Long Island estate, Greentree, Manhasset.

Mr. Whitney is one of the wealthiest young men in America, his father having left him an estate of approximately $100,000,000. He is the grandson of two famous American statesmen, the late William C. Whitney, secretary of the Navy in President Cleveland's administration, and the late John Hay, former secretary of state.

FINDS MISSING WOMAN

Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 26.—(AP)—State Trooper Paul Ryan today located a woman here who was believed to be Miss Grace Delaney V. Newlin, missing Philadelphia society woman.

The woman identified herself as a married woman from Brooklyn, who has been staying in a cottage near here. She closely resembles Miss Newlin, the trooper said.

Miss Newlin, who is 30 years old, left her home Tuesday and failed to return. Much concern had been expressed about her at her home.

half, a true indication of the great increase in enrollment. The assembly was devoted chiefly to a demonstration concerning the "Romance of Furniture." The demonstration was conducted by C. Elmore Watkins of Watkins Brothers, who gave very interesting explanations concerning the evolution of furniture. Slides were employed to illustrate his talk. The subject was an unusual one and proved very fascinating.

Dwight Perry, the new faculty manager of athletics, spoke before the assembly yesterday regarding the student support of today's football game with Lewis High. He also treated the subject of purchasing "season tickets" for the home football games. These season tickets are in the form of attractive red and white buttons.

Through an error, James O'Leary instead of John Tierney was listed in the High School Notes as one of the Athletic Editors of Somanhis. John Tierney is a prominent athlete, having received his letter in two major sports. The first school dance of the year will be held this evening in the High school auditorium. It is sponsored by the Debating Club. The Junior Class officers have been elected and are as follows: President, Leonard Bjorkman. Vice-President, Barbara Badmington. Secretary, Florence Donahue. Treasurer, P. Sheridan.

KEEPS HIM IN STATE
Chelsea, Mass., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Vincent Keenan, 30-year-old Hartford salesman, was before Judge Cutler, in District Court today charged with drunken driving in this city early today.

"I only get into trouble whenever I get into Massachusetts," he told the court. "Well," said Judge Cutler, "so long as you are here you might as well stay. Sixty days." It was Keenan's third conviction in this state for the same offense.

NASH HAS THEORY FOR BETTER TIMES

Build in High Quality to Fit Public Purse in All Lines, Says Auto Man.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 26.—National prosperity can be increased during the next six months, not by the arbitrary slashing of commodity prices, but through the immediate building of high quality products to fit a reduced public purse, in the opinion of C. W. Nash, president of The Nash Motors Company.

The industrial leader, whose consistent advocacy of higher automobile values at moderate costs has brought to his manufacturing organization remarkable success through three decades and to himself world recognition as one of the soundest of American producers, went back to pre-stock-inflation values today in estimating the business situation, following a careful study of the motor car market.

"There is but one certain method of overcoming the unemployment problem, the loss of confidence which has affected practically every section of the country, and the general business depression which we all must acknowledge," he said. "It doesn't lie in high sounding theories, political promises or anything of that sort. The one thing to do is to begin building things that people in this country need at a cost which eliminates a maximum of the old, easy going overhead and brings out the highest possible value at the lowest possible selling cost. Such a manufacturing policy serves to keep American made products at the high standards we have all learned to demand. It is the one way to increase the value of the dollar to the point where buyers will re-enter the market in volume; the one way to put labor back to work and to refill the national dinner pail.

"Our days of speculation are over, and well over, in my opinion. But with a plentiful supply of money in banks in all sections of the country, and with crops and national resources in fair condition, there is no reason why we cannot produce a high level of prosperity, this time on a solid and sound foundation of honest values rather than speculative values.

"It is along this line that the Nash Motor Company is concentrating its manufacturing efforts. We plan, in the near future, to introduce a new line of Nash automobiles which, we are confident, will do their full share to extend the capacity of the automobile dollar as well as adding something definitely finer to the usefulness and enjoyment of motoring.

"One series of these new Nash cars has been engineered to the point where its typically high Nash quality can be offered at a price lower than that of any former Nash product. Other cars of the entire line represent higher value accomplishments in their various fields.

"I look upon these new cars as the correct answer to the question of how to build back high, stable and lasting American prosperity. I should like to recommend a similar slow but certain building to all of our great industrial branches. It is a sound policy which retains the highest standards at reduced costs; makes it possible for more people to buy, more people to be employed, more production gained, and a real and lasting structure of prosperity erected."

DAWES IN IRELAND
Belfast, North Ireland, Sept. 26.—(AP)—United States Ambassador Dawes arrived here early today for a brief visit to Ulster. The ambassador paced the deck of the Liverpool steamer for a half hour before the official reception, discussing with Irish journalists the merits of rising early. Hugh M. Pollock, deputy prime minister, welcomed the ambassador on behalf of the government of Northern Ireland.

BAYER ASPIRIN
is always SAFE

Beware of Imitations

GENUINE Bayer Aspirin, the kind that doctors prescribe and millions of users have proven safe for over thirty years, can easily be identified by the name Bayer and the word genuine on the package as pictured above.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin is safe and sure; always the same. It has the unqualified endorsement of physicians and druggists everywhere. It does not depress the heart. No harmful after-effects follow its use.

Bayer Aspirin is the universal antidote for pains of all kinds.

HILL BILLY STUFF

Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific Railroad, was asked by reporters in Kansas City the other day what he thought had caused the industrial depression and how long it would last. He replied: "Why waste time in trying to find out the cause? What difference does it make? These periods of depression come along, they last a certain time, and go. They're about due to go now. When things are at their worst it generally is about two months from that time that the change comes."

And a lot of ninnies all over the country applauded that perfectly vacuous, perfectly stupid speech.

Mr. Shoup may be a good railroad man but it is evident that he has no earthly business permitting himself to be quoted on an economic subject, for no hill billy who knows his letters could be any less well qualified to speak on such matters than he shows himself to be.

What difference does it make? What difference did it make that made people ill with typhoid? They got it, didn't they, every now and then, and they either got over it again or they died.

Suppose the medical profession had taken that attitude toward that once dreaded disease. We should still have recurrences of epidemic typhoid, sweeping off thousands of people. But the doctors figured that it made all the difference in the world what caused typhoid. They kept at it till they found out. Having found out what caused the fever they kept at it till they found out what to do about it.

Typhoid is licked. So in very great measure is diphtheria. So in very considerable degree is tuberculosis. So will be pneumonia in its turn, and so will cancer.

There is no more chance of preventing the visitations of industrial depression without tracing out their cause or causes than there would have been of preventing typhoid or diphtheria without tracing out their causes.

Mr. Shoup belongs, economically, to the same class as those who believed that you could cure physical disorders by incantation or waiting for the change of the moon.

"These depressions come along, they last a certain time, then go." Yes? Ask then in England.

Every intelligent American knows that somewhere and somehow something is out of whack when "the greatest prosperity the world has ever known" can faint in its tracks within ninety days. What is it? Where is the error in our system? What is it that plugs the feed line of consistent business activity? Some of these days we shall know and when we do we shall mighty quick correct it.

But we won't find out by the aid of dumbbell twaddle about depressions "coming and going" and what difference do they make?"

ANTHRAX AND REVISION

It is mere coincidence, but it fits into the picture strikingly, that just at the time when Hitlerism is becoming rampant in Germany and threats are flying that that country may be expected soon to denounce all her post-war treaties, statements made before the German-American Mixed Claims Commission by Germans admit that men in the employ of a German agent in this country infected horses and mules with anthrax germs in New York and other American cities during the years of American neutrality in 1915 and 1916.

No less a person made this admission than Dr. Carl von Lewinski, German chief counsel before the commission. He did not deny a further charge that the same agent distributed tetanus germs in America and he admitted that Captain Frederick Hinshon of the German Secret Service, the agent in question, fomented strikes and caused bombs to be placed on the piers of allied vessels in violation of American neutrality. He did deny that German acts were responsible for the great Black Tom and Kingsland munitions explosions, on account of which the United States is seeking $40,000,000 damages before the commission.

It is fantastic, Dr. Lewinski told the commission, to suppose that human life could have been endangered by the anthrax germs, since the disease cannot be communicated to men.

What is really fantastic is to credit the inference that the Germans did not know what the whole medical world has known for many years, that anthrax is not only communicable to human beings but is communicable in two distinct forms, one of which is so fatal in its character that its victims generally die within a day or two and there is no known treatment for it—or at least was not at the time in question.

These things are of special importance just at this time when the country is being flooded with propaganda, which has for its purpose the revision of the Versailles treaty and the relief of the German nation from all penalties and disabilities resulting from the war.

PUNKIN' PIE

We knew perfectly well, when a New York Times editorial writer tackled the subject of pumpkins and squashes, setting up the theory that the only proper gourd for the making of pies was the Hubbard squash, that he was going to get into a fight. We felt sure of it because he showed that he didn't know any too much about the subject when he proclaimed the superiority of squash over pumpkin and deprecatory New York caterers for knowing only the pumpkins and being ignorant of the squashes. Whereas, as a matter of fact, there probably isn't a human being on earth who can tell, upon eating a slab of pie, whether it was made from what are known to some people as pumpkins or from what are known to some other people as squashes—provided the pie is made by somebody who really knows how to make pies either from pumpkins or squashes.

Pumpkins and squashes are all squashes. In England any big squash is called a pumpkin. In the United States any more or less globular squash of orange color is called a pumpkin, be it big or little, whereas a greenish pumpkin is called a Hubbard squash.

The Hartford Courant, however, ignores any such technical criticism and sails right into the Times for saying that in Bostonian New England, where folks are supposed to be high experts in the pie-use of gourds, the Hubbard squash has been, from time immemorial, the material of all materials. No such thing, declares the Courant. It was the winter crookneck that every perfect housewife chose to operate with.

Now we shall hear from others, no doubt. We only wish we were qualified to get into it. But between the Courant, the Boston Transcript and the St. Albans Messenger, what chance has this New York Times tyro of getting by as a punkin' pie expert?

PERJURY

Without implying any great regard for Senator Norris of Nebraska and without taking too seriously the trick in which a non-political grocer of the same name was induced to file nomination papers for the purpose of muddling the Norris vote in the Republican senatorial primaries, we do hope that Senator Norris will make good or his threat to have some of the witnesses before the Senate campaign funds investigating committee prosecuted for perjury. That there has been plenty of that crime in the case is obvious.

In every court in this country, and most of all in the federal bankruptcy courts, perjury is as common as dust on an unrolled dirt road. In the bankruptcy courts it is highly probable that more lies than truth are told under oath. In every police and criminal court witnesses solemnly swear to tissue of falsehood often perfectly transparent and usually with deliberate intent. And yet the convict in any prison who was sent there for perjury is a rare bird. Prosecutions for that crime are almost as unusual.

The administration of justice depends almost entirely on the learning of the truth through the testimony of witnesses. If the practice of lying to a court is to be general the chance of ascertaining the truth is negligible and the value of the court is greatly impaired if not destroyed altogether. Yet it is extremely infrequently that lying witnesses are proceeded against under the criminal code.

If Senator Norris should indeed force some perjury prosecutions in the Nebraska case—which he haven't the least idea he will do—he would possibly be rendering his country a greater service than he has ever rendered through his presence in the Senate.

HOPEFUL

From the published summary of an address made to the teachers of New Britain by Ernest W. Butterfield, commissioner of education, we draw the feeling that we are going to like this man. Commissioner Butterfield does not talk in the least like another Dr. Meredith. He is even—God be praised!—somewhat old-fashioned. Old fashioned enough to think, for instance, that when an afternoon eclipse of the sun comes along it might be a good idea for the science classes to have it called to their attention instead of having the schedule for that day ignore the phenomenon and devote itself to stomach juices; old fashioned enough to deplore the passing of the slate and the excessive use of documentary evidence of the pupils' memory which teachers must take home and slave over; old fashioned enough to regret the days when teachers taught without books or with very few and when sympathy and understanding and the human equation figured in education. We realize that Commissioner Butterfield is going to have a stiff battle, if he expects to put over such old fashioned ideas in the conduct of the schools. But if he persists he will find that a tremendous lot of Connecticut people will be for him.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington, Sept. 26.—Illinois Massachusetts and Rhode Island have a prohibition referendum this year, along with their November elections. North Dakota may have one. Delaware has had an unofficial referendum, conducted by Pierre S. du Pont, a wet.

Interest in referenda has been growing because of Congress and especially the Senate, who, heretofore, have been dry, have been promising to recognize them as guideposts, because they are being used to repeal state enforcement acts, passed by legislatures. The Illinois referendum has resulted in bailing up the Illinois senatorial race featuring Ruth McCormick, and because referenda seem to represent the best method of ascertaining how people feel about an extremely controversial issue.

In Illinois the voters will be asked: 1. Shall the 18th amendment be repealed? 2. Shall Congress modify the Volstead Act? 3. Shall the Illinois search and seizure act be repealed? Republicans of Illinois had much to do with promoting this referendum; about 400,000 signatures were gathered for the petition for it. The idea was to save a lot of wet votes which seemed likely to go to the very wet Democrats and the C. O. F. state convention adopted a plank instructing the senatorial candidate and the two candidates for congressman-at-large, if elected, to follow the result.

Dry Back Independent Congressional candidates were to follow the result in each of their 25 districts. When Mrs. McCormick agreed to this idea the Anti-Saloon League turned on her and is backing the independent candidacy of Lottie O'Neill. The Massachusetts referendum is on the question of repealing the state's "Baby Volstead Act," which is patterned after the national prohibition enforcement act with a few slightly more drastic embellishments. The state enforcement act is said not to be especially onerous on the citizens of Massachusetts, as there is no large enforcement force to enforce it, but repeal of any state enforcement act is regarded as a slap back at the national enforcement officials who have steadfastly sought to put over the idea that enforcement is largely the duty of the separate states.

Rhode Island will have this question on the ballot: "Shall the 18th amendment be retained?" Dries are supposed to vote "yes" and wets "no," but many on both sides are expected to get mixed up. Some voters are bound to get the idea that the question is whether the amendment shall be repealed—or to suppose that "retained" means the same thing as "repealed."

Just an Opinion This vote will be just an expression of opinion, but Senator Metcalfe, who always stands staunchly by the administration, promises to stand by the referendum result if he is re-elected. There was a strong movement in North Dakota to promote a referendum on the repeal of the state enforcement act and a petition to Congress for repeal of the 18th amendment, but some of the petitions weren't properly certified and the question of whether there is to be a referendum is now with the courts. As for the probable results in the other three states, Illinois in 1922 returned a majority of 553,000 for light wines and beer and in 1928 voted by 284,000 that Congress should let the states decide what beverages were non-intoxicating. In 1924 Massachusetts went by 8,000 for its state enforcement act, but in 1928 she voted to memorialize Congress to submit the question of the 18th amendment's repeal to the states by a majority of 280,000. Rhode Island never ratified the 18th amendment.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

ADENOIDS AND MOUTH BREATHING

Everyone has adenoid tissue. It is only when it becomes enlarged that it is dangerous to health. Enlarged adenoids often accompany enlarged tonsils or swollen neck glands. The causes of these troubles are usually similar, and the three together constitute the most common of children's disorders. Due to the location of the adenoid tissue, when it becomes enlarged it may out of the breathing through the nose so the child is forced to breathe with the mouth open, and usually sleeps in this condition. The adenoid tissue is a lymphatic tissue similar to that of the tonsils, but since it is situated in the upper back part of the nose, cannot be seen from the outside. Mouth breathing is the outstanding symptom that the adenoids have enlarged. A mouth that hangs open, the dull expression, a lack of pep, are all indications that the adenoids are at work. If the trouble continues for a long time, it may result in a deformed facial expression. As the teeth may become misshapen, the bony framework of the upper dental arch does not form properly and the teeth do not meet in a bite. The roof of the mouth becomes narrowed and the base of the nose broadened.

The enlarged adenoids thicken the child's lips and give him a dull, stupid look. Often the children are victims of night terrors, as the interference with breathing causes them to feel suffocated. They often snore while sleeping, or are restless and may breathe in loud snorts.

When enlarged tonsils are present the child will suffer from chronic ear troubles, and are especially predisposed to colds and bronchitis. In some cases, the adenoids may become infected and the infection spread to the ear, causing deafness.

For many years I have claimed that adenoids enlarge mostly from too liberal a use of the carbohydrates, but many physicians who know more of surgery than they do of diet have ridiculed my theory; however, I am pleased to note that Sir Arbuthnot Lane, the distinguished English surgeon, points out that "In England and America, where children are fed plenty of starches and sugars, adenoids are more prevalent than elsewhere." The treatment for adenoids should not be delayed after having been discovered, as they not only endanger the child's health but may lead to incurable deformations of the jaws, palate, nose and face.

In most cases, enlarged adenoids will be reduced to normal by short fruit fasts followed by a non-starchy diet, but if the adenoid tissue has greatly enlarged it may sometimes be advisable to use surgical measures. However, before an operation, the thymus gland should always be examined under the x-ray, for if this gland is too large, an anesthetic may be dangerous.

After the adenoids are corrected, the child should be trained to use the nose for breathing, and be given systematic breathing exercises.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Cereals and Fruit) Question: Mrs. H. B. asks: "Are cereals with sliced fresh fruit a good combination?" Answer: Cereals should never be combined with acid fruits. However, a glass of orange juice taken about an hour before a cereal breakfast is all right, as this fruit juice leaves the stomach almost entirely within that time.

(Warts) Question: John N. writes: "I am troubled with warts growing on my fingers which are increasing in number and size. Have tried many remedies, but to no avail, but with no permanent results. What do you advise?" Answer: There is no doubt that the tendency to have warts appear on the skin is due to a condition of acids from wrong food and improper combinations. They can be easily removed with the electric needle or by burning them off with acid, but until you learn how to eat correctly you can expect to have a return of these unsightly growths.

(Pain in Back and Leg) Question: E. L. B. writes: "I have a constant pain in my back, which pains me in any position. I can not lie for long in any one position in bed without a sharp pain coming in my back and going down my right leg. I have taken several osteopathic treatments, but do not see any improvement. Do you think a fruit fast would benefit me?" Answer: Of course it is not possible for me to diagnose your trouble by mail, but I would suggest that at the same time you are taking the osteopathic treatments that you take a short fast, using plenty of water and five or six glasses of orange juice daily. Take two enemas each day to keep the bowels cleansed from any impurities, and you can find out in a few days whether or not your trouble is caused from the rheumatic toxemia, as the rheumatic poisons will be sufficiently eliminated in four or five days through this fasting.

(Galloping Consumption) Question: T. A. asks: "What are the symptoms of galloping consumption?" Answer: This form of consumption closely resembles pneumonia, and runs an exceedingly rapid course. At the onset, there is a severe chill, followed by a rapid pulse and high fever. Pain is felt in the chest, and the expectoration from coughing is developed, with a great loss of flesh and strength. If this disease is recognized quickly enough, it is possible to stop it, if taken before it reaches the danger stage. Since it is tuberculosis of an acute form, it is more dangerous than the chronic form that comes on gradually.

Milne Gets Out of Car Safely
When It Catches Fire at Costello's Garage.

(Special to The Herald)

Rockville, Conn., Sept. 26 — For many years Fire Chief George Milne has rushed his apparatus to the aid of others but today he had to summon the department to his own assistance.

The chief's Ford sedan caught on fire following an explosion at Costello's garage and Milne and a narrow escape from injury. He leaped from the machine in the nick of time. The fire apparatus was called but the machine was a total loss.

WAPPING

At the Federated church and Sunday school, next Sunday, September 28 the annual Rally Day will be observed. An effort is being made to get every member of the church school to be present and to bring all their friends. It will also be promotion Sunday. A graduation service is being planned. Rally Day is being observed one week earlier this year as the first Sunday in October is to be observed as "Old Home Week."

There was a short business meeting of the Federated church last Sunday called at the close of the church services, at which time it was voted to purchase one hundred new hymnals for the church.

A special rehearsal of the Federated church choir will be held at the church this Friday evening for the extra music for Old Home Sunday, at 7:30 o'clock.

The eighth annual school reunion of the Old North School will be held Saturday afternoon, October 4, at 2 o'clock at the Parish house. Clarence P. Quimby of South Manchester will speak and a basket lunch will follow the program.

The Old Home Week end celebration of the Federated church will be held October 4th and 5th. A supper will be served in the school building Saturday evening at 6 o'clock by the Federated Workers, followed by a program. Among the former pastors who expect to return for this occasion are Rev. Dr. Edwin H. Hardy of New York, and Rev. George B. Hamilton of Stamford.

Last Saturday evening there was a birthday surprise party given in honor of Franklin G. Welles, Jr., which was held at his home, where twenty-six of his friends gathered. It was a complete surprise to him. Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Bowers were invited there to play bridge, when to his great surprise in walking the whole party. Games were played and refreshments were served. His friends presented him with a ten dollar gold piece.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott W. Griswold of Hartford, but who were residents of Wapping for many years, have been spending a month at the shore at West Brook. They will return to their home next Tuesday.

Mrs. Fannie (Atkins) Vought of Comstock Place, East Hartford, passed away at her home last Tuesday morning at 2 o'clock. She had cancer of the stomach. Miss Nellie Hollister had been caring for her for a week. Her funeral was held from her late home on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Miss Fannie Atkins (as she was known here before her marriage) lived for a long time with Mrs. Gertrude Sudd in Wapping.

Little Frank Congdon Willson returned to his home from the Manchester Memorial hospital last Tuesday afternoon. His hand is doing well now.

Wapping Grange held its eighteenth regular meeting last Tuesday evening, with an attendance of one hundred and three. It was Neighbor's Night. Manchester, Caventry and Andover Granges were invited, and they provided the program as follows, reading by Mrs. Annie Loud, of Manchester, entitled, "First Night in a Sleeper." Sketch, Miss Lindholm and Mr. Wallace, of Andover Grange. Essay, "Beauty," by Mrs. Laura Loomis of Manchester Grange. A harp and piano duet, by Miss Gowdy and Mrs. Sims of Coventry Grange. Composition on Pants (by a small boy in costume) Arthur Loomis of Manchester Grange. Reading by Miss Hamilton, of Andover Grange. Sketch by members of Coventry Grange. Wapping Grange furnished refreshments consisting of rolls, salads, cake and coffee, apples and grapes. Dancing was enjoyed afterward with Mr. Wickham of Manchester Grange at the piano.

The Christian Endeavor society and friends are invited to the home of Homer Lane, Jr., next Saturday evening, September 27th. A social time and "Get-together" will be enjoyed. The fall sessions of the society commence next Sunday evening, Sept. 27 at 6:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellman Burnham and daughter "Betty Joyce", motored to Maine last Tuesday where they will visit relatives and friends. They expect to visit Niagara Falls on their return trip, and to visit friends in New York also.

There is to be a four-act comedy drama entitled, "Where The Lane Turned" presented by the Burrill Grange Dramatic Club, given under the auspices of Wapping Grange, No. 30, next Friday evening, September 26th at eight o'clock, at the Wapping School hall. Every one is invited to come and enjoy an evening of fun.

Several from this place are planning to attend the Vernon Grange fair next Saturday, at their Grange hall.

Cards Have Infield Edge Over Athletics

Advantage Hinges Around Frankie Frisch at the Keystone Sack; Sixth Series for Fordham Flash.

BY ALAN GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor) Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 26.—(AP) The St. Louis Cardinals, assuming they will carry the National League banner into the world's series next week for the third time in five years, figure to have a distinct infield advantage over the Athletics, offensively and probably defensively, if major value is placed on the key-stone combination. Frankie Frisch, no longer a youngster but still the same old Fordham flash and one of the greatest of all "money players" is the standard infielder on either club. The Cardinals second sacker excels at bat, in the field and on the bases. With Charley Gelbert, his young working partner at shortstop, Frisch forms a defensive combination that compares favorably with the Jackson-Critz pair of the Giants' remarkable infield. This will be Frisch's sixth series. Bishop and Boley, the A's veteran keystone pair, have always suffered by comparison in Philadelphia with the famous old combination of Collins and Barry, remembered as paragon among infielders. Boley and Bishop are a workmanlike pair, defensively, although they do not present the offensive threat of Frisch and Gelbert, both sluggers. Bishop is a good lead-off man and has developed some propensities as a home run hitter this year under the influence of Cochrane, Simmons and Foss. The A's may claim an advantage among first basemen, with Jimmy Foss outthrusting Jim Bottomley by about thirty points, but the Cardinals' left-hander can at least hold his own on the defense. Neither measures up to the superlative standard set this year among first sackers by Bill Terry of the Giants, but both have emerged from hitting slumps in the latter part of the season. Jimmy Dykes, if he reproduced his 1929 form in the coming battle, would be considered superior to Earl (Sparky) Adams, his Cardinal rival, but talkative Jimmy has not had an especially good year. Last season he probably was the most valuable man on the A's, all things considered, for he is a man of all-infield work. Adams, a Pirate cast-off, has been one of the big factors in the sensation pennant rush of the Cardinals, playing a bang-up game in the field, besides hitting harder than any year since he was a regular with the Cubs. If he needs a relief, the Cards have handy Andy High, whose pinch-hitting had a lot to do with knocking Brooklyn out of the race. The Athletics have two youngsters, Dibs Williams and Eric McNair, for emergency duty as well as Eddie Collins, the veteran who is entering his eighth world's series.

DUKE OF YORK WAITS FOR 2 HAZARDS TO PASS

St. Andrews, Scotland, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The Duke of York needs some of Bobby Jones' Marines as course marshals yesterday. Teasing off on the old course, the new captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club took his stance only to see a nurse with a baby carriage along the road which cuts through the first fairway. The duke waited until the babe passed and again started his swing, only to find the town dustman, pushing his cart, had started along the road. Again there was a wait of several minutes, but it did not rattle the duke, who clouted a 200-yard drive like that which yesterday marked his ceremonial entry into the captaincy of the Royal and Ancient.

CUBS' POLICIES ARE ANNOUNCED

The following letter has been circulated by the Cubs football team among Manchester business men and others interested in the welfare of the club in effort to sell season tickets. In it, Manager J. Bennett Clune outlines the plans and policies of the team. The letter: "The time draws near when football comes to reign supreme. And once again the Cubs Football Club of South Manchester will endeavor to furnish real recreation during the Fall season, and it has proven to be the only activity that has held popularity in this town during the past five years. "It seems hardly necessary to remind you that 'The Cubs' are not to seek recognition for our town and to uphold its worthy traditions, not only locally, but throughout the State and New England. "You will, I know, agree with me that football is the only sport that furnishes real recreation during the Fall season, and it has proven to be the only activity that has held popularity in this town during the past five years. "I require funds to do this and our only reliance is the pre-season generosity of our sporting friends; for our gate receipts do not carry the burden of presenting high grade attractions under the guidance of thoroughly tested and qualified Central Board officials. And this year we are going to attempt to go out of our class and bring on some nationally known professional teams. "And before concluding I'm going to let you in on a secret: 'The North End is out to bring back' the championship to the so-called 'God's Country' real reason, and supporters of 'The Cubs' earnestly agree this year by purchasing a Season Ticket, enclosed herewith the cost of which is $5, and which you may remit in the enclosed envelope. The ticket will be honored at all scheduled games of the Cubs at Mt. Neb. "I realize that it requires courage to ask a donation during the present period of depression, but we must shake-off our business cares occasionally, and I know that when you once more see 'The Cubs' wading through opposition and bringing glory to the South End, you will join with us in singing 'Happy Days Are Here Again!'" Sincerely yours, J. BENNETT CLUNE, Mgr.

CUBS' HOPES FADE TO BUT A DREAM

The St. Louis Cards got back into action at home yesterday and disposed of the last possibility of a defeat for the National League pennant without a playoff, by beating the Pittsburgh Pirates 9 to 0. Chicago now managed by Rogers Hornsby, was victorious over the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 3 but the Cubs still were the losers in the pennant battle. The two leaders, now are only three games away from the end of the season and the Cubs remain three games behind. On more St. Louis victory or one defeat for the Cubs will settle the struggle for good. If Chicago meets with success in its remaining games against the troublesome Reds and the Cards lose three to Pittsburgh the season will end in a tie with a three game playoff to decide the pennant winner. The veteran spitballer, Burleigh Grimes, held the Pirate hitters in check, shutting them out with seven runs, while the St. Louis batters pounded the pellet from beginning to end, collecting a dozen effective blows. The American League champions, the Athletics played six innings against the Yanks before rain halted the game and got in some very good batting practice. They had piled up 17 hits off Ruffing and Johnson and had a 13 to 3 score when a sudden storm stopped the slaughter. Lou Gehrig's 41st homer made in the first inning accounted for all the Yanks runs.

Jones Four Up Over Sweetser Seaver 5 Ahead

Merion Cricket Club, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 26.—(AP)—After standing a great comeback by his rival, Bobby Jones was 4 up over Jess Sweetser of New York, today after 18 holes of the 36-hole semi-final match in the national amateur golf championship. Charles Seaver, Los Angeles, was 5 up over Eugene Homans, Englewood, N. J., after 18 holes of their semi-final match. Jones won three of the last four holes after the big blonde New Yorker sputtered midway through the round and almost wiped out the Georgian's early lead. The battle of former American champions started like a rout when Jones won 4 of the first 5 holes with golf that was two under par, and machine-like in its accuracy. Big Jess meanwhile was all over the course, in two traps one hole and he suddenly braced on another, but he suddenly braced and gave the gallery of 2500 spectators a thrill by making a fight of it. Whether it was the return of his touch or the influence of a drive out of bounds by Jones on the seventh, Sweetser rallied enough to win 3 of four holes, cutting Bobby's lead to just one hole at the tenth. Jones putted badly to lose the ninth, after landing just off the green with his tee shot. He three putted the 10th and three putted the 12th after being lucky to win on the 12th, which both played badly. A birdie 3 on the 15th, where he sank a six footer, started Jones off on another rampage. He narrowly missed birdies on both the 17th and 18th, but pars were enough to beat Sweetser. Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 26.—While Bobby Jones was taking another step toward his fourth major golf title of the year by defeating Fay Coleman, 6 and 5, in the quarter-finals of the national amateur tournament yesterday, Jesse W. Sweetser was thrilling the multitude by defeating the iron man of the meeting, young Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., 5 & 4. Jones and Sweetser are paired in the semi-finals today. The Sweetser reached back into the past for some of his old golf shots to upset McCarthy, and moved forward to his first American semi-final since 1923, the year in which he lost his crown after carrying it as far as the last bracket at Flossmoor against Max R. Marston. Sweetser won after being 1 down in the morning. His stunning performance was the day's feature, shading slightly the brilliant victory of Eugene Homans, of Englewood, who smothered the Western champion, Johnny Lehman, of Chicago, 8 and 7. Although Jones carried the largest crowd, that game was not nearly so interesting as the fight between the present and former holders of the metropolitan championship, nor as productive of good golf as the round of Homans. Jones had to struggle a little harder to wear down Fay Coleman, of Los Angeles, than most people expected he would. Pressure told at last. Coleman crumpled when the afternoon sun dried out the course and gave Jones a chance to step out. Only 2 down in the morning, Coleman was 8 down at the turn in the afternoon. By this margin he was beaten on the thirteenth green after each had taken two holes of the last four. The other winner was eighteen-year-old Charles Seaver, of Los Angeles, a chunky lad with a formidable expanse of chest, who some day may fill the shoes of Jones. Seaver defeated William J. McPhail, of Boston, by 5 and 4, after being 1 up at noon in the semi-final Homans plays Seaver. There will be added color in the Jones-Sweetser match, for it so happens that the participants are the only two American-born players who ever won the British amateur title. Walter J. Travis was the first from these shores to prove that American golf was coming on. Away back in 1904 Travis went over to Sandwich and astounded the golf world by capturing the British trophy. That was twenty-two years before Sweetser was ready. A few months ago Jones brought the famous old goblet back again to this country. He also holds the British open and his United States open. Rivalry first flamed between Jones and Sweetser back in 1922, when Bobby was coming to the fore but was not yet ready to turn back such a savage attack as that launched by Sweetser, then a student at Yale. In that championship, played at Brookline, Mass., Sweetser waded through the stars, defeating in turn Willie Hunter, Jesse Gullford, Jones and also Chick Evans. Jones was 6 down at noon and overwhelmed by 8 and 7. Today affords Jones the first opportunity he ever has had to square the old account with Sweetser. The latter is not quite the same golfer that he used to be, but the old spirit still flames within his breast and on occasion, he still can produce the shots. Sweetser was the only one of the four winners who was not leading at the end of the first eighteen holes. He was 1 down to McCarthy, but the match was squared at the afternoon. By the time he had reached the fifth, Sweetser had begun to build up the lead with which he finally crushed the metropolitan champion. McCarthy, no doubt, was feeling the effects of his grueling work of the previous day when he had played forty-eight holes of golf to qualify and win his first two matches. That, of course, should be no excuse, inasmuch as Sweetser also had to battle desperately to stay in the tournament. He was out in the play-off Tuesday night and he, was at it again yesterday morning. In the first round he had a tight match with Phillips Finlay and he was under a terrific strain in his contest with Jack Ahern, of Buffalo, whom he beat on the nineteenth after hoisting a long putt to square the match on the home green. ## Yale Plays Maine Colby at Wesleyan

Football Teams Sharpening Teeth for Bigger Games; Some Waiting Until Week Later, New Coaches at Several Institutions.

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Another football season has rolled around to thrust itself upon the sports stage before baseball is quite ready for its final bow. Sporadic firing already has been heard in some sectors as a half dozen eastern teams beat the gun that sounds a general call to arms all along the football front tomorrow. A few college teams, notably Harvard, Princeton, Penn and Navy will wait another week before swinging into the dizzy whirl that is intercollegiate football. Tomorrow's engagements for the most part, pit the strong against the weak as major teams sharpen up attack and defense for the titanic battles to come. Yale starts a week earlier than usual, taking on Maine at New Haven while Army tackles Boston U. at West Point, Cornell, fighting its way back to the glories that were hers in a football way a decade ago, opens against Clarkson. Columbia under a new coach, Lou Little, meets Middlebury. Dartmouth's first foe is Norwich; Andy Kerr's Colgate travelers brush up on their lessons against St. Lawrence and Vic Hanson's orange clad warriors from Syracuse swing into action against Rensselaer. Pittsburgh with a somewhat green but potentially powerful squad inaugurates what it hopes will be another successful season against

SHARKEY-CAMPOLO FIGHT POSTPONED

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The Metropolitan district's outdoor boxing season has come to a close. Rain forced the postponement of the 15-round heavyweight title bout between Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo last night and directors of Madison Square Garden, after a lengthy huddle decided to hold it in the Garden itself next Friday night. The Garden failed to reveal its reasons for transferring the bout from the stadium.

Opportunity Sale Of Young Men's Topcoats

The opportunity is yours to purchase a Topcoat at the beginning of the season at prices you would be more apt to find at the end of the season.

- $22.50 and $25 Topcoats, now $17.95
- $27.50, $30 and $32.50 Topcoats, now $23.95
- $33.50 and $35 Topcoats, now $25.95
- $45 Topcoats, now $32.95

Special Announcement

The manufacturer of the Heavy Camel and Alpaca Pile Overcoats have reduced them so as we can retail them at $50. This is the best Pile Overcoat on the market at this price.

OLYMPIC CHAMP GREENWICH BRIDE

Greenwich, Conn., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Miss Helen Meany, Olympic diving champion, was on a honeymoon today as the bride of Harry R. Balfe, New York food broker. They were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Meany, and left at once for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. The wedding was attended by members of the families and a few friends. The ceremony was performed by Judge Stephen L. Bradford of the Greenwich probate court. Miss Meany attended Wellesley college and Columbia University. She was a member of the Olympic teams in 1920, 1924 and 1928 and is the only American girl to win places on three Olympic teams. She has won 16 national diving championships. Mr. Balfe is a member of the firm of Ashenfelder and Balfe. This is his second marriage.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELLA MITCHELL, 17, learns suddenly that her father, who she has supposed to be dead is living. She finds this out when JOHN MITCHELL, wealthy New York lawyer, calls at the humble apartment in Baltimore where Celia and her mother live.

Celia's mother is MARGARET ROGERS, divorced from Mitchell when Celia was an infant and later married to BOB ROGERS, who is dead. Mrs. Rogers and Celia have no income but the mother's earnings as a seamstress.

Mitchell proposes to take Celia to New York, offering her a life of wealth and social position. She refuses, but Mrs. Rogers knowing that she herself is faced with ill health and loss of work, persuades Celia to accept.

BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with Celia and the girl promises to wait until they can be married. He agrees to wait for her, but she says farwell, Shields does not do so. Celia and her father arrive in New York and are greeted by the girl's aristocratic grandmother. A telephone message comes for Mitchell.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII

Mitchell, grumbling at the annoyance, strode out of the room following the servant.

Evidently the interruption irritated his mother. The elderly woman tapped her chair nervously with the old-fashioned fan in her hand and frowned at who watched him go. Then she turned to Celia.

"So you're Celia," Mrs. Thomas Worthington Mitchell repeated. "Wouldn't you know you? No, there's not much look of the Mitchells about you. Like your mother, I suppose. Humph!"

The exclamation came explosively. There was an instant's pause and then Mrs. Mitchell added:

"You may kiss me, child!"

It was unasked. If Celia had not been tired and a little frightened, she would surely have smiled. Her grandmother's shoulders were squared back rigidly. She was as unbending as an officer on military parade. Not a trace of affection showed in the automatic face.

Celia did not smile. She came forward timidly, hesitated and then placed a quick, darting kiss somewhere between her grandmother's ear and chin.

Evidently the proprieties had been observed to Mrs. Mitchell's satisfaction. She sat back in her chair, motioning Celia to take a smaller one nearby. The elderly woman continued to scrutinize the girl and Celia's cheeks were crimson.

"I'm glad to find you well," Celia volunteered—and immediately felt this attempt at conversation had been unfortunate.

"Humph!" her grandmother said stiffly. "never sick? I was a Reynolds, my dear, and the Reynoldses are hardy stock. Not like these nervous fluttering budgets who spend half their time carrying on at parties and the other half in sanitariums. No, indeed!"

The elderly woman fanned herself violently. Just then John Mitchell reappeared.

"Anything wrong, John?" Mrs. Mitchell asked.

"No," he said at once. "Business call." He said it as though the subject of his telephone message was not to be discussed. Celia's tired mother. Better be getting some sleep, don't you think so?"

Mrs. Mitchell nodded.

"Ring for Martha," she said.

Mitchell rang the bell and, as if automatically, a small dark-haired woman in maid's uniform stood in the doorway.

"What is it, ma'am?"

"Show Miss Celia to her room," Mrs. Mitchell directed. "Did Edward take the bags up?"

"Yes, ma'am. Just follow me, miss."

Hair that sparkles!

No one can deny the importance of having the hair arranged in the style best suited to the individual type. Much of the effect is lost, however, unless the hair is kept soft, abundant, lustrous.

A million busy women and girls know the easiest way to keep the hair in perfect condition is with Danderine. The first application will show you how marvelously it removed excess oil from the hair; cleanses it; makes it sparkle with new life and lustre. It's so simple to use Danderine. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair! The consistent use of Danderine will dissolve the worst crust of dandruff; soothe, heal the scalp; stimulate the growth of long, silky abundant hair.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. "Set" your waves with it and see how much longer they stay in.

Danderine

The One Minute Hair Beautifier

The good lights were said hastily and without further show of affection. Celia followed the maid into the hallway and up the stairs. She noted the dark, rich pile of the carpets they crossed. Not a sound of their footsteps could be heard.

The second floor of the house was divided into a broad corridor with doors opening of either side. There seemed a great many rooms.

Half way down the corridor Martha paused, pushing open a door. Her fingers touched an electric switch and the chamber was illuminated. Then she stood back, waiting for Celia to enter.

The girl crossed the threshold and stood still.

The room was furnished in an old-fashioned style, but to Celia it was the most beautiful bedroom she had ever seen. There was a high ceiling with pale green taffeta draperies. What held Celia's attention, though, was a small wall bed with counterpane of coral silk. The glow from a bed lamp selected on this coverlet, brightening the whole room.

At the opposite wall was a dressing table with triple mirrors in which the girl could see her reflection from where she stood. There were green cafta skirts and an elaborate and dressing table and a small desk completed the furnishings. Small rugs lay on the glistening, polished surface of the floor.

Martha had slipped into the room behind the girl. She crossed the floor, opening a door which led to a coral-lined bathroom. The maid brushed herself, arranging towels. Then from somewhere she brought a ruffled chignon negligee which she laid on the bed with the silken gown.

"Can I take your things, miss?"

Martha stood ready to take Celia's hat and handbag.

"—Yes, thank you!"

Still uncertainly glancing about her, Celia moved toward the center of the room. She went to the door of the bathroom and surveyed its gleaming tiles with frank delight. Then she came back and stood before the coral bed.

The maid was still waiting. She seemed a trifle ill at ease.

"Shall I draw your bath, miss?"

Celia smiled.

"Don't bother," she said, "I can manage everything myself, I'm sure."

Still Martha remained. Celia drew off her jacket and slipped on the coral-lined negligee, watching the older woman waiting to assist her in undressing. It was disconcerting.

"Really, I don't need you, Martha," she said hesitatingly. "I'm used to doing things for myself."

For a moment Martha's eyes were lowered. Then she looked up and said, reading some indefinite meaning in that glance, suddenly feeling that she and this quiet, middle-aged woman were to be friends.

"Very well, miss," Martha said, "if you're sure."

"Yes, I'm quite sure," she said. "Martha's hand was on the door-knob. She turned and looked back over her shoulder.

"Good night, miss," she said softly.

"Good night, Martha," Celia answered, and the door closed.

Swiftly the girl slipped out of her clothing, she filled the coral tub with warm water, stepped in and splashed about contentedly, all the while admiring the luxury of the handsome bathroom. The delicately scented soaps and bath powder were a novelty.

Wrapped in a huge towel Celia came pattering back into the bedroom. She looked down at the negligee and night gown which had been laid out for her. Damp tendrils of chestnut hair, curled tight by the steaming lung to her flushed cheeks.

Celia looked at the silken garments again, then crossed the room to where her brown traveling bag stood. Reaching into the leather bag she drew out a little white night gown made by her mother's own stitches. It went over her head. Five minutes later Celia was in bed. Her head scarcely had touched the pillow before she was asleep.

Morning came with a distinct surprise.

Celia stretched, rolled over lazily and wondered what time it was getting to be. Late, probably. One eyelid opened, then blinked shut. The eyelid opened wider. In an instant Celia was sitting up in bed, staring about her. She could not imagine where she was.

part of this young servant's duties. She drew back the window curtains so that a cool breeze floated into the room. Then she was back at the bedside, arranging the tray.

Grapefruit, buttered toast, crisp, twisted bits of bacon and jam were revealed on exquisite, fragile dishes.

"My! How good it looks!"

There was no response from the maid. Celia thought this queer, and then blushed, wondering what error she had made. But there were things which she wanted to know.

"Have my father and grandmother had breakfast?" she asked.

"Yes, Mr. Mitchell always leaves the house at nine o'clock. Mrs. Mitchell was served some time ago. Oh—then I must be terribly late! I'm sorry! Tell grandmother I'll be right down."

"Yes, miss. Is there anything else?"

Celia said there was not, and the servant departed. The hands of the small clock on the bedside table pointed to 9:30 o'clock. Though the breakfast before her was excellent, Celia was in too great haste to enjoy it.

When she had finished eating she dressed swiftly. It seemed to the girl a tremendous disgrace to be the last one of the household to appear on her first morning in the new home. What would her formidable grandmother have to say to this late appearance?

Celia crossed the broad hall and looked into the drawing room. No one was in sight there. She glanced through two other doors. Then she heard a voice and followed it. In a room lined with book shelves she found Martha arranging a bowl of dahlias.

"Good morning," the girl said brightly. "Where will I find my grandmother?"

"Good morning, Miss Celia. Mrs. Mitchell is in her room, but she said she wasn't to be disturbed."

"Oh—"

Celia withdrew. For two lonely hours she tried to amuse herself. Most of the time she spent before a window facing on the park. There would have been plenty to interest the girl if she had not been so ill at ease.

Celia was dreadfully, dreadfully homesick.

She did not hear Martha's footsteps, but she turned quickly when she heard her words:

"Miss Celia, the servant was saying, 'Mrs. Mitchell's sent for you.'"

WANTS NO LIFE JOB

Istanbul, Turkey, Sept. 26.—(AP)—President Mustapha Kemal today expressed opposition to a suggestion of Fethi Bey, leader of the new Liberal Party, that Mustapha allow himself to be elected president for life by a national plebiscite.

"The proposal to make me president of the Turkish republic for life runs utterly counter to my ideal," said Mustapha. "The president of a lifetime presidency must never be established, for the complete sovereignty of the people must always prevail in republican regimes."

Kemal's second four year term as president will expire next year. In 1925, he spurned a proposal to make him Caliph.

Work on the dismantling of the old Post house and store on Hebron Corner is rapidly going on. Starling W. Childs of Norfolk, the purchaser, intends moving the house and its folk to a new place for his son and daughter-in-law. It will be taken to pieces and moved within the next few weeks, it is reported. The store will be used, the contractor stated, to reinforce the rebuilding of the house, in the supply of parts that are the original ones put in 124 years ago when the property was built, and are in an unusually good state of preservation. The convex and concave surfaces of the panes are to age and weathering are especially noticeable, and it is rare to find such panes of glass as in the majority of cases such houses have been remodeled and more modern windows have been put in, replacing the old ones.

The removal of this property will make safer for motorists a rather dangerous corner, but it will tend to still further remove the old-fashioned atmosphere of the town, which is being rapidly dissipated. People who were rapidly dissipated. People who were rapidly dissipated.

YOUR CHILDREN

A blessed handful of altruistic people are looking after the children's hospitals. For these hospitals receive only a certain and comparatively small appropriation from state funds each year. All public hospitals are given an annual appropriation toward expense from this source and children's hospitals receive their pro rata share with the rest—but no hospital receives anything like enough to make ends meet. This deficit of hospitals in general is made up somewhat by public subscription and private donation.

If we adults are charged increasingly high hospital rates for our accommodations, it is based on necessity, the complex economic problem of enormous charity work this year and government appropriation and private subscription and donation inadequate.

To go back to the children's hospital: it is strange but true that as a rule these hospitals have a constant struggle for existence.

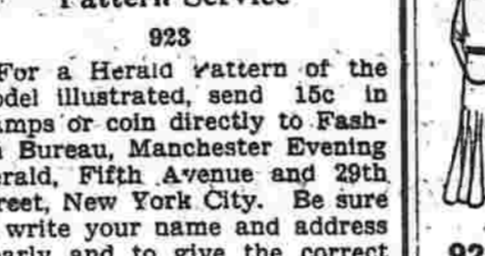

There are several reasons for this, reasons that vary with city conditions and the type of children's hospital maintained. Often it is because the rank and file of children whose parents can pay are nursed at home. Or because special surgical cases among these children are taken to the general hospitals for operation and treatment when the local children's hospital is not equipped for such cases. The children's hospital in such a case is therefore deprived of these sources of revenue vital to upkeep.

The facts are that most children's hospitals as we know them are filled with little shut-ins, small people with incurable, broken bodies, chronic diseases, or cases of slow doubtful convalescence; children whose parents cannot pay or care for them at home; little derelicts who must depend on our support and sympathy to give them their chance at life and a remnant of happiness.

The very psychology of such places sets them apart. The indications of little minds fair or up under pain, facing the handicap of crippled limbs, cut off from the normal happy life of other children, present a distressing and almost insurmountable problem. But we can do much to help.

It is our duty to try to give them every chance that human skill can provide toward recovery, and to make their present incarceration as happy and as bearable as possible. Speaking of providing skill, many doctors give their time to these children free of charge, but we must expect them to shoulder all our responsibility. How many of us give free earning time to anyone? We trade so easily on that slogan, "Let the doctor do it."

I am urging a little more public interest in all hospitals for children. Toys, books, flowers, games all contribute to the general sunshine. Money, of course, even in small quantities not only adds its lever to lift the burden but is the material token of moral support as well.

STUDY SHOWS CHILDREN GROW MORE IN SUMMER AND FALL

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The average person is likely to take it for granted that a child grows constantly from birth to maturity at a fairly even rate and to be little concerned with the factors concerning growth at any given time.

Actually, children, like plants, grow much more during some seasons than during others. Their rate of growth seems influenced by the weather, the sunlight, exercise, diet, and many other factors.

For at least a quarter of a century it has been known that children tend to grow more during the summer, than during the winter, the fact being emphasized by German investigators who made a special study of the subject.

Thus, one German investigator who examined 1,000 German infants found the increase in weight much greater during the late summer and autumn than in the spring and early summer or in the winter.

An American physician who studied several thousand children in Boston during the period of their school life noted a seasonal difference in the weight increase, the September to January period averaging 3.4 pounds in boys, whereas the February to June period averaged .82 pounds. He found, in general, a loss of weight in April, May and June.

An increase in height is found to take place rapidly from April to June, slowing down in the hot summer months and still more in the winter months. The figures were recently checked for 650 children, aged 7 to 9, in four Scottish towns. All of these children had an increase in height in the three months from March to the end of June more so than in any other period.

The smallest increase in height took place in October, November and December, the greatest increase in weight took place in July, August and September, and the second greatest in October, November and December.

In the early part of the summer, namely, April, May and June, 25 per cent of the boys actually lost weight, although they increased in height.

STUDY SHOWS CHILDREN GROW MORE IN SUMMER AND FALL

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The average person is likely to take it for granted that a child grows constantly from birth to maturity at a fairly even rate and to be little concerned with the factors concerning growth at any given time.

Actually, children, like plants, grow much more during some seasons than during others. Their rate of growth seems influenced by the weather, the sunlight, exercise, diet, and many other factors.

For at least a quarter of a century it has been known that children tend to grow more during the summer, than during the winter, the fact being emphasized by German investigators who made a special study of the subject.

Thus, one German investigator who examined 1,000 German infants found the increase in weight much greater during the late summer and autumn than in the spring and early summer or in the winter.

An American physician who studied several thousand children in Boston during the period of their school life noted a seasonal difference in the weight increase, the September to January period averaging 3.4 pounds in boys, whereas the February to June period averaged .82 pounds. He found, in general, a loss of weight in April, May and June.

An increase in height is found to take place rapidly from April to June, slowing down in the hot summer months and still more in the winter months. The figures were recently checked for 650 children, aged 7 to 9, in four Scottish towns. All of these children had an increase in height in the three months from March to the end of June more so than in any other period.

The smallest increase in height took place in October, November and December, the greatest increase in weight took place in July, August and September, and the second greatest in October, November and December.

In the early part of the summer, namely, April, May and June, 25 per cent of the boys actually lost weight, although they increased in height.

Work on the dismantling of the old Post house and store on Hebron Corner is rapidly going on. Starling W. Childs of Norfolk, the purchaser, intends moving the house and its folk to a new place for his son and daughter-in-law. It will be taken to pieces and moved within the next few weeks, it is reported. The store will be used, the contractor stated, to reinforce the rebuilding of the house, in the supply of parts that are the original ones put in 124 years ago when the property was built, and are in an unusually good state of preservation. The convex and concave surfaces of the panes are to age and weathering are especially noticeable, and it is rare to find such panes of glass as in the majority of cases such houses have been remodeled and more modern windows have been put in, replacing the old ones.

The removal of this property will make safer for motorists a rather dangerous corner, but it will tend to still further remove the old-fashioned atmosphere of the town, which is being rapidly dissipated. People who were rapidly dissipated. People who were rapidly dissipated.

The order, following two outbreaks of violence between Czechs and German residents of Prague, was intended to ally anti-German feeling among the Slavonic population.

Czechs, on the other hand, were warned not to congregate on the streets without permission of the police.

Nine policemen were injured yesterday while protecting Germans against a group of Czechs, fifteen of whom were arrested.

WOMEN ON SECRET HOP

London, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Victor Bruce, British woman aviator, started from Heston, Middlesex air park, today on a mystery flight in her single seater Bluebird aeroplane.

The greatest secrecy surrounded her destination. One report credited her with the intention of flying east across Europe to Persia, India, China and Japan. Another said she was flying to Alexandria and then down to Capetown. There was still another report that she was flying around the world and would be gone three years.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Motion picture theaters were ordered today to suspend temporarily the use of "talkies" in German.

CHENEY GIRLS PLAN SEASON ACTIVITIES

Annual Harvest Supper to be Held in Cheney Hall on Monday, October 6.

With the fall and winter season already at hand, activities in the Cheney Brothers Girls Athletic Association are beginning to boom again. Part of the program was outlined today.

First comes the finishing of the tennis tournament. A field of twelve has been reduced to play Alice Paradis in the finals. A silver loving cup will go to the winner and a medal to the runner-up.

On Monday evening, October 6, a Harvest supper will be held in Cheney Hall. This is an annual affair that invariably draws a big percentage of the organization's members. Incidentally, this may be the last time that the main floor of the hall will be available for the girls' entertainment use. It is shortly to be made the new location of Cheney Brothers sales room.

The entertainment committee for the Harvest Supper consists of Edna Anderson, chairman, Louis Pukosky, Nan Taggart, Eva Armstrong and Helen Gustafson. Miss Ruth Hanson is chairman of the waitresses, others being Anna Ryan, Anna Moriarty, Claire Fairbanks, Mabel Sullivan, Alice Paradis, Marion Lockwood, Rita O'Leary, Ruth Griffiths and Effie Geddis.

Plans have also been made for a hike to Glastonbury Sunday morning, the party leaving the south end trolley terminus at 8 o'clock. Association officials call their members' attention to the fact that the time mentioned is governed by the change back to eastern standard time, clocks being turned back one hour Saturday night at bedtime.

On October 11 and 12, the members will go to Elm Camp on Salmon River for a weekend.

Plans have also been made for a continuation of the annual bowling league—junior and senior. Nan Taggart has been vice-president of this sport for three years but has resigned. Miss Alice Paradis will take over her duties.

Matches will be rolled on Tuesday nights starting October 14, at Farr's and Murphy's of the West Side Rec alleys in case Murphy's is not available.

RAIN BADLY NEEDED, SHOWERS AVAIL LITTLE

Farmers Say Wells Are Drying Up and Pasture Lands Are Burned Beyond Use.

Farmers report that they are in dire need of rain. Yesterday's intermittent showers were too light to do much real value although they were of some aid. The pasture land used for grazing, has been scorched badly by the sun and nibbled closely by the cattle until conditions have reached a point where more and heavier rainfall is badly needed.

One farmer from out Bolton way said this morning that he has four wells on his farm and two of them have already dried up—something which hasn't happened in several years. Other farmers, he said, have been affected similarly. Today brought no relief. The sun burned its way through a heavy morning fog and sent the mercury soaring upward until at noon the day was one of the hottest of the fall, if not the summer. There was hardly a breath of air stir at times, it seemed.

TO TELL LUTHERANS OF EUROPEAN TRIP

Miss Edythe Schultz to Speak Before Luther League Friday Evening, October 3.

Miss Edythe Schultz of Oak street, who spent nearly two months this summer in a tour of Europe, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Luther League of the Swedish Lutheran church, Friday evening, October 3. Her subject will embrace the Oberammergau Passion Play.

The meeting will be in charge of the publicity committee consisting of Esther M. Johnson, chairman, Elsie Brandt, Anna M. Johnson, Ruth Ruden, Lillian Hultin, Raymond Erickson, Ivar Scott and Anna Lindberg. The usual business meeting will precede the program.

REPORT LOCAL MAN IN TORRINGTON CRASH

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Torrington, a Michael Sealey of Manchester was cut slightly about the head when he drove his automobile off the Torrington-Goshen highway in an effort to avoid collision with another machine, last night. His age was given as 20 years. The name of Sealey is not listed in the Manchester directory and attempts to learn his identity proved futile.

The report states that Sealey's companion, Pearl W. Dawn of Torrington suffered shock and contusions. Two men, both of Torrington, were injured and one died as a result of the mishap. The accident took place on a steep hill, Albert DeMichiel driving his car with Henry Carr as passenger came onto the main highway and both drivers left the road to avoid the crash. DeMichiel had a fractured skull and died this morning.

SALVATIONISTS HOLDING HARVEST CELEBRATIONS

Special Officers to Spend Week End at Citadel — Adj. and Mrs. Harris to Come Here.

The services at the Salvation Army this week-end will be a celebration of the Harvest In-Gathering. This is an annual event, and Harvest Festival week-end is always a very inspiring series of meetings.

In connection with the special services, Adjutant Joseph Heard is pleased to announce, that he has secured Adjutant and Mrs. William G. Harris of New York City to do the services on Sunday. Adjutant and Mrs. Harris were long, missionary officers, working in Java. They were the first officers to open the missionary work in Celebes. They will have a very interesting message in connection with these lands, and it is expected that a large crowd will be on hand at the afternoon and evening services to hear these missionary officers. Mrs. Adjutant Harris, is an accomplished pianist and vocalist, and will sing a number of times during the Sunday services. At the present time Adjutant and Mrs. Harris are stationed in New York City at the Territorial Headquarters, the Adjutant being assistant Editor of the War Cry. He is also a member of the Staff Band, while Mrs. Harris is a member of the Staff Songsters.

There will be a musical on Saturday evening, by the Band and Songster Brigade. This will be a very interesting service and the public is cordially invited to attend. On Sunday there will be services at 11 a. m., 8 and 7:30 p. m. On Monday evening there will be a sale of produce, which is always a popular time at the Salvation Army. The public is invited to come to all of these services.

TOBACCO MEN HUSTLING TO MAKE USE OF DAMP

Humidity and Rain Make Conditions Right for Handling—Find Plenty of Help.

The extreme humidity of yesterday, the rain of last night and the succeeding fog, started tobacco growers hustling last night to get together gangs of extra workers in preparation for beginning this morning to take down the tobacco hanging in the sheds. Not only had the leaf absorbed the moisture necessary for its handling but there was so much dampness and the temperature so high that quick work was to be avoided.

A region around Depot Square was lively with trucks taking no groups of plantation hands, for no difficulty had been found in mobilizing the needed help. Today in excess of the big sheds the hanging leaf was being taken down and in process preparatory to baling or packing.

In the Hillstown district, which escaped the havoc of the storms during the summer, considerable help brought in from other tobacco areas where growers had small harvests or none at all as the result of the hail.

In a good many instances in Manchester smaller growers have been able to handle their crops without employing outside help and in the taking down processes found they could get along with no assistance outside their families, so reduced have been their crops through storm losses.

WATKINS TO ADDRESS KIWANIS ON FURNITURE

Lecture in Keeping With National Home Furnishings Style Show Which Opens Tonight.

C. Elmore Watkins will be the speaker at the Monday noon meeting of the Manchester Kiwanis club at the Country clubhouse. Tying up with the National Home Furnishings Style Show, his topic will be "The Romance of Furniture History." Mr. Watkins' lecture will be illustrated with slides and he will show pictures of the oldest chair in existence, which was used by Queen Hatshepsut about 1485 B. C., the bedroom of Mary Queen of Scots, and other interesting interiors and French pieces of furniture.

Dr. Elbert Shelton will furnish the attendance prize. The Kiwanis are urged to turn out for this meeting, and if they are to be unavoidably absent, they should notify Secretary George H. Wilcox before 9 a. m., Monday.

TO RIGIDLY ENFORCE STOP SIGN SYSTEM

Police Say Only Half of Auto-ists Observe Warnings at Street Corners—Will Arrest All Violators.

Manchester motorists must obey the new stop sign system which has been recently installed at various dangerous street intersections or else face the liability of not only arrest but prosecution, according to a statement given out by police department officials today.

It appears that only about half of the motorists have been bringing their cars to a complete stop before entering main thoroughfares from side streets. And yet, as it has been pointed out several times, such a traffic system has been installed for the sole benefit of the motorists to reduce, if possible, the number of accidents.

Several persons have already been arrested but as yet no fines have been imposed. Hereafter however, it will be necessary to take such action in order to impress upon the public the fact that the law must be obeyed.

ROCKVILLE

Dedication Sunday

On Sunday afternoon at 2:30 the Soldiers' monument at Somers, near the Community house, will be dedicated with fitting ceremony. The monument has been erected as a memorial to the veterans of all wars. The pastors of the Somers churches will participate in the program. Commander-in-Chief Edward L. Newmarker of the American Legion State Department will represent the American Legion in an executive capacity, and will also address the gathering.

The American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will be a feature of the program, and will parade during the afternoon. The Legion Ritual will be used during the dedication ceremony. The outdoor program in connection with the day's events will include singing by the School children of Somers.

All members of Stanley Dobosz post are asked to attend these exercises.

Specimen Ballots Available

The specimen ballots for the Town election have arrived, containing the list of the candidates for the several positions to be filled at the election. Copies of the ballot may be had at the Town Clerk's office. The candidates listed are as follows: Assessor, John L. Brown, R. Charles F. Stepp, D.; selectmen, Francis J. Prichard, R. Orlando Ransom, R., Arthur J. Morin, D. John McKenna, D.; auditor, William H. Yost, R.; collector of taxes, Charles M. Squires, R. and D.; constables, Roger J. Murphy, R., Thurston T. Dickinson, R., Olin Seabe, R., Kenneth Webster, R., Charles Connors, D., George E. Dunn, D., John J. Doyle, Jr., D.; registrar of voters, Henry Schmidt, R., George E. Dunn, D.; town school committee, Ernest C. Hensig, R., Francis S. Nettleton, R., John E. Flaherty, D.

Lions Club Meeting

The Lions Club held a meeting at the Rockville House on Wednesday evening, and there was a good attendance. Two important matters were discussed and the club will again resume the responsibility of the transportation of boys to the Yale-Maryland football game. It was announced that E. M. Shelton of South Manchester will be the speaker at the next meeting which will be held on Wednesday evening, October 8. He will have as his subject, "Science in Agriculture." The transportation committee for the Yale-Maryland game consists of William Conrady, David Sykes and James R. Quinn.

The speaker at Wednesday night's meeting was Rev. Karl Kepner of Stafford Springs, and he had as his subject, "Gypsy Wanderings in Russia." In the year of 1925 he went with Dr. Sherwood Eddy's party to Europe, and while there decided to extend his itinerary as far as Russia. He became acquainted with conditions while there.

Legion Auxiliary Plans

The American Legion Auxiliary held a regular meeting on Wednesday evening, at which time there was a large attendance. Six members were initiated. Mrs. Florence North, was presiding officer, assisted by Mrs. Olive Leroux of Somers, chaplain of the unit, and the staff of officers of the Auxiliary. The program was carried out in a very acceptable manner, and with the proper dignity.

The Auxiliary voted to hold election of officers on October 22, and on that night 100 there will be a Halloween social. The masquerade in connection with the Halloween social will take place before the meeting, and following this social time the meeting will be held and refreshments will be served.

Several members are planning to attend the convention in Boston, and quite a few are planning to attend the excursion on October 7.

Gas Transmission Line Completed

The new high pressure gas transmission line which has been under way to connect Rockville with Manchester and Hartford has been completed and is now ready for service. Announcement was made to this effect by J. F. Ahern, manager of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company.

Church 140th Anniversary

The 140th anniversary of the Crystal Lake M. E. church will be observed on Sunday, October 5 at 8 o'clock. Rev. Myron Gentes will be the preacher and many visiting ministers will assist in the service. The program will be in charge of Rev. T. Arthur Mosley of Stafford Springs.

W. R. C. Inspection Wednesday

Burpee's Women's Relief Corps will hold its annual inspection at its next regular meeting, which is on Wednesday evening, October 1. Mrs. Mabel Deane of Hartford will have charge of the inspection. All officers are requested to wear white on the night of inspection. A rehearsal will be held on Monday night in G. A. R. rooms at 7:30 sharp.

Following the meeting the regular monthly birthday social will be held in honor of the birthdays of several members.

C. E. Society Activities

A social will be held by the Christian Endeavor Society of Union Church at the parsonage on Union street on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. There will be a program of games and refreshments. All members should make a special effort to be present.

On Sunday evening at 6 o'clock there will be a meeting at the church, and there will be a discussion on "How to Be Truly Popular." Leonard Dowling will be in charge.

On October 5, Miss Myrtle Kuhnly will be the speaker and a subject of interest to all young people will be discussed.

Cradle Roll Party

Plans are complete for the annual cradle roll party of Union Church and all mothers are invited to bring all mothers are invited to bring their children under Sunday school age. Mrs. Emma Ludwig and Mrs. Edward Miller are in charge. There will be games and refreshments. The party will be held from 3 o'clock until 5. Rally Day

Sunday is Rally Day at Union Congregational church and all parents and children are invited to special exercises which will be held at 9:30. A demonstration of Junior achievement work will be given. Vernon Fair

Many patrons are planning to attend the Vernon Grange Fair to be held on Saturday at the Grange hall. There will be 4-H club exhibits, during the afternoon and evening, and supper will be served by the Grange ladies from six to eight after which there will be a free entertainment. The dance will follow with Buckminster's orchestra furnishing the music. There will be modern and old-fashioned dances. Door prizes will be awarded, during the evening. This promises to be a fine day's entertainment.

Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Coo-grove of North Park street have purchased the Pagan home on Lawrence street.

Miss Josephine Caserri of Suispeic street has entered a Hartford hospital, where she will train for a nurse.

who has been very ill at St. Francis hospital, has returned home.

Miss Natalie Ide of Talcott avenue has returned to the Connecticut College for Women at New London, to resume her studies.

Rev. H. B. Olmstead of Ellington avenue spent a few days in Wallingford this week.

Timothy McCarthy of High street has resumed his studies at Catholic University in Washington.

Old Sol broke through a heavy fog early this morning and sent the mercury gradually soaring until the day became one of the hottest of the fall.

82 YOUNGSTERS GET PRE-SCHOOL EXAMS

Child Welfare Program Has Been Efficiently Conducted During Summer Months.

Quietly but efficiently the work of the committee on child welfare and public health nursing has been conducted in Manchester during the summer months. Notices of pre-school clinics in the different school districts appeared in these columns, but no report has so far appeared as to how many children were thus examined before the schools opened early in the month. Records tabulated indicate that in the different districts a total of 82 little ones entering school for the first time were examined by the doctors with the child welfare nurses in attendance. Among these cases one hundred and twenty-five defects were noted, such as bad tonsils and adenoids, enlarged glands, decayed teeth, poor nutrition and incorrect posture. Two children were recommended for the open air school, two were found definitely feeble-minded. Twelve have undergone tonsillectomy operations, 14 children have had 71 teeth extracted, and a posture class is being held weekly by the Child Welfare nurses at the Manchester Community club, with fourteen children attending.

In every case home visits for consultation with the parents were made by the Child Welfare nurses, Miss Buttle and Miss Davis.

The personnel of the committee supervising this local health work is as follows: Mrs. William C. Cheney, Mrs. Charles W. Holman, Mrs. Lillian S. Bowers, Mrs. John P. Cheney, Mrs. P. F. VanNess.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Mildred Erickson, who has been spending the summer at Misquamicut has returned and has assumed charge of her corset shop in the Rubnow building, 843 Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Helm, Jr., who were married earlier in the month were surprised at their newly furnished home on Summit street last evening by 40 of their friends and relatives. Guests were present from New Britain, Burlington, Rockville, Burnside and Manchester. The bride and bridegroom received a number of beautiful gifts. Various games were played and a buffet lunch served. Mrs. Helm before her marriage was Miss Dorothy Scott of Willimantic.

There will be a meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the South Methodist church at 7:30 this evening.

In the Dollar Day section of today's Herald in the advertisement of Edward J. Murphy's Pharmacy a correction should be noted. The advertisement should read that the first fifty women or men who purchase Dollar Day merchandise will receive in the case of a lady customer a gift box containing values as high as $1.50, and the men customer a razor and package of shaving cream. The gift boxes are sealed at the factory and contain toilet articles of unusual merit.

Members of the Holy Name society of St. Bridget's church will receive communion in a body Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock. Members will meet in the basement of the church at 8:15 o'clock.

Rev. Marvin S. Stocking and Mrs. Stocking have returned to the parsonage on North Main street after a motor trip to Middlebury and other places in Vermont.

Miss Edith Walsh is chairman of an entertainment to be given by Temple Chapter O.E.S., Wednesday evening, October 8 at 8 o'clock. Sunset Rebekah lodge will at that time put on their play "Twelve Old Maids" which has been given once locally and in several out of town places. Temple Chapter's meeting will begin at 7 o'clock. During the evening refreshments will be on sale.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the South Methodist church will meet this evening at 7:30. It will be the annual meeting with election of officers. The program will be in charge of Mrs. Howard Keith.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hohenthal of 467 Center street, and Mrs. Hohenthal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Case of South Windsor have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Marcus E. Case of Ithaca, N. Y. While in the Finger Lake region they took trips to Watkins and Enfield glens, Cayuga and Seneca lakes and returned by way of East Windham in the Catskills.

Albert Calve, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Calve of East Middle Turnpike, left yesterday for New York City, where he will be employed at Club Lido, Broadway night club.

William H. Petherbridge, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. will lead the singing at the first of the 7 o'clock Sunday evening People's services at the North Methodist church. All who can sing are invited to meet him at 6:30 Sunday night. Rev. Ernest A. Legg of Main street will speak informally on the topic: "The Child Nobody Knows."

The Junior Mission Band of the Swedish Lutheran church will meet at the church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

EARLY DIAGNOSIS IS NEEDED IN T. B.

Doctors Praise Frank Announcement Made in the Case of President's Son.

Washington, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The public announcement that President Hoover's son is under treatment for tuberculosis was commended today by health authorities who believe it will result in wide play for science's most effective weapon against the disease—early diagnosis.

Surgeon General Cummings of the public health said although some progress has been made, the attitude of laymen toward frank dealing with the one-time taboo of tuberculosis still seriously impairs the effectiveness of treatment.

A Good Example

"The example of the President, his family and his physician will have a salutary effect," Dr. Cumming added. "It will encourage patients to seek plain advice early; it will lead doctors to make diagnosis as soon as possible.

"And we need such an example. For although the intelligent attitude is gaining, it still is true that only a brave doctor dares make such a pronouncement as came from the White House while there is yet time to do most good."

As if remarking a familiar fact, Dr. Cumming observed:

"All early cases of tuberculosis get well now under proper care."

Is Now in Bed

Young Herbert Hoover has been in bed at his father's camp in Virginia for ten days.

"Less than 20 years ago" Dr. Cummings says, "to make a diagnosis of tuberculosis was to write finis on the social, domestic and professional life of the patient—if not to pronounce a simple sentence of death. There arose consequently, the very foolish sentiment of shunning the disease. Symptoms were pooh poohed, patients were pronounced 'under suspicion' of it and treatment was hidden and delayed.

"Intelligent persons have quite outgrown these old notions" he added, "but there still persists an unfortunate subservience to them where they do the greatest harm to the cause of eradication."

DANISH KING'S BIRTHDAY

Copenhagen, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Denmark today celebrated the sixtieth birthday of King Christian X. Danish colors floated everywhere. Schools and public offices were closed and loyal Danes paid homage in various ways to the popular monarch. New stamps and silver coins bearing His Majesty's features were issued today.

Ralph H. Booth, American minister, presented the congratulations of his governmental in a private audience with the monarch.

MANCHESTER HOME FURNISHINGS STYLE SHOW TO OPEN TONIGHT

EXHIBIT HERE IS UNIT IN NATIONAL PROGRAM

Over 400 Cities Throughout United States Participating—Local Display One of Finest in New England;
Local Men to Officiate.

It is here—the greatest event ever to be attempted by the home furnishing industry. In Manchester and simultaneously in practically every

Thomas J. Rogers

city and town of consequence throughout the United States, the first National Home Furnishings Style Show opens and will continue for 8 days. This show is being sponsored by manufacturers and dealers to present the latest furniture fashions, to provide a means of discussing with visitors their home-furnishing problems, and to provide educational features that will be a great value towards beautifying homes.

Fine Program Here
Here in Manchester one of the finest programs in New England has been arranged. The two prominent local furniture stores, Watkins Brothers and Keith's, together with Cheney Brothers, are co-operating to give Manchester the very finest

Style Show possible, with a program no home lover will want to miss. Some idea of the comparison between the local show and those of other towns may be had by the letter received from Jas. R. Branson, of the National Headquarters. Mr.
Branson says, "Your program for the Style Show in Manchester is exceedingly complete. I know of no other town of its size that will have so fine a Style Show. May I take this opportunity to congratulate your local committee on a splendid job well done. I am confident the home lovers in Manchester will more than appreciate your efforts."

The show is scheduled to be opened here at 7:30 p. m. at both Watkins Brothers and Keith's. Thomas J. Rogers, chairman of Board of Selectmen and Emil L. G. Hohenthal Jr., president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, will officiate. Everyone is invited to attend.

Stores Decorated
The stores have both been completely redecorated for the occasion.
They will feature the very latest designs in furniture of every type;
floor coverings and smart accessories. These will be attractively arranged in ensembles presenting

E. L. G. Hohenthal, Jr.

many interesting ideas to visitors.
The personnel of each store will wear a special identification tag so that visitors might easily distinguish them and secure any information desired. The program tonight includes special music.

All invited
Both stores extend a cordial invitation for everyone to attend.
"Bring the whole family" is their welcome—and from all indications this invitation will be generously accepted.

OAK AND WALNUT GOOD FOR EARLY ENGLISH DESIGNS

For the house where furniture after the early English designs predominates, chests of drawers, cabinets, and square desks, outlined with moldings, are appropriate.
Oak is used for the heavier, more massive pieces, finished in a dull, antiqued polish. For the lighter, more refined designs, walnut is the correct wood.

Gate-leg tables, refectory tables and table desks are also in keeping with the early English styles. They may be combined with lighter weight pieces.
Upholstered pieces to use with this style are those of massive, heavy lines. Upholstery was not used at the time these styles were originated but upholstered chairs are more comfortable than the wooden ones of those times and the two may be combined if attention is given to line and relative weight.

Charming Furniture Groups Feature Show

Charming ensembles such as illustrated above will be featured at Keith's and Watkins Brothers during the Style Show Sept. 26 to Oct.
4. These colorful groups reveal the very latest trends in furniture fashions and may be used in guiding your choice for similar ones in your own home. Mahogany, walnut, cherry and oak, as well as many rare woods, will be included.

CHENEYS ARRANGE BIG DISPLAY OF PRODUCTS

Plan Special Exhibition of Upholstering and Drapery Fabrics Beginning Tomorrow at Cheney Hall — J.
Fred Walters in Charge of Display.

In cooperation with the two local furniture stores, Watkins Brothers and Keith's, Cheney Brothers have planned a special display of upholstering and drapery fabrics for the Style Show Week to be held at Cheney Hall beginning tomorrow.
This display will be in the form of ensembles for various rooms and will be shown on the stage and center aisle of the hall. The merchandise shown will be regular stock patterns and not for sale at Cheney Hall, but the identical fabrics will be found in both of the cooperating furniture stores in town, and orders can be placed with them.
J. Fred Walters, formerly decorat-or at Watkins Brothers, has planned the display for Cheney Brothers, and from the work which Mr. Walters has done in town in the past, one can expect to find an unusually and interesting display at Cheney Hall. It is interesting to note that it was in connection with a cooperative style show held before the Brothers and the J. W. Hale Company that Mr. Walters first came to town. He was in charge of the displays at that time, having been secured in New York to do the work, and after the exhibit was induced to stay in Manchester and join the Watkins force as decorator. A few years ago he left the local firm to return to his home town, Glen Rock,
N. J., to join his father in the Real Estate business, which he has successfully carried on since then, building homes and helping his clients to decorate them.

The committee in charge of the style show considers itself fortunate in being able to secure the able assistance of Mr. Walters in executing the silk display. The Cheney exhibit will not open until tomorrow and the schedule for evening openings will be found in the Style Show program printed elsewhere in tonight's Herald.

HAND MADE TAPESTRIES

A group of rare, hand-made wall tapestries will be one of the features of Watkins Brothers Style Show.
These wall hangings are reproductions of fine old French 18th century tapestries as well as earlier Gothic fabrics. Part of the exhibit will be found in the drapery shop while other tapestries are shown throughout the store and in Watkins window displays.

RADIO IMPORTANT IN LIVING ROOM

Whole Family Enjoys Group
With Musical Instrument
in Center.

In many homes the radio has supplanted the fireplace as the center of interest in the living room arrangement. The music group is properly a part of every well furnished living room and the radio is increasing in popularity, as the source of music for the home.
Center of One Group
With the approach of longer evenings, with the lack of opportunity for outdoor activity, the family will more and more want to congregate in the living room after dinner.
There will be those who want to read and those who want to talk, and these, as well as those who are especially interested in what is "on the air" will be glad the radio is the center of one group of living room furniture.

Near the radio there should be a lamp for the one who likes to read while the music comes in and of course the group is not complete without two chairs. This arrangement can be a very decorative part of the living room furnishings as well as one of the most popular groupings in the room.

Wide Choice of Styles
Since the radio is to be made so important a part of the living room furniture its cabinet should be attractive. The wood will probably be selected to harmonize with the other wood in the living room furniture and the decoration is usually more satisfactory when fairly restrained.
There is a wide choice of styles, in keeping with any scheme of living room furnishing.
Radio manufacturers have provided cabinets which are adaptations of all periods and styles, and of oak, walnut, maple and mahogany wood, so that "his modern invention can be harmonized with furnishings planned after the designs of any period, even the oldest.

Lighter Rugs in Spring

Linen rugs, grass rugs, fiber rugs and rag rugs, in place of the heavy carpets of winter, will help to make the house look as though it were putting on its spring clothes.
These rugs are seen in all combinations of colors, very bright and gay, or more subdued, for almost any room in the house. They are light in weight and easy to clean, an item which makes them appeal to the home manager.

Tea Cart Makes Work In Small Apartment Easier

Every woman wants a tea cart to make her work easier. It is indispensable in the small apartment, where it is almost impossible to have sufficient serving space. Nothing is cozier or more homelike than tea time, and the tea cart with its table top serves the double purpose of tray and table.

For the busy woman, keeping house and also employed outside the home, the tea wagon is a time and effort saver. She can put the food and many of the dishes on it and wheel it all into the dining room or kitchen, thus making one trip between the rooms take the place of a dozen.

Al Capone's life, at last, is in the hands of the police. His biography has just been issued at $3 the copy.

SPECIAL PARKING FACILITIES PLANNED

Transportation Also Offered to Those Unable to Get to Home
Furnishings Show.

The local Style Show Committee has arranged for special transportation for those unable to get to Style Show exhibits. Each store requests that you call them by phone and a car will be promptly put at your service.

Both stores desire to stress that parking in front of stores is limited to one hour from 9:00 a. m. to 6:00
p. m. However each store has ample parking facilities of their own and invites you to use them at any time.

Three hundred and forty million incandescent lamps were sold in the United States last year.

$8.95.

An Event of Twofold Importance to You

WE have just completed our thirty-first year as home furnishers.
It is a far cry from the modest little store in which George E.
Keith set up business back in 1899, to the store this business now occupies. Unchanged, however, is the business creed which for more than any other factor had been responsible for this success. . . .
making Keith's known everywhere as the store "where you can afford to buy good furniture."

Each year at Anniversary time we celebrate with an event long looked forward to by our many friends and patrons. This year due to the proximity of the Style Show and our Anniversary, they will be held together as the greatest furniture event we have ever sponsored. Its twofold importance is your opportunity to see the latest fashions in furniture and to buy them at prices that befit our Anniversary Celebration.

KEITH'S STYLE SHOW DISPLAY IS CALLED MOST ATTRACTIVE

A Visit Will Be a Revelation, Style, Beauty and Comfort Blended in Beautiful Combinations—What You Will See at the Store.

The Style Show display at the Keith Furniture Company cannot fail to impress even the casual visitor with the fact that a modern well appointed furniture store is an attractive and interesting place. To anyone who is directly interested in furnishing a home, a visit to Keith's will likewise be a revelation as regards the possibilities in style, beauty, and comfort which are available for a moderate investment in a carefully selected showing of present day furniture.

The store itself has been given considerable attention and serves as a very adequate background for good furniture displays. On the main floor, center posts the length of the store have been draped with beautiful rugs which serve as the background for interesting groups of chairs, sofas, and other appropriate living room pieces. They create an atmosphere which is cozy and inviting. Keith's are particularly to be commended on their showing of upholstered furniture which is here displayed and which cannot fail to meet general approval on the basis of style and quality.

At the left of the main floor, a section is devoted to a display of maple colonial pieces. This will no doubt receive much attention, both because maple is so dressy and appealing to the eye and because it is probably the most popular style in public demand at the present time. The pieces shown here and many others throughout the store carry a card of description which gives the points of interest about them so that any visitor can more easily be informed.

There is also shown on the main floor, the complete line of Stewart Warner radios in a section by themselves and at the rear is a most interesting group of furniture ensembles arranged to show attractive ways of furnishing the living room, the bedroom, and the dining room. These furniture schemes are worked out with a nice degree of taste and suggest a few of the many interesting possibilities which can be introduced into the well furnished home of 1930.

One could go on at some length to describe the entire display at Keith's but it would be hard to do it justice. Spread over four floors, there is a lot to see and it is all well worth seeing. We will allow the visitor to pursue his own path and draw his own conclusions, but we do recommend that plenty of time be given to the inspection of the exhibit at Keith's during Style Show week.

Tonight at 7:00, the doors will be open officially to the public for the first time in the Style Show exhibit. Mr. E. L. G. Hohenthal, President of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce will warmly present the display to the town. Music will be provided for entertainment and the public is cordially invited to attend this opening of the Style Show display. There will be plenty of later opportunities as well, however, for the same invitation extends during our regular business hours including Saturday and Thursday evenings until October 4. On Wednesday afternoon, a committee of the Mother's Club will serve as hostesses at an informal tea. This will give the ladies an opportunity to meet in a pleasant way amid pleasant home surroundings and to talk with Anita Self, representative of Good Housekeeping magazine about any problems of home furnishings which interest them. On Wednesday evening, Miss Self will again be present for a talk on Maple Furniture in which subject she is well versed. This program is open to all.

Another very practical feature of the Style Show at Keith's will be the credit certificates which will be issued to any woman who attends the Style Show in company with her husband or fiance entitling them to $2.00 credit towards the purchase of anything in the store. These coupons will be issued at all times during the Style Show week but must be redeemed before the close of the Show on Saturday, October 4, and a minimum purchase of $5.00 must be made in order for them to apply. To any woman who needs something for the home, large or small, this certificate is well worth having and is yours just for attending the Show and swelling the attendance by bringing the man along too.

Plain Fabrics Most Used In Upholstery

Plain fabrics are most popular for upholstery, a recent survey shows. Remarkable decorative effects in the many available tones are being used in linen, mohair, silk and rayon. Careful selection to achieve harmony with the architectural and furnishing scheme of your rooms, make plain fabrics especially good for modern usage.

Leather is very popular as an upholstery material. A new development in the use of it on furniture is antiquing it. This gives it a soft, rubbed, used look and robs it of the one objection to leather, that of being cold and shiny looking.

The new leather pieces are perfectly tailored and will give dignity, formality and beauty to rooms where they can be suitably used.

CLUB LEADERS TO AID BIG FURNITURE SHOW

Local Women to Act as Patronesses and Hostesses at Style Exhibit.

Women active in club and social work in Manchester have been chosen to serve as patronesses and hostesses at the Home Furnishings Style Show.

They will take charge of the reception to Grace Cornell and Anita Self at Watkins Brothers and Keith's. At these receptions, there will be informal teas and discussions of home furnishings problems. Every woman is invited to attend.

At Keith's on Monday afternoon, 4:00 P. M., Mrs. John N. Miller, president of the Mothers' Club will officiate during the reception in Anita Self. The following members of the Mothers' Club will act as hostesses: Mrs. R. Purinton, Mrs. R. C. Alton, Mrs. O. E. Rogers, Mrs. A. R. Coe, Mrs. C. Noren, Mrs. W. P. Gorman.

At Watkins Brothers on Wednesday afternoon, 4:00 P. M., Mrs. James A. Irvine, President of the Cosmopolitan Club will officiate during reception to Grace Cornell. The following members of the Cosmopolitan Club will act as hostesses: Mrs. E. E. Segar, Mrs. F. F. Spencer, Mrs. H. O. Bowers, Mrs. L. Grant, Mrs. J. W. Conrow, Mrs. M. Mollan.

Fact for today: Fellows whose duty it is to pull the Zepplin from the hangar always walk with a noticeable blimp.

CEDAR CHESTS IN MANY FINISHES

This Useful Piece May Now Be Placed In Any Room In the House.

Those who remember cedar chests as the box-like, unpleasantly striped things of a few years ago will be pleasantly surprised at the extremely attractive ones now to be seen. Chests of oak, walnut and mahogany, with the required thickness of cedar lining, may now be used in the dining room, living room or bedroom, so beautiful in line and finish are they. There are even some in the early American design in hard maple for the room where this style of furniture is used.

Some of the chests are disguised as lowboys while others masquerade as benches. Where it was once necessary to keep the cedar chest in a dark corner, because of its unattractiveness, it is now possible to make it one of the central pieces in any room in the house.

In these days of small homes and apartments, when space is at such a premium, nothing is more convenient than extra storage space, such as is provided by an ample cedar chest.

FIVE MAKES OF RADIOS TO BE ON EXHIBITION

Five makes of radios, representing probably the five best known makes in the field, will be on display tonight at Watkins Brothers Style Show opening. Victor, Radiola, Majestic, Atwater Kent and Crosley are the famous names which appear in Watkins radio department. Many departures from previous cabinet designs are being shown this Fall and interest should center in this department.

Foremost among the changes in cabinets are the small receiver and loud speaker combinations which can be used in bookcase or on tables, and the low types which stand on the floor and reach just to the arm of a chair, making appropriate end tables.

The regular highboy models are probably more beautiful this Fall than ever before. Radios have been designed to meet fashion's demand, and are certainly worthy of a place in the Style Show.

NEW HOME DESKS ARE ATTRACTIVE

Low, Flat-top Designs Similar to Office Type Are Being Shown.

The writing desk, office of the home, where dad does much of his paper work and mother and the rest of the family pen their notes and letters, need not only be a useful piece of furniture but it may be attractive as well.

Some of the latest designs in writing desks are very smart. Made in walnut, mahogany and oak, sturdy flat-top desks, smaller than the average office size, look very chic in the home. They are low and their sharp lines are fascinating.

The new types of home desks patterned after those of the office harmonize with the modern designs of the latest living room pieces. The low height permits the hanging of pictures, prints or other decorations on the wall above, which was not

South Sea Satinwood

From the South Seas, where Robert Louis Stevenson spent the last years of his life, comes satinwood, the new decorative cabinet wood which is being used with telling effect to achieve new color contrasts in modern furniture. Satinwood has a shiny yellow tint, which gleams and glistens under lights, and is used for drawer fronts and for banding. Because it is exceptionally costly, few suites are made all of satinwood.

possible with many of the old writing desks.

Secretaries, the high one too, long have been popular and still are in great demand. Their lines are graceful and they are made in finishes that fit almost any living room arrangement.

The secretaries, however, were made to be closed when not in use, while the new flat-top designs may hold such useful ornaments as pen sets, telephone, book-ends, ash trays, paper weights and the like. Low, smart-looking chairs look well with the new designs.

American women, according to a physician, are getting flat feet. Many husbands already have found their wallets that way.

BE YOURSELF IN YOUR OWN HOME

Let It Reflect Individuality Which Will Make It Interesting and Different.

The indulgence of personal taste is what is necessary to create a charming home. American homes have been criticized as being too standardized, too much alike. The one way to avoid having all homes alike, having them give the appearance that they were all cut from one pattern, is for the owners to furnish them to suit their own tastes.

While there are a few absolute rules about arranging furniture in a room, and some underlying principles regarding the combining of colors, the remainder of the question of furnishing and decorating the home is entirely a matter of the personal wishes of the persons who are to live in it.

The home should be furnished with the best furniture the owners can afford, and with the pieces they will most need and enjoy.

Watkins Bros. Cottage Ready for Inspection

Has Been Completely Re-decorated for Style Show; Antiques and Reproductions Chosen.

The Cottage, always one of the interesting features at Watkins Brothers, has been completely refurbished for the Style Show and will be ready for inspection tonight. This time, Helen Strong, decorator at the local store, has chosen antiques and reproductions for the furnishings, the old and the new blending delightfully, so faithfully have the new pieces followed the feeling of the old.

The entrance hall has walls painted in a soft blue-green against which is shown an antique maple highboy, and an exquisite curly maple sewing table with a black and gold Tabernacle mirror used over it.

In the living room the walls are the same color as the hall and here a plain mulberry rug is used, the color scheme of the room being blue-green, peach and mulberry. The draperies are of crestone showing a large floral design in green, peach and eggplant. A plain mulberry davenport has been used with other reproductions in mahogany and maple, including a bracket-foot, slant top desk, a Chippendale tip-top table and an antique Hepplewhite card table. A wing chair, slipped in the drapery fabric, carries the combination of colors to the far side of the room.

Mahogany has been selected as the furniture for the living room, a Chippendale lowboy-buffet being used together with ladderback chairs and an old fashioned dumb waiter. The wallpaper in this room is a highly figured scenic-fashion plate type in tones of blue-green and peach, so plain green glazed chintz curtains are hung at the window and the floor is covered with a room size reproduction of a hooked rug which carries all the colors of the room.

Overnight guests have been planned for in the delightful little study arranged in the front room of the home. Here we find early maple reproductions used in combination with a plain green carpet and figured chintz draperies having an eggplant background and introducing green. The walls are covered with a soft two-tone peach paper in a small all-over design. The day bed, having low ends has a covering with the same material as the window drapes. A butterfly table at the end of the daybed holds a convenient lamp, and books. A swing chair in cotton tapestry showing a green background and a small all-over figure, a maple table at its arm and a crickett foot stool make an inviting reading group. The balance of the furnishings include a chest of drawers with mirror and Windsor side and arm chairs.

With a blue-starred peach wallpaper as a background, the draperies for the little back bedroom is of glazed chintz having a peach background and figures in green. Antique hooked rugs have been used on the floor, accenting the color scheme of the room. Here, again, reproduction of fine mahogany pieces are seen, the chest being of the Salem type and a poster bed with candlewick spread being the centers of interest.

All in all, the Cottage this fall is a very cozy and inviting place and will unquestionably be the Mecca for a good part of the crowds that turn out during Furniture Style Show week.

RADIO BROADCAST SATURDAY, 7 P. M.

Alexander H. Revell, Jr., President National Home Furnishing Association, will speak over Columbia network at 7:00 p. m. He will give an interesting 15 minute talk on "The Business of Furnishing Homes." Everyone is invited to tune in.

Reports indicate that Capone had an interest in the tombstone racket in Chicago. And this may explain how he has made his lot.

SALESMEN AT WATKINS DECORATE MODEL ROOMS

Twelve Are Ready for Inspection — Five Are in Ever Popular "Cottage"; A Description of the Various Interiors.

Watkins Brothers store boasts the unusual feature of having twelve modern rooms built into it, five of which form "the ever-popular 'Cottage'." The other seven model rooms have been decorated by the different salesmen at the store. Watkins Brothers force is constantly studying interior decoration and has for many years so the salespeople are adept at assembling interesting rooms. It will be found that these model interiors are correct in color and other treatments such as scale and harmony.

On the second floor of the store are three rooms, the first being a dining room furnished in early English oak, which is growing more popular each day as fitting furnishings for our modern English type homes. Here an exceptionally fine group, beautifully carved, has been properly displayed against plain walls, figured rug and two-tone drapes.

The second room on this floor displays a modern bedroom suite, showing Colonial influence in its poster bed hanging mirrors. This is exhibited against a two-tone, lattice figure wall paper, plain rose drapes and Oriental type rug.

At the opposite end of the store from the elevators is a long room with a fireplace and here is shown one of the store's finest ensembles of 18th century Colonial reproductions. The walls are plain, the rug a small figured all-over design and the draperies plain green.

On the top floor four rooms will be found, the first having one side-wall paneled in early pine effect, with fireplace, and displaying an interesting ensemble of antiques. The second room has green scenic paper and plain green draperies and here a Federal dining room grouping comprising a Hepplewhite buffet, Duncan Phyfe table and Hepplewhite chairs will be found.

Room number three is furnished with the Independence Group of furniture, specially made and exhibited for the Style Show and fully described and illustrated in one of Watkins Brothers announcements in today's Herald. The last room is furnished in maple reproductions for the living room, a large oval braided rug being used on the floor and chintz paper on the walls.

These model rooms offer many worth while decorating suggestions and have always proven a popular feature of Watkins Brothers store.

NATIONAL SPEAKERS AT THE STYLE SHOW

Good Housekeeping Magazine, Metropolitan Art Museum, Experts Coming.

Two of the biggest features on the local Style Show Program will be the lectures by Anita Self and Grace Cornell. These two women are speakers of national repute and authorities on home furnishings.

Anita Self, who is the personal representative of Helen Koues, director of Good Housekeeping Magazine Studio of Home Furnishing and Decoration will speak at Keith's on Wednesday evening, October 1 at 8:00 p. m. Her subject will be "Maple Furniture." In view of the fact that Anita Self is well known by nearly every woman for her authoritative articles in Good Housekeeping Magazine and due to the present popularity of Maple furniture, this lecture should warrant a large attendance.

Grace Cornell is the Assistant Director of the world famous Metropolitan Museum of Art and an authority on color harmony. She will speak at Watkins Brothers on Monday evening, September 29 at 8:00 p. m. Her subject will be "Practical Application of Color in Home Furnishing." Her lecture will literally be an education on beautifying your home through color and has already aroused interest all over the state.

Both speakers will have a special reception at their respective stores on the day of their lectures. The public is invited to both reception and lecture. There will be no charge for either.

Doors to both stores will be open at 7 p. m. preceding the lecture. A special musical program will be presented until 8 p. m.

UNVEIL MASTERPIECE AT EIGHT TONIGHT

At eight o'clock sharp tonight the "Style Show Masterpiece" will be unveiled at Watkins Brothers. This piece of furniture, is, in the local firm's estimation, the finest piece selected for the Style Show and therefore it has been given this name. It is grouped on a platform with necessary pieces to make an harmonious ensemble and will be completely covered by draperies until the scheduled time for unveiling, when, with proper ceremonies, the drapes will be removed, revealing the piece to South Manchester for the first time.

ARRESTED IN JAIL

New York.—They didn't even wait until John Johnson got out of Sing Sing before they arrested him again. After serving two successive terms totalling six years and two months for assault and robbery, he was arrested on a warrant charging grand larceny.

RARE RUGS DISPLAYED BY WATKINS BROTHERS

For the Furniture Style Show Watkins Brothers have revised their rug department so that an enlarged showing of domestic washed Oriental rugs can be displayed. These fine rugs, mostly reproduced from rare museum pieces, the others from modern Oriental, are hung against the walls, from ceiling to floor, creating the effect of a typical Persian market.

Featured in the exhibit are two grades of Bengal Oriental rugs, pioneers of the domestic oriental type of rug. These are shown in the main rug display room and represent the last word in rich sheep type washed rugs of extra quality. In addition Bigelow-Sanford Kashmir and Serbian rugs, Whitall reproductions, Gulistan and imported rugs are to be found in the already established Persian Market section of the large Watkins Brothers floor covering department.

More than 150,000 automobilists are estimated to have seen the start of the balloon races in Cleveland recently without a paying admission. And not one of them offered to give a balloon a lift.

The Furniture Bug

"Furniture bug biting again?" Frank asked as he noticed Katherine starting into space while on her knees lay a newspaper open at a full-page furniture advertisement.

"No," Katherine answered rather quietly. She had stood about as much ragging as she intended to take. "Excuse me, I forgot it was a delicate subject, one on which you feel deeply," Frank went on, noticing her expression. Since Katherine saw fit to crown this remark with more and gloomier silence Frank was forced to uphold the conversation all by himself. "Oh, you needn't feel hurt, I'm really interested. Ever since you educated me beyond the point where I thought Chippendale was a kind of dog and Duncan Phyfe a musical instrument, I've had more and more interest in that chair grandmother willed to us after it was willed to her by her grandmother, who got it from Queen Anne, or who was it? If it will just hold together for our grandchildren."

"The reason we're using the chair your grandmother rocked her babies in," Katherine unloaded, "is because you've never taken a shred of interest in your home nor given one thought to some decent furniture for it." And with that she slammed out of the living room and went to bed, closing the argument—one of an extensive series on the same subject—for that evening.

The next afternoon Katherine answered the phone to hear Frank say, "Listen Kitty, old girl, I'm going to have to bring one of the worthy grands from down here home to dinner." To Katherine's little gasp of protest he went on to explain: "He's from out of town, a director from the east and you know we have to smile on these directors. I know my little wife will do her stuff."

"Doing her stuff" this time consisted of conferring with Sadie, their fairly dependable maid, regarding changes in the dinner menu, the linens to use and the silver and glass for the occasion. She was too tired to take much interest in the arrival of the director or in the dinner she was to serve him. Most of the day she had spent hauling their furniture around the living room, a performance she indulged in at fairly regular intervals—in fact as soon as her spine recovered from a previous indulgence. Her idea was to see if she couldn't arrange it to make it appear a little more attractive. This day, on all other days, she finished with the furniture where it had been originally and with a permanent wave in her spine. Their furniture wouldn't go in that room any other way.

When the table was set, the flowers arranged and the last touches done in the dining room Katherine, a simple but becoming informal frock, surveyed it with some satisfaction. Kitty and Frank Tucker, like most of their friends, were newly married and, as Frank put it, living in the best style their wedding presents would permit. They were trying to save money out of Frank's present salaried position, about which the most beautiful thing was the prospect it held. Most of the furniture in their home had come to them from relatives and while it was adequate, Katherine felt it did not express Frank or herself.

On the contrary she was certain it stood in the way of their doing a little entertaining which would certainly have been a help to Frank in his upward climb. She almost dreaded company, she knew so well that surveying glance around the room and then the little puzzled expression while they tried to figure out why the Tuckers' home did not look more like the Tuckers. The jangling ring of the door bell aroused Kitty rather rudely from these musings and she hurried into the living room just as Sadie was entering Frank and the guest from the hall.

Here was the man Frank was so anxious to impress. She knew as soon as she heard the name in the introduction—Shadwell—that this was the influential director who might do a great deal for Frank. He probably had come to their home this very evening to see Frank in his native setting, Katherine correctly surmised.

"This is only a start," Frank was saying.

The dinner went off well enough. The men were obviously doing their best not to talk business and Kitty was doing her part toward keeping the conversational ball rolling briskly.

When at last it was over and they were passing into the living room Frank said, "I'm sure you'll excuse us, dear, if we go into the den to talk shop a little while?" Katherine, casting an appraising eye over the ample proportions of their guest and remembering the delicate condition of the "grandmother" chair she knew would be his choice from their decidedly limited selection, agreed that they would probably find it more comfortable in the den. "All Frank's books and papers are in there, anyway," she added as she settled down with a magazine in the living room.

They seemed to find shop talk very engrossing and Katherine became interested in a magazine story. When she put the magazine aside she realized that the evening was no longer talking strictly business.

"I've always been very much interested in furniture," Mr. Shadwell was saying, "but I consider it more important than a hobby. A man's home means a great deal to him, socially and in his business success." Kitty didn't want to hear any more. She tip-toed hurriedly into her bedroom and indulged in a flood of tears. She cried all the mascara off her eyelashes and most of the rouge off her face.

She was sure from the scrap of a remark she had heard that Mr. Shadwell had not been impressed as he had hoped to be by Frank's home and he was probably saying that kind but firm way of telling him so. Now the opening Frank longed for would probably go to some other man. These black thoughts sickened Katherine and she would have cried on and on had she not heard her husband and the director coming into the living room. She hastily "retouched" her face and came out with the best smile she could muster.

The goodnights were said and the Tuckers retired. Nothing was mentioned about the interview in the den. The following afternoon a large package was delivered to the Tucker home. Kitty was still too disappointed about the evening to pay much attention to it. When Frank came home he asked if she had opened it.

"Why, no. Is it for me?" was her rather stupid reply.

"No, it's for the ash man," Frank answered airily, "but we'll open it first."

He cut open the box with his knife. Kitty making a mental note of the litter on the floor but refraining from making any comment. This was no time to talk like a wife, she thought. In another moment she was too surprised to talk like anything—she expressed the mixture of surprise, joy and bewilderment she felt in a series of sounds and syllables only a surprised, joyous and bewildered wife can make. A nest of beautiful tables stood before her shining eyes.

"They are for you," Frank announced with a flourish.

"Oh, Frank, they're perfect," was the first complete sentence Katherine could form. But instantly her face darkened. After all, Frank might try to make up to her for a rather bad evening but their golden opportunity, she knew, was gone.

"This is only a start," Frank was saying, rather like a prospective congressman addressing his constituents, "just beginning. We are going

A model room created for the STYLE SHOW

HERE'S an advance "peep" at what you'll actually see at Watkins Style Show. This group, created by three of the leading Grand Rapids furniture shops, is assembled specially for the Style Show in one of our model rooms. Three factories united the best efforts of their designers and cabinet makers to produce this truly authentic living room ensemble. The group is fittingly named the Independence Group, because the original from which each piece was carefully reproduced, dates from an interesting period in our own American history.

For instance, the Patrick Henry desk in this group is the very same type, as to wood and interior and even the casters, as the one used by the famous Patrick Henry. The original of the Baron von Steuben sofa belonged to the Baron, Revolutionary War officer. And the drop-end table was carefully adapted from one of Duncan Phyfe's creations.

See this interesting room tonight... and the many others refurbished for the Style Show.

SLIGHT CHANGES IN DULL ROOMS
BRIGHTEN HOME

Noted Home Decorator Explains Simple Make-Over Plans to Improve Interiors.

To decorate and furnish a home properly one must keep two factors uppermost in mind—pattern and color—when selecting its furnishings, said Ross Crane, one of America's foremost authorities on home decoration.

"If pattern and color are carried out harmoniously in rugs, draperies, wall hangings and furniture coverings," Mr. Crane explained, "there is no doubt that a pleasing arrangement will result."

He pointed out that autumn is every bit as important as spring to brighten up the home. Likewise it is time for the June bride who has lived in a furnished apartment following the honeymoon to "have a home of our own."

Entails Small Cost
"Uninteresting rooms may be done over at very little cost," Mr. Crane continued. "Let's take a living room where there is a three-piece tupe suite, the floor covering is of tupe and the draperies are plain as well as the wall hangings. Say the room has an east or northern exposure where less light strikes it in the afternoon when it is used most during the day. There never was thought of decoration in such a room and it certainly is not an interesting one."

"The first thing to consider in re-decorating such a room is the draperies. There are many gay patterns in linen, cretonne, glazed chintz and tulle that may be purchased reasonably and that will make a big change in the appearance of the room."

"This done, get a couple of small inant ones—silk or paper would be fine. The rug colors should be dompendent. Duncan Phyfe and Heppelwhite and different pieces of the same period will look harmonious. Designers, whether French, English or American, had the same spirit in the designs they produced in their times."

"Possibly there is need for a new chair of the wide arm type. Keep the rose color in it. A Martha Washington or a Queen Anne will look well in almost any living room. A table runner is necessary always and so we add that."

Color In Accessories
"This brings us to need for color in a lamp. One with a pottery base of ox-blood or deep rose and a shade made either of silk or paper would look nice. Thus far in the make-over of this room there has been little expenditure and the remaining cost will be small."

"Place pictures on the wall—those old funny ones of brown or tan. Lovely and inexpensive prints may be acquired with beautiful frames, the colors to harmonize with the draperies. The room is rejuvenated just by adding a little pleasing contrast. Book ends of green holding books complete the work and you will be proud to invite your guests into the living room. If the room is large enough a small nest of tables is always good."

Doing Over Other Rooms
Other rooms in the house, Mr. Crane pointed out, may be done over in a similar manner, keeping in mind the pattern and color scheme. If there is a girl in the family, a chaise longue and a desk with a lamp for daughter's bedroom are almost necessary. A slipper chair for both her and mother add comfort, convenience and a touch of smartness to the bedroom.

"The son's room, too, is important," he said. "He has had hand-me-downs from the rest of the family—reminiscences. He never has had a chair that suited him, and one like his father's would be nice. He needs a desk and lamp in his room, too. Remember that his future taste and ideas of beauty are formed by the things he lives with when he is young."

Styles Are Lasting
Furniture designs offered today, Mr. Crane added, practically never go out of style. Fifteen to twenty

A Little Touch of "Life" Makes Rooms Liveable

ROSS CRANE

Here are two living room groups which illustrate Mr. Crane's ideas of combining harmonious colors and pleasing patterns. The hand blocked linen upholstery material is in perfect harmony with the hard maple used in the Early American group at the left. Both groups show how the home may be enhanced by the use of decorative objects. The trimmings on the draperies, the small table, the flower bowl and the books make a perfect setting for the upholstered chair.

years ago, he said, only the exclusive shops had reproductions while now such pieces may be obtained in all stores.

"Years ago we were using golden oak, Victorian mahogany and the like without any period quality and beauty," he said. "Our furnishings were strange and sad medleys. Today we have lovely Duncan Phyfe, Queen Anne, Sheraton and other ensembles that stay in style."

"Perhaps next year Spanish style may be popular, but if one has good period furniture, it never is passe. We may buy reproductions of the 17th Century, Early American or Eighteenth Century Sheraton, Chippendale, Duncan Phyfe and Heppelwhite and different pieces of the same period will look harmonious. Designers, whether French, English or American, had the same spirit in the designs they produced in their times."

RADIO IMPORTANT IN LIVING ROOM

Whole Family Enjoys Group
With Musical Instrument
in Center.

In many homes the radio has supplanted the fireplace as the center of interest in the living room arrangement. The music group is properly a part of every well furnished living room and the radio is increasing in popularity as the source of music for the home.

Center of One Group
With the approach of longer evenings, with the lack of opportunity for outdoor activity, the family will more and more want to congregate in the living room after dinner. There will be those who want to read and those who want to talk, and these, as well as those who are especially interested in what is "on the air" will be glad the radio is the center of one group of living room furniture.

Near the radio there should be a lamp for the one who likes to read while the music comes in and of course the group is not complete without two chairs. This arrangement can be a very decorative part of the living room furnishings as well as one of the most popular groupings in the room.

Wide Choice of Styles
Since the radio is to be made so important a part of the living room furniture its cabinet should be attractive. The wood will probably be selected to harmonize with the other wood in the living room furniture and the decoration is usually more satisfactory when fairly restrained. There is a wide choice of styles, in keeping with any scheme of living room furnishing.

Radio manufacturers have provided cabinets which are adaptations of all periods and styles, and of oak, walnut, maple and mahogany wood, so that this modern invention can be harmonized with furnishings planned after the designs of any period, even the oldest.

to refurbish this house. These tables are a sort of opening gesture."

Then in answer to Kitty's expression, "That change is not going to be made in the office for another six months and Shadwell will be here again in the spring. I'm still up for consideration, favorably too, and when that all-powerful director comes here again he is going to be entertained at the newly and correctly furnished home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gale Tucker. And he won't have to be scooted into the den for fear he'll sit in a chair that is too old and frail to lead an active life."

FOR FALL EVENINGS INDOORS

The radio, with its attendant pieces of furniture—chair, lamp and table—makes one of the most interesting and enjoyable groups for the winter living room.

MILLIONS TO HEAR ABOUT BIG EXHIBIT

Advertising and Radio Promotion to Boost Home Furnishings Show Through the Nation.

To practically every family in the United States will come the news of the National Home Furnishings Style Show through an enormous advertising campaign and radio broadcasts. There will be 25,000,000 copies of magazines carrying from one to fifteen pages on the Style Show. Figuring about three readers per copy, we get 75,000,000 people who will see the news. There are about 15,000,000 families in the towns, villages, and cities as well as rural districts which means that practically every family will be informed.

If all the advertisements appearing in magazines on this Show were pasted together in one strip, it would be more than 4,290 miles long, reaching from Bangor, Maine to San Diego, California.

The magazines in which these messages appear and their dates are as follows: American Weekly, September 28; Saturday Evening Post, September 28; Ladies Home Journal, October; Woman's Home Companion, October; McCall's, October; Delineator, October; Pictorial Review, October; and Cosmopolitan, October.

In addition over 155 radio stations will broadcast Dorothy Dix's talk to every corner in the country. Both WTC and WEZ-A are included.

DAVENPORT IS EMERGENCY BED

Extra Place for Overnight Guest Right in Your Living Room.

The predicament which arises in the home where there is no guest room is easiest solved by a davenport bed.

There are many times when an extra bed would be exceedingly convenient but frequently it is not possible to have an extra room. The davenport bed in the living room is the solution to the problem. Most of the time it serves as an indispensable piece of living room furniture, enjoyed by all the family. It is attractive in appearance and when not made up as a bed in no way suggests a place designed for sleeping.

The arrival of an over-night guest does not embarrass the owner of a davenport bed. When retiring time comes the davenport is opened and made into as comfortable a bed as anyone could wish.

In the small house or apartment where space is at a premium, the davenport bed is often used all the time as the permanent sleeping place of one member of the household.

The chronic kicker is usually the fellow who has to foot the bills.
