

RIO CALMS DOWN AFTER THE UPSET

Rebels to Turn Over Govern- ment to Leaders—Getulio Vargas to Become Presi- dent—Shops Are Opened.

Rio De Janeiro, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The provisional government now ruling Brazil following the overthrow of President Washington Luis Friday considers itself merely a temporary agent and will turn the government over to those who led the revolt beginning October 3 as soon as possible.

General Tasso Fragoso, a member of the military-naval junta, said in an interview this morning that members of the junta considered themselves named by the people and their colleagues in arms to deliver over the country to the representatives of the national movement, who already have been summoned to the capital.

Vargas As President
By this he referred to Getulio Vargas, who is expected to become provisional president, and other leaders of the three-week-old revolution.

"Not only has Getulio Vargas been kept informed of all details of the junta's work," General Fragoso said, "but the junta has sent deputy Artosto Pinto and Rio Grande do Sul to that state by airplane for a conference with Vargas."

"The movement initiated by the generals and admirals last Friday had as its principal object the continuance of the armed struggle, which was becoming bloody and with immense losses to the country."

General Fragoso said that the provisional government's attitude toward foreign nations was "inspired by a spirit of close friendship and intense brotherhood to all the nations of the world which is evidenced by the appointment of Mello Franco, who formerly headed the Brazilian delegation to the League of Nations, as foreign minister."

Pending the establishment of a new government, however, the junta has named only sufficient officials to maintain order and deal with the various governments. Life in Rio De Janeiro returned to normal this morning, cafes and bars were open. They are selling stronger drinks and all public assemblies are still prohibited.

In a meeting today the Junta decided to dissolve the Senate Chamber of Deputies, the Municipal Assembly of Rio de Janeiro and the State Legislatures. Moraes Barros, a Federal deputy from Sao Paulo, was named minister of agriculture at the same session.

Prisoners Released
Most of the political figures of the former administration who were imprisoned Friday were released today. The former vice-president, Dr. Mello Vianna, was liberated on condition that he remain in the Federal district. The former vice-president embarked on the steamer Almazora, however, planning first to go to Buenos Aires and then to Europe. Hearing that Mello Vianna intended eventually to return to Brazil, General Leite de Castro, the new minister of war ordered that the ex-official be taken off the boat.

Colonel Bertholdo Klingner, prefect of police here, today notified all embassies and legations that Brazilian journalists who had taken refuge with foreign envoys following the riots Friday could return to their homes, the government guaranteeing protection.

KELLEY'S CHARGES ARE FOUND UNTRUE

Department of Justice Re- ports Oil Lands Are Pro- tected.

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Department of Justice investigation of oil shale land administration has ended in complete endorsement of the Interior Department's policy, but Ralph S. Kelley, whose charges brought on the inquiry today termed its results "white wash from start to finish—and clumsy white wash."

Kelley, for years in charge of the Denver field division of the Interior Department, in resigning recently accused Secretary Wilbur and his predecessors in office with favoring large oil concerns which he said were seeking to obtain possession illegally of shale lands of great value in Colorado.

Wilbur immediately asked the Department of Justice to investigate. Kelley refused to take any part in the inquiry and detailed his accusations instead in a series of newspaper articles.

Report On Probe
Yesterday Attorney General Mitchell transmitted to Secretary Wilbur a report by Assistant Attorney General Seth W. Richardson which said Kelley's charges were unfounded. The Richardson report said:

"The department finds no merit or substance in the Kelley charges. It has been unable to find any evidence of carelessness, irregularity or wrong doing in connection with the administration of the Interior Department of oil shale lands in the past and there is every evidence under the present administration of Secretary Wilbur that the oil shale lands of the United States have been fully, fairly, adequately and lawfully protected, conserved and administered."

In a statement replying to the report Kelley said:

"The Department of Justice report is a ridiculous white wash. It reeks with misstatements and misrepresentations. After a hasty, superficial so-called investigation, the attorney general has only praise for his fellow Cabinet member, Secretary Wilbur, though the fact remains because not even the attorney general can escape it—that the oil companies have the Colorado oil lands. The public, to which they belong, has lost them."

OFFERS FREE WOOD TO IDLE IN STATE

Over 50,000 Cords of Wood Going to Waste in Forests; Mr. Hawes' Offer.

Hartford, Oct. 27.—(AP)—There may be some unemployment the coming winter, but State Forester Austin F. Hawes says there is little reason for the unemployed to suffer for lack of fuel. In his opinion 50,000 cords of wood are going to waste in state forests which could be distributed to those who will cut and remove it. Removal of the wood will improve growing conditions in the forests. Much dead wood should be burned at once. Green wood cut now can be burned before the end of the winter.

Mr. Hawes has sent letters to mayors of cities calling attention to availability of the wood in the forests. He offers the wood as one means of aiding the unemployment situation. He will give written permits to cut and remove such wood under proper supervision of a forest ranger. No live trees will be cut except those recommended by the ranger. Ten cords to an individual is limited.

Denver Woman Admits Killing Stepchild

After steadfastly denying her guilt through several days of severe questioning, Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin of Denver, wife of a police detective, broke down and confessed that she killed her stepchild, 10-year-old Leona O'Loughlin, whose body had been found in a lake. In this picture Mrs. O'Loughlin is shown being taken to jail by Detectives Arthur Wachter (left) and J. S. Turner. Inset is a closeup of the woman, taken in jail.

COLORFUL CEREMONIES TO ATTEND CORONATION

Foreign Delegates Arrive in Abyssinia for Historic Event—Emperor of Ethio- pia to be Installed Nov. 22

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, Oct. 27.—(AP)—While new foreign delegations continued to arrive today, for coronation of Ras Tafari as Emperor of Ethiopia, potentates of the Coptic church mar the gorgeous golden crowns which rested in St. George's church on the third of the seven days of sanctification which precede the royal ceremonies.

More than one thousand picturesque attired priests of the Christian church which has come down through sixteen centuries in Egypt intoned their prayers and the churches of the city tolled their bells while the crowns, together with the coronation robes and the imperial scepter of the emperor and empress were carried on Saturday in solemn procession through the streets of the capital.

Prayer Over Crowns
For the remainder of this week preceding the coronation rites on Nov. 2 and for a fortnight thereafter, clergy will pray over the crowns continuously by night and by day.

The crowns are fashioned of pure gold.

INVESTIGATE DEATH OF NEW HAVEN MAN

Found Dead in New York Hotel Room With the Gas Turned On.

New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—An inquiry was ordered today to determine whether the death of Roy L. Danks, 36, member of a wealthy New Haven, Conn., family, was suicide or due to an accident.

Danks was found dead of gas poisoning in his apartment in the Hotel des Artistes, in West 87th street yesterday.

Clad in pajamas he was seated near a gas range with fumes flowing from several jets.

William Brownlie, his butler, said Danks returned from the Yale Army football game at New Haven yesterday.

Had Been Drinking
Night attendants in the hotel asserted that Danks had been drinking and was taken to his apartment and put to bed.

DUCE PREDICTS FASCIST EUROPE IN 2 DECADES

Mussolini Calls on Party to Harden Policy Against Its Foes; Says Europe is Pre- paring for War Now.

Rome, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini in an address today called upon the Fascist Party for a hardening of policy against its foes in Italy and beyond her borders and predicted a wholly Fascist Europe within two decades.

He spoke in Venezia palace to the Fascist Council, on the eve of the eighth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome.

The Duke said that having "unmasked this hypocritical Europe," he talks peace at Geneva and prepares for war nevertheless, his legions would continue to combat all antagonisms and expel their enemies until none remain.

Speaking in Venezia palace, the premier declared that the doctrines and ideas of Fascism had become worldwide but that the opposition forces were centering their attack politically upon Italy. He called this "moral opposition" and asserted that it was but preparation for military war.

Mussolini said that in 1932 upon the tenth anniversary of the march on Rome, the "greatest armed gathering Rome has seen in its 3,000 years of history" would mark that anniversary.

While the Duce was speaking in the palace a large crowd gathered, filling the square and shouting for him. He appeared on a balcony and responded with the Roman salute.

Rome, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, on the eve of the eighth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome, today told the Federal directors of Italy that indirect war—preparation for military war—was constantly being made on the kingdom.

Referring to his widely-publicized speeches of the Tuscan year last May, he said:

"With those speeches I intended to take off the mask from this hypocritical Europe which talks about peace at Geneva and is prepared for war nevertheless."

"To kill Fascists, is not this an act of hostility? To defame the regime and damage it in credit, is not this an act of war? Calumnies and infamies, are they not launched upon the arrival of the army at the Yale goal line, the pictures showed that the referee had stopped on catching the ball, that the referee had signaled a halt of the play and that Army players toward the Yale goal line. There Yale held for three downs against Kilday's attempt to buck the line. After that came the touchdown, the legality of which may be open to question."

Shortly after, with Yale forced to kick from behind its own goal line, the Army made a steady advance toward the Yale goal line. There Yale held for three downs against Kilday's attempt to buck the line. After that came the touchdown, the legality of which may be open to question.

ARMY'S TOUCHDOWN PICTURED ILLEGAL

Camera Reveals Kilday Was Shoved Over Yale Line; Also Booth Was Roughed.

New Haven, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The touchdown made by the Army against Yale in the Bowl Saturday may have been a questionable one under the rules, Yale men said today after viewing motion pictures of the game.

It is claimed that Kilday in making the touchdown had help from behind in violation of the rules. The pictures showed Yale had held for three downs with the Army but a yard to go, that Kilday made an upright charge at the line and was thrown back, but as he came down Stecker charged it, hit him squarely in the back and lifted him far enough to clear the goal line. It is claimed the pictures show Kilday had halted before this was done.

The pictures were scrutinized by Head Coach Max Stevens, Coach Adam Walsh, Tad Jones, Dean Charles Mendell and Athletic Manager Harold F. Woodcock.

The rule says: "Rule 10, section one, article one, that 'no player of the team in possession of the ball may help the runner except by interfering for him and there shall be no interlocking interference.' A violation means a penalty of 15 yards. There is a supplementary note to the effect that 'pushing the runner or lifting runner from the ground by teammates is infraction of the rule.'"

Booth Was Roughed
Prior to the arrival of the Army at the Yale goal line, the pictures showed that Booth, in the single play in which he took part, had been stopped on catching the ball, that the referee had signaled a halt of the play and that Army players toward the Yale goal line. There Yale held for three downs against Kilday's attempt to buck the line. After that came the touchdown, the legality of which may be open to question.

BRAZILIANS BLAME CAPTAIN OF BADEN

Say German Ignored Com- mand to Stop Ship Before Shots Were Fired.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Brazilian officials asserted today that Capt. Rollin, commander of the German steamer Baden, which was fired on Friday by a Rio De Janeiro fortress with a loss of 27 lives was entirely to blame for the incident.

They said Captain Rollin did not follow written instructions from the captain of the port regulating the departure of steamers.

Captain Carvalho, commander of Santa Cruz fortress, described the incident today. He said that at the moment the Baden approached the harbor exit the fortress fired a signal showing that the port was closed. Notwithstanding this, he added, the ship continued its course outward without making signals.

One blast shot was fired, but the boat continued ahead at full speed. A second blast shot was disregarded, then a loaded shell was fired to drop close. With this disregarded, a larger shell was fired but the gunners still were careful not to hit the Baden.

SEA PACT DEPOSITED WITH BRIEF CEREMONY

Governmental Leaders of United States, Britain and Japan Exchange Views Over the Radio—Emphasize the Fact That for First Time All Types of Naval Building by Three Powers Are Restricted—Hope That France and Italy Will Come to an Agreement Soon—Pact "Bound to Exercise Immense Moral Influence on Mankind," Says Japanese Premier, in Discussing the Event.

By Associated Press
The governmental leaders of the American, British and Japanese peoples, conversing around the world today on attainment by the London treaty of binding effectiveness, hailed that covenant as signifying the end of competitive naval building among the three powers.

The British foreign office at noon was the scene of a simple, ten-minute ceremony for deposit of ratifications. A while later President Hoover, Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Hamaguchi exchanged their views that the occasion was a bright augury for peace.

The speeches were broadcast internationally from Washington, London and Tokio.

First Real Start
They emphasized that the treaty restricts for the first time all types of naval building by the United States, Great Britain and Japan. France and Italy failed to agree at the conference, but signed the pact without becoming parties to the section which limits strength on the seas.

President Hoover said those two nations, while "not as yet full partners" in the treaty, were seeking to reach an understanding. He expressed the confident hope "that patience and good will may yet lead to a solution."

Prime Minister MacDonald, who witnessed the ceremony, also voiced an earnest hope that recent negotiations between France and Italy "may before long reach a successful issue."

Japan's View
Premier Hamaguchi declared the pact was "bound to exercise an immense moral influence on the growing consciousness of mankind."

"One cannot but feel," he said, "that the moment is favorable to a wide extension of the policy of disarmament that is embodied in this treaty."

President Hoover spoke from the Cabinet room of the White House with Secretary Stimson. He listened to the British and Japanese ministers through earphones. Premier Hamaguchi's address was in Japanese.

Further Reductions
"This relinquishment of competitive building among the three great naval powers with its consequent contribution to the security of the world is the greatest significance of this treaty. If the limitations now established can be maintained we may look forward with assurance to the fact that future conferences will find it easier to bring about further steps in reductions. It is the fervent prayer of right-thinking men and women of this generation that the international confidence which has been so patiently and gleamingly achieved may endure so that the agreements which have been reached may live and be extended. Never again must a race in naval armaments be allowed to develop."

"France and Italy are not as yet full partners in the London treaty. They have been making active efforts within the last few months to arrive at a complete understanding. The people of Great Britain, Japan and the United States, and indeed the peoples of the whole world, have watched those efforts and confidently hope that patience and good will may yet lead to a solution."

"The session of the five powers at London have served to strengthen mutual trust and confidence among them and they give me assurance that the hopes of the world will not be disappointed. It is my desire to see the peoples of Great Britain and Japan, and the people of this country, upon the conclusion of a sound and reasonable agreement between them, fair to all and dangerous to none, which has been accepted by each nation as affording adequate protection and which substitutes for suspicion and competition mutual trust, good-will and confidence. Let us go forward with thanks and inspire us to go forward with the course of hope."

LONDON CEREMONY
London, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The final act in the process of putting the London naval treaty into full effect was performed at noon today when American, British and Japanese ratifications of the momentous document were deposited at the British foreign office.

Ambassador Dawes deposited American ratification in person. Prime Minister MacDonald and Arthur Henderson were present at the ceremony for Great Britain, and Ambassador Matsudaira for Japan.

The ceremony was held in the Locarno room of the foreign office, 7 Downing street. It lasted ten minutes.

Ray Atherton, counselor of the American Embassy, who accompanied Ambassador Dawes, was the only other American present, but the premiers of the British Dominions, who are here for the imperial conference, were present with Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Henderson.

The French and Italian ambassadors witnessed the ceremony but did not sit at the table with the other envoys.

Prime Minister MacDonald welcomed them and said he hoped the time soon would come when their status would enable them fully to join in the provisions of the treaty.

Dall Not Represented
Irish Free State was not represented because the Dall had not yet ratified the pact.

The British ratification and that of all the dominions was signed by the King with the pledge that the monarch "engages and promises his royal word to give effect to the treaty."

The British ratification papers were in a book bound with blue leather and gold.

All of the representatives signed a declaration that they had met and had deposited ratifications of the treaty for the limitation and the reduction of naval armaments, signed in London on April 22, 1930.

Those Present
The British premier and Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson sat at the head of the table in the Locarno room with the American ambassador, Charles Gages Dawes, the Canadian premier, R. B. Bennett, the Australian premier, J. T. Scullin, and with them were General Hertzog, prime minister of the Union of South Africa, Premier Forster of New Zealand, the Japanese and Indian envoys, Ambassador Tsumo Matsudaira and Sir Atul Chandra Chatterjee.

The declaration of adherence to the naval treaty, also signed by Ambassador Dawes, contained the ratification of the United States Reservation.

HIGH TO DEBATE ON CHAIN STORES

Manchester, Meriden and Middletown to Meet on March 25.

The question whether or not chain stores are a menace to the interest and prosperity of the United States will be the subject of controversy at the annual triangular debate involving Manchester, Meriden and Middletown high schools on March 25.

As a stepping stone to a permanent Central Connecticut Interscholastic Debating League, it was also announced that East Hartford, West Hartford and Bristol will engage in a similar three-cornered debate, probably on the same evening, with the winner meeting the Manchester-Meriden-Middletown survivor in a championship debate the following night.

Manchester High has received acceptance from Wesleyan University freshmen and Connecticut Agricultural College freshmen relative to debates to be held in January and December on dates to be later designated. The expected debate with Choate of Wallingford has not yet been arranged.

CENTER CHURCH WOMEN PLAN HARVEST SUPPER

The Center Church Women's Federation will serve a Harvest supper in the banquet hall Wednesday evening at 6:30. This is the second supper in the new church house, the first having been held in connection with the dedication exercises about the middle of September.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Mrs. Christian Erickson, 63, of 35 North School street, died at the Memorial hospital at 2 o'clock yesterday morning following a brief illness with embolism following an operation Saturday morning. She was admitted to the hospital on Thursday.

Mrs. Erickson was widely known, having been a practical nurse for many years and her death comes as a distinct shock to many friends. Born in Denmark as Miss Marie Christensen, Mrs. Erickson came to the United States many years ago and removed to Manchester from Hartford 13 years ago. Her husband died five years ago.

Mrs. Erickson leaves two sons, Benjamin of Hartford and Howard of Buckland; two daughters, Mrs. Peter Miller of Tolland Turnpike and Mrs. Henry Hemingway of North School street with whom she made her home; eight grandchildren, two brothers, John and Clauson of Stafford Springs; and three sisters, Mrs. Hans Mortensen of Hartford, Mrs. Hans Geller of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Grady Jensen of Stafford Springs.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hemingway, Rev. Frederick C. Allen will officiate and burial will be in the Buckland cemetery.

Thomas F. Peckenham, 33 Elro street, died at his home Sunday morning after a very brief illness with lung congestion. He took a chill last Sunday morning and Thursday had a sinking spell and grew steadily worse. He had been in comparative good health, working at the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Company plant in East Hartford until a week ago.

In addition to his wife, who was Miss Mary J. Donnellan before marriage, Mr. Peckenham leaves one son, Francis, one brother, Daniel, of Providence, and one sister, Miss Mary Peckenham, also of Providence. Mr. Peckenham was born in Rhode Island and came to Manchester 22 years ago. He was a fourth degree member of the Knights of Columbus and secretary of the Bricklayers and Plasterers Union in Manchester.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from the home at 9:30 and at St. James' church at 10:30. Burial will be in St. Bridget's cemetery.

FUNERALS

Frank C. Ingraham: The funeral of Frank C. Ingraham of Foster street was largely attended yesterday afternoon at the undertaking parlors of Mark Holmes on North Main street. There were also many floral tributes.

Rev. Watson Woodruff, pastor of the Center Congregational church, officiated and burial was in the East cemetery. During the service George Martin of Hartford sang two hymns, "Nearer My God To Thee" and "Lead Kindly Light." The bearers, all members of the Odd Fellows, were Theodore Bidwell, Forrest Buckland, George Dodson, William Wright, James Wright and John Cheney.

HERE FOR A FUNERAL, VISIT OLD FRIENDS

Mrs. Alice Chappell Naylor of Dayton, Ohio, who with her brother George Chappell came here for the funeral of Mrs. Orlando Chappell at the East cemetery Saturday morning and has been visiting her cousin, Mrs. Sadocinski, of 71 Ridge street, will spend a few days renewing old friendships and acquaintances before leaving for her home. Her brother has returned home.

Mrs. Naylor and her husband, William Naylor, will be remembered by their friends who used to be members of the Manchester and South Manchester Divisions, Sons of Temperance. For a time in their early married life they occupied one of the Bowler houses on Oakland street, but have lived in Ohio for upwards of 25 years.

Mrs. Naylor will be the guest of Mrs. Ida Gilman of Wadsworth street, and her sister, Mrs. Jennie Cook, of Manchester Green, this week.

HOLD POVERTY SOCIAL AT TEMPLE FRIDAY

Old clothes will be the style at the Poverty party and dance, next Friday night, Oct. 31, in the banquet hall of the Masonic Temple, under the auspices of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon and the Masonic Social club.

The committee, Ernest Kjellson, David Nelson, Sherwood Warnock, Gus Ulrich and Joseph Lutz have secured the Colonial orchestra of six pieces to furnish the dance music.

ATTEND LEGION COUNTY MEETING

County Commander Alexander Denies Stories About Damage Done at Convention.

Four of the members of the auxiliary unit to Dilworth-Cornell Legion Post, attended the county meeting in Windsor yesterday and were proud to bring home the Rachel Smith cup, given to the unit in the county making the largest percentage gain in membership during the year. The local unit won the state cup previously this year for the same reason.

Between 250 and 275 legionnaires and auxiliary members attended the meeting and witnessed the joint installation of officers at the Windsor High school. State Commander Alexander of Meriden was present and gave some interesting facts regarding the recent national convention in Boston. Commander Alexander stated that he had received a letter from the Hotel Managers' association to the effect that the damage done to the hotels by Legionnaires attending the convention was negligible, in spite of the wide spread reports to the contrary. He had a conversation with the assistant manager of the Statler before leaving Boston, who reminded him that there was a Statler hotel in Detroit, where the convention is to be held next year, and he assured him that they will be made welcome there. Mr. Alexander also asserted that the hotel managers in Boston will be glad to welcome the convention there again at any time the Legionnaires decide to come, and will have no hesitation in recommending them to the hotels of any city in the country. Commander Alexander urged his hearers to "spread the good news."

Another thing the speaker, who is a bank man, said he considered significant was the fact that out of hundreds of checks passed during the session of the convention in Boston, only six were returned and they were settled in a friendly manner. James Breslin, chairman of the joint installation committee of Rawlocks Post of Hartford, extended an invitation to the country posts and auxiliaries to attend the joint installation of their post and unit in Hartford on the evening of November 5 at Foot Guard hall.

After the meeting yesterday a delicious supper was served by the ladies of Windsor auxiliary.

LOCAL SCOUTS STRANDED ON ROOSEVELT TRIP

Storm Prevents Return Across Sound and They Are Forced to Take Train to N. Y. City.

A large delegation of Manchester Boy Scouts, representing the nine local troops, participated in the annual pilgrimage to the grave of the late President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, New York, Saturday and because of inclement weather did not return home until 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The local contingent joined the delegation from Hartford and journeyed to Stamford by bus early Saturday morning. From Stamford the Scouts were ferried across Long Island Sound to Oyster Bay where New York and New Jersey Scouts were gathered for the march to the cemetery under the personal leadership of Dan Beard, national Scout commissioner, and lifelong friend of the late Roosevelt. After the ceremonies the Scouts returned to the ferry and under conditions were such the pilot refused to take the risk of crossing the sound. After a long wait the Scouts were taken to Stamford by special train, boarding a train there for Stamford. At Stamford they again transferred to buses and started on the last leg home, arriving in the small hours of the morning.

NEW BUILDINGS

Hartford, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Rehearsals for new buildings as outlined in proposed budgets submitted to the budget committee of the state board of finance and control has now reached a total of $8,821,909. With sixteen state departments having had their requests compiled by the budget committee last week, and making a total of $8,044,709, the seventeenth, the Connecticut Agricultural college has now been added and brings the total close to the $9,000,000 mark.

Cranks geared to two propellers are used to send through water a boat that an Englishman has invented.

QUESTION AND ANSWER SERIES DO YOU KNOW CONNECTICUT?

Q. To what county did Connecticut once belong by right of discovery? A. To Holland. Accounts of the voyages of Henry Hudson in 1609 and of Adrian Blok in 1614 give the name of the county making the largest in the country during this period. Q. When does the Connecticut legislature convene? A. On the Wednesday after the first Monday of January in odd years.

NAVAL PACT DEPOSITED WITH BRIEF CEREMONY

IMPORTANT TREATY Tokyo, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The London naval treaty was described today by Premier Hamaguchi of Japan as a covenant which is "bound to exercise an immense moral influence on the growing consciousness of mankind."

Joining President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald in celebrating the signing of the treaty of governments adhering to the treaty of their instruments of ratification, the Japanese premier said, "We may now believe that a more generous and neighborly spirit is fast replacing the jealousies and suspicions of the past."

Premier's Address His address follows in full text: "The memorable conference which was held in 1921 and 1922 at Washington failed to give a complete measure of relief to a war-weary world, and the competition set in naval armaments in the production of numerous and very formidable cruisers. These vessels were so heavily armed, so swift and so well-protected as to constitute a factor of extreme importance in any comparison of the existence of the problem, and its dangers and difficulties became apparent. Various efforts were made toward its solution, but they seemed to lead to no result, and the leading naval powers were rapidly drifting towards an impasse, with the prospect before them of a renewal of the wasteful competition and crushing expense which had been temporarily arrested at Washington.

Disarmament Move "This dangerous possibility was averted at London. The assiduous labors exerted in 1927 at Geneva were not without fruit, but paved the way for a welcome measure of disarmament. An understanding was reached between Japan, the British commonwealth of nations and the United States to put an end to competitive building in all categories of auxiliary combatant vessels. Now that the treaty of limitation relating to auxiliary craft the only outstanding feature of the work of the London conference, a treaty embodying further provisions, designed to reinforce the limitation of naval armaments laid down in the Washington treaty, and to regulate the activity of submarines in conformity with the dictates of humanity, was elaborated and signed by the five principal naval powers committed to one and the same noble end.

Great Privilege "I feel it a great privilege to have contributed, so far as in me lay, to this happy result. The new treaty is bound to exercise an immense moral influence on the growing consciousness of mankind. It is a striking demonstration of mutual confidence and good will among the nations, and I congratulate the people of all the participating countries on such a favorable result. I know that nothing is nearer the heart of every thinking Japanese than to enjoy security and to live in peace with the rest of the world.

"One cannot but feel that the momentary pause in the progress of the policy of disarmament embodied in this treaty. Now that the pact of Paris initiated by Mr. Briand and Mr. Kellogg has definitely outlawed war, it is clear that the present treaty is a milestone in the progress of the whole world against the aggressor. Whether other powers come forward to offer active help or not, it is hardly conceivable that they would allow the pledge of peace to be broken by the trade and to enjoy the other privileges of a lawful belligerent.

Neighborly Spirit "But, apart from calculations of mutual aid in time of war, may we not believe that a more generous and neighborly spirit is fast replacing the jealousies and suspicions of the past? Shall we not confidently hope that the deliberations of the preparatory committee on disarmament of the League of Nations, which is to meet this coming month, will be conducted in the same genial atmosphere that alone made the success of the London conference possible? I trust that these expectations for the future will not be betrayed.

The treaty of London has opened a new chapter in the history of human civilization. We have once for all escaped from what I may call the "pioneer" stage, in which every nation's hand is actually or potentially against every other. We have entered the sane and friendly "settlement" stage, in which every one is united to suppress intrusions by any one on another's sphere. A momentary step forward on the road of international peace and friendship has proved to still greater triumphs for that lofty cause."

MacDONALD'S ADDRESS London, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Emphasizing the world's hopes for disarmament, Prime Minister MacDonald asserted today that the solution of the American-British-Japanese naval problem under the London naval treaty should be a great source of

1 OUT OF 9 MAKES H. S. HONOR ROLL

First Marking Period Finds 133 of 960 Students Included in Group.

The honor roll for the first marking period of the 1930-31 school year at Manchester High announced today shows approximately one out of every nine students as being sufficiently high in studies to be placed on the list.

The school enrollment is 960 and the first two months' work lists 133 on the combined A and B groups, 33 being on the former and 117 on the latter. The junior class places the most students in both divisions while the freshmen were the only class not to have a student on the A list.

AUTOMOBILES IN CRASH AS ONE TRIES U-TURN

Car Driven by Clinton E. Williams Hit by One Operated by W. H. Schiedge—None Hurt

Two elderly Manchester men narrowly escaped being injured shortly before 2 o'clock last afternoon when they were involved in an automobile accident in front of the old Park Theater building on Main street. William H. Schiedge of 135 Spruce street and Clinton E. Williams of 1632 Tolland Turnpike in Buckland, were the operators and sole occupants of the two machines. Both men are 68 years old.

Both men were driving south on Main street, Williams in the lead. When the latter attempted to turn around preparatory to delivering some clothing at the Salvation Army building his Franklin automobile was struck squarely in the middle by the Essex car operated by Schiedge. Williams said he saw the Schiedge car approaching and held out his left hand in the proper signaling manner. Schiedge said he did not see this happen.

The cars came together with a terrific crash that could be heard for several blocks. The Williams car was knocked over on its right side and its owner trapped inside. He was able to climb out when a pedestrian rushed to his assistance and opened the front left door. The window of the opposite door then smashed out Williams escaped with only slight cuts on one hand and his head. Schiedge was not injured.

Both men talked over the matter and agreed to settle without any court action; consequently Motor cycle Policeman Raymond Griffin made no arrest. Both drivers were insured. The Williams car was badly smashed on the left side where the running board was completely smashed to pieces. The front of the Schiedge machine was also badly damaged. In less than ten minutes after the accident had occurred, a group of more than a hundred persons had congregated about the two wrecked automobiles.

PROF. LEVITT FILES ANOTHER PETITION

Asks That State's Attorney General Be Cited in Contempt—His Arguments.

Hartford, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A petition to the Superior Court that the attorney general of the state be cited to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court was filed by Prof. Albert Levitt of Redding with Superior Court Clerk Lucius P. Fuller here today.

The petition sets out the issuing by the court on February 6 of a peremptory writ of mandamus enjoining the attorney general to file a complaint to cause the removal from office the present commissioners of the Public Utilities Commission for material neglect of duty. It also mentions the appeal of the attorney general to the Supreme Court of Errors and the decision of the Supreme Court on July 9 against the attorney general holding that there was no error in the issuance of the writ and that the attorney general should proceed to file the complaint as directed by the Superior Court.

Refuses to Obey "Nearly four months have gone by since the decision of the Supreme Court was given," says Prof. Levitt in his petition. "During that entire time the mandatory writ has been in force and effect. But the attorney general has refused and is refusing to obey that mandatory writ."

Prof. Levitt has also filed a motion that the attorney general's appeal from the recent decision of Judge Allyn L. Brown be not allowed. Following the Supreme Court decision on the peremptory writ attorney general filed a petition for a new trial or a rehearing on the ground that the attorney general should be given opportunity to show that some of the allegations of Prof. Levitt's original complaint were manifestly untrue.

A motion that the motion be dismissed as res judicata—and for other reasons was filed and argued by Prof. Levitt and Judge Brown granted his motion and dismissed the attorney general's petition. Then the attorney general filed an appeal alleging errors in Judge Brown's rulings.

MOOSE IN SPECIAL MEETING TONIGHT

Will Honor Supreme Dictator Rodney H. Brandon — To Initiate Large Class.

Manchester Lodge, No. 1477, Loyal Order of Moose, will observe Brandon Day in honor of Supreme Dictator Rodney H. Brandon, with a special meeting to be held at the Home Club on Brainerd Place at 8 o'clock tonight. A large class of candidates will be initiated into the order at this meeting by the newly formed degree team under the leadership of Past Dictator Frank A. Montie.

This is the first appearance before the local lodge of this staff although it has previously appeared in other cities. While appearing in Norwich the work of the team was witnessed by visiting supreme lodge officers who complimented the team highly and gave it special mention in a recent issue of the Moose magazine, distributed to all members throughout the world.

A high grade of entertainment will be presented and refreshments will be served. All members should endeavor to attend. Dictator John F. Limerick will preside over the business meeting. Brandon Day is being observed by all lodges in the world by initiation of classes of candidates and Manchester Lodge will be among those represented when the final reports are received in the supreme offices at Mooseheart, Ill.

EMBLEM CLUB'S PARTY AT STAFFORD TEA ROOM

Public Invited to Play Cards for Benefit of Club's Fund for Charity.

Mrs. Michael Roberts of Stafford, past president of the Emblem Club, assisted by members of the club in that town, will give a public card party Wednesday afternoon and evening. This will take the place of the social which would ordinarily be held at the club home in Rockville Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Roberts will open her "Woodlawn Tea Room" on the state road for the party, and all proceeds from sales at the tea rooms Wednesday will be turned over to the Emblem club for use of the charity committee during the holiday season.

Bridge will be played in the afternoon beginning at 2:30, and whilst in the evening at 8 o'clock. The men will be welcome at both sessions. A generous response is hoped for. It is suggested if there are those who will be unable to attend either in the afternoon or evening, they may help the cause by purchasing tickets from Mrs. T. J. Dannaber of this town.

ABOUT TOWN

The Epworth Circle of the South Methodist church will meet this evening with Miss Vera Hotchkiss of 772 Main street.

Stanley Neron of Woodland street met with an automobile accident yesterday in East Hartford. In order to avoid hitting another car that was coming out of a street Mr. Neron went up a bank into a tree and broke one front wheel. The car was towed into the North End garage.

Robert Mercer, Peter Wind, and Max Kasulki were the winners of the setback tournament at the Masonic Temple Saturday night. Robert J. Smith won the door prize. Twenty tables of players competed for the prizes.

The Beethoven Glee Club will meet at the Swedish Lutheran church at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Mrs. F. J. Reinartz of Bush Hill Road has placed on display in the windows of The Smart Shop this dolls she obtained while abroad this summer. One is a German tea doll and the other a French pompadour doll.

A Chrysler sedan owned by Richard Raymond, 65 East Center street, was derailed and caught fire at 11:05 this morning near the Raymond home. Hose Co. No. 3 responded to a still alarm and extinguished the blaze without damage to the car.

Forty hours devotions, which commenced in the Roman Catholic churches here at the close of the 10:30 mass yesterday, will close at the 7:30 mass on Tuesday morning. The services have been largely attended.

FALLOT-BERNIER

Miss Eugenie Marie Bernier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Bernier of 242 Park Terrace, Hartford, was married this morning to Leon Gustave Falloit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Falloit of 97 Ridge street. The ceremony took place at St. Anne's church, Hartford, at 8 a. m. Rev. J. V. Belanger performed the ceremony at a nuptial high mass.

The bride and groom were attended by Miss Irma Falloit, sister of the bridegroom as maid of honor, and Germain Bernier, cousin of the bride, as best man.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, made in simple style with long, tight-fitting sleeves. Her veil of tulle fell from beneath a cap of lace. She carried a bridal bouquet of calla lilies.

The maid of honor was attired in pale gold satin with turban of transparent velvet and slippers to match. She carried an arm bouquet of chrysanthemums in gold shades.

The ceremony at the church was followed by a wedding breakfast and reception for immediate relatives and friends at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The Falloit home was artistically decorated in a color scheme of green and yellow.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Falloit departed on an unannounced wedding trip. On their return they will make their home for the present at 97 Ridge street.

The bride was formerly employed by a Hartford photographic concern. The bridegroom attended Manchester public schools and was graduated from the New York Institute of Photography. He has a studio at 472 Main street, this town.

DE PRIEST BREAKS WITH "BIG BILL"

Chicago, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Appeal of Mayor William Hale Thompson for negroes to vote for James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic candidate for Senator, in order to defeat Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican, has brought about a break between the mayor and Oscar De Priest, the country's only negro Congressman.

The Congressman today distributed pamphlets to off-set those sent out through the police department by the city's chief executive, and in a speech declared that "no sane man, unless ill advised or sick, would ask the colored people to vote for a Democrat." Mayor Thompson had asserted he would support Lewis because of his wet platform.

De Priest's Speech The De Priest pamphlets, captioned "Vote the Republican Ticket Straight," were distributed by women.

The Congressman in his speech last night said: "I promise to spend the rest of my time until election advising our people to pay no attention to the ravings of Mayor Thompson. I was surprised to find the mayor a sick man. He certainly is not the same man we elected mayor three times. If he finds it impossible to go along with his party he should resign. He talks about what he has done for the colored race, but we should remember that three times it was we who saved him from defeat. I don't propose to see him use our people as big catspaws."

U. S. W. V. AUXILIARY GIVES SCHOOL FLAG

Center Church Children Accept Gift Yesterday—Read Paper on Theodore Roosevelt.

Mary Bushnell Cheney, auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans, presented a beautiful silk flag yesterday to the primary department of Center Church school, Miss Gertrude Carrier superintendent. Last spring the Auxiliary gave a similar flag to St. James's parochial school. It is their custom from time to time to give flags to both public and church schools.

Mrs. George Johnson of Bissell street who obtained the flag and staff, gold cord and sewed on the silk fringe, also prepared an article on the late President Roosevelt, whose birthday occurs today. Mrs. Johnson was unable to be present and the paper was read and presentation of the flag made by Mrs. Charles Warren, Little Donald Fisher thanked Mrs. Warren and the other ladies of the auxiliary who were present and in a graceful little speech accepted the gift for the primary department.

Mrs. Elizabeth Olds, President of the auxiliary, and several of the members attended a dinner yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Garde, Hartford, in honor of Mrs. Edith Byrd of Toledo, Ohio, national president of the organization. The dinner was given by Burdette Auxiliary of Hartford. Mrs. Byrd was presented with a beautiful corsage bouquet.

Saturday evening twelve of the members of Ward Cheney Camp, U. S. W. V. and Mary Bushnell Cheney auxiliary attended a department dinner in Bristol at which 450 guests were present, including representatives from the Civil War, Legionnaires and others. The dinner was in honor of the national president, E. S. Mathias of Ohio, and Mrs. Byrd, head of the auxiliary. A pleasing feature was the presentation of a handsome benjo clock to Mrs. Byrd and a chime clock to Mr. Mathias, both made in Bristol clock factories.

CANVASSING MERCHANTS FOR LIGHTING FUNDS

Hope to Get Sufficient Through Solicitation to Provide Christmas Decorations.

Both special committees of the North and South End Merchants' Divisions of the Chamber of Commerce have begun to solicit the merchants in their respective territories for funds to continue the special Christmas lighting program begun last year. The south end must raise $1,200 and the north end $275, the contract price of the holiday decorations which will be similar to last year with the exception of evergreen and lights twined the length of the poles.

Each of the committees held meetings last week and took similar action. It was decided to make a canvass of the merchants and discover what amount they would subscribe to the fund. If the total equalled the contract price asked the lighting would be carried out, if not the program would be dropped. It is definitely understood that no contract will be signed until the full amount has been raised.

RED MEN CONFER THREE DEGREES ON 10

Big Conclave Held at Tinker Hall Saturday—250 Guests Come Here.

Manchester's tribe of Red Men entertained over 250 guests from various parts of the state and a delegation from Peekskill, N. Y., Saturday night at Tinker Hall. The occasion was the exemplification of three degrees upon a class of ten candidates of the Manchester tribe, Miantonomah, No. 53.

The degrees were the adoption executed by Kehow Tribe No. 39 from Winsted, hunters and warriors by Wauquaheag No. 29 of Collinsville and chief's degree by Hammonasset No. 1 from New Haven. The first degree was staged at 4 o'clock in the afternoon followed by a banquet at 8 o'clock and concluding with the two other degrees in the evening and a social time afterwards. Several favored with vocal renditions.

COLORFUL CEREMONIES TO ATTEND CORONATION

(Continued from Page 1.) gold, encrusted with diamonds, emeralds and pearls. The emperor's crown weighs three pounds. That of the empress is but little lighter, both are surmounted by crosses of diamonds, Ethiopia having been a Christian country since about A. D. 451.

Coronation Robes The coronation robes also are a local product. They are of vivid crimson velvet, lavishly decorated with precious stones, pure gold trimmings and with long trains. The only part of the emperor's accoutrements made aboard are his sword and imperial sceptre, which represent the finest examples of French workmanship.

Transfer of the crowns was impressive, the pageant of priests and the great parade followed by large contingents of crack Ethiopian cavalry with their Belgian officers. Tens of thousands of white clad Ethiopians lined the streets, bowing low as the royal emblems passed. Yesterday the Japanese, Polish, Egyptian and Dutch delegations arrived at Addis Ababa and were received by the Ethiopian crown prince in the name of Ras Tafari.

DUCE PREDICTS FASCIST EUROPE IN 2 DECADES

in the entire world against the Fascist regime? "What happened after the executions at Trieste? Is not that proof that war against the Fascist regime is a fact—moral war now but preparatory of military war?"

(This refers to the execution of a group of alleged Jugo-Slav Terrorists. Demonstrations against Fascist Italy followed in Jugo-Slavia.) The Duce then charged that many false rumors were being circulated about the Fascist regime.

"Calumnious inventions are an arm of war," he continued, "in a little while we also shall be charged with cutting off children's arms, as they said about the Germans in 1914—although it seems that no one can find a trace of those mutilated children."

"All this stirs increasing hatred toward Fascist Italy—hated practised by millions and millions of individuals; hated by anti-revolutionaries, hatred from reactionaries and conservatives all of which honors and exalts us.

"We are fighting against a world on the decline but still powerful because it represents an enormous crystallization of interests. "The terrain of fight has been dilated. Yesterday the fight was in Italy; today it is over the world. "Thus a 'moral' state of war exists, and it is fatal that it should so exist and that it should be so accentuated. It is logical and accidental that we must reconquer our victory day by day. If this were not so, at this very hour Fascism would have been surpassed."

POLICE COURT

Alvin Robinson, of 765 Middle Turnpike East was arrested Saturday evening for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was found guilty in police court this morning by Judge E. A. Johnson and a fine of $125 and costs was imposed. Robinson was arrested by Sergeant John McGinn. He has a wife and three children.

George W. Beauchamp of 83 Central Avenue, East Hartford, was found guilty of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and paid a fine of $125 and costs. He was arrested by Patrolman Walter R. Cassells.

Judgment was suspended in the case of Edward Werner, 17 years old, of 11 Cross street, for driving a truck with improper brakes. The evidence showed that the car belonged to John F. Mahoney of Cedar street and that the brakes had been repaired Friday night. The young fellow was arrested by Patrolman Martin after the car had run up on to the sidewalk two or three feet. The patrolman said the brakes were of no value whatever. Werner was represented in court by Attorney William S. Hyde.

The case of Everett H. Bidwell of Glastonbury, charged with reckless driving, was continued until November 3, one week from today.

For speeding, Angel Bernetti of 31 Annawan street, Hartford, paid a fine of $10 and costs. He was placed under arrest by Traffic Officer Walter R. Cassells.

At 2:25 yesterday afternoon an automobile driven by Lawrence Berry was in an accident with a car driven by William R. Richtee of 50 White street, Hartford. Berry is the secretary of a radio man on board the United States Submarine V-5 and had been in Hartford on a day's leave of absence. He was one of the members of the crew which took its maiden dip a week ago tomorrow. He was due back to his ship this morning. At first it appeared that the accident which took place at West Center and McKee streets would be settled.

The drivers of both cars were willing to settle for their own damages when the question of the right of way was raised. The matter was put up to Prosecutor Hathaway and he ordered the young man held in $50 bonds, which was furnished.

In court this morning Berry pleaded not guilty to reckless driving and after both sides of the argument had been heard Judge Johnson found Berry not guilty. Because of his ready tongue Berry was threatened with contempt of court. He forgot himself so far in court that he called Richtee a liar. Judge Johnson promptly called him to account for his language and Berry at once apologized.

O. J. Pickett figured in an accident Sunday afternoon also and was charged with driving under the influence of intoxicants. His case was continued for one week.

BILLION IS NEEDED FOR VETS' RELIEF

cost of operation next year is expected to amount to nearly $665,000,000. The annual outlay of the pensions bureau, handling Spanish-American and Civil War claims, already has amounted to more than $200,000,000. With the increased pensions for Spanish-American veterans and their dependents authorized by the last Congress, a substantial increase in expenditures is anticipated. Use by veterans of all wars of the various branches of the National home for disabled volunteer soldiers is expected to increase their annual maintenance costs by many millions.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 27.

GRATITUDE!

Edward S. Harkness, philanthropist extraordinary who lives most of the time on a shore estate near New London, is having the experience common to most people who get a reputation for free giving—that the more one gives the more he is expected to give and the more a certain type of mind assumes that he has no business to keep anything for himself.

Mr. Harkness has made the most enormous gifts to education and charity. He has given more than twelve million dollars to Yale, an even greater amount to Harvard, a couple of millions to Columbia University for a medical center, and some time ago he created a ten million dollar charity fund to be employed in permanent welfare activities in Great Britain. Nobody knows anything about the extent of the unannounced charitable gifts of the Harkness family except that they are very large and numerous.

Now, it appears, Mr. Harkness is called on to vigorously deny a report, so authoritatively given out in London that it fooled first class newspaper correspondents, that he had arranged to make another gift to the British nation, this time no less than twenty-five millions.

No more effective way could have been taken of belittling the stupendous benefaction already made than this one of anticipating a much larger one. Mr. Harkness had already had one rather unhappy experience with one of the American universities in trying to give it a very large sum. This new adventure in the creation of appetite for gratuities abroad might well be expected to dampen somewhat his ardor in getting rid of the bulk of his immense fortune by gift. There never was a better illustration of the cynic's assertion that "gratitude is a lively sense of favors yet to come."

Even the most disinterested rich man may be expected to look for a reasonable amount of appreciation on the part of the beneficiary of his generosity even if, like Harkness, he is the type of man who does not want and could not tolerate servile gratitude.

RECOGNIZING BRAZIL

It is highly probable that the United States will find, in the Brazilian situation, ample reason for departing from its recent general practice of refusing to recognize revolutionary governments. In fact, as we understand it, this country has never been committed to such practice as a matter of fixed policy. It is too obvious that occasion might arise when armed revolution was the only recourse of a well disposed and deserving population. America has never forgotten that she herself is the product of warlike revolt.

While the political and economic causes underlying the Brazilian overturn are but sketchily understood in the United States, it would appear to be the case that the great part of the people of Brazil were aligned against the Luis government and its imminent successor; otherwise the revolution, which was not a surprise affair, could not have been so quickly successful. It had every appearance of being a bona fide uprising of the majority of the citizens, not to be compared with these purely military coups that so often masquerade as popular insurrections in Latin America.

If the ousting of the old government and the erection of a provisional one is the result of the considered action of the Brazilian people it is difficult to understand what grounds the United States would have for refusing to recognize whatever government establishment they may erect. Certainly it is not our province to dictate the character of government chosen by any of our southern neighbors, so long as it is of a quality to function responsibly and respectably.

We shall probably avoid considerable trouble by promptly recognizing the new government of Brazil as soon as its status shall have been definitely drawn.

THE HOPE OF THE WETS

The person who votes for a Democratic candidate for Congress because he thinks that the Democrat is wetter than the wet Republican who is opposing him is making the mistake of his life. The Democratic party in Congress is the dry party. It is only the scattering Democrats of the North who would vote wet or dare vote wet. The Southern Democrats, most of whom are good, sturdy drinkers, are as definitely committed to the dry side of the argument, politically, as they are to opposition to tariff protection for Northern industries. They take their orders from the voters back home and it is the creed of the Southern whites that prohibition should be continued as a means of keeping liquor from the Negro—it doesn't interfere with the white man's or woman's booze. The dries in the party can always crack a whip over the few wets in it.

The Republican party, on the other hand, is fast going wet all over the North, the West and the East. It is in the ascendancy of a wet Republican party that lies the hope of the nation to be freed from the terrific mistake of prohibition.

Every Republican Congressional candidate in Connecticut is opposed to the continuance of the Eighteenth amendment and Volsteadism. The Republican candidate in this district is committed to any measure, including repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, that may give promise of ending the present situation.

Every Democratic Congressional candidate, on the other hand, would, if elected, become a member of a group which in its major control is committed to maintenance of the Eighteenth amendment and Volsteadism.

When the revolt against prohibition is made effective in Congress it will be through the operation of a wet Republican majority.

A RESURRECTION

The other day a "brand new" idea was sprung in the newspapers throughout the country—an idea of the utmost importance in connection with the growing revolt against noise. It was contained in the announcement of an invention by Hiram Percy Maxim by means of which outside noises can be prevented from entering any building—hospital, office structure or home—without interference with the admission of light and air.

A rather wonderful and very welcome addition to the comforts and health saving facilities of modern life, to be sure.

Now the strangest thing about this strange invention is that it is something like fifteen years since Mr. Maxim told the newspapers all about it before. Apparently there is no essential feature of the room-silencer now attracting so much attention that was not present in the one he described at that time. Yet for some reason the whole thing dropped so completely out of sight that apparently almost nobody has remembered it. Perhaps even Mr. Maxim has forgotten that he gave the fact of his discovery to the world. A search of the files of the newspapers of the period, however, would disclose that he did.

There is in this circumstance not the slightest disparagement of the value of the idea. If Mr. Maxim's device will do all he claims for it—and there isn't the least reason to doubt it—he has bestowed on civilization a gift of the utmost importance. Possibly this is just one more of the excellent things that were stunted in their tracks by the World War. Anyhow, its revival is timely in view of the fight that is being started against the devastations of noise.

PRICE PEGGING

Professor Irving Fisher, Charles Schwab and the rest of the prophets of the bull period, now undertaking to pose as prophets of a period entirely different, keep telling the people that the way to restore business is to stop the fall of prices. Mr. Schwab said the other day that price cutting is the only thing that prevents a complete revival of the steel business. In other words if you can't induce people to buy steel at low prices put up the figures and they will jump into the market. Professor Fisher applies the same idea to everything.

These theorists overlook the fact that business in this country blew up with prices unconscionably high. It is of course true that a steadily falling market lessens the amount of speculative buying and makes for the so-called hand-to-mouth policy. But the Schwabs and the Fishers refuse to recognize the fact that the place to peg prices is at the bottom—at the smallest figure at which business can be done solvently. That is true stabilization.

In products and in the stock market there is a point at which business in this country would very quickly revive. That is the point where the effects of inflation have disappeared. Buyers in America are not waiting for a sub-zero point. They are waiting for the point where they can be assured that the figures will not shrink any further. They are waiting, in other words, for the last of the wind and water to be squeezed out of general trade.

There is no injury to business in low prices—the injury lies in prices still falling. There is no record of their continuing to fall after they have reached bottom. Business is never done at an intentional loss.

IN NEW YORK STATE

They're beginning to talk about the size of the majority in New York state. The Democrats claim that Governor Roosevelt will have "at least 350,000." The chairman of the Republican state committee does not pretend to know what Mr. Tuttle's majority will be, but laughs at the Democratic claim of 500,000 plurality in New York city, declaring it cannot be more than 280,000 at the outside. So that if the Republicans accepted the Democratic figures for the rest of the state, they would still be shrinking she Roosevelt majority to a bare 70,000—which is a feat in New York state. Of course they don't accept the up-state figures of the opposition but have a smiling set of figures of their own, more than ample to override the Democratic majority in the city.

Our guess is that the Republican guessers are a good deal closer to the size of the majority in the city than the Democratic guessers. Governor Roosevelt went just far enough in his Tammany probe to make Tammany hate him and not far enough to arouse the slightest confidence among Republicans in his courage and disinterestedness.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 27.—Our own Who's Who and Who Isn't—Of all the successful authors and playwrights who were "newspapermen once themselves," George Kaufman seems to find it hardest to do himself himself from his old editorial background.

A cubbyhole in the office of the New York Times is dedicated to him, and here he has kept his desk for these many years. It's a typical newspaper office corner, a bit off by itself but atmospheric, nevertheless. When he became one of the eminent playwrights, he fitted out a swell, elegant work room and library, only to find that it was too high-toned to work in. Kaufman found himself sneaking back to his old newspaper desk, while his elegant study fell into neglect.

Until his latest collaborated hit, "Once in a Lifetime" was produced, Kaufman sought to be kept on the payroll of the Times. He did not completely give up his job until a few weeks ago, and then with the understanding that he could get it back whenever he wished. He believed that he should always have a rainy day "ace in the hole" against possible failure.

Old-time newspaper folk tell of how, in the early hours of the morning, after the dog-watch had leaned back to read the last street editions, Kaufman would come in out of the night and start work on some play. At least 40 per cent of his dramatic creations, it is said, came from the venerable typewriter in his old cubbyhole. There he also turned out gossip and chatter of the theater, and whereas less successful ex-reporters leaned on their new laurels, Kaufman found inspiration in the familiar atmosphere.

Charley Driscoll is another newspaper gent with an eccentricity or two up his sleeve. His is an extravagant hobby, but he has turned it back into cash on many an occasion. For Driscoll became an authority on pirates. He read everything and anything on the subject and fitted himself out with the largest library of books on the literature in the world. It contains some 1200 volumes. Furthermore, he ransacked the world for old pirate chests and doubloons and pieces of eight, and once went successfully broke trying to trade an old sunken galleon through Spain.

He's just turned out a book on piracy, however, and may get some of his investment back.

George Gershwin, who he back in the limelight with his new musical show, "Girl Crazy," and a tune called "I've Got Rhythm," began at the age of 18 by working for a Tin Pan Alley concern. He has, in his very modernistic penthouse, a photograph of King George to "Another" which, of course, Gershwin prizes as an elegantly democratic gesture.

Although a very superior pianist, he gets fussed when playing before company and only rarely can be induced to tune up at parties. But once the cooing is over and he gets warmed up, he'll go through most of his repertoire, frequently getting new ideas as he goes along.

He has always wanted to master the organ and when in France a couple of years ago he bought one for $10,000 and had it shipped over. It is said that he has never had it unpacked.

He is a snappy dresser, tossing a considerable amount of his income on clothes. Before he got into the money, he admits many extravagances where shoes and hats were concerned—paying up to $30 a pair, when he could barely afford it. It was said that when he was making about thirty a week, twenty-five went for dress.

WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington, Oct. 27.—Few government departments have ever been kept in such long suspense over the question of who would be their next boss as the Department of Labor.

It has been going on now ever since the election of Herbert Hoover, which was just about two years ago. At that time no one suspected that the new president would longer require the services of Secretary James J. Davis, known locally as "The Puddler" and—for some reason or other—in Pennsylvania politics as "Banjo Jim."

Sooner or later there must be a new secretary. Davis stayed on because Hoover couldn't decide whom to put in his place. Then Jim announced for the Senate in Pennsylvania and won the nomination, which means his election, so there was but a brief lull in the buzz of speculation in the Labor Department and labor circles generally, as it was first supposed that Jim would resign as soon as he began to campaign.

Popular With Employes

Lots of people in the department are likely to get almost anyone. Many of them would just as soon keep old Jim. After all, he doesn't putter around with department affairs enough to bother anyone so probably there are few men who would give rise to so many funny stories as old Jim. The latest yarn is about how Jim is supposed to have asked "What fire?" when Mr. Hoover asked him about a fire which had burned out two of his important bureaus ten days previously. Your correspondent doesn't vouch for its authenticity, but it illustrates the sort of stories people who know him like to tell about the secretary.

The point is, however, that such able bureau chiefs in the department as Mary Anderson of the Women's Bureau, Grace Abbott of the Stewart of the Bureau of Labor Statistics have for years been allowed to do as much progressive, construction work in their fields as limited funds would permit. The Immigration Bureau has principally distinguished itself for its hard-boiled attitude toward deportation of or admission of radical thinkers. The Conciliation Service seems to be regarded by labor leaders as a futile agency and the U. S. Employment Service has not yet thrilled anyone.

Naturally, the people in these bureaus would like to keep right on in their activity without interference from above. In 19 years they have developed initiative and taken responsibilities upon themselves. From their various viewpoints, they can easily imagine the appointment of some unsympathetic person with an urge for changes in policy.

Mary Walsell March.

There has been a report that the Puddler would resign about the first of December after his election as senator from Pennsylvania. But those who have observed his activity in clinging to his post through the change in administration and the primary and election campaigns doubt very seriously whether he will leave before the time comes to take his Senate seat March 4.

In view of the increasingly critical nature of labor problems, especially the prevalence of unemployment all through 1930, it might be supposed that the large amount of discussion here about the secretaryship might center on the idea of getting an expert qualified to tackle such problems. But there is probably no candidate who would be satisfactory to a Republican majority in the Senate to both labor and its employers. If he is a labor leader he will have to be a conservative labor leader.

In any event he will be permitted to call some of labor's problems to the attention of the country. Davis himself made frequent speeches pointing out the increase of technological unemployment and the practice of many industries which release workers when they reach a certain age. Once he even admitted that millions of persons were subsisting on less income than was required for a decent standard of living. On the other hand, Davis department has issued misleading figures as to unemployment. It was responsible for last winter's weekly employment surveys, which showed an improvement every week of the month, followed up by a decrease in unemployment at the end of the month.

A dozen men and a couple of women have been proposed as successors to Davis and some of them will be discussed in another article.

BEARDS ARE DANGEROUS IN BRAZIL JUST NOW

Sao Paulo, Brazil, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Many is the head that sports a beard.

Many of the official family of the deposed president, Washington Luis, affected silky grey beards, as nearly as possible like that of the president.

Antonio Dos Passos of Rio De Janeiro, was particularly proud of the similarity of his beard to that of Luis, but when a crowd of irate rebel sympathizers saw him Sunday and gave chase, thinking that Senator Luis had escaped from Portugal, Copacabana, he decided it was an inconvenient luxury.

Dos Passos fled to a nearby garrison post, demanded protection of soldiers there, and borrowed a razor and shaved the beard.

Police and insurgent officers are keeping a sharp lookout for many of the old regime who are shaving off beards and mustaches in an effort to escape undetected from the country.

One official in an effort at disguise was found dressed like a beggar.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

There are many people who find it difficult to relax sufficiently to go to sleep and who are nevertheless sleep hungry. When we need sleep it seems that we should be able to go to sleep easily, but we know this is not always true. This difficulty in getting enough sleep is very common among all classes of people. Some are unable to go back to sleep once they awaken during the night. Others lie in bed for hours hoping for sleep, meanwhile counting sheep trying to make the mind blank, or some other time worn sleep inducing plan. Generally speaking, the need sleep the most, are the ones who find it hardest to fall into a sound, refreshing sleep.

There are many causes of sleeplessness, but undoubtedly the most common of all is due to irritations produced from indigestion and the pressure of large quantities of gas in the stomach and intestines. I find that those patients who awaken regularly about one or two in the morning are in every case troubled with gas pressure. Due to the remains of the last meal which is fermenting inside them and causing gas. This flatulence is also often responsible for the nightmares which disturb sleep.

Other physical conditions which may produce an inability to sleep, or a disturbed sleep, are: intense itching, coughing, choking, stoppage of the nose, adenoids, heart trouble, constipation, bladder weakness, diarrhea, worms, high blood pressure, ringing in the ears and toxic conditions. A loss of sleep is also noticed in nervous disorders, and yet it has been my experience that most of those who think they are troubled with insomnia, because of nervousness, are really being irritated physically by the pressure of impacted feces or gas in the colon, but which has not been sufficiently pronounced to make them conscious of pain. Many of these nervous patients are able to enjoy a refreshing night's sleep a day or two after a fruit fast accompanied with enemas to cleanse the intestines of accumulated waste material. Many people find that an enema taken just before retiring will empty out the colon and insure a deep sound sleep. Others are soothed into sleep by a warm sponge bath. A hot water bottle placed at the feet will sometimes serve the purpose of drawing the blood away from the brain.

I have never known a case of insomnia which could not easily be cured by a combination of treatment for removing the stomach and intestinal irritation, having the patient take more physical exercise and the use of some simple mental suggestions on going to bed. Lie perfectly relaxed and repeat over and over slowly, "sleepy, sleepy, sleepy." Inhale slowly without effort while you are repeating this word mentally and you will find that the conscious mind can be readily lulled into a deep sleep. Even the most stubborn cases of sleeplessness will usually yield to the above measures which are to be preferred to the habit of using sleep producing drugs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Symptoms of Thyroid Derangement)

Question: Mrs. F. writes: "I have a queer feeling in my throat, just above the two small bones in my chest. Seems as if something were pressing hard on my windpipe. Also have pains in my hands and arms whenever I put them in cold water."

Answer: You are doubtless suffering from some derangement of the thyroid gland which would produce the symptoms you write about. It will be glad to send you some special articles on the subject of the cause and cure of thyroid troubles if you will forward a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Colery)

Question: G. J. asks: "Can a person eat too much colery? Is one bunch too much a day?"

Answer: I do not believe anyone ever hurt himself eating too much colery. This is one of those things to agree with everyone. I am sure a good-sized bunch is not too much to use in a day.

(Tonsils)

Question: M. E. C. writes: "I enjoy reading your question and answer column, and would like to ask a question myself. I had my tonsils taken out about four months ago, but when exposed to wind or in a real warm place I have coughing spells. Please advise me if you appear of having tonsils taken out if they are diseased. Also if the exposure to wind and heat after a certain length of time will cease making me cough. Is it an early sign of tuberculosis of the throat?"

Answer: The cause of any cough should be very thoroughly investigated. Yes, it is true that it may be an early sign of tuberculosis of the throat, but not necessarily so, as it may be simply a result from your operation. I do not advise promiscuous removal of tonsils. They are composed of lymphoid tissue and when diseased can be made healthy again through dieting and following the proper hygienic habits.

CALLS CROSS' IDEA A PERILOUS ONE

Rogers Points Out Chaos Likely to Result From Constitutional Plan.

Winsted, Oct. 27.—Lieutenant-Governor Ernest E. Rogers, Republican nominee for governor, in an address at a republican gathering Saturday night, declared that the business men of Connecticut are amazed at the proposal of Professor Cross, Democratic candidate, for calling a constitutional convention which might mean "the wrecking of the whole Constitution."

His address in part follows: "There is an unfavorable reaction from the practical business men throughout the state to the amazing proposal of Professor Cross to call a federal constitutional convention to repeal the 18th Amendment."

Couldn't Be Limited "Does the professor think for one moment that it would be possible to confine the deliberations of a Constitutional Convention to the problem of prohibition? If he does, he undoubtedly has not studied carefully the history of conventions of this kind."

Reopen Negro Question "Does Mr. Cross propose, for example, to reopen the whole question of negro suffrage and representation in the Southern states? Does he wish to revive the proposals for initiative, referendum, recall, and the recall of judicial decisions? Does he wish to restate the permanent intelligibility of justice of the Supreme Court for any other office under the United States? Does he wish to revive the proposal to take away from the Supreme Court of the United States the power to declare acts of Congress or acts of a State Legislature unconstitutional? Does he wish to debate all over again the question of life tenure for federal judges or a provision that decisions upon certain types of question must be by a greater than a majority vote?"

Countless Questions "In the event of a constitutional convention it is inevitable that not only these questions but countless other ones, such as uniformity of marriage and divorce laws, uniform child labor laws, uniform hours of employment, Federal control of schools, state relations with aliens, uniform wages, fixing of prices and supervision of the stock exchange would all be brought forward in an effort to secure constitutional provisions applicable to them."

ON THE OTHER FOOT Jackie: Only that little bit of jam for me? Mother: That is not for you—it is for sister. Jackie: What? All that for her? —Pages Gales, Yverdon.

HIS TURN Master: Did you throw out the shoemaker when he came with my bill? Servant: Yes, sir, but here he is again with a bill for me, so now you can throw him out.—Nagel's Loustige Welt, Berlin.

NO DOUBT WHATEVER Brown: You ought to brace up and show your wife who's running things at your house. Potts (saddy): There's no need. She knows.—Montreal Star.

HEBRON

A meeting of St. Peter's church Parish Aid met at the home of the president, Mrs. Anne C. Gilbert Thursday afternoon. There were only eight present as some of the members were away from home. The time was spent in sewing. Tea and sandwiches were served. Allan L. Carr, the reader in charge, dropped in at the close of the meeting and invited the society to meet at the rectory next time.

T. H. Kellogg of Hartford visited his countryplace here in the vicinity of Hopevale on Friday. Mr. Kellogg's wife and family have returned to Hartford after spending the summer here.

Members of Miss Clarissa L. Pennington's Sunday school class met at her home Friday afternoon to continue the work of sewing for a box to be sent to a mission school in the South. A large doll was contributed by Miss Barbara Tomant, a member of the class, and the members of the class are helping to dress it for the box.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Horton of New Haven spent the week-end here at the small cottage owned by Mr. Horton's mother, Mrs. Marietta Horton. The latter, who was the guest of her son in New Haven, law at their home when they motored here for their visit. Mr. and Mrs. Horton have made a summer camp of the cottage through the warm weather.

Mrs. Louise Blume is spending some time in Canaan with Mr. and Mrs. Lyles. Community band rehearsals are being held weekly Thursday evenings at the Town Hall, Hebron Center, instead of at Gilead Hall. The action of the town in doing away with a fee for the use of the hall for all local purposes of an educational, religious or patriotic nature is much appreciated by such groups.

The Bible class taught by the Rev. John W. Deeter met at the rectory Thursday evening. Ten in all were present, including the teacher. The Comparative Study of the Gospels was continued and there was a lively discussion following and during the lesson. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Loren M. Lord.

Miss Marjorie Martin of the Dalton, Mass., Public Library, spent the week-end at the home of her mother, Mrs. Josephine Martin. The first snow of the season occurred here on Saturday forenoon. It was mixed with rain and melted as it fell, but for quite a while the air was white with the large sticky flakes.

The old Post place has been nearly torn down and work on the store has begun. Many truck loads of pieces have been carried to Norfolk where the house is to be reconstructed with date 1795 in the foundations. The house and store were built about 1797 instead of 1806 as was popularly supposed. A detailed examination of the town records has established the date. It is said that the place when rebuilt will be enough like the old place to be recognizable, though it will not be an exact replica.

The following new books have been placed on the library shelves for distribution: The Callahan and the Murphys. Kathleen Norris; Touchstone, Ben Ames Williams; The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, Conan Doyle, (duplicate copy); The Buffer, Alice Hegan Rice; The Sea Hawk, Rafael Sabatini; Her Son's Wife, Dorothy Campbell; Penrod Jashber, Booth Tarkington; Dangerous Days, Mary E. Roberts Rinehart; Two Flights Up, Mrs. Rinehart; North of 36, Emerson Hough; The Rose Garden Husband, Margaret Wildmer; Doctor Dolittle's Zoo, Hugh Lofting; Under the Tonto Rim, The Man of the Forest, The Mysterious Rider, Fighting Caravans, by Zane Grey; Nomads of the North, Green of the North, The Alaskan, Green of the North, O. Curwood; Prize Stories of 1928, Prize Stories of 1929, O. Henry Memorial Award; Burning Beauty, Temple Bailey; The Black Camel, E. D. Biggers; The Bishop Murder Case, The Canary Murder Case, The Covered Wagon, Murders in the Fog, Van Dine; Blah! Blah! J. C. Lincoln and Freeman Lincoln; The Nigger of the Narcissus, Joseph Conrad; Mother India, Katharine Mayo; The Stump Farm, Hand da Rose; A Lantern in her Hand, Bess Streeter Aldrich; Training the Todder, Elizabeth Cleveland; Long-Tails, Stephen W. Meader; Janice Meredith, Paul S. Ford; The Trials of Mary Dugan, William A. Wolf; Abie's Irish Rose, Anne Nichols; The Great Meadow, Elizabeth M. Roberts; The Covered Wagon, Emerson Hough; The Virginian, (duplicate); Dwen Wister; The Keeper of the Bees, Gene Stratton Porter; Jim the Conqueror, Peter E. Kyne; The Kays, Margaret Deland; Professor, How Could You? Norris; The Green Goddess, L. Fletcher; The Back Trailers from the Middle Border, Hamlin Garland; Country Auction, Marian N. Rawson; The Librarian, Mrs. Josephine Martin, has been notified that the year's quota due for the state, the year's quota due for the state, and a new invoice of books, fiction and non-fiction will be sent out.

Word has been received that Wilbur E. Payne of East Hartford has been operated on for appendicitis. Mr. Payne is well known here being a frequent visitor at the home of relatives. Mrs. Payne is the daughter of the late Noble E. Lord, formerly of Hebron.

Miss Florence E. Smith, principal of the Seymour School, West Hartford, and Miss Mary E. Kelley, spent the week-end at the home of Miss Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Smith. Miss Smith was one of the speakers at the convention for school principals held in New London on Friday.

The local Boy Scouts did their good deed a few days ago by gathering up some of the discarded wood from the Post place and distributing it among those who would appreciate its use for fuel. They used their favorite automobile, "The Leaping Lizzy" in the task.

Carlton H. Jones had a twelve pound coon on exhibition at the post office a day or two ago, one which he had captured. Edward A. Whitcomb of Amston also was exhibiting a large grey fox which he had shot recently.

Two Thousand Suits Against Government Washington, Oct. 27.—Two thousand cases involving almost $3,000,000 are before the Court of Claims at its present session. It is estimated that the suits involve almost every possible claim that can be made against the government. They include actions for requisition of troops, armaments and supplies, contracts for anti-aircraft engines and guns and myriad tax actions.

Despite the number of cases filed, the court is up with its trail calendar and that in the face of a heavy increase in the number of cases during the last ten years. There were only 733 on its docket on July 1, 1921.

In some suits the government not only successfully defends itself against the plaintiff's claim but recovers a counter-claim. Such judgments in favor of the government during the last fiscal year brought in the government, however, amounted to $14,238,632.

LINDY'S TEACHER KILLED St. Louis, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Errol G. Bahl, 35, a former flying instructor of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was killed yesterday when his motor car collided with a machine driven by Charles Remington, a salesman. Bahl was a pilot for the Union Electric Light and Power Co., and had been flying since 1918.

Queer Twists In Day's News

New York—The Roosevelt Distinguished Service Medal, this year goes to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, for his work in the cause of industrial peace, and to Dr. Hastings H. Hart, pathologist, for promotion of social justice. Awards are made annually on Roosevelt's birthday by the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

Montclair, N. J.—For winning his Y in life Dr. Harvey Cushing, Boston surgeon and author, is to receive the Montclair Yale Club Bowl this year. The club annually honors a distinguished alumnus.

New York—The boy with the most correct ear and promising voice is to receive a scholarship of $1200 for training as a church singer. Announcement of a gift of Miss Edith Grinnell Bowdoin is made by the Episcopal Church of the Heavenly Rest. Any boy in the United States between the ages of 10 and 13 is eligible.

Genoa—On the birthday of Niccolò Paganini, famous violinist, his compositions are played here in the churches and theaters, musicians visit his tomb and sailors in port tell the story of his death. Genoa they hear his violin singing beneath the waves. He was born in 1782. His birthday is the same as Roosevelt's.

Amarillo, Tex.—Because Mary Gardner is coming to town merchandise never before on sale in Amarillo is on the way in a hurry. A clothing store telegraphed an order for 42 frock coats when Gene Howe, Mary's host, made regulations about the sale of male goods.

New York—On the road to Mandalay! A tourist has come from India with news that the automobile traffic from Colombo to Kandy is so heavy that headlights and taillights, while in front and red in back, have been decreed for elephants on the hilly highway. The idea is to protect the cars from additional and quite severe up and down.

Farkville, Mo.—Park College does not engage in intercollegiate sports and its president, Dr. Frederick W. Hawley, has a suggestion for colleges that do, in substance: it is no worse to capitalize your prowess booting a football than throwing hash. Students who excel in studies are given scholarships. Why not scholarships for athletic ability in athletic facilities?

London—A story of a mummified hawk which has dripped blood coincidentally with the approach of war and peace comes from Lord Robert Baden-Powell. He saw it in a friend's private museum. His friend told him that a month before the Boer war started brown bubbles oozed from the hawk. They ceased a month before the war ended. The coming time started a month before the World War began and a month before the Armistice. The friend found the mummy in Egyptian excavations. It is supposed to be 4,000 years old.

HILLSTOWN

Hillstown Grange celebrated its 42d anniversary on Thursday night, Oct. 23rd. After the regular meeting was closed upstairs all were invited downstairs to a supper consisting of roast beef, mashed potatoes, turnips, carrots, coffee and apple pie, cheese, coffee and canned pie, cheese, coffee and canned pie, cheese, coffee and canned pie.

The lecturer of the state Grange Mrs. L. Curtis, the lecturer of the East Central Pomona Mrs. E. Stoughton, Worthy Deputy of East Central Pomona E. Stoughton. The program opened with a group song. Then the Master Miss Emma Burt introduced Horace Wickham who was toastmaster for the event. He introduced the other speakers.

Mrs. Laura Bremer read a paper on the past history of the Grange and Mary Hart read a paper on being a good Granger. Miss Wickham, daughter of the Master of Manchester Grange gave a violin solo accompanied on the piano by her father which was very beautifully rendered and enjoyed by all the Masters of the Granges present.

There were remarks by all the Masters of the Granges present, also a recitation by Hattie Hills Galbrath who was a charter member of Hillstown Grange. Ruth Hills a member gave a monologue after which a group song closed the program. There were present three charter members, Laura Bremer, Hattie Hills Galbrath and Elliott Hills. Joel Bremer another charter member was not able to be present on account of illness. Mrs. C. Bradley who at one time was a frequent visitor was present on this occasion.

CHURCH BOMBED

Los Angeles, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—The Rev. Robert F. Shuler, broad-casting pastor and his Trinity Methodist church, South, were in public attention again today as police investigated the mysterious bombing of the downtown church early Sunday morning. Only slight damage was done by the explosion. Police believed the blast was set off by a prank, or by some crank who wished to frighten worshippers from the church.

Several plate glass windows in the building and in nearby structures were broken. Police estimated the damage at $180. One consolation a harassed husband has in sitting out is that he has an opportunity to give an order.

TO ADD PLUMBING TO TECH STUDIES

Tall Buildings Make Big Problem for Engineers—Plan Seismograph Station.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 27.—(AP)—The establishment of a plumbing laboratory to meet a growing need and the future installation of a seismograph at East Machias, Me., formed a part of the annual report of the president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to the corporation, made public today.

The report was made by Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, chairman of the corporation, and covers the activities of technology under his term of office as president during the past academic year, until the beginning of President Karl T. Compton's administration. Dr. Stratton was appointed chairman of the corporation last June.

The proposed installation of the seismograph station is contained in a part of the report discussing two new courses which will be offered at Tech next year. One of the courses, geodesy, will be under the department of civil engineering and will provide for study of problems of vital interest in the matter of earth movements. The other new course, seismology, will deal not only with earthquakes, but also with their various forces and effects on engineering structures such as bridges, dams and towering modern buildings.

Situated in Maine
The proposed seismograph station, which will include a seismograph of new design, will be installed at the institute's civil engineering camp near East Machias, Me. "Recent establishment of a plumbing laboratory at technology," the report says, "is an indication that with the tremendous advances in building construction and the design of buildings of great heights there is a definite need for scientific and technical knowledge in this field of sanitary engineering."

Dr. Stratton reported a great demand for graduates of the department of mechanical engineering and said that 50 per cent more students than those graduated last year could have been placed had they been available. The demand for experts in the field of metallurgy also exceeds the number it has been possible to train, the report said.

Graduates' Records
The achievements of the department of the architecture were pointed out by Dr. Stratton, who commented on the excellent record of graduates. The Paris prize, one of the most coveted of architectural honors, has been won by a graduate of Tech's architectural department for the third time in four years, he said.

Satisfactory progress was reported in the department of aeronautical engineering and during the year a new five-foot wind tunnel for instruction and research has been in operation.

The work of the new hydraulic engineering laboratory established during the past year, has included several important problems, the report said, which have demonstrated the need for research in the field. The course in meteorology has shown great results, Dr. Stratton said.

"There is a growing demand," Dr. Stratton said, "for executives who have had a business training with an engineering background. The demand has resulted in the establishment of the course in engineering administration as a department of business and engineering administration."

ROYAL COUPLE STARTS ON A HONEYMOON TRIP

Giovanna wept as she said adieu to her sister Mafalda and her brother Crown Prince Humbert, as the yacht was leaving Brindisi, but as the boat cleared its berth, she was smiling. As the boat drifted away from the shore Giovanna raised her arm in the Roman salute. Boris doffed his cap.

5 VIOLENT DEATHS REPORTED IN STATE

Three Auto Accidents, Accidental Shooting and a Suicide Over the Week-end.

By Associated Press
Five violent deaths, three by autos, were reported in Connecticut over the week-end as near freezing temperatures gripped the state and the volume of football traffic increased to midseason proportions.

A suicide in New Britain and an accidental shooting in Milford were responsible for two of the five deaths.

The automobile victims included James P. Webster, 52, retired captain of the New Haven fire department. He died of a fractured skull after he had been struck by a machine driven by Mrs. Ogden W. White, wife of a well known newspaper man who died recently. A reckless driving charge was lodged against Mrs. White.

Auto Accidents
Automobile accidents also claimed the lives of Miss Rebecca Leach, 65, of New London, and George Thomas of Detroit, Mich. The former was struck by a machine driven by Thomas Mullen of Pawtucket, R. I., while crossing a highway in New London. Thomas was fatally injured and two others, Joseph Marshall and Edward Madison, both of New York, hurt when their car overturned in a ditch at Northford after sideswiping two machines. Madison's condition is considered critical.

Killed by Gun
Walter L. Ronald, 64, of Milford, shot and fatally wounded himself in an attempt to separate two fighting dogs with a shotgun. Police believe that the gun went off when its butt struck the ground or one of the dogs.

The charge struck the man in the side resulting in his death shortly afterward.

Falling in one suicide attempt last week William Servick of New Britain succeeded in ending his life in his second attempt over the week-end. He was found dead in bed in his boarding house. A tube attached to a gas jet was found under his bed clothing.

Last week a fellow boarder smelled gas and frustrated Servick's first attempt at suicide. Recently Servick met his rescuer and said: "Next time don't bother."

From England comes the news that paper has been invented which stretches like rubber. Just the thing on which to write snappy stories.

H. P. WHITNEY DEAD; FAMOUS HORSEMAN

End Comes Unexpectedly to Millionaire—Was Husband of Noted Sculptor.

New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Harry Payne Whitney, sportsman and possessor of one of the greatest fortunes in America, died unexpectedly of pneumonia at his Fifth avenue home last night. He was 58 years old. Mr. Whitney's wife, the former Gertrude Vanderbilt, distinguished sculptor, and their three children were with him when he died. He was the son of William C. Whitney, secretary of the Navy in the Cabinet of President Cleveland from whom he inherited a huge fortune amassed by amalgamating a score of surface traction lines. Harry Payne Whitney's inheritance which was estimated at $24,000,000 was increased to approximately $200,000,000 through his operations in mining, banking and real estate.

Famous Horseman
Harry Payne Whitney owned one of the greatest racing stables in the world and at various times his horses won the Kentucky Derby, the Pimlico Preakness and virtually every other great race in this country. He was born in New York April 29, 1872, and was graduated from Yale University in 1894. He also studied law at Columbia. Two years after graduation from Yale he married Gertrude Vanderbilt, daughter of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt.

He is survived by his wife, a son Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney and two daughters, Mrs. C. McCulloch Miller and Mrs. Barklie McKee Henry.

$354,000,000 IN FIFTEEN YEARS

For 15 years, Republican administrations have been in charge of Connecticut's government. During that time, there has been collected and disbursed, $354,000,000. A few of the major items comprising the disbursements follow:

Construction and Maintenance of Highways	$127,600,000
For Charities, Hospitals and Treatment of State Charges	66,800,000
For Education	51,600,000
General Government (Executive, legislative, judicial administration)	27,700,000
Protection to Persons and Property	24,000,000
Conservation of Health and Sanitation	16,500,000
Development and Conservation of Natural Resources	7,300,000
Care and Treatment of Veterans	7,000,000

The amount above includes the funding of $11,000,000 of indebtedness, inherited in 1915 from the last Democratic administration.

TODAY---

1. General property taxes are lower in Connecticut than in 45 other states.
2. We stand first among states in money spent for communicable disease (tuberculosis).
3. We are third in money spent for hospitals, charities and corrective institutions.
4. We eliminated former Democratic yearly deficits by the "pay as you go" method.
5. We stopped issuing bonds—We are now out of debt.
6. The State is rendering admirable service to its citizens.
7. We are the leader of states in financial management.

Shall we continue sound management of our state affairs in Connecticut, or take chances with Democrats who have no experience with state affairs, and who advocate more activities and in the same breath assail expenditures. BEGIN HERE TODAY

Adventure enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL, 17, when she learns the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore to live in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother.

MARGARET ROGERS, Celia's mother, is now a widow, having divorced Mitchell and remarried later. BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore Celia promises to be loyal to his love. Mitchell asks EVELYN, Celia's beautiful sister, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections though she is jealous and at once begins scheming to get rid of the girl.

Celia in TOD JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character, and does all she can to encourage this match. LISI DUNCAN, socially prominent, is Celia's loyal friend. Mitchell learns Celia is paying his daughter attention and forbids her to see him. Celia offends her grandmother and the elderly Mrs. Mitchell feigns illness and departs for her home. Mrs. Parsons Long Island calls for a lengthy visit. Jordan calls there frequently.

Mrs. Parsons lunches with Mitchell and he tells her he has investigated Jordan's past and that the young man is a gambler. She does not pass this news on to Celia. Next day Celia, Lisi and Jordan attend the races and there Celia encounters Barney Shields. Shields is employed by a New York City service. She meets him next day and they have dinner together. He asks her if she still cares for him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIX

Barney Shields' firm gaze held the girl's. She could not look away. In the depths of Barney's gray eyes Celia could read intensity and a challenge that was frightening. She could not evade it. It would hurt, but there was no other way. She had to tell Barney the truth!

"He was waiting for her answer. 'I know that I promised—' she began. 'You mean there is someone?' Shields' voice was sharp explosive. 'Barney—yes, there is.' 'Neither of them spoke. Shields was looking down at the table now. Very steadily. Celia watched him, afraid of what she would see when he lifted his head. She was miserable with the knowledge that she had caused suffering and could do nothing to relieve it.

"I'm sorry," she said in a low voice, "but I had to be honest with you." He was looking at her now. The table seemed to have widened. Barney's manner was composed, but the laughing light in his eyes had faded.

"Well—that's that! Thank you for telling me, Celia." A waiter brought a food before them. Celia felt as though she could not swallow a mouthful. It was soup, thick with vegetables and savory. She took a spoonful and found it appetizing.

"Are you engaged?" Shields asked. "No. That is—not really. You see, father doesn't approve of Tod. I mean he doesn't really know him. He'll feel differently just as soon as he gets over his prejudice. I'm sure of that."

"I see." A rush of compassion swept over Celia. "Barney, I can't stand it to have you talk like that. We've been friends so long. I've felt miserable because I promised to wait for you and then—well, you see you didn't write and I met Tod."

"There's something about him. I don't know. At first I tried to pretend I didn't like him. Then I went swimming and almost drowned and he saved my life. He's been wonderful. I still like you a lot, Barney, but Tod's different. Do you see how it is?"

"I see all right!" The mocking quality in the words was unaccountable. "Don't talk like that! I can't stand it. Promise me I'll always be friends. Good friends!" The young man's eyes were averted.

"If that's the way you feel about it you can count on me," he said. "Who is this—Tod, if I may inquire?" "Tod Jordan's his full name."

"Got lots of dough?" "No. That is, well, I suppose so. He doesn't have an office or anything like that." "Just those parlor tricks, huh?" "Barney, do you think that's nice?"

The young man smiled a twisted smile. "Sorry," he said. "No, I guess it wasn't very. Of course, all that stuff's out of my class." "If you're trying to hurt my feelings—"

"Oh, see here, Celia, you know I didn't mean anything like that! Don't take it that way. Honestly, I'm sorry!" "All right then."

Neither had done more than taste the soup. It was removed and followed by a huge mound of spaghetti with sauce and bowl of cheese. "You're supposed to do it this way," Shields explained, wrapping the spaghetti about his fork. This diversion interrupted the conversation. Presently the young man asked:

"You care a lot for this fellow Jordan, do you?" His voice was low, almost husky. Celia nodded her head. "Yes, Barney," she said. There was no more talk on the subject. Celia asked about her mother, but Barney had little news to give. He had seen Mrs. Rogers a couple of times after the girl's departure. He had called to say goodbye before coming to New York, but there had been no answer to his knock. When Celia inquired about her mother's health he answered that Mrs. Rogers looked "about the same as usual."

It was not altogether satisfactory. "I wish I could see her," the girl said. "You know how she is, if anything was the matter she'd never let anyone know."

Shields tried to be comforting. He inquired about the places Celia went and how she spent her time. "Ritz, all right," he concluded. "Well, you won't have much time to waste on a guy like me."

"Don't say that, Barney. I want to see you often." "Oh, it's probably just as well if you don't, I expect, you're pretty busy with this fellow Jordan talking you to parties and teas. Anyway, it'll take me a while to—well, sort of work things out."

They had dessert and black coffee, and after they had finished Shields told the girl a story about the station. It was early, but she was anxious to reach Larchwood before there was any possibility that Mrs. Parsons would be there.

"When am I going to see you again?" she asked as they stood together on the train platform. "Hard to tell. We have rather irregular schedules, you know. I'll be out at the races the rest of this week, I guess." The young man's indifference was a pose obvious even to Celia.

"You might telephone." "Thanks, I'll try to." She said goodbye, thanked him for the dinner and entered the car. By the time she had found a seat and looked out of the window Shields had vanished. Celia rode to her station feeling that she had done the cruellest act of her life. It hurt her to remember Barney's face with his mouth such a straight, firm line and the smile gone from his eyes. Barney wasn't like that.

She got off the train, signaled a cab and arrived at Larchwood before eight o'clock. Mrs. Parsons was still absent. Celia went upstairs to her room, changed her dress for one of rose net made with the quaint puff sleeves and full skirt that gave her an old-fashioned charm. She put on her mother's locket because it made Margaret Rogers seem nearer to her. After that she went down to wait for Evelyn.

She moved the radio dials until the syncopated revelry of a night club orchestra floated in the room. That was better. Life—life—life! That was what she needed. Celia wished Tod Jordan would come and take her somewhere. She wanted to dance, to hear Jordan make love to her and forget that down deep in her heart she was still waiting for Barney Shields to make his fortune.

Jordan telephoned at nine o'clock and at the sound of his voice Celia forgot that she had been unhappy. He had met friends and was unable to get away for the evening. He said, but would come to take her driving the next afternoon. Jordan added something that made the girl's cheeks flush. As she put down the telephone she was singing softly.

His later Evelyn arrived home. She made hasty apologies. The bridge tournament had been a disappointment because she and her partner had lost. Mrs. Parsons was an expert player and unable to accept losses at cards with good grace.

"Was there any message from your father?" she asked Celia. "Not while I've been here." "H'm! I thought he might drive down for dinner tomorrow evening. Perhaps we'll hear from him in the morning."

Mitchell did not call or arrive at Larchwood next evening. Two days later Mrs. Parsons made an announcement at the luncheon table. "I think I'll close the house early this season," she said. "The intense heat is over, and really until all these legal affairs are arranged it would be much more convenient to be in town."

Celia looked up, startled. "You mean you're going to leave Larchwood?" "Yes, next Monday. That's the fourth of September. Time to be realizing that fall is almost here."

The girl's face was downcast. "Then suppose I'm to go back to Grammercy Square," she said slowly. "Nothing of the sort! Your grandmother won't be in town for a month. It wouldn't do at all for you to go back there. Besides, I've plenty of room in the apartment. I thought you'd like it. You'll see a great deal more of your father, I should think."

"Oh, that makes everything all right!" "Sweet child! You didn't want to leave me, did you?" "No, I didn't."

Mrs. Parsons looked pleased. She took care to repeat this incident the next time she met John Mitchell. And Mitchell, hearing it, seemed impressed. "Celia's awfully fond of you, Evelyn," he said. "I've noticed that myself. And why shouldn't she be? You're almost a mother to her!" Evelyn eyed him from under lowered lids.

"I only wish I could do more," she said quietly. The following week saw Mrs. Parsons and Celia installed in the uptown apartment. The girl dreaded leaving Larchwood, but after she was back in the city she found life far different than in her grandmother's dreary mansion. Mrs. Parsons had many engagements. Celia was allowed to entertain herself as she chose, and there was no dearth of amusements. Tod Jordan became even more attentive. He took Celia on long drives, stopping usually at some country place for dinner. Evenings they saw plays or danced.

Mrs. Parsons began ordering her fall wardrobe. Early selections, she said, was important. At Mitchell's request she took Celia shopping and helped the girl select several costumes. During the first week in the city Celia sent a note to Barney Shields giving him her new address, and asking him to call. She received no answer.

Celia was melancholy for a day or two and then determined to put Barney out of her mind. She was hurrying along Madison avenue one afternoon only a few blocks from Evelyn Parsons' apartment when she recognized a tweed suit ahead. The young man wearing the suit was buying a newspaper.

The girl paused beside him. "How do you do, Mr. Shields?" "Celia!" The broad grin Barney flashed at her was like old times. "I've been wanting to see you," she said. "Won't you walk home with me?" "Glad to."

They had gone half a block and were talking eagerly when suddenly Celia noticed a man coming toward them. It was Tod Jordan. (To Be Continued)

ROOSEVELT'S BIRTH

On Oct. 27, 1858, Theodore Roosevelt, 26th president of the United States, was born in New York City of a distinguished family of Dutch origin.

He graduated from Harvard College at 22 and launched his political career a year later when he was elected to the New York legislature, of which he was the youngest member.

He continued thereafter in public life, serving on the U. S. Civil Service Commission, as head of the New York City police department and as assistant secretary of the navy. He resigned the latter post to organize the Rough Riders, a volunteer unit which did remarkable fighting in the Spanish-American War.

After he had served as governor of New York, Roosevelt was elected vice president and succeeded to the presidency on the death of President McKinley. At the close of the term, he was re-elected.

For bringing about the treaty of peace between Russia and Japan in 1905 Roosevelt was awarded the Nobel peace prize. In 1910, after he had led a big game hunting expedition to East Africa, he returned through Europe, receiving numerous honors. In 1912 he was presidential candidate of the Progressive party, which he organized. He died in 1919.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

Homemakers who are conscientiously trying to maintain a balanced diet realize the necessity of providing foods rich in iron. While it is found in a variety of foods, many of the staple everyday dishes contain little or no iron, their value as food lying in other directions. Many of the foods generally known to be rich in iron are expensive, and even when economy is not necessary a constant repetition becomes monotonous and the foods grow unpopular.

All authorities acknowledge the superiority of spinach regarding iron content, but the fact remains that many people simply will not eat spinach. So other foods must be provided to take its place. Any vegetable which is green or yellow in color is a good source of iron as well as vitamins. The color also indicates a quality which enables the body to use the supply of iron to the best advantage.

Prunes and raisins rank high in iron content. Potatoes are surprisingly good. Dried beans are good iron foods. Whole cereals and bread made from the entire grain are important sources of iron. These, with cane molasses, offer a variety of cheap iron foods.

Iron in Oysters

Beef is a traditional iron food, as are eggs, milk and liver. Oysters are almost as high in the list of iron foods as meat. Experiments have proven liver, especially of unusual value in building red blood cells. While cabbage is an excellent iron food, careful cooking may make it almost worthless. The smaller the amount of water and the larger the pieces of vegetables, the less the loss of iron.

All vegetables that can be served raw are desirable, since there is no iron lost during the cooking process. If vegetables are cooked, the water in which they were cooked should be either cooked away or added to the serving. Heat has no effect on iron matter, so canned vegetables are as efficient as fresh ones as far as their iron content is concerned. The water over canned vegetables should not be thrown away. Repeat the vegetable in this water and either let it cook away or use it in a sauce.

TOO MUCH MILK CAUSES CHILD TO LOSE APETITE, DOCTORS SAY

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

For many years it has been generally understood that milk is the ideal substance for the diet of the child. It is easily available, simple to use and is certainly an excellent food from many points of view. It demands only the addition of certain salts and of vitamins in order to make it a complete food.

As pointed out by Doctors F. W. Schultz and W. J. Siemsen, specialists in diseases of children may be opposed to the opinion of nutrition experts and are inclined to doubt the value of a considerable amount of cow's milk in the child's diet. They are inclined to believe that milk may be an important factor in the causing and development of loss of appetite in children beyond the age of infancy.

Several experts have described ill effects from excess feeding of milk, but it is not known whether the development of this phenomenon is due to deficiency in vitamins and minerals, whether it is due to some peculiarity of composition or some special substance in the milk. When a child is fed enough milk to get one-half its total amount of calories in the form of fat, it is likely to develop a loss of appetite sooner or later.

A quart of milk a day, once urged as the universal standard, may in time develop a distaste for milk in many children. From the psychological point of view, Doctor F. P. Gengenbach emphasized the importance of keeping the milk off the table until the child had eaten the rest of its food.

Sometimes the child refuses to eat all of the food in anticipation of the milk which it dislikes and sometimes it gulps down the milk so as to get as soon as possible to the other food which it prefers, knowing that it must drink the milk or it will not be permitted to touch the other food. Orange juice may be given between meals instead of milk in some cases to considerable advantage.

Doctor Gengenbach has felt that food should be taken as dry as possible and that the milk should be given only in the quantity which the child desires to take at the end of the meal.

Cubs Meet First Defeat As Majors Win 40 to 0

TATRO SCORES 3 TOUCHDOWNS FOR NORTH END TEAM

Garrity and Brown, New-comers From Providence, Make Fine Impression Against Weak Bright-woods.

Still smarting from the 16-0 trouncing at the hands of the New London Okford, the Majors ran berserk against the Brightwoods of Springfield at Hickey's Grove yesterday afternoon, scoring touchdowns in every period to hang up a seventh victory in eight games. The final score was 40-0 with Tatro reaping scoring honors with three touchdowns. Others who scored were "Nick" Angelo, "Ern" Brown, and "Hank" Garrity, the latter two recruited from Rhode Island, where some years back they won All-State recognition with the Providence Tech team.

The Majors ripped the lighter Brightwood line to shreds and when in possession of the ball marched the field's length for score upon score. The Brightwoods were unable to pierce the stone wall defense of the Majors and resorted to an aerial attack to gain three first downs, as against nineteen for the winners. Not once did the Majors have to fight to gain yardage. Every man in the backfield ran wild. Melkie, Angelo, Fenness, Garrity, Brown, Saherek, Deddario, and Tatro.

The score in the opening quarter came when Melkie advanced a punt from midfield to Brightwood's 38 yard line. Deddario fumbled, but recovered at the 35. Then Melkie reeled off 17 yards and Saherek 14, Angelo scoring from the four yard line. Every play was through center or off guard. Sully drop-kicked the point after, his only attempt that was successful, the others going wide of the uprights.

In the second quarter Brown punted and Suk received the kick running the end to get away from tacklers. Instead he was forced over his own goal line where he grounded the ball for a safety. The next Major scored twice in the third quarter. Tatro intercepted Brown's pass on the Brightwood's 25 yard line. Then Suk tried a pass that Lippincott blocked and intercepted, advancing to the one yard line. A plunge by Tatro made the score 13-0. The next play, Tatro dodged and ran for 35 yards, the remaining distance for the score, going across standing up.

In the final period two more touchdowns trickled across the Brightwood's goal. With Brown, Saherek, Tatro and Garrity toting the pigskin for first downs, Tatro scored the fifth touchdown. Then the Majors blocked Teece's kick on his 31 yard line. Deddario made a first down, Garrity made five yards, Angelo made four and Garrity scored just as quick as that. Deddario added the point with a line plunge.

Little can be said for the Brightwoods, the fact being that they did little, or in all frankness, nothing at all. It was just another one of those things for the Majors. It was announced that the Trojans of Clinton, Mass., would play the Majors at Hickey's next Sunday.

The Summary:

A LOCAL CHALLENGE

Sporting Editor, Manchester Herald.
Dear Sir:—The Eagles football team of Manchester would like to challenge the winners of the Cubs-Majors series. The Eagles do not bar any players playing with either the Cubs or the Majors and therefore do not expect to have any players on their team barred. If this challenge is accepted, the football fans of Manchester will be football stars that compare with the best local or out-of-town players either the Cubs or Majors have, or can get. Thanking you in sports,

CARLMARK'S ERROR PREVENTED A WIN FOR ARMY ELEVEN

His Offside Violation Gave Yale Point After Touchdown and Tie Game; Cadets Deserved Victory.

By ERIC W. MODEAN

A blocked Army punt late in the first quarter recovered by Yale on Army's five-yard line and converted into a touchdown was the only offensive achievement of a barking Bulldog, minus the bite of Albie Booth, against a stubborn, kicking Mule, Saturday afternoon. Despite inclement weather a crowd of 77,000 enthusiastic fans filled the Bowl to see Army, undaunted by bad breaks, fight its way to a 7-7 tie, the first since 1924 and the seventh since 1893 when the elevens first met in battle on the gridiron.

Army deserved to win. From the moment the scoreboard proclaimed a 7-0 Yale lead Army was doggedly fighting her way. In so doing, eleven first downs were scored to the foot Yale. Only the marvelous punting of Robert Parker, substitute back, saved the Blue from defeat. Time and again the ball rose in a high spiral from the depths of Yale's ten yard line, only to be brought back by an Army eleven that wouldn't be beaten.

Carlmark's Mistake
Ten minutes of the first quarter had passed when Eli got his chance and took it. Parker loosed a beautiful spiral that rolled down to Army's 15-yard line. Army decided to kick an Army field goal. But the steady rain and cold wind did things to ball and player both. Fields tumbled. When he did kick finally the punt was blocked by Hare and Fly-gare recovered on the five-yard line. Parker and Dunn made a couple of yards, but the game was over. Numbered across for the score. Sullivan's drop-kick failed but an Army man, Carlmark, was off-side and the point was counted. That off-side later marked the difference between a tie and victory, cost Army the game.

It was the beginning of the second period when Albie Booth took the field, amid a mighty roar from the stands. It was a moment later when he left on a stretcher, limp and cold. Army had tried a pass which Booth intercepted. Tackled by two Army men he refused to stay down, and a third tackler decided for him. When Booth tried to gain his feet his legs gave beneath him like paper. And so the Blue went on without him and 77,000 spectators were left to answer a question themselves: Would Yale have won with Booth?

Hero for Moment
Sandy Weiner substituting for Booth punted out of bounds on Yale's 38-yard line. Then Army started. Stecker, Letzelter and Kilday ripped off 13 yards. Wendell Bowman, quarterback, made 12 yards on a fake reverse play, being stopped on Yale's 8. With four heart-breaking plunges, Army scored, Kilday carrying the ball on the last down. Then Charles Broshous was called in to substitute for Bowman. Without headgear or shoulder pads he came and coolly drop-kicked the goal that tied the score and sent the Army stands to their feet in a mighty cheer. Then he returned to the side-lines.

But that was all the scoring that was destined to be done that day. Without Booth the game lacked color. And the steady drizzle and bitter wind put a damper on the entire Bowl. As the 77,000 left the Bowl the main item of conversation centered about what the outcome would be. Many thought that the game had been won by Mr. Booth in the have-been there were who said the score would have been similar to that of last year when the midget beat the Army 21-13. Personally, we think not.

Eagles Win Junior Town Championship

The Eagles won their fourth straight game of the season, winning over the Cardinals of the North End by the score of 13-0. The game was a preliminary to the Majors-Brightwood game yesterday.

This clinches the junior title of the town, as the Eagles beat the South Ends two weeks ago by the score of 20-0 and the South Ends were the largest junior team over south.

The victory yesterday was scored with five regulars unable to play. Tyler, McGuire and Cappello were unable to even show up and Cope-land and Oloavage were injured in the beginning of the game and kept out for the remainder even though their injuries were found to be minor.

The line played exceptionally well, making large holes through which the backs gained much yardage, but penalties caused at least two touchdowns to be lost. Slaga, Fish and D. Mitchell ripped off first down after first down through the line with Slaga and Fish going over for touchdowns and Slaga plunging over for the extra.

SATURDAY'S COLLEGE BATTLES IN BRIEF

A fumble in the first three minutes of play paved the way for a touchdown and victory for a powerful Fordham eleven against an equally powerful N. Y. U. team in the Yankee Stadium in New York Saturday afternoon before a record crowd of 78,000 fans. The score was 7-0. Earl Tanguay of N. Y. U. fumbled on his 20-yard line and Fordham recovered on the four-yard stripe, Murphy going over for the touchdown.

Cambridge, Mass.—Dartmouth's steam roller line swept the big Green to another triumph when the Hanover eleven triumphed over Harvard by 7 to 2.

Dartmouth affected its only score in the first period and yielded a safety to Harvard in the second, but throughout the battle the superiority of the Green invaders was apparent.

Providence, R. I.—Brown's team, showing a complete comeback from the form displayed against Yale, overcame a 13 to 0 triumph over Holy Cross.

Gridiron Heroes

Leonard MacAulso, Colgate—Scored 28 points in Colgate's 40 to 0 rout of Penn State.
Harry Newman, Michigan—Threw two passes that ended in touchdowns and place kicked field goal against Illinois.
Zimmerman, Tulane—Scored one touchdown, placed ball in position for second and was main cog in Tulane's advances against Georgia Tech.
Paul Crehan, Dartmouth—Led Dartmouth's defense against Harvard drives.
Ralph Hewitt, Columbia—His 35-yard drop kick defeated Williams, 3 to 0.
Mills, Oklahoma—48-yard sprint for goal line defeated Kansas Aggies.
Charlie Haron, Southern Methodist—Ran opening kick off 90 yards for touchdown to lead S. M. U. to defeat over Indiana.
Henry Wentworth, Washington—Snatched California pass out of air and ran 75 yards for touchdown.

Middletown Wins 6-0 As Cubs "Blow" Three Fine Scoring Chances

Harrison's Warriors Triumph on Fitzpatrick-McCarthy Forward Pass; Make Brilliant Goal Line Defense Stands; Nearly 2,000 See Game.

Manchester's 1929 football champions went scoreless for the fourth time in five games played at Mt. Nebo yesterday afternoon and in doing so had their goal line crossed for the first time under the circumstances could be nothing short of a defeat. To the Middletown South Ends goes the honor of being the first eleven to perform this feat. The score was 6-0.

Led by Coach Walter Harrison who personally contributed much to stave off impending defeat, the Middletown aggregation scored the only touchdown of the bitterly fought struggle in the first quarter by a forward pass thrown by Eddie Fitzpatrick from the 30 yard line and caught by Captain Ken McCarthy just over the Manchester goal line. Another placement on a fake kick from placement was blocked on the extra point attempt thus giving the Cubs ample chance to come through with victory.

But the Cubs are as impatient as ever when they get within striking distance. On three occasions it seemed comparatively certain they would put over the tying touchdown yet in each instance they were held on downs inside the five yard line. Once the champions came within four inches of putting across a score. This was the first time they threatened to score. It took place in the super-thrilling third quarter. At the outset of this threat, Coach Harrison, former Cub tackle, went into the South End lineup to personally take charge of checking the Cub scoring gesture.

Although the Cub backfield operated from rather unwise short formations that gave the ball carrier no start before reaching the line, Middletown deserves a world of credit for being able to prevent a score so close to its goal line. The Cubs made a bad mistake in not giving "Wardie" Waterman the ball at the outset of this great chance for he was the one who almost single handed put the Cubs in scoring position. On the fourth down Eagleton dove to within four inches of a touchdown.

Speaking About Close!
The ball was so close to a touchdown that had it been rotated the forward point would have been above the final line and thus a touchdown were it possible to rotate the ball for measurement.

When Eagleton's forward progress was halted, however, the ball was resting at an angle that was slightly short of being lengthwise with the field. Twice later in the game the Cubs got inside Middletown's ten yard line with the goal to go for a touchdown but in each instance lost at the four yard line. Any team that can put up such a splendid defensive fight as that, deserves plenty of credit.

The Cubs outplayed the South Ends so far as first downs were concerned but that is about all. The margin in this respect was 10 to 4. Middletown made but one first down in the second half and that was solely due to a fifteen yard penalty. However during the last two periods, Eddie Fitzpatrick and "Chuckie" Minnicucci, two of their backfield ace, saw but little service. Fitzpatrick was badly injured at the close of the first half and only played the last few minutes of the fourth period. Minnicucci was banished at the start of the second half for taking a pass at Roger Spencer, Cub tackle. Middletown was penalized half the distance to the goal line on the play. Coach Kelley displayed good sportsmanship by taking Spencer out of the game at the same time although such a move was not necessary. Minnicucci had been playing a fine game up until the time he had a momentary mental lapse.

Middletown's touchdown came on a forward pass that should have been easily blocked. It was a high pass from Fitzpatrick after he had ducked the charging Spencer, that floated down serenely into McCarthy's hands. Ding Farr, Manchester halfback was drawn in on the play and at the last moment was unable to undo his fatal move. Later this game unfortunate player almost tied the score for the Cubs when his diving grasp with outstretched arms just failed to catch Eagleton's pass which was a trifle inaccurate.

Ten New Cubs
The Cubs used ten new players in effort to strengthen their team in preparation for the expected town series with the Majors next month. Four hailed from Providence. They were Flannigan who played with the Majors against the Okford's, Underwood, Fogerty and Thacker. From East Hartford came Flefka, former high school star, and Tom Conroy, brother of Pete Conroy, former Cub now with the Majors and Schwartz, formerly with the Hartford Giants. The other three were Club players, Tommy Happenny and Billy Skoneski, the latter having played several games with the Majors this season.

BOOTH WILL PLAY DARTMOUTH GAME

New Haven, Oct. 27.—(AP) — Albie Booth, Yale's pint-sized quarterback who was smacked by Army on the first play after he entered the game Saturday, may or may not be in shape to practice this afternoon, but the rest of the Blue squad will be on hand for a short workout.

Little Albie spent Saturday night and last night in the college infirmary nursing his injuries, but Yale officials say he will be ready for Dartmouth next Saturday.

Lindenberg, leftend, has recovered from his hurts and will be at practice today. Those who took part in the Army scrap came through in good shape.

A blackboard talk and light work will be on tap this afternoon. smearing many a play. Few gains were made by the South Ends around Skoneski's post. Conroy looked good at guard.

The officiating was of high caliber, Messrs. O'Loughlin, Messy and Wright, keeping the players well in hand by dealing out 103 yards in penalties. It was a 60-60 split with Middletown suffering the more reverses. The crowd was the first time this season encompassed the entire field, at close to 2,000. This was due to two facts, the unusually excellent weather and the fine attraction which the Middletown team affords football lovers.

The Cubs' lineup: L. Farr, Flannigan, lg; Spencer, T. Conroy, lt; Merrer, lg; Pentore, Vasco, c; Lessner, Happenny, Underwood, rg; Froetti, rt; Skoneski, Flefka, rb; Schwartz, Thacker, qb; D. Farr, St. John, lb; Eagleton, Dietz, rb; Waterman, Williams, Sargent, rb; Garty, fb.

Middletown South Ends: Radzwin, E. Casey, lg; Levens, Dooley, lt; Gayeski, lg; F. Casey, c; Storko, rg; Augustine, rt; McCarthy, re; Fitzpatrick, Claudet, qb; Gayeski, lb; Calano, Smiler, rb; Minnicucci, Claudet, fb.

Score by periods:
Middletown 6 0 0 0—6
Touchdown: McCarthy.

STRIB-CHRISTNER AT BOSTON FRIDAY

New York, Oct. 27.—(AP) — Young Stribley, Georgia's candidate for the heavyweight boxing title, headlines the Nation's boxing program this week, meeting K. O. Christner, of Akron, Ohio, in a ten-round setto at Boston, Friday night.

Christner is not expected to offer Stribley much of an argument but the fight is expected to draw a few more dollars than it would have in Newark, where it was originally set for last week.

Christner suddenly developed a knee injury on the day of the fight and it was postponed.

COOPER WINS $1,600
Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 27.—(AP) — Harry Cooper, Los Angeles, won $1,600 richer today through winning the first annual Salt Lake City $5,000 open golf tournament which closed with a 36-hole grind over the Salt Lake Country Club tomorrow.

CHAMBER'S ANNUAL SESSION ON NOV. 17

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

The Masonic Temple was chosen as the scene of the 30th annual meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce to be held Monday evening, November 17, at a conference of the meetings committee in the Chamber office this morning.

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

Tickets for the meeting will go on sale Wednesday of this week, closing Friday, November 14, three days before the affair.

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

One of the past presidents of the Chamber will act as chairman of the meeting, in keeping with the plan of the celebration of having all living past presidents seated at the head table as honored guests.

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

The principal item of business will be the election of officers, including six directors as members of the Board of Control. The nominating committee consisting of Charles McCann, Fayette B. Clarke, E. J. Murphy, John Jensen and C. F. Quimby, will meet this afternoon to prepare a slate of officers, which, according to the by-laws, must be posted in the Chamber office at least ten days before the annual meeting.

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

Of greatest interest perhaps to the membership as a whole will be the adoption of a work program for the next three years. The adoption of such a program was voted on at the last meeting held on October 20, and several meetings of the Board of Control will be held to prepare its recommendations to be presented to the members at the annual meeting.

Parish, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—An announcement was made here today of the engagement and forthcoming marriage of the Countess Ella Matuschka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin H. Walker of Detroit, and James H. Hyde of New York and Paris.

NEW HAVEN BLAZE. New Haven, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Fire believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, early today destroyed the Connecticut Plant and Putty Shop on Foxon road in the outskirts of the city. The losses were estimated at $35,000.

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

Flames swept through the three story frame structure as firemen summoned by two alarms found it futile to save the building.

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

At the outset the firemen who found the building enveloped in a mass of flames were handicapped by the lack of water pressure because of the distance of the hydrants from the scene. They were also forced to exercise caution because of frequent explosion of drums of oil.

Expect Big Attendance at Affair to be Held in Masonic Temple.

Motorists attracted by the flames which were visible for miles converged on the scene of the blaze to watch the firemen battle the blaze until daylight.

A THOUGHT

If iniquity be in thine hand, put it far away, and let not wickedness dwell in thy tabernacles.—Job 11:14. The happiness of the wicked passes away like a torrent.—Racine.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

All of a sudden Clowny cried, "Ouch! Ouch! I wish I hadn't tried that doughnut when it was so hot. It burned, and that's not sport. You know what would go good with these? I think a glass of milk would please. There is a creamery right near by. Let's go and get a quart." So, while more doughnuts were made brown, they bought the milk to wash them down. "Don't eat too many," said the Travel Man. "They'll make you ill." "Well, two's enough for me," said one. "And round about I think I'll run. I know I need some exercise, since I have had my fill." Then Scouty said, "I think that would do every one of us some good. Let's hike out in the country where there's lots of room to tear. We'll race around and jump and shout, like captive wild-cats, just let out. There's nothing makes you feel so good as breathing good, fresh air." Along a country road they ran.

ABOUT TOWN

The Tall Cedars of Lebanon will hold their regular meeting tonight in the Masonic Temple at 7:30.

Mrs. Doris Roy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Roy of Woodliff street, a student at Mount St. Joseph's Seminary, was home for the week end and with her parents Saturday afternoon attended the Yale-Army game at New Haven.

Clarence H. Anderson and Mrs. Katherine Jones attended the Yale-Army game at New Haven Saturday as guests of George R. Burton and Sons, general insurance agents.

A public bridge and whist party will be held tonight at Highland Park School. Prizes will be awarded for the highest and lowest scores turned in. They will play both bridge and whist. Refreshments will be served and all card players are invited to attend.

Sunset Rebekah and King David Lodge will conduct the second in their series of whist-dances Thursday evening of this week in Odd Fellows hall. The prizes will be in money, refreshments will follow the games and dancing will round out a full evening. Miss Emily Kissman heads the Rebekah committee and Loydon Clarke the Odd Fellows.

Miss Anna Rajune, formerly a nurse at the Memorial hospital but now at the Lutheran hospital in Brooklyn, is visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Rajune of 29 Elro street. Another sister, Miss Barbara Rajune of New Britain, spent the week-end with them.

The Ways and Means committee of the Buckland Parent-Teacher association, assisted by Mrs. Marion Pierce, principal, and one of the teachers, Miss Helen Crowe of the Buckland school will give a whist and dance in the school assembly hall this evening. The prizes will be cash and refreshments and dancing will follow the games. The Ways and Means committee is composed of Mrs. Andrew Healey, chairman; Andrew Healey, Miss Stephanie Tuskus, Frank Smith, Gustave Magnuson and E. S. Edgerton.

St. Margaret's Circle, Daughters of Isabella, will meet tomorrow evening in the Knights of Columbus clubrooms. The business meeting will begin at 7:30 and will be followed with a bridge and whist for the members and their friends. The committee in charge includes Mrs. Bessie Birney, Mrs. Teresa Buckley, Mrs. Mary Brown and Mrs. Alice Burke. Refreshments will be served at the close of the games.

Mrs. Howard Keeney of McCabe street entertained a party of 15 small boys and girls at her home Saturday from 6 to 8 p. m. in honor of the birthday of her small daughter, Barbara, who was six years old yesterday. The decorations, favors and games were all appropriate to the approach of Halloween. Barbara was remembered with many pretty gifts.
