

KURD VILLAGES ARE DESTROYED; HUNDREDS DIE

Revolt Far From Ended Despite Turkish Reports; Rebels Have Much Ammunition; Hold 65 Mile Front.

Jerusalem, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Exchange Telegraph reports that it has information from within the secret war council, which indicates that Turkish reports to the contrary, the Kurd revolt on the frontier has not yet been suppressed. The agency says the rebels apparently have obtained reinforcements and are now defending a line stretching from Aralik to Bayzid, a distance of 65 miles.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency today received reports of Turkish attacks against the Kurdish rebels in Kurdistan which apparently came from the Kurdish rebel war council. These reports said that in the Zilma district 220 villages were destroyed and 4,500 Kurdish men, women and children massacred.

Another report through the same sources said that in the vicinity of Julamerck 300 villages were destroyed and 500 persons killed. A further portion of this same report said 400 villages between Agri and Fenduk had been burned with incendiary shells dropped from airplanes.

No Way of Checking

The report adds that Kurdish brigades under command of Jewad Pasha wiped out 120 villages and killed 500 persons while Kemal Edin's brigade razed 360 villages between Chaldiron and Scitan, massacring 390 persons. The Jewish Telegraphic Agency says that there is no immediate way of checking the accuracy of this report.

The Hoydown

which is the Kurds name for their revolutionary committee, and which is responsible for the figures, states that the rebellion is far from suppressed. This report says that the Kurds line of defense, which stretches from Aralik to the Bayzid district, in which the report evidently coincides with that given to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

TO FATTEN STEERS NEAR NEW LONDON

Cattle Shipped From West to Rest a Week on Big State Farm.

New London, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Western steers traveling to eastern markets soon will be able to gain the respite of a week or so from the slaughter house, recover from the effects of their journey and grow plump on a bit of Texas transplanted in Connecticut. W. E. Dampier of Yonkers, N. Y., associated in the management of a large Texas cattle raising ranch has purchased a tract of more than 300 acres near the Groton submarine base for the purpose.

A 400 foot pier and sidetracks have been constructed on the property to aid in handling the steers. Steers Lose Weight

The project was launched after Mr. Dampier had consulted with cattle authorities at the Connecticut Agricultural College on the advisability of sub-ranches in the east to rehabilitate western cattle for slaughter. Steers shipped by rail from the west and southwest, a survey showed, lost as much as 150 pounds each on the trip resulting in a subsequent loss of many thousands of dollars to the producers.

Experiments conducted at the Connecticut Agricultural College with one carload of steers over a period of 120 days were reported to have shown an average gain per steer of 3.77 pounds a day.

P. LeRoy Harwood, treasurer of the Mariners Savings Bank and a trustee of the Connecticut Agricultural College predicted, the linking of Connecticut with the west in the cattle business would be a great boon commercially to the state.

HARD TIMES HIT LIQUOR MAKERS

Moonshiners Put Out Sign Telling Public They Are Unable to Do Business.

Sumter, S. C., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Can it be, Sumter county folk are asking, that the business depression has hit even the moonshiners? Here is the story that provided discussion.

Sumter officers located a still. Every utensil of the well equipped liquor maker was on hand, but there was no mash and no operators were present. On nearby trees was this sign: "Closed on account of the hard times."

DETROIT KEEPS OUT HORDES OF JOBLESS

Idle Men Warned to Keep Away From City—80,000 There Unemployed.

Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The City of Detroit today was engaged, figuratively speaking, in posting huge "keep out" signs at the city's gateways, directed to those who come here looking for jobs.

The inflow of jobless has increased materially, city officials found, since the systematic program of Mayor Frank Murphy and industrial leaders interested in unemployment has been placed in operation. Those in charge of this program pointed out that some 80,000 jobless Detroiters have been registered, and that the most hopeful estimate of immediate employment contemplates relief for not more than a third of this number.

To Keep Idle Out

Percival Dodge, chairman of the sub-committee on relief of the general employment committee, announced today that drastic steps are contemplated to keep out unemployed persons. One plan calls for policemen to be stationed at bus terminals and railway stations to interview strangers. If they are found to have come here looking for work they will be told there is no work for them and asked to leave. If hungry, they will be given food and a night's lodging. If they refuse this service at a mission, Mr. Dodge said, and

SENATOR DENIES SARGENT'S CHARGE

Brookhart Says Government is Not Using Taxpayers' Money to Ruin Railroads.

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Taking issue with Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago Northwestern Railway Company, that the government was drifting toward confiscation of inland waterways and public roads, Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, today said this statement was tantamount to a declaration of war by the railroads on the nation's waterway improvement plans.

Sargent asserted before the American Bankers Association in Cleveland yesterday that the government's policy of paying the expense of constructing waterways to be used in competition with railroads out of taxpayers' money was contrary to the constitution.

Senator's Answer

"The people of the west were happy in the thought that the government had adopted a general policy of improving the inland waterways," Brookhart said. "Now the whole policy is threatened by an attack of the railroads."

"This attack," he continued, "is not mere idle vaporings, but the mature thought of the shrewdest lawyers in the country. It means that every legal artifice will be used to stop the improvement of our rivers in competition with the railroads."

Padded Expenses

The government subsidized the railroads, he said, by giving them 158,000,000 acres of land for construction and later again subsidized them when private operation broke down under the World War strain, the railroads padded their expenses, he asserted, to make government operation appear unsuccessful.

"With a record like this," he said, "it seems strange indeed that Mr. Sargent or any railroad man should come forward with an argument against building public roads and waterways as subsidies."

Railroads, he said, "paid only 37 tax on $100 gross income, while farmers in Iowa and other states paid 27 on the hundred, adding that Sargent's argument of the tax burden on railroads was insubstantial."

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Oct. 1 were $6,415,946.54; expenditures $7,756,407.70; balance, $329,822,833.12.

CLEVELAND GREETES HOOVER

Cheering throngs, flag-bedecked buildings and a shower of streamers greeted President Hoover as he arrived in Cleveland to address the convention of the American Bankers Association. This picture shows the parade down Euclid Avenue, in the business center of the city, with the Chief Executive riding in the first car in the procession. Ten thousand persons lined the sidewalks to welcome the first President who has visited Cleveland in fourteen years.

BRITISH MISSIONARIES SHOT BY CHINESE REDS

Two Women Killed When Ransom Money Was Not Paid—Great Excitement in London.

Peiping, China, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Messages reaching the British consul at Foochow today said Miss Edith Nettleton and Miss Eleanor June Harrison, British missionaries who were captured last July by Communists at Chungang, northern Fukien province, had been shot.

Their execution followed failure of protracted negotiations for their release in the course of which the bandits cut off one of Miss Nettleton's fingers and sent to British consular authorities as reminder of death if ransom money of $100,000 was not paid.

Awful Details

The two women, who were associated with the church missionary society, were traveling from Chungang to Kienningfu when they were captured.

It was understood here that the British authorities would await all the details before taking any further action.

Although the consular authorities are attempting to verify the dual killing there appears no reason to doubt the truth of the report.

Only last week a letter was received insisting that the women would be killed unless the ransom money was forthcoming.

LONDON SHOCKED

London, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The public generally and missionary circles in particular were deeply moved today by advices that Chinese Communist bandits had killed the two British missionaries, Miss Edith Nettleton and Miss Eleanor June Harrison.

The parade had formed in the public square a few blocks away from the scene of the disorder after Tom Johnson, a Communist orator, and others exhorted the throng to march to Public Hall and protest against unemployment.

The marchers singing the "Internationale" and other songs, were forced by a line of police which surrounded the hall to turn down St. Clair avenue. After they had marched two blocks beyond the hall, many of them tried to turn back and the smoke screen was laid down.

Soon there were cries of "fight" and the police charged. Some used sticks in which Communist placards were attached in an effort to fight back, but were disarmed, police said.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Police today recalled that a Tom Johnson, known to them as a leader of "Communist District No. 17," was

BOSTON PREPARING FOR LEGION PARLEY

Over 24,000 Delegates Already on Hand—Expect 30,000 by Tomorrow.

Boston, Oct. 3.—(AP)—With plans for next week's American Legion convention completed and a record-breaking pre-convention registration of 24,000 on hand, the city turned its attention today to the reception of high officials of the Legion and the Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. Donald Macrae of Council Bluffs, Ia., National president of the American Legion Auxiliary, was due to arrive today and Milton Forman, National chairman of the Legion's committee on distinguished guests, was scheduled to arrive tonight.

Other Notables

The big chief, O. L. Bodenhamer of El Dorado, Ark., National commander of the Legion, comes to town Saturday morning. Sunday, General Henri L. Gouraud, French war hero, and General John J. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F., will arrive.

It was expected today that the registration would pass the 30,000 mark Saturday night. Many of the large delegations will arrive early Monday morning and several are scheduled to arrive Sunday. The greater part of the Legionnaires now in town were New Englanders but several groups, here in advance of their main contingents, were from the west and middle west.

NYE BELIEVES KELLY CHARGE IS JUSTIFIED

Senator Says, However, That Secretary Wilbur is Not Implicated in Oil Scandal; Says Others Are Involved.

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Chairman Nye of the Senate land committee said today he thought Ralph S. Kelly, former chief of the federal land office at Denver was "quite thoroughly justified" in his charges of maladministration of Colorado oil shale lands.

The North Dakota land conferred more than a hour today with Kelly. He expressed hope the Department would take full and speedy action on the charges. The former official's explanation convinced Nye, Secretary Wilbur is not responsible for the alleged improper handling of the oil lands, he said, but some one was responsible and should be questioned.

Another Door

"Kelly's charges do not go to the door of Secretary Wilbur" the Senator said. "There is a door to which his objections lead, however and that door should be opened."

Kelly resigned last Monday, Secretary Wilbur refused the resignation and suspended him pending inquiry into the charges. Assistant Attorney General S. W. Richardson is investigating at the Department of Justice and has offered Kelly the chance to lay all his facts before him.

The Denver man charged "Concession after concession" had been made to large oil companies in the Colorado shale fields, billions of dollars of which he asserted were the subject of illegal attempts for possession.

"I can't help but be impressed by the spirit moving Kelly at this stage," Nye said. "I think he is entitled to a thorough hearing."

The North Dakota said if the Department of Justice did not take action on Kelly's charges he would "feel required to introduce a resolution in the Senate calling for an investigation."

Nye explained Kelly had not laid his case before Assistant Attorney General Seth W. Richardson, who has been assigned to conduct the investigation, because of a "belief that Richardson has pre-judged his case."

Nye talked with the assistant attorney general by telephone immediately after his conference with the Denver official, telling Richardson Kelly was "displeased" because he thought his case pre-judged.

Kelly told newspapermen he expected to make public his full charges within the next few days.

CANNON DEBATES WOODCOCK CLAIM

Dry Director Says Home Brew is Safe From Federal Seizure.

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., said today a declaration by Prohibition Director Amos W. Woodcock that home-made, home-consumed, wine and beer are immune to Federal interference "cannot change the law" and "merely indicates the policy of the government in enforcement."

The chairman of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, commented:

"Colonel Woodcock can merely indicate the policy of the government in enforcement, and outline difficulties which the government may have in enforcing the law."

His Opinion

Woodcock had explained that it was impossible for Federal enforcement officers to reach home brews because they cannot search a private dwelling without a warrant. When the liquor is made and consumed without sale or transportation, he said, officers cannot apprehend the violators.

"All I can say," Bishop Cannon observed, "is that there is no question of the meaning of the prohibition amendment—I was one of seven who wrote it."

"What Law Says

"The amendment distinctly says," the Bishop added, "that the manufacture, sale, importation, exportation, etc., of intoxicating liquor is prohibited. That means anywhere in the home or anywhere else. The Volstead act defines intoxicants as anything containing one-half of one percent alcohol. Nobody can change that fact."

"Colonel Woodcock's statement—change the law, not—cannot change the law," Bishop Cannon added. "I am not criticizing anyone, but I maintain that statement is merely an explanation which does not affect the law—that is fundamental."

HOOVER RETURNS TO WASHINGTON; ANSWERS CRITICS

SHOOTS HIS WIFE DURING ARGUMENT

Woman Dying in Waterbury Hospital as Police Seek Man; Daughter Shot Also.

Waterbury, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Rose Normand, 60, of 285 Grandview avenue, Waterbury is dying in Waterbury hospital with two bullets in her head from her husband's pistol, and her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Theriault, of the same address was seriously wounded trying to save her mother from being murdered when Napoleon Normand, 60, of Manchester, N. H., opened fire on his wife after an argument in his step-daughter's home here this morning.

Police have broadcast the man's description and several bands of detectives are scouring the woods near the home, believing Normand is in hiding there.

Normand was deserted by his wife in Manchester, N. H., when she declared his abuse was too great to endure. Last week he walked into his step-daughter's home here and had been living here since then, continually abusing his wife. The ill feeling culminated this morning in a ferocious attack on his wife whom he shot at arm's length. The step-daughter was shot when she seized Normand and tried to stop the carnage.

Speaks on Train

Hoover Special Train, Enroute to Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—President Hoover was on record today as taking sharp issue with both critics of his administration who say he dwells only in the "unhappy features" of the current business depression and those who believe American standards of living should be lowered.

Hoover asserted before the American Bankers Association in Cleveland last night that "several folks in the political world who resent the notion that things will ever get better and who wish to enjoy our temporary misery."

To relate to these critics that the government is co-operating with the people to improve conditions and that the United States economic situation is far less than that of any other countries, he said, only "inspires the unkind retort that we should fix our gaze solely upon the unhappy features of the decline."

Last Minute Change

Just before going to the auditorium to deliver his speech the President made a last minute addition to his text which he took vigorous exception to remarks of a banker delegate who was quoted as saying American living standards should be on a lower plane.

"To that I emphatically disagree," the President asserted. "Any retreat from our American philosophy of constantly increasing standards of living becomes a retreat into perpetual unemployment and the acceptance of a cesspool of poverty for some large part of our people."

Temporary Halt

Immediately before the speech the President bowed his special agent to make the return trip to Washington.

"Any recession in American business is but a temporary halt in the prosperity of a great people," the President told his audience. He expressed confidence in an early recovery, said the bankers should play a leading part by supervising a wise flow of credit and an ample supply of credit at low interest rates already was available through co-operation of the banks and the Federal reserve system.

Although he did not believe the American form of government could solve economic problems by "direct action," the President indicated he might favor a reduction in capital gains tax and revision of certain sections of the transportation act as safeguards against future business ills.

COMMUNIST TICKET

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(AP)—A petition bearing 28,272 signatures and placing William Z. Foster, of New York City, in nomination as the Communist Party candidate for governor was filed in the office of the secretary of state here today.

The other candidates on the ticket are L. Louis Engdahl, New York City, for lieutenant-governor; Richard B. Moore, New York City, for attorney general, and Franklin P. Brill, of Buffalo, for comptroller.

Jack Perilla, who filed the petitions and described himself as campaign manager for the party, said the Communist ticket would have 30 candidates for places in the Assembly, four for seats in the State Senate and 11 Congressional candidates.

Foster is serving a term at Hart's Island in consequence of a fine at Union Square, New York City, March 6. He will be released October 21.

TEST CASES FAIL IN HIGHEST COURT

State Supreme Court Refuses to Make Retroactive, 1,500 Assembly Bills.

Hartford, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors in two opinions handed down today indicated its intention of refusing one by one to make retroactive the fifteen hundred bills invalidated by the McCook decision and later validated by a special session of the General Assembly. Although the Supreme Court did not attempt to pass on the retroactive features of all these measures, it refused to make retroactive two bills involved in test cases, one of them a compensation case and the other the auto guest law.

KING BORIS TO WED ITALIAN PRINCESS

HARTFORD MAY HAVE NEW RADIO STATION

Hartford, Oct. 3.—(AP)—If the application for removal of Station WDRG New Haven, to Hartford is approved by the Federal Radio Commission which now has it under consideration at Washington, D. C., this city will become the sole outlet for the Columbia Broadcasting System in Southern New England. It will be owned, as it has for the past eight years since its establishment by Franklin M. Doolittle, head of the Doolittle Radio Corporation of New Haven. But through arrangements with Columbia, the program would combine local and National broadcasts giving a continuous program daily from 3 a. m. to midnight. Arrangements have been made for the location of the new transmitter at 783 Blue Hills avenue, Bloomfield, and the studio on the third floor of the Corning building at 11 Asylum street, if the application is approved. It is expected that a decision will be made at Washington in about ten days, and it is hoped that the new service would be working by Christmas.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Mrs. C. F. Packard. Mrs. Emma Steele Packard, widow of Charles Foster Packard died late yesterday afternoon at her home in the Midland Apartments, 295 Main street, aged 82 years. Mrs. Packard had been failing in health due to her advancing years, for some time, but had not been confined to her bed more than a week. She was born in New Britain and lived there all her life until within the past eight years when she came to Manchester to live. Her husband died 20 years ago. Mrs. Packard was of a quiet, retiring disposition and was not affiliated with any fraternal organizations. She attended the Center Congregational and occasionally the South Methodist church while her health permitted. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Charles Deming of New Britain; two sons, Foster K. Packard of New Britain and Elmore C. Packard, proprietor of the Packard Pharmacy in this town; seven grandchildren and one great grandchild. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at Watkins Brothers, 11 Oak street. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery, New Britain.

LEGION EXCURSION TICKETS ON HAND

Special Trip to Big Parade in Boston Planned by the New Haven Railroad.

The allotment of excursion tickets between Manchester and Boston to be run next Tuesday for the American Legion convention is 175. They went on sale this morning and six were sold in a short time. The excursion train leaves Manchester at 7:20 in the morning and arrives in Boston at 10 to give those who take this trip an opportunity to see the parade and have a few hours in Boston. The train is scheduled to leave Boston on the return trip until 9:10. The cost of the tickets is placed at $1.75 a person. The tickets that are to be taken by the Legion have also been received, but they are not to be sold at the ticket office, but will be taken care of by the committee from the Legion. The number that are to be made up of parlor cars, exceeds the first estimate and an extra car has been ordered.

MOONLIGHT DANCE

CARE IN BURNING

With trees throughout the state shedding their foliage rapidly and with property owners resorting to the customary bonfire in ridding their lawns and yards of the fallen leaves, Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald today issued a warning both against the practice of leaving fires unprotected along the highways and against building bonfires on bituminous macadam pavement, or on or near, freshly oiled highway shoulders. Burning leaves or rubbish on bituminous pavement results in oxidation of the material used in the construction of the road and soon causes a complete disintegration and crumbling of the pavement. This condition is not only costly to repair, but is also likely to be the direct cause of motor-vehicle accidents. Even more obvious is the commissioner's warning against the burning of dead leaves on or near freshly oiled shoulders or dirt roads, since the danger of spreading the fire through the medium of the oil is great and unless guarded against might easily result in a conflagration of large proportions. As far as possible, the burning of leaves should be undertaken on one's own property and never attempted unless calm weather prevails and unless someone is at hand to watch the fire until it has completely died away. All bonfires should be extinguished beyond any point of doubt with water or sand, thus preventing any danger of a later outbreak. The highway department during the summer has taken every precaution against roadside and forest fires by clearing the road shoulders throughout the state highway system of underbrush leaves and debris, and orders have been issued to all division superintendents to make every effort to keep the shoulders free of dead leaves during the fall. Since it is manifestly impossible to keep the shoulders continuously cleared of leaves, however, Commissioner Macdonald urges motorists not to flick lighted cigarette or cigar butts from their cars, since there is a large danger of starting a blaze among the scattered leaves which in turn might develop into a forest fire.

SARDINE CONFERENCE

Dafundo, Portugal. (AP)—This suburb of Lisbon has been chosen as the scene for the forthcoming international Sardine Conference. Everything relating to sardine life and scientific study thereof will be gone into at the meetings which will be held at the famous Vasco de Sama Aquarium. It has been chosen because of its proximity to one of the most important sardine centers that lies between Lisbon and Sebulal. The gunboat Faro will be placed at the disposal of the delegates for their transportation to the various sardine centers. Delegates from Spain, France and Great Britain will take part in the deliberations.

GLOOMY WELCOME AS CARDS ARRIVE

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Several hundred faithful fans were on hand but little enthusiasm was displayed when the St. Louis Cardinals arrived at Union station shortly before noon today in their special train from Philadelphia after losing the first two World's Series games to the Athletics. There were occasional cheers and handclapping but both players and spectators appeared dejected and had little to say. A fire and drum corps played while the players entered taxicabs and left for their hotels.

WOMAN AIR PILOT

Hartford, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary L. Moore, manager of the International Airways, Inc., since the death of her husband in an airplane accident at Branford Field last June, today qualified for a Department of Commerce transport pilot's license and became the first woman in Connecticut to fulfill the requirements. Mrs. Moore started flying in 1929 and completed her 200 hours in the air a little more than a year. She now holds a limited commercial pilot's license.

THREE SETS OF TWINS IN SMALLEST SCHOOL

Six of the pupils attending the First or Oakland District School this year are twins. The total enrollment of children in the school, which has but one teacher, is twenty-six. Of this number six of them are twins. They are known as the Fish twins, the Balchunas twins and the Kuchinskis twins. The Kuchinskis are first cousins of another set of twins who live on Union street, but as yet not of sufficient age to attend school.

It contains 30,000 words and phrases which including the listing of manufacturers' names, specifications of airplanes and motors, parts and repair, and similar terms in export terms on shipping, boxing, price quotations, steamship lines, ports, banks and similar types of terms used in export communication. Avico is a code system worked out by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce to cut down the expense of communication orders, especially by cable. It is estimated it will mean a saving of 30 per cent. Here's an example of the new code: "Voslyxhepa." It means, "Navy requires price on tri-motored biplane seaplane."

SEEK WAVE LENGTHS

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Stimulation of public interest in television and elimination of transmission difficulties were chief aims of Radio Commission today by engineers for the Atlantic Broadcasting Corporation of the Columbia system as the purposes of its request for an experimental station in New York City. M. A. Trainor, consulting engineer, who has collaborated with Dr. E. V. Alexanderson, noted high frequency engineer, urged that the request be granted. The engineer, who conducted television experiments for the R. C. A. Victor organization at Station WGY, Schenectady, N. Y., said television was held back by problems connected with transmission. Laboratory tests to a large extent have been perfected, but now the problem is to transmit television for long distances successfully. Gerard C. Gross, television expert for the commission, said 27 channels were now licensed for television experiments and that only four wave length bands were available. The increase in any band, he contended, would increase interference.

GRACE HILL BROSSIEU IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

Bridgeport, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Grace Hill Brosseau, of Greenwich, former president of the National Daughters of the American Revolution and prominent in social circles in Connecticut and New York, was granted a divorce from Alfred Joseph Brosseau, a wealthy New York business man, on the grounds of cruelty, by Judge Alfred C. Baldwin in Superior Court here today. She was represented by former State's Attorney Homer S. Cummings, and although an uncontested case, the defendant was represented by Judge James F. Walsh. The climax to the married life of the couple, according to the testimony, came at their home May 24 last. Mrs. Brosseau was in her room dressing for a dinner party when her husband entered and demanded the key to the cellar. During his absence in the cellar she had the lock changed. Mrs. Brosseau refused to give up the key. Mr. Brosseau showed anger, loud words were spoken and suddenly Mr. Brosseau slapped her in the face and stamped out of the room.

NO NEW CASES

Middletown, Oct. 3.—(AP)—With no new cases reported the infantile paralysis outbreak at Middletown was believed by health authorities today to have passed its peak. A total of six deaths have resulted in the state, five of them in Middletown. A former tramp has become a popular portrait painter in London. He should do well, what with his experience at canvassing. An ocean liner has installed a golf course on deck. So now the chief ailment with passengers will be sea-sickness.

BRITISH MISSIONARIES SHOT BY CHINESE REDS

Nettleton and Miss Eleanor June Harrison, because a ransom for their release was not paid.

Miss Nettleton worked in a carpet mill in her home town of Halifax, Yorkshire, and was a Sunday school teacher in St. Augustine's church parish. She went out to China for the Church Missionary Society in 1908.

Miss Harrison was from Cookley, near Kidderminster. She was 63 years old and first went to China in 1896.

Kept On Hoping. Reverend W. W. Cash, the Society's secretary, said that up to today hopes had been entertained for release of the two women and that today's messages announcing that they had been shot was a great shock.

"Miss Harrison and Miss Nettleton," he said, "were captured by bandits when, acting under consular orders, they were going down the river from their station at Chungking to Foochow.

"The bandits boarded the steamer and took them off, and since then unremitting efforts have been made by the British Consul, the Church Missionary Society, missionaries and the Chinese church for their release.

"It was hoped that these efforts would be successful and the news repeated this morning of the death of the two women and will cause profound sorrow to all who knew the ladies and how they had devoted their lives to the service.

"Both the consul and secretary of the Church Missionary Society in Foochow were given full authority and an entirely free hand to pay the ransom if necessary in order to secure their release."

DRAW UP RESOLUTIONS ON C. I. BALCH DEATH

Manchester Tent, Knights of the Macabees, at its meeting last night in the Balch & Brown hall, appointed a committee to draw up resolutions on the death of Sir Knight Charles I. Balch, a charter member of the lodge and for a long period of years a loyal and efficient officer.

The personal of the committee is Collector Alvin L. Brown, Walter B. Coollidge and William J. Burke. Commander Howard Spencer, who is leaving soon for Florida where he will spend the winter, has tendered his resignation.

The turbine, yesterday produced ten kilowatts of power. Professor Claude pointed out, however, that as he had expected, he had at this stage of his experiment been forced to use more initial energy in getting the turbine started than he had been able to produce.

CURRENT LITERATURE COURSE IS PLANNED

Prof. Everett L. Getchell of Boston University to Conduct Weekly Classes at High School.

An appreciation course in current literature is to be given each Monday afternoon at the Manchester High school starting next week. While it was primarily arranged for Manchester school teachers, anyone in town may enroll.

Professor Getchell is considered an excellent authority on the subject of current literature. He is a professor of English at Boston University and last year taught a special weekly class in Lawrence, Mass., similar to the one to be given in Manchester.

A total of about 40 teachers are planning to take the course as a means of securing credits for college degrees. The classes will be held in room number 23 each Monday afternoon starting at 4:15 and concluding about 5:30.

No decision has yet been given by Judge of Probate William S. FRANCE FOLLOWING U. S. AUTO MODELS

Swift, Silent Cars for Rich and Small Models for the Poorer Class.

Paris, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Swift, silent cars for the rich, and smaller, more economical ones for the thrifty are the two talking points of the 1930 auto salon which opened today in the big glass-roofed Grand Palais.

In several ways American influence is stronger than ever. The French have not abandoned their claim to being chief among the originators of car ideas but they are following the trend of the United States.

More than a score of American makers show their cars but General Motors, dissatisfied with the space available, is not in the show. Under an old rule, the Americans because they belong to a high tariff country, draw last for space. They get, therefore, the poorest quarters.

Silence the Slogan.
Four silent speeds in one of the noted French cars is among the striking contributions to quiet running. Other makes offer silent third and fourth speeds and body makers announce they are trying to keep squeaks out of bodies. But it is on the motors themselves that the most effort has been put.

The old French theory of the very small, high-speed motor that developed big power, with a low tax rating, is out of favor. The American idea of a large engine, running at a moderate speed, with low gearing and tremendous acceleration is the thing of the hour. The quiet American sixes and eights that have walked up hills past fast French cars that had to us third, have converted most of the French engineers. At least, they agree the public wants cars that soar up hills and can move at a walk, silent as shadows. They are trying to fill the bill.

As for the car that doesn't cost much to run, the market this year, say experts, justifies the fairly despised French trend toward very cheap four cylinder cars. Eights are the thing in the higher classes and sixes are recognized as the really standard car but fours outsell all others. Fancy-priced cars sell about as well as ever but people, say sales managers, hesitate over the medium classes.

MENUS For Good Health

A Week's Supply Recommended By Dr. Frank H. McCoy

DAILY MENUS (Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, October 5th.)

SUNDAY
Breakfast—Grapefruit upon rising, codified eggs, Melba toast, stewed raisins.
Lunch—Fresh fruit, all desired of one kind.
Dinner—Roast pork, baked stuffed tomatoes, salad of cold cooked asparagus on lettuce, *applesauce.

MONDAY
Breakfast—Cottage cheese, sliced pineapple, fresh or canned.
Lunch—Baked potatoes, cooked greens, salad of chopped raw cabbage and cream.
Dinner—Vegetable soup, Salisbury steak, baked ground carrots and beets, salad of stuffed celery, ice cream (small portions).

TUESDAY
Breakfast—Glass of orange juice upon rising, stewed apricots, well-browned waffle, crisp bacon.
Lunch—Large glass of tomato juice.
Dinner—Roast mutton, spinach, squash, salad of head lettuce, Jello or Jell-well.

WEDNESDAY
Breakfast—Milk, eggs poached in milk, toasted Shredded Wheat Biscuit.
Lunch—Corn, string beans, raw celery.
Dinner—Cream of tomato soup, broiled chicken, eggplant, buttered beets, salad of shredded spinach leaves, apricot whip.

THURSDAY
Breakfast—Wholewheat mush with cream, stewed prunes.
Lunch—Melon a la mode.
Dinner—Roast beef, okra, small green peas, salad of sliced cucumbers, pear sauce.

FRIDAY
Breakfast—French omelet, Melba toast, stewed figs.
Lunch—Fresh fruit (one kind), such as grapes, apples or peaches.
Dinner—Celery soup, baked white fish, spinach, buttered turnips, salad of sliced tomatoes, no dessert.

SATURDAY
Breakfast—Baked stuffed apple with cream.
Lunch—Cornmeal muffins, squash, Avocado salad.
Dinner—Vegetable soup, sliced yellow cheese (3/4-lb portions) steamed carrots, escalloped celery, McCoy salad (Celtuce, tomatoes and cucumbers), melon.

*Applesauce should be prepared without the addition of sugar. It is quite sweet if cooked without water in a thick aluminum pan. The apples should be thinly sliced, and the pan should have a close-fitting lid and be placed over a slow fire. This makes an excellent dessert to be used either with a protein meal or with breakfast. Baked apples should be likewise cooked in an aluminum pan and no sugar or water added.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Hair Dyes)

Question: N. D. asks: "Will hair dye injure the eyelashes and brows and is it permanent when once applied?"
Answer: The hair of the eyelashes and brows is constantly growing and, therefore, no dye will permanently cover the hair completely. Most of the hair dyes are harmless insofar as your general health is concerned, but usually injure the hair follicles after being used for some time.

(Acid and Alkaline-forming Foods)

Question: Mrs. W. writes: "Please print a list of both acid and alkaline-forming foods."
Answer: Such lists are too long to be printed in this column, but I will be glad to send you some articles giving you this information if you will forward a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Reducing Bust)

Question: Mrs. G. writes: "I am taking the orange juice fast, and wish especially to reduce the bust. Are there certain exercises I could try to pull down the bust, as it were, keeping the muscles rigid. Tub baths are too enervating during a fast, and better results are obtained from shower or sponge baths."

BROKERS SUSPENDED

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The New York Curb Exchange today announced the suspension from regular membership of Piperno & Co., for failure to meet engagements.
This suspension for insolvency was the second of the week, having been preceded by the failure of J. A. Sisto & Co., announced on Tuesday.
Piperno & Co., unlike the Sisto firm was not a member of the New York Stock Exchange, but has been a fairly active curb house, having two floor members, George Piperno, and David Wood. It is one of the newer brokerage firms, however, Mr. Piperno having obtained his membership three years ago, and Mr. Wood, only last year.

IL DUCE KNOWS ARTILLERY

Rome, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini today showed some of his soldiers that he knows how to conduct artillery drill.
The Duce, accompanied by General Gazzera, the minister of war, went to Lupara, near here, to witness the manoeuvres of light, motor-drawn field artillery. Not content with standing idly by, he mounted a gun carriage and for half an hour conducted evolutions of the field pieces.

NATION DEFINES ITS CUBAN STAND

Quotes Treaty of 1901 Which Gives U. S. the Power to Interfere in Affairs.

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—In respect to the present situation in Cuba, the Hoover administration plans to follow the interpretation of the Platt amendment enunciated in 1901 by Elihu Root under which the intervention described by the amendment was held not to be synonymous "with intermeddling or interference with the affairs of the Cuban government."

The Pronouncement

The pronouncement was conveyed to a Cuban constitutional convention at the time by the late Major General Leonard Wood. It read as follows:
"You are authorized to state officially that in the view of the President the intervention described in the third clause of the Platt amendment is not synonymous with intermeddling or interference with the affairs of the Cuban government, but the formal action of the government of the United States, based upon just and substantial grounds, for the preservation of Cuban independence, and the maintenance of the government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty, and adequate for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba, imposed by the treaty of Paris on the United States."

Disputed Article

The famous Article 3, embodied in the permanent treaty defining the rights of the United States in Cuba and over which there has been much controversy reads as follows:
"The government of Cuba: consents that the United States may exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of Cuban independence, the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty and for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the treaty of Paris on the United States, now to be assumed and undertaken by the government of Cuba."

DOMINIONS PLEDGE THEIR ASSISTANCE

London, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The self governing nations of the British Commonwealth today were pledged to the cause of Empire trade.

Throughout speeches which marked the opening proceedings of the Imperial Conference the ever recurring note was the desire to co-operate, to meet the common problem with common action.
"I should like to make this conference another turning point in the wonderful history of our people," said Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in a radio broadcast, last night.

"What we have to consider, I would suggest, what practical means we can devise for helping one another, and thereby helping us all."
"We face a world still unsettled; beyond us is a prospect of intangible fears, set purposes, unhappy suspicions, firm convictions, numbing experiences and yet a defiant idealism and it is our lot to try and find a sure way amidst the confusions—a way which those who will sit here after us will gladly pursue to the goals which are to us but promises."
Sentiments voiced by MacDonald were echoed in the subsequent speeches of the Dominion prime ministers.

PROTESTS LYNCHING

Atlanta, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A group of prominent clerical and lay members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in a statement issued for publication today, ascribed the persistence of lynching to the neglect of religious leaders to impress the people with the "solemn warnings of the church on this subject" and weakness and complicity on the part of public officials.
The statement urged that measures be taken "to bring such recreant officials to account in the courts of justice and at the bar of outraged public opinion."
The statement also said "the situation, as we see it, is serious in the extreme and challenges every religious leader, public official and Christian citizen to determined and unrelenting war upon this survival of barbarism."

OLD HOUSE BURNS

Providence, R. I., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Fair Oaks Farm, homestead of Mrs. James Bradley on the Louisquesset Pike, Lincoln, since 1884, was razed by a spectacular fire early today. Damage to the building and many antiques will total thousands of dollars.

Mrs. Bradley was carried to safety soon after the fire started and later, due to her age and the fact that she was recovering from a broken arm was removed to Rhode Island hospital here.
Five fire companies battled to check spread of flames to nearby buildings, after it became evident the homestead was doomed. Telephone service was disrupted when flames burned down wires. Showers of sparks carried for nearly a mile on a brisk wind added threat of forest fires.

JUDGE DIETRICH DEAD

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Judge F. S. Dietrich, 67, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals of the Ninth Circuit at San Francisco, died of a heart attack here today in an automobile, in which he started to drive to Portland.

He was offered the post of United States attorney general by President Harding but retained his district judgeship with the thought in mind of earlier accomplishing his ambition of reaching the Supreme Court of the United States.

HOOVER IN SPEECH ASKS CO-OPERATION

Tells Nation's Bankers U. S. Is Able to Recover From Business Slump—Standard of Living Must Not be Lowered—Federal Reserve System Will Render All the Assistance Needed—The President's Address in Full.

Following is the full text of President Hoover's address delivered here evening at the Bankers' Convention in Cleveland:

Members of the American Bankers' Association and Guests: I am glad to meet with this assembly of representative bankers from every State and almost every county of our country. During the past year you have carried the credit system of the Nation safely through a most difficult crisis. In this success you have demonstrated not alone the soundness of the credit system but also the capacity of our bankers in emergency.

We have had a severe shock and there has been disorganization in our economic system which has temporarily checked the march of prosperity. But the fundamental assets of the Nation, the education, intelligence, virility, and the spiritual strength of our 120,000,000 people, have been unimpaired. The resources of our country in lands and mines are unimpaired. Scientific discovery and invention have made further progress. The gigantic equipment and unparalleled organization for production and distribution are in many parts even stronger than two years ago.

Though our production and consumption has been slowed down to 85 or 90 per cent of normal, yet by the very fact of the steady functioning of the major portion of our system do we have the assurance of our ability and the economic strength to overcome the decline. The problem today is to complete the restoration of order in our ranks and to intensify our efforts to prevent such interruptions for the future.

And it is not a problem in academic economics. It is a great human problem. The margin of shrinkage brings loss of savings, unemployment, privation, hardship, and fear, which are no part of our ideals for the American economic system.

This depression is world-wide. Its causes and its effects lie only partly in the United States. Our country engaged in over-speculation in securities which crashed a year ago with great losses. A perhaps even larger immediate cause of our depression has been the effect upon us from the collapse in prices following over-production of important raw materials, mostly in foreign countries. Particularly had the planting of rubber, coffee, wheat, sugar, and to a lesser extent cotton, expanded beyond normal consumption even in normal times. The production of certain metals, such as silver, copper, and zinc, had likewise been over-expanded.

These major over-expansions have taken place largely outside of the United States. Their collapse has reduced the buying power of many countries. The prosperity of Brazil and Colombia has been temporarily affected from the situation in coffee; Chile, Peru, Mexico, and Australia from the fall in silver, zinc, and copper. The buying power of India and China, dependent upon the price of silver, has been affected. Australia, Canada, and the Argentine have been affected by the situation in wheat; Cuba and Java have been depressed by the condition of the sugar industry; East India generally has suffered from the fall in rubber. These and other causes have produced in some of the countries affected some political unrest. These economic disturbances have echoed in slowed-down demand for manufactured goods from Europe and ourselves, with inevitable contribution to unemployment. But the readjustments in prices, which were also inevitable, are far along their course. Most of these commodities are below the level at which sufficient production can be maintained for the world's normal needs, and therefore sooner or later must recover.

Present Depression Because the present depression is world-wide and because its causes were world-wide, does not require that we should wait upon the recovery of the rest of the world. We can make a very large degree of recovery independently of what may happen elsewhere.

I should like to remind you that we did precisely that thing in 1922. We were then experiencing the results of the collapse of war inflation in all commodities and in every direction. We had less organized co-operation between the business community and the government to help mitigate that situation. The rest of the world was in chaos from the war far more menacing both to economic and political stability than anything confronting us today. Our difficulties at that time were far more severe than they are at present. The commercial banks particularly were sufferers from a large volume of frozen credits and enjoyed nothing to compare with the comfortable liquidity that prevails today. We then had over-expansion and large stocks in most commodities; today with one or two exceptions we are free from this deterrent. But we led the world in recovery. It was our independent recuperation from that depression, and the economic strength which we have driven this land further and further toward that great human goal—the abolition of intellectual and economic poverty—is perhaps not a sympathetic approach. Nevertheless, I always have been, and I remain, an unquenchable believer in the resilient, dynamic power of American enterprise. This is no time—an audience of American leaders of business is no place—to talk of any surrender. We have known a thousand temporary setbacks, but the spirit of this people will never brook defeat.

Not a New Experience. Our present situation is not a new experience. These interruptions to the orderly march of progress have been recurrent for a century. And apart from recovery from the present depression, the most urgent undertaking in our economic life is to devise further methods of preventing these storms. We must assure a higher degree of business stability for the future.

The causes advanced for these movements are many and varied. There is no simple explanation. This is not an occasion for analysis of the many theories such as too little gold or the inflexible use of it. Whatever the remote causes may be, a large and immediate cause of most hard times is inflationary booms. These strike some segment of economic life somewhere in the world, and their re-echoing destructive results bring depression and hard times. These inflations in currency or credit, in land or securities, or over-expansion in some sort of commodity production beyond possible demand even in good times—may take place at home or abroad—but they all bring retribution.

The leaders of business, of government thought, and of government have for the last decade given earnest search into cause and remedy of this sort of instability. Much has already been accomplished to check the violence of the storms and to mitigate their distress. As a result of these efforts the period of storm is shorter, and the relief work far more effective. But we need not go beyond our situation today to confirm the need for further effort.

Can Be Prevented. The economic fatalist believes that these crises are inevitable and bound to be recurrent. I would remind these pessimists that exactly the same thing was once said of typhoid, cholera and smallpox. If medical science had set down in a spirit of weak-kneed resignation and accepted these scourges as uncontrollable visitations of Providence, we should still have them with us. This is not the spirit of modern science. Science girds itself with painstaking research to find the nature and origin of disease and to devise methods for its prevention. That should be our attitude toward these economic pestilences. They are not dispensations of Providence. I am confident in the faith that their control, so far as the causes lie within our own boundaries, is within the genius of modern business.

We have all been much engaged with measures of relief from the effect of the collapse of a year ago. At that time I determined that it was my duty, even without precedent, to call upon the business of the country for coordinated and constructive action to resist the forces of disintegration. The business community, the bankers, labor and the government have cooperated in wider spread measures of mitigation than have ever been attempted before. Our bankers and the reserve system have carried the country through the credit storm without impairment. Our leading business concerns have sustained wages, have distributed employment, have expedited heavy construction. The government has expanded public works, assisted in credit to agriculture, and has restricted immigration. These measures have maintained a higher degree of consumption than would have otherwise been the case. They have thus prevented a large measure of unemployment. They have provided much new employment. Our present experience in relief should form the basis of even more amplified plans in the future. But in the long view the equally important thing is prevention. We would need have less concern about what to do in bad times if we discovered and erected in good times further safeguards against the excesses which lead to these depressions.

American business has proved its capacity to solve some great human problems in economics. The relation between employer and employee has here reached a more stable and satisfactory basis than anywhere else in the world. We have largely solved the problem of how to secure the consumption of the gigantic increase of goods produced through the multiplication of per capita production by the application of science and the use of labor-saving devices. That solution has been attained by sharing the savings in production costs between labor, capital, and the con-

Can Be Prevented. The economic fatalist believes that these crises are inevitable and bound to be recurrent. I would remind these pessimists that exactly the same thing was once said of typhoid, cholera and smallpox. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3.

LONERGAN The dry-owned Hartford Times waxes enthusiastic over the nomination of the exceedingly wet Augustin Lonergan as Democratic candidate for representative in Congress from the First district.

This is in the leading editorial in the Times of last evening. In the next column appears another editorial dealing with President Hoover's speaking tour.

The conscientiousness of Mr. Hoover is beyond cavil. His energy and genius are great. His services of helpfulness have been many. Our confidence and support of him should continue as the necessarily pivotal figure in America's organized effort to emerge from the current depression with increased happiness for all.

Whether in the ensuing campaign Republicans or Democrats are elected to Congress they must bear mandate to aid the President and not to bait or obstruct him in courses plainly for the public welfare.

Representative Tilson, Republican leader of the House of Representatives, at West Haven last night pointed out the inevitable result of electing a Democratic Congress this fall.

TAKING OUR CUE Representatives of seven self governing units of the British Commonwealth of Nations and of the colonial governed unit of India are in conference at London.

Scarcely a speech has been made or an article written by any leader of this movement in the last six months that did not contain some reference, direct or indirect, to the economic rise of America.

Inter-imperial free trade—the elimination of all tariffs between the dominions and colonies and the mother country and between each other—combined with stiff tariff protection again all outside competitors has captured the imagination of a great many individuals and statesmen of the British Commonwealth.

There are four hundred and fifty millions of these people. Formed into a trade league bound by mutual interest to deal with each other and with no one else on any competitive basis, and possessing the resources and the lands to make their league absolutely self contained, the potentialities of the mass may be imagined.

It may be a long time before there is fruit of this conference or of any of many successors. But there isn't the slightest doubt that Britain and her dominions and colonies are taking their cue in this matter from the United States.

REFLECTED COURAGE Displaying considerable strategy of a quite subtle sort the Bridgeport Times-Star pins on the breast of Governor Roosevelt the rose of approval earned by former Governor Al Smith.

"Governor Smith," says the Times-Star, "stated in a few words what, thanks to his own political courage and that of Roosevelt, is now the keynote of the Roosevelt campaign on this particular issue."

The Times-Star seems for the moment to forget that Al Smith is not the candidate of the New York Democrats for the governorship. It is Mr. Roosevelt who is the candidate and the above words were not his.

That is a very different attitude toward the Tammany judicial scandals from the one taken by Al Smith. It takes a brilliant imagination to see the governor of New York shining in the reflected glory of the courage and independence of the former governor—who can afford to be courageous and independent because he is not running for office now.

OLD HINDENBURG There is an old man in Germany to whom martial boasts and the rattling of sabres do not appeal. His name is Paul von Hindenburg and he is president of the Reich.

Hindenburg's were the best military brains in Germany during the World War. Called into service though two years beyond the age of retirement he took over the command of the forces in East Prussia at a moment when dire disaster impended.

And he saw, as never did Herr Hitler or any of his six million Fascist fanatics, the emptiness and irony of destroying human beings by the tens of thousands. For after all there was nothing in it—nothing whatever of good to anybody in the crumpling up and scattering and killing of those untold thousands of sturdy Russian peasants who had been led into German territory.

Old von Hindenburg knows more about war than any other German. And he wants his country to have no more of it—not ever.

sword. Old Hindenburg knows all about that, too—and we may be sure with pride. But he is immovably for peace, for all time, and the everlasting end of jingoism and militarism. He knows all about victory and all about defeat and all about glory and all about thousands of human beings dying in the mud.

OLD HOME WEEK-END The Old Home Week-end seems to be a success in Wapping, as the affair of last year is to be repeated tomorrow and Sunday.

The Old Home week-end is a very different matter. It may not bring back all the sons and daughters scattered to far distances, but neither, for that matter, did the Old Home week, even occasionally; there were always some who could not, for one reason or another, manage attendance.

FORD AGAIN Henry Ford has collaborated in the production of a book in which he forecasts that the average rate of wages in the United States twenty years hence will be $27 a day.

It is to be suspected that there would be considerable illumination about such a statement, if it were sworn to. In his book Mr. Ford refers quite easily to the $1 an hour wage rate in his factories.

IN NEW YORK New York, Oct. 3.—Our own Who's Who and What's What in New York— Not so many years ago, Mile. Texas Guinan, the big "little hand giver," was told that she never again could light up anybody's door in this man's town.

For years Rudy has had his own supper resort, titled the Villa Vallee. Within a short time Osborne will be functioning as host at his own resort, and not so many blacks from the Vallee croonery.

Miriam Hopkins, one of the prettier and fresher of the Broadway children, is another name movie audiences and best start getting used to. Miriam left her native good Greek in "Lysistrata," to double over in Long Island in the film production of "The Best People."

Meanwhile changes have come over Night clubbery. And the hickie moths who chase the late lights have drifted elsewhere.

And speaking of film things, there's a play in town called "Once in a Lifetime," which takes Hollywood for a hay ride. One of the leading characters is a composite type of all the Hollywood magistrates in a short story.

And every lean official who could scare up the price came to get a large laugh at the expense of the bossess. I am told that Sam Harris, who produced it, may find himself in an argument with at least one of the millionaire film-makers ever one of the more heated outbursts against dear old Hollywood.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

WHY WE CRAVE RICH FOOD

As the human race evolves, we find ourselves confronting new problems with our old instincts. Our instincts are based on the experiences of hundreds of generations of those who have preceded us.

If you give a child or person who has had no dietetic training a choice of food he will almost invariably exhibit this instinct by picking out only the foods which have a high caloric value and avoiding foods which have a low caloric value.

However, the reason for the enjoyment is probably because of the sugary taste which the body recognizes as containing calories, and also because the berries and fruits were among the first foods used by man and often carried him over lean periods until other foods, such as meats and cereals were abundant.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS Question: "Mrs. H. P. writes: 'What shall I do for nervous stomach? I have had it for seven years, have been to all kinds of doctors, but have never had any real help. Can you give me a great deal of help during the night?'"

Answer: The so-called "nervous" stomach is simply a stomach which is constantly irritated by wrong foods and bad food combinations.

Question: "I am constantly irritated by wrong foods and bad food combinations. Do not blame your stomach for the trouble, but take away the irritation and learn to live on the right kind of diet."

Three Factories United in Creating this group of Authentic American Pieces for the Furniture Style-Show

FOR THE FIRST TIME three factories have united the best efforts of their designers and cabinetmakers, to produce truly authentic living room ensemble, fittingly named the Independence Group, because the original from which each piece was carefully reproduced, dates from an interesting period in our own American history.

For instance, the Patrick Henry desk in this group is the very same type, as to wood and interior and even the casters, as the one used by the famous Patrick Henry. The original of the Baron von Steuben sofa once in the possession of Mrs. John Steubens of Cazenovia, New York.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—An aged woman was burned to death and a dozen others suffered injuries in a fire early today which damaged two apartment houses in northwest Washington.

The body of Miss Jessie Cammack, 75, of Washington, was found after the fire was extinguished.

Scores of other occupants of the apartment house, at 1419 Chapin street, N. W., jumped from windows after flames cut off other means of escape.

Miss Cammack lived alone in a rear apartment on the fourth floor. She was not missed until the fire had been brought under control.

Firemen expressed the belief she slept until smoke and flames prevented her escape.

WASHINGTON LEADER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

Washington, Oct. 3.—Politicians are politicians and that is why the Republican state convention in New York, by a three to one vote, declared for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the return of the liquor problem to the individual states.

A month before the convention, it was commonly believed among those most conversant with state politics in New York that the Republicans would adopt a straddling plank on prohibition in an attempt to keep the upstate vote happy as well as the New York City vote.

But politicians are politicians and it is not much fun being a politician unless you can win an election once in a while and get your party into office.

The New York Republicans are tired of losing state elections. For years now they have had a Democratic governor and two United States senators. Their weakness in the state-enabled New York Democrats to produce a strong presidential candidate in 1928 and the chances are that another New York Democratic governor will be the strongest contender for the Democratic nomination in 1932.

G. O. P. at Disadvantage About all the attention the Republican party in New York has attracted through the country has been in connection with prohibition scandals in New York City and the uninspiring efforts of Republican state legislators to thwart Governors Al Smith and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It has never been questioned by anyone that, insofar as any state can be tagged as wet or dry, New York has been wet. With the Democrats of the state militantly wet, the Republicans have obviously been at a disadvantage when dry or straddling.

There are more dry, apparently, in the New York Republican party than in the New York Democratic party. But that didn't win the G. O. P. any state-wide elections. In 1928 the drys entered an independent senatorial candidate who took away enough votes to defeat Senator James W. Wadsworth, who had come out wet, but the New York Republicans doubtless figure that that sort of thing can't go on forever.

Independents Never Serious Independent dry candidates sometimes have a distinct nuisance value—and so have independent wet candidates—but they are never serious contenders in a campaign. The infinitesimal voting strength of the old Prohibition party indicates how difficult it is to draw voters away from the major parties to "waste" their ballots on a strictly dry ticket.

HALF MILLION BLAZE IN STATE BUILDINGS

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Fire in the new state educational building now under construction, early today burned out much of the interior of the auditorium section.

Chief M. W. Tawney estimated the damage at more than $500,000. Unable to enter the section where the fire was raging, Chief Tawney directed firemen from 34 companies to prevent the flames from spreading to other wings of the six-story building.

The building was being erected at a cost of more than $4,000,000 and was to house the State Department of Public Instruction, the State Library and the State Department of Welfare.

The painters were at work in the auditorium recently and the great room was almost filled with scaffolding. The interior of this building, including costly marble and valuable murals, was a total loss.

The two tiers of offices above the auditorium were also wrecked. The remainder of the building was damaged only by smoke and water.

Five firemen were injured, none seriously, fighting the fire.

NIGHT SCHOOL The evening sessions of the Connecticut Business College are held every Monday and Wednesday nights. Courses in Accounting, Bookkeeping and Typing are being taught by the instructors, making it possible for students to enter any school night.—Adv.

ELECTION RIOTS

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 3.—(AP)—

Municipal elections at Karchiyaka, near Smyrna, yesterday developed into a riot of stone-throwing and shrieking women. The trouble began when partisans of the People's party attempted to prevent the women from voting for candidates of Fethi Bey's new Liberal Party. There were no deaths but many injuries resulted from the women's attacks with rocks and finger nails upon the aggressors. The town's entire force was called out to restore order and the elections were ordered discontinued.

FIND PLANE'S RUDDER

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A yellow rudder from a Waco plane was found in Lake Michigan off Bluffington, Ind., yesterday. The Coast

Guardsmen who found it believe it was on the plane of Ralph Fisher Skelton, young Chicago artist-aviator, who disappeared last April in a cross-lake flight.

numer, through increased wages and salaries to the worker, and decreased prices to the consumer with consequent increased buying power for still more goods. Every step in that solution is a revolution from the older theories of business.

We may safely assume that our economic future is safe so far as it is dependent upon a competent handling of problems of productivity. But one result is to render further advance toward stability even more urgent, because with higher standards of living the whole system is more sensitive and the penalties of instability more widespread.

There is one group of which the public expects so much in assuring stability as the bankers, because in the vortex of these storms many values lose their moorings. Nor can any other group contribute so much in constructive thought and action to solve the problem either today or in the long run.

Three most important relationships to these business movements lie in the banker's field. The first is what, for lack of better terms, we call psychology—both that contagious overoptimism which accelerates the inflation of the boom and those depths of fear and pessimism which deepen and prolong the depression. The American banker has come to occupy a unique position in the strategy of stability, for he is the economic adviser of American business. He is the listening post of economic movement. He in large measure makes or tempers its psychology.

I do not suppose the banker has consciously sought this new function of general adviser, but such he has become. His business is no longer the simple function of discounting commercial bills and lending money on first mortgages. That is today but part of his work. These days, when he establishes a line of credit to a business, he furnishes loans upon securities of a business, or advises investment in a business, he must know the elements which make for success and failure of that business. And he must form judgment as to the future trend of business in general. On the other side, the American business man, big and little, the farmer, and the labor leader are coming more and more to consult with the banker on problems of his business. Whatever the origin of his position may be, the banker is now the economic guide, philosopher, and friend of his customers, and his philosophy can dampen our enthusiasm and equally it can lift our courage and hope.

The second point of the banker's unique position in relation to business trends lies in the part which credit plays in the whole business process. Obviously during the inflationary period the use of credit for unwise expansion and speculation draws away the supply of credit from normal business. It imposes upon normal business an interest rate which strangles the orderly commerce of the country. Commerce sickens under pressure, its pace slackens and contributes to collapse. Therefore, I wish to emphasize what has long been recognized—that is, that the flow of credit can accelerate and it can retard such movements. Equally wise direction of credit provides a large contribution to recovery from depressions.

The third reason why this is so much a banker's problem is that banking is the one great line of business activity that is in itself interconnected. Each credit institution shares the credit burdens of others and all are largely coordinated through national organization—the Federal reserve system.

The reserve system and its member banks and the Treasury participation in fact form a widespread co-operation organization, acting in the broad interest of the whole people. To a large degree it can influence the flow of credit. Bankers themselves are represented at each stage of management. And, in addition, the various boards and advisory committees represent also industry, agriculture, merchandising, and the Government. The reserve system therefore furnishes an admirable center for cooperation of the banking business with the production and distribution industries and the Government in the development of broad and detached policies of business stability.

You have gained much experience from the two great crises of recent years. I trust you will seriously and systematically consider what further effective measures can be taken either in the business world or in cooperation with the Government in development of such policies, both for the present depression and for the future. I know of no greater public service. It is a service to every business man, to every farmer, to every worker, whether at the desk or bench. I am not assuming you can do it all, or that all disturbance, domestic or foreign, can be wholly prevented or cured.

The Government should cooperate. It plays a large part in the credit structure of the country. Its fiscal system has most important bearings. For instance, I know of no greater public service. It is a service to every business man, to every farmer, to every worker, whether at the desk or bench. I am not assuming you can do it all, or that all disturbance, domestic or foreign, can be wholly prevented or cured.

The regulatory functions of the Federal and State Governments also have a bearing on this subject through their effect upon the financial strength of the railways and utilities. During a period of depression the soundest and most available method of relief to utilities, railways, and heavy industries. The volume of possible expansion of construction in these private industries is about four or five times that in public works. During the present depression these industries have done their full part, and especially the railways have been handicapped by some provisions of the Transportation Act of 1920. With wider public vision the railways could be strengthened into a greater balance wheel of stability. We have need to consider all of our economic legislation, whether banking, utilities, or agriculture, or anything else, from the point of view of its effect upon business stability.

I have never believed that our form of government could satisfactorily solve economic problems by direct action—could successfully conduct business institutions. The Government can and must cure abuses. What the Government can do best is to encourage and assist in the creation and development of institutions controlled by our citizens and evolved by themselves from their own needs and their own experience and directed in a sense of a trusteeship of public interest. The Federal Reserve is such an institution.

Without intrusion the Government can sometimes give leadership and serve to bring together divergent elements and secure cooperation in development of ideas, measures, and institutions. That is a reinforcement of our individualism. It does not cripple the initiative and enterprise of our people by the substitution of government.

Proper cooperation among our people in public interest, and continuation of such institutional growths, strengthen the whole foundation of the Nation, for self-government outside of political government is the truest form of self-government. It is in this manner that these problems should be met and solved.

I wish to revert to the influence of the bankers, through encouragement and leadership, in expedition of our recovery from the present situation. You have already done much, and at this juncture the responsibility of those in control of money and credit is very great. Without faith on your part and without your good offices, the early return to full prosperity can not be accomplished. This depression will be shortened largely to the degree that you feel that you can prudently, by counsel and specific assistance, instill into your clients from industry, agriculture, and commerce a feeling of assurance.

We know that one of the prerequisites of ending a depression is an ample supply of credit at low rates of interest. This supply and these rates are now available through cooperation of the banks and Federal reserve system.

The income of a large part of our people is not reduced by the depression but it is affected by unnecessary fears and pessimism, the result of which is to slacken the consumption of goods and discourage enterprise. Here the very atmosphere of your offices will affect the mental attitude and, if you please, courage, of the individuals who will depend upon you for both counsel and money. Many, perhaps all of you, have been through other periods of depression. Those of you who have had occasion to review the experience of the past will, I believe, join in the thought that there comes a time in every depression when the changed attitude of the financial agencies can help the upward movement in our economic forces.

I started with the premise that this question of stability was much more than a problem in academic economics—it is a great human problem, for it involves the happiness of millions of homes. A continued unity of effort, both in our present situation and in establishing safeguards for the future, is the need of today. No one can contribute more than our banking community.

In conclusion I would again profess my own undimmed faith in those mighty spiritual and intellectual forces, of liberty, self-government, initiative, invention, and courage, which have throughout our whole national life motivated our progress, and driven us ever forward. These forces, which express the true genius of our people, are undiminished. They have already shown their ability to resist this immediate shock. Any recession in American business is but a temporary halt in the prosperity of a great people.

GANGLAND RAISES FUND TO OUST POLICE HEAD

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Herald and Examiner hears that organized crime in Chicago is raising a million dollar fund to be dedicated to the purpose of putting Police Commissioner John Alcock out of office.

The newspaper quoted an undesignated official source: "We know the fund is being raised. We know it is intended to be one of the biggest underworld lobby funds ever collected in Chicago—and a million dollars is not the limit, either. The purpose is to collect 'as much as necessary' and the money is to be used 'discreetly'."

The need for "discretion" is taken to indicate that the gang powers are anxious to avoid any "rough stuff" that might stir public indignation.

The newspaper was unable to say today how gangland intended to use the fund to effect removal of the police commissioner.

WARSHIP SAFE

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The U. S. Montcalm today had conquered the difficulty which led it to call on the Navy yesterday to rush help to it, 500 miles southeast of Charleston, S. C.

A later message received at the Navy department said the Montcalm was "riding the seas easily" and that her engines were working smoothly. The message reported the vessel to be heading slightly northeast "into head seas" under overcast skies.

Queer Twists In Day's News

London—King George has ordered five automobiles manufactured in the winter for him as an example in stimulating industry.

New York—Fred Astaire, dancer, seems to be becoming a society favorite. He was a guest at the recent wedding of Jock Whitney. Last night he attended a birthday dinner for Prince Obolensky, brother-in-law of Vincent Astor.

New York—Cornelius McCarthy, run runner, is so frank the police won't believe him. He walked into a hospital with a bullet wound in one shoulder. He said he was running rum on Long Island and was shot by hi-jackers. And the wound did not hurt at all. He escaped the hi-jackers and delivered the stuff. Where? He wouldn't tell. So the police let him go.

Washington—Losses on horse races are deductible from income, but poor election wagers are not, it seems. Such is the case anyhow with Joubert Shouse. He was permitted to deduct $12,458 in net losses on track wagers in 1923, 1924 and 1925. Deduction of $1,700 for a bet lost on Credit for perfect attendance during September is given to Fayette Clarke, Thomas Ferguson, George Glenney, Stephen Hale, William Halsted, Charles and Herbert House, Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, John I. Olson, Clarence Quimby, Elmer Thienes, Harold Turkington, Elmore Watkins, Harlowe Willis and George Wilcox. The program committee will present its report at this meeting on programs for the balance of the year.

Legion Briefs

Boston, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The hitchhikers are arriving in droves. Robert Guthrie, Louisville, Ky., and Frank E. Stewart and Norman E. Griffin, Phoenix, Ariz., are the latest arrivals. They covered 3,000 miles enroute to the convention.

Convention officials learned today that a fleet of 1500 automobiles was on the way from Florida.

Brockton Legionnaires are in trouble but they say that everything will be all right before Monday rolls around. Brockton posts invited the official party from Ohio to be the guests of the city. By a misunderstanding the entire state delegation accepted and the Shoe City is looking for about 300 more lodging places than they counted on.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, war ace, and Albert Egenberger, America-Hawaii flier, both Congressional Medal of Honor men, will be guests of the Cambridge post at a dinner Sunday.

Governor Frank G. Allen has reserved a seat for each G. A. R. veteran in the state in the "bleachers" across from the State House for the Legion parade Tuesday.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD

Hartford, Oct. 3.—(AP)—P. K. Panos, of Los Angeles, Calif., was arrested in New York last night for the Connecticut State Police and is held for extradition to New Britain for trial in the city court on a charge of fraud. The alleged fraud is claimed to be the sale of land on Monterey Peninsula, assessed at $10 a lot, for $300 to $800. The sales were made principally to Greeks in New Britain, Hartford, Meriden, Ansonia and Waterbury.

HASTINGS' CONDITION IS MUCH IMPROVED

Highland Park Young Man Seems Out of Danger After Attack of Infantile Paralysis

The condition of Gay Hastings of Highland Park, a Wesleyan University student, who is ill with infantile paralysis in the Middlesex County hospital, was reported today by a Manchester physician as much improved. Although young Hastings has the disease, Dr. Howard Boyd said last night the victim has absolutely no paralysis. This point is decidedly in favor of the youth's recovery. The local doctor said Hastings was practically out of danger.

Asked how long he thought the young man will still have to remain in the hospital, Dr. Boyd said probably from three to four weeks, the point being that they want to be absolutely sure that the last trace of the disease is eliminated before discharging the patient. Due to the epidemic in Middletown which has already taken nearly half a dozen lives, a total of 208 students have left Wesleyan and gone to their homes for temporary vacations until such time as the epidemic passes. The annual football game between Wesleyan and Connecticut Agricultural College has also been cancelled as a precautionary measure.

LIPTON REACHES ENGLAND

Southampton, Eng., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton, veteran yachtsman, on arrival here today confirmed a recent New York statement that he would challenge again for the America's Cup and at the same time announced that he would build a sixth Shamrock for the international contest. His Shamrock V was created by Enterprise in this year's regatta.

Cardinal Hopes At Low Ebb As Teams Glide West

BILL HALLAHAN TO PITCH NEXT TILT FOR CARDS

Looks Like Rommel or Shores As Mack's Choice for Opening Battle at St. Louis.

By BRIAN BELL

Enroute from Philadelphia to St. Louis, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Confident that a change of environment will help them, the St. Louis Cardinals speeded westward today to resume their World Series quarrel with the Philadelphia Athletics at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, tomorrow.

The Athletics, transformed by the schedule from the home club to that of their visitors, also went west today but the American League team can do no better in the National League city than they did at home. If they do as well the series will be over Sunday night.

The champions made it two in a row at Sportsman's Park yesterday by giving Big George Earnshaw an early lead, six runs in four innings in clusters of two's, then suspending their hitting and scoring activities. As the big Swarthmore hurler was in excellent form, any one of the two innings would have been enough to win.

Still Have Hope

Although they never were "in the ball game" in the second contest of the series, the National League showed no disposition to give up and their supporters still have hope.

As the contesting teams devoted a day to travel, speculation was rife as to the probable pitchers for the opening game at St. Louis tomorrow. Manager Street said he would summon his star southpaw "Wild Bill" Hallahan to the mound. Hallahan is another pitcher who is almost unbeatable when his control is working. He shut out the Brooklyn Robins 1 to 0 in ten innings in the important opening game of a series practically deciding the National League pennant.

Hallahan—Rommel?

In this game Hallahan allowed only five hits, retiring the first 20 men in order. The crack left-hander, however, can be wild at times and

ST. LOUIS FANS SING THE BLUES BUT HAVE HOPE

Woebegone Look on Faces of Home Town Rooters As They Wait Arrival of Falling Favorites.

By PAUL MICKELSON

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The thump, thump of Connie Mack's not so "white" elephants has almost crushed the far flung "Spirit of St. Louis." With two of their best money pitchers already grounded under the big stamper at Shibe Park, even the most rabid cardinal fan sang the blues today and feared that the current edition of the world's greatest sport would be just another 1-2-3-4 romp for the representatives of the American League.

Baseball gossip was almost unnoticeable in the streets and hotels and in clubs. Mr. Cardinal fan had a woebegone look on his face although here and there could be found the hopeful.

"Wait until Wild Bill Hallahan whips over his southpaw slants before you give up hope," some encouraged. "He'll stop those Athletics and get that herd of elephants on a run. Then Burleigh Grimes, beaten by the breaks of the game in the opener Wednesday will come back—and how."

"Yeh, yeh, but what are we going to do after that? What are we going to do with Earnshaw?" muttered the discouraged.

The hopeful and semi-cheerful planned to prove their hearts were still with the Cards as they trooped back home today by going to the station to greet and cheer them. They had the "St. Louis Blues" but won't sing them before the Cards today anyway.

his bases on balls for the season lead the league.

Connie Mack, as usual kept his own counsel. There were numerous suggestions that he give both Grove and Earnshaw a chance to repeat. Should he consider this course impracticable, the names mentioned frequently in connection with the pitching assignment for tomorrow were Bill Shores, a youngster and Eddie Rommel, a veteran.

SPORT PLANTS

By ALAN GOULD ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Among the younger crop of golfers who sprouted up from nowhere in the late and very chaotic National Amateur Golf championship at Merion, none has developed so consistent a penchant for the spectacular as Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., of the Green Meadow Country club, Harrison, New York.

Black-browed, pug-nosed with a faded smile like that of a retired professional boxer McCarthy inserted himself into more dramatic situations on one day at Merion than most of the others combined.

On the second qualifying day, the former intercollegiate and present metropolitan champion holed out a spoon shot for an ace on the 215-yard 17th hole to cause almost as much excitement as the elimination of the defending champion, "Jimmy" Johnston.

Late that evening, McCarthy became embroiled in the playoff among 11 players seeking the eighth remaining qualifying places. Darkness stopped his mule and early the next morning he qualified and then the fun began.

As a pipe-opener, McCarthy went 19 holes to beat Watts Gunn, the former playmate of Bobby Jones. Thus started the New York Yorker took on George Von Elm, next to Jones the tournament's outstanding favorite and runnerup for qualifying honors, and beat the coast star at the 28th, after ten extra holes of the most dramatic golf any championship has ever seen.

This stunt not only broke the old record, but doubled it, for the longest previous extra hole match went only five holes.

Some day McCarthy may bowl 'em all over and win the championship. He is only 23 now, but he has a world of experience and he isn't apprehensive about tackling any shot or any opponent. His game has been soundly taught and developed by his father, a professional.

He beat Max Marston, an ex-national champion, in a 22 hole match in 1928 and the following year, at Minikahada, McCarthy carried the Green Jones to the home hole. He was only 19 then and he captained the Georgetown university team two years, capturing the intercollegiate title in 1928.

Von Elm finished his last amateur tournament without shaking the jinx that has pursued him ever since he beat Bobby Jones for the title in 1926 at Baltusrol. Von Elm was all right in the second round, in defense of his crown, by Harry Legg in 1927, put out in the first round of 1928 by Arthur (Ducky) Yates and last year, at Pebble Beach, by Chandler Egan, the 1904-5 champion, also in the first round.

George Rotan, the Texas veteran, attempted a come-back at Merion but failed to qualify, by a stroke, because his perfectly played second shot to the 16th green on the second medal round hit a spectator on the head and bounded back 40 yards into an old stone quarry. Instead of a four which he had every reason to expect, scoring, Rotan barely escaped this hazard with a six and finished with a total of 156. Two strokes less would have put him in the match play without dispute, 155 would have put him in the playoff.

H. S. TENNIS TOURNAMENTS ON

Tournaments to decide the boys' girls' tennis title of Manchester High school are in progress. Here are some of the first results:

Eleanor Heubner beat Agnes Kasuli 6-0, 6-0. R. Combs beat Robert Neil, 6-2, 6-0; Eddie Werner won from James Gorman 7-5, 1-6; 6-1. Robert Cotton defeated Gene Enrico 7-5, 1-6, 7-5. James Antonio won from Al Smith, 5-7, 7-5, 6-2; Elsie Robinson is leading Betty Grayson 6-7, 1-2 in an unfinished match. Francis Mahoney took the measure of Francis McVeigh, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, and Mildred Sutherland defeated Eleanor Nickerson 6-1, 6-1.

Other matches scheduled include: E. Keith vs. D. Wengrovius, R. Lyons vs. J. Britton, R. Johnson vs. W. Turkington, P. Emond vs. I. Cole, J. Metcalf vs. M. Reardon, A. Urbanetti vs. H. Turkington, R. McCormick vs. J. Hadlund, E. Lithwiniski vs. Langrecht.

A late result shows Dixon Burdick beating Dave Nelson 4-6, 6-1, and 6-1.

OUT OF THE PAST
London—A flower of ancient Egypt, calling back the years of the Egyptian Pharaohs, is blooming in England. This flower out of the past is of vivid blue, and something like a small sweet pea. It has been grown from a seed 3500 years old, taken from the tomb of an ancient Egyptian Pharaoh by F. M. Harris, of Acton.

GOOD RECORD
According to the Automobile Club of Southern California, 98 per cent of all cars stolen are recovered. Last year's figures show that 42,756 cars were stolen, of which 39,718 were recovered.

A HOMER FOR COCHRANE, AND—

Mickey Cochrane's big bat was good for another four-base clout in the second game of the World Series at Shibe Park, Philadelphia. This Herald-NEA Service picture shows the Philadelphia Athletics' hard-hitting catcher being greeted by a bat boy as he crossed the home plate after a tremendous drive over the right field fence in the first inning of the contest. Cochrane led the attack which routed the St. Louis Cardinals a second time, 6 to 1.

Father of 4 Children Dies In Boxing Bout

17 Year Old Rival Held Pending Investigation; Fatality Occurred in Mandell-Myers Semi-Final at Cedar Rapids.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Battling Nelson of Waterloo, Ia., fighting in the semi-final to the Mandell-Myers bout last night, died with his gloves on. He collapsed at the end of the fifth round. A towel was tossed into the ring but the boxer was dead.

His opponent, Kid Leonard of East Moline, Ill., was ordered held for the inquest today. He is 17 years old and was fighting his 19th professional bout. Nelson, whose full name was Hildreth C. Nelson, was 27 years, married and the father of four children. He has been fighting professionally for five years and was a welterweight.

Three physicians, including Coroner R. A. Vorpahl, were at the ringside and sought unsuccessfully to revive Nelson. Their unofficial expressions were that death was accidental, being due either to paralysis of the heart or over-exertion, rather than as the result of a blow. The county attorney, however, asked that Kid Leonard—Leonard Vandevallie is his real name—be held for the inquest.

The fight card went on uninterrupted, with Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, taking an easy 10-round decision from Spug Myers, Pocatello and Chicago welter.

TRUCKS BIG FARM AID
According to a survey taken by Eric Edwards, U. S. Department of Agriculture marketing specialist, the use of motor trucks in marketing fruit and vegetables in 21 counties of western New York increased more than 150 per cent in the past five years.

ANOTHER TALLY PUTS THE BATTLE ON ICE

HOOKS AND SLIDES

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER

THE WISCONSIN WONDER

Eighteen years ago a young man left the old dairy farm near Clear Lake, Wis., and went to the city. In his pocket he had the change from $25 after buying a ticket to St. Paul. If you had met him in the day coach of the train that carried him to St. Paul, he might have told you that his name was Burleigh Arland Grimes.

He went to Mike Kelley, manager of the St. Paul club of the American Association. Kelley had been a friend of his father, Nick. Mike looked over the 19-year-old kid and told him to try Eau Claire. Burleigh tried it. He pitched for Eau Claire two months and the league blew up. Burleigh will tell you to this day that Eau Claire owes him $80.

Detroit Tries Him
Burleigh had about 75 cents in his jeans when the league folded. Russ Bailey, manager of the team, loaned the young man a five-spot and Grimes bought a ticket to Austin, Minn., where he got a job pitching semi-pro ball. The next year he drifted to Ottumwa, Ia., where he twirled for $80 a month.

Detroit brought him to the big league along with George Burns, the first baseman who is now playing in the Pacific Coast League. Burns was sent to Sioux City for seasoning and Grimes went to Chattanooga. In the fall of 1913, Burleigh Arland Grimes was not recalled, and it was a discouraged young man who trekked to the north woods lumber camp for a winter of toil, at $35 a month.

Grimes' left arm was broken in a log camp during the winter of 1913-14, and in the spring when he reported to Chattanooga, he was waived to Birmingham. Birmingham sent him to Richmond, recalling him in 1916. During the winter he worked in a steel mill. In 1916 he went like a horse afire and was traded to Pittsburgh.

A Traveling Man
Grimes got away badly with Pittsburgh, and in the fall of 1917 he was traded to Brooklyn. The next year he pitched good ball for Uncle Robbie, but in mid-season of 1919 was spiked by Frank Frisch and had to quit the game for the rest of the season.

From Brooklyn, Grimes went to the Giants, and McGraw sent him back to Pittsburgh. This year, after salary differences with Barney Dreyfus, Grimes was sent to the Braves. After a short time with the Braves, he was sent to the Cardinals.

Grimes has had previous world series experience. That was in 1920 when Brooklyn and Cleveland tangled. Grimes won the first game, 3 to 0. Grimes says that after that game the Cleveland team solved Catcher Otto Miller's signals and knocked his fist ball out of the lot. Cleveland beat Grimes 7 to 1 in the second game he pitched, and 3 to 0 in his third effort, which was the deciding game of the series.

SUAREZ FAVORED TO BEAT MILLER

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A ten round bout between Justo Suarez, Argentine sensation and Ray Miller, Chicago lightweight, tops the opening indoor card at Madison Square Garden tonight. Suarez, perhaps of decided advantage in the weights, rules a favorite at odds as high as 2 to 1.

STATE ROAD WORK

The highway department of 48 states improved a total of 32,622 miles of state highways in 1929, according to a report of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. During that year they expended $910,465,291 for highways.

Earnshaw's Fast Ball Appears Only A Blur To St. Louis Batsmen

Big George's Speed Makes Grove's Delivery in First Game Look Like Mere Lobs—Mack Puzzled As to Next Pitcher With Both Grove and Earnshaw Rarin' to Go—Cochrane Wants Another Crack at Grimes.

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER (Special to The Herald)

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 2.—That was the fireball of George Earnshaw which those Cardinals stood at the plate and watched the blur pass by, and heard it whistle yesterday. In the first game of the series they watched the blur thrown past them by Lefty Grove, and heard it hum. It was quite a blur and quite a hum that Lefty flung their way, but in the second game of the series, the Cardinals learned that Lefty had been only lobbing them for Earnshaw pitched a thing at them that shrieked.

George Watkins struck his bat out at one of the weird blurs in the second inning. The ball popped over the fence like lightning. It was a wonder it didn't explode.

Aside from Watkins, the Cardinals confined their activities at the plate to futile gestures. They might have been so many boys standing at grade crossings trying to hit an express train with a toothpick.

Throws Sinfully
The record book says of George Livingston Earnshaw that he "throws right". That's wrong. He throws sinfully.

As the young man from dear old Swarthmore went along, the queer object he flung became stranger and stranger. Toward the last, he began striking out the people who had been abusing him earlier in the game by "mauling" long pop flies to Catcher Cochrane.

In the last inning, he was just starting to work up steam when he whiffed George Watkins and Gus Mancuso to end the uncanny business. The baseball man of the American League says of Earnshaw that as he goes along he gets better and better. It takes eight or nine innings for him to get his joints loosened up and functioning properly.

That being the case, Mr. Mack, who controls the crucibles, that George may croak on the job in St. Louis Saturday is making life unbearable for Gabby Street.

Mr. Mack, I am told, is torn by doubt. He doesn't know whether to start Grove or Earnshaw against the Cardinals in the first game at St. Louis. It seems that Grover's performance against the Cardinals in the series opener was not up to his usual standard.

He didn't have much stuff. Just a little control, that was practically all. Mr. Mack, being a very fair man, with a finely developed sense of the eternal fitness of things, would like to show the Cardinals Grove when he really had the stuff. Grove, like Earnshaw, revels in work.

Does Earnshaw need the work more than does Grove? What is a fellow to do in a dilemma like that? Mr. Mack is due for hours of misery before they pull up the curtain in St. Louis. One feels sorry for him.

Cochrane's Troubles
Mickey Cochrane, too, is reported to be suffering keenly. He wants to bat once more against Battling Burleigh Grimes. You are probably aware of the fact that in the first game, Battling Burleigh struck out Mickey.

Mr. Cochrane is no great hand for striking out and his temper almost got the better of him. He reproached Battling Burleigh with wicked words.

Whereupon Battling Burleigh made a mistake. He held both hands to his ears, shaking them like fans and wagging them at Mickey.

As a reward for his joviality, the Mick came to bat two innings later and mauled the first ball Battling

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Celia Mitchell, 17, faces a new life when she leaves the home in Baltimore where she has lived with her seamstress mother, Margaret Rogers, to join her father, John Mitchell, and her grandmother in a stately New York dwelling.

The girl had not even known her father was living until the day he came to the Baltimore apartment. Celia had supposed Bob Rogers, her mother's second husband, to be her father. Mitchell offers the girl a life of wealth and immediately everything changes. She leaves her mother, unaware that Mrs. Rogers is seriously ill, and she leaves Barney Shields, young newspaper photographer, who swears that some day he and Celia will be married.

The girl is lonely and ill at ease in her new home. Mitchell finds her in tears and is worried. He calls on Mrs. Evelyn Parsons, a beautiful widow whose husband was Mitchell's close friend. Mrs. Parsons agrees to introduce Celia to the right set of young people. It is obvious she is interested in the girl as a means to gain Mitchell's affections.

To this end she invites Celia to spend a week-end at her Long Island home. Among the other guests is Tod Jordan, a handsome and fascinating young man who devotes himself to Celia.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Your turn next," Jordan said casually, and as the radio orchestra again began its tempestuous blue harmonies, the pair moved off in a fox trot.

"Want to dance?" Jimmie Webster asked Celia.

She didn't want to. What Celia wanted was to slip away where no one could see how her cheeks were burning and ask herself how in the world she had come so near to forgetting herself, forgetting Barney Shields, forgetting everything! She knew Jordan had been about to kiss her. She had not even tried to stop him! The swift reaction was shame and burning remorse.

Nevertheless she let Webster lead her away to the rhythm of the fox trot. Dancing with Webster was chiefly bobbing and turning and bobbing, but at least everyone was not looking at her.

Gradually Celia was able to conquer her confusion. She danced with Walter Carr and again with Webster.

Mrs. Parsons had disappeared. Kate Duncan and Courtney Brooks were sitting in the shadows at the far end of the porch. Lisi was trying to perform a sailor's hornpipe with coaching from the sidelines.

"Try this one with me?"

The orchestra had begun another waltz. Celia did not turn her head. She knew Tod Jordan had come up to her. He was looking at her. He spoke, and she had made up her mind not to dance again with Jordan.

"No, thanks," she said. "I'm just a little tired."

He stood in front of her then so she could not avoid his eyes. Perfectly straight toward his gaze. One might have thought they had just met.

"Then let's sit over here," he suggested, nodding toward a rattan porch seat in the shadows.

"In that case, go!"

The porch rail was wide enough to make a comfortable seat. Celia had seated herself and was leaning against the corner pillar. She had no idea how becoming the pose was. Jordan looked down at her for a few moments, then dropped to the rail and sat facing her. He studied her face before he spoke.

"Eve Brooks thinks I like you too well," he said in that slow, oddity stirring tone.

He was enthusiastic over this idea. There was some discussion and then the two men were off to get cars. Celia Mitchell, who had been listening in alarm, looked about for Mrs. Parsons. She was chatting with Jordan, apparently content to see her guests take entertainment into their own hands.

Celia edged away. When the opportunity came, before the cars had arrived, she touched Mrs. Parsons' arm.

"I think I'll slip upstairs," she said. "It will be all right if I don't go with the others, won't it? I'm really sleepy."

"Just as you wish, of course."

"Then I'll say good night now."

Celia disappeared. A little later from her upstairs room she heard shouts of laughter and then the rattle of the cars going down the driveway.

So this was a fashionable house party! The evening had been nothing at all as Celia had imagined it beforehand. She stood by the window a moment looking out at the bright moonlight. Then she went to the dressing table, slipped her lovely pink frock from her shoulders, and presently was ready for bed.

With her chignon negligee about her Celia perched on the foot of the bed, feet curled beneath her. She took Barney's letter from her purse and spread out the pages. Then she re-read the whole letter carefully.

"Barney!" she whispered softly when she had finished. "Oh, Barney!"

For a long time Celia sat looking at the crumpled envelope. Finally she folded the pages, tucked them away and put the letter again in her purse. After that she turned the light out and slipped into bed.

She lay with her eyes open, staring up at the black ceiling. There was so much in this new world that Celia Mitchell did not understand.

She went to sleep at last, but it was not Barney Shields the girl was thinking of as she dropped off to slumber. It was Tod Jordan and that unforgettable moment in the moonlight.

When Celia came downstairs next morning, wearing the little white tennis frock Mrs. Parsons had bought for her, there was no one else in sight.

Hilda, the maid she had seen the day before, told her that breakfast was ready. Celia went into the dining room and Hilda brought her fruit, toast and coffee.

After that Celia wandered out on the big porch. It was after nine o'clock, but she saw no one. The garden was beautiful in the sunlight. Celia followed the cobblestone path, pausing to watch the goldfish in their pool, and then strolling on among the flowers. It was an inchoate garden, perfectly suited to the rambling house and broad grounds.

The day would be warm, no doubt, but the morning breeze made it perfect. There was a path Celia had not expected the day before. Now she followed it.

She heard a shout and looked about quickly. Over the shrubbery ahead she caught sight of a flashing bit of motion.

"Tennis! Of course. These must be the tennis courts she had heard Jimmie Webster talking about last night."

Now she saw them. A man and a girl on either side of the net in frantic pursuit of the tiny, spinning ball. It was Lisi and Webster. The players were too intent on their game to note the spectator. Lisi served smashingly, and Webster's racket sent the ball spinning back into an impossible corner. Lisi returned it, over and back again. Over and back.

Celia watched, spellbound. She had never seen such skillful tennis playing. At last when the game was finished she waved and came forward.

Lisi paused a moment to call a cheer for Webster, and then the set was resumed. Celia sat on a bench at the side of the court and watched.

"Hello!"

She looked up. Tod Jordan, looking more bronzed than ever in his white clothes, dropped to the bench beside the girl.

"Good morning."

"I saw you heading this way, and so I followed," he said. "I hope you don't mind."

"Why of course not!"

"Oh? I—er, rather gathered last night that you didn't care to be friendly."

Celia continued to watch the flying ball.

"I'm sorry you thought that."

"Then it isn't true? I mean, you think you might possibly come to like me?"

"I might."

"Enough to turn around right now and smile?"

There was no use. She couldn't pretend to quarrel. Celia didn't want to quarrel with Jordan anyway. She wanted to go on talking, saying little things in a way which meant so much.

The resolves of last night were forgotten. When the tennis players were exhausted and they all walked back to the house together, Celia was addressing Jordan as "Tod."

Mrs. Parsons met them on the porch.

"Celia," she said, "I have news for you."

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"See here, Buster, if you don't behave, I'll leave you at this service station."

Buster stopped teasing for an ice cream cone and subsided on the hot cushions of the car.

"Buster, stop kicking that suitcase. You've knocked five dollars worth of leather cases over the floor. Keep quiet and settle down."

"Look at your hands, Buster! How am I ever to take you into a hotel dining-room looking like that?"

They wiped up the whole car since we left home. Grandma, have you a little comb in your bag? I never saw a boy get so mussed up."

Grandma hadn't a comb in her bag, but she had some evil-smelling stuff in a bottle that she produced and started to sniff. She said it kept her from getting road-sick. It permeated the car.

Father pulled up beside the road and lit a cigarette. Then the thought occurred to him to slip off his coat, roll up his sleeves and loosen his collar.

"There, that's better," he declared. "Elsie, you hold my hat, will you?"

Elsie took the hat and he started the car.

She took out her compact and surveyed herself in the little mirror.

Not so good! Mascara running, rouge and powder completely gone. She took out her vanity box—and spilled powder over everything. She shook it off her dress onto the floor. No one said anything.

"Tom, I'm thirsty and I think I'd like an orangeade. If we go through a town watch for a store of some kind, will you? Buster, if you don't sit still, I'll go crazy. Fold those maps up and put them back. Why do you have to be amused every minute?"

"Tom" spoke up. Grandma, "I guess I'll just have to get out till my stomach settles down. I'm getting awfully sick."

The car drew up and the family got out. Buster started after a grumpy that scrambled off a log at their approach.

"Buster, come back here. First thing you know you'll be lost."

The whole family was having a vacation but Buster. No one reproached them for their gestures at comfort. He got it all, though everything he did had a complete duplicate in his elders.

We might think of any perfect day—at home, on a trip, anywhere, and consider if we aren't in a different way doing the very things in effect that we're scolding the children for.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

TAKING WARM BATHS WILL HELP CONTROL HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

At the last annual session of the American Medical Association, the section on treatment of disease gave special attention to the treatment of high blood pressure.

The presence of elevated blood pressure causes little discomfort in the majority of people. Frequently they fail to consult a physician until the complications occur. In fact, 12 per cent of a group of 1,000 patients had high blood pressure for some time before the symptoms were sufficiently severe to cause them to consult a physician.

The person who has a regular examination made once each year is likely to determine the presence of high blood pressure long before he has any symptoms, and perhaps by a modification of his habits of life to prevent entirely the onset of any unpleasant symptoms.

It has been found that the most important factor entering into the development of high blood pressure is a constitutional predisposition to high blood pressure, which has occurred in several members of the family, including the parents and grandparents, and associated with this constitutional predisposition are habits of worry and fear. People with high blood pressure are usually overweight.

The treatment of high blood pressure must obviously be related to the habits of the individual, and to the possible effects that may be secured by the giving of certain drugs. Many drugs are known, which when injected into the human being, will lower the blood pressure. Sometimes a sudden lowering of the blood pressure is exceedingly harmful.

The first step is to control the fatigues, the irritability of the blood vessels, and the bad habits of the patient which play some part in maintaining his pressure at a high point. It is also possible for the competent physician to prescribe some drugs which are liberated very slowly into the blood stream and which lower the pressure slightly over long periods of time. Such drugs are safer ordinarily than those which produce prompt and serious lowering of the blood pressure which lasts but a very short time.

The diet for the person with high blood pressure should be a well balanced diet, proteins providing about 10 per cent of the total calories, with salt relatively low in amount. Spices are to be avoided. If the patient is overweight, he should plan to reduce his weight slowly over a long period of time, and he should drink a sufficient amount of water to provide for carrying away the body waste. The majority of people who have used tobacco over a long period of time do not need to give up tobacco on the discovery of the fact that they have high blood pressure, unless smoking can be shown to be related definitely to the increased pressure.

One of the most valuable methods of controlling high blood pressure is the taking of moderately warm baths at regular intervals. It is understood, of course, that any chronic infections in the body should be brought under control and the removal of such infections not infrequently results in prompt recovery from the condition.

THE BOOK SURVEY

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer

If the recent turmoil in India has left you a bit puzzled about the rights and wrongs and ins and outs and issues and personalities of the situation—and it hasn't, you're a wonder—"Reconstructing India," by Edward Thompson, is a book that will do you a lot of good.

This book gives a clear, easily-followed account of the growth and development of the Nationalist movement in India. It traces the early careers of such men as Gandhi, and shows the various things the British government has done to meet the growing demand for independence. Then, in its second half, it outlines the problems that must be solved in any settlement of India's difficulties, and shows how appallingly complex they are, how immediately difficult is the puzzle that faces the English in India.

The book seems to me to be written with admirable impartiality. If the author seems at times to have scant patience with the Nationalist leaders, and to criticize Gandhi rather severely, he is no less severe on the English policy that has been followed. He does not, however, indulge in a nation-wide affair. In all, I think you'll find this book valuable and illuminating. It is offered by the Dial Press, at $4 a copy.

A Brief List of Some Interesting Books

Among other books on the fall list that are worth your while are the following:

"Taft and Roosevelt: the Intimate Letters of Archie Butt," issued by Doubleday, Doran & Co., in two volumes at $7.50. In these two volumes the late Major Butt, military aide to Presidents Taft and Roosevelt, presents an intensely human, revealing portrait of Taft, throws much light on the famous Taft-Roosevelt break and traces the history of a highly unlucky administration.

"Investigation of the Death," by Edmund Pearson, published by Scribner at $2. This collection of crime retells here a collection of tales of murder, some of them very mysterious and all of them interesting. Good entertainment, slyly presented.

"Down the Red Lane," by Henry Nadel, published by Bobbs-Merrill at $2.50. A sensitive and fabled Frenchman describes his career as an infantryman in the World War, in a book that gives an unforgettable picture without falling into the current stereotypes.

"The John Riddell Murder Case," by John Riddell, published by Scribner at $2. John Riddell, otherwise Corey Ford, writes a hilarious take-off on the famous case, and writes in a deal of biting satire about some of our leading literary dignitaries. He makes his burlesque the better by lifting some of Vance's erudite paragraphs word for word.

"Sam Houston, Patriot," by Flora Warren Centeno, issued by The Century Co. at $2. A well-written boys' life of the great Texan, packed with interest—and capable of appealing to grown-ups, as well.

An English Gentleman and the World War

"The Diary of an Infantry Officer," by Siegfried Sassoon, presents a study in the life of a soldier in the First World War, not as a study in the life of a soldier, but as a study in the life of a man. It is a study in the life of a man, and a study in the life of a man, and a study in the life of a man.

Defending the Infamous Russian Secret Police

Interesting because it presents such a perfect picture of the typical Russian mind is "The Ochrana," by H. T. Vassiliev in collaboration with Rene Fulop-Miller. Vassiliev was the last chief of police under the czar, and the Ochrana was the infamous Russian secret service, the very incarnation of the cruelty, injustice and oppression of czarist Russia; and in this book Vassiliev steps in to explain and defend the Ochrana with a blind, almost pathetic fidelity.

The Ochrana, he insists, was all sweetness and light. The czarist government was practically without a law, and all of its opponents were low, unprincipled scoundrels. Some unfathomable perversity in human nature caused czarism to fall, which was a great tragedy. Even Rasputin gets a good coat of whitewash.

"The Ochrana," then, is interesting not alone as a description of the Russian secret police, but as a specimen of a devoted defense of the indefensible. Lippincott is publishing it, and the price is $4.

Nason at His Best in A Tale of a Cavalryman

Hard-boiled and extremely funny is "A Cavalryman," by Leonard H. Nason. Those who read "Chevrons" will not need to be told that Mr. Nason writes superlatively well about soldiers and fighting.

The hero of this tale is a regular cavalryman, whose days and nights are made miserable by the vicious horse he has to take care of. When the war comes and goes to France he refuses—only to find the horse following him on the next boat, and making trouble for him straight to the armistice.

Mr. Nason seems to have been

CHAPTER XIX

Jordan drew the girl quickly toward him. In that swift, instant Celia was conscious only of the hypnotic gaze that held her. She had no thought of resisting as Jordan's arm pressed closer. He bent his head—

At that very moment, as though timed by a stage director, the French windows were thrown back and a figure appeared, silhouetted in a flood of light. Eve Brooks' throaty laughter pealed out on the night.

"Look at what I've found!" she cried. "Romeo—and if it isn't little Juliet out here rehearsing the balcony scene! Come on, everybody, this is a better place to dance than inside."

The others crowded after Eve. Celia had drawn away from Jordan in embarrassment. The young man, entirely undisturbed, remained where he was coolly smiling. Eve Brooks approached him, her eyes mocking.

Thick, wavy hair!

You, too, can have long, soft, abundant hair. It's simply a matter of using this easy method; approved by hair-specialists; endorsed by stars of stage and screen; used by millions who haven't time for the more laborious treatments.

Tonight when you arrange your hair, just put a little Danderine on your brush. Then as you draw the bristles through your hair, see how the scalp is toned and soothed. See how the hair becomes softer, easier to manage; how its natural color is brought out; how it takes on new brilliance and lustre!

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; helps stop falling hair; keeps hair and scalp healthy; encourages the growth of long, silky, abundant hair. "Five million bottles used a year. That proves Danderine's effectiveness!"—Adv.

One-Piece Model That Achieves

French Chic in Higher Belted Waistline

By ANNETTE

Isn't it the smartest ever? It's a one-piece model that wears a belt to copy the older sister mode. However, it makes a smart finish and is a simple corset that hangs straight from the shoulders, why just omit the belt—and you have it.

The neckline is very becoming and practical in collarless type. An applied band makes a smart finish and gives the effect of a yoke. It extends down the front to just below the waistline to top the inverted plait of the skirt.

As for the sleeves, they may be made long or the brief cap as illustrated in the back view.

Tubular fabrics are best suited for romping youngsters.

Linen, cotton broadcloth prints, Peter Pan prints, pique, chambray, gingham and printed batiste will make up splendidly.

Style No. 906 is designed in sizes 2 4 and 6 years.

Size 4 years requires 1 1/2 yards 32-inch with 1/2 yard 32-inch contrasting.

A THOUGHT

For the love of money is the root of all evil.—Timothy 6:10.

The covetous man heaps up riches, not to enjoy them, but to have them.—Solomon.

HAVE YOU HEARD?--

If your cupboard shelves are low and you have a longing for a row of crystal jars filled with amber and ruby purple jellies and jams, try the new flat jars.

Incidentally, they are so round and attractive that you may use them on the table instead of placing their contents in a special jelly dish.

Ordinarily, folks would turn up their noses at such a gathering, but in France, we read, the annual Garlic Fair this year was more widely attended than ever.

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts, food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad, tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

Candy Cascaer's clears up a bilious, gassy, headachy condition every time. Puts appetite on edge; helps digestion. Activates bowels. Cascaer's are made from cascaer, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please, or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascaer's for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work.

FOR ANY CHILD

CHILDREN are happy and carefree by nature, so when they cry for no apparent reason any careful mother worries. No one can always guess just what is wrong but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as baby has a fretful spell, is feverish and cross and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes it's constipation. Just keep Castoria handy and give freely for any of the above conditions; relief will follow promptly.

All through babyhood Castoria is a mother's standby, and wise mothers do not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Just increase the dose of Castoria and keep the youngster's stomach sweet and the bowels in good order.

To be sure of getting genuine Fletcher's Castoria you should look for this signature.

ROCKVILLE

Representative Being Considered
John B. Thomas, chairman of the Republican town committee, announced today that he is not a candidate for representative. It was at first believed that Mr. Thomas, who is a hard party worker, would accept the nomination, but in view of the fact that he is chairman of the town committee and that other candidates could fill this important office, he will not enter the contest. It was announced that Mrs. Allen, wife of Col. Charles H. Allen, would accept the nomination from the Republican party if the party desired another woman to serve from this town.

Three others who have been named are George Arnold, Jr., Sherwood Cummings and Henry H. Willet. Mrs. Frances T. Maxwell will not seek reelection.

Stafford Trip
Another trip has been added to the Rockville-Stafford Springs bus line, leaving here at 2:15 each day, arriving at Stafford Springs at 2:55 p. m. This gives only five minutes layover at Stafford, as the return trip starts at 3 p. m., arriving in Rockville at 3:40. There are no busses to Rockville later in the day and none to Stafford earlier in the day.

Leads Tourney
In the inter-church Tennis Tournament Union Church leads with a score of forty-three, having won all matches to date. Methodist church and Trinity Lutheran are tied for second place with thirty-five points each.

Eighty Insured
Three Rockville men carry high life insurance according to The Spectator, an insurance trade publication, which issues a hundred page supplement, which includes 16,000 persons in the United States who are owners of $50,000 or more life insurance. The local men are Col. Francis Maxwell, $450,000; William Maxwell, $373,000; George E. Sykes, $100,000.

Funeral of Edward Heim
The funeral of Edward A. Heim was largely attended from St. Bernard's church on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Mr. Heim died of burns received during a fire at his farm on Sunday evening. At the offertory Mrs. Mae Pfunder sang "Ave Maria" and at the close of the service, "Beautiful Land on High". Rev. Francis Minchey officiated at the service. The bearers were Julius Beer, William Lally, Edward Keller, Edward Davis Herbert Krause and Julius Weiman.

At D.A.R. Meeting
The Sabra Trumbull Chapter D.A.R. was represented at the 37th state meeting of the Connecticut Society at the Second Congregational church at New London on Wednesday. Those attending were Mrs. Arthur R. Newell, Mrs. Oscar C. Peterson, Miss Sadie Millard, Mrs. John Cannon, Mrs. Lester Martin and Miss Elsie Cummings.

Following is the report of the Rockville City hospital for the month of September: number of patients in hospital September 1, 10; number admitted during month, 37; out patients, 16; total treated, 63; discharged, 47; deaths, 1; X-rays, 18; accidents, 17; births, 8; operations, 18; largest number treated, 21; smallest number treated, 12; daily average, patients, 17.

Birthday Party
Mrs. M. J. Webster of Grove street entertained recently in honor of the birthday of her daughter, Shirley, who was eight years old. A supper was served, and games played. Shirley received many gifts.

Speaker Sunday
Donald Gaylord of the Tolland County Farm Bureau will be the speaker at the meeting of the Men's Corner, to be held at the M. E. church on Sunday. Mr. Gaylord will have as his subject, 4-H Club work. It is expected many of the members will attend the first meeting of the season. Ernest Backofen, president, will preside.

Meeting Monday
The Red Men's Social Club of Tankersoon Tribe will meet in Red Men's hall on Monday evening. Every member is urged to be present, as important business will be transacted.

Legion District Meeting
The next district meeting of the American Legion and its auxiliary will be held in Ellington Town Hall, Ellington on Sunday afternoon, October 12. At this time election of the district officers will be held. The country to be used for the subject of the program is Guatemala. Ellington Auxiliary is planning a most interesting time for all who attend.

Elected Delegates
The Rockville Entom Club elected delegates to the Supreme Convention of the organization at its meeting held at the Elks Home on Wednesday afternoon. The delegates are the president, Mrs. Thomas Garvan of this city, and Mrs. Thomas Danaher of Manchester. Cards were played and prizes went to Miss Irene Eokhardt and Mrs. L. Conrick. There will be no meeting of social next week.

A public card party will be held on Wednesday, October 15, with Mrs. William Reeves as chairman. Staff Coming Here
Governor Trumbull's staff will report in Rockville on Tuesday, October 14 at 12:15 at the home of Col. Charles H. Allen. The adjutant general will be in charge. The staff will be in attendance on the Governor at the Fair in Stafford Springs next day.

Notes
Miss Viola Beington, a member of St. John's church tennis team, strained a tendon Tuesday while playing tennis, and is out of the game for the season.

HUSTON IN "BAD MAN"

HEADS STATE'S BILL

Walter Huston in "The Bad Man," and Barbara Kent and Arthur Hoyt in "Dumbbells in Ermine" are the feature attractions on the new program at the State today and Saturday. Blending comedy and drama, "The Bad Man" is a story of the incidents in the life of a desert Robin Hood that takes place on a ranch near the Mexican border. He is a legendary happy-go-lucky hero who is a ruthless killer and child at the same time. He is the type that gives his life with a smile in the name of friendship. Walter Huston has been provided with the best role of his career as the bad man. He is ably supported by a cast headed by Dorothy Revier in the leading feminine role.

"Dumbbells in Ermine" is a hard hitting, refreshing uproarious human comedy, in which the so-called dumbbells prove themselves anything but dumb belles. Barbara Kent is excellent in a leading female role and Arthur Hoyt as the model of virtue until a nifty blonde gets him in her clutches, has never been funnier on stage or screen.

Friday night brings another of the popular series of Cabaret Nights. Reading the bill tonight, is Mabel Sidney, sister of George Sidney of movie fame, who proves herself just as good a comedienne as her more famous brother is a comedian. The Jarvis Duo will be seen in a song and dance routine. Billy Ziegler, famed for marvelous trick juggling will put on a turn of ten minutes filled with real entertainment. And the ever popular Harry Burt will once more act as master of ceremonies and his task will be to keep the evening's activities moving fast and furious.

OPEN COMMUNITY CLUB'S SEASON ON OCTOBER 20

Miss Christine Mason to Arrive at White House Then—Conducts Many Activities.

Miss Christine Mason, recreational director of the Manchester Community Club for the past three years will arrive October 20 to open the season's activities at the White House. Miss Mason will be assisted in conducting the proposed extensive program of social activities, by W. Harold Petherbridge, Y. M. C. A. secretary, engaged by the directors to lay the ground work for the new north end Y. M. C. A. organization. Both Miss Mason and Mr. Petherbridge will give their full time to the work, extending and continuing the fine work that the former has done in past seasons. Miss Mason comes from the Old Scowling Alley Tea House at Princeton, Mass., where she has spent her past few summers as proprietor.

Many are the activities that have been conducted in the White House rooms during the past three years under Miss Mason's supervision. Over 2,500 people have participated in Community Club activities, taking part in whist, setback, dinners and socials throughout the winter season. Games for girls, and dancing classes for boys and girls were an especial feature.

Miss Mason has officiated at the Community Club during the meetings of eight club organization meetings during the year and has arranged the schedule of meetings of six local organizations which have used the White House for their assembling point.

The annual lawn fête, one of the outstanding social events of Manchester, and which the Community Club has successfully conducted for the past several years, is due in a large measure to Miss Mason's labor during the winter season in welding community interest through her service as Community Club director.

PRIEST'S FUNERAL

Danbury, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The funeral of the Rev. Mr. J. O'Connor, P. R. of St. Peter's church, was held at the church today at 10 o'clock with more than 100 priests, city and town officials, representatives of business associations, banks and school officials in attendance. The schools of the city were closed for the day and curtains in business houses and mercantile establishments were drawn during the funeral.

The Boy Scout Motto, to do a good turn, is not such a bad slogan for the motorist to keep in mind rounding the corners.

If you have constipation, read this letter from Mr. John J. Mulligan, 300 So. Cicero Avenue, Chicago, Ill.:
"I tried numerous remedies in vain. Finally in desperation, I turned to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. The results were remarkable—in fact the next day long-hoped-for relief became a happy reality."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is now improved in texture and taste. As good to eat as it is healthful. Two tablespoons daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In stubborn cases, use ALL-BRAN with each meal. ALL-BRAN also supplies needed iron to the system.

Delicious with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

LEGION ALL SET FOR BOSTON TRIP

Final Notice From County Headquarters Tells of Convention Plans.

Final preparations for the big American Legion parade to be held in Boston next Tuesday are being made by every Legion Post in Connecticut. Returns to date from county and State departments of the American Legion indicate a record gathering of Nutmeg Legionnaires in Boston's long planned event. Official notices sent out from County headquarters of the Legion list several pertinent reminders for all posts participating in the "On to Boston" gathering of country-wide veterans.

Dress
Prominent among these reminders is the uniform of the parade. The dress will be the American Legion Uniforms, U. S. Army, Navy or Marine Corps uniform or white trousers, white shirt, blue bow tie and sash or civilian clothes. For those wearing the White Uniform dress, the sash should be scarlet, satin, two yards long and six inches wide.

All Legionnaires of the First District on arriving in Boston will assemble at Marlborough street, the sight resting on Herford street at 10:00 a. m. Tuesday, October 7. When all Connecticut troops reach this point, the Connecticut Department will move into the parade column.

Post Colors
Every post in the First District is urged to bring National and Post colors for the parade. The National colors will be massed at the head of the Department of Connecticut delegation and post colors will be carried at the head of each post detachment.

All posts will designate color bearers, who should wear American Legion or Military uniform where practicable. Every Connecticut Legion post having its colors in the Boston parade will receive a metal band, suitably marked, to place on the flag staff. All orders are official and are signed by Elmer N. Dickinson, District Commander by Marjory Cornack, Adjutant.

The majority of Manchester Legionnaires will leave here on the 2:56 p. m. train Monday afternoon in special Pullmans. Those going on this train will not require reservations in Boston Monday night since they will sleep on the train. They will leave Boston Tuesday night at 11. Several local Legionnaires plan to go to Boston by automobile.

A contract has been signed by the Rio Grande Oil Co., and the Barnsdall Corp., for delivery to Southern Counties Gas Co., of a minimum of approximately 38,402,000 cubic feet of dry natural gas over a 10-year period.

HEBRON

Mrs. Clarkson F. Bailey of Amston has returned from a visit of a week or more at the home of her aunt, Mrs. George Baldwin in Nyack-on-the-Hudson, N. Y.

Fred Rowley and John Johnston of Amston have received the award offered for the discovery of the missing Fairchild monoplane in which Daniel Marza and William Kirkpatrick met their death near North Pond, or Amston Lake, as it is sometimes called, last January. Rowley and Johnston were together searching for the plane when they found it after having nearly abandoned the search. They received $750.00 each in cash and 50 shares each of the company's aviation stock. Young Johnston, who is the son of John Johnston of Amston, is only 16 years of age. Mr. Rowley, who lives with his family in game keeper for the Amston game club.

Harold Bailey's new house near the Colchester line in Hebron, is finished and ready for occupancy. It is expected that Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will move into it in the near future. A house warming has already been held there by the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Ams, of New York and Amston, has returned to her home in Bridgeport, after having spent the summer with her children and maid at the newly erected Ams country home. The house, a handsome mansion located on a hill overlooking Amston village, was completed shortly before the death of both Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ams, who had planned to spend their summers there. Mr. and Mrs. Max Ams and family plan to visit the place for the Thanksgiving holidays.

At a meeting of the local boy scouts at St. Peter's Parish Hall Tuesday evening it was voted that the scouts shall attend the Maryland-Yale football game to be played at the Yale Bowl, New Haven, next Saturday. Three automobiles will go down driven by the scout masters, Allan L. Carr, the Rev. John W. Deeter, and Carroll W. Hutchinson of Gilead, each taking several of the scouts. They will leave Hebron Green at about 11, or 11:30 a. m. Saturday.

Mrs. Anne C. Gilbert, regent of Colonel Henry Champion Chapter, D. A. R., her sisters, the Misses Pendleton and Mrs. Malcolm Leal and Mrs. Frederick Book of Colchester attended the 37th state meeting of the Daughters of the American Republic held at the Second Congregational Church, New London, on Wednesday, spending the day and dining at the Mohican.

The first of the season was felt here on the morning of October 1. Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kibbee had as Sunday guests at their home Mr. and Mrs. Charles Essex and daughter, Mrs. John Merrill of Willington Hill, Mrs. Carrie Burnham of Hebron center, John McGee, superintendent of the County Home at Haddam, Mrs. McGee and their daughter Miss Dorothy McGee, and Miss Lois Arnold, all of Haddam.

Miss Victoria Hilditch had as guests for a day or two, her sisters, Mrs. Robert E. Stack and Mrs. Anna Hepp, both of Bay Ridge, N. Y. They returned home Thursday forenoon.

Miss Ruth Raymond, daughter of

WAPPING

Sixteen members of Wapping Grange motored to Goodwill Grange of Glastonbury and attended the meeting of East Central Pomona Grange, No. 3, last Wednesday evening. The fifth degree was conferred on a class of candidates and a program was enjoyed by all present.

A fine dinner at 6:30 p. m. was served by Goodwill Grange. Mrs. Mary Foster of Westfield, N. J., is visiting at the home of her son, Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Foster and family. She has been spending the summer at her cottage at the Willimantic Camp Ground.

The Sunday school board of the Federated church will meet this evening promptly at 7:30 o'clock at the vestry of the church. Mrs. Watson Woodruff of Manchester Center church will speak to the officers and teachers.

Bernice Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown who was so badly injured in the automobile accident recently near Station 39, in which her girl companion, Lillian Gow of Willimantic was killed, is reported to be resting more comfortably in the Hartford hospital, but is still on the danger list.

The South Windsor Garden club met at the home of Mrs. Richard Jones Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Parker of Puller's Flower Shop, gave a talk on "Flower Arrangements." Members took bouquets of flowers for criticisms and instructions.

Saturday and Sunday, October 4 and 5 will be observed in Wapping as "Old Home" Days. Beginning at 2 o'clock, Saturday afternoon the public and teachers of the "North School" will hold its eighth annual school reunion at the Parish house. A program has been arranged. Clarence P. Quimby of the South Manchester High school will be the speaker. A basket lunch follows the program. At 6 o'clock the Old Home week-end celebration of the Federated church will be opened with a supper in Wapping hall, served by the Federated Workers.

A program of music and speakers will follow at 8 p'clock. Among the former pastors of the Wapping churches, who are expected to be present are Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Ph. D. of New York; Rev. Hamilton of Stamford; Rev. Harry S. Martin of South Windsor, and Rev. Truman H. Woodward of East Hartford and Rev. Tourtelotte of East Hartford.

The officers and program committee of the Wednesday Afternoon club at the home of Mrs. Peter E. Bossen, Wednesday evening of last week and planned the program for the coming year. The first meeting of the club will be held with Mrs. Frances Bossen, November 5th. Mrs. Frank Bidwell and Mrs. Marshall Bidwell will have charge of the program.

ORGANIZE NEW SYSTEM FOR YOUNG DELINQUENTS

Hartford, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A new system of reporting information on juvenile delinquents has been put into effect by all the juvenile courts of the state, it was announced today by K. L. Messenger, chief juvenile court probation officer and commissioner of the State Bureau of Child Welfare.

Under the old system, he believes, will furnish a basis for study of the age factor, reasons for delinquency and disposition of cases by children's courts.

Information valuable to the state in coping with the problem of delinquent children is expected to be gained.

COMMUNISTS A FACTOR IN PRESENT DEPRESSION

Open Shop Conference Speaker Here Says 60,000 of Them Are Trying to Wreck Industry—150 Attend Manufacturers Session in Cheney Hall.

The Open Shop Conference of Connecticut concluded its 1936 annual meeting, held in Manchester at the invitation of Cheney Brothers, with a wind-up banquet in Cheney Hall last night at which five after dinner speakers addressed the gathering of over 150 members. The speakers were: Homer D. Sayre, commissioner of the National Metal Trades Association of Chicago, Ill.; E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut; A. S. Boynton, director of Division of Vocational Guidance of State Board of Education; E. M. Walsh of the E. M. Walsh Company of New Haven, who was elected chairman for the coming year; and Howell Cheney, of Cheney Brothers.

Extensive Program
The banquet terminated an extensive program which began at noon with lunch at the Country Club followed by a golf tournament between conference members. For those not sportingly inclined a sight seeing tour of Manchester was arranged by the Chamber of Commerce, and an inspection trip through the Cheney plant was also taken. At 5 o'clock members gathered at Cheney Hall to inspect a Trade School exhibit, consisting of work of all 11 schools in the state. This was followed by a Style Show, presented by Cheney Brothers, in which ten young women modeled in the latest of fall fashions designed of Cheney silks.

Officers
The following state was nominated and elected: Mr. Walsh, chairman; A. D. Coffin, of C. H. Dexter and Sons Company, of Windsor Locks and Oakland, vice-chairman; T. J. Kelley, secretary, Manufacturers Association of Hartford, honorary vice-chairman; W. J. Wilcox, Meriden, secretary; H. D. Trankin, of the Inmanick Company, Meriden, treasurer; members of council for term expiring 1937, Phelps Ingersoll, of the G. M. Wilcox, Crittenden Company, Middletown; R. G. Bent, of the R. G. Bent Company, Hartford; C. H. Granger, of the Watson Clothing Company, Waterbury; F. W. Gilbert, of the A. C. Gilbert Company, New Haven; Howell Cheney, Cheney Brothers; F. B. Rickleton, Ponemah Mills, Taftville; member of council for term expiring 1937, to fill vacancy, C. H. Baldwin, of the Cabineck Lock Company, New Britain; honorary member, C. E. Whitney, the Whitney Manufacturing Company of Hartford.

The guest speaker, Homer D. Sayre of Chicago, commissioner of the Metal Trades Association, brought a message of the actual conditions existing today in Industrial America. In the course of his address, Mr. Sayre reviewed the structure and the aims of the Open Shop membership and in a clear, concise manner pointed out the pitfalls confronting the organization and the means to be taken to avoid them.

Industrial History
The speaker described the industrial advancement of the United States from Colonial times to the present highly organized stage. Connecticut, always to the forefront in industry and manufacture was placed 12th in the lists of states in manufacturing.

From a complete fund of industrial knowledge, Mr. Sayre described the efforts of the small band of Communists, numbering 60,000 in the United States today who are bending all their efforts to wreck the industry of the country by calling out all workers on strike. This condition was one of deepest concern, he said, because of the present depression and the fact that 5,000 of the 60,000 Communists are able leaders.

"No permanent solution of the industrial problems are attainable," declared the mid-west official, "industry must prepare to handle them as they appear."

Trades Exhibit
The Connecticut Trade Schools furnished an excellent exhibit of craftsmanship in Cheney Hall. Eleven schools in as many Connecticut industrial cities sent specimens of the work done by regular part-time students, consisting of printing, silversmithing, machine work, carpentry and joinery, silk and narrow fabric textile, electrical, drafting, mathematics, architecture, painting and decorating, plumbing, millinery and pyrotechnic art-time students of the State Trade Schools.

tical exhibit together from all parts of the state.

The exhibit was placed on tables around the hall and in the detail of arrangement and the wide diversity of subjects, made one of the finest of such demonstrations ever viewed in Manchester. Cards drawn by Trade School boys showed the location of these schools to be at essential and strategic points in the state where the need of industrial training for boys and girls is pertinent to Connecticut manufacturing.

Tells of Work
In his address to the Open Shop Conference, at the annual dinner, Mr. Boynton told the members the object of the State Trade School training and explained just what it meant to the Connecticut manufacturing in the years to come.

The speaker outlined the structure of the Trade Schools, the trades taught and urged his listeners to exercise continued interest in the development of the youth attending these schools, especially those taking advantage of part-time work. Mr. Boynton told of numerous plans now under consideration by his department tending to ameliorate the uncertain conditions of boys now attending High school who are ill-fitted to continue along academic lines.

Hubbard's Talk
Mr. Hubbard said: "The roof to which we look for shelter tonight, and the walls which echo back my words, are in themselves mute testimony to that cooperative spirit on which Connecticut industry prides itself. In a sense quite apart from the drawing power of the cause which brings us together tonight, our presence here is a significant commentary on that spirit, for here we sit within the confines of a nationally known industrial plant which, for the second time in as many years, has thrown open its gates to the friendly eyes of visitors. Two generations ago such a departure would have been inconceivable. A manufacturer's processes then were on his own compound, and he jealously guarded them from the eyes of friends and foe alike. His problems too whether they were encountered in employment relations, in legislation, in sales, or in finance, were his own to wrestle with according to his lights. He did not know the meaning of concerted action with his fellows on matters affecting their common interest. One might go farther and say that he hardly recognized any common interest with them. If such a thing as this were needed, it can be found in the headway made by radical legislation in the early years of the present century.

"Happily, the dawn of the twentieth century ushered in a new outlook. From an absolute indifference to, or utter disregard of, the existence of a common peril, there emerged a realization that hostile forces threatened industry and commerce, and that these hostile forces were more than match for individual combat. With the apathy toward interdependence thus overcome, the association of business men in defensive groups was a logical outcome.

Organization Achievements
"The organization, whose achievements we are gathered around the festive board to rejoice in tonight, is a lineal descendant of the idea that was born of the realization. Brave hearts nurtured it in its childhood, and in its youth wise counsel steered it along the paths of service to industry and society. When the specter of sabotage, racketeering and other forms of minority imposition came to the light of day, our industrial forebears did not disregard the fact that unrestrained power does not always stop at the portals of justice. Let other regions blind themselves," they reasoned; "Connecticut industry will raise a stout sea-wall that will resist the engulfing waves."

"That these brave men builded better than they knew, is evidenced, as I look around me tonight, by the support which their cause has evoked. That they sensed the intimate relation between the hampering influence of domination by organized labor minorities and the supply of trained craftsmen, is evidenced by the important role occupied in your program by efforts looking to an adequate supply of craftsmen equipped with marketable skill.

"Gentlemen, you are to be congratulated upon the standard bearers around whose banner you rally. You are to be congratulated upon your loyalty to those standard bearers and to the cause which they so bravely and steadfastly carry forward.

Mind Own Business
"From quite another angle, the work of the Conference has made its own appeal to the association which I have the honor to represent tonight in my person. With the multiplicity of organizations which characterizes the business picture of these days, it is refreshing to find a few going about their respective jobs without bickering and without overlapping, with a clear-cut line of demarcation in their major activities, and with a kindly spirit of co-operation in such fields as each can aid the other. The Conference staff men have shown an admirable disposition to devote their attention to fields which are strictly theirs, yet with a whole-hearted willingness to lend their aid to the Manufacturers Association in domains where there is the possibility of joint service. Reciprocally, the Manufacturers Association staff have endeavored to defer to the Conference on matters peculiarly theirs, while ever ready to pass along information which the Conference office might find of value, and ready, too, to lend positive aid when circumstances prompted it. No prophetic vision is required to forecast monumental achievements if this spirit continues; and no great credulity is needed to predict that this spirit will abide with the two organizations set up as they are.

"Almost entirely unnoticed, there has been going on in Connecticut during the last year, a living testimony to the economic soundness and social justice of the principle for which this organization stands. One of the major tenets of organized labor is that the employer cannot be trusted to dispense justice in his employment relations unless threatened by the club of militant labor unionism. If that were true, we should have expected the utmost callousness as regards employment and wages during this present depression. If employers were not imbued with a social sense, certainly the economic factors would have justified drastic action. Well, what are the facts? We find the most widespread effort to spread employment over the largest possible personnel, and often at the expense of dividends and at the risk of accumulating an inventory at falling prices. We find mention of wage cuts so infrequently as to be negligible, and all this without any compulsion on the part of industrial management and even without any systematic or organized movement, except in the form of recommendations by industrial associations. The non-unionist industrialist who is tempted to swallow the claims of collective bargaining, should ponder this phenomenon. The industrial worker, who is asked to fatten the purse of the business agent, should give it thought.

Work Together
"Tonight marks a new era in co-operative effort in Connecticut industry. For the first time, these two organizations—the Open Shop Conference and the Association, which I had the honor to head for so many years, are rounding out a year of achievement in a most intimate working relationship, as two arms of a large and powerful cooperative body. Functioning thus, that body is our state's widest influence for industrial peace, progress and protection. I know I but echo the sentiment of manufacturers and all of you, when I express the earnest hope that the spirit which achieved this consummation, the spirit which pervades this gathering, will endure for the years to come.

"You loyal supporters have the answer to your keeping. You have proved your metal in combat. You doubtless often breathe a prayer of thanks that your lines are cast in pleasant places when you read of such extortions as the demand of chairman in Hartford for pay whether they work or not—and that at a time when most citizens are thankful enough to obtain employment at all. Paradoxical as it may seem, an undertone of sadness can be heard, because although we have proof that industrial brigandage holds no terror for us, we have not yet demonstrated that we can resist the deadening anaesthesia of industrial peace. To be lulled into a sense of security, and to abandon the garrison because danger is below the horizon, is a fundamental tactical error. Your heritage is noble. It was purchased by the sweat from the brow of your brave forebears. Prey you, resist the call that beckons you to forget the perils that are passed."

Other Speakers
Before introducing the speakers C. H. Granger, chairman of the banquet, pointed out the dangers that would arise if organized labor gained the upper hand in Connecticut, by citing a list of outrages that have taken place in Chicago, created by unions. The incoming chairman, Mr. Walsh, thanked the members for the honor and asked continued co-operation throughout the year. Howell Cheney spoke briefly stressing the Open Shop motto of service in education.

At Ebenezer's orchestra provided music and singing during the banquet and the G. C. Glee Club, under the direction of Helge E. Pearson sang two groups of three numbers, which were warmly applauded. The banquet was by Osano.

NAVY FLIER KILLED
Norfolk, Va., Oct. 3 — (AP) — Plunging into Chesapeake Bay in a bombing test a naval plane carried to his death Lieut. William A. Watson, 28, yesterday while his companion, chief aviation pilot Martin J. Simpson, saved himself by a leap in a chute. The plane, a land observation ship was traveling down the bay at a terrific pace when it collapsed. Simpson landed in the water and was forced to swim for more than an hour before he was picked up by a seaplane.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The Biggest Screen Triumph of the Fall Will be Taking Them Down Without Tearing Them to Pieces.

Wedding Guest—This is your fourth daughter to get married isn't it?

MacTight—Ay, and our confetti's gettin' awful gritty.

Nephew—Uncle, when are you going to play football again?

Rich Uncle—I don't play football. What makes you ask me that question?

Nephew—Well, father says when you kick off we are going to get a motor car and a house.

David said in his haste all men are hars, but it would have been equally true if he had taken his time in saying it.

Mabel—Could you suggest something suitable for a girl friend's birthday?

Clerk—How about these book ends?

Mabel—Just the thing! She always reads the ends before she does the beginnings.

Many a man cannot say how he likes his wife's new dress until he knows the price.

was going to read some other paper the next time he went to the library.

It may be unpleasant to play poker with a bad loser, but it's a lot better than playing with any kind of a winner.

Smith—Since the last election is Henry just as staunch a democrat as ever?

Jones—Sure; everytime his wife buys animal crackers for the kids he makes her take all the elephants out and throw them away.

He—Were you ever vaccinated?

Her—Why, yes.

He—I don't see the scar.

Her—You're not going to, either.

Why didn't you walk home from that Auto ride, last night, daughter?

Daughter—We went too far, mama.

The bootlegger has many temptations but few trials.

Teacher—Who can tell why we should always be neat and clean?

Cathleen—in case of accident, teacher.

A beautiful young lady and her bashful suitor were alone in the parlor. After several minutes of silence she finally said:

She—What are you thinking about, John?

He—The s-s-same thing you are.

She—Oh, you bad boy. I've a good notion to slap you.

A man has to be very good to keep out of jail—or very rich.

Mother—After all, the boy is only sowing his wild oats.

Father—I wouldn't mind, if he didn't mix in so much rye.

A merchant's biggest boasts are the knocks of a competitor.

She—I guess you played around with all the French girls while you were in Paris.

He—No, not all of them. I was only there for two weeks.

Running from creditors is a very unmanly way to take exercise.

LAVERY RENOMINATED

Westport, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Senator Albert E. Lavery, of Fairfield, has been renominated as the Republican Senatorial candidate for the 25th District.

In his acceptance speech he declared himself in favor of a referendum in every state on the prohibition question.
