

BAD TOMATOES FATAL TO BOY, OTHER IS DYING

Buckland Youngster Dies After Eating Green Prod- uce That Had Been Frozen; Are New Residents Here.

One Manchester child is dead and another may be dying as the result of eating frozen green tomatoes picked in a neighbor's garden. The victims, Charles, 5, and his brother Gordon, two years younger, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Henderling of 52 Adams street in Buckland, were removed to the Memorial hospital Saturday afternoon. Charles died shortly after midnight last night and Gordon's condition is very critical.

Here Two Months
The story surrounding the misfortune which has befallen the Henderling family is pathetic. They came to Manchester two months ago from East Hartford. The husband has had no steady employment for half a year, the family's sole support being derived from what little money they have been able to save together with what the man earns on the comparatively few odd jobs he is able to obtain.

Three Children
There are three children in the family, the youngest being a nursing baby eight months old. The case first came to the attention of town authorities Friday afternoon when a neighbor called the Board of Health notifying this organization that there were two very sick children in the house. The neighbor feared it was another outbreak of infantile paralysis.

Miss Reynolds Investigates
Miss Jessie M. Reynolds, social service agent, was assigned to investigate conditions. She found both of the eldest children suffering from a severe diarrhetic condition and a physician was called. A child welfare nurse was sent to the home to personally supervise the caring for the children. The next morning when the doctor called, he found no improvement and it was decided to take the boys to the hospital where they could receive every possible medical aid.

Autopsy Case
It was learned from the mother of the children that, unknown to her, they had wandered to a nearby garden where they had eaten green tomatoes that were frozen. The boys were acutely ill when admitted to the hospital and unable to take any nourishment. Liquid foods were fed. Both boys lost weight very fast. They were placed on pediatric service under personal supervision of Dr. Howard Boyd, who heads that department at the hospital.

Dies at Midnight
Yesterday Charles developed symptoms of meningitis that was not spinal, and his case gradually grew worse. Although everything possible from a medical standpoint was done, Charles died at eight minutes past twelve last night. An autopsy was performed this morning under the direction of Dr. Ralph E. Kendall of Hartford, who is the Memorial hospital pathologist. This revealed an ulcerated condition of the child's large bowel. Specimens were taken for analysis.

Much Intestinal Illness
A Manchester physician called on the case said that there is considerable illness in town at present caused by gastro-intestinal conditions associated with diarrhea. The condition of Gordon Henderling remained critical late this afternoon. Meanwhile no funeral arrangements have been made in connection with the death of Charles. A Hartford undertaker is in charge.

FARM GIRL KILLED BY HARTFORD MAN

Places Muzzle of Shotgun Against Her Back and Pulls Trigger—Arrested.

East Hartland, Conn., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Jennie Carr, 25 year old farm girl who was found lying by a roadside yesterday with a gunshot wound in her back, died early today in a Westfield, Mass., hospital. George Patnode, a farm hand, is under arrest in the Hartford barracks of the Connecticut state police in connection with the fatal shooting. Police said the girl implicated him in a fragmentary and whispered account of the shooting as he lay dying in the hospital.

The girl clasped in overalls was picked up by a passing motorist in the road running past the farm of (Continued on Page 9)

PLANES CARRY JEWELS OVER WILDS OF PERSIA

London, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Priceless crown jewels, gold and silver thread carpets, and dazzling treasures and relics worth millions coming from the sacred mosque of Kufa and Ispahan, were landed today on the dingy stones of a Thameside wharf. They were consigned to Burlington House where a Persian art exhibit opens in January. The treasures came from Persia on the cargo steamer Bahadistan. This Arabian Nights collection was flown in four airplanes across the wild mountains and trackless deserts between Persia and the Persian gulf so that they would not fall into hands of the wild mountain tribes.

AUTOIST KILLS POLICEMAN ON NORWALK ROAD

Sergeant Stratton Had Just Stopped Another Driver When Struck—Dies Instantly—Autoist Arrested

Norwalk, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Sergeant Frank Stratton of the Norwalk police department was killed by a hit and run driver early this morning on the Boston Post road as he was questioning a suspected automobile thief.

Edward Bodine of 86 North, 34th street, Flushing, N. L., the driver of the machine which hit Officer McGraw was arrested after Officer McGraw had pursued him for a mile. He is being questioned by the police.

Bodine's father, Edmond Bodine, was driving about a mile behind him in another car. The pair with two friends, had been to the Fordham-Boston College football game at Boston.

Halted Sailors
Sergeant Stratton and Officer McGraw who comprised the early morning shift of the police department's Post Road night patrol, had chased two sailors in an allegedly stolen car, and had halted the sailors on the Westport town line. Sergeant Stratton was standing beside the sailors' car on the outside of the road talking to the driver, when he was struck. Medical Examiner William H. Slaughter of Darien stated that death was almost instant and was directly due to shock. The impact fractured the officer's skull on the left leg.

When Bodine did not stop, McGraw left Stratton in the care of two passersby and gave chase. The sailors took advantage of the opportunity and escaped but are thought to be the two men stopped in Stratford later this morning. Norwalk police are enroute to Stratford to identify the couple.

RACKETEER CALLS FOR A CLERGYMAN

"Legs" Diamond Believes Himself Dying—Doctors Believe He Has Chance.

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Detectives who have stood guard at the hospital bedside of Jack Diamond, racketeer and gang leader, since he was brought there Sunday with five bullet wounds in his body, quit their room today and stood in a corridor while the wounded man received the ministrations of a clergyman.

The clerk arrived at the hospital about half past eleven this morning, and his coming, although unexplained by officers or by hospital authorities, was taken as an indication that Diamond believed himself to be dying.

May Rally
Doctors had reported an hour or so earlier that Diamond had passed a fair night, and that his condition, while grave, was one from which he might rally. He was definitely weaker today than yesterday, when he seemed to be making a rapid gain after his shooting in a West Side hotel room.

Police made no apparent progress toward apprehending his assailants, but they held the theory that the two or three men who fired upon him were his own henchmen, who had quarreled with him while conferring about some of his activities.

AIR VIEW OF FALLEN GIANT OF THE AIR

A fallen monster of the air, the twisted skeleton of the British dirigible R-101 is strikingly shown here as it lay sprawled over woodlands and fields after its crash near Beauvais, France. This unusual aerial picture, taken by a cameraman for The Evening Herald and NEA Service, gives a vivid impression of the ruin of the giant airship after it had struck rising ground during a storm, exploded and burned. Forty-eight persons perished. The pigmy-like figures of people at the scene of the wreck give a graphic idea of the size of the ill-fated sky liner.

WHAT SAVANTS WILL DO DURING THE NEXT ECLIPSE

Astronomers to Study the Atoms in the Sun's Atmosphere—Find Layer of Iron Vapor Miles Deep.

By Howard W. Blackledge
Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Samuel A. Mitchell, scientific leader of the American expedition now in the South Pacific to observe the sun's eclipse October 21, made public through his office here today his principal objective. He is director of the Leland T. McCormick Observatory of the University of Virginia.

The objective is to study atoms in the sun's flaming atmosphere, 93 million miles distant. These solar atoms are no larger than earthly ones, which means they are so tiny that the biggest is several hundred diameters too small to be visible in the most powerful microscope.

Can Be Done
The almost incredible scientific feat of studying them in the sun, Dr. Mitchell's report says, is not only feasible but has been so thoroughly worked out already that "the astronomer knows more about the constitution, temperature and distribution of gases in the sun's atmosphere, even though it is 93 million miles away, than we know at present of our own terrestrial atmosphere 20 miles above our heads."

The solar atoms are studied by use of a spectroscopic, a glass prism through which is photographed the light of the sun's corona during eclipse. The spectrum picture is merely a series of many dark, vertical, parallel lines. The lines look like shadows, and in a peculiar way actually are shadows.

Some authorities, including Government Despatch, expressed belief that Communist or other external influence was partly responsible. The theory was expressed that revolutionary elements, posing as students, led today's disorders which was considered very serious and punishable by extreme penalties.

BISHOP SHERRILL IS CONSECRATED

Solemn Ceremonies at Boston's Historic Old Trinity Church Today.

Boston, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Amid scenes of ecclesiastical solemnity, the Rt. Rev. James De Wolf Perry, bishop of Rhode Island and presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, today in historic Old Trinity church consecrated his 39-year-old rector, the Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, D.D., as ninth bishop of Massachusetts.

The co-consecrators were, Bishop William Lawrence, retired, seventh bishop of Massachusetts, whose son-in-law, the late Rt. Rev. Charles L. Slatery, Bishop Sherrill succeeds, and the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of Pittsburgh, who was Dr. Sherrill's immediate predecessor at Trinity.

The edifice was crowded with clerical and lay dignitaries and the service was broadcast by radio. Nearly a score of prelates and several hundred clergymen had places within the sanctuary while, in the body of the church, were high officials of state and city and a throng of distinguished guests.

Bishop Brooks
Thirty-nine years ago to the day, Trinity witnessed the consecration of another bishop of Massachusetts. The venerable Bishop Lawrence, in what he said was "probably my last official address to you," preached the consecration sermon and charge, which he concluded by saying:

For 18 years I have known you as student, curate, chaplain, pastor. These others here have known you also, and we have all followed you and your constant growth in ability and character. You have won our affection by your simplicity, directness, cheerfulness and solicitude for those in trouble. It was as natural as it was gratifying that the diocese with one acclaim should call you to be its chief shepherd. You have our prayers, our support and our loyal service.

Unusual Feature
The participation of the seventh bishop of the diocese in the consecration of the present rector, the Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, was an unusual feature.

REBS DEFEATED WITH BIGLOSS SAY FEDERALS

Reports From Insurgent Forces in Brazil, However, Claim Their Armies Are Victorious on Battle Lines.

Rio De Janeiro, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Brazilian Federal sources asserted today that rebel troops had suffered great losses in a battle at Senegas bridgehead in the State of Parana. Fifteen rebels including one officer were found dead on the field after the battle. It was understood that many were wounded. Casualties of the Federal troops were uncounted. Another sharp action was described as taking place at Igarapava Bridgehead, which is on the Rio Grande just this side of the Sao Paulo-Minas Geraes border.

FEDERALS ARE ROUTED
Montevideo, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Brazilian revolutionary troops, fighting for five hours near Caropolis in the Parana, Sao Paulo border area, have routed a large Federal force, inflicting severe casualties.

An official insurgent announcement from Porto Alegre, capital of Rio Grande do Sul, said the battle was the hardest fought thus far along the 200 mile Parana-Sao Paulo front for the possession of Sao Paulo. There was desperate fighting when the First Battalion of the Revolutionary Army attacked the Federal position early yesterday morning between Alfonso Camargo and Caropolis and the Federalists finally gave ground, leaving dead and wounded and supplies behind them. The Federalists fled toward Caropolis.

In another encounter along the long front, the right of which is in the state of Sao Paulo, and the left in Parana, the revolutionary forces took 35 prisoners and captured a large quantity of supplies, munitions and two machine guns. The contact was at Gatinga. Rio De Janeiro dispatches insist that in fighting on both the left and right of Gatinga, the Federalist rebel forces, Federal troops have been victorious. In northern Parana at Jacarezingo whence a Federal column is advancing on Colonia Minas and in southeastern Sao Paulo at Ribeira, where a rebel attack for the second time has been broken up.

LACK OF BREEZE CALLS OFF RACE

For Third Consecutive Day Second Contest for Lipton Cup is Postponed.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 14.—(AP)—For the third consecutive day, the second contest in the Lipton Cup races here between the Gertrude L. Thebaud, pride of the Gloucester fleet, and the Bluenose of Lunenburg, N. S., champion of the Canadian fleet, was called off today because of lack of breeze.

The race committee took action at 8:45 a. m., when it became apparent that the weatherman did not favor a race today. Had there been enough wind for the race, the Thebaud would have gone after the Lipton international fishermen's trophy with a strange skipper at the wheel, the old veteran, Captain Ben Pine, having been confined to bed with a sinus attack that developed during the night. The craft itself was in prime condition for the fight, having undergone a between-race painting and tuning up.

Captain Angus Walters of the Bluenose was highly encouraged today by word from Toronto that "the folks back home" were ready to give a large cash prize for a race between the Thebaud and Bluenose from Gloucester to Toronto at the close of the present series. He accepted the offer as a demonstration of confidence in himself, his crew and his ship.

BERLIN NOW QUIET AFTER HITLERITES STAGE MORE RIOTS

REDS AND COPS STAGE BATTLES IN HUB STREET

Police Use Clubs Freely in Riot; Many Arrests Made; Mounted Police Particularly Active.

Boston, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Communists and police engaged in a hand to hand battle outside the convention hall of the American Federation of Labor today. Several arrests were made. The disorder started when police attempted to break up a demonstration by the Communists after having denied them admittance to the Hotel Bradford in which the Federation of Labor sessions are being held.

When police arrested one speaker who tried to address the crowd which gathered, other Communists attempted to rescue him.

Furious Struggle
A furious struggle then ensued between the milling crowd of Communists and police. Police reserves sped to the aid of the police detail at the hotel and a number of arrested Communists were rushed away in patrol wagons.

Police commandeered a taxicab to carry other arrested Communists to a nearby precinct station. One taxicab was almost captured by the mob which leaped upon its running boards and nearly succeeded in rescuing the prisoner within.

WATER SHORTAGE FACING THE EAST

Wells Go Dry and Cattle Suffer—Heat Wave Strikes New England.

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A prolonged drought throughout the east today brought fears of a water famine and serious crop damage. The situation was viewed with such alarm in Philadelphia that the Presbyterian Ministerial Association urged prayers be offered for rain.

Rain has not fallen to any appreciable extent in Philadelphia for 18 days. Throughout Pennsylvania communities were suffering from a shortage of water and crops were being endangered by the dry spell. At Marietta, Lancaster county, a house to house check of water leaks was ordered and posters were put up asking residents to refrain from washing clothes.

In New England
Throughout New England mid-summer temperatures prevailed, while in rural sections of Connecticut wells were dry and both residents and cattle faced a water famine.

In Boston the temperature reached 87 degrees yesterday, the highest for the day in the annals on the Weather Bureau. The heat was general throughout the state and numerous prostrations occurred.

Water Famine
The water famine extended into Maryland where at Annapolis the reservoir was so low its sides have been described as resembling a deserted football stadium.

The prolonged dry spell in New Jersey has resulted in an outbreak of forest fires, thirty being reported in the state. In the two most serious blazes, sixty bungalows were destroyed between Mays Landing (Continued on Page 3.)

Throgs Gather in Streets Before Building as Prussian Diet Opens Session; Within the Building All is Calm as Hitler Party Has But Few Representatives

Berlin, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Prussian Diet, center of a bitter controversy precipitated by Adolf Hitler's Fascist Right Wing National socialists, began its sessions this afternoon in a quiet that had none of yesterday's tumultuous scenes accompanying the convening of the German Reichstag.

With every gallery seat filled, in anticipation of possible spectacles such as envisioned the Reichstag opening, the diet began its work at 1:17 p. m. Inasmuch as there were only three Fascist members, the Hitlerites could stage no demonstration within the chamber such as their uniformed march of yesterday. The Hitler party has been clamoring for dissolution of the Diet ever since the Sept. 14 elections. Declaring its personnel does not reflect the will of Prussia and that if the body now could be re-elected the Fascists would control its membership.

Police outside the Diet building, which is not far from the scene of yesterday's window-smashing in the Leipzigerplatz, patrolled the street in hundreds and there were massed within the courtyard and wayward.

MORE RIOTS TODAY
Berlin, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Police after an hour's fighting, quelled rioting in the vicinity of the Potsdamerplatz early this morning. The disturbance developed when an after theater crowd stopped to see destruction wrought by Fascist bands yesterday during disturbances incident to opening of the Reichstag.

Rowdies saw an opportunity to start window smashing all over again and perhaps to profit by pilaging. They insulted the police who finally charged with their clubs and cleared the Potsdamerplatz.

Strong police patrols, both mounted and afoot, guarded the business section of the city today. The German press practically as a unit today condemned yesterday's outrages, particularly their anti-semitic tinge. Dr. Hugenberg's Nationalist organs insinuated that the trouble was started by Communist provocateurs.

Fascists Make Denial
The Fascist party declared their partisans had nothing to do with the rowdism. Their declaration, however, elicited derisive comments from the Liberal press. Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, representing the banking, shipping, and industrial interests, pointed out that Dr. Hitler cannot escape his personal responsibility for yesterday's events.

Vorwarts ironically said "Liberation of the German people from reason and decency has begun. Audibly and visibly we are approaching the Third Reich."

ICE SUIT BEGINS
Hartford, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A two weeks trial of the $200,000 suit of the Southern New England Ice Company against the town of West Hartford was started before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the Superior Court this afternoon. David R. Woodhouse and Hugh M. Alcock are attorneys for the ice company. Richard H. Deming and Francis W. Cole appear for the town of West Hartford.

The main contention is over pollution. In substance the ice company says by reason of an auxiliary sewer which sometimes overflows the sewage is deposited in Trout Brook with the result that Trout Brook Pond is polluted to such an extent that the board of health ordered the ice company to cease cutting ice on the pond.

The town denies it is responsible for pollution of Trout Brook pond. Three announcers of the National Broadcasting company were at the submarine base today to prepare for a broadcast Thursday afternoon of how men may escape from a submerged submarine, unable to emerge, by use of the "Moses" lung. The announcers are William B. Miller, James Wallington and George Hicks.

The broadcast will be from the submarine escape training tank at the base. One announcer will be in submarine compartment at the bottom of the 135 foot tank; another will be at the top of the tank and the third is expected to enter the tank in a diving bell and report the progress of the man from the submarine chamber through ways to the top of the tank.

NOTORIOUS GUNMAN SHOT IN MISSOURI

Jake Fleagle Was One of Most Sought After Criminals in Nation.

Branson, Mo., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A man identified as "Jake" Fleagle, long sought as the leader of the gang which robbed the First National bank of Lamar, Colo., May 23, 1928, in a holdup in which four persons were killed, was shot by Kansas City detectives and Federal government officers here today.

The man was shot as he attempted to board a Missouri-Pacific train at the station here. He had purchased a ticket for Hollister, a short distance from here.

Eight in Posses Eight officers were in the posse which surprised the supposed Fleagle at the railroad station.

Witnesses said the man attempted to draw a pistol and had it half way out of its holster when he was shot.

ENGINEERS LAUD STATE HIGHWAYS

Foreign Visitors Say Road System Here is Unsurpassed in the World.

After surveying Connecticut highways from the New York state line to New Haven and thence through Hartford to the Massachusetts line, sixty engineers representing seventeen European and South American nations yesterday were unanimous in the opinion that at no place either at home or in this country have they found a system of highways which surpasses that of Connecticut.

The tour is being conducted as a feature of the International Congress of Highway Engineers started at Washington last week. The Congress is being held in the United States for the first time.

The party stopped first for a thorough inspection of the new Southport cut-off bridge which carries the Boston Post Road over the railroad tracks. Many of the visitors took photographs of the structure for their records and all were enthusiastic of their praise of the project as a masterpiece of highway engineering.

Another stop was made for the complete inspection of the experimental highway in the town of Suffield where the Connecticut department is determining the maintenance costs of twelve sections of different type pavements.

Stopping for luncheon at the Hotel Taft in New Haven, the engineers were addressed by H. H. Ling of China; Juan A. Valle, chief of highway research of the Federal Bureau of Argentina; W. Felchner, secretary of the chamber of commerce of Berlin, Germany; and Paul Christophe, director general of roads and bridges of Belgium.

All paid high compliments to the Connecticut highway system and the Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald.

Senor Valle referred to Commissioner Macdonald, to Thomas H. Macdonald, chief of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads and to former Connecticut Commissioner James H. Macdonald, treasurer of the American Road Builders' Association, and stated that it was quite apparent that all that was required for the production of good highways was to engage someone of that name to build them.

HOME BUILDERS CLUB ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Fred Rogers Named President of South Methodist Church Organization.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Home Builders of the South Methodist church was held at the church last night. About 75 members and invited guests were present to enjoy the excellent supper prepared by the refreshment committee.

The menu consisted of the following: Eggplant salad, cabbage salad, baked beans, cold ham, Parker House rolls, pickles, chili sauce, coffee, pumpkin pie and cheese. Singing led by Fred Rogers at the piano, enlivened the supper.

Following the supper the business meeting was called to order by President Elmer Anderson. The following officers were presented as the selections of the nominating committee for the ensuing year: President, Fred Rogers; vice-president, Ernest Bradley; secretary, Mrs. F. R. A. Colpitts; treasurer, Mrs. Fritz Noren.

The secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for the nominees. The annual report of the secretary, Mrs. Thomas Curran, emphasized the successful year enjoyed by the club organized two years ago by the Rev. E. C. Colpitts. His present enrollment is 80, including chiefly the younger married couples of the church.

The society has done much to further the acquaintanceship of its members, and to foster a spirit of cooperation among them. A vote of thanks was tendered the retiring officers, President Elmer Anderson, Vice-President Stephen Klein and Secretary Mrs. Thomas Curran, who have rendered efficient, and loyal service during the past year.

Rev. R. A. Colpitts then addressed the gathering, expressing his pleasure at the worth while results attained by the society. He then spoke briefly of his own earlier years in the ministry and of the satisfaction in general that one feels in the work of the ministry, in spite of some of its handicaps and discouragements.

His talk was thoroughly appreciated by those present, who realize how much his leadership has meant to all the activities of the South church.

Adjournment was then made to the gymnasium where games were enjoyed for the remainder of the period.

The following committee were in charge of last night's meeting: Refreshment, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Noren, entertainment, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Curran, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Davis. The latter committee also served as a nominating committee.

POLITE TAXI-MEN OF MUNICH THRILL FARES

Munich.—(AP)—One of the thrills of this Bavarian city to the hard-earned tourist is the taxi fare. He welcomes each new fare into his cab with: "God Greet you."

LAWYER ASSAILS FARM BOARD ACTS

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Agricultural Marketing Act was assailed as unconstitutional and subversive of America's traditional individualism by F. Dumont Smith, of Hutchinson, Kas., chairman of citizenship committee of the American Bar Association, in an address to the Grain and Feed Dealers National Association's convention today.

Smith said that the marketing act transgressed the constitution in affording the Farm Board authority for attempts to "regulate, control, fix and stabilize" commodity prices.

"No court has ever upheld or ever will uphold such a power under the interstate commerce provision of the constitution," he said.

Leaders for the marketing act under the constitutional dictum to provide for the general welfare cannot hold their ground, Smith said, unless the Farm Board seeks to place the various branches of agriculture on a par with every other branch as well as placing agriculture on a par with industry. He cited the depressed state of industry and the widespread unemployment of labor as equally needing the nursing of the Federal government, if agriculture is to be the recipient of special attention.

Smith attacked the conception of business held by Alexander Legge, Farm Board chairman as one of "vast monopoly," and said that Legge's plan was now to "monopolize" use in the hands of the Farm Board the entire distribution, merchandising, and processing of food products.

Preceding the meeting a chicken eating supper was served to the members at the Coffee Shop from where the members adjourned to the store for the business meeting. The annual November-December store contest was discussed with various angles and suggestions being brought before the club.

Otto Neubauer, popular local pianist, was presented by the entertainment committee and rendered a program of piano numbers ranging from popular songs to classical pieces. The evening was brought to a close by the playing of a new punch-board stunt where each member punched a small paper from a board and then performed according to the directions printed on the slip.

Two natives of Hartford, Conn., play featured parts in Pathé's screen presentation of "Holiday." Philip Barry's successful stage play, which is scheduled for showing at the State theater Wed. and Thurs. Robert Ames, who plays the leading role opposite Ann Harding, was born and brought up in Hartford where his father was an executive of the Standard Fire Insurance Company. Ames also made his stage debut there as a member of the Hunter Bradford Stock Company.

Monroe Owsley, who plays the role of Miss Harding's inebriate brother in the picture, was born in Georgia, but moved to Hartford when a boy. He was educated at Loomis Institute in that city. Owsley also appeared on the stage in Hartford.

Linking the Connecticut city still farther with the screen play is the fact that Creighton Hale, also an important member of the "Holiday" cast, did some of his first American stage work with the Hunter-Bradford Stock Company in Hartford, at the same time that Ames was associated with this theatrical group.

Miss Harding has appeared at Parson's Theater several times with Broadway road shows and has always been a favorite in this section. The three actors are members of a notable cast in "Holiday," which Edward H. Griffith directed. Besides Miss Harding in the featured role, there are such favorites as Mary Astor, Edward Everett Horton, Hedda Hopper, Hallam Cooley, Mabel Forrest, Elizabeth Forrester and William Holden.

Brilliant Cast

With a magnificent stage investment as beautiful as it is rare, and every interior setting distinctly a work of art, rich, tasty and restful to the eye, Pathé's screen version of Philip Barry's successful stage play, "Holiday," is in every sense of the term, a dialogue production de luxe. A tensely emotional drama of high society and vast wealth, interpreted by stage and screen players of exceptional prominence, and produced on a highly pretentious scale, this picture is at once impressive, charming, massive, thrilling. The dramatic moments are finely relieved throughout the action by delicious comedy, while the dialogue, compact and witty, leaves little to be desired. "Holiday" is a picture that will click at every boxoffice, for it is one of the most outstanding screen productions of the year. Here is an enchanting story of two sisters of high social station and unlimited wealth who fall in love with the same man—a young man with a high ideal, who scorns money and hopes to enjoy life while he is young rather than grub for wealth until life has no further joys to offer. But he loved a girl who failed to appreciate his aim, and the sister who secretly loves him seems to be de trop until the denouement which comes almost without warning. Here is a drama of human lives which might have been taken from any cross section of well-to-do America, and in "Holiday" it is pictured in the pencil tones of verisimilitude and with a beauty and charm that will appeal to all alike with irresistible forces.

The picture owes much of its magnetic quality to the artistic portrayal of the featured players in the cast. In congenial roles are Ann Harding, Mary Astor, Edward Everett Horton, Robert Ames, and Hedda Hopper—stage artists of supreme merit. From every standpoint of screen artistry, the players in "Holiday" are outstanding. This is especially true of the support which includes Elizabeth Forrester, Hallam Cooley, Monroe Owsley, William Holden, Creighton Hale, Mabel Forrest and Mary Elizabeth Forbes.

The production was made under the supervision of E. B. Derr and was directed by Edward H. Griffith. It is based on the stage success by Philip Barry, produced by Arthur Hopkins in New York, and was adapted for the screen by Horace Jackson. The music was directed by Josiah Zuro. The cameraman was Norbert Barnard, and the sound engineers were D. A. Cutler and Harold Stine. The rich costumes worn by the players were designed by Owen Wakeling. Every detail of the production was supervised by a specialist, the result being a picture as alluring and exquisite as has thus far been presented on any screen.

SPOILING AN ARGUMENT

Whether or not the process by which certain of the big oil companies have acquired possession of large areas of oil shale land in Colorado is legal or otherwise, or ethical or otherwise, there is one point in the controversy precipitated by Ralph H. Kelley, long an official of the United States Land Office of the Interior Department, which ought to be clear enough; and that is that the enormous sums talked about by Mr. Kelley as representing the value of the lands in question are absolutely imaginary.

Shale rock carries petroleum oil. To capture that oil involves long and complicated processes. Shale oil derivatives cannot be produced in the United States under a cost greatly exceeding the selling price of the same derivatives obtained from natural petroleum. It is highly probable that any corporation undertaking to produce commercial gasoline from shale in Colorado would lose money so long as the gas retailed for any price below 75 cents a gallon. Obviously, then, to talk about a certain acre capable of producing forty billion barrels of shale oil as being worth forty billion dollars because the present value of the oil would be a dollar a barrel is plain nonsense. It loses sight of the fact that in order to capture the forty billion barrels of shale oil it would be necessary to spend eighty or a hundred billions in operation.

That is, roughly speaking, the situation. The value of the oil lands under debate—the present or probable early value of the property—instead of being forty billion dollars isn't even ten dollars—or ten cents. Whatever speculative value it may have is another matter. But whether it is guessed that at some time all other sources of gasoline will fall and the employment of shale, no matter what the cost, become necessary; or whether it is guessed that new and cheaper methods of shale oil production may be discovered, the desire to possess the shale lands is, on the face of it, merely a factor in the policy of the oil companies to arrange for the continuation of their business through succeeding generations. It will hardly have anything to do with this one. It constitutes a long look ahead, and a very dim one.

What we are trying to make clear is that Mr. Kelley has seriously confused the issue by making it appear that the shale lands proceedings involve practicable profits of stupendous size. They do not. They do not involve any profits at all to anybody now living.

Whether or not the actual circumstances justify the giving of title to these practically waste lands and, particularly, jockeying with the law in order to do so, is a perfectly proper question for discussion. But it is one that ought to be able to stand on its own feet and not be bolstered up by the introduction of entirely imaginary inventories.

RIOTS AND LOANS

The rioting of Fascists and Communists on the occasion of the opening of the German Reichstag, with its sinister implication of a not improbable dictatorship and a subsequently probable revolution, comes with ironic effect. At the very moment bankers and capitalists of half a dozen countries were just completing arrangement for placing at the disposal of the German government a loan of $125,000,000 to help that country cover a large part of the deficit in its budget.

No less than twenty-two great American banks are participating in this credit, by far the largest part of which is to be assumed by them.

The purpose back of this loan is not perhaps altogether altruistic but may be found in the fact that lack of full faith in the permanence of the German republic has resulted in the depression of the market price of its bonds abroad, the Young-plan issues having dropped in the United States from 90 to 74 since June and particularly since the elections showed such a surprising growth of Hitlerism. The bankers have been hoping to restore the general credit of Germany by the granting of this temporary financial assistance, and a more effective way of doing so could not easily be devised.

But such performances as that of yesterday, unless summarily squelched for good and all, will provide ample ground for protest from the people of the participating countries; because after all it is not exactly their own money that the bankers are proposing to employ in this benevolent enterprise. Any suspicion that credits intended to help an honestly struggling Germany regain her feet may be eventually used to finance a billigerent and revolutionary Germany in a defiance of the world will be sure to be followed by whatever drastic action may be necessary to prevent their being created.

OUTBOARD MOTORS

The outboard motor has succeeded in capturing the attention of a considerable number of people in this country. By obtaining recognition as a sport medium, and an enormous amount of free advertising it is being pushed into an extraordinary development.

Speed motor boating is not so expensive that it cannot be indulged in by relatively large numbers of persons. It appeals to thrill lovers. We are probably entering a phase where the motor boat, and particularly the outboard variety, will cut a very large figure in the summer life of all kinds of watering places, both seashore and inland.

It remains to be seen whether motorboat operation is to be allowed, like that of the automobile, to get completely out of hand before steps are taken to effectually regulate it.

At present it is extremely probable that out of all the people who enjoy the facilities for recreation presented by bodies of water all over the country a good deal less than one per cent operate motor boats. Yet there are many evidences that the handful of the latter constitute a serious problem to the many times greater majority.

Two or three or half a dozen motor speed boats, operated with little regard for the peace or comfort of others, can well nigh destroy an entire summer season for several hundred cottagers at a lake.

Driven recklessly at top speed, often with willful intent to give somebody a scare, a single motor boat can sometimes drive from the waters of such a place all the fishing and boating parties that would otherwise occupy it; or at least make them completely uncomfortable. Already instances of collisions and fatalities are far too common—and the show has hardly begun.

The time to take rational and effectual action for the control of these machines is now. Five years hence will probably be entirely too late.

DINOSAURS AND FOLKS

Discovery of a mammal tooth in the same geological stratum with fragments of dinosaur eggs, in Montana, has set the savants to guessing that the passing away of the gigantic reptiles may have resulted from the circumstance that the earliest of the mammals developed a taste for the eggs of their larger predecessors and thus brought about the destruction of the race.

Which is a sweet and lovely thought in connection with the predictions of some entomologists that sooner or later the insect tribes are going to succeed in eliminating mankind from the earth by eating up all the vegetation.

The dinosaurs were probably several hundred times as big in bulk as the mammals supposed to have compassed their destruction, so that size alone would not seem to afford protection in default of brains. If the dinosaurs did not know enough to watch over their eggs and keep the nests from being raided by the new little animals with the sharp teeth, perhaps they didn't have so much, in the way of folly, on the human creature who blandly goes on his way leaving the tent caterpillar to bloom on the trees in his back yard or who contrives ways and means of beating the corn borer quarantine.

ENGLISH AS SHE ISN'T

A woman teacher of English in a Westport high school takes her job literally. She is trying to make her pupils speak English instead of American. Those of the students who would stand well in the rating of their teacher must eliminate all those cryptic utterances which constitute the argot of youth in the United States. In other words Miss Sarah Kemble is striving to eradicate slang. And anybody who has ever listened to the casual conversation of high school girls or boys—whether in Westport, New York, Hartford or Manchester—knows that unless these young folks are

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—In the first six months of this year, Japan exported cotton goods amounting to four times the total of cotton textile exports from the United States.

To some extent that fact can be translated into unemployment, wage cuts and consequent labor troubles and continuance of the long-standing depression in the American textile industry.

Once upon a time, the Orient was the big customer for American cotton goods. But Japan, China and India finally began to make their own cloth in their own mills and the British industry was hard hit along with our own. Soon Japan, at least, is likely to be competing with American cotton goods exports outside of Asia and even in South America.

American and European mills will find competition in the Far East even keener than it already is, according to Charles E. Moser, chief of the Far East Division of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Moser, a veteran of the consular service in the Orient, was borrowed by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to make a survey of export possibilities and has returned with a glowing picture of Japan's industrial progress but a dismal picture of those possibilities. The only remedial suggestion he has to offer is for establishment of American cotton mills in India and China with trained personnel, using local cheap labor.

"Progress is the keynote of all Japanese effort at this time and nowhere is it in evidence more clearly than in the cotton textile industry," he says. "Japan's big industrialists have sent their young men all over the world for training. They return not only with a wide technical training, but with a knowledge of the language of industrial nations also."

Japan, Moser indicates, is becoming Americanized.

"Every street and business sign in Yokohama is in English and Japanese," he reports. "Traffic officers at crossings direct traffic with an efficiency equal to that of most American cities."

"With certain exceptions, the Japanese-owned business buildings are of steel-reinforced concrete, the foreigners' one-story shacks of lath and plaster. Japanese firms, it was told, were assured that their day was over, that the future belonged to the Japanese. Hence they were unwilling to make large investments for permanency in a land in which their business tenure was short."

"I noticed that everyone spoke English. Every child in the country must attend school to the age of 14 and every high school, even in the country districts, teaches English, from both Japanese and foreign teachers. I heard that the size of English is growing so rapidly that it is only a question of years until the population, especially in the cities, will be practically bilingual."

"In Tokyo, a city of two million people, nearly all the men wear foreign-style clothing when engaged in their normal business pursuits."

"The bicycle might almost be called Japan's national vehicle. There are more than 2,000,000 in use and since few women use them it means that about one in five of the active male population has one. It costs considerably more now to travel in a rikisha than in a taxi and the only rikisha men left are old men, middle-aged and past, who have never learned to do anything else."

"The great earthquake brought a revolutionary change in Japan's development. It turned its back overnight upon that Oriental civilization of which it was a part, and in a material sense at least, has set its face ever since toward becoming a western nation."

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 14.—The soft strummed guitar . . . the plaintive, croonful, far-away melodies of the steppes and of Seville . . . the colorful, graceful, sinuous rhythms . . .

They're all very, very much in vogue this year. The most charming and popular entertainers of a season just getting under way are strikingly anti-theatrical to the jazz and hallelaloo of the past few years.

Not that blues are dead. Nor are the jazz dissonances of Harlem. But a new note has crept in—a sort of lullaby; a bit of a soporific for the boys and girls who stay up late.

The intrusion of change might have been noted a year ago—a sort of continental note in the night resorts of the Longacre Square belt. It may have been the croonful efforts of Vallee, Osborne and the rest that started it. But more likely it was the natural consequence of jazz production.

Be all this as it may, a check of a night club season which is strangely vigorous in the face of financial depression shows a few of Manhattan's latest favorites to be—

Tamara, a charming Russian girl who squats on the floor of the Club Abbey and, playing her own guitar accompaniment, sings ballads most charmingly. Or Olga Markoff, with her accordion and snapping black eyes together with the Russian gypsy singers at the Sadko.

. . . A tango band, playing South American tunes at Will Osborne's. Or if you want your entertainment more modern, Ramon and Rosita at their own El Patio have contrived a dance number around the "Bolero" of Stravinsky, a number which symphony orchestra fans have adopted as a favorite.

Down in the Village, the El Chico offers Spanish and Mexican music in native costume. . . Castinets click and more guitars strum. . . So it goes around the town, with the influence spreading to the music shows. The Vanderbilt Review, for instance, has grabbed up Miss Markoff and the "rumor" of dance of South America, is to be found in at least two successful Broadway productions.

It was but a few years back when the arrival of a singer of native songs or a dancer of native dances was a concert event—at $20 a seat, sometimes as high as Raquel Meller. Not that there are any too many Mellers running around loose, but the type of folksong she brought to New York now becomes a commonplace to be found almost anywhere you'll drop in.

And speaking of night resorts reminds me that when Barney Gallant's Greenwich Village play-place reopened the other evening you might have found on hand as "master of ceremonies" one Walter O'Keefe, who is one of the better song writers and entertainers.

I found myself a guest out in Hollywood of the Wampus Club, leading organization of the movie world. Just a few seats away was Walter in company with a lovely movie lady he is slated to wed this winter. As Walter's back where he came from. Welcome home, stranger.

GILBERT SWAN.

TELLING HER

Entering a street car, a lady spied a friend with a little boy. A greeting was exchanged between the women, and then the newcomer said: "Why, Bobby, how grown up you are! But still you are not too old to kiss, are you?"

MUST HAVE BEEN FATE

Mt. Vernon, Ill.—Fate played several tricks on Ray Mahan before that brave aviator met his death here recently. The third finally ballooned out, but was caught in the cords of the other two and was useless.

DEFICIENCY DISEASES

Rickets

The name "rickets" is taken from the old English word "wrickken," meaning to twist, because this disease twists the bones of the growing child out of shape. The legs become curved, the head too large, the chest is narrowed, and the bones do not harden properly.

Rickets is marked by the malnutrition of the whole body as well as deformity of the bone, and a pot belly is usually present.

Rickets is a disease most noticed in the very young, and attacks children who are shut away from the sunlight and who are fed food deficient in vitamin A. More babies develop it during winter than in summer. There may be a soreness of the entire body, with a loose skin, weak muscles and an enlarged liver.

A child suffering from this disorder should be given sunbaths daily and the food must be guarded carefully. Starchy foods are not needed but raw milk with the cream alternating with periods of raw egg yolk mixed with orange juice is very good, also about a level tablespoon of the juice of grated raw carrots daily.

Short frequent sunbaths are the best way to keep your baby from developing this trouble.

Scurvy

Sailors on long voyages, prospectors in the far north, and armies on the march may suffer from scurvy, a disease in which there may be great weakness. The gums become spongy and soften, and the teeth fall out.

While this disease has been known from the earliest times, a knowledge of the cure of it is fairly recent. The use of plenty of foods containing vitamin C is the most efficient remedy and preventive.

This disease has fortunately almost disappeared from adults who live in civilized communities where food is abundant, but it is unfortunately too often found in babies.

A form of infantile scurvy may be found in infants who are taking condensed or malted milk or boiled milk without the addition of other substances containing vitamin C.

This disease causes severe pains in the baby's limbs which appear semi-paralyzed, and the child does not wish to be touched or moved.

It is a good plan to change the diet to raw certified milk with alternating feedings of orange, lime or tomato juice.

Such disorders will never develop when the proper diet is used and it

MUST HAVE BEEN FATE

Mt. Vernon, Ill.—Fate played several tricks on Ray Mahan before that brave aviator met his death here recently. In attempting to use three parachutes in a jump of 2,500 feet over the city, he was killed. The first failed to open, as did the second. The third finally ballooned out, but was caught in the cords of the other two and was useless.

DEFICIENCY DISEASES

Rickets

The name "rickets" is taken from the old English word "wrickken," meaning to twist, because this disease twists the bones of the growing child out of shape. The legs become curved, the head too large, the chest is narrowed, and the bones do not harden properly.

Rickets is marked by the malnutrition of the whole body as well as deformity of the bone, and a pot belly is usually present.

Rickets is a disease most noticed in the very young, and attacks children who are shut away from the sunlight and who are fed food deficient in vitamin A. More babies develop it during winter than in summer. There may be a soreness of the entire body, with a loose skin, weak muscles and an enlarged liver.

A child suffering from this disorder should be given sunbaths daily and the food must be guarded carefully. Starchy foods are not needed but raw milk with the cream alternating with periods of raw egg yolk mixed with orange juice is very good, also about a level tablespoon of the juice of grated raw carrots daily.

Short frequent sunbaths are the best way to keep your baby from developing this trouble.

Scurvy

Sailors on long voyages, prospectors in the far north, and armies on the march may suffer from scurvy, a disease in which there may be great weakness. The gums become spongy and soften, and the teeth fall out.

While this disease has been known from the earliest times, a knowledge of the cure of it is fairly recent. The use of plenty of foods containing vitamin C is the most efficient remedy and preventive.

This disease has fortunately almost disappeared from adults who live in civilized communities where food is abundant, but it is unfortunately too often found in babies.

A form of infantile scurvy may be found in infants who are taking condensed or malted milk or boiled milk without the addition of other substances containing vitamin C.

This disease causes severe pains in the baby's limbs which appear semi-paralyzed, and the child does not wish to be touched or moved.

It is a good plan to change the diet to raw certified milk with alternating feedings of orange, lime or tomato juice.

Such disorders will never develop when the proper diet is used and it is the doctor's duty to see that the baby is properly fed so that these diseases do not recur.

DEFICIENCY DISEASES continued in tomorrow's article.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Dry Skin)

Question: E. J. writes: "I am a young person, but my skin is so dry I am aging terribly. I use a great deal of cold cream, but I know it must be some inward trouble. When I wash my skin it hurts and burns for some time after. I know of others who have helped, so please tell me what to do."

Answer: The tints of Olive Oil with your meals, and increase the amount of butter and cream you are using. A temporary treatment which will help is to rub the entire body each day with cold cream, using only a small amount, but rubbing it well into the pores.

(Stale Bread)

Question: A. M. asks: "Is stale bread more easily digested than fresh? If so, why?"

Answer: The reason stale bread is digested more readily than fresh is because it requires thorough mastication and insalivation due to its dryness. There is no less starch in stale bread, however, and if one is attempting to avoid too much starchy food it is best to toast the bread completely through in order to dehydrate every particle.

(Blind Boy)

Question: R. C. writes: "I have a blind boy that has bothered me for about four months and will not heal. Have consulted physicians, but with no good results. Would be greatly obliged for your advice as I am beginning to be much worried."

Answer: Your blind boy is in doubt in a very toxic condition or the boy would have healed before this time. Correct your diet and keep your intestines free from any accumulated poisons, and I am sure you will find that this blind boy will soon heal naturally without any local treatment.

The cost of constructing the map is estimated at $2,000,000, and it will be as complete in detail that it will take about 80 years to finish.

GAMBLER IS KILLED IN FRONT OF HOME

Shot As He Tries to Start His Auto—Assassin Escapes During Excitement.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Dave Emmett, 35 years old, whose career has been wrapped for many years in politics and gambling, lost a race with an assassin's bullet late last night.

A man jumped on the running board of a parked automobile at the wheel of which sat Emmett. The man, pistol in hand, cursed Emmett, and shouted, "I'm going to let you have it."

Emmett shouted to Stephen Platon, his companion in the year to "duck." The gambler then leaped forward and threw the car into gear in an effort to hurl the gunman off the running board. At the same time the man fired.

The bullet entered Emmett's body under the left arm and penetrated his heart.

Assassin Escapes

The automobile, its driver dead, rolled across the sidewalk and into a fence. Platon jumped out and the gunman ran to a car in which two companions waited, and was driven away.

The shooting was in front of Emmett's home. The killer's car had been parked across the street for several hours.

Emmett and his brother Frank were reputed owners of an elaborate gambling place in the 4700 block on Cottage Grove avenue. Formerly the brothers were partners in the operation of the Dells Winter Club called the largest gambling resort in Chicago. The place was bombed three times during the time the Emmetts were part owners.

ROCKVILLE AUTOISTS IN COLLISION HERE

Cummings of 10 Ellington avenue, driving a Chandler sedan struck the rear end of a Chevrolet sedan, driven by William J. Douglas of R. F. D. Rockville, when the latter stopped suddenly in front of the Depot Square Annex filling station, to allow another automobile to pass.

The Chevrolet had a broken bumper spring. The Chandler suffered bent front bumper. Motorcycle Policeman Raymond Griffin investigated but made no arrest the accident being unavoidable.

THEATERS

Whoopie!
Eddie Cantor in the comedy riot "Whoopie" will be shown at the State for the last times today.

Wednesday and Thursday brings to the State screen, Ann Harding in the much talked about picture, "Holiday."

"Holiday" is an outstanding production in every respect. It is a massive picture with a story which for tenseness and human interest has seldom been told in dialogue on the screen and every character is played by a thoroughly trained stage artist. It has been acclaimed everywhere as being perhaps the finest comedy drama of high society and smartness—these are the terms that truly describe the charm and scintillation that marks every scene of the picture. The action of the story has been set in the background of a Fifth avenue mansion of unlimited wealth, and a most gripping story has been developed with much intelligence.

Ann Harding rises to new heights in "Holiday." A star of fame on the speaking fame, the beautiful blonde is well on her way to steal the laurels of many of the foremost screen stars. Robert Ames is cast in the male lead, and the excellent supporting cast is composed of such well-known stage and screen stars as Mary Astor, Edward Everett Horton, Creighton Hale, Hedda Hopper, Monroe Owsley and Mabel Forrest.

Johnny Hines in the laughable comedy, "Johnny's Week End" and a Vitaphone Vaudeville not complete the program.

Bebe Daniels in "Laulful Larceny," and Marion Nixon and Jack Whiting in "College Lovers" are the feature attractions for Friday and Saturday. Gloria Swanson in "What a Widow" will be seen at the State for three days starting Sunday night.

REC CENTER HUMS AS SEASON OPENS

Enroll 65 New Members as Fall and Winter Program is Started.

By far the biggest turnout in years featured the opening of the fall and winter season activities at the School Street Recreation Center last night. The building was crowded from early night until the doors were closed at the regular time which is 10:30 as gym, boxing, dancing, and swimming classes began.

With the grand opening came a swelling of the membership. A total of 65 new members were enrolled last night, the largest in the history of the institution on an opening night of a season's program of activities. Of this number, 27 were men and 38 were women.

Center authorities were more than pleased with the optimistic start and have hopes that this year will be the most successful enjoyed for a long period. The women's class under the tutelage of Miss Gertrude E. Penney had 45 participants, which is an unusually large number for an opening night.

Tonight marks the beginning of the swimming classes although a private class was held last night. The new term includes a series of twelve lessons. The beginners' class is from 7:45 until 8:30. Several Hartford young women took part in the swimming private class last night and they were so impressed that they said they would induce others to come to Manchester from the capital city.

The building fairly buzzed with activities. First came the boys' boxing class late in the afternoon followed by the class for young men. These, too, were largely attended, with Frank C. Busch in charge as usual. A basketball meeting was also held and plans made to open the season on Thanksgiving Day night.

A schedule of the season's activities will be mailed to anyone who calls by telephone or writes for one. Persons may obtain membership at any time at the offices of either the East Side or the West Side recreation centers. Membership includes the privilege of using all the facilities at both buildings.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lichdi, her foster parents. Police Theory According to the version of the shooting piece together by police, Patnode had accosted the girl as she was working in a barn on the farm. As she turned to leave, police believe Patnode placed the muzzle of his shotgun against her back and pulled the trigger. Miss Patnode staggered to the road about 100 feet away and collapsed.

A few hours later Patnode was found sleeping in a nearby farm house and was placed under arrest. Police said he admitted having thrown his shot gun into a well.

Patnode had lived in this section for a number of years, first as a renting farmer and later as an occasional farm worker. He was frequently employed at the Lichdi farm. A former resident of Hartford, he was sentenced in 1925 to the Cheshire Reformatory on a charge of breaking and entering and in 1926 was fined $100 and costs for operating an automobile while intoxicated without the permission of his owner.

The dead girl had been with the Lichdi family for the past 14 years.

CALLS IT ACCIDENT

Hartford, Oct. 14.—(AP)—George Patnode, 35, farm hand of East Hartland, was being held by state police at the Hartford barracks this morning in connection with the shooting of Jennie Carr, 25, at 5 p. m. yesterday on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. John Lichdi of East Hartland. Miss Carr, foster parent, who occasionally employed Patnode, Miss Carr died at 1:30 a. m. today in the Noble hospital, Westfield, Mass.

Patnode, according to state police here, admitted shooting the young woman, but claims that it was an accident, the old double-barreled Colt shotgun, with which he says he was practicing "military maneuvers" having exploded and discharged its load of deer slugs into her back as she was leaving the barn where she had been working. The police, however, say that the girl was heard to cry, "Don't shoot; don't shoot!" just before the gun went off.

HAD BEEN HUNTING

Patnode also said that he had been hunting and had returned to the barn on his return, entering it after Miss Carr. Patnode was found after a three-hour search on an adjoining farm. Police learned that he had been drinking heavily during the past few days and said he was in a stupor when found. He is to be arraigned before an East Hartland jury today. Medical Examiner Costello of Hartford went to Westfield this morning to perform an autopsy. He was accompanied by County Detective Edward J. Hickey and State Police Lieutenant Paul Lavin.

He will make an inspection of each building, which will be the hazards he finds and will make recommendations. CAUGHT BY CLIPPING

Hartford, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A birth notice published in a New Bedford, Mass., newspaper a few weeks ago led to the apprehension of Howard W. Pheland, who was returned to Hartford early today from Massachusetts in the custody of Detective Sergeant Jere Pheland was presented in the Hartford police court on a charge of non-support of his wife and two-year-old daughter. The notice which appeared in the New Bedford paper related that a son was born that day to "Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Pheland." A friend, who read the item, mailed a clipping to Pheland's family here and it was referred to the local police. Pheland had been sought by the local police more than a year. In police court today he was ordered to pay $10 a week toward the support of his Hartford wife and child. He said he was out of work.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Adventure enters the life of Celia Mitchell, 17, when she learns the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore for a home in New York with her father, John Mitchell, and her aristocratic grandmother.

Margaret Rogers, Celia's mother, divorced Mitchell and remarried and is now a widow. Barney Sheldons, a young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore Celia promised to be loyal to his love. She is lonely in her new home.

Mitchell asks Evelyn Parsons, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons considers Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections and agrees. She invites the girl to her Long Island home for a week-end, where Celia meets her father, fascinating but of dubious character. Mrs. Parsons encourages the match. Celia treats Jordan coolly at first but is won by his romantic love making after he has rescued her from drowning. Lord Duncan, a prominent politician, becomes Celia's loyal friend. With Mrs. Parsons' assistance Mitchell arranges an elaborate party in honor of his daughter's 18th birthday. The party is a dinner dance. Jordan persuades Celia to leave early.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVIII
Celia's heart was pounding as she ran up the steps of the old stone house. It must be very late. Suppose her father was angry, even after Evelyn had explained!

She tried to open the door. It would not move. For a minute the girl stood terrified. She had been locked out!

Helplessly she looked up and down the street. There was no one to tell her what to do. But then, how could there be? This was her home. She must find a way to arouse someone inside. She realized that she was acting ridiculously. The bell, of course! She pressed it firmly.

Someone was coming. She could hear the footsteps. The lock was turning now.

"Celia!"

John Mitchell stood in the hallway looking out at her.

The girl tried to muster a smile. She held her velvet cloak about her nervously.

"I'm sorry, father," she began. "I hope you haven't worried about me. Mrs. Parsons promised—"

"Celia, come inside!"

Mitchell's voice was harsh and his manner coldly formal. He stepped aside so the girl could enter. The atmosphere told her at once that something was wrong.

Celia hesitated. Her father went ahead into the drawing room, and she followed.

"Do you know what time it is?" the man demanded. He was angry. Celia could tell that from the way he walked, the way he snapped the words out.

Her eyes darted to the clock on the mantle. Two-thirty-five was what the dial said.

"I didn't know," she answered. "I didn't know it was so late. Didn't Mrs. Parsons tell you I was coming home?"

"Mrs. Parsons? Don't try to bring her into this. It is time for a young girl to be getting home! Celia, I can't understand this. I never expected such a thing could happen! I think this evening I was doing something to please you. Why do you suppose I gave that party at the hotel? And your birthday present—the ring! Is this the way you show gratitude?"

The girl was almost crying.

"But, father," she begged. "Won't you listen to me? I didn't mean to be ungrateful. I don't know what I can say! Mrs. Parsons said it would be all right. I didn't know you'd feel like this!"

"Celia," Mitchell said sternly. "I warn you not to falsify! Mrs. Parsons had nothing to do with this. I know that very well, and I warn you not to try to deceive me."

"But I'm not! I'm not trying to deceive you. I told Mrs. Parsons I was leaving and she said it would be all right."

"Stop! I'll not listen to anything of the sort! Will you please tell me young lady, where you've been for the last two hours?"

Celia was crying now. The dainty handkerchief of chiffon and lace was a limp wad. She tried to brush the tears away, but they would not stop. One velvet cuff was moist and spotted.

"Stop crying!" her father insisted. "And tell me where you've been!"

"I'm trying to!"

Mitchell waited, unmoved by her tears. At last the girl dried her red-rimmed eyes and controlled her voice enough to talk.

"Who is he?" her father demanded.

"He—his name is the party. He's the one who saved my life at the Boat Club."

"Humph!" What was he doing at this party?"

"Mrs. Parsons invited him. I asked her to."

"I see. And how does it happen that you come home with this young man and arrive at home and a half after I got here—after leaving Evelyn Parsons at her apartment?"

The girl had to wait several seconds, rubbing at her eyes and coughing to clear her throat before she could answer.

"We went for a little ride—just through the park. I didn't think it late, and so many people had left the party I thought it would be all right. The others were all dancing."

"So you went for a ride. In the park? Celia Mitchell, I wouldn't have believed that a daughter of mine could do such a thing. Here I've tried to introduce you to young people of the right sort. I've tried to give you everything in the world a girl should have and you—riding with a young man in the park!"

He turned his back and walked away as though the thought were too much. Suddenly he circled about.

"How much do you know of this young man?" he demanded. "Who are his people? What does he do?"

Celia admitted between sobs that she did not know. Never in her life had she been so humiliated, so stormed at. There was a great blochy tear drop rolling the front of her gown now. No one had ever talked to her this way before.

"There is one thing you are to understand from now on," John Mitchell said firmly. "You are not to see this Jordan again. I mean it. A young man who keeps a girl out until this time of night is not the sort for any respectable young woman to associate with!"

There was a quick answer on Celia's tongue, but she checked it. Didn't her father realize times had changed since his boyhood? She thought of the guests at Mrs. Parsons' house party going for a swim at midnight. Her father was so sure everything about Evelyn Parsons was perfect. Celia might have said some of these things, but one glance at John Mitchell warned her argument was useless.

"Do you understand what I'm saying to you?" he asked.

"Yes, father."

"Then go to your room. It's nearly morning. If your grandmother should have any idea of what you've done tonight I'd hate to picture the consequences! Be quiet as you go up the stairs so not to wake her."

Celia went. She was a pitiful little figure as she mounted the stairs. Softly she turned the knob, opening the door of her bedroom. Then she closed it and switched on the lights. A sorry replica of herself in the mirror greeted her from the triple mirrors across the room.

The girl went nearer and surveyed herself. Swollen eyes red-rimmed. Hair awry. Her cheeks marked by tear stains, and the front of her frock soiled. What a sight!

Her beautiful birthday party—even the memory of the drive with Tod—was ruined now. Celia dropped her coat on a chair. Her eyes were smarting and filled with tears so that it was hard to undo the fasteners which held her dress. At last she had it off.

She dropped to the bed and let the sobs come. Her shoulders rose and fell convulsively. Finally the tears stopped and she lay quiet. Celia's mind was on her father. She sat up and took the ring off. It brought her misery back with a fresh start. Her father had said that she would never again see Tod. How could she keep such a promise?

It did not occur to the girl to blame Jordan for her unhappiness. It did not occur to her to suspect Evelyn Parsons of treachery.

Celia rose and dropped the ring in a box on her dressing table. Then she went to the bathroom and bathed her eyes with cold water. It eased their stinging.

Finally the girl turned out the light and crept into bed. She lay in the darkness for several minutes. Then she got up again, snatched on the light and went to her desk, fumbling through a drawer of papers. She found what she sought and returned to bed.

An hour later Celia dropped to sleep. Beneath her cheek, damped with tears, was the birthday letter from her mother.

She telephoned Evelyn Parsons at 10:30 the next morning. Rose said her mistress was having breakfast.

"Will you tell her it's Miss Mitchell calling?" Celia persisted. "Tell her I want to speak to her. It's important."

In a few moments Evelyn's dulcet tones came back over the wire.

"Why, Celia, dear, good morning! How're you feeling after the party?"

Celia swallowed. Then she said: "Good morning! I'm—oh, I'm all right, thank you. Mrs. Parsons, I want to see you. I—I want to talk to you about something. Could I come over right away?"

"Why, child—your voice sounds as though something were the matter. Of course, come along!"

Celia stopped just long enough to tell her grandmother she was going to call on Mrs. Parsons, and to wait for Thompson to bring the car around.

She reached Evelyn's fashionable apartment, stepped into the elevator, and a minute later Rose was ushering her into Mrs. Parsons' boudoir.

"Dear! You've been crying!"

The older woman's sympathetic tone broke down barriers of restraint. Celia told her all that had happened. Would Mrs. Parsons tell her how she could ever gain her father's respect again? How could she ever undo this tangle?

Evelyn comforted her. She declared that she herself would talk to John Mitchell. Celia was not to worry. Everything would right itself. As for never seeing Tod again, that was nonsense. She would tell Mitchell what a fine young man Jordan was.

The girl returned home feeling her burdens lightened. When she saw her father that evening he was cordial as usual. Celia began to believe her clouds were banished.

And then Friday morning she went again with her grandmother to Charlotte's shop.

Mrs. Mitchell had decided she needed a new tea gown. She stood on the fitting block as a seamstress smoothed down folds of lavender crepe. The seamstress dropped her ball of pins. It rolled within an inch of Celia's toe.

"Let me get it for you!" the girl cried. She picked up the object and returned it smiling.

Her grandmother stiffened. She made no comment until they were in the car again. Then she said: "Celia, your conduct speaking to that sewing woman was outrageous. Don't you know you can't treat tradespeople as equals?"

"I didn't," the girl began.

"That's enough!" snapped Mrs. Mitchell. "You are not to be familiar with common working people! A girl's eyes blazed. 'Don't you say that!' she cried. 'My mother works, and she's not common!'"

FALL CARE OF HOUSE PLANTS

By D. Victor Lumsden
Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

House plants will require more attention for the next five months than at any other time during the year. Adverse growing conditions develop during this period and intelligent care is required to keep the plants thriving.

Factors which affect house plants adversely in the fall and winter are lack of atmospheric humidity, diminishing daylight, faulty temperatures and mismanagement in watering.

Maintenance of sufficient moisture in the air in a heated room during the winter is the most difficult problem. During the summer house plants are kept out of doors, or indoors with windows open, so they enjoy a suitable growing atmosphere. The fact that furniture, flooring and other woodwork shrink during the winter when houses are artificially heated, indicates how moisture is drawn from plants.

Do not water plants at regular intervals. Water them only after examining the soil by touch to determine if it needs water. The best method of watering is to immerse the pot of soil in water for not more than one-half hour. This insures thorough moistening of all the soil and prevents uneven distribution.

To counteract the short daylight period during winter, keep plants in a location where they get the maximum amount of sunlight. A southeastern exposure is the best.

Keep Steady Temperature

During winter many home plants are kept at a temperature of 75 degrees Fahrenheit as high as the thermometer should go. At night keep the room temperature from falling more than 10 or possibly 15 degrees.

HEALTH

MINOR DEFECTS IN SPINE SELDOM ARE HARMFUL

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

It is now recognized that at least 85 per cent of people have some abnormality or variation in the position of the bones of the spine or of the large bones which form the pelvis.

In the vast majority of cases these minor variations from perfection cause no harm. In an occasional case the spot of abnormality suddenly yields to some unusual strain and becomes responsible for persistent backache.

The possibilities of variations are innumerable and the only way in which one may surely judge their presence or absence is by the making of an X-ray plate which reveals the situation perfectly. It is not possible to rely on one plate taken from one position; several X-ray plates must be made in various positions.

In many instances the child at birth has an imperfection of the lower portion of the spine which becomes apparent only when stress associated with manual labor in adolescence is applied to the defective area.

It must also be recognized that as men or women become older, there is a tendency to put on more weight and that this brings about additional pressure on parts of the bony skeleton not capable of taking care of the added strain.

When a woman goes through childbirth, there are additional strains on various portions of her anatomy. Thus after childbirth it may become necessary to supply especially made corsets or braces to take care of the unusual loadings of the abnormal anatomical conditions.

Sometimes one leg may be slightly shorter than another or may be crippled through an accident so as to cause a contraction which gives the effect of shortness. When the person walks for a long period of time with this condition, the bones of the spine gradually curve to accommodate the change in strain.

After these compressions or curvatures take place, the person is likely to suffer with pain in the back so severe as to be incapacitating. The only relief for such pain is in the use of adhesive strapping or the wearing of a brace which helps to take some of the strain off the bones that have been twisted into new positions.

Dr. J. T. Rugh cites a case in which a young man 17 years of age was forced to give up athletics because of a pain in the lower part of the back on any attempt at rowing.

When he was stripped and his spine studied, there was a slight deviation to the right side. A careful measurement of the legs showed that the right leg was one-quarter of an inch shorter than the left. The heel was raised one-eighth of an inch on the right and lowered one-eighth of an inch on the left. The young man again took up athletics wearing a quarter-inch wedge in the heel of his right shoe and was successful with his team.

YOUR CHILDREN

The world is full of noise. Whether or not the race will adjust itself in time to the millions of sounds that fill the air remains for future generations to prove.

But the modern age with its contributing noises has sprung on humanity overnight so that the child we are not adjusted. Even the country does not escape entirely, with its radios, electric equipment and cars.

However, the people who live in the country may have long silences when they wish, and noise is not wearing them out. It is wearing city dwellers out mentally, morally, and physically. And if we are to keep our health and nerves it is up to us to seek such silences as we can get.

When children are growing they need silence. Their nerves need rest from the constant stimulus of sound of waves. Older people are very likely to think that the child does not notice noise, but although in another way they are right in their opinion. For noise corrodes the conscious mind registers it as a sensation or not. The physical impact of sound waves on the nerves of hearing goes on just the same, and nerves constantly hammered upon react on the entire nervous system. The centers in the brain lie very close to each other.

For that reason, if for no other, children should have certain periods of absolute quiet at some time during the day.

School is not quiet, except perhaps in study periods. Always there is someone walking or speaking or marching, the thousand sounds of the schoolroom. Besides there are the city noises coming through the windows. Although quiet in its way, school cannot be considered the antidote for noise fatigue.

If the children need rest from sound, what are we going to do about it?

The remedy depends entirely upon the situation of each particular family and there is no practical suggestion to fit every case. But a few general ideas might be kept in mind.

Quiet Needed at Night

Children should have bedrooms as far away from the street noises as possible. And for a certain period each day they should go to the retreat of their own rooms, not with the radio going downstairs, with the dog barking, the family shouting and the telephone jangling, but with the house attuned to silence.

Let them read, or paint, or sew, or do any quiet work, or even lie down. The silent hour is getting to be an institution in a great many homes. Sometimes just before the evening meal, or on Saturdays right after lunch.

The ideal house for children is situated as far away from noise as possible, but if we cannot always take our house to quietude, we can bring a certain quietude once a day to our houses, for 'our bodies', our minds', and our souls' sake.

DIFFERENT SIDES

New hats are likely to have one side revealing, one side concealing the hair. The rolled double-brim is the one to have, if you like brims.

SUN VS. POTATOES

Potatoes should never be exposed to the sun because the light will give them a queer, unpalatable flavor.

Connecticut Boy Amazes Mother

"Billie's stomach was often upset and he suffered a lot from colds," says Mrs. M. F. Carroll, 145 Adelaide St., Hartford. "He was feverish and his breath was bad. I found he was constipated."

"My mother used California Fig Syrup with us, so I decided to give Billie some. It surely surprised me to see how quickly it stopped his feverishness, cleared his breath and tongue, regulated his bowels; made him a strong and energetic boy again."

The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headache, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Give it at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness or feverishness. Every child loves its rich, fruity flavor and it acts without griping or discomfort. Appetite is increased by its use. Only a few drops will soothe stomach and bowels are given tone and strength.

For fifty years, doctors have endorsed this pure vegetable product. The genuine is always marked by the word California. Look for that when buying or you may get an imitation.

BATTLE OF HASTINGS

On Oct. 14, 1066, the conquest of England was auspiciously begun when the Normans, under William, Duke of Normandy, defeated the English, under King Harold, at the Battle of Hastings.

Duke William claimed that Harold had agreed to support his claim to the English crown on the height of the Confessor, and, when this was done, William began preparations to wrest the crown from Harold by force.

Harold had just conquered his brother and rival, Tostig, at Stamford Bridge, and when he heard that the Normans were ravaging the south he immediately hastened in that direction. The Norman army was divided into three parts, the center being led by Duke William in person. Shortly after the battle began the invaders fled and the English, falling into a trap, foolishly pursued. The Norman center repulsed the English and easily won the battle.

William met little vigorous opposition thereafter in his conquest of England. He was ultimately crowned King of England in Westminster Abbey. Possessed of remarkable ability, William ruled strictly, kept excellent order and won success by his own initiative.

Field Goal By Bartos Wins For Fordham Rams

Four Costly Fumbles Saves Boston College From Worse Beating; Yale Given Gift Touchdown Against Georgia; Saturday's Games.

Boston, Oct. 14.—(AP)—After fumbling away several hard earned scoring chances, the powerful Fordham football Rams got organized late in the final period and battered Boston College inside of the latter's 10 yard line to give Quarterback Frank Bartos a chance to drop kick the New Yorkers into a 3 to 0 victory here yesterday at Fenway Park.

The Jesuit rivals had a torrid afternoon for their annual gridiron battle. Twenty-five thousand sun-baked spectators braved the unreasonable heat and saw the superior Fordham machine work hard enough to score five touchdowns. Four costly fumbles and an intercepted pass, however, held the Maroon scoreless until the fourth period.

Fordham was outwitted during most of the game and one of the two breaks that came its way happened when Charley Fleckiewicz, former South Boston high school, intercepted an Eagle forward near midfield in the last quarter. Johnny Janis of Fordham, guilty of three fumbles, then redeemed himself somewhat in the critical eyes of Major Frank Cavanaugh, his coach, by ripping off tackle for eight yards. Murphy made it a first down on Boston College's 40 yard line on a line plunge and Fordham gained 16 more yards when the Rams drew their second penalty for unnecessary roughness.

Janis then made a wide end sweep for 15 yards and smashed through the tackle twice to place the ball in position for Bartos' successful field goal, which was almost blocked.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Major football teams in the east forget all about inter-sectional rivalries this week and settle down to the serious business of settling a few ancient domestic disputes.

Topping the section's program will be the 16th battle between Harvard and Army at Cambridge, Harvard won the first 13 games played with Army but the Cadets broke the charm in 1928 and then rallied to a 20-20 tie last year. This rivalry goes back to 1895.

A little older is the Yale-Brown feud which will be played in the Yale Bowl. Of 55 games played since 1893, Yale has won 29, lost four and tied two.

Cornell's high scoring machine will seek its fifth victory in 39 years over Princeton and the charmed Harvard will seek to break a losing streak of 17 games since 1891 with the Tigers winning 13 games.

SPORT SLANTS

World series echoes:
George Earnshaw being an "old grad" of Swarthmore, the Athletics worked up an appropriate college yell on the way back east after the fifth game. Its elementary burden was as follows:
"Sweet potatoes, sweet potatoes, sell 'em by the pack;
"They tried to hit Earnshaw but took it in the neck;
"St. Louis! St. Louis! St. Louis!"

When the Athletics filled the bases in the eighth inning of Burlington Grimes, the Cardinal pitcher turned toward Connie Mack and yelled:
"Now's the time to master mind! Why don't you try the squeeze play?"

Grimes and Ed Rommel, jockey-in-chief of the Athletics from the first base coaching line, engaged in continual verbal warfare.
Rommel's opening remark to the Card pitcher was:
"How do you like pitching against a big league team now?"

Grimes retorted:

Charles Magnus Gelbert, the sensational Cardinal shortstop, hasn't been in the big show long enough to get his name in "Who's Who in Baseball", but it will be found there in the 1931 edition.
He comes of prime athletic stock. His father was a great athlete at years ago. The youngster was born in Scranton, Pa., January 26, 1906, but his home now is in St. Ambler. He is 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighs 175. He is a product of the famous Cardinal "farm system," getting his training work for the years ago. The youngster with the Rochester Internationals he batted .261 in his first major league campaign in 1929 and .304 this year.

The Cardinals, having fought their world's series work for the leadership of as many different managers—Hornaby, McKeechie and Street—are in a fair way to equal or beat the achievement of the old Boston Red Sox.

The Hub outfit won six pennants under four different pilots, Jimmy Collins and Bill Carrigan being the only ones to repeat.
The Red Sox, however, never lost a world's series, no matter who was the pitcher. Collins, Jake Stahl, Carl Hubbell (twice) and Ed Barrow directed clubs that beat the National league opposition in 1903, 1912, 1915, 1918 and 1918.

GLENNA SEEKS THIRD STRAIGHT TRIUMPH

HELEN HICKS, VIRGINIA VAN WIE, MAUREEN OROUIT, and GLENNA COLLETT.

Los Angeles Country Club, will find them present in great numbers, from Champion Glenna Collett on down.

And now we'll hear from the ladies. Since early spring when Bobby Jones started something that he could and did finish, the women golfers have hovered in the background—not by choice, perhaps, but pushed there by the championship activities of the Atlantic. But now it is their turn, and the women's national championship, Oct. 13-18 at Los Angeles, will find them present in great numbers, from Champion Glenna Collett on down.

No Sectional Grid Superiority, Yost Shows; Definitions 'Talk'
By FIELDING H. YOST
Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Questions of sectional superiority and influence beget partisan support and argument. Mythical divisions between the middle west and east have been "talked" for years.

Now supporters of the west coast and the old south seem anxious to break an argumentative lance with any opponent.
Prospects are perfect for a perpetual vocal and typewriter cleavage between the sections, the differences made all the more intense through impossibility of decision. The Pacific coast generally is heralded as a section of strong teams. As only a limited number of schools can finance inter-sectional games necessitating more than 3,000 miles of travel, the coast's history of inter-sectional games is brief. However, 25 contests were held in a five year period.

In that time coast teams lost three and tied one with southern teams. Against the middle west the record is a staimate, each section winning five with one a tie. Only one of these games, Chicago's 26 to 6 defeat of Washington, was against a Big Ten team. Against eastern teams the coast won nine and tied one.

The above statistics disclose the south is the football power when meeting teams of the west coast.
Any football expert from New York or New England, however, can call to mind the vast number of games the eastern coast has won from the old south and establish the dominance of the east.

Accepting eastern statistics and being logical at the same time, it would follow that the east is better than the south, and therefore better than the coast.
But an eastern team has not won from a coast team in five years, if the records available here are complete.

MRS. HILL SHOOT 2 STROKES UNDER PAR TO QUALIFY

Meets Last Year's Opposing Semi-Finalist, Miss Wall, in First Round.

Los Angeles, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A dual of championship calibre was in prospect here today as two of the middle-west's most promising entries in the National Women's golf championship, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, and Miss Bernice Wall, opposed each other in the feature clash of first round match play. Both were semi-finalists last year.

Mrs. Hill yesterday started the 96 feminine stylists by finishing two under par to lead the qualifying round with a 79 over the trying Los Angeles Country Club's north course. Miss Wall, from Oakbrook, Wis., finished with an 87.

The defending champion, Miss Glenna Collett, seeking her fifth crown, also showed in yesterday's play, posting an 81 to tie for third in the medal round.

Miss Helen Hicks, the 19-year-old Inwood, N. Y., girl, and medalist in 1929, took second in the qualifying play with an 80.

Mrs. Leona Presser of San Gabriel, Calif., the player in whom the Pacific seaboard plus its chief hopes for its first title, had a 62 yesterday, one over perfect figures. She trailed Miss Maureen Orouit, Hawthorn, N. J. Miss Virginia Van Wye, Chicago, who tied Miss Collett with par 81's.

Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, Philadelphia, title winner in 1926, furnished yesterday's principal upset by yielding to qualify.

Partisans are certain to argue, however. One dictionary defines partisan as "unreasoning, prejudiced." The word is closely associated with "battle." Because the question of national sectional football supremacy cannot be decided a fertile field is left for the word battles of the partisans.

It would be a great boon to football as a game if it were recognized that football ability is equal throughout the United States.

Caldwell May Play Against The Majors

Former Yale Star is Signed to Play Three Games With Middletown Sons of Italy and Tomorrow May be One of Them.

The Sons of Italy football team of Middletown who will play the Majors tomorrow night at the Hurley Stadium in East Hartford, are one of the leading teams in the state. They have held the city championship for the past five years and have yet to be scored upon by any team, winning their four games.

The Majors are out for the town championship as well as the state semi-pro title so in order to hold a clear claim they will have to take the Sons late camp. The Majors have also won four games and have not been scored upon in any of the games this season.

Following are the teams they beat: Yellow Jackets of Stamford 48-0, Rangers of Naugatuck 6-0, Maple Ends of Bristol 6-0 and Sunday they gave the New Britain Blues the worst beating in years, 25-0.

The Majors have signed Lazarus, star tackle of Providence college, for the balance of the season. It was not long ago when this chap tore the Brown line apart.

It is rumored that the Sons of Italy will ring in Bruce Caldwell Wednesday night in order to put a stop to the Majors' march, as they have signed him up for three different games this season.

In case of rain the game will be played Thursday night. The line-ups:

Sons of Italy	Majors
Parson	McCarty
P. Salpa	Larson
Coloque	LG Mullins
Annino	CG S. Vendrillo
S. Salpa	RC Scully
Malone	RT Skonroy
Cello	RE Skonroy

REC FIVE OPENS ON THANKSGIVING

Home Games to be Played Tuesday Nights; Mgr. Ben Clune to Have Full Charge.

The Rec Five basketball team will open its season on Thanksgiving Day night. It was announced today by Manager Ben Clune following a meeting of the players last night. Home games will be played each Tuesday night thereafter.

The first call for candidates will be on Tuesday, October 21 at 7:30. Manager Clune will have full charge of the team's destinies. Mrs. Walter Wilkinson has been elected treasurer.

Edward F. Taylor, chairman of the Rec committee, and Director Lewis Lloyd of the Rec Centers, were present at the meeting last night and they outlined the conditions under which the team will be operated.

Jefferson City, Mo.—(AP)—Midwest nimrods will know just what to go back hunting this fall, thanks to the game departments of six mid-west states.

Weekly reports are to be issued telling whether the ducks are flying and where. These will be supplemented by special reports as the ducks are under way.

The report system has been worked out by state game departments of Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North and South Dakota.

SPORT BRIEFS

Five scouts from the Southern conference went away from Minneapolis meeting after watching Vanderbilt through Minnesota, 33-7. Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs, gave his old team mates the St. Louis Cardinals a football "pop" talk, before the last game of the world's series, but apparently some of the boys had never been to college.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, Yankee stars, are barnstorming in the east.
Mike McTigue, Pat McDonald and Matt McGrath, New York's famous "three Macks" appeared together recently at an athletic dinner.

Francis "Santy" Hogan, New York's "Clan" catcher, was stabbed but not seriously following an altercation with a negro. The negro first tried to beat Hogan with a baseball bat.

Babe Herman, Brooklyn right fielder, after the regular season led a team in exhibition games.
The old Manhattan Casino in New York where Benny Leonard won the lightweight title from Freddy Welsh is now being operated as "Rockland Palace."

Bill Hallahan, Cardinal outpaw, who weighs around 160 pounds, and is about a head shorter than Lefty Grove showed a fast ball in the world's series that equalled that of the Athletic ace.

Des Moines—Mickey Walker, a world middleweight champ stopped Mike Mandell, St. Paul, 1. (non-title).

WORLD SERIES DRAMA

Hamilton, N. Y.—(AP)—Head Coach Andy Kerr of the Colgate university football eleven is studying the work of his man from an improvised section box.

The structure is a white painted, three-sided booth, with its floor four feet above the ground.

Watching the players in action from this elevation, the coach has added materially to his visibility, especially in blocking and mistakes in backfield shifts.

Rural School Has Golf Links Plainville, Tex.—(AP)—Students at a rural school near here are residents of the community may now spend their spare moments golfing. A nine hole course with the longest hole 175 yards and the shortest 60 yards has been laid out at the Hallway school.

Baschell Got Al Spanked Tampa, Fla.—(AP)—Mrs. Eugenia Lopez went to spank her son Alfonso because he played baseball when the cow had to be milked. This fall she went to Brooklyn to see him perform behind the plate for the Robins.

Kansas Freshman Squad Large Lawrence, Kan.—(AP)—The largest squad of freshmen in years has turned out for football at the Kansas university here. Steve Emschaw, yearling coach, issued his first orders on the team will meet the Missouri yardbirds, November 1, and Kansas Aggie team, November 7.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

Carnera and Maloney. It has become the habit among sports writers to discuss prize fights, especially those held between heavyweights, in an inquiring way.

What was supposed to happen? is the question. Thus, after most of the affairs between big boys nowadays, an investigation is required to find out what it was all about.

There is a division of opinion over the merits of the recent meeting of Carnera and Jimmy Maloney. Certain scribes who have talked on the way home from the world series, expressed themselves forcibly as suspicious of the arrangement. Their belief was that Carnera's handler may be taking a new tack, trying to build him up with the idea that he will beat A.J. Well, well, we shall see what we shall see!

The Grimes Tragedy. Young men who plan taking courses in oratory as adjunctive to a career in athletics should consider studying Burleigh Grimes, and take pause. Burleigh has won a lot of ball games by pitching. During the world series he lost two by overworking his vocabulary.

If Mr. Grimes had concentrated more on the task in hand, rather than wide-ranging remarks before the first game in Philadelphia, not only did he win the game, but the opposition and determination to beat him, but his remarks brought reflections upon himself. After the story of his blustering speeches was put on the wires, Burleigh started receiving telegrams from friends asking him how he got the way.

Burleigh became so incensed that he rebuked several of the newspapermen who filed the story, charging they had misinterpreted his assertions and exaggerated in such a way as to make him appear somewhat of a clownish.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR BANK BANDITS
Centerville, Mich., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Only a little more than 12 hours following their capture after the killing of a state policeman and the robbery of a bank at Battle Creek, Mich., 28, were sentenced in Circuit Court here today to life imprisonment in Jackson prison.

State Trooper John Burke was shot and killed by the pair when he overtook them as they were attempting to escape to Indiana in an automobile after robbing the east end branch of the Old Merchants Trust and Savings bank at Battle Creek.

They were captured later near the Indiana state line by other state troopers when their automobile became overheated and they abandoned it, starting by foot down a highway.

GOOD ROADS DRAMA
Hartford, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The drama will be used to spread the doctrine of good rural roads. The Connecticut Rural Roads Improvement Association has voted to employ a playwright to write a play with adequate country highways as the central theme.

President L. G. Tolles, of Southington, says it will be "amusing as well as instructive." The play will be offered to dramatic societies throughout the state. The association is sponsoring a bill providing for an appropriation of $5,000,000 for improving the rural roads.

Fact for today. The Scotch are most eagerly sought as life guards because they are such "saving people."
Now that wine making is declared to be within the law, many will probably endeavor to improve their port by a system of arbor development.

Total assets as of September 30, 1930, were $36,666,595.74, and included $29,406,993.17 in first mortgage bonds on city residential property in 26 cities in the United States and Canada. Increase in mortgage loans for the year was $4,245,492.67. Bonds and securities totaled $2,144,972.89, an increase over September 30, 1929, of $660,224.40.

Capital, surplus and reserves increased $977,329.08 during the year, and totaled $4,807,049.37. As of September 30, 1929, this total stood at $3,829,720.79.

"A large increase in assets of Investors Syndicate during a year of depression such as has been experienced throughout the world, indicates strongly that thrift has made a remarkable showing in this country during a trying period, as the business of this company measures saving power in a large number of cities through purchase of installment Investment Certificates," Mr. Crabb said.

GAS BUGGIES—Some Position

AS I HAVE SAID MY EMPLOYER'S OUTSTANDING POSITION IN THE FINANCIAL WORLD NECESSITATES CONCEALING HIS NAME UNTIL A MAN IS SELECTED FOR THIS CONFIDENTIAL MISSION. BRIEFLY, THE SITUATION IS THIS: MY EMPLOYER ABHORES MEETING THE PUBLIC AND BASKING IN THE LIMELIGHT HIS SUCCESS. HE HAS REQUESTED THAT I BE PHOTOGRAPHED, AND I HAVE BEEN SO.

NONE BUT HIS CLOSEST ASSOCIATES KNOW HIM BY SIGHT. IN OTHER WORDS, HE IS COMPLETELY UNKNOWN TO THE PUBLIC EXCEPT BY NAME. BUT HIS NAME HAS COME APPEARANCE. HE WANTS A CAPABLE MAN TO ASSUME HIS IDENTITY AND TO APPEAR FOR HIM. WOULD SUCH A POSITION APPEAL TO YOU?

AHEM! WELL, FRANKLY, IT DOES. MR. SMITH, I'VE BEEN QUITE SUCCESSFUL MYSELF, AND FEEL I AM JUST THE MAN TO FILL THE POSITION.

THE MOMENT I SAW YOU I WAS STRUCK BY YOUR PHYSICAL RESEMBLANCE TO MY EMPLOYER. HE IS DUE HERE ANY MOMENT, AND WILL DISCUSS THE MATTER OF SALARY WITH YOU.

SKIPPY

By Percy L. Crosby

I DON'T CARE WHO YOU VOTE FOR, BUT I'M TRYING TO GET THE LEADERSHIP JUST TO BRING BACK ALL THE GOOD CROWD AGAIN. THERE ARE OTHER SUNDAY SCHOOL KIDS WHO ARE GOING TO VOTE FOR ME, BUT IN YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL WANTS TO GO AGAINST ME AND VOTE FOR SPUMONE WHO SCRATCHES CARS AND MAKES PEOPLE PAY FOR PROTECTION. THERE'S SOMETHING THE MATTER WITH YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL, BECAUSE THIS CAMPAIGN IS FOR RIGHT AGAINST WRONG, AND ALL SUNDAY SCHOOLS SHOULD STICK TOGETHER TO SAVE YESSY STREET, BECAUSE I TELL YOU THAT EVERYTHING WILL GO UNLESS THIS SPUMONE GANG IS STOPPED.

Manchester Man (pointing to old car)—I proposed to my wife in that car.
Friend—I suppose you keep it for its memories.
Man—We keep it to ride in.
Magistrate—Just where did the automobile hit you?
Injured Lady—Well, if I had been wearing a license plate it would have been pretty badly damaged.
Dumb Dora thinks if you're driving a car without a license and run into somebody it doesn't count.
Traffic-Cop—Say, young woman, do you realize you were going 60 miles an hour?
Flapper—Isn't it wonderful and I only learned to drive yesterday?
Auto Salesman—Let me show you something new in a snappy sedan.
Girl—it won't do you a bit of good, and I don't think you could anyway.
Salesman—Have you reached a decision as to the kind of a car you are going to buy?
Prospect—My wife and family will let me know tonight.

ONCE UPON A TIME

Governor John C. Phillips of Arizona helped build the capitol he now rules. He worked on the territorial building as a carpenter's assistant in 1898, when he arrived at Phoenix without funds.

Visitor—What's your name?
Negro—George Washington, sah!
Visitor—Well, that's a name everybody knows.
Negro—Ef it ain't, it outta be, Ah's been drivin' dis yere hack in dis yere town foh thutty yers, sub.

Let chambers of commerce and city boosters fall back and make way for the best town boosters we've seen in our travels. It was dusk of a winter's day when we reached the outskirts of a Southern town and slowed up to get our bearings. A small, barefoot negro boy was edging his way along the highway near us.

Visitor—Rastus, I see your mule has "U. S." branded on his hind-quarters. Was he in the army?
Rastus—No, heas, dat "U. S." don't stan' fo' "Uncle Sam," it means "Un-Safe."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The train ride was a pleasant one and all the Tinties had much fun. At noon they ate a tasty lunch while whizzing through space. They all had real good appetites. "Go right ahead, you Tintymites," exclaimed the friendly Travel Man, with a smile upon his face. "I want to see you eat real well because, you know, you n'er can tell just when and where we'll eat again. This trip will soon be over. Upon a boat we'll shortly be, that sells the Mediterranean Sea. If there is wind and it is rough, you will hear the wild waves roar." "Don't worry," Scouty said. "This treat is fine. We're always glad to eat. But, when I've finished with this meal, I'll have to take a snooze. Whenever lots of food I take, it's very hard to keep awake. I guess I'd better sleep right now. I have no time to lose."
